Troops find bodies in Guyana colony

By MARTIN MERZER

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — Between 300 and 400 bodies — men, women and children who reportedly lined up for doses of poison brewed in a tub — have been found at the jungle camp of a California sect whose members ambushed and killed five Americans, including California Congressman Leo J. Ryan, Guyana's information minister said today.

whereabouts of the remaining 500 to 700 Americans at the camp was not known, but they apparently fled into the surrounding jungle, in the north west corner of this South American nation.

Well known American lawyer Mark Lane, who was at the People's Temple camp just before the mass deaths occurred, told The Associated Press here today that suicide was discussed at a community meeting and he was later informed by two sect members, "We are all going to die now."

"They were smiling — they looked genuinely happy," Lane said.

It was not clear whether the mass deaths occurred at about the same time or some time after the Saturday ambush of Ryan and his group, which had gone to the camp to investigate reports of alleged large scale abuse of sect members.

Ryan's party was trying to escort some disenchanted members from the camp when it was attacked at a nearby airstrip.

Adherents of the People's Temple, whose founder, the Rev. Jim Jones, established the agricultural commune last year, reportedly had long planned mass suicide if they felt their sect was threatened.

The hundreds of bodies were found by Guyanese troops who raided the camp Sunday. Miss Field Ridley said some had gunshot wounds but most showed no signs of violence.

A witness said that people in the area were having mass suicide, she said at a news conference. "He said the poison was being administered to them, that they were lining up for it." It was not known what kind of poison, reportedly brewed in a tub, was used.

She said the military was trying to identify the bodies, some of which were found in homes and some in open areas of the camp, called Jonestown.

The information minister also denied reports that up to nine persons had been arrested in connection with the ambush of Ryan's party.

Only one suspect — identified as Larry Layton, an American about 32 years old — has been taken into custody, she said. Neither the charge against him nor his hometown was known.

Ryan, accompanied by aides, reporters and relatives of some sect members, came to this former British colony on the northeastern shoulder of South America last week to investigate reports of large scale abuses of members of the religious group.

The congressman, 53, was killed by a shotgun blast as he attempted to take several disenchanted members of the sect back to Georgetown by plane.

A knife-wielding assailant had attempted to stab Ryan earlier while the congressman was visiting Jonestown. Two members of Ryan's group disarmed the attacker, and Ryan was not injured.

The dead included three newsmen and one of the settlement's defectors. Ten persons were wounded, three seriously, and the husband of one of the wounded had a stroke. The U.S. Embassy said they were all Americans.

Survivors of the attack said a band of black and white members of the People's Temple opened fire with automatic weapons and shotguns as Ryan and his party were boarding planes at the Port Kaituma airstrip, eight miles south of Jonestown and 100 miles northwest of Georgetown.

In San Francisco, a People's Temple spokesman who identified himself as Arthur James denied members of the sect did the airport killings.

The dead were Ryan, reporter Don Harris, 42, and cameraman Robert Brown, 36, both of NBC News and both Los Angeles residents, Gregory Robinson, 27, a photographer for the San Francisco Examiner, and Patricia Parks or Parker, 18, who was trying to escape from Jonestown. Her home address was not known.

A White House statement said President Carter was saddened by Ryan's death.

Leader of colony admits to violence

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Rev. Jim Jones told Jaspers today that there was violence in his peaceful colony in an interview conducted before sect members killed five people on a remote airstrip in Guyana and committed mass suicide, the San Francisco Chronicle said today.

The 46-year-old founder of the People's Temple said that temple members used guns and rifles and were beaten to maintain discipline.

He was depressed and talked about suicide in an hour-long interview with Chronicle reporter Ron Jaspers on Friday.

The following day, Jaspers was wounded in the gunfire that killed Rep. Leo J. Ryan and four members of a 15-member delegation investigating the South American jungle colony. Ten others were wounded.

Sunday night, Guyanese officials reported that up to 100 bodies had been found at the sect's Jonestown camp, apparently dead of poison.

"I gave all I had to this program," Jones told Jaspers. "But obviously there is a conspiracy against me."

At another point in the interview, he said, "Somebody has shot at me."

He also told Jaspers that "every agency in the United States government has tried to give me a hard time."

And they were doing that while I was taking addicts and pushing off the streets and giving them a life here," he said.

Jones said that followers were beaten to maintain discipline in a settlement filled with former gang members.

"We haven't had beatings for many months — more than a year. Not even spankings. Now we withdraw privileges."

"I have been beaten too," he said. "I live for the people. I'm trying to save. But people play games and tell lies."

Asked about the presence of weapons in the colony, Jones said, "Guns, yes. But how many, I don't know."

Catch-up: You could find yourself alone in the office and play catch-up. Surprise, the boss, the family and yourself, and finally establish that work-abandonment order can be insane.

Take a long-awaited trip, design sight-seeing, and come back to work totally exhausted.

Do something actively sporting. Have a field day on a hunting, camping, hiking or picture shooting day. Prove that exhaustion is just a fun day away.

Make up for lost sleep. Make up for the lost sleep incurred by long hours of devotion at work or too much time at the party. Maybe the boss or business shouldn't have been so kind, and should have kicked the guests out long before the tired, yawning, lathered into a drowsy morning.

Arm-chairism: Spend the day proving that Turkey Day can be about any Sunday in watching football over the reliable television set-up from the grand stand.

Best of all: Prove that a holiday is really worth the time off. Give some thanks, which is what that free day is all about, for the good times and for those bad times when you summoned the best in yourself and others.

And find much thanks for the family. This is at the heart of Thanks-giving.

Next best: Just take it easy and, if you can bear the bromide, let the "morrow" take care of itself.

Soon, all 'users' of Plains water will have to 'pay the piper'

Editor's Note: The question is: Are the quality and quantity of West Texas water adequate to support future growth? Today in the second of a seven-part series, The Reporter-Telegram reports on the area water situation in terms of skyrocketing costs.

Most water resource experts foresee an imminent water crisis on the Texas High Plains.

And the experts are in agreement on at least one other major point — consumers throughout the region, the state and the nation are going to have to "pay the piper" as an exhaustive search for more water continues.

Whether the Texas High Plains, which includes Midland County, does or does not find adequate water supplies to last through immediately upcoming years, the consumer still is going to feel it in his pocketbook.

U.S. and Texas officials say they are willing to spend any amount of money to preserve the economic stability of this region — a major agricultural and oil production center of America.

Meanwhile, the Ogallala Aquifer gradually is being depleted.

Sometime within the next 20 years, the Texas High Plains will lose half of its potential for irrigation...irrigation with water which largely comes from the Ogallala, a multi-state underground water-bearing formation.

When and if this happens, the rest of the nation and perhaps the world will be affected.

The logic seems inescapable. When food supplies, gas and oil dwindle, it's bound to affect the lifestyles of persons living in New York, though those persons may not have the least con-

County Clerk to ask for grand jury probe

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
R-T Staff Writer

Although the election took place almost two weeks ago, the county commissioner's race for Precinct 2 in Midland remains in limbo.

Republican Sam Snoddy today announced he is contesting the results of the election announced Friday after a recheck.

County Clerk Rosanelle Cherry said about 1 p.m. today she is asking for a grand jury investigation into the Precinct 2 race. Her request, in letter form, was to be presented later today to District Judge Perry D. Pickett.

Although Snoddy was declared winner in the first count, the latest results showed his opponent, Charlie Welch, to have won the election.

Ironically, the recount indicated Welch was the victor by the same margin Snoddy originally had "won" by — 21 votes.

"In view of the questions that have been raised and because I believe Midlanders will not be satisfied until these questions are answered, I am announcing my intention to have a thorough investigation undertaken," Snoddy said.

"It is my understanding that the Election Code entitles me to 30 days after the results were declared to file legal notice of a contest. On the advice of my attorney, because of the possibility of legal action, I will be unable to comment further on the election until the investigation has been completed."

At his 11 a.m. news conference today, Snoddy refused further comment on his action.

Snoddy had opposed Democrat incumbent Welch in the general election. Vote totals after the election Nov. 7 had Snoddy ahead, 2,496 to Welch's 2,475.

Welch, who has served Precinct 2 as commissioner 10 years, announced two days later, on Nov. 10, that he wanted the votes rechecked. He made his request, he said at the time, at the urging of his Democratic supporters.

Because of the slim margin between the two, Welch said the Election Code provided he could have the recheck with no problem.

The voting machines were checked last Thursday, and the paper ballots were recounted Friday. While the machines showed no difference in totals, a three-hour check of the paper ballots resulted in an exact reversal of the election outcome.

The readjusted figures put Welch at 2,461 votes received to Snoddy's 2,443.

Welch, who was interviewed today shortly after Snoddy's announcement, said he had "no comment to make."

Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith, on his way to see County Clerk Rosanelle Cherry, said he had received several calls this morning about the outcome of the Friday recount.

Smith said he would be checking the records to see "if there has been something done in violation of the Election Code."

His job, Smith said, is to seek answers and find out if any type of criminal action had been committed in the vote counting.

"I know of no definite illegal activities," he said. "But that is why you investigate it."

Begin says he will recommend rejection of peace timetables

By LIBBY ZNAIMER

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin says he'll recommend that his Cabinet reject Egypt's demand for a timetable for solving the Palestinian problem but will ask it to reaffirm its willingness to sign a peace treaty with Egypt.

The Cabinet adjourned its regular weekly meeting Sunday without taking a decision on the Egyptian demand. It was to reconvene Tuesday to continue discussions of the stalled Egyptian-Israeli negotiations in Washington.

The Sunday meeting came on the anniversary of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's historic visit to Jerusalem last year, which opened the way to the current negotiations. Palestinian guerrillas, who have been sharply critical of Sadat's solo peace drive, marked the date with a barrage of bombs aimed at Israeli targets.

One bomb exploded in a crowded bus traveling through the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, killing four persons and wounding 37 Belgians, Canadians, Swedes and Britons were among the casualties, but there were no Americans.

A second bomb injured two Israelis in the Tel Aviv suburb of Jaffa. A third, found at a busy Jerusalem intersection, was disarmed.

Begin, calling Egypt's demand for a timetable "unacceptable," told a meeting of his Herut Party Central Committee he was ready to sign the treaty as it stood before Egypt made its latest demand last week. "We will never agree to timetables," Begin said.

Both sides have agreed that one month after signing a treaty they will start negotiations on the powers and responsibilities of a semi-autonomous Palestinian government to govern the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Egypt's later demand for a specific timetable appeared aimed at answering criticism from other Arabs that it has abandoned the Palestinian cause.

Begin received a hostile reception when he arrived for the party meeting in Tel Aviv. Angry Jewish settlers from the occupied territories and other Israelis bombarded his car with rocks and eggs.

$3.5 billion bond issue which would have financed a water plan to haul Mississippi River water to the Texas Panhandle and eastern New Mexico.

"The costs of water are going to continue to rise even if we didn't have to develop new supplies," according to Herbert W. Grubb, director of planning and development for the Texas Department of Water Resources.

"We're faced with the serious prospect of the cost of water going way up."

Grubb said there are three major factors which generally increase the cost of water:

— Availability. Most Texas cities have grown accustomed to having nearby water resources. The farther away a water resource is, the more water is going to cost the consumer.

Three newsmen killed in ambush had won numerous press awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The three newsmen killed with Congressman Leo J. Ryan in an ambush in Guyana had received numerous awards for their reporting and photography.

Don Harris, 41, an investigative reporter for NBC television in Los Angeles, came here from Dallas in 1973 to work for the local NBC affiliate as a reporter and co-anchor for the weekend news.

While in Dallas, Harris was honored by the Texas Associated Press Broadcaster's Association in 1973 for exposures of inadequate airport security and scandalous emergency hospital admissions practices. He was working for station WFAA at the time.

He also won a local Emmy for his reporting during riots in Washington, D.C., following the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark subpoenaed 22,000 feet of film he had taken during the riot, claiming it contained incriminating information. Harris at first turned over out-takes to his news director at station WTOG, but he quickly got them back and dumped them in the Potomac River.

Harris later said he destroyed the film because much of it was obtained on the promise that it would never be used against the subjects in court.

Harris grew up in the south Georgia town of Vidalia. He was known as Darwin Humphrey then, but took the name Don Harris because it was easier to say on the air and easier for people to remember, said his uncle, Dr. A.J. Morris.

Greg Robinson, 27, had been a photographer with the San Francisco Examiner for the past three years.

Robert Brown, 36, had been a cameraman with NBC News since April.

In 16 years of politics, Ryan never skirted danger

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rep. Leo Ryan, killed in an ambush at a remote airstrip in Guyana, never backed away from danger in 16 years in politics, says a friend, and the People's Temple jungle colony in Guyana was no exception.

Ryan, a 53-year-old California Democrat, was shot and killed in an ambush Saturday while investigating whether Americans were being held against their will at the People's Temple at Jonestown in northwest Guyana. Three newsmen and a young woman also were killed Saturday as they prepared to fly out with residents unhappy with the colony.

Dan Cook, a congressional investigator and a close personal friend of Ryan's, said in a choked voice from Washington, D.C., Sunday that Ryan had received a telegram from Guyana which was "openly hostile" to his visit.

"His trip there was in keeping with his practice of going to see for himself, to check out the problems of the people he represented," Joe Holsinger, his administrative aide and a long-time friend, said Sunday.

"He knew he would not be welcomed with open arms, but he certainly didn't expect such a senseless thing as this," Cook said.

A White House statement said President Carter was saddened by Ryan's death. "It was this drive to get his information at first-hand that led to his tragic death," the statement said in part.

Ryan and a small group of reporters, Temple attorneys and relatives of people inside the compound flew to Guyana Nov. 13 to investigate reports that American citizens were being held against their will at the Temple settlement that is led by the Rev. Jim Jones.

The 27,000-acre agricultural settlement, Jonestown, was founded by Jones over a year ago as a commune-like home for his flock.

Born in Lincoln, Neb., Ryan spent his college years at Creighton University and worked in several Nebraska schools before moving to California. He taught at Capuchino High School in San Bruno a few miles south of here before his election to the state Assembly from the 27th District.

Ryan was known as a man who liked to get involved in things of importance to his constituents. Their causes became his causes.

In 1966 Ryan dived into the cauldron of Watts in Los Angeles after the deadly riots there to teach in a Watts high school for two weeks to check on educational conditions.

In 1970 he spent an eight-day "sentence" in Folsom Prison to find out what it was like to live as a caged man.

Environment and ecology also were matters of importance to Ryan. He helped write a law prohibiting the sale of seal skins in California in an effort to halt the annual harvest of baby seals.

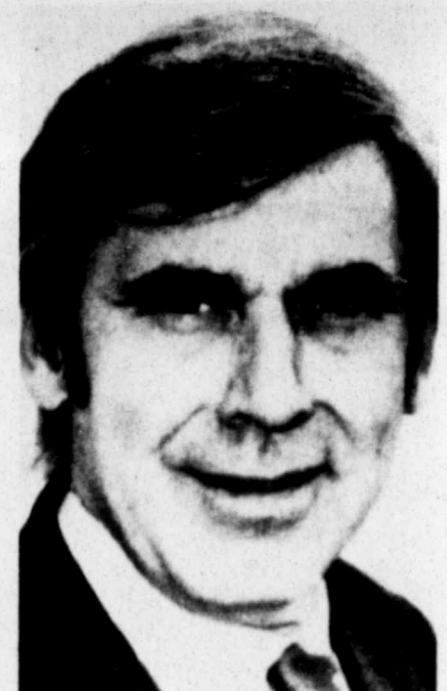

This year he traveled to Newfoundland at the invitation of the Greenpeace Foundation to inspect first-hand the hunting of harp seal pups. His opposition to the seal harvest earned him the International Wildlife Foundation's "Man of the Year" award.

But the journey to Guyana was the most dangerous of all.

"He knew it was relatively dangerous," said Pat Ryan, 25, one of the congressman's five children. "But that never stopped him before. This was something he had been working on for a long time."

The Ryan children had maintained an all-night vigil at the family home in Burlingame, south of here.

"A setting of 68° during the winter is the one Texas Electric recommends for both comfort and energy efficiency.

For each degree above 68° the energy used for heating your house is increased by approximately 4% per degree.

As shown by the chart the difference between the recommended thermostat setting and 74° is 24%. At 78° the increase in energy usage is 40% or more.

Clearly, the lower you set your thermostat the lower your heating bill is going to be. And after last winter, one of the coldest on record, we think a lot of people are going to be trying their best to use less energy.

Remember to change the filter in your heating system regularly, too. A dirty filter causes your heating system to work longer and that costs you more. Check the filter at least once each month.

All forms of energy are costing more these days. If you're serious about saving energy and money, request a copy of our energy efficiency tips booklet on the comment portion of your electric service bill."

New law making college aid easier for middle class

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A new federal law should make it easier for middle-income families to get help in paying college bills — if they can wade through the paperwork to find out whether they qualify for aid.

"We advise any student who thinks he or she may be eligible for aid to apply," said Skee Smith of the U.S. Office of Education.

Legislation passed by Congress and signed by President Carter is expected to make an additional 1.5 million students eligible for Basic Educational Opportunity Grants from the federal government.

Here's how the program works: To apply for a grant you must fill in one of three forms: the Family Financial Statement (FFS) distributed by the American College Testing Program, the Financial Aid Form (FAF) issued by the College Scholarship Service of the College Board or the 1979-1980 Application for Determination of Basic Grant Eligibility.

Both the FFS and the FAF can be used to determine eligibility for other types of aid; if you use these forms to apply for a basic grant, make sure you check the appropriate box. Contact the financial aid officer at each school you are considering to find out which form is preferred and to ask about additional sources of help.

You can apply for a basic grant for the 1979-80 academic year between Jan. 1, 1979, and March 15, 1980. The forms are generally available from school counselors.

Within six weeks after you apply, you should receive a Student Eligibility Report, indicating whether you qualify for a grant and estimating the amount. When you are accepted at a college or university, take the form to the financial aid officer who will fill in the actual amount of the grant and arrange for payment.

The new law — which takes effect with the 1979-80 academic year — means that students from families with incomes of up to $25,000 should be able to qualify for basic grants. In the past, students from families with incomes of more than $15,000 generally were not eligible for this type of help.

These dollar figures, however, are just guidelines. Eligibility is based on a complicated formula that takes into account the amount of taxes a family pays, unusual expenses, number of wage earners and number of children in college and assets such as savings accounts or equity in a house. The information used is the information you provide on your application form.

Joe Case of the College Board, a non-profit testing and financial services association, explained that an eligibility index is calculated for each student. The amount of aid you get depends on a number of factors, including school costs and whether you are a full-time student. As a general rule, however, an index of zero makes you eligible for the maximum grant; an index of 1,600 qualifies you for the minimum. An index of over 1,600 rules you out.

Case said the index is based on three components: discretionary income, which is total parental income less allowances; net parental assets; and student assets. The index is calculated by determining how big a contribution to education costs a family can be expected to make in terms of its income and assets.

The new law makes two basic changes in the formula: it increases the amount of assets that can be exempted from calculations and it decreases the percentage of income the family is expected to contribute. Here's an example using a hypothetical family with one wage earner and one student in college:

Assume the parents have a discretionary income of $10,000 a year. (That would be typical, Case said, for a family with a total income in the high teens.) Under the old law, the family would have been expected to contribute 20 percent of the first $5,000 — or $1,000 — plus 30 percent of everything over $5,000 — another $1,500. Under the new law, Case said, the family will be expected to contribute only 10 1/2 percent of the full $10,000 — or $1,050.

Now assume the family has $20,000 worth of equity in a house, plus $10,000 in other assets. Under the old law, $17,000 of this amount would have been exempt from consideration. The family would have been expected to contribute 5 percent of the remaining $13,000 in assets or $650. The new law allows an exemption of $25,000; the family contribution is only $250.

The third component of the index — student assets — is not affected by the new law. The contribution rate for this category is 33 percent. Suppose the student in our hypothetical family has a savings account with $300. He or she would be expected to contribute $99.

Add the contributions: $1,050 from parental income; $250 from parental assets; $99 from student assets. Ignore the dollar signs and you get an index of 1,399. The student would be eligible for a grant.

Court proceedings begin today in Jeremy Thorpe case

MINEHEAD, England (AP) — Court proceedings start today against the former leader of Britain's Liberal Party, Jeremy Thorpe, accused of plotting to kill a former male model who claims they were lovers.

Three local magistrates will determine if the prosecution's case against Thorpe and three other men is strong enough for them to be committed to trial before a jury. The committal hearing is expected to last two or three weeks.

Thorpe, 49, is charged with murder of Norman Scott, 37, and with inciting a close friend, David Holmes, 48, to kill Scott. The maximum punishment on each charge is 10 years in prison.

Holmes, a wealthy banker and financial consultant who was deputy treasurer of the small, middle-of-the-road Liberal Party; night-club owner George Deakin, 35, and John Le Mesurier, 45, part owner of a carpet warehouse, are charged with conspiring with Thorpe.

All four have been free on bail of $10,000 each since they were charged on Aug. 4. They do not have to plead guilty or innocent or give evidence during this hearing, but their attorneys are expected to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses.

The proceedings are being held in Minehead, a sleepy town of 8,000 people in southwest England, because the alleged conspiracy was hatched in the neighborhood.

Thorpe was leader of the Liberals from 1967 until May 10, 1976, when he was pressured into resigning after the first allegations of the Scott scandal began to emerge.

He led the Liberals to their biggest electoral success since World War II in the general election of Feb. 28, 1974, when they won 14 of the 635 seats in the House of Commons.

Holmes was a friend of Thorpe at Oxford University, was best man at his first wedding in 1968 and is godfather to his son Rupert.

Thorpe has repeatedly denied that he had a homosexual relationship with Scott, who will be among at least 10 prosecution witnesses at the committal proceedings.

Gen. David C. Jones

Mobilization test leaves doubts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. David C. Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, says that a recent month-long mobilization test of the military has left him concerned "about the readiness of our forces."

Jones said Sunday the exercise turned up problems in the ability to muster the reserve forces and "our ability to expand" the peacetime military structure of about 2.1 million troops.

He added that concern about weaknesses in the nation's mobilization system led the Joint Chiefs of Staff to tell Defense Secretary Harold Brown they favor a revival of draft registration so the United States would be more ready to mobilize in a crisis.

However, they stopped short of advocating a resumption of the draft which ended in 1973. Jones said the senior military chiefs also favor other moves, including classification of military-age youths and possibly physical, mental and other examinations, so they would be ready to move quickly in event of an emergency.

While not advocating an immediate resumption of the draft itself, he said the system should be available in case of a crisis.

A new draft structure, he added, "would try to eliminate inequities" that existed in the draft during the Vietnam War. He estimated it would cost "a few million dollars" to reactivate the draft registration and classification system.

Military observers have long known that the military chiefs were unhappy with weaknesses in the mobilization system since the draft ended.

According to Army estimates, it would take seven months from mobilization day to produce the first soldiers, counting training time. The selective service system is now in what is called "deep standby," with only 98 employees in Washington and no state or local structure. Jones, appearing on the CBS program "Face the Nation," confirmed the recent mobilization test demonstrated "a lot of problems. ... I am concerned about the readiness of our forces."

On other matters: —Jones declined to discuss any details of the presence of Soviet-built MIG-23 warplanes in Cuba. He said the matter was "under serious investigation."

—The JCS chairman, an Air Force general, said, "I wouldn't question" the Russian claim to having tested neutron weapons similar to those the United States has developed. But Jones indicated the Russians would not need a neutron weapon since it is primarily designed to defend against a massive tank attack, a tactic the Soviets rely on more than the Western allies.

Rep. Diggs asking for leniency in sentencing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles Diggs, the senior black member of Congress, is asking for leniency in the punishment being meted out for his conviction on 29 counts of mail fraud and making false statements.

The Michigan Democrat, who was to be sentenced today by U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch, had said previously that he will appeal his conviction in the $66,000 scheme.

Diggs, a 12-term congressman reelected with 80 percent of the vote in his Detroit district earlier this month, was found guilty Oct. 7 of inflating the salaries of several staff members and then accepting kickbacks from them to pay business, personal and congressional expenses.

Decline marked in world's population

By ANN BLACKMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's population growth rate, exploding since Adam and Eve, declined in the last decade and experts now predict the population will stabilize earlier than they expected.

This is the first time in history that the growth rate declined, experts say.

A new Census Bureau report on world population, released Sunday, shows the growth rate declined from 2.0 percent in 1966 to 1.9 in 1976.

At the same time, the world's estimated population increased from 3.5 billion in 1967 to 4.3 billion in 1977, the report says.

A zero population growth rate will be reached between the years 2020 and 2025, experts say, instead of a decade later, as had been anticipated.

Samuel Baum, the bureau's top expert on international demography, said the changes are small but very significant.

"These things change slowly," he said in an interview. "Until the last 10 years, the growth rate had been going steadily up, and it had been predicted to continue going up through the 1970s and 1980s."

"This is the beginning of a trend, and it's happening a decade earlier than expected."

Population growth rates have declined in specific areas throughout history, particularly during wartime or in a natural disaster or disease epidemic. But experts say the new figures show the growth rate has declined in almost all areas of the world.

"We do not expect a reversal," Baum said.

A spokesman for the United Nations Fund for Population Activities, Tarzie Vittachi, said of the new data: "This is the first time since Adam that there has been an overall across-the-board decline."

Four found dead after $500 robbery

By HANK LOWENKRON

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "For $500 they took four lives from a group of kids who were trying hard to be good, decent human beings," said the mother of one of four restaurant workers found dead the day after they disappeared in a robbery.

Caroline Friedt's 20-year-old daughter, Jane — who was assistant manager of the Speedway Burger Chef — and three teen-age co-workers were found dead Sunday in woods south of Indianapolis.

Police said they have no leads or suspects in the case and none of the families of the employees was contacted about the disappearance.

State police Trooper Chuck Hibbert said the bodies were discovered by a private citizen on the man's property in Johnson County.

Local news accounts said the four had been shot, although police would not confirm that. The bodies were taken to the county hospital for autopsies.

Police identified the other three victims as Ruth Shelton, 17, and Daniel Davis and Mark Flemmonds, both 16.

The four had been missing since a robbery early Saturday as they were cleaning up. The restaurant had closed at 11 p.m. Friday.

Police said an off-duty employee informed them the restaurant was deserted at 1 a.m. Saturday and the back door had been left open, although the workers weren't scheduled to leave until 2 a.m.

Authorities speculated the robbers forced the four workers to leave the store in Miss Friedt's white Vega, which was discovered abandoned about a mile away.

Oil users will continue to rely on Middle East

By MARK POTTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite large oil fields in Mexico, Alaska and possibly off both coasts of South America, experts say most of the world will continue to rely on Middle Eastern oil for the foreseeable future.

"We know (the Mideast countries) have a lot of oil — a lot of oil," said John H. Lichtblau, director of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, an organization supported by the industry.

Long believed to have proven reserves — petroleum that can be profitably extracted — of about 20 billion barrels of oil, Mexico is now claiming to have as much petroleum as Saudi Arabia — 200 billion barrels, but most analysts say that's an exaggeration.

"A cautiously optimistic estimate would be 60 billion barrels of oil," said Herman T. Franssen, director of international market analysis at the Department of Energy. Sixty billion barrels would supply the needs of the non-Communist world for about three years at current rates of consumption.

But no matter how much oil Mexico has, it won't make it to service stations or furnaces for a long time because the Mexicans don't have the needed production facilities. "It doesn't make any difference for the next eight or 10 years whether they have 100 billion barrels or 200 billion, because they can't develop 200 billion," said Lichtblau.

Potentially large fields could lie off South America, but experts aren't sure how much is there, although they don't expect anything as large as any of the major Middle Eastern fields. Some South American fields have been producing for years in Venezuela, Chile and other countries.

Another large Western Hemisphere oil supply lies in Alaska and Canada. About 25 billion barrels is known to be there, but there could be much more. But much of the oil yet to be found in Alaska and Canada is probably too difficult to get to make it practical. Sites are being tested off the U.S. East Coast, and fields in the Gulf of Mexico and off Southern California have been producing oil for many years. The total proven reserves in the United States are about 30 billion barrels.

Despite new major fields in South America, Mexico and northern Alaska and Canada, the headstart the Middle East has in oil production will assure that it will continue to dominate the world oil scene, experts say. Like the Mexican situation, that scene is one of great confusion over just how much oil there is — and whether it can be extracted at reasonable cost.

"Oil may not run out physically for hundreds of years to come," said Franssen. "The question is how much of the undiscovered reserves will be produced."

"It's hard to tell people there's no resource problem in the world while telling them there's a production problem," Franssen said.

"You can get all the oil you want right now," he said. But he added, "The lead time is going to take so long and be so costly. It's hard for us to comprehend that."

For example, it takes an investment of about $400 to produce a barrel of oil in the Middle East, where petroleum lies close to the surface and is thus easy to get out of the ground. To produce oil from tar sands — which involves separating the oil from the sand — takes an investment of about $25,000 to produce each barrel of oil, according to Franssen.

During the 1950s and 1960s, finds in the Middle East and at the Alaskan North Slope dramatically increased the amount of proven reserves. The discoveries were coming far faster than the oil could be gotten out of the ground.

Since then, the amount of proven reserves has not risen nearly as fast, despite the sharp increase in price during the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo.

And the Middle East oil fields are so huge that they may never be matched. "There probably is only one Middle East," said Franssen. "The era of these huge finds is probably past — the majority of the new finds will be smaller fields."

There is, however, a wild card in the deck. As uncertain as analysts are about oil supplies in the free world, they know almost nothing about reserves in China and Russia.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger recently visited China to discuss oil with Chinese leaders. Many U.S. oil companies have expressed interest in getting involved in production of what are believed to be huge oil fields off the Chinese coast. What oil China decides to export, however, will probably go to Japan and other Southeast Asian nations.

Russia keeps information on its petroleum reserves strictly secret, but enough has slipped out — in applications for loans to pay for production — to indicate that the U.S.S.R. has the world's largest reserves of natural gas, according to Franssen.

Nevertheless, Russia is nearing the end of its easily gotten-to petroleum. That will not affect the U.S.S.R. so much as it will other Communist bloc nations that rely on Russia for oil. They will have to look elsewhere.

As oil prices rise, more reserves will start falling into the "proven" category because the higher price of petroleum will make their exploitation profitable. But because so much oil lies in areas that are impractical to reach even at extremely high prices, analysts look for a gradual slump in world oil production toward the end of this century.

"What happens under most scenarios is that by the time you get to this peaking point the price will get so high that these alternative sources of energy will come onstream," Franssen said. Those alternatives — such as solar power and coal gasification — are currently considered impractical when compared to the price of energy produced from petroleum.

But even a large reserve of oil can be made inaccessible through political or local disputes. Iran, one of the world's largest petroleum producers, was recently taken out of the picture temporarily by a nationwide strike. And the 1973-74 oil embargo showed what a political difference could mean to world oil supply.

Lichtblau puts a lot of weight on political considerations. But, he points out, "If you have a resource constraint there's not an awful lot you can do. If it's a political constraint, you can try to reach a settlement, or wait it out."

"To capture the whole thing with one word, it would be 'uncertainty,'" said Franssen. "There are so many of these uncertainties that it makes it very difficult for us to plan for the future."

Saudi Arabian officials favor oil price freeze

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — Saudi Arabian officials told U.S. Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal they favor continuation of an oil price freeze into 1979, it was reported here Sunday.

Journalists traveling with Blumenthal said the Saudi position was given by Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani at a meeting with Blumenthal in Saudi Arabia and they asked officials here what they thought about the price freeze.

Manaa Said al Otaiba, oil minister for the emirates, said they will back any Saudi stand at next month's meeting of the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Reporters questioning Otaiba at a news conference here said Yamani was quoted by U.S. sources as saying in Jidda, Saudi Arabia, that his nation favored keeping the price of crude oil at $12.70 a barrel for some time. Blumenthal is visiting the oil ministers to explain President Carter's program to stabilize the declining dollar, the currency used for OPEC oil transactions.

At a banquet Sunday night for Blumenthal, Otaiba again told reporters that the United Arab Emirates will take the same position as Saudi Arabia. "We will not allow Saudi Arabia to be isolated," he said. "Even if it is a decision that the others (OPEC members) will not accept, we will support (the Saudis)."

Before leaving Jidda Sunday after two days of talks, Blumenthal told a press conference he expects the Saudis to be moderate at the Dec. 16 meeting. He said, "We look at Saudi Arabia as a vitally important country and a staunch friend of the United States, and both countries can jointly play an important role in stabilizing the economy and situation in the world."

Otaiba, while saying the emirates would follow the Saudi lead, said his nation favored a moderate increase. "A slight increase would not really disturb the market. A large increase would. No country that is wise would go for a large increase now," Otaiba said.

Yamani has said previously he favored a series of moderate price increases, beginning next year. If prices are not increased gradually in the coming years, Yamani said recently, their would be another oil-price shock in the mid-1980s when demand is expected to overtake the supply.

It was unclear whether the Saudis would be ready to fight for an oil price freeze if it meant a renewed split in OPEC. Such a division occurred two years ago when Saudi Arabia and the emirates broke away and forced the other members to accept a 10 percent increase instead of a 15 percent increase.

Otaiba said he did not expect a split this year. Saudi Arabia has the biggest oil reserves among OPEC nations and its vast foreign holdings are heavy in the United States, especially in the form of U.S. Treasury bonds.

Some OPEC members are calling for a 10 percent price increase immediately to offset losses from the dollar's decline.

A rule of thumb is that for every 10 percent increase in a barrel of crude oil, the cost of gasoline in America goes up about a half penny per gallon.

Wildcats planned

HNG Oil Co. of Midland announced plans for a pair of wildcats in Winkler County, three miles southwest of Wink.

The operator will re-enter a former Apollo (Fusselman) well which is bottomed at 20,186 feet and plug back for tests of an unreported zone.

The project, No. 1-21-35 University, is 1,320 feet from north and east lines of section 35, block 21, University Lands survey.

HNG No. 1-35-A University will be drilled one location south of No. 1-21-35 University. It is scheduled for an 8,200-foot bottom.

The location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 35, block 21, University Lands survey.

STERLING TEST
Mesa Petroleum Co. No. 1-8 Foster is to be drilled as a Fusselman wildcat in the Conger (Pennsylvanian) field of Sterling County, 5.5 miles southwest of Sterling City.

Demand, strike forcing some gas prices higher

By The Associated Press

Unusually high demand for gasoline and the effects of the Iranian oil refinery strike are forcing up prices of gasoline and home heating oil in most parts of the country.

And the prices will rise even further if the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries passes an expected increase in crude oil prices when it meets next month.

Motorists in the Chicago area, for example, are paying an average of 79.1 cents per gallon for premium gasoline, up 2 cents from a month ago. In Atlanta, premium prices are up by about 3 cents to more than 80 cents a gallon. But in Seattle, the price of premium gas is about 77.5 cents per gallon, only fractionally higher than a month ago.

Home-heating oil, which cost about 51 cents a gallon a year ago, has risen to an average 53 cents a gallon and as high as 55 cents in some parts of the nation.

"It's terrible," said E.P. Larsen, owner of a small fuel-oil dealership in Rensselaer County in upstate New York. "We've had five price increases since August, and I've heard that the big companies just increased prices again, so we can probably expect another increase." Larsen said his price has risen from 49 cents per gallon to 54 cents since August.

In the Milwaukee area, the average oil price is 49 cents a gallon, up 3 cents in the past couple of months.

The problem started a year ago. The second very cold winter in as many years forced refineries to step up production of distillate oil — used primarily for home heating purposes — at the expense of gasoline production.

This left gasoline supplies at slightly lower-than-usual levels for the summer months, when the situation was complicated by an unexpected increase in gasoline consumption as Americans went on a driving binge.

"We're victims of this beautiful weather," said Herb Hugo, editor of Platt's Oilgram, an industry newsletter.

"We had exceptionally heavy demands (for gasoline) all summer, and then when the weather stayed so good into the fall, the demand kept right up," said Gerald Everett, executive director of the Northwest Petroleum Association in St. Paul, Minn.

Eskimos' suit seeks drilling halt

By MARY LENZ

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — Eskimo whalers have filed suit to stop oil drilling in the Beaufort Sea, considered by some the most promising offshore oil area in the country but also the habitat of the endangered bowhead whale.

The whalers fear oil spills under the ice could wipe out the bowhead, one of the Eskimos' major food sources.

The International Whaling Commission, concerned that the whale was nearing extinction, this year imposed the first-ever quota on the several-thousand-year-old Eskimo hunt of the bowhead.

The drilling going on now is being conducted by Exxon Corp. on a man-made gravel pad in the mouth of the Sagavanirktok River, 200 miles east of Barrow.

Thomas P. Brower, a 73-year-old whaling captain, said, "Noise and pollution from the drilling site threaten the Inupiat with more trouble in hunting whales and fish ... If there were a major blowout, we could be faced with the end of our marine hunting."

The Eskimos are suing the state, the federal government and Exxon on grounds the drilling allegedly began without the required environmental impact statements and water quality certification.

Donald Clocksin, a lawyer representing the hunters of the villages of Barrow, Nulikut and Kaktovik, said the move is the "opening shot in a major battle" against an outer continental shelf oil lease sale tentatively scheduled by the state and federal government for December 1979.

The sale involves 500,000 acres of primarily offshore lands in what the industry considers to be the most promising area in the United States for oil and gas exploration. Geologists have said the amount of oil in the Beaufort Sea could equal or surpass Prudhoe Bay, currently producing 1.2 million barrels a day.

"We're not saying it's impossible to drill up there," Clocksin said. "We're saying don't do it until you can do it right."

Crandall Jones, manager of Exxon USA's Pacific Exploration Division said: "There is no evidence or indication that our operations are harmful to any endangered species. Exxon has drilled and produced oil and gas in many environmentally sensitive areas including Big Cypress Swamp in Florida, the King Ranch in south Texas and Avery Island bird sanctuary."

But the Eskimos say no one knows how to clean an oil spill in Arctic ice or how to stop 30-foot-high ice ridges from pushing wells into the sea.

"The continued demand, along with the fact that the inventories were already a little low from the high demand all summer, all added up to this crunch," Everett said.

The crunch has caused some oil companies to have trouble meeting demand in New England, the Midwest and on the West Coast. Shell, for example, is cutting supplies to stations in the Northeast, and inventories are especially tight in California, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

This and higher refining costs are pushing wholesale gasoline prices up. That's being felt at the retail level.

"It's pure supply and demand, absolutely," said Mark Emond, editor of the Lundberg Letter, a gasoline industry newsletter.

The high demand for gasoline is also creating a crunch in the home-heating oil industry, because refineries were forced to increase gasoline production in late summer, a time when they usually begin to put emphasis on making distillate.

"We're still not seeing the big switch to distillate production," said Larry Goldstein of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, an industry-funded group. "Inventories are not at a comfortable level to go into a heating season."

Mobil announces site for Yoakum explorer

Mobil Oil Corp. spotted its No. 1 Schnably Estate as a 5,600-foot wildcat in Yoakum County, seven miles northeast of Denver City.

The project is 467 feet from north and east lines of section 820, block D, John H. Gibson survey.

The site is 1/2 mile northwest of a 5,760-foot dry hole. There is no nearby production.

OWEGO AREA

C. F. Lawrence & Associates of Midland No. 1-C Valley is to be drilled as a 3,200-foot project 1/2 mile southwest of production in the Owego (Tubby) field of Pecos County, 14 miles west of Girvin.

The location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 116, block 11, H&GN survey.

WINKLER WELL

Monsanto Co. No. 1 Felmont, a re-entry in Winkler County, five miles northwest of Wink, has been completed as an Atoka well in the Apollo field.

The operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 27,100-000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 12,725 to 12,751 feet.

Five and one-half-inch casing is cemented at 16,301 feet. Total depth is 19,332 feet and the plugged back depth is 13,595 feet.

Originally an Ellenburger well, it is 1,320 feet from northeast and southeast east lines of section 46, block 27, psi survey.

HNG GASSER
HNG Oil Co. of Midland No. 2-33 McEntire is a new well in the Credo, East (upper Credo) field of Sterling County, 11 miles northwest of Sterling City.

It is fished for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 2,610,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 7,347 to 7,626 feet after 80,000 gallons of fracture solution.

Location is 1,500 feet from north and 1,300 feet from west lines of section 33, block 23, H&TC survey.

Gas-liquid ratio is 370,000-1 with gravity of the liquid 34.4 degrees.

Fairer deal merited

Washington's evenhanded approach has been an essential factor in persuading Israel and Egypt to set aside 30 years of hostility.

It is believed that a similar approach would be extremely helpful in efforts to mediate a settlement in Rhodesia, despite obvious differences in the conflict.

A clear example of the absence of such impartiality is the anti-Salisbury tilt the United States and Britain normally adopt when the Rhodesians raid guerrilla bases in Zambia and Mozambique.

Admittedly, the latest Rhodesian raid on a guerrilla camp near the Zambian capital of Lusaka was ill-timed. Guerrilla leaders took advantage of the raid to postpone their decision on whether to participate in the all-parties conference Washington is attempting to arrange.

Nevertheless, the justifiable frustration felt in Washington and London on this occasion should not obscure the case for a more objective Anglo-American reaction to these raids.

During most of the six-year guerrilla war, Mozambique's president, Samora Machel, and Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda have willingly permitted guerrillas to operate against Rhodesia from their two countries.

Indeed, Machel has all but officially sponsored the Marxist guerrilla chieftain, Robert Mugabe, as Rhodesia's next chief-of-state. Kaunda supports Joshua Nkomo. Accordingly, Mugabe's forces operate openly from Mozambique while Nkomo's soldiers attack Rhodesia from Zambia.

When Rhodesian troops and aircraft strike the guerrilla bases which they have done periodically since 1976, Britain and the United States customarily object on grounds the raids violate international borders and reduce chances for a negotiated settlement.

But surely the bases granted the guerrillas by Zambia and Mozambique disqualify both nations from the role of innocent bystander.

Moderate Rhodesians, black and white, who oppose the guerrillas might be less suspicious of Anglo-American mediation if the criticism of these raids were accompanied by rebukes for those who shelter the guerrillas.

We think that Rhodesia most certainly merits a fairer approach.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Sandinistas plan big offensive

By JACK ANDERSON WASHINGTON — When the Sandinista rebels launched their offensive against Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza two months ago, they succeeded in capturing five strategic cities.

But the National Guard overpowered the rebels with tanks and planes, which Somoza had no compunctions about unleashing on the guerrillas and the unsuspecting civilians of the captured cities.

The rebels realize that they underestimated Somoza. Specifically, they underestimated his indifference to the welfare of the people, although they have been exploited and repressed since the United States Marines installed the Somozas in power 46 years ago.

"We made a serious mistake in not calculating Somoza's ruthlessness," Sandinista leader Eden Pastora told our reporter Bob Sherman in an interview at his secret military headquarters last month. "We knew we were dealing with a crazy man, but we did not calculate his obsession with his position, or his narrow vision. We just didn't think he would bomb his own cities."

Now, however, the guerrillas possess armaments they believe will neutralize the advantage of Somoza's tanks and bombers. Armed with these weapons and their anti-Somoza fervor, the Sandinistas are preparing a do-or-die offensive against the dictator.

Our reporter was taken by car to the commander's headquarters, an elegant estate overlooking a still active volcano. Guards armed with Israeli-made Uzi burp guns and equipped with walkie-talkies maintain a protective round-the-clock vigil.

Pastora carries an American-made M-16 rifle wherever he goes, and his rebel arsenal includes a veritable United Nations of modern armament: Israeli and Swedish automatic weapons, Belgian grenade launchers, American bazookas, mortars, machine guns and automatic rifles. The Sandinistas are now shopping for surface-to-air missiles.

"We'll get whatever we need to equalize the firepower of the National Guard," Pastora told Sherman. "We'll buy from the United States if they'll sell to us. We'll go to the American Mafia and the Soviets, if necessary."

One thing the Sandinistas insist on is that no strings be attached to any of the arms deals they make. They will not submit to anyone's political influence, they say, in return for military supplies.

While the Sandinistas are enthusiastically heterogeneous politically — their single point of political unity is "Death to Somoza!" — it is no secret that Pastora aspires to the presidency of his native land, once Somoza is ousted and a provisional government sets up free elections.

Lack of cooperation aids drug-smuggling racket

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — Once upon a time, according to the U.S. Senate Standing Subcommittee on Investigations, there were these bad guys who smuggled into the U.S. 500,000 pounds of pot a week and made $14 billion tax-free.

The only reason they are able to do this is that the good guys, the law enforcement agencies, are poor and, alas, uncooperative.

Well, I am on the slippery side of 40 and for all of my adult life I have been hearing this same fairy tale. Well, folks, if only the good guys had more money, more helpers and a better plan, why they'd round up these bad guys in a cat's blink.

Let's analyze. In the first place, if any federal agency is poor, it's news to me. Obviously, if a federal agency is understaffed and under-equipped in this age of spendthrift government, it's because catching crooks doesn't have the same priority as a new Senate office building.

I mean surely somewhere in a $500 billion budget, the tiny little Drug Enforcement Administration ought to be able to get a few bucks — if anybody were serious about catching dope smugglers as opposed to catching headlines.

But, the truth is, except for a few isolated honest cops, nobody is.

Consider this: how many people do you think it would take to move a bulky commodity from South America to Florida in the amount of 500,000 pounds a week? And what kind of an organization is required to obtain, transport, divide and distribute that amount of merchandise to retailers who deal in ounces? And how much advertising do you have to do in order to sell 500,000 pounds a week, most of it by the ounce?

The point is that drug peddling is a retail business and if it is on the scale the Senate Subcommittee says it is, then it involves far too many human beings for it to be conducted in secrecy.

So let's quit playing games. If the pot smuggling business is that large and that successful, then a number of law enforcement, judicial and prosecuting officials have to be on the take.

And how can a Senate Subcommittee which is at all serious conduct two days of hearings and never even bring up the subject of pay-offs?

When you get down to the street agent level, you find out why some law enforcement agencies are uncooperative. They don't trust each other.

You don't have to buy a whole department. Just a few key people in the right jobs and when you're making $14 billion tax free, you can certainly afford a little overhead.

That's just common sense backed up by long hours of conversation with honest street agents I know personally. That's why when a committee, or grand jury or politician runs off at the mouth about organized crime and never mentions organized corruption, you know it's a fairy tale for the sucker public.

Organized crime cannot exist without organized corruption of public officials and no plan which fails to attack the corruption angle is ever going to succeed.

Ever since the late Sen. Estes Kefauver stumbled on the issue in the 1950s, politicians have been making hay out of public hearings on organized crime. Please note that organized crime is still with us, better organized and financially healthier than ever. Most of the so-called Godfathers are now on Social Security.

I'm not cynical but I'm just a little fed up with the same old dance routine about low budgets. The drug problem can be solved easily. Just do one of two things: legalize it and remove the enormous profits or go back to heavy penalties for the users.

Pot smugglers are able to sell $14 billion worth a year only because of relaxed laws which encourage the consuming public to buy. The politicians pulled the same stunt during prohibition. They made booze illegal which created the profitable black-market. They made a lot of hoopla for the sucker public, but they never levied a penalty on the drinker and that's what made the multi-million dollar industry possible.

The idea of decriminalizing marijuana laws for the user is straight out of a Mafia think-tank. That way you encourage the public to buy and at the same time discourage supplier competition and therefore keep price and profits high.

Pot smuggling is a racket, but it's a racket that involves the cooperation of government, for without the cooperation of public officials, the smugglers would soon be out of business.

Mark Russell says

As shahs go, the one of Iran is my favorite. We should support him — nobody wants another rug embargo.

We all remember the long lines in front of the Persian rug stores. We might have wanted a carpet measuring 11 feet by 14 feet, but unless you knew the proprietor you had to settle for a measly 3 by 5 or maybe none at all.

That's why wealthy people like Henry Kissinger and Richard Helms are terrified at the thought of anything happening to the shah's government. If the rebel forces have their way, every floor in Georgetown would be bare.

Iran must be defended border to border — and wall to wall.

'...but nobody won'

When the three-month-long newspaper strike ended recently in New York City it was the general agreement that nobody won.

It cost publishers an estimated $150 million, the striking workers $60 million and took $1 million a day from the city's economy.

The strike began Aug. 9 when pressmen walked off their jobs at The New York Times, the Daily News and the New York Post. Among the important issues was the number of pressmen required to publish.

And when New York's third longest newspaper strike was over, pressmen had gained job security through 1984 and management had won the right to reduce its press workers through attrition and to increase inducements for pressmen to take early retirement.

Most New Yorkers seemed glad to get their newspapers back. Newsstand sales were brisk. The Times, proud of its status as a newspaper of record, published a nine-page supplement which gave a condensation of events for each of the 88 days of the strike, and the News rolled a 176-page paper off its presses that proclaimed in its banner headline: "Hello There, Remember Us?"

The third paper, the Post, had been publishing since Oct. 5 after signing a "me-too" contract with the unions, agreeing to meet the terms of the final settlement with the other newspapers.

The lengthy matter was a costly undertaking which might well have been settled at the outset with more determined bargaining.

United States slipping sharply in nuclear exports

WASHINGTON — Though the world has caught up with much of U.S. know-how, our nation still excels in producing agriculture, airplanes, high-technology and nuclear reactors and supplies. But sheer dominance isn't enough these days. We must remain competitive in these industries or we will lose national income, jobs and ultimately suffer a reduced standard of living.

When one of our blue chip industries, say, airplanes or nuclear, slips in exports, the economic impact is delayed. When our dominance is eventually surrendered, it is hard to recoup. Then the citizenry feels the economic hurt and demands to know, how did this happen?

For the moment, we are slipping sharply in nuclear exports. The primary reason is that the Carter Administration is seemingly bent on a moralistic crusade against non-proliferation of plutonium, a fuel needed in nuclear weapons.

Candidate Carter, touting his modest experience in nuclear science, made a big deal out of the issue in the 1976 campaign. Once elected, he succeeded in imposing controls on commercial reprocessing of spent nuclear fuel, and put the brakes to fast-breeder nuclear reactors utilizing plutonium and also to methods of producing enriched uranium.

Enough to say that the rest of the world is snickering at Carter's pious effort, is going its merry way in buying and building nuclear reactors of the un-Carter kind, and plans to greatly expand its nuclear power-generating facilities.

West Germany, bedeviled by the same sort of anti-nuclear protest the United States experiences, still managed to double its nuclear capacity in 1977. South Korea, facing an acute shortage of electricity, just announced a $70 billion program to put 43 nuclear power stations into operation by the year 2000. The Japanese, an energy-poor nation paying an enormous penalty for petroleum, ignored U.S. pressure and plunged into the commercial reprocessing of nuclear fuel. France, England and the Soviets are already into breeder-reactor projects.

Nick Thimmesch

In a word, the world is going heavy for nuclear-produced electricity. Belgium already gets 23 percent of its electricity from nuclear, and by 1980, Sweden's figure will be 25, France's, 26. The present U.S. figure is 12.

Since the U.S. pioneered in nuclear, we had a virtual monopoly on this business until the Seventies. Through 1972, some 91 percent of all commercial nuclear power reactors exported came from U.S. firms. As other nations developed nuclear science, competition intensified. Since 1973, the U.S. share of these exports dropped to 46 percent, a figure which American firms believe should remain as our market share in an increasingly competitive world.

But in 1976, the Ford Administration announced that economic consideration should not take precedence over nonproliferation concerns, and customer-nations began worrying that U.S. firms wouldn't be reliable suppliers. In 1977, the United States exported the remarkable figure of zero reactors. In 1978, only Westinghouse had foreign sales (two to the Koreans), and in 1979 the outlook for all U.S. firms is the export of only two more reactors.

The problem is that purchasers want to make sure that U.S. firms can guarantee spent fuel reprocessing facilities, and the Carter policy doesn't allow for that kind of guarantee. It's like buying an appliance without any assurance that there will be spare parts and repair facilities available.

The world had relied on the promise made in 1968 by U.N. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg that the nonproliferation treaty would make peaceful use of nuclear science, including breeder reactors, available to treaty signatories by the U.S. Now, the signatories feel that the United States broke its word. (Souls blessed with curiosity who want to pursue this situation further should read Don Cook's excellent article in the Oct. 23, 1978, Fortune.)

Granted, Carter catered to a domestic political constituency of anti-nuclear activists in 1976. Still, he knows that leaders of other industrialized nations struggle with the same problem. Austria's Chancellor Bruno Kreisky lost by a whisker recently on a nuclear plant referendum. In France, thousands of "anti-nuke" demonstrators battled police at the site of the Super Phenix project, with scores injured and one killed. In Sweden, controversy over the nuclear issue caused Premier Falldin to resign, but the new government, in pragmatic Swedish style, okayed an increase in nuclear power. U.S. nuclear firms argue that they can match the work of other nations in reprocessing facilities and also offer plans for safe disposal and storage of nuclear waste.

It is not too late for the United States to re-establish its credibility as the world's best and most reliable supplier of nuclear facilities of the most sophisticated kind. We are still good enough that Finland, which bought a nuclear plant from the Soviets, hired Westinghouse to come in and add the system of containment barriers to the plant to provide that American safety standard lacking in Soviet equipment.

The Carter Administration gave signals at the Bonn Economic Conference last summer that it might relent some of its moralism concerning the nuclear industry. But there are still voices in the White House telling Carter to continue his wrongheaded policy — one which could cause serious future economic harm to the United States.

Johnson's newspaper ambitions told by aides

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The late President Lyndon Johnson once considered leaving the government and becoming a crusading Texas newspaper publisher, according to his friends and former aides.

Johnson discussed the idea with an aide just weeks before he became president in the wake of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

"I'm going to be publisher and you be the editor," Horace Busby, a former newspaperman and longtime Johnson friend, quoted Johnson as saying.

Johnson's desires were revealed in a series of interviews with Johnson's friends and former aides by Austin American-Statesman staffers. The staffers were seeking comments on Johnson's reaction to the assassination.

Busby recalled that Johnson spoke to him during a Belgium state visit about his ambition to own a newspaper — apparently either the American-Statesman or the Houston Chronicle.

The conversation took place Nov. 8, 1963, in Brussels, said Busby, now a Washington consultant.

"He laid out all these plans," added Busby. "He was going to reform the state. He got all excited about it. I think he always wanted to own a newspaper."

Back in the United States, Busby said Johnson told him, "I'm going to check up on that paper."

A few days later, Busby said Johnson aide Walter Jenkins told him, "The vice president wanted me to tell you that he has talked to Harry Provenca," who was editor-in-chief of Newspapers, Inc., in Waco.

Newspapers, Inc., owned papers in Waco, Austin, Lufkin and Port Arthur. The company, owned by the Fentress family of Waco, sold its properties in 1975 to Cox Enterprises of Atlanta, Ga.

"He (Johnson) had called Provenca and asked if the Austin American-Statesman was for sale," said Busby.

Provenca said, "I told him it wasn't for sale." Provenca added, "Somebody told me he (Johnson) was making gestures toward the Houston Chronicle until he found out how much it would cost."

Austin lawyer Ed Clark, appointed by Johnson as ambassador to Australia, said Johnson "talked about buying newspapers with the idea of making money."

A Johnson newspaper, Clark said, "probably would not have been known for its objectivity."

Clark said Johnson would have published a newspaper "very pro-his friends.... He would have been moderate to liberal."

BRIDGE Trusting the enemy can be poor policy

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Since the opening bid of one club doesn't always promise length and strength in clubs, your partner may trust the enemy when choosing an opening lead. This tendency played a role in the recent Olympic Open Pair Championship in New Orleans.

Marcelo Branco's overall of one notrump on the South hand was not especially robust, but he knew he was unlikely to get a club opening lead. West actually led South's strongest suit.

The contract then depended on the Brazilian expert's play of the diamonds. He led a heart to dummy at the second trick and led the jack of diamonds. When East played low, declarer had to decide whether or not to put up the king.

OPENING BID

The opening bid made it clear that East had the ace of diamonds. If East had A-Q-3 of diamonds he could step up with the ace and lead a heart to force out dummy's only side entry. Then the long diamonds could never come in.

If East didn't have the queen of diamonds there was no advantage in allowing dummy's jack to ride. Branco therefore put up the king of diamonds and returned the suit. Both missing honors crashed on the same trick, and declarer had no further problems.

East had a short comment: "Just lead my suit, partner."

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S 10 7 6 4 3; H 10 9 8; D Q 2; C 10 8 7. What do you say?

ANSWER: Most experts would pass despite the excellent length in partner's suit. If you raise to two spades, the only conceivable bid, you may never get out of this auction alive.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Salt water holds danger as emetic

Dear Dr. Solomon: Isn't salt water a good way to get a child to throw up if he has swallowed something that is bad for him?—D.S.

Dear D.S.: No, it isn't—although it used to be recommended. Salt poisoning can occur in children, and adults too, for that matter. The consequences can be very serious, including permanent damage to the nerves, brain, hemorhages, and even death. Second Katz baby arrives, delays family's emigration

MOSCOW (AP) — Baby Jessica Katz's mother gave birth to a second daughter early today, delaying the Jewish family's long-awaited emigration from the Soviet Union.

Boris Katz telephoned Western reporters that his wife, Natalia, and the new baby, as yet unnamed, were fine. But after a year's battle to get his first child to the United States for treatment, he now faces another battle with the Soviet bureaucratic maze.

Katz said he must get a birth certificate for the new baby so her name can be added to the exit permits he, his wife and Jessica received last Thursday. But to get the birth certificate, he must present an internal Soviet passport, and he surrendered his when he got his exit visa.

The family's exit permits expire Dec. 4, and the arrangements for the new baby must be completed before then.

Katz and his wife had planned to leave on Thursday, hoping the baby would not be born until after they reached the West. He said his wife "sat around the house all day" Sunday trying to delay the birth.

Mrs. Katz's doctors had predicted a difficult birth for her, but apparently there were no complications.

Jessica, the couple's year-old first child, suffers from a condition called malabsorption syndrome which has prevented her from digesting her food properly. The Katzes contended that she could obtain better treatment in the United States, but Soviet officials denied this.

Jessica has been fed on predigested food from the United States and is now a healthy 20-pounder. But her parents say she still needs the treatment she can get in the United States.

Katz plans to take his family to Cambridge, Mass., where his mother and two brothers live.

Verdict possible

CLEBURNE, Texas (AP) — A West Texas doctor accused of attempting to murder his mother as she lay in her hospital bed may learn the jury's decisions today.

The defense rested its case Friday in the trial of Dr. Milton Rains, 51, of Littlefield, Texas. After final arguments scheduled Monday morning, the jury was expected to begin its deliberations.

If convicted, Rains could be sent to prison for two to 20 years and fined up to $10,000.

Prosecutors say a "mask" of tape and tissue was placed July 29 on the mouth and nose of Bertha Brown as she lay in her bed at the Johnson County Memorial Hospital.

Commission upgrades bicycles

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Consumer Product Safety Commission reports that the Columbia Manufacturing Co. is offering chain guard kits to upgrade bicycles which do not meet federal requirements.

The bicycles in question were manufactured between Nov. 13, 1976 and Aug. 13, 1978, officials said. They include 3-speed, 24-inch racers called "Miami," girls' models Nos. 1433 and 1439 and boys' model No. 1434 and "Gold Crest" 3-speed, 26-inch racers, mens' model No. 3648.

The CPSC said that the round disc-type guard affixed to the front sprocket on these Columbia bicycles, while acceptable on derailleurs-type bicycles, does not cover the top of the chain or any part of the chain to the rear of the front sprocket.

Federal regulations require a full coverage chain guard on all bikes which have a single front and rear sprocket and set specifications for the extent of chain coverage. The rules are intended to prevent clothing or body parts from becoming caught in the chain.

Frank Marlow honored

Frank Marlow, principal of Bowie Elementary School, was honored by the students, faculty and PTA members with "Mr. Marlowe Day" being declared at an assembly on the patio at the school.

The dedication read: "We the students, the faculty and the PTA wish to dedicate this handbook to Mr. Marlow, principal of our school, who is devoted to the well-being of all who belong to Bowie Elementary. Dedication is his way of life, and we salute him in the highest of honor."

Mrs. Dodson also presented Marlow a plaque on behalf of the students, faculty and PTA with a special message to Mr. Marlow for the Thanksgiving season... "For Mr. Marlow, we give thanks!" The PTA distributed banners bearing the likeness of Mr. Marlow for students and faculty to wear throughout the day.

Marlow arrived on campus to hear the students singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mrs. James "Doc" Dodson, president of Bowie PTA, gave the official declaration of the day as Barbara Greene and Janet Foster, other officers of the PTA, presented him with a boutonniere and a glittered banner for the special

DEAR ABBY Today's weather: Heartwarming

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: As Thanksgiving draws near, I am mindful of my many blessings. Among them is the privilege of writing this column. Almost daily I receive at least half a dozen heart-warmers. Today I want to share one with you:

DEAR ABBY: Our problem daughter, not quite 17, ran away from home 14 months ago. She had been giving us a rough time for about a year—skipping school, staying out late, and lying to us constantly. After a noisy scene, she stormed out of the house with only the clothes on her back. We didn't have a clue as to where she went.

Only a parent who has lived through this kind of nightmare can realize what we went through. After a year of heartaches and sleepless nights, we were told by the police to give up and assume she was dead. But parents never give up. We continued to search and hope and pray that she'd return to us one day.

Well, our prayers were answered when, out of the blue, we received a telephone call from someone who said he was a volunteer with Operation Peace of Mind in Houston. (We live in Michigan.) We were told that our daughter had read of the toll-free number in the DEAR ABBY column and she wanted to let us know that she was well and happy in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. The volunteer said our daughter would call them again on the following morning in case we had a message for her.

We told them we would welcome a collect call from her. Sure enough, she called us the next day. She sounded wonderful and said she was working and going to night school to finish her education. Our story has an ending. Our daughter is coming home to spend Thanksgiving with us.

Abby, will you please publish that toll-free number again so other runaway kids can establish communications with their families? Our daughter said that she had seen your column with that number posted near telephones where runaways hung out.

We will never be able to thank you enough for giving us the happiest Thanksgiving we've ever had—GRATEFUL IN MICHIGAN

DEAR GRATEFUL: With pleasure. Runaways, call this toll-free number: 800-231-6946.

An operator will take your call and telephone your parents anywhere in the United States with a message from you. There will be no lecturing or recriminations. Your call will not be traced. And only one question will be asked: "Do you need anything?" If you do, you will be told where you can get it, free. I repeat, no attempt will be made to contact you or bring you back home—regardless of your age.

If you are a runaway, I beg you to forget the past and send a message to your parents now. They will sleep better tonight and so will you. And you will all have the best Thanksgiving you've had in years. God bless you.—ABBY

P.S. Operation Peace of Mind was established five years ago by a handful of public-spirited volunteers with the support of the governor of Texas. To date they have placed approximately 240,000 calls from runaways, assuring their families that they are okay. Beautiful.

(What's bugging you? Get it off your chest. For a personal, unpublished reply write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped (15 cents) self-addressed envelope.)

GUILFORD, Conn. (AP) — About $300 worth of groceries collected by St. George's Church to provide Thanksgiving dinners for two dozen needy families was stolen overnight from the church vestibule, police said Friday.

The food was carried off by someone who forced open a side door to get into the building, police said. It had been collected by church members, who planned to buy turkeys Friday and distribute the fixings for complete Thanksgiving meals to about 24 families on Saturday.

The church members said they hoped to replace the stolen food with new donations.

Feds offer free advice

By ROBERT ESTILL
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — The federal government may not be able to solve its own problems, but it is not hesitant about offering advice to others. Channeling information to consumers has been a big business for the bureaucracy.

No less than 80 federal agencies or hotlines are listed in the Directory of Federal Consumer Offices published by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Serving as a clearinghouse for the most popular consumer-oriented publications is the General Services Administration's Consumer Information Center.

Four times a year the Pueblo, Colo.-based center publishes a consumer information catalog listing 240 free or low-cost pamphlets on a variety of subjects ranging from automotive repairs to winter survival.

When the center was started in 1970, it distributed about 2.5 million publications; now it is up to more than 26 million a year — all sent out on request.

"By and large, the most popular ones are the 'money-savers' and the 'how-to' publications," said Sherry Remez, director of media services for the center.

The most popular of the free pamphlets, somewhat surprisingly, is one on household record keeping — what to keep and what to pitch.

More than 500,000 people a year write in to ask for it, or about five times the average distribution for a single free pamphlet.

Second on "most-sought" list is a guide to buying government surplus property — and the government does give away free Jeeps, guides on subjects that are more timely or of wider interest.

Tips on how to cope with inflation are also popular. The idea is that if the consumer cannot change the "big picture," he can try to adjust his own lifestyle.

That is not to say inflation is neglected in the current catalog. The "money management" section alone lists seven publications, in addition to a variety of other money-saving guides in other areas under such titles as "Common Sense In Buying a Car."

The third most popular Remez believes the mood of the country can be measured to a degree by the pamphlets the public seeks.

"We have our fingers on the pulse of America," she said. "The publications they ask for give us a good idea as to what the public is concerned about."

If that is true, it says something about the nation's mental health. The third most popular pamphlet — 201,000 requests — is one telling how to recognize and deal with mental and physical stress.

It also shows that the nation is more concerned than ever with cutting costs on food and energy and with do-it-yourself home and automotive repairs.

Consumers would seem to be interested in trimming the fat from themselves as well as their budgets because exercise and weight control pamphlets also are much in demand.

The catalog reflects changing concerns; about a fifth of the listings change with each quarterly publication. Some are cut from the list because of seasonal changes, such as gardening hints.

Others are cut because there simply is no demand for them, and they are replaced by new ones. Some are more timely or of wider interest.

Tips on how to cope with inflation are also popular. The idea is that if the consumer cannot change the "big picture," he can try to adjust his own lifestyle.

The third most popular

Per Gallon," "Can You Really Strike It Rich In The Government Gas And Oil Lottery?" "Your Money's Worth In Foods" and "In The Bank Or Up The Chimney?"

Not all of the publications involve making, spending or saving a dollar.

If the family budget is not too badly strained, the government has tips on recreation, travel and leisure activities.

It also stands prepared to offer advice on contraception, or, if that does not work, child rearing.

A variety of ailments, ranging from canker sores to cancer, are discussed in publications from "Uncle Sam."

If beauty, not health, is the primary concern, the government will even provide tips on cosmetics and shampoos.

There are publications on dogs ("Dishing Up The Dog And Cat Food") and pests ("Controlling Household Pests").

Most of the publications are either free or carry a nominal fee, usually less than $1.

The most expensive of the publications is $3.40, a 223-page handbook giving detailed instructions on building and insulating a wood-frame home.

The catalogs are free and can be obtained by writing the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Abortions rise, births decrease

ATLANTA (AP) — The rate of abortions for teen-agers continued to increase in 1976 while the number of births in that age group declined, the national Center for Disease Control reported Friday.

In a compilation of nationwide reports, the CDC said abortions for that period increased for girls between the ages of 12 and 19 compared to 1974. The year 1976 was the most recent for which figures were available.

For females under the age of 14, 13,291 abortions were reported in 1976, compared to 11,639 in 1974. In the 15-19 age group, 300,956 abortions were reported in 1976, compared to 237,294 in 1974, the CDC said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report.

The 1976 abortion ratio for females 14 and under was 1,114 abortions per 1,000 live births, the report said. The ratio for 15- to 19-year-old women was 539 abortions per 1,000 live births.

The report said births among the 15 to 19-year-old group totaled 558,744 in 1976 compared to 582,238 in 1975, representing 17.6 percent of all births. Births to females under the age of 15 totaled 11,928 compared to 12,642 in 1975.

The birth rate for females in the 15-19 group was 53.5 per 1,000 compared to 58.2 percent per 1,000 births in 1975. The birth rate for the 12- to 14-year-old age group fell to 2 births per 1,000 from 2.1 per 1,000 in 1975, the CDC said.

Job gap still wide for women

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although women and minorities have made dramatic gains over the past decade in acquiring the education necessary for a professional career, opportunities for employment, advancement and good pay — particularly for women — have increased very little, according to Labor Department figures.

A report on employment prospects for professional women and minorities concludes, "Things aren't going nearly as well as one would have thought 10 years ago," when the federal government committed itself to equal employment opportunity and affirmative action for minorities and women, says Betty M. Vetter, co-author of the report.

"Among minority men who get a higher education, they are getting comparable money and jobs as white men with the same level of education and are moving up at about the same rates as white men," Ms. Vetter said in an interview. "That is not the case with women," she said. Ms. Vetter said Labor Department data show white men who dropped out of high school earned an average of $9,379 in 1976, while white women with a college degree averaged $7,176.

Traditional Christmas tree graces Rockefeller Center

NEW YORK (AP) — A 75-foot Norway spruce graced Rockefeller Center on Friday, standing in a steady drizzle and awaiting its burden of lights and decoration.

The tree, a traditional mid-Manhattan sign of approaching Christmas, will be lit between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Dec. 4.

The tree was noticed by two Rockefeller Center executives as they drove past the Immaculate Conception Seminary forest farm in Mahwah, N.J., last August, according to controller George Bauman.

The tree, believed to be about 75 years old, was felled Thursday and carried 25 miles to mid-Manhattan on a flat-bed truck.

IT'S A GREAT BIG, WONDERFUL WORLD

but . . .

it just won't fit in a textbook

Nor does it stand still.

So much happens every day that textbooks would have to be revised and printed continuously to keep up with developments.

Each day The Reporter-Telegram contains enough information to fill an average size novel.

Prior to the age of printing and distribution of information to the general public, a thousand year span once was required to double the world's knowledge

With the advent of movable type and the printed word, that period was successively shortened to less than 100 years.

Now, in the age of the computer, the world's knowledge doubles in less than ten years!

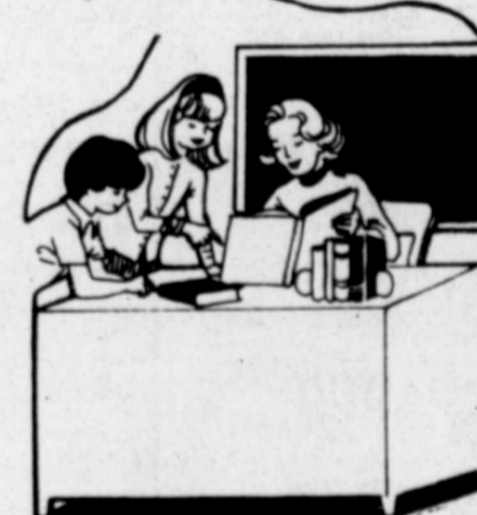

At this rate more inductive data will be developed in the next ten years than in all of the millenia since the beginning of time to this day.

The information machine spews out mountains of data by the hour.

Macrocosmic knowledge to evaluate, classify and correlate.

What is the impact of this upon

Today's Teacher?

How current are the textbooks?

Were they printed this year?

Last year?

The most current textbook available was printed yesterday, and today, and every day . . . as new data are introduced.

And it's the most economical textbook in the world.

Cowboys all even for showdown

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys will have to play their biggest game of the year Thanksgiving Day against the Washington Redskins without fullback Robert Newhouse, but they've added a storehouse of emotion thanks to a late hit on star running back Tony Dorsett.

New Orleans Saint cornerback Clarence Chapman solved Dallas' first period blahs with an out-of-bounds tackle on Dorsett Sunday near the Cowboy bench that brought a fourth of the Cowboy team down on him.

The emotion-charged Cowboys promptly overcame the 7-0 deficit and crushed the Saints 27-7 to set the stage for the National Conference Eastern Division shootout with the Redskins, who fell 27-17 to St. Louis.

DALLAS DID it without the stubby Newhouse, who Coach Tom Landry said played the best game of any running back in the 18-year history of the club last week. Newhouse fractured the fibula in his right leg and will be out at least two weeks.

"We'll miss Newhouse because he is a 100 percent guy," said Landry. "He's the steadiest player we've had all year. We'll go with Scott Laidlaw."

After Chapman's late tackle which cost him 15-yards and a pummeling from assorted Cowboy players, the Dallas defense put a clamp on Saint quarterback Archie Manning. And the offense exploded with Dorsett rushing 25 times for 152 yards to gain the 1,000-yard plateau for the second straight year at 1,020.

Dorsett wasn't involved in the fist-cuffs. He said calmly "I walked away from it. I didn't want to be in a pileup and get hurt."

"It's a good feeling to know my teammates came to my aid. We are in this together. If someone is abusing one of my teammates I would be the first one over there to help."

THE BRAVU served as an alarm clock for the team which now has been outscored 69-21 in the first quarter this year.

"If the offensive line knocks the hell out of people like they did today it makes my job easier," Dorsett theorized.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, who ran for a touchdown and passed for another, also took a swing at several Saint players after what he considered a late hit. Wide receiver Butch Johnson of the Cowboys was kicked out of the game for throwing the ball into an opponent's face mask.

"We are starting to play hard and tough," said Landry of his defending National Football League champions.

After Chuck Muncie scored on a one-yard run, Dallas linebacker Thomas Henderson and defensive tackle Larry Cole took the ball away on two big second period plays.

HENDERSON recovered a fumble that setup a two-yard touchdown run by Dorsett and Cole captured a fluttering Archie Manning pass after the Saint quarterback had been nailed by Harvey Martin. Staubach cashed this break on a one-yard quarterback sneak for a touchdown.

Staubach's 24-yard touchdown pass to tight end 24 and 26 yards by Rafael Septien completed the scoring.

Landry said of the impending Red-skin joust: "We always knew we would have to beat the Redskins to do anything. Whether they lost to St. Louis was really unimportant."

Henderson put it another way: "It will be the Cowboys and Indians on Thursday, a real shootout. We've got them coming right where we want them ... coming to our backyard (Texas Stadium)."

Henderson added sarcastically, "I hope (quarterback) Billy Kilmer and

Jay Cummings takes net title

ODESSA — Midland's Jay Cummings defeated Midlander Lloyd Henderson Sunday to win the Men's 45 singles championship in the University Gardens Fall Classic, 7-5, 6-3.

Raymond Yell and Mike Bustilloz teamed to win the Regular Men's doubles championship with a 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 win over the Odessa team of Mills-Mills while former Midland College netter Tony Luttrell teamed with Odessa's Neill McClung to defeat the Midland duo of Des Ward and Jeff Bramlett in the Championship Men's doubles, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

Midland's Bustilloz and Dennis Brittain advanced to the finals of the Men's 35 singles, but that match will be played in Midland later this week. In the Championship Men's singles, a pair of Midland High netters gained the finals with Jeff Bramlett and Pierre DeChaud, and that match will also be played this week.

MC's Leslie Miller reached the finals in two events, but couldn't pull off a title.

Football League Monday night special between Houston and Miami.

The Dolphins tend toward an early sprint, having outscored their opposition 81-17 in the first quarter en route to an 8-3 record in the American Football Conference's Eastern Division.

Houston meanwhile, likes to stretch and yawn and get comfortable in the first half and feel out the opposition.

THE OILERS have parlayed that style into six come-from-behind victories in seven wins for a 7-4 record in the AFC Central Division. OUTFSCORED 88-36 in the second quarter, Houston has beaten its opponents 72-34 in the fourth quarter.

The race starts at 8 p.m. CST in the Astrodome before a sellout crowd and national television audience with the loser possibly drawing a sideline seat for the playoffs.

The Dolphins' jet-like offense has been piloted much of the season by Delvin Williams, the AFC's leading rusher with 1,057 yards and has become even more deadly with the return of quarterback Bob Griese.

Williams and his forward wall of offensive linemen Bob Kuechenberg, Jim Langer and Larry Little will be facing one of their toughest assignments against the Oiler's 2-4 defense, which ranks No. 1 in the AFC in total defense and is fourth against the rush.

New Orleans Saints forget their halos

IRVING — Sunday's game in Texas Stadium was a little confusing. At first glance, you would have thought the Washington Redskins showed up four days early to face the Dallas Cowboys.

The colors on the opponent's bench were all wrong, and Dallas' seemingly easy 27-7 victory wasn't any indication that the Cowboys were facing the Redskins in their usual nail biting rivalry. Still, there seemed to be some bad blood flowing that would indicate a Dallas-Washington matchup.

No one ever indicated that Dallas and New Orleans had a heated rivalry going, but Sunday's outing would lead one to believe these two teams hated each other. After all, there was almost as much hitting going on during breaks in the action as there were during the game.

Actually, it wasn't bad blood between the two teams that fueled the near riots in the contest. Most of it came from a very frustrated New Orleans team, which had lost back-to-back contests to Pittsburgh and Atlanta before meeting the Cowboys. The Saints thought they should have won both of them, and when they took to the field against Dallas, they forgot to put on their halos.

The Dallas players seemed to take it all very lightly after the game. To a man, the Cowboys seemed to understand the plight of the Saints.

Wide receiver and punt return specialist Butch Johnson was one of the Cowboys that understood the Saints, but not enough to keep from being ejected from the contest in one flare-up. Johnson returned one kickoff for 58 yards to set up an easy third quarter score for Dallas, but on his next punt return attempt, Johnson was thrown out of the game for spiking the ball in an opponent's face.

"They were taking a lot of cheap shots and saying a lot of bad things," Johnson replied after the game.

"They were doing that to intimidate us, but how can you intimidate the best. In a way, I think all of this was good for us because the team showed Things started heating up long before the Johnson incident. New Orleans cornerback Clarence Chapman grabbed Tony Dorsett's face mask on a sideline tackle and drove the Dallas runner into the Cowboys' bench area. A near riot erupted.

"I thought they should have called a penalty on both teams. Dorsett grabbed my face mask and I had to hold on as we came to the sidelines. The next thing I knew, everybody was hitting and kicking me. Things happened so fast, I don't know who was hitting me," Chapman said.

Dorsett countered, "I was out of bounds and he was hitting and pushing me, and I don't think it was all necessary. I walked away from it because I didn't want to be in a pileup and get hurt. It's a good feeling to know my teammates came to my aid. We are in this together. If someone is abusing one of my teammates, I would be the first one over there to help."

Even the Cowboys' Saint Roger thought about throwing a punch at an opposing Saint, who dumped quarterback Staubach to the ground with a little extra flare.

"No, I'm not going to become a fighter. I think I lost my head a little out there because all those guys are bigger than I am. I was glad I was surrounded by the good guys. Nothing was going to happen in that situation," Staubach said. "The Saints' defensive team was saying a lot of things out there and there was a pileup and I hurt my shoulder again. I got pretty heated, but there is no way I'm going to fight with those guys."

It was a brutal game, but the hardest hit of the day was a legal but deadly blitz by Cowboy linebacker Thomas Henderson, who nailed Saints' quarterback Archie Manning.

"Manning asked me 'was that your best hit?'" Henderson said. "I told him it sure was and he said, 'I'm glad that because I'm too young to die.'"

It was a costly game for the Cow- (Continued from 2D)

SWC drools at $2 million in post-season bowl loot

By The Associated Press

The Southwest Conference stands to make a handsome payday in post-season bowls if the Houston Cougars get into the Cotton Bowl.

Houston will become the Cotton Bowl host to Notre Dame in the annual Dallas New Year's Day Classic with a victory over Texas Tech in Lubbock this Saturday or over Rice the following week.

Four SWC teams could be expected to bring almost $2 million into league coffers.

The Cotton Bowl pays $1 million and the Fiesta Bowl which will pit Arkansas against UCLA has reached the point where it can divy $450,000 to each team.

THE HALL of Fame Bowl which features Texas A&M against Iowa State Dec. 20 said it hoped to pay each team $250,000 and the Dec. 23rd Sun Bowl which has Texas meeting Maryland pays about the same.

Of course, Houston, Arkansas, Texas, and Texas A&M will have to divide with the rest of the conference after taking a cut for expenses.

The only SWC team with a winning percentage left out of the bowl gravy is Texas Tech. That should get the Red Raiders in the proper frame of mind for the Cougars who come calling Saturday in Lubbock.

Houston, idle last week, is 6-0 in league play. Texas, 5-1, has a longshot chance of still getting a Cotton Bowl berth. But it would take TWO defeats of the Cougars to propel the Longhorns into Dallas.

Tech outlasted Southern Methodist 19-16 Saturday to spoil any hopes of Mustang Mania going to a bowl game.

RICE SHOCKED Baylor 24-10 Saturday, Texas flogged Texas Christian 41-0 and Arkansas mauled Texas A&M 26-7, giving Aggie Coach Tom Wilson his first loss.

Texas Coach Fred Akers refused to forget the Cotton Bowl, saying "We are pleased to be going to the Sun Bowl, if we don't get the Cotton Bowl bid. You never know what can happen."

Houston Athletic Director Harry

Fouke said "If we can't win one out of the next two we don't deserve to go to a bowl."

Notre Dame and Houston have never met on the football field.

The Fighting Irish knocked Texas out of the national championship in the Cotton Bowl last year. It will be their fourth appearance in the classic.

It would be the first Sun Bowl appearance for Maryland and Texas.

Hall car on display

The Cosworth V8 powered Chaparral-Lola, owned by Jim Hall, prepared at Rattlesnake Raceway by his team and driven to victory by Al Unser in the Indianapolis 500 last May, will be on display in the lobby of the First National Bank Thursday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Friday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Previously, the times were listed as 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

The FNB will be closed for business Thursday (Thanksgiving), but the bank lobby will remain open so that the car may be viewed.

Bowl promoters missing the boat

BY TED BATTLES
R-T Sports Editor

Before the Tech-SMU game Saturday, Tech Sports Information Director Keith Samples was lamenting the Red Raiders' fortune in the battle of the bowls. "If we just hadn't opened with Southern Cal and played someone, like we ordinarily do and won, we'd be in the picture. As it is now no one is interested. They have to pick their teams too early."

Texas Tech 1977 and 1978 is about as logical a reason as one can find in the argument for delaying selections one week since the Raiders both benefited and suffered from the mid-November rush to commit post season teams.

Last year, Tech won five of its first six games and then became the Red Raiders, yet the fast start attracted the bowl scouts and the Raiders landed a Tangerine invitation, where they were embarrassed 40-17 by Florida State.

This year just the opposite has happened. The Raiders are an unexpected 6-3 with two games left and are superior to last year's team at the same stage. Yet that early season loss to USC, close as it was, and two one-sided defeats at the hands of Texas and Texas A&M, turned off the bowl promoters. Nevertheless, the Raiders are a late-maturing team that is finishing with a rush, even though they will be underdogs in their final two games against Houston and Arkansas, both bowlbound.

COACH REX Dockery already has accomplished more than anyone expected in his freshman year. The offense has been capable all along with the running of James Hadnot and the multiple talents of freshman quarterback Ron Reeves, not to mention the kicking of Bill "Blade" Adams, who gives Tech one of the best.

Dockery credits the coming of age of the defense as the major reason for Tech's improvement.

In commenting on the 19-16 win over SMU, Dockery said, "We knew our defense had improved the last few weeks...In fact, both defenses (SMU and Tech) played a lot better than people thought they would."

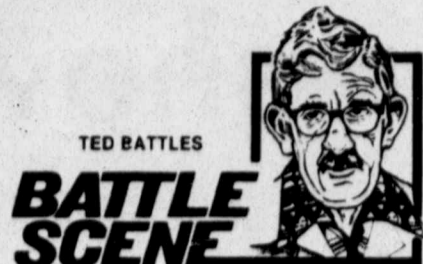

Allan Swann and Ted Watts, a couple of guys who wandered in from the chemistry lab, so to speak, are defensive backs who contributed the big plays in wins over Baylor and SMU and there's the contributions being made by such unsung and uncoupled upon players as Midland's Rusty Maroney, a sophomore who really wasn't in the Raiders' game plan this year.

LAST YEAR, as a freshman on the JV, Rusty was a linebacker and then in the spring game he was shifted to defensive end and was ticketed to spell Andy Thomas, if he got tired.

"They moved me back to linebacker when Jeff Copeland got hurt in the A&M game," relates Rusty. It took a while to adjust, but he has come on strong, just like the Raiders, in recent games. Saturday Copeland was back and ready and the two are so close now that Jeff got the starting role on the basis of seniority. Maroney still saw plenty of action and made his share of big plays after Copeland got his bell rung.

Maroney feels the same way about Ford as Dockery, who said in retrospect, "He just scared me to death."

It was a rough spot to come into cold against a passer like Ford, who proved how quickly he can turn a game around when he fired two TD passes in the second period after Tech threatened to make it a rout by jumping ahead 16-0. A few passes and it was 16-14 and SMU's Eddie Garcia almost put the Mustangs ahead with a field goal just before intermission. "My responsibility was to cover my man until Ford broke the line of scrimmage. The defensive line did a good job of keeping pressure on him," as indicated by five interceptions and seven occasions when Mike was forced to run.

THE GAME was a strange emotional merry-go-round, even if you were pulling for Tech. Knowing how precious victories are for the SWC private schools in these times, your heart had to break for SMU in the fourth quarter as they came so close to pulling it out only to be denied at the threshold.

One guy who looked more relieved than heartbroken was Hadnot, who despite a rib injury that slowed him down in the second half and a fumble that gave SMU an opportunity to pull it out in the final minutes, gained 160 yards, 113 in the first half. "It was a good game for me," conceded the 6-2, 240-pounder from Jasper, who until last spring was a tight end who had caught only five passes in two previous seasons. "But I'm not thrilled by the fumbling. I hurt, but that's no excuse. I just wasn't concentrating. I didn't squeeze the ball. It could have cost us the game, but fortunately, the defense played super."

Hadnot relates that he played running back as a junior in high school, but wasn't convinced he could do the job in college when the conversion took place last spring. How did it happen?

"In spring training I caught a lot of quick passes and usually turned them into pretty good gains. When the coaches saw it usually took three or four guys to pull me down, they decided to switch me to the backfield."

THE RESULT has been the leading rusher in the SWC and now even Hadnot concedes he might make it as a runner.

And for those who relish treats, USC, with Charles White, the Trojans' all-time leading rusher, opens the '79 season against Hadnot and Tech in Jones Stadium.

Samples, forgetting the battle of the bowls momentarily and cheering up, admits the game isn't a sellout. "Primarily, because we haven't started selling tickets yet. But we should fill the stadium and with a matchup like White and Hadnot, we might even get it on national TV."

boys and at a time when they can't afford to lose players to injuries. Fullback Robert Newhouse got a small fracture in his right leg, and will miss at least two weeks. Guard Burton Lawless and tackle Harvey Martin also received knee injuries, and their status is unknown.

And all this was against the New Orleans Saints. What is going to happen when the Redskins do show up on Thanksgiving Day?

Stanley's OSU days numbered

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma State head football Coach Jim Stanley will either resign or be fired within the next two weeks, according to a story in Monday's editions of the Tulsa World.

The newspaper quoted unnamed "reliable sources" in its story. Stanley has two years left on his contract, but there has been repeated widespread speculation about how long he will remain at OSU.

The Tulsa World story quotes Oklahoma State Athletic Director Richard Young as saying charges contained in a Big Eight report of an alleged football slush fund at OSU are "serious."

The NCAA placed the school under a two-year probation for recruiting violations prior to the Big Eight Conference investigation.

Tulsa to skip Independence bowl

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Tulsa University officials Sunday night withdrew from consideration for the Independence Bowl.

In a joint-statement, TU Head Football Coach John Cooper and Athletic Director Emery Turner said, "The Tulsa University administration felt the ticket guarantee demanded was too great for the university to break even financially."

Stanford says 'yes'

HOUSTON (AP) — After a weekend of college football upsets and bowl maneuverings, Stanford is definite and Georgia is a maybe for the Bluebonnet Bowl Dec. 31.

Georgia accepted a bid Sunday to appear in the AstroDome as long as Auburn does not tie or beat Alabama Dec. 2, which would send Georgia to the Sugar Bowl as the Southeastern Conference's representative.

Georgia, an apparent Sugar shoo-in until Auburn pulled a 22-22 surprise Saturday, has an 8-1 record with a game left against Georgia Tech.

Stanford of the Pacific 10 Conference accepted a Bluebonnet invitation Saturday night after using a 30-10 drubbing of California to end its regular season with a 7-4 mark.

Angelo State to host playoff

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Top-ranked Angelo State, which posted the first undefeated regular season in its 15-year history, heads a list of eight teams selected Sunday to battle for the NAIA Division I football championship.

The Rams, who downed East Texas State, 35-14, Saturday to finish the year 11-0 and win their first Lone Star Conference title, will host eighth-ranked Oregon College of Education, 8-1, in a Dec. 2 quarterfinal game at San Angelo, Texas.

On the same day, No. 3 Central Arkansas, 9-1, will meet second-ranked Western State (Colo.), 9-0, at Conway, Arkansas; No. 5 Wisconsin-Lacrosse, 9-1, will host seventh-ranked Grand Valley State Colleges (Mich.), 8-2, and No. 6 Elon (N.C.), 9-1, will entertain fourth-ranked Concord (W.Va.), 10-1, at Burlington, N.C.

The Angelo State-Oregon College contest will begin at 1:30 p.m., local time; the others will start at 1 p.m.

Angelo State and Grand Valley State will be making their first postseason appearance in NAIA football.

Nebraska, Oklahoma to waltz again in Orange

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

It was a little more than a week ago that Nebraska upended Oklahoma, and turned the post-season bowl picture into chaos, but it seems like only yesterday.

And on Jan. 2, it will again seem like only yesterday that Nebraska played Oklahoma because on New Year's night in the Orange Bowl, in one of the most unexpected developments of this or any other college football season, they'll do it once more with feeling — Nebraska vs. Oklahoma.

"The way things are going, who knows what will happen. A lot of things happened today that I didn't believe would happen," Coach Joe Paterno said Saturday after his No. 1-rated Penn State team canceled its reservations to Miami and accepted a bid to the Sugar Bowl.

TWO WEEKS ago, Paterno and Penn State were No. 2 and hoping for a crack at Oklahoma, then the nation's No. 1 team, in the Orange Bowl. Nebraska took care of that pipe dream and last week, Paterno, the new No. 1, said he hoped to meet runnerup Nebraska in Miami.

But when invitation time rolled around Saturday, Nebraska had been beaten by Missouri's upset kings 35-31 and Penn State was pointed toward New Orleans — for sure — to meet third-ranked Alabama, maybe.

"I don't know about the bowls; it's an unusual situation," said Georgia Coach Vince Dooley, who helped make it such by going for a one-point conversion with 5:18 left to play and thereby settled for a 22-22 tie with Auburn when a victory would have put the eighth-ranked Bulldogs in the Sugar Bowl as the Southeastern Conference's representative.

ALTHOUGH SEVERAL spots are still up in the air, there is only one real opening in the 15 major bowls — Louisiana Tech's opponent in the Independence Bowl. This is the lineup: Sugar Bowl: Penn State vs. Alabama, if the Crimson Tide beats Auburn on Dec. 2, or Georgia if they don't. Orange Bowl: Nebraska vs. Oklahoma. Rose Bowl: Southern California vs. next week's Michigan-Ohio State winner. Cotton Bowl: Houston, if the Cougars beat either Texas Tech or Rice. vs. Notre Dame. Gator Bowl: Clemson vs. the Michigan-Ohio State loser. Fiesta Bowl: (Continued on 6D)

(tight end) Gene Fugett) start. They are a couple of my favorite friends." New Orleans Coach Dick Nolan said of the Cowboys, "You can't make a mistake against a team like them and expect to win. They are every bit as good as the Los Angeles Rams and the Pittsburgh Steelers."

Nolan said "outside of Dorsett's 63-yard run I thought we stopped them pretty well."

DORSETT WAS hauled down from behind by Chapman on the long run. "You're not as fast as you think you are," Chapman told Dorsett after the run.

Then Chapman, who has a sense of humor, smiled and said "But he IS pretty fast." Asked about the scuffles, Chapman said "Oh, we were just pounding pads. Nobody got hurt."

Eagles, Patriots, Rams beat fatal tick of clock

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The great equalizer for all National Football League teams is the game clock. It is emotionless and uncompromising, a friend one moment, an enemy the next.

It often spells the difference between victory and defeat and in four games Sunday, the outcome rested on its steady tick-tock as the seconds ebbed away.

For the New York Giants, the clock seemed to be tolling victory as they ran it out, protecting a 17-12 lead over Philadelphia. Suddenly, with just 20 ticks left, Joe Pisarcik fumbled and Herman Edwards scooped the ball up and ran 26 yards for Philadelphia's winning touchdown in a 19-17 victory.

The New York Jets had raced the clock as they rushed downfield in the final two minutes, positioning the ball for a Pat Leahy field goal that could have turned their game against New England. With 31 seconds left, Leahy lined up for a 33-yard kick. But it hooked wide left, saving the Patriots' 19-17 victory.

FOR THE Kansas City Chiefs, the clock wasn't as vital as the position of the ball. There were just 15 seconds left when KC, trailing 13-10 against Seattle, lined up at the 1-yard line. Only a miracle could save the Seahawks, it seemed. A miracle or a fumble. Tony Green supplied the latter and the Chiefs came up losers again.

In San Francisco, the 49ers played their best game of the season and with two seconds left to play, they were tied with powerful Los Angeles. Overtime loomed, but then Frank Corral delivered a 24-yard field goal that sealed a 31-28 Rams victory.

Elsewhere, St. Louis defeated Washington 27-17, dropping the Redskins into a first place tie in the NFC East with Dallas which downed New Orleans 27-7. San Diego topped Minnesota 13-7 but the Vikings remained tied for the NFC Central lead with Green Bay, which bowed to Denver 16-3. The Broncos' victory kept them in a first place deadlock with Oakland in the AFC West as the Raiders whipped Detroit 29-17.

In other games, it was Tampa Bay 31, Buffalo 10; Chicago 13, Atlanta 7; Cleveland 45, Baltimore 24; and Pittsburgh 7, Cincinnati 6. Miami plays at Houston tonight, completing the season's 12th week.

Eagles 19, Giants 17

New York thought it had this one in the bag when Odis McKinney's interception halted a final Philadelphia drive with 1:23 to play. But then Pisarcik's turnover on a handoff that would have killed the clock reversed the outcome.

"I've been in this game 25 years and that's the most horrifying end to a game I've ever seen," said distraught Giants Coach John McVay.

Patriots 19, Jets 17
David Posey's 24-yard field goal with 2:30 to play gave New England the lead against New York. Then the Jets rolled downfield, racing the clock, hoping for a winning field goal. When Leahy missed, he fell to his hands and knees in anger.

"It was close but not through," he said. "I don't know what to say. I missed it."
Jets quarterback Richard Todd, returning to action after missing seven games with a fracture collarbone, was reinjured, suffering a cracked collarbone which will keep him out for the rest of the year.

Seahawks 13, Chiefs 10
Kansas City Coach Marv Levy defended the wide pitch play which Reed fumbled at the Seattle goal line, sealing the Seahawks' victory.

"There was no debate at all about what we were going to do," said Levy. "You're on the 1, you ought to score from the 1."

When Green didn't, it meant that two Efrén Herrera field goals of 30 and 18 yards were decisive for Seattle.

Rams 31, 49ers 28
Pat Haden softened San Francisco up with three straight passes to Ron Jessie which chewed up 41 yards and set up Corral's winning field goal.

The 49ers had tied the score in the final period on an 89-yard kickoff return by Dave Williams and Paul Hofer's third TD run of the game. Hofer, replacing injured O.J. Simpson, rushed for 103 yards.

Hank Aaron takes swipe at sniping scribes

MEDFORD, Ore. (AP) — Hank Aaron, aiding local Little League fund raising efforts, took a swipe Saturday at sports writers who have questioned his home run record.

Aaron hosted a dinner Friday and spoke Saturday at a spaghetti feed.

In an interview, Aaron said questions about his record are racially motivated.

"If sports writers are going to question the home run record, then why don't they pick up the record books and find that the Japanese own all the records," said Aaron, who passed Babe Ruth's record in 1974.

"They didn't go this route before a black Henry Aaron won the record," he said.

Some writers have said that Sadaharu Oh of Japan has a career home run record of 800. Aaron's career record is 755.

After 25 years, most horrifying end

By The Associated Press
"I've been in this game 25 years, and that's the most horrifying end to a game I've ever seen," said New York Giant Coach John McVay after quarterback Joe Pisarcik's fumble with 20 seconds to play was returned for Philadelphia's winning touchdown in a 19-17 Eagles win.

"I missed it. I missed it. What can I say? I missed it." — New York Jets placekicker Pat Leahy after his 34-yard field goal try with 31 seconds to go sailed wide and clinched New England's 19-17 victory.

"They were a good defensive team, but we had no offensive attack at all and didn't make the plays we were supposed to make." — Minnesota running back Chuck Foreman, held to 42 yards in the Vikings' 13-7 loss to San Diego.

"We've shown more improvement since early in the season than Washington has." — St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart, after pitching two TD passes to help the Cardinals to their fourth straight victory following eight consecutive losses, 27-17 over Washington.

"Tampa Bay" is a good football team. They certainly were coached better than the Buffalo Bills were today." — Buffalo Coach Chuck Knox after the bills were beaten 31-10 by the Bucs.

It's time for college football's Emmy awards

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — It's growing close to "Emmy" time in college football and everybody is wondering what strapping young athlete is going to be crowned as the best of the 1978 crop.

There's a 25-pound hunk of statuary bronze sitting in the corner at the Downtown Athletic Club—a 13½-inch figure of a ball carrier in the overly padded attire of the 1930s—waiting for the 44th winner of the coveted Heisman Trophy.

Selection date is Nov. 29. Drooling pro scouts are waiting with check-books poised.

Who will cradle the Heisman in his arms this year?

IT'S NOT so much a question of who will as who won't. There are 139 colleges playing in the NCAA's I-A division, from which the Heisman honor is normally gleaned. With an average of 60 players on a squad (that's a modest estimate since some squads run as high as 90), that makes a total of 8,340 eligible for consideration.

RIGHT? Wrong.

Seven-eighths of these 8,340 are interior linemen, blocking backs or specialty team members. They are automatically erased. You can be the biggest, toughest, greatest defensive player or offensive lineman in the world and be totally ignored. It's not fashionable to consider these types for the Heisman.

So subtract 7,000. You may be one of the most skillful individual performers in the country but your team is not in the Top Ten. You don't get a call.

Subtract another 1,000.

YOUR TEAM has a winning record but didn't appear on national television. Take away a few hundred more. Now you are down to the hard core.

The 1978 Heisman Trophy winner will be a backfield performer, runner or passer, who not only played on a successful team but on a team that shone in the television limelight at least once and maybe as many as two or three times, got a tremendous buildup from his college publicity office and kept his name in the headlines.

Who, in this season of no cinch standout of the O.J. Simpson ilk, best conforms to these specifications?

Probably Chuck Fusina of Penn State.

Penn State is No. 1 in the latest rankings, unbeaten in 18 games, with a week off to prepare for its final game against Pittsburgh. Fusina, a 6-foot-1, 199-pound ball-hawking Hou-din' out of little McKees Rock, Pa., is the ignition that sparks the engine and the fuel that fans the fire.

"If I had my pick of great players to build a football team, I would start with Chuck Fusina," says Penn State Coach Joe Paterno, who doesn't spill such praises promiscuously.

FUSINA HAS erased all of the offensive records at Penn State, throwing for more than 5,000 yards and 37 touchdowns, but, according to Paterno, has exercised his greatest value in the intangible realm of leadership.

Fusina's chief rival in the Heisman voting is Oklahoma's excellent ball-carrier, Billy Sims, who up to Saturday's game had run for an average of 155 yards a game and 16 touchdowns this year.

Others high on the candidate list include Rick Leach, Michigan's all-time offensive leader; Charles White, a Southern Cal speedster in the O.J. Simpson tradition; Ted Brown of North Carolina State, another runner, and quarterbacks Charles Alexander of Louisiana State, Jack Thompson of Washington State and Jeff Rutledge of Alabama.

passes and Willard Harrell returned a punt 70 yards for another score.

Hart, for one, thought the result was no great upset.

Raiders 29, Lions 17
Mark van Eeghen scored three TDs, two on 1-yard runs and the third on a fumble recovery in the end zone, as Oakland hung onto its share of the AFC West lead.

Broncos 16, Packers 3
Denver kept pace with Oakland by beating Green Bay. Ron Lytle rushed for 110 yards and one TD and Craig Morton's 14-yard pitch to Haven Moses supplied the other touchdown for the Broncos.

Chargers 13, Vikings 7
Dan Fouts' 10-yard TD pass to rookie John Jefferson proved decisive as San Diego ended Minnesota's four-game winning streak.

Steelers 6, Bengals 6
Rocky Bleier scored the game's lone TD on a 1-yard plunge as Pittsburgh survived four interceptions to edge Cincinnati.

Browns 45, Colts 24
Brian Sipe passed for 309 yards and four touchdowns, three of them to Calvin Hill, as Cleveland routed Baltimore, which played without the injured Bert Jones.

Falcons 7
Bruce Heron blocked an Atlanta punt, setting up Walter Payton's 2-yard TD run and helping Chicago end its eight-game losing streak.

Bucs 31, Bills 10
Crippled Tampa Bay got a pair of TD passes from backup quarterback Mike Rae to whip Buffalo. Rae, replacing injured Doug Williams, hit Jimmy Giles with a 33-yard scoring pass and found Morris Owens with a 22-yarder.

National stock car season. Allison scraped the wall as he exited turn four in the lead but the contact only put a stripe along the side of his Thunderbird.

Allison averaged 137.783 mph in becoming the first two-time winner of the Times 500. He also won in 1972. His finish also propelled him from fifth in the season's Winston Cup point standings to second, worth about $10,000. Allison collected about $22,000 from the purse.

Decker wins X-country

DENVER — Colorado's Mary Decker was the individual winner and Iowa State captured team honors at the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Cross Country Championship.

Decker, who placed first in 16:59.4, was the only runner among the 234 entrants to break 17 minutes for the event.

Ressler grabs lead

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Ed Ressler of Allentown, Pa., took a 41-pin lead over George Pappas after the first round of match play in the $60,000 Syracuse Open bowling tournament.

Ressler won seven of his eight games and collected 30 bonus pins for each victory in match play for a total of 5,978 points.

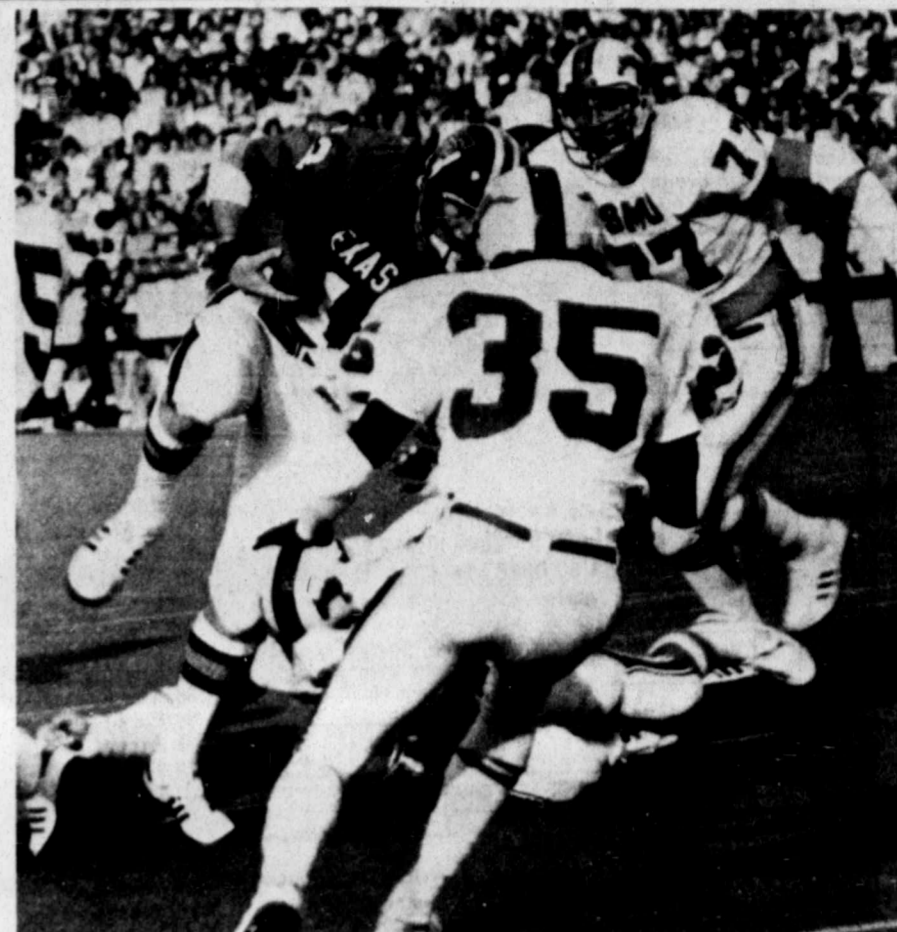

Fire guts track

CICERO, Ill. — A fire gutted the Hawthorne Race Track grandstands, causing $5 to $10 million worth of damage to the nation's fifth oldest racetrack, officials said.

In addition to structural damage to the 89-year-old wooden grandstands, track officials estimated about $2 million in cash was lost in the blaze.

Bowl head dies

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Cecil Stubbs, a vice president of the Hall of Fame Classic college football game, collapsed and died only hours after announcing that Texas A&M would play Iowa State in the Dec. 20 bowl game. He was 53.

PENN STATE, Alabama and sixth-ranked Houston had the weekend off. But fourth-ranked Oklahoma destroyed Oklahoma State 62-7 as Billy Sims rushed for 209 yards, scored four times and set a Big Eight single-season mark of 1,762 yards. The Sooners accumulated 692 yards in total offense, 629 of them on the ground.

James Wilder keyed Missouri's upset of Nebraska with a school-record four touchdowns on runs of 9, 1, 4 and 7 yards, the last with 3:42 remaining. That offset a 255-yard performance by Rick Berns, who set Nebraska game and career rushing records, scored twice and said he would "gladly trade everything I got today for one more touchdown."

Fifth-ranked Southern California nailed down the Pacific 10 crown and a trip to the Rose Bowl by defeating No. 15 UCLA 17-10. Paul McDonald threw touchdown passes of 36 yards to Calvin Sweeney and 10 to Kevin Williams while Charles White rushed for 145 yards and dethroned Anthony Davis as the league's career rushing king with 3,739 yards.

Rick Leach passed 11 yards to Ralph Clayton and 10 to Doug Marsh for touchdowns as seventh-ranked Michigan eliminated No. 15 Purdue from the Rose Bowl picture 24-6.

Vantage. I just won't compromise on taste!

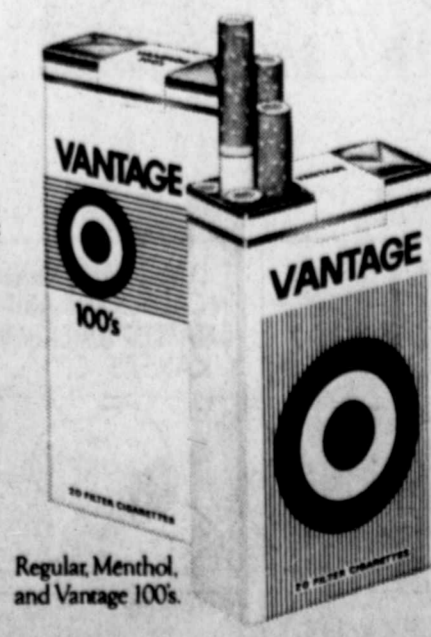

"I'm willing to make some concessions, but taste isn't one of them. Even though I've heard the tar stories, I still want a cigarette with good taste.

"That's why I'm glad I switched to Vantage.

"With Vantage, I get the taste I smoked for in the first place. And that wasn't easy to find in a low tar.

"For me, Vantage is the best tasting low tar cigarette there is."
