Packaging augments the sale of

There's some degree of art on just about any product you buy. And there's good reason; market people spend mucho money in finding or creating markets. And once the market is determined, the goods best should be there and in appealing

Packaging sometimes means more than the actual product. It's somewhat akin to the image projected by some politicans and by some corporations; the image is all important. The substance — the real McCoy — often is secondary

The time of reckoning is a sure as the changing winds, however. The form and style often win buyers.

Isn't it simply remarkable how four color reproduction can make an edible item so delectable especially when you stroll hungrily into a super-

Packaging is not as critical then as when you are satiated and are merely shopping for tomorrow's anticipated needs, desires, wants, and hunger.

But it counts for sales, and the highly competitive food market people know not when your hunger will strike

Packaging to carry out goods is what styling is to automobiles

Naturally, an enthusiast for a certain make or style of car might gainsay that and properly so

People buy for reasons from impulse to forethought that still baffle psychologists, admen, marketers and sometimes the buyer himself. Who hasn't made a purchase and then in retrospect wondered why?

People buy for texture, pattern, gratification and need Some prefer otton wool cashmere leather and wood over double knit polyester, plasts acrylic, nylon and plas-

Much it is the 'nutural' appeal or whatever reason

It's not just like food but is similar Increasingly, more people are eyeing the natural market. They want food labeled "organic" But what food isn't organic? It's just a term which evolved out of the 20th century technology to differentiate between the old" way of growing food and that of technology, which encompasses commercial fertilizers and so on

That's almost beside the point at the big marketplaces, though. The packaging and big ad sales programs are the sellers. And what the actual substance is oftentimes is for the consumers to find out. Be advised

Chamber directors reaffirm concern for city's 'critical' parking problem

By LINDA HILL R-T Staff Writer

The Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors Wednesday reaffirmed its belief the parking problem in downtown Midland is "critical," but took no action on a proposed resolution calling for an underground parking garage

Larry Bell, speaking for the chamber's Parking Task Force, said that group has determined three problem

In order of importance, they are: the need for more metered parking, the need for low-cost monthly parking and the need for some more

'close-in' parking. To alleviate the first problem, Bell presented a proposed resolution calling on the City Council to build an underground facility adjoining the

Midland

Bell explained the site is the old Post Office Building lot, which was given to the city for use as a park. But, he said, that would not prohibit a parking structure under the build-

Parking there could be handled through parking meters or some other means of "in-and-out" park-

The recommendation would hinge on the city's ability to use revenue bonds, rather than tax money, to finance the building, Bell said.

On the recommendation of president Harrell Feldt, directors voted to reiterate their support for increased downtown parking and let the chamber executive committee study the matter further, with the understanding no action recommending a bond election will be taken without further exhibit center to be built in downtown a consultation with the directors.

City Councilman G. Thane Akins, told the directors that city architects currently are studying the cost of such a parking structure.

A second possibility for more metered parking, Bell said, would be a side-benefit of a proposal to make Illinois and Texas avenues one-way streets. That would allow for more

San Francisco today buries slain officials

By SUSAN AGER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco today buries its slain mayor after three days of grieving by citizens who had lowered their flags but raised their chins since George Moscone's assassination.

"The people of San Francisco are indomitable even in the moments of greatest adversity," acting Mayor Dianne Feinstein told thousands of people who gathered outside City Hall Wednesday to pay last respects to the murdered mayor and Supervisor Harvey Milk, slain moments after Moscone

Former Supervisor Dan White, in police custody since shortly after the killings Monday, allegedly has confessed to the crimes, the San Francisco Chronicle reported today

The bodies of Moscone and Milk lay in state for six hours beneath the ornate dome of City Hall, where the two were shot to death. More than 15,000 persons filed by, some weep-

White, 32, was silent and dispassionate at a brief court appearance Wednesday where his arraignment on two charges of first-degree murder was postponed one week while he hires an attorney.

"He needs time. His family needs . time," his temporary attorney, Gilbert Eisenberg, told reporters after the hearing. As he spoke, thousands were gathering outside City Hall under damp, foggy skies, for the noon memorial

Some wept, but most looked simply weary of it all. The assassinations occurred only days after the killing of U.S. Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., in Guyana followed by the suicide-murder of more than 900 Peoples Temple mem-

Jurors consider election questions

A Midland County grand jury they presented to the grand jury worked into the night Wednesday investigating possible criminal violations in connection with the Nov 7 general election in the Precinct 2 county commissioner's race

Questions arose when Republican Sam Snoddy unseated 10-year incumbent Charlie Welch by a narrow 21 vote margin. But a recount requested by Welch showed he was the winner, also by a 21-vote margin

Davis jurors examine alleged 'blood money'

HOUSTON (AP) - Prosecutors ed to stick the pistol, made inoperawinding down the state's murder conspiracy case against Cullen Davis showed jurors today the blood money allegedly earmarked for a phantom hit man

Investigator Morris Howeth plucked the two-inch stack of bills from a black attache case and silently counted the money before giving it to 'How much is there?" Prosecutor

Jack Strickland asked "$25,000" Howeth replied.

"Pass the money without comment," State District Judge Wallace

Moore told the jurors. Howeth testified that FBI tests produced no fingerprints of Davis on either the money or three envelopes submitted to Washington for exami-

The prosecution alleges that Davis, 45, turned over $25,000 in $100 bills last August to pay a contract killer for the simulated murder of Fort Worth divorce court Judge Joe Eidson. FBI informant David McCrory testified the Fort Worth industrialist handed him the payoff money at an Aug. 20 meeting in which he delivered a silencer-equipped pistol to Davis.

Sound and visual recordings of the parking lot rendezvous allegedly captured the clandestine exchange and represent the cornerstone of the state's case Prosecutors forged the legal link Wednesday that tied Davis to the 22-caliber Ruger pistol and its unlawful muffler recovered along with a night vision scope from the trunk of

Davis' Cadillac. District attorney investigator Rodnev Hinson said a search team found the gun wrapped in a white towel after it was placed by McCrory in the

Hinson said McCrory was instruct-tive by agents as a safety precaution, and the ominous homemade device in the trunk "so it would be out of the reach of Mr. Davis.

Worth police lieutenant with him in the first car at the scene closed in on Davis with their pistols drawn. Howeth said Davis was not armed and that he offered no resistance.

The arrest by Howeth was not without irony. He was among the officers who took Davis into custody in August 1976 after the oil heir was charged with capital murder.

That charge stemmed from a bloody shooting spree at the $6 million Davis mansion in which two persons were killed and two others critically wounded.

A jury acquitted Davis last November in the slaving of his 12-year-old stepdaughter.

The defendant's estranged wife Priscilla was wounded and her lover slain by a midnight intruder dressed in black and wearing a woman's Defense lawyers said Wednesday there was nothing "sinister" about the night scope, that Davis intended to use it with a camera for surveil-lance activities at the mansion now occupied by Priscilla.

He questioned the difference be tween the city accepting other federal funds for city projects and the CD

"You don't want to take these public funds to help the community," he charged and suggested a petition to recall the City Council.

Angelo answered Farrell's charges. saying CD funds are available to every community in the country, but there is no obligation on the city's part to discuss applying for them.

He then concentrated upon federal funds accepted for the airport (Midland Regional Airport), and said those funds come from the people who use the airport.

"If you haven't flown out there, you haven't paid a nickel on it. It is a users' tax," Angelo said.

The situation became a little more "heated" when Laurence Lee of the Midland Taxpayers Association opposed the city applying for the

The basis for his opinion, Lee said, has to do with federal regulations not letting the city or residents say where housing would be placed. "The market value of our houses go down 5 to 10 percent just when they say it (housing) is going to be built in an area. It goes down another 5 to 10 percent after the housing is built. 'Then it (the housing project) becomes a ghetto," Lee said. "If this housing is placed in our community, the valuation will go down to such a degree we might as well burn up our

The Rev. Charles Hassenauer of Our Lady of Guadalupe Church asked the council to consider the theory that 'politics is to realize the greatest amount of benefit for the greatest number of people

Another resident, Joe Davis, opposed the funding, saying he believes it will have lower income people living in $50,000 houses.

The council finally voted on a motion made by Marcum to apply for the funds. Those voting in favor were Marcum, Mrs. Howbert and Tom Sloan. Voting against were Angelo, Akins and Carroll Thomas.

Thomas, in rejecting the funding, said he was of the personal opinion that "neighborhoods all over town will have new neighbors who don't work as hard as you do. The federal government would be paying part of their housing.'

Akins opposed it on the basis it would make the city government more dependent on the federal government for funding in the budget 'and that's going down the tubes.' Sloan agreed there are drawbacks to the rental subsidy "but the drawbacks are not serious enough to preclude the use of funds. After the vote, Angelo concluded the special session with: "We won't apply for the funds.'

The agent said the Mexican population, estimated to be 56 million in 1973, is expected to reach 85 million by 1985 and 120 million by 1995.

"The illegal alien problem seems to be kind of like inflation — it's ever

Chandler said the Braceros Program, which allowed Mexican Americans to legally work in the U.S. with special work permits for several years up until the 1960s, was successful in lessening the illegal alien traffic. However, the dicontinuation of that program was followed by an influx of aliens from Mexico.

But even though new oil presents the potential of new jobs for the Mexican people, Chandler conceded Mexico government officials could use the oil as an economic lever, thus forcing the U.S. to continue lax enforcement policies toward the illegal alien prob-

"That's what I heard one Mexican official say the other day - that we won't get any of that cheap oil if we crack down at the border. But our hope is that the oil will eventually produce employment and income for the Mexican people,"he said.

Carter will make the final decision, probably late in December.

Because of reports the president may be wavering, Defense Secretary Brown probably will face questioning by other NATO defense chiefs when they meet in Brussels Dec. 5-6.

The U.S. aim in pledging an annual 3 percent growth in defense budgets was to encourage other allies to do

Meanwhile, as one administration official put it, "Carter is not in a happy position" as liberals pressure him in one direction and conservatives in the opposite direction on defense spending.

Liberals who supported Carter when he won the presidency in 1976 are concerned that social and other domestic programs will suffer if the defense budget is allowed to rise while Carter is trying to hold down his overall administration budget defi-

Carters plan ski facilities at Camp David

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) - President and Mrs. Carter are about to turn Camp David, their Catoctin Mountain hideaway, into a ski resort.

The Carters and daughter Amy are taking up crosscountry skiing as a new family sport.

Three sets of skis and related gear have been ordered but have not yet been delivered.

Carter told two reporters he believes Camp David, about 60 miles north of Washington, will be an ideal spot for this activity. The terrain there is fairly level and, says the president. You can follow the perimeter fence for 21/2 miles without retracing your steps.

Because it sits atop a mountain the Maryland retreat gets far more snow than the Washington area.

CARTER APPARENTLY gave some thought to returning to Wyoming, where he spent much of his summer vacation, to try out crosscountry skiing there after Christ-

Although the family's holiday plans have not been announced, the Carters are expected to spend at least four or five days at their Plains, Ga., home, then look for snow at Camp David.

THE PRESIDENT'S personal secretary, Susan Clough, has taken refuge from the ever-ringing telephone in her office. For nearly two years, Ms. Clough had no staff and always answered her own phone.

Now two volunteers, working on alternate days, do the answering. They receive no pay for their labors.

CARTER'S STAFF has restored to Air Force One a rotating gallery of color photographs initiated by resigned President Richard M. Nixon. As part of the de-pomping of the presidency, the photos were removed from the big jet when Carter succeeded President Gerald R. Ford.

Carter and his people thought at the time there was no need to plaster the walls of the plane with candid pictures of the president and members of 'Risk?' What risk?

President Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, said recently that the president will risk the loss of Texas' 26 electoral votes in the 1980 election rather than alter the energy policies which have made him anything but popular with many of the state's elected officials.

Actually, however, Mr. Carter isn't taking much of a risk since there is considerable doubt if he could pick up the Lone Star State's electoral votes under any circumstances.

Powell, speaking at Birmingham, Ala., at a national convention of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, and after the meeting, said the president believes it is his duty to consider the "common good" rather than to seek votes by catering to strong interests in the petroleum-producing states. Good grief!

He went on to say, "You can't make policy on your desire to be popular. One of the proudest things I can say about the president is his devotion to the common good" without regard for political repercussion. Hogwash!

Powell could get a lot of argument on this point in Texas and elsewhere. If it wasn't politics, we don't know what it was when Cafter went back on his campaign pledge to the governors of Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana concerning price deregulation of natural gas.

Powell noted that while reelection would be possible without Texas' 26 electoral votes, the loss "certainly" would be devastating to the president's chances. No Democrat, incidentally, has won the presidency without carrying

The press secretary said that Carter has not openly discussed the possibility of losing Texas to a Republican opponent. Still, he added, Carter also has not committed himself to running for re-election.

The victory of William P. Clements in the Texas gubernatorial race undoubtedly brought on the discussion of Carter's re-election chances in 1980. Powell, however, refused to link the Clements victory - and the re-election of Republican Sen. John Tower — to any anti-Carter sentiment.

Rather, he blamed the Democratic losses on the party's failure to get out the vote. And here we go again.

Powell termed the Democratic turnout in Texas "atrocious," and partially blamed divisions within the state Democratic party.

He overlooks the fact that many Democrats who did turn out apparently didn't vote Democratic.

Austerity waved

China's decision last year to permit - to promote, in fact tourism in the long-isolated country did not take into consideration the inadequacy of its antiquated, overcrowded hotels.

The rapidly increasing influx of curious visitors from abroad is behind the Communist government's agreement with Intercontinental Hotels Corp., a subsidiary of Pan American-World Airways, to build and operate a chain of hotels in major Chinese cities.

The initial cost of the program, about half a billion dollars, has prompted a serious look in the socialistic nation at the assets and practices of the scorned, "imperalistic" United States.

China, which will own the hotels, will seek financing from profit-minded American banks if 20-year-old legal prohibitions can be overcome.

And the venture envisions utilization of such capitalistic tourist lures as swimming pools, Turkish baths, banquet rooms and luxurious restaurants.

All the news in China; and then some on walls

WASHINGTON - Just when you think they have everything straightened out in China, somebody puts up a wall poster and throws all China-watchers into a tizzy.

Almost everyone I've met who has come back from China has praise for how well organized everything is and how disciplined the people are. But whether we want to admit it or not the People's Republic is still having an identity problem.

Take the case of Lao Po. Lao Po has house behind a wall. It is a perfect place for a poster and every morning when Lao Po wakes up he's afraid to go out and look at the wall.

A few months ago a poster had been stuck on his wall defaming the "Gang of Four" and singing the praises of Hua Kuo-feng, Mao's successor.

The people standing in front of Lao Po's house seemed satisfied and thanked Lao Po for bringing them such good news. Lao passed out rice wine to all the poster readers so they could toast Hua Kuo-feng, and at the same time revile the "Gang of Four" for disgracing the thoughts of Mao Tse-tung.

A few weeks later Lao Po sleepily opened his gate to see another poster on his wall. This one reviled Hua Kuo-feng as a secret ally of the "Gang of Four" and one of the masterminds behind the ouster of Defense Minister Peng Teh-huai.

What the poster failed to mention was that Mao Tse-tung had personally purged Peng in 1959 after Peng had criticized Mao's excesses in the disastrous Great Leap Forward.

The people reading the poster turned on Lao Po and said, "What in the name of Mao is going on?"

Lao Po nervously replied, "It is true that this poster is on my wall, but I am not responsible for the opinions expressed on it, though I am certain it wouldn't be here if it didn't have the full approval of the people who are in power.

"And who is in power?" one of the wall poster readers demanded. "I wish I knew," said Lao Po, scurrying back into his house.

For nights Lao Po couldn't sleep. He kept peeking out his window hoping to see who was putting up another poster. But whoever did it managed to do so without being observed.

A week later there was a racket in front of the house. A new wall poster had proclaimed that Mao Tse-tung was personally responsible for many of China's political problems, and had collaborated with the "Gang of Four" to bring down Tao Chu and Peng Chen who had been disgraced during the Cultural Revolution.

Lao Po refused to open the gate as the wall poster readers shouted at him. "Are you trying to tell us Mao is 'out'?" someone yelled.

"Please," Lao Po pleaded, "I have nothing to do with what is posted on my wall. I am sorry I own a wall. If anyone wants it, they can have it."

'You can't get out of your responsibility that easily," a peasant doctor yelled. "If Mao is not the father of us all, then who is?"

"It should be on a poster next week," Lao Po said.

"It better be," a schoolteacher said, "or we're canceling our subscription to your wall. Last week a poster went up announcing Party Chairman Hua was a noodle, Mao was a sour pork, Chou En-lai was a won ton leader and Vice-Premier Teng Hsiao-ping had been elected Grand Marshal of Peking's Rose Bowl Parade.

It was too much for Lao Po's wall readers to take. They went into his house and thrashed him within an inch of his life. When the police asked why they had done it, the reply was, "You couldn't walk past Lao Po's house without his giving you some kind of bad news."

With billions of dollars being tossed around like confetti at a New Year's Eve party, the value of each dollar has become as piddling as a fleck of colored paper. The attitudes that "this little bit won't be missed" and 'everybody pads a little bit" are rampant, even though the Pentagon's 'little bits' are often quite sizable by civilian standards.

Property disposal is a classic example of the waste that is spawned by this cavalier, let-them-eat-cake attitude toward the overburdened taxpayers. Close to $5 billion worth of military hardware - from tanks to refrigerators - is turned over to property disposal warehouses an-

- A recent audit of 27 military facilities was unable to account for $400,000 worth of requisitioned property. One facility alone, the Mobile Inshore Underwater Unit in Winthrop, Mass., could not explain what had happened to $150,000 worth of such attractive items as chainsaws and outboard motors.

- The Navy and Marine Corps Reserve Center in Harrisburg, Pa., requisitioned 1,000 cans of canned heat worth $900. According to personnel at the base. 701 cans were used on personal camping trips, a form of petty thievery that reportedly is rampant in the Armed Services.

- Millions of dollars' worth of stillusable property is literally blown away each year in target practice. The targets include tanks, trucks, automobiles and personnel carriers. Fort Benning, Ga., for example, obtained 23 trucks worth $145,000 to use for target practice. Although base officials deny it, defense records show that 18 of the trucks were in running condition, and the other five needed only minor repairs to make them usable as trucks instead of targets. By coincidence, the trucks had conveniently been turned over to property disposal by Fort Benning officials shortly before they were requisitioned.

 Expensive electronic equipment, often brand-new or in good working order, is requisitioned by training units and destroyed through abuse and neglect. One facility destroyed $7 million worth of equipment in a single year. Sophisticated communications items, costing up to $45,000 each, is often ruined when trainees mishandle it - "when those klutzes get hold of it," as one disgusted defense official put it.

Authorized units sometimes requisition surplus property and then turn it over for unauthorized activities. For example, the Lemoore Naval Air Station in California requisitioned a $64,000 fuel truck that wound up being used by the Lemoore Aero Club.

Most of the property disposal abuses could be avoided with proper bookkeeping methods that would make supply officials at each level accountable for what they requisitioned and how the material was used. But the free-and-easy attitude toward the public's property permeates the whole system. As one defense official told our associate Peter Grant, the attitude that taxpayers' money is somehow not real money "carries over to the type of records and controls maintained for the property.

Officials in charge of property disposal claim that accounting methods are being tightened to prevent the rip-offs, and that new regulations are being considered to bring some order out of the freewheeling chaos.

But other officials say the problem will continue as long as the military feels that the property is theirs, not the public's. The fact that the property cost thousands of dollars is of no consequence to the profligate brass hats. In earlier, more frugal times, the rule was: "Use it up, wear it out, make it do or do without." For our devil-may-care military, that has been changed to: "Use it a little. throw it away, get some more, the taxpayers pay. Footnote: If you are privy to

Population is growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the U.S. population overall has been growing, the number of children under age 17 in most states has de-clined since 1970, according to a Census Bureau report.

The bureau said Wednesday that based on new 1977 population estimates, there were 5.5 million fewer children under age 17 while the total population grew by about 13 million or 6.4 percent since 1970.

A decrease of almost 2 million or 11.2 percent since 1970 was recorded for the under-5 population while the school-age population, ages 5 to 17, was down by 3.5 million.

During the 1950s and 1960s the population of school-age children grew by 8.5 percent. Meanwhile, the older population, the 65-and-over age group, grew by 17.6 percent or 3.5 million persons since 1970, the report said. There are now 23.5 million persons 65 and older, accounting for 10.9 percent of the

Between 1970 and 1977, the popula-tion of school-age children dropped by an average annual rate of 1.5 percent in the North, about three times the decline in the South and West.

There was an increase, though, in some areas of the country

Between 1970 and 1977, the largest growth rate in the under-5 population was Utah's 36 percent increase. That state's total population was up 20 percent for the period.

Also showing increases in the under-5 population were: Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Hawaii, Idaho, Mississippi, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Oregon, Texas and Wyoming.

HEW: Black college must integrate soon

By JEFF PRUGH 1978, The Los Angeles Times

ALBANY, Ga. - With its white columns, brick facades and palmettodotted lawns that are as neatly groomed as its students, predominantly black Albany State College is a picture of tranquility.

One would hardly suspect that the school is also a battleground for a decades-old controversy: racial desegregation.

Albany State, whose undergraduate enrollment of 1,721 is 96 percent black, has been cited by the federal government as having too few white students to satisfy antidiscriminatory provisions of the 1964 Civil Rights

Georgia is one of 11 states that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare says must substantially increase white enrollments in largely black public colleges, or risk losing millions of federal dollars that now augment state-supported higher edu-

One of the more interesting struggles to comply with the HEW order is unfolding here in Albany (population 85,000), a fast-growing farming and industrial town that thrives among southwestern Georgia's peanut and pecan fields.

Albany (residents pronounce it "All-BEN-ny") is the hometown of the present Georgia governor, George D. Busbee, and is located 40 miles south of the hometown of Georgia's previous governor, Jimmy Carter.

One proposal for Albany State is that it increase its white enrollment from 4 percent to as much as 30 percent by the 1981-82 term. Failing that, its campus would be closed and the school would move 5 1-2 miles away, across the adjoining Flint River, to merge with Albany Junior College, a much newer two-year school whose enrollment of 1,800 is 73 percent white.

The plan is one of several being considered by the Georgia Board of Regents, which has been told by HEW to come up with satisfactory proposals to desegregate Albany State and the state's two other mostly black four-year colleges, Ft. Valley State and Savannah State.

David S. Tatel, director of HEW's civil rights division, said recently that if Georgia does not reach an acceptable solution within 45 days, HEW would call hearings to consider cutting off more than $70 million in federal aid that is dispersed to all of Georgia's universities and colleges.

For their part, black educators, students and alumni at Albany State are angered by what they call "undue pressure" on the school, which, like many other black public colleges in the nation, already is financially

"Technically, the black colleges are being picked on," Albany State President Dr. Charles L. Hayes, who is black, said in an interview. "We are not a vestige of segregation...the merged institution (with Albany Junior College) would be a predominantly black institution. And what would prevent the white students

Officials at black colleges insist that they never have excluded white students, that most white students have elected to exclude themselves.

The situation is in stark contrast to the previous two decades, when black students needed escorts by federal troops to enroll at previously all-white schools such as Little Rock Central High School in 1957 and the University of Mississippi in 1962. Those schools and thousands of others had been racially segregated by law and custom in the South until the federal courts ordered them opened to

Today, 24 years after the Supreme Court's landmark decision, Brown vs. Board of Education, outlawing segregated public schools, racial emotions have come, as one college administrator put it, "full cycle."

Many black academicians and students, and civil rights groups such as the Southern Christian leadership Conference, complain that HEW's desegregation decisions threaten the "ethnic identity" of public colleges that historically have served mostly blacks. There are 34 such schools in the South alone.

"The American system as a whole is already white," said James Lewis, 23, a black senior and student body president at Albany State. "Look around, and you'll see that the only things that reflect black heritage are things that blacks have not been able to achieve. On the other hand, you see things that reflect what whites have achieved.'

The mission of increasing white enrollments in predominantly black colleges has proved difficult.

Legal skirmishes have flared in Tennessee, Maryland, Louisiana, Mississippi and Pennsylvania. Six other states, Georgia, North Carolina, Florida, Virginia, Arkansas and Oklahoma, are trying to meet HEW racial

In North Carolina, for example, state officials say they are increasing white enrollments at the state's five traditionally black schools, including North Carolina A&T State University, Elizabeth City State, Fayetteville State, North Carolina Central and Winston-Salem State.

'We're committed to improving the black schools, too," Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. said in an interview. "But it takes money. It takes money at a time when kids need it — in their early years. Especially black kids. It's pretty tough."

The controversy over black college desegregation is compounded by dwindling enrollments and financial resources at many schools. Moreover, some schools are said by blacks themselves to be unattractive to white students because of low academic ratings, owing to factors that are not related to the colleges. They include poverty and other social ills

"If you want to make the black colleges attractive to white folks, you've got to appropriate the money to make them attractive," a black Georgia legislator, Rep. David Scott, that afflict many blacks before they and everything else. "You won't get whites coming to second-rate black colleges, and you don't solve the problem by destroying black schools.

Scott said that he will ask the Georgia Legislature for $20 million of the state's $200 million surplus to upgrade Georgia's three traditionally black state colleges But even fresh money may not be enough to keep Albany State intact and to prevent the merger that it does

Some observers say that both the federal government and black colleges are addressing the issue incor-

"The law is clear in desegregation. For the government to pick schools out, or corporations, is fruitless," Charles Morgan Jr., a veteran Washington civil rights lawyer, said. "You need to have broad government rules that apply to everyone. It's too bad that what you have now is fragmentation of enforcement of laws in the United States.' Morgan also took issue with those who seek to preserve "black identity" of traditionally black colleges. "Nothing good ever has or will come out of racial distinctions in that sense," he said.

Recently, student body president Lewis sat in his campus office at Albany State. "How do you get whites to come here?" he asked rhetorically. "You need propaganda. You've got stereotypes. People are under the impression that you do not get a good education here. That's a fallacy. Our low entrance-test scores do not reflect what Albany State graduates but what it brings in.'

Lewis sighed. "I'm not opposed to a bigger white enrollment here," he said, "but I'm opposed to doing away-with Albany State.' Then he looked resignedly out the window at a modern building that is rising on the 61-year-old campus. He said it will be "humiliating" if Albany State has to abandon its site.

"It boils down to money," he said. "If the university system had improved this campus a lot sooner, there would be no way you could tell us we're going to have to move across the river.'

Jonestown survivors return to California

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Five survivors of the Peoples Temple mass suicide in Guyana were embraced by family members amid tears of joy and cries of "Yippee!" as they arrived here today.

"I feel pretty good. I'm happy to be in the U.S.A.," said Hyacinth Thrash, 76, who was met at the airport by two nieces and a nephew.

The San Francisco native was pushed in a wheelchair by niece Mary Watkins of Los Angeles, with whom she will be staying.

She would not talk to reporters, except to say she had "been sick the whole time" she was in Guyana, starting in June 1977.

Also arriving early today from New York City were Raymond Godshalk, 62, of Los Angeles; Alvaray Satterwhite, 61, greeted by 20 of her family members; Carol Young, 78, met by three relatives, and Marian Campbell, 61, greeted by no family, but two social workers from the Los Angeles County Social Services Department.

Two other survivors, Grover Davis, 79, and Madeline Brooks, 73, flew to San Francisco.

They were met by a large group of reporters but, like the survivors arriving in Los Angeles, they made no comment. Both were accompanied on the flight by a social worker from New York Social Services.

Davis was met by his son, Grover Jr., and was whisked off by sheriff's deputies. Miss Brooks was met by a local social worker who would not say

"We heard from them (the sisters) regularly - almost every month,' said Harold McCrimmon of Los Angeles, Miss Thrash's nephew. "In fact, five days before this thing happened, we received a letter from the one that perished."

Mrs. Watkins and McCrimmin said neither ever had heard their aunts speak of a suicide pact. Miss Thrash joined the Peoples Temple in Indianapolis shortly after Jones founded it in the 1950s, McCrimmon said.

Judge refuses to lower fines against teachers ed.

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) - A Chancery Court judge has refused to dismiss or lower $108,-000 in fines he levied against a striking New Castle county teachers'

"State law provides that teachers shouldn't strike," Chancellor William Marvel said Wednesday in denying the union's appeal of the fines. "If the teachers don't approve of that law, they should go to the legislature and try to get it appealed.

"But they should not strike. If they go ahead and do it and have their fines forgiven, then other public employees will think they can get away with the same thing."

The New Castle County Teachers Association was on strike for 31 days. Marvel levied a $30,000 fine Oct. 30, then added $6,000 per day while the teachers ignored his back-to-work order, which had been issued Oct. 18, two days after the strike began.

Oxford students give Nixon angry welcome

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE

OXFORD, England (AP) - Five hundred student demonstrators flinging eggs and shouting "No crooks here!" and "No more Nixon!" gave former President Richard M. Nixon an angry welcome today as he arrived at Oxford University to deliver an address on foreign affairs.

The placard-waving crowd of British and American protesters pummeled Nixon's black limousine as it drove up outside the Oxford Union debating society hall, where an audience of 800 awaited him.

Demonstrators knocked off the helmets of a cordon of British policemen and pushed forward to surround Nixon's auto. Secret Service men in tan raincoats rushed forward and surrounded the car, and police eventually held back demonstrators to allow Nixon into a narrow passageway behind the building.

Nixon, told of the protest that awaited him here, had said it would make him feel "very much at

Leading American students at the famed British university had said they planned to turn out hundreds of students, including a busload of Americans from London, to try to keep the former president from speaking at the Oxford Union, the university's 155-year-old debating so-

At least one protester received a black eye. People close to Nixon's car were hit in the head or shoulders by flying eggs. But it was not known whether Nixon himself was struck, and a policeman who was in the middle of the fracas said no officers were injured and there were no immediate

Protest signs read: "Nixon Crawl Back Into Your Hole," "Why Shame

Us Here" and "If You Can't Die, at Least Fade Away.'

Demonstrators included 43 Rhodes and Marshall scholars, and more than 100 other Americans studying at Oxford. Some had fashioned themselves as an ad-hoc group called "CREEP," using the acronym of Nixon's onetime Committee to Re-Elect the President but changing the meaning to "Campaign to Resist the Effects of the Ex-President.'

Andy Paalborg, 23, of Philadelphia, a graduate student in politics at Oxford's Pembroke College, was a vociferous leader in the protest.

"I feel insulted this man apparently thinks I have no memory and no intelligence," Paalborg said.

Before Nixon's arrival, demonstrators mingled with downtown shoppers in a light-hearted mood. One little old lady with gray hair carried a placard reading: "Berties Restaurant."

Philosophy student Harry Printz, 21, of Denver distributed anti-Nixon leaflets among the crowd but told a reporter he was not staying around for Nixon's speech or the main demonstration. "I'm rowing in a regatta this afternoon. I don't want to miss that," he said.

Other students said the vast majority of Oxonians were simply ignoring the visit of Nixon, who resigned the presidency Aug. 9, 1974, in the midst of the Watergate scandal.

Some students had camped outside the prestigious debating society at 5 a.m. Police with Labrador sniffer dogs combed the building in readiness for Nixon's arrival.

"Unless the police physically prevent us, we plan to cordon the Oxford Union building and prevent Nixon from carrying out his speaking en-gagement," Paalborg said earlier

Following his lecture on foreign affairs, Nixon was to answer questions from the audience. The 800 available tickets were snapped up in three hours Monday by members of the Oxford Union.

Nixon, on his first trip to Europe since the Watergate scandal drove him from office four years ago, spent the night at Claridge's Hotel in London before making the 60-mile trip to Oxford. Scotland Yard assigned a detail of armed police to reinforce the U.S. Secret Service guard assigned to all ex-presidents.

There were no demonstrations on his arrival in London Wednesday from Paris, where he appeared on a television program and answered telephoned questions from viewers.

Concerned Americans Abroad, a group of about 100 American residents of London, called the visit "a form of political pornography."

Autopsies ordered on two women killed in fiery crash of Ford Pinto ELKHART, Ind. (AP) — Autopsies on two of three young women killed in the fiery crash of a Ford Pinto last August were ordered "to eliminate any question about the cause of death," the county prosecutor says.

County prosecutor, said results of the autopsiesZwill be released today. The bodies were exhumed Tuesday. Cosentino said earlier it was "almost impossible" to perform autopsies on the three teen-agers killed in the accident because of the condition of their bodies.

He said the exhumed bodies were examined by two noted forensic pathologists - Dr. James Benz of Indianapolis and Dr. Robert Stein of Chicago. He refused to say whether he would try to exhume the body of the third victim, a cousin who was buried

The victims, Judy Ulrich, 18, and her sister, Lynn, 16, both of Osceola, Ind., were killed along with their cousin, Donna Ulrich, 18, of Roanoke, Ill., *when their Pinto exploded in flames after being struck from the rear in northern Indiana.

An Elkhart County grand jury indicted Ford Motor Co. on three counts of reckless homicide. The car in which the young women died was among 1.5 million Pinto and Bobcat sedans that Ford had agreed in June to recall because of government complaints about the fuel tank.

Ford attorneys claim the indictment "fails to charge that Ford's conduct was the proximate cause of death" and have filed motions to dismiss the criminal charges.

The indictment accused Ford of recklessly designing the Pinto in such a way that it would "flame and burn upon rear end impact." The girls' Pinto exploded after being struck by a van traveling at 50 mph.

Moderate leaders of China decide to leave Hua in charge

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) - Despite all the rumors, speculation and wall posters, China's moderate leaders apparently have decided they must stick together and leave Hua Kuo-feng at the helm.

The wall-poster campaign under way in Peking for the past two weeks indicated that Teng Hsiao-ping, the 74-year-old senior vice premier, was locked in a power struggle with Hua, the 57-year-old party

As many as 600 injured in quakes

MEXICO CITY (AP) — As many as 600 persons were reported treated for injuries or shock after six earthquakes that rocked Mexico City and southern Mexico, but officials said there were no confirmed reports of any deaths.

Some newspapers and radio stations reported at least seven persons killed in Oaxaca state, 300 miles south of the capital, but police and Red Cross spokesmen said no deaths were reported officially anywhere, and most damage to buildings was

Cache of arms, ammunition taken from holy Moslem city of Mashhad

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Government troops were reported to have seized an arms cache in the holy Moslem city of Mashhad amid fears of violent street protests beginning this weekend against Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's rule.

There were unconfirmed reports in Tehran that troops and agents of SAVAK, the shah's secret police, have uncovered other arms caches in the capital.

Well-informed diplomatic sources said some weapons have reached opponents of the shah since violent opposition to his 37-year-long reign erupted in January

"I saw everything shaking and there was a tidal wave in the swimming pool," said Vivian Garner, 38, of Hackensack, N.J., a guest at the Holiday Inn in Mexico City.

A number of buildings were evacuated and closed overnight. They included the 11-story building that houses the Mexican offices of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. Another building nearby tilted about eight degrees.

The 7,000 workers in the federal treasury building were evacuated, and armed police cordoned the building to protects the cash and checks inside. The outside of the eight-story structure showed cracks and broken windows, and the sidewalk around it was carpeted with glass.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one whole number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. An earthquake of 6 on the Richter scale can cause severe damage, one of 7 magnitude can cause widespread heavy damage, and a reading of 8 is a great quake capable of tremendous damage.

The Los Angeles Times said today that three University of Texas researchers published an article last year saying an earthquake measuring at least 7.5 on the Richter scale would hit just a mile from the epicenter of the Mexican quakes.

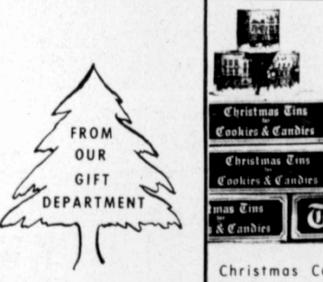

The article, in the October 1977 issue of the scientific journal Pure and Applied Geophysics, was written by Drs. Toshimatsu Matsumoto, Gary Latham and Masakazu Ohtake of The University of Texas' Marine Sciences Institute in Galveston.

Matsumoto said their study found a 155-mile stretch near Oaxaca had been earthquake-free since 1973, and that this was unusual because the area was prone to quakes. However, he said their article did not say when the quake would hit.

New superintendent selected for park

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn. (AP) - J. Thomas Ritter, superintendent of Glacier Bay National Monument in Alaska, has been chosen as the new superintendent of Voyageurs National Park, it was reported Wednesday.

The National Park Service declined to confirm the report in the International Falls Daily Journal. William J. Whalen, director of the U.S. National Park Service, will be in the city Dec. 6 to make the formal announcement.

Ritter replaces Mryl Brooks, who left Voyageurs under a cloud of controversy to become superintendent of Padre Island National Seashore in Texas.

At Glacier Bay, Ritter is responsible for a 2.8 million acre park, including major waterways used by large cruise ships. He began with the Park Service in 1964 and had been in Alaska nine years. Brooks and two park employees were arrested by state game wardens in April on charges of illegal possession of marten and otter pelts. The state said seasonal employee Dennis Lagergren, acting under orders from Brooks and park naturalist Frank Ackerman, had trapped a marten and an otter to use in a park display. Both species are protected by state daw.

Firestone, government settle tire recall issues

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. and the government have come to terms on several unresolved issues which had led to confusion and controversy in the recall of 10 million Firestone 500 steel-belted radial tires.

In a major concession, Firestone agreed in a final document signed Wednesday to trade new model 721 radials even for worn out 500s — those with tread which is less than 2-32nds of an inch

The company had told its dealers not to accept these tires because in many states their use is prohibited by

The company claimed many old worn tires were being turned in by persons who found them in dumps or junk yards and the agreement calls for a trade-in on worn out 500s if they are mounted on a vehicle

Firestone and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, the government agency overseeing the recall, each said they hoped the agreement would end the problems that have existed since the recall was announced Oct. 20

Robert Boaz, NHTSA public affairs director, said no civil penalties are involved in the current recall.

But he added that the question of civil penalties in a 1976 recall of 500s has "been held in abeyance" pending the outcome of the agreement signed Wednesday. Although emphasizing that there is no connection between the two cases, Boaz said, "We left open the question of a civil penalty" in the 1976 case.

Firestone has been asked for its comments on the 1976 case as the first step in a negotiation process that probably will lead to "some civil penalty," Boaz said. Firestone faces a maximum fine of $800,000 in the 1976

The negotiations that led to Wednesday's agreement had been continuing between the company and NHTSA since the October "agreement in principle" was announced.

Agency administrator Joan Claybrook said the final agreement is aimed at insuring that Firestone will carry out the recall campaign "as expeditiously as possible.'

"In view of the delay in signing the document, it is hoped that the company and its dealers will take extraordinary measures to assist Firestone tire owners who are presently filing numerous complaints with the agency,' she said. "The major purpose of this recall is to get these defective tires off the road.

Firestone Chairman Richard A. Riley said in Akron, Ohio, the recall may take at least a year to complete. So far, about 400,000 tires have been

"We are turning out 400,000 tires a month towards meeting the needs of the recall," Riley said. "Despite our best efforts to fulfill the needs of the recall and to meet our continuing business requirements ... there are likely to be occasional shortages of replacement tires in some areas from time to time.

The recall, made after NHTSA called the 500s unsafe, is expected to cost Firestone about $230 million. Also, Firestone will issue a booklet explaining the recall to its dealers and to consumers. Under the agreement, Firestone will replace free of charge:

—All 5-rib 500 radials, including private brands like Montgomery Wards Grappler 8000, manufactured in the U.S. or Canada and sold on or after Sept. 1, 1975, provided they were manufactured before Jan. 1, 1977. -All 7-rib 500s and private brands and Firestone TPC tires sold on or after Sept. 1, 1975, and manufactured before May 1, 1976. To simplify the proof of purchase required, Firestone agreed that 500 tires involved in the recall and purchased in the replacement market shall be considered sold on or after Sept. 1, 1975, if the tires' serial numbers indicate they were manufactured after March 1, 1975, even though the owner-purchaser may not have proof of the purchase date.

Consumers with original equipment tires manufacturd before Sept. 1, 1975, and replaement market tires manufactured before March 1, 1975, will be required to present proof the tires were purchased after Sept. 1,

Proof of purchase alone, without the tires, will not be sufficient to obtain free replacements.

Persons still using 500 and TPC tires purchased before Sept. 1, 1975, can have them replaced with Firestone tires for one-half the retail sell-

The company also will authorize refunds to persons who already paid a pro-rata adjustment price on tires now eligible for free replacement.

Proof of purchase, if required, will be either the purchaser's or owner's recall notification letter from Firestone, the new tire invoice or other evidence of purchase, along with the SE

King Khaled's hospital stay was comfortable

Almost everyone, it seems, tried to make life more livable for Saudi Arabia's King Khaled during the month he spent at the Cleveland Clinic undergoing coronary bypass surgery. And just in case anyone wanted to ruin his stay, the 64-year-old monarch was closely guarded by the U.S. Secret Service, the Explosive Ordinance Division of the U.S. Army, the State Department, Saudi police, the Saudi Royal Guard and Cleveland police. These and other details were revealed Wednesday in a 37-page report by the clinic, which had been notably close-mouthed while Khaled was in town from Sept. 27 to Oct. 27. The report said the king paid for the secu-

Court affirms 20-year sentence in shotgun killing

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN-The Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday affirmed the conviction and 20-year sentence of Jay Doug Ingram in á shotgun killing at a Howard County party on April 10,

Ingram appealed his conviction on grounds that an "extraneous offense" was introduced at his trial, and of "unresponsive" answers by witnesses for the State.

The court's opinion indicates Ingram was questioned about his use of marijuana prior to going to a party where the shooting occurred, with a witness testifying he had not given Ingram any marijuana but that "Ingram may have stolen some from Ingram also complained of an exclamation by the victim's mother, who said, as she was leaving the witness stand, "That's the gun that shot my boy! Oh, dear God, oh dear God, oh, dear God.'

The court held those comments, and the response by a witness that Ingram "tried to shoot the rest of us when he fired through a closed door in a house" did not constitute grounds for reversal.

rity, refurbishing the hospital and employee overtime. But the price tag was not disclosed. Khaled's 18-room, 36-bed suite was furnished in English decor, with thick carpeting and paintings, some obtained from the Cleveland Museum of Art. Interior decorators spent five days preparing the accommodations, with a result that the hospital termed

"high class" and "good quality." The hospital food service prepared baked whole lamb three times for Khaled and his immediate retinue of 50, including one lamb served with the head on. The retinue particularly enjoyed pancakes doused with maple syrup or honey for breakfast. As for Khaled himself, said food services director Sally Eyerdam, "the king especially liked vanilla ice cream and Turkish bon-bons for dessert and snacks.' All meals were served on Royal Doulton china with the Carlisle pattern. Silver bowls, trays and utensils were also used. On one occasion, a woman from a local beauty salon called and asked to be allowed to give the king massages and render other "personal gratuitous services.

Another caller said: "I know the king is a gambling man. Do you think that I might be able to arrange a card party with him and some of his friends in his suite?"

During the early stages of the king's stay, such offers were referred to the Saudi ambassador, the hospital said. But later, the public relations office of the hospital simply told callers the king was interested.

"Protecting the king and his party from gunshots and explosives was a primary concern," said hospital security director Herbert Fortune.

Security arrangements — including rooftop patrols, television monitors, a special elevator to the suite, and two checkpoints - were so tight a prominent physician was reportedly removed from the suite because he was not wearing a required badge.

Khaled was visited in the hospital by numerous dignitaries, including Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Defense Secretary Harold Brown. Direct telephone lines to Riyadh, capital of Saudi Arabia, and other cities were installed, as well as teletype and facsimile machines.

Yet in spite of the close communications with his oil-rich homeland, Khaled often talked toward the end of his stay about "how beautiful Saudi Arabia was this time of year and about returning to his favorite sport,

Split in Texas Farm Bureau prevented by compromise

DALLAS (AP) - A last-minute compromise between traditionalists and militants has saved the Texas Farm Bureau from splitting apart and puts the organization on record as favoring a flexible government program to help farmers. Everett Miller, a longtime Farm Bureau leader from Tulia, Texas, won support with his 11th-hour resolution Wednesday that the convention back the so-called Dole Amendment. It would allow farmers to get a higher price for their crops depending upon how many acres they keep out of production.

Earlier in the windup day of the three-day convention, the more than 1,100 delegates rejected by a three-toone margin the American Agriculture Movement's bid for a rigid policy calling on Congress to require Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland to implement 90 percent parity.

The 1977 farm bill now in effect leaves the 90 percent parity to Berg-land's "discretion."

"I'm tired of going broke at his discretion," delegate David Senter of Burleson, Texas, had said in arguing for approval of the resolution.

Some of the delegates were among those who drove their tractors to Washington, D.C., and other cities earlier this year to dramatize their unhappiness with farm prices. Traditionalists had first proposed a recommendation that farmers strive to improve their income through the market place, using the law of supply of demand, instead of trying to get favorable legislation through an urban-dominated Congress.

But delegates turned down that proposal too. American Agriculture members then came back with other proposals seeking other concessions to a principal of gaining higher crop prices through legislation.

It led to a floor fight when J.R. "Bubba" Day of Uvalde made a motion that no more amendments pertaining to parity or "set-aside" acreage be allowed from the floor. He declined a request by the Farm Bureau leadership to withdraw his mo-

After lengthy debate, delegates by a close voice vote - and then by a standing vote when that was challenged - rejected Day's motion.

Recommendations from the Texas Farm Bureau will be considered in January by the American Farm Bureau meeting in Miami Beach. Resolutions approved there will be recommended to Congress as national poli-

Among other matters, the Farm Bureau recommended a 30 percent set-aside of wheat, feed grain and cotton acreage "until it brings into balance the law of supply and demand."

Jack Williams, a delegate from Anderson County, had argued against the American Agriculture Movement's parity proposal.

Earlier, state delegates went solidly on line as opposing the storing in Texas of nuclear wastes from atomic power plants in other states.

Delegates re-elected three of the organization's top officers for new terms. President Carrol G. Chaloupka of Dalhart won a fifth one-year term. Reed Lang of Rio Hondo won another term as vice president and S.M. True of Plainview got another term as seretary-treasurer.

Inflation watchdogs might take look at Congret

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's inflation watchers might want to check into an industry that produces the same volume it did 20 years ago but requires more than twice the workforce and seven times the money.

That industry is Congress. After the close of each two-year session, a box score is printed in the Congressional Record that summarizes items such as the number of days, hours and minutes the Senate and House met and the total of bills introduced and enacted.

It is strictly numbers and so omits a great deal about any congressional session and the complexity of the issues faced. But the numbers are part of the story and they have remained remarkably stable over the years. In 1977, the first year of the 95th Congress, 15,386 bills were introduced and 1,320 were passed. This year, another 6,927 measures were introduced and 1,648 passed, some of them holdovers from the previous year. The 85th Congress was in session 20 years earlier. In 1957, 14,013 measures were introduced and another 6,591 the next year. The totals for bills and resolutions that passed were 2,408 in 1957 and 2,718 in 1958.

In one area, the 95th Congress clearly outstripped the 85th: members talked more.

During the two years of the 95th, the Senate was in session 2,510 hours and the House 1,897. The record of those

...we're a fine food store and a whole lot more!

sessions filled 66,573 pages.

In the 85th Congress, the Senate met 1,875 hours and the House 1,148. Their proceedings filled only 33,402 pages of the Congressional Record.

To handle that workload, staff sizes have more than doubled in 20 years. In 1958, the budget for the House was $37.8 million and for the Senate $22.3 million. The House figure for 1978 was $282.6 million and $166.4 million for

Of course, the Senate is 1958, there were 96 senat senting 48 states. That was they opened a new build called the Dirksen Senateoice

Building. Senators and their staffs ider sooner moved into their new quan when Alaska and Hawaii joine a Union and the size of the Senatn creased to 100 members.

Patton, Rommel descendants now live in Stuttgart

The Washington Post

STUTTGART, Germany - Patton and Rommel are alive and well and working in Stuttgart.

Manfred Rommel, the son of Germany's most famous World War II field marshal, is the mayor of this industrial city that is home to thousands of American GIs.

Maj. Gen. George S. Patton, the son of the most famous U.S. field general in Europe in World War II, is deputy commander of the U.S. Army's 7th Corps headquartered here.

The two have known each other and been friends for 20 years. They share a common birthday Dec. 24, and the friendship, Patton says, "I like to think it has had some favorable impact" on GI-German relations in the

The mayor knows if there is a problem all he's got to do is pick up the Germany's conservative Christian Democratic Party and one of the most thoughtful men in German politics, though he is unlikely to emerge in the federal spotlight.

He has stuck his political neck out several times for Americans here. In 1975, some German night clubs would not accept black GIs and Rommell shut them down. "Since then, we've had no trouble with clubs or discrimination," he says.

Then dozens of Stuttgart taxi drivers converged on the mayor's house after a driver had been stabbed by a young GI. The drivers then refused to transport blacks and Rommel threatened to withdraw their licenses. The soldier, he said, turned out to be

But in that same town, 160 German families take part in a project to open their homes to GIs for visits. In Illsheim, not far away, 90 German landlords cut rents of GI family tenants to ease the dollar pinch.

Still, in a small German town, the culture shock of the America GI is extraordinary for conservative German farmers and the American.

"It's not just blacks with wide-brim floppy hats, long coats and dark glasses," says an infantry captain. 'Now it's whites who are into the cowboy thing, chewing tobacco and with big hats, too. It's like a guy wearing lederhosen arriving in downtown Dallas."

The 7th Army now has all its authorized tanks and major weapons systems. All 230 Cobra helicopter gunships equipped with TOW antitank missiles are here, though others for backup units in the United States are still to be delivered.

Newer-model M-60 tanks with special night equipment that avoids giving away position are arriving. Eightinch Howitzer batteries also have been expanded from four to six guns each. The 155mm Howitzer batteries also will be expanded from six to eight guns.

Armored brigade commander Col. John Kirk says spare parts availability has gone from 55 percent to 90 percent in recent years. Armored battalion commanders say generally they can field 90 percent of their equipment on two hours' notice.

Perhaps most important, the U.S. Army is no longer facing two fronts. With withdrawal from South Korea under way, the European battlefields is all that's left and 22 of the 24 active and reserve Army divisions in the United States and overseas are ticketed for Europe, generals here say. "Intellectually," says one colonel, 'we have made the decision that we are in Europe for the long haul — 20 or 30 years maybe. The one-year-at-atime thing that meant you never fixed up the barracks is over.'

The Army in Germany also is bigger than generally realized. At any one time now, according to the personnel chief, Brig. Gen. William H. Dear Bessie: Potassium chloride or other potassium salts are often present in so-called salt substitutes. But they should not be used except with a doctor's approval. One reason is that people with certain medical conditions should not take any extra potassium of this kind.

Also, over-use of potassium choloride can be

DOE joins in appeal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The U.S. Energy Department has joined Texas in appealing Burlington Northern Railroad's increased rates for hauling coal from Wyoming to San Antonio, Attorney General John Hill said Wednesday.

The Interstate Commerce Commission granted the railroad authority to increase rates from $12.42 to $16.12 per ton.

"We're very pleased to have the cooperation of the Department of Energy in a case which is crucial to the future energy picture in Texas," Hill said.

"The exhorbitant and highly inflationary rate approved by the ICC is obviously bad for Texas and our attempts to switch to coal for generating electricity," he continued. "DOE's appeal shows that this excessive rate also is a blow to the national coal conversion policy adopted by Congress."

has arisen as a resultVof the federal government ordering Texaco to phase out the use of gas from its federal leases offshore from Louisiana, the commission said.

Texaco has been using gas from federal leases since 1964, but the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission ordered Texaco to reduce its use of such gas by 20 million cubic feet daily Commission Chairman Mack Wallace commented that the federal government "has said it does not want interstate gas used in Texas" yet it "wants us to use our intrastate gas to manufacture (petroleum) products for the Northeast.

Wallace directed Director Joseph Piotrowski of the gas utilities division to prepare a letter to Texas Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and John Tower for Wallace's signature, "protesting the federal attitude that interstate gas cannot be used to manufacture products for interstate users."

The refineries can process 453,000 barrels of oil a day. They mannufacture approximately 28 percent of Texaco's domestic gasoline output and account for 28 percent of Texaco's domestic production of heating oils and diesel fuels and more than 40 percent of Texaco's domestic supplies of jet fuel.

Some 6,000 persons are employed at the complex. The Port Arthur refinery is Texaco's largest.

Discharge hearing held

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Livestock on some Fayette County ranches like treated oil field waste water better than rainwater, says an engineer for Continental Oil Co.

John Queen was one of several witnesses from the oil and gas industry who testified Tuesday on possible limitations of oil and grease discharges into Texas waters.

Guy Buell of Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association said it would be impossible to purify the discharges enough to satisfy the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Henry Burkett, department executive director, said in a letter to the Texas Railroad Commission that fish and wildlife would be protected better if oil and grease discharges were held to 20 parts per million.

Burkett said exceptions should be reviewed "case-by-case."

Buell said "there is no way in the world" with current machinery, techniques and knowledge that industry can achieve 20 parts per million on a regular basis.

The commission called the hearing to consider standards for discharging oil and grease into the state's tidal, inland or estuarine waters.

Oil and grease are suspended in brine discharged from oil and gas

Buell said discharges have caused "absolutely no harm." His statement was supported by engineers and scientists testifying for the association, whose member companies account for more than 90 percent of the oil and gas produced in Texas.

Queen said minnows are living in treated water from three Continental oil leases in Fayette County. He said ranchers have told him their livestock prefer the treated brine "to the water in a pond, because it is stale, and rainwater runoff," he added, "this discharge provides the only water involved in the action needed more time to prepare, Examiner Philip Ricketts said Wednesday.

Under scrutiny are Texas Electric Service Co., Texas Power & Light Co. and Dallas Power & Light Co. Alleged "sweetheart deals" between the utilities surfaced during a TESCO rate case before the regulatory agency.

The commission ordered a hearing into all affiliate transactions and froze final rate orders in TESCO and TP&L cases until the probe is complete. The companies could be ordered to refund millions to custom-counsel, defended his staff's investigation of the three companies. "If anyone has any evidence that the staff is white washing this thing, I want to know about it right now," said Irving officials protested being thrown into the inquiry. "The Irving City Council does not want to be brought into it," said Don Rorschach, Irving city attorney. The city's appeal of TP&L rates is stalled until the inquiry is finished.

Ricketts said he had no choice about including the Irving case in the investigation because of an order from State District Judge Herman Jones of Austin. Jones returned a TP&L rate case to the commission and said a final rate order must await the commission probe.

"As far as evidence of a white washing, I don't think that's going to be known till this hearing is complete," Rorschach said

Bell argued that Irving's position is too self-serving. 'No one seems to be really interested in what justice is, or what the public interest is," the commission lawyer said. "Everyone is jockeying for their own procedure to stand." Among transactions being studied are TESCO's agreement to sell electricity generated from its cheapest natural gas supply to TP&L. In exchange, TESCO would receive part ownership in the Texas Utilities Martin Lake power plant. DP&L?also bought an interest in the plant and lignite reserves from TP&L, but not in return for electricity.

Hasty bridge player drinks tea with fork

East captured dummy's queen of spades and returned a spade. Declarer led a trump from dummy, and East put up the king, hoping to create an entry to his partner's hand. South, a hasty man, pounced on the king of hearts with the ace and returned a trump. West won and cashed a spade trick. East later took the setting trick with the ace of clubs.

CREDIT TO EAST

Give East credit for playing the king of hearts, since South would make the contract easily if East had to win the second trump. South would knock out the ace of clubs and discard his spade loser on one of dummy's

But South could gain nothing by taking the ace of hearts so promptly. If the four missing trumps were not divided evenly, South had no chance for his contract. If they were divided evenly, it was imperative to let East win the defenders' trump trick.

ANSWER: Bid 3 NT. The combined count must be 27 or 29 points, which should be enough for game in notrump but perhaps not for game in a minor suit.

Leading indicators index continues steady upswing

WASHINGTON (AP) - A government barometer of future economic trends showed a healthy increase for the third straight month in October, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

The 0.5 percent increase in the Index of Leading Indicators was a sign that the economy is continuing to grow at a steady rate.

If the indicators declined for several months it could mean an economic downturn and higher unemployment.

The government is trying to slow economic growth slightly in its fight against inflation, but results of its credit-tightening moves may not show up until next year. The 0.5 percent gain in October followed back-to-back increases of 0.9

percent in August and September. The department originally had reported the September increase at 0.7 percent but revised it upward.

The main reasons for both the September and October increases were rising demand by businesses for plants and equipment. That is considered a sign of business confidence and means businesses will continue to

Also contributing to the October increase were a rising average work week, deliveries, liquid assets and orders received by factories.

Negative contributors were a higher layoff rate, sensitive prices, falling stock prices, a decline in the money supply and fewer building per-

Nebraska with little scenic relief. But each year when the snow melts from the fields, hundreds of thousands of migrating birds swoop down on the Platte's barren sandbars: ducks, whitefronted geese, songbirds, bald eagles, sandhill cranes and, among the babbling army, 75 members of North America's most celebrated endagered species — the whitefeathered whooping cranes.

Therein lies a story. For the homely Platte is not only a popular waterfowl resort, but also an economic lifeline of the Great Plains. Its water irrigates farms, electrifies cities, and powers the draglines of giant Western coal companies.

On a tributary of the Platte, near Wheatland, Wyo., a group of utilities is building a massive $1.6 billion coal-fired power plant to serve eight states. The plant, which includes the large Grayrocks dam and reservoir, would reduce the river's flow and, according to environmentalists, possible wipe out the whoopers downstream.

only because of whoopers' fame and beauty and the magnitude of the economic interests at stake, but also because it has become a test of the new endangered species act.

Nebraska filed suit and succeeded in temporarily provide electricity to 2 million consumers. stopping the project last month when, on the last frenzied day of Congress, retiring Rep. Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., got an amendment adopted that exempted Grayrocks from the act.

A conference with the Senate lifted the exemption, but in final form it required the situation to be resolved within 90 days by a Cabinet-level committee. The committee was set up by the new act to choose, in the event of irresolvable conflicts, between development and an endangered species.

The situation is also entangled in the volatile politics of Western water. The Wyoming plant would use water that heretofore has flowed into Nebraska. Nebraskans want that water for economic development but are pragmatically teaming up with environmentalists who want it for wildlife.

Meanwhile, President Carter is trying to revise federal water policy by slowing down the dam building and fierce competition for Western water. He wants to conserve water, which would mean more for wildlife and whooping cranes, a constitutency with limited popularity in the development-minded Western establishment.

As Patrick Parenteau, a National Wildlife Federation attorney, sees it, the cranes have been going to the Platte River for 10 million years to perform their graceful mating dances before the long flight to Arctic nesting grounds. What right has man to inter-

Today, a 60-mile stretch of river between Lexington and Denham, Neb., has been designated "critical habitat" for whooping cranes by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Growth forseen in new forecasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has received some welcome evidence that the economy should continue to grow in the months ahead and thus avoid the recession many economists are predicting for 1979.

But the 0.5 percent increase in the index of leading economic indicators announced Wednesday was not enough to offset the adverse impact on financial markets of unfavorable reports on inflation and foreign trade.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average declined 14.03 points in light trading Wednesday, closing at 790.11, and the dollar declined against most major currrencies on world money markets. Analysts blamed the drop in stock prices and the dollar primarily on the government's report Wednesday that the nation had a $2.1 billion deficit in its foreign trade in October, the worst deficit in three

The monthly deficits, which have extended unbroken for more than two years, are blamed along with inflation as the major causes of the decline of the U.S. dollar during the last two years.

The government had reported Tuesday that consumer prices increased 0.8 percent in October, and a key member of the Carter administration acknowledged for the first time that inflation is now running at about 10 percent, much worse than the administration had admitted previously.

The 0.5 percent rise in the index of economic indicators followed an 0.9 percent advance in September. But the October figure still pointed to moderate growth in the economy in months ahead. The index is intended to predict future trends in the

While many economists, including some prominent ones, say Carter's recent actions to slow the economy as part of his anti-inflation fight will bring on a recession in 1979, the president and his advisers maintain that the economy is strong enough to continue growing next year, although at a slower pace. The index of economic indicators gave support to the administration position. However, it is designed to look only a few months ahead and does not provide many clues as to what could happen to the economy during all of 1979. The component of the index that showed the greatest strength during the month was contracts and orders for plant and equipment, an indication of rising business investment.

Other components that advanced during the month were the average work week, deliveries, cash and other liquid assets and orders received by factories. Partially offsetting the advances were negative reports for job layoffs, sensitive prices, stock prices, the money supply and building permits.

The worsening of the trade deficit in October resulted largely from a 3 percent decline in exports, primarily of food, gold and chemicals.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said an unusual decline in gold exports of $224 million, which followed an unusual increase in the previous month, distorted the trade figures. He claimed they weren't really as bad as they looked.

Addition error shown in Stacy water figures

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN-Cross-examination of a Lower Colorado River Authority consulting engineer continued Wednesday before the Texas Water Commission in that panel's hearing on the application by the Colorado River Municipal Water District for a permit to construct the Stacy Reservoir in West

CRMWD attorney Jim Wilson, of Austin, gave LCRA consulting engineer Steve Dennis a table of figures which he said CRMWD consulting engineers had determined to be incorrect due to an addition

Those figures, calculating the flows of the Colorado River, were used by the LCRA to who the amount of water the Highland Lakes would lose if the Stacy Dam is built upstream from Lake Buchanan.

Dennis agreed there was a mathematical error which was carried through all his calculations. That error. Wilson told the commission, gave a result some 100,000 acre-feet higher than would otherwise

Water yield studies developed by Dennis from CRMWD figures also were disputed by Wilson, who said that allowing for rounding off of numbers, the results obtained by Dennis should not have been significantly higher than those obtained by CRMWD consulting engineer Bob Gooch.

"I don't believe there is an error," Dennis maintained, saying that his calculations varied only by about eight percent from those developed by Gooch.

Post suspends Sunday edition edition of the New York Post, born during the city's recent newspaper strike, has been suspended eight weeks after its birth.

Rupert Murdoch, publisher of the Post, announced suspension of the Sunday edition, effective immediately. In a statement issued Wednesday, he said it would remain dormant "until we are able to assemble all the elements of a full Sunday paper and, secondly, satisfactory agreements are reached with all unions."

The Sunday Post, which lacked a magazine section, was introduced

At one point, the Sunday Post had reached a circulation of more than one million copies selling at 35 cents. Official circulation details were not immediately available.

Expansion of foreign banks affecting U.S.

By WILLIAM GLASGALL AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - You may not be aware of it, but it's not unlikely that when you write a check on your account at the friendly Hometown Bank & Trust Co. you're actually playing a small role in the business of international banking.

You may be involved in the aroundthe-world nature of banking, even though you're only paying for a cart full of groceries, because your Hometown Bank may be owned by a bank from Canada, Britain, Japan or another foreign country.

The number of U.S. banks owned by foreigners has grown sharply in recent years, and may grow even larger soon if the recently announced plan by Bank of Montreal - Canada's third largest — to buy 89 of the 104 Bankers Trust Co. branches in the New York City area is approved byregulatory authorities.

The expansion of foreign banking here has brought on some complaints that American banks are being placed at a competitive disadvantage by their foreign counterparts, and it prompted the passage in Congress of the Inernational Banking Act of 1978, which lays down some new national rules for foreign bankers.

Here are some questions and answers about the operations of foreign banks in the United States:

Q. Can you chart the growth of foreign banks here? A. The Federal Reserve started keeping statistics on foreign banks in November 1972, when 52 banks were operating 100 offices here. By May 1978, the number of foreign banks in the U.S. had grown to 123, with 268 offices. According to the brokerage house of M.A. Schapiro & Co. Inc., in that 51/2-year span, foreign banks' of the branch network of Bankers Trust - America's ninth largest bank - would boost the total assets by $1

Q. Why have foreign banks been so interested in doing business in the United States?

A. Industry analyst's note that the recent appreciation of many foreign currencies against the dollar has made American assets - such as banks, other companies or real estate - attractive purchases. In addition, foreign banks have had an important competitive edge over American banks in that they are exempt from several U.S. laws.

Q. What can foreign banks do that their U.S. competitors can't?

A. U.S. banks are prohibited from opening branches outside their home states, but many foreign banks can and do - operate across the country. Britain's Barclays Bank, for example, does business in New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Illinois, California and the Virgin Islands. French, Swiss and Japanese banks also "operate similar, wide-flung banking networks across the United States," Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco analyst Hang-Sheng Cheng noted in a new study.

Q. Are foreign banks exempt from other U.S. banking rules?

A. While nearly all of the largest banks in the United States belong to the Federal Reserve system, the giant foreign banks here - nearly all with assets of $1 billion or more prefer to operate under state banking rules. Membership in the Federal Reserve gives a bank access to emergency loans and to various technical services. But banks in the Fed system pay a price: they must keep cash reserves on deposit with the Fed in non-interest-bearing accounts. Under state rules, banks - including foreign ones - may earn money on their reserves by keeping them in such interest-bearing investments as gov-

Q. Why, then, aren't American banks objecting loudly to foreigners' banking practices?

A. According to the Schapiro publication, "such possible responses to foreign banking in this country would be inconsistent" with the American banking industry's desire to continue expanding overseas.

ing of the industry. According to the San Francisco Fed's Cheng, the banking act "establishes for the first time a national policy on the regulation of foreign banks" even though "in some respects it still falls short of equal treatment for foreign and domestic banks." The law allows foreign banks already operating here to branch across the country at will. But it curbs the reach of new banks somewhat by allowing branches outside of a home state to accept only limited numbers and types of deposits. The law also will force some foreign banks to deposit cash reserves with the Fed in the manner of their Federal Reserve System-member competitors. According to Cheng, some state-chartered foreign-owned banks, "which account for about one-fifth of foreign banks' total assets in the U.S.," still will be able to escape the Fed's reserve requirements because of their

CAB to determine which communities should receive subsidized air service

WASHINGTON (AP) - Civil Aeronautics Board Chairman Marvin S. Cohen said Wednesday the board will make an intensive effort in the next few months to determine which small communities should receive federally subsidized air service.

The new airline deregulation bill requires the board to make such a determination to assure that hundreds of communities are not left without service because airlines consider certain routes unprofitable.

The bill calls for expansion of a present regulation under which the government last year gave trunk carrier and commuter lines $70 million in subsidies to serve more than 400 small cities.

Cohen said the board's staff is drawing up a list of about 600 communities that might be eligible, including those now on the subsidy

He said the board has scheduled nine regional meetings to gain the views of state and local officials in shaping the program.

Reversal in Bell suit called 'legal travesty'

By GREG THOMPSON

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - The reversal of the $3 million slander judgement against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. is a "legal travesty" and will be taken to the Texas Supreme Court, says the attorney for a former Bell executive and the widow of another top Bell official.

The 4th Court of Civil Appeals ruled Wednesday that Bell owes nothing to former executive James Ashley and Oleta Gravitt Dixon, the widow of T.O. Gravitt

WASHINGTON (AP) gust 1957, he told a - The House assassinations committee said today it is investigating er, and he was well paid the possibility that the mysterious Raoul implicated by James Earl Ray in an alleged conspiracy to kill Martin Luther King Jr. "might actually be one of Ray's brothers" or a composite of them.

Jerry Ray, a brother of the man who pleaded guilty in King's murder, was warned about that development as he took the witness stand to testify before the committee.

"We have received information of an incriminating nature that you may have been involved as a co-conspirator or otherwise in the assassination of Martin Luther King," committee counsel Mark Speiser told Jerry Ray.

One of the brother's lawyers, Flo Kennedy, angrily demanded that Speiser's statement be stricken from the record but the committee chairman, Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, overruled her objection.

The Raoul theory involving the Ray brothers was advanced by the. committee's chief counsel, G. Robert Blakey, before Jerry Ray testified. The other brother, John, is to testify Friday.

When you come down to it," Blakey said, "the Raoul theory that seems to fit is that the mysterious accomplice might actually be one of Ray's brothers, Jerry or John, or a composite of the two of them.

"It seems to be true that each point where James' movements or his funding during the fugitive period are explained by James by reference to Raoul, one of the brothers is in fact on the scene or in contact with James," Blakey said. "Is this more than mere coincidence?"

James Earl Ray says he traveled from Los An geles to Birmingham to Memphis, Tenn., where he was when King was killed there April 4, 1968. Ray explained that a man he knew only as Raoul had called him to Memphis for what he thought was a gun-smuggling operation. But Blakey said the committee learned that Ray told witnesses at a bartending school and at a bar that he had been summoned "to meet his brother." Similarly, Blakey said, at the same time that James says he met Raoul in Canada in Au-

Taxes up 17 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) - The total of federal, state and local taxes collected in the 1976-77 fiscal year was up 17 percent over the previous fiscal year, the Commerce Department re-

The department said Wednesday the $61.5 billion overall increase in collections through Sept. 30, 1977, reflected improved economic conditions and "to some degree, inflationary trends." The rise was more than double the $26.8 billion increase of 1975-76.

The combined total of taxes collected by all levels of government in the 1976-77 fiscal year was $419.7 billion.

Of that amount, $244 billion went to the federal government, $101 billion to state governments and $74.7 billion to local governments.

The governments received 59.6 percent of their revenues from income taxes, 14.9 percent from property taxes, 20 percent from sales taxes while the remainder came from various sources, the department said. During the period, corporate tax collections were up 31.6 percent, personal income tax collections were up 19.1 percent and property tax collections rose 9.7 percent, the department said. The department also said its figures show that the so-called average U.S. citizen paid $1,907 in taxes during the fiscal

Soft touch gives Warriors a scare

AP Sports Writer

It's an old policy at Marquette, thanks to Al McGuire: open with a "soft-touch" game to get the season

But for a while there Wednesday night, Belmont Abbey wasn't playing the kind of role that Marquette ex-

The little school from North Carolina was giving the nation's 17thranked team big trouble. But then a halftime talk by Warrior Coach Hank Raymonds straightened things out and Marquette went on to a 70-56 victory over the upstart visitors.

"I didn't say too much, really," said Raymonds. "There was no yelling and screaming. There was no need for it. I just told them to try and "I saw a lot of things good and a lot of things wrong. I saw the lanes filled real well and I saw some quickness. I didn't see much reaction, but I did see things that were correctable.'

ANOTHER THING that Raymonds saw was a poor shooting percentage. The Warriors sank only 27 percent of their shots in the first half and as a result went into the dressing room trailing 30-26 at intermission. They were soundly booed by the fans in Milwaukee.

"We've got young kids afraid to assert themselves," said Raymonds, who saw a better second half as the Warriors connected on 53 percent of their shots and took control with the help of 10 steals.

"We'll get going," said Raymonds. "I'm not concerned about it. I know ball team.

Belmont Abbey, incidentally, was McGuire's place of residence for many years before he went on to a successful coaching career, at Mar-

ELSEWHERE in college basketball Wednesday night, fourth-ranked Kansas opened its season with a rousing 91-68 victory over Fairleigh Dickinson, No. 9 Syracuse blasted North Carolina A&T 102-77, No. 13 Texas whipped Arkansas State 68-54, No. 14 5: 10 to play.

whipping Northwestern 97-67 and No. 16 Rutgers tripped Columbia 70-63 in Bernard Toone scored 18 of his 30 points in the second half to spark Marquette. Belmont Abbey led 40-38 with 12:15 to play, but Marquette's Oliver Lee tied the game with two free throws. Toone stole the ensuing inbounds pass and scored to give the Warriors a lead they never lost. Toone later hit 10 more points in one stretch to give Marquette a 62-50 lead with at least one more high school football battle this season as Kermit and Slaton square off in a Class AA regional championship game here in Memorial Stadium Friday night.

Kermit, Slaton clash in Tall City Friday

The game is set for a 7:30 p.m. kickoff and tickets will be available at the gate beginning at 6 p.m. Ducats for the contest are $3 for adults and $1.50 for students.

Adding a bit of irony to the game the Harris poll rates a tossup is the fact that both Slaton and Kermit tied for their district championships and had to have a bit of luck to get where they Kermit won a coin-toss with Sonora to earn the right to represent District 7-AA in the playoff while Slaton had to wade out of a four-team tie in District 5-AA. The Tigers won a draw with Frenship, Tahoka and Seminole to slip into the playoff picture.

Kermit, under the guidance of former Midland Lee assistant Earl Overton, blasted Fabens, 28-0, last week in first round bi-district action to move on to Friday night's second round game in Midland

Slaton advanced to this stage of the playoffs by downing Colorado City, 33-21 last Saturday afternoon.

Kermit is 8-1-1 on the year with a 21-0 loss to Fort Stockton in the season's fourth week their only defeat. Fort Stockton, of course, went 10-0 in the regular season betore bowing to Lubbock Estacado in last week's bidistrict showdown in Midland.

Slaton, coached by Edward Cook, is 8-3 after beating Colorado City

Longhorns rally to win; Mustangs lose

By The Associated Press

If 13th-ranked Texas, winner of last season's National Invitational Tournament, was under the impression it would romp over its opponents while waiting for the Southwest Conference basketball race to start, it has found out it was mistaken.

"Sometimes we think just because we won the NIT, the other team is just going to drop dead," said Texas Coach Abe Lemons, whose Longhorns had to come from behind at Austin to defeat a scrappy Arkansas State Wedneday night.

"They're not going to fall over for us. We aren't going to overpower anybody," said Lemons. He credited his tightened-up zone defense with allowing the Longhorns to hold Arkansas State to only 18 second half points and pull out a 68-54 win over their unranked opponents.

IN OTHER basketball games involving SWC teams Wednesday night, Tulane disappointed Southern Methodist, 80-64; Rice beat Texas Lutheran, 99-90; Texas Tech overwhelmed Northern Montana, 109-54; and the University of Texas-Arlington defeated Texas Christian, 83-71.

Texas, picked by other SWC coaches to win the league crown this season, found themselves trailing Arkansas State, 40-36, at the half. Lemons blamed

"The first half we were just standing around, not doing anything" Lemons said. "We weren't playing with any enthusiasm. We were playing flat-footed, and that's something we can't afford to do. We just got to play with enthusiasm."

IN LUBBOCK, Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers had a different "problem" in his team's devastating win over Northern Montana. Texas Tech led 51-21 at the half.

"It's hard to play with much intensity when you have a lead like that," Myers said. "We did get a chance to play everybody, and I'm glad for that." Tech played 14 players — every man on the bench and every one of them scored points.

But Texas Tech's easy victory was the exception rather than the rule for SWC teams. Rice had to come from behind to defeat Texas Lutheran. The Owls' senior guard Elbert Darden rose to the occasion, scoring 29 points. Rice trailed at the half,

THE MUSTANGS, who were proud that No. 1ranked Duke only beat them by six points Tuesday night, fell behind early in their loss to Tulane in a game played in New Orleans. The Green Wave led 24-11 with six minutes left in the first half and never

Indy payoffs lag despite $1 million 500 profit

By JERRY GARRETT AP Motorsports Writer

In 1970 the Indianapolis 500 distributed the first $1 million payoff in sports history, capping a purse increase of 270 percent in the decade of the 1960s. Since then, however, prize money has increased less than 15 percent. At the same time, ticket prices have more than doubled in many cases, and attendance-an estimated 380,000 on race day itself in 1978—has increased steadily.

During the same period, the purse for stock car racing's premier event, the Daytona 500, has ballooned by 321 percent, and an increase already an- Auto Club sanctioned Indianapolis nounced for 1979 will bring that figure up to an astounding 408 percent.

In fact, as a growing number of critics point out, the small recent increase in Indianapolis prize money can be traced solely to hikes in sponsor contributions; the speedway's direct cash outlay for the purse has actually decreased.

THE INDIANAPOLIS 500 prize money question is a good illustration of why, although by no means the sole reason, 18 of the sport's top teams recently defected from the entire U.S.

The teams, now organized as Championship Auto Racing Teams (CART), are seeking a number of "improvements" in the sport including a 20 per cent increase in the Indianapolis 500 purse as well as those of the other two "Triple Crown" events at Mt. Pocono, Pa., and Ontario, Calif.

CART also wants a modest increase in purse for all other Indianapolis car races, better television contracts, a shorter season and complete control of their racing series, which USAC's board of directors would not grant. To that end, and to show they mean business, CART spokesman Pat Patrick this week announced an acting president for CART, Jim Melvin, the current president of Michigan International Speedway, and a board of directors that includes Patrick, A.J.

Foyt, Roger Penske, Jim Hall, Bob

Fletcher and Tyler Alexander.

"THERE'S NO turning back," Patrick emphasized in a telephone interview from his Jackson, Mich. office. 'At this point we're not even thinking about going back with USAC. We feel a/little bit used by those people." CART already has a tentative schedule put together, Patrick added, and hopes to announce later this month the entire 14-race slate it envisions in 1979, four fewer races than this past season. Penske and Fletcher own tracks at which four of the races will be run. 'We plan to start the season march 25 in Phoenix and end it October 27 in Hawaii," Patrick noted. "We have been offered 17 races. But our basic philosophy is as A.J. said, 'I'd rather race seven times and make money than 17 times and lose money.'

USAC President Dick King said, though, "That's not fact, as I know it. One of the ones they say they'; ve talked to says he has never been contacted. Another says he is absolutely not done a deal nir does he intend to. I just don't think it's so."

THE INDIANAPOLIS 500 is included on the CART schedule although speedway President Joe Cloutier has stated flatly Indy will remain a USAC event, and that there will be no discussion of prize money increases.

Cloutier, who controlled the financial end of the speedway for 30 years before taking over the presidency last year when his old boss Tonu Hulman died, can remember this isn't the first time the 500 has been criticized over prize money. There was a driver's strike in 1947: the purse jumped 25 percent the next year.

To some, the Indy's 500's purse of $1.1 million may seem extravagant, even by today's inflated standards. Actually the speedway's own money in the pot is less than $700,000. Besides the race-day bonanza-the biggest single day gate in sports—there are several hundred thousand spectators for the four qualifying days and uncounted tens of thousands for nearly three weeks of practice activity. The number of persons going through the speedway's gates during May approaches 1 million. The month of racing activity grosses somewhere around $12 million, according to (forget it).

"THEY WANT us to house, feed and support our teams for an entire month leading up to the race. We do it because we have to: The Indianapolis 500 is the greatest game in town-in the world, and it's why we exist. We just wish they'd give us a little more consideration," Patrick said.

Most tracks where USAC, created by Hulman's influence in 1956 when the AAA pulled out of racing at a particulary bloody period, sanctioned events have traditionally paid a guaranteed minimum purse against 40 percent of the gate. If Indianapolis paid 40 percent of its gate, the purse for the 500 would be between $4 to $6 million, sources told the Associated Press.

Speedway officials claim the 559 acre facility, which includes a 27-hole Professional Golfers Association regulation championship course, a motel and clubhouse, is basically a non-profit organization. Any profits are plowed back in for improvements, Cloutier said. One recent improvement was a $7.7 million museum and office complex.

That money would have been better spent if it had been paid out to the competitors, critics argue.

"THE AMOUNT we are talking about is the case of Indianapolis is only in the range in $150,000-180,000," Patrick said. "We don't think that's extreme, and it's much less for the other tracks-don't think anyone can say an increase would be an unjust hardship. We plan to make it an investment for them that reaps dividends.

Patrick said CART is planning to promote the series much more actively than USAC has, and increase its exposure, especially on television.

"We've been giving away our television package for peanuts," Patrick noted. "For instance for a race at Michigan we get $17,500. By the time that gets down to the individual teams, I only get $800 for my car. Well

Akers, Longhorns to tighten belts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Twentyfour Texas Longhorns are listed as injured for the game with Texas A&M on Friday night, and Texas Coach Fred Akers says his players need to 'tighten their belt.'

"This is an amazing group of young men," Akers told the Longhorn Club on Wednesday. "I have so much respect for them and so much pride in them.

He said his squad is aware of "how many players they are going on the field without ... but they go ahead and tighten their belt. It's going to take that Friday night.'

The injury list includes seven starters out for the season. One of the latest casualties is punter Russell Erxleben, who has a hurt toe. "We're not sure about him," Akers said.

The nationally televised game ends the regular season for the two teams.

Both have 7-3 records. A&M will play in the Hall of Fame Bowl at Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 20. Texas will play in the Sun Bowl at El Paso Dec. 23.

AKERS REVIEWED for club members the "awful day over at Waco." Texas lost three fumbles and had a school record six passes intercepted in a 38-14 loss to Baylor Saturday. The defeat dropped Texas from No. 9 to No. 14 in the college poll. "I don't know how to describe that

WHEN OFFENSIVE coordinator Ken Shipp resigned, it wasn't the disaster everyone expected. You'll remember Shipp and Houston Oilers' quarterback Dan Pastorini became involved in a mid-season dispute that wound up in a "him or me" situation. The verdict on Arkansas' Steve Little, the St. Louis Cardinals' No. 1 draft choice, is that he is not Ray Guy in disguise as a punter or Jim Bakken as a place kicker When Rob Carpenter was rendered hors de combat for the season, the Oilers signed Alvin Maxson, the ex-SMU back, who is with his fifth pro team this year. Keep it up Alvin and they'll forget all about Bobo Newsom. What do you mean, Rigney, you never heard of Bobo Newsom?.

Odd ign't it, Arkansas is ranked No. 8 nationally, although it has lost in SWC play to No. 9 Houston and No. 14 Texas, but that probably isn't any worse than Alabama ranking No. 2 ahead of USC, which handed the Tide its only defeat...but then how can you rate a team that lost to Arizona State....okay, we give up.

by 10 points the previous week. Texas whipped Rice, 34-0, in its season open-

"I think it (the upset loss) will serve to teach us a great lesson, painful as it was," said Akers.

As an illustration of how badly things went for Texas, the films showed quarterback Donnie Little was injured and lost for the season when a Texas guard knocked him off balance. As Little fell he pushed off the artificial turf with his left hand and tore ligaments and chipped a bone in his thumb. He had surgery

AKERS' frustration mounted as he watched Baylor back Walter Abercrombie sprint 36 yards for a touchdown on a fourth down play with three seconds left in the first half.

"Oh boy," exclaimed Akers. "This is one nobody believes - three seconds and fourth and a ton."

Nevertheless, Akers said, "We really felt at halftime we could win the football game. Texas scored first in the second half, and it was 28-7, but a 44-yard pass interference penalty on a pass that was 10 yards off the field of play set up Baylor's fifth touchdown and Texas' hopes all but vanished. As Akers was explaining why Texas received a 15-yard penalty for having 12 players on the field, one club member interjected, "We needed 12."

"We needed 15," responded Akers.

Angry fans hold ticket-burning

NEW YORK fans have been in an uproar since the Giants fumbled away their Nov. 19 gameHagainst the Philadelphia Eagles. The Giants had the ball and a 17-12 lead with less than 30 seconds to play, but instead of running out the clock by sitting on the ball, quarterback Joe Pisarcik attempted a handoff to Larry Csonka.

The connection was never made and Philadelphia's Herm Edwards picked up the loose ball and scooted 26 yards for the winning touchdown.

Giants and linebacker Harry Carson criticizing the fans. 'We die also when we lose, whether it's by one point or 20," Carson said. "We feel worse than they do. Some people don't think we care if we win or CARSON WAS particularly upset with a letter New York defensive tackle John Mendenhall received after the Philadelphia debacle.

"Some guy wrote and said we lost it deliberately. That made me sick," Carson said. "I heard some talk that Pisarcik fumbled deliberately. Can you believe that?'

Offensive coordinator Bob Gibson, who sent in the doomed play from the press box, was fired one day after the loss. And last week in Buffalo, the Giants were faced with a similar situation at the end of the first half.

THIS TIME, however, Pisarcik fell on the ball. He received Buffalo's version of the Bronx cheer.

In what is now called "The Philly Play," wide receiver Jimmy Robinson played safety on offense, guarding against another possible mishap. The play worked - one week too

But the Giants, with a 17-7 third quarter lead, fell apart in the fourth quarter and lost 41-17. It was their fifth consecutive defeat after opening the season winning five of eight

Big Red Machine stalls, so they fire chauffeur

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

Cincinnati's "Big Red Machine" began falling apart two years ago. A blown spark plug here and there. An ignition problem. Then last week the transmission went when it was decided Pete Rose was expendable. Now - like an electric bolt - they fire the best chauffeur they've ever had, Sparky Anderson.

So what happens next to what once was the most potent vehicle in baseball? If you ask us, the junk heap. It is inconceivable that the old buggy can stand all these repeated shocks.

The ouster of Skipper Anderson without explanation after an astonishing nine-year record of five divisional titles, four National League pennants and two world championships is the contradiction of fiesty Leo Durocher's diamond proverb that "nice guys finish last."

Truth is Sparky, in his whole managerial career dating back to the minors in 1964, never finished last. Always in the higher ozone where the air is pure mostly first or second, only once as low as fourth in the majors, eclipsing the record of the Reds' legendary Deacon Bill McKechnie in the late 1930s and 1940s.

He proved himself a superb leader. He did it without bombast and braggadocio. He did it without the Captain Bligh tactics of a Bill Terry or Durocher. As manager, he was given the ingredients of a championship team — a machine forged back in the shop by a master mechanic named Bob Howsam. Sparky was smart. He realized, with all of these smoothfunctioning parts, all he had to do was keep them oiled and in running order. He smiled a lot, spoke in moderate tones, never ceased to be a gentleman and won, won, won. Too soft?

Who cared? He had a strict and an old-fashioned code about personal appearance and public behavior. No long hair, no excessive beards, no beer on the planes, always jacket and tie at dinner and formal occasions. Some may have thought this ridiculous in today's free-spirited society. But it was Sparky's discipline and he made it work.

He made it work by gaining the confidence and respect of his players. He designated team leaders - Johnny Bench with the white players, Joe Morgan with the blacks and Tony Perez with the Latins.

A PERFECT chemistry was created. "That's the way the skipper wants it," Bench would say. When Bench talked, people listened. It was the same with Morgan and Perez.

So what went wrong? After the Reds swept the Yankees in 1976, baseball underwent a dramatic and traumatic change. The courts ruled out the reserve clause and opened the door to annual auctions for free agent talent.

President Howsam, a brilliant baseball mind but an incurable traditionalist, spurned the draft. He felt baseball could save itself only by boycotting the market and its million-dollar price

Even then, he might have been able to hold his familyoriented Reds together if he had chosen to become a benevolent and realistic employer, signing key players to long term, lucrative contracts. Bench was one of the first to sound an alarm. But the club remained rigid.

TONY PEREZ was traded to Montreal, creating the first break in the team's perfect chemistry. The Reds lost Don Gullett and traded Rawly Eastwick from an already starved pitching staff. Then a year ago Howsam stepped aside and yielded the Reds' wheel to Dick Wagner, known as a tough, authoritarian and unsentimental administrator.

One of Wagner's first moves was to shut off negotiations aimed at keeping Rose in Cincinnati. To baseball people, this was unthinkable. Pete Rose why, he is the Cincinnati Reds. If he walked into Wagner's office with a machine gun and demanded all the contents of the safe, Wagner should comply. It's sacrilege for Pete to wear another uniform.

It was an often ailing, pitching-poor and unsettled team that Sparky took to the post this past season. Yet the Reds managed to make a respectable race of it, finishing 21-2 lengths back of the winning LA Dodgers. If there must be a scapegoat, take a peek in the front office.

night - call on The Doctor. In the 76ers' case, Dr. J., Julius Erving, provided the remedy in the second half after looking sick himself in the opening half against San Antonio. The result: a 120-114 National Basketball Association victory for Philadelphia in overtime. With pivotmen Caldwell Jones and Darryl Dawkins ailing and absent, Erving was forced to do extra work underneath the basket in addition to his magical maneuvers outside. In the first half, however, The Doctor was more the problem than the cure, turning the ball over five times and scoring just six points.

In the second half, Erving scored 18 points, then added four points in the overtime, which the Sixers could have avoided had he hit a corner shot at the end of regulation play.

Can't buy a pennant, who says?

By SHIRLEY POVICH Special to The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Baseball men repeated it proudly, as if it were proof of the holiness of their game. Small boys learned it at home and at school. Generations of baseball fans accepted it as an unassailable truth. In America, it was an article of faith that verged on "thou shalt not" sanctity. As working on a fourth straight pennant by using the same formula: grab off the best pitchers available, no matter what the price. For a $1.4 million package, he has landed Tommy John, a big-winning Dodger malcontent. This was just after Steinbrenner gave Luis Tiant much more than the $250,000 a year the Red Sox were offering him.

A year ago in Florida, the Yankees' owner laid it all out for this fascinated reporter. He said he got his vision after the courts began creating almost free agents who could sever ties with their teams after playing out an option year.

"I called my front office together and said 'Boys, it's a new ballgame and the name of it is money. Money is now as important as the balls and bats they play with and we're going to spend big and get the best players and win pennants and make a profit." He was right on every count, his utterances almost worthy of an oracle.

STEINBRENNER had tipped his hand even before the courts acted to liberate all those who would be free agents. A year previously, when the blundering Charles O. Finley lost Catfish Hunter by withholding promised pay from him, Steinbrenner captured Hunter for the Yankees with a $3.5 million contract deal that boggled the baseball world.

Of the seven expensive free agents the Yankees have signed, six were pitchers, with outfielder Reggie Jackson ($2.9 million) the exception. If pitchers had been Steinbrenner's profession, who is to call it a foolish one? Connie Mack's utterance that "pitching is 75 percent of the game" is still regarded as

For pitchers alone, Steinbrenner has paid out of a total of $12.2 million in the past four years. This is noticeable if merely for the fact that he paid only $10 million for the entire Yankee franchise six years

The rundown on Steinbrenner's spending binge for pitchers is, in millions: Catfish Hunter $3.5, Rich Gossage $2.7, Don Gullet $2.0, Rawley Eastwick $1.0, Tommy John $1.4, Louis Tiant $.6

In 1976, when the courts opened free-agent territory to all the club owners, it was Steinbrenner who waded in first with checkbooks in each hand before other, timid or less aware, owners could get their boots on. There were also owners like those in Cincinnati and Kansas City who resented the new free-agent status given to the athletes and vowed never to get into the bidding wars that Steinbrennrr relished.

BOB HOWSAM, the Cincinnati boss and the most vocal against the bidding wars, was talking from strength. His Reds had just won four pennants in five years and were World Series champs. Howsam saw the Reds as a dynasty with little to fear from the competition. For that view, they have paid dearly. The Cincinnati team that won 108 games in 1975 could win only 88 in 1977 and 92 last year and were out of the playoffs.

The Reds and Kansas City reversed themselves recently, deciding to get into the free-agent business at this late date. They both made last-minute offers to John to dissuade him from signing with the Yankees. They were disappointed.

It is significant that John says he accepted less money to sign with Steinbrenner than both the Reds and K.C. offered him. Suddenly, the Yankees have charisma. Those three pennants have revived the glory of the old Yankees when pinstripes were a stamp of excellence and pride. The best teams that money can buy are also the best teams in baseball.

Steinbrenner has made it more pleasant for many players by moving Billy Martin out as manger and nice, unflappable Bob Lemon, a player's man, in. John said, "I know I'd like to play for Lemon." He and other prospective Yankees also know that each Yankee has a reasonable expectancy of gettting one of those $32,500 World Series checks the Yankees have been cashing.

When the Dodgers wanted Andy Messersmith from Atlanta, offering $100,000 with no conditions and agreed to take over Messersmith's $1 million contract. It was a total loss, with Messersmith coming up injured. Eastwick, another $1 million investment by the Yankees, never did get much chance to pitch and was dealt to Pittsburgh in mid-season. Steinbrenner says, "They were my mistakes."

a two-year contract. But what the hell, the Yankees need pitching as fast as they can get it to stay on top, Steinbrenner reasons. It was this philosophy that caused him to outbid everybody for Gossage, the ace reliever liberated from the Pirates. Without Gossage last season, there would have been no Yankee pennant. Davis Cup, once tennis Super Bowl, but no more

Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Once upon a time there was a thing called the "Davis Cup" and it was to tennis what the World Series was to baseball, the Olympics to track and field, or the Super Bowl to football.

It was here that Bill Tilden sprang into prominence. It was a showcase for the incomparable Englishmen, Fred Perry and Bunny Austin. Germany had its Baron Von Cramm. There were those marvelous Frenchmen, Rene La Coste or "Le Crocodile,". Henri Cochet, Jean Borotra or "The Bounding Basque."

The awesome Aussies of the 50s, Lew Hoad, Ken Rosewall, Mal Anderson, Roy Emerson and Rod Laver, played here for their countries.

There were the great doubles teams, John Van Ryn and George Lott, and Wilmer Allison, Don Budge and, later, Jack Kramer, Pancho Gonzales and Ted Schroeder.

IT WAS the summit of tennis. No honor was greater than to be chosen for the Davis Cup team. When great players turned professional, their greatest regret was having to give up Davis Cup team. When great players turned professional, their greatest regret was having to give up Davis Cup

Reduced to amateurs, the United States Davis Cup team began to lose to the likes of Spain, Brazil and Italy. And instead of venues like Kooyong in Australia, Wimbledon in England. Forest Hills in New York in the United States, and Stade Roland Garros in France, they began to play the thing in place like Cleveland and Charlotte. They would have played it in Make-An-Offer, Okla., or Put-Up-The-Money, Pa. The Davis Cup was a road show. For sale

SO, THEY let the pros in. They thought they might restore some of the luster. They thought these guys might at least be grateful enough to a game which had made them millionaires to serve its best traditions.

It turned out the pros weren't interested in history, just money. They would play in the Davis Cup only if you brought it to them, or set it up in their living room, or if it was in a town where they happened to be anyway to

I've never heard of a golfer who didn't want to play on the Ryder Cup teams. I've even seen them go out of their way to play in some late-season so-what tournament so they could catch up on Ryder Cup points and make the international team and have an American flag on their backs for a week. I have seen athletes cry because a political decision took them and a whole continent — out of the Olympic games.

Rose demands may bring down wrath of Carter

By WAYNE BUCKHOUT The Cincinnati Enquirer

CINCINNATI - If Pete Rose accepts $600,000 a year or more to play baseball for the Philadelphia Phillies, or anyone else for that matter, chances are President Carter won't like it much better than many Reds

By signing for that amount, Rose would violate the spirit, if not the letter, of Mr. Carter's voluntary wage-price guidelines.

As difficult as it is to apply Mr. Carter's complex and sometimes conflicting standards to a typical business, it is next to impossible to tailer them to Rose's status as a sign-me-I'm-yours free agent.

Officials at the Council on Wage and Price Stability (COWPS) in Washington, the federal agency responsible for drawing up the guidelines and telling Americans what they mean, were stumped Monday when asked about Rose's status. But when pressed, a COWPS spokesman said Rose's position is most like someone who has set up shop in competition with a former employer - like a TV repairman who strikes out on his own after toiling 16 years for someone else.

THAT MEANS Rose, like any selfemployed businessman, is setting a price for his services, rather than. negotiating a wage with an employ-

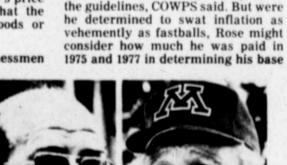

But even with that understanding, Rose is strictly a judgment call for the council. New businesses lack the main ingredient in Mr. Carter's price standards - a record of what the company charged for its goods or services in the past.

Under the guidelines, businessmen determine how much they may raise prices next year by first figuring how much they increased them between 1975 and 1978.

Without a base period for comparison, Rose is technically exempt from the guidelines, COWPS said. But were he determined to swat inflation as vehemently as fastballs, Rose might consider how much he was paid in

Angelo State carries on in Lone Star tradition

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - The Lone Star Conference once again provides the team to beat in the NAIA football national championship

This time it's No. 1 ranked Angelo State University — which muscled through the hazardous LSC schedule without a blemish — carrying the proud tradition of the rugged Texas league. ASU is 11-0 and virtually un-

In eight of the last nine years, the LSC champion has eventually claimed the national title.

Supremecy in the LSC, which for many years was equated with Texas A&I alone, has taken on a diversified look the last two years. Abilene Christian claimed the title one year ago.

A&I, WHICH captured the national crown five times in the last nine years, has been joined by East Texas and Abilene Christian in smothering opponents by a combined 278-88 score in championship final matchups. Only in 1971, when Livingston Alabama in 1971, when Livingston Alabama defeated Arkansas Tech, has an LSC team failed to garner the coveted trophy in the last decade.

Despite the Rams being top-ranked in the nation, fifth-year head coach Jim Hess won't admit to a power shift within the conference just yet.

"It's too early to tell if there's been a power shift," said Hess, a former assistant at Rice and head coach of state AA champion Rockwall in 1963. "There hasn't been a team that's even come close to dominating play like A&I did. A&I went 47 games without a loss. That's unbelievable.

"We're not head and shoulders above the rest of the conference like A&I was. I don't think you'll ever see one team dominate like that again because I don't think any one team will ever accumulate so much talent at one time."

OREGON COLLEGE of Education, the Rams' first-round opponent on Saturday in San Angelo, will meet a team that has utilized balance this Trojans' Robinson year. ASU finished first in team defense for the second straight year and among the leders in total offense.

Leading the Rams on offense have been quarterback Mark Embry from Dallas Sunset and running back Jerry Aldridge from Jacksonville. The se-nior quarterback broke school records by passing for 1,747 yards and 15

Aldridge, a 6-2, 210-pound senior who is a sure bet to go high in the college draft, rambled for a school-record 1,483 yards. He has also run for over 100 yards in his last 14 outings, dating back to last year.

period, and apply the standard accordingly, COWPS suggests.

Of course, no one knows for sure what Rose was paid in 1975 and 1977 except Rose, the Reds and maybe the Internal Revenue Service. But educated guesses have provoked no shrill objections when they appear in print.

IN FEBRUARY 1975, Rose reportedly fought off management suggestions that he take a 18.5 percent pay cut after (for him) a dismal 1974 season when he hit .285.

He signed then for aboutT$160,000. In 1977, the negotiations were tougher. The Reds took out newspaper ads outlining their offer to the third baseman, who wrangled right up to Opening Day before accepting an estimated $375,000 for two years.

The price guidelines say 1979 price increases should be limited to the average annual rate of increase in 1976 and 1977, less one-half of one percent - or 9.5 percent whichever

COWPS SUGGESTS some mathematical mumbo-jumbo to calculate the historical price index or base rate of price change (BRC) in the council's

-divide the 1977 price by the 1975 -take the square root of the re-

-subtract one. That leaves, for Rose, a price BRC if 53 percent.

Ignore for a moment, the absolute price hike ceiling of 9.5 percent. If Rose were to apply the cuncil's tandard formula, he could make 52.5 percent more than his $375,000 pay.

That's about $572,000 a year - still $28,000 a year less than what the Phillies are reportedly willing to pay

Rose's penalty if he signs with the Phillies? According to the guidlines, his name could be added to a list of COWPS wage-price violators.

On the other hand, if Rose was willing to make a fiscal sacrifice for his country, he would sign for no more than $410,625, or a 9.5 percent incease over his 1978 pay.

That's what the public-spirited Reds are offering.

So don't get mad at Dick Wagner if Rose decides to take his services elsewhere. The Reds' president is just doing his patriotic duty.'

season's first big victory

STELVIO, Italy (AP) - Sweden's Ingmar Stenmark, winner of three straight World Cups, scored his first win of the ski season Wednesday, taking the men's special slalom in the World Series competition.

The 22-year-old Swede said he took some risk down the icy track of the Stelvio glacier to overcome the tough competition of West German veteran Christian Neureuther, who finished second, and Liechtenstein's Paul Frommelt, who was third. Both were within 31 hundreths of a second of Stenmark.

Stenmark, surprisingly outsped by Peter Popangelov of Bulgaria in the opening event of the season at Val Senales, Italy, last Saturday, mastered the second fastest time in both heats for a winning total of 110.87 seconds.

Stenmark was clocked in 57.96 seconds in the first heat, dropping 205 meters and flagged with 69 gates. He was timed in 52.91 in the second run

Blame Joe sign stirs ire of 49ers' boss

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Upset at a sign which read, "Blame Joe Thomas," the management of the San Francisco 49ers ordered the banner taken down during the team's nationally televised game against the Pittsburgh Steelers, a newspaper reported today.

The San Francisco Chronicle said that according to the author of the sign, Jerry Keith, it was removed Monday night by Burns security men on the orders of someone in the box of owner Eddie DeBartolo Jr.

"A security man said, 'I have orders from the 49er administration to take the sign because it might cause a riot. You can pick it up after the game," said John Wesley, who was sitting next to Keith and holding part of the sign.

"When I refused to give it up, they threatened to arrest me. An officer finally grabbed it from

'The Bartered Bride' starts opera broadcasts

NEW YORK — Czech composer Bedrich Sme-tana's "The Bartered Bride," a famous opera sometimes referred to as the national opera of Czechoslovakia, will inaugurate the 39th season of the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera broadcasts. The broadcast will be presented Saturday afternoon over the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Radio Network

Singing principal roles will be Greek-Canadian soprano Teresa Stratas as Marenka, tenor Nicolai Gedda as Jenik, tenor Jon Vickers as Vasek and Finnish bass Martti Talvela as Kecal. James Levine will conduct the Met orchestra.

'The Bartered Bride" is Smetana's second opera and the work for which he is best known, other than his famous orchestral tone poem, "The Moldau," which is a part of his symphonic cycle titled "My

"The Bartered Bride" is full of folk-like melodies and tuneful peasant dances of Bohemia that give it a liveliness which undoubtedly will have great appeal to listeners of this first presentation of a sparkling new broadcast season.

The second operatic presentation of the new broadcast season on Dec. 9 will be Bizet's "Carmen," one of the world's most popular and mostoften-performed operatic dramas.

The first intermission of "The Bartered Bride" Saturday afternoon will present William Weaver, a well-known musicologist, writer, translator and world traveler who has often been a guest on the Met broadcasts, in an informative musical and dramatic analysis of the Smetana opera.

Facing quizmaster Edward Downes on the first Texaco Opera Quiz of the season during the second intermission will be John Coveney of Angel Records, Terry McEwen of London Records, actor-author Walter Slezak (whose father was the famous singer Leo Slezak of yesteryear), and record producer

The intermission features of each radio broadcast on the Texaco-Met series are produced by Geraldine "Gerry" Souvaine, who has been in charge of intermission features for the past 38 seasons.
