Senate OKs energy plan; House to act

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today broke the 17-month logjam on President Carter's energy program, approving and sending to the House a crucial natural gas deregulation compromise.

The vote was 57-42. The bill, the product of nearly a year of difficult negotiations between Congress and Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, would lift federal price controls from most natural gas by 1985.

Schlesinger watched from the gallery as the Senate, presided over by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, handed Carter his biggest energy victory since August 1977 when the House approved most of his original plan intact.

Just before the vote, Senate Energy Committee Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., told the Senate the compromise should end nearly 30 years of congressional haggling over gas price controls.

And, Jackson said, "it will provide the incentives for increased production," thus enabling the nation to ease its heavy reliance on imported oil.

But Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, one of the leading opponents, called the bill as "a prescription for economic disaster" which he said would disadvantage both consumers and gas producers.

He accused the administration of riding roughshod over the major consumer, farm and labor groups opposing the bill just to get a long-denied congressional energy victory.

"Some victory," Metzenbaum said.

Passage followed an intensive lobbying campaign by the White House. Administration officials depicted the measure as the most important surviving part of the energy program Carter submitted to Congress in April 1977 as the "moral equivalent of war."

In winning Senate approval for the compromise, administration forces overcame the efforts of an unusual coalition formed to fight the bill.

It consisted of liberals who called the compromise too costly for consumers and conservatives who complained that it didn't deregulate gas prices quickly enough.

And the vote came on the anniversary of the first all-night Senate session in more than a decade — during a filibuster on an earlier version of the same piece of legislation that passed today.

Foes of the measure conceded in advance of today's vote that they would lose. They blamed it on the administration's all-out lobbying efforts.

Made in U.S.A. drive mounted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Flooded by imported cars, televisions and oil, the United States is mounting a drive to get foreigners to buy products marked "Made in the U.S.A."

The United States bought $26.5 billion more from other countries last year than it sold — a trade deficit that contributed to inflation and the decline of the dollar against foreign currencies.

Most of the deficit was caused by enormous amounts of oil purchased from the Middle East. But Japan and Germany, which do not sell oil, still sold far more to the United States than they bought.

President Carter announced Tuesday what he said were the first steps to get U.S. businesses to start promoting their products abroad.

"Our export problem has been building for many years and we cannot expect dramatic improvement overnight," Carter said in a statement. "Increasing exports will take time, and require a sustained effort."

If the plan works, the president said, the economy will grow, new jobs will be created, the dollar will become stronger and inflation will be curbed.

The program involves loans to exporters and easing of some of the environmental and legal restrictions exporters face.

The U.S. trade deficit this year is already ahead of the record year of 1978, but Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal held out hope Tuesday that it will improve.

In a speech to world monetary officials, Blumenthal pointed to progress in Congress over energy legislation and increasing ability of foreigners to buy U.S. products.

"I am confident that these efforts, combined with the slowing of the U.S.

Council approves 69 percent hike in garbage collection assessment

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
R-T Staff Writer

An ordinance increasing residential garbage collection charges by 69 percent was passed Tuesday by the Midland City Council.

Monthly charge for residential customers will go from $2.75 to $4, according to City Manager James Brown. Commercial rates will go up 15 percent, and apartment rates will go up $1 per month per unit, he added.

Council Member G. Thane Akins said the increases "were a big jump," but Fred Baker, director of public utilities, said Abilene is going up to $4.25 for residential users.

The ordinance must be approved on a second reading at the next council meeting before the increased charges can be put into effect.

In other business, the Permian Basin Duplicate Bridge Club had asked to purchase one acre of city property in an area north of the City of Midland Swim Team on North A Street. The council is delaying action on the sale until it can confer with the Federal Aviation Administration.

Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation, reminded the council the FAA had warned further encroachment in the area directly south of Midland Air Park might mean loss of federal funding for aviation projects.

Banks said he is opposed to selling city land in that area for any purpose, but added an FAA representative would be available to talk with the council at a future meeting.

But the FAA earlier had given approval to release the land for sale, said Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr., "and they should not have done that. We need to get them on record so we won't have problems in the future."

Another council member, Carroll Thomas, remarked that the city land in question "is no where near the encroachment as some other private developments." He was referring to developments north of FM 868.

The preliminary plat for Saddle Club South had received approval prior to the council's hearing the bridge club's request. At the time, members of the council had suggested future residents should be warned of the airplane noise, with the Air Park to be directly south of the development.

And one city official quipped, "You might consider naming the last street before the airport Final Approach."

The council approved a contract to lease the Chamber of Commerce land in the downtown block which will contain the Exhibit Hall.

A 6.7 percent rate hike for Texas Electric Service Co. was approved on second reading. The utility firm had asked for a 24.4 percent rate hike.

A 1 percent local sales and use tax on gas and electric sales will be retained by the city after October 1979. Under a recent change in the law, the tax would be automatically repealed

Fund drive kicks off

Thirteen Midland pilot firms already have raised approximately 17 percent of the city's 1979 United Way campaign goal, campaign chairman Tom Brown said today during kick-off ceremonies at the Midland County Courthouse.

The firms raised $163,410 toward the goal of $928,686, Brown said.

The campaign kick-off began at noon with a parade of agency representatives and campaign volunteers and officials from the Federal Building.

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. proclaimed today as United Way Day of Service and urged all employers with employees working on the campaign to let the volunteers use the day in service to the United Way.

Other speakers included County Judge Blake Hansen and United Way president B. J. Pevehouse. Joe Dominicy was master of ceremonies, and the Rev. Jerry Wyatt, minister of the First United Methodist Church, gave the invocation.

Following the formal program, the Edison Freshman band performed, and drinks and sandwiches were available from the Salvation Army field kitchen.

Among the pilot firms, results for Lynch, Chappell, Allday & Aldridge are a 583 percent increase over the firm's 1978 pledge, and the Frank See results are an increase of 262 percent over last year, said United Way executive director Marilyn Van Petten.

Three pilot firms, First National Bank, Frank See Chevrolet and Tom Brown, Inc., had 100 percent participation by employees, Mrs. Van Petten said.

Key persons who spearheaded these employee campaigns for the pilot companies included Kelly Barnes with Adobe Oil; Don Evans, Tom Brown, Inc.; Gene Drummond, Drilco Industrial; Diane Newland, First National Bank; Verna Doan, Levi Strauss; Doug Berry, Lynch, Chappell, Allday & Aldridge; Jerry Campbell, Midland Memorial Hospital; Pat Garrigan, Peat, Marwick & Mitchell; Jim Hogan, Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Bob Christensen, Frank See Chevrolet; Robert Mena and Steve Deaver, Southwestern Bell; Steve Wilhelm and Bill Kyle, Texas Instruments; and Gregg Akins, Tipperary Corp.

The pilot firms program serves the United Way as a training ground for United Way solicitors and as a "pace-setter" for the general campaign, Mrs. Van Petten said.

You're at the restaurant. Conversation is on the wane.

So, what do you do, aside from looking over the other hungry humanoids, between the order and the time the steaming food is carted to your table?

You could read your old throw-away place mat just below your palate.

That's the case if you're over at the pueblo-like Indian Lodge at Davis Mountains State Park near Fort Davis.

The mat seems to be a tourist hand-out.

"Discover Texas: Land of Contrast and 'Fun-Tier' Land of America," says the mat's heading, which rings of tourism and travel promotionalism of the Texas State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

The department lays no claims to it. Neither does the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife, which makes Indian Lodge run.

The brochure-like place mat has a sketch of Texas. Within the borders are 10 regions described so to enhance this "Land of Contrast." It sort of recaps the state's geography.

In the center is the Brazos Valley. And surrounding this locked-in (on the sketch) region are these: Woodland Lakes, Coastal East, Border Tropics, Ranch and Hill Country, Pecos Frontier, Towering West, High Plains, Rolling Prairies and, behold, the Vibrant Gateway.

The latter is the puzzle. The others suggest a graphic portrayal of the land. But Vibrant Gateway? It's in the Paris-Sherman and Fort Worth-Dallas blackland area.

Perhaps, as one state official purposed, more out-of-state tourists enter the former Republic of Texas along that Vibrant Gateway segment of the Red River than from any other. Still, it seems out of harmony.

Elsewhere, the mat mentions the Lone Star State's state flower (the Opinion may open can of worms

The state attorney general's office could create "some hassles" if it issues an "unfavorable" opinion on the practice of Southwestern Bell's charging the state for taxes the telephone company pays cities, predicts the company's chief attorney.

Residential and business customers would wind up paying higher telephone bills and there "would be law suits filed all over the place," should the state attorney general rule the accounting practice unconstitutional, according to John D. Lawrence.

"If the ruling is the state (along with other government bodies) doesn't have to pay, I guarantee there'll be some hassles," Lawrence told The Reporter-Telegram in an interview Tuesday.

"We pay over $31 million in municipal taxes to 488 cities in Texas. This is passed on to our customers as a standard operating expense. If the state doesn't have to pay the tax, it means that whatever tax-exempt (government) agencies don't pay would have to come from the rest of the rate payers everywhere."

"The situation at hand is certainly a concern for us because these state agencies account for about 10 percent of the municipal tax revenue. And 10 percent is a lot of dollars on this one issue."

Officials in the state attorney general's office decided to seek an opinion Friday after a request from the State Telecommunications Network of the State Board of Control. Midland County Attorney Leslie Acker also had sought an opinion last week as to whether counties were legally bound to pay the tax.

The existence of the telephone company's practice of passing on the municipal tax to its customers came to light last month, when the state public utilities commission ordered the company to itemize all future charges in the telephone bills.

Southwestern Bell officials claim that what appears to be an additional charge on the latest telephone bill actually is nothing more than documentation of what is referred to as "a city gross receipts tax."

The tax, which is collected by the telephone company, goes directly to cities allowing Southwestern Bell to use streets and alleys.

"It is not a tax. It is a contractual agreement between Southwestern Bell and these 488 cities that we do business with. It has been treated as a general operating expense and has been embedded in everyone's rate," Lawrence said.

"We view this as a lawful charge — not a tax — but a provision of the rate that the public utilities commission has approved. "Even if it were a tax, which it is not, it would be a legitimate item to pass on to our customers. It's like the federal income tax, a legitimate expense that can be passed on to our customers. That's what a rate case is all about."

"It's not secret and never was a secret. Certainly the attorney general's offices was a party to and heard of the discussion on this issue..."

Lawrence said he "welcomes" the role of the state attorney general's office in seeking a legal opinion and added he expects the accounting practice to be upheld as constitutional.

The decision by the State Telecommunications Network to seek a legal opinion from the state attorney general is "a legitimate request" because it will put to rest the misconceptions of residential customers that a new

Surgeon explores brain secrets

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Harry Whitaker is exploring the small, mysterious sphere inside the human cranium, mapping the sites of language in the brain.

In a series of remarkable experiments, the University of Rochester neuropsychologist and neurologist has found that a much wider area of the brain than previously suspected is involved in language — more than half of the left hemisphere in 90 percent of all people.

Language function is located in the left hemisphere. The right hemisphere is devoted to visual and spatial functions.

Whitaker has also found that different languages occupy different parts of the left hemisphere in a person who speaks more than one.

Moreover, "our brain is as unique as our face," Whitaker says. Brains differ from person to person, something "we suspected, but this is the first direct physiological evidence."

The evidence derives from stimulation of brain matter during "open brain" operations on epileptics by a University of Washington neurosurgeon, Dr. George A. Ojeman in Seattle, with Whitaker in attendance.

"It gives us an opportunity to explore the brain that you can't do any other way," Whitaker says.

The open brain operation has been standard clinical practice for three or four decades in the treatment of epileptics who don't respond to drug treatment. Only about three to four percent of epileptics require the surgery. (Epilepsy traces to a brain malfunction characterized by "electrical storms," uncontrolled electrical discharge from the affected brain cells.)

The patient can be kept awake and alert during the operation because the brain itself is not sensitive to pain, Whitaker says. While the brain sends pain signals to the rest of the body, it has no pain sensors of its own. So it's possible for the neurosurgeon to open the scalp, using a local anesthetic, and proceed to test for "good brain or bad brain."

The point of the surgery is to find the damaged brain cells that are responsible for the intractable epilepsy and to cut the cells out in hopes of alleviating the condition. To test the cells, the surgeon uses a pair of electrodes, tiny silver balls five millimeters apart.

The electrodes constitute a probe to explore the brain cells. A very weak electrical current, of the same intensity as the normal electrical activity of the brain, is sent through the probe. The current, however, is converted to a different pattern so it deliberately interferes with the brain's normal functioning at that precise location.

To find the "bad brain" sections of the epileptic, the neurosurgeon performs what amounts to a direct EEG, electro-encephalogram. The electrodes are connected to a recording machine with a graph. When they come in contact with damaged brain cells the chart will display characteristic epileptic activity, jagged lines on the paper. The surgeon then has to decide how much tissue can safely be removed.

Under these circumstances, then, Whitaker had the opportunity to map the brain for the precise location of language function in "good brain." The technique is to evoke errors in the epileptic's brain function. Another person in the operating room will show the patient some familiar object, say a picture of a ship, or ask the patient to repeat a sentence. While the patient is doing this, the neurosurgeon moves the electrodes around the surface of the brain cells.

When the brain section involved in this language activity is touched with the electrodes, that brain function is suddenly interrupted — so quickly that the brain lacks time to compensate or reorganize itself — and the patient cannot complete the language task. That pinpoints the locations of language.

"You find out that way what that piece of brain is doing," Whitaker explains. He says the systematic mapping adds only a few minutes to an operation that can last 10 to 12 hours and is only incidental to the primary purpose of the neurosurgeon.

The Rochester scientist emphasizes his finding that a surprisingly large amount of the left hemisphere is devoted to language, especially when you consider the enormous range of motor and physiological functions the brain performs. The mapping of language sites also has implications for the neurosurgeon who is operating on epileptics — he then knows precisely which portions of the brain are for language and will be careful not to remove so much tissue that the patient's ability to think and speak is impaired.

A giant United Way sign rises 20 stories above downtown Fort Worth. Fifteen hundred incandescent bulbs spell out the message on the side of the new Tandy Center office towers during the fund-raising campaign. Third airplane may have played part in disaster

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The pilot of a passenger jet that collided with a single-engine plane in a cloudless sky may have thought he was past the tiny craft because he was confused by a second light plane, investigators say.

Phillip Hogue of the National Transportation Safety Board said that a twin-engine light plane may have played a part in Monday's crash that left at least 150 people dead when the Pacific Southwest Airlines jet and Cessna 172 crashed into a residential area. It was the nation's worst air disaster.

But Hogue emphasized Tuesday that investigators were nowhere near fixing blame for the crash.

"The only conflict I have at this moment is to determine if the PSA pilot saw the aircraft he collided with," Hogue said. "Did he see a third aircraft out there or did he see any aircraft at all?"

Hogue also said that the PSA Boeing 727 and Cessna were being controlled by the Lindbergh Field tower on the same radio frequency, contrary to testimony in Washington on Tuesday by Elwood Driver, acting chairman of the safety board. He said Driver might have received wrong information before testifying the planes were talking to different towers on different frequencies.

The small plane was practicing instrument landings and the jet was descending for a landing when they collided.

"It was virtually head-on," Hogue said of the crash.

Hogue said pilot James McFeron, 45, calmly reported his jet was going down as it plunged into the North Park neighborhood three miles from the airport. "We're going in," Hogue quoted McFeron as telling the tower in a soft voice.

The death toll included 135 aboard the jetliner, two in the Cessna and at least 13 on the ground killed by chunks of metal and bodies cascading down on the neighborhood. At least nine people were injured.

Hogue said McFeron, a 17-year veteran of the airline, may not have been aware of the single-engine Cessna 172. "He may have thought he was past the aircraft he actually collided with."

Hogue said McFeron might have been confused.

"Listening to the tower, it's apparent that the twin-engine plane was making its approach," he said. "They had made their approach before the single-engine one. The pilot said, 'We've passed,' but we're unsure what plane he was referring to. The pilot probably was confused."

He said the pilot of the third plane had not been located but that investigators planned to study communications tapes in an attempt to learn the craft's registration number.

Hogue marveled at McFeron's "calm statement that he was going down."

"I cannot begin to account for it," he said. "Because when that airplane was hit, it had to be a matter that was understood in the cockpit."

Hogue said earlier that McFeron had told the tower his plane was about to crash.

"He said it in the softest tones, 'We're going down,' and I couldn't believe he said it in such soft tones. There was no sign of panic, no hint of terror."

Hogue said traffic controllers were also extraordinarily calm.

"It sounded almost routine," he said, "and the tower radioed back just as calmly: 'We'll dispatch the equipment.'"

Earlier Tuesday in Washington, a House subcommittee heard testimony on air safety in a hearing that was scheduled weeks before the crash. Most of the testimony centered on Monday's disaster, however.

Driver said his board had recommended several times that the Federal Aviation Administration require collision avoidance systems. Witnesses for the Air Line Pilots Association said the technology for such systems has been available for years, but they are not in use because of inaction by the FAA.

The computerized systems would automatically warn pilots when they were on a collision course and some designs also would tell the pilot the best maneuver to avoid a crash.

Subcommittee Chairman John Burton, D-Calif., said the collision "perhaps could have been avoided" by avoidance systems.

Langhorne Bond, the head of the FAA who is scheduled to testify when the hearings resume Thursday, told reporters the FAA is working on such a system. But he said the FAA wants a system "that really does work."

Discipline code approved by Midland school trustees

Midland school trustees Tuesday approved a uniform discipline code for grades seven through 12.

The code, titled "Pupil Rights and Responsibilities in the Midland Independent School District," was written by a committee of parents, teachers and school officials. The code basically is a unification of the rules already in existence at the various secondary schools, committee member Stan Cobb said.

New sections have been added concerning tardiness to provide a "cook-book" method for trying to control the problem. Under the new code, any student late to a class four times in a quarter has his citizenship grade lowered one letter. The penalties escalate with each subsequent tardiness to the class. For each tardiness after seven, two points are deducted from the student's final 12-week grade.

The code also provides that a student may be withdrawn from class for lack of interest if he accumulates 10 unexcused absences in any quarter. The major portion of the code deals with student rights and responsibilities. Each right in the code corresponds to a responsibility the student must meet, Cobb said.

Board members also heard a report on vocational education in the schools from Ralph Slagle, coordinator of vocational education. A comprehensive evaluation of the vocational program is under way and probably will be presented to the board in February, said Assistant Superintendent Doug Brown.

In his report on last year's program, Slagle noted vocational enrollment had doubled since 1970. Some 399 Midland businesses currently provide training stations for the vocational cooperative students, Slagle said.

"In Midland, it's hard to get guidance on where to expand the vocational program," Brown said.

"Because of the growth here, almost anything will do. The job market for our welding and auto mechanic students is such that they tend to get jobs and drop out before they finish the program," he added.

In other action, the board approved an audit of student activity fund accounts and chose the Texas Association of School Boards plan for employee insurance for the coming year.

They also heard a report on new packets of books to be distributed to advanced readers in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. The packets of two to four related books will be distributed through the "Partners in Reading" program and are available through a grant from the Junior League of Midland.

Board members also heard a request for a clarification on their policy of presenting decisions on "life and death" situations in the classrooms.

Mrs. Charles C. Pence told the board she felt her fifth grade child had been presented with some material in a social studies class that violated the board's policy on the matter. Board members said, while they had decided to drop two particular pilot programs from the curriculum, the teachers still have some flexibility in what was presented in the Law-Focused Education programs.

Mrs. Pence was referred to Superintendent Charles Mailey to discuss the particular incident later.

Floods reported in Pecos not as 'great' as first indicated

PECOS — The Great Pecos Flood of 1978 is not as "great" as some reports have made it, according to a Reeves County deputy sheriff.

News media reports that 40 families were forced out of their homes in Pecos apparently were not true, as Deputy Sheriff Gary Ingram said only five families had to leave their homes.

"Some of the farm homes got a little water in them, but that's not unusual," he said. "We had a little water running through parts of town, and it blocked a few streets for a while."

Pecos has received about eight inches of rain since last week, he said. It had been reported that water coming down from the Guadalupe Mountains was causing the Pecos River to flood around the city. The officer claimed the river "had not affected town at all."

Interstate 20 was closed four to five hours Tuesday due to high water, but Ingram said the water had run off by the end of that period.

There is no "real danger" from the water in Pecos unless it rains some more, Ingram said. By early today, the rain had stopped and the skies appeared to be clearing. "I can see the sun in some places," he said.

This particular rain was not causing any problems different from other rains, he said. "Pecos is like Midland and Odessa. There is a natural runoff for the drainage system. Any time it sprinkles it floods."

Carter to veto public works bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter signaled a congressional group today that he plans to veto a $10.2 billion public works bill despite threats of retaliation against his energy legislation.

He met for half an hour with several members of Congress who would support him in an effort to sustain a veto.

Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., said afterward that Carter had not said specifically that he would veto the bill, but "the implication was quite clear."

Rep. William Lehman, D-Fla., put it even more strongly. Asked if Carter had decided to disapprove the measure, he said, "You better believe it."

Earlier, Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told reporters he hoped Carter would not veto the public works measure because it would alienate many legislators and jeopardize the natural gas bill in the House.

"I hope he doesn't veto it. It might be a disaster if he did," O'Neill said.

When asked if he told that to Carter at the congressional leadership meeting at the White House on Tuesday, O'Neill said no.

Clearing predicted Thursday

The clouds may finally be parting. After days of overcast skies and drizzly rain, the weatherman predicts Thursday will warm up to the mid-70s, with only a 20 percent chance of rain.

Tonight, however, still has a 40 percent chance of getting some precipitation, with a predicted low of mid-50s, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

The Weather Service rain gauge only recorded 0.19 inch of rain for the 24 hours ending this morning, bringing the total for September up to 4.99 inches and the yearly total to 12.28.

Other areas of Midland recorded similarly small amounts of rain. South and west Midland showed 0.1 inch of rain that period. North central Midland weather watchers, however, noted 0.88 inch.

Greenwood observers recorded 0.3 inch of rain, while Greenwood Estates received 0.4 inch. Odessa recorded 0.39 inch, and watchers at Spraberry got 0.15 inch for the 24-hour period.

Warfield got 0.3 inch and east Midland recorded 0.09.

Most area towns recorded some rain Tuesday night and were getting a light mist this morning.

Elsewhere around the state, skies were cloudy except clear skies were reported in northern sections of the Texas Panhandle and in the El Paso area.

Forecasts called for more rain in central and eastern portions of the state. Highs were expected to be mostly in the 70s and 80s.

Light rain and fog was reported at Abilene, Del Rio, Dallas-Fort Worth and San Angelo. Fog was also reported at Brownsville and McAllen.

Most of the info is grade-school stuff. But it fills a bit of time while the food is being prepared.

You recall rumblings not long of flippant proposals to make chili — the bowl of red — the state dish. You can credit Terlingua loyalists for that. Others suggested gumbo. Still others, black-eyed peas.

"There's been some light-hearted activities and talk" about such novelties, noted Don Clark of the highway department's travel-tourism offices.

If there's a state bird, when why not a state landlubber, such as the horned toad (remember Eastland's Old Rip?) or the armadillo, whose fame, other than its armor-plated, primeval appearance, can be credited to Jerry Jeff, Willie and Waylon and the rest of that Luckenbach crowd.

The rousing list at the table is limited. Just for curiosity, Roustin' About checked around to find out who put on the four-color mat. The folks at Indian Lodge said they got them from White Swan, the food distributor, up at Lubbock. White Swan didn't know.

Neither did, for sure, the Highway Department, Parks and Wildlife, the Discover Texas Association, the Texas Tourist Council, and the Texas Restaurant Association.

It seems, after checking at Austin, San Antonio, Fort Davis and Lubbock, that the now phasing-out mat came from the restaurant association. At least, that's what some suggested.

Anyway, it helps keep the table clean.

Negotiations to resume on arms-limiting treaty

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko reopen negotiations today that may determine whether a new treaty to limit the nuclear arsenals of the two superpowers can be completed by the end of the year.

The two men planned two days of meetings, beginning in the late afternoon at the Soviet Mission to the United Nations and continuing Thursday morning at the U.S. Mission.

U.S. officials said after Vance addresses the General Assembly Friday, the negotiations probably would be shifted to Washington on Saturday with President Carter taking charge.

Last October, speaking in Des Moines, Iowa, an optimistic Carter forecast completion within weeks of a strategic weapons limitation treaty that would be "the pride of the country."

Now, 11 months later, the agreement remains elusive despite three rounds of Vance-Gromyko negotiations since April and Carter's intercession last May.

There are a number of issues in dispute. Chief among them is "modernization," how many new missile systems the two governments will be allowed to build and how many they will be allowed to improve for the duration of the treaty, until 1985.

Paul C. Warnke, the chief U.S. arms negotiator, outlined the latest American bargaining position on a two-day visit to Moscow earlier this month.

Gromyko will convey the Kremlin's response to Vance. There has been no tip-off to it, although Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev in a speech last week and Gromyko in a speech to the General Assembly Tuesday expressed hopes for completing the accord.

"The distance between the positions of the two sides is not all that great and is quite surmountable, given good will and state wisdom," Brezhnev said.

Gromyko said a new agreement "is equally needed by the Soviet Union, the United States and the world at large." He said he hoped favors favoring a treaty would prevail in the United States.

After speaking for about an hour, the 69-year-old foreign minister became ill and slumped against the speaker's desk. He was helped from the podium but returned 55 minutes later to complete his speech.

U.N. spokesmen said he was treated in an office behind the assembly chamber by both American doctors and his own Soviet physicians. On his return, he spoke in a firm voice and referred to the heat of the television lights.

Sour relations between Washington and Moscow have hampered the weapons negotiations. The Soviet trials of prominent Soviet dissidents and of Francis Jay Crawford, an International Harvester representative accused of currency manipulations, hardened feelings in this country against the Russians.

To protect the Minuteman missiles, the United States wants the right to shift them among thousands of underground silos in a sort of "shell game" to confuse potential attackers.

economy and more satisfactory growth worldwide, will substantially reduce our current account deficit by perhaps as much as 30 to 40 percent from current levels," he said.

He said it will be critical for the United States to control inflation. The Labor Department said Tuesday that consumer prices rose 0.6 percent in August, higher than the 0.5 percent mark in July, but still well below the rates recorded earlier in the year.

Government economists were encouraged that food prices were stable. However, medical and housing costs continued to rise.

Here are some features of Carter's program to promote exports: — The Justice Department will try to reassure wary business persons by educating them on its "enforcement priorities" under the new foreign anti-bribery law, and to emphasize that joint ventures abroad are unlikely to lead to antitrust prosecution.

— The Small Business Administration will direct up to $100 million a year in loan guarantees to exporters, while Carter will budget an extra $20 million for federal export development programs.

— The president asked Congress to work with the administration "to promptly resolve the tax problems of Americans employed abroad, many of whom are directly involved in ex-

City Council approves ordinance

MidTran is a proposed public transportation system for Midland. Representatives of the group outlined at the last council meeting the reasons they are requesting for federal funds.

The council also approved a resolution approving plans and specifications to construct the additional nine-hole golf course at Hogan Park, awarded a contract for fencing at Midland Regional Airport to American Fencing Co. in Odessa for $2,645, and approved lease agreements with the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission for space in buildings at Air Terminal.

A request to change zoning at the southeast corner of Wadley Avenue and Lamesa Road from IF-2, single family district, to LR-2, local retail district, elicited debate from the council as to what type of zoning should be there. The change was approved, but to an LR district. This means a convenience store can be constructed on the location, but it can not sell alcoholic beverages.

At the root of the problem is the fact the land is located across from Hogan Park. It is owned by J.L. Patterson, who wanted it re-zoned to obtain a better market value on it, according to Dwayne Casbeer, who was representing him.

Wayne Kohout, director of parks and recreation, said he and the commission were opposed to selling alcoholic beverages across from a park area. But Casbeer pointed out beer is sold at Cubs Stadium which is at Hogan Park.

The council decided to go with no alcoholic beverages at the site.

Knesset expected to endorse accords despite party split

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin's party is badly split over his agreement to abandon the Jewish settlements in the Sinai Desert if Egypt makes peace with Israel, but the Knesset is expected to endorse the Camp David agreements overwhelmingly today.

With leftist opposition parties supporting the accords, analysts predicted 75-90 of the 120 members of the Knesset, the Israeli Parliament, would vote in favor of them.

Begin met Tuesday with the powerful Foreign Affairs and Security Committee and with Knesset members of his own Likud Party. He told them the Camp David negotiations nearly collapsed over the settlement issue until he decided that "peace is preferable to the settlements," but he failed to win over militant opponents of the accords.

One Likud member, Yosef Rom, complained that the decision to dismantle the settlements was made "as a result of an ultimatum. Peace reached by surrender to this kind of dictate cannot hold up."

The Laam faction of the Likud, which holds eight of the party's 45 Knesset seats and two places in the cabinet, planned to vote against the accords or abstain. Education Minister Zvulun Hammer, a member of the National Religious Party, reportedly was considering voting for the accords and then resigning to avoid the accusation that he backed Begin only to retain his cabinet post.

Political analysts said the depth of the adverse reaction within Begin's power base could spell trouble for him in the future, but he still has a sizable majority and does not have to face elections until 1981.

Diplomatic sources said U.S. officials were seeking support for the Camp David agreements among Palestinians in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, but the initial reaction was negative.

The accords envision the end of Israel's 11-year military occupation and self-government for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. But most Palestinians demand an independent state, and Israel rejects that.

The sources said the Americans believed that respected Palestinians, including some nationalist leaders who publicly condemn the accords, would cooperate and come forward to be candidates for the administrative council that is planned.

Bell attorney underscores potential taxation problems

tax is being added to their bills, according to the attorney. Midland County commissioners voted Monday to withhold payment of the county's 2 percent municipal tax to Southwestern Bell until the attorney general's office has rendered an opinion.

"It's been in our bill all the time. We just haven't been aware of it. It probably amounts to about $80 a month. But over several years, that could add up to thousands of dollars," County Attorney Acker said.

"Our question is whether Midland County, a tax-exempt agency, should have to pay a tax to the telephone company to take care of a tax the telephone company was charged by the city of Midland," he said.

Lawrence said Southwestern Bell in no way plans to file suit to block a legal opinion on the case.

Assistant Attorney General David Hughes said the attorney general's division of Transportation and Public Utilities should be ready to file its findings within 30 days, providing the telephone company does not file suit. The attorney general's office is not allowed to state opinions on cases in litigation.

Hughes said in an interview earlier this week a ruling that the tax charge to the state is unconstitutional could cost the telephone company millions of dollars and also result in an endless round of court battles.

Lawrence said he was "intrigued" by Hughes' comments that the telephone company's practice of charging state agencies was a matter the state knew little about until recently.

"It's no great secret and has never been a secret. Certainly the attorney general's office was a party to and heard the discussion on this issue. In fact, Hughes was there, not only when the rate was approved in August, but also when the Public Utilities Commission had put witnesses on the stand," the attorney said.

The state Public Utilities Commission ruled in August that, in addition to itemizing the costs in telephone bills, the telephone company would have to alter its municipal tax pass-through in order that customers would be paying the tax on a more equitable basis.

MC board approves $3.6 million budget

The Midland College board of trustees Tuesday approved the college's $3.6 million amended budget for 1977-78 and noted a surplus from last year's operating funds.

"I think this leaves us in awfully good shape," Dr. Al G. Langford, president, told the six board members attending the regular meeting. Three were absent. "And we're going into another year in good shape financially."

Bob Phillips, vice president for fiscal affairs, briefed the trustees on the amended budget, which reflected a $45,518 surplus.

Ideally, Langford said a 10 percent surplus is desirable "to help us get out of a hole in case of an emergency," such as a fire or tornado.

In other action, the trustees: —Awarded H&M Construction Co. of Midland the contract for building a city-college Tennis Center on campus. H&M's bid of $70,000 was the lowest bid submitted. Sneed Construction Co. of Midland bid $99,900, and Rose & Sons Construction Co. of Abilene bid $96,200.

—Accepted landscape architect Douglas Page's proposal for landscaping Chaparral Center. Projected cost will be between $20,000 and $30,000.

—Rejected, in a 5-1 vote, a request to hold a rodeo in November in Chaparral Center. Langford, MC Board President Murray Fasken and others expressed concern that holding a rodeo in the center and the bringing in and hauling out of dirt 10 inches deep would damage the center. Langford said the Taylor County Coliseum in Abilene was "buggered up" by front-end loaders hauling dirt. Reagan Legg cast the dissenting vote.

"We're very restricted on what we can refuse," Dr. Langford said, since the center is a public building. Too, he noted the wide-spread interest in rodeos in West Texas.

"It (holding a rodeo) could be done," said Larry Campbell, manager of Chaparral Center, "but I wouldn't sleep until it was over."

—Considered allowing the Shrine circus to be held in the center next year, but postponed any action.

The suit, filed by attorney Allen McFall, asks $200,000 damages.

TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN RESOURCES TITLE 20 SOCIAL SERVICES PLAN

The final 1979 social services program for Texas has been prepared by the Department of Human Resources in cooperation with citizens throughout the state. The plan is available for public review.

COMPREHENSIVE ANNUAL SERVICES PROGRAM PLAN FOR TEXAS (CASPP) October 1, 1978 to September 30, 1979

BACKGROUND: The proposed Title 20 plan was published May 1, 1978. Public comments were accepted through June 14. About 200 comments were received. Differences between the proposed and final plans are summarized here:

ORGANIZATION: Charts showing the organization of DHR's state office and Social Services Branch have been updated.

CLIENTS AND ELIGIBILITY: In response to public comment, the income limits for eligibility have been raised from 55 percent of the state median income* (adjusted according to family size) to 60 percent. For community care of the aged, blind and disabled, the income limit is raised to 76 percent of the state median* until July 1, 1979, when it will advance to 80 percent. The raises for the aged, blind and disabled will keep program eligibility abreast of eligibility for the Title 19 Nursing Home program.

FEES: No fees will be charged for the Region 10 (Nacogdoches) pilot project of community care for the aged, blind and disabled. The project may be discontinued in 1979.

DEFINITIONS: The definition of Family Planning was modified to remain compatible with federal regulations and Transportation is called a support service in the Vocational Rehabilitation program.

SERVICE ADDED: A new service was added for children assisted by the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. The 65th Texas Legislature earmarked $13.2 million in state funds for the service.

EXPENDITURES: Two elements limit program expenditures: (1) the amount of money appropriated by the Texas Legislature, and (2) the federal allocation of Title 20 funds to Texas. The federal ceiling has been unchanged for three years.

As the cost for services rises to keep pace with the cost of living, the amount of services that can be purchased decreases. To stay within projected fund limits, decreases were made in Employment Services and in Services Provided Through Interagency Agreements, and administrative costs (which include DHR employees' salaries and benefits) were more accurately apportioned to programs at state and regional levels.

CATALOG OF SERVICES: Because of funding limits, priorities were established for protective services to children. The final Title 20 plan shows these priorities.

SERVICE PROVIDERS: The list of providers from whom services are purchased has been updated to show the contracts that were in effect June 30, 1978.

OTHER: The Planning, Needs Assessment, and Evaluation sections were revised to show the changes made in DHR processes. Estimates of how many clients will be served, statewide and at regional level, were updated in several program areas. A summary of standards, issued recently by the Texas Commission on Alcoholism for facilities that treat alcoholics, is included in the final Title 20 plan.

GETTING COPIES: The Title 20 plan may be read or reviewed in the DHR offices listed below, or obtained free by writing to Title 20, John H. Reagan Building, Austin, Texas 78701.

MORE INFORMATION: To ask questions about Title 20, contact any of the offices below or the Title 20 Information Center. To apply for any of the services in the plan, please contact an office listed below.

PUBLIC COMMENTS: A summary and file of comments can be examined from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., weekdays, in the Title 20 Information Center, John H. Winters Building, 200 E. Riverside, Austin.

Mumblety-peg? No!

The Carter administration is preparing, in effect, to admit the failure of its first round of anti-inflation initiatives and to trot out a new plan.

It would be great to be optimistic about the new plan's prospects. But we are not.

Few tears will be shed over the demise of Round One's feckless tactics. When Jimmy Carter assumed the presidency 18 months ago, the annual inflation rate stood 5.2 percent. Today, the annual rate is 10.7 percent, the first double-digit rate in almost four years.

The administration has tried tinkering with import quotas to curb rising prices. It has sporadically appealed to business and labor to moderate wage and price increases. And the White House sought to demonstrate firmness in its own back yard by setting ceilings on wage hikes for federal employees.

Collectively, these measures have been a dismal flop.

The new plan is said to feature voluntary wage and price guidelines, stiffened perhaps by proposals for federal tax and-or regulatory policy incentives to encourage compliance.

Rewriting the tax laws to permit their use as incentives for companies and workers to keep wage and price increases within guideline limits sounds attractive and, given extraordinarily shrewd drafting and administration, it might even work in some instances.

But such legislation would also ensnare the Congress in an immense tangle of economic considerations so arcane as to make the energy policy debate look like mumblety-peg. And it would invite opposition from most of the lobbyists and tax lawyers in Washington.

As theory, it merits consideration. Chances for enactment of actual legislation are not favorable, however.

And regulatory policy is far too inappropriate a tool for use as a cudgel against guideline violators.

Without workable incentives or a whip to enforce compliance, the record of wage and price guidelines as inflation fighters is most unlikely.

Outright wage and price controls would, of course, be much worse.

Which brings us to a fundamental objection to presidential formulation of any guidelines. Given the present inflation and the predictable failure of guidelines alone to control or reduce it, the public would be certain to see such a policy as a precursor to controls.

The pressure for still higher wages and prices would grow as workers and businessmen sought to protect themselves in anticipation of a White House imposed freeze.

With or without guidelines, the experience of the past dozen years has taught Americans to expect inflation and to make their economic decisions accordingly.

It's an inflation psychology that is itself inflationary. Breaking its grip on the country is a key to any successful anti-inflation policy.

What that will require, as Mr. Carter's more candid economic advisers will tell him, is a sustained attack on the federal government's chief contributions to inflation: the huge budget deficits of recent years and the unwarranted expansion of the nation's money supply by the Federal Reserve Board.

Why in the world the White House personnel, Congress and bureaucratic Washington in general will not admit this is a mystery, indeed. It has been pointed out time and again that excessive government spending and huge budget deficits largely are responsible for rising inflation, but little if anything is done to curb the spending. It is true that the budget deficit may be reduced somewhat next year, but it will take a sustained campaign in this regard to curb rising inflation.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Good guys vs. Mafia wise guys

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The federal law enforcement apparatus appears powerless to cope with organized crime, whose ominous growth has reached crisis proportions in America.

If the Mafia were suddenly to incorporate its assets and revenues would place it close to the top of the Fortune 500. The mob has mushroomed into a $50 billion empire, with the money and muscle to challenge city and state governments.

The syndicate bosses control the illegal drug flow into the United States. They direct the back-alley commerce in pornography, prostitution and gambling. They have also invested billions of dollars in such legitimate enterprises as real estate, hotels, restaurants, construction companies and liquor stores.

Notorious Mafia figures also hold key positions in some labor unions, thus giving sticky mob fingers access to lucrative pension funds. All the crime syndicate's endeavors, of course, are attended by bribery, violence and murder.

In all too many localities, the corruption of politicians and police has rendered law enforcement relatively ineffective against organized crime. It has fallen on the federal government, therefore, to battle the underworld. It's an intense struggle, with the good guys pitted against the wise guys. Sadly, the wise guys are winning.

Two years ago, the General Accounting Office charged that the "war on organized crime is faltering." The campaign, declared the study, "is not planned, organized or directed efficiently."

But there is more behind this federal failure than common inefficiency. Under ex-President Richard Nixon, the Justice Department was more enthusiastic about enforcing the laws against street crimes than the racketeers. This strange reluctance to pursue the criminal godfathers reached such a stage under ex-President Gerald Ford that several organized crime strike forces were disbanded.

Now the Carter administration is bringing new vigor to the subterranean war against the crime syndicate. But the crackdown will never be successful, as we have pointed out in past crime reports, as long as the populace patronizes the racketeers. For it is the American people who provide the substance that the Mafia needs to spin its spiderweb.

Every payoff to a bookie, prostitute or pusher strengthens the mob and subsidizes lawlessness in this country. The General Accounting Office has concluded that "consumer demand for organized crime's goods and services provides billions of dollars of income each year."

All federal lawmen can do is to throw an occasional running block in the path of a dangerous crime lord. They recently got a break which has turned a notorious Mafia into the most important underworld witness since Joe Valachi.

This inside informant is 63-year-old Aladene Fratianno, known in crime circles simply as "Jimmy," whose life is now better protected than the president's. For every hit man in the murder business would like to collect on the contract that the crime chiefs have placed on Fratianno's life. As one source close to the case told our

ART BUCHWALD Strike is taking its toll on the Big Apple

NEW YORK CITY — The New York City newspaper strike is starting to take its toll on the Big Apple. You can see it in people's blank expressions and hear it in their desperate voices.

When someone hears you're from out of town, the first question he or she asks is, "What's going on?"

"Nixon resigned and is no longer President," I told one poor soul.

"No?" he said, "and he seemed to be doing so well with China."

"Howard Hughes passed away in his sleep."

"It's hard to believe," my friend said. "He seemed like such a young vital person."

"Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton split up."

"Now that's one I didn't hear. How are Sonny and Cher doing?"

"They split too."

"What are people reading these days?"

"Books about jogging."

"What happened to 'Gone With the Wind'?"

"It's off the best-seller lists and so is 'Forever Amber.'"

"I guess that means they'll be coming out in paperback," he said. "Tell me, how are the Brooklyn Dodgers doing?"

"You didn't hear? They've moved to Los Angeles."

"No wonder I can't get their games on radio. Is Ted Williams still playing for the Red Sox?"

"No, he retired. So did Joe DiMaggio."

"I'll be damned — the two best hitters in the American League."

"But the Yankees are doing well."

"Why shouldn't they with Yogi Berra as their manager?"

"He's not their manager any more. Lots of things have happened since the newspapers went on strike. We have a new Pope."

"Poor Pope John."

"There was another Pope since John. He was Pope Paul."

"Boy, you really got out of touch in this city. Did John Glenn ever get to the moon?"

"No, but three other guys did. John Glenn is now a senator from Ohio."

"I guess I have a lot of catching up to do," he said. "How's Jimmy Hoffa?"

I didn't have the heart to tell him. Not everyone in New York is without a newspaper. Many desperate souls are buying out-of-town papers from as far away as Washington, D.C., Philadelphia and Boston. You would think this would fill the news gap, but these people are more confused than those who have no papers at all.

One lady who gets the Philadelphia Bulletin every day said to me, "If someone doesn't fill these potholes on 63rd St., I'm going to march down to City Hall and give Mayor Rizzo a piece of my mind."

"Rizzo isn't your mayor," I told her. "Koch is."

"Don't kid me," she replied. "I read the papers every day."

Another pal who gets the Boston Globe every morning said, "If we don't get some tax relief in this city soon I'm going to write to my senator, Teddy Kennedy, and tell him he better not ask for my vote in 1982."

"Teddy's not your senator," I told him. "Javits and Moynihan represent New York."

Then how come you never read about them?" he wanted to know.

A sports fanatic who has been reading the Washington Post for more than a month has suddenly become a Redskins football fan.

"Don't you feel disloyal to the New York Giants team?" I asked him.

"Why should I when they moved to San Francisco?"

Mark Russell says

The talks at Camp David had nearly broken down at a crucial stage — Sadat wanted the announcement to come in the middle of the Emmys while Carter and Begin wanted to wait until sometime during "Dumbo."

The imposed press blackout during the talks no doubt contributed toward their success. This so impressed Carter that he's converting the correspondents' briefing room into a greenhouse.

The Camp David event is a setback for Jerry Brown who had hoped to send Sadat and Begin tickets to a Linda Ronstadt concert.

The Administration's latest success can only mean a restored confidence, a rejuvenated sense of purpose, and most of all it means that Hamilton Jordan is off restriction.

NICK THIMMESCH

Writer reports on the unisex art of self defense

NEW YORK — As a result of what was hardly a historic human rights suit, three adult females were issued boxing licenses here last week by the State Athletic Commission. Thus feminism and the box-office are served, and fools of either sex can pay to watch women smash each other's faces as men have for decades in the "manly art of self defense."

A few years back, I saw a news photo out of Seattle of a woman boxer, her nose dripping blood, emerging from the ring. I was startled. But I was appalled soon thereafter when I saw another news photo, this one of a pretty 11-year-old girl, her mouth in a belligerent set, described as the champion of some local amateur boxing division in Idaho. She had beaten up all the small boys her weight.

Actually, the emergence of women's professional boxing is not new. As Nat Loubet, editor of Ring Magazine, has chronicled, the first known boxing match featuring women took place in England in 1722.

The current rage dates to 1975 when Nevada, the only state where prostitution is legal, granted a boxing license to one Caroline Svendsen.

Since then, women pugs have used all manner of anti-sex-discrimination laws to get boxing licenses all across the Republic. But in New York, where boxing is taken seriously, the athletic commission resisted, and it took a State Supreme Court ruling to win the right for women to get licenses.

Nick Thimmesch

In some freshwater towns, women's bouts are main events. Male boxers go along because they know the gate — and their share — is bigger when the curious and kinky-minded crowd pays to see young women punch each other in the prize ring.

Most women I talk to here about women's boxing insist that women have an equal right to a boxing license, but quickly add that boxing is an awful sport, and they wouldn't want to see a woman's face mugged up. Feminism is strong in New York City, a trend leader in the nation. The super-patriotic, "hard-hat" movement began here. Gay rights, liberalization of abortion (though not the Supreme Court case), and now the mania for the death penalty, got strong impetus in New York.

The glamor figure of women's boxing is Cathy "Cat" Davis, 26, listed by the Women's Boxing Federation as the lightweight champion. The "Cat" has green eyes, long blonde hair, and a record of 16 victories, including 15 knockouts. She was originally trained by Willie Pep, a famous champ of yesteryear.

After fighting as a licensed boxer all over the country, she applied for a New York license in 1976 and became indignant when Commissioner James Farley ripped up her application. "Cat" claims she spent $8,000 in legal fees to get her license. Now she has a $5,000 guarantee to fight in White Plains, N.Y., in December.

In boxing, blows to the face can fracture noses and jawbones, break open the tight skin around the eyes, thus causing blood to gush copiously; cause flesh to swell large, and darken into "black eyes"; split lips, and occasionally break off, or dislodge teeth. Blows to the chin and head can cause unconsciousness, brain damage, paresis, paralysis, and occasionally, death. Male boxers have suffered these injuries for many generations.

The California State Athletic Commission, according to Ring Magazine, specified additional medical precautions for women boxers. Among them is a written statement by the boxer prior to the fight that to the best of her knowledge she isn't pregnant or menstruating. A pelvic examination is required. To protect their breasts, women boxers wear a cup device (aluminum or plastic).

Thus far, no state has licensed a boxing match between a man and a woman. In fact, the president of Madison Square Garden, Sonny Werblin, makes it clear that he doesn't want female boxers performing in that famous emporium at all.

Still, feminists, including those with an aversion to boxing, can argue that a woman has the right to make a living boxing just as a man does.

I think the sight of a woman getting beat up is awful. I also know that this spectacle, now that New York has sanctioned it, will enjoy a certain prosperity.

Floyd Patterson, the former heavyweight champion, as a Commission member here, opposed the licensing of women boxers. "I think it's terrible," he said. "I always respected women and supported Women's Lib. But in the ring, no. I can't stand to see a woman bleeding in the mouth or sustaining a deep gash over the eye."

Thoughtful Floyd will surely be scorned as a chauvinist.

So Fratianno, under indictment on racketeering charges and facing execution by his underworld bosses, began squealing. He filled in details that his erstwhile victim, the late Bomp, had omitted about the porno shakedown. The FBI built a strong case against the Los Angeles mobsters, even setting up its own undercover porno business to gather the proof.

The investigation led to indictments against Fratianno's ex-associates, an indictment that has been dismissed but, according to insiders, will be renewed.

Adult classes mark increase in free universities

By SCOTT KRAFT

IDAHA, Kan. (AP) — Three wooden pews were his classroom, a piano bench his lectern. The bare light bulbs flickered as a summer storm threatened. But to the 13 inquisitive minds assembled in the tiny church basement in north central Kansas, there was no setting anywhere more fertile for learning. Because beekeeping was the subject, and John Schweitzer, a wiry 73-year-old in green work clothes, the teacher.

And from the two young women in the front to the middle-aged men in the back, his audience listened, questioned, shared and learned.

In church basements and living rooms and even on backyard patios across the country, a few people are talking and a lot of others are learning — without grades, homework or pressure.

Nowhere is free education sprouting as in the Sunflower State, where the number of communities with some form of free university has jumped from four to 22 in less than four years.

That growth has its roots in people like Schweitzer, a service station operator by trade, and in places like Idana, where it's a half-minute walk from the center of town to acres and acres of Kansas wheat.

For his recent teaching debut, Schweitzer offered baby food jars of honey — "just enough for a flapjack," gave advice to a farmer with an ornery swarm of bees on his land; and recommended that beekeepers keep their swarms away from the honeysuckle — "it'll make your honey smell like dirty socks."

Then there was that down-home smile and an embarrassed gesture. "When a bee man gets to talking — why, he sometimes says too many things."

Free universities have made a full turn. Known variously as open education exchanges, communiversities and experimental colleges, they have moved from the activist and often underground university of the 1960s to the adult education wave of the 1970s.

In 1968, they offered an atmosphere in which students could spout their views on the Vietnam war, racial unrest and other topics sidestepped by traditional universities of the day. In 1978, they coordinate classes for all ages on sock-darning, biofeedback, Frisbee-throwing and homosexual lifestyles.

And it hasn't stopped there. There's a class on fantasy, "Dungeons and Dragons," for those with active imaginations. "How-to" classes on canoeing, climbing, skiing and bicycling as well as house wiring, stereo installing, refinishing and auto repair are offered in many cities. Or you can learn to make beef jerky, build sundials or play wargames.

In the self-help field, there is a course to help a divorcee cope with the problems of being single again. About 300,000 persons attended classes last year at 175 free universities in the United States. Class length ranged from one meeting to weekly meetings for a year or longer.

These free universities are coordinated nationally by the Free University Network, which has adopted the acronym, FUN. It is based near Kansas State University in Manhattan in a former scholarship house run by the local free university, University for Man.

Bill Draves, 29, who is on the paid staff of University for Man, coordinates the national organization in his spare time. A part-time secretary handles the paperwork. Actually, FUN is little more than a telephone number, a mailing address and an annual convention — none of which bothers Draves.

"We don't want to be a big national organization that lobbies on the Hill and sells life insurance," Draves says. "We're an information clearing house and we'll always be promoting things at the local level." Since 1974, FUN has published brochures for communities wanting to set up free universities. The educational concept born in Berkeley, Calif., during a free speech movement in 1964 has spread from college towns to other communities.

In Kansas, a program run by University for Man and supported by federal funds shows towns how to recruit teachers and set up classes.

The beekeeping class in Idana, for example, was arranged through the Clay County Education Program, which was started by VISTA volunteers three years ago. The class was advertised in the county newspaper and a newsletter. Prospective participants were asked to sign up, but registration wasn't required. There was no fee, and there would be no grade or homework.

Clay County and most of the small communities of Kansas were once believed too tiny to support free universities. Draves remembers the doom-saying of one of his advisers, who said: "If you can get a Free U going in Clay County it'll be a miracle."

But today, population centers much smaller than Clay County's 10,000 support free universities.

"We used to think we'd have to hustle and promote these universities," Draves says. "But it's starting to snowball and I don't see any problems starting one anywhere in the country."

The idea for a free university is usually born in the community. Draves and his colleagues are called in to provide some pointers at an organizational meeting, and the rest is left up to town residents.

The structure of a new free university varies, but almost always is simple: a volunteer director is appointed and a plea is issued for teachers. Later, a list of classes is posted on town bulletin boards and students begin to sign up.

A free university may merely create a card file of classes and teachers. Those versions of the free universities, known as "learning networks," allow the student to arrange his own class with the teacher. If fees are to be charged, they are negotiated by the student and teacher.

The largest of those learning exchanges is in Evanston, Ill., where more than 3,000 different subjects, including 40 different languages, are on file.

The country's smallest free university is at Olsburg, Kan., about 60 miles from Idana. A meeting there last fall lured more than 50 persons, a third of the town's population.

"And when we started writing down possible classes we ran out of blackboard space," says Barb Nelson, a coordinator. "Two classes started right away."

Now, one of the group's most ardent supporters is Jerry Westling, a 51-year-old letter carrier and town skeptic. He admits to having doubts at the fall meeting.

"I figured that by spring everybody would know everything everybody else in town knew, and we'd run out of teachers and classes," he said. But that hasn't happened. For one of the more popular courses, "Olsburg History," several lifelong residents gather to reminisce about the tiny town's lineage, in what once might have been called a free university rap session.

The spirit exemplified in Olsburg is helping create a "rural renaissance" in Kansas, Draves says.

"People who are already in small towns want to stay there," he says. "But they want something to do at night."

Some money for free universities comes from state funds, registration fees, fund-raisers and community gifts. Budgets range from less than $100 to well over $200,000.

That governments and businessmen are willing to spend money on free universities represents an entirely different attitude than was generally held in the late 1960s.

"There are some who will always remember some of our more risqué or radical offerings," Draves says.

American discovery day controversy surfacing

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — Here we go again. Who really discovered America?

The supporters of the two chief contenders celebrate their conflicting claims on the same day, Monday, Oct. 9, and it could get messy if pizza pies and spaghetti sauce tangle with folks in horned helmets carrying spiked clubs and shields.

Officially, though not legally, it's Leif Ericson Day.

Legally, though not officially, it's Columbus Day — pushed forward from the formal Oct. 12 by Congress to make a long weekend possible.

Ivar Christensen, president of the Leif Ericson Society, which claims the Viking hero landed in North America in 1004 (388 years before Columbus sailed into the New World), has scheduled a gala dinner dance near his headquarters office here, "and we have invited various Italian organizations and also will have our Viking ship 'Raven' parked outside.

"It's an inspiring ship and some of the non-Vikings might walk a big circle around it because those dragon-heads mounted on it are intimidating," he said. "But we've encouraged the Sons of Italy to bring a replica of the Santa Maria (the Columbus flagship) to see which looks best."

The party winds up a three-day Scandinavian Festival, sponsored jointly by the Danish, Finnish, Icelandic, Norwegian and Swedish societies to mark Ericson's historic voyage to America not yet recognized in most history books.

"It's really a friendly thing because there is no dispute any longer over who discovered America — is there?" Christensen said.

Christensen's group, which limits its membership to 999, also is lobbying for a Viking woman on the proposed new $1 coin. It nominated Gudrid Karlsefni, who is touted as Leif Ericson's sister-in-law.

"Look, the Vikings have always been big on women," Christensen said. "Gudrin gave birth to Snorri, the first non-native born on American soil."

Non-native?

"Of course," he responded. "The Indians had kids, too. This is all indisputable historical fact."

He said the first Viking colony lasted only four years and the Ericson settlers returned to Greenland where Gudrin's husband died. That left the New World turf to Columbus on his 1492 travels.

"Gudrin went to Rome and became a nun and she didn't know what happened to Snorri," Christensen said.

The U.S. Treasury wants to put a female Liberty head back on a smaller version of the $1 coin, while women's groups have been lobbying for Susan Anthony, the suffrage leader of the 1920s.

"Who wants a woman who looks like Jonathan Winters on one of our coins?" asked Christensen, promising to stir up a mail campaign on behalf of blue-eyed and blonde Gudrin — "would you have anything else?"

Damage done to man's car

An estimated $200 in damages to a vehicle was reported to police Tuesday by Terry Hodges of the 3100 block of North Big Spring Street. Hodges told police the vehicle was parked near his residence.

Ronald Jameson of Lee Street told police Tuesday of the theft of an amplifier valued at $595.

Dale Carter of the 3200 block of Franklin Avenue Tuesday morning reported a burglary at Carter's Market, located at Main Street and Florida Avenue, earlier.

He told authorities $25 in coins was taken and an estimated $100 in damage was done to a door and a cash register.

Police indicated the method of entry was unknown.

Florida cowboy watches grazing land disappear

By MARTIN MERZER

DAVIE, Fla. (AP) — When he started in 1942, it was mostly ranching land, clear from Hollywood up to what is now Sunrise. Hundreds of thousands of acres it was, and a man could sit on his horse and see cattle grazing from horizon to horizon.

Now, Martin Woodward fattens his cattle in the few thousand acres that stand between shopping centers, islands of tranquility amid fast-food restaurants, rowhouse developments and here-today, gone-tomorrow shops that line the overcrowded roads here in western Broward County.

But Woodward doesn't curse the land speculators and developers who irrevocably changed the area in which he was born 50 years ago. He doesn't complain about traffic jams that delay the truck he uses to travel from one small herd of cattle to another.

He just makes do, finding land, fattening cattle, hoping he can turn a profit.

"Anytime you have improvements, you have to give a little to take a little," said Woodward. "We wouldn't be anywhere in this county if it wasn't for the developers."

And Woodward said he would feel the same way even if his livelihood — and a good one at that — weren't closely tied to the whims of developers who can force him off his land with 90 days notice.

Although ranching is still a big business in South Florida, few cattlemen own their own land. Most, like Woodward, lease the grazing land from large corporations that bought the properties years ago for investment. As South Florida's population grew, the corporations began selling the properties to developers of housing projects, shopping centers and industrial complexes.

"In 1973 and '74, it looked like I was going to lose everything," said Woodward.

ward. "They were trying to build on everything in sight."

But the recession cooled things off a bit, and Woodward moved his cattle further west and to smaller parcels of land that had temporarily escaped development.

Now, he leases about 15,000 acres on which he raises about 7,000 head of cattle. He generally buys the animals from ranchers in Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia and northern Florida, puts about 400 pounds of fat on them, then sells them to slaughter houses in Miami and in the Great Plains states.

It's still a good business, when the prices are right; good enough to have enabled Woodward to buy a large, custom-built home in rural Broward County and a late-model auto.

"Some people say we should build a fence in north Florida and not let any more people move down here," Woodward said. "But I say, 'Now wait a damn minute. I bet you or one of your friends or relatives came here from somewhere else. What makes you so special?"

Yet, every now and then a small doubt emerges — not about the way things are, but about the way they could have been for Woodward.

"If we had lied to the bank and bought land instead of cattle," he said, gazing a few yards behind his animals to a busy shopping center, "I'd be rich now."

House eyes Jack Ruby's ties to organized crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators are exploring why Jack Ruby talked by telephone with at least five alleged crime syndicate figures during the weeks preceding the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

The House Assassinations Committee was to take testimony today about Ruby's alleged ties to organized crime.

The committee is investigating whether Kennedy's assassination was the product of a conspiracy, possibly involving the crime syndicates that were the target of a Justice Department crackdown under Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy.

The Warren Commission concluded that there was no conspiracy, that Lee Harvey Oswald killed Kennedy and acted alone and that Ruby also acted alone when he shot Oswald to death in the Dallas police station. Kennedy was slain in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, and Oswald was murdered two days later.

But some commission critics have alleged that Ruby had crime syndicate ties suggesting a possible underworld plot against Kennedy.

Earl Ruby told the committee Tuesday that his brother Jack insisted to his death that he acted alone and on an impulse when he killed Oswald. Jack Ruby was convicted of murder and sentenced to death, but the verdict was overturned and he was awaiting a new trial when he died of cancer in January 1967.

Committee chief counsel Robert Blakey said investigators analyzed Ruby's long-distance telephone records and discovered a "dramatic surge in calls in October and November 1963."

Many of the 171 calls Ruby made during those months dealt with labor troubles at his Dallas nightclub, Blakey reported.

He said investigators determined that 13 Ruby phone calls involved these alleged crime figures: —Lewis J. McWillie. Earl Ruby testified that his brother considered McWillie a close friend and visited him in Havana in 1959. A committee report said McWillie in 1959 "was working in an organized-crime-controlled casino" in Havana.

—Irwin S. Weiner, described by the committee as "a prominent bondsman in Chicago." Law enforcement records show Weiner allegedly "served as a key functionary in the longtime relationship between the Chicago Mafia and various corrupt union officials, particularly during (Jimmy) Hoffa's reign as president of the Teamsters Union," the committee report said.

—Nofia Pecora, also known as Joseph Pecoraro. In 1963, he operated a New Orleans trailer park and the committee report described him as "a former heroin smuggler" and close associate of Carlos Marcello, then the syndicate boss of Texas and Louisiana.

—Robert G. (Barney) Baker, a Hoffa lieutenant. Robert Kennedy once wrote that Baker's mere presence in a room "was enough to silence the men who would otherwise have opposed Hoffa's reign." The Senate rackets committee in the late 1950s said Baker was Hoffa's liaison to Mafia leaders.

—Murray W. (Dusty) Miller, another pro-Hoffa Teamsters leader. The committee report said he "was associated with numerous underworld figures."

Blakey said Tuesday the committee investigators have been unable to determine "the ultimate meaning of these facts and circumstances" concerning Ruby's contacts with those men.

The staff report said Ruby called Weiner for 12 minutes on Oct. 26, 1963. Weiner has told the committee in executive session that Ruby telephoned "to seek assistance in the labor dispute he was having with his Dallas nightclub competitors," the report said.

Weiner said he went to high school with Earl Ruby and was acquainted with Jack Ruby but had not heard from him for 10 years before that 1963 call. He said he told Ruby he couldn't help him with the labor problems.

Four days later, Ruby telephoned Pecora's trailer park. Pecora told committee investigators he never knew Ruby and could remember no phone call from him.

Ruby spoke with Baker on Nov. 7, 1963, and Baker told the FBI in 1964 that Ruby sought assistance with the labor problem. Baker said he didn't know Ruby and turned down his request, the report said.

The next day, Ruby called Miller at a Miami hotel. Miller told the committee he, too, turned down Ruby's appeal for help with his labor problems and that he had never before heard of Ruby.

A half-hour after talking with Miller, Ruby telephoned Baker again and the two spoke for 14 minutes, the records showed. The committee report contained no explanation from Baker of the second call.

Congress OKs duty legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has approved and sent to President Carter legislation that would allow U.S. travelers to bring home triple the goods they formerly could purchase abroad without paying duty. The bill increases the personal duty exemption from $100 to $300 on goods brought in from foreign countries and from $200 to $600 on goods imported from the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam or American Samoa.

The measure, approved by the House Tuesday, is a compromise between proposals earlier adopted by that chamber and the Senate. The Senate had already approved the compromise.

Project could cause water shortage

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A Texas Department of Water Resources researcher told members of the Texas Water Commission Tuesday that construction of the proposed Stacy Reservoir in West Texas would cause an aggregate shortage of water in the Colorado River Basin.

Dr. Quentin Martin, under cross-examination by an attorney for the Lower Colorado River Authority, said, while the reservoir would eliminate a 750,000 acre-foot predicted shortage in the upper basin, the shortage in the lower basin would be aggravated by some one million acre-feet.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District is asking the TWC for authority to construct the Stacy project on the Colorado River in Runnels, Concho and Coleman counties. The LCRA, the city of Austin and several others are opposing the application.

Martin, whose report on water needs and demands is being relied upon by the CRMWD to show a need for Stacy, said, "from a water supply standpoint, the Columbus Bend Project (a reservoir proposed on the lower river near Columbus), is the most likely candidate for the next reservoir."

He qualified that statement by adding "...in the lower basin."

Thomas George, attorney for a Lake Travis group, suggested that the issue in this case is "allocation, not shortage."

But Martin noted that with or without Stacy, there would be a shortage of water to meet projected needs in the basin. This, he agreed, would then involve a "reallocation" of water to the needs of higher priority.

Late Tuesday, the CRMWD began direct examination of Espey Huston, economist Tony Bagwell on his part in the development of the environmental assessment project for the Stacy project.

His work indicates the project would have no significant impact on the size of population in the affected counties other than possibly increasing incomes of the people there.

Crash illustrates problems with private planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The collision between a commercial airliner and a private plane over San Diego tragically highlights the growing concern over use of major commercial airports by private aircraft.

The problem is not new, but as the number of private planes increases, the skies become ever more crowded.

"It's an age-old controversy," said spokesman Ed Slattery of the National Transportation Safety Board. "In the airline business they have 2,400 airplanes, and in general aviation they have 185,000 and they claim they have a right to the sky too, you know."

In contrast to the 185,000 private planes today, 10 years ago the number was 127,000.

"What it boils down to," Slattery said, "is handling traffic." The Federal Aviation Administration has a policy of trying to get light planes away from major airports, said FAA spokesman Fred Farrar. "That's been our policy for quite a few years."

Farrar said the FAA has been encouraging construction of so-called relief airports, to take light plane traffic away from the major fields.

But he noted that in Monday's accident the Cessna light plane was practicing instrument landings.

"To do that you have to go where there is an instrument approach system," he said.

"We would like to have reliever airports for general aviation and have supported this concept since it was introduced in 1960," said Mary Silitch of the Aircraft Owners & Pilots Association.

The number of airports in metropolitan areas is declining and many privately owned fields are finding it uneconomical to stay in business, she said.

In Monday's accident, she said, use of the San Diego field was necessary because of the need for instrument approach equipment and she added that no other area airport has the equipment for such training.

And other airports carry up to three times the general aviation traffic of San Diego's Lindbergh Field, Mrs. Silitch said.

The possibility of collisions between commercial and private aircraft is "an area of increasing concern to the board," Slattery said.

He said the safety board is considering national hearings on the problem, spurred by several recent near accidents.

Only two weeks ago, he said, there was a near collision between a private plane and an airliner at Roanoke, Va.

And in late August the board conducted hearings in New York on a near collision in which a North Central Airlines DC-9 with 98 persons aboard and a small business jet were both cleared to use the same runway.

The smaller plane aborted takeoff and swerved to avoid the larger one. No one was injured.

In Monday's accident, in which at least 150 persons died, "both planes were given air traffic advisories that they were in the same area and both aircraft acknowledged that they had the other plane in sight," said FAA spokesman Bruce Chambers in Los Angeles.

Officials had no immediate explanation for the accident. Visibility at the time of the crash was 10 miles.

Meanwhile, John O'Donnell, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, criticized the Federal Aviation Administration for "not pushing development of warning equipment designed to prevent such collisions."

In written testimony for a congressional hearing O'Donnell said the technology has been available for many years.

He said ALPA wants a collision avoidance system installed in aircraft to give pilots direct, immediate knowledge of any impending threat.

Mrs. Silitch said there are currently 783,932 licensed pilots in the United States including 188,763 commercial pilots and 50,149 with air transport ratings, meaning they are allowed to fly airliners.

Mood grim on death route flight

The Los Angeles Times
ABOARD FLIGHT 182 — Everyone knew. It was something they couldn't block out. Newspapers in the laps of fellow passengers who boarded Pacific Southwest Airlines Flight 182 in Sacramento Tuesday morning were all headlining the same story. "PSA Jet Disaster Nation's Worst," screamed the Sacramento Bee in seat 4-A. "Worst U.S. Air Disaster," cried the Sacramento Union in seat 15-B.

And so it went.
 It was 7 a.m. Exactly 22 hours for those who lived and an eternity for those who died had passed since the worst air disaster in the nation's history.

Now, a day later, 159 passengers boarded the same flight in Sacramento and headed for the same destinations that ended in a thunderous midair collision with a light plane over a residential section of San Diego called North Park.

"Good morning, ladies and gentlemen. We'd like to welcome you aboard PSA Flight 182 to San Diego with an intermediate stop in Los Angeles," a flight attendant announced over the plane's public address system. Somehow, though, her words were not as spontaneous as passengers had come to expect in the past. She had lost friends the day before.

The Boeing 727, which carries 159 passengers, was full. Earlier, a PSA ticket agent Sacramento Metropolitan Airport was asked if the passenger load was typical. He said only what was necessary. But a customer had asked the question, and he mustered a courteous answer.

"About the same," he replied. "People have got to go to work."

There were state employees and businessmen who boarded the flight. Work awaited them in Los Angeles or San Diego.

And, there were relatives of several persons who had tragically lost their lives a day earlier. Work — grim work, heartbreaking work and agony — awaited them, too.

"I'm scared. I don't know what's in front of us. We don't know if he's there."

Armando Guerrero, 30, of Salt Lake City, was talking about his younger brother, Robert, who lost his life a day earlier.

Guerrero was not afraid for himself. He was a big, bearded man with a ruddy complexion that comes from being a truck driver. He was a man who gave the impression that he could give good report of himself in most any circumstance.

But now, accompanied by two brothers and a brother-in-law, Guerrero was facing the grim task of attempting to identify his brother. He welded his hands together.

Guerrero had kind words for the airline. They had been very helpful, he said, providing him and his brothers with free tickets and drinks if they wished. "It was an accident. What can you say? It was an accident."

In the forward cabin, businessmen pored over notes and thumbed through briefcases. Some read the sports pages.

"I expect Jack to call us to come and pick him up at the bus terminal," one man said to another. There was laughter. His observation wasn't particularly funny, but his colleagues appreciated its intent was ramento attorney Richard L. Morris confided to a seatmate.

"I woke up a couple of times during the night," he admitted. Morris said his wife Monday night remarked about his pending flight. "She mentioned it when I got home in a kidding way, but I felt there was an understatement of something else," he said.

Ken Royer, a Sacramento aerospace engineer, said he had business in Los Angeles and was leaving the flight there.

"Yeah," joked Lee Dunlap, a Sacramento heating and air conditioning contractor. "He's going to walk to San Diego!"

The first leg of the flight between Sacramento and

Los Angeles International Airport took about an hour and, from the outward appearances of most passengers, it was a flight like any other flight.

Flight attendants kept busy serving coffee, tea and orange drink. Flying conditions were good — no turbulence, good visibility — just like Monday.

But the mood changed as the plane took on passengers in Los Angeles bound for San Diego. One veteran airline employee said the passengers were noticeably more quiet.

A handful of off-duty flight attendants boarded in Los Angeles and it was clear they had been through hell. Some wore dark sunglasses to shield their emotions from the view of passengers and one warmly embraced another.

No words were exchanged. Just a simple embrace, evidence of a shared loss, a common bond.

At 8:47 a.m. Flight 182 lifted off from Los Angeles International Airport and headed south for San Diego.

The routine resumed where it had left off. "Would you like something to drink, sir? Black? Cream and sugar?"

Twenty minutes later the aircraft banked to the left, exposing the blue Pacific below, and began heading east over San Diego.

The jets whined and the stabilizer motors whirled and now the passengers who up until that moment had seemed oblivious of the hour suddenly became alert. They pressed their faces against the windows straining for a view of the wreckage.

Guerrero was looking, too. "Did you push your call button," a stewardess asked him.

"Yeah. I wanted to see where the plane crashed."

"I don't know which side of the freeway we're on," she replied.

"I wish I knew because my brother was in it," he said.

And, there were relatives of several persons who had tragically lost their lives a day earlier. Work — grim work, heartbreaking work and agony — awaited them, too.

Price haggling not just for abroad

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Haggling over price may seem more suited to a Mideast bazaar than to a Midwest boutique, but give-and-take bargaining can save you just as much money at home as it can abroad.

That is the advice from a group of economists at Citibank, the nation's second largest commercial bank.

Experts quoted in the bank's latest newsletter say the trick lies in knowing where, when and how to haggle. "You don't bargain in a big store or about groceries in your supermarket."

What about in a bank? "You can bargain with us," said April Klimley of the Citibank public affairs department. Ms. Klimley conceded, however, that most bank charges are fixed. "It would vary from service to service," she said. "But there are certain kinds of branch loans where people do bargain." Branch loans are paid back all at once rather than in installments. They are often "secured" — backed by something like stocks or by large deposits.

The Citibank economists say that "for big-ticket items, a certain amount of haggling is not only expected, it's the accepted way of life." Prices for appliances and automobiles vary widely, for example, and dealers have a certain amount of freedom to negotiate. Bargaining could get you a better service contract or an extra accessory at no extra charge.

Isn't haggling an unusual subject for a big bank? No, said Sarah Wells, editor of the newsletter. Bargaining is simply "a money-saving device... It's 'buymanship,'" she said.

Note: You may not be able to bargain in a bank, but you can compare terms. Where you keep your money can be as important as where you spend it and financial institutions are not all alike. Commercial banks generally offer a greater variety of services, but they also pay less interest on savings accounts. It is important to read the fine print. How often is interest compounded? Is "free checking" really free or do you have to maintain a minimum balance? Can you keep that minimum in an interest-bearing savings account or do you have to deposit it in your checking account? What is the annual rate of interest you will have to pay if you take advantage of so-called overdraft checking to write a check for more than you have in your account?

Economists say that "for big-ticket items, a certain amount of haggling is not only expected, it's the accepted way of life." Prices for appliances and automobiles vary widely, for example, and dealers have a certain amount of freedom to negotiate.

For places where you can haggle, there are some general guidelines to keep in mind. Among them:

—Bone up on the merchandise involved. If your purchase of a new car involves a trade-in, for example, ask the dealer exactly how much he is giving you on your old auto, then check a used-car price guide to see if the allowance seems fair. Don't rely on the seller to give you the pros and cons of a particular product. The greater your knowledge, the better your bargaining position.

—Bargain with dignity. Don't antagonize the seller or make disparaging remarks about the store or the goods.

—Be sure you deal with someone who has the power to make concessions. If a clerk says, "I'm sorry, but the manager sets the prices," ask to see the manager. It is usually easy to bargain in an individual store than in a large chain where store personnel operate within rigid limits.

—Don't exaggerate or make unrealistic claims. Automobile dealers, for example, generally have a pretty good idea of what their competition is charging.

—Haggle in privacy. Don't put the seller in the position of having other customers demand why you are getting a better deal than they are.

—Don't limit bargaining to price alone. The seller may not be willing to cut the price, but he or she may be willing to provide things like free alterations or delivery.

—Try to negotiate discounts for buying in quantity or out of season. Be flexible. You may be able to get a better price if you accept an item that is in stock instead of one that has to be specially ordered.

—Ask if there are discounts for paying cash.

Feminist speaks out for equal pay

SOUTH KINGSTOWN, R.I. (AP) — Kate Millet, feminist and author of "Sexual Politics," has called for "radical changes" costing billions of dollars to assure equal pay for women.

Addressing students at the University of Rhode Island, Monday, Ms. Millet charged that women were discriminated against in the work place. She said, "if female labor were unionized, if female secretarial were paid for their competence in managing their managers, our economy would undergo the most radical changes. And it should — the sooner the better," she said.

Ms. Millet also criticized what she called a new far-right that has emerged amongst the "poor and lower middle class," in the United States.

"This group will try to repeal the ERA (Equal Rights Amendment) and abortion," she said, "and if possible, delay and dilute them as long as and as destructively as they can."

Disabled Marine runs first in race

CHICAGO (AP) — Jerry Benson, who started the Mayor Daley Marathon running on a special artificial leg and finished the 26-mile, 385-yard course on crutches, has received an award for his performance.

The former 28-year-old Marine who lost his left leg in Vietnam crossed the finished line Sunday in 9 hours, 47 minutes. Benson had been training for months for the race. He had designed a special artificial leg, but it became soaked with sweat and wouldn't function properly after about nine miles into the race. He ran the rest of the way on crutches.

Two miles from the end, struggling against pain and exhaustion, Benson shouted to Sheila McGuire, "We're going to finish. We're going to finish."

Race sponsor Lee Flaherty said that out of an estimated 10,000 runners who started, "approximately 6,000 finished."

Russell was really male chauvinist

HAMILTON, Ontario (AP) — The late British philosopher Bertrand Russell publicly advocated women's rights but was a closet male-chauvinist, according to his daughter, Dr. Katherine Tait.

Dr. Katherine Tait of Cambridge, Mass., addressing a group at McMaster University Monday, said her father was raised in a feminist family and advocated the vote for women. But in practice he was condescending to women and expected his wife to be subservient and look after domestic affairs.

His support of women's suffrage was out of a sense of justice but did not mean he would approve of today's feminist movement, she said.

Russell was married four times.

Leaves can be hazard

WASHINGTON (AP)—Autumn's brilliant red and gold may brighten the view but the falling leaves can be a serious road hazard, the Tire Industry Safety Council cautions.

"Even when it's not raining, leaves have a tendency to retain moisture and create a surface nearly as slippery as ice," commented Malcolm R. Lovell Jr., council chairman.

Lovell noted that driving on slippery leaves can lead to a skid with your car sliding into a curb or off the road. This can cause hidden internal tire damage leading to a sudden tire failure and accident weeks or months later.

If a skid starts, he said, take your foot off the gas pedal, avoid the brakes and steer in the direction of the skid. When the car straightens out, pump the brakes gently to slow down.

"We also suggest that motorists take it easy on wet roads created by frequent autumn rains. Stopping on a wet surface can take up to four times the normal distance on a dry road," Lovell said.

And, he added, wet roads can also lead to hydroplaning, in which a tire with shallow tread leaves the road altogether and rides on the surface of the water.

Most likely at speeds over 40 miles per hour, "hydroplaning can lead to complete loss of traction and control of the vehicle," Lovell said.

Here are some fall driving tips from the council:

—Check tire inflation often, as cold weather reduces pressure one pound for each 10-degree drop in temperature. And check pressure when the tire is cold.

—Now is a good time to have the alignment checked, after the busy summer driving season.

—Inspect your tires for tread and sidewall cuts and, if tire cord is exposed, replace the tire.

The council is offering a "Consumer Tire Guide" without charge. Send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to the Tire Industry Safety Council, Box 1801, Washington, D.C., 20013.

CORROSION — Paints and other coatings can be a big help in preventing rust, according to the National Bureau of Standards.

Paint has traditionally been the major rust preventive and there are many paints on the market which contain corrosion inhibitors.

The bureau of standards reports that epoxies, epoxy-coal tar, vinyl-alkyds, asphaltics and coal tars, silicone-alkyds, polyurethanes and phenolics, chlorinated rubbers and zinc-rich paints provide good corrosion resistance.

Surface preparation and a good primer are the most important steps, the bureau said.

To let the metal finish show through, lacquers and varnishes can be used, particularly ones containing acrylics, methacrylates and butyrates. The bureau suggests lacquers and varnishes for such items as aluminum tables, copper art objects, window screens and metal doors.

Chemicals called corrosion inhibitors can also be applied to protect metal. These are familiar as water-displacing and tarnish-preventive sprays for use on jewelry and art objects and in most antifreeze and coolants used in car radiators. These lose effectiveness over time, however.

Greases such as petroleum jelly are useful in protecting tools and other metal items being stored or shipped. And the bureau says that by coating the terminals on your auto battery you can avoid the drain caused by corrosion from battery acid.

Finally, good penetrating motor oils and waxes are effective in preventing rust when applied periodically to lawn mowers, tools, skis, ice skates, guns, fishing tackle and water sprinklers.

(Tomorrow: How to remove corrosion.)

The Permian Basin Unit of the National Association of Parliamentarians met at Midland College.

Viola Stroman of San Angelo, vice president and program chairman, introduced Mrs. Harold D. Lovett as leader for the program. Mrs. Lovett led a discussion on "Presiding Officer and-or Chairman" from "Roberts Rules of Order, Newly Revised." Duties and perogatives of the officer has and can enforce were stressed.

Mrs. W. F. Johnson of Hobbs, N.M., president, announced Mrs. Lovett has been appointed vice chairman of public relations for the NAP.

Guests were Tyler Tindall and Pat Campbell.

Mrs. W. F. Shepherd, membership chairman, presented Mrs. J. L. Hutchison and John V. Slyker as new members.

Holiday scene easy to fashion

For a really pretty holiday arrangement, use a toy house purchased from a variety store.

Place a spray of white artificial poinsettias to the right side at the front and a spray of pine covered with spray-on "flocking" to the left side of the back.

Place a tiny spray of green artificial holly with berries at the window and place a pair of tiny figurines to the front. Set all on a snowy base. Place a small electric bulb inside the house or illuminate the entire display from above.

It's easy to form the snowy base. Just set the house on a large styro-foam base. Stick the flowers and greenery in the base and cover with angel hair.

Looking at a copy of "Roberts Rules of Order, Newly Revised," are Mrs. W.F. Johnson of Hobbs, N.M., seated, president of the Permian Basin Unit of the National Association of Parliamentarians,

Reno's other children are Mattie Morett and Mary Sandberg of Midland and Jean Ellis of Miami, Fla. He resides in Midland with Mrs. Morett. He has 11 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

New home utensil speedy chicken fryer

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: My family loves fried chicken and I often buy it on my way back from work so we can have it for supper. Now I notice there's a new home utensil that pressure-fries chicken fast and I'm thinking of getting it. Have you tried it? — BUSY MOTHER.

DEAR BUSY MOTHER: The new bucket-style low-pressure fryer is simple to use, easy to clean and certainly speedy. Pieces of chicken are dipped in an egg-and-milk or egg-and-water wash, rolled in seasoned flour and then low-pressure-fried in oil; this treatment gives a crisp coating that's not overly thick. There are also many other dishes you can low-pressure-fry speedily in the utensil — from stuffed pork chops to individual main-dish pies. We worked out a recipe for chicken wings that's fun to serve to the family or for a party. — C.B.

CHICKEN WING FRY
1/4 cup honey
1/4 cup soy sauce

2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
12 chicken wings (about 1 1/2 pounds), tips removed
combined with 1 tablespoon water

Stir together the honey, soy sauce, lemon juice, ginger and garlic powder. Marinate the chicken wings in the mixture for a few hours or overnight. Drain wings, saving marinade. Fry the wings in one batch in a 6-quart, bucket-style, low-pressure fryer according to utensil manufacturer's directions. Drain the wings thoroughly on brown paper and keep hot. In a small saucepan stir together the saved marinade and the cornstarch mixture; stirring constantly, cook over moderate heat until thickened, clear and boiling; makes about 2-3rds cup sauce. Pour the sauce over the wings and serve with rice. Makes 4 main-dish servings. Or serve the sauce as a dip with the wings for a party refresher.

Installing new faucet doesn't have to be hard

By AL CARRELL

In the past, we've talked about how to stop faucet drips. Sometimes you have a faucet that isn't worth fixing, can't be fixed, or maybe you're just tired of the way it looks. Putting in a new one isn't all that difficult, in most cases. If you've decided to change, you next need to pick out the new one. There are two basic types of faucets: compression and washerless. The compression type uses a washer at the bottom of the stem to press against a seat and shut off the flow. The washerless eliminates the washer and thus gets rid of a problem. You can get washerless in two-handle models or single-handed jobs. After you pick out your new faucet unit, you encounter the first big problem... removing the old faucet. After some cussing and fuming, you'll get that done, and then you may have another problem. However, this one is easily solved. That's the step of connecting the new unit after it's in place to the water supply lines. The old pipes or tubes may not be the exact length to fit. While copper tubing is easily bent, it's also easily crimped. The tubes or pipes could be cut, but there usually isn't much space to work in. However, for very little money, you can solve the problem with ease. Your faucet dealer will have flexible connectors, the kind that are metal but are banded sort of like a snake. They can be tied into a knot and still not crimp. And they are quickly attached at each end by threaded nuts. What are you waiting for...

Rather than go for a new one, I decided to clean the old. I cut off the water and removed the handles and used automobile rubbing compound. It removed dirt, corrosion, and even some pitted places. She loved the "new" faucet. — C.D.

Dear Super:
When you replace faucet washers, you can get a package with several of the same sized washers. Then the next time the washers need to be replaced, you'll never find the package. What I do is run a string through the hole in the washers, and tie them to the pipe under the sink. Now I can find them. — F.G.

Run-down neighborhoods can be made beautiful

CHICAGO (AP) — Rubble-strewn neighborhoods can be made into pictures of beauty by putting to work those persons who have the most difficulty in finding a job, a coalition of community groups believes.

The chronically unemployed — the young, the elderly and minorities — can be put to work on mundane and creative projects to make their neighborhoods cheerier and more productive places in which to live.

"The work that most needs doing is in the very places where people who live most need work," says the Chicago Coalition on the Right to Earn a Living.

One of the coalition's projects is the Center for Neighborhood Technology, which operates out of a storefront office. It argues there is plenty of work to do in Chicago's low-income neighborhoods.

Why not put unemployed residents to work sprucing up littered parkways, cleaning up park lagoons, building and tending hundreds of rooftop solar greenhouses and managing fish farms that could be built in the basements of factories, the center asks.

Alfred Portis, a member of the center's board, talks about urban agricultural programs such as the rooftop greenhouses which would give employment not only to neighborhood laborers but also to greenhouse farmers and produce marketers.

One greenhouse has already been built, another is under construction, Portis said.

seven more are planned this year and another half-dozen are still in the planning stages, said Scott Bernstein, center director.

Foods from the greenhouses are nutritious and can be purchased by residents at reasonable cost. The rooftop greenhouses help conserve energy by cooling the roof during the summer and keeping heat from escaping through the roof when the weather is cold, Portis said.

Jaycee-ettes sponsoring show, sale

The Jaycee-ettes of Midland will sponsor the sixth Starving Artist Show and Sale from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 13-14 in Dellwood Plaza Mall.

More than 65 artists from five states will display their works. The sale will offer shoppers a wide variety of unusual items ranging in price from $2 to $200.

Two portrait artists will be available to do charcoal or pastel. Tommy the Clown will be in the Mall Saturday with free balloons for children.

The Jaycee-ettes will have chili dogs and corn chip pie, as well as soft drinks, coffee and doughnuts in a food booth. The Silent Auction will begin Friday morning and continue until 6 p.m. Saturday.

The sale, which will be during the Mall's anniversary sale, has been recognized as the top project on the state level for Jaycee-ettes the last two years, and has been recognized as Outstanding Project locally the last two years.

Proceeds from the sale are used to hold monthly socials at the Permian Basin Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation, make donations to Teen Challenge Outreach and the muscular dystrophy and kidney foundations. Last year, the Jaycee-ettes purchased equipment for the labor and delivery room at Midland Memorial Hospital and Cerebral Palsy Center with proceeds from the sale.

A few spaces still are available and equipment may be rented from the Jaycee-ettes for the sale. More information may be obtained by dialing 697-4280 or 694-4076.

DEAR ABBY

Wait, then try socking it to him

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Who should pay for what in a live-in type relationship?

The female is divorced, has two children and is on welfare. The male is well-to-do, with a good steady job. Should the rent and food expenses be divided?

In this case the guy pays no rent and is living in HER home—THE FEMALE

DEAR FEMALE: In any kind of relationship, the assets, liabilities and responsibilities should be shared 50-50. And if you're the female living on welfare, you (and the taxpayers) are supporting the guy who's living with you.

You might consider living with this free-loading, well-to-do creep just long enough to confirm a common law status (under recent court decision), and then sock it to him!

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to that 16-year-old boy who felt that girls expected him to make a pass on the first date fell short. The kid said, "On the first date, I feel no irresistible urge to make out with her or even kiss her," and you said, "Most girls prefer the slow approach."

Why didn't you tell him that the only right time to kiss someone (or to make love) is at the precise time when the urge is irresistible? If it happens on the first date, you're in business. If it hasn't happened by the 15th date—don't kiss her just because you think you OUGHT to. Admit the fact that the chemistry is wrong in the relationship, and then either go on the assets, liabilities and responsibilities should be shared 50-50. And if you're the female living on welfare, you (and the taxpayers) are supporting the guy who's living with you.

If everyone just followed their inclinations—or didn't act when the inclinations weren't there—there vastly different for 45-year-old boys on their first dates!

I am a 45-year-old divorcee, and believe me, I still say, the slow middle-aged men approach is preferable don't seem to understand for kids. They may feel this any better than 16-like making out (or year-old boys.—W. C. M. making love) on the first DEAR MS. M.: This date, but they lack the rules for kissing, dating experience and maturity and making love are to handle it.

Involve the family

By MARION WELLS Copley News Service

When a child gets cancer, how can the parents meet that youngster's needs and still keep their marriage and other kids on an even keel? Making it a "family experience" may help.

"What's important is that brothers and sisters and fathers, as well as mothers, do participate," says Jonathan Kellerman, Ph.D., who directs psychosocial services in the Division of Hematology-Oncology at Children's Hospital of Los Angeles.

"Cancer affects everyone in the family. So we need to integrate the family experience," he adds.

At Children's Hospital, most kids with cancer are treated at the outpatient clinic most of the time.

64 Basin residents shaken by 'blowout'

By BRUCE PARTAIN
R-T Staff Writer

HONOLULU, Hawaii — A group of Permian Basin travelers arrived safely in Midland Tuesday, in spite of a near-accident during their plane's take-off.

After eight days in Hawaii, 64 vacationers from the Permian Basin re-line activity at the field.

Fat Albert flew away from the islands for nearly an hour before Winfield told passengers he was going to dump most of the fuel (later reported to be over 22,000 gallons) to lighten the plane for an emergency landing at Honolulu.

Braniff officials in Dal-final approach.

Passengers, having memorized information on the usually-ignored emergency cards in their seat pockets, buried their faces into pillows and blankets placed in their laps.

All overhead luggage had been quickly stored in the planes' restrooms. The cabin became quiet as the plane neared the runway.

In a computer-perfect touch-down, the 747 rolled in, only the flopping tire below and the flashing lights outside indicating this was anything but a normal landing.

On cue, the passengers applauded and hugged one another. Doris Sims, a Kermit resident, speaking to no one in particular, said it was her good luck to have sat next to a Baptist preacher.

"Next time, I'm driving or taking a bicycle," she joked.

But the excitement was not yet over. After being towed back to the terminal building, passengers were first informed the aircraft would be delayed 4 1/2 hours, until 1 a.m., then later word came the flight was off until 6 a.m. Tuesday.

Some passengers were shuttled off to nearby hotels, others opted to stretch out on the terminal building carpet, waiting for Braniff and Continental Airlines mechanics to repair the damage.

Further delays set the flight back to 7:30 a.m., but not before several passengers discovered the carry-on baggage they had left on the plane had been ransacked or was missing.

Most of the missing valuables were cameras and camera accessories. Among those missing equipment were Gary Turner of San Angelo, $1600 of camera equipment; Jim Levy of Hobbs N.M., $1000 of camera equipment; Ron Reese of Odessa, $300 of camera equipment; R.H. Chambers of Dallas, $865 of camera equipment; J.W. Cates of Fort Stockton, $250 camera; and J.C. Chance of Kermit, $125 camera.

A Big Spring tennis player reportedly lost a $150 tennis racket and Marie Butts of Kermit lost a $26 gold leaf picture frame.

After their final Hawaiian adventure, the Permian Basin tour arrived back at Midland-Odessa Airport at 11 p.m. Tuesday, 24 hours after their initial take-off.

Most of their baggage remained overnight in Dallas.

Jurors' rage enough for killing

By ROB WOOD

HOUSTON (AP)—The jury had convicted the defendant of capital murder. They went back to deliberate the punishment. Within a few hours the decision was announced:

Death by lethal injection.

Four times within a week, 12 times in the past nine months this scene was enacted in district courts of Houston, the state's largest city and one familiar with violence.

The death penalties were given to two teenagers, a woman, to three men in their early twenties. The crimes involved the robbery-killing of a jewelry store owner, the shooting death of the operator of an ice cream parlor, the rape and fatal beating of a young girl.

Since January, jurors have convicted 14 persons in Houston of capital murder. Twelve had been sentenced to die. Three more murder trials are scheduled to begin within the week.

In Texas state courts, the jury has the final say in the punishment of those convicted in capital murder cases. The 12 jurors are asked to decide if the defendant could pose a danger to society if ever released from prison. If the answer is yes, then the judge no alternative, but sentence the person to death.

But why so many death penalties within the past few months?

District Attorney Carol Vance said, "perhaps we have had recently those types of crimes that jurors feel should be punished by death."

"But I also feel jurors are fed up with violent crimes. A few years ago about 60 percent of the prospective jurors favored the death penalty.

Today at least 90 percent believe in execution."

There are 94 men and one woman now awaiting death in the state prison system. The last execution in Texas was 1964.

Dick DeGuerin, a noted Houston defense attorney, said, "One basic reason is there are no guidelines as to the evidence that can be used in support of the state's theory that a person is likely to be a continuing threat to society."

"But here we come to those psychiatrists willing to prostitute themselves on the stand and say a defendant will be a continuing threat. A psychiatrist doesn't have any more insight into an individual than any other person."

"What happens," he said, "is that you professional prostitutes willing to testify for the state time and time again. They are killer shrinks," DeGuerin said.

Mike Ramsey, another prominent Houston criminal defense attorney, said, "It may be that within the past year we have had those types of crimes that left little doubt as to the punishment. The possibility is there, however, that a conservative reaction is taking place. It may reflect the mood of the community, anger toward violent crime, a move in favor of stronger law enforcement."

State District Judge

Joe Kegans told The Associated Press, "I can only give my personal opinion. I haven't talked to any jurors. I believe you might call it a backlash. People are fed up with the large number of violent crimes such as the person who goes in and robs a store and then kills the clerk or a witness. People are just fed up."

Ben L. Chambers is a 48-year-old data processor and recently served on a jury that decided William Prince Davis, 21, should die for the killing of Richard W. Lang, 60, the manager of a Houston ice cream company.

Chambers said after the trial, "This man (Davis) is little more than an animal."

The group, including nine from Midland, were among the 416 passengers of Braniff International flight 502, a Boeing 747 jet nicknamed Fat Albert, scheduled for a Honolulu to Dallas/Fort Worth flight at 6:00 p.m. Monday, Honolulu time.

Passengers from Odessa, Midland, Kermit, Fort Stockton, Andrews, Big Spring, Big Lake, Forsan, Crane, Pecos and Balmorhea were winding up a vacation tour arranged by an Odessa television station.

Running on schedule, the non-stop jet lumbered on to an ocean-surrounded runway. Some of the passengers were figuring what a seven-hour flight, plus a five-hour time zone loss, would do to their sleeping schedule.

Just before take-off, however, the passengers were startled by two loud concussive sounds beneath one of the rear compartments.

One of the 18 massive tires had shredded off its wheels, flipping a piece of rubber against the plane and ripping a hole in a faring beneath the left wing of the airplane.

Braniff's Capt. Gordon Winfield, with a lot of ocean and very little runway in front of him, pulled the 600,000 pounds of fully loaded airplane skyward.

A group of passengers said they felt air blowing in from below, and flight attendants began hustling fire extinguishers and other emergency equipment from the hold to the passenger compartment.

Winfield came over the speaker, announcing a possible problem with the tire and landing gear.

Meanwhile, emergency crews at Honolulu International Airport sped out to the runway, shutting down all other air-

Exchange student finds city friendly

Making the transition from Australia to Texas takes a little getting used to, according to Nada Mukhtar.

The 18-year-old exchange student, however, seems to be taking the changes in stride. "I'm loving it," is the way she expresses herself on the subject.

There are changes to get used to. "Midland is flat and the water is terrible," she noted.

But with a year in the city as part of the American Field Service Exchange program, she feels sure she can cope. She is spending her year here with the Jimmy Charles Floyd family.

She's also dealing with a stereotyped image among her Midland High School classmates. "They ask me questions like 'Do you really have a kangaroo?' or 'Do you have a pet koala?'"

Although she said she came to Texas without any preconceptions of her own — "They told me not to expect anything" — the first person she saw after getting off the plane in Midland had a cowboy hat, boots and western suit, she said.

Miss Mukhtar, who came here from Melbourne, Australia, said one main difference between the two countries is the friendliness of the people.

"The people are so friendly here," she said. "Especially the boys."

One factor contributing to the friendliness of the place, she thinks, is the size. "You know every second person you see here. Melbourne has 3.5 million people."

Her own goal is to "travel around the world," she notes. "After college, I want to travel everywhere using teaching or possibly secretarial work to earn money."

Moratorium on tickets

ATHENS, Ala. (AP) — Drivers had a moratorium on parking tickets in this northwest Alabama city today, the day of the funeral of the policeman who wrote them for 18 years.

The officer, Kenneth Cooper, 57, died of an apparent heart attack Monday while waiting to escort a funeral procession to a burial site.

Cooper was in charge of parking enforcement in the downtown area, which he patrolled on a three-wheeled motorcycle.

The City Council voted Monday night to suspend issuing of parking tickets across the city on the day of Cooper's funeral.

Namibia delays date of elections

WINDHOEK, South-West Africa (AP) — Namibia's South African administrator general has postponed elections to a constituent assembly, apparently to give a white party more time to prepare.

Justice Marthinus Steyn said Tuesday the vote will be held Dec. 4-8, instead of Nov. 20-24. The small AKTUR party had threatened to boycott the elections unless it had sufficient time to buttonhole voters.

Last week South Africa rejected a U.N. plan for year-long preparations for elections and provisions for a 7,500-man U.N. force to be stationed in South-West Africa.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Sensible exercise, diet plan advised

Dear Dr. Solomon: At what age do people usually reach their heaviest weight? I'm 42, and I am about 15 pounds more than when I got out of college. Is there any chance of this leveling off naturally, or should I do something about it? — Dick

Dear Dick: Most men reach their maximum weight between the ages of 35 and 44, according to a recent survey by the National Center for Health Statistics—so if you conform to the average, you're presumably about there. However, I would advise a sensible plan of exercise and diet to get back to your just-out-of-college weight or as near to it as possible, as it is usually ideal.

A specific plan can be found in my new paperback book, "Dr. Solomon's Proven Master Plan for Total Body Fitness and Maintenance" (published by Berkley).

Interestingly enough, women tend to gain until they are between 55 and 64, according to the survey. The reasons for this 20-year difference from men's weight-peaking time are not clear.

The survey also found that men and women under 45 weigh more on the average now than they did in the early '60s.

Critic wins mercy of Virginia judge

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A Norfolk traffic court judge has dismissed a contempt citation he issued against a woman who criticized his court as a "three-ring circus" in a letter to the editor of a newspaper.

Facilities renamed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Tuesday unanimously gave final congressional approval to bills naming agricultural research facilities in three states after retiring or former colleagues.

It sent to President Carter measures that would name a bee research laboratory in Tucson, Ariz., after the late Sen. Carl Hayden, D-Ariz.; a pecan field station in Brownwood, Texas, after Rep. W.R. "Bob" Poage, D-Texas, and the meat animal research center near Clay Center, Neb., after former Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb.

Judge Vernon D. Hitchens Jr. dismissed the order Monday against Frances Savage, citing considerations such as freedom of speech. But he said he still believed Mrs. Savage did not "realize how far she went beyond legitimate personal opinion."

Mrs. Savage, 58, had been scheduled to appear in court Tuesday to show cause why she should not be held in contempt of court for her letter, published Sept. 17 by the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot and Ledger-Star. Contempt is punishable by up to 10 days in jail and a $50 fine.

In the letter, Mrs. Savage likened Hitchens' court to a "three-ring circus" after watching the judge dispose of a minor charge against her husband in connection with a two-car accident.

"After a morning in traffic court, I have come to the conclusion that if crime is running rampant, it is because the innocent have no voice or chance to state their case," Mrs. Savage wrote.

In dismissing the contempt citation, Hitchens said he was convinced Mrs. Savage was guilty. "But hers was ignorance rather than a deliberate design to commit contempt."

Snooze, reduce the Roman way

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

ROME (AP) — A new diet is sweeping Italy — or at least languishing its way up the Tyrrhenian seacoast from Amalfi to Naples to Rome and will an hour of strolling." — This probably to prevent bed sores and give the phone a rest. — "Then again in bed after a light lunch of meat, vegetables and water. In the afternoon you receive your friends, while in bed trim enough to fit into his chariot by garnishing his pelt with herbs during sessions in the steam room, attended by Nubian mutes or Vestal virgins, as the mood suited him. Massage parlors always did have a questionable moral side.

one of these days yawn its way to the Italian Riviera.

In the easygoing Italian style, no jogging, sprinting, yoga or calisthenics are required.

Quite the opposite, in fact. One stays in bed all day and refrains from getting nervous.

Reclining like a Roman in Lucullan luxury (after the manner of Lucius Licinius Lucullus, the Roman general and epicure who according to surviving statuary definitely had a weight problem) has become the new fad diet for cruiser-class Italian opera divas who put aboard too much pasta during the summer recess and want to get back to clipper-size by La Scala's opening night.

Darya Quinn, gossip columnist for the Rome Daily American, revealed the secrets of the snoozing diet after a recent fact-finding expedition down the Via Veneto, her turf for titillating tattle and an occasional pinch of scandal. Fortunately not all of Rome had taken to its beds to shed excess poundage and few acolytes of the dolce vita were abroad on that famous boulevard to fill her in on the details of what she soon told her readers was "the new, comfortable and chic" way to shape up.

"You don't get up in the morning," Ms. Quinn passed on the new horizontal counter-attack on calories, "but you sip your tea with a biscuit. You freshen up, and rest in bed reading, ringing up, writing, painting, thinking and doing whatever doesn't make you nervous."

That, apparently, is the nerve center of the whole diet: don't get nervous, even about the mounting telephone bill as you chatter with your friends in recumbent ease.

"Then at midday," columnist Quinn continues, "You get up and go for and while sipping with them a strong tea."

Sandwiches and cakes are permitted the visitors, but the couchant calorie counter must be satisfied solely with the tea.

"At dinner," Quinn resumes her rundown, "you participate in the family evening meal, eating cheese and vegetables and drinking milk. Then to bed again." Nothing about a midnight snack or somnambulant raid on the fridge.

If the slumbering slimmer can endure this indolent pace for a week, "you lose three or four kilos" (up to almost 9 pounds), Quinn promises, "and emerge from bed with splendid complexion, soft humor and resplendent eyes."

Which is the way I usually arise from bed anyway, except the scale always shows I have put on another pound or two. It must be nerves.

For those who find the mattress approach to weight watching too stultifying or don't care to receive their friends in an atmosphere suggestive of reading the last will and testament, Rome is also all atwitter with the slimming solution that seated 50 pounds of gristle from the formidable Romanesque frame of actor Aldo Fabrizi.

Fabrizi, who admits to being helplessly addicted to the fettuccine fork, covered himself in layers of special herbs, like a leg of lamb Florentine-style, and immersed himself for hours in a steaming Roman bath.

This method of boiling away the blubber and purifying the system was known to the early Romans, who built the Baths of Caracalla as an early pre-Christian version of the YMCA health club.

The Emperor Diocletian, who built another big bath house up by the railroad station, kept

Blind jumper offers challenge to others

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) — A 4,000-foot parachute jump would be a thrill to most people. For Benjamin Lee, it is only another of many challenges in a world without sight.

"For a second or two I might have panicked a little bit," said Lee, 31, recalling his first jump July 15. "I regained my composure and realized I was supposed to be counting. So instead of starting from one, I started from two."

A static line opened Lee's parachute, and sky-diving teacher Mark Sorenson of Flagstaff, Ariz., gave instructions by radio. As Lee neared the ground, waiting crew members yelled: "You're coming in ... three ... two ... one."

"The earth came up a lot harder than I anticipated," Lee said, but Sorenson said he "could have used his drop from the plane as a demonstration for a student manual."

Lee, a computer research specialist for the Navajo education office, twisted an ankle on landing, but he began exercising, reviewing his technique mentally and practicing falls almost at once.

"Several blind and otherwise handicapped people have made parachute jumps," Lee said. "But somebody mentioned that no blind person has ever done it a second time. My plans are to do it again soon."

Lee said his next three or four jumps would be with a static line opening the parachute. "But to jump out and pull your own rip cord is a goal I have."

Uranium waste bill wins committee nod

WASHINGTON (AP) —

A House committee, saying radioactive wastes from uranium processing pose "a potential and significant radiation health hazard to the public," voted Tuesday to help the states clean up the abandoned material.

The bill approved unanimously by the House Commerce Committee would require the federal government to pay 90 percent of the cleanup costs, with states providing 10 percent. A similar proposal pending in the Senate would provide 100 percent federal funding.

The House bill covers at least 22 separate processing sites, mostly in the West and now mostly abandoned.

Until 1960, uranium was mined, processed and sold to the federal government with little regard for its potential for polluting the air and adjacent streams or lakes. The committee said the uranium was mined and sold to the government "during a period when the potential radiation health hazard to the public was apparently not adequately recognized."

Mill tailings, the waste material left behind during processing, were simply dumped at various facilities around the country.

Among the processing sites covered by the bill are three located in Utah at Salt Lake City, Green River and Mexican Hat; nine in Colorado at Durango, Grand Junction, Gunnison, Naturita, Maybell and two each at Slick Rock and Rifle; two in New Mexico at Shiprock and Ambrosia Lake; two in Wyoming at Riverton and Converse County; two in Arizona at Tuba City and Monument Valley; and others in Lakeview, Ore.; Falls City, Texas; Lowman, Idaho; and Canonsburg, Pa.

Storage cavern blaze out with aid of balloon

HACKBERRY, La. (AP) — "There is very little chance of another blow-out," said Asgar "Boots" Hansen after snuffing out a five-day fire fed by 6 million barrels of oil stored in an underground salt dome.

Hansen and his wild well trouble-shooters plugged the shaft into the dome with a rubber balloon Tuesday, cutting off the flow that had formed a fiery lake of oil above ground.

The fire, which ignited Thursday in blowout that killed one man, consumed up to 70,000 barrels of crude oil that escaped from the shaft.

It happened at cavern No. 6 of the Department of Energy's $20 billion Strategic Petroleum Reserve project to store up a billion barrels of oil as emergency supply.

Boots and Coots Inc. of Houston, Texas, wild well specialists who normally deal with wild oil wells, found this problem unique.

It wasn't a wild well, to be strangled with heavy mud or killed with precise explosives. It was a "tame" well draining off crude from the cavern bigger than a 10-story building, scoured out deep inside a salt dome. The usual methods, especially explosives, were out of the question.

They solved the problem with a special rubber balloon, 7 feet long and 7 inches in diameter.

Working in a protective spray of foam and water, they used a long boom operated from a tractor to lower the empty balloon 10 feet down into the 9 1/2-inch well shaft. Then it was inflated to 2,000 pounds of pressure, swelling against the steel casing, sealing off the shaft like a cork in a bottle of champagne.

When the fuel stopped flowing, crews used foam and water to battle the flames in the 250 by 250 feet area, rimmed by earthen dikes, where the oil burned. However, the Coast Guard said a shortage of foam and hoses developed, and extra supplies were flown to the scene. The additional equipment was provided by various fire companies, industries and military units.

The well had been drilled 3,042 feet down into the top of the cavern. Pressure inside the cavern caused the blowout when a special safety valve failed while a workover crew was repairing casing. The pressure blew the oil out the shaft, spraying into air.

A fireball that erupted within seconds after the blowout left two crewmen severely burned. One died a few hours later in a Baton Rouge hospital.

The some 650 pounds per square inch pressure at the cost of the blowout had diminished to about 17 pounds at the end. The once spectacular fire, with flames leaping 250 feet high, was down to a sullen red glare cloaked by thick black smoke.

Hansen said there probably was no damage to the storage cavern since the top of it is 3,042 feet below the fire.

A new valve control system was ready for installation on the wellhead as soon as things cooled off enough to permit work.

A federal inquiry to determine what went wrong is expected to last another two or three weeks.

Cavern No. 6 held 6 million barrels of crude shipped in from the Persian Gulf when the fire started. The storage vault is one of a series created to hold a billion barrels of oil that will be kept as emergency supply in case of another Arab oil boycott.

Federal officials estimate the emergency supply would offset a new boycott for six to nine months.

Removal requested

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Republican gubernatorial Bill Clements on Tuesday called for the resignation or removal of federal Energy Secretary James Schlesinger.

Clements, addressing a meeting of supporters here, invited his Democratic opponent, Attorney General John Hill, to join him in seeking Schlesinger's ouster.

Clements said Schlesinger has no understanding of energy problems.

The GOP politician said Hill's support of solar energy is out of line because it will be at least 20 years before there can be any large scale applications of the sun's energy.

Clements said he favors development of domestic petroleum, coal and nuclear energy. And, he said, the nation should begin buy oil at fair prices from Canada and Mexico instead of from the Middle East and Venezuela.

Bill bad for Texans; boon to bureaucrats

By MILLER BONNER
WASHINGTON (AP) — The natural gas compromise expected to pass the Senate later this afternoon is viewed as a boon for bureaucrats, lawyers and accountants but bad news for Texas, according to opponents of the bill.

The compromise calls for phased deregulation of natural gas with consumer gas bills steadily rising by about $13 a year by 1985, according to the conference committee report that has been widely disputed by liberals and producing-state congressmen.

The bill "will add substantially to the cost of producing gas," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, who along with fellow Texan John Tower has been an outspoken critic of the bill. "It will make it more difficult for the small producer to stay in business and cost increases will be passed on to the consumer. How much of an increase? It's really hard to say right now."

"It will be a bonanza for attorneys and accountants," the Democrat added.

The bill establishes a rigid set of regulations for determining the price that can be charged for gas taken from a specific well.

"The staggeringly complex new regulatory scheme" will "significantly increase the regulatory cost of exploring for and producing gas," added Tower who earlier this month joined an unlikely coalition consisting of fellow Republicans Dewey Bartlett of Oklahoma and Clifford Hansen of Wyoming plus Democrats Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio and James Abourezk of South Dakota in condemning the centerpiece of President Carter's energy package.

Carter, who earlier tabbed America's energy problems the "moral equivalent of war," has apparently been successful on Capitol Hill in selling the compromise as a means of reducing this country's dependence on foreign oil and shoring up the faltering dollar abroad.

The compromise was hammered out during 17 months of bargaining between Senate-House negotiators after the Senate passed a deregulation bill while the House version called for extended regulation.

On Sept. 19, the Senate voted 59-39 not to have the bill recommended to the conference committee, a move that would have effectively killed the measure.

A day before the vote, both Tower and Bentsen received a letter from Texas Railroad Commission urging that the controversial compromise be defeated.

The letter, signed by chairman Mack Wallace and commissioners Jon Newton and John H. Poerner, said the compromise would create a "devastating administrative burden" on the commission.

The compromise "is really strange. Several senators have commented that this bill has more lives than a cat," said Ron Smith, Tower's legislative counsel who specializes in energy matters. "The bill doesn't represent any cohesive regulatory scheme. It's self contradictory. It calls for deregulation while extending regulation."

Both Smith and Mike Naeve, Bentsen's legislative director, said the compromise will increase the amount of federally regulated gas.

The reprocessors in Texas — where intrastate gas is deregulated — is a "big concern for Texas consumers because Texas has prospered economically," said Smith. "It has been an attractive place for industry." But he said the bill likely will dilute that benefit because there no longer will be assurances of a great supply.

"You have the clear potential of a subsequent congress making a few word changes in the law and extending, in effect, total authority to regulate natural gas from the well head to the user, determining how it's produced and at what price and where it is eventually sent in time of emergency," added Smith.

Many independent producers "literally exist for the intrastate market and the lack of regulation there," said Smith, and he contended the bill will extend a giant framework of federal regulation on those producers.

"Not all of them are going to go out of business overnight but it will create a number of disincentives to the aggressive oil and gas exploration that the country needs and that Texas would benefit by."

"The big gas producers won't be affected because they have the resources as such that they will hire another office full of lawyers and accountants and plow on through and keep doing business."

Smith said a lot of small independents have one to three-man offices and spend the majority of their time finding or producing oil and gas. He said they have no concept of the expense and delays involved in this type of system.

While a bill provision will keep gas companies from passing along all of the costs of additional lawyers and accountants, consumers will subsequently pay the price for regulation, contend both Naeve and Smith.

"The small independent producer will find his markets increasing once the (compromise bill) regulations are imposed, but then he'll find the cost of doing business increasing dramatically due to the increased regulations," said Naeve.

According to Smith, another alarming feature of the bill allows the government to decide where to enter court to settle price disputes. "They can have their choice between the federal court, say in Texas, or a federal court in the District of Columbia. Where do you think they'll want to try most of the cases?"

"Folks out there will be paying more for their gas but through other manufactured goods," he said. "Through the shirt that you buy or the car you buy. Somebody has to pay for it."

Texas gas, concluded Bentsen, has become one of the casualties in Carter's "moral equivalent of war."

"The Northeast is receiving their gas at a subsidized rate and that means that Texans in effect, are having to pay for the finding of the new reserves for the nation," he said.

Upton area gains oiler

South Ranch Oil Co. and A. G. Kasper (originally A. G. Kasper) No. 1 Amacker has been completed as the third Devonian oil well in the Amacker-Tippett, South multipay field of Upton County.

Operators reported a 24-hour flowing potential of 118.4 barrels of 58-gravity oil, no water, through a 12/64-inch choke and perforations from 10,868 to 11,398 feet. The pay had been acidized with 5,500 gallons and fractured with 120,000 gallons.

Location is 660 feet from north and 2,637 feet from east lines of section 99, T. C. Jones survey.

It is a northeast offset to other Devonian production.

Extension try scheduled

John H. Hendrix Corp. staked a 5/8-mile west stepout to the Amrow (Devonian) field of Gaines County, 12 miles southeast of Seminole.

It is No. 1 Whitaker, 659 feet from north and 661 feet from west lines of section 2, Gaines County School Land survey No. 311.

The project is slated on a 12,750-foot tract.

Stepout set in Reagan

Saxon Oil Co. of Midland spotted its No. 1-9 University as a project in the Spraberry Trend Area field of Reagan County, 12 miles northwest of Big Lake.

It is 3/4 mile west of production and 1,320 feet from north and east lines of section 9, block 9, University Land survey. It will drill to 7,800 feet.

Explorer sites staked

Wynant S. Wilson of Abilene spotted drillsite for a wildcat in Stonewall County, and Charles M. Childers of Abilene staked a 4,000-foot explorer in Runnels County.

The Stonewall wildcat is No. 1 B. J. and Jerre Cook, four miles southeast of Aspermont.

It is 2,210 feet from south and 2,60 feet from east lines of section 165, block D, H&C survey.

The location is 3/8 mile northwest of the depleted Aspermont, West (Canyon reef oil) field and 1/2 mile northwest of a 5,275-foot dry hole. The site also is one and one-eighth miles northeast of an active wildcat.

Childers will dig his No. 1 Bylerl four miles north of Ballinger and 467 feet from northeast and 2,077 feet from southeast lines of Rama Christa survey 432, abstract 73. Elevation at drillsite is 1,686 feet.

The location is 1/2 mile northwest of the Ballinger multipay field.

Wasted VIP treatment

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Norway's oil minister, Bjartmar Gjerde, went to the airport Tuesday night to welcome the Libyan oil minister, Ez el Dean al Mabrouk, to a conference the Norwegian Petroleum Institute and the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries began today.

An Arab came out of the plane last, and Gjerde gave him the embraces traditional for an Arab welcome. Then they sped off in a limousine.

Gjerde soon realized that something was wrong. His guest turned out to be Mohammed Hassan Taher of the Saudi Arabian Islamic Development Bank.

The Libyan oil minister arrived on a later flight.

Rail strike could hurt work at chemical plants

By The Associated Press
Texas railroad workers were under a court order today to return to work but early checks with affected railways showed not all unions were immediately complying.

Freight traffic moved slowly across Texas and the rest of the nation Tuesday as railway clerks picketed 43 railroads. The pickets went up in sympathy for the Norfolk and Western Railway on the East Coast, which has been idled for several months because of the strike by the Railway and Airline Clerks union.

Some railroad spokesmen said they felt the court orders would be honored but the logistics of serving the orders today might account for the delay.

Loren Simmons, a spokesman for Santa Fe in Dallas, said there would be about 80 crews in its system today, made up of supervisory personnel who started their careers as trainmen.

Simmons said those 80 crews could probably operate about a third as many trains as usually run on the line.

Amtrak passenger service in Texas was canceled Tuesday. The Interoceanic, which runs from Chicago to Laredo through Fort Worth, made its run south and stopped.

The Dallas-based Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad (Katy), the Cotton Belt and the Burlington Northern were affected in Texas, but the Fort Worth & Denver, Southern Pacific and Missouri Pacific were among those not affected.

The Katy obtained a federal court injunction in Kansas City Tuesday but spokesman Jerry Sheridan said today the pickets were ignoring the court order.

"They just flat have ignored the injunction," Sheridan said. "We're open and we're running about 30 percent capacity with supervisory personnel."

He said Katy had been doing a great deal of work on its tracks and the strike caused it to come to a standstill.

Workers on the Frisco line worked Tuesday but put up pickets today at Fort Worth, Sherman and Irving. They came down quickly when railroad officials showed them a restraining order.

"We're now back in full force," said trainmaster Ted Bourzikas.

In Greenville, about 50 miles northeast of Dallas, picket lines went up at the Kansas City Southern terminal Tuesday.

In Houston, the strike affected Santa Fe, Burlington Northern, and the Missouri Pacific lines.

Tuesday's Amtrak train to Chicago was shut down because it is serviced by Santa Fe but the New Orleans-Los Angeles route continued operations because it is serviced by Southern Pacific, a line unaffected by the strike.

Amtrak spokesmen said about 15 passengers on the canceled Chicago run were placed on buses.

Industry sources in Houston reported minimal effects so far but officials at export grain elevators said a strike of several days could have significant impact on operations. Shell Oil Co. said some chemical plant operations might have to shut down if the work stoppage were to continue any length of time.

Paul Brebach, a steel importer, said any effects of the strike will be dampened in that a shortage of rail cars already has forced his company to use trucks.

Hiring suit under way

HOUSTON (AP) — Morale problems at Mobil Oil Corp. may have caused its employees to leave for jobs at Superior Oil Co., the board chairman of Superior testified Tuesday.

But Superior never solicited Mobil trade secrets from those employees, Howard B. Keck said.

He was the first witness in a state civil district court suit in which Mobil accuses Superior of hiring eight former Mobil executives to obtain confidential information.

Mobil alleged trade secrets revealed by the employees gave Superior an advantage it used to lease offshore tracts in the Gulf of Mexico expected to be rich in oil and gas.

Mobil is asking Judge Arthur Leshner to prevent Superior from enticing any present or former Mobil employee to disclose trade secrets.

It also is asking the judge to bar Superior from receiving any payment as a result of production from the two tracts.

Keck said Superior hired the eight men because he felt they were the best men available to upgrade the company's exploration and production operations.

In his second day of testimony, Keck said he had heard reports of a morale problem at Mobil, "and an exodus of people from Mobil led me to believe there was a problem."

But he said Superior didn't take advantage of the "morale problem" in hiring 39 employees away from Mobil since August 1976.

Oilmen flood Travis lease

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A landowner says oil brokers are "driving us up the wall" to get leases near a wildcat oil well in northwestern Travis County.

Bert Johnson said senior geologist Pat Dickerson of Gulf Oil Co. told him she believes oil traces have been found in the well being drilled by McFarlane Oil Co. of Houston.

"They have gone down through 5,000 feet of limestone and have found traces of helium and are almost sure they are going to find oil below it," Johnson said.

He owns eight acres near Sunset No. 1, the well being drilled about 11 miles from Jonestown.

"I've been getting calls at 1:30 and 2 o'clock in the morning," he said. Johnson said 28 geologists from Gulf were on his land Monday.

"One geologist told me, 'You won't recognize this land in 10 years,'" Johnson said.

An armed guard is at the site of Sunset No. 1 to keep out unauthorized persons.

"I have a real close friend who has leased 320 acres at $20 an acre, plus $5 an acre for access, plus one-sixth royalties. That price is practically unheard of with a wildcat," Johnson said.

Eastland Oil schedules wildcat in Sterling area

The Eastland Oil Co. of Midland No. 1 E. H. Norwood is to be drilled as a 7,200-foot wildcat in Sterling County, 3 miles south of Sterling City.

Scheduled for tests of the Cisco and Canyon zones, it is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 29, block 12, SPRR survey.

The drillsite is one location west of an 8,115-foot dry hole, one and five-eighths miles southeast of The Durham field and 5/8 mile southeast of depleted production in the Sterling, South area.

PECOS OUTPOST
Dalton H. Cobb of Midland announced location for a 22,800-foot project in Pecos County, 14 miles northwest of Fort Stockton.

It is No. 1 Alsup, 2,008-feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 1, block 37, T-2-S, T&P survey. It is near wells in the Germania portion of the pool.

Savings, credit risked for special

By JERRY BUCK

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Diane Baker risked her savings, and all the credit she could muster, on a children's show inspired by a picture postcard.

She produced the one-hour show, at a cost of nearly $200,000, without a network commitment. Had it not sold, she would have had an extravagant home movie.

"Every penny I ever earned went into this," said Miss Baker, who also stars in the special. "I accept-

"The mother and daughter are equally victims," said Miss Baker. "We wanted a balance. We didn't want just the child to be the victim. We also kept away from sentimentality."

Miss Baker and her friends made the show in 15 days on a spartan budget, compared to other TV productions. The average cost of an hour network prime-time show is now nearing $500,000.

They cast the children's parts by simply holding workshops and letting the best talents shine through. They felt the usual method of casting was too intimidating for children.

This is the third production for Miss Baker, who in the 1960s was on her way to becoming a major movie star. She starred with Paul Newman in "The Prize" and in such films as "Stolen Hours" and "Strait Jacket." She said she decided she did not want to pay the price of becoming a big star.

Seven years ago she produced her first film, a documentary made in India called "Ashiana." Nearly two years ago she made an ABC Weekend Special, "Portrait of Grandpa Doc," starring Melvin Douglas and Barbara Rush. Next on her schedule is theatrical film she will produce in England.

"I love filmmaking because it's not a job. Everyone shares their thoughts. I found that we were all alike in that we all wanted to share our values and get them on film."

"I've always had these feelings, but I held them in. In 20 years of acting there was no time to talk it over with a writer or director."

She does not plan to abandon acting totally, but said, "If I knew in the beginning what I know now, I probably would have gone into production. It's the most exciting thing I've done. I never craved personal attention. I've always loved ideas and seeing them flourish. Now I can put them into a script. When I was acting I couldn't."

A few years back she was in the NBC pilot "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," which did not sell. She has made numerous TV guest appearances, but her only series was ABC's "Here We Go Again," a short-lived comedy about divorced couples who remarry.

Her acting career probably hit its highest peak in 1965 when she made "The Prize" with Newman. She said, "I never did enough to push myself. I wouldn't do it. I wouldn't do the publicity. I said I'll play my parts and that's it. I didn't have what a lot of actresses have, the guts to grab hold and make it work."

"After that I turned to television. Then the interest in production started to overtake television."

She said she hopes that other people will be able to get started as she did. She feels it is important that the networks and other established companies take risks with newcomers.

Now she is devoting her time to films about children "because that's where the values are." She said, "Prime time shows don't have to explain motivations. Somebody's murdered and they don't have to explain. You do have to explain in children's shows and it's an open door to expressing sensitivity."

"The networks have a responsibility. They're making a lot of money. They have an obligation to take some of that money and invest it in shows of sensitivity and values."

Adam West, now battling the super-hero image he earned in three years of playing Batman, says "it's not easy."

Adam West's flying high in 'Hooper'

HOLLYWOOD — It's a bird. It's a plane. It's... Great balls of fire! Not Batman?

But, yes, that's who it is, all right, the Caped Crusader of TV series fame who's flying high once again.

With a "ZOWIE!" and a "POW," he's kay-oad the sluggishness which dogged his career immediately after the TV put-on in which he starred was cancelled. He's been seen in "Hooper," a movie starring Burt Reynolds and previously known as "The Hollywood Stuntman."

The title was changed to avoid confusion with another movie called "The Stuntman."

In "Hooper," Reynolds plays a Hollywood stuntman who doubles a superstar, played by West, who specializes in James Bond-type features.

"I play him perfectly straight. No camp," says West.

"I present the character as a human being, not as a superstar. Because not all superstars are ratty. Burt's not."

"I'm not either," he adds amiably.

Scion of a Washington state wheat-growing family, West is a former Whitman College and Stanford man whose first wife, the mother of two of his children, is a genuine Polynesian princess with an unpronounceable name, Ngrua.

"I hate to admit it, because it makes me sound old, but two of my children are in college," says Adam, speaking of his semi-royal offspring. "But I was very young at the time. It was an experiment."

Married now to someone else, Adam has a 21-month-old daughter, Nina, whom he describes as the delight of his life.

After an early career devoted mostly to B-grade Westerns, Adam spent three madcap years wearing long underwear, bat ears and a mask and by so doing became such an international figure that in 1967 he was received by Pope Paul, who admitted, "I've seen you perform."

Adam called his batty toggery his "funny money suit," but the money he made was no joke. It permitted him to wear a Ron Postal wardrobe, drive a yellow Excalibur and have a pretty good time in general.

But altogether the experience was so insane that when he finally cast off his bat tights to play a crazy in "The Big Valley," some people thought it was typecasting.

"It's not easy being an ex-super-hero," Adam said the other day, judging his predicament.

He's not so anti-Batman that he'd never play the role again, and, in fact, he's trying to put together a Batman feature in which he'd star.

But he flatly rejected a chance to return to the character in some television commercials for the State Department.

"I didn't want to do Batman commercials unless they were very well written," West declares. "I've made an oath to myself in blood that I'm not going to wind up putting a bullet in my head like Superman (the late George Reeves) or having a heart attack like Tarzan (Johnny Weissmuller)."

Currently, West is reading plays ("mostly social comedies and romantic comedies") with the intent of hitting the dinner theater circuit.

"Otherwise," he says, "I run with rabbits in the hills with a knife in my teeth."

ed roles in 'Fantasy Island' and 'Love Boat' and poured my salary into the production. Many of the companies we dealt with, the film lab, the sound people, gave me extended credit."

But, of course, she did sell it, and "One of a Kind" will be aired this afternoon as an ABC Afterschool Special. The sale brought enough money to pay all the costs and provide a tiny profit.

Miss Baker plays a mother who abuses her daughter when she neglects her duties at their beachfront food concession. Stephanie Brown, in her first role, plays 10-year-old Lizzie, whose irresponsibility and defiance provokes her mother.

It is the story of how — prodded by an itinerant Punch and Judy puppeteer — they finally learn to communicate and build a loving relationship.

The seed of the film was an antique postcard showing such a puppeteer.

"Marjorie Sigley came to America from England with the postcard," said Miss Baker. "She always wanted to do something with it and it sat on my kitchen table. I said this is a marvelous idea — but what's the story?"

"Finally we hit on having it represent how a child can free her mind from the confines of a limited situation."

Miss Sigley, the founder of the Young People's Theater at the City Center in New York, developed the original story. Harry Winer wrote the script with her and directed.

In the film the wandering puppeteer, who befriends Lizzie, is the catalyst for bringing mother and daughter together. The mother is affected by an allegory built on the make-believe violence of the abusive Punch, manipulated first by the puppeteer and then by Lizzie.

NEW YORK (AP) — You're on the air live, and watch out for the mike cord!

"We've polished so much in prime time that sometimes there's no heart left," says Dick Clark, who's convinced television is ready this fall for an hour of variety with an element of chance.

"We call it the 'train wreck' quality," says Clark, a master showman with as much going in TV today as anyone. "There's the chance that about half of what we do won't work the way we planned."

The risk probably isn't that great, but "Dick Clark's Live Wednesday" at 7 p.m. on NBC is off in the right direction. The premiere show Sept. 20 featured a trampoline act suspended from a helicopter, and tonight's program includes a recreation of one of Houdini's famous escapes.

Clark compares his new weekly program with the old "Ed Sullivan Show," with music and comedy at the core. A major difference is in the emphasis on location shooting.

"It's an extraordinary thing," Clark says, "but when we put together a crew, we were pretty much confined to sports people. They're the ones who do the live work, on location, and they're good at it. But they were really familiar with variety."

"The director, on the other hand, did 'Sullivan,' and the set designer was from 'Sullivan.' The producer has worked with me for the last half-dozen years, but for the rest, it's break-in time."

There's a Dick Clark twist to the show, too — a "One More Time" segment that recalls an act or a star from the past.

"Dick Clark's Live Wednesday" is the result of prodding, says the man who's been a familiar figure on TV since his "American Bandstand" was first broadcast nationally in the summer of 1957.

Clark calls himself a "child of television," and, indeed, he's one of a few entertainers with an appeal that overlaps generations. "American Bandstand," celebrated its 25th anniversary last year, with Clark continuing as host. He's also master of ceremonies for ABC's daytime "$20,000 Pyramid" game show.

All that on-camera work is in addition to Clark's duties as head of Dick Clark Productions. "I'm in a position 35 years later of doing what I set out to do when I was 13," he says. "I'm so absolutely saturated in all ends of this business — Vegas, television, motion pictures, radio. We still do 150 concerts a year."

As it is, Clark spends two days a week in New York, taping "The $20,000 Pyramid," and the rest of the week on the West Coast handling other business and preparing for the variety show.

"I'm involved in everything I do," he says. "You've got a better chance of making it as an independent producer if you keep track of everything that's going on."

He's running "Dick Clark's Live Wednesday" exactly that way, with an important principle in mind.

Clark expects 'train wreck' quality to aid live program

From bit parts to battlestars: It's 'new world' for Maren Jensen

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) — There was that small part in the "Hardy Boys-Nancy Drew Mysteries," but the female lead in ABC's "Battlestar Galactica"?

"When I got this role seven months ago," says 21-year-old Maren Jensen, who plays Athena in the season's most spectacular new series, "I had no idea what it was going to be like."

"I'd had some formal training, but usually an actress who lands something like this has been in several other things."

"It was a lucky break for me."

Let's you think for a moment that there wasn't a bit of calculation to it all, consider:

Maren Jensen spent three years learning theater arts at UCLA, studied acting privately and, as a model, hardly suffered from lack of exposure.

In barely a year, she was in several TV commercials, and her face appeared on the cover of magazines like Vogue, Mademoiselle and Cosmopolitan in Britain.

"I'd done a number of other screen tests," she says, "and I read twice for 'Battlestar Galactica,' first in November and then in February. It was my luck to be there at the right time, and I ended up with the role."

How could a beginning actress ask for more than "Battlestar Galactica," broadcast Sundays at 7 p.m. on ABC. It's the season's most heavily promoted new series, and a special three-hour premiere Sept. 17 beat both the Emmy awards and "King Kong" in the ratings.

"It's a good starting part," the actress says. "The character I play is not unlike myself, and it's a protected role. I'm not carrying the show, but I have a chance to do quite a bit of work."

Athena is the daughter of Adama, commander of the giant battleship Galactica, a part played by veteran actor Lorne Greene.

"She's very smart, about my age, and because her father is in charge, she has a lot of responsibilities," Ms. Jensen says of Athena. There is a romantic relationship in the series with Lt. Starbuck, played by Dirk Benedict, but it's one of those, "OK, when you're ready," things, the actress says.

Maren Jensen grew up in Southern California. Her father is Danish, her mother Hawaiian — which explains her middle name, Kawehilani. Roughly translated, she says, it's "morning mist from heaven."

"I've supported myself since I was 15, waiting on a lot of tables and things like that. I figured there must be a better way."

The "better way," at first, was to be a lawyer, and she began her studies at UCLA with that in mind. "Along the way," she says, "I decided I'd better follow my heart," and Maren Jensen took up acting.

Of "Battlestar Galactica," the actress says, "So far, so good. When you work, you work really hard. For a start, I don't think I could have done much better."

Burt Reynolds returns to campus as lecturer

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Film star Burt Reynolds, who played football at Florida State University in the 1950s, is returning to campus, but he will not be tossing a pigskin this time.

Reynolds is going to be a special guest lecturer at a private seminar on acting and directing.

Richard Fallong, dean of the school of theater, said the actor will be on campus to hold the seminar during the afternoon and a special program for FSU theater patrons that evening.

Reynolds had said earlier he planned to pursue a bachelor's degree from the university using a variety of study options during the next two to three years.

Lose right trick to bring home slam

By Alfred Sheinwald

In some hands nothing is more important than losing a trick the right way. The idea is to avoid losing a second trick.

South won't need medicine if he stops for thought when West drops the nine of hearts at the second trick.

At the third trick, South should lead a low heart. No matter how the hearts break he is sure to lose one trump trick. He should lose it this way.

VARIOUS HEART BREAKS

The five missing hearts will usually break 3-2. If so, South will lose the second heart trick and capture the last missing trump with the king of hearts at his next opportunity.

In this case the hearts break badly. West discards a spade, and South plays dummy's ten to force out the jack.

East returns a spade, and South ruffs. Now he leads a diamond to dummy and returns a heart. East has the Q-7 of hearts, and South plays behind him with the K-8. Declarer can pick up East's trumps by way of a finesse, and then the slam is assured.

DAILY QUESTION Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S-64; H-1042; D-KQJ4; C-K954. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one NT. Despite your nine points in high cards you should make a minimum response. If partner cannot go on, game is most unlikely.

Bridge hand diagram showing South dealer, North vulnerable, and card distributions for North, West, East, and South.

Opening lead - ♦ K

After taking the ace of spades, a careless declarer would lead out the ace and then the king of hearts.

East would take two trump tricks, and South would take two aspirins.

The type of efforts which earned APME Member Citations included:

Chartering planes to fly photos to transmission points; crossing the Mexican border to cover a bus accident; abandoning a house full of out-of-town guests to take and process photos on Sunday and put them on an airplane to the AP; providing news and photo facilities to AP staff personnel when a blizzard knocked out electric power to a major bureau and blanketing the AP a breaking story by staff members of newspapers which could not publish the story until three days later.

'Fire Storm' misfires

FIRE STORM. By Robert L. Duncan. Morrow. 324 Pages. $9.95.

Every novel of suspense has to have its share of good and bad guys. That's what it's all about. But when you get too many baddies in one book, the intended shock effect can misfire and the book becomes confusing, even dull.

That's the trouble with this otherwise exciting novel. It starts out at a fast enough pace when a group of Japanese terrorists known as the Red Watch take over a U.S. tanker, spread gasoline on the waters of a small Japanese port and touch it off. Within seconds the harbor turns into blazing hell, incinerating boats and sending a seaside village up in flames.

Charles Corwin, vice president and trouble shooter of a shipbuilding company that owns the hijacked tanker happens to be driving by when the blaze erupts. As he speeds off to notify his superiors, his troubles quickly mount.

A crooked Japanese police inspector tries to frame Corwin as an accomplice of the terrorists, who, incidentally, are planning to repeat their fire-on-water act in a California bay.

When our hero finally reaches his own people he finds they are out to get him, too, fearing he knows too much and will soon realize they are working with the terrorists.

It seems the Japanese are being used as pawns to carry out a much graver act of violence than the Red Watch ever dreamed of. All the terrorists wanted to do was to threaten to blow up a few Mexican dignitaries to persuade their government to spring some Red Watch members from a Mexican jail. The Americans, backed by a shadowy group of high oil-company executives, want to blow up a giant cruise ship, thus eliminating the Mexicans plus an idealistic senator and his staff and a few hundred other people. It seems the senator has been winning nationwide attention with his campaign to divest the big petroleum companies of their growing power. So now we have a second good guy, but before long we are led to suspect that even this crusading legislator has limits to his idealism.

With virtually everyone lined up on the bad side, evil finally becomes the norm and tends to lose any impact. That's the feeling you get as this complex plot slowly unwinds revealing perfidy after perfidy with virtually no one of importance except Corwin and his girl friend exempt from suspicion.

Those are pretty one-sided odds.

Tom Hoge Associated Press

"Everything is words," said Shields, 27, between performances at the Sparks Nugget. "Singers, comedians and actors all use words. I wanted to do something without them."

He and wife, Lorene Yarnell, 29, work as Shields and Yarnell, a successful "visual comedy" team which began in the streets of San Francisco two years ago.

"I don't like the word 'mime,'" Shields said in describing their act. "I prefer to say 'visual comedy.'"

The couple had their own variety show on television last year. More TV specials are planned, although nothing is yet definite. Also in the works is a movie, which would consist of eight short skits.

"A lot of people just know Lorene and me as the Clinkers on the TV show, but there's a lot more to us than that," he said.

Shields studied under the famed pantomimist Marcel Marceau in Paris, but left after a short period to develop his own act.

"I was smart enough to leave," Shields said. "Almost everybody who comes out of his school is another Marceau. I didn't want to be like that. The only way to make it is to be totally different."

So he left and performed in Union Square in San Francisco. Eventually, dancer Lorene Yarnell joined him in his act and later in marriage.

Shields plans to start his own school, contrary to his own experiences with formal training.

"The first thing I would have them do is study people," Shields said. "That is what Lorene and I do all the time. We'll sit in a hotel lobby and watch people go by. We get a lot of ideas that way."

He said that it also was important to learn formal techniques, such as dance, in order to develop an act.

"When I met Lorene, she told me that if I didn't take care of myself, I was going to end up in a hospital because I was not treating my body right," Shields said.

He was referring to his constant leaps over bushes and other obstacles, always landing on his knees.

"She told me I needed to learn technique," he said. "And I taught her how to do mime. She said she could never do it, but I showed her that she could."

They live in a ranch-style house in California, which is filled with toys on the inside and animals on the outside. Lorene is the animal lover. She excused herself from the interview to tend the needs of one of her sick dogs.

Shields said they get a lot of ideas from toys and children. "Children are so natural. They can act out things using only their imagination. Then they get older and learn how to sit right, eat right and so on. It's all broken down, which is a shame," he commented.

Freddie Patek of Kansas City turns double play

Flanagan in gem; KC captures flag

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The crowd of 3,662 rose to its feet at Memorial Stadium in Baltimore as left-hander Mike Flanagan faced Cleveland's Gary Alexander for what it hoped would be the final out of the first no-hitter by an Orioles' pitcher since 1969.

Then, almost in unison, they sat down when Alexander launched his 26th home run of the season into the right field bleachers.

"The pitch," Flanagan explained after the 3-1 victory Tuesday night, "was not really where I wanted it."

But it was just where Alexander wanted it.

"He'd been getting me out with curve balls all night," said Alexander, who connected on a 2-1 pitch, "so I was looking for the curve ball. If he had thrown me the fast ball inside, I probably would never have swung. But it's hard to second-guess him now."

Flanagan, 19-14, may well do enough second-guessing himself. After Alexander touched home plate, he gave up singles to Ted Cox and Duane Kulper, then was replaced on the mound by Don Stanhouse, who preserved the triumph for Flanagan and recorded his 23rd save in the process.

Meanwhile, the American League's top East Division teams remained one game apart with five games to play while the Kansas City Royals clinched their third consecutive AL West title. The Yankees beat the Toronto Blue Jays 4-1 behind Ed Figueroa, while Boston ace Dennis Eckersley carried the Red Sox to a 6-0 victory over Detroit.

The Royals beat the Seattle Mariners 4-1, while the Oakland A's blasted the Chicago White Sox 10-3, the Minnesota Twins downed the Texas Rangers 6-2 and the California Angels nipped the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 in 10 innings.

Singles by Eddie Murray and Doug DeCinces delivered first-inning runs for Baltimore, and DeCinces added an eighth-inning homer for insurance before Flanagan's errant pitch to Alexander.

"Our pitchers have been teasing us all year," said Orioles Manager Earl Weaver, "and this was the biggest tease of all." Tuesday night's game marked the fourth time since August 9 a Baltimore pitcher has carried a

Niekro outduels Niekro

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joe Niekro had a bittersweet victory over his brother, while those Pennsylvania blood brothers, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, moved a little closer together in the National League East.

Joe Niekro of Houston beat Phil Niekro of Atlanta 2-0, Joe's third victory in five fraternal decisions, keeping Phil from winning his 20th game. Both knuckleballers said they had a trouble getting a grip on the situation Tuesday night.

"I don't like to (face him) if I don't have to," said Joe Niekro, whose 13th victory in 27 decisions kept the Astros from falling below the Braves into the NL West cellar. "We both do our best to win. I don't think it's as tough on him and me as on the folks back home."

"I want to see him win 20, but I want to win as many as I can, too. Phil feels the same way."

Phil said he talked to his brother before the game and said: "Beat me the best way you can 'cause I'm gonna beat you the best way I can. That's the way he pitches, and that's the way I do."

Meanwhile, it appears the four-game, season-ending weekend set in Pittsburgh between the Pirates and Phillies will decide the NL East flag. The Phillies beat Montreal 3-3 to reduce their magic number to three, then lost to Rudy May's four-hitter, 3-0.

Pittsburgh, meanwhile, beat Chicago 5-2 and is 3½ games behind Philadelphia.

"We'll be ready, and I think we'll have a very good chance to sweep them," said rookie Pirate pitcher Don Robinson, who pitched a six-hitter for his 14th victory in 20 decisions.

Elsewhere in the NL, Cincinnati downed Los Angeles 6-4, the New York Mets beat St. Louis 3-1 and Gaylord Perry notched his 21st victory as San Diego beat San Francisco 4-1.

Astros 2, Braves 0
 Ken Forsch relieved Joe Niekro in the ninth to save Houston's victory. But Phil will pitch in the Braves' season-ending series against Cincinnati in his bid for his third 20-victory season.

"I hope he wins that 20th one, and I hope Gaylord gets beat so Phil can win the Cy Young Award," said loyal brother Joe. "He deserves it. I know it's tough to win the Cy Young when you lose 17 games, but when you think what all he's done for this club and all the categories he leads the league in, I really feel he deserves it."

Phils 5-0, Expos 3-3
 Jim Kaat, 39 years old and supposedly washed up, pitched six solid innings for Philadelphia in the first game. Greg Luzinski carried the offense, knocking in three runs with a two-run homer and a single.

"It's satisfying to come back and help," said Kaat, 8-5. "It's like Fran Tarkenton coming back in football, Gaylord Perry winning 20 games."

"It helped dispel the old cliché that guys in their mid-30s lose their body skills."

In the nightcap, May bested Ted McGraw, normally a reliever, ending the Phils' six-game winning streak.

"Mission accomplished," said McGraw, who gave up six hits in seven innings in his first appearance since Sept. 15. "I went out there not thinking in terms of starting, but just to work on things to get right."

Pirates 5, Cubs 2
 Another greybeard, Willie Stargell, had a big night in Pittsburgh, contributing a three-run homer to the Pirates' 21st straight home victory. The homer, his 26th of the year, was No. 427, moving the 37-year-old slugger past former Cub Billy Williams into 15th place on the all-time homer list.

Manager Chuck Tanner thinks Robinson, Pittsburgh's 21-year-old prize rookie, is really a lot older than fellows like Perry, Stargell and the

IRVING — It's that special time of the year again. It rains in Midland and the Cowboys, hopefully, get ready to face the Washington Redskins Monday in RFK Stadium.

It may be trite since you've already heard this one zillion times, but there is no love lost between these two teams. Hate is a very strong word, but it is the one these two teams throw around the week before the big game. Of course, it's always a big game—even when it isn't expected to be.

WASHINGTON, most thought, were supposed to be much weaker this year. So it stands to reason (by NFL standards) that the Redskins are leading the world with a perfect 4-0 record and the world champion Cowboys are chasing one game out of first.

It should have been expected because when Washington meets Dallas there is nearly always something on the line. And that's why this rivalry has mounted to a year-in, year-out mountain-top high for pro football fans.

 The players of both squads seem to relish these yearly confrontations despite the fact that you can lose an arm or leg. After seeing one of these battles, Washington Irving's headless horseman doesn't seem to be out of the realm of possibility.

AFTER Sunday's game with St. Louis, it was pretty hard to find a Dallas Cowboy who wasn't getting in the swing of the "big week." But over there in the corner of the dressing room, there stood one in silver and blue who doesn't get too ecstatic about playing Washington anytime—in RFK or in Texas Stadium. Tight end Billy Joe Dupree could care less about the game.

It's not that Dupree is scared of the Redskins. In fact, Dupree is not scared of anything. He would walk on nails in a California traffic jam to catch a pass. But that is the problem with Dupree and the Redskins.

"I like to catch passes," Dupree stated. "But against Washington, I've caught one pass in BOSTON (AP) — Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox leads the major leagues in several categories, but he's still looking for help, even from a teammate with a .250 batting average.

Rice borrowed a bat from Butch Hobson and belted his 44th homer Tuesday night as the Red Sox rode Dennis Eckersley's seven-hit pitching to a 6-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers before a chilled crowd of 27,078 at Fenway Park.

"I'm thinking about winning, nothing else," Rice said after his two-run homer gave Eckersley a 5-0 cushion and helped the Red Sox remain one game behind the New York Yankees in the twilight of the American League East race.

Rice, as usual, insisted, "I don't worry about breaking records." He said, for the 100th time this season, homers "ain't nothing if you don't win."

However, the 25-year-old right-handed slugger continues to move into all-time great company in helping the Red Sox try to overtake the Yankees in the final week of the regular season.

In the first inning against the Tigers, he lined a single that helped the Red Sox to a 3-0 lead. Then, after Jerry Remy led off the fifth with a single, Rice hoisted a shot halfway up the screen in left center.

While going 2-for-5, Rice boosted his major league-leading totals to 207 hits, 393 total bases, 44 homers, 135 runs batted in and close to .600 in slugging. He also tops the majors with 15 triples.

American League contenders for MVP-Ron Guidry, right, New York Yankees pitcher, and Jim Rice, left, Boston Red Sox slugger, are among the leading contenders for Most Valuable Player in the American League. A lot will depend on who wins the AL East Division. (AP Laserphoto).

Family competition when the Atlanta Braves and the Houston Astros met Tuesday in Atlanta was enjoyed by the fans as Phil Niekro, top, pitched for the Braves and his brother Joe, bottom photo, pitched for the Astros. (AP Laserphoto).

"I never believed in reincarnation, but Don Robinson must be somebody like Christy Mathewson or Walter Johnson or one of those guys," said Tanner.

Padres 4, Giants 1
Another ancient pitcher, 40-year-old Gaylord Perry, won his sixth straight game and ninth in his last decisions, raising his record to 21-6. He needed relief help from Rollie Fingers, who notched his major league leading 36th save.

Gene Richards cracked a pair of triples, eventually scoring three times, to increase his NL lead in three-baggers to 12.

Reds 6, Dodgers 4
Pete Rose, 37 and still running, played in his Cincinnati record 2,500th game. He had two doubles for 51 this season, tying him with former Red Frank Robinson for another club record.

George Foster, bidding for his third straight NL homer title, cracked his 36th homer of the season, three ahead of runnerup Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia.

Tom Seaver, 16-14, beat Los Angeles for the 20th time.

Mets 3, Cardinals 1
Craig Swan pitched three-hit ball for seven innings and became the NL leader in earned run average among starters with a mark of 2.43. The Mets broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth on John Stearns' RBI grounder and Dan Norman's run-scoring single.

Pastorini goes AWOL from drills

HOUSTON (AP) — Disgruntled Houston Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini went AWOL from Tuesday's workout following criticism of his play selection in a 10-6 loss to Los Angeles but Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips expected everything to be ship-shape today.

"I think Dan knows that 44 individuals are more important than one and what is best for the team is for him to

Piquet joins racing team

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Nelson Piquet, a young Brazilian Formula One driver, has been hired by the Brabham-Alfa Romeo team for the next racing season.

Piquet, 25, will be the No. 2 driver of the team captained by Austrian ace and former world champion Niki Lauda.

Auto racing sources here reported that hiring of the Brazilian Piquet will replace John Watson of Ireland, joining the McLaren team for the 1979 world Formula One championship.

OU-Texas on TV

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC-TV announced Tuesday it will televise the Oklahoma-Texas college football game on Oct. 7 to most of the nation with air time 1:30 p.m. CDT.

The network said three or four more regional Oct. 7 telecasts will be announced next week. But the majority of the country will get to see the Oklahoma-Texas game, played annually at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas.

Top seeds take wins in Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Two of the top seeds in the $100,000 Atlanta Women's Tennis Classic — Wimbledon champion Martina Navratilova and Britain's Virginia Wade — have struggled to victories in the opening round of the competition.

Top-seeded Navratilova overcame a tough early challenge from unseeded Ann Kiyomura Tuesday and went on to win the match 7-6, 6-3.

"I gave Ann too many chances," said the Czechoslovakian native, who now lives in Texas. "Whenever I started playing worse, Ann's tempo would increase."

Wade, last year's Wimbledon champion and the No. 3 seed here, had to come from behind to defeat Caroline Stoll 4-6, 6-1, 7-5.

"You get irritated playing a player like that," Wade said. "She puts so much top spin on the ball and it bounces so high you end up hitting everything high over your head."

Tuesday was the second day of opening-round action in the tournament. Second-seeded Chris Evert won easily in her first match Monday.

In other action Tuesday, Zenda Liess defeated 17-year-old amateur Wendy White 6-1, 6-3; South African Yvonne Vermaak surprised Maren Louie 6-4, 6-3; Jeanne DuYall beat South African Marise Kruger 7-6, 2-6, 6-4 and Lea Antonopolis beat Paula Smith 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

Stockton takes tennis victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The defending champion is out of it before the big guns have begun to fire in the $175,000 men's open tennis tournament at the Cow Palace.

Butch Walts, who upset Brian Gottfried to win here last year, was beaten 6-4, 6-4 Tuesday night by 10th-seeded Dick Stockton.

Not until tonight do four of the tournament's top players see their first action. They are top-seeded Bjorn Borg, Vitas Gerulaitis and Gottfried, seeded 1-2-3, and Arthur Ashe, seeded ninth and winner over Gottfried Monday at Los Angeles.

"I know how he feels," Stockton said of Walts. "The same thing happened to me in Philadelphia where I was the defending champion and beaten by Tim Gullickson in the first round. I was out of the tournament before most of the guys even had a match."

Three more players among the top 16 seeds in the starting field of 64 won first-round matches Tuesday.

John McEnroe, No. 8 seed, worked past midnight to beat Dave Schneider of South Africa 6-4, 4-6, 7-6, with a 9-7 tiebreaker. Fifth-seeded Roscoe Tanner defeated John Austin 7-5, 6-3, and Gullickson, No. 11, breezed past Dennis Ralston 6-1, 6-4.

Jarier to join with Andretti

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Jean-Pierre Jarier has been named teammate to 1978 world Formula 1 driving champion Mario Andretti for the upcoming Watkins Glen Grand Prix.

Swedish racer Ronnie Peterson, Andretti's former teammate, was killed in a recent crash at Monza, Italy.

Andretti said Tuesday that the decision to ban Italian driver Riccardo Patrese, who was involved in the accident that claimed Peterson's life, from the upcoming Watkins Glen Grand Prix was "very controversial" and took a "lot of soul-searching."

Patrese was banned from the race after Malcolm Currie, executive director of the Oct. 1 race, received a protest from other drivers.

At a news conference at the Albany Airport, Andretti, who hopes to be the first American to win the Watkins Glen race, said, "The misunderstanding could be that it's just a punishment for what he did at Monza."

Andretti said Patrese has been involved in four first-lap accidents.

"At the restart, he pulled the same thing that he did in the first start. Now, no one in his right mind could blame him fully for the accident. But when it's repeated over and over again, somebody's got to show him that that's not the way to go," Andretti said.

Carlos Reutemann is scheduled to race with Andretti next year.

the last four games. Count them—one lousy pass, and it wasn't anything to write home about. I don't know why they won't throw to me when we play Washington."

DUPREE failed to mention who "they" were, but he left the impression that he has not been included in the game plan by the Dallas coaches in the past. Dupree stated that he has never said anything about the lack of passes in his direction in the past, but he is going to "start talking about it a lot if they keep ignoring me in games against Washington."

Dupree, however, sees the importance of the contest and does feel that the game will have a significant place in the 1978 season.

"People say that Washington is getting old, but they have a lot of experience on that team. That is a big plus for them, I think. They have been averaging over 20 points per game and I think it will take four touchdowns to beat them. Our offense is going to have to be ready to play, and maybe if I catch a pass, I won't fumble like I did out there today on a big play."

Drew Pearson, who unlike Dupree, has caught a lot of big passes against Washington, seems ready for the contest.

"It's a simple game," said Pearson. "When it's over, we're either tied for first place or two games out, and there is going to be a tie next week."

CHARLIE WATERS is another Cowboy that looks forward to playing Washington. In a pre-season poll of Redskins, Waters was named as one of the most over rated players in the NFL while Dallas teammate Cliff Harris was tabbed by the Redskins as one of the dirtiest players. Translated that may only mean that Waters doesn't tackle as hard as Harris, thus Waters is over rated and Harris is dirty.

"The beauty of football is playing in RFK Stadium. They (the Redskins) hate us, and it is fun to beat them up there. Their fans get sick when we win at RFK," Waters said. "I don't think the Redskins like me very well, but you don't make friends everywhere you go."

Friends may be hard to come by in RFK Monday, but maybe Dupree will catch a pass or two while Waters and Harris move up on the latest Washington hit parade list.

Pardee despises Dallas Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — It was 1972 and the Washington-Dallas rivalry was never any hotter.

And Jack Pardee, the new Washington coach, found himself right in the middle of a controversy as a line-backer for George Allen's team.

Dallas wide receiver Lance Alworth dogged Pardee all day with crack-back blocks that finally sent Pardee limping to the sidelines. Later Washington retaliated and a Charley Taylor block put Cowboy line-backer Chuck Howley on the bench for the year.

Pardee has despised the Cowboys since that day. And the topic came up again Monday a full week before the once-beaten World Champions travel to Washington to play the unbeaten Redskins in a critical National Conference Eastern Division game.

"I didn't think it (the crackback) was a very good tactic at the time and I still don't," said Pardee in a telephone hookup with Dallas writers. "I'm not all that fond of the Cowboys. However, Dallas is great competition."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry refused to be drawn into a six-year-old controversy. "Oh, Jack just wants to be sure his team is in the right frame of mind when we play them Monday night," said Landry. "We have a great rivalry. When you are in Washington on a Monday night it's an interesting spot to be."

Pressed on the point, Landry said "I'd like to beat them."

Landry said of Pardee "He has a good memory. That crackback thing was back in 1972. Jack's history."

Landry added "Jack is using the crackback right now. It's legal (above the waist) and ours was too back when we were using it."

The defending World Champion Cowboys trail the unbeaten Redskins by a full game in the National Conference Eastern Division and Landry said "We've got to beat them if we are going to do any good."

"It's too early to call it a must game because the division will be won in the last part of the season. You've got to be within striking distance after eight games. I'm sure they (The Redskins) feel good about the game. They can lose it and still be tied."

Landry said "The Redskins are playing much better than I thought they would be."

He said he thought Pardee was following the old Allen pattern of getting his team psyched.

Landry said "Washington has always been a psychological team. If George could get you thinking about something else it bothers you—you have a problem. Pardee has kept a lot of things he learned around Allen."

The Cowboys will have to juggle their offense because of the loss of tight end Jay Saldi for eight to 10 weeks because of a broken arm.

"We just don't have the flexibility we would like to have," said Landry.

Royals 4, Mariners 1
Kansas City permitted itself a mild celebration after Larry Gura's three-hitter carried the Royals to their third straight crown.

But the champagne festival lacked the intensity of the last two.

"It's not really as exciting," said John Wathan. "We've been this far before. Now we'd like to know what it's like to go farther."

They'll get that chance in the playoffs against whoever survives the pressure in the East.

Gura, 16-4, got offensive help from Amos Otis, who singled twice and drove in two runs to raise his average to .300 and his career-high RBI total to 95.

Roy Smalley's RBI double and two Texas errors helped Minnesota score five ninth-inning runs and snap a seven-game Rangers winning streak.

Calvin Hill believes he will help Cleveland Browns

BEREA, Ohio (AP) — "I think I can still play," veteran running back Calvin Hill said after coming out of retirement to sign with the Cleveland Browns Tuesday.

Browns Head Coach Sam Rutigliano concurred. "How much does Cal have left?" Rutigliano pondered the question and replied, "I don't know, but I don't think the tank is empty. He's a bright, classy guy, and I think he'll help."

Hill, who once starred with the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, was signed to replace the injured Tom Sullivan. He is expected to see some action in the Houston game Sunday at Municipal Stadium. Hill was rookie of the year for Dallas in 1969. He went over 1,000 yards rushing in 1972 and 1973 and is 16th on the NFL all-time rushing list, with 5,567 yards.

With the Washington Redskins the last two seasons Hill saw limited action, and he left the Washington training camp last summer after six weeks.

"I thought that I had enough football," said the 6-foot-4, 228-pound back. "Then when the season started and I went to several games, I got the itch to play again. I began inquiring around and discovered some interest in me."

He said he talked to several clubs, including the Browns and the Los Angeles Rams.

"I wanted to get into a winning situation and where I could help," Hill said. "I liked the opportunity here. The Browns are one of the top teams in the American Conference."

Hill, who tried out with the Browns last week, said he hasn't done much "in the way of exercise except for some tennis since leaving the Washington training camp."

"I was there for all the two-day drills and feel I'm in pretty good shape for a guy who has played nine pro seasons."

As for learning the Browns' system, "this is my fourth pro team, and they all have pretty much the same offense except the plays have different names and numbers," Hill said. "It's a matter of learning the terminology and getting into football condition."

With Sullivan knocked out by the knee injury against Pittsburgh Sunday and Greg Pruitt also nursing a knee injury, the Browns were down to three backs — Mike Pruitt, Cleo Miller and rookie Larry Collins. And all of them have some ailment.

"At this point, we needed a running back with experience," said Rutigliano. The coach noted that Hill also was "a fine receiver."

Offensive backfield coach Jim Garrett already has started Hill's crash course learning the Browns' plays.

"He's a welcome addition," said Garrett. "I know he drove us crazy when I was coaching with the New York Giants. We had to try and stop him twice a season."

Argentina's bid for shooting meet approved

SEOUL (AP) — Delegates from 68 countries to the International Shooting Union's general meeting Tuesday approved unanimously Argentina's bid to stage a world running game target shooting meet in 1981.

The championship in Buenos Aires is to have three events — trap, skeet and running boar.

The delegates also decided to vote next Monday on Venezuela's unopposed application to stage the 43rd World Shooting Championships in 1982.

The 42nd championships in 21 events, with about 1,350 marksmen and officials from 71 countries, begins here Thursday.

Major participants include the United States, West Germany, Italy, France, Switzerland and Colombia. The Soviet Union and other East European communist countries are boycotting this meet.

NCAA to hold probe

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association has asked Memphis State University officials about alleged recruiting violations involving a former football player.

In a letter to university President Billy M. Jones, the NCAA asked specific questions that NCAA investigators have raised about recruiting two years ago involving Ralph Griffin, a former Tiger football player from Louisiana.

"The university has received a report from the investigative arm of the NCAA relating to the Ralph Griffin incident," Jones said in a prepared statement Tuesday. "The report asks the university to respond to certain questions."

Jones declined comment on the nature of the questions, saying it was NCAA policy to make no comment.

The investigation, however, reportedly grew out of an incident that began with a one-day boycott by 22 black athletes in October 1976. The next day there were rumors Griffin, a highly regarded linebacker from Baton Rouge, had been promised a series of money payments for his mother if he would sign with the Tigers.

The payments reportedly were made by persons outside the university and were subsequently stopped, prompting Griffin to leave the football squad.

Although players and MSU athletic officials refused to discuss the boycott, it was reportedly staged in sympathy for Griffin, who had quit the team a week earlier.

Griffin and his mother later denied receiving payments, but Jones named an ad hoc committee to investigate the reports.

The committee's sealed findings were turned over to the NCAA more than a year ago.

Griffin, who later transferred to Southern University in his hometown, was recruited by former Memphis State coach Fred Pancoast, coach at Vanderbilt since 1974. He was signed by Richard Williamson, current Memphis State coach.

MONTREAL — The Canadian Ladies Professional Golf Association championship has been designated the third major women's tour event, LPGA Tour Commissioner Ray Volpe announced.

The 1979 event will be held at the Richelieu Valley Golf Club at Ste. Julie, Quebec, with a purse increased to $150,000 from $100,000.

The Canadian LPGA joins the U.S. LPGA and the U.S. Open to form three major events for women pros.

WASHINGTON — By winning the $40,000 first prize in the Sunday's tournament at Napa, Calif., Tom Watson increased his lead in the PGA Tour's money race and moved to within striking distance of the all-time one-year record for winnings.

Watson's $343,429 in earnings moved him far ahead of this year's runner-up, Andy Bean, who has won $258,440. A finish of fifth or better in this week's World Series of Golf in Akron, Ohio, would move Watson past the all-time record figure of $353,021, set by Johnny Miller in 1974.

Rebel Express defensive unit takes a rest during Snyder game recently in Memorial Stadium. Lee, like the rest of the District 5-4A teams, has a week off in preparation for the league opener in Midland, Oct. 5 against Odessa High's Bronchos who are also undefeated in three games thus far. (Staff photo by Bruce Partain).

Bulldogs, Rebs have week off

Tall City football fans will have to wait a week to view any local teams or hit the road and watch an area game this week since both the Midland Bulldogs and Lee Rebels are open.

With all of the rain that has fallen and the numerous injuries that Coach Dennie Hays' Bulldogs have, it is welcomed. Midland has the task of facing No. 8-ranked Odessa Permian next week in its District 5-4A opener in W.T. Barrett Stadium while Coach Gil Bartosh and his Rebel Express takes a 3-0 record into its game with Odessa High's Bronchos, who are also unbeaten in three games.

Midland sports a 1-2 mark, having dropped close 21-14 and 17-14 decisions to El Paso Eastwood and Lubbock Monterey the past two weekends. Mojo, meanwhile has outscored its opponents 100-19 in chalking up three straight wins.

Midland lost sophomore quarterback Michael Feldt three weeks ago in the Amarillo Tascosa game and he is still doubtful after suffering a small broken bone in his left leg. He is doing a lot of running and the layoff may still enable him to play some against the Panthers. His brother Blake, also suffered a broken leg in the Eastwood game and most likely will miss the Permian game. His is the same type break as his brothers. Fullback Jeff Robnett injured a shoulder last week and the week before, David Brigham also had a shoulder injury and he missed the Monterey game.

OHS, like Permian, has been highly impressive to date scoring 106 points while giving up only seven, so Bartosh looks for a tough game in Memorial Stadium with the Red Hoses. "We knew at the first of the year that Odessa was going to be tough and they will have Daniel Stevens their big fullback ready to play against us. He gets his cast off this week," said Bartosh. Stevens is a 190-pound senior and according to Coach Dick Winder, is one of the best blocking backs in the state. He is also a good power runner too.

Bartosh was pleased with the 16-14 victory over Plainview last week. "They (Plainview) have a good outfit and should win their district and also fare well in the state playoffs this year," said Bartosh. Bartosh was tickled to death with the play of his defense and singled out Dwight Washington, Jody Sessom, Michael McCrea, Rodney Taylor and Jeff McCowan for their play against the Bulldogs in Plainview.

There are no junior varsity games this week either, but last Saturday, the Midland High Bullpups took an exciting 28-20 win over a previously unbeaten Monahans JV with Dino Grimes scoring two touchdowns to pave the way. The Pups play the Permian JV on Saturday, Oct. 7 at 2 p.m. in Memorial Stadium while Lee faces the OHS JV at 7 p.m. Oct. 5 at Joe Coleman Field on the OHS campus.

Hampton top SWC lineman

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — University of Arkansas defensive tackle Dan Hampton is from the Bubba Smith school of defense.

Smith, in a beer commercial, says he used to just wrap up the opponents and sit through them until he found the ball carrier.

"Dan Hampton, he just tackles everybody," said Arkansas coach Lou Holtz.

Hampton had 11 tackles—including three for 15 yards in losses—and four assists in Saturday's 19-7 victory over Oklahoma State University. For his performance, Hampton was named The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week.

"He deserves it," said Harold Horton, who coaches the UA defensive linemen. "He played a very physical game. He's a very intent practice player. His intensity just carried over into the game."

The 6-foot-5 Hampton played at 245 last year, but weighs 260 this year. After lifting weights seriously, he is quicker and faster.

Hampton missed the first three games of the 1977 season with a knee injury and Horton says he wasn't full speed until the latter part of the season. Still, he made 48 unassisted tackles and was in on 22 others.

Hampton played only 20 plays in the season opener against Vanderbilt but still was in on eight tackles, including five unassisted.

Bear in mind that the Arkansas defense is designed to free the linebackers to run to the football.

"Dan is never on the ground," Horton said. "He's always been a good fundamental player in regard to his footwork but where he really has improved is that now he is making the plays. Not only does he do his job from a fundamental standpoint, but he's doing his job in getting to the ball."

"He's making plays all over the field. Right at him. Away from him. On the dropback pass. He's involved."

Hampton echoed Horton. "If you play the correct technique and all, you can control the line of scrimmage, but this year I'm getting to the ball more," Hampton said. "It's just another year of learning the scheme. And, I'm faster and quicker."

Hampton was surprised when informed of the defensive honor.

Odessa Permian returns to poll with Scotties

By The Associated Press

Temple in 4A, Huntsville in 3A and Mount Vernon in 2A held onto their No. 1 rankings while Grapeland fell into second place with 11 first place votes compared to Farmersville's four.

Grapeland and Farmersville went into last week's games ranked 1-2 in the state with unbeaten records and in weekend games, Grapeland beat Westwood 26-14 and Farmersville knock off Kennedale 34-7.

But when the AP's panel of sports writers and sportscasters cast their weekly ballots, the Farmers had outpointed the Sandies 184-168 in total points.

Ten points are awarded for first place votes and nine for second place. The Farmers moved into first place based on 14 second place votes compared to only two for Grapeland.

Temple, Garland and Arlington Lamar continued their stranglehold on the top three positions in Class 4A but LaPorte, Houston Forest Brook and Abilene Cooper tumbled from the unbeaten ranks.

Forest Brook and Abilene Cooper dropped from the top 10 and LaPorte fell from No. 6 to No. 9 after losing to Houston Stratford, ranked sixth this week.

Odessa Permian, 3-0, and Highland Park, 2-0, replaced Cooper and Forest Brook as the Nos. 9 and 10 teams.

Permian's Panthers, who perennially reach the playoffs with rock-hard defense and just enough offense, have undergone a personality change—suddenly they are offense minded rolling up a 3-0 record by a composite score of 101-19 over the opposition.

Highland Park, meanwhile is 2-0 and won't have to wait long to test its new rank. The Highlanders meet defending state champion Plano, currently ranked No. 5, this weekend before a sellout crowd of 13,000.

Gregory-Portland lost for the second straight week to a 4A team and Kilgore lost to Palestine among the 3A ranks. Unbeaten Pecos and Kerrville Tivy are their replacements in the ninth and 10th positions.

Breckenridge, No. 6, Willis Point, No. 8 and Bellville, No. 10, suffered losses among the 2A ranks and only Breckenridge remained in the poll as the No. 8 team.

Willis Point, which lost to Quitman, and Bellville, formerly ranked No. 1, was beaten by No. 6 Cameron. Sealy and Childress moved in as the Nos. 9 and 10 teams this week.

Little works for Tech tilt

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Freshman quarterback Donnie Little worked with the second team Tuesday as the sixth-ranked Longhorns prepared for Saturday's Southwest Conference football game against Texas Tech in Lubbock.

Little took more snaps than normal with the second team offensive unit and Coach Fred Akers said he would work some with the first unit on Wednesday.

Randy McEachern ran the No. 1 unit and has been Texas' starting quarterback so far this fall.

Akers also said linebacker Mark Martignoni will not play any more this season. Akers said Martignoni's injured knee did not respond during the brief time he played against Wyoming and that the junior letterman will be considered a candidate for a hardship case.

Starters Joe Shearin, offensive guard, and Bill Acker, defensive tackle, missed the workout. Shearin has a throat infection and Acker a groin injury.

Reeves is honored as Player of Week

Reeves is honored as Player of Week

DALLAS (AP)—The first person Rex Dockery called after he was hired as the head football coach at Texas Tech was Ron Reeves.

And the first person Dockery called Saturday night when the Red Raiders fell behind Arizona 16-7 was Reeves.

Reeves answered the call in both instances and that's the reason he is The Associated Press Southwest Conference Offensive Player of the Week.

Dockery buzzed Reeves at Lubbock Monterey High School early this year to make sure Reeves was coming to Texas Tech. Reeves said yes.

When senior quarterback Tres Adams was felled with a leg injury Saturday, Dockery decided to see how his freshman quarterback could handle the pressure.

Reeves passed for two touchdowns, scored two himself on short runs, and established a school record with eight completions in a row.

"He's not easily intimidated," said Dockery after the Red Raiders flogged favored Arizona 41-26.

"I thought he was a tremendous

Charlotte, No. 8 and China Springs, No. 10, were Class A upset victims. Charlotte dipped to the No. 10 spot this week and Lovelady, 2-1 with only a 25-23 loss to No. 2 Grapeland, replaced China Springs in 10th place.

Erwin is new Ruidoso GM

RUIDOSO, N.M. — Woody Erwin has accepted an offer from the Ruidoso Jockey Club to take over as general manager and director of racing at here at Ruidoso Downs and Sunland Park in El Paso.

Erwin had a similar position at The Downs in Santa Fe, N. M., and he has 34 years of experience in race track operations.

The Ruidoso Jockey Club and the Fortuna Corp. have negotiated the purchase of the Ruidoso and Sunland race tracks. Midland's William G. Ross is on the board of directors for the Ruidoso Jockey Club.

Erwin, in addition to The Downs, has had front office experience at La Mesa Park (Raton, N. M.), Centennial (Littleton, Colo.) and Sunland.

During his tenure in Santa Fe, The Downs experienced increases at the pari-mutuel windows and turnstiles in both 1977 and 1978. In 1977, the track led the nation in daily average handle increase with a 39.6 per cent hike over the previous season.

Eagles sign Mitch Hoopes

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles have released punter Rick Engles and replaced him with Mitch Hoopes, a four-year veteran of the National Football League.

It was the third time this season Hoopes has been signed by the Eagles. Signed as a free agent before the start of training camp, he was waived twice before the start of the regular season.

Engles also had been waived by the Eagles before, when Hoopes was brought back a second time, only to be recalled and given the punter's job when the season opened.

Eagles Coach Dick Vermeil said Tuesday he was unhappy with the hang time of Engles' punts. Engles, who last season saw action with Seattle and Pittsburgh, averaged 39.6 on 25 punts in Philadelphia's four games.

Doc Dodson does lots of taping in the Midland High School training room and is shown here taping senior tackle John Beane's arm. Midland has an open date this week in order to get ready to face Permian in Odessa in a District 5-4A opener. (Staff photo by Brian Hendershot).

Tyler's Floyd Dorsey running like Campbell

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

John Tyler football Coach Don Finklea watched Earl Campbell perform on television for the Houston Oilers Sunday and lapsed into reverie, recalling the days when Campbell was breaking schoolboy records for the Lions.

It's been five years since Campbell led Tyler to the state Class 4A championship and although Finklea won't ever forget the Tyler Rose, senior tailback Floyd Dorsey is helping soothe the loss.

"We had a junior team last year and he's really matured to the point where he's started breaking tackles and taking it all the way to the end zone," Finklea said. "He's not as big as Earl but he's got the same style. He's starting to run over people."

Waco Richfield felt the imprint of Dorsey's tracks last week when the 5-11, 190-pound Dorsey rushed 214 yards on 25 carries and scored touchdowns on runs of 59, 2 and 28 yards.

Dorsey earns mention this week in

The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Honor Roll along with quarterback Tiger Shoemaker of Class A Deweyville, who figured in 35 of his team's 41 second half points in a 41-20 victory over Class 2A Huffman.

Running backs Joe Monroe of Corpus Christi Ray and Javier Gutierrez of San Antonio Alamo Heights also earn mention for their performances in ending a long winning and losing streak.

Some accounts have Dorsey breaking five tackles on his 59 yards TD run and six on his 38-yarder.

"Dorsey was in the seventh grade when Earl was a senior here," Finklea said. "He doesn't say it, but I can tell from watching that he copies Earl's style. This was his best game and his confidence is getting stronger each week."

Shoemaker, a senior 5-10, 155-quarterback-safety, got his engines revved up in the second half after Deweyville fell behind 20-0 at the half. He rushed for touchdowns of six, 22 and 47 yards, passes for two others, kicked one extra point and passed for a two-point conversion.

He finished with 129 yards rushing on 17 carries and completed 10 of 17 passes for 129 yards and rather than sit on the bench, played safety on defense where he made five tackles, recovered a fumble to set up a touchdown and deflected a pass.

"We didn't score 41 points all last year," Deweyville Coach Jim King said. "And to get that many in one half is fantastic. We made a few adjustments at halftime and got perfect execution not only from Shoemaker but from everyone in the second half."

Monroe, a 6-1, 212 junior, led Ray to a 9-6 victory over Gregory-Portland to end G-P's 44-game home winning streak extending back to the first game of the 1967 season.

Monroe turned in a dual performance. He rushed 179 yards on 29 carries and scored Ray's only touchdown on a 43-yard run on a soggy field. As a linebacker, Monroe had six unassisted tackles, seven assists and blocked the extra point after G-P's lone touchdown.

"It's obvious without the load he carried, the weight might have been too much for the rest of us," Ray Coach Allen McCord said. "He was our big play man."

Gutierrez, a 5-10, 165 senior, picked up 128 yards on 30 carries to lead his team to a 35-14 victory over Lardo Nixon and end Alamo Heights' 21-game losing streak.

Bryan's Columbus Harris, pursuing Curtis Dickey's schoolboy rushing records, rushed for 214 yards on 35 carries to lead Bryana 33-21 victory over Nacogdoches. Harris now has 500 yards rushing in three games.

Sally Little in top 10 now

CALABASAS PARK, Calif. (AP) — Sally Little realized three years ago that it was time for one of those major life decisions — whether to give up golf and go back to her native South Africa or to devote herself completely to the tour.

She chose the latter, and it has paid off for the striking 5-foot-8, blue-eyed blonde. Little's earnings on the Ladies Professional Golf Association circuit this year — her best — are nearing the $80,000 mark, and she ranks in the top 10 on the money list.

Little, a 26-year-old who now lives in Dallas and says she plans eventually to become an American citizen, is one of the favorites in a $100,000 tournament beginning Thursday at Calabasas Park Country Club. "I wasn't doing all that well on the tour and decided that if I was going to be a success, I'd have to give all my time and energy to golf," she said.

Connors turns down Davis Cup

NEW YORK (AP) — Spurred again by Jimmy Connors, U.S. tennis officials unexpectedly chose veterans Stan Smith and Arthur Ashe for the team that will meet Sweden Oct. 6-8 in the Davis Cup semifinals. The Swedes are optimistic. "I think this looks a bit easier than we thought," Swedish captain Martin Carlstein said Tuesday in Stockholm. "I am surprised at the American team selection. I did not believe that Arthur Ashe and Stan Smith would be picked."

Neither did a lot of other people. But American captain Tony Trabert chose the 35-year-old Ashe and the 31-year-old Smith, along with Vitas Gerulaitis and Dick Stockton, to face the strong Swedes, led by three-time Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg.

In so doing, he went ahead without Connors, the U.S. Open titleholder, who ignored an invitation to join the team. "We never got a reply from him," said Trabert.

Connors, the United States' top player, has not played Davis Cup since 1976, when he lost in the decisive match to Mexico's Raul Ramirez.

Completing the U.S. team are Brian Gottfried and Bob Lutz, a doubles specialist who has teamed well with Smith in the past. Ashe, a former Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion who appears to have recovered from a nagging heel injury, and Gerulaitis probably will play singles. Smith and Stockton, both powerful servers and volleyers, are expected to handle the doubles assignment.

Ashe routed Gottfried 6-2, 6-4 Monday night in the final of a $200,000 tournament at Los Angeles.

Joining Borg in singles and doubles for Sweden will be 6-foot-6 Ove Bengtson. Also on the Swedish team are Kjell Johansson and Tenney Svensson.

Borg has won 26 Davis Cup matches in a row.

The Swedes and Americans will meet in a best-of-five series in Goteborg, Sweden, in a 12,000-seat indoor arena with a medium-fast surface.

The winner will face either England or defending champion Australia in the Cup final, which the United States has not won since 1972. The British and Aussies meet in the other semifinal Oct. 6-8 at the Crystal Palace in London.

The British team also was named Tuesday, and it includes Buster Mottram and John Lloyd in singles and Mark Cox and David Lloyd in doubles. The Aussies have chosen former Wimbledon doubles champions Ross Case and Geoff Masters, plus John Alexander and Tony Roche.

In addition, the Britons named their women's team to face the United States in the Wightman Cup at London's Royal Albert Hall in November. Selected were Virginia Wade, Sue Barker, Michelle Tyler, Sue Mappin and Anne Hobbs. Previously chosen for the Americans were U.S. Open champion Chris Evert, Billie Jean King, Tracy Austin, Pam Shriver and JoAnne Russell.

Munson says Jackson still on baseball ego trip

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Thurman Munson charges that Reggie Jackson is on a baseball "ego trip." "It is basically insecure and unable to deal with the realities of the outside world. Is the New York Yankees feud flaring again? The Reggie issue never really went away," the burly all-star catcher of the world champions insists in his autobiography, "Thurman Munson," co-authored with Martin Appel — a book readied for World Series perusal.

"I have things in life which Reggie can only hope to have — a stable family life with a wife and three great children; a secure private business life which has kept my head in the real world and provided lifetime security for my family; genuine friends, maintained from my years in Canton (Ohio)."

"Reggie's whole life is based on the unreal world of baseball. He has no stable family, no great business knowledge. His friends are those who tell him how great he is, and if they're celebrities, all the better. He wants badly to be the guy people look up to, but they do for one reason only — he's a baseball star."

"It's this contrast in lifestyles that triggered the bitter schism between the two Yankee honchos in 1977. Munson indicates, and which continues to steam below the public surface. 'The wounds didn't exactly heal,' the catcher says of the peace pipe ceremony that followed one of the game's fiercest personality clashes. 'I challenged Reggie to name one thing he had that I would want, just to clear up the jealousy matter. He didn't even answer me.'

"I think when I confronted him with the reality of life — that baseball may be a great ego trip, but there's a lot more in this world than baseball — he found himself unable to deal with it. 'For the sake of the team, we did no more interviews on each other. But we didn't become the best of friends.'"

Now that Munson has unburended his soul in print (Coward McCann & Geoghegan, $8.95), does that mean he is going to come out of his sullen shell and start talking to newsmen again? "No," said Appel, who spent nine years as publicity director in the Yankee front office before taking a similar post with the World Team

Tennis New York Apples. "I sought to set up some interviews with Thurman and the press. He said if he wouldn't talk to the press during the season he had no intention of doing so just to plug a book."

Munson's own sense of insecurity and distrust of the press is woven through the 199 pages of text, detailing the life of an Ohio farm boy who became captain of the Yankees and the Most Valuable Player of the American League.

"I've seen too many guys get so hung up with the press that it's worked against them personally and professionally," Munson says. "Players get branded as 'good guys' and 'troublemakers' just based on how they react to the press."

The catcher acknowledges that the ill feeling between him and Jackson grew out of a series of things, starting with Reggie's first appearance at camp as a $2.9 million super star and reaching a climax with Reggie's statement in Sport Magazine, "I'm the straw that stirs the drink ... really he (Munson) doesn't enter into it."

Chargette is bitter over losing her job

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The young woman whose nude pose for Playboy Magazine caused the San Diego Chargers to fire their entire cheerleading squad is bitter about her treatment in the controversy, but says she has no regrets.

In fact, "I'm a nudist; I'm currently Miss Nude California," Elizabeth Caleca, 27, the oldest member of the now-defunct Chargettes, said Friday.

She said she was "stabbed in the back by almost every Chargette on the squad" when she had expected them to back her in the controversy. "But they came up with this stuff about how they had to get rid of me for the sake of future Chargettes," she said. "You know — a Chargette has to be clean and pure."

MISS CALECA labeled the Chargettes "just a bunch of kids," adding that "maybe when they grow up, they won't be so uptight about nudity. "I'm not immoral, I'm actually very wholesome and domestic."

Miss Caleca, who posed with four other Chargettes for Playboy's December pictorial on National Football League cheerleaders, says the photo session was sanctioned by the Charger front office.

"They didn't specifically say not to pose in the nude," she said. "But when it's for Playboy magazine, what did they expect?"

THE UNEMPLOYED model and one-time waitress said at least one of the four other Chargettes involved in the photo session — group director Rhonda Bosworth, Ann Leuba, Jill Fleming and Lynitta Shilling — posed topless.

"Why didn't they kick her off the squad, too?" she asked. Miss Caleca said she got "$500 plus a lot of bad publicity" out of the photo session but hopes the notoriety will help her pursue a show business career. "The phone has been ringing off the hook," she said.

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Tornado of the North American Soccer League announced Tuesday night they have sold their most popular player — Dallas native Kyle Rote Jr. — to the rival Houston Hurricane.

Tornado General Manager Fred Hoster confirmed the sale prices was in six figures, but would not disclose the exact figure. Sources said the price was around $120,000.

"Dallas would have been stupid to have refused that much money for me," Rote said after the deal was announced. "The money Houston paid will increase the Tornado's player budget by 60 percent."

In his six seasons with the Tornado, Rote — whose father was an All-America football player at Southern Methodist University — set club records for goals and total points in a career.

Rote, 27, was the NASL's leading scorer and Rookie of the Year in 1973 when he scored 10 goals and 10 assists. He scored 11 goals in 1977.

Nicklaus, however, seriously considered skipping this event in order to watch his two oldest sons play high school football in Florida. It was only last week that he confirmed that he would play.

The field of 24 pros and two amateurs was completed last week with the addition of Tom Kite, Lon Hinkle, Bill Kratzer and Mark Hayes.

Thoroughbred sales still to be held

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Last spring's outbreak of an equine venereal disease in Kentucky should not affect next year's thoroughbred sales, state Agriculture Commissioner Thomas Harris says.

Harris said Tuesday the recent record-setting fall sales were an indication that foreign and out-of-state buyers believe the situation is under control. "Would they be setting new records if they were scared?" Harris said.

Federal agriculture officials stopped the shipment of thoroughbred breeding horses out of Kentucky last spring to halt the spread of contagious equine meningitis, a disease that prevents mares from conceiving foals.

When CEM was first diagnosed in a mare on a Fayette County farm last February — the first appearance of the disease in the United States — breeders and state agriculture officials feared tremendous economic losses to the multimillion dollar Kentucky thoroughbred industry.

Officials had feared the biggest impact would come at the 1979 yearling sales. In June, however, federal veterinarians lifted quarantines on 4,000-5,000 mares, except for 412 mares who were infected or exposed to the disease, easing the crisis.

And earlier this month, the Thoroughbred Horse Advisory Committee reclassified remaining mares into three categories — low, medium and high risk. The low risk mares, representing about a third of the group, are being released after completing a final series of tests, Harris said.

Some 200-300 mares are still barred from breeding or from being transported out of Kentucky. But state and federal officials know exactly who they are and where they're located, Harris said.

"We're not saying we've eradicated it," he said in a telephone interview, "but we have contained and controlled it, and now our thoughts and energies are put toward eradication. "Everyone is feeling much better about it," Harris continued. "We were all scared. It was a threat to the industry that could tear it up."

Watson has good shot at crown

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Tom Watson, a winner his last two times out and, at this point, the outstanding player of the year, could wrap up most of the game's seasonal titles this week in the World Series of Golf.

"The Vardon Trophy is the one I really want to win," Watson said after a practice round Tuesday over the sprawling, 7,180-yard, par-70 South Course at the Firestone Country Club, site of the 72-hole test that begins Thursday.

"The money is important, but it really isn't significant because the purses are going up every year and it doesn't serve as a yardstick of performance," Watson said.

The gritty redhead leads in both money-winnings and the Vardon Trophy standings (for the low-stroke average on the tour) and the race for Player of the Year honors. He swept all three titles last year and very well could repeat this season. A victory here would nail down all of them.

His victory last week in Napa, Calif., marked Watson's fifth triumph of the season. No one else has won more than three American titles this year.

Jack Nicklaus has won four, including the British Open, and would appear to be the only man able to challenge Watson for Player of the Year honors.

Lee Trevino is the only challenger for the prestigious Vardon Trophy. And Nicklaus and Andy Bean are the only ones with a chance to overtake Watson in the money-winning race.

Watson has collected $343,429 this year and is within reach of Johnny Miller's record $353,021 collected in 1974. The big, hard-hitting Bean is second at $258,440 and Nicklaus has $249,772 despite an abbreviated playing schedule. This tournament offers the elite field of 24 pros a total purse of $300,000 with $100,000 —

WASHINGTON (AP) — If a collegiate football player gets a discount from a local clothing merchant that is not available to other students in the school, it is a violation of the rules of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

But how about athletic dormitories that may have private swimming pools or year-round training tables that are not available to the student body generally?

That is one of the many conditions representatives of the NCAA are to explain today to the House investigations subcommittee which has been probing the enforcement rules of the athletic organization for the past year.

NCAA President J. Neils Thompson and the organization's executive director, Walter Byers, are the first witnesses before the subcommittee to be followed by Arthur R. Reynolds and Charles Wright of the NCAA infractions committee.

Committee chairman John E. Moss, D-Calif., and the panel's ranking Republican, Norman F. Lent of New York sent a letter to Thompson in August asking that the NCAA respond on 46 recommendations made by previous witnesses who have appeared before the subcommittee during its seven public hearings on the NCAA.

Moss and Lent asked the NCAA Council, at its meeting in August, to review the recommendations and then tell the committee what actions are to be taken.

"It is our understanding that the deadline for submitting proposed amendments to the NCAA enforcement procedure is Nov. 1, if such amendments are to be considered during the association's next annual meeting," the letter said.

"That convention, of course, affords the NCAA its own best vehicle for making procedural changes within the association. Therefore, we expect all cogent suggestions will be considered at that convention next January."

Sources, who did not wish to be identified, said the committee does not plan to recommend that legislation be introduced to cure what many witnesses have called abuses by the NCAA in enforcement of its own rules and policies.

Instead, sources said, the committee probably will issue a report on its hearings with recommendations and then wait to see what actions the NCAA takes at its annual convention in San Francisco in January.

If the changes do not meet the satisfaction of the House committee, legislation could be introduced in the next Congress.

Baseball opener set

CINCINNATI (AP) — The 1979 baseball season will open April 4 when the Cincinnati Reds play the San Francisco Giants in the National League's traditional opener at Riverfront Stadium.

The Giants have faced the Reds only one other time in Cincinnati's opener. That was in 1973 when Juan Marichal defeated Don Gullett.

Football doctors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Football doctors who slip pills to players might seem like villains, but don't judge them until you've been confronted by an injured second-stringer who begs for drugs so he can make the cut and support his family.

A panel of sports medicine experts at the American Academy of Family Physicians convention Tuesday took a strong stance generally against the use of drugs by athletes.

But there are exceptions, and a good physician simply must know where to draw the line.

"I don't mind putting xycloaine in a hip joint or shoulder point," said Dr. Jerry Patmont, football physician for the University of California.

"Those are painful but really minor injuries which restrict movement. There would be no chance of suffering a permanently disabling injury. But I'd never fool around with a weight-bearing joint, head, neck, or internal organ."

However, Patmont and Dr. Sam Nixon, with an extensive background in programs to reduce injuries for amateur athletes in Texas, agreed doctors often have to tread a fine line when someone's career is riding on a medical decision.

Patmont turned down an offer to become the Oakland Raiders team physician in the early 1960s, partly because he didn't like being put in the position of telling someone his football days were over.

Texas senators vote to send gas measure back to committee

HOUSE

ETHICS BILL. Rejected, 97 for and 290 against, an amendment to remove the limit on House members' outside income, which is scheduled to take effect in January. The amendment was proposed to a bill (HR 13850) establishing a federal ethics code that requires financial disclosure by high officials of all three branches. A final between former high-ranking executive branch officials and the government agency they formerly in the new ethics code (HR 13850; see above vote) prohibiting such "revolving door" contact for one year after the official has left his or her federal job.

Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., a supporter, said it is "extremely important that we get high-class people in the agencies. If we are going to get (them), we are going to have to permit them to proceed from that agency to a practice in which they can be useful and effective."

Rep. George Danielson, D-Calif., an opponent of the amendment, called the one-year prohibition "a very wholesome, very realistic restriction on conflict of interest."

Members voting "yea" favored removing the restriction on contact between former executive branch employees and their old agency.

Hall, Collins, Roberts, Archer, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, White, Jordan, Gonzalez, Gammage, Kazen and Milford voted "yea."

Wilson, Mattox, Poage, Wright, Hightower and Mahon voted "nay."

Teague, Young, de la Garza, Burleson and Krueger did not vote.

AIRPLANE NOISE. Passed, 272 for and 123 against, a bill to cut aircraft noise, chiefly by helping domestic and foreign airlines pay for replacing older, noisier planes with newer, quieter ones. The necessary money would be raised by diverting a portion of passenger and freight taxes and other airline taxes to carriers flying in the U.S. Estimates are that domestic carriers could receive $3 billion for noise abatement, and foreign carriers up to $1 billion. The taxation plan would last until late 1983. Airlines have until 1985 to comply with federal noise standards. The bill (HR 8729) was sent to the Senate.

Members voting "yea" favored the taxation plan to help airlines meet federal noise standards.

Wilson, Roberts, Mattox, Archer, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, Wright, Hightower, Young, White, Burleson, Gammage and Milford voted "yea."

Hall, Collins, Poage, de la Garza, Jordan, Mahon, Gonzalez and Kazen voted "nay."

SENATE

PUBLIC BROADCASTING. Rejected, 20 for and 63 against, an amendment to bring about more frequent congressional review of Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB) budget requests. The amendment was proposed to a bill that authorizes funding for public radio and television stations and seeks technological advances (such as clearer television reception) to enlarge the public broadcasting audience. The bill (HR 12605) was passed and sent to conference with the House.

At issue here was the system of multi-year appropriations set up years ago to insulate public broadcasting from congressional pressure on program content. Existing law authorizes CPB funding through fiscal 1980. HR 12605 extends the authorization three additional years, to a total of five years. The amendment was an attempt to kill the extension.

Senators voting "nay" favored less frequent congressional review of the public broadcasting budget.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D, voted "nay."

Sen. John Tower, R, did not vote.

PUBLIC BROADCASTING. Rejected, 33 for and 48 against, an amendment to HR 12605 (see vote above) setting a ceiling on salaries of executives of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB), National Public Radio and the Public Broadcasting Service. The ceiling would be the same applies to Cabinet secretaries — $66,000 annually. The CPB president reportedly earns $70,000.

Senators voting "yea" wanted Con-

Bentsen voted "nay." Tower did not vote.

NATURAL GAS. Refused, 39 for and 59 against, to kill the natural gas pricing bill by sending it back to a House-Senate conference committee. The vote removed the major obstacle to enactment of the measure this year. The bill (HR 5289), a part of the Administration's national energy plan, we headed toward a final Senate vote and consideration in the House.

It would remove federal price controls on natural gas in 1985, increase supplies to regions that have suffered gas shortages in recent years, lessen U.S. dependence on foreign energy and greatly raise residential and industrial rates.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, sponsor of the motion to send the bill back to committee, said: "The only argument that has been made for it is that it is the only bill in town. It is a C-minus bill" that hits hardest at residential users.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., an opponent of the motion and supporter of the bill, said: "An energy policy that will help us to reduce our dependence on foreign oil and on imports of foreign gas should generate international support for the dollar."

Senators voting "yea" favored sending the natural gas bill back to committee, with instructions that a temporary, skeletal gas bill be returned to the floor.

Bentsen and Tower voted "yea."

ROLL CALL REPORT

vote on the bill was delayed at least one week.

Under the limit, a House member's "earned" supplemental income cannot exceed 15 percent of his congressional pay. At today's House salary of $57,500, the maximum outside figure is $8,625. Earned income is a salary, fee or honorarium. Excluded from the limit is "unearned income" such as interest, stock and bond dividends and income from a family business to which the member devotes little time.

Member voting "yea" wanted to remove the limit on House members' outside income.

Reps. Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jack Hightower, D-13, Omar Burleson, D-17, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, and Dale Milford, D-24, voted "yea."

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Ray Roberts, D-4, Jim Mattox, D-5, Bill Archer, R-7, Bob Eckhardt, D-8, Jake Pickle, D-10, W.R. Poage, D-11, James Wright, D-12, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Barbara Jordan, D-18, George Mahon, D-19, Bob Gammage, D-22, and Abraham Kazen, D-23, voted "nay."

Reps. Olin Teague, D-6, John Young, D-14, and Robert Krueger, D-21, did not vote.

REVOLVING DOOR. Rejected, 112 for and 259 against, an amendment to allow unrestricted contact

White Rhodesians flocking to New Zealand

By JOHN EDLIN

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — In the face of an escalating guerrilla war in Rhodesia, New Zealand is geared to provide new homes for thousands of white, but not black, refugees expected to flee the African country.

Already, about 1,000 whites are leaving Rhodesia each month — some of them to this agriculturally dependent island nation which is losing more and more of its own people to other countries.

"It's as close as home as we could expect," said Barry Rickard, who has settled in the South Island city of Invercargill with his New Zealand-born wife and who is working at a nearby aluminum smelting plant. "We worry about the folks we've left behind."

William Rickard, his father, remains in the Rhodesian capital of Salisbury.

"Sometimes we feel a little guilty about living in safety away from Rhodesia and family and friends," said Sally Holtham, whose parents also live in Salisbury. "Every bit of news we read about Rhodesia comes as a great shock."

Mrs. Holtham, working in Invercargill for an airline, read in a local newspaper of the recent crash of an Air Rhodesia plane in which 48 persons died.

The Zambia-based Zimbabwe African Peoples Union of Joshua Nkomo said its guerrillas shot the plane down with a rocket but denied a government charge that they shot and killed 10 survivors of the crash.

"It was just too horrible," said Rickard. "We keep thinking some of our own relatives or acquaintances might be the victims of whatever is going on."

Life in New Zealand for the white Rhodesians is in sharp contrast to what they have left behind.

In Rhodesian cities many whites have black servants, spacious homes with large gardens and swimming pools, minimal taxes and relatively cheap living costs.

Taxes are high in New Zealand and the country offers few of the amenities whites have in Rhodesia. But with little crime and a nationwide womb-to-tomb social welfare system it is refreshingly secure to the Rhodesians.

"Ours is a small house which we're struggling to pay off," Rickard said. "But job prospects are bright and the people are friendly. We're also reasonably comfortable."

New Zealand's minister of immigration and health, Frank Gill, said his country could absorb about 15,000 Rhodesian refugees a year.

But in an interview with The Associated Press he stressed that New Zealand only would act to offer homes on such a scale to Rhodesians if the United Nations first designated them as refugees.

He added that the government here had "not considered" the prospect of settling black refugees in New Zealand.

Blacks who might seek refugee status include Rhodesians opposed to the guerrillas or others who as soldiers or police fight the insurgents. About 80 percent of the armed forces in Rhodesia are blacks.

"We would expect the United Nations would endeavor to rehabilitate (the blacks) in countries which offer similar cultural background," Gill said, referring to other African nations, some of which support the 6½-year-old guerrilla war.

A bid bond or proposal guaranty is to accompany the bid, thereby guaranteeing the good faith of the bidder and that the bidder will enter into the written contract. The guaranty is to amount to five percent (5%) of the total bid and must be in the form of cash or certified check, issued by a bank satisfactory to the City of Midland, or a bid bond. If in the form of cash or certified check, it is hereby expressly understood and agreed that the City of Midland is given the right to retain such as liquidated damages if such bidder withdraws its bid anytime after such bid is opened and before official rejection of such bid or, if successful in securing the award thereof, such bidder fails to enter into the contract and furnish satisfactory performance bond and payment bond. If a bid bond is submitted, it shall be executed on forms contained in these contract documents by a corporate surety authorized to do business in the State of Texas, and acceptable to the City of Midland.

The City of Midland, Texas, reserves the right to accept or reject any or all proposals or bids, to waive technicalities, to make any investigation deemed necessary concerning the bidder's ability to perform the work covered by the plans and specifications, and to accept what in the judgment of the Mayor and City Council is the most advantageous bid.
