Just like his crusading uncle, the Rev. E.J. Browning Sr. is trying to bring in an age of reformation: a crime purge beginning with the kids. "We're going to make 'youth crime prevention' a household word," said Browning, who is state director of the Youth Crime Prevention League.

His uncle is a do-gooder, the Rev. Louis Calvin Browning, 74-year-old founder of the League and a governor-knighted Ambassador of Goodwill. He is bishop of The United Independent Church. The nephew is in Midland to stir kids into "getting busy" and into avoiding crime and crime-conducive surroundings and chums.

"Busy youths stay out of trouble,"

He knows where the devil's workshop is: in the state of idleness.

Browning's plan of attack first is to draw youth into a "bowl-a-thon" at 1 p.m. Sunday at the Super Bowl at 3920 W. Wall Ave. It won't cost the youth much more dropped balls, and a few "ouches." The intent is pleasure. He plans to couple the bowling ses-

than a "bent ear" and likely some sion with stay-in-school and anticrime lectures. Later, Browning said he will be setting up in Midland a job-finding agency of the 22-year-old League. And the services to be available here will be similar to a program the League is operating in Austin. "We offer kids jobs and keep them busy and off the streets," Browning said. "Many (youths) like recreation, but we think they ought to work,

"Now," he said, "we're trying to help the kids of Midland keep busy.' Browning has been spreading his uncle's work and concept in towns and cities throughout the state from the Gulf Coast to border towns such as Laredo, and from Abilene to the Panhandle city of Amarillo.

He is looking forward to a good turnout at the bowl-a-thon. It's free for the vouths.

Browning said his program will complement the distributive education programs in the high schools. The DE programs of the public schools are wonderful," he said, "but what is alarming is that many of the youth ... cannot finds jobs (after graduation) (and) often get into trou-

Furthermore, Browning said the League has lost its federal funding. However, that loss is a blessing, he said. The "grateful" League is "not tied down with guidelines.

This organization is free to work with the total community. We are not social workers or case workers. We are crime fighters.

'Many youths, when we were federally funded, were easily lost with the 'paper approach' and 'legal

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli Cabinet met in special session today and discussed possible resumption of the stalled peace talks with Egypt, but it put off any decisions until at least next Sunday.

Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan reported to the Cabinet on his meeting last weekend with Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance in Brussels, Belgium.

Cabinet Secretary Arieh Naor, speaking to reporters outside the Cabinet room, said only a few of the 16 other ministers had time to speak before the session broke up. It will resume Sunday.

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) - President Carter ended his down-home Christmas holiday today after acknowledging that a hoped-for summit meeting with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev will be postponed.

The president, nevertheless, continues to be optimistic about achieving a strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union as well as Middle East peace settlement.

CHICAGO (AP) — Linda Walski spent the last nine weeks of her pregnancy in the hospital — a confinement that paid off during the weekend with the delivery of healthy, full-term quadruplets

Odds of a quadruplet birth are more than 800,000 to 1, according to medical authorities. Doctors said the Walski quadruplets would not be released from the hospital for at least 10

the meeting the mayor has called," the statement issued by Russo said. "Instead, council leadership will call a meeting with the bankers and the administration later this week in order to formulate a satisfactory plan to avoid foreclosure by the banks. The banks have assured council leadership they will take no legal action against the city, pending the outcome of this meeting."

Kucinich hopes pledging the tax receipts as collateral will convince bankers to renew or reissue the defaulted notes. The mayor says such a move by banks would eliminate the need for layoffs of about 2,000 city employees, including 875 policemen and 450 firemen.

NEW YORK (AP) — The fed-* eral government is conducting a $1 million dress rehearsal in lower Manhattan, and the final production will make it to Broadway — and Broad Street and Main Street.

The father of quadruplets born Saturday in Chicago is shown with the two boys and two girls which were delivered by Caesarean section. Doctors say

It's not a play, but an intricate dry run for the 1980 national census. The government hopes it will yield the most accurate picture of the nation ever.

But the first-night reviews have been a bit discouraging. Only four of every 10 surveys mailed out were returned. However. Census Bureau spokesman Fred Gatlin says difficulties were expected here. A rehearsal last April in the Richmond, Va., area was more successful, with a 70 percent return rate.

The lower Manhattan program is different because it's a test of procedures that have been devised to count the residents of a minority-laden urban area. The area being canvassed. Manhattan south of Houston Street, includes a mixture of blacks, Hispanics, Italians, Jews, Chinese, rich, poor and middle-class.

"In the past, we're had a national 'miss' rate of about 2.5 percent," says John Cullinane. regional director of the census bureau."This means we simply missed 2.5 percent of the population. For blacks, we estimate the percentage at 7 percent.'

The reasons for the short count are many, including the fact that minority groups move around more than others and literacy is a problem in many urban areas.

Gene Flynn, the bureau's local community relations director, says the poor and minorities are cheating themselves when they go uncounted by census takers.

"In the past, we've had people say, 'Why bother? It's just a hassle. We never get anything back for filling out those things. But they're wrong," Flynn Billions of dollars in federal and state aid are distributed on the basis of population statistics. Flynn says. City officials did all they could to cooperate with the dress rehearsal. "Anything that will get us more money is fine with me," said Mayor Edwards Koch.

Census figures also are used to help reapportion congressional and state legislative districts. If the census doesn't include minorities, they go unrepresented.

The first stage of the actual census started Sept. 22, when the surveys were mailed. Officials say mail surveys are much more accurate than the old door-to-door approach, first used in 1790.

In 1970, about 62 percent of the population was counted by mail. In 1980, census officials hope to question between 90 and 95 percent of the population by post, leaving only isolated rural dwellers to be surveyed in perFears raised by China recognition

Baby disappears during crowded store shopping

MARION, Ind. (AP)-Detective Lee Mauldon says police are "more or less at a standstill" in their investigation of the disappearance of a 2month-old boy from a crowd of lastminute Christmas shoppers at a department store.

"We'll talk to everybody in the area around where the child was last seen and everybody we can find that was even at the store," said Mauldon, who said police hadn't yet had much

"We checked everything in the area and talked to all the witnesses in the store," said Mauldon. "Nobody saw anybody leave with the child, nobody saw anybody take the child. Right now, we're just more or less at a standstill."

Mitchell said he and his wife stepped about 15 feet away from the cart for no more than 15 seconds. The baby was missing when they returned, he said.

The Mitchells notified store personnel. Security guards were posted at all exits, but the baby was not found. The baby, wearing a white jumpsuit with flowers on it, has blond hair and blue eyes, Mitchell said.

The parents have received no ransom demands, police said. "We tried to make it a happy Christmas for our other child (Michelle, 2), but it was difficult," Mitchell said Monday. "I hope that whoever took the baby is just someone who wanted a child," said Mitchell. "But whoever it is, is

Midland weather taking chilly dip

Midland's topsy-turvy weather is taking bigger dips than usual, as the ol' silvery mercury was to be in the chilly mid-50s today and Wednesday, and is to drop to the upper 20s tonight. The high temperature forecast is about 20 degrees below Monday's high of 72, and the predicted low is just a few degrees below Christmas morning's low of 32.

Winds of 5 to 10 mph today were to shift from north and northeasterly to easterly tonight, said a weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. Sunset today is to be at 5:51 p.m..

Sunrise Wednesday is to be at 7:48 a.m.

The record low temperature for a Dec. 26 is 11 degrees in 1939. The record high for a Dec. 25 is 78 degrees

The newspaper said both sides made headway and "found accord or the drawing closer of the sides' positions" on the issues remaining to be

Pravda said the United States and the Soviet Union were determined to perservere and come to an agreement on these issues.

The commentary was in line with the frequent and generally upbeat Soviet news reports on the progress of the negotiations.

Approval won for Chinese plant

PARIS (AP) — The French company Societe Framatome, which builds nuclear power plants under license from Westinghouse Corp., said today it has won U.S. government approval to sell two power stations to China.

Although no contract has yet been signed for the 900-megawatt nuclear plants, China has indicated its intention to place such an order. It would be the first sale of nuclear technology by a non-communist power to a communist country.

The sale of the nuclear plants is part of a $13.5 billion, seven-year economic and cooperation agreement between France and China signed in Peking this month.

Midland girl reports rape

STANTON - A 15-year-old Midland girl reportedly was raped early Monday about four miles east of here on the north access road off Interstate 20 in Martin County, according to Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders.

He said the girl reported the incident Monday afternoon to Midland County sheriff's deputies, who then contacted the Martin County Sheriff's A spokesman for Martin County said the girl told them she was raped by a 21-year-old Odessa man. The girl told officers the man offered her a ride home from a Midland night club about midnight Sunday.

50 fire deaths mar holidays

By the Associated Press

Christmas trees, symbols of the holiday season, were responsible for nearly a third of the 50 fire deaths that occurred during the holiday week-

A short-circuit in a string of Christmas tree lights apparently touched off a New Orleans blaze on Christmas Eve in which five children of Ida Perkins and three of her grandchildren were killed. She escaped with two other children. The victims

The charred bodies of the parents and an infant were huddled near the front door of their wood-frame home. Investigators surmised they had almost made it to safety. The body of an older child was found in his

Firestone official said to have sounded early tire warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. official warned his superiors last April that field performance of several of the firm's tire models besides the problem-plagued 500 steel-belted radials 'have been below Firestone standards," according to documents released by the government.

R.W. French, a Firestone quality assurance official, in an April 18, 1978, letter to his boss, W.E. Moore, said the company could be complicating its problems by making several production changes with little or no prior

"The steel radial 500 is the most outstanding example of this, although other lines have slipped," French wrote. He termed the steel-belted 721 model, which has replaced the 500, a substantial improvement but added: "Firestone's reputation is at an all-

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration last week released hundreds of pages of previously confidential Firestone documents dealing with its tires. They were part of the evidence gathered by NHTSA which led to a recall covering 10 million of the troubled 500s.

the 500 to be an unsafe tire. Firestone is replacing the recalled tires with the 721 model. The company documents did not indicate any problem with the 721, but expressed concern the company was not adequately testing changes made in the tire.

The documents also disclosed that Firestone had knowledge of problems with the 500 as early as 1972, a few months after the tire was first pro-

Air traffic controls

It will take the National Transportation Safety Board several months to digest all the information put into the record at its hearings on the Sept. 25 PSA-Cessna air collision over San Diego, Calif. However, those who listened to the testimony at five days of hearings in San Diego are already drawing one conclusion:

No single "cause" of the accident stands out, even if it is possible to perceive a number of contributing factors. The NTSB, in its report due next year, may only be able to assign relative importance to these factors in deciding why this tragedy oc-

Those factors can include errors of judgment on the part of pilots and air controllers involved in the accident, and shortcomings in the traffic control system and procedures that are supposed to prevent collisions. Where the former are concerned, the findings will be mainly of technical and legal significance.

It is in traffic control where the findings should be of crucial concern to the Federal Aviation Administration, the aviation industry and the public. The ecurring near-misses and other afety problems brought to light since the recent disaster are not peculiar to the San Diego area. The accident here, though obviously calling for changes in the way traffic is handled at Lindbergh Field, also demands a reappraisal of policies toward safety around all major U.S. airports.

Lindbergh now has a higher priority to become a Terminal Radar Service Area, with an upgrading of equipment that helps keep air traffic separated. It took the loss of 144 lives to accomplish this. The question remains, however, of how such priorities are being assigned. It is apparent that many airports would be safer with TRSA equipment and others even more busy need designation as Terminal Control Areas, calling for a still greater investment in equipment on the ground and in aircraft

Thanks to the goading since Sept. 25, the FAA has promised to be more diligent in following up warnings from its controllers about safety hazards. Yet there is evidence of resistance both within the FAA and among those who fly to incurring the costs of sophisticated radars and computers for collision avoidance, and to placing new restrictions on the use of certain airports and air space.

It is easy to say, for instance, that the San Diego disaster would not have occurred if Lindbergh Field were not accommodating both commercial jets and private planes. It is not so easy to confront the alternative frequently proposed, that of banning general aviation from a publicly owned, tax-subsidized airport in order to give exclusive use of it to commercial airline companies.

Likewise it is easy to demand that the ultimate in radar protection and computerized traffic control be employed wherever numerous flight paths converge over an airport, but not so easy to pay the millions of dollars in public and private funds that such systems entail. Technology can provide extra margins of safety in air control. New regulations and limitations on access to airports can relieve congestion. But only hard decisions on public policy will determine to what extent that technology and those regulations are employed.

Being penny-wise and poundfoolish in air safety, and resisting the inconvenience of tighter regulatory procedures, can have horrible consequences. The NSTB is yet to determine the "probable cause" of the San Diego tragedy, but the record already shows that among the contributing factors to that accident, is a failure by government and the aviation industry to resolve political and economic issues underlying the air safety question.

Billion $$ Congress

Leaders of both parties in the 96th Congress say they hope to spend more time cutting government waste and responding to the spirit of Proposition 13.

They will not have far to look. The budget for the legislative branch itself exceeded $1 billion this year for the first time. It is $1.12 billion for fiscal year 1979, up $128 million or 13 percent from last year. Since 1958, the legislative branch budget has risen from $104.8 million to $1.12 billion In the last five years, the is us."

legislative branch budget has grown from $522 million to $1.12 billion - almost double and far outstripping the rate of inflation.

Staffing has increased to astronomical numbers.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. arranged three days of meetings recently for 400 House staff members to learn how to recognize waste.

In all truth and fairness, they might have turned to each other and said in the words of Pogo, "We have met the enemy and he

'Ammunition Hill' today is a great war memorial

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

JERUSALEM, Israel - Ammunition Hill was a stronghold of the Arab Legion in 1967. It is one of the steep hills ringing this city. Today it is a war memorial, but then the stone and concrete trenches, the bunkers, and the deep underground fortifications were filled with Bedouin soldiers. They had to be rooted out, one by one, in vicious hand to hand fighting.

On a recent late afternoon, Rafe Horowitz and I climbed the steep hill and watched a group of Israeli girls who had just completed basic training take their oath. In Israel the oath is taken at some historic spot and the women soldiers had chosen Ammuni-

They stood at attention, most of them 18, in their baggy uniforms and with their Uezzil submachine guns slung over their shoulders. Except for the uniforms and the guns, they looked like any group of high school girls in Israel.

In the cold darkness lit only by the burning pots of Kerosene, Rafe said to me, "Do you know what it takes to transform a battered people ready for extermination into a nation that can defend itself?'

It was a statement not a question, out the answer for an outsider lies in the Israeli Defense Force. You can't understand the Israeli Defense Force. You can't understand the Israeli army unless you understand Israel and you can't understand Israel unless you understand the army. I am not trying to be cute, it's that the two are one

Israel is a tiny country - in places barely 20 miles wide - with a population of three million Jews. Everyone serves. At age 18, boys and girls are drafted for a period of active duty. Men remain in the reserves until age

Because the country is so small, the Israelis cannot afford a large standing army. The bulk of the army is the reserve and it can mobilize in 72 hours, which is nothing short of a miracle. We just found out in the states, for example, that we can't fully mobilize in less than six months.

But statistics don't tell the story, for the strength of the army and of the nation is its spirit. Because Israel is so small, each life is precious. Not one soldier can die without setting off ripples of grief across the country. The Arabs, to save their egos, try to paint Israel as a military superpower, but that is misleading. These kids do not have anywhere near the weapons or the manpower of the Arab states. They beat them with sheer guts and

In 1973, when the Egyptians and the Syrians launched a surprise attack on two fronts, the Israelis didn't have even 72 hours to mobilize. Synagogues, campuses, stores and homes emptied as these youngsters poured toward the front using any means of transportation they could find, from hitchhiking to taxicabs to personal

On the Egyptian front, in some bunkers as few as 15 to 20 Israelis were holding against 10,000 Egyptians. On the Syrian front, two Israeli tanks would engage 50 or 100 Syrian

One young officer, hearing of the attack as he arrived in northern India on his honeymoon, immediately flew back and went from the airport

Against forces which outnumbered them 12 to 1, against the latest and most sophisticated Soviet weapons, these youngsters held for three days and then counterattacked so successfully the Arabs ran to the United Nations begging for a cease-fire to avoid total destruction.

Yet Israel is not militaristic. That's the paradox. The Israeli soldier does not have the hard-bitten look of an American marine. He looks like a schoolboy. There is not, in the Israeli Defense Force, the spit and polish discipline you find in the American Army or the rigid separation between officers and enlisted men.

There is a family feeling among the men for each other, and between the civilians and their soldiers. They are literally the children of Israel, yet their exploits on the battlefield almost defy description.

"It is not courage," Rafe said. "It's just that we don't want to die. We are allergic to it."

I think that is the answer to Rafe's question whispered in the dark as we shivered in the cold on top of Ammunition Hill. After 2,000 years, the Jews who have gathered here have decided they are not going to die for someone else's convenience.

They hate war. They want peace, but no matter what the price is, no matter what the hardships are, no matter what superhuman feats they have to perform, they simply, by God, are not going to die.

Daufuskie Island faces change

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - In search of a place where Christmas might still reflect the spiritual and eschew the material values, we sent our associate Tom Rosenstiel to Daufuskie Island, S.C. It turned out to be a corner of America where time has stood still, where modern conveniences and irritations are nonexistent and people live pretty much the way their parents and grandparents lived - and like it that way.

The island is a 5,000-acre haven of oaks, Spanish moss and white beaches off the South Carolina coast, within sight of glamorous Hilton Head Island, the posh playground for wealthy vacationers and expenseaccount conventioneers.

The name of the little island is Daufuskie (pronounced d'fusky), and to call it a tropical paradise would be stretching the truth. Life on Daufuskie Island is not a pastoral idyll; the satisfactions of its unhurried tranquility are balanced against abject poverty and an almost total lack of modern amenities.

Daufuskie Island, good and bad, is what we have lost as a nation in our rush to progress.

Time has stood still for Daufuskie Island because there has never been a bridge to the mainland. This lack of easy access has kept modern civilization from encroaching on the

But the lack of a bridge has not prevented most islanders of wageearning age from leaving. When a young person departs to go to high school on the mainland, he or she rarely returns. Thus the population is mainly the very young, the elderly and the widowed.

The 110 inhabitants of Daufuskie Island are, generally speaking, uninterested in money, politics or the outside world. Everyone knows everyone else. Crime is almost nonexistent. The residents are unburdened by rent or taxes. They are unquestionably poor, but they can fish, farm and watch the waves breaking on the deserted white sand beaches.

Although many homes on the island now have telephones and electricityand some have television, only three are equipped with indoor plumbing. Cattle roam free. Only the vegetable patches are fenced.

The few signs of modernization an abandoned telephone booth, a stripped car, a rusted plow - dot the roadside in mute testimony that the 20th century's halfhearted assault on Daufuskie Island has failed

Union troops gave Daufuskie Island to the plantation slaves during the Civil War, and a unique culture and language called "gula" developed. The residents, some 1,200 at the peak, farmed the land and the oyster beds, went to church regularly and produced an island specialty, deviled crab, for sale on the mainland

But progress, though it bypassed the 'island, destroyed its economy. Industries in Savannah, Ga., polluted the oyster beds in the years after World War II. Many young men who had gone into service or to defense jobs never returned to the island.

Some learned to cherish their almost-forgotten heritage in retrospect, and came back to the island to recapture the past. "Hilton Head was like this when I grew up,' recalled a Harvard-educated community service worker with obvious nostalgia.

"You live in the city, you gonna just work for somebody else," said Louise Wilson, who returned to live in her parents' cottage after years in New York City. "You work for somebody else, live in somebody else's house.

roof. We did it when we grew up can learn to live in a shack with a tin

One of the vestiges of slave culture that remains on Daufuskie Island is the native dialect — a fast-paced high-pitched distortion of English spiced with occasional hoots and word repetitions. These make the language almost unintelligible to the outsider. The dialect disappeared from the other islands when the bridges were

Although pollution and isolation have thus far kept developers at bay, the residents of Daufuskie Island have recently been made uneasily aware that their days of tranquility may be numbered. A New York man who owns half the island is undecided whether to sell to developers or donate his acreage to the state for a park. In either case, the island would be overrun to a greater or lesser degree by the outside world.

What the residents want is to be left alone. This is probably impossible, though. When Daufuskie Island is dragged into the 20th century, a very special place will be lost, and we will all be the poorer for it.

INSIDE REPORT: History may record 1978 as the year the West lost

By ROWLAND EVANS

AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - The Soviet Union moved close to converting Afghanistan into a base for subversive operations against neighboring Iran and Pakistan, quietly achieved without a single public protest from the Carter administration and casting ominous shadows over the West's oil supply.

Eyewitness accounts have reached here that small numbers of Cuban soldiers, officers and experts in guerilla warfare are now on the scene in Kabul, the Afghan capital. The Cubans probably are also present in the south, where Afghanistan comes within a few hundred miles of the Arabian Sea - the gateway to the Persian Gulf.

A highly-regarded ambassador who represents neither Iran, Pakistan nor Afghanistan put this development into proper historic context for us: "History will someday look back upon 1978 as the watershed year in which the West lost and the Russians gained the superior position in the world, ending the postwar balance of power." That shift impinges directly on the strategically vital region stretching from Turkey through Pakistan, with its precious treasure of

The lack of presidential reaction to Soviet-Cuban operations in yet another independent state is itself a contributing force to the change in the power balance. This becomes clear from a confidential memorandum by an astute diplomat representing one nation intimately involved in these developments: "Smaller countries of the region have noted with alarm a tendency in the Western press to belittle the significance of the new Soviet-Afghan treaty." Singling out a recent New York Times editorial titled "Keeping Cool About Kabul," the memorandum said that "such complacency" mirrors the administration's own acceptance "of Soviet domination of Afghanistan, which can have serious consequences for the region and its smaller constit-

Warnings about Soviet-Cuban subversion in Iran go back at least two years before the current violent efforts to overthrow the shah. Writing in the August 1976 Reader's Digest, former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said that one Iranian "terrorist" killed in a shootout earlier that year "was found to have been trained in Cuba itself." Citing impeccable authority, he wrote that assassina-tions of three U.S. Army officers in Tehran was indisputably the work of Cuban-trained terrorists. In Afghanistan, the newest chapter of Soviet-Cuban teamwork opened with the bloody coup engineered by pro-Soviet forces last April. Not wideunderstood is the fact that the new Dec. 5 Moscow-Kabul treaty gives the Soviets far greater leeway for intervention than similar friendship treaties between the Russians and other non-aligned states such as India. India pledges to consult with Moscow in the event of an attack on either party, but the new treaty commits Afghanistan to much more. Article 10 requires "consultation" on "all major international issues," language that could provide a basis for future Soviet support for Afghanis-tan's ancient border disputes with Pakistan. With the U.S. casting a blind eye at this momentous intrusion of Soviet-Cuban power near the shores of the Arabian Sea, Pakistan is now certain to disaffiliate from the CENTO alliance.

Withdrawal from CENTO is an act of no military significance but one that underscores the profound psychological and political changes in the world balance of power. It has been delayed only by Pakistan's sympathy for the plight of Iran, also a CENTO member.

For President Carter, that is not the worst of this newest Soviet-Cuban operation. What is most dangerous for the West is the impact on Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf's oil sheikdoms of apparent U.S. helplessness to avert catastrophe in Iran or to stop the Soviet-Cuban offensive.

Frightened by deterioration of the shah's legitimacy in Iran and by U.S. impotence, Saudi royalists have weakened their private support of the made-in-Washington peace agreement between Israel and Egypt. The larger Middle East-stretching from Turkey through Iran, Afghanistan and Pakistan-is not moving out of the U.S. orbit; Arab states in the smaller Middle East — Israel and its

Arab adversaries - are losing their capacity for independent action. That partially explains successful Saudi pressure on Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to raise the ante with Israel. It partially explains why Carter's cherished Egyptian-Israeli peace agreement is in deadly danger. Should it fail, much credit must go to free-wheeling Soviet-Cuban operations flowing out of Afghanistan and much blame to the absence of any U.S. policy to block them.

Female Bengal tiger shot and killed by police

MINOT, N.D. (AP) - A female Bengal tiger, pursued three blocks by its owner after it escaped from its cage, was shot and killed by police when it fled to an area where children were ice skating.

Police closed in and were awaiting a tranquilizer gun when they became fearful and killed the animal with two 12-gauge shotguns and a .30-caliber rifle, said Minot Park superintendent Mike Nilyon.

"They (police) used them all (the weapons)," said Nilson. "I think they may have got a little excited."

Nilson praised the tiger's keeper, Dan White, who pursued the 4-to 5year-old female for three blocks

"If he (White) hadn't made an attempt to stay right with it, there may have been an accident with one of the kids," said Nilson.

Nilson said the tiger was killed about 20 minutes after it escaped during feeding and cage cleaning Monday afternoon. He said White had let the tiger into an adjoining pen

White said he learned of the tiger's escape when he heard a lion roar, looked up, and saw the tiger approaching.

White said his life may have been saved by the lion's roar, because the startled tiger "jumped and went the other way.

The keeper's attempts to control the tiger with a 6-foot pole failed, and it circled a nearby park with a baseball diamond and a skating rink. White said some of the children scattered quickly, but a group of skaters were apparently unaware of the big

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Like Santa Clauses in reverse, thieves slipped through a skylight in the roof of the M.H. de Young Memorial Museum and made off with a million-dollar Rembrandt and three other Dutch Renaissance paintings.

Rembrandt's "Portrait of The Rabbi," and the other 17th century paintings were taken sometime before dawn Christmas Day while a pair of security guards patrolled elsewhere in the one-story city museum, officials said.

Police speculated that at least two thieves took part in the burglary. Museum director Ian White said the pieces "were not insured individually, but were self-insured by the city. That means the city stands behind the loss. But I don't know how that works - we're never had to collect on a loss like this.' He said there was no indication that a ransom demand is involved. The 83-year-old museum is next in line to house the King Tut exhibit

White said a piece of the outer skylight was removed and a 600pound walnut chest placed underneath in the museum, perhaps for use as a ladder. He said the museum has burglar alarms, but not at the sky-

Museum officials said the other stolen paintings were a night river scene by Aert Van der Neer, valued at

when it leaves New York in June. White said major security modifications were being made for that exhibit, but declined to say if they included skylight alarms or more guards. Two of the paintings were in one room and two in another. Each was taken in its frame. Several other works, including Rembrandt's "Portrait of Juris De Caullery," were removed from the wall but were not taken, apparently because they were too big for the skylight.

The thefts were discovered about 9 a.m. when the guards changed shifts at the popular museum in Golden Gate Park, which is open every day of the year from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

More anti-shah violence in Iran

Authorities said groups of demon-strators reached 1,000 people in some areas. Office workers gathered at windows to shower leaflets into the streets supporting Ayatullah Khomaini, the shah's leading religious opgonent, and some of them pelted soldiers below with rocks.

At least 300 troops sealed off Amir Abad Hospital, where spokesmen for the opposition National Front had planned to hold a rally. The troops pushed away people who came to attend the rally as police helicopters hovered overhead.

The disorders broke out as Iran's oil supplies headed toward critically low levels and informed sources reported that Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi had agreed in principle to trim his power but not meet opposition demands he step down.

Some Tehran gas stations ran out of fuel today and government sources said almost no gasoline may be available within 24 hours if production continues declining. They said supplies of kerosene for public sale also were short, as well as fuel oil for public utilities.

The sources said Iranian oil production was down to a daily rate of 900,000 barrels, compared to 1.7 million barrels Monday. Normal daily production in Iran is 6 million barrels, with 5.4 million usually exported. Some 20 percent of Iran's oil exports goes to Western Europe and 15 to 18 percent to the United States.

The sources said more than 70 oil tankers were lying at anchor off the main export terminal of Khargh Island, unable to load up with oil because of limited supplies. Available oil in the country is being directed almost entirely into domestic needs.

They said internal consumption was rising as a result of temperatures that have dropped to 23 degrees in the country's northwestern Azerbaijan province and 32 degrees in Tehran.

Most supplies of electricity were expected to continue because many electric stations in Iran operate on hydroelectric power. There have been off-and-on power cuts for the past several weeks, however, due to strikes by electrical workers, and many people relied on kerosene for lighting and heating during the out-

Oil production dipped as low as 400,000 barrels per day last month, but the latest shortages were regarded as the severest yet Because of the cumulative effect of weeks of strikes and stoppages in the oil fields by opponents of the shah.

Informed sources said under the political plan, former Interior Minister Gholan-Hossein Sadiqi would replace Chief of Staff Gen. Gholam-Reza Azhari as prime minisrule by decree but probably would not exercise that power, preferring to stay out of the limelight and let Parliament and the Cabinet run the

However, the sources said Sadiqi's efforts to form a new government were going slowly because of a shortage of politicians untarnished by association with previous regimes.

"If he cannot find the right people, he will give up and there will be no new government at all," said an aide to Sadiqi, a professor who was interior minister from 1950-53.

Khomaini and other Shiite Moslem leaders want to end the shah's 37-year rule because they believe his Westernizing reforms are eroding traditional Islamic values in Iran.

Political activists have joined the Moslems in the fight to topple the shah, and are demanding greater freedom and the dismantling of the monarch's dreaded secret police,

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, federally-funded nutrition programs for older people will receive a minimum of 38.5 cents per meal in donated foods or cash assistance during the current fiscal year.

The increase—up from 29.25 cents in fiscal year 1978—will be retroactive to Oct. 1 of this year.

Most of the meals are served at community centers, schools, churches or other sites convenient for older persons. In some states, including Texas, hot meals are delivered to the homes of older people unable to come to the centers to receive them. An example is Meals-On-Wheels and Need-A-Meal operated in Midland.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A demonstration project designed to assist the elderly to live as independently as possible is also saving money for Utah taxpayers.

Venice food rivals canals as attraction

By TOM HOGE AP Newsfeatures Writer

Venice has always been regarded as one of the world's most spectacular cities, from the days of the doges. Under their rule, culture came into its own and artists like Bellini and Tintoretto flourished. A memorable cuisine also was born.

Today, Venice is still a center of beauty and tradition, and despite its years of Austro-Hungarian occupation has retained the "cuisine of the

The creations of Venetian chefs are not descended from peasant cookery as are so many of the excellent but more robust dishes of other parts of Italy. Care and precise timing must be observed to create the famous rice dishes or seafood masterpieces such as orata, a Mediterranean fish cooked with mussels and crayfish and seasoned with curry.

American travelers lucky enough to be invited to the U.S. Embassy in Rome these days will probably be treated to some classic from the city of canals. Danielle Gardner, attractive wife of the U.S. ambassador to Italy, Richard Gardner, was born in Venice and has not forgotten the dishes of her hometown.

"I entertain several hundred guests a week at the embassy," she told me recently during a New York visit, "and most of my guests are either Italian or American.'

Mrs. Gardner was happy to discover that most of her American guests are fond of Venetian food, which gives her an excuse to serve it frequently.

"I think they find it refreshing because it is not drowned in tomato sauce as is so much of the food of southern Italy," she said. "That so often drowns the taste of an otherwise

Fegato consists of paper-thin slices of calf's liver, sauteed with onions. Prepared correctly, it is meltingly tender and has a subtle flavor. Mrs. Gardner usually serves it with polenta, a cornmeal porridge. Here's her fegato recipe.

4 tablespoons olive oil 1 cup thinly sliced onions

¼ teaspoon dried sage leaves

1 pound calf's liver, cut crosswise into 1/4-inch strips

Salt to taste

Freshly ground black pepper

2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley Heat 2 tablespoons olive oil in heavy 10-inch skillet, add onions and cook over moderate heat, stirring, 6 minutes. Stir in sage and cook 3 more minutes until onions are limp. Set skillet aside. Pat liver strips dry with paper towel, season with salt and pepper. In another heavy skillet, heat remaining oil until light haze forms. Drop in liver strips and saute, turning frequently, 2 or 3 minutes, till lightly browned. Stir in onions and cook with liver for 2 more minutes. Transfer liver and onions to hot platter. Sprinkle with parsley. Serves four. Good

The Alternative Project, known as TAP, provides services that allow the elderly to stay in their homes rather than enter nursing homes or convalescent hospitals.

Approved by the state legislature and administered by the Utah Department of Social Services Division on Aging, the program "taps" existing community resources to help older people who do not need full-service care provided by nursing

It focuses on those, generally without close relatives, who ordinarily might be admitted to a nursing home for social reasons - those with no one to help them with the everyday tasks they are unable to perform for them-

It is also saving money for Utah, which undertook the experimental project because skyrocketing Medicaid costs had become a concern of the legislature, as well as of the general

Emil Anderson, 71, a retired carpenter from Minnesota, says he has found TAP a godsend.

Anderson, placed in a nursing home by relatives who felt that he couldn't care for himself, was costing Utah taxpayers $1,080 a month for his care. Now he is in a residential retirement center with TAP's help at a cost of $350 a month. Soon he will be in % an apartment of his own, also arranged by TAP, at even greater savings.

"Anderson is capable of helping himself," explains Louise Lintz, project director. "He's fiercely independent. He is also in good health and is so anxious to be helpful at the center that he mows the lawn and has helped build a tool shed just to keep

Lilly Haley, 91, a long-time resident of nearby Ogden, is blind, almost totally deaf and confined to bed. But she has a fear of hospitals. Through TAP she gets around-the-clock support services, such as day housekeeper, homemaker and chore services, night sitter and meal delivery. And the state is saving $202 a month by helping her stay in her home.

What is unique about the project and personally gratifying thus far,' says Ms. Lintz, "is the tremendous cooperation we are getting from the community.

"In Mrs. Haley's case, a neighbor provides night care for her at a fraction of the usual cost. The other services she receives are part of the normal care provided by the Ogden Area Agency on Aging. And she contributes, too. She pays the state $40 a month out of a widow's railroad retirement pension. She wants to do her share." In another example of helping people in the project, Ms. Lintz notes, the neighbor of a woman who needs regular chemotherapy treatments refuses any payment, even for expenses, for driving the patient 200 miles roundtrip each week for treatments. "He sees it as his Christian duty," she says.

TAP began in July with a budget of $200,000 for 144 persons. Already 20 persons in 25 Utah counties are benefiting from the project.

Federal funding through the Older Americans Act and the state-administered Social Services programs help make it possible for TAP to provide alternative methods of care for the

HEW Assistant Secretary for Human Development Services Arabella Martinez heads the federal umbrella agency responsible for administering these funds nationally.

"For a long time, communities didn't have the kinds of coordinated services TAP is providing to help older people," said Ms. Martinez. "Services were non-existent or frag-mented and difficult for the elderly to find. Today, we are encouraging states and communities to develop projects such as this which draw on the existing strengths within a community to provide services, not only to the elderly, but for children, youth and handicapped individuals."

I'm another secretary who has trouble with telephone wise guys.

One man called my boss and, when I asked who was calling, he said, "Tell him Graig Nettles is on the line." So I told my boss that Graig Nettles was on the line. How did I know Graig Nettles was some big-shot Yankee ballplayer? So someone made a fool of me.

I'm instructed to ask who is calling and, if my boss doesn't want to talk to him, I say, "Sorry, he's tied up in a meeting. May he return your call?" Then the boss returns the call if and when he feels like it.

Most people are on to that dodge. They say, "I want to ask him just one question" or "Tell him I'll be over in Leftover Christmas turkey is delicious used in the traditional ways.

Reheated with leftover stuffing and gravy. Added to an a la king sauce and served in patty shells or over crisp Chinese noodles. Turned into a casserole dish with rice and mushroom sauce. FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) -Santa Claus was sentenced for contempt when he refused to prove to a judge that he was wearing a coat and tie.

Judge Robert D. Walker imposed a 23-day jail term for Santa when Mr. Claus, alias attorney Stephen C. Betts, appeared in court in costume. Betts had come to the courthouse to wish his friends a year, is considered by most people a plain disaster. Every year it claims dozens of lives in accidents, and millions of dollars in lost or hampered commercial activities in Italy's industrial north with its major cities such as Milan, Genoa, Turin, Venice and Bologna.

MILAN, Italy (AP) - Nobel Prize-winning novelist Eugenio Montale says it's the things he likes most. Many others find it romantic. Yet pea-soup fog, blanketing northern Italy for 80 to 90 days a

Experts have spent enormous time and money in recent years to develop anti-fog equipment, ranging from wind guns to thermionic devices installed along the highways and airport runways to disperse or thin out fog.

But so far they have turned out to be either too expensive or inefficient.

"The best solution when fog is too thick is for drivers to stay home," says Tonino Bertuzzi, head of traffic police in Milan.

In 1977 alone, 176 persons were killed and another 1,585 injured in road accidents linked to fog. In the first 11 months of 1978, police say more than 180 died in such accidents.

Fog often closes the Milan-Venice highway for several hours a day. Yet it is still the bloodiest on the basis of numbers of victims from fog-related accidents - 23 dead in 1978.

The International airport of Linate, near Milan, was closed for 11 full days in 1978. Partial closures totaled 1,161 hours.

"Canceled flights cost hundreds of million lire to airlines which must arrange bus trips to distant and operating airports as well as hotel reservations for those unable to leave," an official of the Italian airline company Alitalia noted.

The Milan airport also lost more than a million dollars last year because of canceled departures and arrivals.

Fog has One day recently Milan's labor groups called off a strike by ground personnel at the Linate airport because fog had forced cancelation of all flights on the day of the walkout.

Cattleman Jack Linger, being forced by a dam from his home in Lewis County, W.Va.

Valley families battle to block proposed dam

By WARD SINCLAIR The Washington Post

VANDALIA, W.Va. - Just down the hill from Jack Linger's front door, Progress is writing the last lines of a story that began in this gentle mountain country in 1835.

The Army Corps of Engineers is coming to put Jack Linger's valley under water. Soon, he and his wife Eleanor, and dozens of other families, will have to leave.

After they're gone and their homes are razed, after Vandalia and four other hamlets are demolished, after the cemeteries are moved and the roads closed, the corps will build a $117 million dam, named for Stonewall Jackson, and fill its lake.

Then, according to the Army, there will be flood protection for the downstream cities of Weston and Clarksburg, more flood control in the Monongahela River basin, and a new recreation paradise in Lewis Coun-

But paradise is a relative term and the story unfolding here is a story that follows the federal dam-builders virtually everywhere they go these days: Popular organizing and protests, lawsuits, bitterness and political division, uprooted families and dislocation, unhappiness with govern-

CATTLEMAN JACK LINGER, 69. whose ancestors came to work this land between the ridges in 1835, stood outside his hillside farm home, looking down on the valley that will be part of the lake.

"It is hard to take - being turned off of your land - especially when they talk about how much new money will come in with the development. This dam dispute has torn Lewis County all to hell. The passions run deep," he said.

Up and down the valley of the Upper West Fork River, which the Stonewall Jackson will dam, one hears similar protests from families whose roots go back generations to a time before there was a West Virgin-

They seem themselves aligned against political and economic forces bent on taking their heritage from them, at unreasonably low prices, in the name of progress and development.

The Stonewall Jackson controversy, one of a number going on around the country, coincides with a larger controversy between Congress and President Carter over the direction of federal water-resources policy.

CARTER'S PROPOSALS, although they have not moved very far, have scraped a raw nerve on Capitol Hill, where legislators consider the placement and funding of locks and dams their own domain.

Last year and again this year Congress and the president clashed over his ideas for establishing more realistic economic and environmental standards, more cost-sharing and water conservation, tighter dam safety.

Congress, in fact, went the other direction in its handling of the traditional "pork barrel" bills that provide for these federal water projects. Some examples: —An appropriations bill — subsequently vetoed — provided money for a number of projects Carter opposed on economic and environmental grounds. A revised bill, incidentally, included $6.4 million for the engineers to continue buying land for the Stonewall Jackson.

-Another bill authorizing new starts on 158 water projects in 46 states, ignoring legal requirements in some cases and increasing federal expenses in others, died when time ran out on the 95th Congress. -Congress adopted another measure that went counter to Carter's ideas, exempting the Bureau of Reclamation (BOR) from basinwide planning reqirements for new dams in the Colorado River basin.

-THE PRESIDENT SIGNED a dam safety bill that became, contrary to his own cost-sharing proposals, a small Christmas tree. It provided full federal funding for some repair jobs that BOR water users ordinarily would have had to help finance.

The approtriations veto, the failure of the bill authorizing new starts and the continuing furor over general water policy have set the scene for more acrimony when Congress reconvenes in January.

Under the direction of Interior Sec retary Cecil D. Andrus, 19 administration task forces are at work on formal policy proposals, gathering public and governmental opinion, and devising a plan for the future.

While Washington debates policy, another part of the battle goes on in such places as the Upper West Fork Valley, the Tug Fork Valley and the Canaan Valley - West Virginia outposts that, in many ways, typify water politics and problems in the eastern United States.

One area will get a dam, despite vigorous opposition. Another wants a dam but can't get it, for economic reasons. Another wants a power company dam built but the Army won't allow it, for environmental reasons.

IN THE CENTRAL SECTION, about 35 miles south of Clarksburg, landowners are opposing corps' plans to take 21,000 acres and remove 1,800 residents to build the Stonewall Jackson. The corps and its political supporters are moving ahead with the project, despite marginal economic justifications.

Along the Kentucky border to the south, an area devastated by floods in April 1977, residents of the Tug Fork Valley of the Big Sandy River are crying for a flood-control dam. The corps insists a dam cannot be justified under its cost-estimate stan-

Northward, in Tucker County, residents are urging approval of a $317 million hydroelectric generation dam that the Allegheny Power System wants to build on the Blackwater

They say it would bring economic boom - jobs and more taxes - to their poor county. But opponents say it would ruin the delicate environment and wildlife habitat of the scenic Canaan Valley. The corps has denied Allegyeny's permit application.

Each of the West Virginia cases illustrates the conflict and sometimes curious contradictions of federal water policy, which, in many instances, is little more than the flexing of political muscle.

THE STONEWALL JACKSON case is an example of another of the truisms of current water policy - once the corps decides a project is needed, it can wait for yes, even decades, for the right political winds to push it

Corps planners first envisioned a dam on the West Fork River in the 1930s, but citizen opposition and lack of political support prevented its ap-

A decade later, the corps renewed its efforts. Again, local opposition including cattleman Jack Linger and others who went to Washington to protest - stopped the project.

The corps went back to the drawing board and came up with a new approach - a multipurpose dam for flood control, water supply, waterquality control, recreation and area development. Congress authorized

But the Stonewall Jackson had political problems. Until last year, when Gov. John D. Rockerfeller IV signed a vital recreation cost-sharing contract, the corps had been stymied by previous governors' refusal to

By 1974, however, residents of rural Lewis County could see trouble coming. They organized themselves as the Upper West Fork River Watershed Association to combat the Ston-

So far, it has been a losing fight - a lawsuit failed; their senators, Jennings Randolph and Robert C. Byrd, and their congressman, Harley Staggers, all Democratic powers in Congress, support the dam; the White House supports it; Rockefeller sup-

THE LANDOWNERS have produced an array of challenges to the corps' economic calculations, questioning low compensation for underlying coal deposits and criticizing the recreation development plans.

And, in the spirit of Carter's ideas for alternative approaches to development, the association has come up with a plan of its own - to reduce the cost, save most of the land, yet provide flood control.

Property owners have offered to donate land on which small watershed dams, less costly than the engineers' approach, could be built on West Fork tributaries to hold back flood waters. Corps officials say that approach won't work, watershed dams, of course, would put an end to the engineers' $117 million development

If any of its central features were removed, the Stonewall Jackson project could not meet the corps' benefit-cost ratio requirements. As planned now, the project would produce $1.30 in benefits for each $1

But Kenneth Parker, association president, argues that the corps' calculations are outdated and misleading. The group's efforts to have a new, independent cost-benefit evaluation have been rebuffed.

The newest weapon in the association's fight is aimed at ensnarling the corps in its own paperwork: The sale of square-yard chunks of land within the project area.

Each $10 land sale means one more new landowner and, perhaps, one more time-consuming condemnation. case for the corps to deal with. It also means more money for the group's war chest. THE ASSOCIATION HOPES this technique will buy time that might allow a change of political winds in their favor here or in Washington.

Beneath the layers of politics and the grassroots mobilization, the people in the Upper West Fork Valley are talking about one thing for which no benefit-cost ratios have yet been de-

They are talking about the peace of mind that comes with the continuity of living on the land, working it and passing it on to a son or daughter. . -'We are trying to preserve our way of life," said Ken Parker. "Once this is broken up, the roots are gone." Matthew Snyder 32, a red-bearded contractor and protest leader, put it another way: "My family came here in the early 1800s. My son is the seventh generation living on the same farm. We've been around the country and we came back. We haven't found any place better than this.'

But when Progress, in the form of a federal dam, comes knocking on the door, trauma and bitterness set in.

"There are sentimental values here that I won't be paid for," Jack Linger said. "I don't want to be so bitter, but I am. Eleanor and I have asked if we should continue to go to church, if the Lord would like our attitude, being so

1978 proves poor year for U.S. labor leaders

By OWEN ULLMANN

WASHINGTON (AP) - It was not the best of years to be a labor leader - rebuffs from Congress, friction with the White House, assaults from business, defiance from the rank-andfile and troubles with the law.

Yet, as gloomy as 1978 may have been for the nation's stewards of organized labor, 1979 augurs little re-

Congress should prove no more receptive to pro-labor legislation. Government inflation fighters will intensify their pressure for smaller wage settlements. Employers will try to keep the offensive in their dealings with labor.

There were some bright spots for labor in 1978, including a drop in the unemployment rate to a four-year low of about 6 percent. But that achievement may be short-lived as President Carter concentrates on fighting inflation with a program that many economists say will result in higher unemployment.

In the most significant organizing victory of the year, the United Steelworkers of America won the right to represent 19,000 workers at the Newport News, Va. Shipbuilding & Dry-

THE UNITED AUTO WORKERS scored a victory against General Motors Corp. when the automotive giant agreed to let UAW members transfer to new GM plants in the South. The agreement ended mounting rancor that had developed over union charges that GM was fighting UAW efforts to organize workers at the southern plants.

Similarly, the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union made progress in its decade-long campaign to organize J.P. Stevens & Co. by pressuring two outside directors to resign from the firm's board.

Generally, though, the events of 1978 numbed labor's chieftains. Two years ago, the AFL-CIO reveled in the election of a Democratic president and heavily Democratic Congress. Labor strategists thought they would have a strong hand in steering the new administration and would score several major legislative victories.

Instead, business, rather than labor, appeared to have Congress' ear in 1978. Organized labor's biggest setback was over a long-sought bill to strengthen the nation's labor laws to make it easier to unionize companies and to stiffen penalties against violators of the law.

The bill, which business groups contended was unfairly weighted in favor of unions, passed the House in 1977, but died in the Senate last June when labor forces were unable to halt a Republican-led filibuster.

POLITICAL OBSERVERS attributed the bill's defeat to a powerful new lobbying effort by business groups, which indicate they will take the offensive in the bargaining room as well as in the halls of Congress.

Labor went nowhere in its campaign for national health insurance. It also was on the losing side on tax legislation that did not shift tax burdens from working people to business, and on an energy bill that gradually removes price controls from natural

Labor won partial victories with enactment of a so-called "full employment" bill and an extension of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

The symbolic full employment bill, a bare shell of its original version, states the government's pledge to reduce unemployment to 4 percent and inflation to 3 percent by 1983, but commits no money or programs toward achieving those targets.

In extending CETA, Congress ordered cuts in public service jobs. More cuts are expected in 1980 as part of President Carter's plan to restrict federal spending to fight inflation.

LABOR HELPED DEFEAT a move in Congress to weaken the authority of the controversial Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). But the Supreme Court weakened the agency when it ruled that OSHA may not make unannounced workplace safety inspections without employer permission unless the inspector first obtains a search warrant.

As labor's relations cooled with Congress, they turned frigid with Carter. AFL-CIO President George Meany unleashed unprecedented attacks on a Democratic president, calling Carter the most conservative chief executive since dyed-in-the-wool Republican Calvin Coolidge.

A chief Meany complaint was with the voluntary wage-price guidelines in Carter's anti-inflation program. The AFL-CIO noted that wages rose only 8 percent in the past year compared with a 10 percent rise in consumer prices, and said the guidelines would hold down wages but not rising prices. Instead, the AFL-CIO called for "equitable" mandatory wageprice controls.

Meany also denounced Carter's support of higher interest rates and cuts in social programs to control inflation, saying the actions would only exacerbate rising prices and spur unemployment.

Outside the political arena, labor leaders found themselves challenged within their own ranks.

A MOOD OF DEFIANCE permeated the Appalachian coalfields as 160 .-000 members of the United Mine Workers staged an 111-day walkout that began in December 1977 and extended through March.

Before accepting a new contract, the miners defied UMW President Arnold Miller by rejecting a settlement he had endorsed. They also defied a federal judge who issued a back-to-work order requested by Carter under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The government had sought the order, saying coal shortages due to the strike would trigger power outages and mass worker layoffs. But those events never occurred, as large pre-strike stockpiles of coal and rising output at non-union mines kept most electric utilities running.

The new contract raised a miner's base pay 31 percent over three years, but the union relinquished an industry-wide health insurance plan that it helped administer in favor of individual plans set up by each coal company through private insurance carriers. Normally docile postal workers'dis-played some militancy during the summer as they rejected a contract settlement endorsed by union leaders. The rejection raised the threat of a nationwide mail strike, which is barred by federal law.

Ultimately, the U.S. Postal Service and unions representing 516,000 employees settled their dispute through binding arbitration. Workers won a 21.3 percent wage increase over three years, additional cost-of-living prolayoff. But management regained its right to lay off some employees in the

Two-thirds of the nation's railroads were crippled for four days in September, when the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks expanded a 21/2-month strike against the Norfolk & Western Railway.

The union, which had struck N&W in a contract dispute over job losses due to automation, picketed other railroads which were giving money to the N&W through a mutual aid pact.

The strike idled 330,000 workers and ended after Carter issued a temporary back-to-work order. The 'cooling off' period ends in mid-January, when a strike could resume if a settlement is not reached.

WAGES OR JOB SECURITY figured prominently in a number of other strikes in 1978. Pressmen at New York's daily newspapers struck for three months, pilots struck Northwest Airlines for 109 days and a fivemonth strike by paper workers on the West Coast was still in progress at year's end.

In November, owner-drivers of steelhauling trucks launched a violence-marred strike to win separate bargaining recognition from steel companies. The drivers currently are

Dear Dr. Solomon: Do you think it would be a good idea to legalize heroin for use by cancer patients? There has been a good deal of talk about this recently, and some friends of ours were saying that it just doesn't made sense for the government to prevent doctors from using heroin to ease extreme pain.-S.L.

Dear S.L.: If heroin were demonstrated to be a uniquely effective painkiller, this argument would carry a lot of weight. But there is considerable doubt that heroin is as effective as some people have claimed.

For instance, John Lewis, Ph.D., an American Medical Assn. expert, says that legalizing heroin would not help the suffers and would greatly increase the problem of controlling traffic in the drug.

After reviewing scientific studies he has concluded that heroin has no advantage over morphine and other strong analgesic pain-killers. Proponents of heroin have claimed that it makes the patient feel better and has fewer side effects such as nausea and constipation. But none of this has been proven. he says.

According to Dr. Lewis, paitent care could be improved if there were more emphasis on the education of physicians in treating patients with chronic pain problems. Available painkillers, he says, are not always used effectively.

Last summer, incidentally, the AMA's House of Delegates rejected a proposal to endorse legalizing heroin. It was felt that more research would be needed before such a step should be considered.

Dear Dr. Solomon: At 54 years of age, I'm just beginning to lose my hair. Although I realize that baldness at my age is not unusual, I wonder if it could be related to heparin which my doctor prescribed about four months age.-Sam.

Dear Sam: Heparin can, indeed, cause alopecia, or loss of hair. The drug tends to change the ratio between growing hairs and resting hairs from about six to one to about one to one. This results in a substantial increase in resting hairs. The amount of fallout depends on the dosage of heparin and on the patient's particular sensitivity to the drug.

But don't lose hope. In the patients I've seen with this condition most of their hair has grown back once the drug was discontinued. Temporary loss of hair is a relatively benign side-effect for a drug which can be a life-saver.

Glass artist comes back from disaster

By SARAH BOOTH CONROY The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Glassblowing is an arcane art

The glassblower pits his eye and hand against the power of the molten glass, the transparent lava. One wrong twist of the wrist, one misjudged distance and the glassblower may be engulfed in a hot crystal fire. he works always at arm's length, wielding a long pipe in a sort of mad ballet. Again and again, he must face the heat of the glory hole, the 2,000degree furnace. Yet out of this, marvelous bubbles, frozen in glass, rise in rainbow glimmerings.

Three years ago, Dale Chihuly stood at the top of his art. He was in his early 30s, the acknowledged master of the curious craft which he had helped revive. One dark night, he was riding with a friend on a winding English road. The car crashed. He woke up in a hospital, blinded in one eye, one foot severely injured. The doctor told him it took 250 stitches to reconstruct his face. She said he was the worst automobile accident victim to survive in her memory. He was lucky - the doctor on duty was an ophthalmological surgeon.

"I don't think I was really seriously depressed, I was determined not to let it slow me down," Chihuly says. "But it was six months or a year before I could really work again.'

HE TELLS THE STORY as he checks over the glass "baskets and cylinders" that make up a major one-man show of his work at the Smithsonian's Renwick Gallery through next June, curated and installed by Michael Monroe.

"You don't realize how much you depend on two eyes working together. It's your depth perception that throws you. I couldn't pour water into a cup. Heck, I couldn't even walk properly. At first it was very disturbing. I had to train the brain-to-foot link all over again. Of course I couldn't play tennis or anything like that. On the other hand, I could manage darts and pool without any trouble. I can read all right, but I get tired easily. I went back to driving right away, but driving still gives me trouble.

'I started back in the glass studio slowly. Swinging that low pipe, 3 or 4 feet out from me, I couldn't see how far away inpediments were to keep from banging the pipe on them. I still have to have somebody else thread the pipe into the glass for me.

"I was lucky because before the accident I'd always worked with a team of five students and helpers. So I was used to working with other people. For several years I collaborated with Jamie Carpenter and three or four others. In glass, there are lots of things you can't do by yourself anyway. It makes life richer to work with someone. It is the nature of the artist to be self-centered, so it helps to be taken out of yourself. I could make enough by selling my pieces - I get $1,000 for some of them — to quit teaching. But I think if you make too much you lose. Some extra income is great, but if you have to produce tolive, then you make things because people want to buy them, not becaue you think they're right. I think it's very good to be both an artist and an educator."

AFTER THE ACCIDENT, in 1975, Chihuly for the first time began to sell his small objects. Now he sells 20 or 30 a year of the 200 he makes. He has also some large achitectural commissions, including a window wall for the new U.S. Customs Building at the Peace Arch in Blaine, Wash. Unlike most stained-glass artists, he makes his own glass sections. His work is in the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Corning glass museum as well as several other collections.

During the school year, Chihuly heads the glass department of the Rhode Island School of Design. During the summer (since 1971) students follow him to the west, to Pilchuck School, an international center for glass art, founded by Chihuly on 40 acres of a 4,000-acre tree farm. The site is about 50 miles north of Seattle, Wash. Students live in wooden "tents" which use tree stumps as center poles.

Chihuly often takes off from Rhode Island to teach in other places, such as the Institute of American Indian. Art at Santa Fe. "From the Indian blankets and pottery, I learned an imagery I used on a series of cylinders. Drawing on glass is a new techique, but people seemed to like it. The cylinders were decorated just on one side. They seemed to me almost twodimensional, like paintings. I used the cylinder shape because it is a neutral

Many of the cylinders are in the show, some tall, some squat, some dark, some strong colors with wisps of design. The cylinders are just that cylindrical shapes with bottoms in them. You could, perhaps, stick flowers or branches in them, but most people put them on a shelf where the light can shine through them. All they're designed to hold is your atten-

THE CYLINDERS ran their course, and in 1977 Chihuly was in the Tacoma Historical Society one day when he saw some old Indian baskets that seemed to be collapsing under the weight of their straw. He then began his series of what he calls baskets, though they look much more like soap bubbles whose orbit has begun 'to decay. They have strange indentations and curves which catch the light and send it off in strange directions.

They are not, strictly speaking, to be used except to delight the eye. Some don't even have flat bottoms; some you have to watch to keep them from rolling. The baskets are all of glass so thin you think any moment a high-pitched laugh will shatter them. Chihuly says they are very strong, and he handles them so casually that the bystander tends to gasp. The colors are limpid, like the color of clouds. The designs are speckles an lines. Many of the baskets are in the Renwick exhibit, often displayed against the cylinders.

Chihuly is large and sturdy-looking, a man someone is sure to describe as "bear-like." Sometimes he wears a black patch over his bad eye. He thinks it improves his looks and it does improve his sight a bit, since there's a bit of distracting ghostly vision left in the edge of the eye. His hair is thick, curly and rather wild, his beard and mustache lush as becomes a man of the north woods.

The Greenpeace Foundation of British Columbia, on Canada's west coast, is preparing a fourth annual expedition to the ice from St. Anthony in northern Newfoundland or by ship.

"We're going to make concerted effort to get to the ice again this year," Greenpeace President Patrick Moore said in a telephone interview from Vancouver, British Columbia.

Drug mogul Preyer seeking to head committee in House

By WARD SINCLAIR The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The holder of a pharmaceutical fortune, Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., wants to be chairman of the House subcommittee that oversees the drug industry.

Preyer, acknowledging potentially serious conflicts of interest, is nonetheless lobbying fellow Democrats for support in becoming chairman of the health panel of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Commit-

The chairman of the influential subcomittee will be up for grabs next month with the retirement of Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla. Commmittee Democrats will pick his successor. Among the issues almost certain to be dealt with by the subcommittee next year is a series of bills related to the drug industry, in which Preyer's holdings are thought to be worth several million dollars.

The congressman declined in an interview to provide details of his personal wealth, although he said the several million dollar figure is 'not totally off the wall."

The bulk of Preyer's holdings are in his family's Richardson-Merrell Inc., the subject of past controversies involving its production of swineflu vaccine, thalidomide and an anti-cholesterol drug. All provoked massive lawsuits. Preyer also owns stock in Sterling Drug Co.

Preyer said he recognizes the potential for conflict but, if named chairman, would disqualify himself from subcommittee activities related to regulation of the pharmaceutical in-

He conceded, however, that drawing a line on drug-industry connections to other subcommittee issues - national health insurance or Medicaid drug payments, for example - would be

"somewhat hard to do." "I feel I can be fair and objective. I won't do anything the committee or the House leadership don't want me to do," he said. "If there is a feeling that I would bring discredit to the House, I certainly don't want to do it." One of the ironies in the story of Preyer's quest for the subcommittee chairmanship, notwithstanding the conflict potential, is that he is widely regarded in the House as a man of unswerving integrity.

Preyer is a former state and federal district judge and he is chairman of the Select Committee on Ethics, a special panel that drew up new financial disclosure rules for the House. The committee will go out of business next month.

He also is chairman of a special subcommittee that has investigated the assasination of President

Preyer noted that he had asked not to be put on the subcommittee originally and that he had abstained from voting on drug-related matters since he went on the panel 10 years ago. And, candidate. I don't know if he said, all of his assets are in a blind trust over which he has no control.

"Blind trusts are not totally blind and I don't stand on that as an excuse from a conflict of interest," he said. "Once a year, I do see the trustee reports here.'

Pryer said questions about his holdings could make his race for the chairmanship "a close situation" and that several of the Democrats he has contacted raised the issue with him. "But it didn't seem to be overriding," he said.

Another active aspirant to the subcommittee chairmanship is Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., a liberal who for several months has been soliciting support from committee Democrats.

Waxman said he is "very encouraged" by the response he has had, particularly from members elected, as he was, in 1974 and in 1976. At least 20 of the committee's 29 Democratic members next year will have been elected since

Coincidental with his interest in the chairmanship, Waxman doled out $40,000 of his excess personal campaign funds to other House Democrats seeking re-election last month. Ten fellow Democrats on the Commerce Committee got $14,000 from Waxman's war

China leadership switching emphasis from politics

Agence France-Presse

PEKING — China's leadership last week claimed a "great victory" over political radicals and announced that the focus of Communist Party activity was switching in 1979 from politics to modernization of the economy.

The official New China News Agency announced that this change of direction was approved during a fiveday meeting of the Chinese Communist Party Central Committee that concluded here Friday.

The Central Committee also approved of the manner in which Chinese foreign policy was being conducted, the agency said. The judg-ment was that "the foreign policy of the party and the government was correct and successful," according to the news agency.

Quoting a communique adopted by the Central Committee, NCNA said:

"Whether or not China can speed Socialist modernization and improve the people's life significantly and strengthen its national defense on the basis of a rapid growth in production is a major issue of paramount impor-tance to all the Chinese people and is of very great significance to the cause of peace and progress in the world."

The agency said that due to "great victory" in the criticism campaign against former Defense Minister Lin

Piao and the four radical leaders of the "Gang of Four" over the past 27 months, it was now possible to put "emphasis" on "Socialist moderniza-

The communique, which NCNA did not give in full, noted that there had been "additional restoration and growth of the national economy" while there was "political stability and unity throughout the country." The agency noted that this political stability was of "major significance" for China's modernization of agriculture, industry, defense and science by the end of the century.

It said: "The four modernizations would require a growth of great magnitude in the productive forces, which in turn required many-sided changes in those aspects of the relations of production and the superstructure not in harmony with the growth of the productive forces."

Observers said that in plain terms this meant the existing leadership and institutions should get in line with the requirements of modern produc-

"Socialist modernization therefore was a profound and extensive revolution," New China quoted the communique as stating.

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) - In his efforts to be benevolent, Santa Claus can sometimes outdo himself. Just ask the University of Santa should know that it's a no-no to hand out like gifts to opposing football teams.

Leading underdog UCLA 10-0 at halftime in Fiesta Bowl VIII on Christmas Day, the eighthranked Razorbacks had to settle at game's end for a 10-10 deadlock with the 15th-ranked Bruins.

"We were ready and played hard," said Holtz. "UCLA played very well. It's a shame there was no winner.

Both Holtz and Terry Donahue, the Bruins coach, expressed wishes for a sudden death playoff in bowl games.

THE BRUINS were able to gain a tie when backup quarterback Steve Bukich, a surprise starter, scampered for a 15-yard touchdown with 8:32 left in the game. UCLA's Pete Boermeester booted the extra point that knotted the game. Asked why he didn't attempt a two-point conversion, Donahue explained that he thought there was still adequate time to score

"I felt we would get the ball three more times, and kick a game-winning field goal," said Donahue. "The percentages of getting two points are bad."

The Bruins did get the ball exactly three more times, but were unable to get on the scoreboard again.

Meanwhile, Holtz felt if he would have had "five more seconds in the game, we would have

With 10 seconds left on the clock, UCLA punted. Arkansas' Thomas Brown took the ball on his own 34 and returned it 36 yards before going out of bounds with no time left on the clock.

"When I caught the punt, I was looking to score when it opened up," said Brown. "I had to make a split decision on whether to get out of bounds or try to return it and I made the decision to go out of bounds. Since the clock ran out, it didn't

THE NATIONALLY-TELE-VISED game, played before a crowd of 55,227 at Sun Devil Stadium, was the first meeting ever between the Pacific-10 Bruins and the Southwest Conference Razorbacks. Arkansas, which accumulated 278 yards total offense, ended the season with a 9-2-1 record while UCLA, which gained 316 yards total offense, finished up at 8-3-1.

After a scoreless opening quarter, Arkansas running back Roland Sales took a pitch out around right end and ran 4 yards for a touchdown with 11:28 remaining in the second quarter. A 37-yard field goal by Is-mael Ordonez with 2:22 left before halftime completed the Razorbacks scoring.

Purdue anxious for new season

ATLANTA (AP) — Purdue's sophomore quarterback, Mark Herrmann, is confident that the Boilermakers' impressive Peach Bowl victory over Georgia Tech will vault the Big Ten school to national football promi-

Coach Jim Young is confident, too, but more cautious.

"This win puts us in an entirely new position," said Young, whose 17thranked Boilermakers ripped Georgia Tech 41-21 Monday to close with a 9-2-1 record. "Now we have established a winning program. We've got a real good football team now, but recruiting will be the key to having an outstanding one.'

BUT HERRMANN, who was voted the most valuable offensive player in the nationally televised contest, was more emphatic

"I can't wait to get started next year. Purdue is going to be a national power for at least two years. We've got a great shot at the Rose Bowl next year," said Herrmann, who led the Big Ten in passing as a freshman and was second this year.

The Big Ten champion automatically goes to the Rose Bowl. Purdue barely missed this year, dropping a 24-6 decision to champion Michigan for its only league loss.

The Boilermakers were awesome in the opening half against Tech, 7-5, taking a 34-7 lead as Wally Jones scored on runs of three and eight yards while Herrmann threw a 10yard touchdown pass to Raymond Smith and scored on a two-yard run. Johnny Macon added a one-yard GEORGIA TECH - playing without injured running back Eddie Lee Ivery, who rushed for 1,552 yards this year - switched to the wishbone to score in the opening half on a one-yard run by Rodney Lee. The Yellow Jackets added a pair of touchdowns in the closing minutes on touchdown passes of three and 31 yards by freshman quarterback Mike Kelley.

"It was just impossible to do what we normally do without Ivery," said Tech Coach Pepper Rodgers. "We used the wishbone because we felt we needed something with a different look. We weren't throwing effective-

Sophomore defensive tackle Calvin Clark of Purdue, a native of Atlanta, was voted the outstanding defensive player of the game. He had five solo tackles and set up Purdue's first two touchdowns in the opening quarter by recovering a fumble and forcing an

"WE GOT a few breaks early and we took advantage of them," said Herrmann, who passed for 166 yards on 12 of 24 pass completions and also ran for his first career TD. "Things just kept going our way," he said.
Young admitted the loss of Ivery

"I think all of us on the team hoped Eddie Lee would play," said Young, who substituted liberally and played all 95 members of his squad. "I'm sure he would have made a difference, but we were ready to play early. That first quarter might have been as well as we've played all season."

Pitt's Jackie Sherrill is on prowl for new offense

PITTSBURGH (AP) - University of Pittsburgh football Coach Jackie Sherrill, looking for new assistants and new players, says he's also in the market for a new offensive game

Sherrill decided to find a replacement for the quarterback option, which Pitt emphasized this season, after the Panthers lost 30-17 to North Carolina State Saturday in the Tan-

"We'll probably go to a fullback set," said Sherrill. "We will look for a stronger running game inside." Sherrill, when he goes on the road recruiting high school football players in the weeks ahead, will be looking for several new assistants. Pitt's defensive coordinator, Jimmy Johnson, is expected to take several assistants with him when he begins as head coach at Oklahoma

Meanwhile, Panther quarterback Rick Trocano, the key to the run-orpass option play, was sacked five times and intercepted three times by the Wolfpack.

"What was the problem?" Trocano said. "North Carolina State was the problem. They came to play. Put it this way: They were ready for us."

The Panthers entered the post-season game ranked No. 16 in the nation among big college teams. North Carolina State was not among the top

But the Wolfpack's All-American running back Ted Brown punched through Pitt's usually tough defense for 126 yards on 28 carries.

Live mike backfires on TV crew

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) - The innovative broadcasting technique of placing a microphone at the sidelines during a football game backfired at the Fiesta Bowl game between UCLA and Arkansas Monday.

Broadcaster Mike Haffner was on the UCLA sideline and approached Coach Terry Donahue immediately after an apparent interception by the Bruins. Haffner first set the stage, saying he would try to listen in as the Bruins' coach, who was talking with a player, sent in a play.

As Haffner pointed his microphone toward Donahue, the officials nullified the interception because of a UCLA penalty. At that moment with Haffner's microphone pointed at him, Donahue uttered a two-word expletive. Haffner quickly withdrew his microphone and NBC's coverage returned to the game action.

Donahue and Haffner were roomates at UCLA.

EX-PRO star John Brodie, who was part of NBC's broadcast booth crew, Yepremian kick) Hou-Wilson 13 pass from Pastorini then said, "That first play sounds like Hou-FG Fritsch 35 Hou-Campbell 1 run (Fritsch kick) Mia-Safety, Pastorini ran out of end a lulu."

. Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz also was wired with a live microphone during the game and the coverage included taped Christmas Carols sung by players from both teams during breaks in

"I think this is unfortunate, because I know Terry," said Don Ohlmeyer, NBC's executive producer for sports, who was at the game. "Something like that can happen when you use live mikes. These guys are under a tremendous amount of pressure. I wouldn't want Terry to be portrayed poorly because of it.' Ohlmeyer said the technique of using live microphones in sideline at all. coverage is risky.

Terry contends Zebras deserved MVP award

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — There wasn't a lot of joy in Sun Devil Stadium following the eighth Fiesta Bowl on Christmas Day, Fact is, there were a pair of unhappy head coaches.

"Everybody says a tie is like kissing your sister," said Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz, whose eighth-ranked Razorbacks let a 10-0 halftime lead slip away and wound up in a 10-10 tie with UCLA in the first football meeting ever between the schools. "I guess it's better than kissing your brother.

"There's no way a tie is rewarding. I'm sure UCLA feels the same way There ought to be a sudden death playoff in bowl games. It's a shame there was no winner."

UCLA COACH Terry Donahue had another reason for being upset - the game officials.

"On the game, I felt there were two excellent teams squaring off," said Donahue. "But I think the most valuable player award should go to the officials. They were as poor as I've had experience with.

"I know I'm not allowed to say anything about them, but I'm going to say it anyway," added Donahue. "There were three holding penalties that were terrible. If the officials were here (in the locker room) I'd give them a piece of my mind right

The underdog Bruins, rated 15th nationally, surprised the 55,227 fans at Sun Devil Stadium and a national television audience by starting seldom-used senior Steve Bukich at quarterback. Two-year starter Rick Bashore, a junior, wasn't called upon

Bukich said he knew he would be starting after the Bruins dropped a 17-10 decision to Southern Cal in their regular-season finale last month. Donahue said the decision was made a week ago.

"THE REASON I didn't announce it was I didn't want to put any undue pressure on Steve or Rick," said Donahue. "The reasons for starting Steve were multi-faceted. He's a five-year senior and has had a lot of major disappointments at UCLA.

"I felt I owed it to him. Bukich paid his dues, and this is no deference to Bashore.

Bashore was gracious, saying, "Steve's a senior and deserved it. I knew a week ago I wasn't starting. I wasn't disappointed.' Some of the Arkansas players expressed disappointment over the

"No one likes a tie," said running back Ben Cowins, the leading career ground-gainer in Arkansas history. 'We didn't lose but it's disappointing not to win. UCLA deserves credit. They defensed me very well."

Cowins, who became the second player in Southwest Conference history to rush for over 1,000 yards in three seasons, gained 89 yards on 24 carries Monday.

"I REALLY think we could have played better but I'm still proud of the way we played," said defensive tackle Jimmy Walker, selected as the defensive player of the game. "I don't like the tie but we have to live with "You have to give credit to UCLA. They had an outstanding team, too. Their backs and probably the best we've played against, except maybe our running backs." UCLA senior James Owens, who gained 121 yards on 17 carries, was named the game's outstanding offensive player. "I was just that far from breaking the big one a couple of times," he said. "Either I was going too fast to make a good cut or when I slowed down and tried to cut it was too severe and I went down."

Three-time All-America linebacker Jerry Robinson completed his brilliant career at UCLA. He was credited with two tackles and 13 assists.

"Jerry Robinson is the type of player who comes along every 25 years or so," said Donahue.

Robinson praised the Razorbacks, saying, "Their entire backfield is exceptionally quick and their quarterback (Ron Calcagni) is outstanding. They were just as good as any backfield we faced this year.

"I'm pleased with the way we played, especially the second half. They're a fine football team. It's a nice feeling we played them equal. We didn't give up.

AP Sports Writer And now, for a holiday fable:

Once upon a time, there was a football league. And in this league there were 28 teams of assorted sizes and shapes. Some came from tiny, map-dot towns like Green Bay, Wis., and Tampa Bay, Fla. Some represented big cities like New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. And some carried the names of whole states or sections of the country like Minnesota and New England. The one thing these 28 teams had in common was their level of efficiency. All of them were

This was a result of something called parity, although some people insisted on calling it parody. The league loved parity because it meant that every week, every team had a chance to win. And that was a very nice situation for teams who had worked long and hard at developing a

SO, ALL through the 1978 football season, the people who operated the league chortled as the longtime losers scored upset after upset. "Look at that," said the league's proprietors. "On any given Sunday, any team can beat any other

Then it came time for the playoffs, and parity played a trick on the league. It refused to go

During the regular season, it was fine to have hopeless New Orleans beat powerful Los Angeles and bumbling Baltimore bop division champion New England. That, after all, is how parity works. But in the playoffs, it was time for the league's top teams to assert themselves in order to assure a first-rate matchup for the ultimate contest, that game of games, the one with the Roman numerals.

But they didn't. A strange turn of events occurred in the playoffs. Parity ruled and in every game, the underdog won. And so goes the

—DURING A typhoon that struck Los Angeles two minutes before kickoff and lasted until two minutes after the final gun, Minnesota edged the Rams 2-0: The winning points were scored when Jim Marshall, who celebrated his 41st birthday a day earlier, tackled Pat Haden in the end zone. The Golden Age Society, Marshall's guests at the game, cheered wildly.

-At Dallas, Steve Bartkowski threw a 95-yard touchdown pass on the final play of the game and ex-bartender Tim Mazzetti kicked the extra point with no time left on the clock as Atlanta edged the Cowboys 21-20 in yet another ho-hum finish for the Falcons.

-Dan Pastorini threw away his crutches, cast and flak jacket and passed for 300 yards as Houston defeated New England 14-10. There was considerable confusion on the Patriots' bench when Coach Chuck Fairbanks, waving a Colorado football brochure, left early to chase after a high school prospect. -Denver advanced with a 24-21 victory over Pittsburgh when quarterback Norris Weese chased a messenger from the sidelines off the field and called his own play for the winning

BUT THAT was only the start. Next came the championship games.

-It was 10 degrees below zero and there were two feet of snow on the field at Minnesota. The Falcons, wearing galoshes instead of cleats, simply wore down the Vikings, winning 3-0 on Mazzetti's field goal. After the game, the bartender stirred hot toddies in the dressing room for his teammates.

-In the other title game at Denver, Houston Coach Bum Phillips had a brilliant stroke of strategy. He dressed all the Oilers in orange and the Broncos couldn't pick them out from the fans, who all wore that same color. By the time Denver found them, the Oilers had scored a 21-17

And that's how it came to pass that, in this fable, Atlanta and Houston played for the championship of the entire world.

The contest was named Parity Bowl I. Needless to say, it ended in a tie.

14,000 Husker fans descend on Orange Bowl

MIAMI (AP) - The Fischer family of Lincoln, Neb., is in town, part of a contingent of around 14,000 Nebraskans who will be descending on Miami for the New Year's Orange Bowl football game between Nebraska and Oklahoma.

There's patriarch Cletus, a former Midland (Texas) High School coach, an assistant coach who played halfback for Nebraska in the late 1940s; eldest son Pat, another assistant coach; younger sons Tim and Dan, both players on the Cornhusker team, and an array of Fischers who will lend moral

Was any thought ever given to attending another

"Oh, I suppose there has been some kind of pressure (to attend Nebraska)," says Cletus. "But there haven't been any regrets either. We've been associated with a great football tradition, with great fan support."

NEBRASKA WILL be counting on that fan support against Oklahoma, which arrived here Monday night and will begin practices Tuesday.

"We were hoping to play Penn State for the national championship, but I guess the next-best thing is to play Oklahoma," said Tom Osborne, oach of the sixth-ranked Cornhuskers.

'We've accepted it," said Nebraska athletic director Bob Devaney, "Nobody can do anything about it

The Huskers defeated Oklahoma 17-14 Nov. 11 in Lincoln, and two days later the Orange Bowl Committee selected Nebraska as the Big Eight's representative in the postseason game.

But Nebraska then lost its next game to Missouri, wound up the season at 9-2 and thus sacrificed its chance to meet Penn State in the Orange Bowl for the national championship. That's when Oklahoma, 10-1, re-emerged as an Orange Bowl-bound team.

DEVANEY SAID about 14,000 Nebraska fans would descend on Miami this week, hoping that the season's rematch becomes a rerun.

Osborne said he would allow his players to "combine business with pleasure." "We'll sort of turn them loose the first few days, and then as the game approaches, they should concentrate on the business at hand. I don't lock up the players; I never have. I don't believe in it.'

Francis loves those film reruns

ATLANTA (AP) - Wallace Francis spent Christmas Day watching

Over and over again, wide receiver Francis looked at the films of the Atlanta Falcons' latest miracle victory, a 14-13 defeat of the Philadelphia Eagles on Sunday in the first National Football League playoff game in Atlanta's history.

"I'm just enjoying the victory," said Francis, who caught the winning touchdown pass for the fortunate Falcons and finished with six catches for 135 yards.

"To open up the paper and read about the game and to look at the films is just like opening up a Christ-

FRANCIS MAY not have much time to enjoy the holiday feeling. The stroke of midnight for the Cinderella Falcons looms no further away than Saturday's visit to Texas Stadium to play the Dallas Cowboys, the defending Super Bowl champs.

The winner of the Atlanta-Dallas game advances to the NFC championship match against the winner of Sunday's Los Angeles-Minnesota clash.

"We probably don't have the athletes to compete with Dallas," Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett said, echoing what seems to be the general opinion. "But, we'll show up. You never can tell what will happen."

Indeed, it is not easy to predict the course of any Falcons game.

The Philadelphia game was just the latest in a series of notable finishes, although it nearly fell into the category of the premature miracle.

The Eagles were up 13-0 in the fourth quarter and moving deep into Falcons territory when Mike Hogan fumbled and Atlanta recovered on the STEVE BARTKOWSKI marched the Falcons down the field, hitting four passes for 92 yards, including a 19-yard scoring play to Jim Mitchell with 4:56 to play. Francis made a key 49-yard reception, stealing the ball from defender John Sanders as the two fell to the turf.

After the kickoff, the Atlanta defense stopped the Eagles cold. From the Eagle 37, Bartkowski threw a strike to Francis, who fell backward into the end zone with the ball. Tim Mazzetti, a former Philadelphia Eagle and former bartender, kicked the winning point with 1:39 left.

There was still time for a reciprocal miracle. The Eagles moved to the Falcons 15 with 17 seconds left. Mike Michel, who had missed an extra point earlier, lined up to try a 34-yard field goal. He kicked it straight and strong, but not through the goal

"I just missed it," said Michel, a punter who was pressed into service after an injury to place kicker Nick Mike-Mayer. "I usually hook it. I kept waiting for this one to hook, but it

"Teams would come into town knowing they would beat us, then go home and laugh about it. We had no friends in the whole city. Even my dog would bite me when I got home.'

The Miami Dolphins, meanwhile, were out of the Super Bowl picture again.

Bobby Jones has added another dimension to the Philadelphia 76ers, a team that always had the offensive firepower but occasionally approached defense as an afterthought.

'We've got some defensive-minded people now," says guard Doug Collins of the 76ers. "We're playing both ends of the court. It makes a difference."

Jones, who came to Philadelphia in the big off-season trade that sent George McGinnis to Denver, harassed New York's Bob McAdoo into 5-for-14 shooting as the 76ers trounced the New York Knicks 109-94 Monday before a capacity crowd of 19,571 at Madison Square Garden and a national television audience.

JONES' AGGRESSIVE defense has rubbed off on his new teammates. The swarming Sixers limited New York to 30 percent shooting in the first half on 13-for-43 as they established a 45-32 lead and New York never recovered. Philadelphia led by as many as 23 points in the third period and the Knicks came no closer than 10 after

"We were the aggressors out there defensively," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham. "When we do that, we are a real good team."

"We know we can win," said forward Julius Erving, Philadelphia's offensive leader with 22 points including dazzling dunks to open each half. "Our defense is much more effective. Last year we were more explosive offensively, but this year we are more solid all-around."

Running back Johnny "Ham" Jones, defensive end Dwight Jefferson and defensive back Glenn Blackwood were the only starters for Texas Saturday who were seniors, although another key player, kicker-punter Russell Erxleben, is also a senior.

Jones was voted the outstanding back of the 44th Sun Bowl, Jefferson earned the outstanding lineman honor, Blackwood was one of the Longhorns' leading tacklers and intercepted a pass, and Erxleben's fine punting denied Maryland good field position throughout the afternoon.

Jones rushed for a game-high 104 yards and scored one touchdown to team with the other two Jones' boys in the explosive Texas backfield to overwhelm the Terrapins. A.J. "Jam" Jones, a freshman running sensation who appears destined for a great career at Texas, rolled up 100 yards and scored twice, while junior wide receiver Johnny "Lam" Jones carried the ball once for a seven-yard TD scamper and caught two passes, including one on a 29-yard touchdown play.

The loss was the worst for the Terps since 1976, and they were shut out for the first time since 1970. Both teams finished the regular season with 9-3 records. The Longhorns went into the Sun Bowl ranked 14th while the Terps carried a No. 13

'Sense of mission' pushes senior jogger through paces

By JOHN KENDALL The Los Angeles Times

LOMA LINDA, Calif. - At an age when most old folks settle for a rocking-chair life-style, 82-year-old Hulda Crooks is hiking up Mt. Whitney or running in the Senior Olympics.

The spry great-grandmother has climbed 14,494-foot Mr. Whitney, the highest point in the contiguous 48 states, 17 times since she first challenged the mountain in 1962 — at age

She took up jogging a dozen years ago, at age 70, after reading run-forlife articles as part of her job as a Loma Linda University research assistant in the school of health.

Since starting to hike Whitney, she has backpacked the 212-mile John Muir Trail in five summer segments, descended to the bottom of the Grand Canyon and crossed the Sierra 80 miles from west to east.

Earlier this year, she ran again in Loma Linda's Orange Grove Marathon, completing the quarter-marathon (61-2 miles) in 1 hour, 28 minutes and 55 seconds and beating her time last year by nearly 6 minutes.

In June she ran 1,500 meters in 10 minutes, 58 seconds, setting a world standard for the 80-to-85 age group in the Senior Olympics stage at Irvine,

What makes Hulda Crooks runand hike-involves not only diet, excerise and an austere life-style but also her sense of mission. What she calls her "high-altitude evangelism.

She is a lactovegetarian and Seventh-day Adventist, who hopes to be an inspiration to young people by serving as an example not only of the benefits of religion but also of health

"Good health doesn't always happen by accident," she says. "Some-times you have to work at it."

Mrs. Cooks has good reason to know all about that. She wasn't always the 5-foot-1, 115-pound phenomenon with hardy good health that sometimes surprises ever her.

"For about 25 years, I wasn't worth much," she recalls. "I was tired and I was nervous.

But that is getting ahead of her story. Little Hulda was not so tiny during part of her girlhood on a farm in Canada's Saskatchewan province, where her German parents raised a large family.

At 16 she weighed 160 pounds and her oldest brother kidded her that by the time she was 20 she would be as tall lying on her side as standing up. We had lots of meat meat. We had meat twice a day at least. My father also had a country store. I had access to all the candy I could suff.

"Ate three big meals a day and candy and peanuts between meals. I really stuffed it. All I knew about diet was to eat. It was no wonder I gained weight."

Her life and habits changed utterly shortly before she was 18 when she became a Seventh-day Adventist and a vegetarian and left the farm. She had the equivalent of a fifth-grade education.

"My father was not interested in a girl getting an education," she recalls. "Nor in my being an Advencompleting high school in Canada and two years at Pacific Union College, north of San Francisco, in about eight

But even bursting good health and stamina developed in farm work and a vigorous tomboy life with three older brothers was not enough to sustain her.

After coming to Loma Linda University in 1923 to study dietetics, her health broke.

After missing school for a year, she resumed her university studies, graduating in 1927 at age 31 and marrying Samuel Crooks, a medical student who had just completed his training.

Mrs. Crooks credits her husband, who taught anatomy at Loma Linda University for 23 years, with minimizing her household duties and pushing her outdoors. "He didn't tell me what to do," she says. "He was an Irishman, and he was very clever. He enticed, encouraged and led me out. "Whenever there was an occasion for a gift, like Christmas or a birthday or something, it would be another nature book to get me out.

"They were not books that you sit in a rocking chair and read. They were study books he would say, 'Improve thing I found of interest or any name stopping. of a plant that I found, he was always interested.'

They camped together, but Dr. Crooks never backpacked. He had a heart condition and died in 1950. He was 58; and they had been married 23

"Alone, I carried on as best I could and as I knew he had expected me to," Mrs. Crooks once wrote. "My familiarity with nature and my love for the outdoors helped tranquilize my emotions.

'Knowing this, friends frequently invited me to go to the mountains with them. I have lost track of the number of times I climbed San Gorgonio. Probably 20.

Gradually, her health improved. When she was invited to try Mt. Whitney for the first time in 1962, she had been climbing and camping on 11,502-foot San Gorgonio. On that first hike up Whitney, Mrs. Crooks recalls passing a man leaning against a rock. A bit higher up there was a younger man who confided to her party that his friend was 46 and was having trouble making it. After she started jogging, she no longer had to prepare for Mt. Whitney with Gorgonio trips. But developing the stamina to run was hard.

"I began running across my backyard," she says. "My renter nearly cut his face shaving when he looked out the bathroom window and saw me running.

"When I first started, I would be out of breath if I ran across my backyard and back again. I was puffing, Then, pretty soon, I could do it two times and three times.

"By the time I could run back and forth a half-dozen times, I thought I was really going places, and I stepped it off and estimated the distance as about a sixth of a mile.

"So, I took to the road then. I couldn't jog more than a block before I felt like I was short of breath. I didn't know enough then to walk and your mind. Improve your mind.' Any- before I was doing half a mile without

After I had been going for several months, when I tried a mile, it didn't seem to make much difference. But now I walk and jog alternately two to three miles about six days a week." She has a rule, of sorts, about exer-

"Exercise you enjoy does you more good than exercise that you do because you think that you have to do it. You say, 'I'm going to do this. I have to do it. I'm going to do it if it kills me.' And maybe it will if you do it that

After her husband died, Mrs. Crooks went to work for Dr. Mervyn G. Hardinge, dean of Loma Linda University school of health. She still works for him part-time as a volun-

She thinks it's important for her to be active and have an interest in life. Her lifelong interest in religion is a mainstay, she believes, both for a peaceful mind and good health.

"When you have faith in a supreme power that you believe is love and kindness and justice and has a care for you, you're not under tensions that people are that don't know where they're going or what's going to happen to them.

"You develop a habit of trusting. Whatever comes to you in life, you feel that it's part of character development. You learn patience, hopefully, and tolerance. I think that to look at things hopefully and develop a spirit of gratitude is very important.

'Good health is not just a matter of diet or exercise. It's a way of life, and I think in my church affiliation I have

Mrs. Crooks, the runner, is not easily daunted. On a recent rainy morning when the university track was too muddy to run on, she walked around the bottom of a hill about a mile to get

"Then," she says, "I went up and down the fire escape 10 times. There jog alternately. I would stop, then jog are 40 steps up. I went up and down 10 again. It took me about six months times in 9 1-2 minutes."

DETROIT (AP) - More than in any year before, the nation's automakers in 1978 and the result was tumultuous - the start of a change in the face of

For the first time in 1978, automakers' cars not only had to be cleaner and safer but also had to go bizarre and unexpected ways.

It was a year that saw one company recall an straight year. entire year's car production and another indicted for homicide. The president of Ford became the president of Chrysler, which, meanwhile, sold one-fifth of itself to Peugeot.

A SEWING MACHINE executive became the president of American Motors. The millionaire chairman of Ford was accused of mishandling company funds. Volkswagens were assembled in Pennsylvania by ex-steel workers.

'There are pressures we've never had before, so we have reactions we've never had before," says a Ford analyst. "It's a simple reflection of an entire shift in social and economic realities.'

Through it all, Americans bought more than 15 million new cars and trucks — the most ever — as the nation's bellweather industry fooled many analysts with a show of resiliency from its mid-winter sales

Auto executives pointed to that strength and took strong exception to warnings of a recession and lower auto sales in 1979.

It was a strong year especially for the domestic industry, whose new small cars made inroads against the imports. But the bigger sales pie was carved unevenly, as No. 1 General Motors and No. 2 Ford increased their dominance of the domestic market — now approaching 90 percent of all sales — at the expense of No. 3 Chrysler and No. 4

To industry executives, 1978 showed conflicting moves by the government. While the Federal Trade Commission pushed ahead with its antitrust probe of GM and Ford dominance of the industry, a study sponsored by another federal agency warned that regulation from Washington threatens the health of their only U.S. competitors - Chrysler and AMC.

THE MOST FAR-REACHING of those regulations took effect this year, one that forces fundamental changes in Detroit's products. It required each company's fleet of cars to get an average of 18 miles a gallon. The figure is 19 mpg in 1979 and climbs to

In addition to satisfying the fuel-economy requirement and federal demands for cleaner and safer cars. U.S. automakers wrestled with a complicated set of world economic and trade developments that are changing the underpinnings of the industry.

It all generates tension in board rooms, anxiety in the engineering labs, nervousness among stockholders - and news. Such as the top job-shuffle story of the year, the fall and rise of Lee A. Iacocca.

One analyst suggests that Iacocca's firing from Chairman Henry Ford II was a natural outgrowth of general industry tension, much of which was at Ford

"If we were back in the simple old days, hell, Iacocca might still be here. If a family is stable, there's less chance of divorce, right?"

By November, Iacocca had a new set of wheels: the presidency of Chrysler. And his hiring there was precipitated by another kind of tension, Chrysler's red ink - partly caused by those regulatory de-

IN OTHER WAYS, Ford struggled through a bittersweet 75th anniversary year that saw record sales of $31.5 billion through September, with record-setting performance by its new Ford Fairmont but a severe beating in its public image.

Ford's troubles were typified by a recall of about 1.5 million pre-1977 Pinto sedans because of an allegedly unsafe fuel tank, a process that could cost the No. 2 automaker up to $40 million. Although later Pintos are not under attack, sales of the fuel-stingy Pinto slumped as a result. That added to Ford's expected difficulty in meeting the mandated 19 mpg average for the 1979 cars it sells. When three teenagers were killed in a fiery Pinto crash in Indiana, a local grand jury indicted the automaker for homicide on grounds it recklessly designed the fuel tank. Pretrial motions continue. Other safety-defect investigations abounded at Ford. The Justice Department probed a suspected overseas bribe by a Ford subsidiary, a stockholder suit accused Henry Ford of mishandling corporate funds, and a strike at Ford of Britain drained fourth-quarter profits. Meanwhile, GM Vice Chairman Richard Terrell surprised the industry by announcing his early retirement - a rare move in GM's orderly corpo-

AND THE FBI BEGAN an investigation of a Buick plant in Flint, Mich. after inside reports that GM had altered anti-pollution equipment to satisfy a spot assembly-line check by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. GM denied wrongdoing. The investigation continues.

At the same time, GM managed record profits of $2.5 billion through September and will sell more cars and trucks this year than ever.

Chrysler had recall difficulties, too. And the No. 3 U.S. automaker didn't have Ford's healthy bank account to comfort itself.

Chrysler car sales slumped and it lost nearly $250 million through September. The safety of its new front-drive Omni and Horizon subcompacts - trendsetting cars whose success is crucial to the company was attacked by Consumers Union. Despite a federal stamp of approval, the sales are below Chrysler's hopes for the twin cars.

Most of Chrysler's Aspen and Volare compacts, once strong sellers, were recalled at least three

Its difficulties prompted Chrysler to dramatically pull in its horns, selling its British, French and Spanish subsidiaries to Peugeot-Citroen. Overnight, Chrysler dropped from the world's third-biggest auto company to No. 8. The French automaker Peugeot became No. 3, 15-percent owned by Chrysler.

IN DECEMBER, CHRYSLER said scattered plant closings and layoffs would continue in January to trim big inventories of unsold cars.

Little AMC recalled its entire fleet of 1976 cars and Jeeps - amounting to more than 310,000 vehicles because of a defect in pollution control equipment. It also made some of the year's biggest news, even as its car sales slumped below 2 percent of the domestic

The smallest U.S. automaker announced that it and French automaker Renault had tentatively agreed to join forces. They hope to build Renault cars at AMC's Kenosha, Wis., assembly plant, and share sales forces for AMC Jeeps in Europe and distribution of the Renault Le Car by AMC dealers To replace himself as president, Meyers tapped a

The deal — one that would give Renault a ready the federal government was a back-seat driver for U.S. dealer network and win AMC some much-needed technological and financial resources - still hasn't been consummated. But the two companies

Meanwhile, Roy D. Chapin Jr. retired as chairman farther on a gallon of fuel. The pressures of and Gerald C. Meyers completed his rise to the top. new government regulations were felt not only in the Chairman Meyers quickly instituted some plant smaller, lighter cars themselves, but in sometimes efficiencies, and AMC, with record Jeep sales, ended fiscal 1978 narrowly in the black for the second

Singer executive with earlier Ford marketing ties, W. Paul Tippett Jr.

For the industry as a whole, the year started on a nervous note as blizzards and customer resistance to some models made for poor sales. But by May the

THE INDUSTRY IS EXPECTED to finish 1978 with sales of 15.4 million domestic and imported cars and trucks, the most ever and up 3.5 percent from last year. A smaller share of car sales - about 17.7 percent compared with 184 percent in 1977 - will be

All aboard, folks

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) -Roy Morley's wife got part of a vintage train set for Christmas. He gave her a full-size caboose from the Salt Lake, Garfield & Western Railway.

The black-and-orange caboose arrived at their home on the bed of a semi-truck. It goes with a brass key engraved "SLGWRY" that Morley gave his wife Sherrie several weeks

"I've been in a state of shock ever since," she said, adding that husband Roy had always been "an original gift-giver." The Salt Lake, Garfield & Western was in its heyday in the late 1800s. The defunct line used to run passengers from Salt Lake to Saltair, a resort on the shores of the Great Salt Lake.

When the Morleys decide on a final resting place for the ca-boose, it will be placed on a short stretch of track to become the family gathering place - and also a neighborhood conversa-

This afternoon's stock market Stock market mixed

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market was mixed today, losing the momentum of last week's rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 in dustrials, up nearly 21 points in the four sessions before the Christmas holiday, dropped back 1.21 to 807.26 by noontime today

Gainers held a 7-5 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchangelisted issues

News that the consumer price index rose 0.5 percent in November, for, its smallest increase since July, helped give the market a lift late last week But today some analysts were warning that any easing in the pace of inflation would probably prove to be only temporary

And the latest increase in the prime lending rate, as expected, began to spread in the banking industry. Several banks across the country raised their basic rates on blue-chip loans from 111/2 to 113/4 percent, following a similar action last week by New York's Chemical Bank.

Burlington Industries led the active list, up 1/8 at 17. A 260,500-share block traded at that price.

International Business Machines climbed 3/4 to 2953/4 in active trading The stock stood at 271 a week ago before the company announced a dividend increase and plans for a 4 for-1 stock split.

The NYSE's composite index rose 08 to 53.83, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was unchanged at 150.85.

Volume on the Big Board came to 9.15 million shares as of noontime.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Billowing fog that diverted an estimated 400 airliners from Los Angeles Airport over the Christmas weekend continued to disrupt holiday travel at the normally handles about 100,000 passengers a day. Airport operations spokesman John Smith said Christmas Day traffic at the airport had been "up and down like a yo-yo with intermittent incom-

Maxims on inflation need careful review

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Because inflation will continue in 1979, perhaps accompanied by a recession, almost anyone can benefit from reviewing some of the fundamentals of survival in an unstable economic society.

Best known of these is the maxim that money borrowed during times of inflation is paid back in cheaper dollars. Almost everyone has heard it. Millions practice it; the debt statistics documment it.

There is little reason to quibble with the concept. It is true: so long as inflation persists, the buying power of money decreases. The 1967 dollar now gets you 50 cents worth of goods and services.

But be concerned about the application. Millions of Americans are now heavily in debt for cars, appliances, homes and the like. Installment debt consumes about 16 percent of takehome pay, close to a record. What happens to the ability to repay during a recession? A recession that, should it come, would undoubtedly result in rising unemployment, and almost certainly in a slowing of personal income growth.

The message for 1979, therefore, is to be wary of overloading oneself with debt. Again, it is true that you might repay in cheaper dollars. But any sensible person must also ask in 1979: Will I be able to repay?

Two other inflation maxims also should be reviewed in the interests of common sense and financial securi-

The first: You cannot win by saving money at interest rates less than the inflation rate. Second: You can save by spending. There is truth in both assertions. For 1979, there could be passbook accounts actually lost money. They earned interest, but at a maximum of 5.25 percent. Inflation raged at about 7.25 percent.

During this current year, many holders of bank or savings association

The net effect, of course, was a 2 percent loss of buying power on such savings accounts, a perfect example of how inflation distorts incentives and rewards. Better, it was said, to spend rather than save. By spending, the individual in effect decides to ride with inflation rather than battle it. Because of inflation, the purchased item rises in price. It's happened with houses, used cars and certain other items. Many people have actively practiced this tactic, and you don't have to search hard for the evidence. Cars sales have boomed. The homebuying market now includes singles and two-home owners. Art objects are in. But will it all continue? The year 1979 could be a watershed, marking the turn toward more stable economics and values. By 1980, prices could be stabilizing, some even falling, rather than rising relentlessly. If that condition comes to pass, the rewards will go to those with cash. True, they might have lost money on those savings accounts, but as stability returns they have the money to

Match that condition against the individual who spent all his or her money trying to keep pace with inflation, and now has nothing left with which to pick up bargains that always appear during a downturn. Or against the individual who spent heavily, maintaining little or no passbook savings, and then, because of unemployment, cannot maintain the payments.

The point: The year 1979 could be a year of change. It might pay to think again about how you apply the advice you've been hearing during the past

Police searches, press freedom burning topics

By W. DALE NELSON

WASHINGTON (AP) - A few minutes after 8 a.m. on March 17, 1962, a policeman reached into a washing machine in the cellar of a Baltimore home and fished out a dark-colored coat and a pair of trousers. His action led to an armed robbery conviction, a landmark Supreme Court ruling on police seizures and, indirectly, the current debate in Congress about whether and how to curb the search powers of police.

The controversy in Congress stems from a more recent decision of the nation's highest court upholding an unannounced search by police of the files of a student newspaper at Stanford University.

News media representatives asked Congress for legislation that would overturn the decision, saying such searches could lead to disclosure of confidential material which, in turn, would dry up news sources.

At hearings before a Senate subcommittee last Tuesday, the only argument was about how far Congress should go. The Carter administration has proposed outlawing surprise searches of newsrooms and other writing-oriented work areas only. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and others have introduced bills that would offer the same protection to all citizens except those suspected of crimes.

MEANWHILE, STATE district attorneys are expected to renew their opposition to any restrictions, arguing that they would hamper investigations and that the danger of police rummaging through newsrooms is

"The general consensus of the board of directors of the National District Attorneys Association is that there is no need for remedial legislation," said Paul Perito, the association's special counsel.

The question is expected to be the principal press freedom issue in the 96th Congress which convenes Jan. 15. Many both in and out of the news media, however, argue that it goes beyond the concerns of the press and affects privacy rights of all citizens.

The clothing seized in Baltimore matched descriptions of that worn by an armed bandit who had fled a cab company office with $363.

The man of the house was arrested. In a trial in which the clothing was evidence, he was found guilty. The Supreme Court upheld his conviction in 1967. In doing so, the court threw out the age-old rule that police could not search a person's belongings for "mere evidence" but only for stolen goods, contraband or instruments such as a gun that had been used in a

THIS PAVED the way for the court's May 31 ruling in the Stanford Daily case.

On April 9, 1971, demonstrators seized the admininstrative offices of the university hospital. When police tried to eject them, nine officers were injured.

On April 11, the Daily carried photographs of the demonstration. The next day, four policemen came to the paper's office with a warrant saying

A federal judge and the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals both ruled that since no one at the paper was suspected of a crime, authorities should have tried to obtain the evidence through a subpoena, allowing the newspaper to contest such a subpoena in court. THE SUPREME COURT reversed in a 5-3 decision. Justice Byron White, for the majority, said search warrants are directed at things, not persons. He said it makes no difference whose property the things are on as long as police have reason to believe the things will be useful as evidence.

Justice Potter Stewart, dissenting, said the Constitution singles out the press for special protection - more, he said, than the offices of a doctor or a bank. Justice Thurgood Marshall

Justice John Paul Stevens, in his dissent, called the decision an "offensive intrusion on the privacy of the ordinary citizen." Fifteen bills were introduced in Congress in response to the ruling. Some covered only the media, some everybody. The administration on Dec. 13 unveiled its own proposal, which goes further than the congressional bills in some ways but not as far in others.

It would establish an almost absolute no-search rule protecting journalists' notes, photographs, tapes and drafts of stories. Searches would be permitted only if a journalist was suspected of a crime or if immediate seizure of evidence might be necessary to prevent someone from being killed or seriously hurt.

This is more far-reaching than the Bayh bill and most others, which would permit searches if there was reason to believe the evidence was about to be destroyed or hidden. Unlike the Bayh bill, however, the administration proposal applies only to journalists and others preparing material for dissemination to the pub-

PHILIP HEYMANN, the assistant attorney general who oversees criminal matters, said there are constitutional and law enforcement problems with a broader approach but the administration is still studying it. Bayh has suggested that one possible compromise might be a bill that would cover doctors and lawyers' offices also. The idea is to curb searches of places where records of many people may be found.

Whatever the outcome, Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Senate assistant majority leader, said last week, "the precise form of such a statute will take considerable time to draft and even longer to debate.'

"Hair dyes used over a prolonged period can serve as a primary irritant to the scalp, thusleading to a total loss of hair," he told delegates to a Human Hair Symposium. "The time required to produce baldness may vary from two to 20 years, depending on the frequency of applica-

Rhodesia plans launching major U.S. campaign

The Washington Post

E IT ... THAT'S NOT

T I MEANT!

ARDS

SALISBURY - Rhodesia is planning to launch a major lobbying campaign beginning in January to convince the U.S. Congress to lift economic sanctions on the beseiged country and recognize the elections scheduled in April for the establishment of a moderate, black majority government here.

With 75 percent of Rhodesia now under martial law and the guerrilla war closing in on the capital itself. white Rhodesian authorities appear to be counting heavily on making a diplomatic breakthrough with the United States to save the present white-led transitional government from military and political defeat. "Lets face it," said one high-ranking white government official, "Britain is a spent force and what really counts for us now is capitol hill."

Britain, the former colonial power here, has never accepted the white Rhodesians' unilateral delcaration of independence in 1965 that has led to the current political impasse and nationalist guerrilla war. Repeated Rhodesian efforts to reach a consitutional settlement and gain diplomatic recognition from various British governments ever since then all ended in

THE U.S. GOVERNMENT has always refused to recognize Rhodesia's independence, but there is a substantial faction in Congress now known to be extremely sympathetic to the Rhodesian cause and supportive of efforts here to establish a moderate black government in which whites would still exercise considerable economic and political power.

The Carter administration, together with the British Labor government, has been attempting since March to convene a peace conference attended by leaders of the Rhodesian government and the Africanand communist-backed nationalist guerrillas fighting to topple it. But Anglo-American diplomacy has so far failed to achieve this goal, leaving the United States in something of a dilemma and without a clear policy alter-

There is every indication that a major struggle will take place in the coming Congress between the Carter administration and supporters of Rhodesia, first over bypassing the economic sanctions imposed on this rebel country by the United Nations in 1965-66 and then over whether to recognize the April 20 elections which the nationalist guerrillas are certain to boycott.

Sources here and in Washington believe that two of the main factors in the Rhodesian lobbying campaign will be John Carbough, a top aide to the conservative Republican senator North Carolina, Jesse Helms, and Donald de Keiffer, the well-known lobbyist for the South African government in the United States.

IT IS NOT KNOWN for sure here whether de Keiffer has been officially hired by the Rhodesian government to lobby on its behalf on Capitol Hill, but he is known to have visited here in mid-October and met with other Americans living here and active in promoting the Rhodesian cause.

Rhodesian authorities seem extremely optimistic about the prospects of forcing the Carter administration to change its Rhodesia policy through a high-powered lobbying campaign in Congress.

Already, they feel the visit to the United States in October of Prime Minister Ian Smith and his three black colleagues in the ruling executive council here was a big step forward in selling the American public on Rhodesia and posturing for the forthcoming campaign.

While most American newspapers seem to have concluded that Smith gained little by his visit, strategists of Rhodesian foreign policy estimate it to have been "a 60 to 70 percent success.'

They list as postive gains in their effort to sway the American public and Congress Smith's agreement at the end of his two-week stay to attend a British-American sponsored peace conference "without precondi-

Holiday flutters

CHICAGO (AP) - Getting a flight to the warmer climes during the hectic Christmas season isn't always easy, particularly for a butterfly.

A couple in Gaylord, Mich., found an orange butterfly in their home last week, and they did what seemed natural - they booked it on a flight south.

The lepidopteran, cushioned in a cotton-lined jar, boarded a Seaco Airlines flight at Otsego County Airport in Michigan and arrived at O'Hare International Airport in search of a connect-

Seaco Airlines made arrangements for Butler Aviation to take on the winged passenger, but because Butler is a chartered airline, the butterfly would have had to wait in Chicago for at least another day or

However, an unidentified mechanic who works for Capital International Airlines of Smyrna, Tenn., offered to take the fluttering insect on a Braniff International flight to Dallas. That flight met a Continental Airlines flight to El Paso, where the mechanic said he would release it.

"It looks awfully sick and it hasn't been moving that much,' said Butler supervisor Jean Nikolai, who added that the butterfly seemed to perk up when the mechanic made his offer. "I'm tempted to say it was sitting up, but I don't think you can say that about a butterfly."

When the opponents bid game with only 17 high-card points South should suspect that they have a short suit here and there. To protect himself against a singleton diamond South should win the first trick in dummy with the king of diamonds.

Partner opens with one notrump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: S-KQ10983; H-743; D-8; C-742. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades. The hand would rate a jump to four spades your hearts or clubs were headed by the queen. Partner will probably pass two spades, but he will bid again if he had good spades and 17 or 18 points. If partner bids again, you will gladly bid four spades.

Speech available

A humorous, thought-provoking energy speech-comparing regulation of the oil industry to the demise of King Louis XIII whose doctors "cured" him to death-is available free in condensed, illustrated reprints from National Supply Company, world's largest manufacturer of oilfield drilling and production equipment.

A slide show version with choice of printed script or tape cassette also is available on loan basis for those wishing to use the presentation. Its non-promotional nature makes it easily adaptable to a variety of audiences.

Entitled, "The Operation Was a Success, But the patient died," the presentation was tested by Ted Rogers, president of National Supply Co., with a group of 120 high school journalists attending the company's annual Student Press Conference in

In a series of cartoon illustrations, the presentation reviews the medical treatment of Louis XIII, who fell mysteriously ill at the age of 42. His zealous personal physicians subjected him to more than 200 "cures," including bleeding, purging and dosing with remedies ranging from arsenic to extract of elephant dung. Although the physicians were extremely proud of their "remedies," Louis died from them.

Louis' plight is compared to that of America's energy problem and the "regulatory remedies" being prescribed by government officials.

"Some of us feel the cure may be worse than the disease," says Rogers. "We're afraid that economic regulations and controls are slowly strangling the heartbeat of national economic health.'

The purpose of the speech is to show non-industry audiences that regulations which appear reasonable on the surface are producing conquences which are bringing our economy to its Wendell W. Iverson of Midland announced location for a Grayburg project in Crockett County, 12 miles northwest of Ozona.

It is No. 1-47 Joe Bean, one location northeast of Grayburg gas production and one and three-eighths miles southwest of Grayburg oil production in the Donham field.

The 1,250-foot test is 524 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of section 47, block UV, GC&SF survey. Ground level elevation is 2,590

Discovery announced

1-226 Conoco-Brown-Bassett.

NEW ORLEANS - A significant natural gas discovery in Eugene Island Block 294 offshore Louisiana was announced jointly by Texaco Inc. and Tenneco Oil Co.

The well, which is approximately 145 miles suthwest of New Orleans and 65 miles from shore in 210 feet of water, flowed natural gas from tests of two zones.

The results obtained from this well and three others drilled in Block 294 prove the existence of sufficient reserves to justify installation of a production platform. Block 294 was acquired in the June 1977 federal lease sale for $41 million.

Drilling activity reaches 21-year high in 1978

By MAX B. SKELTON AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Encouraging and discouraging trends did a pretty good job of offsetting each other within the domestic petroleum industry in Oilmen say the outlook for 1979 is about the same.

Domestic oil and gas drilling operations reached a 21-year high in 1978 but, because of record demand, final year-end estimates were expected to show further declines in proved oil and gas reserves.

Production from Alaska's prolific Prudhoe Bay region leveled off at about 1.2 million barrels a day in the first full year of operations but output in the Lower 48 states recorded its eighth consecutive year of decline.

By December, there was evidence of the accuracy of earlier forecasts Prudhow Bay production would cause only temporary rollbacks in crude oil imports.

Early in the month, domestic refineries were once again processing more foreign crude oil than ever before. Runs of foreign crude exceeded 7.2 million barrels a day compared with the earlier record of 7.1 million in late July 1977, when Prudhoe Bay crude was just beginning to reach refineries.

The peak impact of Alaska's production came between January and May, when domestic refiners, for 19 consecutive weeks processed less than 6. million barrels of foreign crude a day.

The oil industry moved into 1978 with many uncertainties centering around the House-Senate conference committee deadlock over President Carter's National Energy Plan.

The debate was not resolved until Oct. 14, one day after a 207-206 House vote to consider the five separate bills as a single package, a vote that rescued a natural gas pricing compromise from possible defeat. Oilmen had contended Carter's proposals placed too much emphasis on taxes and controls without sufficient incentives to maximize domestic development and producti.

The final package signed by Carter in November provides for higher prices for new natural gas and gradual decontrol but some oilmen fear the pricing mechanism is so complex it will discourage instead of stimulate the search for new gas reserves.

Carter's crude-oil-equalization tax, designed to bring domestic crude oil to world price levels and create higher products prices to reduce demand, failed to obtain congressional approval but there was indication he may renew the fight in 1978. But consumer prices will continue to increase, regardless of the eventual fate of the crude-oil tax.

Domestic marketers say the impact of the OPEC action on U.S. cusomers will amount to from 2 to 3.5 cents a gallon by late 1978.

The OPEC action came as domestic refiners were negotiating on union demands for contract provisions that traditionally push products prices higher. Current contracts expire in early January. Despite the new pricing complexities, natural gas supplies appeared sufficient to cause no problems barring abnormally low January-February temperatures. In fact, surplus supplies were being reported in some intrastate market areas. One Texas intrastate system in mid-December reported a shut-in gas

surplus of 600 million cubic feet a day and asked state regulators to ease the paperwork required for making emergency sales to interstate mar-Part of such surplus supplies were being attributed to federal and state regulations aimed at forcing industrial natural gas users to switch to other fuels. There was some concern such a trend could cause higher gas prices for residential customers.

The new natural gas legislation extended federal price controls to intrastate markets. Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas promptly filed a suit challenging the constitutionality of some those provisions. The suit contends, in part, that producing states will be deprived of millions of dollars in revenues that would come to them under free market prices that exceed feder-

Tanker disaster in 1976 forces safety appraisal

By FRED BAYLES Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) - At dawn Dec. 15, 1976, the aging, 30,000-ton tanker Argo Merchant ran aground on Fishing Rip Shoal off Nantucket. It foundered eight days, then sank, leaving behind long oil slicks and nagging questions about maritime safety.

It was the nation's worst tanker spill; some 7.6 million gallons of oil, valued at $2.2 million, were lost. The disaster forced a reappraisal of the gigantic floating oil cans. Two years after the Argo Merchant incident, international maritime records indicate tanker losses still on the rise. But Coast Guard officials say new programs, including tougher inspections and a computerized 'rogues list," have made U.S. sea lanes safer.

'We have new regulations," says Capt. Lynn Hein, chief of marine safety at the Coast Guard's 1st District in Boston. "We have teeth in our inspections and we can force sailing delays. That makes believers of the owners.' In the cold winter of 1976-77, national attention was drawn to the question of tanker safety as oil was spilled and lives were lost in 12 major incidents off Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf ports.

The Coast Guard responded with programs aimed at weeding out the older, poorly maintained tankers from the hodge-podge of foreign-flag ships that carry eight million gallons of oil to U.S. ports each day. But while officials report a slight decline in tanker casualties and spills in U.S. waters, the rate is on the rise worldwide.

In 1976, the Coast Guard reported oil spills totaling 23.1 million gallons. The figure dropped to 17.6 million gallons in 1977. Final figures for 1978 have not been compiled. Worldwide, the trend is just the opposite. Arthur McKenzie of the Tanker Advisory Center in New York says international tanker losses rose from 204,000 tons of oil in 1976 to 241,000 tons so far this year, including the 228,000-ton spill from the supertanker Amoco Cadiz which broke up off the French coast.

"We don't think its getting better," says McKenzie. "Total losses are going up and oil spilled is going up."

But McKenzie says his records indicate that the safety record of U.S. registered tankers is far better than the international average. Following the Argo Merchant incident, the Coast Guard instituted its

Tanker Vessel Inspection, a program which requires foreign-flag vessels to submit to detailed checks of their structural soundness, firefighting and cargo handling equipment. 'Our goal is to give every tanker a bow-to-stern inspection at least once a year," says Lt. Peter Blaisdell, a Coast Guard information officer. 'The ship captains and owners I've talked to know their ships have to be better maintained or we can keep them tied up. And a delay can cost a tanker $40,000 a day.' At the time the Liberian-registered Argo Merchant went down, only ships carrying volatile cargos, like liquid natural gas, had to open their holds to safety inspectors. "The increased inspection program, with particular emphasis on foreign-flag vessels, has improved the quality of ships entering our waters," says William Benkert, president of the American Institute of Merchant Ships and a former Coast Guard admiral. "We have had some extensive activity in the international level on construction and design," he says. "I think everyone is more aware for the need his because of the accidents of the past."

Eighteen months ago, the Coast

Guard took another step at promoting safer sea lanes by instituting its Navigation Safety Regulations. Now all ships over 1,600 tons entering U.S. waters must carry radar, a gyrocompass, depth-finders and current coast-

All equipment must be tested — and the tests recorded - each time the ship re-enters U.S. waters. From January 1977 to June 1978 the Coast Guard made 3,427 inspections aboard 1,530 vessels. Some 1,800 citations were written for problems in ship operation or maintenance.

WASHINGTON - Norman Vincent Peale said it was a rejuvenation of the human spirit. Arthur Schlesinger Jr. called it the beginning of "a new epoch in the history of said it showed man can "soar as high and as far as his imagination may project." Ten Chritmases ago, bited the moon for the first time. It was an adventure that gripped mankind as nothing had before. Nobody could really know, but the National Aeronautics and Space Administration estimated that a billion people watched or listened as Frank Borman, James A. Lovell Jr. and William A. Anders circled the moon, seeing earth rise in the black sky like an indescribably beautiful agate marble.

Though it was only a preludge to a series of moon landings, Apollo-8 is the most unforgetable moment of the space

Its importance as a great engineering leap was overshadowed by its universal appeal as a human accomplishment, transcending all imaginable racial, political, economic and geographic barriers.

It was particularly poignant for Americans, because 1968 had been a year of such incredible turmoil that it would long be considered something of a fault line in the nation's development, like a scar where lightning has hit a tree.

It was no wonder that many saw in the flight of Apollo 8 a renewal, a new beginning. Hanoi had carried out the devastating Tet offensive that marked the beginning of the long inglorious end of the Vietnam War: North Korea had captured a U.S. intelligence ship at sea and imprisoned the 83 members of its crew; a presidential Commission on Civil Disorders had warned the country ward two societies, one black, one white - sepa-
