Some people are just "nuts" about the pecan and would make Arbor Day every day were the planting and grafting season year 'round.

They are the types who flail with the greatest of care. A broken or strained limb would be unthinkable. Some fanciers just adore the pecan tree

R B Henderson is one such.

He looks to the sprawling tree for shade and comfort; it's true. A tree can be an endearing friend.

And with your perception in tune with nature, you can discover the aesthetics in the lauded pecan' There's more to it than just the taste of the fruit or profit for the grower.

Henderson talked about the aesthetics-about the beauty of trees in the backyard, front yard, orchard, river bank and out in the field and wilds. Principally, though, he likes to see them urbanized and dressing up vards

"It's a beautiful tree," he attests. The fruit is just an added bonus, because it is delicious, too

Right now, Henderson has an as signment he surely volunteered for (After making a career out of the Marine Corps, he -- to say the least -- is no stranger to the art of getting the job done voluntarily or otherwise He also promotes honey and honey bees

Council approves bid

By LANA CUNNINGHAM R-T Staff Writer

Area Builders received the Midland City Council's approval today to construct the downtown exhibit hall a project that has been in the works. for two years.

Area Builders had the lowest bid of five received. The bid was $1,102,000. plus $6,000 to economize two air conditioners. The figure was below the architect's estimate of $1.25 million

The other four bids also were under the estimate. These, including the airconditioning work, were HBF, $1,125. 000, J.A. Jones, $1,153,700, J.W. Coo. per. $1,169,000, and Pace Construction $1.204.400

The bidding was for construction of a long-awaited civic facility to be located on the block bordered by Wall Loraine, Texas and Main streets Contracts for site work, kitchen facilities and interior furnishings will be awarded after future bidding

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said it has been estimated kitchen facilities will cost about $450,000 and interior fur nishings about $75,000 Final plans for the outside have not been approved, he said

Rusts Arnold of Frank Welch and Associates said the architectural firm was pleased with the amount of interest in this job. It helped to get a competitive situation on the job."

An Area Builders spokesman said it will take a year to complete the build ing. Start date has not been decided. but Arnold said it should be soon.

The exhibit hall was authorized by voters almost two years ago, in De cember 1975 when they approved a $2 million bond issue. The delay was due to time needed for the selection of an architect and to the determination of a plan filling Midland's needs, council members had said earlier

Car owners currently parking their vehicles on the vacant lot where the hall will be located soon will have to find other parking spaces

Angelo said the city is moving to open up more metered parking spaces downtown. The area being considered in that regard is on the west side of Baird Street between Wall and Texas Avenue

In other action, the council decicded the median on LaForce Avenue at Midland Regional Airport will have cuts made in it to accommodate Metro Bank

Director of Public Works Fred Baker suggested future construction in the area should be planned with an eve to avoiding further cuts

The street is not wide enough to provide good service to the airport " While the resolution for the cuts passed, it was on a temporary basis. with the council saving bank person. nel should look into a road which circles behind the proposed bank. A bid for repairing the boiler at Midland Regional Airport went to General Service and Supply

At $7,000, the bid was slightly higher than another one submitted But City Manager James Brown Sec. ond the other firm making the lower bid is not able to do the work now

Angelo asked if the repair work would enable the boiler to handle the job of heating additional space under construction at Midland Regional Airport

Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation, said he has been assured the repaired boilder would produce the required heat

Part of the repairs will be done this winter, with the rest to be finished in the spring, Brown said.

Department of Water Resources. The Ogallala Aquifer, the great underground water formation which provides the bulk of nourishment for much of the region, is threatened on some fronts by faulty brine discharges.

Factors in the large-scale conflict of interests involve major considerations

The Ogallala represents a vital natural resource. But so does oil, the very production of which can create hazards to the Ogallala, some authorities believe.

Residents of the area must have had to swallow hard as brine contaminated their ground water supplies. But Whittington, whose agency monitors the quality of water and ensures it is fit for human consumption, said he hasn't studied the situation too closely since the Department of Water Resources has no jurisdiction over oil-related contamination.

"It's really none of our business. The state water code clearly assigns the responsibility to the Texas Railroad Commission," he said. The Railroad Commission, regulators of oil and gas production in Texas, has sole jurisdiction over any water pollution resulting from oil it has any relationship to Mrs. Cherry's request for the grand jury investigation.

Jury request

THE MIDLAND REPORTER-TELEGRAM, TUES., NOV. 21, 1978

Snoddy announced Monday he plans to contest the election.

According to the Texas Secretary of State's Office, the procedure for contesting an election is to file suit in district court, where the election results can be upheld, reversed or voided entirely Snoddy has 30 days from the time the results were canvassed Friday to files such a suit, but had not as of this morning.

The election contest is a civil matter, said the Secretary of State's Office.

One area of contention which appears to be shaping up is over security of the room in which paper ballots were kept between election night and the recount

In her letter Monday to Pickett, Mrs. Cherry said one area to investigate is "procedures followed by...the sheriff of Midland County, who I understand was to have maintained constant security from the time the results were completed on the night of the election

Smith said he kept a deputy stationed outside one door to the room where the ballots were kept until the recount, except for a two-day period. Only one day was there a deputy inside Mrs. Cherry's office, from which both doors to the room are visible, said Smith, because Mrs. Cherry objected.

Smith also said the election code calls for the county clerk, not the sheriff, to be responsible for security of the ballot box.

The recount board found the paper ballots last week in a cardboard box inside the room, rather than in a locked metal box as outlined in the election code

Martin said today he has received no evidence concerning the election. He said he is sure his office will "implement" the results of Smith's investigation.

Martin also said he will be consulting with election officials in Austin with the Secretary of State's Office and the Attorney General's Office. 'We will not hesitate to request their participation in this matter if it is appropriate to do so," Martin said.

Smith emphasized his investigation can only concern any criminal allegations. He said he has received a number of inquiries, including some allegations illegal activities.

The discrepancy between returns as given Nov. 7, election night, and after the recount seems to center on a reported inaccuracy in totaling the absentee returns from in-person voting by machine and from mail-in paper ballots

A "skimming pit" filters out some of the oil and grease from brine discharges into Mound Lake in Terry County, near Brownfield. The playa lake is one of several such lakes in West Texas now under investigation by federal authorities for possible ground water contamination. Terry County Soil

field operations. Some field staff members of the Department of Water Resources say the exclusion of their agency from having authority in these types of water pollution problems hamstrings some of the agency's efforts.

But Whittington himself said he is not very concerned about the matter

"I'm just going to do what the law says. It's not up to me to figure out what the law ought to say," the official said

"I think by and large, the disposal of brine is much better than what it was at one time. Our agency hasn't really done a study on it because we are not involved. Pollution caused by brine is a problem.

"BUT OVERALL, I do think the water quality in the Plains is pretty good and that there is not much water pollution compared to other areas in the state.

However, other water resource offi cials quietly say that salt pollution, a topic which last surfaced as a public concern during the drought of the 1950s when people treasured every

ued. Although the Railroad Commission adopted a "no pit" ordinance, effective Jan. 1, 1969, in response to complaints of prollution at salt water disposal pits, the commission has granted more than 6,000 exceptions to the rule

MEANWHILE, federal and state officials from several agencies are investigating allegations of ground water contamination throughout West Texas, again allegedly caused by disposal of oil field wastes into playa lakes and open pits.

The Washington, D.C., office of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, unsure of where its jurisdiction lies, has enlisted the services of the U.S. Justice Department legal staff to pave the way for intervention over alleged discharges of "oil and grease" into several playa lakes.

"A common misconception is that brine placed in unlined earthern pits is evaporated. It is possible that in semi-arid western areas of the state, a significant part of the hydrous phase of oilfield waters may be dissipated by evaporation from a lined surface pit, assuming that the brine surface is free of evaporation retardants such as mineral precipitants. oil films and micro-organisms,' noted McMillion.

statewide study to be conducted in conjuntion with the Department of Water Resources. That study will be to determine how the Ogallala may be affected by brine disposal.

Tommy Knowles, chief of the Department of Water Resources ground water monitoring section, said he agreed with the BEG's findings.

"They're reputable. Those are good stats; fairly accurate," Knowles said.

Ray Mittle, head of the department's Lubbock office, said his field office has received about 20 complaints of possible ground water contamination due to brine disposal over the past five years.

"There may be a lot of complaints that don't ever reach us. Some people may not even know we exist," he said

MITTLE CLAIMED there may be another factor which could result in fewer complaints: Water resource of ficials must refer oil field-related complaints to the Railroad Commission.

Herbert W. Grubb, director of planning and development for the Department of Water Resources, said he expects the Railroad Commission to become more aggressive in the future on taking measures to stop possible brine-related pollution. 'This has been and still is a major problem in the oil producing area. The water supply west of the 100th meridian definitely isn't a great amount. So you can't afford to mess it up," Grubb said. 'The Railroad Commission does have sole jurisdiction, but our department definitely has a responsibility to monitor the quality of the water. Brine is a large source of pollution. There's no question about it. Whittington said most of the pollution complaints filed with the Department of Water Resources are related to improper brine disposal practices. In the 1960s, he said, the cattle feed industry was the source of many pollution problems, but he said that industry has cleaned up its operations in recent years.

There are commonplace stories to be heard about how drinking water went from good to bad - overnight allegedly because of salt pollution from oil field brine

The 1978 State of Texas Water Quality Inventory, compiled by the Department of Water Resources, specifically attributes some contamination of drinking water in the Colorado River Basin to oil field brine pollution

IN FACT, THE report said, brine is one of the primary pollutants in sections of Lake J.B. Thomas in Scurry County and E.V. Spence Reservoir in Coke County, the two major water sources of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

The lakes rank 13th and 12th respectively on the state's list of "problem The CRMWD serves approximately 300,000 persons in Midland. Odessa. Big Spring, Snyder, Stanton, San Angelo and Coahoma In 1965, L.G. McMillion, then-director of the Ground Water Division of the Texas Water Commission, criticized the Railroad Commission for what he called an inadequate job in enforcing pollution standards governing oil companies.

The Commission should be charged with overseeing the entire spectrum of oil field operations, he suggested at the time, including exploration, well completion, brine disposal during the productive stage, well-plugging and abandonment.

"Many problems have resulted from disposal of municipal and industrial waste effluents. And contamination results from the disposal of brine produced with oil and gas has presented a major threat to surface and ground water quality in local and regional areas," McMillion wrote in a special study.

"LOSSES OF WATER resources as a result of contamination must be held to a minimum since a basic need in providing for present and future economy of the state is an adequate supply of good, quality water." He warned that a lax attitude on the part of the Railroad Commission toward overseeing more stringent regulations would permit contaminants to pass through aquifers such as the Ogallala. Over a long duration, he claimed, that would allow a deteriora-

"Vast areas of North and West-Central Texas are currently experiencing falling water tables, water quality deterioration and soil salinization, much of which can be attributed to the existence of brine resulting from oil and gas operations," McMillion said.

He also recommended the use of

"Even though the evaporation process may be significant in western areas of the state, ideal conditions for evaporation are rare

"FURTHERMORE, preliminary studies by the Texas Water Commission indicate that effective surface areas or surface disposal pits, when related to the rate of brine input, are too small for significant evaporation to occur." he wrote.

Most oil companies in the Permian Basin dispose of brine and other wastes through deep well injection, which places pollutants well below known water tables.

But a few are using playa lakes and open pits, principally on the basis that it is cheaper

The Railroad Commission has gone on record as saying it doesn't know for sure what the environmental effects of brine disposal in playa lakes and open pits will have on the ground water.

But the agency plans to hold a public hearing in Austin next Tuesday to set uniform standards for disposal of oil wastes. The Evironmental Protection Agency prohibits discharge of oil at any level into bodies of water in the U.S

The Commission last month suspended the discharge permits of three companies operating at Whalen Lake, near Andrews.

The action followed allegations by environmentalists and others that oil field wastes dumped into the playa lake were causing possible ground water contamination and killing migratory waterfowl.

THE COMMISSION cited "no significant improvement in reducing pollution" of the lake in suspending the permits.

Oil companies using the lake contend the bottom of Whalen Lake is impermeable and, therefore, restricts any ground water contamination in the area.

An Austin hydrologist hired by Whalen Corp. of Dallas, a subsidiary of Triton Oil and Gas Corp., testified to that effect during an Oct. 26 hearing on the lake permits.

The Bureau of Economic Geology, headquartered at The University of Texas at Austin, in a 1970 study advised against the use of the lakes for holding any kind of solid wastes in the Permian Basin area.

"The playa depressions probably are not secure sites for landfills because the collected water may seep into the permeable cover sands and into the Ogallala Formation.

"On-site geological investigation is necessary to avoid these hazards," the BEG reported.

ALTHOUGH THE Railroad Commission still has not compiled any studies in this area, the agency recently announced it expects to receive federal funds for a joint, in-depth

HE MAINTAINED that while salt pollution frequently occurs in West Texas, largely because of oil operations, it's not always easy to determine who is at fault. He attributed that to the natural salinity of much of the region's water.

State officials say that, in many instances, salt pollution has occurred naturally - without any help from man. Some officials hold that the Pecos River, the only major body of flowing water in West Texas, has always had a naturally high salt content

"Most of the water pollution we deal with, though, does not occur on the Plains. Overall, pollution on the Plains is minimal compared to what we're facing in the major metropolitan areas like Houston and San Antonio," Whittington said.

"The quality of water in West Texas, other than the minerals, is pretty good.'

Nevertheless, Whittington said, he considers oil field brine to be a major threat to the ground water in a region which supplies nearly 50 percent of the state's oil and gas.

But he said it does little good for him to comment on the situation because "we (Department of Water Resources) don't have a thing to do with

Guyana reveals church endorsements

NEW YORK (AP) — A sheaf of endorsements attributed to dozens of prominent Americans, including first lady Rosalynn Carter and Vice President Walter Mondale, apparently bought time for the Rev. Jim Jones when criticism mounted against his religious colony in Guyana.

Jones appears to have used the references for himself and his People's Temple both to establish his

Stoen boy dies in cult's camp

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - John Victor Stoen, born six years ago of highly educated parents immersed in the People's Temple cult, died on a crude wooden platform next to the man he believed to be his father, the Rev. Jim Jones, according to unconfirmed reports out of Guyana.

More than 400 members of the religious commune at Jonestown fulfilled a murder-suicide pact, some by shootings and others by feeding poison to young children in the camp, then drinking the concoction themselves.

Jones' body was found on the platform, with a woman and child next to it. The Stoen boy was known to be at the jungle enclave, and the reports indicated he was the dead child lying beside Jones. John was at the center of a heated year-long custody battle between his parents, Timothy and Grace Stoen, and Jones, leader of the sect.

Jones maintained he was the boy's father, basing his claim to the child on a document signed by Stoen in 1972 asking Jones to father a child with Mrs. Stoen.

"I entreated my beloved pastor, James W. Jones, to sire a child by my wife, Gracy Lucy (Gretch) Stoen, who has previously at my insistence, reluctantly and graciously, consented thereto," said Stoen in the document.

The paper adds, "My reason for requesting James W. Jones to do this is that I wanted my child to be fathered, if not by me, then by the most compassionate, honest and courageous human being."

Stoen, a former assistant prosecutor in Mendocino County, a former deputy district attorney in San Francisco and now a Berkeley lawyer, says he and his wife were attracted to the People's Temple in the late 1960s. Stoen became one of Jones' chief lieutenants

John was born in 1972. First his mother, then his father became disenchanted with life at the temple, according to Stoen's brother, Jonathan Stoen of Golden, Colo.

Mrs. Stoen withdrew from the group, but Jonathan Stoen said his brother and young John went to Guyana in 1977. Then, when Stoen tried to leave the commune, Jones stopped him from taking John with colony in Guyana and then to stave off allegations of mistreatment and brutality.

The Stoens filed suit late last year to get their son back, and a California judge granted them custody this year, ordering Jones to surrender the child. Jones refused, arguing that John threatened to commit suicide if returned to his mother.

The Guyanese government released the papers Monday, with shock still registering over the deaths of Jones and more than 400 sect members in a murder-suicide pact the day after the slayings of Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., and four others at an airstrip near the settlement.

Minister of State Christopher Nascimento said he didn't want to embarrass any of the purported letter writers but Guyana wanted to show why it had permitted the People's Temple to settle there.

The attack on Ryan's group and the mass suicides made it appear "we allowed a bunch of crazies into Guyana," Nascimento said, "but in fact the Rev. Jones presented references of the highest caliber."

Many of those quoted in the documents said they couldn't remember talking to Jones, writing letters for him or making speeches about him or his church.

But at least one said she recalled writing a letter of endorsement, and saw no reason not to.

Donneter Lane, executive director of the San Francisco Council of Churches, said Monday the People's Temple was a member of the "main line" Protestant denomination of the Disciples of Christ.

"Every time we turned around, he (Jones) was doing great things," she said. She added that her letter to Guyanese Prime Minister Forbes Burnham on Aug. 2, 1977, was more of an endorsement of the church than of Jones

Jones wrote to Mrs. Carter on March 17, 1977, saying he had missed meeting evangelist Ruth Carter Stapleton, President Carter's sister, during her trip to San Francisco. He also said that after a trip to Cuba, he found the country was "badly in need of hospital equipment."

Mrs. Carter, in a hand-written note on White House stationery, wrote to Jones on April 12, 1977, saying: 'Dear Jim, Thank you for your letter. I enjoyed being with you during the campaign - and do hope you can meet Ruth soon. Your comments about Cuba are helpful. I hope your suggestion can be acted on in the near future. Sincerely, (signed) Rosalynn Carter."

Jones also provided letters of endorsement from Joseph Hall, president of the San Francisco chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Jeff Mori, director of the Japanese Community Youth Council of San Francisco.

Excerpts of statements from dozens of other figures also were included. But Nascimento, who is visiting here, said Monday it was not known under what circumstances the undated excerpts were made.

Mondale is quoted in the excerpts as saying, "I am grateful...for ... the work of the People's Temple Christian Church in defending the First Amendment guarantees of freedom of the press, in managing the drug program and in running the ranch for handicapped children.'

Neither Mondale nor Califano were immediately available for comment.

The excerpts also quote government officials who have left office, such as former Sen. Sam Ervin and former Rep. Bella Abzug, or who have died, including former Sens. Hubert Humphrey and Philip Hart.

Mrs. Abzug was quoted as saying: "I was most impressed to hear of the good works your church is doing. You are showing the kind of commitment to social justice which our nation so desperately needs.

However, on Monday, spokeswoman Mim Kelber said Mrs. Abzug has "no recollection" of having written a letter endorsing Jones or the church. She said Mrs. Abzug never met Jones.

Local residents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Mussett of No. 9 Amhurst Court and Mrs. A. T. Barrett Jr. of 215 Ridglea Drive, were recent guests at Rosedown Plantation and Gardens in St. Francisville, La.

Rosedown is a restored plantation empire in the Felicianas, the region made famous by artist-naturalist John James Audubon, who painted more than 30 of his birdlife studies there more than a century ago. The Midlanders' visit coincided with the peak bloom of thousands of modern and old-fashioned roses and other spring flowers.

Rosedown was originally built in 1835 by a wealthy young planter for his bride at a time when cotton plantations along the Mississippi were creating the country's greatest fortunes. By the mid-1800s the magnificent 17th-century French landscape style gardens were the showplace of the Mississippi.

Rosedown, after years of neglect in the wake of the Civil War, was rediscovered in 1956 by Ms. Milton Underwood of Houston and restored to its original grandeur. Today this lavish plantation house and gardens are once again the showplace of the Mississippi. The grounds contain many rare shrubs and trees, some almost a century and a half old. Among them are unusual types of camellias and the hip gardenia..

The top item in the Judy Garland auction is the star's 1953 Mercedes 300S, a limited edition car with maroon leather interior and custom-fitted luggage which Charles hopes to sell for "between $50,000 and $100,-000.'

Luft, who sought approval of the auction from Judy's children - Lorna and Joey Luft and singer Liza Minnelli, says the daughters wanted to keep Judy's car.

Judy Garland gets top billing at auction

"They said, 'Daddy, you can't sell the Mercedes!"" But Luft says the car would have been impractical for Liza or Lorna who live in New York. Perhaps the most touchingly personal item to be auctioned is a thin leather-bound volume of poems written by Judy when she was 18. "They are sad and pretty," says Luft of the compositions reflecting on lost love and emotional pain.

The never-published book will be sold along with publishing rights.

For many buyers, memories will be stirred by costumes on sale - the black, bead-encrusted jacket Judy wore when she sang at Carnege Hall, the sequinned toreodore pants worn for her last concert at the Palace

Theater in 1967.

Among the personal items available are 29 pairs of Judy's hoses in every color of the rainbow.

Although some may see the auction as morbidly commercial, Luft insists that Judy would have approved.

Safety rules for furniture good idea

By JEFFREY MILLS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Furniture safety standards that would help prevent fires but add to the cost of furnishing a home were recommended Monday by the staff of the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

The staff, saying at least 500 people die annually in fires caused by cigarettes igniting furniture upholstery, recommended a flammability standard that the five-member commission is expected to vote on early next year.

The commision staff said the goal would be "the production of upholstered furniture which would not ignite when a cigarette is allowed to burn on it."

Cigarettes can smolder in upholstered furniture for hours after all family members have gone to sleep, causing smoky fires that can cause death through smoke inhalation.

'Cigarettes are the largest single cause of home fires, causing at least 10 percent of them," George Anikis of the commission staff told reporters.

The regulation would require testing of all types of fabrics used in furniture. The furniture could not be sold if charring spread more than three inches from test cigarettes.

The staff said the extra cost to consumers would be $6.60 to $10 for a sofa and $3.50 to $5.30 for a chair. These figures are far below those given by the furniture industry.

Joe Ziolkowski, technical director of the National Association of Furni-' ture Manufacturers, said before the commission announcement that the regulation could make a $400 sofa cost Anikis, asked about the difference between the cost estimates, said, "The industry is quoting data that is three years old." He said recent trends in furniture manufacture have been away from natural fibers to man-made fibers, which are less like-ly to be ignited. A regulation that requires standards already met by many fibers will cause little new expense, Anikis said.

At least a small expenditure would be required of all manufacturers to account for the testing, commission staffers said.

The industry had called for federal doption of its own voluntary safety tandard. However, the agency staff said in documents for the commis-sioners, "the industry voluntary pro-gram is not adequate because it does quire fabric or simulated furni-can't imagine where Americans got hung on the "single person" concept.

Maybe it was as children in arithmetic class, when we subtracted an odd number from an even and we stored the number on our finger and carried it around and really didn't know what to do with it.

But we have always been uncomfortable with "one left over."

After all, did Adam and Eve have a bachelor friend? Did an orangutan check in on Noah's ark asking, "Have you got a single near the pool?" If God had meant for us to live alone, would he put on menus, "Caesar Salad must be ordered by two?"

It's time we got over it. There are millions of Americans who are alone in this country today by divorce, death, or choice, trying to fit into a

First, that people without partners eat dinner after six like other people. Second, you can set an extra chair at the table without having the centerpiece self-destruct.

Third, men and women alone handle moving through crowds and making conversation better than most people give them credit for.

Fourth, you don't have to go out of your way to arrange "handicap parking" facilities or introductions of any of the extras because they are unaccompanied

Fifth, if you're worried about people without partners being a threat to other couples and their marriage, you're too late. They probably thought of it before that evening.

There is nothing sadder in this world than to see a vast expanse of talent go untapped and unap-preciated. There's an entire segment of our population who make wonderful conversation, have great humor, fresh ideas, and in general are good company ... who are passsed over because a hostess considers them as she does her china ... if it doesn't match, people will talk.

Nest relocation draws attention

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) -The bird's nest needed to be moved about 60 feet, but it took local, state and federal officials, a telephone company, an electric utility and a ferryboat operator to do it.

The nest that drew so much official attention Monday was that of an osprey, or fish hawk, which is rare in these parts, said a spokesman for the state Department of Fish and Game. After obtaining clearance from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the California Coastal Commission, the county Harbor Patrol and the city of Newport Beach, the 10-pound, 21/2-foot tant host until the move. The osprey, with a wingspan of about four feet, first built her nest atop the mast of Levis' 55-foot schooner, Samarang, and the radiologist said the dubious honor was costing him about $1,500 a month.

"With the nest there I couldn't even take the boat out for a sail," he said. And he also had to pay a fee for a mooring he no longer needed, another fee for a shoreside slip he couldn't use and his monthly payments on the boat itself.

Edwards and Steptoe developed a procedure in which a human egg is taken from a woman, fertilized in a laboratory, then implanted back in the woman's womb.

DEATHS Mary King

Services for Mary Blanche King, 86, of 2003 Gulf St. will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home with the Dr. John Long of Memorial Christian Church officiating.

Burial will follow in Fairview Cemetery.

Mrs. King died Monday in a Midland hospital following a brief illness

She was born Nov. 1, 1892, in Pecos. She moved with her family to Midland when she was a year old. Her father, the late B.N. Aycock, was a pioneer rancher in both Martin and Midland counties. She attended Midland schools, later graduating from Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene.

She returned to Midland and was married to the late Forest King, an early day rancher. Her husband preceded her in death in 1963.

Mrs. King lived on ranches in Upton, Midland and Martin counties. She and her husband settled in Midland permanently in 1936. They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary shortly before his death in 1963. Mrs. King was a member of the First Baptist Church.

However, officers said today, they still have not apprehended the driver of the vehicle alleged to have struck two men Saturday.

A 23-year-old Odessa man died in a hospital here Saturday and a 26-yearold companion was listed in satisfactory condition at the same facility after the two men reportedly were struck by a hit-and-run vehicle, said authorities.

The hall was packed with bodies, and more were piled up outside. Charles Krause of The Washington Post, who visited the camp as the representative of the foreign press, reported:

"From the air, it literally looked like a garbage dump where somebody dumped a lot of rag dolls."

Krause said the bodies apparently were lying where they fell and had not been touched. He said many were holding one another

Krause also reported half a million dollars in cash and a safe containing at least 800 passports and items of jewelry were found in the settlement. There were unconfirmed reports of a half million dollars in gold and a large carton filled with Social Security checks

The Guyanese police said they arrested two of the survivors who came out of the jungle, but no charges were filed against them immediately. Presumably the police believed they were believed implicated in the killing of Ryan and his companions.

In Washington, the State Department set up a task force to inform the families of the cultists as soon as the department learned the identities of the dead and the missing.

Some of the waiting relatives went to the locked headquarters of the People's Temple in San Francisco Monday: About 25 members of the cult were inside, guarded by police to protect them.

'Where's my mother?" screamed Margie Henderson, the daughter of one cultist, as she pounded on the chain link fence. "Shoot me! Shoot me like you shot them!"

Deputy Police Chief Clem DeAmicis of San Francisco said there was no indication that members of the cult there would try suicide.

Some of the waiting relatives went to the People's Temple headquarters in San Francisco Monday, where about 25 cult members stayed behind locked doors and police guard. "We want to make sure that nothing will happen to them," said Deputy Police Chief Clem DeAmicis, adding there was no indication the temple members might try suicide. "My feeling is that they are not interested in doing away with themselves," he said.

Outside, the people waited, and they talked. "There was a Hitler building up here in the heart of America - right here," said Johnnie Harris, who was seeking word on his 32-year-old daughter, Vera Young, a cult member for eight years.

Others were less bitter. "I was favorably impressed with the social and humanitarian causes of the church and their integration efforts," said the Rev. William Power Clancey Jr.

Powell said President Carter was taking a "personal interest" in the jungle tragedy, and he and his wife, Rosalynn, were "shocked and grieved" at the slaying of Ryan and the three American journalists with him.

Powell said Vice President Walter Mondale telephoned the "deepest condolences" of the Carters and himself to the newsmen's next of kin. Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House International Relations Committee, said Monday that his committee will convene an inquiry into how U.S. officials handled complaints about the Jonestown colony.

Stimulation on this scale -- known as massive hydraulic fracturing, -- is a highly promising technology because it may be the key to unlocking vast amounts of gas contained in socalled "tight" gas formations such as the Cotton Valley lime, Mitchell said. These formations typically have such low permeability and porosity that gas flow is severly restricted.

"In one study for the Department of Energy, tight gas basins in the Southwest, Northern Plains and Rocky Mountain areas were estimated to contain 400 trillion bucic feet of gas in place," Mitchell stated. "With technological advances in recovery techniques and higher prices, it was projected that these basins could yeild more than 180 trillion cubic feet of recoverable gas.

"To put that into perspective, the same study put current proved obtainable reserves of the lower 48 states at 184 trillion cubic feet. So we're talking about a technology that could double the reserves of the entire lower 48."

The Muse-Duke is Mitchell Energy's ninth well in the Fallon Field. Two earlier wells were completed with massive fracturing techniques on a smaller scale that is planned for the Muse-Duke. The company discovered the field in 1969 and currently owns an interest in approximately 11,500 acres there, and 13,800 in the area

"Our previous experience indicates that the Muse-Duke will be changed from a marginally economic well to a very respectable preducer as a result of the fracture," Mitchell said. "But more important, the well will demonstrate and advance a technology that has the potential to make a significant impact on the nation's energy predicament.

Three states challenge natural gas policy act

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - The states of Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas have filed suit challenging the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978, charging that the key portion of Predident Carter's energy plan is a feder-al violation of states' rights.

TUESDAY, NOV. 21, 1978

"It may be a landmark case, not only in energy matters but in the matter of state sovereignty," Larry Derryberry, Oklahoma attorney general, said after the suit was filed Monday.

"The issues in this case go far

L. W. Bridges Bridges to speak

L. W. Bridges of Aurora, Colo., will be the speaker for the Nov. 28 meeting of the West Texas Geological Society in the Midland Hilton.

The event will get under way at 11:30 a.m.

Bridges will speak on "Red Wing Creek Field, North Dakota: A Concentricline of Structural Origin.

beyond what is being contested," he said. "They go to the heart of the question of where state sovereignty ends and federal authority starts.'

The suit by the three major gasproducing states was filed in federal court at Oklahoma City against the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, which is reponsible or enforcing provisions of the natural gas act. It attacks the act by challenging its constitutionality.

The three states are specifically challenging provisions in the act that for the first time allow the federal government to control the price of natural gas sold within a state and that compel states to participate in enfocing the act.

Enforcement of the act would cost Oklahoma alone an estimated $750,-000 a yea, Derryberry said.

In their suit, the three states will argue that the gas act violatesthe interstate commerce clause of the U.S. Constitution and the 10th Amendment, which reserves to the stats all powers not specifically grantad to the federal government.

Under the energy legislation, natu-ral gasprices will be allowed to rise by

"For example, the Cotton Valley lime alone probably has close to 10 trillion cubic feet of gas in place. With conventional well completion techniques, the recovery would be less than a trillion cubic feet. Massive hydraulic fracturing could increase the recovery to well more than two trillion cubic feet, the equivalent of 10 percent of all the gas used in the United States in a year."

Hydraulic fracturing, which was first performed commercially by Halliburton Services in 1949, has already increased recoverable oil and gas reserves in North America alone by an estimated 25 percent.

Midland-Odessa prosecutor ducks rket assassination try

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - An assistant U.S. attorney who works in Midland at times was slightly injured this morning when two men opened fire from the back of a van and shattered his windshield.

James W. Kerr Jr., 38, was driving to work through Alamo Heights about 8 a.m. when, accord- * ing to witnesses, a mint-green Ford van with darkened windows pulled away from the curb in front of him in this Northeast San Antonio suburb. Kerr told police he saw the back door fly open and the guns appear. He hit the seat as the assailants opened fire. Kerr has been assigned as a prosecutor to the Midland-Odessa Division of the federal court system's Western District of Texas for about a year. When the federal court is in session in Midland, Kerr travels to Midland to serve in the court under U.S.

Federal Judge John Wood Jr. Police found 19 holes in the car, 15 from an automatic weapon, Assistant Alamo Heights Police Chief Roger Terry said. He said .30-caliber carbine casings were found at the scene and police. believe a shotgun also was used.

Kerr was rushed to Southwest Texas Methodist Hospital, where he received treatment for minor cuts and abrasions on the face and hands, a hospital spokesman said.

The U.S. attorney's office said Kerr was handling drug conspiracy cases, most of them in the El Paso area, the past several months

However, he is now back on duty in San Antonio. Kerr got out of his new Lincoln Continental and stumbled around, asking for help.

"Help me, help me, please. Please call the police," Lillian Haley quoted Kerr as saying Another woman noticed him with blood all over his face and hands. She recognized him as a neighbor. She said he seemed nervous and refused to sit down.

Police were searching for the van, which witnesses said fled north.

The U.S. attorney's office said they did not know if Kerr had been threatened recently. They said he had been the lead prosecutor in major narcotic cases in the past. He was also working on some gambling cases in West Texas.

U.S. Deputy Marshall Jack Ashburn, in charge of security for federal judges and prosecutors in the Western District, said he is now "studying the situation" to determine if security alert should be issued.

Policeman appointed to succeed Couldron

VAN HORN - Van Horn policeman Buddy Harris, 42, Monday was appointed to succeed G.A. "Jeff" Couldron, 38, as the city's police chief and fire marshal.

Harris in 1977 briefly served as a deputy under Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith.

Couldron, who has been police chief here since October 1975, said he resigned from the two posts 'because of personal reasons.

However, Van Horn Mayor Harold McGill said in an emergency meeting of the City Council Monday that Couldron had used his police car outside the city limits and against orders of the council. McGill said Couldron had burned up a third engine in the police car in chasing someone who was wanted for theft of services in Van Horn.

Harris will be earning $1,000 a month as police chief and $100 a month as fire marshal.

Before coming to Midland, Harris was a deputy for the Presidio County Sheriff Office. He has been on the Van Horn police force since March 1977.

the contract. South would make two overtricks if he finessed with the ten of spades at the second trick. The finesse would succeed, and South could draw trumps and run the clubs to take all 13 tricks.

IDIOTIC FINESSE

The spade finesse looks idiotic if you consider the spade suit all by itself, but not if you look at the hand as a whole. If West can win the second trick with the jack or queen of spades he cannot defeat the contract. He can take a second defensive trick with the ace of diamonds; but if he fails to take it, he won't get it. It's far from idiotic to protect yourself against danger. DAILY QUESTION

ANSWER: Bid four hearts. You would bid only one heart in first or second position, hoping to reach a slam if partner had the right two aces and some diamonds to the king or kingjack. After partner's pass the slam is just a pipe-dream and you should cope with the chance that the hand "belongs" to the opponents.

Panel urges dance hall approval

Teen-agers in Midland who are too young to drink "legally" and too old to go to bed at 9 p.m. on weekends may get a place of their own to go.

Serious crime shakes Speedway section of city

THE MIDLAND REPORTER-TELEGRAM, TUES., NOV. 21, 1978

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) said Jayne Greene. "You race. - Except at race time, the Speedway section of Indianapolis is a quiet place to live. But for the third time in four months serious crime has shaken the community.

The deaths of four young restaurant workers have rekindled fears once left behind in the city next door to this incorporated community of 16,000 on the western edge of Indianapolis.

Like the shooting death of a 65-year-old woman in July and a series of eight bombings in September, there was no ready explanation for the slavings

Burger Chef Systems has offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the slayings

In September, Speedway business officials offered a $2,500 reward for the bomber's arrest and conviction, but the money remains unclaimed, despite hundreds of calls with ous problems in this town wife were injured by a that is host to the famous bomb in a high school Indianapolis 500 auto parking lot.

Requesting the permit was Don Seawright, who said there will be no alcoholic beverages served in a business to be located at 500 E. Nobles Ave.

"It will be for teens and family recreation," he said.

Commission Chairman Robert Truitt Jr. told Seawright the city's planning and zoning staff had recommended "disapproval" of the request earlier on the grounds there would be too much noise caused by the music and the youths.

Seawright, who said he owned "The Place," which is a local nightspot for those over the age of 18, said he could control the action at the new business on Nobles.

"I would just like to try. If we have any complaints, then we will shut it down," he said.

"Then if it turns out it (action) can not be controlled, the neighbors can complain and have it (the business) shut down," Truitt said.

Commissioners finally agreed to a temporary permit, but the proposed "tryout period" bounced back and forth among the members like a selfpropelled ping pong ball.

Mrs. James Purvis moved for the permit to carry a three month time limitation.

George Veloz disagreed, saving, "Three months isn't enough time to see if a business would work. Something like this (the dance spot) is very needed here and especially in that part of town." He then suggested six months on the permit.

But member T.J. Melton III went even farther and said it would take a nine-month permit in order for the business to be judged during the summer months.

The commission compromised on six months. Other conditions include a security guard at the business from 8 p.m. to closing time. The hours of operation will be from 4 to 10 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday and 4 p.m. to midnight on Friday and Saturday. Seawright noted that the "kids want it so bad. It depends upon them to make it a success.'

The request must receive the Midland City Council's approval before actual operation can begin.

A zone change request to accommodate a new Mid-West Electric Co. building at the corner of North Big Spring Street and Neely Avenue received the commission's approval.

This block bordered by Big Spring, Neely, Loma and Pecan will be developed into a series of buildings for the firm's showrooms, offices and warehouse, according to Mickey Cappadonna

The commission hit a snag concerning the number of parking spaces. The plans call for a large amount of landscaping to be done and Cappadonna said he would prefer to leave the landscaping in the plans. Taking out part of landscaping would add only a few parking spaces and might not be worth it.

A request by J. Ralph Berry, M.D., for an amended planned district on the northeast corner of N Street and West Ohio Avenue was rejected.

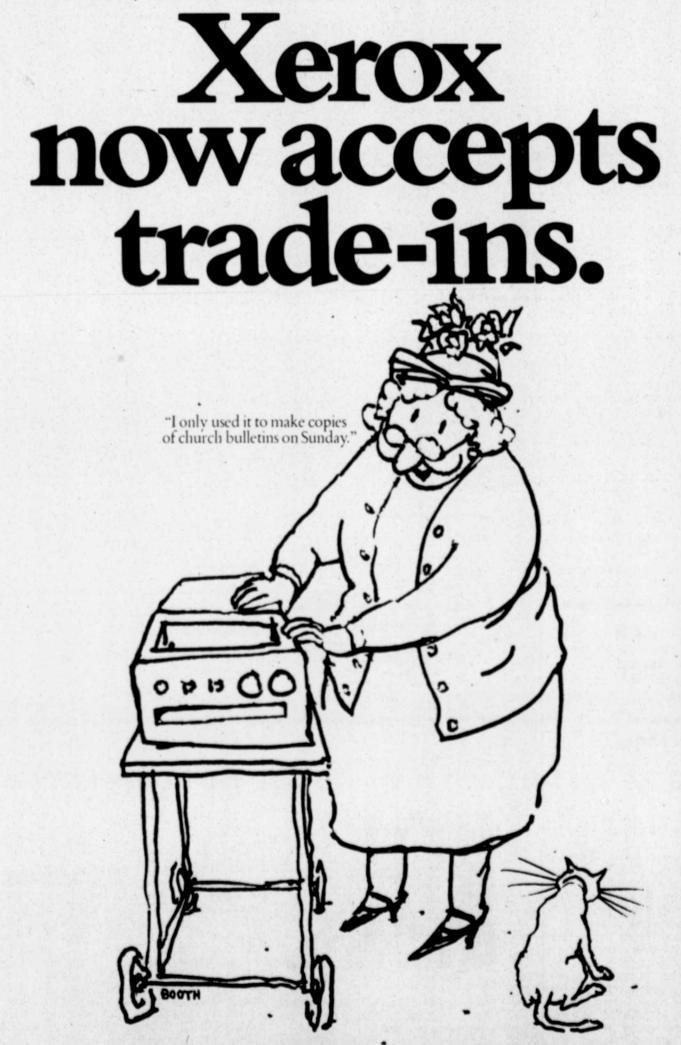

The commission decided the physician had not followed earlier instructions on constructing fences, installing gates and limiting the number of occupants to three.

"They have made a mockery of the Planned District," Mrs. Purvis said, Melton disagreed, saying, "In any Planned District, there will be some changes made before it is completed. I admit the violations here are extreme, but I can not justify having the requirements on one side of the fence stronger than the others.'

The vote to approve the request failed on a 3-3 tie vote.

In other action, the commission rejected a preliminary plat of Frigon Addition, approved a preliminary plat of Metro-Industrial Park on specified conditions and approved a preliminary plat of Hillcrest Acres.

A zone change request from Skyline Joint Venture received the panel's approval

Fight bureaucratic wastefulness

WASHINGTON - The federal government consumes the taxpayers' cash, according to our calculations, at the rate of $852,000 per minute.

There is no available arithmetic on how much of this federal intake is wasted. The many extravagances. taken individually, may seem like minor excesses when compared with the larger outrages that attract frontpage attention. But they add up to a colossal scandal.

From our watch on waste, here are a few typical items that have contributed to the misspent billions:

The Army paid Rockwell International an astonishing $1,648 for a two-inch cam that was listed in the economy's 1970 catalogue for $3.43. Military procurement officers shelled out $59.28 for a simple "O" ring worth less than $1. screws that could be bought at a hardware store for 35 cents cost the Pentagon $2.19 apiece.

tank engines, despite adverse test results. The new engines can be stopped by a little dirt and sand, which filters through the engine seals. These are merely scattered examples of how the taxpayers' money is misspent. The fraud and waste in one government department alone was estimated at $6.3 billion during the 1977 fiscal year. This stupendous amount slipped through the fingers of the bureaucrats at the Health, Education and Welfare Department.

Taxes are necessary, of course, to operate the government. But the misspending has surpassed tolerable limits. The federal bureaucrats waste more money than most governments have to spend

They have more incentive to spend money than to save it. Their job promotions and salary increases depend on expanding their

Then at the end of the fiscal year, there is a mad scramble to spend the money that is left in the budget. Otherwise, Congress might be inclined to cut it out of the next budget.

Indeed, misspending has become so pervasive in government that we are calling upon the people to help us keep a watch on waste. This will not stop the squandering, of course, but it may help deter it. Thus, we invite those who have knowledge of specific incidences of government misspending to tell us about it. Write to Jack Anderson's Watch on Waste, P.O. Box 2300, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Portillo. It is another step in the U.S.-Soviet negotiations on arms transfer limitations and fits right in with Mexico's long-standing advocacy of tight restrictions on everything It may be recalled that, five years ago, the Soviet Union proposed that major powers reduce their the military budgets 10 percent and use part of the saving for assistance to developing countries.

United Nations General Assembly might have gone down to defeat had not Mexico suggested that the United Nations undertake a detailed study of the ideal of military expenditure limitation. The General Assembly eventually approved both the Soviet and the Mexican proposals. Mexico, too, has followed up on the idea and, just this summer, played host to the Preliminary Conference of the countries of Latin America and the Caribbean on Conventional Weapons.

However, not all Latin American nations are as anti-military as Mexico. Absent from the August meeting in Mexico City were Brazil, Chile and Paraguay. Presumably other countries, also headed by army generals, entertain doubts about the campaign for limits on military expenditures, too.

One reason is that Latin America already is relatively disarmed. The only Latin nation that boasts military forces with currently proven combat capability is the Soviet satellite, Cuba. Cuban troops, perhaps as many as 40,000, have been fighting in Angola and Ethiopia, in Africa, for some time now. But, "in most Latin American countries, all military expenditures account for less than 2 percent of gross national product," the U.S. State Department noted in a recent publication on U.S. arms transfer policy

What is more, "only 3 percent of all U.S. arms sales go to Latin America" and "with a few exceptions, the Latin American nations have not significantly sacrificed their development goals for the weaponry in which they have invested," the department went on to say.

Another reason that some Latin countries take a dim view of proposals for reducing their military expenditures when made by the United States and the Soviet Union is that neither of the Big Two is considered a reliable source of supply.

For example, the Soviet Union supplied arms to only two Latin countries in the 1967-1976 decade, Clements defeated Democrat Hill by a narrow margin in the governor's race, something which Hill apparently didn't think was possible. It is said that he was all set to take over the governor's office from Dolph Briscoe, whom he had defeated in the Democrat primary last summer, and that plans for Hill's inauguration were well under way.

As it turned out, it will be Bill Clements who will be appearing in the stellar role in the governor's inauguration in January.

There has been a lot of vote recounting going on over the state in the last several days, but the outcome of the governor's race has not been altered.

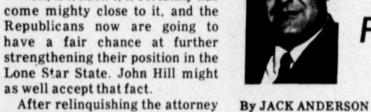

Hill, sounding off at a teacher's meeting at San Antonio last Friday, said a "distorted electorate" defied pollsters and elected Clements the first Republican governor of Texas in more than a century.

Distorted, twisted or whathave-you, a sufficient number of the voters thought well enough of Bill Clements to elect him over next four years.

First, after the vote-counting and tabulation on election day (Nov. 7), it was Republican Sam Snoddy over Democrat Charlie Welch, the incumbent, by a 21vote margin.

That held for a few days until Welch, who at first had said he would not seek a recount, filed for a recheck at the insistence of friends and supporters.

The recount was made late last week, and on Friday afternoon. Welch was declared the winner by a 21-vote margin, completely reversing the election-night announcement. Welch was delighted, as well might be expected.

Now, however, Snoddy is contesting results of the recheck. with the possibility of legal action. He said he is seeking a thorough investigation, "in view of the

It's an unpleasant situation for all concerned. Hopefully, it can and will be cleared up soon.

Right now, Charlie Welch, who had no comment when interviewed Monday, is in the winner's circle.

- A whopping 700,000 gallons of gasoline have disappeared from the Navy's public works center in Norfolk. Investigators discovered that drivers were selling the government gasoline to private businessmen by the tankload.

 The Labor Department estimates that cheaters got away with $38 million in unemployment insurance overpayments in 1976.

Each year, the Agriculture Department loses $500 million in food stamps, half of it through fraud. - The Army brass have just gone operations. Their performance is often measured, therefore, by how much and how rapidly they spend. Millions could be saved merely by cutting down on the luxuries that government executives have become accustomed to. There is an enormous waste of manpower in the federal fuddle factory. Trifling departmental decisions are processed by timewasting, paper-consuming committees.

All too often, their real objective is to evade issues, shift responsibility and hand the work to someone else. Anything produced by a committee is bound to be innocuous because so many people participate. But this is essential if controversy is to be avoided and job survival assured.

The system also encourages superiors to build staff empires, with each subordinate gathering up more subordinates for himself. The result is what the bureaucrats call a "staff build-up.

All this might be reasonable if the amount of useful work increased by the same ratio. It seldom does. The process of swelling a staff means extra paperwork to administer the extra employees. A great deal of the

INSIDE REPORT:

WASHINGTON - The conniving hand of the Kremlin is privately blamed by U.S. intelligence analysts as the probable cause of a damaging news report out of communist Indochina portraying a top U.S. policymaker as privately expressing disenchantment with President Carter's China policy.

VNA, the Vietnamese official news agency, reported from Vientiane. Laos, Oct. 31, on what purported to be the views of Richard Holbrooke, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs. During a tour of Southeast Asia, Holbrooke was depicted as severely critical of both national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and communist China, Vietnam's enemy.

Holbrooke flatly denies making any such comments, and it is inconceivable that he would. How in the world, then, did the Vietnamese produce such a fabrication? While lacking proof positive, the intelligence estimate here is that this is a classic case of Soviet "disinformation" - generating lies for political purposes. If the purpose was to create rancor between U.S. policymakers, it was partially successful.

There is no internal dispute over the U.S. intention to recognize commu-nist China, a policy laid down by the president himself. The question of recognizing communist Vietnam is not yet determined, with Holbrooke and the State Department decidedly more enthusiastic over that prospect than Brzezinski and the National Security Council staff.

This difference was inadvertently underlined during Holbrooke's Southeast Asian tour. A news account out of Bangkok quoted him as predicting rapid recognition of Vietnam with precedence over China. The State Department in Washington denied any such policy, and Holbrooke contends he was misquoted. The confusion is attributed to sharp concern in Thailand over the new Soviet-Vietnamese treaty.

What seemed an honest error in Bangkok was followed by intentional mischief in Vientiane, Holbrooke's next spot. At a concert given by an American pianist at the residence of the U.S. charge d'affaires, Holbrooke chatted with a Vietnamese envoy. Next came a remarkable VNA point-to-point radio report from Vientiane to Hanoi monitored by the U.S. VNA reported that "a U.S. digni-tary" — clearly Holbrooke — "admitted during a private discussion that the Western press campaign against human rights violations in Vietnam ... is aimed at serving the interests of Peking, since the 'Chinese card' is arrogantly demanding that the United States not normalize relations with Vietnam and since Brzezinski is pressing the Southeast Asian affairs policymakers of the U.S. State Department into continuing to woo China and contain Vietnam.

"The above dignitary," the VNA report continued, "also held it is still necessary for the United States to lead Peking by the nose and to continue to play the Chinese card." He was finally quoted as predicting simultaneous U.S. diplomatic relations with both Hanoi and Peking "without allowing U.S.-China relations to hamper" U.S.-Vietnamese ties and despite "intransigent Chinese pressure on the United States and its allies." If any doubt remained about the identity of "the above dignitary," the VNA report concluded by naming Holbrooke. It reported that he "warmly received" the Vietnamese envoy and claimed to be "very optimistic" about U.S.-Vietnamese normalization. "The above event can be interpreted as a kind of message the U.S. assistant secretary of state wanted to express as a friendly ges-ture to Hanoi," it added. "The one thing I'm sure about is that Dick Holbrooke never said any of this," one White House aide told us. What's more, the report's repetitive talk about "the China card," its criticism of Brzezinski and its assault on Chinese intransigence are all out of character for the Vitnamese regime. But not for the Soviets. That is why U.S. intelligence analysts, while lacking absolute proof, see the report as a probable exercise in Soviet "disinformation" to disrupt U.S.-Chinese relations and sow seeds of discord in the Carter administration.

The VNA report was neither broadcast by Radio Hanoi nor published in the Vietnamese press, lending credence to the theory that its source was in Moscow rather than Hanoi. Nevertheless, the point-to-point broadcast from Vientiane was monitored in Washington and probably Peking. Consequently, it raised suspicions about Holbrooke among some very high-placed colleagues, precisely as intended. Although now exposed as the fraud it was, this maneuver by the Kremlin shows how the high stakes game of power politics is really played in East Asia.

Practice suicide drills preceded mass deaths EVERY MONDAY IS LADIES DAY

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) - "A lot of beautiful people died because Jim Jones pre-ordained this many years ago," said a shocked former People's Temple member, remembering mass suicide drills by trusting followers who believed they were taking poison.

"Jim Jones always said, 'If they ever put me in jail or if I am killed, we are all to commit suicide, killing children first, making sure they are dead, then killing ourselves," said Linda Mertle, who left the cult a year ago just before she was to go to Jonestown, Guyana, where more than 400 cult members died by poison and gunfire Sunday.

us with practice suicides. In 1973, when eight people defected from the church in San Francisco, that was the first time he tested us."

She said Jones called followers to the San Francisco temple and after they had given him a clenchedfist salute, he announced, "We're going to celebrate tonight.'

She said, "He brought in paper cups and poured wine in them. ... He ordered all of us to drink it. We did and then he said to us, smiling, 'You have just drunk poison and all of you will be dead in 30 minutes.''

She said a man jumped up and said he didn't want to die, but was beaten to the floor by two of Jones' 'angels' - "what we called his hit men and women.

"I beat him too because he doubted Jim Jones' word," she said.

Another woman who shouted she didn't want to die was shot at with a pistol. The shots were blanks.

"After he (Jones) enjoyed the agony of the people he said that this was just a test of our loyalty," said Ms. Johnson, who added that her 12-year-old son was in Guyana and may be among the dead.

Major medical awards go to brain research, immunology kept fighting pneumonia when other doctors thought the disease had been licked has been honored for developing a potent pneumonia vaccine. Dr. Robert Austrian, chairman of research medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, shared the prestigious Albert Lasker clinical research award with two other pioneers in the field of immunology. The award, announced Monday, was one of three to be presented formally today in New York by the Albert and Mary Lasker Foundation at its 33rd annual awards ceremony. Twenty-eight former Lasker winners have gone on to win Nobel prizes.

Austrian shares a $15,000 prize with Dr. Emil Gotschlich of Rockefeller University, who developed a similar vaccine for meningitis; and Dr. Michael Heidelberger of New York University, whose early work made both vaccines possible.

Austrian's vaccine provides protection against bacteria that cause 80 percent of the 750,000 cases of

George R. Scott

NEW YORK (AP) - An American researcher who pneumococcal pneumonia seen by U.S. doctors every vear.

Pneumonia of all forms, including some types that Austrian's vaccine does not stop, killed 55,180 people in 1976, making it the fourth most common cause of death by disease.

The prize committee noted that Austrian's work was done after penicillin, streptomycin and other anithiotics came into wide use just after World War II.

Most doctors assumed that the "wonder drugs" as they were called would wipe out bacterial infections like pneumonia.

'Interest in pneumococcal diseases disappeared and the reagents for identifying them in hospitals ceased to be commercially available," Austrian recalled at a news conference Monday.

Since the disease could not be readily identified, Austrian said, most doctors thought the death rate was much lower than it really was.

In fact, Austrian's studies showed that the number of people dying of pneumonia in 1960 was still half what it was in 1900.

He was the first to succeed in using the cell coatings of bacteria to make an especially potent pneumonia vaccine and devised clinical trials that led to federal approval for the drug a year ago.

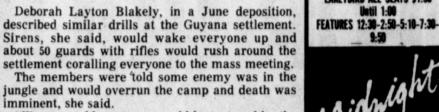

Three million doses have been manufactured so far.

The $15,000 Lasker award for basic medical research went to three men who discovered the body's natural opiates and mapped their receptors in the brain.

They were Dr. John Hughes of the Imperial College of Science and Technology in London; Dr. Hans Kosterlitz of the Unit for Research on Addictive Drugs in Aberdeen, Scotland; and Dr. Solomon Snyder of Johns Hopkins School of Medicine.

State Department Ambassador-at-Large Elliot Richardson and Dr. Theodore Cooper, former head of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, shared a special $15,000 public service prize for their program to combat heart disease. The program began while Richardson was Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Mixed drinks now

"We were told everyone would be tortured by the mercenaries if we were taken alive. Everyone, including the children, were told to line up," said Ms. Blakely. "As we passed through the line we were given a small glass of red liquid to drink. We were told the liquid contained poison and we would die within 45 minutes. We did as we were told."

After they had downed the liquid, she said, Jones told them it had just been a loyalty test.

Diana Mills, a Temple member for five years and now a member of the family that runs the Freedom Center, comprised of dissaffected Jones' followers, said the reverend once was "a grand humanitarian with genuine concerns for humanity.

"But instead we found out later that the heavenly father (Jones) intended to rule by force and fear and violence and took a sadistic pleasure in disciplining his flock."

Miami running back Delvin Williams (24) pops through the Houston line on way to a 19-yard gain as Houston's Mike Reinfeldt (37) comes in to make the stop. The running of Williams, the NFL's leading rusher, was overshadowed, however, by Houston fullback Earl Campbell, who had 199 yards rushing. (AP Laserphoto)

Dorsett stirs emotions

IRVING - You can hate him, love him, praise him, cuss him, yell for him or boo him, but you just can't ignore Dallas' Mr. TD -- Tony Dorsett.

He's the Cowboy who looks like he just got out of grammer school, and sometimes acts like he got his hand caught in the cookie jar. And he's the one with all that blazing speed that makes defensive safties pray for wings

He's also the one who has the good boy-bad boy image, depending on which week you're tuned in to the revolving episode of "Tony Goes To Dallas'

No matter what he does, he does it in a big way, whether it's running through and around befuddled defenses or skipping practice. Even when he sits on the bench, he gets more attention from fans and press alike than Raquel Welch does in an outfit designed back in One Million B. Here Sunday, Tony reached the 1,-020-yard mark for the season with 152 yards on 25 carries. So, in both of his NFL seasons, Tony Dorsett, the man with the golden legs and pocketbook to match, has surpassed the golden throne of 1,000 vards. He did it two games earlier than he did a year ago when he finished the regular season with 1,007 steps in his rookie season. And this is the man, if you listen to him, who receives all the blame when the Cowboys aren't performing well. He's supposed to be the yearly ticket to the Super Bowl. Three weeks ago, this innocent looking lad was in the doghouse, not only with the Big D press, Dallas Cowboys' brass and players alike, but with the Dallas fandom, which can be as brutal as a Thomas Henderson blitz. He had skipped practice without letting Coach Tom Landry know in advance. He was benched, and the Dallas folks jumped on him like flies take to a dead animal carcass. He was shocked by the reaction, and couldn't understand the verbal blasts laid on by backup Preston Pearson, who thought he should have won the starting berth.

He was ripped by nearly every major newspaper in the country, and openly said that the Dallas press was trying to run him out of town. A story in "The Sporting News" said most of the Dallas players felt that Tony was things for you. If we can let him get the ball 25 times a game like we did today, he will make things happen

Dorsett had this to say. "The 1,000-yard thing is good, but what I really want more than anything is respect from my teammates. If the offensive line knocks the hell out of people like they did today, it makes my job much easier. It's also a good feeling to know my teammates came to my aid when I was pushed out of bounds. If someone is abusing one of my teammates, I would be the first one over there to help.

Dorsett had only 41 yards rushing in the first half against New Orleans, but he came back with 111 in the second half, including a 63-yard run that just missed being a touchdown. Few fans were on his case Sunday.

Tony is slowly climbing back into the saddle and the Cowboys are getting the dividends. So, for this week at least, the young looking lion is

Earl Campbell stages another Monday thriller

HOUSTON (AP) - It was supposed to be Earl Campbell vs. Delvin Williams, a battle of two super running backs.

It was no contest.

"I don't try to compete against anybody or compare myself to anybody," said Campbell, Houston's softspoken rookie. And there was no way anybody could compare anybody with him after he ran roughshod over Miami Monday night.

His four touchdown runs, his 199 yards, 81 of them with barely a minute to play for what turned out to be the winning score in the Oilers' 35-30 victory - all those were merely surface numbers, not indicative of just how great this Heisman Trophy winner from the University of Texas may become

His explosive performance vaulted him from fourth to first in National Football League rushing with 1,143 vards, 13 more than Williams and just 29 fewer than the rookie record of 1,172 set four years ago by San Diego's Don Woods.

His four touchdowns - from 1, 6, 12 and 81 yards - gave him 12 for the season, just one shy of the rookie record set by Cookie Gilchrist in 1962

And as the names were tossed around - Woods, Gilchrist, Williams, and the bigger ones like Brown, Simpson, Payton and Dorsett -Campbell's voice became almost plaintive.

"Please, please," he begged, "Don't put me on the spot. I don't set goals for myself now. The game I had tonight, I didn't plan it. That one yard that would have gotten me 200, that didn't matter as long as we won. If I hadn't gained the 56 to go over 1,000, that wouldn't have mattered just so's we won

"When I first came into the league the only goal I set for myself was to try and stay healthy all season and go out and do my best. I don't go out there trying to break records. I don't run with the ball thinking I'm gonna be better than somebody or get more yards than somebody.

"I just try and do my best, that's all. Sometimes my best looks like my worst, but it's not important how it looks. What matters is how we do, whether we win. Without him, of course, the Oilers would have been nothing Monday night. With Houston holding Williams to 73 yards rushing (Miami finished with 127 on the ground to the Oilers'

265) the Dolphins had to count much more on Bob Griese's passing. And Griese was superb, completing 23 of 33 attempts for 349 yards and two touchdowns, a 10-yarder to Nat Moore to open the scoring and an 11-yarder to Jimmy Cefalo on the game's final

One-yard runs by Williams in the second period and Leroy Harris in the third scored the other Miami touchdowns. But for a few moments it seemed the two biggest points would be A.J. Duhe's end-zone tackle of Houston Quarterback Dan Pastorini, who had passed 15 yards to Mike Barber for Houston's other touchdown Duhe's safety gave the Dolphins a 23-21 lead with 12:25 to play, and the ensuing free kick gave the Dolphins³ the ball at the Houston 45-yard line. Miami appeared poised to put the game away.

"After the safety we got the ball in good position and didn't get anything," said Griese. "That was the key series. They have a good defense and you're not going to score every time you get the ball."

Coach Don Shula agreed, noting that "the turning point was the drive that stalled after the safety."

The safety itself didn't seem to bother Pastorini or Houston Coach Bum Phillips.

"The first thing I looked at when I got up was the clock," said Pastorini, "and we had a lot of time left. I don't think I should have called the play, to be honest with you. I think it was a bad call. But I figured it was about time for the defense to come to life.' And Phillips observed: "That was really kind of early in the ballgame. The safety wasn't a major thing. It wasn't somthing we wanted to give up, but at the same time it wasn't something that was gonna decide the game. I knew that.

"Earl, he decided it.

"He messed up our game plan pretty good, too, there at the end," Phillips laughed. "The plan was for him to run for a first down, then run the clock out.

The result left each team at 8-4, Houston two games behind Pittsburgh in the American Conference's Central Division and Miami one back of front-running New England in the there's no reason we can't do it some more.

Wright gets axe at Wichita State

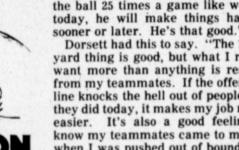

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - After five losing seasons and declining attendance at home football games this year, Jim Wright was fired Monday as head football coach at Wichita State University.

Athletic Director Ted Bredehoft said the vote by the WSU Athletic Association Board of Directors to dismiss Wright was unanimous. He said a search for a new coach would begin immediately.

Attendance at WSU games dwindled steadily this year after a stadium-record crowd of 30,516 for the opener with Oklahoma State. Only 6,519 fans attended the final home game against Tulsa.

"We certainly have been patient for five years," Bredehoft said in announcing the firing. "Jim has had the longest tenure here since Al Gebert back in the 1930s."

During his five-year tenure, Wright's teams ran up a 17-37-1 record. His best season came in 1977 when the team was 5-6 and second in the Missouri Valley Conference. The Shockers were 4-7 this year.

a mere mistake away from losing the respect of the team. Tony had seen better and faster days. Dorsett may not be the complete fool many have made him out to be. He was wrong in skipping the practice and Landry was right in taking corrective action. Dorsett doesn't believe either case is true to this day, but he does appear to be burning the bridges and mending the fences. His blocking help has also improved, whether that is a result of Tony's mending or not.

Sunday, Dorsett would not talk about the past, but every time he got the chance, he tried to praise his teammates. Most present Sunday, felt he was trying to get back in the team's good graces again. Team leader Roger Staubach was one of the first to come to Tony's defense Sunday. "Tony is doing his job. He's running hard, blocking hard and working hard, and that's good because we are really going to need him now since (Robert) Newhouse got hurt. I think Tony made a mistake, but I have to respect him for the way he has come back. He can do so many

Horner named as top rookie

ATLANTA (AP) - This has been a year Bob Horner will relish for a lifetime.

'What else can happen in a year?" the slugging third baseman of the Atlanta Braves wondered Monday after being named the National League Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers Association of America. "That's absolutely fantastic," said Horner, who began lifting weights Monday to rehabilitate his left shoulder following corrective surgery on Oct. 3.

"That caps off a year that I'll probably never forget the rest of my life - getting married, college Player of the Year and Rookie of the Year," he added.

Horner, the No. 1 choice in last June's free agent draft, played only half a season to win the award, which is decided by the votes of two BBWAA members in each of the league's 12 franchise cities.

Horner received 12½ votes to beat out shortstop Ozzie Smith of the San Diego Padres and pitcher Don Robinson of the Pittsburgh Pirates, the only other players gaining support in the balloting. Smith had 81/2 votes and Robinson 3.

"They were both real good candidates for the award, too," Horner said. "I wished them all the best, but I'm happy to win it myself."

Appearing in 89 games after joining the Braves on June 16, Horner hit 23 homers and drove in 63 runs. He scored 50 runs, had 17 doubles and one triple.

He had a .266 batting average and a .539 slugging percentage, fourth best in the league behind Pittsburgh's Dave Parker, Los Angeles' Reggie Smith and Cincinnati's George Foster. He did not have enough at bats, however, to qualify for league recognition in slugging percentage.

The Sporting News earlier named Horner the collegiate Player of the Year after he batted over 400 and hit 25 home runs for Arizona State, which lost to Southern California in the College World Series finals

His ratio of one home run for every 14.04 at-bats was the best ever recorded by a Rookie of the Year award winner, surpassing the one for every 14.77 at-bats set by Willie McCovey when he broke in with the San Francisco Giants.

"I just think he's got a super future ahead of him," said Atlanta Manager Bobby Cox. "He will be capable of winning the RBI and home run titles in the future, and he's a good third baseman. "Robinson and Smith were great candidates, but all along I thought Horner deserved it," Cox said. "He can carry the Braves for some years to come. I never expected him to do what he did."

Smith hit .258 and stole 40 bases for the Padres and Robinson had a 14-6 record and 3.47 earned run average for the Pirates.

Unbeaten Sonora to miss playoffs

By STEVE O'BRIEN R-T Sports Writer

While most of the area football powers were just going through the motions in the final week of regular season football play, the Kermit Yellow Jackets had to win twice Friday night to ensure themselves of a spot in the upcoming bi-district round of the state AA playoffs.

Part one of the two-part victory was the Yellow Jackets' 28-20 win over Crane which shoved them into a first place tie with Sonora, a 41-0 victor over Ozona, for the District 7-AA championship. With their fate then resting on the flip of a coin, Kermit Coach Earl Overton made the right choice to send his Yellow Jackets into the playoffs for the second straight year.

It was a disappointing turn of events for Sonora which finished unbeaten for the season with a 7-0-2 mark. Sonora and Kermit, which finished 7-1-2 in regular season play, were locked in for the top spot with identical 2-0-1 district marks. Sonora and Kermit fought to a 14-14 standoff in their district opener to necessitate the coin flip.

Sonora is coached by Jerry Hopkins, who was the head boss at Midland High a year ago.

Kermit will square off against District 8-AA titlest Fabens in an 8 p.m. game Friday at Pecos.

WHILE KERMIT had to go to the wire to earn their playoff nod, three other area schools which had already wrapped up bi-district berths were putting the final touches on unbeaten seasons, at least one of which is destined to come to an end Friday.

Fort Stockton clinched the District 2-AAA championship and their first trip to the playoffs since 1953 last week by beating Andrews and needed only to get past Odessa Ector Saturday night to complete their season with a perfect 10-0 mark. And get past them they did, rolling to a 30-0 win for the Panthers' ninth shutout of the season. The 13 points Andrews scored on Fort Stockton are the only points the third ranked Panthers have given up this year.

That stubborn defensive crew will be on display in Midland Friday night as Fort Stockton takes on Lubbock Estacado in round one of the playoffs in a 7:30 p.m. game at Memorial Stadium. Estacado, the district 1-AAA champ, is 9-1 on the season and will be making their first appearance in the playoffs since 1975. The Matadors were a member of District 3-AAA at the time.

they blew Brownfield away, 42-0. District 3-AAA champion Snyder has the pleasure of a home field advantage for their bi-district meeting with 4-AAA winner Burkburnett as the two will meet in an 8 p.m. game in Snyder Friday.

JUNCTION WILL be District 9-A's representative to the playoffs by virtue of a 38-32 win over Menard Friday night. Junction will tangle with 10-A champ San Saba Friday at 8 p.m. in Brownwood.

The Andrews Mustangs, who came on strong after a slow start, grabbed sole possession of second place behind Fort Stockton in District 2-AAA by copping a surprisingly easy 38-16 win over Pecos Friday night. Sophomore sensation Van Pearcy rushed for 175 vards and scored three times for Andrews. He finished with 1,130 yards for the season.

Rankin captured the Upton County championship with a 7-0 win over arch-rival McCamey Friday night. Rankin fullback Richard Barrett closed out an amazing season for the Red Devils by rushing for 131 yards and scoring the game's only touchdown on a two-yard plunge in the fourth quarter. The Rankin senior finished with 1,610 yards rushing and 19 touchdowns for the season as the Red Devils closed out their season with an 8-2 mark.

LEADING ONLY 14-6 heading into the final stanza of play, Stanton's Buffaloes exploded for 31 fourth guarter points to dump Forsan 45-6 and finish out their season at 6-3-1. Tailback Todd Smith rushed for 160 yards and scored four touchdowns for the Buffs.

With a 4-6 season mark, the Reagan County Owls didn't have what a lot of people might consider a successful season, but the Owls did pass their final test of the season with flying colors. Reagan County trounced Eldorado 44-6 with Kent Burleson rushing for 126 yards and scoring a pair of touchdowns. Burleson surpassed the 1,000 yard barrier with his seasonending performance, finishing with 1.069 for the year.

San Angelo Lakeview jumped on Lamesa to the tune of 44-8 as the Golden Tors reached the end of a very long and frustrating season. Lamesa finished at 1-9 for the season.

Upsets hurt Cotton Bowl

DALLAS (AP) - The Cotton Bowl was placed in a quandary by the wild college football upsets of last Saturday and the New Year's Day Classic was lucky to get Notre Dame - a team that had lost two games - for its guest team, a member of the selection committee said Monday. "It was not a situation we jumped into; it's a situation we wound up with. We were tickled to death to get what we have," Field Scovell said.

There has been a long relationship between independent Notre Dame and the Cotton Bowl. In fact, the Fighting Irish won the national championship last year by defeating Southwest Conference champion Texas in the bowl.

Notre Dame came out of decades of a no-bowl policy in January 1970 to lose to a Texas team that won the national title. The Irish came back the next year to beat Texas.

Notre Dame has a tremendous national following and the appearance of the Irish all but guarantees a lofty television ranking.

Houston is expected to be the SWC host representative. The Cougars just have to win one of their last two games

The Cotton Bowl is already sold out, said Jim Brock, executive secretary of the bowl

"We've always had excellent television rankings when Notre Dame played," Brock added.

Poll supports Sugar Bowl

By The Associated Press

A matchup between the nation's two top-ranked teams in the Sugar Bowl for the national championship? It could happen if second-ranked Alabama beats Auburn Dec. 2 in its final game of the season. A victory by the Crimson Tide would make them the Southeastern Conference representative in the Sugar Bowl, against No. 1-rated Penn State, on New Year's Day in New Orleans.

The Nittany Lions, the nation's only major unbeaten team and atop this week's Associated Press college football poll with 1,306 points, accepted a Sugar Bowl bid last week. They play their regular-season finale Friday at home against 15th-ranked Pittsburgh.

In the weekly balloting, by a nationwide panel of 66 sports writers and broadcasters, Penn State, 10-0-0, received 59 first-place votes in finishing first by an overwhelming margin for the second week in a row in The Associated Press' major college poll. Alabama, 9-1-0, collected three first-place votes and moved from third place into the runnerup spot with 1,213 points. Both Penn State and Alabama were idle last weekend.

Southern California, which clinched a Rose Bowl berth with a 17-10 victory over UCLA last Saturday, advanced to third place with two first-place votes and 1,152 points. Only two points behind the Trojans was Orange Bowl-

Houston, idle last week, climbed from sixth to fifth with 1,025 points, and Michigan, which beat Purdue 24-6, advanced from seventh to sixth with 1,015 points.

Nebraska, Oklahoma's Orange Bowl opponent but a 35-31 loser to Missouri last week, slipped from second to seventh with 880 points.

Defending national champion Notre Dame, a 38-21 winner over Georgia Tech and recipient of a Cotton Bowl bid, vaulted from 10th to eighth with 797 points.

Rounding out the Top Ten were Texas, which remained ninth with 794 points after a 41-0 rout over Texas Christian, and No. 10 Clemson, which

Last week's Second Ten were Maryland, Clemson, Arkansas, UCLA, Purdue, Michigan State, Louisiana State, Pitt, Ohio State and Georgia Tech.

Missouri's upset over Nebraska enabled the Tigers to return to the Top Twenty after a three-week absence, while Iowa State, which had been unranked for five weeks, re-entered by downing Colorado 20-16.

LSU dropped out after losing to Mississippi State 16-14 and Georgia Tech fell from the rankings after its setback against Notre Dame.

Snyder also had a trip to the playoffs in its hip pocket before their season finale with Brownfield Friday night. That obviously didn't damper the Tigers' enthusiasm however as

THE MIDLAND REPORTER-TELEGRAM, TUES., NOV. 21, 1978.

Coach John Robinson claims he has "said all along that this is going to be remembered as one of the great teams at USC." But he wasn't talking that way in September even after a 24-14 decision over Alabama, which was ranked No. 1 at the time.

"Great' is sometimes used as an exclamation, rather than a statement of fact," Robinson said. "But this year, I think we're on a par with a group of teams that's generally listed as the top eight."

Penn State is the nation's only unbeaten team, but Alabama, Southern Cal, Oklahoma, Houston, Michigan and Clemson all have but one loss. If Penn State stumbles, it could resemble something like last year when five teams finished with 11-1 records, only to have the national championship decided in The AP poll.

"This would be a great year to have a playoff to see who'd win it," said Robinson. But there's a drawback.

"I've been kind of reluctant to push for a playoff because of the demands of so many pressure games in a row," Robinson added. "Yet, on the other side, it would be really exciting to see the top eight teams play off.

"But the ultimate effect on the players is still crucial, and they're the important ones. You and I are unimportant. We're playing Stanford, Washington, UCLA and Notre Dame in a row, and if we had four more pressure games back-to-back (i.e., the Rose Bowl and three playoff games), I don't know if anyone would go to school at all."

A name being mentioned for some of the head coaching jobs opening up around the country is Jimmy Johnson, assistant head coach and defensive coordinator at the University of Pittsburgh. The 35-year-old Johnson, a native of Port Arthur, Texas, has coached at Louisiana Tech, Wichita State, Iowa State, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Pitt since graduating from Arkansas in 1964.

Jackie Sherrill, Pitt's head man, is resigned to having to look for a new No. 1 assistant and defensive coordinator before too long.

"Jimmy's considered one of the best defensive coaches in college football with the innovations he does and staying ahead of the game," said Sherrill, who coached with Johnson under Johnny Majors at Iowa State in 1968-69. "He's as qualified as anybody right now to be a head coach. 'He's kept up with the times and he did some things at Arkansas that kind of set the trend in the Southwest Conference.

UCLA gears for run on national cage title

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The 1978-79 college basketball season begins this weekend for second-ranked UCLA, but Coach Gary Cunningham has a couple of yet-unanswered questions. Other coaches, however, should be so fortunate.

Cunningham told reporters Monday that four starting positions are set as the Bruins complete preparations for games against Boise State and De-Paul at Pauley Pavilion, but the center spot is still up in the air. And no decision has been made about who will be UCLA's first substitute at guard, Cunningham said.

'We're looking forward to playing this weekend," said Cunningham, who will begin his second season as the UCLA head coach. "It's time that we started playing basketball. We've had six weeks of practice and one game in which to prepare."

The Bruins lost only guard Raymond Townsend to graduation from last season's team, which was among the country's best with a 25-3 record.

Among the returning players are All-America forward David Greenwood and guard Roy Hamilton, who centers Gig Sims and Darrell Allums and guard Brad Holland.

Cunningham said Greenwood and Wilkes will open at forward and Hamilton and Holland will start at guard with either Sims or Allums going at center.

"The center position has been an up-and-down battle," said the UCLA coach. "What happens in practice this week will determine our starting center this weekend. I'm looking for consistency.

The first reserve to be used at guard will be either freshman Tyren Naulls or senior Marvin Thomas. Sophomore Tony Anderson, another contender for the third guard spot, is sidelined until at least mid-January because of a knee injury

"I hope Naulls will come along. He's a good athlete who lacks a little experience," said Cunningham. 'Marvin is an excellent defensive player. Both are good shooters. They have different things to offer. I may use both players as third guards in Redskins will show up

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Washington Redskins expect to be in Dallas on Thanksgiving Day even though things haven't been going as well as they would have wanted them.

All the Redskins need to chase away the late-season blahs, says Coach Jack Pardee, is one good victory. And the Cowboys can provide that win.

"I believe we will catch the plane," Pardee said Monday when asked about derisive comments made by the Cowboys. "We had them here at home and that proved one thing - the first time out, we could beat them.'

After the 27-7 Dallas victory over the New Orleans Saints Sunday, defensive end Harvey Martin said, "I just hope they don't miss their plane Wednesday on the way down here."

Linebacker Thomas Henderson said, "The turkeys are gonna have to come on in here, and we're waiting for them.

While the Cowboys were winning Sunday, and looking good doing it, the Redskins were losing to the St. Louis Cardinals 27-17, and not looking good.

"We're caught like most teams, playing a little shorthanded," said Pardee, referring to injuries to starters, including the latest - torn ligaments in the knee of defensive tackle Diron Talbert. "Everybody's frustrated. We're trying to play hard, but we don't have all the same players in there. That's the biggest difference now than a few weeks ago.

The Redskins started the season by winning their first six games but have won only two of the last six.

"We're going through rough times now and have to get through it," said Pardee. "We're in the stretch drive now. It's time to be getting stronger. We should be playing better.'

Pardee said the Cowboys, in recent weeks, have not done things much differently than they did previously. "They're the type of team that once they get you down, they jump on you.

Some Texas teams will have to buy own tickets

By The Associated Press

New Braunfels and Beaumont Hebert finished the regular season without a loss, but they'll have to buy a ticket to go to the class AAA schoolboy playoffs.

Second-ranked Hebert had only a tie to mar its near-perfect record until it clashed with Crosby in the district 9-AAA zone playoff Friday. But Crosby came out on top of a 13-10 score to earn district bragging rights and a berth in the playoffs.

Although New Braunfels, No. 5, won 10 straight, it ended its season three points shy of a trip to the playoffs. Kerrville Tivy edged New Braunfels 19-17 to win the 13-AAA zone playoff. Two other teams ranked in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll met a similar fate last weekend. Winnsboro rallied to win a 30-27 seesaw battle that drops 10th-ranked Mount Vernon from the class AA playoff picture. And in class A, Groin the Texas schoolboy record book. Serrata sailed for eight touchdowns and a two-point conversion Friday to tally 50 points in Alice's 66-0 thrashing of winless Robstown.

Alice's Arnold Serrata, playing his

Serrata's performance shattered a 25-year-old modern Texas schoolboy record set by Kenneth Hall of Sugar Land when he galloped for 49 points in 1953, and tied by Chris Weems of Idalou in 1964.

Temple will enter the playoffs with a firm grip on its top billing in Class AAAA. The Wildcats blasted Bryan 39-6 Friday, while second-ranked Garland trounced South Garland 35-

Houston Stratford, No. 3, outscored Westchester, 41-22; San Antonio Churchill, No. 4, blanked San Antonio Lee, 27-0; and sixth-ranked Odessa Permian edged Odessa, 14-6, to remain undefeated in two regular seasons.

NBA zone rules create headaches

By The Associated Press

The zone defense, a perennial headache for the National Basketball Association, is more of a problem than ever this year despite stronger sanctions against its use.

Although a team is now assessed a technical foul - instead of a warning - the first time it is spotted playing a zone, use of the supposedly illegal defense has grown. A total of 58 technical fouls have been called against teams for using zones in the 191 games played so 'far this season.

Of the 22 NBA clubs, 18 have been penalized at least once. New Jersey and Phoenix are the leaders with seven zone technicals each, while Milwaukee and Los Angeles are right behind with six apiece.

Phoenix got called for two zone technicals in a game at Philadelphia last Friday and wound up losing 95-94. The second call came with 1:03 left and Doug Collins hit one of two free throws to put the Sixers ahead to

'It was a half-court trap," maintained Phoenix Coach John MacLeod. 'People played zone all last year and it wasn't called. This year they're calling it even when you're not playing it.

To which referee Ed Rush countered, "My 6-year-old son could have called it. No one was guarding a man at all.'

Rule 12A, Section 1, of the official NBA rules deals with zone defenses and states flatly, "A zone defense is not permitted in NBA games." Pressing defenses are legal, however, including full-court zone presses.

The problem arises once the offensive team moves the ball over the midcourt line. Then, no defensive player may position himself within the key for three seconds "if it is apparent he is making no effort to play an opponent." This is a defensive three-second violation and a technical foul

What's more, once the ball crosses the midcourt line, "no defensive player can guard an area of the court, instead of guarding an opponent. Penalty — technical foul." Thus a half-court press is illegal if the men not double-teaming the ball cover areas of the court rather than playing specific men.

"It's ambiguous as anything," complained Dick Motta, coach of the NBA champion Washington Bullets. 'There are anti-zone rules in the book, but we get called for it when we play a sagging man-to-man. I've been coaching for 25 years and I'm totally confused.

The Bullets were tagged with two zone technicals in a game against the New Jersey Nets last Friday. Since the game without once getting penalized.

"Let's play by the rules," urged Motta. "When a team is playing a zone, call it. Night after night, teams are playing zones against us - Milwaukee, Los Angeles, New Jersey, They are hurting our game. We play man-to-man, but we like to doubleteam. Well, if we can't double-team. we'll go that (zone) route, too.'

According to the rule book, however, the Bullets were guilty of violations both times, since center Mitch Kupchak had dropped about 10 feet off his man and was standing alone in the key. The Nets, meanwhile, managed to keep moving from one offensive player to another and thus avoided getting called for a zone.

Motta joked that the Nets were playing a zone "about 98 percent of the time - they didn't use it while they were shooting foul shots."

The Nets' zone didn't take the Bullets by surprise. "We ran our zone offense very well," Washington guard Kevin Grevey said after the game.

Motta explained the strategy. "You try to release people quickly against a zone, get the long outlet passes and get your shots off before the zone has a chance to set up," he said. And noting that the Bullets hit 59 percent of their shots in the game, Motta added, "If you're hitting against a zone, you're going to blow them out.

One factor in the apparent increased use of zones this season is the NBA's decision to make some rules changes over the summer designed to cut down on body contact. By beefing up rules against hand checking as well as contact in the pivot and away from the ball, the NBA has made playing man-to-man defense that much more difficult. Some teams have the personnel to play man-toman under these conditions; those which don't often resort to zones.

A simple solution would be to declare zones and sagging defenses legal. Advocates of this position contend that NBA players are such accurate marksmen, they should be able to burn any zone with outside shoot-

However, others feel that under the pressure of a 24-second shooting clock, it would be too much of a handicap to the offense to add zone defenses to the no-hand checking and anti-contact rules.

Either way, the NBA's Rules and Competition Committee is going to have to take another long, hard look at the way the zone rule is currently worded. That's becoming a regular item on the committee's agenda.
