Ford stumps for GOP, tells voters to 'take a look ... act accordingly'

By LINDA HILL R-T Staff Writer

BIG SPRING - "In this November election, you can't undo what was done by the American people in 1976, and you can't leapfrog to 1980," for-mer President Gerald Ford told a Big Spring audience Wednesday.

Ford, speaking at a fundraising luncheon for Republican congressio-nal candidate Bill Fisher, said voters can, however, look at what's hap-pened since the last election "and act

Ford had said earlier at a press conference he has no plans to run again for the presidency, although he has "lots of options." But he talked much like a man running for office.

Of his 30½ months in the presidency, Ford said he "enjoyed" the role.

"It was a great experience," he said. "I enjoyed the challenge. We (he and wife Betty) have nothing but the best of memories of the White

But, in a slip of the tongue, he indicated his period of incumbency may have seemed longer than it was. The former president referred to his "30 years in the White House."

Later in his speech, he referred to the White House by saying, "What a wonderful place! It means so much to 218 million Americans." Characterizing what he said were differences between Republicans generally and those associated with the Carter administration, Ford said, "How does it break up? You have Gerald Ford on one side, and Jimmy Carter on the other...liberal spenders in the Congress on one hand and...the conservative, responsible spenders...on the other."

Ford told his audience Republicans generally favor a larger tax cut than that favored by the Carter administration, a limit to growth in federal spending and a balanced budget.

The former president said one of the biggest issues concerning Americans today is "failure of the current adminstration...to meet the challenge of

Grand Old Party stands tall for Jerry in heart of 'enemy' country

BIG SPRING — Democrats traditionally outflank Republicans in politics in Howard County.

There's virtually no contest come election time. But the Grand Old Party sure looked rejuvenated for a couple of hours here Wednesday.

A loyal leader of the old party, Gerald Ford, flew into town in a Secret Service-laden Learjet, spilled no political beans and had a fling at strengthening the party here and at bolstering support for a GOP Con-gressional candidate.

President nears formula for continuing sessions

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Carter seems within reach of a comprehensive formula for continuing Israeli-Egyptian negotiations after the Middle East summit, now nearing a climax.

Although spokesman Jody Powell cautioned against "strong optimism or pessimism," diplomatic sources said the mood at the summit was upbeat as Carter worked to win the agreement of Israel's Menachem Begin and Egypt's Anwar Sadat to a peace-seeking blueprint.

If an accord can be achieved, it would meet at least the minimum requirements for a successful conference, even if it did not ensure an ultimate Mideast settlement.

In his drive to nail down a summitending agreement, tentatively called a "framework of negotiations," Carter canceled one appearance and postponed two speechmaking and politicking trips.

Carter had been scheduled to host a White House reception and concert Wednesday night for race drivers from the stock car circuit, with singer Willie Nelson entertaining.

The White House press office said the president had Mrs. Carter preside at the affair "because of the demands of the negotiations at Camp David."

In addition, Carter postponed for one week trips to the Carolinas, Pennsylvania and Ohio that had been set for Friday and Saturday.

An announcement said the postonement was prompted by "uncertainty about the conclusion of the summit.'

With summit participants known to be aiming for a windup by Friday, Carter concentrated on a proposed conference-ending document designed to be broad enough in language to gain Begin's and Sadat's final ap-

ESTELI, Nicaragua (AP) - An army of leftist guerrillas and local volunteers, united in their desire to get rid of President Anastasio Somoza, holds this town of 40,000 in northwest Nicaragua and keeps the national guard garrison under siege.

"Let them come. We are ready here," said a young man when told that Somoza had sent reinforcements for the garrison.

Lease bidders short of December mark

Fifty-three successful bidders paid bonuses totaling $9,712,000 Wednes-day at the 68th University Lands Auc-tion sale which was held in the Midland Hilton Ballroom.

More than 200 bidders were on hand for the auction, which fell far short of the record bonus total of $17,870,500, set in Midland last December.

James B. Zimmerman, geologist in charge of the University Lands office here, said prior to the sale that he thought the bonus total could approach the record. Following the sale, he said: "I guess we were spoiled by the first two sales here. Actually, I am pleased with the total, although I did expect more."

Only three University Lands auctions have ever been held outside the state capital, and all three were in Midland — in April 1977, December 1977 and on Wednesday.

Chevron also turned in the fourth highest bid, $370,000, also for a Pecos

Mrs. McKenna, now a housewife, has applied to become director of nursing services for the proposed Southeast Texas Hospice, Inc.

Home Health-Home Care, Inc., for whom she worked in 1973-76, opposes the application.

The commission rejected the application in June but granted a rehearing, which lasted two days and

Mrs. McKenna said that as late as 1972 Home Health-Home Care had no psychiatrist, bereavement program, counseling or volunteers to work with dying patients.

Asked if the agency showed more concern for the terminally ill in the next few years, she replied: "I was showing more concern for the terminally ill."

She said a major difference in the proposed hospice and other home health care agencies is that the hospice "would devote all its energy to the care of the terminally ill patient in the last three to six months of

Joan Lyons, who has applied to be director of volunteers for the hospice, said 42 persons already have volunteered even though the hospice is not yet in operation.

Existing home health care agencies, she said, "are not doing what we propose to do."

The agencies, however, contend that the proposed hospice would merely duplicate their efforts.

Vitamin E shots may offer protection from fatal respiratory complication

BOSTON (AP) — Vitamin E shots may be able to protect babies from a dangerous complication of respiratory distress syndrome, the biggest killer of premature infants, a Yale Medical School study says.

The lungs of premature babies often are not fully developed, and the infants must be kept alive on respirators. But the rich oxygen pumped into their bodies can damage the lining of their lungs. This complication, called bronchopulmonary dysplasia, can itself be fatal.

The Yale research, published today in the New England Journal of Medicine, found that injections of vitamin E can trap a damaging form of oxygen before it harms the lungs.

They asked, and he replied. The process was repeated until the timefor-one-more-question arrived, and Ford soon was whisked off to the Howard County Fair grounds.

There, in the big barn, he sat at the head table and was flanked by GOP notables and partook of the luncheon's fare: ham, potatoes, Boston-baked beans. Looking on, and eating, too, were about 700 GOP'ers, some Democrats, surely and some independents, almost all of whom paid $3 to get in.

Just facing the head table but be-yond a roped-off area were about 50 party loyals who each paid $50 to wear red "HOST" ribbons and who, after going the security clearance process, were assured of a chance to exchange handshakes with the 65year-old Ford.

'We're cleared to go on stage. Just not everyone was cleared...," she said long before time would run out and Ford would be swept to the airport and off again in that Learjet with the star-studded tail.

Secret Service men flanked Ford, covered the barn's entrances and exits and constantly scanned the crowd like wary hawks. Outside, lawenforcement officers were at their unmarked sentry posts.

Jane Thomas, too, was anticipating crossing the cordoned-off area and meeting Gerald Ford.

"We're cleared to go beyond that rope. She isn't," Mrs. Thomas said of another party loyalite, pianist Majorie Rainwater.

Among others on the "host commiltee" were E.A. Fiveash, who said he "doesn't know a lot of other people" by his name, and Dr. Akin Simpson. They were looking at Ford in person for the first time. Most of the 750 or so folks here apparently made no-shows when the then-President Ford visited Midland for the first time on a rainy Satur-

"We've got to get out and mix and mingle," Wrinkle said.

Though the handshakes were few, favorable impressions of Ford seemingly flourished.

Days of high temperatures prove summer's still with us

Officials recorded a high of 95 degrees Wednesday in Midland. The record high for Sept. 13 is 102 degrees set back in 1930. The overnight low was 66 degrees.

Government experts said 22 of the nation's 50 largest cities lost population between 1960 and 1970.

Some officials say smaller families and single people are putting increased pressure on the urban housing supply.

These officials believe the nation's

Bridgeport jails are filled with striking teachers

Dayton, Seattle and especially Bridgeport, Conn., where more than 70 teachers remain in jail today for refusing to end their walkout in Connecticut's largest city.

obey a back-to-work injunction. The jailed strikers are being fined $350 a day for every day they disobey the injunction while the union has to pay a $10,000-a-day fine. The association also must pay the cost of keeping the teachers in custody.

Family doctor in great demand

The family doctor, at one time considered to be the level in the medical profession for those who couldn't make it as specialists, is in more demand now than the specialist, according to a member of The University of Texas Board of Regents.

Sterling H. Fly, the doctor on the three-member board, told members of the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday that Texas is "quite short" of general practicioners. The state overall has a doctor shortage, he said. "Family practice is the most sought out specialty in the medical profession. It has gone from the least to the most," Fly said during a dinner address.

"The problem is not that students are not anxious to go into family practice these days, but just that it takes a lot of resources and people to train them.'

Fly said the state's seven medical schools need to graduate 1,000 to 1,200 doctors each year in order for Texas "to catch up" in the area of health care. He added that the institutions have the potential for turning out as many as 1,400 doctors each year and also indicated that "we're making some headway."

"We don't need any more medical schools. What we do need is more doctors; more general practioners,'

"But it's very expensive. The University of Texas medical branch at Galveston with 2,000 students has a budget slightly less than The Univer-

"Twenty-five percent of the doctors who have graduated should go into family practice. We're quite short of that now. We need to be training 300 general practioners each year."

Fly said in an interview later that Texas should experience an influx of new doctors within the next three to four years.

"The doctor distribution problem is more serious than the actual number of doctors. It's worse in the rural and poverty areas. But at the current rate of our medical school growth, the seven medical schools in the state will be more than adequate to take care of the need in the future," he said.

"An important thing we have to keep in mind is the funding situation. We have enough medical schools. The medical schools we have, have got to be properly financed in order to reap their full potential.

"The funding right now is at a level adequate enough to keep the schools going. But as the additional students are brought it, funding has got to be increased."

It cost the state between $75,000 and $100,000 to graduate a doctor, accord-

"The board of regents does take

'Coursing' should be outlawed, Hance insists

By MARK VOGLER R-T Staff Writer

"Coursing," the practice of using jackrabbits as live bait in greyhound training exercises, ought to be outlawed in Texas, according to congressional candidate Kent Hance.

Hance, a Democrat and the state senator from Lubbock who is opposing Republican George W. Bush of Midland for the 19th Congressional District seat, said Tuesday that he personally opposes the activity for "disease and inhumane reasons."

"I don't think it should be taking place in Texas. I sponsored a bill this year by Rep.

Chris Miller (D-Fort Worth) that would have prohibited 'coursing,' but it died before it ever reached the floor because it never got on the calendar," Hance said in a telephone interview Tuesday afternoon.

"I believe the bill would have passed had it gotten out of committee. I'm sure that somebody will try to enter a bill next year and I expect that it will pass. I don't think there's any need for 'coursing' in dog racing. Mechanical rabbits can be used."

Hance said that his stand on "coursing" is not part of his platform in his run for Con-

Commenting on several federal investigations into the sale of West Texas jackrabbits to greyhound trainers in as many as 40 states across the country, the state senator said he thought the issue ought to be resolved within each of the states rather than develop into a federal case.

The transportation of jackrabbits from the Midland-Odessa area has already sparked inde-pendent investigations by the U.S. Department of the Interior, the U.S. Agriculture Department, the FBI, the IRS, the Colorado Racing Commission and the Texas Attorney General's office into various phases of the unusual animal industry.

Hance said he was unaware of Sharon Burrer, a legislative assistant for Rep. Miller, said Tuesday that Hance was eager to push the bill through the Legislature this year, but claimed the bill was killed by a committee chairman "for political reasons not germane to the rabbit issue."

She said she believes the citizens of Texas are opposed to the practice because of some of its far-reaching implications.

"Since some of the 'coursing' takes place in public view, it's bound to have a bad influence on the children who watch it. A certain amount of gambling goes on at these events. And there are rumors of Mafia connection because of the money involved," Ms. Burrer said.

"It's an emotional issue that has a lot of people upset. There are quite a few 'coursing' tracks located throughout the state. We have received feedback from people all over the state who are opposed to it.

Escapees roam Arkansas after shootout, hijacking

MARIANNA, Ark. (AP) - Poor weather hampered a search today for four pistol-packing Tennessee prison escapees who hijacked a private plane and later commandeered a pickup truck in east Arkansas.

Low clouds and heavy rain washed out plans for an aerial search of the sparesely-settled section of eastern Arkansas where the escapees were believed hiding with a hostage.

Arkansas State Police and FBI agents began gathering shortly afer dawn to begin a ground search for the fugitives who landed in a small, hijacked airplane in a rice field east of Marianna just before dark Wednes-

State troopers patrolled hundreds of miles of rural roads during the night but authorities said they expected their quarry had gone into hiding or had escaped from the area. "They had an hour head start on us," Lt. Charlie Logan, an assistant commander of the state police at Forrest City, said.

One of the escapees grew up in Forrest City, and police say that could make their search more diffi-

Logan said escapee Larry Chism is intimately familiar with the area's tangled network of rural roads, swampy woods, creeks and rivers.

some 220 miles east of Marianna, at midafternoon Wednesday. They had blasted their way out of a bowling alley in Dickson while on a field trip and grabbed the first in a string of hostages. The hostage they still held was Richard Rutledge, a Lee County farmer, who heard the airplane land near his home and drove out in his pickup to offer help. Sheriff Robert May said. "From what we can gather they got in and forced him to take them some-

Edward Atchison, owner of the Bowl-O-Rena in Dickson, said that when the four men came out of the bathroom, "it didn't look like they was trying to hurt anybody.'

"They were just trying to get away," he said. "They was shooting at the ceiling. They shot one of the guards who was shooting back at them. And they shot one of the prisoners but that was an accident.'

Transportation guard Howard Talley, 35, of Centerville, Tenn., was hit in the arm and was in stable condition at a Dickson hospital. A prisoner, James Wine, 24, was slightly wounded by some buckshot that ricocheted off the ceiling.

The fugitives were among 30 inmates from Turney Center, a minimum security facility at Only, Tenn., visiting the Dickson bowling alley on a monthly outing. Dickson is about 40 miles west of Nashville.

The fugitives abducted a bowling alley employee, Carolyn Barnett, and sped away in another worker's car. Authorities believe the two shotguns were hidden in advance in a bathroom storage closet by an accomplice.

At the airport they released Miss Barnett, unharmed, grabbed Dickson Municipal Airport manager Mel Ro-mine and jumped aboard the plane.

At least a dozen private planes and two helicopters from the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky., participated in the search for the Community efforts to buy company boosted

WASHINGTON (AP) - An unusual campaign to purchase Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company's abandoned Campbell Steel Works got a cautious shot in the arm with release of a report that said community ownership, "though difficult, is techni-cally feasible."

The report, funded by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, says the aged Campbell Works could be purchased and modernized for an estimated $525 million, including $300 million worth of federal loan guarantees

Youngstown Sheet and Tube shocked Ohio's Mahoning Valley with an announcement that it was closing its Campbell Steel Works. Within weeks, 4,100 employees — including many who had worked at the plant for decades - were put out of work.

Facing community catastrophe, Youngstown religious leaders organized the effort to study the feasibility of reopening the steelyard under community ownership and are leading the campaign to establish a "for-profit" community corporation to buy the

The report acknowledged two principal difficulties in reopening the Campbell Works - arranging the hefty financial package and developing a annual market for at least 1.5 million tons of steel.

Canadian government making decisions in energy development

DALLAS (AP) - The lessons of two DALLAS (AP) — The lessons of two world wars and a global depression have awakened governments to the necessity for developing systems that can respond to the issues of world economic interdependence, according to Peter M. Towe, Canada's ambassador to the United States.

In Canada that realization led to last month's announcement by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau that the size of the government must be reduced in order to release the nation's resources to sustain economic growth.

It has also led to the loosening of federal controls and regulation of the Speaking at a dinner hosted by the Dallas Council on World Affairs and the Dallas Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night, Towe said governments in all countries have been putting greater emphasis on the management of their economies, realizing that the distinction between domestic and international well-being grows dimmer each year.

Towe said the Canadian government recently relaxed government controls on businesses and individu als in an effort to return some regulatory functions to the private sector and remove government intervention and red tape in others.

"At the same time, the fact that the Canadian petroleum industry is predominantly owned by foreigners has naturally raised questions as to whether national interests were in all cases being well served," Towe said. "Particularly after the oil embargo and abrupt price increase of 1973-74, the Canadian public demanded that its governments take steps to promote a greater Canadian presence and participation in the industry."

In 1975, Parliament created Petro Canada, Canada's national oil compa-

"The creation of Petro Canada may have seemed to some Americans the first step towards nationalization of the industry, or perhaps reflective of a government policy which seemed to reject reliance on the marketplace to solve Canada's energy problems," Towe said.

However, Towe said, a closer look at how Petro Canada has operated suggests these concerns were grossly exaggerated. For example he said, the company has assumed major responsibilities in northern exploration, oil sands development and examiination of possible northern gas transmission systems. It has also participated in moving gas from western Canada to eastern markets.

"The company takes substantial risks, and its performance is then measured in terms of how efficiently and profitably it has made use of public resources," said Towe.

He said the Canadian governments areas affecting economic growth, but a sophisticated economy with its quota of sophisticated problems will rely more heavily on participation by private industry.

"We will continue to welcome foreign investment," he said. The Uni d States' and Canada's economie are highly compatible, Towe said, and there is ample opportunity for collective and separate efforts to address the economic challenges of the two nations.

"And $60 billion in two-way trade is a pretty good indication of our com-patibility," he said. "Incidentally, that figure includes $750 million worth of exports from the state of Texas." Towe said Canada and the United States should never be surprised by each other's developments.

"Where Canada and the United States reach the same conclusion, as they most often do...well and good," Towe said. "Where we must agree to disagree, we must insure that the complex network of relationships between Canada and the United States isn't jeopardized by lapses in commu-nication or understanding." Regarding internal strife between French and English speaking Canadians, Towe said the government is seeking satisfactory ways of adapting federal institutions to keep the country "respectably together."

"The compromises and adjustments this will entail must recognize the inequities and disparities between groups, and the special problems of language and culture," he said.

Earlier in the day, Towe met with the Canadian consulate, attended a Dallas City*Council meeting and traveled to Fort Worth where he toured the stockyards and the Amon Carter

Experts think economy can't improve much

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - The re-election hopes of President Carter won't get much help from the economy, if the expectations of a former economic adviser are fulfilled.

He termed the economic outlook for the next 18 to 24 months "blah," the translation of which means a weak economy and continued inflation and, sadly, little that can be done about it.

"There are no quick solutions," said Professor Lawrence R. Klein.

The most encouraging news offered by Klein, who served as the principal economic brain in the Carter election campaign, is that we aren't likely to have a recession. While he conceded that a weak economy might serve as a partial corrective for recent excesses, analysis isn't likely to inspire much enthusiasm for the administration's economic management. Klein's views were made in conjunction with the release today of the quarterly projections of Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates, an organization owned by the University of Pennsylvania. In it, Klein and his associates, F. Gerard Adams and Richard M. Young, describe a future economy of 7 percent to 8 percent inflation, with some rise in the jobless rate beginning in the second half of

Faced with a drab economy, previous administra-tions have attempted to quicken the pace of activity before election time, even at the risk of creating maladjustments that would have to be dealt with

The Wharton Associates comment that the Carter administration isn't likely to react passively to the political aspects of continued inflation and unemployment, but warn that its options are limited.

They maintain that "solutions to the inflation problem seem to be restricted to a major and extended recession or a long period of slow growth supplemented by inducements to increased produc-

Said Klein: "There are no quick solutions." The Wharton forecast assumes tax cuts of about $15 billion in both 1979 and 1980. But even when alternatives are worked into the computer analysis, the inflation rate through 1980 varies only minute-

A greater tax cut, such as advocated by Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y, and Sen. William Roth, R-Del., would spur an advance in total output during 1978 and 1979, for example, but might still leave inflation near That, at least, is the conclusion of the Wharton no soundly based alternatives that might quickly boost its public image. That image has become pitted and stained in recent months as retail prices soared and unemployment, though improved over a year ago, still re-economists, who see the administration with almost maining near 6 percent. The question implicit in the Wharton forecast is whether the president can accept what it suggests is the only sound course, that is, to permit time and restraint gradually to heal the economic wounds.

An attempt to spur the economy, it suggests, would carry with it the risk of a serious and prolonged economic recession that would hurt everyone.

With this in mind the three professors conclude their forecast summary on a note intended to make ders, pernaps includ reflect on what course the nation will take.

Which way the fiscal and monetary authorities will jump is a matter of substantial concern to us all," they say.

Said Klein separately: "You can cut inflation in time without ruining the economy." But, his listener wondered, does a president facing a re-election campaign have time?

Proxmire talks ships filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. William Proxmire said Wednesday he will stage a filibuster, if necessary, to force a Senate vote on a $931 million settlememt of shipbuilding claims by two defense contractors.

"I am in this fight to win and will use every tactic I can, including extended discussion, in order to alert the public to the massive bailout taking place," Proxmire told a news conference. The Wisconsin Democrat has filed resolutions designed to block the payments to General Dynamics Corp. and Litton Industries. Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., failed in a similar attempt Wednesday to have the House Armed Services Committee reject the settlement.

Proxmire said that if the Senate Armed Services Committee rejects his resolutions and blocks a floor vote, he will try to stop the payments by opposing their inclusion in the defense authorization bill.

Congressional committees are working on a new defense bill to replace the measure vetoed by President Carter because it authorized construction of a nuclear aircraft carrier he opposed.

The House rejected an attempt to override the veto and now Congress must act on a substitute measure to authorize other defense projects contained in the

The fight over shipbuilding claims has been a long-standing dispute between the Pentagon and contractors and now involving Proxmire and other members of Congress who claim the government was too generous in its settlement. Under the settlement, Litton Industries would receive $447 million for claims totaling $1.087 billion resulting from a contract for construction of helicopter assault ships.

General Dynamics would receive $484 million in settlement for $844 million in claims on a submarine

Proxmire contends the government should limit its payment to the amounts Navy claims examiners determined were justified. The claims examiners said General Dynamics was entitled to $125 million and Litton to $312 million. Proxmire also released a letter to the Navy from the chairman of Newport News Shipbuilding Co. which indicated the firm also intends to submit a claim under the same provision of federal law being used by Litton and General Dynamics.

The letter dated last June 21, was sent to Assistant Navy Secretary Edward Hidalgo from J. P. Diesel.

The shipbuilder disputed Hidalgo's position that the law would not apply to any settlement which would result in the contractor making a profit.
"We remain convinced that we are legally entitled to considerably more than the Navy is willing to pay, and in particular, we believe we are entitled to a profit on the work we have performed for the Navy," Diesel wrote.

The law under which the settlements for General Dynamics and Litton were approved authorized the secretaries of the military services to increase the price of contracts if they determine it is in the interest of national defense.

Tax group may ask balanced budget or new constitution

By W. DALE NELSON

WASHINGTON (AP) - An organization that wants a balanced federal budget says it might present Congress next year with the first demand for a national convention to rewrite the Constitution backed by two-thirds of the states.

If it were held, such a convention would be the first since the Constitution was drafted in 1787, and some consitutional scholars fear it could turn into a noholds-barred affair encompassing various efforts to alter the document that is the basis of U.S. govern-

Officials of the National Taxpayers Union don't expect their demand for a constitutional convention to actually produce one, however, and the 10-year-old anti-tax organization isn't discouraged.

It says its real aim is to force Congress to act on its own, and it thinks Congress will indeed initiate a balanced budget amendment.

The Taxpayers Union wants an amendment requiring the government to balance its budget within four years of ratification — and to keep it balanced except in times of national emergency.

Amendments to the Constitution can be originated either by two-thirds vote of both houses of Congress or by a convention called by Congress after receiving

To go into effect, amendments must be ratified by three-fourths of state legislatures or state conventions. Congress decides which.

For all but one amendment, Congress has chosen legislative ratification. Repeal of prohibition was ratified by conventions.

Congress has received more than 300 applications for constitutional conventions, ranging from the first demand for a Bill of Rights in 1789 to recent propos-als for world government and school prayer amend-will be different. It now has approval of 22 of the 34 legislatures required. And, says the group's director, Charles S. Crawford, "It is quite possible that next year we will be able to get the necessary 12 states."

'We could. We could," adds Democratic State Sen. Jim Clark of Ellicott City, Md., who heads the Taxpayers Union lobbying effort. At any rate, he says, "we're going to get pretty close to it."

But, Clark says, "I don't think Congress is going to let it go to a convention. I think they will go ahead and give us an amendment. They can control an

There is some precedent for his view. In 1912, when 30 states asked for conventions to get direct election of senators, Congress proposed such an amendment. However, Congress did not act after 32 states asked for a convention on apportionment of state legislatures after the 1964 Supreme Court one-person, one-vote ruling.

A committee of the American Bar Association By BONNY RODDEN concluded in 1974, however, that a convention could

A bill designed to limit constitutional conventions to the purposes for which they are called was passed by the Senate in 1972, but died in the House Judiciary

The calling of a constiutional convention raises all kinds of questions, among them: How many years are allowed for persuading twothirds of the legislatures to call for a convention? Is outside. it mandatory for Congress to call a convention when it gets a request from enough states?

Does Congress have the power to review the convention's work? Do the courts? Does the president have any role?

How are the delegates to the convention to be "It raises a broad range of really frightening the Rev. Sun Myung possibilities," said Nels Ackerson, chief counsel to Moon's Unification

About a year ago, members of the Boston branch of the church leased the two-story house on Route 102 for a retreat for new members of the controversial religious organization.
