The rains beat the circus to town And the Big Top was topless.

But that didn't seem to dampen the spirits of the troupers. The show went on despite the gray, sometimes drizzly Saturday afternoon sky and the dearth of circus-goers. But it got rained out that night. Maybe the sun will shine today

'Popcorn! Peanuts!" yelled a young hawker, who would part with a carton or sack for a quarter.

'Snowcone! Strawberry!" said another, Sissy Risoli, but with less The bleachers were about a fifth

Jason Yeager, 5, weren't bored. Nor were they eagerly waiting for the show to begin The were firing corks from their pop guns. Michael turned around in his box seat, cocked the mini-rifle, and took careful aim

"Don't, either," Michael replied Pow! Out popped the cork, which stopped at the end of the string. Jerry Yeager didn't topple.

The two "outlaws" shifted hold-up spots and continued popping their circus-bought ($2.50 each) pop guns. The double-barrel jobs are a buck more. The ringmaster cranked up the two-hour show. The band, which was the only thing under a tent, sounded off, and a couple of clowns clowned

David accord splits Arabs

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — More than 100,000 cheering Egyptians welcomed President Anwar Sadat home Saturday while in Damascus, other Arab leaders put the final touches on a "rejectionist" plan to undermine the Camp David accords.

In Jordan, King Hussein reiterated his country's objections to the U.S.engineered peace proposals and chastised Sadat for suggesting that Egypt might go it alone and negotiate an agreement over the West Bank without Jordanian participation in peace

Also, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who is trying to sell the Camp David accords to the Arabs, played tourist for a day in Saudi Arabia after being forced to put off for 24 hours a meeting in Damascus with Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Syria is the final stop on the secretary's Mideast mission. He has already talked with the Saudis and Jordan's Hussein, making a bid for support for the accords but receiving no commitments.

At a news conference in Amman Saturday, Hussein repeated his country's objections to the new a ments saying they do not provide for total Israeli withdrawal from Arab lands or for the right of Palestinians to establish their own state in those lands. He said he would join the peace process only if the accords were moIn Egypt, Sadat was swamped by thousands of well-wishers at an airport reception attended by the entire Egyptian Cabinet and all 360 members of Parliament. Security police were forced to push the crowds aside so Sadat could reach his car for the ride into Cairo.

Sadat's had flown in from Morocco, where he spent three days talking with King Hassan II without winning that moderate Arab leader's public support.

In Damascus, leaders of the Palestine Liberation Organization and four hard-line Arab states opposed to the Camp David accords met for a fourth day to complete a "final political

Planning key to proper growth

EDITOR'S NOTE: Part of the story of "Midland on the Move" is planning for orderly absorption of growth. The city Planning Department is charged with helping the City Council and Planning and Zoning Commission cope with growth. In the Reporter-Telegram's continued effort to tell Midland's story, the department's director, Richard Hennessy, discusses the philosophy behind that process and steps to ensure orderly growth.

By LINDA HILL R-T Staff Writer

"Every city has a plan," according to Richard Hennessy, director of planning for the city of Midland. But what is Midland's plan to cope with rapid growth?

Hennessy looks at the city's accelerated rate of growth as an "opportunity for different things.

But, at the same time, such growth "makes planning...more important because things happen so fast. If those things are good, that's fine.

But, if the direction of growth creates problems, they mount at a rapid rate, he added.

WHAT'S HAPPENING in Midland, Hennessy said, is "we're experiencing some types of development we haven't seen in recent years" - retail services, more diverse types of housing and more residential develop-

There are two basic approaches to city planning, Hennessy said - a formal plan or an informal collection of policies and procedures. "A little bit of both is good.

The most recent "master plan" for Midland's growth was put together in 1970. But, Hennessy said, the "extraordinary growth" since the Arab oil embargo already has made it ob-

Midland on the move

Work has commenced on another one, but "immediate problems" have kept the often-overloaded city planning department from completing it for presentation to the city Planning and Zoning Commission.

The master plan is designed to be an "organization for coping with growth," the city planner said. "It's not detailed enough to apply to dayto-day and week-to-week development decisions

"PLANNING IN MY VIEW is most important when a subdivision plan is submitted by a developer.' Whether the plan is good, in Hennessy's view, is determined by "application of planning work and plan-

For instance, while Hennessy be lieves it is necessary for the city to have "some general policies" about development, "it's not realistic for the city to plan in great detail how these (new) areas should be developed. Rather, he said, it is the city's job to review those plans (by the developer) and see how they fit into the big picture The situation is somewhat different for already-developed areas, howev-

"WHEN AN AREA has substantially developed according to a certain pattern, it's generally disruptive to thrust something in that's foreign to that area," Hennessy said. That's where zoning fits in.

But, he pointed out, the City Council does approve zoning changes at every council meeting. The determining factor in deciding on a proposed change, he said, is if it is dictated by a change of the character of the area or a better idea from a developer.

In Midland now, most of the growth is in the north and northwest portion of the city - west of Big Spring Street and north of Andrews Highway according to Hennessy

"Obviously we're growing 'out'." But there also is a trend for the city to grow 'up' in the form of high-rise office buildings and to fill in areas where there have been vacant tracts in already-developed areas." he

By JIM SERVATIUS R-T Managing Editor

With almost two months of Midland under our belt, we're feeling more and more at home in the Tall City. And, as we mentioned earlier in this newspaper, people are the "Friendly and hospitable" probably describes Midlanders best and we couldn't have been more impressed than we were with those we've met so far.

A couple of weeks ago we visited over lunch in the splendid dining room of First National Bank with LaDoyce Lambert. Now an officer at First National, LaDoyce is a former managing editor of The Reporter-Telegram. He gave us quite a bit of insight as to what to expect both in and of Midland and if what LaDoyce says is true, it's going to be great. He must rank as one of the Tall City's biggest resident boosters.

Then on Friday, along with The Reporter-Telegram's Lou Lindsey, we had lunch with Boley Embrey. president of Western State Bank and Charles Danley, executive vice president. Both were great company and know something about Plainview, our hometown for the past 18 years, so we had that in common from the start.

Embrey is also a friend of J.B. and Kathryn Wheeler of Plainview. Wheeler having recently served a stint as president of the Texas Bankers Association. When we left that city they gave us a beautiful house plant which immediately took a turn for the worse. But the move to Midland apparently came just in time. Since arriving here the plant has recovered and almost doubled in height, much to the delight of our spouse

Perhaps that's an omen

.FOR OBVIOUS REASONS, the Plainview-Midland Lee football game Friday night was of special interest to us but we were in an unenviable position when it came to whom to root for. You can't change the loyalties of almost 20 years overnight-or even in two months-but. still Midland is our home now

Maybe the result was the best possible one for us. Midland Lee won. 16-14, but Plainview's Bulldogs put up

...OF COURSE WE'RE still in the process of finding what Midland has to offer and those are many. One of our favorite discoveries has been the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum. Library and Hall of Fame which we visited with R-T Oil Editor Joe Salman.

We recommend it highly to anyone. newcomer or not, who hasn't seen it and especially to those who might think an oil museum will be boring

Far from it. The displays are colorful, interesting, educational and anything but dull. The section on ancient underwater fossil formations. forerunners of what now runs our cars, was particularly dramatic. Homer Fort, museum director, has done an outstanding job in planning. securing and coordinating exhibits. And he's a gracious host to boot

So whether you're involved in the oil business or not, this impressive facility is something you shouldn't

SPEAKING OF OIL, the subject in general and Midland in particular can't help but remind us of what probably was one of our family's biggest financial fiascoes. It involved the sale of a half section of land south of Vernon that bordered on the fabulous Waggoner Estate oil fields and which itself contained seven or eight produc-

Our own land was in an estate and as the number of heirs multiplied the number of days in which pumping was allowed dwindled. It finally got to the point that the return hardly justified the expense involved so the decision was made to sell the land and with it, of course, the wells. Why not? Oil probably never would be worth any more than it was then.

The next year the Arab countries launched their now famous oil em-

.. A LONGTIME FRIEND, former State Highway Commissioner Marshall Formby, now an attorney and radio station owner, sends this note:

'Today my heart beat 103,389 times. I breathed 23,040 times, I inhaled 438 cubic feet of air. I spoke 4.800 words, moved 750 major muscles and exercised 7,000,000 brain cells. I'm tired!

Maybe we all should remember those statistics when we're feeling not quite up to par for no obvious reason.

SEVERAL YEARS ago the Reporter-Telegram conducted a reader survey. One of its purposes was to find out which features were best read, which ranked at the bottom and what readers did and did not like about the R-T. In some cases, the results virtually crossed each other out, an almost equal number of people feeling positively about a particular feature as negatively

In others, feelings of readers were clearly defined and as a result a number of changes and im provements were made.

But surveys aren't necessary in order for you to let us know what you'd like to see more-or less-of in your Reporter-Telegram. We may not be able to do something in each case but we do want to know how you feel and the door is always open for suggestions. So give us a call or send us a

Was it 'speed psychosis' that twisted Powell's super brain?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The "counter-culture" was in full bloom when David Lee Powell, valedictorian of his senior class in Campbell near Greenville, arrived at the University of Texas

He had a genius IQ and knew enough English, math and chemistry to skip freshman courses in those subjects.

It was 1968. The campus was in turmoil. "Street people" flocked to its environs. Austin was known as a major drug market.

Powell scored a phenomenal 1,525 out of a possible 1,600 points on the Scholastic Aptitude Test for admission to UT.

But defense lawyers, friends and family members say something twisted that high-powered brain. Otherwise, they say, Powell would not have riddled Patrolman Ralph Ablanedo with a machine gun-like AK-47 automatic rifle on May 18.

Powell, 27, could be strapped to a hospital stretcher at Huntsville State Prison and injected with a fatal dose of sodium thiopental if convicted.

Testimony in his capital murder trial resumes Monday with psychiatric testimony

Defense lawyers lean heavily on Powell's use of methamphetamine also called "speed," "crystal," 'crank,'' "meth" and other names on the street

They claim he was mentally ill as far back as 1969, that mental illness ran in his family and that "speed psychosis" made it even worse.

After his auspicious entry into the University's high-prestige Plan II program with plans to become a scientist or doctor, something happened to Powell, witnesses said.

In his sophomore year, the straight A's dropped to F's. He caught hepatitis and quit school. His mother already knew he was experimenting with marijuana and peyote. But she knew of nothing stronger.

"I felt he was becoming more and

Hummingbird feeders should be taken down

Persons in the Permian Basin who feed Hummingbirds should take their feeders down as soon as sunny weather returns to the region, according to Midge Erskine of the Eos Bird Rehabilitation Center in Midland

'The first cold snap is nature's way of telling the birds it's time to move south," Mrs Erskine said.

'If you keep your feeder up, the birds don't leave and can get caught in the cold weather and

Persons can put their feeders back up after Thanksgiving without bee guards. House Finches and the Orioles that remain in the area will feed from the feeders at that time, she added.

Chamber to seek lease of land for construction

Chamber of Commerce is expected to request lease of a piece of city land when the Midland City Council meets at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Council Chambers at City Hall.

The land is wanted for constructing a building. The chamber has asked the city to lease it a piece of land north of the proposed downtown exhibit center for a convention bureau.

The council also is scheduled to consider an ordinance on second reading approving a rate increase for Texas Electric Service Co. At the last council meeting Sept. 12, the council approved a 6.7 percent rate hike instead of the 24.4 percent requested by the utility firm.

On the agenda for consideration is a resolution authorizing the city to file a grant application with the Department of Transportation and another resolution approving plans and specifications for an additional nine-hole golf course at Hogan Park

The Finance Department has submitted an ordinance to establish new rates for commercial and residential refuse collection. Also to be considered is an ordinance continuing the 1 percent local sales and use tax on gas and electric sales for residential use

In the area of aviation, the council is expected to consider awarding a contract for fencing an arecil to consider extending water and sewer service into an area north of Airport 20 and west of the regional airport prop-

TESCO has asked the council to consider authorizing a right-of-way license to install a line to serve the new pro shop building at Hogan Park

The city council also is expected to consider several citizens' requests to advertise tracts of Airpark property

Under planning and zoning, Q-L Corporation is scheduled to ask for a waiver of sidewalk requirements in connection with Courtyard II apartments on Neely Ave. and Pecos Street.

more part of the counter-culture, the hippie crowd, and less and less oriented to regular life," said Dr. Clemens Struve, his uncle, who said Powell needed psychiatric care as long ago as 1969.

From 1970 to 1977, Powell dropped in and out of the university. Once he left home without telling anyone where he was going. He turned up in New Orleans.

Donette Moss, his Plan II counselor, said Powell's grades were either straight A's or strings of F's and drops but he has enough credits to graduate "if he wants to.

She said she became close friends with Powell, whom she found "very sweet and very loving" but also "very gullible" and a "follower not a leader." And drugs were a "major problem" at UT when the dairy farm boy from Campbell enrolled, she said. Starting three years ago, she said, his appearance became scruffy — a marked change from the "very neat person" he had been. His conversation "lacked continuity."

His mother says the wild-eyed. stringy-haired man with a smudge of beard on his chin who was arrested May 18 wasn't the son she knew.

WEST TEXAS: Scattered showers and a few thunder-storms, locally heavy in south portion, spreading north-ward over entire area through Sunday night. Rain ending from the west Monday. Low Sunday night mid 30s to low 60s, except near 30 mountains. High Sunday and Monday mostly in the 70s.

NORTH TEXAS: Considerable morning cloudiness, otherwise partly cloudy and mild through Monday. Low Sunday night from 62 northwest to 70 extreme southeast. High Sunday and Monday around 80 extreme southwest to 89 east.

SOUTH TEXAS: Considerable cloudiness through Monday from the lower and middle coasts into the Hill Country and along the Rio Grande with occasional showers and thunderstorms. Locally heavy rainfall may cause some flooding along lower coast and Rio Grande Valley. Partly cloudy along the upper coast and south-eastern Texas through Monday with scattered showers and thundershowers, mainly in the afternoon and evening. Continued warm days southeast with gradual warming trend for the rest of South Texas into Monday. Low Sunday night 60s and 70s. High Sunday from 70s in Hill Country and Rio Grande Valley to near 90 southeastern Texas. High Monday near 80 Hill Country and along Rio Grande to near 90 southeast.

UPPER COAST: Northeast winds 15 to 20 knots Sunday and Sunday night. Winds briefly gusty Sunday afternoon, Seas 6 to 10 feet and rough Sunday, Winds and seas higher near scattered showers and thundershowers through Sunday night. Dense fog during the late night and morning will create a hazard to navigation. Small action, if any, will be taken on the proposal.

One developer, Clyde Brown, thinks he has a solution to further clogging of downtown - building more than 20 acres of high-rise office buildings on FM 868 — across from the planned Midland Park Mall and on the planned north loop around Midland. Crestgate Office Park, Brown said, would not be intended to draw tenants from existing downtown buildings. Instead, it would be an alternative for businesses which might locate in Midland in the future, he said.

"We do have a problem with downtown parking now. We don't want to add to the problem. We are proud of downtown Midland. We would want to do nothing to interfere with growth," Brown said.

Hennessy said he thinks city government is managing to keep up with growth in providing planning services, although sometimes the staff gets behind in studying subdivision

WHAT NEEDS to be done to make sure planning continues to keep up with growth?

Hennessy advocates four steps: First, he said, the city's development ordinances need to be updated to accommodate new types of housing, such as town houses. Such a proposed ordinance now is before the Planning and Zoning Commission.

Second, building code ordinances need to be updated, he said. The city's Building and Inspection Division is compiling recommendations on that

Another priority, Hennessy said, is annexing new areas northHof the city where development is "essentially urban but in larger tracts...We would expect to bring that matter (annexation) before the council in the not-toodistant future."

FINALLY, the city needs to prepare general development plans streets to provide "good access" to new areas as they develop.

Is Midland growing too fast? "Midland is growing at a very, very rapid rate. This rate does make it difficult to cope...It does make a considerable

Failure to anticipate needs not only can cause inconvenience later, but also is expensive. Thus, good planning now later saves money that otherwise might be necessary to provide new streets, utilities or parks, he makers," Galumbo said, "we'd be millionaires by now.

The Clyde Bros.-Carden-Johnson Circus has met with rain or drizzle at more performances than Galumbo cared to remember. The traveling circus, which winters at Seagoville in Dallas County, carries it rigging and show to about 25 states in its February-to-November tour.

You could still hear the "Toga, Toga" chant the crew was mimicking from that rascal of an entertainingly derelict movie, "Animal Galumbo was definitely not Anglo. 'Where did you come from?" came the query.

"From home," he jokingly replied in his Magyar accent. "I'm from

"I'm hungry," said Dean Francis, who said he, like many of the circus hands, is "a jack of all trades but a master of none.

Galumbo topped that. "You guys are nothing, and I'm boss over nothing. Time was nearing for the crew to spread over the grounds - the baseball diamond - and take care of their well-rehearsed chores and keep watch over the maze of beams, poles, nets, high-line wires, trapezes and stakes that make up their rigging. "We have some hard times, sometimes," said Galumbo, who appeared to be in his mid-30s. "But it's all forgotten when you come to a nice place." Pretty soon, the "toga" gang climbed out of the dug-out and began their work routine in helping out the acts. Some did more. David Conner did some juggling during a balancing act. Robert Mekkes put the three elephants through their usual circus paces.

The show went on.

Presently, Galumbo, his wife, Doris, and their 9-year-old son, Frankie, did some applause-getting aerial routines. The son did a hand-stand.

The "Famous Cuccillo," who also works with the lions, elephants and you-name-it, carried out his clownful act on the trampoline.

Spain's "The Great Gilberto," who's billed as the "king of the bouncing rope," bounced.

The Shetland pony raced around the proud and unrushed llamas and did a few spins in pirouette-like circles. The Flying Iberras Family from Brazil showed the strenuous and graceful art of timing on the flying trapeze. The Flying Carrolls did like-

Some mist fell about halfway in the performance, and spectators, perhaps fearing a downpour, left. Corkpoppers Michael Cappadonna and Jason Yeager had vanished.

The show was running down. But before the bleachers were entirely emptied, Ringmaster Plunkett reminded the folks of today's performances at 2:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. at Hogan Park's Cubs Stadium.

The band once again struck up, and the ringmaster, sounding like a Milton Berle, sang, predictably, "There's No Business Like Show Business."

After a lengthy period of budget study, the United Way Board of Directors has set a goal of $928,686 for the 1979 campaign. Planning for the campaign is a year-round event, but the budgeting process for the member agencies started back in May so the goal could be set. Active planning for the various aspects of the campaign has been under way since August. One of the first events to take place was the loaned executive training in August. The loaned executives are a group of business people who volunteer their time to explain the United Way program to groups of employees at various businesses during the campaign.

United Way officials also have been working to line up "pilot firms" to get the campaign off to a running start.

United Way workers have been taking key employees from the pilot firms on tours of the member agencies to show them their dollars at work. These key employees then take the message back to their First report meeting for the campaign is scheduled for Oct. 4, with weekly reports until the Oct. 27 victory meeting.

Modification favored by Chamber

ABILENE - The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has gone on record as favoring modification of the Endangered Species Act of 1973.

The regional chamber, according to Ed Coltharp, executive vice president, called for amendments to insure that practicable means would be used to minimize threats to endangered speciea and halt unreasonable enforcement which accelerates inflation, raises taxes and lowers the living standards of the

The WTCC action was prompted by the substantial increase of official listings of endangered species since the act was adopted and adverse economic impact brought about by unreasonable interpretation and enforcement of the act.

In 1973, Coltharp said, there were 109 species on the endangered list. It had increased to 698 by mid-1978, with 1,991 proposed for addition. The Interior Department has received petitions suggesting 24,000 additional species of plants, animals and insects for inclusion under the act, Coltharp aaid. The WTCC position points out that the act provides those responsible for its enforcement and interpretation extremely wide latitude while at the same time pledging to exercise practicality in enforcement. Enforcement of the act has resulted

The chamber executive went on to say that WTCC has been a leader in efforts to conserve and protect the environment and that adverse impacts on nature should be held to a minimum, but that the overall benefits which man may receive also must be considered.

Deregulation said assured

WASHINGTON (AP) - Approval of a natural gas deregulation bill that is part of President Carter's 17-month-old energy program is now assured, Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd said Saturday. Byrd, saying support for the bill is now "over the top," predicted that from 52 to 60 of the Senate's 100 members would vote for the bill on a scheduled 1 p.m. EDT Wednesday final vote.

He also told reporters that any motions by opponents be-tween now and then to return the measure to committee would also be defeated by a similar margin.

Although the legislation at one time appeared in serious jeopar-dy in the Senate, an all-out lobbying campaign by the White House turned the situation

The bill would gradually increase the price of newly discovred gas until 1985, when the price lids would be removed entirely.

London weather likely As Midland goes into what well may become its sixth straight day of drizzling rain, residents are beginning to consider the possibility someone moved more of London than the bridge to the Southwest.

The likelihood of rain, showers and thunderstorms today is 50 percent, dropping to 40 percent night, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Rain is to end Monday, with the chance of precipitation dropping to less than 20 percent then. Intermittent rain and drizzle have been wetting the parched earth since Tuesday, when an official 0.09 inch fell at the weather bureau. Since then, officials there have registered almost 2.50 inches of moisture However, some parts of Midland and the surrounding area received more than 5 inches of rain during a single 18-hour period of generally steady but light rain from around dusk Wednesday through noon Thurs-

Light rainfall and drizzle was falling over much of the Midland-Odessa area late Saturday. The weather bureau reported .08 inch of moisture Saturday, but .2 inch fell in downtown Midland.

"Just a little drizzle (is falling) now." Andrews County Sheriff's dispatcher Katie Spear said Saturday night. "Everything is going to mold. We're going to have moss growing on everything," she said. Like Midland, Andrews had had a rainy week. She likened the recent weather to that of Louisiana's.

Lamesa reported "a real light mist that starts and stops," and Stanton dittoed with a "little bit of drizzle."

Rankin was getting "a fine mist and at other times, it'd almost rain." Odessa was receiving a "slight rain" Saturday, and Big Lake a "light mist." Around Big Lake and most of West Texas, farmers and ranchers have been trying to "make a go" into the area's second straight year of drought. The recent moisture, however, seems to be a mixed blessing.

"The ranchers are pleased, but the farmers are unhappy," said a Big Lake weather observer. Cotton farmers now need hot weather to help the cotton mature for picking. The growing season is past.

But, like the ranchers, farmers will be benefiting next year by the underground seasoning (soil moisture). "They were talking about getting disaster relief from the drought a a month ago," he said. "Now they (the farmers) are talking about getting it from the rain.' Temperatures today should rise somewhat above Saturday's high of 65, with a predicted high in the mid-70s. The low tonight is expected to dip to near 60, a little warmer than Saturday's 57. The relatively cool weather is in contrast with last year's about this time, when Midland recorded nine out of 10 consecutive days of 100- to 105-degree weather. The 105 came on Sept. 26.

And the only rainfall noted during that period was a trace on Sept. 28, the weatherman said.

The normal rainfall for September is 1.54 inches. This month to date, 3.59 inches have been gauged officially.

Musical canceled

EAST HADDAM, Conn. (AP) — The Goodspeed Opera House has canceled its run of a new musical by playwright Arthur Miller and is refunding more than $100,000 to ticket

Michael Price, executive director of the theater, said Friday a number of revisions in the script and lyrics made it impossible for the musical, "Up From Paradise," to open for its three-week run Nov. 8.

The musical is based on Miller's play "The Creation of the World and Other Business," a comedy which ran for 20 performances on Broadway in

"Up From Paradise" was almost sold out by the time the production was canceled, theater officials said. Miller, who wrote both the script and the lyrics, is on a tour of China and will not return to this country until

Apartheid foes charge white terrorism

By SERGE SCHMEMANN

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South African critics of apart-heid claim they are facing with increasing frequency terrorism from

There's Harold Strachan, for examle. His wife opened the door to their Durban home recently and a tense, shirtless blond man squeezed off a shot at Strachan, missing his head by fractions of an inch. Now he works with a pistol at his hip and a shotgun within reach.

Strachan, 53, a bearded art instructor, had been jailed in the early 1960s for planting bombs and then banned and rebanned until 1975.

Being banned means a person is restricted to his or her home at night and on weekends. A banned person cannot meet groups of people, make public statements or be quoted in the South African media.

Within a week of the Strachan attack on Aug. 10, someone fired two shotgun blasts through the front windows of the Johannesburg home of Mrs. Helen Joseph, 73, a long-res-tricted civil rights activist.

That same night someone tried to set fire to the car of Beyers Naude, banned head of the outlawed Christian Institute.

The police commissioner, Gen. Mike Geldenhuys, vowed after the attacks to "go all out to put an end to

But police have arrested no suspects. Except for one or two isolated cases, they have not solved any of the more than 600 attacks recorded over the past 12 years on critics of apartheid, the official government policy of race segregation.

The secret terror campaign has ranged from midnight death threats and obscene telephone calls to slogans daubed on walls, skinned family cats on the front stoop, unordered loads of cement on the driveway, smashed windows, shotgun blasts in the night and murder.

In contrast to white terrorism, the escalating struggle by leftist black militants against South Africa's white-minority government is strongly countered by security police. Hundreds of blacks are detained without trial in South Africa and more than 100 are on trial on various terror-

But until recently the assaults on prominent white liberals - went largely unnoticed, in part because few resulted in injury or death and in part because they were overshadowed by official bannings, jailings and crackdowns.

Several events this year changed

-On Jan. 8, a gunshot blast through his window killed Rick Turner, a 36year-old academic nearing the end of a five-year banning order in Durban. The former lecturer and political activist at Natal University was the first and so far only fatality among the victims of white terrorism.

While legally prevented from making public statements and partially restricted to his home, Turner en-dured five years of clandestine persecution ranging from obscene phone calls to finding his lawn smothered in -That same month, banned East London newspaper editor Donald Woods fled South Africa with his family and publicly claimed that mem-bers of the security police had harassed him both before and during his banning.

Five shots had been fired at his house, and his 5-year-old daughter broke out in a rash after putting on a T-shirt impregnated with a skin irri-tant. The T-shirt was received in the mail as a gift.

At least two other victims - Strachan and author Alan Paton — have openly alleged police complicity in attacks on them.

Police dismiss allegations of collaboration and deny laxity in tracking perpetrators. They have suggested that at least some of the attacks were invented by the victims, and that the culprits may be isolated extremists.

But Mrs. Joseph, for one, is convinced that the attacks are "highly "listed" - or prevented from being quoted in the local press.

"I couldn't begin to tell you how many times I've been harrassed," she said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press. "Scores and scores. They've tried to steal my car, they've put ads to sell my house, they've tried to put a bomb in my driveway."

Mrs. Joseph said the calls and attacks usually follow a public speech she frequently makes to student

Other victims have included students, professors, churchmen, politicians and writers. Among them are such prominent publicists as Woods and Percy Qoboza and liberal churchmen such as Naude and Roman Cath-olic Archbishop Denis Hurley of Cape

Dr. Alex Boraine, an opposition parliamentarian from the Cape, re-ceived a funeral wreath last year reading: "Your wife can expect one of these in the near future."

Boraine, Mrs. Joseph and most of the others are fairly prominent. But some of the victims, such as Turner and Strachan, have been out of the political picture for years and are by their own description "political dino-

The major apparent pattern in the attacks is that many of the victims are or have been restricted for political activities. About 700 South Africans are under some form of restriction, ranging from house arrest to limits on public statements.

Lacking hard evidence, the best explanation may have been offered by Turner's widow Foszia when she said: "My husband was caught up in the spiral of violence building up in

Market limited for earthworms

By CHARLES GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent

THE BEST RAINS of the season fell in Midland County and the West Texas area last week. Too late to be of much benefit to this year's crops, the moisture will improve the long range outlook for agriculture in the area. The moisture is timely for the establishment of small grain crops for grazing. grain and wind erosion protoction. The amount of rainfall received will provide some replenishment of subsoil reserves of moisture that had been so severly depleted during the past two years of drought con-

ON OUR RECENT FARM TOUR we stopped at an earthworm rearing operation. In some recent months there have been many inquiries about this enterprise and its income producing possibilities. Many claims have been made concerning the market potential for earthworms but the fact is that beyond their use as sport fish bait, their uses are limited. Some claims for using earthworms that have little support are these:

Earthworms as food or feed additives. Due to cost. major cat and dog food manufacturers are not conducting extensive research. Fresh earthworms cost $2. per pound and are 80 percent moisture. So, dried earthworms cost $10 per pound. This dried material varies from 64 to 70 percent protein and is comparable to essential amino acids to fish at 15 to 25 cents per pound or soybean meal at 7 to 10 cents per

Earthworms for agricultural land development. About 500 pounds of earthworms are required per acre for most soil types. If "poor land" is purchased at $200 per acre, then $1,000 worth of earthworms should be added. At least three tons of cow manure per acre would be required annually to feed these

Earthworms for garbage disposal. This usage has considerable appeal from an environmental standpoint, but no major market has developed. Problems associated in using earthworms for garbage disposal in California include these: Glass, metal, plastics and other non-biodegradeables must be removed. Since fresh garbage has noticeable odors and presents a considerable fly problem, it would probably require an enclosed facility. Although there is some garbage shrinkage (one-third of volume and one-half of weight), a large portion of this is moisture loss. After reduction of the garbage, it is still necessary to dispose of about one-half ton of worm manure per ton of original garbage. Value of this manure is probably not over $10 per son.

So the biggest use of earthworms is for sport fishing. This is a large and stable market and can provide some income. However, competition is increasing, and labor is a major requirement. As far as production is concerned, normal harvests are generally below 0.4 pound of earthworms per square foot each 30 days. For a standard bed 3 feet by 8 feet, this results in an average harvest for beginning growers of 25 to 30 pounds peryyear.

After several years, experienced growers can get about 100 pounds of earthworms per year from the same bed. So, with this in mind, individuals interested in raising earthworms for sale should proceed slowly and search out sound information on production and marketing.

GARDEN CHECK LIST for October: Keep falling leaves raked from the lawn area and place them on the compost pile. They must be kept well wetted or they won't decompose.

If you haven't already done so, make selections of spring flowering bulbs now. The can be planted any time except tulips, which should be refrigerated for 6-8 weeks before planting.

Clean up annual beds, remove dead plants and debris as these provide excellent cover for overwintering insects.

Make not of any scale infestations on holly, euonymus and similar plants. Orthene or Diazinon will provide fair control, but be prepared to use a dormant oil in January or February for these stubborn insects.

For color in the winter landscape, slect started vlants of the following as soon as they become available in the garden center or nursery and plant in your flower beds: Dianthus or pinks, snapdragons, pansies, flowering kale, flowering cabbage and calendula.Others you may try are sweet alyssum, Iceland poppy and African daisy.

Cardboard salvage profitable business

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) - Steve Johnson is somewhat of an alchemist. He turns old, brown cardboard into fresh, green money.

In the last eight years, Johnson, 24, has built himself a $100,000 business hauling away other people's junk cardboard for recycling.

He started his pickup service at the age of 16 on weekends, while still in school. He used his dad's pickup truck. As the boss of "Steve's Cardboard Salvage," he has a fleet of five trucks and employs five young men. Two are his brothers, Keith, 22, and Terry,

Johnson makes free pickups at a variety of stores - furniture warehouses, supermarkets, office supply houses, meat-packing companies.

He sells the discards to a cardboard manufacturing firm in St. Paul, at a current price of around $15 a

Junk cardboard doesn't always reach the big metal discard boxes and the alleys in good condi-

"Sometimes, when I get it, it's contaminated. It may be soiled by food, or oil or grease, and perhaps it lay out in the rain," said Johnson. "If it's real bad I usually have their rubbish man take it away.

"You live and learn, and I pretty much know what I can use and can't use." Johnson has bought most of his trucks new, and in the kind of stop-and-go driving his men do the vehicles take punishment. And, of course, there's the fuel cost. Still, Johnson makes out fairly well, he says, and grossed $110,000 last year. He estimates he'll take in about $150,000 this year. Before getting into the junk business, he was a paper boy as a youth, made fishing flies and worked in gas stations. He's planning to continue his hauling business indefinitely. Johnson and his wife have two chil-

Speed limit unpopular but achieving purpose

By GUY SULLIVAN R-T Staff Writer

"I hate it," said a truck driver of the 55 mph speed

"I don't like the 55 mph speed limit because our truck has to go at least 62-65 mph to operate well and use fuel efficiently," said another independent-operator from South Carolina passing through Midland Saturday night on his way to California.

Despite opposition from many truckers and other motorists, the federal government contends the 55 mph National Maximum Speed Limit, initiated in 1974, has saved many lives and gallons of fuel.

The U.S. Department of Transportation has published several pamphlets detailing the success of the

ONE SUCH PUBLICATION said: "In 1973 54,515 men, women and children were killed in traffic accidents in the United States. The following year, the toll was 45,763 - the most dramatic drop in fatalties since World War II."

The same federal agency pamphlet said the 55 mph speed limit has resulted in 17 to 40 percent

Overall, the Federal Highway Administration estimates that the 55 mph speed limit is saving the country over four million gallons of gas a day or almost 1.5 billion gallons a year.

"That is about 11/2 percent of the total gas we consume. If everyone adhered to the speed limit the savings could be doubled," the pamphlet said.

In the Permian Basin and in the 24 counties men of the Department of Public Safety's Texas Highway Patrol must patrol, officials say the speed limit is far from universally observed.

"PEOPLE CONTINUE to drive faster and we receive more and more accidents," said Captain Hugh Shaw of the Texas Highway Patrol Midland

"If people drive 55 mph, then there is no question that this would save a lot of lives," he said.

He recalled highway patrolmen statewide found motorists responded positively to the newly initiated 55 mph speed limit back in 1974-75.

When it was first started, people continued to obey. Later, they continued to drive faster which caused an increase in accidents," he said.

"BACK WHEN they went into a period of a scarcity of gasoline, people would make long lines to get gasoline for their vehicles. Now it seems many people don't comply," said Shaw.

"A majority of people do not comply with the 55 mph speed limit law now, despite the fact it has lowered accident fatalties. Now people claim there is

If fuel should become scarce again, Shaw said, he is sure people would obey the 55 mph speed limit.

"If the estimated 11/2 billion gallons of gasoline saved each year by the national speed limit is correct, then at 60-cents a gallon, the public is saving about $900 million a year in gasoline costs.—Department of Transportation.

However, at the present time, he said, "I don't feel people will slow down from the standpoint of safe-

The federal government claims as a result of the 55 mph speed limit, the nation is saving 11/2 billion gallons of gas a year.

The U.S. Department of Transportation claims support for the 55 mph speed limit comes from such groups as the Teamsters Union and American Trucking Association.

THE 55 MPH speed limit came about as a result of "formidable roadblock American motorists ran into in October 1973," a federal government pamhlet

That "formidable roadblock" was the embargo on oil exports which caused an energy crisis in America. The Oil Producing and Exporting Countries imposed that embargo.

The impact on America was described by one federal official as "staggering." What resulted was ervice stations displaying "out of gas" signs in 1973 In addition, limited fuel purchases were transacted, service stations shortened their hours and hiked their prices, and, by October, drivers faced long lines in many places when they wanted to fill the tanks of their vehicles.

As a result, on Jan. 2, 1974, the Emergency Highway Energy Conservation Act was signed into federal law and a temporary National Maximum Speed Limit of 55 mph was established. A year later, that speed limit was made permanent under the Federal-Aid-Highway Amendments.

Officials of this agency said, although safety was not the major reason for establishing the National Maximum Speed Limit, it has emerged as a major

In 1977, 47 percent of the petroleum used in America was imported at a cost of $47 billion, said federal officials. 'At our rate of consumption, by the year 2000, America's petroleum demands will exceed the ies said it would cost them money because of the additional salaries they would have to pay drivers for slower trips and because they did not feel that trucks would operate efficiently at lower speeds.

TODAY MANY TRUCKERS feel the same way. However, the federal government indicates that mileage has proved to be better for trucks at reduced speeds, as well as for buses. In addition, federal officials said slower speeds have cut engine and other mechanical repair and maintenance costs, especially for buses with automatic transmissions.

In fact, federal officials point out that Fred Curry, chairman of the board of Continental Trailways, has said his fleet saved 1.2 million gallons of diesel fuel and an estimated $540,000 in 1976 by driving 55

Federal officials also claim that enforcment of the 55 mph speed limit nationally is working. In fact, federal officials said that speeding arrests jumped by 36.8 percent between 1973 and 77.

School board to consider secondary discipline code

Midland School Board members are scheduled to approve a secondary discipline code and hear a report on vocational programs in the schools at their regular meeting at 1:30 p.m.

The secondary discipline code is a unification of the codes now published in the various schools' student hand-

"We looked at the codes used in each school, and they were all the same, yet all different," said Dr. Douglas W. Brown, assistant superintendent for instruction. "This is an attempt to have the same rules with the same language in use at all the schools."

Brown said the new code was drawn up by a committee of parents and school personnel. One addition to the code is a section on student rights and responsibilities, he said.

The board also is scheduled to hear a report on the vocational programs in the schools. "The report will show that our programs and vocational enrollments have doubled in the past eight years," Brown said.

Other items included on the agenda are consideration of employee health insurance recommendations, an audit of student activity fund accounts, a report on tax collections in the district, approval of game receipts from the Friday night football games and a hearing concerning the non-renewal of a teacher's contract.

The first CD is a short-term money market certificate with a ceiling interest rate which will be set weekly. The money market certificate can only be issued in denominations of $10,000 or more with a six-month (26 week) maturity. For example, Money Market CD rates between August 8th and September 21st ranged from 7.172% to 7.979%. This is an annual rate and is subject to change at renewal. Of course, these rates will vary week to week according to money market forces. Presently, banks can pay 5 1/2% on CD's under $10,000 for 90 days to one year. The new market certificates are nonnegotiable, but can be pledged as collateral for a loan.

8-YEAR 7 3/4% CD

The second CD is a long-term certificate issued in minimum denominations of $1,000 at maturities of eight years or more at a maximum rate 7 3/4%

NEW DEPOSITS TO IRAS EARN 8%

Since June 1, Midland National has paid 8% on all deposits to Individual Retirement Accounts. This rate is the highest rate a federally insured bank or savings and loan may pay on time deposits of maturities of more than six months. Rates on existing IRA accounts reflect the new maximum rate. With daily compounding, the effective annual yield on 8% IRA deposits will be 8.33%.

Federal law and regulation prohibit the payment of a time deposit prior to maturity unless three months of the interest thereon is forfeited and interest on the amount withdrawn is reduced to the passbook rate. Accounts for each person are insured for up to $40,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture suspect many violations of the Animal Welfare Act are occurring through mass overland shipments of the animal.

The federal law, coming under the jurisdiction of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, requires any carriers of the animals to be certified by the department and proper veterinarian inspections of the animals to be conducted before exportation. It also requires that animals be given proper food and ventilation.

Failure to register with the USDA or properly transport the animals can result in a fine of up to $1,000, one year imprisonment, or both, upon conviction of one count.

Meanwhile, the Texas Attorney General's office is investigating "coursing" exercises to determine whether the use of the rabbits in greyhound training constitutes a violation of the state's animal cruelty statute. Investigator David Priester said he is inclined to think the practice is illegal in Texas, but said he would withhold an official opinion until he gets a first-hand glimpse of the event.

HOW CRUEL AND INHUMANE is using live jackrabbits in training greyhounds?

Bernard Weller, an investigator for the Humane Society, described his visit to a "coursing" event he attended in Lubbock:

"A single rabbit was released while people stand-ing inside the fences on each side of the coursing track at various distances yelled and scared the rabbit to run down the dirt coursing track. The rabbit runs approximately 50 yards down the track. The person holding the greyhounds releases the grey-from the oilfield plains of the Midland-Odessa "The rabbit may stop or continue slowly for a few more yards until it hears the pounding feet of the greyhounds. Then the race is on. The rabbit turns in ciety of the U.S. and other animal protectionist circles, races back towards the start, then may turn again or run in a 10 foot circle.

By this time, both greyhounds are not quite so fast, but still trying to catch the rabbit. Then from the side fence, a gate opened and a third dog was released onto the track.

"This is what is called a "kill dog." This dog was fresh and almost always grabbed the rabbit with a blood curdling scream heard from the rabbit. By this time, the other two greyhounds had a hold on the rabbit and were tearing in three different directions. All the while the rabbit was screaming and struggling, the dogs were pulling and tearing and biting in different directions.

IN DENVER, COLO., an investigative reporter said the exercise of using rabbits for training greyhounds may dip to the level of sadism as trainers "jam" rabbits into the cages of hungry greyhounds to stir them up shortly before a race. This is a practice, which although under investigation by the Colorado Racing Commission, is frequent in dogracing circles throughout the state.

"A trainer or owner will often let his dog run slow for several races, thus changing his handicap and driving the odds up on the dog's chances of ever winning a race. When the handicap is low enough and the odds are big enough, the trainer then takes the dog out to a remote field and jams a few rabbits into his cage. Nebraska digs reveal ancient characteristics of rhinoceros

By JULES LOH AP Special Correspondent

ANTELOPE COUNTY, Neb. (AP) - Long ago a great catastrophe befell certain inhabitants of this planet.

The Great Plains of America were a tropical savannah in those days, where camels and zebras roamed, along with beavers as large as bears and herds of rhinoceros. Yes, herds.

Because of what Michael Voorhies has found buried in the Nebraska earth, we now know that the rhinoceros, thought always to have been the belligerent loner it is today, was once a herd animal, and we know a great deal more as well.

'It is an important find - a unique find," Voorhies said. "There is much yet to be learned." We have that ancient catastrophe to thank for his

It happened 10 million years ago. A volcano erupted, probably in what is now Yellowstone Park. It blasted into the sky a huge cloud of volcanic ash, actually minute glass crystals. The thermals over the Plains caught the volcanic cloud and dumped it, suddenly, upon this section of Nebraska.

This was a small lake, watering hole," Voohies said, kicking at powder-white earth where his digging has exposed a mass of bones. "This is where animals gathered especially in times of stress." And there they stand at the watering hole, their complete skeletons preserved in the suddenly smoth-

the ancestor of the horse lost its toes. We now have a complete skeleton of a horse with vestigial toes. That's useful information," he said.

Voorhies, who is 36, with sandy hair and skin bronzed from weeks of digging shirtless in the summer sun, grew up in this neighborhood. As a boy, he explored its creeks and washes, digging up

It remained his practice to return on vacations from his teaching post at the University of Georgia and re-explore the area.

"One rainy day I was walking up this moraine and saw a bone exposed. I dug. It turned out to be the skull of a baby rhino. I dug some more, and found a foot. I dug more and found enough to know I had a real find on my hands. Then I covered it all up."

That was eight years ago. He spent the next six years raising money, recruiting helpers from among his students. Two years ago he began digging in earnest, using scientifically prescribed methods. So far he has uncovered about 36 skeletons.

Discrimination battle has just begun for former coach

R-T Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — James Griffin may have quite a wait before he coaches basketball again at Big Spring High School, despite a recent ruling in his favor by the Texas Education Agen-

Griffin, whose contract with the school district was not renewed for the 1977-78 school year, charged the district with racial discrimination in an appeal of the decision to the state board of education.

In an opinion delivered Sept. 15, the TEA hearing officer ruled in favor of Griffin, saying "The non-renewal of (Griffin's) contract was the result of impermissible racial discrimination on the part of the Big Spring Independent School District."

The school district now has 20 days to file exceptions to that ruling, and Griffin has another 15 days to file answers to the exceptions before the matter finally is reviewed by the State Commissioner of Education.

That ruling, however, might not be the final step in the case. Either the school district or the coach can appeal the commissioner's ruling to the State Board of Education, and that decision can be appealed Tto the state courts.

IF BOTH PARTIES have the stamina, the case could be dragged through the courts for years. One teacher in East Texas was in litigation over a contract renewal for some eight years, according to a spokesman for the Texas State Classroom Teachers Association

This case, however, should not take that long, said Griffin's attorney Gerald K. Fugit of Odessa.

Big Spring School Superintendent Lynn Hise said the district still feels there was no discrimination in the decision, but said the decision to appeal the ruling "is something for the board to decide after the commissioner of education rules on the mat-

District officials contend Griffin was given a fair hearing before the school board and his contract was not renewed "for justifiable reasons," Hise said.

On the recommendation of the high school principal, Griffin's teaching contract with the district was not renewed in March 1977 when the board considered the rest of the contracts for the district's teaching staff, Hise said. Instead, in accordance with school board policy, Griffin was given a copy of an evaluation listing areas to be improved before the contract was renewed, he said. In May, again on the recommendation of the high school principal, the board voted not to renew the contract, Hise said.

A HEARING ON Griffin's appeal of the decision to the Texas Education Agency was held in December, and the result of the hearing was released

Griffin said he feels the protest has been a "handicap" in his getting another job coaching in the year since the proceedings began. 'I had anticipated it would take some time, but I didn't anticipate its taking this long," he said, noting the wait for a decision has been a "financial drain.'

Despite the problems, Griffin still wants his job back at Big Spring. "That's the reason I've gone this far," he said.

Griffin had been head basketball coach for the district since the 1975-76 school year, and had received favorable evaluations of his classroom performances each year prior to 1977, according to the findings of the TEA hearing. Griffin said his teams had posted ".500 or better records each year.'

The hearing officer listed instances of alleged discrimination in his report and recommendation to the commissioner of education. Among them was a meeting between Griffin and Athletic Director Don Robbins in which 'Robbins inquired ... whether (Griffin) had thought about resigning, commenting further that he 'didn't head coach." In another instance, the report contends, the athletic director did not notify Griffin to remove the contents of his office in the gym when the facility was to undergo renovation. Griffin found his personal items in the hall outside his office, with no attempt being made to safeguard his valuables, the report alleged. The report continued that when Griffin complained to the athletic director about valuables missing from his office after the incident, he was told "he was not required to inform (Griffin) of the time the gym renovation was scheduled to begin. At the same meeting...he was told by the athletic director to find another job because he (Griffin) was fired."

THE HEARING OFFFICER ruled the attemps to justify the non-renewal of the contract by the board "mere pretexts." The report of the hearing officer said the district cited instances "for which (Griffin) has offered sufficient evidence in his defense. Superintendent Hise refused to discuss the reasons for the board's decision because the matter is under litigation.

The report lists some of the reasons as "absense from morning parking lot duty, occasional absenses from the classroom to revieve telephone calls, and the circumstances surrounding the administration of a test to (Griffin's) students whom (Griffin) had probable cause to suspect of cheating on the original exam when it was given by a substitute."

Midland County commissioners are scheduled to discuss an existing grant with the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development and the possibility of a housing assistance program at a regular session set for 1:30 p.m. Monday.

Also included among a list of items on a long agenda is a public hearing on a proposal to lower the speed limit from 55 mph to 30 mph on County Road 1160 and a consideration of a speed zone on West Francis Street.

The court also is to consider approval of several plats, review correction certificates for invalid assessments, discuss the lease with the Museum of the Southwest and consider a pipeline crossing

LONDON (AP) — Until he retired a couple of years ago, Piet Meinema used to complain about the hefty social security deductions that took 16.4 percent out of his pay packet.

"Like most people, I thought I was paying too much for too little in return, but now I can say it was

As a married man, age 66, he gets $1,005 a month in pensions: $590 from the compulsory Netherlands state pension plan and $415 from the Dutch national airline KLM, for which he worked 20 years. Taxes cut this to $670 a month, but, "together with a little bit of my savings it enables me to do most things I want to do," Meinema says.

Retired workers in Europe generally agree with him that it pays to be in pension and other social security schemes, especially if employers operate plans in addition to those of the state, an Associated Press survey shows.

But inflation and mounting bills are forcing European governments to take a hard second look at social security. One after the other, they are having to subsidize the programs and often bail them

The costs are astronomical, since social security in Europe extends far beyond pensions for the elder-

Years ago it was dubbed "womb to tomb" security. Now it's even pre-womb and post-tomb. It can include free or subsidized contraceptive pills, unemployment and sickness benefits, funeral costs, and pensions for widows and orphans as well as the

In Britain, the publicly funded National Health Service will foot the bill (amount undisclosed, but sure to be big) for the sophisticated technology and medical care that led to a test tube pregnancy for Mrs. Lesley Brown in a hospital at Oldham.

And British social security shells out $250 a week to finance "Big John Knight," 42, a jobless man who goes on fathering children although there are already 21 in the two homes he keeps for his legal wife and for another woman in the rugged hills of

The costs would be even higher if everyone claimed everything to which he is entitled. It's estimated that 900,000 people in Britain don't claim all they could - a total of $555 million.

Italy's economy is far from strong, yet of an estimated 57 million Italians, 16.5 million are receiving state retirement pensions worth $25 billion a year. The state's pension funds yield $11 billion a year less than that, so the state has to make good the deficit by loans and subsidies.

On top of this, the number of pensions paid to Italians who claim they are unfit for work soared from 1 million in 1959 to 5 million in 1976. And of 2.3 million Italian farmers enrolled in the National Institute of Social Security, all but 90,000 get some sort of pension. As a result, for every $100 farmers pay into the institute, farmers draw out $1,575. The terrific national illness of cunning has infect-

Mechanical cows now train horses

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

ELGIN, Ill. (AP) - Sure, anybody can train a Heaney's mechanical cow - nearly a half ton of imitation Hereford or Angus that darts and dashes, but doesn't moo.

"The cowboy controlling it inside can provide that. It's cheaper that way," says Heaney of "MAC," a battery-powered bovine.

Cutting horses single out cows from a herd and block them from going back. It's a practical skill for the rancher — and a paying practice for professional cutters who compete in events such as the National Finals, at Amarillo, Tex., or the Futurity, at

Heaney has sold 125 copies of MAC, which goes for $3,545, but his real business is printing, and he has other sidelines. His 60-acre Fox River Valley farm includes stables, an indoor arena and cutting

The motorized cows, driven by a man who sits inside the fiberglass body, are three-wheeled vehi-cles, 7 feet long, 4½ feet wide and 4 feet high. They use four golfcart-type batteries to power two 11/2-horsepower motors, each working independently on rear, rubber-tired wheels linked to chain-operated

The machine can go in any direction, turn on a dime and reach a top speed of 30 mph. It goes four hours before it needs a recharge. "MAC can be ordered in the colors of a Hereford, Angus or any cow wanted," said Heaney. "A coarse string-tail is standard, and the brown eyes even have eyelashes. It doesn't moo." Most MACs are sold to people who want to train their cutting horses. "It may take up to nine months to train a horse with live cattle, but with MAC it takes only 60 to 90 days," said Heaney.

"It's impossible to force a cow to do exactly what you want for training purposes, but with MAC you can do every maneuver over and over again.

The horse learns by repetition."

clauses in a mortgage is called a "convenant against removal." It states that the person who takes out mortagage cannot demolish or remove any without the consent of the holder of the mortgage. This clause is necessary because both land and buildings are included in the appraisal on which the loan is based. The demolish part sounds plausible, but what about the removal prohibition? A homeowner is not about to wrap up his house, put it in his station wagon and take off! Sure, homes can be moved, but that's major operation involving

There's a classic story told in real estate circles about a farmer who was afraid he might default. He figured that buildings attached to the land could also be disattached. So he built the various buildings on skids! He defaulted, and promptly hauled the buildings on the skids away! The court, however, held that even though the buildings were physically on the land, they still were covered by all the terms of the mortgage. The farmer was ed all social classes," says Leonardo Vanente, an Italian social security specialist.

An Italian worker pays 7.15 percent of his wages and his employer 16.46 percent to social security. The government is considering plans to shoulder part of the employers' contributions on top of the $11 billion annual deficit the government already meets.

Unlike other European nations, Switzerland, one of the world's richest countries, has no trouble providing retirement pensions of between $404 and $806 a month, financed by contributions of 5 percent each from employees and employers.

West Germany's social security system is also relatively stable, although poorer economic conditions of late have led some opposition Conservatives to predict a deficit of $16 billion a year in the next decade. To forestall that, the government has restricted increases in pension payments for the next

An official of the Ministry of Labor says $610 a month was paid on average in 1977 to people who retired after 40 to 45 years work.

In conrast to West Germany's 50-50 contributions from employers and workers, the French employer must pay into social security an average of 35.5 percent of wages and workers must pay 11.6 per-

In 1976, the French system piled up a relatively modest deficit of $195 million. Economies have now brought a surplus of $600 million.

The average Frenchman can count on a pension of half his final salary when he retires at 65, up to a maximum of $435 a month. Women and some manual workers get the same deal at 60.

In Spain, which has had an inflation rate of more than 20 percent for the past three years, social security is a chronic headache. Spanish employers contribute between 61.6 and 73.5 percent of each worker's salary, and each worker has to pay 10.7 to 17.3 percent of salary - yet the social security system is always in the red.

This year, the government raised its social security budget to $16.8 billion from last year's $12 bil-

Besides pensions - which last year averaged $90, just under half the average monthly salary - Spaniards get hospital and other medical care, including 80 percent of the costs of medicines.

The elaborate welfare system in the Netherlands now accounts for 22 percent of the national income, compared with only 9 percent in 1960. The state paid one-third of the $22 billion cost last year.

The Center-Right coalition that came to power last to consider December says it plans cutbacks.

In Denmark, 40 percent of the state budget goes to social benefits, and less than 10 percent for defense. Of the half million state employees, 200,000 work in the social and health services.

But Denmark's heavy taxes on incomes, liquor and tobacco keeps the social security system going smoothly. Some 811,000 of Denmark's 5.2 million people get state pensions averaging $200 a month, plus payments from widespread private pension funds. In Britain, just over 10 percent of the nation's income is devoted to social security. That works out to some $16.5 billion, which goes for medical expenses, death benefits, child allowances, and pen-

The average worker pays about 5.75 percent of his earnings into the funds and the employer 8.75 percent. When a man retires at 65, he and his wife get on of $45.33 a week. This can be su in various ways, such as with allowances to help meet electricity charges or local taxes, and by cheap or free travel.

The government has been trying to cut back, but frequently runs into furious protests.

"As a result of persisting economic problems, most European governments have lost their appetite for bigger and better social programs," says Donald F. Poden, director of William M. Mercer Benefits Ltd. and an expert on European social securi-

"Many are caught in a dilemma, for an increase in reports that more than 32 million American believe social security taxes would have a deflationary effect on their already depressed economies, while a reduction in benefits is politically unthinkable."

WASHINGTON (AP) - Egypt may proceed to negotiate with Israel for an elected Palestinian government for the West Bank and Gaza even if Jordan refuses to participate formally in the talks, administration officials are

It now appears possible Egyptian President Anwar Sadat could not only nail down by Christmas a peace treaty giving Egypt back the captured

Sinai territory but also could carry the peace process forward another step or two without support of his Arab brothers.

The possibility was raised in letters among Sadat, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and President Carter, and by statements by an administration official who briefed reporters at the White House on condition that he not be named.

In one of the letters released Friday, Sadat said he is prepared to "assume the Arab role" in implementing the Camp David accord call-ing for an elected Arab government and a five-year transition period for the West Bank and Gaza. Sadat said he would do this in consultation with Jordan and the Palestinian people but left open the possibility of proceeding to the negotiating table without their formal consent.

It is too soon to speculate excessively about possible outcomes of such a development or even whether Sadat ultimately will face a decision on whether to go it alone.

But the prospect has some appealing advantages for many of those

-Sadat would be free to conclude a peace treaty with Israel and regain the Sinai, while preserving for at least a while longer his insistence that he is not doing so at the expense of Palestinian Arabs living in Israeli-occupied

-Israel would have a new Palestinian entity with which to negotiate. An elected civil authority undoubtedly would be far less hostile than the Palestine Liberation Organization, which is dedicated to destruction of

Down to sea in slips

Yes sir, as someone has said, it's enough to make an admiral cry - the things which have been happening to the U.S. Navy in Washington, D.C.

First, President Carter vetoes the $37 billion defense authorization bill ostensibly because he opposes construction of a $2 billion nuclear-powered aircraft carrier included in the legislation. Actually, the veto has more to do with Mr. Carter's attempt to assert himself over Congress, but the Navy suffers anyway. And this eventually may cause the public to suffer.

The House of Representatives then fails to muster the two-thirds vote needed to override the veto although a majority of its members favor the nuclear

Then the same President who suggested that building another nuclear-powered carrier would inhibit a tactical switch toward construction of more but cheaper naval vessels, proposes a list of additional defense items to be funded with the $2 billion saved by vetoing the carrier.

Alas, the new list contains no recommendation for warships in place of the disappearing Nimitzclass nuclear-powered carrier.

Meanwhile, the President remains formally committed to request funding in next year's defense budget for an oil-burning carrier two-thirds the size and probably with only half the capabilities of the Nimitz-class, nuclear-powered vessel. The cost: $1.8 billion for design, construction and fuel oil for its 20year life span. Precious little savings there for a switch to a program of building more but less-sophisticated warships.

And, it is reported, the administration not only stands by its 50 percent cut in the Navy's proposed five-year shipbuilding budget, but it also plans a further cut next year.

If the admirals are vexed at this display of policy confusion, it most certainly is no wonder.

The public perhaps is utterly frustrated. One cannot help wondering what the President is thinking, or what is back of his thinking, in this regard.

This is another of those matters in which the public should make itself heard. The nation's security is involved in this issue.

"Despite prior arrests," the report concludes, "particularly that of Krop himself last year, the group he probably co-heads will be extremely difficult to break. This is due in large part to its international character and maritime mobility."

Footnote: We tried to track down the people who were named in the government document. Not one could be reached for his comments on the Drug Enforcement Administration's charges. But the football player's uncle told us emphatically: "I would certainly know if he was into smuggling, and he isn't." But the uncle acknowledged that his nephew once managed the Nassau hotel when the proprietor was away from Nassau. But any conclusion that narcotics agents may be reaching from these friendships, said the uncle, would be "guilt by association."

CHARLEY REESE

Truth about legislatures as related by columnist

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. - Since there are elections in so many states this fall, I think it's time you know the truth about legislatures. The first thing to know is that they are the same no matter where they are located. The second thing to know is that you cannot reform them. Reformers, aside from being bores, are wastrels. I have never yet seen a reform that didn't cost more money than the alleged evil it was supposed to correct. Besides, trying to reform the legislatures is like trying to breed a camel without a hump. A legislature is institutionalized plunder. There is not a one in the 50 states that can create one dime of real wealth. Yet we are always asking them to buy this and to buy that, to make our world cozy-comfortablepeachy-creamy. Well, where do you suppose legislators get all that money? They take it at gunpoint from people who have already earned it. This particular form of robbery goes by the name of

If you win 60 percent of a 30 percent turnout, you've been elected by 18 percent of the registered voters and an even smaller percentage of the eligible

This explains another mistaken notion that politicians always respond to public opinion. The professional politician is not interested in public opinion, only in the opinions of those he knows will put their money and their votes where their mouths are. As you can see from the above figures, that is usually only a fraction of the public.

Finally, many people labor under the illusion that the Constitution will protect them. Unfortunately, the Constitution is a piece of parchment. You can nail one on your front door, but it is not strong enough to stop a policeman's foot if the policeman chooses to kick your door down.

The Constitution means and can do only what the people in power say it means and can do. And they are all, from the Supreme Court on down to the night traffic court judge, politicians and human beings.

down on many avoidable auto repair costs, which ran to $20 billion last year.

"Taking a car to the repair garage has surpassed going to the dentist in the level of fear it strikes in the hearts of most citizens," Joan Claybrook, head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, said.

This is true, but the regulations of the federal Department of Transportation have done a great deal to reduce the cost of repairing the damage from minor front and rear-end collisions.

Since the beginning of this decade, the federal bumper requirements undoubtedly have saved American motorists billions of dollars.

It took government action because individual car buyers either couldn't or wouldn't insist on strong enough bumpers at the time of purchase to protect their wallets at the time of collision.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Hill got almost everything he wanted during party convention

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - John Hill's folks did their homework, and it showed.

By the time Texas Democrats concluded their state convention in Fort Worth, they had given Hill most of what he wanted, and hadn't given him too much that he didn't want.

Hill's platform was approved by the Platform Committee with only minor changes, and when the document reached the floor, approval was given quickly, and without wrangling.

About the only thing which Hill received that he obviously wasn't pleased about was a resolution passed on the floor by a 1,942 to 1,311 margin, calling for the right of collective bargaining for public employees. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby almost fielded that one for Hill, holding that the proposal failed on a voice vote.

But demands for a record vote immediately flooded in, and after an hour and a half, Hobby's ruling had been voided.

Hill met with reporters immediately after the vote, looking like a man mentally pulling on gloves to remove a distasteful object which he'd found in the house.

He hadn't, he noted, included that in the platform which he proposed — and, he said, he didn't approve of the resolution, adding that allowing delegates to act on such matters was in keeping with his promise of an "open" convention.

Hill's disassociation with that resolution obviously doesn't need much explanation, but Republican Party Chairman Ray Barnhart lost no time in trying to tie Hill to that issue.

Delegates had hardly had a chance to unpack before Barnhart was calling on Hill to veto any legislation supporting collective bargaining for state employees in the "unlikely event" that Hill becomes governor.

Delegates were far from unaware that GOP gubernatorial hopeful Bill Clements and his friends were lurking about the convention center (metaphorically speaking) in hopes of finding some ammunition which could be used in their campaign.

In fact, one of the arguments made against acting on a vaguely-worded resolution on "gay rights" (without specifically using that inflamatory term) was that Clements would like that "better than anything" (as one delegate put it).

Hill's biggest problem appeared to be with some unhappy members of the Rural-Agriculture Caucus, who started to take their fight to the floor - after showing up after the Platform Committee already had incorporated most of the matters they wanted in the platform. That discontent appeared to be capitalized on to some extent by the conservatives who were attempting to assert control over the executive committee, but the potential revolt eventually fizzled.

One of the group's leaders said he wasn't sure there was any particular difference between what the farmers wanted and what they got - while at least one West Texas politician retreated from the group's meeting, saying he left because "all they wanted to do was raise hell." Platforms, of course, are at best only broad indications of where parties stand and usually offer even less of a clue as to where a particular candidate stands.

But the 1978 Democratic platform is, to a great extent the effort of Hill or his supporters, and there's probably not too much Hill - or for that matter, Clements - would not sup-

For example, the platform comes out against "new or additional state taxes," supports fair property tax administration and tax reform, supports the "tax relief amendment" on the Nov. 7 ballot, attacks inflation as "our nation's worst enemy" (and blames "government waste" as a "major cause"), calls for respect for law enforcement officers, supports deregulation of oil and gas prices, urges improved health care, and praises free enterprise, which Clements likely would find acceptable.

But, as the platform notes in its introduction, "perhaps only a few of us agree on every statement in the document" - and such items as importing water to West Texas, extending the deadline for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, creation of a State Human Relations Commission and community-based correctional systems might get some argument from Republicans - and Demo-

But, as one observer noted, one of the main reasons for watching political conventions is to help get an idea what to ask the politicians about a

Whenever the hurricane season comes around I always think of a story of a hurricane back in 1928. It's one that southern Florida will hardly

On that day, almost without warning, there boiled up out of the Caribbean one of the greatest hurricanes in history. The monstrous storm slashed into Miami and surged up the state, leaving destruction and death be-

Lucinda Sears stared out over Lake Okeechobee with a troubled look in her eyes. A mounting wind was whipping dust about the sides of her cabin. Of course, she and her husband, Charles, didn't know anything about the full extent of the storm.

They didn't have weather reports in those days as we do now. All they did know was that the nine-foot dike around the lake suddenly burst and the waters began to surge around their cabin. Then all of a sudden the roof blew off their small home as if it were a piece of cardboard. They were in imminent danger of death.

They grabbed their three children and ran outside looking for shelter. All they could see was an old bent tree that had withstood many a storm. Whether it would withstand this one they could not be sure, but it was the

The rising water drenched them as they ran to the tree. It made everything so slippery that one of the little boys dropped from his father's arms and disappeared for a moment. Charles, balancing the other boy in one arm, finaly pulled the child from the watery muck. Together the family climbed into the tree's sheltering

The fury of the storm grew. As the water level rose, the frightened family climbed higher into the tree until they were clinging desperately to the top branches and they could climb no higher. Night came. Torrents of rain poured over them and the water inched relentlessly higher. Once Charles slipped and he and the two boys were nearly swept away. Lucinda made their little daughter, Effie Ann, lock her little arms around her neck and then, legs wrapped around a branch, Lucinda reached down and pulled the boys up with her. She held all three children until Charles could get back into the tree and help her again. After a while even breathing became a struggle. Charles called through the screaming wind, "Cindy, we're all gonna die."

Her voice rang back, "No, honey, we're not gonna die. God is right here

The water was almost up to her neck. She was straining to hold Effie Ann's head above the water. Praying for a little more strength in her almost paralyzed arms, she painfully lifted little Effie Ann a fraction higher. Faintly she heard her husband's voice again: "The end is near."

Into the storm her strong voice cried, "The end is not near." She began to sing, accompanied by the gurgling water and the roar of the

Father, I stretch my hands to No other help I know

As the old hymn was carried away on the wind, Lucinda saw three flashes of light streak across the east ern sky. She took it as a good omen. "Thank You, God. Thank You," she murmured gratefully. The waters receded, the wind slackened, and all was quiet once more.

The family in the tree waited through the long hours of the night until the waters were low enough for them to climb from the tree and wade to safety. Clinging to their still frightened children, muscles aching and chilled to the bone, they stumbled to an aid station in a state of shock. Tender hands put them to bed.

And eight days later, proud Lucinda, who had been within inches of death when she sang a song of faith, bore her fourth child — a healthy

Gift for Santa

There are reports that the U.S. is now committed to giving a very large sum of money (up to $1 billion, some say) to Israel for two military air installations. Judging by Carter's fullsome praise of brave Sadat (why not desperate Sadat?), I presume he was no less generous to Egypt. How much is the United States (with sagging economy) giving to bolster Egypt's sagging economy? Does anyone know?

Christmas is not a religious or holy day to Moslems or to Jews. But, of course, Sadat and Begin do not reject the American demi-god, Santa Claus. Since Carter has come forward with nice presents for them, they have promised to sign the second series of "summit" papers in three months, giving Carter a nice Christmas present in return.

Service poor

To The Editor: As a subscriber to local cable television, I can no longer remain quiet about, what in my opinion, is a sub-standard service. would be diminished.

Sure, these things can happen. A car strikes a utility pole, lightening strikes a cable transmitter, vandals damage cable equipment - standard risks in operation of any utility. But come rain, lightening, West Texas wind, mischevious children or automobiles with bad brakes, somehow our other utilities manage to provide

- virtually uninterrupted.

I think the key to the cable problem is not the elements causing them, but rather the lack of continuity. The other subscription services of our community manage to cope under pain of the elements, while cable seems to fall victim.

This quality of operation penalizes its customers because subscribers have no recourse to cable, except to discontinue service, and settle for reception of three local channels, of which only one is received with any video clarity (in Midland).

There are some customers who pay as much for cable as they do for water. Perhaps these and all sub-scribers would have a better deal if cable were operated like water, gas and electricity — with a meter. When service is interrupted, the meter simply stops. Then at last we could get

Maybe the part of town in which we live suffers more cable failure than others, which might make me look like a cry baby for sounding off. But may Divine Providence be on the side of Tall City Cable, if it goes on the blink during a Dallas Cowboy tele-cast. Then, I bet, I won't be the only wet blanket in town.

Positive, please

To The Editor:

Regardless of which side of the political fence we favor, most mature Americans want the president, when elected from either party, to succeed for the good of the country. In spite of the fact that The Reporter-Telegram did not support Mr. Carter in his candidacy, I would think you would recognize the importance of the Camp David summit, and the effect the outcome of the talks would have on a large number of people.

Your choice of a negative headline announcing the end of the talks was disappointing. Instead of emphasizing the "cracks" in the plan you could have pointed out what the hope of peace might mean to thousands of families living in a war-torn area.

No one who thinks realistically about the situation would expect a fairy tale solution to a problem of such long standing and such magnitude. I join with millions of Americans, Israelis and Arabs, as well as peace-loving people everywhere, in congratulating our president for having the courage to host this historic meeting and give thanks that the outcome was at least moderately suc-

ART BUCHWALD

When 'no comment's' aren't

By ART BUCHWALD The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - When a street criminal commits a crime he usually says, "I didn't do it." Whether true or not, it's a simple declarative sentence which everyone understands.

But when a large company is charged with violating the law, its spokesman resorts to gobbledygook in hopes that the publicity concerning the crime will blow over.

Here are some of the favorite lines that big business uses followed by what the spokesman really means.

"We have no comment on the charges until we can study them." What the person is really saying: "Maybe by next week, the reporter won't call back."

"Since the case is now a legal matter, we don't think we should say anything about it at this time," which translates into: "If we can keep it in the courts for five years, everyone will forget what the payoff scandal was all about."

"I believe when the facts are in, the public will realize we are the victims of a politically motivated, zealous prosecutor who is trying to make a name for himself." Translation: "We told the sales people if they got into price-fixing we didn't want to know about it. But the dummies put everything down on paper." "There is no truth to the government's charges that our product is unsafe. Under normal conditions it is accident-proof. But we can't guarantee it when the consumer doesn't follow the instructions." Translation: "Oh boy, it looks like we're in for another recall." "All of the chief officers of this corporation were unaware of the alleged bribes that were paid to foreign agents. Our people know that if any employee of this firm becomes involved in this kind of activity, he will be summarily dismissed." Translation: "We'll have to sacrifice the guy, but if he keeps his mouth shut we'l make sure he gets his full pension. If he talks to save his own neck, he won't get a dime.'

"The president has resigned because he wants to spend more time with his family and the chairman of the board is leaving as he believes a younger man should be given the opportunity to run the company." Translation: "At least when they're indicted they won't be officers of the corporation. 'We have decided to plead 'No Contest' to avoid an expensive legal battle which we are certain we would win." Translation: "Our lawyers have advised us we don't have a chance in hell of winning the case."

"While our main concern is, and always has been, safety, we must state that if we make the changes demanded of us it will cost the consumer $150 more for each unit." Translation: "If our engineers are correct we should make $100 profit on each deal."

"There is no scientific proof that any of the animals which died within a three-mile radius of our chemical plant were affected by poisonous substances which we are alleged to have produced." Translation: "We've been dumping waste in those fields for 20 years. You would think the farmers would have enough sense to keep their dumb animals away from them.

"Cars don't kill people. People kill people." Translation: "So we put the gas tank in the wrong place, and now everyone wants to make a federal case out of it."

"As chief executive of this firm I am shocked and appalled that the grand jury would come to this conclusion. The charges are so ridiculous that they are unworthy of comment." Translation: "Get me Edward Bennett Williams on the phone immediInquiry unneeded

To the Editor: It's always interesting to see the written results of an article in which the writer has been given the true facts on the subject which were simple and to the point, yet the end results of the article borders on the sensational. I am referring to the article on the front page of the September 16, 1978, Reporter-Telegram: "Dog's disap-pearance raises several queries." It is not necessary for anyone inquiring about the disposition of an animal impounded at the Animal question as to why some animals are euthanized before the 72 hours are up and who is qualified to make the decisions in these cases. FORT WORTH - "200 Years of American Architectural Drawing,' an exhibition jointly organized by the Architectural League of New York and the American Federation of Arts, currently is featured at the Amon Carter Museum of Fort Worth.

The show, which will continue on view here through Oct. 22, contains drawings by more than 80 architects and was made possible in part by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, the New York State Council on the Arts, the Graham Foundation and the Architectural League of New York

The selection of more than 200 drawings in the exhibition offers a cross-section of American architectural drawing from Thomas Jefferson to Frank Lloyd Wright and other noted 20th Century architects.

Works included in the display were selected from libraries, museums and historical societies throughout the country.

The exhibition is divided into six sections: The period 1776 to 1819, which includes drawings by John Trumbull, Jefferson and Charles Bullfinch; the years 1820 to 1861, presenting works by William Strick-land, Calvert Vaux, James Dakin and others; 1862 to 1889, the Victorian period which shows drawings by Frank Furness, Richard Morris Hunt and Henry Hobson Richardson; 1890 to 1919 (the period which introduced the skyscraper to America), present-ing works by Cass Gilbert, Charles and Henry Greene, Marion Mahoney, Walter Burley Griffin and Louis Sullivan; the years 1920 to 1944, presenting drawings by Richard Neutra, Eliel Saarinen, Ludwig Mies van der Rohe and Frank Lloyd Wright; and the final section, the years 1945 to 1976, presenting works by Louis Kahn, Paul Rudolph, Eero Saarinen and Robert Venturi.

The exhibit has traveled to the Art Institute of Chicago, the Jacksonville Art Museum and the Cranbrook Academy of Arts prior to its opening at the Carter Museum earlier this month. It had its premiere showings at the Cooper-Hewitt Museum and the Smithsonian Institution.

During its stay at the Carter Museum, the exhibit is on view to the public weekdays and Sunday afternoons. There is no charge for admission.

summer, the ensemble played the major European jazz festivals, including those at Montreux, Switzerland, and Nice, France, as well as the North Sea Jazz Festival in Holland. This year, the group has toured England and Brazil in addition to appearing in performance at colleges, universities and in music festivals, and with leading symphony orchestras throughout the U.S.

Dave Brubeck, highly innovative pianist for more than 30 years, has a worldwide reputation as both performer and composer.

Besides being the first modern jazzman to be featured on the cover of Time Magazine (in 1954), he recorded the first jazz LP single to sell a million copies — "Take Five," brought out in 1963.

In 1967, Brubeck disbanded his famous quartet to devote more time to composing, and during the last decade has produced a number of acclaimed compositions. His creativity as a jazz musician continued in these intervening years, however, and his role in the New Brubeck Quartet has generated a fresh appraisal of his talent and his career.

His most recent honor was the coveted Duke Ellington Medal awarded him by Yale University.

Rush group offers intense dance

The Rush Dance Company, an energetic young modern dance group from New York City, presented dance programs Friday and Saturday nights as yet another feature of Midland Commnity Theatre's "September Premiere" which celebrates the formal opening of Theatre Midland at 2000 W.

Wadley Ave. The ensemble demonstrated variety as well as virtuosity in its dance offerings here - and considerable vigor as well. Modern dance, no less than ballet or Broadway dance, is physically demanding.

The Rush Dance Company is made up of five dancers, headed by Patrice M. Regnier who founded the company four years ago. In its Midland programs, the ensemble offered four different dance works, all of them choreographed by Ms. Regnier.

Now, modern dance, like modern art (or, even, "modern" music) makes its own personal statement to the individual — you may like it a lot, a little, or not at all. But it DOES say something.

So it was with the Rush group's offerings. The company made some interesting, sometimes intense and challenging, statements in its dance presentations. You may not have liked all these presentations, but they were compelling and dramatic in their way. The works occasionally owe a debt to such older masters of the modern dance idiom as Jose Limon or Martha Graham or Anna Sokolow, but in the main they have their own strength and freshness.

"Modern dance, like modern art, (or, even, "modern" music) makes its own personal statement to the individual — you may like it a lot, a little, or not at all. But it DOES say something.

The first offering of the evening, "Peer," featured Regnier and company member Neil Greenberg. Combative and angular, this intensely physical work was mounted to Central European tribal music. It was, for me, the least interesting work on

"Concerto for Catheryn," the next offering, came closest to being balle-

Catherine D. Sullivan, Russell M. Lome and Shaw Bronner and was, in the main, a delight to watch. Music by Phil Glass and Pat Graff, along with a baroque score from the era of Louis XV of France, contributed importantly to the mood and intensity of the tic in structure and context. The work

featured Regnier, Greenberg,

The strongest, most dramatic works of the evening were "Bernard, A Portrait" (Act I) and "Bernard (Act II) which together make up a portrait of a man from his childhood in the 1930s or '40s, on to his maturity when he confronts his past and future. The first act featured Russell M. Lome in the title role, (danced with authority and conviction), joined by

Greenberg as the older brother. Regnier as the mother and Shaw Bronner as the little sister, both attired in frumpy "housedresses" of the 1930s, completed the tender, occasionally touching, family picture. Jazz music by Bill Evans and Benny Goodman, and an old radio commercial about Wheaties, the "breakfast of champions," and a bit of a broadcast of a Jack Armstrong, All-American Boy radio program add to the believability of this first act.

The second act with Bernard grown older is more abstract, less clear-cut, as it reviews various facets of Bernard's personality. It is, as it were, a tableau seen-through-a-glass-darkly. The Rush company presented master classes in modern dance during its Midland visit, and gave a special lecture-demonstration on dance at Theatre Midland Saturday afternoon.

'Mary' may cause Sunday night TV battle

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Those who feared Mary Tyler Moore couldn't make the shift from her fine situation comedy to a variety series are advised to tune in CBS today for the premiere of "Mary."

To understate the case, it's as well-written and classy as her old show. One problem: Families may fight Sunday nights over seeing her new music-andcomedy series or ABC's rival "Battlestar Galacti-

Once again, she's had the wisdom to secure a first-rate supporting troupe that includes Dick Shawn, a fine, funny veteran.

The others are James Hampton, Swoosie Kurtz, Judy Kahan, Michael Keaton and David Letterman, the last seen to great effect last year in an NBC spoof of "60 Minutes" called "Peeping Times.

Some patrons no doubt will compare "Mary" to Carol Burnett's old series. But they're only alike in craftsmanship. The "Mary" style of humor is less broad, more whimsical, and gentler in nature.

And the skits, mini-sitcoms mostly, may remind you of the more sedate ones Richard Pryor did so well in his brief NBC tour in 1977

The show also has a wonderful ability to kid itself, as when MTM notes the gaudy "Mary" sign behind her and asks: "When you go to work every morning, do you have a 50-foot sign that says 'Herb?'"

Her hoofing with "The Ed Asner Dancers" is truly a sight to behold, likewise a bit on TV's tendency to salute itself - in which Carl Reiner arrives 25 minutes into the show to preside over an anniversary tribute to the first 25 minutes of the show. The often-awkward task of introducing the cast is deftly handled by rolling their "audition" tapes early in the hour.

Here, you'll see such things as two regulars imitating "Feelings" as rendered by Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Shawn discussing the cast party he threw after his one-man show.

The only flat spot in Sunday's debut is a dry-cleaning skit that doesn't quite come off. Not so a nifty finale in a club called "Fairfax Alley," where the cast takes turns knocking Letterman. He cons Mary into singing. At first, sounding slightly like Darlene Edwards, a fabled songbird of the 1950s, she has troubles with "Misty" when the pianist plays it too low, then too high for her. Whereupon she gives up and emits a straight, sensitive and tastefully-arranged version of "We've Only Just Begun" to close the show. Leave us hope "Mary" doesn't close until the year

It'll blow your mind!

MCT continues special events series

Continuing its September series of special events celebrating the opening of Theatre Midland at 2000 W. Wadley Ave., Midland Community Theatre is preparing to open a production of "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds.

The Paul Zindel drama, which won a Pulitzer Prize as well as the coveted New York Drama Critics' Award, is a powerful and moving vindictive widow and her $2.1 million home, Thetwo young daughters.

Critics hailed it as one of the most significant and affecting plays of the century. It is an adult play and, as such, contains language that may be offensive to some, MCT spokesmen have warned.

The production is not part of MCT's regular season, but a special pre-sentation of the current "September Premiere" which celebrates the forstudy of an embittered, mal opening of MCT's

It takes a while for "Sharky's Machine" to get rolling, but once it does, it builds up a tremendous momentum that practially guarantees the reader will turn the pages as fast as possible.

This thriller opens during the closing days of World War II. An American undercover team has been dropped by parachute into Italy. Its goal is to get $4 million in gold into the hands of partisans, in hope the money will allow them to unite against the Germans. Things, however, go wrong and the operation is blown. The gold disappears.

The reader then finds himself in Hong Kong in 1959, where he is introduced to a particularily loathsome professional killer named Burns and a rather oily rich businessman named Victor DeLaroza. After some rather strange, gruesome and erotic goings on, the scene shifts once again. This time it's Atlanta, And this is where this thriller starts to be thrilling.

Enter a tough cop named Sharky. After gunning down a drug dealer on a crowded city bus, Sharky is shifted to the vice squad. Working on a vice case, Sharky's team stumbles across a murder and decides to solve the case itself rather than turn it over to homicide.

But they've only got a few days to do it before higher authorities become aware they are on to something they are not supposed to be on. And Sharky and his men soon find they are working on something much bigger than a homicide — a case that could involve a presidential aspirant. To complicate matters Sharky has been smitten by a beautiful girl who runs with the wrong crowd and he nearly gets killed for this. Phil Thomas

DALLAS (AP) - The Texas Air Control Board has postponed a decision on a staff recommendation to file an anti-pollution suit against the nation's largest oil refinery in Bay-

The board was scheduled to vote at its monthly meeting here Friday on whether to file suit against Exxon Corp.'s mammoth Texas complex and the adjacent Stauffer Chemical Co. plant, but delayed the vote because four of the board's nine members missed the meeting. TACB chairman John Blair said a legal quorum was present, but added, "It bothers me to make any major decision without the four members." Exxon's Baytown facility had received relatively few citations for pollution violations until a recent expansion made it the nation's largest single refinery complex. The proposed suit would seek to limit sulphur dioxide emissions at the facility, but Exxon and Stauffer officials say they expect soon to be in compliance with state law.

By the end of October, essentially all of the Exxon sulphur dioxide emissions which our data indicate could be contributing to the problem will have been eliminated," said Exxon spokesman Leonard Stass-

WASHINGTON OIL

Energy plan of 'sorts' about to become reality

By CLYDE LA MOTTE Reporter-Telegram Washington Oil Correspondent

WASHINGTON-It does not satisfy many people, if any, and it isn't likely to produce significant results, but the nation is on the verge of adopting a national energy program of sorts.

If, as now expected, the Senate passes the long-debated natural gas bill this week and the House follows suit a short time thereafter, the pieces of an energy program will have been put together.

This will include, in addition to the natural gas bill, legislation to provide more incentives and government help for conservtion measures, such as tax writeoffs for home insulation.

The energy package will also contain measures to add momentum to the switch from oil or gas to coal by power plants and other major industrial users of fuel, and a "reform" of utility rates aimed at loading more of the cost of fuels on insustry and less on the individual comsumer.

The energy package will not contain the crude oil equalization tax that had been originally proposed. At one time the Administration called this tax the center-piece of its energy plan but when it became clear that Congress was not going to adopt the tax, the Administration then singled out the natural gas bill as the essential

The Administration has talked at times of going back to Congress later for any parts of President Carter's original plan not passed by the current Congress. But after struggling for the better part of two years to get this far, it can be expected that the Adminstration will happily settle for what it is getting.

Opponents of various portions of the package, especially the compromise natural gas bill, have indicated they will try again next year or the year thereafter to get some major changes made. But this isn't likely to develop, either.

What it adds up to is that the energy package emerging this year will be the one the nation will be stuck with, for better or worse, in the years

The outlook now is that the nation will rock along until some energy disaster develops or until the world supply begins to fall short of meeting world demands--and that could by 20 years or so down the road.

Meanwhile, barring some disruption in Middle East supplies, any changes in the U.S. energy picture are likely to be gradual ones. Energy costs will continue to rise but, because of the adequacy of world supplies, these costs aren't likely to exceed the rise in costs of many other goods and materials. Demand will continue to rise, but at a much slower rater than in the past as higher prices cause consumers to curtail uses and as such developments as increased efficiencies and smaller cars slow down gasoline consumption. That is, as fuel bills rise, many consumers will either curtail their consumption or take such measures as providing better insulation for their homes. On the supply side, higher prices for crude oil and natural gas will spur additional domestic drilling unless and until the increase in drilling and production costs exceeds the increase in the price of petroleum products in the marketplace. Higher oil and gas prices will also make supplemental energy sources more economically feasible, and to the extent that this is so the nation's over-all energy supply resources will increase slowly but gradually in the next two decades.

In other words, the adjustments ahead will stem largely from economic factors rather than from some government "solution" to the energy problems.

For the most part, the big impact stemming from the big jump in oil prices by the oil exporting nations after the oil embargo in 1973-74 has by now been absorbed.

Because of that big jump and the concerns it created, energy issues have been hotly debated as the nation sought to adjust to the necessary

Part of the adjustment included looking for someone to blame and part of it was seeking for a quick fix, an easy solution.

By now it has become apparent to most that there is no quick fix or easy solution. Nor can the problems be solved by hanging some real or imagined culprit from the nearest tree.

This may result in a calmer setting and a more realistic, commonsense approach in the years ahead. This might even include better public understanding and better cooperation between government and industry on energy problems. If so, perhaps all the heated debates of recent years will not have been entirely wasted.

Backers of ERA may hold up energy bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Backers of the Equal Rights Amendment are threatening to hold President Carter's energy plan hostage unless the Senate schedules a vote on ex-tending the ratification deadline for Congressional sources said Friday 50 to 75 House members are ready to stall when the House takes up a natural gas compromise expected to pass the Senate next Wednesday.

The House has agreed to extend the ERA deadline from March 22, 1979, to June 30, 1982, but the proposal is in jeopardy in the Senate because of a backlog of legislation and anticipa-tion of a filibuster by ERA oppo-

The current session of Congress is expected to end by mid-October.

Eleven pro-ERA senators met with Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd Friday and sources quoted Byrd as angrily responding "I don't react to threats" when told of the plan to stall consideration of the natural gas compromise in the House if he does not agree to an ERA vote in the Senate.

The sources said Byrd declined to promise a Senate vote before adjournment but pledged to make a decision by early next week.

Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, a leader among the ERA extension opposition, disputes the claim of supporters that they have enough votes to end a threatened filibuster in the Senate if ERA does come up. He said the filibuster "is alive and

Permian Basin work holding steady pace

Drilling progress in the Permian Basin of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico as recorded by Reed Drilling Equipment found the two-state area with 270 rigs making hole The previous weeks count showed 271 rigs making hole and a year ago at this time 304 rigs were spotted turning to the right. Topping the survey, Eddy County, N.M., lead with 30 rigs on the survey.

Last week 26 were counted turning to the right. Pecos County, the West Texas leader in drilling activity, took second place as 20 rigs were spotted. The survey last week also counted 20 rigs

Lea County dropped in drilling activity showing 18 rigs, while last week Lea County took second place with 22 rigs making hole.

Gaines County reported 13 rigs going, the count last week also carried 13 rigs. Crockett and Ward counties each reported 9 rigs going in each county.

HACKBERRY, La. (AP) — Workmen prepared to lay a pipeline and drain off crude oil in an attempt to extinguish a spectacular fire burning out of control at the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

The explosion killed one man, seriously burned another and set off a spectacular fire that shot a tower of flame over Louisiana's salt marsh. The blaze could be seen 25 miles away.

The oil was spewing from a storage vault that holds 13 million barrels of crude. It was half full when the fire erupted.

"They're laying a pipeline to drain some of the crude oil out of the burning dome into another nearby dome to relieve some pressure to keep the oil from flowing out of the hole," said Gene Campbell of the federal Energy Department.

Oil in the huge underground vault is under 650 pounds of pressure per square inch and is boiling out into a lake of fire which sent flames 150 feet into the áir Friday night.

The fire roared up a six-inch drill pipe during routine maintenance late Thursday. About 20 men working on a drilling rig had to scrambled for their lives, four of them diving into a mud bank that surrounded the rig.

The dead man was identified as Clarence Simon, 38, of Abbeville, La. Badly burned in the accident was Bradley Bergeron, 22, of New Iberia, La.

The spewing vault is one of six at the Hackberry site used to store oil as a hedge for Arab boycotts. Campbell predicted the explosion and fire would spur critics opposed to a $20 billion plan to store oil in the domes.

"Anytime that you have a problem of this type, environmentalists are going to try to refuel the fire,"

The vault is bigger than a block-size 10-story building and was hollowed out of an underground salt dome. Oil is jetting out of a well shaft extending down 3,240 feet into the cavern ceiling.

"It may take another day or two but our maximum loss from the 7 million barrels of oil in the hole probably will be 50,000 barrels," said Bill Parker, project manager. "The worst part of this whole thing was the loss of a life. Otherwise, we burned up some oil and sure, to the program.

In Baton Rouge, Gov. Edwin Edwards, a critic of the Department of Energy, said the fire was "one of the things the federal experts said couldn't hap-

Brutus, why are you so gloomy all the time lately. I'll tell you, Axe Handle. I've been trying to raise chickens out there on the farm and every morning when I go out to see about my chickens they are all dead. Well, that's tough, Brutus. I wonder what the trouble is that they all die. I don't know, Axe Handle. One evening I took the post hole diggers and dug 20 holes about a foot deep and planted 20 chickens with their heads sticking out. The next morning all 20 were dead. The next evening I planted 30 chickens with their heads sticking out and the next morning they were all dead. Maybe you are watering too much, Brutus, right after you plant them, or it could be that you are not watering enough. Maybe you were hailed out. I don't think that is the problem, Axe Handle I just don't know what would cause them to all die. I could understand two or three dying, but not all of them. Man, I don't know what to tell you, Brutus. It's tough. I'll tell you, you wait right here and I'll go ask Sweet Molly, maybe she'll know something......Sweet Molly said before she could give you a difinite solution to your problem she would have to have a sample of the soil to send and get tested and also she would have to have the air tested for environment.

Stations feeding smaller cars, but charging more for gasoline

By MARK POTTS

NEW YORK (AP) - Five years after America came face to face with the energy crisis, Jess Smith's service station in Wichita, Kan., is as busy as ever.

Smith's station and thousands like it across the country now are serving smaller cars that go farther on a gallon of gas. But then again, they charge a lot more for it - an average of 30 cents a gallon more than five

The crisis that began with the October 1973 war between Israel and surrounding Arab countries abruptly ended an era of cheap energy for America and has wrought many changes in the way the nation uses As prices rose sharply with the Arab oil embargo that started with the 1973 Arab-Israeli war, oil producing nations for the first time discovered they could set the price and were not at the mercy of the international oil companies that had previously decided prices.

Arab nation's also discovered a potent weapon in world affairs. Although the oil weapon has not been used since the early 70s, the threat is still there.

Since the embargo, the government has been forcing Detroit to build autos that get better mileage - and requiring drivers to go slower. Homeowners and businesses are keeping a closer eye on thermostats and insulation manufacturers can't make enough to fill the demand.

The Federal Energy Agency, a 10man operation half a decade ago, has absorbed several other agencies involved with energy and mushroomed into the Department of Energy, budgeted at $10 million annually and employing 20,000.

Oil companies have expanded exploration for oil and natural gas while research has intensified on more exotic energy sources as replacements when the petroleum dries up for

The higher price of gasoline has not caused Americans to drive less. "If anything, the number of cars on the road is increasing in the last five years," Smith noted from his vantage on Wichita's bustling Central Avenue. "The price would have to get pretty outrageous to slow their driving."

What's outrageous? A dollar a gallon? Two dollars, as it is in many other countries? No one knows. Five years ago, 67 cents a gallon was outrageous. But that's what the average American is paying today for regular The jump in the price of gasoline, most of it coming between late 1973 and mid-1975, had a dramatic effect on gasoline consumption. After rising 25 percent in the five years before the embargo, gasoline usage rose only 9 percent in the past five years.

Stations feeding smaller cars, but charging more for gasoline

By MARK POTTS

NEW YORK (AP) - Five years after America came face to face with the energy crisis, Jess Smith's service station in Wichita, Kan., is as busy as ever.

Smith's station and thousands like it across the country now are serving smaller cars that go farther on a gallon of gas. But then again, they charge a lot more for it — an average of 30 cents a gallon more than five years ago.

The crisis that began with the October 1973 war between Israel and surrounding Arab countries abruptly ended an era of cheap energy for America and has wrought many changes in the way the nation uses fuel.

As prices rose sharply with the Arab oil embargo that started with the 1973 Arab-Israeli war, oil producing nations for the first time discovered they could set the price and were not at the mercy of the international oil companies that had previously decided prices.

Arab nation's also discovered a potent weapon in world affairs. Although the oil weapon has not been used since the early 70s, the threat is still there.

Since the embargo, the government has been forcing Detroit to build autos that get better mileage - and requiring drivers to go slower. Homeowners and businesses are keeping a closer eye on thermostats and insulation manufacturers can't make enough to fill the demand.

The higher price of gasoline has not caused Americans to drive less. "If anything, the number of cars on the road is increasing in the last five years," Smith noted from his vantage on Wichita's bustling Central Avenue. 'The price would have to get pretty outrageous to slow their driving."

What's outrageous? A dollar a gallon? Two dollars, as it is in many other countries? No one knows. Five years ago, 67 cents a gallon was outrageous. But that's what the average American is paying today for regular

The jump in the price of gasoline, most of it coming between late 1973 and mid-1975, had a dramatic effect on gasoline consumption. After rising 25 percent in the five years before the embargo, gasoline usage rose only 9 percent in the past five years.

About half of the automobiles sold this year will be compacts or smaller — up 50 percent from pre-energy crisis levels. And all new cars will go further on a tank of gas next year, when a federal law takes effect requiring better gas mileage.

Heated controversy stews over Soviet deal

By STEPHEN GOOD Dallas Times Herald

DALLAS — The heated controversy over Dresser Industries $145-million sale of oil drilling equipment to the Soviet Union still smolders, despite President Carter's personal approval of the sale early this month.

But that's nothing new to the Dallas-based company, which has conducted delicate trade negotiations with the Russians for more than 40 years. Dresser learned long ago that business with Communist countries can be frustrating, occasionally profitable, and sometimes downright im-

And government officials say Dresser is not the only firm encountering troubles in its trade with the Soviet Union.

Dresser currently is subpoenaed to appear Sept. 25 before Sen. Henry M. Jackson's, D-Wash., permanent subcommittee on investigations. The subcommittee wants to study all Dresser's documents relating to us oil drilling equipment sale.

Jackson, a well-known critic of the Soviet Union's emigration policies, co-authored the Jackson-Vanik amendment to the Trade Act of 1974 that prohibits the Soviet Union from receiving "most favored nation" trading status unless it permits free emigration. The Soviets want the trading satus for prestige, and also to avoid high U.S. tariffs, but they won't agree to the free emigration requirement.

The subpoena calls for virtually every document involved in the Dresser sale since negotiations began six years ago. Peter Sullivan, an assistant councel to Jackson's subcommittee, called the subpoena "routine," and added, "we're just trying to get some information.

But Dresser senior vice president E.R. Luter calls the subpoena "unbelievable" and an "affront" to the company. "The subcommittee has absolutely no authority to do anything about the sale," he said. "They can't evoke it. So why . . . was the subpoena

Luter said it will be "physcially impossible" to pull together all the pertinent documents before the Sept. 25 deadline. "It'll mean thousands and thousands of man-hours just to respond to it."

Dresser's sale to the Soviets — a large plant for producing oil-drilling bits made from tungsten carbide was nearly scuttled twice this summer for political reasons. Prsident Carter decided to review Dresser's oil drilling equipment sale personally in July after the Soviet Union convicted dissidents Anatoly Schcharansky and Alexander Ginzburg. Carter finally authorized Dresser's sale Aug. 9, after canceling the sale of another company's computer system to the

Then a secret report written by Bucy, who serves as a member of the science advisory board to the Pentagon, re-heated the Dresser controversy. Bucy reportedly warned that the Soviets could use Dresser's drill bit equipment and technology for undesirable military and energy develop-

Dresser retaliated by staging a press conference early this month, where the company argued that its oil drill bit equipment and technology could be bought from several other Western countries. Dresser officials also pointed out that the Soviets are the world's largest producer of oil drill bits.

Carter reaffirmed his approval of the Dresser sale a day later. "The President, I think, listened to the right people," Luter said.

Dresser's dealings with the Soviet Union have not always been controversial - or smooth. Acording to an exhaustive history of the company, Dresser conducted some trading with the Russians as early as the 1930s.

After World War II ended, Dresser sent a three-man delegation to warravaged Russia in search of new business. After five weeks of negotiation in 1947, complete with vodka toasts at late-night banquets, the Russians signed a $6-million contract for the design and equipment of a natural gas liquefaction plant near Moscow. The plant was scheduled for completion in Dresser's contract was reported to be one of the largst signed by an American company with the Russians since the end of the war. But the hoopla died as Cold War tensions began forming between the two countries, and Dresser began feeling uncomfortable about its contract. In September 1947, Dresser president Neil Mallon wrote about his concern to Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman: "If accepting futher business from those people is inimical to the overall interests of the United Sates, then we do not want any part of such business.' The Cold War soon clamped down on trade between the United States and Russia. The U.S. Commerce Department decided on March 31, 1948 to ban trade with the Soviet Union by suspending all export licenses.

By this time, most of the natural gas plant equipment had been sent to Soviet Union, and Dresser had received payment for everything shipped. But some storage vessels and pumps were left behind, and Dresser learned years later that the Russians didn't open their plant until 1954 — five years behind schedule.

Cold War tensions also killed Dresser's $12-million contract with Romania for oil field equipment, along with a $5-million contract for synthetic oil plant in Czechoslovakia. The States denied export licenses for both contracts, but Dresser managed to salvage the Romanian sale by selling the equipment to Argentina.

In 1955, with relations still chilly signed a contract with the Russians for rights to produce a high-speed oil "turbodrill" in the United States. In return, Dresser agreed to provide technology on rotary rock bits - the steel-toothed tips of Western oil

Gold price hits all time high then drops slightly

By WILLIAM GLASGALL AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The price of gold is soaring. This past week it hit an all-time high of just over $216 an ounce before retreating a bit, and some market-watchers predicted the price of the precious metal could go past the $300-an-ounce mark before too long.

Gold traditionally has been a safe harbor in times of political or economic turmoil, taking the place of stocks, bonds or cash as a storehouse of

But do uncertainties lie ahead for the precious metal? Some 150 financial analysts gathered in the penthouse dining room of a posh Wall Street-area club a few days ago to go over just these concerns.

"Our very existence is surrounded by innumerable questions with seemingly unknown answers," said Robin A. Plumbridge, deputy chairman of South Africa's Gold Fields group of mining firms.

Among the uncertainties he cited are what production will be in the future and at what cost, whether there will be unrest in South Africa, producer of three-quarters of the West's gold supply, and what Soviet and Western governments' gold sales will amount to.

Even attempting to gauge demand is difficult. Asked one analyst: "Demand is relative, and what's the demand for gold relative to? To industrial use? To speculation?"

Additionally, governments in the past periodically have outlawed private gold holdings, have imposed taxes on gold and have attempted arbitrarily to fix its value at low According to Citibank, sales of gold on world markets last year totaled 1,607 metric (2,200-pound) tons at an average price of $148 an ounce.

This year, however, with the price of gold already well above $200, the bank is predicting demand will soar by 9 percent to 1,750 tons while supplies available will hardly grow at all from the 1977 tally.

The situation may grow even tighter in 1979, Citibank said, with the bullion supply growing by under 1 percent while demand gains by 7 percent. The predicted scarcity may drive gold's price up; Citibank's report predicts a $230-$240 an ounce price in 1979, while mutual fund manager John C. Van Eck sees bullion at over $300 in two years.

But would the price rise be checked if governments worldwide were to tep up their gold sales? The United States, for instance, is selling nearly 5 million ounces of gold over a 12-month period in a program aimed at bolstering the dollar.

Bullion dealer Henry Jarecki, chairman of Mocatta Metals Corp., pointed out in a recent report that bullion reserves are "in great plenty," with private and government stocks probably "equal to 50 or even more years of current production and probably 75-100 years of current fresh

Gold production and sales plans of the Soviet Union, believed to be the world's third largest producer behind Canada, remain a virtual mystery. Plumbridge figures annual output is 440 metric tons a year, while Citibank says Russia sold 401 tons of gold in the West last year and estimates this year's sales at 345 tons. Plumbridge contends Russia's richest gold deposits are located in relatively inaccessible areas of Siberia and are mined at great ex-

But production may increase in the future. According to Theodore Shabad, a Columbia University specialist on Russian natural resources. "We definitely know that until a few decades ago, almost all the gold came from northeast Siberia. Now there are new lodes in the desert region of Central Asia and in Armenia.

Wall Street showing evidence of slowdown

By CHET CURRIER AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Wall Street has been bracing for an economic slowdown for some time now, but the storm has yet to hit.

Recent indicators on the behavior of business activity have shown a little less vigor than was evident in the second quarter, when the Gross National Product grew at a rapid 8.7 percent annual rate, after adjustment

But neither have the data signaled the kind of marked slowdown in the economy that many analysts have One reason for this, in the view of a number of Wall Streeters, has been the popularity of the six-month floating rate certificates, tied to Treasury bill rates, that banks and savings institutions have been permitted to offer since June 1. These certificates seem to have helped keep money in relatively good supply for borrowing, even though interest rates have reached lofty levels and appear to be headed still higher. On Friday the Federal Reserve raised the discount rate - the rate it charges on loans to its member commercial banks - from 7% to 8 percent.

"The major development in the economy since last month is the rebound in saving inflows to mortgage lending institutions, resulting from the use of the new floating rate saving certificates," said Gary M. Weng-

Despite the pleasant ring to all this, many analysts regard it as something less than an unmitigated blessing. As Wenglowski put it:

"Despite the generally positive effects of the new saving certificates on near-term economic activity, there is a risk that they could sharpen next year's downturn by allowing a further buildup in already high consumer debt levels during the next several Stock market investors generally may be feeling similar misgivings, to judge by the behavior of prices lately. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 16.11 to 862.44 in the past week, after taking a 29.19-point drop the week before. The New York Stock Exchange composite index lost 1.44 to 57.37, and the American Stock Exchange market value index tumbled 6.78 to Big Board volume averaged 32.98 million shares a day, against 38.45 million the week before.

Late Thursday afternoon, volume for the year to date passed the 5.36 billion mark on the NYSE, breaking the record set in 1976 with more than three months still to go in 1978.

Since the six-month certificates have kept money in relatively good supply, they worry, the Fed may find itself in the position of having to push interest rates considerably higher than they already are to pursue its anti-inflation aims.

A. Marshall Acuff Jr. at Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co. summarized the situation this way: "We're obviously not ready to lead a cheer for recession, but we do look upon a period of slower growth as a chance to keep inflation from running away with itself and as a chance to get the U.S. economy back on steadier ground

"Our one significant concern is that the longer the slowdown is postponed, the greater the chances that the growth interruption will develop into an actual decline."

Drive under way to exhibit history of blacks in West With BOB TIEUEL

The Black Experience Comes to West Texas-Roots drive under way—One of the most interesting stories in the development of the West is the stirring contributions made by the Black man as a pioneer, cowboy, soldier, rancher and other fields of endeavor as the land West of the Pecos slowly but surely developed to become a most vital part of the great American tradition.

In relating the romantic saga of how the American West was settled, the story tellers have so many times ignored the vital contributions of blacks. Western movies, history books, fiction and music are usually devoid of references to blacks taking part in pushing back the frontier.

But they were there-guiding and interpreting for the early explorers, riding on the great cattle drives, homesteading on the dusty plains, fighting with and against Indians, creating mayhem as desperadoes and carving out all-black towns, like Boley and Langston, Okla.

There were Nat Love and Cowboy Wallace of Loraine, Tex., two of the most famous cowhands of the early West. Their story is like a stirring movie drama. Included in the story of the West in Estevanico, a black Moor who led the first Spanish explorations in New Mexico and Arizona. York, the slave of William Clark and inter-preter of the Lewis and Clark expedition; Jean Baptiste Du Sable, the founder of Chicago; Benjamin "Pap" Singleton, an organizer of the Negro exodus from the South to Kansas in the 1870s; and Bill Pickett, the Oklahoma cowboy who originated the practice of "bull-dogging" steers.

It Happened In the West: For many years, perhaps more than 25, Jimmy Palmer served as an officer in the police department of Hobbs, N.M. Hobb is a Southeastern New Mexico city of some 35,000 or more and located near the Texas border. Other sections of the state often have referred to Hobbs as being located in Little Dixie. So what, one bellringer put A. Jimmy Palmer served a number of years as the city's chief of police efore his recent retirement. He will go down in history as one of its most effective and qualified chiefs in the ci-ty's history. This column will review his notable career in a tribute to Jimmy Palmer, who brought credit, honor, duty and commitment to his people, his community, his state and the nation. His portrait will hang in the "hall of fame" in the Black Historical Library at Pecos.

Tongsun Park finding life in Washington difficult

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tongsun Park, whose smooth-talking style and cash-stuffed envelopes won him friends on Capitol Hill, is finding life increasingly difficult in the nation's capital these days.

Not only is Park a social outcast in this politically sensitive city, but he's target of the Internal Revenue Service as well.

Appearing before the House ethics committee last week, the normally unflappable South Korean businessman showed signs that his good humor was wearing thin as he made a surprise opening statement attacking

Park, who made millions as the middleman on U.S. rice sales to South Korea, accused the IRS of violating his rights in trying to collect $4.5 million that the agency claims he owes in back taxes.

Speaking in barely audible tones,

Park, the central figure in the alleged South Korean influence-buying campaign, said the IRS violated due process in placing liens against his Washington home and the property of his Pacific Development Corp.

"If anything had happened to American citizens like what had happened to me, especially in the tax case, he would be personally wiped out ... and he might have committed suicide," Park said. "I just want to have peace of mind."

Expanding on his complaints later with reporters, Park said he was particularly upset because the IRS lien prevented him from staying at his house while he was testifying

"I've been living in a crummy hotel," Park said. However, he would not identify the hotel.

The IRS declined to comment on Park's tax case, citing its policy of handling individual cases in confi-

Park, 43, is testifying for both the Justice Department and the House committee under an agreement that a bribery indictment against him will not be prosecuted if he testifles truth-

Park, who returned from South Korea under U.S. pressure, has said he contributed $850,000 to influential congressmen during his years as a well-known Washington social figure. But he has steadfastly denied that he did so as an agent of the Seoul govern-

Since the influence-buying scandal began unraveling, Park's social life has been on the wane.

During most of his stay in Washington, he has been a guest of the U.S. government and received protection from U.S. marshals

Eference Murphy, Texarkana's speedy 100-yard dash man, took the second half kickoff back 74 yards and a touchdown to stun the Panthers, but it wasn't long before Mojo caught fire and scored two touchdowns in the third period and a third one in the final quarter. The Panthers were tnocking on the door again at the Tiger six-yard line as the game

It was a standoff in the first half with both teams only having four first downs, but it was a trmenedous goal line stand by the Panthers in the first half that turned the East Texas team away. Permian held at its own oneyard line four downs in a row without the Tigers being able to punch it over with 211-pound fullback being hit hard an four straight cracks into the line.

Permian stormed back to score TDs after Murphy's electrifying run with flanker John Muery catching an 11yard pass from quarterback Vic Vines. Robert Orosco booted the first of three extra points to give Mojo the lead, 7-6 with 9:07 left in the third

The next touchdown came on a four-yard run by tailback Greg Lambert and the other score was on a determined nine-yard run by fullback Roger Lightfoot in the final peiord.

Permian held Texarkana to two first downs in the second half with Lambert and Vines leading the way. Lambert had 90 yards in 25 carries and Vines added 82 in 17 carries while Percy Bruce was the leading ball car-

Penn State nips SMU with rally

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) - A pair of third period touchdowns on a 16-yard pass by quarterback Chuck Fusina and a 3-yard run by fullback Matt Suhey rallied third-ranked Penn State to a 26-21 college football victory Saturday over Southern Methodist.

Penn State, unbeaten in four games, trailed the 17-point underdog Mustangs from the Southwest Conference 21-12 with 12 minutes left in the third quarter.

State then drove 69 yards on nine plays with Fusina throwing 16 yards to Scott Fitzkee and Matt Bahr converting the extra point to reduce the SMU lead to 21-19.

After SMU was forced to punt, Penn State rolled 73 yards on 12 plays for the winning touchdown. Fusina completed passes of 7, 13 and 12 yards that moved the ball for a first down to the SMU 30. Freshman Joel Coles ran for 12, Booker Moore raced 15, and Suhey then cracked three yards into the end zone. Bahr converted to make it 26-

SMU sophomore quarterback Mike

Ford's pinpoint passing keyed two second-quarter touchdowns that sent the Mustangs off at halftime with a 14-12 lead. All of Penn State's first half points came on field goals by Bahr - 25, 26, 41 and 30 yards. The Penn State kicker now has 13 three-pointers in 15 attempts this season. SMU trailed 6-0 in the second quarter when Ford finally unlimbered his arm in a seven-play, 72-yard touchdown drive to take a 7-6 lead. Darold Turner scored from the one, but the score was set up by 17 and 49 yard pass completions by Ford. Eddie Garcia kicked the point.

Reeves sparks Tech to 41-26 triumph

By TED BATTLES R-T Sports Editor

LUBBOCK — Perhaps it won't be such a long season for Texas Tech

Raider fans had been warned that the team was young, the schedule was tough and there would be no Rodney Allison to pull chestnuts out of the True, Tech had two quarterbacks with a smattering of experience, Tres Adami, the passer, and Mark Johnson, the runner.

Johnson proved he could run in the first period, touring 49 yards with a keeper to give the Raiders, who had fallen behind when Arizona drove 73 yards for a TD with the opening kickoff, a brief 7-6 lead.

But Johnson's run was a brilliant individual effort and, after all, when you've got a quarterback who is a good passer but can't run and another that is celebrated for his running, it isn't going to take even an Arizona defense long to figure out what is

As halftime approached, Tech's of-fense, outside of Johnson's magnificent gallop, was going nowhere. Arizona led 16-7 and most of the faces in the Jones Stadium opening night crowd of 41,712 were as long as the ride back to Midland, Amarillo or Roswell

A short punt gave Tech possession at the Arizona 39 with only 1:24 left in the half and Coach Rex Dockery yelled for the freshman quarterback. When he sprinted on to the field, it sounded as though Tech had just scored. After all, Ron Reeves already had a West Texas reputation. Last year at Lubbock Monterey, he commanded from opponents the same kind of respect the Mafia gets.

It didn't take long to see why.

He raced the clock and won with 14 seconds to spare when he hit Godfrey Turner with a 10-yard touchdown pass. It still left Tech behind 16-14, but it was just the kind of lift the Raiders needed before heading to the dressing room.

As for Reeves, that was just an appetizer. What seemed like a possible rout of Tech, flip-flopped quickly as Reeves directed the Raiders 80 yards in 10 plays on their first second half possession. He started it with an eight-yard run, kept it going with a 43-yard pass to Turner and finally ran it over from the three.

Moments later, a Johnny Quinney interception and 35-yard return to the Arizona 21 brought on Reeves again and he responded to a third and goal from just inside the 10-yard line with a touchdown pass into a crowd on the goal. Brian Nelson beat two defenders for the ball and Tech led 28-16 with 4: 42 still left in the third period.

All Reeves had done was hit seven straight passes for two touchdowns and 101 yards in the air. It was still a game, but Tech now exuded the confidence and maturity that was missing at the game's start. The doubt and hesitancy seemed to disappear when Reeves ran on the field.

After it was over and Tech nailed down an unexpectedly emphatic 41-26 triumph, Reeves viewed his performance in a little different light.

He protested attempts to make him seem the guy who turned it around all by himself. "The rest of the players had confidence in me and helped me. When I came in we had a good field

USC's Charles White on the move ...against Alabama during upset win

Trojans upset Crimson Tide

fumbles by shredding Alabama's vaunted defense for 199 yards, including a 40-yard touchdown run, as seventh-ranked Southern California knocked off No. 1 Alabama 24-14 Saturday and ended the nation's longest major college winning streak at 12 games

The outcome was a direct reversal of last year's meeting between the two intersectional powers when Southern Cal was ranked No.1 but dropped a 21-20 decision to Alabama in Los Angeles.

Frank Jordan kicked a 40-yard field goal early in the second period to give Southern Cal a 10-0 halftime lead after a goal line stand stopped Alabama twice at the 1-yard line. The Trojans then marched to the Alabama 23 on a drive that lasted almost 81/2 minutes and was aided by a fourth-down penalty that enabled them to keep the football.

Southern Cal wrapped it up in the final period on TD passes of 6 and 40 yards from Paul McDonald to Kevin Williams.

The Crimson Tide had pulled to within 10-7 when Major Ogilvie scored on a 41-yard dash early in the third period on the first play after White's second fumble was recovered by Murray Legg. White's first bobble killed a 73-yard drive at the Alabama two on Southern Cal's first possession. Legg also recovered that one.

But McDonald's touchdown passes to Williams built the Trojans' lead to 24-7 and more than offset a 41-yard Alabama scoring pass from Jeff Rutledge to Bart Krout with 7: 10 remaining.

Both teams came into the game with 2-0 records but White quickly gave the record Legion Field crowd of 77,313 a taste of what was to come, carrying five times for 38 yards before his first fumble. The 183-pound junior, who was held to a 1977 low of 63 yards in last year's meeting with Alabama, had 149 yards on 17 carries in the first half alone this time. His touchdown run came at 8:42 of the opening period.

White, who carried 29 times in the game, unleashed his 40-yard scoring dash on the first play following a 33-yard punt by Alabama's Woody Umphrey. He took a pitchout around right end, cut back to the left and

With second-string quarterback Steadman Shealy at the controls, Alabama drove from its 20 to the Southern Cal 1 early in the second period, but the Trojans' defense gang-tackled first Ogilvie and then Tony Nathan for no gain.

Southern Cal was forced to punt from its 16, but a penalty against Alabama for an illegal block returned the ball to the Trojans at the 31 and

Jordan booted his field goal 13 plays later. Southern Cal boosted its lead to 17-7, scoring in eight plays after a 32-yard punt by Umphrey to the Alabama 39. The scoring drive included a pass interference penalty against Alabama's E.J. Junior at the 22. The Trojans scored again on their next possession when a McDonald pass was deflected by Alabama defensive back Don McNeal into the hands of Williams, who was behind the secondary.

White's performance gave him 548 yards in three games and 2,864 for his career. With the rest of this season and all of next year left, he is just 860 yards short of Anthony Davis' Southern Cal career record.

Longhorns take 17-3 victory

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Safeties Rick Churchman and Johnnie Johnson and linebacker Lance Taylor recovered fumbles inside the Wyoming 25-yard line Saturday night that sixth-ranked Texas' sputtering offense cashed for all its points in a 17-3 intersectional victory over the spunky Cowboys.

Texas, now 2-0 for the year, had to drive a grand total of 25 yards for its

The restless 60,000 fans in Memorial Stadium saved their biggest ovation for a Longhorn fourth-quarter goal line stand. Linebacker Bill Acker made a saving tackle on Wyoming quarterback Marc Cousins on fourth and two at the Texas 9.

Wyoming, which was stopped almost cold offensively by the veteran Texas defensive unit, posted a quick 3-0 lead in the first quarter when Guy Frazier recovered Johnson's fumble on a punt return at the Texas 13. The Longhorns held, and Dan Christopulous kicked a 22-yard field goal.

Texas charged back to score two touchdowns and take a 14-3 lead at

Erxleben, who kept Wyoming pinned back all night with his towering 50-yard punts, kicked a 43-yard field goal after the Longhorns got another break, and that was all the scoring for the night.

Wyoming, of the Western Athletic Conference, is now 1-1 for the year.

The Texas defense, which was leading the country with an average of only 85 yards permitted against it, recorded eight sacks against the desperate Wyoming quarterback.

Texas pounced on three fumbles and intercepted two passes in the sloppy game.

Wyoming returned the favor by recovering four Texas fumbles and intercepting two Longhorn passes. Texas coach Fred Akers suffered a fright late in the game when ace defensive end Tim Campbell was carried off the field with a knee injury. It was not immediately determined how serious the injury was.

Texas got its first big break when 155-pound tailback Myron Hardeman fumbled and Johnson recovered on the Wyoming 5. On the second down, McEachern squirmed across for the

Austin White captures win

Austin White was the only Midland ninth grade team to come away with a victory in Saturday's football action.

Austin White ran over Odessa Ector 27-0. Midland's Edison Purple fought to a 0-0 deadlock with Odessa Crockett while Edison Gold fell to Odessa Bonham by a 12-7 count. Austin Orange suffered a 7-0 setback to Odessa Hood. In the only other ninth grade contest, Nimitz rolled over Bowie 32-6 in an all Odessa encounter.

In eighth grade action, Midland's San Jacinto was the only team to produce any offense as they produced 38-0 whitewash of Odessa Bonham. Midland's Alamo also came out in the winning column with a 14-12 win over Blackshear of Odessa.

In other eighth grade games, Hood and Crockett, both of Odessa, fought to a 0-0 standoff while Bowie and Nimitz had a 14-14 tie.

Third quarter one to forget

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

Both Midland High and Midland Lee football teams would like to forget a few things that happened in the third quarter of their respective games Friday night. Lee coughed up a fumble and had a punt blocked early in the third period against Plainview that cost touchdowns for the Bulldogs, and Midland High saw a 14-7 first half lead disappear in a game they eventually lost to Lubbock Monterey, 17-14. However, the Rebels turned on the juice and overcame the two disasters with a 22-yard field goal off the toe of Bill McPherson for a 16-14 win over what most consider the best AAAA unit in the Panhandle. The Rebels went into the contest a 14-point underdog to the state ranked Bulldogs.

'We have to be pleased because we beat a very good football team," Lee coach Gil Bartosh said Saturday morning. "Plainview is a very explosive team and our defense held their good backs to less than 100 yards in the game. Our defense won the game for us. We thought we should have posted a shutout, and we hated to lose that, but it was a good test for our team's pride to see a little adversity. We jumped to a 13-0 lead and we gave them two touchdowns to start the second half. We didn't particularly like that, but our kids responded "That was a very physical contest. There was some very hard hitting by both teams, and it was good to see our defense make that goal line stand in the first half. I think Plainview is going to win that district up there in a runaway. We feel it was really good to defeat a team like Plainview before the district race starts.

"The offense did make a few mistakes out there, but Elmer Montgomery was open at least three times behind their secondary and we couldn't get the ball to him. The field was wet and that hindered the passing McPherson is getting a lot of confi-dence in his kicking game and that is coming along fine. Plainview got a touchdown on a blocked punt, and our kicker just lined up to shallow. He was only about seven yards deep."

Fullback Jeff McCowan got his third straight 100-yard plus game under his belt with 137 yards. The tenacious Lee defense held the hearlded Royce Coleman to a mere 59 yards rushing. Coleman went into the game with a 185-yard per game average. Also the defense held Plainview to a mere 112 yards total offense, 309 yards under the Bulldogs' per game average for the year.

Unfortunately, the Bulldogs didn't come back for a victory as they suffered their second defeat in as many weeks. The Pack will carry a 1-2 record into district play against defending 5-4A champion Odessa Permian in two weeks.

"Monterey didn't do anything offensively or defensively that we didn't expect," Midland High coach Dennie Hays said. "We just didn't play good and we didn't play bad. But that wasn't good enough to win. Lubbock controlled the ball very well on us, and the offense didn't get too many chances to move the ball. Still, we felt like we didn't do all we could when we had the ball. We just didn't captilize on the chances we had.

'For the second week in a row, we had a mental lapse in the third period. I don't really know why, but we were not as intense in the third quarter as we were when we started the game. I hate to ride a lame horse to death, but a lot of it is inexperience on the part of our players. They were trying hard and playing hard, but they over reacted some and forget their keys. We have to teach them to cover their responsibilities first."

Dallas will battle St. Louis Cards today

DALLAS (AP) - Where have the Cardiac Cardinals gone? For that matter where is the Dallas Doomsday

Both have been nearly extinct species in the early, early National Football League campaign.

St. Louis' high-flying offense which produced so many last-second victories under Don Coryell has been sputtering under new Coach Bud Wil-

And the Dallas defense which was so dominating in the NFL playoffs last year has played like a collection of mere mortals, yielding 24 and 27 points to the New York Giants and Los Angeles Rams, respectively.

"We are a disappointed football team," said Wilkinson, the 61-yearold former Oklahoma coach who brings his winless Cardinals into Texas Stadium for a National Conference East matchup with the suddenly less-than-awesome Cowboys.

"Sure, the schedule is tough, but the schedule is a fact of life," said Wilkinson. "Yes, we've had some injury problems. But you can't at those two factors and say that's why we haven't

"We haven't won because we still have not played with the intensity we should have. We've lost because we've dropped passes and missed

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said it's still the same old Cardinals in one respect: "I see no difference in attitude and pursuit. They are a hard-hitting team. I look at the Cardinals and I see all-out effort. We've got to him 'em fast."

St. Louis had four defensive starters missing last week and fielded a patchwork offensive line. Of course, halfback Terry Metcalf, who terrorized the Cowboys for years, has gone to Canada. Tight end J.V. Cain is out with an injury.

Wide receiver Mel Gray, who dropped three passes last week, still frightens the Cowboys. "He always comes alive against us ... He's done it every year," said Cowboy special scout Ermal Allen.

Jerry Delk rode a hot streak Monday night in the Air Park Men's League as he racked up a 246 middle game to pace his Advance Consultants team to a 1,000 scratch game.

Delk sandwiched his 246 game with games of 200 and 208 for a city leading 654 series.

Sheila Wood, bowling in the Keglers Mixed, rolled the single high game with a 247, and paced the women with a fine 617 series.

The Midland Women's Bowling Association will hold an open meeting Tuesday at the Coors building on Highway 80 at 7 p.m.

C. Dayle Vannoy of Lubbock was inaugurated as the new president of the five million member American Bowling Congress Saturday, Sept. 16, in Lubbock. Bowling dignitaries from throughout the nation attended the installation. Midlanders in attendance were Jack and Pat Francis, Bill and Jody Hogue, Howard and Ellie Shelton, Tommy Miller, C. G. Wells and Dough Cunningham. Proprietor Emory Isenberg, past presi-dent and chairman of the Executive Committee of the Texas Bowling Centers Association was also present.

Andretti nabs Trenton victory over Parsons

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) - Mario Andretti won his first Indianapolis car race in 51/2 years Saturday, taking a 1.9 second victory over Johnny Parsons in a 150-mile event at Trenton Speedway.

Andretti, who won 30 of his 33 Indy car victories between 1965-1969 then hit a spell of bad luck, took the lead with 30 laps remaining in the 100-lap race when early leader Danny Ongais spun out.

"I was really aching for one," Andretti said. "It couldn't have come at a better time. I knew the last few laps would be especially critical because we were running the motor under so much pressure.

Fullback Jeff Robnett missed all of the second half with a shoulder injury, but he also is expected to be back quickly. Still, that hurt the Pack against Monterey.

"We have no complaints with the way our kids have been playing. They have a lot of desire, but what we need more than anything is to get everyone on the field at once. We just have to get the team healthy because we just can't survive all these injuries.'

helped the effort by splitting the crossbars for his 83rd consecutive extra point, an Oklahoma school record, besides hitting his 49-yard field goal.

Although Rice never managed to scrape up much of an offensive effort, the loss of six of seven fumbles, with a number coming on kickoff returns deep in its own territory, really killed whatever chances the Owls might have had to salvage a close game. One Rice fumble ended a potential scoring drive just minutes before the end of the game.

Rice's ace sophomore quarterback Randy Hertel didn't start the game, giving up his place to Mark Snyder. Snyder, a senior, shined occasionally as he hit on 10 of 15 passes for 71 yards and capped a drive started in the third quarter with a one-yard toss to pick up the Owls' only score in the Marc Hill led off the eighth with a double off Houston relief pitcher Joaquin Andujar and Harris ran for him. Roger Metzger sacrificed Harris to third and pinch hitter John Tamaago walked.

Dan Warthan relieved Andujar and was greeted by Heintzelman's line drive single to left field. The victory went to Gary Lavelle, 13-10.

The Giants scored their other two runs off Houston starter J.R Richard in the fifth inning. Terry Whitfield doubled and scored on a double by Jack Clark. Clark reached third when centerfielder Joe Cannon fumbled the ball, then scored on a wild pitch by

CLEVELAND (AP) — Rick Manning's two-run bloop single ignited a 15-hit attack that helped David Clyde and the Cleveland Indians to a 10-1 victory over the New York Yankees in a nationally televised game Saturday.

The Yankees grabbed a 1-0 lead off Clyde, 8-11, in the first inning on Lou Piniella's RBI single. But the Indians struck back for four runs in the second inning off New York starter Jim Beattie, 5-9.

Manning's bases-loaded single put Cleveland ahead to stay and Jim Norris added a two-run triple on a line drive that was misjudged by center fielder Mickey Rivers.

in as many nights in the third inning and the Indians came up with three more runs in the fourth and single runs in the seventh and eighth, the latter on Cage's infield out.

Clyde, who worked his way out of a couple of early jams, wound up with a nine-hitter, four of those being singles by Willie Randolph.

CHICAGO (AP) - Greg Pryor singled home Mike Squires in the eighth inning to give the Chicago White Sox a 5-4 victory over the California Angels Satur-

Squires led off the inning with a single, moved up on an infield out and scored on Pryor's two-out single off Dyar Miller, 6-2, who had relieved California starter Chris Knapp in the seventh. Lerrin LaGrow, 5-5, who came in for Chicago in the eighth, got the win.

The Angels had tied the score at 4-4 in the top of the eighth. Lyman Bostock led off with a walk, Don Baylor singled off Jim Willoughby, who relieved starter Rich Wortham, and Willoughby then hit Joe Rudi with a pitch to load the bases.

LaGrow then came in and Ron Jackson greeted him with a single, scoring Bostock. Baylor also attempted to score but was thrown out at the plate by Bob Molinaro.

UCLA punted a moment later to Kansas' Jimmy Little, who weaved in and out of two clusters of tacklers and raced 66 yards before Kenny

Easley caught him on the 3. On the first play, Hines dragged a Bruin defender into the end zone and Mike Hubach's fourth extra point made it ence at the 1, and on third-and-goal from the two-foot line, Hines stood straight up and fired a pass to Kirby Criswell in the end zone.

for a 10-yard loss on a fourth-and-three situation with 2:09 remaining. Theotis Brown scored two second-half touchdowns and Peter Boermeester kicked a 25-yard field goal before UCLA's rally fell short.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) - Tailback Steve Atkins ran for two touchdowns and Ed Loncar kicked three field goals to lift Maryland past North Carolina 21-20 in an Atlantic Coast Conference game Saturday.

Trailing by five points with less than eight minutes remaining, Atkins took a pitch six yards into the end zone for score, and a pass by quarterback Tim O'Hare for a two-point conversion failed. The score capped a long drive and was set up when O'Hare, facing second down and 28 to go, completed a 28-yard pass to end Gary Ellis at the North Carolina nine.

North Carolina had earlier when reserve quarterback Clyde Christiansen threw a five-yard touchdown pass. End Wayne Tucker caught the ball in the end zone after it was tipped by receiver Bob Loomis.

The win leaves Maryland 3-0 and drops North Carolina, the defending champion in the ACC, to

Missouri raps Ole Miss, 45-14

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Sophomore Bill Bradley completed 14 of 19 passes, two of them for touchdowns, and helped 17th ranked Missouri spank Mississippi 45-14 despite a rash of Tiger fumbles in intersectional football Saturday.

Bradley, a slippery wizard of the option offense, whipped scoring aerials of 14 yards to Kellin Winslow and 25 yards to Leo Lewis to spur the Tigers, who overcame five fumbles.

Mississippi's defense, spread out by Bradley's elusive maneuvers also fell prey to surges through the line which resulted in touchdown romps of 77 and 29 yards by Gerry Ellis and James Wilder.

Marc Massengale's recovery of a fumbled punt return by Lewis helped send Ole Miss ahead 7-0 on quarterback Bobby Garner's 10-yard run around end in the opening period before Missouri settled down. Six minutes later Ellis then broke a shoestring tackle try by a Mississippi defender and galloped to

After Winslow scored on Bradley's first touchdown pass the Tigers never again trailed.

Mississippi drove 23 yards to earn a 14-14 tie late in the first half on Garner's second touchdown, a 1-yard run, after recovering a second fumbled punt return by Lewis.

With time running out in the period, Jeff Brockhaus booted a 38-yard field goal to give Missouri a 17-14 edge and the Tigers, after initially losing still another fumble, broke open the game in the final two periods.

Tom McBride gathered in an 11-yard touchdown pass and Bob Meyer bolted 43 yards to score in the closing three minutes for Missouri, which boosted its record to 2-1. Mississippi stands at 1-1.

...When the curtain rises on St. Ann's Fair

Going through the hundreds of books fair goers will be able to browse through at St. Ann's Fair are gets underway are, Kurt White, 7, and Tonya Hertel, 7, standing.

By PATSY GORDON R-T Lifestyle Editor

The seed for St. Ann's Family Fair was planted more than 30 years ago at an ice cream social held on the lawn of St. George's Catholic Church that was located across the street from what is now the Midland Police Department.

The first Family Fair as we know it today was held in 1948 at the present location of St. Ann's Catholic Church. Except for a couple of years, 1953 and 1954, when the event was held at Playland on North Big. Spring Street that now stands deserted and forlorn. The old St. Ann's Church was where the school cafeteria is now. About 100 persons participated in the fair.

Today, St. Ann's Fair is held on an asphalt playground, and in another addition to St. Ann's Catholic Church, the Parish Center.

This year's fair, scheduled Saturday, will again be highlighted by the traditional food, fun and games begun in 1948. The event, is the church's only fund-raising project undertaken each year and will be held from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on the school grounds at 2000

The fair will feature more than 40 activities, including booths of arts and crafts, homemade items and a wide variety of food and games. Rides for the entire family will be set up on the grounds beside the Parish Center Thursday and Friday nights and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., according to Penny Angelo, publicity chairman for the 1978

The games will include darts, dime throws and basketball in the 19 game booths planned for this year's fair.

Those hungry from all the physical exercise can satisfy their appetites by choosing from approximately 16 booths, whose venders will be selling beer, burritos, hamburgers, corn on the cob, a spaghetti dinner, chili, sausage and ice cream. And probably more.

Arts, crafts, books, costume jewelry, odds and ends, sewing and confetti-stuffed egg shells called cascarones are other booths that will be manned by loyal parishioners.

According to Mrs. J. J. Kelly, longtime Midlander, the first early fairs were started as an assistance to St. Ann's School only, but now the proceeds benefit the entire parish

Mrs. Kelly explained that Playland was rented for those two years so the children could be treated to pony rides.

Mrs. Tom McCurdy, another longtime Midlander, Mrs. Kelly and Joan Noel, all St. Ann parishioners, recall a popular money-making books in the early fairs was the post office booth. Important persons all over the world would be sent post cards asking them for gifts to be auctioned off.
"They sent expensive gifts, too," said Mrs. McCurdy. One of the important people was the president of the Phillipines.

Other booths that the early fairs had were some that have lasted through the years. They are Country Store, sewing, hot dog and hamburger booths. Others enjoyed were Barbi booth, gold fish (real) pond, spook house, donkey booth, palm reading, pie eating contest and Model-T rides. The post office booth evolved into the grab bag booth, said Mrs. Noel.

Mrs. Noel and her husband, Ted, have chaired 12 different booths in the past years, and another St. Ann's parishioner, Gil Gilless, has manned the ticket booth several years running.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stanley are chairmen of the 1978 fair.

Mrs. McCurdy reminisces that Father Thomas Kennedy was priest of the parish when the first fair was held. He wanted to keep St. Ann's School tuition-free as long as he could, she added. He was able to do so, said Mrs. McCurdy, until the last year he was with the Midland

Bill Collyns, who lives at 1900 W. Texas Ave., recalls that people "kept coming" to the fair, even though the grounds might be muddy from rain. The grounds at that time were dirt.

"We try to keep up with the times and add new things," said Mrs. Noel. "We want it to be as much fun for children as possible. For teens, too," she added.

The fair was greatly expanded 10 years ago because children were standing in line for their turn at the game booths.

Approximately 10,000 Midlanders showed up for the 1977 fair and Mrs. Angelo pointed out, "We have always had excellent support from the community in the past, and we are looking forward to having good crowds out for this year."

It appears that seed planted those many years ago was a very fertile

Actually, the Incredible Edibles department, featuring snack foods indigenous to foreign countries, is part of the large Country Store booth, located on the fair grounds in the warehouse behind the school. This year the Country Store, which generally features canned goods is my judges. goods, jams, jellies, pickles relishes and baked goods such as breads, cakes, cookies and candies, has a new addition—the

They are co-chairmen Joan Noel, Lois Harrington and Barbara White. They list with delight this year's spe-cialties placed under the heading "Incredible Edibles"-nachos, spanokopede (a rolled pastry with spinach and cheese/filling), baklava, stuffed jalapeno peppers, stuffed grape leaves, egg rolls, peaches and cream crepes and cream puffs.

As a special feature again this year, Dr. Arnold Allen will demonstrate the making of crepes and will prepare them on the spot with peaches and whip-ped cream for those who prefer their dessert crepes hot. The job is classified by the vol-

Another arduous cook is Sister Urbana Steffenkock, a native of West Germany who, among many other things, does most of the cooking for the residents of St. Ann's Convent. Ingredients are taken to Sister Urbana and are transformed into as many as 30 pies, 20 coffee cakes and dozens of loaves of bread over the course of a summer.

Booth workers rely on donations. Parishioners, aided by many non-Catholics, donate time and money. Many contributions come from merchants around the area.

It's not unusual, according to Mrs. Noel, for people to donate food goods to one booth, sewing goods to another, and even manage another booth at the fair.

On Friday night before the fair, the Country Store co-chairmen, their families and many tireless volunteers take food items which are deposited at the convent. That night, items are priced and before daylight on Saturday morning everyone is back at work loading and arranging tables.

Last year the Incredible Edibles department alone sold approxi-mately 20 dozen stuffed jalapenos, 22 dozen spanokopede, 200 plates of nachos and 200 crepes, to name only some of the items. This year they intend to double some items.

For those interested in making donations of food, money or time to the Country Story-Incredible Edible-Children's Candy Counter booth, call Joan Noel at 682-0625 or Lois Harrington at 694-3373.

were Mrs.

DEAR ABBY: Our 24-year-old daughter, Debbie, has been living in New York for a year. (We live in California.) Debbie is a sensible, educated, single woman who has an excellent position. She's told us that she's romantically involved with John, a 33-year-old professional man. She says he is an outstanding person with fine qualities. They are not engaged, but he's the first man she's ever been serious about. Our only objection to this match is that John is not our religion.

Debbie phoned to tell us that John's mother called her from Portland, Ore., and offered to pay her air fare there for the weekend to meet John's father, who is dying of cancer. They've never met Debbie, but have spoken to her on the phone often. John's mother said she felt that her husband would die happier knowing that his only son was going with a lovely girl.

Because my husband and I disapprove of our daughter's involvement with a man not of our faith, we told Debbie that we did not want her to go to Portland. Do you think we were wrong?—WONDER-ING IN WOODSIDE

DEAR WONDERING: Yes. A 24-year-old woman with your daughter's qualifications is capable of making her own decisions (including whom she should marry), and for you to have put the kibosh on that trip for ANY reason was wrong. Whether or not Debbie and John marry, if she can make a dying man happy I think she should go. And I hope she does.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are finally being divorced after 12 years of a very stormy marriage and several separations.

My lawyer instructed me to move out of the house, so I did. The problem is that every time I go to the house to talk to my wife about some matter pertaining to the settlement, one thing leads to another and I end up sleeping there. (With her.)

It's ridiculous the way I go out and move my car so nobody will see it parked in front of the house all night.

Aren't we legally married until the divorce decree is final? If so, aren't we entitled to sleep together if we feel like it?

Please don't tell me that if we still want to sleep together we should consider saving our marriage. She is impossible to live with, and she says the same about me, but I must admit sex with her is the best. Do you think we're crazy?—BEING HONEST

DEAR HONEST: No. I think you're wise to recognize the fact that sexual compatibility isn't everything. But if you want to know if you're entitled to marital privileges until your divorce is final, ask your lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: In a courtship between a woman, 68, and a man, 70, who should offer the first kiss?

Please don't think this is a joke. I am a widow and he is a widower, and we are getting very close to where I will need the answer.

If he should make the first move, should I respond willingly? Or am I the one who should let him know I am not adverse to a romantic relationship? (I'm not, but I don't want to push for it.)

Women used to sit back and let the men make all the overtures, but perhaps women's lib has changed all that. Or has it?—OLDSTERS

DEAR OLDSTERS: If you feel like kissing him, go ahead and kiss him. He'll probably meet you halfway, and beat you to the finish line.

Something new for bake sale

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: Now that fall is here, I am going to be asked to contribute to bake sales to raise funds for various community projects. As my contribu-tions for several years, I have been baking your Jon Vie Brownies, and they have always been welcome. But I think it is time I offered something different. Besides, I enjoy trying new recipes. Any suggestions? — RECIPE GATHERER.

DEAR RECIPE GATHERER: Some lovely Swedish Apple Tea Cakes, tried recently in my test kitchen with great success, might interest you. We baked the cakes in fluted paper cups - perfect for handling at a bake sale. Although making these takes a little doing, the method works perfectly and the cakes look so professional and taste so good, I feel pretty sure you will think they are worth the effort. — C.B.

SWEDISH APPLE TEA CAKES

11/4 cups all-purpose flour

1/4 teaspoon baking powder 1-3rd cup unsalted butter

1/2 cup sugar 1 large egg

½ cups applesauce (from a 20-ounce jar without sugar or preservatives)

1-3rd cup finely cut candied ginger

1 cup slivered blanched almonds

On wax paper stir together the flour and baking powder. In a medium bowl cream the butter and sugar; thoroughly beat in the egg. Add the flour mixture and stir with a fork until the dough holds together. With lightly floured hands, shape the dough into a ball in the bowl. Tightly cover the bowl with saran and refrigerate for 2 hours.

Stir together the applesauce and ginger and reserve. In a small skillet over low heat, stirring often, toast the almonds until very lightly browned and

Divide the chilled dough into 3 equal portions. Return 1 portion, covered, to the refrigerator. Divide each of the remaining portions of dough into 6 equal pieces. Put a paper baking cup into each of twelve 21/4-inch muffin-pan cups. Press a piece of dough into a baking cup, easing it across the bottom and up the sides with your flour-dipped thumb. (Don't worry if you disturb the flutes in the baking cups—this won't matter.) Add a heaping tablespoon of the reserved applesauce mixture to each cup.

Remove the remaining dough from the refrigera-tor and divide it into 12 equal pieces. Using the palms of your hands, roll each piece into a ball. Working with one ball at a time, place between 2 small squares of wax paper; flatten into a round wide enough to fit on top of the apple filling. Remove the top piece of wax paper; flip the round and the bottom paper over the apple filling; remove the paper. Sprinkle with the reserved almonds. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 40 minutes. Remove paper cups to a wire rack to cool. Serve warm or cold the same day baked, so the bottom pastry won't get

Glassware collectors share fever to seek out antiques

By ELAINE Q. BARROW
AP Newsfeatures
In the world of antiques, glassware commands a realm of its own. To list the categories would require a book. Even the forms seem without limit. Stemware, salt and pepper shakers, saucers, compotes, sugar bowls and other tableware, lamps and all sorts of novelties — the glass antiques are variously colored and often quaint in shape. You see them in homes, displayed on shelves and mantles, and in corner cabinets and catchalls. To the uninitiated, they are just pretty little curios. But to the collectors - who range from housewives to professionals to celebrities — each curio has a unique identity. They share a fever to seek them out in flea markets, shops and

For a new collector, the hunt has its pitfalls. For example, there are more reproductions made of pattern glass than of any other small antiques.

Joan Shevell of New Rochelle, N.Y.,

a foremost specialist in pattern glass, offers some advice for the unwary. Mrs. Shevell suggests that beginning collectors buy books, or borrow them from a library, for information on how to tell the genuine article. Also, buying from a reputable dealer is a wise move, she says, "when you start out and are uncertain."

"Many production companies are not marking the glass," she explains, "and some poor layman is getting fooled. She thinks she's getting an original, not one of the newer repro-

For example, she referred to a goblet with a Daisy and Button design. "It's very popular, but it has been reproduced many times," she warned, "and one should be most careful from whom you buy."

Minute details of authenticity can usually be detected only by an ex-

"The only way you can get to be an expert," she adds, "is by experience and constant handling. After all, there are more than 3,000 different pattern names."

Flicking a fingernail against a goblet she said, "Hear that ring? That's flint glass." She repeated the test with a similar-appearing goblet, but there was no 'ting.' "This is not true flint," she said.
"It's a pretty glass but it does not have the resonance."

Another giveaway is that reproductions "usually are appreciably heavier" than the originals, she says. "Actually, the value of certain glasses is due to fragility. And, because they are glass, many of them are broken over the years."

Secret to game is in preparation

AP Newsfeatures Writer

One of the greatest boons for the hunter is the deep

It enables him to keep his quarry and enjoy it at his leisure instead of having to gulp it down or dispose of the rest to friends or the family dog.

Most game, especially older animals, should be hung for 12 to 14 days at a temperatures just below freezing. Then it can be cut up, wrapped and frozen for later use. Aging makes the meat more tender.

Rabbit I did eat in wartime England along with many Americans, because other meat was scarce or not obtainable. But I was never sure whether I was eating wild hare or the domestic variety.

With America's strict game laws, there is little of it sold in retail food stores. But in some areas you can get your neighborhood butcher to prepare and dress the game you have bagged. This is important since butchering wild pig, deer, bear and such is no

The secret of good game dishes usually lies in the cooking which is quite different from the way we prepare domestic meat. To roast a pheasant and keep it moist, you must stuff the bird with diced raw onion

Strength of shellac measured by alcohol

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

Q. - My husband and I are owners of a hardware store and we have always endeavored to have shellac on the shelves for those who desire the product. We do have difficulty at times obtaining the shellac and sometimes we get the 4-pound cut and sometimes the 3-pound cut. We aren't quite sure what they mean. Why is the terminology "pound" used when we are dealing with a pint or a quart of liquid? And how does one explain the dilution of shellac of 3 and 4-pound cuts or is that important anyway?

A. — The term comes from the amount of shellac gum dissolved to each gallon of pure alcohol. If 3 pounds of shellac gum are dissolved, it becomes a 3-pound cut, and so on. To convert a 4-pound cut of shellac to a 3-pound cut, mix half a pint of denatured alcohol with one quarter of shellac. Actually, for most ordinary work, a 50-50 mixture is fine, although some professionals advocate twice as much shellac as alcohol. Most wood finishers develop their own favorite mixtures after a period of time.

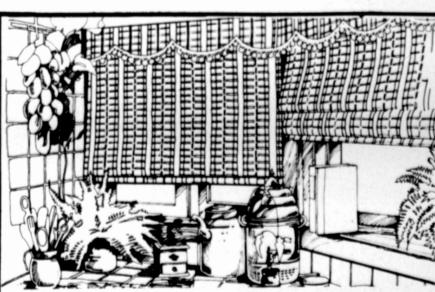

Q. - I have been making wooden storage cabinets for my friends and relatives for several years. Now I am thinking of going into business for myself. Is there any book that specializes in the manufacture and sale of

A. - There are books on making cabinets and many on how to market products. The only combined storage cabinet production and sales manual with which I am familiar is put out by Long's Cabinets, 1792 Houston Road, Portland, Ore. 97535. The author's cabinet layout graph and calculator have been selected for use in a major cabinet maker's dealer training pro

Q. — I seem to do well with most kinds of paint and the clear wood finishes, but always have trouble with enamel. Is there some special way of applying enamel with a brush?

A. - If you do well with varnish, use the same method with enamel. If you brush it out, as you might do with most paints, it will tend to become sticky. Varnishes and enamels have to be flowed on, then brushed lightly to prevent runs and sags. If you brush it out too much, that's when the trouble starts.

(The techniques of applying varnish, shellac, lacquer, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Number on grill unpopular

About ten years ago, a couple of boys were looking for a "snap course." They infiltrated a home ec.

It became so popular throughout the country special classes were formed and named "Bachelor Survival." In the past three years, the male enrollment has not only doubled, but in some high schools the males outnumber the females at the stoves.

What impact has this new breed had on our life

I'll tell you what impact it's had. This country is producing (at an astronomical rate) what women who live in the kitchen refer to as "Domestic Jocks." They're the Super Stars of the souffles . . . the dazzlers of the micro waves . . . the weekend headliners at the outdoor grills.

But they're stars. They don't do pans, spots, stains or ovens. They don't touch charcoal, dripping beaters, dirty blenders or skillets that have to be soaked. When they cook, it's first class all the way-fresh garlic, fresh lemons, fresh parsley and fresh mushrooms.

My husband never cooks out that I don't feel like I am assisting a surgeon at a double valve by-pass.

Two styles emerging in retirement housing

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

One of the most interesting points emerging from a survey on retirement housing is that there appear to be two stages in the retirement life of many elderly persons, each of which affects where they reside.

It was evident from the letters of the retired that not only do many persons change their minds about their intentions in the year or two before retirement, but many do so after retirement, in some cases 5 to 10 years after retirement and in some cases before and factor in such changes is the state of health of one or both of the couples. A health change for the worse influences the decision of whether to move, and, if so, where. When this change occurs several years after retirement, it often forces a couple, otherwise satisfied with their retirement choice, to make a second big move, occasionally back to an old neighborhood, but more often nearer to a relative who can give some physical assistance or closer to health care facilities.

If the letters are an accurate criterion, this second change occurs

Computer is builder?

HEMOSASSA, Fla. (AP)—A computer is helping a builder here erect houses with the lowest possible cost of energy use for homeowners.

A computer analysis estimates annual heating and cooling costs based on local weather conditions, utility rates and typical living patterns. With this projection, the builder can incorporate a variety of energy-saving features into a home. It also permits the homeowner to choose between distinctly different systems. For example, he can compare a heat pump to a conventional furnace equipped with central air conditioning by evaluating first cost, operating cost and energy consumption of each system.

The Punta Gorda Developers, Inc., estimate that as a result of the computer analysis by York Heating and Air Conditioning, a 1,994 square foot home in the Sugarmill Woods community here could be designed to save homeowners more than $1,300 annually in reduced electricity bills.

The Rev. Adolph Kaler, O.M.I., performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Ray Cruse of LaMarque, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Jon Fuller was best man.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white Qiana with Alencon lace. Her bridal cap of matching lace held a shoulderlength veil. She carried a bouquet of roses, lilies of the valley and garde-

Some people are real wine snobs. They will tell you that the only really good wines are from France. They will concede that there may be an occasional good wine that comes from California every once in a while, but not very often. New York, they say, has very little; Spain may produce some novelty wines; Italian wines are OK for Spaghetti; Germany produces some nice whites, but everyone knows red wines are the best. Wines from South America are rarely spaken of. Well, these people have something to learn. Undoubtedly French wines are very fine, but wines from other places are also often of high

Lighting beneficial in decorating

By CAROLE EICHEN Copley News Service

Too often lighting is thought of in a strictly utilitarian way. You have to have light in order to read, cook, sew and do other activities. Yet, poor lighting can ruin the best decor, while a dull room can come alive when interestingly lit. Contrary to what most people think, lighting doesn't mean lamps alone. Lighting is as important during the day as it is at night. It should be worked out on a 24-hour basis.

The rules of lighting an apartment are similar to those of applying makeup. Daytime should be easy and understated, saving the drama and glamour for evening.

Daytime lighting should not be harsh. If windows receive a lot of bright direct sunlight, they should be filtered. Shutters, slat pull-up shades, semi-transparent Roman shades or thin drapes are best. In bedrooms, add black-out drapes, especially if they receive direct morning sunlight.

Abundant planting near the windows will let in the light while cutting the glare.

In the evening, the lights should highlight the various parts of the room and create drama. Lamps are the most conventional and popular source of light. Just be sure they look as attractive during the day as they

With the exception of hallways and corridors, track lights on the ceiling can be a bit sterile if they are the only source of light. They should be complemented by something close to the floor such as milk glass globes set directly on the floor in the room's

WINDER, Ga. (AP) -Muscular dystrophy, blindness or a wheelchair. Not the best ingredients for a camping trip. Not unless they're at a camp designed spe-cifically for the handicapped Will-A-Way Recreation Area at Fort Yargo State Park is just that kind of camp - the only one of its kind in the nation providing day-camp facilities, a long-term camp area and family cottages.

"What we tried to do here is to make handicapped people independent so that they could enjoy the outdoors as much as anyone else," said Si Longmire, park director.

"We tried to leave the area as natural as possible," she said. "We tried not to put up things that made you think, 'Hey, that's for the handicapped."

Both the day-use and long-term camping areas have sandy beaches, staffed by lifeguards and different from other beaches only in the long concrete ramps with wire rails that curve down toward the water so wheelchair victims can become im-

The campers come from all over. A man from Canada routinely spends two weeks in a family cottage; a couple from Delaware spends a week; school children on vacation come to spend the day.

No disability is exclud-ed — the deaf, blind, mentally retarded, physically handicapped and war veterans.

"The people who come here with their families don't want to be thought of as handicapped," said Sharon Fitzgerald, 27, recreation director for Will-A-Way, which was created in 1971 with federal and state funds.

"What we want to do here is to provide a transition - from here to other areas not designed for the handicapped," she said. "They can do just about anything here within the regular park rules and regulations.
