Beirut has a night without casualties

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - A peace blueprint recommended by Syria and five other Arab states generated an initial de-escalation of hostilities in Lebanon today despite mixed reaction from Lebanese political leaders.

The Beirut police department and a Christian militia spokesman reported a decrease of cease-fire violations since the Arabs announced their eight-point program Tuesday night.

"It was a rare night without casualties," said a police spokesman, though the predawn stillness was broken by a few volleys of machine-gun

The Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said Syrian snipers killed a Christian teen-ager and wounded two others this morning, but that sniping had decreased at the northern and eastern approaches to Beirut's Christian sector.

The command of the Syrian-dominated Arab Deterrent Force did not comment on security conditions but said, "a slight redeployment of peacekeeping forces" was imminent to minimize Syrian-Christian friction.

Informed sources and newspapers close to President Elias Sarkis said the move would bring Saudi Arabian troops into hot spots in the Christian

Tower charges smears

HOUSTON (AP) - Republican Sen. John Tower says his Democratic oponent. Rep. Bob Krueger, is conducting a smear campaign but that he may reconsider television debates if only the issues are discussed.

Krueger says his opponent is scared to get into the political arena, and has dodged the scheduled television appearances because "he doesn't want" to be available to the people or the press."

The senatorial candidates met face-to-face for the first time, and probably the last time in this campaign, during a Houston Press Club forum Tuesday.

They sat at the same oval head table with about six other persons, but refused to shake hands and never even nodded nor glanced at each enclave to separate Syrian and Christian forces by Saturday.

Before the forum started, Krueger walked over and extended his hand to Tower but Tower turned away.

The Arab conference resolutions received unexpected support from the United States when Washington joined France in warning the top Christian leader, Camille Chamoun, against breaking the 12-day-old cease-fire or provoking fresh hostilities with the Syrians.

The truce ended 10 days of the most savage Syrian-Christian fighting in eight months. The syrians make up the bulk of the 30,000-strong ADF, which polices the 23-month-old civil war armistice between the Christians and an alliance of Moslems and Palestinian guerrillas.

Chamoun dismissed the conference resolutions as "mere words." His principle ally, the Phalange Party, said the peace program was "vague and needs clarification."

Maj. Saad Haddad, commander of Christian forces in southern Lebanon, rejected the conference's decisiops in advance, saying "The Arab countries don't want the good and well-being of Lebanon.

All Moslem factions declared unreserved support for the conference's decisions, however, and called on Sarkis to enforce the resolutions quickly and firmly.

The resolutions empower the president to disarm all Lebanese private armies and to close down rival clandestine radio stations in an effort to create a central authority in this nation of 3 million.

Although similar decisions had been taken in the past to no avail,

Reagan says party 'out of step'

By LINDA HILL R-T Staff Writer

The national Democratic leadership is "out of step with the rank and file" of the party, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan said in Midland

"Some of the best Republicans I know are Texas Democrats," said Reagan at a press conference.

Reagan, in Midland to campaign for area Republican candidates, told his audience at a $100-per-person cocktail party to beware of President Jimmy Carter:

"A man who tells you he enjoys a cold shower in the morning will lie about other things, too."

The well-heeled audience which filled the Midland Hilton Civic Room responded enthusiastically to Reagan's bantering style.

"We know that the president won't serve hard drinks in the White House. But the staff-is probably on pot. It's probably the only administrtion we've ever had that's high and dry," Reagan quipped.

Reagan accused recent congresses of effectively repealing the 10th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution through regulations. That amendment reserves for the states powers not delegated the federal government in the Constitution.

The former governor advocated returning responsibility for programs such as welfare back to the states, along with the tax money to finance them. One way to do that would be to return a certain percentage of the federal income tax collected to the state, he said.

Putting control of welfare programs back at the state level would allow "deservability" to be determined more effectively, he said. Reagan said Americans are "recognizing at last...that the government is doing things it shouldn't be trying to do."

The message of Proposition 13 in California, he said, is "you can fight city hall....Uncle Sam and that great leviathon in Washington.'

Although calling for "better balance" between the parties in Congress, Reagan acknowledged Republican gains may not be significant this year. He said at his press conference gerrymandered congressional districts make it "an uphill fight" for any Republican candidate.

Reagan claimed in recent years more people have voted for Republican candidates than Democratic ones, although more Democrats were

Election 'act of faith, courage

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Pope John Paul II told the College of Cardinals today it demonstrated the "authentic universality" of the Roman Catholic Church by electing a non-Italian pope for the first time in 455 years.

"It has been an act of faith and at the same time one of great courage to make a non-Italian the Bishop of Rome." the 58-year-old Polish pontiff said in an address to the cardinals who named him the 264th ruler of their church on Monday.

The pope's speech was in reply to remarks by Carlo Confalonieri, dean of the College of Cardinals. The Italian cardinal told the pope that Poland is "a living symbol of heroic attachment to the church.'

"In seeing one of its children unexpectedly elevated to the supreme apreward the most severe suffering" Confalonieri said

Meanwhile, the Vatican announced that the inaugural Mass on Sunday will take place at 10 a.m.-5 a.m. EDT-on the broad steps of the basilica as were the investitures of his two predecessors

Speaking in Italian in the Consistory Hall of the Apostolic Palace, the pope reminded the princes of the church that "some even now are not spared the experience of prisons, suffering and humiliation for Christ."

It was assumed that because of his long experience with communism in his native Poland, he was referring to prisoners of Communist regimes. But he could also have been speaking of prisoners in Latin America and other

Riding in an open car, John Paul stood up repeatedly, waved and stretched out his hands and gestured to his driver to slow down when he saw the crowds hurrying to hail him.

Nurses, doctors and patients mobbed him in the entrance hall of the Gemelli Polyclinic Catholic Hospital in northwest Rome. He charmed them with his ready smile and visibly enjoyed the crowd.

WASHINGTON - Unlikely as it seems, Saudi Arabia is running short of cash. Although the world's leading oil producer isn't likely to go broke anytime soon, it does have a serious cash-flow problem - at least temporarily. As a result, the government has begun a significant belt-tightening program to help make ends meet. Beginning in May, the Saudis started quietly cashing in short-term investments such as bank certificates and notes they previously had been renewing automatically.

Latest estimates are that the total transferred from portfolios to government coffers since then may have exceeded $1.2 billion. Other Arab oil-producing nations are said to be in a similar bind. The reason for the Saudis' financial problems has been the worldwide oil glut, which has dampened demand for crude and forced sizable production cutbacks throughout the oil producers' cartel. Today, the Saudis are producing about 7 million barrels of oil a day, well below the 8.5 million-barrel-a-day pace needed to bring in enough revenues to keep the government's budget balanced.

During boomier days, the Saudis had imposed an 8.5 million-barrel-a-day ceiling on their production, in part to mollify Arab critics who wanted lower output levels and higher prices.

At one point last summer, Saudi production levels dropped to 6.7 million In the face of all this, the Saudis have run into a sizable - albeit temporary - cash-flow squeeze. Sources say the transfer of funds out of short-term investments and into the treasury has reached several million dollars a day.

The difficulty is strictly a cash problem and has not yet affected the Saudis' foreign exchange position. Official statistics show the Saudis still have $26 billion in foreign exchange, and private estimates double that. U.S. officials have forecast the Saudis' trade-and-investments surplus will drop to $18 billion this year, declining further in 1979 and beyond. Overall, there is no evidence the country is going under financially.

Nevertheless, the cutback in oil revenues has forced some visible belt-tightening in recent months. Besides cashing in some of their short-term investments, the Saudis also have cut back in other areas. -At the start of last summer, the Saudi Council of Ministers ordered a $4.5 billion spending cut that amounted to 10 percent of the government's total budget. Since then King Khalid has bosted the reductions to one-third. -On the royal family's order, the government held up for two months a gas pipeline being built from the Abqaiq oil field to the industrial city of Yenbu. relatively modest $400 million in advances to contractors for a $2 billion -Recently, the Saudi Finance Ministry proposed that the Arabian-

American oil Co., of which the Saudis own a majority and are negotiating to take over, finance all of its big new expansion program from a scant 50 cents a barrel on oil sales.

If the Saudis hold firm to that restriction, it could slow plans to enlarge Aramco's production capacity. Current programs are aiming for a 12 (Continued on Page 6A)

New Haven shaken by slayings of six black women

Rhodesian troops launch

more cross-border raids

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) - It is just a short walk from Yale, this other New Haven. After dark, six blocks of Chapel Street take on a tawdry glow from the bars, the all-night luncheonette - and the autos with white customers for the black hookers on the

It is a street not accustomed to security.

But now something new is happening, something more sinister. In two years seven black women have died suspiciously in and near New Haven. Police know six were killed, and think the seventh may have been. Four had prostitution records; three died within a month.

No one knows for sure if the deaths are linked, and police don't even characterize all the victims as prosti-

But the hookers see a pattern, and they feel a fear.

That, in turn, is drawing the ghetto's law-abiding and its desperate together - making allies of police and prostitutes, putting even Gov. Ella Grasso on the same side as the hookers in this case.

For it is no longer a question of morals. It is a question of the equality of everyone — even those on the fringes of the law — when it comes to the right to life itself. Chapel Street is a short distance from New Haven's black ghetto. At any one time on a normal night, a dozen hookers, most of them black, can be seen flagging down cars on the street. In the cars that stop, most of the customers are white men from the suburbs.

But now the girls have become less active. And when some do go out, they have at their sides for part of the time a "Soul Patrol" of young black men who would normally shun them.

'We walk with the girls. Wherever they go, we go. It kind of cuts down the action," says Donald Morris. He organized a patrol of 15 men Sept. 23 after Terry Williams, 23, of New Haven was found nude and shot to death in a motel. Police say she was a prostitute who apparently went there with a man who picked her up downtown

The patrol does not accompany all the girls all the time. Mostly, it watches for clues, tries to make the girls feel safer. It notes plate numbers of cars; it sometimes urges prostitutes to stay off the streets. At first, it got a cold shoulder from the girls - but now is accepted, Morris says, by the fewer prostitutes in

'Truth Squad' predicts upset

A member of Republican guberna-torial candidate Bill Clements' staff Tueday predicted Clements will pull off an upset victory Nov. 7 over Demo-crat John Hill.

"I can't believe that the electorate is as gullible as it is, just because he (Hill) is a Democrat," said Omar Harvey, head of Clements' "Truth Squad. In a Midland Regional Airport press conference attended by two reporters and Harvey's assistant, Bob Feather, Harvey said "people in this state" are either "afraid" of Hill or "they just don't trust him."

"I'm not afraid of him," Harvey said. "But I hasten to add, I don't trust him either.

Harvey termed Hill a "liberal lawyer politician" and viewed Clements as a "conservative business execu-

In further lashing out at Hill, Harvey, a long-time friend to Clements, accused Hill of:

-Wasting tax money. "He's the biggest spendthrift in the history of the state.

-Selectivity in law enforcement: "His record is one of selective enforcement of state laws."

-Neglecting his duties: Hill contends that he is not neglecting his duties as attorney general, though vi-gorously campaigning for governor. To that "I say baloney," Harvey said.

Class enrollment increasing at MC

While the official enrollment at Midland College has increased only 2 percent over last year, students taking non-credit courses through the commuity service department increased by 800, Midland College trustees were told Tuesday afternoon.

Enrollment in courses for credit at the college rose from 2,181 in the fall of 1977 to 2,202 this fall.

Sixty-five percent of the students were enrolled in academic courses, while 35 percent enrolled in vocational or technical classes. Enrollment in community service non-credit courses jumped to 6,239 this year, an increase of some 800 Some 250 courses were offered and filled, and 1,100 students enrolled in adult education courses, including 261 in Adult Basic Education, according to James Bramlett, director of the division. Trustees also approved the final contract with Ogden Food Service for concessions at Chaparral Center.

Under the terms of the three-year contract, the college will receive 10 percent of the revenues on sales of up to $200,000. The college's share increases as concession revenues increase up to 27 percent of sales of $350,000 or more.

A committee of three trustees was appointed to study the proposed Midtran plan and report to the board.

John Schafer, transportation coordinator for the city of Midland had asked the trustees to pass a resolution in favor of the plan. The committee plans to gather information from students and report to the board before the scheduled Nov. 2 public hearing on the Midtran plan.

As Morrone and West Haven Police Chief Joseph Malinconico tried to calm citizens, Gov. Grasso offered a $20,000 reward for information, Mayor Frank Logue issued a statement backing police and urging citizens to fight crime, and State Treasurer Henry Parker, a New Haven black, went to meetings to muster black community action.

ance with Krueger if the congressman stays with the legitimate issues of the campaign. He refused to elaborate.

The controvery erupted when the campaign manager for Krueger distributed a copy of a columun in the Karnes City, Texas, Citation.

The Tom Anderson column did not name Tower, but tells of a man "who ranks high in the U.S. Senate, and low in the ranks of nice women who avoid gettng on Senate elevators alone with Krueger said the material as distributed by his campaign manager and "I see nothing wrong with printing things that the press prints. Perhaps the article is not flattering, but it isn't libelous.

Tower told the gathering Krueger "has brought this campaign to a low level not to be admired by anyone. I won't dignify the kind of campaign he is conducting by appering with him again. He has circulated a smear

Krueger later told newsmen during a brief interview, "Sen. Tower wants to buy his little TV advertisements and say what he wants to say without answering to me or to the voters."

The congressman said a poll taken two weeks ago showed him slightly ahead of Tower. The incumbent senator said, "I am not going to play the poll game. You know the old thing, I am behind, I am gaining, I am even, I am ahead. I haven't conducted a poll in five weeks.

The candidates agreed on several issues, such as a need to take court action in an effort to halt the recently passed national energy bills and the need to solve agricultural problems

More of same fare forecast

"Much of the same" seems to be the fare for Thursday's weather bill. A weatherman at Midland Regional Airport called for fair skies through Thursday with chilly nights.

The low tonight is to drop into the mid-40s, which will be in the neighborhood of today's overnight low of 48

The mercury is to to nudge up to the mid-70s Thursday.

So far this month, not a trace of rainfall has dropped into the National Weather Service's gauge at the airport. Last month, however, 5.02 inches of precipitation was recorded.

The year's rainfall so far is 12.31 inches, and the yearly average through October is 12.50. Norm for the year is 13.51 inches.

Winds tonight are to change from southerly and southwesterly to easterly at 10 to 15 mph, the weatherman

A cool front moved into the Texas Panhandle early today and pushed its way into West Texas.

But forecasters say the cool front will probably not bring any precipitation into Texas. Temperatures will only be slightly lower, they added. Cool temperatures and mostly fair skies dominated the Texas weather scene early today. Some high, thin clouds were reported over Northwest and South Texas. Highs were expected to be mostly in the 70s and 80s.

elected. That's because Republican voters are concentrated in fewer districts, he said.

The former Republican presidential aspirant predicted "quite a woods-full" of Republican presidential candidates will emerge before the 1980 election.

Whether he will be among them, Reagan said, is something he will announce in 1979.

On the energy bill passed last weekend by Congress, Reagan said the legislation is "an unworkable government interference into the free market place.

The only way to solve the energy problem, he said, "is for the government to get out of the way" of the free enterprise system.

The former governor said nuclear energy is probably "the only chance we have" to avoid energy shortages in the next 10 to 15 years. But, he said, government regulations cause it to take four times as long to build nuclear power plants here as in most other countries. He said he believes nuclear power to be safe, with the odds against a fatality caused by an accident at four billion to one

Reagan said he has not studied the issue of whether states should have the right to regulate or prohibit transportation of nuclear waste materials through their territories, but said he would "start from the standpoint of states' rights.

Asked about the tax bill passed by the Congress, Reagan said it "was a compromise for the administration." Although it accomplishes some needed things, such as capital gains tax reductions, it will not even offset Social Security tax increases for the average worker, he said.

The Republican-sponsored Kemp-Roth bill, which called for cutting income taxes by 30 percent over a three year period, would have provided more stimulus to the economy, the politician added.

Secretary of State fears forecasts of 2.3 million voters too high

By The Associated Press

Only about a third of Texas' seven million registered voters are expected to vote in next month's general election, and Secretary of State Steven Oaks says it's "an absolute dis-

"Texas will have the highest percentage of registered voters in our history and a higher percentage than any other state, but the registration figures are totally meaningless unless these people vote," Oaks said. Oaks said his prediction of 2.3 million voters on Nov. 7 may prove too optimistic, and he said only about 1.6 million are likely to vote on the nine proposed constitutional amend-"I have never in my life seen greater apathy, people turned off by the system," said Oaks, who said voters might be getting discouraged by candidates not living up to their campaign promises.

The two major candidates for governor continued their campaign rhetoric Tuesday in their quest for the voters who do turn out.

Attorney General John Hill, the Democratic nominee, told an Austin news conference he will file suit next week in an effort to block the federal government from regulating natural gas prices in Texas.

"We all know we need a national energy policy. I think we've adopted the wrong one," Hill said.

He said he will meet Thursday with officials from Oklahoma and Louisiana about the possibility of the three states joining to keep the federal government from moving their gas to other states in times of shortage.

Bill Clements, the Republican nominee, accused Hill of reaching "new heights of demagoguery" with his stand.

"If John Hill was sincere in his claimed opposition (to the energy bill), he would have begun working long ago to defeat the measure with which Texans are now saddled," Clements said.

In a speech to the Retired Officers Association in Texarkana, Clements proposed a "taxpayers' bill off rights" that would ban all income taxes and allow local taxpayers to reject tax increases by local govern-

Clements also said Texas needs to raise the salaries of starting teachers and provide annual salary increases. But, he added, "I am absolutely opposed to any immediate, across-theboard pay raise for all teachers."

He said the state must eliminate social promotions and called on the state to provide full state funding of the Foundation School Program in economically depressed districts.

He said he will seek the removal of 25,000 state employees from the public payroll by 1983 through "retirement, resignation and other attrition.

In another release, Clements said Michael Halbouty, an independent oil and gas producer and operator from Houston, will head a 35-member Energy Committee for Clements.

The Republican nominee said one in 17 Texas worker is employed directly by the petroleum industry and that Texas is the leading producer of petrochemicals.

"We must have a governor who really understands the petroculture of Texas and will do something to protect it," said Clements, who is chairman of the board of SEDCO, Inc., a worldwide oil drilling contracting

In still another release, Clements said more than 150 student leaders from 52 colleges - including student body presidents at Baylor, TCU, UTEP and San Antonio College support his candidacy.

The staff of Republican U.S. Sen. John Tower distributed copies of Sunday's endorsement of Tower by the Dallas Times Herald.

And Jim Baker, the Republican nominee for attorney general, released copies of a letter from Hall Timanus, former national Democratic committeeman from Texas, urging Texans to vote for Baker.

Baker's Democratic opponent, former Secretary of State Mark White, said his wife will campaign next week in 13 Northeast Texas counties. She will be in Greenville, Sulphur Springs, Cooper, Paris, Clarksville, Texarkana, Atlanta, Daingerfield, Pittsburg, Mount Pleasant, Mount Vernon, Quitman and Gilmer.

At the end of that Oct. 25-26 swing, she will have campaigned for her husband in 200 counties, campaign

Then he walked through the men's cancer ward, pausing at each occupied bed and wheelchair to chat with the patients and bless them.

"Humanly speaking you are weak, sick," he said. "But you are also powerful, very powerful in the same way as Jesus Christ crucified is powerful. In this resemblance is your power. Try to make use of this power."

Archbishop Giuseppe Caprio, the Vatican's deputy secretary of state, reminded him he was supposed to give a blessing before leaving, and the pontiff spoke into the microphone again:

'The monsignor says I'm not finished. I must bless you. He tells me how the pope has to conduct himself.

In Poland, officials of the Communist government announced they would cut the usual red tape to speed up visas for Poles wanting to go to Rome for the inaugural Sunday.

sary next May 8 of the death of St. Stanislaw, Poland's patron saint, or for the 600th anniversary in 1982 of the installation of the picture of the Black Madonna at Czestochowa, central Europe's most famed shrine million-barrel-a-day capacity, up from 10.5 million now.

What makes the problem so touchy is that there is nothing very dramatic the Saudis can do about it. As U.S. officials argued to Khalid last month, any sizable increase in oil prices now could hurt major Western economies and send the dollar plunging further. Ultimately, it could dampen demand for oil even The Saudis also could cut back on foreign imports, which have mushroomed since the Arab oil embargo five years ago. That would mean curtailing new industrial development programs - a step they are reluctant to take now. A third option would be to step up their oil production, either by boosting the cartel's overall output or by insisting on a larger share of the cartel's total production. Analysts say the difficulties being faced by the Saudis could have broad implications for other Arab nations and for the effectiveness of the oil-producing cartel as a whole. In th past, the Saudis have played the swing-man in the cartel. trimming their production levels in order to bail out other producers without raising the overall price of oil. That kind of "absorption" now seems at an end. How well the Saudis will be able to cope with the current squeeze may depend on several factors, the most important of which is whether the world oil market firms enough. Recent weeks have shown firming in spot

For now, most analysts believe the cash-flow squeeze the Saudis are in will be temporary, and that the budget-paring done so far will be enough to tide the government through to a reversal early next year. The oil-producing nations have scheduled a meeting at the end of this year to decide whether to raise prices in January. In anticipation, the major oil companies are expected to step up their purchases, aiding the

Like the United States, the Saudis easily can defer millions of dollars in relatively minor construction projects without jeopardizing construction of major port facilities, so little serious disruption is expected. Meanwhile, however, the cash-flow problem is bolstering the views of some analysts tht the oil producers' cartel someday may begin to show While the current dilemma is far from a turning point, economists point out that the cash squeeze finally is forcing the Saudis to consider boosting production levels - a move that should help avert a major price If the oil producers can't work out the problem of how to divide their shares of the oil-revenue pie, it could spur private discounting or other sales gimmicks wall to the benefit of oil consumers.

A Midland businessman, who requested to be nameless, said during 1977 he spent $300 over nearly six months trying to get restitition on a $50 bad check.

"I'll bet Midland County loses $425 per day based on 300 days out of each year because of this problem," said the merchant recently.

He speculated that half the county's "hot"check incidents "are never prosecuted. It costs us merchants $1.40 to send out one registered letter to 'hot' check writers, which is required before we turn the cases over to the county for prosecu-

"The merchant loses by being clipped in the first place and he loses if he has to wait six months to collect on the loss," noted the local businessman.

He said, "The problem is you, the consumer, pay for this crime in increased prices for goods and services locally and in lost taxes."

Rick Cooper, assistant manager for Furr's Market in Midland, said he estimates the "hot" check problem costs his store "in the neighborhood of $50,000 in losses for 1977, alone. That's just bad checks.'

The unusually candid employee said the firm may lose anywhere from $2,000 to $2,500 per month because of bad checks.

We can go to a collection agency and those people try to collect on these 'hot' checks. Most of them are insufficient funds cases. We've had few forged check cases," said Cooper. In July the Midland Gibson's Discount Center started a no out-oftown check cashing policy because of the "hot" checks problem there, said Manager Bob

"They're frustrated," said Michael Kearney, one of the three New Bedford tax assessors who have been dealing with irate property owners filing for abatements.

The tax bills, which were mailed out last week, reflect this fishing port's first property tax re-valuation in 50 years, and they mean increases for some of the city's 100,-000 residents. Assessments were raised on about 13,000 properties, many of which are located in New Bedford's Portuguese neighborhoods.

On Monday, about 4,-000 residents, led by a country music disc jockey, marched on City Hall to complain. Police were called to contain the crowd, and Mayor John Markey closed the build-

Estelle last Wednesday ordered no information released about the events or status of the strike that began Oct. 6 in sympathy with a prisoners' federal suit against the TDC.

In issuing the news blackout, Estelle said in a statement that "it is the department's feeling that our primary responsibility to insure institutional order and the safety of inmates and staff has not been aided by our willingness to respond to inquiries ... the department will make no further statements regarding attempts by inmates to disrupt the programs and activities of the institution until such time that those actions have been

In the first week of the strike, as many as 400 prisoners stayed in the exercise yard at the maximum security Ellis Unit near Huntsville, refusing to eat or work. They were joined off and on by inmates at other units in East and Southeast Texas.

He also claimed that for nearly five months earlier this year he received neither a shower nor a tub bath, and that authorities would not permit fellow inmates to help him to the shower

He said prison officials refused to give him a wheelchair, forcing him to drag himself around his cell. The wheelchair from which he testified was provided by the Harris County jail, he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — It happens every year: when Congress gets ready to quit, congressional leaders telephone the president to tell him that unless he has further business, they are going to adjourn.

The president tells them that they've done fine and yes, by all means, go ahead and adjourn. Never mind the fact that if a president did have further business, he probably couldn't get it transacted. Nor does the end-of-session ritual include any mention of presidential disappointments with the night, he replied with high praise of the 95th Congress, which has given him an ample supply of headaches over the past two years. He called it "one of the most courageous and constructive congresses in the history of the coun-When Senate leaders called, Carter told them that Congress "stood up to the issues and produced a record of which the nation can be proud. What it produced was far short of what Carter proposed.

Carter got an energy bill, but it was a pale imitation of the program he originally sought. .. congress has given us an energy plan that will advance our national security, insure our freedom of action in foreign affairs and protect our economic interests at home and abroad," the president said.
"... We have declared to ourselves and the world our intent to control our use of energy and thereby to control our own destiny as a nation," he said. That assessment covers a bill that was stripped long ago of the taxes Carter had sought to raise the price of domestic oil to world market levels, and to penalize gasoline consumption that exceeded proposed government targets. Carter got a tax cut but, again, it didn't look much like his original proposal. It made only mino changes in a federal tax code Carter long ago described as a national disgrace. His promised top-to-bottom overhaul of the tax code is still just that, a promise.

He won an overhaul of the law that governs the federal civil service, but he didn't get far with his call for major revisions of the welfare system.

No quick sampler can adequately reflect the work of any Congress, but when the product of this one is weighed against the campaign promises Carter brought to office, it is hard to see how the administration can claim great satisfaction in it.

Appraising the energy bill, Carter said "this is not the end of the road, but it is a beginning and an important one.

He didn't apply that description to the rest of his program, but it fits. For Carter's successes in the closing days of the 95th Congress may well strengthen him when the 96th convenes next year.

He used the veto adroitly and successfully, winning two tough fights late in the session on defense and public works spending, and gaining some of the changes he wanted in the tax bill by threatening to

There is an energy bill, as Carter had promised the country and the world, even if it falls far short of the terms the administration originally recommended. At first, Carter acknowledges, "I was maybe a little overly hesitant about using my own influence and authority" in dealing with Congress.

But now, he says, "I think I have got a good division of my own authority versus that of Congress. I think we have a good mutual respect.'

In a scant three months, a new Congress will arrive to test that.

Thai-Cambodian relations. They said if Smith went ahead with his demonstration, he would be arrested under a martial-law provision against "creating a misunderstanding" between the two countries.

"My first reaction was that's part of the problem in this world," Smith said. "Those who've got guns will be recognized as governments, but what about the people who are getting killed?"

Smith said he was used to great freedom in the United States but conceded he understood why the Thais might want to stop his protest.

Until recently, the Thai-Cambodian border has been the scene of bloody Cambodian attacks. The Thais, hoping to exchange ambassadors with Phnom Penh in the near future, are anxious to improve relations.

Smith flew to Thailand last week from the United States. He was about three miles from the border when a district officer and two policemen threatened him with arrest if he so much as lifted up his sign in Cambodian for photographers.

Smith said he would return to Bangkok, 150 miles west of Aranyaprathet, to seek permission from the Thai government to carry out his demonstration. Officials in Alanyaprathet said the orders to stop Smith came from the provincial governor.

Odessa man dies after accident

ODESSA - An Odessa man died Tuesday afternoon as a result of injuries he received in a four vehicle accident west of here, according to a spokesman for the Department of Public Safety.

Robert Dunn, 79, died at 5 p.m. following the accident which took place shortly before 2:20 p.m., said authorities.

C. Monroe Garland, 66, of Odessa, was injured in the four-vehicle incident, said officials. He was reported in good condition early today in Medical Center Hospital here.

Authorities said a pickup driven by Garland and a pickup driven by Dunn collided in the westbound lane of FM2020 with a pickup driven by Steve L. Shandley of Odessa and a 1973 pickup driven by Victor C. Bodine of

Overall crime drops 3 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Crime in the United States dropped 3 percent overall last year although violent crime increased, the Justice Department says

FBI statistics released by the department Tuesday show 10,935,800 reported offenses in 1977, down from 11,304,800 in 1976. Preliminary figures reported earlier by the FBI had put the decrease at 4 percent.

The overall drop has continued this year, dipping another 2 percent dur-ing the first six months of 1978, the gency said.

The FBI statistics — based on local Ipolice Peports - show property crimes falling 4 percent in 1977 but violent crimes increasing 2 percent. The biggest decreases were 6 percent for theft and 4 percent for robbery, while the largest increases were 11 percent for rape and 6 percent for aggravated assault. Reported crimes have increased about 25 percent since 1973, including a 27 percent rise in property crimes and 15 percent in violent crimes, the Injured were Carl Triplett, 18, who was hospitalized in critical condition with chest wounds; and Angela Darden, 17, and Jennifer Pride, 16, who were hospitalized in satisfactory condition with gunshot wounds.

Police said the gun, believed to be a .38-caliber revolver, flew out of Ward's hands when he was grabbed by McCallie. Students then apparentwere searching for the weapon. Ward was held on $50,000 bail.

Juvenile charges were planned against the 13-year-old who shot Lanett Junior High School Principal Lewis Hoggs Tuesday, according to Lela Powell, chief juvenile probation officer for Chambers County. The boy's name was not released because of his age.

Hoggs was hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

send a water flush through the 42-inch underground pipeline extending 42 miles southeast to the Hackberry storage caverns.

The first crude oil was pumped in behind the water flush and began creeping, at less than one mile an hour, through the line. Testing will take two or three days. If all goes well, oil will begin pouring into the Hackberry storage caverns on Friday. A month ago, Hackberry was the scene of a spectacular fire that killed one man and burned for several days after the pressurized oil blew out.

Scheme falls through

By JAY MATHEWS The Washington Post

HONG KONG - The scheme of a Soviet-owned bank to finance secretly a major development at China's back door has fallen through, producing investigations of other Russian activities here and igniting far-flung court battles

Financial experts and diplomats still wonder whether the plan of the Moscow Narodny Bank to finance a 1,500-acre resort development on Lantau Island here was a premeditated effort to infiltrate Hong Kong and spy on China or just an unfortunate financial blunder.

Moscow Narodny, backed by capital from a number of Soviet financial institutions, has ben headquartered in London since 1919, yet it did not become a force in Southeast Asia until it opened a branch office in Singapore in 1971. Businessmen and bank documents say the branch began to make a flurry of loans to land developers throughout the area, including financier Edward Wong Wing Cheung, who wished to turn a huge chunk of largely rural Lantau into a vaction spa. Then in 1975 and 1976, the Soviet bank, in response to a sudden collapse in land values, foreclosed on many of its loans, forcing borrowers to surrender property that had been purchased. Businessmen and bankers said the bank eventually gained control of more than one million square feet of land in Singapore and a majority interest in the Lantau project.

Sources here close to the Chinese government, whose anti-Soviet policies are religiously observed by Hong Kong's British authorities, say the whole scheme was designed to give Soviet agents a unique vantage point near the mouth of China's Pearl River and subvert overseas Chinese businessmen for use later against the mother country.

They say the Soviets are still pursuing other land schemes here and financing covertly Hong Kong shipping businesses in an effort to increase trade to the Soviet east coast port of Nachodka near Vladivostok. This would speed the devlopment of Siberia and increase the Soviet threat to Chinese Manchuria, according to one Chinese government expert. Bankers and financial experts here and in Singapore scoff at this conspiracy theory. They argue that the whole mess arose from the ambitions and bad luck of a Chinese executive in the bank's Singapore office and failure of the branch's garrulous general manager, a Russian, to rein in his subordinate's aggressive loan policy until it was too late.

Test, well announced

Mobil Oil Corp. No. 31 Louise Shackleford has been completed as a pumper in the Spraberry Trend Area of Midland County, 13 miles southeast of Midland, and Petro Explication & Development Funds, Inc., has staked a Spraberry Trend Area project in Howard County.

The new Midland well finaled for a dailypotential of 56 barrels of 41.1gravity oil and 97 barrels of water. through perforations from 8,476 to 8,946 feet after 6,000 gallons of acid. The gas-oil ratio is 1,268-1.

The total depth is 11,000 feet and the plugged back depth is 8,950 feet. Location is 3,960 feet from north and east lines of section 27, block 37, T-3-S, T&P survey.

HOWARD TEST

Petro Exploration & Development Funds will drill No. 1 Flanagan five miles southeast of Big Spring in Howard County.

The Spraberry Trend area project will be dug to 6,500 feet, 990 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 24, block 32, T-1-S, T&P sur-storage areas along the gulf coast in Louisiana and Texas.

Caverns, some bigger than 10-story buildings, are scoured out deep inside huge underground salt domes. Oil does not dissolve salt, so the cavern forms a sort of giant storage bottle.

When complete, the Department of Energy project would provide a safety margin against another Arab oil boycott. Officials said it would offset a boycott for six to nine months.

The pipeline connection from tanker terminal to cavern marks a major change in the delivery system. Heretofore, crude oil from the Persian Gulf arrived at Nederland by tanker and was pumped into 30,000 barrel barges. Towboats shoved the barges along the canals to Hackberry, where they were emptied into the caverns.

So far, about 27 million barrels have been put in storage. A spokesman said plans call for 250 million barrels to be stored by the end of 1979, rising to 325 million by 1980.

During testing, 4,500-barrels an hour were pumped into the new Hackberry line. It will take 360,000 barrels of oil simply to fill it up.

The mile-long water flush was herded through the line under 13,000 pounds of pressure between two mechanized cylindrical scrapers known as pigs. Progress was controlled and monitored by electronic sensors.

At full flow, it is estimated that the pipeline will fill Hackberry's present 51-million-barrel capacity by early spring. However, additional caverns will be created here to boost capacity to 160 million barrels

Warren well finals

Warren American Oil Co. of Midland announced completion of a new well in the Gin (Spraberry) field of Dawson County.

The well, five miles southwest of Lamesa, completed for a daily pumping potential of 27 barrels of 38-gravity oil and 33 barrels of water, through perforations from 8,202 to 8,217 feet.

The pay section was acidized with 3,000 gallons and fractured with 30,000 gallons.

The gas-oil ratio is 600-1. The total depth is 8,400 feet and 4.5-inch casing is cemented at 8,350

The wellsite is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 29, block 36, T-5-N, T&P survey.

Hostage to violence

The feverish Middle East continues to preempt the news and history of our time.

The outlook appears good for success in constructing a pleace treaty out of the broad Camp David understandings recently reached by President Carter, President Sadat and Prime Minister Begin.

Reports from Cairo indicate President Sadat would like to sign the treaty at Mt. Sinai on or before Nov. 19, the first anniversary of his precedent-shattering peace pilgrimage to Jerusalem. President Carter already has accepted an invitation to be on hand.

Even with all the uncertainties attending Middle Eastern affairs, Egyptian optimism is believable and, therefore, a reasonable source of encouragement. This is so because it reflects a basic decision by President Sadat and his government which led originally to the Jerusalem visit and has been reaffirmed subsequently by the Camp David agreements; that was Egypt's determination not to submit the peace it so desperately needs to the veto of either Arab extremists, or the Soviet Union.

The Egyptians and Israelis were spurred into bilateral negotiations last year by prospect of a Geneva conference, with full participation by the Russians and members of the Palestinian Liberation Organization, which was being supported by the Carter administration. Whatever President Sadat failed to accomplish originally on his trip to Jerusalem, he succeeded thereby in freezing out the Soviets and the PLO from the peace negotiations.

Recently in Cairo, President Sadat spelled out his Egypt-first policy in the strongest language he has yet used: "I shall never put the destiny of Egypt in the hands of those children, those murderers" (the Syrians and Palestinians), he said.

But the Middle East, fragmented by the Arab-Israeli struggle and opposing Arab factions is, nevertheless, strangely interlinked in such a way that any one element affects all of the others. The danger now, and perhaps the one thing which could derail an Egyptian-Israeli settlement, is the crisis in Lebanon.

Syria, for the moment at least, has pulled back from an all-out drive by its 35,000-man peacekeeping force to crush Christian irregulars — the last effective resistance to complete Syrian domination of Lebanon.

The Syrian bombardment of East Beirut has ceased under pressure from a strong United Nations resolution and the threat of Israeli intervention.

By diplomatic word and military deed, the Israelis have served notice that they will not abide Syria's conquest of Lebanon and the military threat this would pose along the once peaceful northern border.

A war between Syria and Israel over Lebanon could very well abort Egypt's peace treaty with Israel.

Thus, despite unusual optimism in Washington over the construction of a treaty which could end 30 years of bloodshed in the Sinai, peace in the Middle East is yet hostage to violence.

This uncertainty should make the world all the more grateful if President Carter, President Sadat and Prime Minister Begin are able to consummate a treaty as planned in November.

The eyes of the world most certainly will remain glued on the turbulent Middle East, which has known nothing but war for generations, despite the optimism which has spread far and wide in recent weeks. The prayers of the Christian world are for a lasting peace in the Mideast.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Press knows Burger's feeling

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Among the dubious legacies left by Richard Nixon is the virulent almost pathological hatred he felt for the press.

The Nixon gang, of course, no longer rules the Executive Branch. But an heir to the former president's distaste for reporters is still solidly entrenched in a position of power. He is the man Nixon appointed to head the Supreme Court, Chief Justice Warren Burger.

In an earlier column, we detailed some of the astonishing — and disturbing — evidence of Burger's malevolence toward the press. In conversations with newsmen he openly gloated over the jailing, without trial, of a New York Times reporter in a First Amendment case that is expected to come before the high court.

The atmosphere of mutual distrust and ill will that poisoned relations between the press and the White House during the Nixon years has now enveloped the marble majesty of the Supreme Court. The petty vindictiveness that Nixon visited upon members of the press who displeased him has surfaced again in Burger's treatment of reporters.

Despite his frequent wailing that routine duties consume too much of his time, there is one small chore the chief justice is rarely too busy to oversee personally: the seating assignments for the press section of the courtroom. More than one reporter told us that after they had filed stories critical of the court, they found themselves assigned seats in the rear, where they could neither see nor hear.

Barrett McGurn, the court's press officer, is the Ron Ziegler of the Burger regime. Like Nixon's loyal press secretary, McGurn is a faithful reflection of his master's view that the press should be given only what Burger wants them to have, not what they ask for.

McGurn's technique, when confronted with a question he doesn't want to answer, is a form of Nixonian stonewall: Instead of refusing comment, he answers a different question, as if he hadn't understood the real one.

One reporter, thinking McGurn might not have heard him correctly, kept repeating his question. The press officer, like a telephone-answering tape recording, just kept repeating his irrelevant, unresponsive reply.

As another victim of McGurn's non sequiturs put it: "Your first impression is that they're putting you on. Your second impression is that they're insulting your intelligence."

Reporters also complain that when McGurn does deign to answer a question, the information is not always dependable. The physical health of the justices, most of them elderly men, is a matter of legitimate public concern. Yet according to the senior court correspondent, Lyle Denniston of the Washington Star, "I can't remember a single illness in the last three years where at least one fact was not given in a faulty manner."

McGurn regularly underplays the seriousness of any injuries or sicknesses that befall the justices and exaggerates the bright side, ac-

ish Americans in the media, but virtually all practice the trade with no

For my money, it's unfortunate source of the continuing, tragic conflict which Camp David did not cording to Denniston. When reporters try to get the straight story from other-sources, such as hospitals, they are referred back to McGurn.

One of Richard Nixon's first actions after taking office was to wiretap members of the press in an attempt to discover— and dry up— the sources of information leaks. McGurn is widely believed to be Chief Justice Burger's "human wiretap."

Although they offered us no proof, some reporters are convinced that McGurn spies on them for Burger. He listens to the reporters' conversations in the press room and whips off a memo to Burger whenever one of the newsmen makes a disparaging remark about a member of the court. The belief is so strong that newcomers are warned that whatever they say in McGurn's presence could be passed on to the chief justice.

McGurn did not deny that he has written such memos. He told us only that he would "not discuss the internal workings of the court"

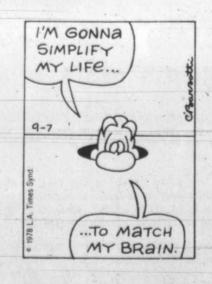

ternal workings of the court."

Any member of the Nixon staff who hobnobbed with the press was instantly suspect, so few took the risk. The same attitude seems to prevail in the Burger empire. Court employees are afraid to talk with reporters, or even to be seen near them.

One reporter recalled a court employee moving out of a line to avoid standing next to him. When the reporter asked why, the employee said, "Somebody got in real trouble the other day for sitting with (GBS correspondent) Fred Graham."

Footnote: In fairness, the chief justice has introduced several procedures to make it easier for reporters to interpret the court's decisions. It should be pointed out, however, that this was also a standard practice of President Nixon's press advisers. They went to great lengths to see that reporters' "creature comforts" were taken care of while denying them the hard information they sought. Burger's defenders, however, insisted that he is a "dedicated" and "conscientious" jurist.

"Well, there seems to be more than usual. White-collar stuff. You know, federal employees ripping off the government; congressmen and senators taking money they shouldn't; contractors being accused of payoffs; not to mention the usual stuff of legitimate companies being indicted for violating every law in the book."

The Godfather said, "I imagine the FBI must be working day and night finding out who is doing what to whom down there."

"They're pretty busy, because every time a scandal breaks the President or Congress asks the FBI to investigate it. It gets them off the hook"

"That's what I figured," he said. "I was wondering why it was so quiet around here. My people said it was too quiet and something was up. But I said, 'Just read the papers. The Feds don't have time to fight organized crime. They got too much to do in Washington investigating their own people. They got nobody left to find out what we're up to.'"

"I think you're right, Godfather. I haven't heard one FBI man or Justice Department lawyer mention the mob since the Watergate scandal broke."

"I know I'm right. I used to have round-the-clock surveillance in front of my house. Four guys in a car at one time, and they took movies of everyone going in and out. Now there's one gumshoe comes on Thursdays and takes three Polaroid pictures, and you don't see him again for a month."

"Does it bother you, Godfather?"
"When you're in the big-time rackets you like to be taken seriously. The soldiers in the family are losing respect for me. They figure if the Feds aren't interested in what I'm up to, I can't be that important. How can I keep everyone in line if the Justice Department acts like I'm not a threat?"

"You have a good point," I said.
"What can I do, Godfather?"

"I want you to tell my boys — they only read the sports pages — why the Justice Department don't have time for people like us any more. I want you to explain that there's so much stealing going on in Washington, all the resources of the FBI have been mobilized to root out corruption in the government. That's why they've put people like me on the back burner. Tell 'em that the Justice Department still considers me a menace to society, but they just don't have the legal talent to find out what I'm up to."

"I'll do it, Godfather. After all it's the truth. There's just so many FBI agents to go around and they have to clean up their own backyard before they go picking on strangers."

"I want you to know I appreciate you doing this," the Godfather said. "I never forget a favor. Can I hijack a truckload of cigarettes for your

"It's fun to talk with folks who seem to have a better grasp of what you've said than you do."

Mark Russell says

There was split-second timing surrounding Ian Smith's visit to Washington. The day he arrived, Jimmy Carter sent the red carpet out to be cleaned.

As Smith rode down Pennsylvania Avenue, the sidewalks were lined with Sen. Hayakawa throwing a handful of confetti.

Then, standing in the vast chamber of the House of Representatives, Smith addressed a joint dozen of Congress.

Before leaving, Ian Smith passed out gifts including one for Andy Young — a Pinto and a full tank of gas.

NICK THIMMESCH

The 'PLO' and 'Zionism' are misunderstood labels

WASHINGTON — Recently I heard two disparate groups — the Palestinian Liberation Organization and Zionists — characterized in terms that disturbed me, even more so because one of the descriptives was uttered by James Earl Carter Jr., 54, President of the United States.

Mr. Carter, responding to a question, compared the PLO with the Ku Klux Klan, the Communist Party and Nazis, and remarked that, "It would be nice for us if they would just go away." But he defended the PLO's "right to speak" in the U.S.

About the same time, some visiting Arab journalists asked me about the "powerful influence" of Zionists in the U.S., particularly, as they put it, "in the Zionist press." Since we're going to be living with Palestinians and Zionists for a long time, it might be helpful to consider these simplistic labels.

The term, PLO, causes most Americans to envisage bluebearded desperados wielding knives, guns and grenades, as they commit mayhem and massacre. It is true, that there are several fedayeen ("sacrificial martyrs") groups loosely connected to the umbrella organization called the Palestinian Liberation Organization, with Yassir Arafat the more-or-less chairman.

These fedayeen organizations and other Palestinian groups have committed all manner of atrocities, killing people wantonly and brutally. Israel is the prime target, although other nations have suffered this vio-

But the PLO, while often beating its chest, is such a scattershot outfit that its single purpose cannot accurately be described as terrorism. The PLO makes loud noises about how it will one day establish an Arab-dominated state of Palestine, where Moslems, Jews and Christians will live side-by-side in secular peace.

With a membership of 350 on its central and national councils, whose meetings are infrequent and chaotic, the PLO is indeed a melange which Arafat has small control over. And yet virtually all 3.2 million Palestinians in the world feel that the PLO represents them, and are happy that it has been given observer status at the United Nations.

In a sense, the PLO is a vicarious state of mind. It operates a research center in Beirut, as a political section. A Red Crescent (like the Red Cross) maintains schools and orphanages, publishes clandestine newspapers and operates a radio station — all as though it were a legitimate state, which it isn't which it isn't.

Now, President Carter realizes it was unfortunate to liken the PLO to the Nazis and Ku Klux Klan, though the terroristic factions in the PLO are just as brutal as those monstrous political movements.

The Arab world deeply resented Mr. Carter's characterization because it gave the impression that all Palestinians were killers. In truth, only a tiny percentage of Palestinians are active in either military or terrorist units.

In terms of atrocities, it was much the same with Zionists 30 years ago when small numbers of them used terrorist tactics in the struggle to establish Israel. They were regarded as bad guys then — the Irgun ad Stern Gang — but today they are celebrated as "freedom fighters." The point is that all Palestinians are not terrorists, nor were all Zionists.

A Zionist, as I tried to explain to the Arab journalists, must roughly be regarded as a person who believes in the creation and existence of a Jewish state. In that sense, nearly all Americans, including me, are Zionists. One could even say that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is too, because he now recognizes Israel.

As I also told the Arab journalists, the charge that "Zionists" control the American press is specious. The quick target of this nonsense has been the Sulzberger and Ochs families of the New York Times, and Katharine Graham, publisher of the Washington

But The Times and its owners always strongly opposed Zionism, and only accepted Israel after it was established. As for Mrs. Graham, her father, Eugene Meyer, was born Jewish but did nothing to sustain such affiliation. Her mother, Agnes Ernst, was Lutheran and married Meyer in a Lutheran ceremony. Meyer never allowed the Post to champion the Zionist cause, and today it finds many occasions to criticize Israel.

pros can be as wrong as amateurs, and even more so. But since they are listened to, if only because they shout the loudest, you might as well hear the word early. First, the stock market. While prices of food, real estate, art, collectibles, gold and most everything else have soared in the past decade, the Dow Jones industrial average remains stuck.

Eventually, it is said, this situation will correct itself as investors recognize that the industrial superstructure of America is available at bargain

This viewpoint assumes the bargains will be recognized, not just by institutions, but by millions of liquid individual investors who for several years have been reluctant to have anything to do with

Adding more thrust, according to this approach to the market, is a growing distrust of currencies, not just dollars, by wealthy foreigners who already have lost too much by holding paper.

Foreigners have been active in the U.S. real estate market over the past few years, buying not only commercial real estate but private residences, too.

In doing so, they have forced up prices wildly In search of better buys elsewhere, it is said, they will discover that in relation to earnings, some of the world's finest companies are selling for only half what they might have sold for by 1965 standards. In the market, it is said, investors can benefit doubly: By the eventual recovery of the dollar and by the recovery of the market itself.

To a degree, the assumptions made in theory No. 1 overlap those in No. 2.

Because of its annual 10 percent to 12 percent appreciation in the past five years or so, residential real estate is believed to have drawn considerable money that otherwise might have gone into stocks. Some stock market analysts now say the appreciation in housing is approaching a temporary peak, with buyers rebeling against asking prices that have doubled in six years or less. In many instances, it is said, the buyer is in a position to resist because, already owning two or three houses, he is not forced to buy to put a roof over his head. His interest in housing is as an investor. If the anticipated return is not good, the analysts argue, the residential real estate prospector will not put up his money; he will search elsewhere for an investment and let the house rot on its lot. There are those, however, who claim stock market people are poor real estate analysts, that while they might know what is going on in Wall Street, they have no understanding of what is happening on

Among other things, these critics say that demographics, lifestyles, geographic mobility, and control and security of investment provide an unsinkable concrete base beneath the real estate market.

Maybe so, but perhaps it does not even matter that much. In order to be right, professional analysts need not produce the most penetrating and correct reasons for their assumptions.

Longshot lovers bet on Czarists

By FLOYD NORRIS

NEW YORK (AP) -Looking for a longshot investment? How about betting on the Czars staging a comeback in Russia?

Some investors seem to be doing just that by purchasing Imperial Russian bonds - issued in dollars when the Czars ruled Russia and repudiated after the Bolshevik Revolution. The bonds, like those from Cuba and what now is East Germany, are unlikely to pay off anytime soon. But that was what they said about bonds from other Eastern European countries. Those nations since have repaid investors partially for their securities.

Before those settlements, "the bonds could be had for as little as 2 to 5 cents on the dollar. Ultimately these bonds were worth 30 to 40 cents on the dollar," said Jack Golden, a vice president at Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis.

The Russian bonds, in two issues totaling $75 million, were issued in 1916 - a year before Imperial Russia ceased to exist

The Soviet government has never shown any inclination to make good on the bonds, but that hasn't stopped the specu-

"After the war (World War II), people had the idea maybe Russia was going to make good because we helped them during the war," said Stanley Roggenburg, the president of Deltec Securities. Prices rose to as high as 22 cents on the dollar. Prices fell with the Cold War. But indications of friendlier relations in the mid-1960s sent prices as high as a dime on the dollar.

"There are all sorts of psychologies involved," said Golden, adding, "I personally don't think the chances (of the Russians offering a settlement) are even remote.

"We're hopeful, but we're hopeful to the extent that hope springs eternal," said Daniel Collier, a vice president of Carl Marks and Co., a firm that has long had substantial holdings of many defaulted bonds. including the Russian

Pressure by the American government appears to have played at least some role in persuading such Eastern European countries as Hungary, Poland, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria to settle on bonds issued by predecessor governments between the two world wars.

But there is little indication that, with all the issues pending between the U.S. and the Soviets. the United States has much concern about speculators in Czarist bonds.

Some people see hope in the Foreign Sovereignties Immunities Act of 1976. By some interpretations, that law would allow the holder of some Czarist bonds to sue the Russians in U.S. court and seize a Russian asset, say a cargo of grain, as security. But the law has never been tested.
