

Carter trying to avoid mandatory fuel measures

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has stepped up efforts to head off mandatory fuel-saving measures with a White House order for government oil conservation, a plan to "jawbone" industry into cooperating and a drive to "beat the bushes" for additional energy supplies.

An administration source who asked not to be named said Tuesday additional measures were being prepared for the president's consideration.

The moves were prompted by continued loss of Iran's oil production, which supplied more than 5 million barrels a day — some 9 percent of the non Communist world's oil — before political turmoil halted it.

Recent reductions from peak production in Saudi Arabia, which had partly offset the Iranian shutdown, now threaten to worsen the impact of the Iranian problem.

The last oil tanker loaded in Iran reached the United States this week, the source said, which means that the impact of the shutdown is only now beginning to be felt here.

Addressing a Senate subcommittee Monday, Economic Regulatory Administrator David J. Bardin spelled out the kind of mandatory fuel-saving the nation may face if it fails to save enough oil voluntarily.

—Available crude oil would have to be allocated among refineries by the federal government.

—Gasoline, fuel oil and other refined products also might have to be allocated at the wholesale level, although direct consumer rationing would remain a distant, last-ditch option.

—Sale of gasoline and diesel fuel at service stations might be restricted during weekends, with Sunday closings a possibility.

—Heating, cooling and hot water in commercial and public buildings might be limited by government order.

—The government might also limit the number of parking spaces made available by employers and by commercial facilities.

—And it might ban non-essential lighting, such as advertising signs.

The administration wants to prevent those things through its intensified campaign of voluntary fuel-saving.

In a memo issued last Friday, President Carter ordered federal agencies to lead the way by setting oil-saving goals and issuing instructions by Feb. 15 and reporting the results in three months.

Carter suggested that federal agencies set thermostats no higher than 65 degrees by day and 55 by night; reduce lighting and other electricity use; reduce vehicle trips and cut or postpone research that uses a lot of energy.

Carter urged agencies to encourage employee car-pooling and use of mass transit systems.

The administration source said agencies also are checking the possibility of switching building boilers from oil to coal or natural gas. The Energy Department's Forrestal Building headquarters already has made plans to burn coal instead of oil.

The source said industrial leaders would be urged to take similar steps, in "jawboning" sessions by Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, Deputy Secretary John F. O'Leary, Assistant Secretary Alving L. Alm and other officials.

Meanwhile, the source said, "We have to beat the bushes for some energy supplies with an eye to rebuilding the oil inventories."

Farmers protest to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cold and stiff after camping through the city's heaviest snowstorm of the year, protesting farmers returned to Congress and the Agriculture Department today, but Secretary Bob Bergland countered with an upbeat message about rural prosperity.

"The state of American agriculture is substantially better than it was a year ago," Bergland said in remarks prepared for a hearing by the House Agriculture Committee.

His comments sharply disputed the views of 3,500 protesting grain and cotton farmers, who say they are squeezed between low prices for crops and high prices for fertilizer, machinery, fuel and land.

"In virtually every respect, 1978 was a good year for the American farmer," the agriculture secretary said. However, he added that "It should go without saying... there remained individual farm operators in every region of the country who did not fare well."

Awaiting Bergland at the hearing was a audience of farmers who say they fear losing their land back home if they lose their case here.

Heavy security measures were taken to protect Bergland in the aftermath of his hard nosed rejection of the farmers' demand for new laws to restore their income.

While many of the farmers headed for the committee hearing and other congressional offices, police granted the protesters permission for a limited "tractorcade" around the Agriculture Department.

Satisfied after an orderly, 200-vehicle "trial run" past the White House Tuesday, authorities allowed 300 farm machines out of the encampment for the Agriculture Department run after today's snow delayed morning rush hour was over. But they made it clear that the entire armada parked on the Mall — about 1,500 vehicles — would not be let out at any one time, nor would they tolerate any attempt to repeat Monday's traffic jamming tactics.

The forced campsite appeared unusually quiet today, save a few tractors driven in circles, churning up the browned grass. It seemed certain that at least a substantial portion of the original force of 5,000 farmers had gone home.

Protest leader Gerald McCathern, the American Agriculture Movement's national "wagonmaster," appeared on ABC television this morning and called Bergland "just a damn liar" for his remarks on the same network Tuesday.

Bergland said then that while some farmers have "local" problems, many simply made bad business judgments, paid too much for land, were seeking publicity or were "driven by just old fashioned greed."

But "he's not out there paying my bills," said McCathern, who grows corn near Hereford, Texas. "He doesn't know the hardships I'm going through and maybe if I could supplement my income with a salary the way that he is I could possibly keep my farm going. My farm is for sale."

Another protest leader, Don Patterson of The Plains, Va., disowned Bergland at a rally Tuesday evening.

"After what he said this morning, I don't think we can recognize him anymore," he told the shivering farmers.

It was evident that crude living conditions, trouble with the police and the cold and windy nastiness of February on the Potomac had sapped the spirit of many of the protesters. Only 600 attended, 5,000 had cheered lustily at the same site a day earlier.

The weather turned even more bitter today, as the heaviest snowstorm of winter dumped a three-inch-thick blanket over the capital by dawn, and the forecast called for twice that amount by day's end.

Police said one farmer was arrested for disorderly conduct at the encampment during the night, and two pieces of farm equipment were set on fire. More than a score of farmers have been arrested since their arrival Monday.

"We're prisoners here in a federal compound," said farmer Edward Bittle. "I think that entitles us to three square meals a day, baths, clothes and a color TV!"

While some of the demonstrators have settled into hotels, hundreds were sleeping and eating in their encampment on the Mall — prisoners, they said, of the police, who would not let their tractors out to roam the streets at will.

The farmers lacked toilets and water, and found scant sympathy here.

In frustration, some threw rocks at police, slashed tires, burned a tractor, drove around in circles in the compound. One plunged a red, rusted Farmall 400 into a pond, breaking through its crust of ice.

The police kept the farmers' tractors encircled again Tuesday, but finally permitted 200 out of their compound for an afternoon crawl down Pennsylvania Avenue.

Patty Stulp, 25, who farms with her family in Yuma, Colo., talked of the difficulty of a young person going into farming. She said her father and grandfather have farmed for about 60 years and that she and her brother want to take over the farm but will have to buy more land to make a living.

Asked whether her family's farm makes money, she said:

"We've been taking the advice of the secretaries of agriculture for quite a while and they said diversify to protect yourself. So rather than raising all cattle or anything like that, we raise cattle and corn."

"Cattle price has been disastrous for the last five years and money we've lost on the cattle, we tried to make up for on corn. This year, cattle prices are up, the corn is down, so it's just essentially a break-even process all the way through."

Bergland's statements called 'unmitigated lies'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said on national TV Tuesday that the farmers in Washington had created "an unmitigated disaster" from a public relations viewpoint.

A farm leader branded Bergland's comments as "unmitigated lies."

Gerald McCathern, who led the tractorcade into the nation's capital, also went on television in Washington late Tuesday night.

"It's regrettable that we have a Secretary of Agriculture that feels that way," added McCathern.

Asked if Bergland's hardline stand which reflects the mood of the Carter administration was particularly damaging to farmers, McCathern replied:

"I believe they are trying to make us angry with the intention of making us do something that we'll regret."

McCathern also said it is strange that "Red Chinese Communists and Taiwanese" could demonstrate on Washington streets while the farmers and their tractors were corralled on a three-block area near the Capitol.

Farmers' wit on exhibit

WASHINGTON (AP) — "For get us, eat used food," says one. "Buy import meat, eat worms," says another.

The crudely lettered signs that are standard equipment on tractors of militant farm demonstrators focus on the idea that the government and consumers are showing too little gratitude to hard pressed producers of food.

A sampling — "Cows may come and cows may go, but the USDA bull goes on forever." USDA stands for the United States Department of Agriculture.

"Export Berglund," an apparent misspelling of Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, who Tuesday said the militants were turning public opinion against their own cause.

New school to be needed and few originally had music or art rooms, he said.

Special compensatory programs for migrant, bilingual, language and learning disability, Title I and kindergarten students were not in effect when most of the buildings were constructed, Mailey said. Each program takes space away from basic programs in the schools, he noted.

Mailey told trustees the programs could be "modified and adjusted to get maximum utilization from current school space until 1985." After that, he said, "we hit severe limitations in our ability to make do."

To meet the 1985 deadline for getting another elementary school into operation, the bond election board members have tipped around for several months must be put into concrete terms and presented to voters "probably by this summer or fall." Board President Johnny Warren said.

The district's bonded indebtedness is low enough now that up to $3 million in bonds could be added without raising the tax rate, Warren said.

However, the "wish list" of items for the proposed bond vote includes money to buy the land and make improvements around Midland High School, additions and renovations of

Midland Chamber plans employee recruiting drive

By LINDA HILL
Staff Writer

Why do employers sometimes have trouble convincing people they want to hire to move to Midland? Because they don't have a true picture of "what Midland is like," the Chamber of Commerce believes.

To give people a better picture, the chamber plans to organize a recruiting committee to help employers attract the people they want to hire, said Grant Billingsley, chamber manager of economic development.

Often, Billingsley contended, a person will look at Midland's population size and then its location on a map, "and that's strike two."

When the prospect comes out for a job interview, the employer talks about the job but may not have the time or knowledge to tell him what Midland has to offer in the way of "livability," Billingsley said.

The idea for the recruiting committee is based on a couple of existing programs — the Midland Area Sales Team, which shows Midland to potential business and industry, and a doctor recruiting program, under which the chamber's Health Committee tries to attract physicians to the city.

What does Midland have to offer the potential resident?

"There are a lot of things here you don't usually find in a community this size," said Billingsley, and a person can get most of the services of a larger community without the disadvantages that come with larger size.

One unique selling point, the chamber manager noted, is the diversity of Midland's population.

"Because of the oil industry, there are people from all over the country who have moved here," he said, so it's easier to become involved in community affairs and meet people than it is in many cities.

"If you come into town and you're willing to expend your energy on something you're interested in, there

Crane Sheriff Raymond Weatherby likes living in county courthouse

By GUY SULLIVAN
Staff Writer

CRANE — Since the 1870s, county sheriffs across the Southwest have enjoyed the option of living in the local courthouse.

While few lawmen take advantage of the opportunity, some sheriffs across West Texas still carry on the tradition.

Crane County Sheriff Raymond Weatherby and his family are among the remnant rarities.

Officials of the Texas State Commission on Jail Standards said such arrangements usually are legal once they have been approved at county commissioner level.

Oldtimers say former sheriffs of both Ector and Midland counties lived in the two area courthouses — along with their families.

Raymond Weatherby wears a Western-style hat, cowboy boots and talks with the accent of the native West Texan he is.

About living in the courthouse, he said, "In case something happens, I'm usually right here." His desk is a few steps away from his home.

However, Weatherby acknowledged, he can't be "on duty" all the time.

When he's away, deputies watch over prisoners in the brick facility located in downtown Crane, just around the corner from the city's police station.

The Crane County courthouse has in the past been home for Weatherby, his wife, Dixie, son Raymond Jr., and daughters Sherry Weatherby of Lubbock (a schoolteacher), Mrs. John (Beverly) Farmer of Odessa and Mrs. Larry (Penny) Phelps of Odessa.

Texans helping Colorado elk, deer with 'Hayride'

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A group of Texans with a soft spot in their hearts for Colorado's hunting grounds is pitching in to help the state's starving elk and deer herds. "Operation Hayride," a caravan of trucks and trailers loaded with 50 tons of hay, is scheduled to leave Houston Wednesday, said Bill Jacobson, 38, a Houston car salesman. The caravan is scheduled to arrive in Gunnison on Friday. Jacobson said he put "Operation Hayride" together after a friend from Durango called him 10 days ago and told him of Colorado's starving big game herds, hard hit by unusually heavy snows in the mountains. Jacobson, who formerly lived in Denver and still hunts in the Gunnison area every year, said he got the go-ahead from the Colorado Division of Wildlife Monday. He went to the Houston news media. The appeal went out, and Jacobson said average donations ranged from $5 to $15. A Houston truck rental agency offered a discount one-way rate for trucks and trailers to haul the feed. The state Division of Wildlife will distribute the feed to the herds.

Shotgun tied to murders

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Ballistics tests have shown that Charles G. Martin, the prime suspect in the slayings of Wichita band leader Norman Lee and two others, killed himself with the same shotgun used in the Lee killings. Sedgewick County Attorney General Vern Miller said Tuesday that tests revealed that the ammunition that killed Martin and the three murder victims was struck by the same firing pin. A two month search for Martin ended Tuesday when the 47 year old musician from Metairie, La., was identified as a man who shot himself to death Monday in a Houston car lot. Positive identification of the body was made by Miller, who flew to Houston after police there reported the suicide death of a man matching Martin's physical description and carrying his identification papers. Martin had been missing since the 57 year-old Lee, Lee's wife, Pat, and the band's publicist, Bob King, 55, were found slain with a shotgun Dec. 8 at Lee home north of Wichita. Wichita authorities said they were not surprised that Martin had taken his own life. "We'd heard he told others that he was going to commit suicide," Miller said. "But as time passed and the investigation continued, we just didn't know what to expect." Houston officials said Martin stored his car in an auto parts lot Dec. 8, the day the bodies were found in Lee's home.

Laetrile kills California woman

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A woman who took Laetrile because she feared disfigurement from breast cancer surgery has died of cyanide poisoning, becoming the third confirmed Laetrile victim in the United States, authorities said. "She was willing to try anything rather than be 'deformed,' as she put it, and there are a lot of people willing to take advantage of a person when they're down," said Robert Pye, former husband of Jo Anne Eita Pye. Mrs. Pye, 42, of San Leandro, died Dec. 3 of cyanide poisoning, the Alameda County coroner said Tuesday, after two months of tests. Cyanide is released when the body metabolizes Laetrile, the coroner's office said. The coroner's office reported she would have eventually died of cancer.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration says there is no proof of Laetrile's cancer-fighting value, but advocates say it is an effective treatment. Laetrile is a trademark for a substance derived from the chemical amygdalin, found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds. Its prescription, sale or administration is illegal under California state law. Pye said his former wife received Laetrile in Mexico, the Philippines, Chula Vista in San Diego County and at a clinic in Albany, a city near Oakland. She took nine grams, or 30 cubic centimeters, every day for 20 days, then three grams, or 10 centimeters, three times a week for a month.

Psychic vows to help police find girl's killers

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — A woman credited by police with helping authorities find two bodies in the past week vows to do all she can to solve the slaying of an 8-year-old girl.

Kathlyn Rhea, who says she is a psychic, said she planned to work with police to find those responsible for the death of Victoria Anne DeSantiago. "The person should be very, very nervous about the whole thing," Ms. Rhea said Tuesday in remarks broadcast live by radio station KMAK in this central California city. She indicated two men were involved, and pledged to "do everything I can to see that they're brought to justice. If they're listening, they'd better pay attention to that." Ms. Rhea provided "visual images" police said helped locate Miss DeSantiago's body Monday. She said she told police "the girl was dead," lying naked in a plowed field near a chicken ranch and mountains. "I knew the child had been physically beaten," Ms. Rhea said. Miss DeSantiago was found in a drainage ditch beside plowed fields east of here, the Sierra Nevada mountains only a few miles away. Her head had been bludgeoned and she was clad only in socks, police said. The coroner's office reported the girl had been raped. Authorities in Calaveras County said Ms. Rhea also provided information that helped them find the body of Russell T. Drummond, 78, of Stockton, who had been missing for five months.

'Unnecessary' tests performed on patients

NEW YORK (AP) — In an effort to curb the rising cost of hospital care, Blue Cross-Blue Shield has recommended that its member plans stop paying for most medical tests now done routinely on nonsurgical patients before admission to hospitals. "The point of the recommendation is to encourage medical professionals to think about the cost of procedures routinely performed," Walter J. McNeerney, president of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Associations, said at a news conference. McNeerney termed the tests "unnecessary." They are performed on most hospital patients, and McNeerney said that between $100 million and $200 million could be saved if the tests lose Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage. McNeerney said he had "no real doubt" that the 130 member groups would adopt the recommendation. Under the recommendation, tests would be covered only if a doctor specifically orders them for an individual. The "admission batteries" tests include such procedures as blood hemoglobin tests, urine analyses, chemical blood screenings, chest x-rays and electrocardiograms. In addition, McNeerney said, the plans will phase out payments for 26 other tests, diagnostic laboratory procedures now considered "redundant or obsolete."

Gunmen bust up game
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Four gunmen burst in on a church bingo game and opened fire on the mostly elderly players, killing one woman and wounding a man, police said. The men entered St. Louis Bertrand Church where about 250 people were playing bingo Tuesday night and ordered everyone to "freeze," homicide Lt. Gerry Green said. One man walked up to a nun and demanded money, but she had none because the bingo proceedings had already been put away for the night, Green said. The intruders, armed with a rifle, a handgun and possibly other weapons, then sprayed the room with bullets and fled, Green said. Fatally wounded was Dorothy Taylor, age unavailable, who was dead on arrival at Vespers Hospital in nearby San Leandro. The unidentified man was taken there with a thigh wound.

'Voluntary' may not be right word for Carter guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The public has been told that President Carter's wage and price guidelines are voluntary. But the administration's anti-inflation chief says "voluntary" may not be the correct word because the government is prepared to use economic sanctions against companies that violate the standards.

During congressional testimony Tuesday, Alfred E. Kahn, chairman of the president's Council on Wage and Price Stability, defended what he sees as the administration's legal right to use such sanctions. He was expected to have more to say today in an appearance before the House Government Operations Committee.

Kahn was being accompanied today by the director of the wage-price council, Barry P. Bosworth, who said Tuesday the administration is closely watching the prices of various products, especially the rise in prescription drug prices.

Kahn, answering criticism from the American Bar Association and the General Accounting Office, said "our lawyers tell us its legal" for the government to impose sanctions by withholding contracts from companies that violate the guidelines.

During the House banking subcommittee hearing Tuesday, Kahn also said the anti-inflation program is "in a very large measure, voluntary." But he added the government is prepared to use economic sanctions.

Kahn added that more than 200 of the nation's largest corporations have promised to comply with the price standards, which generally limit price hikes to 5.75 percent.

He also said most recent major labor contracts have remained well within the administration's 7 percent guideline for wage hikes.

"It is obvious to me that both management and labor are taking the standards seriously," Kahn said.

However, the ABA's economic resources controls committee released a report Tuesday saying "the president's plan is not voluntary" because it relies "on a fear of government retaliation." The lawyers' group added that the government has no legal authority to withhold government contracts from firms that fail to comply with government price standards.

The GAO, a congressional investigative and auditing agency, expressed similar misgivings Monday, but the agency added that it is preparing legislation to give the president authority to withhold contracts.

Rep. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., chairman of the subcommittee, characterized the ABA and GAO appraisals as "a significant challenge to the legal authority of this (anti-inflation) program."

As Kahn was preaching frugality on the part of citizens and business Tuesday, Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal exercised what he called his "somber duty" at another hearing to ask Congress for authority to borrow another $98 billion so the government can pay its bills.

The government has authority to borrow $798 billion through the end of next month. But, just as Blumenthal warned Congress last summer, that $798 billion will get the government through only March 9.

So he is asking that the debt limit be boosted to a total of $836 billion through Sept. 30, 1979, and to $896 billion through Sept. 30, 1980.

The administration also is proposing setting the borrowing ceiling automatically as part of the congressional budget process.

In other economic developments Tuesday: —The Federal Reserve said consumers increased their installment debts by a record $4.31 billion in December. The previous record of $4.28 billion was set last May.

For all of 1978, consumers increased their total debts by 19.1 percent to a total of $275 billion. Debt through bank credit cards increased 33 percent.

—Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., said at a Government Operations subcommittee hearing that the Internal Revenue Service loses about $100 billion annually to an "underground economy" whose income goes unreported.

Prosecutors seek death sentence

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Three more witnesses were scheduled to testify today about John McCrory's "bad reputation" in Denton County, as prosecutors sought to convince a jury to sentence the 27-year-old Argyle man to death.

The jury convicted McCrory on Monday of raping Jeana Melissa Walker, 17, of Roanoke last June, then strangling her and leaving her partially nude body in a rural Denton County field. Her mother said Jeana left the house about 11 p.m. to go pick up her boyfriend for a party they were to attend.

The jury deliberated less than two hours Monday, then reported after 20 more minutes of deliberation Tuesday that it had a verdict: guilty of capital murder.

Fourteen prosecution witnesses marched to the stand Monday in the punishment phase of the trial. The minimum sentence McCrory faces is life in prison.

Defense attorney Rusty Duncan said he would call up to six character witnesses after the prosecution is finished.

Prosecutor George Preston, in closing arguments to the jury Monday, said the evidence tied McCrory to the scene of the death in several ways. He said foam recovered from the dead girl's clothes matched foam in the torn back seat of McCrory's car.

Defense lawyers conceded McCrory was at the scene of the slaying, but said he did nothing more than stop to offer aid to a stranded motorist.

Pre-wedding shower yields jail terms

FORT SILL, Okla. (AP) — A pre-wedding shower for a bride-to-be yielded no gifts from the Army but separate five-day jail terms for a newlywed couple.

The shower was the one Pvt. Margarette Braman, 20, took in her husband's barracks restroom a week before the wedding.

She and Pvt. Tracy Joe Lanthrop, 19, pleaded guilty to disobeying a lawful order when she admitted "being in the shower of Room 312, a room occupied by male personnel."

Lanthrop, of Oklahoma City, admitted she was there.

Pvt. Braman of Castro Valley, Calif., and Pvt. Lanthrop were married Thursday.

Four days later they faced a summary court-martial and were sentenced to five days confinement at hard labor, 20 days labor without confinement and a $100 fine.

Khomeini supporters controlling city

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Supporters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini have taken over the municipal government in the second largest city of Isfahan and have virtual control of slum areas in south Tehran.

The newspaper Ettelaat quoted a spokesman for Mehdi Bazargan, picked to head the new regime that seeks to phase out the government of Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar, as saying Bazargan would unveil his programs during a speech Friday at Tehran University and present his Cabinet to Khomeini on Saturday.

The sources said followers of Khomeini, under the direction of local mullahs, or Moslem priests, had taken over traffic control and other police duties, set up cooperatives to insure distribution of fuel and basic foods and established welfare offices to aid the poor.

As Americans continued to flee from Iran, senior U.S. officials in Washington told The Associated Press they have noted signs that some leaders in Khomeini's camp do not share his strong anti-American sentiments.

The officials also said they believe these moderates may be influential in persuading Khomeini to compromise with Bakhtiar.

Who knows what footprints lurk on Midland city streets? The compressed tracks of someone's early morning trudging on an Illinois Street sidewalk were all that remained Tuesday after more easily melted ice fell victim to warmer noon-time temperatures.

Ginger Rogers says only path for today's movies is 'back up'

By PATSY GORDON
Staff Writer

"Persistence, perseverance and an aim for perfection."
According to Ginger Rogers, that's the formula for her success.

Miss Rogers tonight will appear in Chaparral Center on the campus of Midland College under the sponsorship of Midland Symphony Guild. She spoke at a brief press conference Tuesday in the Midland Hilton.

The legendary Miss Rogers in 1977 started on a new phase of her already diversified career.

The star of some 73 films, 10 of them as half of the famed team of Astaire and Rogers, now is playing nightclubs and performing stage shows such as the one at Chaparral Center, which will begin at 7:30.

Why has the star of 73 movies abandoned the screen for nightclubs?

"Good musicals are non-existent in movie fare today. There just aren't too many good composers and lyricists these days," said Miss Rogers. "An occasional goodie gets through," she added, although she said there are no current musicals she "admires."

"Producers today are interested in seeing people in very unfortunate situations. Everything these days is disaster or sex. It's unfortunate that companies have gone so far to earn a dollar. They don't have to earn it in such an ugly way. People don't police their own thoughts. As long as people spend money to destroy the youth of America, we will have this kind of thing."

She referred to the rating of movies according to their content as the "big lie."

But, said Miss Rogers, movies have reached so low, there is no way for them to go but "back up."

It's not hard to understand why the 10 Astaire-Rogers films have lasted so long, she said.

"In those days, the films were all glamour and coiffures and music by marvelous composers like George Gershwin, Irving Berlin, Cole Porter and Harry Warren. We don't have people who can hold a song together

School sought at Pyote site

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Executive Director Ron Jackson of the Texas Youth Council urged the Senate Finance Committee on Tuesday to let him spend part of the money the council has left over at the end of the fiscal year to build a school at Pyote in West Texas.

Pyote is the location of the West Texas Children's Home.

Would she set herself back in time in order to do the things that brought her fame?

Miss Rogers said she doesn't feel her new career is a "step down or degrading. I like to be performing and if it (the new career) puts me where I am performing, I'm glad and happy."

A recent film which some critics say captures some of the magic of the 40s musicals is "Saturday Night Fever," but Miss Rogers said she hasn't seen it, nor has she met the star, John Travolta.

Fred Astaire, said Miss Rogers, is "the loveliest, most gentle and gracious individual I've had the privilege to know," although he's a "shy, introverted perfectionist."

And said Miss Rogers, perfection is the name of the game.

Runners like heroin addicts, says researcher

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Runners of all ages and all distances must be aware of the darker side of running, the "negative addiction" that comes with too much emphasis on the 2-5 hours of "exercise high" many runners experience, William Morgan, a University of Wisconsin researcher says.

Runners who are hooked seem obsessed with additional workouts, more mileage and better times, all to the self-destructive exclusion of family, friends and career, Morgan said in a recent study.

"Rejection of loved ones and friends and minimal vocational involvement leaves the exercise addict in much the same place as the alcoholic or heroin addict," he said.

The true test of whether a runner is negatively addicted, Morgan said, is when he or she must lay off due to injury. Some doctors, he added, have had to put insistent runners in casts to keep them from permanently injuring themselves.

Morgan, 43, who describes himself a "hobby jogger" in warm weather but a cross country skier and driveway snow shoveler in winter, said runners who do 70-100 miles a week are more likely to become negatively addicted.

However, he said there is no way of telling what percentage of runners at any level are negatively addicted.

Ann Page, Ed Runyan seeking re-election to school board

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

Two of three Midland school trustees whose places on the board will be up for election April 7 said Tuesday they will run again.

The school board officially set the election date and polling places at their meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Ann Page and Ed Runyan announced their intentions to seek re-election to the board. David Grimes, the third trustee whose post comes before voters in April, remained tight-lipped on the subject.

Mrs. Page and Runyan, both finishing their first terms on the board, cited the experience gained during the past three years as a prime reason for running.

"The past three years have had a dramatic effect on our community," Mrs. Page said in a prepared statement. "Since I am the only board member with children in MISD elementary schools, I would like to continue working closely in this area, as well as put to use the knowledge I've gained to strengthen the entire district's program."

The 35-year-old homemaker said "it's almost a waste of the taxpayer's money to have to re-train a new trustee."

Runyan, a 45-year-old engineer, said serving on the board the last three years has been "a real learning experience."

"The school district is a large organization, with a large budget and a large number of employees. It takes a while to get to the point you can make a meaningful contribution."

Areas Runyan said he would like to apply his experience in during the next three years include major improvements on the campus at Midland High School and some additions at Lee, finding a solution to the growth in elementary enrollment in the northern area of the city and "making the adjustments necessary in the overall curriculum to correspond to the wishes of the people on back to basics instruction."

Candidates — incumbent or not — have until March 7 to place their names on the ballot by signing up in the school administration office at 702 N. N St. No filing fees or petitions are necessary, according to district Business Manager Don Ferguson.

Any registered voter who is a resident of the district may sign up in Ferguson's office by filling out a form and designating the place he will run for and a campaign treasurer, he said.

Absentee voting for the trustee elections will take place in the school district office from March 19 through April 3.

Polling places for the April 7 election — to be held jointly with the city and hospital district — will be: Fire Station No. 3, 1710 N. Edwards St.; Fire Station No. 4, Delano Avenue and Circle Drive; Fannin Elementary School, 2400 Fannin St.; Fire Station No. 6, Thomason Drive and Midland Drive; Lee High School, 3500 Neely St.; and South Elementary School, 200 W. Dakota St.

Runoff balloting, if needed, will be April 28, with absentee voting for the runoff April 16 through April 24.

Boy Scout Week

Boy Scout Week presently is being observed here and across the land, marking Scouting's 69th birthday anniversary.

Thousands of Scouts and Scouters are participating in special events of various kinds during the observance.

The Midland-based Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, is directing the observance throughout this section of West Texas. Oley Hedrick of Midland recently was installed as council president.

Leading off the celebration in the Midland area was the recently held 55th annual Recognition Banquet of the Buffalo Trail Council, held at Odessa, at which Silver Beaver Awards were presented to four veteran Scout leaders — three from Midland and one from Big Spring. The Midlanders receiving the distinguished honor are Marvin Eastman, Edwin H. Magruder Jr. and J.W. "Dub" Watley. William R. "Bill" Cregar is the Big Spring recipient.

Congratulations certainly are in order for these gentlemen, as well as for all Scouts and Scouters of the council area on the occasion of their special week.

The Boy Scout organization, of course, is one of the nation's greatest youth groups, with its program reaching into big cities, smaller communities and rural areas throughout the nation. Its benefits are many, varied and far-reaching, and the countless number of boys who have participated in Scouting through the years have been better citizens as a result of their Scouting experiences.

In fact, preparing a boy for life is what Scouting is all about.

There is no doubt the benefits of Scouting will remain with a lad throughout his lifetime, encouraging him to become a responsible citizen, active in affairs of his home community.

The Tall City of Midland certainly is well aware of this, since many of its fine citizens and civic leaders are former Boy Scouts, any number of them Eagle Scouts. Needless to say, Midland and every other city are much better communities in which to live as a result of the Boy Scout training of any number of their citizens.

We are proud of our Scouts and Scouters and wish them well in the continuation of their great program.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Mom gets her young son back

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Christopher Larson has been reunited with his mother — a happy ending to one of the thousands of "kidnatching" cases perpetrated in this country each year by divorced fathers or mothers of small children.

The return of 6-year-old Christopher to his mother, Vicki Gambrell of Savannah, Ga., followed our Nov. 11 report on the boy's plight. His father had abducted him from the court-decreed custody of his mother and had disappeared.

A private detective, George Theodore of Elmhurst, Ill., read our column and volunteered to trace the vanished father — and son — without charge. It took him just three weeks to locate Christopher, in Enterprise, Ala.

A sympathetic judge, Garry McAllilly, and a quick-acting deputy sheriff, Bob Whigham, combined to restore Christopher to his mother and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. French. Theodore declined to share his professional methods with us, but from the mail response to the column and from other sources, we have collected a number of tips for parents trying to track down a kidnaping ex-spouse.

One young mother, Margaret Levin, recovered her son mainly through her own do-it-yourself efforts. She searched all the public records she could get her hands on, and finally discovered that her ex-husband had gotten two traffic tickets in the Las Vegas area — one before the abduction of 2-year-old Michael and one afterwards.

Levin headed for Las Vegas. She knew the kind of neighborhood her ex-husband would live in, and the kind of nursery school he would pick for their son, and sure enough, her hunches were right. On the playground of a Las Vegas nursery school, Margaret Levin saw her son for the first time in 14 months.

She hired a professional detective to distract a school official while the mother picked up her son and fled into anonymity in California. Her ex-husband, who had changed his name and remarried, recently pleaded guilty under California's new kidnaping law and was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Even though she did most of the legwork, herself, Levin estimates it cost her between $12,000 and $15,000 to get Michael back.

A private detective offered these tips for parents who either want to try searching for their abducted children on their own, or need to save money by making the detective's work easier:

— Make a list of everything pertinent about the ex-spouse — full name, date of birth, Social Security number, credit history, make of car and license number, and close friends or relatives, and the places, or kinds of places, the ex-spouse frequents.

— Get a copy of the abductor's driving record from state motor vehicle bureaus. This may tell whether the abductor has surrendered a driver's license for one in another state, or has bought a new car.

— A Social Security number is sometimes helpful in finding out where an ex-spouse is working, but this often takes six months or longer.

— A postmaster can provide the forwarding address of an ex-spouse feckless enough to have left one.

Private detectives are too expensive for most parents, but there are organizations that will help locate abducted children.

One is Children's Rights Incorporated, of Washington, D.C. Headed by a man whose own child was stolen, the group acts as an information center on custodial kidnaping problems.

Another is the Citizens League on Custody and Kidnaping, a nonprofit organization in Smithtown, N.Y. They will check driver registrations and other official records at no charge, and volunteers man two hotline telephones: 516-724-8245 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 516-669-4301 in the evening hours.

Both organizations endorse legislation proposed by Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., and Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., which would put

ART BUCHWALD Breathe deeply please; smog standards relaxed

WASHINGTON — The Environmental Protection Agency relaxed the nation's smog standards last month by 50 percent because it believes the average American can breathe twice as much smog as was previously thought, without falling down on the sidewalk.

Art Buchwald

As soon as the news was announced I went over to see a friend at EPA, named Harbinger.

"How do you feel about relaxing the nation's smog standards?" I asked. "Very relaxed," he admitted. "We've been able to thicken the air with pollutants without doing any damage to the human body, which during an inflationary period could save this country billions of dollars."

"How have you been able to do this?" "Instead of demanding a standard of .08 per million, we will now allow .12. I know it doesn't sound like much on paper, but it really has a lot of significance for the little guy who produces automobiles and burns coal to produce electricity." "How do you know it's safe?" "Oh, it's safe for autos and electricity. They can take twice as much pollution as that." "I wasn't talking about autos and industry. I was talking about people. If you up the permissible amount of pollution, aren't you endangering the lungs and life of the average person?" "I believe you're getting into a sensitive area. You're now talking about someone's health." "I guess that is the area I was talking about."

Harbinger continued, "EPA can do just so much to keep a person alive. When we set certain anti-pollution standards we expect Americans to live up to them. If they're going to get sick even after we've announced that these standards are perfectly safe, it's their fault not ours. We publicize these figures as much as possible and people should keep up with any changes we make in them."

"If I tell you on the basis of medical and scientific evidence you can breathe twice as much smog as we originally thought, it's up to you to get the word."

"But there are some people who say you're lowering the pollution standards at the behest of the auto industry and other large urban polluters, who will have to spend billions of dollars to meet the guidelines set by the EPA."

"Let the environmentalists say it. There's always someone who can't get enough clean air. But they're not the ones who ask how much this smog-free air is going to cost. Everyone has to make tradeoffs in this world. Before you throw your weight behind the clean-air enthusiasts, I would like to ask you a question: Would you rather spend $500 extra for a new car in 1982 or live a few more lousy years?"

"Is that my only choice?" "Yes." "I'd prefer to save the $500 on the car."

"And so would most people. To Americans a car is a necessity, and they don't wish to be penalized just because there are a few health nuts out there who want to go back to Walden Pond."

"Do you think there will be a fight over the lowering of the EPA standards for clean air?" I asked Harbinger.

"Isn't there always?" he sighed. "Every time we decide what's good for the American people, someone is going to contest us. Our job is not to prevent the air from being poisoned, but to make sure that the public can live with the poison in the air."

"The thing to remember is that the American people can take a lot more pollution than they think they can. If, in the next few years, you start to cough, wheeze, or get headaches, I think you owe it to yourself to ask, 'Am I rally sick, or is it the government?'"

THE BIBLE CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER AND ELIZABETH ROSS WIERSEMA

1. A talent was a sizeable piece of money used in Greece, Rome and the Middle East; it amounted to about 6,000 denarius or 240 pounds (Hastings Encyclopedia). Though it pertains to money in the parable, Mt. 25:15, scholars believe it related to spiritual attributes instead of worldly possessions. How many talents were distributed?

2. How many times was Paul shipwrecked? 2 Corinthians 11:25

3. What merchandise did the "money-changers" sell in the Temple? Luke 11:12

4. Name the town in Gilead, land of spices, where Jeshu was anointed king. It is known as Ra—gilead. 2 Kings 9 (K.J.) 4 Kings 9 (Douay)

BIBLE VERSE

"And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." — John 8:32

No forgetting!

Reaction in Germany to the showing there of the American-produced television series, "Holocaust," depicting Nazi atrocities during the World War II era, was understandably negative to start with.

"We want to forget," callers to the Cologne broadcasting station said during the opening part of the first two-hour installment.

As the program unfolded, however, weeping men and women were calling to say they were ashamed of the crimes committed in Germany's name but glad of the opportunity to see the series.

The Nazi genocide of Jews was not the product of a uniquely German hysteria, but of an evil malignancy which could have diseased the modern mass mind under similar circumstances in other countries.

And the shame must be shared by an apathetic world which for all too long was studiously indifferent — that preferred not to know what was going on in German death camps and not to believe the horror stories which were told.

There can be no forgetting. Ruthless leaders historically have used terror to seize and hold power. Trusting people have followed them through the gates of hell.

The global discomfort over recent events in Cambodia was, in fact, unhappily reminiscent of those early days of the Third Reich, when outrage fell far short of action.

This is something of which the people of America and other Free World countries should think more about. "When outrage fell short of action" isn't a charge of which we can be proud.

IT HAPPENED HERE

30 YEARS AGO (Feb. 7, 1949): Midland Boy Scout troops attended services at various churches Sunday, launching the observance of Boy Scout Week here.

Fred Wemple of Midland, chairman of the Texas Highway Commission, and Delbert Downing, manager of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, will be the speakers at an all-civic luncheon Wednesday at Memphis, Texas.

M.C. Ulmer, president of The First National Bank, was the speaker today noon at the Kiwanis Club meeting in Hotel Scharbauer.

NICK THIMMESCH Stereotyping Arabs: Camel Jockeys vs Abu Dhabi Cubs

WASHINGTON — Brad Corbett, owner of the Texas Rangers baseball team (once the Washington Senators) in a recent moment of exasperation, threatened to sell his ball club "to some Arabs...and you guys (the press) can cut them up..."

Nick Thimmesch

Corbett feels persecuted by the press. So it seems that if he sold his club, his great adversary, the press, could victimize the lowly Arabs instead of him. Thus he would be boosted from his depression. What might we get from Arab ownership — farm teams called the Abu Dhabi Cubs, Beirut Braves, or Cairo Cardinals?

Anyway, in equating himself with the Arabs, Corbett is only reflecting their negative image in the popular culture. He is down, so he puts them down because it is characteristically human for people to need somebody to put down.

Since the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights attacks the unfair depiction of blacks, Hispanics, Asian and Pacific people, Indians and even Aleuts (but not Arabs) and since it is correctly verboten to stereotype Jews and other minorities (once a target), the public, aided by TV and the media, finds the Arabs an easy goat, even villains.

We need both in TV drama, don't we? If you study TV, you learn that Arabs are stereotyped as oil rich sheiks, camel jockeys, terrorists, assassins, white-slave traders, and greedy businessmen.

It was my impression that there was such stereotyping on TV adventure programs, but it took a reading of "The Arab: TV's Most Popular Villain" (Christian Century, Dec. 13, 1978) to convince me with documentation. The fact that many of these scripts stereotyping Arabs are written by Jews is ironic because Jews have been defamed and persecuted for centuries. But the defamed and persecuted sometimes become the defamers and persecutors — that's human nature, too.

Years ago, the Anti-Defamation League fought the unfair and sometimes vicious depiction of Jews as people with strikingly Semitic features, as greedy businessmen, as cowards or slysters. The A.D.L. deserves a salute for its success in stopping most of this slander.

Today, the same kind of slander and fear is wrapped around Arabs. They are charged with "buying up the country" when the fact is that Arabs have bought proportionately little in the U.S., outside of Treasury bills, which amounts to buying inflation and a piece of our national debt.

According to Newsweek, the leading investors in American property are the Dutch, the British, the Canadians, the Germans, Swiss, French and Japanese in that order. The Arabs aren't even in the picture. A study of foreign purchase of U.S. farmland also showed the Arabs as an insignificant factor.

When Saudi Arabia's Foreign Minister, Prince Saud al-Faisal, tried to buy a Park Avenue co-op apartment in 1977, some of the owners managed to thwart the will of the majority, and denied him the purchase. Ironically, Sen. Jacob Javits, a reliable advocate of Israel, tried to intervene on al-Faisal's behalf.

Occasionally, bigotry against Arabs flares into the open as it did when Paul Rand Dixon, a Federal Trade Commissioner, called Ralph Nader (a Lebanese-American) a "dirty Arab." Ironically, and commendably, two of the first to defend Nader were Jewish congressmen, who likely had heard "dirty Jew" often enough as boys that they had strong feelings against "dirty Arab" as well.

While there are highly publicized cases of individual Arabs flaunting their oil wealth, the vast majority of the 100 million Arabs in the world are a poor but emerging people. They are going to play an increasingly important role.

For several centuries, Arabs have lived in generally depressed conditions. But go back into history, and you will find many cultural highpoints in the Arab world. Arabs have made many contributions to Western culture — in astronomy, mathematics, literature, physics, medicine, philosophy, and history.

Today, we live with inflation, tougher competition from foreign nations and higher fuel prices. All this makes the stereotyped Arabs a threat. Whatever the merit of the OPEC price increases, it is true that the OPEC nations are afflicted with the same inflation we are, and like the AFL-CIO's George Meany, this cartel wants its pay hike, too. Thus the Arabs can become vulnerable to our frustration and wrath, just as Jews, blacks and others have before them.

I guess it has always been and always will be, that cussed mankind needs somebody to kick around.

U.S. officials count on moderate influences in Iran

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States officials, their direct leverage weakening, apparently are banking on hopes that moderate elements in Iran will work out a political solution that will avoid emergence of an anti-American government.

Senior military and civilian officials, speaking on the condition their names not be used, say they have noted signs that some leaders in the camp of religious chief Ayatollah Khomeini do not share his strongly stated anti-U.S. sentiments.

They also express the view that such moderates may be influential in persuading Khomeini to compromise differences with Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar, who was appointed by the now-departed shah.

A major U.S. effort has focused on urging the basically pro-American Iranian officer corps to back the constitutional government and not attempt any military takeover, which might trigger civil war.

That was the principal mission served by Gen. Robert Huyser, deputy U.S. commander in Europe. Huyser spent weeks in Iran in close and frequent contact with senior Iranian generals. Many of Iran's military officers were trained in the United States at U.S. service schools and are on a personal friendship basis with American officers.

Huyser arrived here Sunday night and briefed President Carter Monday afternoon, sources said. Also sitting in were national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Defense Secretary Harold Brown. Huyser was returning Tuesday night to his post in Stuttgart, Germany.

In the wake of Huyser's briefings, one senior official said the Iranian military has shown "impressive cohesion" and that "it is holding together better than seemed likely a week or two ago."

Although there have been some reports of desertions from the ranks, U.S. officials said there are no indications of any organized opposition in the Iranian army to the Bakhtiar government.

Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said in an interview Monday that "I have confidence in the integrity of the Iranian military," which he said had been supporting the "legally constituted government" under very difficult circumstances.

However, U.S. officials acknowledge they are not ruling out "some sort of action" by Iranian military leaders if what these officials call "the constitutional process" is abandoned and an Islamic republic is established by the ayatollah's decree.

As chief supplier of arms and other modern technology to Iran under the shah, the U.S. government was in a position to exert powerful influence on its policies.

But that U.S. leverage is declining sharply with impending Iranian cancellation of about $7 billion in weapons and other military hardware orders, and significant reduction in the U.S. presence in Iran.

A military coup or an outright civil war might increase the danger of Soviet intervention, U.S. analysts say.

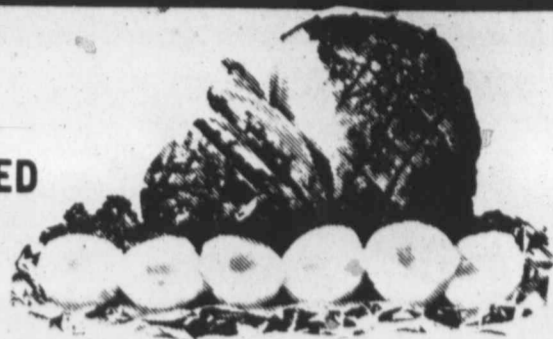

Defense Secretary Brown has told Congress such intervention "could require a U.S. response."

How times change: Look who's demonstrating now

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nowadays, when throngs of protesters descend on Washington to block the streets and demand their way, the government is downright cordial.

Police bend the rules, the mayor counsels leniency and highway lanes are set aside for the demonstrators. In a city where jaywalking can get you a $5 ticket, militant farmers demanding more money for their crops got police escorts on the way to block traffic.

Perhaps the people who came to protest against the war in Vietnam eight years ago should have cut their hair and driven tractors.

Instead of permits, they got mass arrests. Before the 1971 May Day demonstrations ended, 12,000 people had been swept up in police nets. Virtually all those arrests were later ruled illegal.

Those demonstrators said in advance that they were coming to Washington to block streets in an attempt to stop the government from functioning. They tried to block the Potomac River bridges with their bodies, and with trash and nails. Police and troops were waiting to sweep them from the streets in illegal mass arrests.

There was violence, but it was scattered and sporadic. The government argued that wholesale lockups were the only alternative to mob rule in the national capital.

It was not a proud time, but Middle America generally applauded the roundup of demonstrators most people regarded as a bunch of scruffy peaceniks.

Now part of Middle America is doing the demonstrating, demanding not peace but parity.

The farmers of the American Agriculture Movement didn't say they intended to shut down the city. But with nearly 2,000 tractors massed around Washington, it was obvious they weren't planning quiet efforts at persuasion.

"If you consider yourself a pacifist, maybe you shouldn't be here," one of their leaders said.

Police set aside lanes for their "tractorcade" into town, to ease the guaranteed traffic jam. That covered four routes, so the farmers split their forces and tied up eight highways.

Official cooperation, apparently, was supposed to promote an orderly demonstration. In fact, the farmers had more success than the Mayday Tribe in fouling up the city. There were scattered episodes of violence.

Police Chief Burtell Jefferson got into a shoving match when police tried to prevent farmers from abandoning tractors to clog a busy intersection.

Police fired tear gas into the cab of a tractor when its driver tried to drive through their line to block another downtown street.

When police tried to use one tractor to haul away others, farmers pelted it with eggs, then smashed a window. They slashed tires, broke windows and kicked in the sides of two police cars.

There were scattered arrests.

Most of the trouble occurred Monday. Late that afternoon police barricaded the tractors on the Mall to keep them from fouling up traffic anywhere.

After they get through clogging traffic, the farmers plan to spend several weeks lobbying Congress for legislation to increase their prices.

Their reception may depend on how many congressmen get caught up in the four-hour traffic jams the farmers' tractors created. Some already have, and are calling the protest counter productive.

President Carter said Monday that agriculture is generally prosperous, but that more must be done to ensure that all farmers share that prosperity.

"I don't know of any group that's suffered more from the effects of inflation than farmers," Carter said.

Alfred Kahn, who heads Carter's anti-inflation program, said he doesn't think farmers suffer most. He said the massed tractors "do not bode well for food prices."

That's the bottom line for most of the people who found the road to work blocked by tractors. They don't set farm prices, they just pay for food.

Rest assured folks are busy on Capitol Hill

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chicago can take comfort in the knowledge that only a tiny fraction of bills proposed in Congress are ever enacted. One of the latest legislative efforts: a proposal by Rep. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., to rename Chicago after former Indiana Sen. Vance Hartke.

Quayle says he's afraid Congress will rename the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore in memory of the late Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois.

Douglas was instrumental in setting up the scenic park on the shores of Lake Michigan and there's been a move underfoot in Congress for some time to name it after him.

Last year the House even passed such a bill at the behest of Rep. Sidney Yates, D-Ill. But it died in the Senate.

Quayle says naming an Indiana park after an Illinois senator doesn't make any sense to him. Therefore,

Quayle said, if Yates' bill surfaces again, "I would offer a resolution under which Chicago would become Hartke, Illinois, in honor of Sen. Vance Hartke."

AT A MEETING on President Carter's controversial "wage insurance" plan, Rep. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio, asked Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal: "Who fathered this baby?"

"I hope you won't mind if I tell you that it was a group effort," Blumenthal responded.

AS OTHER HOUSE members jockeyed to be photographed with visiting Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping at a congressional reception, Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas., inadvertently stepped between Teng and the army of photographers following him.

Wright didn't respond. "Hey, you in the brown sports coat, get out of the way," came another voice.

Wright, looking around and seeing no one else in his immediate vicinity wearing a brown sports coat, obliged and ducked.

THE HOUSE Administration Committee recently agreed to supply its members with written copies of proposed amendments. When the question of cost came up, chairman Frank Thompson, D-N.J., suggested that distribution be limited to "one for each member who can read."

SEN. EDWARD M. Kennedy, D-Mass., introduced President Carter's inflation adviser, Alfred Kahn, as "Al" at a news conference.

It was a minor blunder. He doesn't like to be called "Al." Actually, Kahn says most of his friends call him "Fred."

ATTORNEY GENERAL Griffin B. Bell waited patiently to testify at the first meeting of the year of the Senate Judiciary Committee as senator after senator droned on with opening speeches.

It finally came freshman Sen. Howell Heflin's turn to speak. But the Alabama Democrat drew on his experience as chief justice of his state's Supreme Court and said:

"I'm delighted to be on the committee. I concur in part and dissent in part with everything else that's been said. I yield the rest of my time to Mr. Bell."

AMONG THE TASKS House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill assigned his staff one recent evening while working late in his office: stop a small child from crying on the floor above. The message was dutifully delivered to the child's parents.

Crimes leave victims feeling helpless, 'naked'

By MARGARET GENTRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The victims of crime, even such relatively painless offenses as purse-snatching, may suffer weeks or months of emotional trauma and often have nowhere to turn for help, say two specialists in victim psychology.

"The sudden, arbitrary, unpredictable violation of self leaves victims feeling so shattered that they cannot continue to function the way they did before the crime. Things fall apart, and victims are unable to pull themselves back together right away," wrote Morton Bard and Dawn Sangrey in "The Crime Victim's Book," being published this month.

The authors contend that crime victims are the forgotten people in the criminal justice system. Police officers and prosecutors seldom have the time or training to deal with the victim's emotional suffering, and even well-meaning friends and relatives may react in ways that only heighten the trauma.

Bard, a psychology professor and director of the Center for Social Research at the City University of New York, has been a consultant to the New York City police department. Sangrey, a writer, is a member of the National Organization of Victim Assistance.

They deal with personal crimes ranging in seriousness from pursesnatching to burglary, robbery, rape and murder. In interviews with victims, they found that those who experienced even minor offenses felt they had been personally violated.

"You feel stripped naked," a purse-snatching victim told the researchers. "You're powerless. 'Violation' is an adult way to explain that, but it isn't an adult response. It's reminiscent of the kind of helplessness that goes back to early childhood. And I think that's what makes it so crucially painful. Because you can't fight back."

Most victims react first with surprise. "I never thought it could happen to me" proved to be a frequent comment.

Bard and Sangrey suggest the trauma stems from confrontation with a situation the victim cannot control. In an attempt to regain control, the victim often blames himself for the crime, theorizing that his own carelessness led to what happened and that if he only behaves more cautiously, he will never again be a victim.

This is worthwhile up to a point, Bard and Sangrey wrote. But they added, "It is important for the victim to maintain realistic expectations. No matter what a person does to prevent crime, chance will still play a role."

Some victims, they note, develop strong and damaging guilt feelings because they didn't fight back.

"It would be foolish for an unarmed person to try to disarm a gunman, but people who have been held up by armed robbers often express shame because they did not try to defend themselves," they wrote.

Bard and Sangrey warned that some popular self-defense courses and training manuals "are extremely dangerous because they give only the illusion of protection. A few hours of self-defense training is unlikely to increase most people's chances of being able to defend themselves."

Many people, they wrote, "just cannot suspend the lifelong value of not harming another person, not even when life is threatened."

One current manual advises women threatened with rape to push out the attacker's eyes. "From what we know of human behavior, it is unlikely that a normal woman would be able to do that," Bard and Sangrey observed.

A victim's friends and relatives sometimes make matters worse by questioning their failure to fight back, they continued.

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK

NEW YORK (AP) — Her relatives lined the windows with cardboard from diaper boxes to keep out the cold. But they didn't pay their gas bill for 18 months, and 9-month-old Cynthia Felicea, clad only in diapers, was found frozen to death in her crib.

Her 2-year-old brother, Tommy, was found swollen with frostbite when police were called to the basement apartment of the two-story house that utility company officials said had been unheated since July 1977. The temperature was in the teens. Authorities said they were considering charges against the baby's parents, Thomas Felicea, 21, and Eileen Felicea, 24. Thirteen others in four generations lived in the house in the South Ozone Park section of Queens.

Frank Felicea, the infant's grandfather, found the child's body Tuesday and called police from a neighbor's home. The children's stomachs were bloated because "all they ever fed them was warm water or tea. They'd cry themselves to sleep down there in the cellar," said an 18-year-old neighbor, Eddie Cruz. Tommy Felicea was treated at Queens General Hospital for exposure. Three other young children, including two cousins, were turned over to the city's Bureau of Child Welfare after being treated for exposure. Another neighbor, Russell Cordero, 15, said older family members frequently ate only "macaroni boiled in water with nothing on it." The inside of the house, he said, "is just a wreck, it's a shambles, there are roaches and rats." "Nobody in the house ever washed. What the heck, when it's 13 degrees who's going to take a shower or a bath?" Cordero said. William Hand, a spokesman for Brooklyn Union Gas Co. said the meter at the two-story structure was removed July 26, 1977, for a long-overdue bill totalling $1,397.30. "I don't know what they did for heat last winter," he said, adding that the family had been advised the meter could be reinstalled if they paid the bill by installments or some other method. The family never responded, Hand said. "Nobody in the house works. Almost everybody gets a (welfare) check," Cordero said.

'Outside information' led to 'holdout,' Flood juror says

NEW YORK (AP) — The lone juror holding out for acquittal in the Rep. Daniel J. Flood trial told fellow jurors he had received information from a confidential source outside the courtroom, the New York Times reported today. The newspaper also said the juror also tried to make a deal on the verdict. Jurors eventually reported themselves hopelessly deadlocked, and U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch declared a mistrial. Gasch, who received an anonymous note about the incidents, said no juror had ever tried to inject such outside influence in his 50 years of legal prac... tice, according to the newspaper. Gasch said if the jury had not been sequestered or in the security of marshals, he would have demanded a jury-tampering investigation. The juror, identified as William Cash, reportedly later said he had fabricated the information and it was a joke. The information was damaging to three prosecution witnesses. The holdout reportedly met privately with the jury foreman in the jurors' bathroom and both came out with the offer of a deal. The holdout offered to go along with the guilty verdict on one of the counts if the other jurors would vote for acquittal on the other 10.

A winter storm spread snow, freezing drizzle, rain and sleet from Oklahoma through the Carolinas into the Virginias and the lower Ohio Valley today. The storm dropped heavy snow in central Arkansas and the mountains of the Carolinas, and snow warnings were issued for parts of Oklahoma, Arkansas and Tennessee.

A wet winter storm brought extensive power outages to much of South Carolina and north Georgia Tuesday, forcing some schools to close. Oklahoma was also hit by storms Tuesday, as Oklahoma City received 6 inches of snow — the heaviest snowfall in one day since 1968.

Freezing rain mixed with sleet was reported today in eastern Tennessee, northern Georgia and parts of the Carolinas. Snow fell in Kentucky, the Virginias and the southern parts of Missouri, Illinois and Indiana.

New Orleans, soaked by a 7-inch rainfall since Monday, reported clear skies today. More than 5 inches of rain fell in New Orleans Tuesday, flooding some homes and streets and forcing some schools to shut down. No injuries were reported.

Rain fell today from Alabama into northern Florida, and light snow was reported in the northern Great lakes region and the northern Rockies.

Cold temperatures were recorded in the northern Plains and mid and upper Mississippi Valley. Temperatures dipped below zero in eastern Nebraska and to 21 below zero in North Dakota. Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 21 below zero in Grand Forks, N.D., to 75 degrees in Key West, Fla.

Here are some early morning temperatures and conditions from key cities around the nation and in Canada: Eastern U.S.: Boston 16, clear; Cincinnati 27, snow; Cleveland 22, hazy; Detroit 15, cloudy; Indianapolis 25, cloudy; Louisville 28, snow; Miami 70, clear; Nashville 32, snow; New York 22, partly cloudy; Philadelphia 24, cloudy; Pittsburgh 18, cloudy; Washington 30, cloudy.

Central U.S.: Chicago 21, snow; Des Moines -1, clear; Kansas City 9, clear; Minneapolis-St. Paul -5, clear; New Orleans 45, foggy; St. Louis 29, cloudy.

Western U.S.: Los Angeles 53, clear; Phoenix 43, clear; Salt Lake City 33, cloudy; San Diego 53, clear; Seattle 47, partly cloudy. Canada: Montreal -5, clear; Toronto 10, cloudy.

Individual Retirement Accounts at First Savings are the sure way to build for a secure retirement, and get a tax break at the same time.

If you're working for a company that does not have a retirement plan and you feel unprotected, then an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) at First Savings is the thing for you.

With an IRA, you save for the future at the impressive current interest rate of 8% (effective annual yield 8.33%). Deduct whatever you save - up to $1500 - from your gross income, and defer every penny in taxes on your IRA until you withdraw it, normally after retiring. Then, you'll probably have less income and possibly be in a lower tax bracket.

(NOTE: There are severe penalties for withdrawals before age 59½.)

Here's an example of what an IRA can do for you. If you start an IRA at age 30, and deposit the maximum of $1500 per year until age 65, at the current interest rate, your IRA will be worth over $300,000. That's a tidy sum to start retirement, if you want to retire that young. By the way, your IRA is in addition to standard Social Security benefits. But remember, the deadline for starting or adding to your IRA is the date your taxes are due.

So stop by either First Savings office . . . downtown at 500 West Wall or San Miguel Square . . . and let the "FISCAL FITNESS PEOPLE" show you the sure way to save for retirement. It's getting later than you think . . .

Next winter may document crises
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said today the Iranian crisis could leave U.S. oil inventories "dangerously low" for next winter and force imposition of conservation controls.
 Appearing before the Senate Energy Committee, Schlesinger said there has been no indication "that the slide of Iran toward chaos has been arrested" or when stability might be restored in the Middle East country.
 The political turmoil in that country has shut off Iran's former exports of 5 million barrels of oil daily to the world market, forcing consumer nations to draw on their inventories. The U.S. share of Iranian exports was 900,000 barrels daily.
 "Unless we are able to restock for next winter, our inventories could be dangerously low," he said.
 Schlesinger emphasized he does not believe mandatory controls should include gasoline rationing.
 He said the goal of voluntary and possibly mandatory controls would be to reduce U.S. oil consumption by 500,000 barrels a day.
 Among the possible mandatory actions he cited were requiring service stations to close part of weekends, imposing temperature controls on buildings and pressing for greater use of coal in power plants.

H. Eckelberger Jr.
 BAIRD — Graveside services for Harry C. Eckelberger Jr., 51, of Baird, uncle of Andy Vestal of Big Spring, were Monday in Greenwood Cemetery in Fort Worth directed by Morgan-Parker Funeral Home.
 He died Sunday in a Baird nursing home after a sudden illness.
 He was born July 28, 1927, in Fort Worth. He moved to Baird three years ago. He was a Catholic.
 Other survivors include his mother, a sister, four nephews and a niece.

Antitrust division to support move
 WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department's antitrust division has agreed to support a move to force the oil companies to divest themselves of oil pipelines.
 Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., asked the Federal Trade Commission on Jan. 4 to open a rule-making procedure on the issue.
UPI reporter shot in head
 LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Judy Danielak, 21, a reporter for United Press International, was in critical condition today at a Little Rock hospital, suffering from a gunshot wound to the head.
 Mrs. Danielak was found wounded in her car about 7 p.m. Tuesday off Interstate 40 between Little Rock and Jacksonville, authorities said.

Hike termed 'excessive'

By GARTH JONES
 AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said today he thinks a 10 percent increase for state employees is "excessive" and vowed he would veto a bill that changed the primary election dates in Texas.
 He also said he thought Texas should "think a long time" before increasing the 55 mph speed limits and face a risk of losing up to $300 million in highway funds.

 About recent recommendations by state agency heads that state employees get a 10.2 percent pay raise to keep up with inflation. "It's excessive ... the straight line acceleration of salaries is not the way to keep up with inflation."
 Clements said he approved of the 5.1 percent increase included in the budget of the Legislative Budget Board.
 Clements said he thought the Legislature should consider the proposal to call a presidential preference primary for March or April as a separate issue from proposals to change the party primary dates from May and June to August and September. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton approve both plans.

Clements said he is for a presidential primary but has not taken a position yet on the date.
 "I have a basic opposition to moving the party primaries into August and September," he said. "Squeezing the campaign after the primaries to the general election into 60 days is much too thin. It is impossible to put on a competitive campaign in 60 days."
 He said, "If a bill comes to me putting the primaries in August and September, I would veto it."
 On other subjects, Clements said: — He would be willing to increase his budget estimate if the Department of Public Safety needs more money to fight the drug traffic. — That if gasoline rationing comes, "it certainly would affect us because we have greater distances here. I don't think in Texas we have a gasoline shortage."

Bank docket dates slated

Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN—The Texas Savings and Loan Department has set an application by Home Savings Association of Odessa for a branch office at West County Road and University Boulevard in Odessa for its March 5 docket call.
 Earlier, the department set an application by Odessa Savings Association for a branch office near Tanglewood Lane and 42nd in Odessa for the same docket call.
 If either application is protested, it will be set for a full hearing, with all parties given an opportunity to present testimony and evidence.
 If there is no protest, the request may be sent to Savings and Loan Commissioner Alvis Vandygriff for a decision without a public hearing.

Rosalynn Carter urges end to mental health stigma

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rosalynn Carter, the first president's wife to testify before Congress in more than 30 years, said today society must erase the stigma attached to mental health problems.
 "Until we break the self-feeding cycle of fear, discrimination and lack of understanding, our efforts to improve the quality of care for all who need it will be in vain," the first lady declared in testimony prepared for the Senate subcommittee on health and scientific research.
 Mrs. Carter lobbied the committee, headed by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., for the 117 recommendations in the report of the President's Commission on Mental Health. She is honorary chairwoman of the commission.
 Not since Eleanor Roosevelt testified before several congressional committees in the early 1940s has a first lady traveled from the White House to Capitol Hill to address the legislative branch publicly.
 Mrs. Carter gave private briefings to foreign affairs committees in the House and Senate after her journey to Latin America in 1977.
 President Carter's wife, a champion of the mentally ill since she was first lady of Georgia in 1971, said progress in the mental health field was being detained by "negative public attitudes."

 Society, she cautioned, must change its attitudes. "It means raising our children so that if they are confronted with mental illness they aren't afraid or ashamed to seek help."
'Enough,' says Marvin aide
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lee Marvin's publicist says he once told Michelle Triola Marvin she had received "more than enough" of the actor's fortune during their love affair and deserved no more.
 "What I told her was that she had received quite a bit, more than enough, living with him for more than five years," Jim Mahoney testified Tuesday.
 "You felt she had gotten her just due?" asked Miss Marvin's attorney.
 "Yes," said Mahoney. "And then some."
 The well-known Hollywood publicity agent was the latest in a parade of the actor's lawyers, agents and publicists called to the stand by Miss Marvin's lawyer.

Stanton branch hearing subject

Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN—The Texas Savings and Loan Department has set a hearing for 9:30 a.m. April 25 on the application of First Savings and Loan Association of Midland for a branch office in Stanton.
 The application was opposed at the department's monthly docket call Monday by Gibraltar Savings Association, Houston.
 The proposed branch would be at Texas 139 and U.S. Highway 80 (Business Route).
 The hearing will be at the department's offices, 1004 Lavaca, Austin, before hearing examiner Luke Robinson.

Army says no to EPA

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — The Army has told the Environmental Protection Agency that it will not be responsible for cleaning up DDT residue near Redstone Arsenal.
 In a letter to Arthur Linton, an EPA official in Atlanta, the Army also said it would not meet agency demands to study the health of persons living downstream from the base.
 Linton said the Army's refusal to obey the EPA order could prompt court action.
 Traces of DDT have been found in streams around the Army's Redstone Arsenal since a chemical plant there closed in 1970. And the Tennessee Valley Authority found high levels of DDT in catfish taken from freezers of residents in nearby Triana.
 "It's the agency's (EPA) opinion the Army is responsible for DDT contamination of the Wheeler Wildlife Refuge and the possible poisoning of the residents of Triana," said Linton.
 "We have ordered them to correct a problem through the administrative process that is a part of the law, and if they don't do that we will go to court."
 The Army has approved about $1 million to clean up the site of the Olin Chemical Corp. plant.

Weights for women a heavy assignment

By PATRICIA DIBSIE
Copley News Service

Dieting alone has failed. The woman, in her early 30s, steps on the scale and registers 125 pounds on her 5-foot-5 medium frame.

Jogging is boring. It's winter, tennis and swimming are out. Weight lifting? Why not.

After a vigorous month and one half, the scales are once again questioned. She feels like this is it, the perfect weight. What? 129 pounds.

The waist is down by one and one-half inches. The hips and thighs have even slimmed. So where are the extra four pounds? Depression sets in and it's back to eggs and grapefruit. The weight-lifting program is abandoned.

There's no questioning it — skinny is in.

"If I were a woman I would think this way — What do men want?" said Dr. Franco Columbu, a former Mr. Italy, Mr. Europe, Mr. International, Mr. World, Mr. Universe, Mr. Olympia.

"They want something firm, a round figure that has a shape. There is nothing sexy about a skinny, flabby body — and that's what most American women think men want."

Columbu and his wife, Dr. Anita Columbu, both practicing chiropractors, have written a how-to book on toning up the body for women only.

"Starbodies," a large-format Dutton paperback, gives the novice a well-thought-out plan for body building and toning — but make no mistake, muscles for women are not part of the plan.

Toning and strength are emphasized. Four years ago, Anita Columbu was 20 pounds heavier and a lot of inches (she won't talk about how many) bigger.

She carries 110 pounds on her 5-foot-2 frame now and works out at least three times a week to fight the never-ending battle of flabby thighs.

Both say that the hardest parts of the body for a woman to tone and slim are the hips, thighs and stomach area. The easiest — just a matter of weeks with the proper program — are the upper arms.

The technique is always simple — repetition with a small amount of weights to slim and tone, and larger amounts of weights and fewer repetitions to build up.

Weight? There's good news and bad news.

Fat takes up more area but muscle weighs more. So although a strict weight-lifting program may add a few pounds the body will definitely look thinner.

"If you're in good health, the body responds almost immediately to any weight-lifting program," Columbu said.

Humidifier important

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

It's either too wet or too dry. The air in your house, that is.

When it's too dry, you are more susceptible to respiratory infections because low-humidity air dries the mucus membranes lining the nasal passages. Glue joints in furniture become loose, house plants droop, fabrics dry out and there is static electricity all over the place, most evident when you walk on a rug and touch an object or another human being.

Also, most persons feel colder when the air doesn't contain enough relative humidity.

Air with a temperature of 68 degrees Fahrenheit and a humidity of 45 percent is more comfortable than air with a temperature of 72 degrees and a humidity of 20 percent.

That's because the human body has its own way of cooling off. When perspiration evaporates from the skin, the cooler the body feels. When the air is too dry, it absorbs perspiration from your body very quickly and you feel cool. When the air is sufficiently moist, it doesn't "steal" the perspiration from your body and you feel warmer.

The solution to low relative humidity is to put more moisture into the air. Our grandparents knew this well when they put pans of water on radiators so as to add water vapor to the air. It was of some help, but it had some disadvantages, one of which is that it was difficult to control. And when you can't control the amount of moisture you are adding to a house, you sometimes permit the humidity to get too high.

When this occurs, the warm, too-moist air condenses on cooler surfaces, causing the condition generally known as "sweating windows and walls."

All of this is the reason why the best way to add moisture to the air inside a house is with a humidifier which has an automatic control. It starts up when the relative humidity is too low and stops when a certain level has been attained. Although such humidifiers come with detailed instructions on how to handle the controls, you can adjust them to your own needs simply by observation. If windows steam up, for example, in the area where the humidifier is located, you know that too much moisture is being emitted and that the control must be reset at a different level.

The variety of humidifiers is almost endless. Don't go out and buy one until you have shopped around and asked a lot of questions. Talk to people in your neighborhood who own them. Different types of humidifiers are better suited to areas which have different temperatures and average relative humidities.

Group reviews divorce tape

The St. Ann's Divorced, Widowed and Separated group reviewed a tape on "Divorce" by Father James J. Young at a recent meeting in the home of Teresa S. Guyton.

The tape was the first in a series to be played for the group. The second tape, "Why So Much Divorce in American Society?" will be reviewed at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the home of Elsie McCague, 2307 W. Shandon Ave. Coffee and discussion will follow the tape.

The group will also meet for a workshop on "How to Figure Income Tax" Feb. 22 in the Adult Renewal Center at St. Ann's Church. Interested persons can call 682-4582 for further information. The group meets twice a month.

Working mothers get tips on combining family, job

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Working women whose other roles include those of mother, wife and housekeeper need all the help they can get, believes Barbara Kaye Greenleaf, a working mother herself who has set out to give other women that help.

The number of U.S. working mothers with children under age 18 is approaching 16 million, and 40 percent of women with children under the age of 6 are working, says Ms. Greenleaf, who with pediatrician Dr. Lewis Schaffer has just written a book, "HELP: A Handbook for Working Mothers."

"Unfortunately, when a woman sets off to work she doesn't exchange the office for the home; she adds the office to the home and is chronically fatigued," she said in an interview.

"That leaves her cranky and impatient with her kids at night. But it's the mother who suffers most, since studies show the child is not short-changed when the mother works."

There are advantages as well as disadvantages for the family in which the mother works, she points out. One major gain is that the salary the mother brings into the house can lift the family above the poverty level, reducing tension caused by lack of money.

"The children get a sense of independence and kids who have working mothers have a less stereotyped view of what a mother is," Ms. Greenleaf adds. "There is a correlation between a mother's mental health and her children's mental health, and their chances of being on an even emotional keel are improved when the mother has self-esteem and feelings of satisfaction stemming from her job."

To lessen the impact of a mother's going back to work, Ms. Greenleaf advises that children be carefully briefed in advance, "being as complete and definite as you can within the limits of the child's understanding. The younger the child, the closer to the event you tell him or her."

"I would include the kids in the celebration of getting a job," she says. "Take them on a tour of the new premises if possible; show them where you'll be sitting so they visualize where you are; tell them the arrangements made for their welfare. Be as positive and upbeat as possible — children take their cues from their mother."

She suggests preparing for possible illness of the child: get the medicine cabinet stocked; have a good rapport with your doctor; leave a notarized letter authorizing any necessary treatment; have a list of specially qualified sitters, such as unemployed teachers, or know schedules of relatives who can be relied on in an emergency. Sometimes, she notes, women save up their vacation days so they can stay home.

In the area of housework, a woman has to make a tradeoff, buying precious leisure for the price of her home's not meeting previous standards, says Ms. Greenleaf, who conducts seminars for women employees in business and government on how to cope with a family and a job.

"Despite all the publicity about how fathers are pitching in, the mother is still the psychological parent and psychological housekeeper," she says. "It's assumed the house and kids are her responsibility, though younger fathers seem to be taking more of a hand with the kids."

"I consider us the interim generation," she says. "Our mothers did not expect to work; our daughters expect to work and not to suffer for it; we work but expect to pay a high price."

She believes in a "fair but firm" stand on help from the husband. To achieve this, she suggests making a list of the wife's chores — "for which she'll probably need a scroll from a California redwood" — and a list of the husband's chores — "for which she'll probably need only a gum wrapper." "Ask him to compare the lists and maybe he'll take some over," she says.

In any case, her rules for organizing the household include: throw out 20 percent of everything; put items near where they are used; leave as much out in view as you can stand; make a permanent place for things and return them there so you'll know where they are; experiment with schedules and systems.

Ms. Greenleaf carries a little black looseleaf notebook, with sections labeled for appointments, a daily to-do list, notes concerning husband and children, work and food. "This is my bible, my liaison between office and home," she says.

Ms. Greenleaf, who is in her early 30s, lives in Armonk, N.Y., with daughters aged 6 and 10 and her husband, an advertising executive, who "is a terrific baby sitter, does the marketing, sews on buttons, bakes cakes and pitches in wherever needed."

Sockets defined

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — Please help us settle an argument. Our dictionary doesn't make an answer clear. What is the difference between a tang chisel and a socket chisel? And how is each used?

A. — With a tang chisel, the hollow is in the handle, whether it be a wooden or plastic handle. Thus, the end of the chisel fits into the handle. With a socket chisel, the hollow is in the chisel. The handle fits into the chisel itself. A tang chisel is for work in which the hands of the operator are used exclusively. A socket chisel is for work where the chisel handle must be struck with a wooden mallet.

Q. — I have an old portable electric drill which works perfectly well. I recently was given a new drill which is operated by a battery. Since my old drill does not have a shockproof housing, I have avoided using it outdoors during wet weather or even in my rather damp basement. Do I have to do the same thing with my new drill?

A. — No. That's one of the advantages of a drill operated by a battery. There's no danger of a shock from the drill no matter where it is used.

Q. — I bought a second-hand bureau a few weeks ago and have just finished taking off the dark stain that was on it and which my wife and I disliked. I used a regular varnish remover. Nearly all of the old finish came off fine, but in three places, some of the stain seems to have remained, not as dark as before but still noticeable. Before I do anything that will ruin the job, I want to know if I can follow my wife's advice and remove the stain with a regular household bleach?

A. — She has the right idea, but you must be prepared for the possibility that (1) it won't work and (2) it will make the wood lighter in these three areas than the rest of the bureau. If it does not take off the stain but merely lightens it, try another application or use a commercial wood bleach.

divorced and self-supporting. Mac is a handsome, 37-year-old Irish cop, separated from his wife. He takes me to nice places when he can afford it, but he's usually broke because he loves to gamble. (Mostly, sports and the horses.) I'm always buying tickets to sports events, theaters, etc., and we eat at my place a lot. Mac hates for me to spend my money on him, but I can't help it. I want to be with him as much as possible. He begs me not to get "too serious" about him because he doesn't want any permanent involvement, but it's too late. I'm already in love with him. He keeps reminding me that I am his best friend. Abby, I don't want his friendship. I want love and marriage.

Is this situation hopeless?—HURTING IN MANHATTAN

DEAR HURTING: Yes. A one-sided love is slow torture. And the chances for his friendship developing into the kind of love you want are about 1,000 to 1. If Mac hasn't heard about Gamblers Anonymous, clue him in. There's a chapter near him—listed in the phone book. It's well worth the gamble.

DEAR ABBY: I am being severely criticized for giving a relative a vacuum cleaner and all the attachments for a wedding present.

Granted it's not nearly as glamorous as something in silver or crystal, but these kids are just starting out and they don't have very much, and I thought a practical gift would make more sense.

If I'm wrong, please tell me so I won't go the practical route again and get laughed at.—AUNT ROSE IN SPOKANE

DEAR AUNT ROSE: Don't apologize for your gift. It's reassuring to know that there are practical folks like you who refuse to get sucked into giving gifts that are more ornamental than useful.

DEAR ABBY: My husband refuses to make out a will. He has high blood pressure, prostate trouble, emphysema and diabetes.

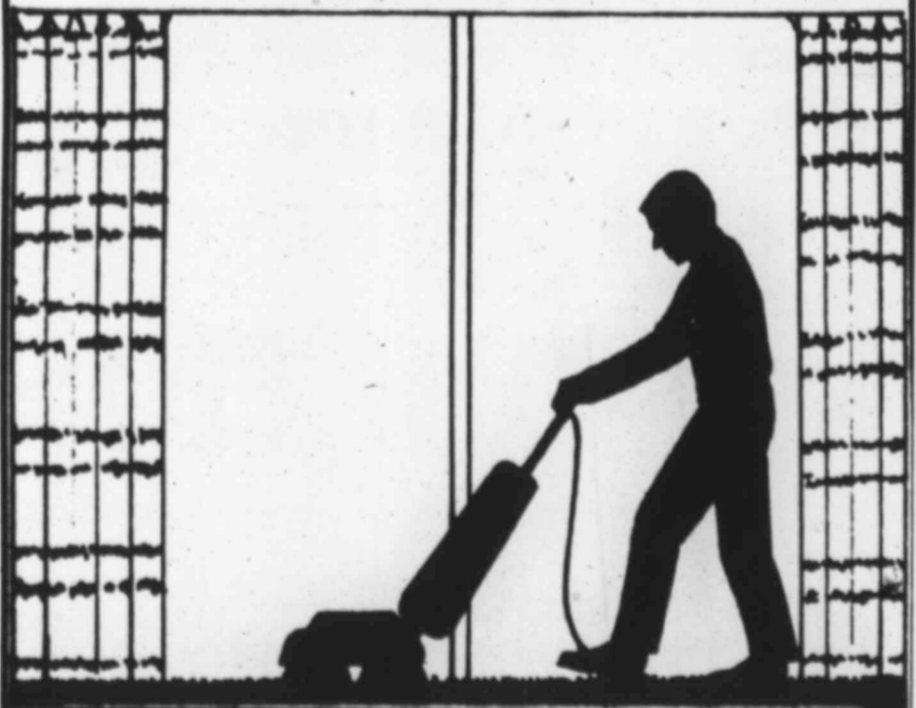

I am so afraid that after skimming and saving for 45 years, he will die and leave me nothing. Everything we have is in both our names. I am his beneficiary, as he is mine, on our life insurance policies. Legally, is this enough? Or do I have to worry about his relatives suing me for what they may claim is their fair share? They haven't bothered about him for the last 10 years, but they're the kind of people who would move right in and make trouble if there was any money in it for them.

Write back fast, Abby. I have no one else to turn to and every time I mention a will my husband blows up.—WORRIED SICK

DEAR WORRIED SICK: Ask a lawyer what will happen to your husband's assets should he die leaving no will. The laws vary in different states.

'Superman' is male fashion look for spring

By TIMOTHY HAWKINS
The Los Angeles Times

If a man wants to look like Superman, he won't necessarily have to gain 35 pounds of muscle to play the role — the way Christopher Reeve did for the film. New York menswear designers are showing Superman-sized shoulder in their collections for Fall 1979.

Fred Astaire, who was just voted all-time best dresser and the strongest influence on masculine elegance in the 20th century, is another new super hero. A return to elegance in dressing is also big news for fall.

Even superstar John Travolta — whose white-vested-suit-and-polyster-shirt "Fever" look and 50s "Grease" grubbiest made fashion headlines — is playing the role of fashion hero. He'll wear a Giorgio Armani wardrobe in his next film, "American Gigo-"

The idea of a super hero with a souped-up wardrobe does not mean that last year's natural shoulder, unconstructed "Everyman" looks are out. Those loose, comfortable clothes most men have yet to try on are not victims of the new super look. But last year's hang-loose anti-hero, the street bum, is being shaped up and spiffed up.

MAN AND SUPER MAN are both new fashion heroes.

Think of the inverted triangle shape of Superman's emblem or the upside-down pyramid on Mork from Ork's space suit and you've got the shape of things to come. The new super shoulders are balanced by narrow proportions through the body, including slimmed-down lapels, ties, shirt collars, cuffs, and plackets, right down to the peg of the trouser leg.

Fabrics are still super natural with elegant interest in tweedy wools, soft cashmeres, shiny mohairs, luxe-y silks and lots of iridescents. The super colors are still basically neutral tones but with new bright accents woven in. Cavlin Klein is seeing red for outerwear. Don Robbie's predicting black with navy blue for disco wear. Alexander Julian's "statutory grape" — a mixture of brown and purple yarns — is his favorite shade. Ralph Lauren is talking lavender in tweeds and shirtings. Dimitri's showing a gray flannel tuxedo. And Alan Flusser for Pierre Cardin Relax has his "Studio 54 cowboy" in turquoise, red and black.

Bill Kaiserman's super looks for fall include two-piece broad-shouldered suits (there's not a three-piece in the collection). "I have in mind a pre-Cardin kind of ultra chic French feeling — unexaggerated with a masculine silhouette."

RALPH LAUREN says the western wear he pioneered for city dudes has now evolved from trendy to classic. He's turned from cowboys to blue bloods for fall fashion inspiration. His "Prince Suit" is a broad-shouldered, notch-lapelled chalk stripe design that brings to mind the Duke of Windsor — not Hopalong Cassidy or the Little Tramp. "I wanted a fresh, dressed-up look away from the wrinkled, rumpled effect," says Lauren.

"It's not hoodlum. It's not 'Grease.' It's not gangster. It's new like the music," says Don Robbie of his black broad-shouldered puff-sleeved suits worn with navy blue shirts. "If a man wants to lead on the dance floor he's got to look like someone a woman wants to dance with. She's got a new job. Why does she want an old man? He's got to look hot!"

Alexander Julian is not that hot on the new super shoulders. "I'm not sure they have any realistic longevity," says Julian. "I'm doing what I call an international shudder — a combination of Natural Ivy League and European styling." Julian describes the mood of his fall collection as "old bathrobe" or "Our Gang" (the classic serial's theme wa played at his fall showing). "The feeling of my silhouette is away from the baggy, floppy look to a little more physique — a little leaner, but certainly of tight or even trim. I've heard the word controlled used before," says Julian, who pictures Spanky waiting on the corner for Alfalfa in his new scarf-necked pull-over sweater and pleated trousers with full legs and pegged bottoms.

PIERO DIMITRI also has a narrow view of the new broad shoulders. "They're a gimmick. They don't make sense," says Dimitri, who will combine Italian leanness with soft custom construction in his fall line of three-piece sweater-vested suits, shawl-collared sport suits and his new gray flannel single or double-breasted tux.

Another advocate of the soft, easy silhouette — Alan Flusser of Pierre Cardin Relax — includes the cowboy and the "Grease-er" in his fall forecast. The updated 50s black leather, square-shouldered hip-length motorcycle jacket worn with black leather pants and a group of 50s western embroidered smile pocket shirts and silver or gold-fringed western jackets for disco wear are part of what he calls his "high fashion statement." Flusser's quilted lightweight nylon sport jackets, iridescent button-down collar shirts and pleated peg-leg "shlump" pants (so-called because they bag where they break at the shoe) are what he calls "a refinement of the point of view I've had for the last three years."

Calvin Klein — another broad-minded designer — is also emphasizing comfort and softness in his fall clothes. "It's about time men's clothes became as easy to wear as women's — yet looked totally male." Klein's solution: a no-button broad-shouldered cashmere jacket piped in silk to be worn for semiformal evenings with gray flannel slacks and a silk charmeuse shirt. "My clothes are for Americans who are modern, up-to-date and secure about how they look," say Klein. "They don't want to look like they just got out of the army. They don't want to look European. And they don't want to look like they just stepped out of the 40s or 50s. They want to look 1979."

Senior citizens center swings with activities

Activities are in full swing this month at the Midland Senior Center with two courses being offered in Quilt Making and Creative Writing. The Senior Center is sponsored by the City of Midland Parks and Recreation Department. Location is at 1300 W. Michigan Ave. The center is open daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Currently in progress is a course entitled "Modern Methods in Quilt Making" which is co-sponsored by Midland College. Instructor is Bernice Hughey.

Students are learning quick methods of quilting in the session. No quilting frame is used and all stitching which does not show will be done on the sewing machine. Stitches which show are hand-stitched. A complete mini-quilt is being made by each participant.

Midland College is also co-sponsoring a Creative Writing class taught by Mary Goodwin.

Classes began Tuesday and will be held for an eight-week period every Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. at the center. The course is being offered at no fee.

Interested persons 55 year of age or older are invited to join center activities, according to Marge Holland, director. She can be contacted at 682-3149.

New goodies available for spring planting

By TOM STEVENSON
The Washington Post

A lot of new goodies are available for vegetable and flower gardeners to plant next spring. In addition to the All-America, Burpee has a new cantaloupe and 3 new flowers, Stokes has 40 new vegetables and 39 new flowers, and Herbst has 4 new hot peppers and 2 broccoli Raab.

Free catalogs will be sent upon request by Burpee Seeds, Warminster, Pa. 18991; Stokes Seeds, 2329 Stokes Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y. 14240; Herbst Bros. Seedsmen, 1000 N. Main St., Brewster, N.Y. 10509.

orange stripes. Maturing in 55 days, the fruits are up to two inches in diameter. Among 6 cucumbers Stokes has a nonbitter, seedless, white spined pickle. To assure 100 percent seedless pickles it must be isolated from others.

Herbst says it has noticed an increasing interest in hot peppers and is including four additional kinds: Anaheim Chile, good fresh or fried; Japapeno M, flesh thick, pungent, dark green turning red; Santa Fe Grande, a high yield market pepper, and Serano Chili, a pickling or sauce pepper. Broccoli Raab is a spring, fall-growing variety, and Raab Salad must be planted in the fall and experience cold weather to produce florets.

Burpee has a new double French marigold Happy Days which is a colorama of yellow, gold and rich mahogany-red shades from early summer until heavy frost; also Fancy Plumes celosia (cock's comb) with a blaze of feathery plumes from midsummer until autumn, brilliant also in dried arrangements for winter, and Sparkling Bubbles Iceland poppy with silky flowers in radiant rich hues enhanced by some pastel shades.

Town has love affair with ice cream parlor

The Los Angeles Times

WILLITS, Calif. — This small Northern California town has had a love affair with an old-fashioned ice cream parlor for the last 43 years.

It was in the middle of the Depression in 1935 when the Colli sisters, Lena, 24, and the twins, Anita and Alita, 20, decided to take a fling at selling their homemade ice cream in a small store on Main Street.

The Colli sisters are still dishing it out six days a week, 52 weeks of the year, at the same old place. And through the years they have been the store's only employees.

Lena is now 67, the twins, 64.

Ever since it opened, The Creamery has been a favorite gathering place for townspeople looking for refreshment, news and gossip.

"I meet more of my parishioners at The Creamery than I do up on the hill (St. Anthony's Catholic Church)," laughed Father Norman Van Sile, 58.

And it may be the only ice cream parlor anywhere that fills orders for ice cream cones on regular pharmaceutical prescription blanks.

For as long as anyone can remember Dr. Luther Adams, a local physician, has presented each youngster making an office call a prescription for an ice cream cone at The Creamery.

It's also got to be one of the few ice cream parlors anywhere where kids can run up tabs on ice cream cones.

Everyone in town continues to call Lena, Anita and Alita the Colli sisters although all three were married long ago and they are now Lena Allyn, Alita Perisco and Anita Cross.

The three women always dress alike in clothing they design and make. Over the dresses are identical old-fashioned white aprons with black trim.

Special little things happen at the ice cream parlor like the other day when Nicky Durupt, 14, brought "the girls" a bouquet of flowers with a card that read:

"To my favorite lunch mothers with love..."

The Creamery looks very much the same today as it did when it opened 43 years ago. There's the same old cardboard Coca-Cola sign over the same old freezer box and the same counter and stools.

Milk sold for 10 cents a quart when The Creamery opened. Now it is 41 cents at the ice cream parlor. Ice cream cones haven't gone up all that much. A nickel a scoop then, 15 cents a scoop now.

Before opening up the parlor each day, Lena delivers milk with her brother Phil, 70, in a 1954 Divco milk truck. Alita helps Phil run a 140-acre black angus cattle ranch. And Alita is the organist, secretary and housekeeper at St. Anthony's. Phil and Lena actually own The Creamery. Alita and Anita are their sole employees.

"They're lucky to have a job at their age," Lena says with a wink.

Train hits school bus
CORRIGAN, Texas (AP) — Only two of 25 students were hospitalized from the collision of a slow-moving Southern Pacific train with a school bus Tuesday afternoon on the north edge of this East Texas town.

A 17-year-old student suffered a broken back, and her 13-year-old brother was admitted to Memorial Hospital in Lufkin with a torn eyelid.

John Wayne

Larry Flynt

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Wayne, recovering from a cancer operation, is still in the UCLA Medical Center and hospital officials now aren't saying when he'll be released. "We know that he's leaving but there's no definite word on when he will be going home," Medical Center spokesman Al Hicks said Tuesday.

After Wayne's Jan. 12 operation for stomach cancer, a hospital spokesman said the 71-year-old box office king would go home "in a week or 10 days."

Hicks said Wayne was "progressing satisfactorily," but would not comment further on his condition.

The film veteran was eating more solid food, including meat, and was getting up more often, he added, but visitors were still being limited to family members and close friends.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A quote by Alexander Solzhenitsyn in a pamphlet promoting a Russian arts festival at the University of Michigan has prompted the Soviet government to cancel an art exhibit scheduled for the festival.

"We did not intend to be provocative to the Soviet government, not to offend it," said Harold Shapiro, Michigan vice president for academic affairs. "We are extremely disappointed that we are unable to share this fine exhibition with the university community."

School officials said the Soviets also objected to a scheduled March 15 reading by Josef Brodsky, UM's poet-in-residence, who left Russia in 1972 after serving 18 months hard labor on a Soviet collective farm.

The Soviets said Brodsky and Solzhenitsyn are "not regarded as acceptable representatives of Russian art and culture," said Bret Waller, director of the university museum of art.

ATLANTA (AP) — Hustler Magazine owner Larry Flynt plans to return to Georgia next month, one year after he was shot and partially paralyzed.

"He's going to be on trial in March in Fulton County and I'm going to be there with him," Lawrenceville attorney Gene Reeves said Tuesday.

Reeves was walking with Flynt at the time they were shot from ambush March 6, 1978, during a lunch recess in Flynt's obscenity trial in Lawrenceville. A mistrial was later declared and prosecutors there have said they will not retry Flynt.

Leonard Rhodes, assistant solicitor general, said the hearing March 19 will be on a challenge by Flynt's attorneys to the jury pool in Fulton County.

Flynt was charged with distributing obscene materials after leasing an Atlanta bookstore in September 1977 to sell his magazine in defiance of a crackdown by local prosecutors.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — When King Hassan II of Morocco switched from cigarettes to cigars, he didn't realize he'd have to give up his favorite TarGard filters too.

The Venturi Division of Bissell Inc. in Grand Rapids, manufacturer of TarGard, doesn't make cigar filters.

What to do? Fred Orlert, national sales manager for Venturi, said he told a spokesman for the king it would cost as much as $25,000 to make one specifically for the king and was told "no problem."

Two days later, he received a letter from the Imperial Moroccan Embassy with one of the king's cigars wrapped in tissue.

Orlert studied the cigar and determined a $2.95 filter might fill the bill. He ordered one goldplated and had it shipped to the king with the company's compliments.

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — Latin America's Roman Catholic bishops failed to chart a specific plan of action to ease the plight of the poor and oppressed in the first draft of a policy statement for their decennial conference.

The document released Tuesday recommends a cautious role for priests under the region's many authoritarian military governments.

The conference ends Monday, and a final draft is expected then.

Lines were drawn two years ago when a "working document" was prepared to guide 150 voting cardinals and bishops and 200 observers and advisers from every faith gathered here for the third general conference of Latin American bishops.

One side demands intensification of the direction set at the second conference in Medellin, Colombia, in 1968, when Pope Paul VI called the clergy's deep involvement with the downtrodden.

But conservatives argued that Catholic activism in organizing peasants has brought reflex repression from suspicious governments. They demand a return to traditional emphasis on the Gospel.

Both sides found support in the words of Pope John Paul II during his visit to Mexico to open the conference. He sided with the conservatives when he exhorted the clergy to stay out of politics and use their pulpits to awaken those in power to their duties toward the peasants and workers. But the progressives were heartened by his outspoken sympathy for the poor and his calls on the rich and powerful to face up to their responsibilities to the less fortunate.

Both sides were represented in the first draft of the final document, but caution was stressed.

"The church wants, now more than ever, to proclaim the rights of the oppressed," one of the 21 commissions contributing to the draft said. "Our people face dehumanizing situations that demonstrate that the very dignity of man is in doubt."

But another commission warned the bishops "to avoid the temptation of becoming a political leader or social organizer" in working with the poor and oppressed. "In all things, your identity is the Gospel."

Liberal leftists whose beliefs are described by the catch phrase "liberation theology" call for action ranging from creation of new socialist governments to effecting change by working within the system.

Conservatives demand the church return to basics because activism over the past decade has sparked persecution, deportation or death for 800 priests in Latin America.

The conference's 21 commissions are dealing with specific issues of the central theme "Evangelization in the Present and Future of Latin America."

Several commissions are pivotal because they deal specifically with the question of whether or not the church should intensify its activism or withdraw to traditional passive ministerial duties such as visiting the sick.

Alfonso Lopez Trujillo, general secretary of the conference and archbishop in Colombia where the church gets along with the government, leads the conservative wing. His major opponent is Brazil's Archbishop Helder Camara, a proponent of progressive church involvement. Both are on the Commission on Evangelization and Promotion of Mankind, and Lopez Trujillo told reporters Tuesday he had reached agreement with Camara.

A resume of their work said the commission found problems in attempting to reduce evangelization "to a purely political or social obligation, or, its opposite, a simple explosive spiritualism ..." and concluded that "liberation uses evangelical methods ... that do not resort to violence or dialectics in the struggle of classes."

Teng security expensive

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston police department official estimates protection provided for Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping will cost the city some $280,000.

Assistant Police Chief B.K. Johnson said the major item would be overtime for officers.

He said the federal government has given no indication it will reimburse the city.

Survey may clear predatory problems

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown hopes an upcoming survey by his department will shed some new light on the problems Texas livestock producers face with predatory animals.

Details of the mail survey were outlined Tuesday by Brown in a speech before the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association.

The questionnaires will be sent out at the end of February, and results will be published in April.

In addition to predator losses, Texas producers will be asked for information on current predator control practices, marketing, grazing methods and number of animals.

Brown said the survey was requested by the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association.

"There is no question that this industry is one of the hardest hit by predators, but we need to know the actual extent of the damage on a statewide basis," Brown said.

While the number of all goats in Texas rose slightly last year, Brown said the state's sheep flocks continued their steady decline, and are over one million head below 1971 levels. Other problems, such as drought and cold, have contributed to the decline, but Brown said many within the industry feel predators pose the most serious threat to future expansion.

On another topic related to the sheep and goat raising industry in Texas, Brown noted that the shipment of Texas slaughter sheep and goats in Mexico almost tripled in 1978 over the previous year.

And he said slaughter sheep which were bringing between $12.50 and $17.50 per head in 1978 are now selling for up to $31 per head in San Angelo.

Tax referendums bill introduced

By SOLL SUSSMAN

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Rep. Bill Clark says the right amount of signatures should be enough to let voters decide for themselves on property tax increases.

Clark, D-Tyler, has introduced a bill to permit referendums on property tax increases that top 3 percent.

"The property tax owners are going to be able to stand up and say, 'Uh-uh, not out of my pocket.'" he told a House committee considering his bill Tuesday.

Clark said home-rule cities in Texas now allow property tax referendums so the bill "does not affect the Texas constitution."

The bill would extend property tax referendums to school districts, counties, water districts and all other taxing divisions of the state, he said.

Petitions signed by 20 percent or 40,000 of the qualified voters — whichever is less — would send a property tax increase bigger than 3 percent to the polls, Clark told the House Committee on Intergovernmental Affairs.

The bill, sent to a subcommittee for further study, drew fire from school groups.

"We are for representative government and against government by small concerned groups," said Charles Matthews, executive director of the Texas Association of School Administrators.

He told committee members that initiative and referendum have contributed to school districts' financial crises in other states.

"We believe that such measures are now inappropriate," Matthews said.

Clark responded that his bill allows only cuts in tax increases, not in the tax base.

Pat Shannon, a Fort Worth school board member, said the bill "would be harmful to our public schools and we feel it would be completely unnecessary."

School boards have been responsive to taxpayers, she said, but they would not be able to plan for the future if taxpayers could regularly roll back tax increases.

The federal and state governments often require programs, many of them unpopular ones like busing, Mrs. Shannon added.

"Certain small groups can use the technique (voting down tax increases) to exemplify irritation they have with issues that are beyond the control of the local district," she said.

Clark said his bill does not prohibit budgets from growing but only puts a potential ceiling on how much income the school districts can receive from property taxes.

He proposed the extra money should come from state and federal government.

If the federal government mandates a program, he said, "We will kick back on those people mandating."

"Unfortunately, I can't say those kinds of things," he said.

"Seriously, though, now is the time to let bygones be bygones, and I intend to live up to my pledge to be a governor for all Texans," Clements added.

The former oil field roughneck said he is convinced working men and women want the same things as other Texans.

"I think that most Texans agree with me that business and the working men and women must be helped, not hindered, by government," he said.

The governor repeated his attack on the Legislative Budget Board, which has recommended a 1980-1981 budget that calls for a 22 percent spending increase.

"I don't think such an increase is justified and I am not going to approve a budget of that magnitude," he said.

Clements also proposed requiring that at least 15 percent of citizens who voted in the last gubernatorial election sign petitions calling for a referendum.

The 100-member audience listened politely but withheld applause until the end of his speech.

It was the Republican's first address to a labor group since taking office, and he half-joked about that fact.

"All I have done with the CWA through the years is use your services extensively and I have paid my long distance telephone bills," he said of the union that represents telephone company workers.

Clements said he listened with interest as Attorney General Mark White thanked the union earlier, for its help in his campaign.

"I am aware that your group has taken a stand opposing initiative and referendum unless limitations are imposed on its use," Clements said Tuesday at a legislative workshop of the Communication Workers of America. "While I have been a strong supporter of initiative and referendum, I too am aware of possible abuses of it."

Initiative and referendum is a process by which citizens can directly pass or repeal laws, bypassing the legislature.

Clements also proposed requiring that at least 15 percent of citizens who voted in the last gubernatorial election sign petitions calling for a referendum.

The governor repeated his attack on the Legislative Budget Board, which has recommended a 1980-1981 budget that calls for a 22 percent spending increase.

"I don't think such an increase is justified and I am not going to approve a budget of that magnitude," he said.

Clements also proposed requiring that at least 15 percent of citizens who voted in the last gubernatorial election sign petitions calling for a referendum.

The 100-member audience listened politely but withheld applause until the end of his speech.

It was the Republican's first address to a labor group since taking office, and he half-joked about that fact.

Testimony outlines price of ignoring speed limit

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Speed kills. It also is expensive, a Senate committee learned Tuesday.

Motorists with a heavy foot on the accelerator will cost Texas millions of federal dollars unless they slow down, state highway officials informed the Senate Finance Committee.

Engineer-director B. L. DeBerry and state planning engineer Phillip Wilson testified at a time when some legislators are suggesting Texas ignore the national 55 miles-an-hour speed limit.

A House bill to raise the limit to 70 mph in Texas would cut off $390 million in federal funds this year, DeBerry said.

No state has enacted a higher speed limit, he said, but such a proposal has passed the Wyoming Senate.

Regardless of what happens to the speed limit bill, however, Texas could lose as much as $10 million this year if its drivers do not stop speeding, Wilson said. The loss would double in four years.

Wilson and DeBerry talked to reporters after completing a one-hour presentation on a proposed highway department budget of nearly $2.66 billion for 1980-81.

Committee members seemed unaware of a provision in the federal 1978 Surface Transportation Assistance Act that requires all states to cause more and more of their drivers to slow down each year until in 1983 at least 70 percent of vehicles are within the 55 mph limit.

In Texas, with its highly acclaimed highway system and wide-open spaces, 78 percent to 82 percent of the drivers are exceeding the speed limit, Wilson said. That percentage goes up to 84 on the multi-lane interstate highways.

Nearly one in four drivers — 23 percent — goes over 65 mph and 2 percent to 3 percent whiz along at over 90 mph, Wilson said. The average speed, he said, is in the 60s and "the trend is upward."

The highway department uses 20 hidden radar vehicles four times a year to compile its figures. Federal employees double-check the statistics by riding along with the highway employees.

"There are not too many states in compliance (with the speed limit), particularly in the West," said Wilson. "More states are in compliance in the East, where there are more people and the highways are not so wide open."

Asked what the state could do to control fast-moving vehicles, Wilson replied, "We can always pray."

Changes in open meetings law gain committee approval

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — At least one appeals court says that reporters are not eligible to sue governmental bodies over open meetings law violations, and Sen. Lloyd Doggett wants to change that.

Doggett's bill to change wording in the open meeting law passed the Senate Jurisprudence Committee Tuesday. It specifically writes "bona fide members of the news media" in a section on who can file suit over illegal closed meetings.

"This is to remedy a situation where an appeals court held that a newspaper in Abilene was not an 'interested person' under the statute and could not file an action," said Doggett, D-Austin.

The appeals court ruled that "interested person" means individuals who would be affected economically by action taken during a public body's closed meeting, he said.

Other appeals courts have ruled in favor of reporters, the senator said, adding his bill would clarify conflicting decisions.

'Not a penny more' sought by water board

AUSTIN (AP) — Harvey Davis of the Texas Department of Water Resources said Tuesday he is satisfied with the Legislative Budget Board's proposal for his agency, and "I will not ask for one cent more."

The LBB's recommended water budget for 1980-81 is $46,634,463.

Writing jokes just isn't funny

By HENRY ALLEN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — At 6 a.m. one recent Saturday, looking for laughs, Robert Orben snapped off his alarm clock — "I never move it from 6, I think it's rusted there!" — scrambled into his blue terrycloth bathrobe, grabbed the newspaper, a cup of coffee, a legal pad, a ball-point pen, and sat down on his couch overlooking all of Washington through the floor-to-ceiling window of his Arlington, Va., apartment.

He reads for two hours, taking notes, a routine he's followed for 33 years of writing 44 books of jokes, jokes for Red Skelton, Jack Paar, Dick Gregory, jokes for three four-page letters a month, jokes custom-tailored for politicians — Orben was a special assistant to President Ford — and for businessmen who pay $1,500 for five minutes of boffolas.

He hoped to write 25 jokes by 11 a.m. But it was slim pickings — headlines such as "Second JFK Gunman, Experts Say," for instance. Orben doesn't write jokes about unmitigated tragedy, offering the maximum: "If somebody falls down, it's funny. If they don't get up, it's not funny."

NOTHING, that morning, was making a noise like a joke, to use another old comedy-writing phrase. There wasn't even good Cleveland material, but then, he'd written a lot of Cleveland jokes lately, Cleveland being the new "joke city," after Buffalo's shift to a milder winter last year. "Frankly, I didn't know Cleveland was in trouble until I asked the treasurer for change for a twenty — and he had to send out for it."

Orben chewed his lip with the ferocity that makes him a regular Chap Stick customer. Between his baldness on top and his crewcut on the sides he didn't have much hair left to fall out. When he was younger, he'd work all day and all night till he got those 25 jokes. But at 51, making a living he only describes as "comfortable," and the renter of one of the finest views in Washington, he takes it a little easier. But not much.

("MIDDLE AGE is when your brain says: 'Go! Go! Go!' — while the rest of you is saying: 'No! No! No!' as he put it in book No. 43, "The Encyclopedia of One-Liner Comedy," which contains 2,000 more sizzlers).

What he needed was the kind of subject that he can do line after line, like test-tube babies:

"I don't know what's happening to this world. Yesterday I heard a test tube singing: Yes, Sir, That's My Baby."

"I dunno, somehow I never expected conception to be a spectator sport."

"I wonder if test tubes ever have headaches."

"TODAY WE HAVE come together to discuss one of the most difficult, one of the most complex and one of the most controversial questions of our time: Do test tubes need foreplay?"

Bang, bang, bang, like the day in California that he wrote 101 jokes. Of course, he's written so many jokes before and since that he can't remember any of them.

Anyhow, he kept drinking coffee and staring at the Potomac (he also thinks well in the shower) until he remembered the newspaper story about status jeans, $40 dungarees.

The synapses starting firing, the same routine ever since he compiled a book of patter for magicians when he was 18, in New York.

"YOU FIND a situation that's intrinsically funny," Orben will explain. "You figure out what's funny about it, then you do the construction of the joke."

I.E.: Status jeans themselves are funny, the hip and the hick coming together. "If you've never seen status jeans, picture what would happen if Paris made Plains its sister city." And how tight they are! By now he was really humming, a line about tight jeans being a "do-it-yourself vasectomy," jeans so tight that "sitting down in them automatically qualifies you for the Vienna Boys Choir."

And he didn't even have to use the good-news-bad-news formula, the show-me-and-I'll-show-you bit, or any of the favorite names, Anita Bryant, Howard Cosell, Billy Carter, though Billy Carter is going out of joke writing favor, these days.

NOW, A FEW DAYS later, Orben has had another good day and he can relax and talk about life on humor's assembly line.

"I've never enjoyed the writing process, just the finished product," he says from a giant wicker Huey-Newton chair. His hands fly, he sports a bright, tense, shy grin and eyes that look like he's sifting the conversation for angles, racing ahead to punch lines.

"I get unhappy with the ongoing tension. There's no assurance I'll be able to write funny tomorrow."

"The secret of writing comedy is to know where it's all going, then get ahead of it. Now I'm afraid that the parade will take a 90-degree turn and I'll go straight."

"In 1945, when I started, it was all girl friend jokes. So ugly that. Drove so bad. Her cooking. In the '50s, humor became much more perceptive. Then it turned to social comment. Mort Sahl was the spearhead, very biting and acerbic. Until '76 or '77, it was all the humor of conflict. The idea in sitcoms was to get everybody screaming at each other as quickly as possible. Now, Steve Martin is ushering in the humor of the next 10 years—good-natured zaniness. A few years ago I took time off and tried to write gentle humor, but it was very, very difficult."

THEN AGAIN, he gave President Ford material that won laughs by being more self-deprecating than cutting.

"It is a great pleasure — and a great honor — to be at Yale Law School's Sesquicentennial Convocation. And I defy anyone to say that and chew gum at the same time," said Ford in New Haven in 1975.

Orben is accustomed to the wielding of power, however. His lines get repeated by everyone from Paul Harvey, the most listened-to man in radio, to "a Monsignor in New Jersey who uses my stuff to relax people going on their first retreats." In Los Angeles, where he worked for seven years for Skelton before coming to Washington in 1974 at Ford's behest, his peers in the mines of one-liners and sitcoms command "between $75,000 and $100,000 a year," he says, refusing to say which side of those figures his own income falls on.

"I don't mean to blow my own horn," he says, "but between Johnny Carson's monologues, the political cartoonists such as Herblock and Oliphant, and me, if we all decide what the hot subject is in the country, that's what it is."

HE SELLS ONLY 10,000 newsletters a month, "but as soon as people open them, those jokes are getting repeated and repeated."

And after 33 years, he says that when it comes to custom-tailoring routines, "I write sure-fire jokes, demand-laugh jokes. A nightclub would be tougher because there the audience is daring you to make them laugh, but my clients are businessmen, mostly, and people want to be entertained by them rather than bored by a speech. Even if they miss, I set them up with savers for all the things that go wrong, and they always go wrong."

When the microphone keeps dropping down: "Does anybody have any Vitamin E?"

When you garble wording: "And now, I'd like to repeat that in the original English."

WHEN SOMEONE near you sneezes: "Bless you. I knew my jokes were old, but I didn't know they were dusty."

Orben can guarantee to make anybody funny but himself, that is. There's always the terrible thought that some day he'll sit there all morning in his bathrobe, swilling down the coffee, reading and rereading the papers, the magazines, and nothing will come, no test-tubes, no status jeans, not even his favorite inflation jokes ("I was three days late in getting back from Europe. The hotel made me wait until my dollars cleared") or post office jokes ("Redundancy is singing 'God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen' in a post office").

"I thought I'd run out back in the '60s one time," Orben recalls, smiling with wonder at the desperation he remembers. "There was nothing. Just nothing. Then Liz Taylor left Eddie Fisher for Richard Burton, and, ohhhh, it was a field day for every comedy writer in the country."

Cold cuts water output

BIG SPRING — An abnormally cold January, coupled with the surface water cutoff to oil companies, got 1979 production off to a sluggish start for the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Total production for the month was up 1,110, 106,291 gallons, down 13.7 percent or about 176 million gallons from January 1978, said district officials. Of this decline, 129 million gallons were in reduced deliveries to oil companies.

varies stood at 779,712, 000 gallons.

In fact, Odessa required 343,526,000 gallons, a gain of 7.64 percent.

Midland showed 188,780,000 in deliveries, down 21.22 percent; Big Spring was 179,135,000, down 7.45 percent; Snyder 62,249,000, down 6.13 percent; Stanton 6,022,000, down 20.82 percent; Robert Lee, took 1,032,000 gallons, whereas a year ago it was not taking water from Lake Spence.

Deliveries to oil companies totaled only 330,394,291 gallons, down 129 million gallons or 28.02 percent.

The decline is all the more dramatic when it is considered that last year the companies were reduced to half their normal draw, said district officials.

Britain's eggheads still ignore Nobel Laureate Rudyard Kipling

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — There is distressing news from Olde England that is having its fallout here.

The British academic community and intelligentsia, such as they are, are still being beastly to Rudyard Kipling, a poet without peer — he never did accept a peerage — and a Nobel Laureate who was laid to rest in the Poets' Corner of Westminster Abbey without ever having been named poet laureate. England's greatest writer since Dickens remains a parish among the double domes, which is an unpoetic injustice for the Bombay-born balladeer.

"In Britain," writes Paul Johnson, the distinguished critic and former editor of the New Statesman, "it is now common for a young person to emerge from the state schools at age 18 without once having heard Kipling's name mentioned in class. This attempted effacement of a great writer is without parallel, at any rate on this side of the Iron Curtain."

Fancy that. Going all the way through school in the mother country and never even once hearing the name of the genius who wrought such gold from the mother tongue as "Kim," "The Jungle Book," "Gunga Din," "Danny Deever," "Soldiers Three," "The Light That Failed," "Plain Tale from the Hills" and many others that have made him the most memorized and quoted writer in modern times. Next to the Bible and Shakespeare, Kipling's words fill more pages in most books of quotations than any other font of epigram and wisdom. More than Byron, more than Keats, more than Dr. Johnson. More than the justly obscure Alfred Austin, who was poet laureate of England in Kipling's day and rates only 3 citations in Bartlett's Familiar Quotations compared with 9½ double-columned pages for ruddy Rudyard.

"The female of the species is more deadly than the male," Kipling said that.

"A woman is a only woman but a good cigar is a smoke," Kipling said that.

"Every one is more or less mad on one point," Kipling said that, too.

"The backbone of the army is the non-commissioned man." Gen Douglas MacArthur's favorite quote — from Kipling, who also observed "single men in barracks don't grow into plaster saints."

"Lest we forget" is Kipling's warning against the abuses of national power. And, lest we forget, he also wrote such gems as:

"Never praise a sister to a sister, in the hope your compliments reaching the proper ears."

"Meddling with another man's folly is always thankless work."

"Down to Gehenna or up to the Throne, he travels fastest who travels alone."

"She was immutable as the hills but not quite so green."

"A woman's guess is much more accurate than a man's certainty."

"The silliest woman can manage a clever man, but it needs a very clever woman to manage a fool."

"On the road to Mandalay, where the flyin' fishes play..."

"More men are killed from overwork than the importance of the world justifies."

"What should they know of England who only England know..."

"The tumult and the shouting dies, the Captains and the kings depart."

"For the colonel's lady an' Judy O'Grady are sisters under their skins." Kipling also wrote, among a thousand other memorable lines, "take up the argument is not ended: "Kipling remains a haunting, unsettling presence" among the custodians of national culture. "For the best part of two generations," adds Paul Johnson, "critics and educationalists on both sides of the Atlantic have persistently belittled his work and discouraged the young from reading him."

On this side of the ocean, kids can sit through the "Jungle Book," thinking Walt Disney created it, or maybe catch "Captains Courageous" or "The Light That Failed" on a late night movie and not know both came from Kipling's pen. If they have a feel for the language, it's best they don't know what Hollywood did to "Gunga Din" and "Wee Willie Winkie."

Yale men at the tables down at Morey's still bleat, "We're poor little lambs who've lost our way, Baa! Baa! Baa!" Without a bow in the direction of the author: Kipling. Do cub scouts around the world join the pack and den without knowing Kipling's Mowgli inspired it all?

And yet in Vietnam I met dozens of GI's, officers and grunts, who could sit around the tent late at night and recite:

"The end of the fight is a tombstone white With the name of the late deceased. And the epitaph dreads: 'A Fool lies here Who tried to hustle the East.'"

Kipling wrote that before the French and the Americans had to learn it the hard way.

Mulligan's Stew

white man's burden" and "Oh East is East, and West is West, and never the twain shall meet," which got him into unforgivable trouble with the Oxford intellectual elite who already were convinced that a poet could not possibly be a poet if he was popular and read and revered by the common man. They called him an imperialist, a colonialist, a war-lover, even worse, a fascist and a racist which was patently absurd but it was the price one paid in those days of declining empire for being both patriotic and popular in print.

George Orwell, the conscience of socialism, came to Kipling's defense. So did T.S. Eliot, a genius among the Tories who also won a Nobel Prize for literature.

"The first condition of understanding a foreign country is to smell it," wrote Eliot, "as you smell India in 'Kim.'" He called Kipling, "the first citizen of India." Nirad Chaudhuri, the Indian writer, regarded "Kim" as the finest novel ever written about India.

That was all long decades ago, but as the British critic Kingsley Amis pointed out in a recent book the

Few Americans have C shortage

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have a glass of orange juice at breakfast every morning, but I have been wondering if I should supplement this with a vitamin C tablet during the winter when there are so many colds going around. What would be your advice on this?—Geraldine Y.

Dear Geraldine: Unless it is an awfully small glass of juice, you must be getting the daily amount of vitamin C recommended by the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences—and then some. The vitamin C RDA (Recommended Dietary Allowance), as it is called, is only 45 milligrams, which you would get in three or four ounces of orange juice. Remember you are also getting vitamin C from other foods—potatoes, leafy vegetables, tomatoes and lemons, to name just a few.

There is no real evidence that taking extra vitamin C helps prevent colds. And as orange juice is the second most popular drink in this country—after milk—Americans are not likely to suffer from a vitamin C deficiency. But, of course, if your doctor feels that a supplement might be helpful to you, then you should follow his advice.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Could you help us settle a little argument we had the other evening? I've always believed that beer provides good nourishment. But my wife says this is just an excuse to have another can, and that there is very little nourishment in beer.—Bert L.

Dear Bert: It depends what you mean by nourishment. A 12-ounce can of beer has about 150 calories. Most of that is from the alcohol, and about a third is accounted for by the carbohydrate in the beverage. There is just a little bit of protein—about a gram—and small amounts of some minerals: calcium, phosphorus, potassium and sodium. That is about it, as there is very little in the way of vitamins.

Most of the nutrients are left behind in the grain from which the beer is brewed, which may be sold as cattle feed. However, we may be getting some of it ourselves one of these days. Neville Prentice, a chemist at the USDA's barley and malt laboratory at the University of Wisconsin, has been trying out the grain to make cheap, nutritious cookies, muffins and bread. The spent grain has up to 30 percent protein, he says, and about 40 percent dietary fiber.

A barrel of beer leaves about 14 pounds of brewer's spent grain—and perhaps this could become an inexpensive source of food for human consumption.

Dear Dr. Solomon: If the parent is uncertain whether a child has had measles or measles vaccination before, should the child be vaccinated?—Mrs. F.M.

Dear Mrs. F. M.: Yes. No harm is done by vaccinating a child who has already had measles or measles vaccine.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Bulldogs near 5-4A crown

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Sports Writer

Midland High's version of the Charles Johnson Show played at the MHS gym Tuesday night...

Johnson dunked, pulled off reverse layups, slammed in enough tip-ins to tip over and scored 22 points to lead the Bulldogs to their 14th cage win...

He didn't sell any popcorn at half-time, but he may be selling playoff tickets before the week is out if his act continues at this pace...

ABILENE COOPER is 3-1 in the second half. Their contest with Big Spring was postponed due to poor driving conditions Tuesday and will be made up Saturday night.

Midland High's Milton Sanders goes high...and scores basket against Odessa High

The Bulldogs, now 5-0 in second half play after winning the first half with a 7-0 record, want to put the title crown in their hip pocket Friday.

TUESDAY NIGHT, Midland High cage boss Don Humphrey said before the game, "I'm ready to play, but I don't know about the kids. I don't think their ready for this one."

Odessa tried to play the role of the stubborn spoiler and did force the Bulldogs to play a zone defense that they don't prefer in the first half.

Arkansas, Texas Tech join Texas, Baylor in winner's circle

By The Associated Press

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton, summed up the Razorbacks' 60-56 victory over Texas A&M succinctly afterward: "At times, it's better not to play well and win than to play well and lose."

Sutton's 14th-ranked Razorbacks didn't play as well as he would have liked, but their rebounding made the difference in Tuesday's triumph in Fayetteville.

"We did a great job on the board," he said. "We knew that would be one of the keys in the game."

The game was seven minutes old before the Aggies got their first rebound, and 6-11 rookie center Rudy Woods was one of three Cadets who fouled out.

The loss knocked A&M out of a first-place tie with Texas in the Southwest Conference.

In other SWC games Tuesday night, Texas breezed to perhaps its easiest victory of the season in routing Rice, 95-52. Texas Tech cashed in its free throw opportunities late to hold off Southern Methodist 66-60, and Baylor never trailed in an 80-77 victory over Houston.

Texas A&M, whose 9-3 record is now a full game behind Texas' 10-2, but can climb back into the tie again if the Aggies can win two crucial games facing them in the next week.

A&M has to journey to Lubbock Saturday for a game with Tech's Red Raiders and then returns to friendly Rollie White Gymnasium at College Station for a showdown Tuesday with Texas.

"We have to win at Tech now," Metcalf said of the Aggies' chances to continue as a Southwest Conference contender. "Now we have our backs to the wall." Texas is idle until the A&M encounter.

Arkansas led A&M 34-25 at the half, but the Aggies fought back behind an aggressive man-to-man press and took a 48-47 lead with 4:36 to play. Arkansas missed five front ends of 1-and-1 free throw opportunities in the final 10 minutes to allow the Aggies to stay close.

Phillip Stroud scored 23 points and Jim Krivacs to lead Texas past Rice.

"It counts on the win side and we needed that, and badly," Texas Coach Abe Lemons said.

Rice Coach Mike Schuler called Texas "very, very good offensively" but said if he had to compare the league's top teams he'd go with the Aggies.

"Their people are just awesome. Texas is an excellent team and plays very smart, and Arkansas is a very

Kerley, Panthers romp past Midland Lee, 77-60

By BOB DILLON Sports Writer

ODESSA — Brad Kerley and some deadly free-throw shooting was Midland Lee's downfall Tuesday night.

Kerley, a 6-foot-5 junior transfer from Hobbs, N.M., ripped the cords for 30 points while he and his Odessa Permian teammates cashed in on 17 of 25 free throws and those 17 charity tosses were the difference in a 77-60 Panther victory in the Permian Fieldhouse.

Lee only had four chances at the free throw line and those came in the final period as the Panthers were only whistled for seven fouls the entire game.

THE GAME started out quite differently with the two District 5-4A rivals tied, 14-14 at the end of the first period and it was 31-26 at halftime in favor of Permian. It looked like the game might be a repeat of the first meeting in which the Rebels took an exciting 54-51 overtime victory in the Lee Gymnasium on Jan. 12.

The game was tied on 12 different occasions in the first half and the Kerley nets 30 crowd was anticipating another wild finish, but it just wasn't to be as Coach Al Oglesby's crew outscored Lee, 46-34, in the second half.

While Kerley was a one-man wrecking crew, teammates Scott Wynne and Mark Darville chipped in with 13 each for the Panthers who were bringing their season record to 14-13 on the year and 5-4A reading to 3-2. Lee, meanwhile, is now 14-16 on the season and 2-3 in loop play with two games left with Abilene and Midland High.

LEE TRAILED 48-40 going into the final period, but the Panthers scored seven quick points and were off and running to a 29-point explosion in the final eight minutes, to salt the victory away.

Ernest Merritt, 6-1 senior, led the Lee attack with 22 points while Mike McGaha and Tyler Alcorn followed with 16 and 10 points, respectively.

Chuck Fairbanks may be unemployed soon

BOSTON (AP)—Chuck Fairbanks has one football coaching job too many, but to hear his legal backers tell it, he may soon be in the unemployment line.

That's the opinion of a lawyer for the University of Colorado, which wants to hire the New England Patriots' coach who has four years left on his contract with the National Football League team.

"Colorado is the only game in town for Fairbanks," Boston attorney Earle Cooley said Tuesday. "Otherwise, he will enter the ranks of the unemployed."

The Patriots think otherwise, figuring that they still are the coach's employer at $150,000 per year.

The two-month-old dispute returned to the courtroom, as the university sought to lift an injunction that prohibits the school from signing Fairbanks to a contract which is worth at least $150,000 in salary and fringes.

After an hour of arguments, a three-judge U.S. Appeals Court panel took the legal saga under advisement.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle is due to weigh in later this month when he serves as an arbitrator, apart from the continuing court proceedings.

Fairbanks wasn't in court Tuesday, but he has filed a lengthy brief on his behalf — claiming his Patriots' contract was breached in December during a two-day suspension imposed by team owner William H. Sullivan Jr.

The suspension resulted from Fairbanks' sudden announcement that he had accepted the Colorado job.

Patriots lawyer John Blish urged the appeals court to retain the injunction issued last month in U.S. District Court. He said if the roadblock was removed, the NFL team would lose its coach, "a unique commodity," and suffer immeasurable damages.

Cooley, backed by several attor-

"There's never been the slightest doubt that Fairbanks is through with pro football," Cooley said. "His career is on the line. The injunction forecloses to him the only job around."

The lawyer said that courts are reluctant to enforce personal services contracts and that the injunction is unfair because Colorado and the Patriots don't compete against each other.

The dispute has left both Colorado and the Patriots without permanent head coaches. And caustic questions from Judge Bailey Aldrich on Tuesday indicated the panel may have little patience with the university's claim that it has suffered enough.

Indiana State rips Drake Bulldogs as Bird tallies 33

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

They were saying some disparaging things about the Indiana State basketball team in the newspapers. You know, the usual...a weak schedule, and all that.

That made Larry Bird mad. "He was very emotional going into the game," Coach Bill Hodges said about the pre-game scene before Tuesday night's Missouri Valley Conference contest with Drake.

Although Hodges stressed that "I don't prefer our guys to be that way," it didn't seem to do Bird any harm. The leading man of the Sycamore cast scored 33 points to power the nation's second-ranked team to a 100-79 victory over the Bulldogs.

"The team was very high," said Hodges, alluding to a quote in the Des Moines newspaper that said Drake had played a tougher schedule than Indiana State.

THE SYCAMORES didn't really show their intensity until the second half, when they blew the game open behind their brilliant forward, who scored 20 of his points after intermission. They led by as many as 23 points at one time while coasting to their 21st straight victory.

"The problem was with our defense in the first half, not our offense," Hodges said. "It was just a lack of concentration. It was our defense in the second half that turned us around."

About Bird, Drake Coach Bob Ortel had this to say:

"Bird's greatest asset is his temperament. He doesn't become ruffled. Combine that with his ability; that's what makes him a great ballplayer. If we had gotten the lead in the second half, we'd have gone to the four corners."

Ninth-ranked Marquette didn't have nearly the fun the Sycamores had Tuesday night, losing a 64-63 shocker to the University of Detroit at home. Third-ranked Duke, meanwhile, had to struggle past Virginia 64-63.

Elsewhere, 14th-ranked Arkansas stopped No. 11 Texas A&M 60-56 and No. 12 Texas crushed Rice 95-52.

The Sycamores led by just 38-36 at the half before running away from their MVC colleagues. Bird also had 10 rebounds and 10 assists in his splendid night's work. TERRY DUEROD'S 22-foot jump shot with two seconds remaining gave Detroit its upset victory over Marquette. The Warriors led by as many as 30 points three times in the first half before losing their poise and then losing the lead.

"I really hope this helps our chances," Duerod said about receiving an NCAA tournament bid. "They (Georgetown and Marquette) were both ranked and we beat them both. I hope there'll be somebody looking at us now and not thinking it was a fluke."

Gene Banks scored on a baseline drive with 30 seconds left to cap a furious Duke rally and lead the Blue Devils past Virginia. The Cavaliers had been up by as many as 12 points before Duke made a brilliant rally in the Atlantic Coast Conference game.

"Thank God it went in," Banks said. "We were looking for the good shot."

Duke Coach Bill Foster said that Banks showed a lot of basketball savvy in the pressurized final minute.

"In a situation like that you can't wait for the standing jumper," Foster noted. "You have to drive straight into the basket and that is what Banks did. We kept missing early in the game until we finally got our rhythm."

SIDNEY MONCREIF hit a layup and Alan Zahn added a three-point play with less than four minutes remaining to spark Arkansas over Texas A&M. Moncreif and U.S. Reed each scored 16 points for the Razorbacks and Zahn had six points and five rebounds coming off the bench in the last 11 minutes.

"Zahn played as well as I've ever seen him play," said Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton. "He really saved us. He played good defense and got some big rebounds late in the game. He deserves a lot of credit."

PHILIP STROUD scored a career-high 23 points and fueled Texas' fast break with quick passes to lead the Longhorns over Rice.

Elsewhere, Gordon Thomas scored 19 points coming off the bench to pace St. John's past Boston College 85-76 and Seton Hall trimmed Fordham 65-60 as Nick Galis scored 28 points.

Green defends Hawaiian title

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — A clear-cut favorite is difficult, if not impossible, to find in one of the strongest fields ever assembled for the Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament.

"It's really about the same as every week," said defending champion Hubert Green. "You have 144 men in the field and any one of them is capable of winning the golf tournament."

"Maybe at one time on the tour, you could pick out the guys you had to beat, but now the caliber of play is so high that anybody is liable to come out of the pack and pin your ears back."

That seems particularly true in the 72-hole event that begins Thursday on the 7,234-yard Waialae Country Club course that nestles in tropic splendor under the looming shoulder of Diamondhead. Palm trees and hibiscus, gentle breezes, warm, sunny weather offer a welcome contrast to the cold, rain, snow and hail that has plagued the tour most of this season. Fresh pineapples serve as tee marker on the course that winds by white-capped Pacific surf.

A chance to play in warm weather has helped lure what may be the most outstanding field of the year. They will be competing for $300,000 in total prize money.

Tom Watson, 1978 Player of the Year and leading money-winner for the past two seasons, tops the lineup and must be considered a prime candidate for the $54,000 first prize. Watson, however, had some difficulties and played below his usual level last week in the Bing Crosby tournament.

Lon Hinkle, who struggled to a playoff victory in the Crosby, will be seeking a second consecutive title. Hinkle, however, admitted to physical and mental exhaustion in the wake of his trying triumph.

The other 1979 winners — John Mahaffey, Ben Crenshaw and Fuzzy

Zoeller — also are contenders, although Mahaffey and Crenshaw had their problems last week.

Andy Bean, a playoff loser last week and a fourth-place finisher earlier in the season, is a definite threat.

Among the other standouts are Hale Irwin, U.S. Open titleholder Andy North, Lanny Wadkins, Canadian Open champion Bruce Lietzke, Lee Trevino, Tom Kite, Jerry Pate, Gil Morgan and Bill Kratzert, a playoff loser to Green in this event a year ago.

Cavaliers deliver New York TKO

By The Associated Press

John Lambert won the second round, Campy Russell and Jim Chones took the third round and the Cleveland Cavaliers scored a technical knockout over the New Jersey Nets Tuesday night.

Lambert came off the bench and pulled down 14 of his career-high 22 rebounds in the second quarter while Russell scored 13 of his game-high 19 points in the third period and Chones sparked with his all-round play as Cleveland surged from a 56-53 half-time deficit to a 92-73 lead.

Two baskets by Russell put Cleveland on top to stay 65-62 early in the third period and then came the TKO — the Nets were hit with three quick technical fouls, one on Bernard King, one on Coach Kevin Loughery and one on Jan van Breda Kolff. Bingo Smith hit all three technicals for a six-point Cleveland lead and the 119-100 rout was on.

In other National Basketball Association action, the Portland Trail Blazers knocked off the Phoenix Suns 110-93, the Los Angeles Lakers tripped the San Antonio Spurs 119-111 in overtime, the New York Knicks downed the Seattle SuperSonics 108-99, the Houston Rockets turned back the Detroit Pistons 113-108, the Atlanta Hawks outlasted the Boston Celtics 104-101 and the Chicago Bulls shaded the Indiana Pacers 110-107.

A 39-17 third quarter was the key in Cleveland's triumph over New Jersey, which ended the Cavaliers' four-game losing streak and handed the Nets their fifth consecutive setback.

"That was simply an excellent third quarter," said Coach Bill Fitch. "Sweets (Chones) probably had his best quarter in the third quarter, playing defense, getting rebounds and the rest of his game. The reason for that was he was pretty rested. John gave him a good rest in the second period."

Blazers 110, Suns 93
Guards Lionel Hollins and Ron Brewer combined for 48 points while a tenacious Portland defense kept Phoenix off-balance after the Suns had averaged 136 points in their previous eight games. Hollins led all scorers with 27 points, Brewer added 21 and Tom Owens 20 as Portland increased its homecourt record to 21-5.

The Blazers scored the game's first 13 points, led 20-2 after five minutes and eventually built a 29-point lead with 5:40 left in the third quarter.

Knicks 108, SuperSonics 99
Mike Glenn tied his career high with 25 points as the Knicks posted their third straight victory. Glenn scored nine points in the final period, including a three-point play that capped a late 11-2 burst. New York also got 25 points from Bob McAdoo as Seattle lost for the second time in 10 games.

Rockets 113, Pistons 108
Mike Dunleavy scored 11 points in the fourth quarter as Houston snapped a four-game losing streak. Dunleavy, who finished with 18 points, teamed with Moses Malone to help Houston pull away in the final three minutes. Malone had 21 points and 11 rebounds as the Rockets won for only the second time in their last seven games.

Lakers 119, Spurs 111
Jamaal Wilkes scored six points in overtime after Los Angeles came from far behind. The Lakers, who had trailed by as many as 16 points, were behind 99-95 two minutes to play but Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored six of his 32 points, the last a 10-foot hook shot with 15 seconds left, to send the game into overtime.

Hawks 104, Celtics 101
John Drew scored 23 points, including a key layup with 12 seconds left, as Atlanta held on to beat Boston. The Celtics led until midway through the third quarter when Atlanta's Steve Hawes tied it 65-65 with a tip-in. The lead seasawed after that until the final minutes.

Bulls 110, Pacers 107
Artis Gilmore scored 21 points to lead seven Bulls in double figures. Wilbur Holland and John Mengelt each scored 16 points for Chicago and Reggie Theus and Mark Landsberger added 15 apiece. Johnny Davis led Indiana with 22.

Greenwood beats stall

GRADY—Grady tried a stall on Greenwood's undefeated Rangers for a second time, and it didn't work...again. Greenwood went along with the "gag" and still rolled to its 23rd victory of the season, 20-2, here Tuesday night.

The last time the teams met, Greenwood outlasted a Grady stall, 26-7. The win leaves Greenwood 5-0 in district, but the Rangers still need a victory over Sterling City at Greenwood next Tuesday to nail down the title.

Greenwood's girls also encountered a Grady stall, but made off with an easy 71-11 win. The girls are 20-5 for the season and 5-0 in district with nobody in position to catch them down the stretch.

In the boys B game, Greenwood won 70-15.

Big paychecks changing attitude of athletes

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — With the wave of astronomical paychecks in big time competitive sports, one would imagine that most parents would be pushing their kids toward that million-dollar dream.
 "Forget the books, Johnny. Grab that bat and ball and go out and play with the boys," could well be the keynote in almost every American household.
 Not so, according to a national study of physical fitness habits and attitudes. Familiar American sports such as football, boxing and wrestling may be on the decline. The trend is more toward gentler exercises such as swimming, tennis, jogging, bicycling and gymnastics.

While 93 per cent of the parents surveyed feel it vital that their sons and daughters stay in top physical shape, "parents are least enthusiastic about their children working to become a sports star," the survey said. "Less than one in four feel it is important that their sons and daughters move in this direction."

 The Perrier Survey of Fitness in America, conducted by Louis Harris and Associates, Inc., was released today. It produced some interesting revelations and punctured some myths about the advantages and perils of exercise.
 The organization surveyed in depth 1,510 adults and an oversample of 180 runners, incorporating its findings in a 139-page report.
 Conducting the press conference were Gov. Jerry Apodaca, chairman of the President's Council on Physical Fitness; Dr. Robert Arnot, director of sports medicine for the U.S. Winter Olympics; Donna deVarona, Olympic gold medal swimmer; Louis Harris, the pollster; and Bruce Nevins, president of Perrier-Great Waters of France, Inc.

"Ours is not a medical report, but an attitudinal one," the report stated in its introduction.
 The Perrier Survey said the pursuit of physical fitness had become a national pastime, with 90 million participants in America — a growth since 1961 from 24 per cent to 59 per cent of the adult population.
 The fastest growing activities, according to the report, are running and calisthenics, with more than 17 million runners and 21 million doing calisthenics. Walking continues to be the most popular exercise, drawing 34 million. There are 26 million swimming devotees, 20 million cyclists, 20 million bowlers and 14 million tennis players. The tennis figure is one-third of that claimed by tennis foundation groups.

 Only 15 per cent of adults participating in sports activities are "high actives," indulging in 306 minutes a week of vigorous exercise, the survey states.
 The study contradicts many popular and long-held beliefs with these findings:
 —The vast majority of people who take up sports activity do not lose weight.
 —Active people are as likely to smoke as the non-active.

—Parents are as anxious for their daughters to participate as their sons.
 —Despite the widespread medical belief that exercise helps prevent heart attacks, nearly a third of those who do not participate fear that too much exercise can enlarge the heart.
 —Non-active people are inclined to consider joggers and weightlifters as the most fanatical.
 —Nearly half of the non-active population believe they get enough exercise from their work and home chores.
 One of the most significant revelations, according to the study, was that smoking was more prevalent among the actives (37 per cent) than the non-actives (35) and that regular exercise had little impact on weight loss and reduced sleep needs.

 The survey showed a sharp reversal of prevailing attitudes concerning women's athletic activity. There was an 89-1 percentage favoring women's participation in sports, 90-2 approving competition against members of their own sex.
 But women against men? A narrow 41 per cent said yes, 35 said no. Twenty-one per cent said it depends on the circumstances.

Former NL president Warren Giles dies

CINCINNATI (AP) — Warren Giles, former president of baseball's National League, died Wednesday morning, officials at Christ Hospital said. He was 82 years old.
 His son, Bill Giles, general manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, said earlier this week that his father was suffering from cancer.
 Giles served as president of the National League for 18 years until his retirement in 1969. He was president and general manager of the Cincinnati Reds from 1936-1951.
 Giles, who died at 3:35 a.m., never played the sport, but spent 50 years developing baseball before heading the Cincinnati Reds and later becoming president of the National League.
 Giles had the demeanor of a bank executive, and retired from active participation in the sport in 1969.
 The late Powel Crosley Jr. hired Giles as vice-president-general manager of the lowly Cincinnati franchise in 1936. He succeeded the flamboyant Larry MacPhail.
 Three years later the Reds were champions of the National League, losing to the New York Yankees 4-0 in the World Series.

 The Reds repeated the next year and went on to win the 1940 World Series in seven games over the Detroit Tigers.
 Giles was a leading candidate in 1951 to become Commissioner of baseball when A.B. "Happy" Chandler was voted out. But Giles withdrew and supported Ford Frick for the post. Giles was then named president of the National League. He directed the league business from his Cincinnati office.
 Giles professed little knowledge of baseball when he entered the sport almost accidentally. In 1920, he was part of a group in Moline, Ill., trying to save a minor league franchise and wound up accepting the challenge to run it himself.
 Two of Giles' close associates died recently. Dave Grote, director of the National League Service Bureau, died Jan. 1. Fred Fleig, secretary-treasurer and supervisor of umpires, died Jan. 28.

Title IX could ruin college track programs

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Michigan Athletic Director Don Canham says the future of intercollegiate athletics may depend on getting revenue-producing sports such as football removed from current federal guidelines for equal funding of men's and women's athletics.
 Failure to ease some of the current language in the guidelines, outlined under Title IX of the Education Act of 1972, could mean the end of competition in some sports for both men and women, Canham said.
 "Track and field would be one of the first to go because you're talking about numbers," said Canham, here to attend an alumni meeting.
 "You're dealing with a non-revenue producing sport. What they're talking about now would end a lot of things for both men and women athletes."
 Canham says current guidelines mean funding of men's and women's programs must be dollar for dollar, scholarship for scholarship.

 Exemption of revenue-producing sports like football would help ease the financial burden of upgrading women's programs, Canham said, while allowing all non-revenue sports to be treated equally.
 "What they have done is tell us to put all men's athletics into a pot and come up with a per capita expenditure for the men's program," Canham said. "Then they say you have to spend that much for the women. It just won't work."
 "We spent $1.5 million on football last year but we netted $5 million."
 If a university has 300 men athletes and only 100 women athletes, the next 200 women to join a team would automatically get a scholarship, Canham said.
 "As affluent as we are in Ann Arbor, we couldn't spend another $1.5 million on women's athletics," Canham said. "If it would cause us trouble, what about some of the other institutions."
 The Michigan athletic director said non-revenue sports should be treated equally adding "you can't just build in 300 scholarships for women's athletics."

 "Why don't they say every male nurse gets a scholarship until there are as many male nurses as female," Canham said.

Two Cincy grid stars arrested

CINCINNATI (AP) — The University of Cincinnati athletic program has seen two more of its athletes arrested in connection with thefts.
 Two football players were charged Tuesday with possession of a stolen stereo taken from the room of another dormitory student during the Thanksgiving holiday.
 Two basketball players were dismissed from the university last month after they were charged in connection with burglary in a gift shop in a St. Louis motel following a game. Those charges were later dropped.
 Released on $1,000 bond each Tuesday night were wingback Allen Harvin, who ran for more than 1,000 yards, and reserve tailback Aaron "Greyhound" Hagans, 21.
 Harvin, 19, of Willingboro, N.J., ran for more than 1,000 yards his freshman year at Cincinnati.
 Hagans is a junior from Madison, N.J.
 The warrants, signed by campus police Tuesday, said Hagans had the stereo in his room.

BRIDGE Strange finesses can solve problems

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The idea of a finesse is to make an opponent commit himself before you make your own play.

to finesse when his threat is a ruff. If South draws trumps he must lose a heart and a diamond. If he doesn't draw trumps, one of his high diamonds may be ruffed. The key to success is to let East ruff a diamond, but not a high diamond.

South ruffs the first club, leads a diamond to the queen and returns a diamond from dummy. Now East must commit himself.

DISCARDS CLUB

If East ruffs, South will play low. East therefore discards a club, and South wins with the king.

South now leads a heart to the king and returns the other low diamond. East's only remaining trump. Now South can lead the ace of diamonds to discard dummy's last heart and can ruff a heart in dummy to assure the slam.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player passes. You hold: S-873; H-109; D-J9876; C-QJ10. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. You're not really proud of this hand, but it's slightly too strong to pass.

Soviets pushing switch to beer

WILDER, Idaho (AP) — The Soviet Union, best known in drinking circles for vodka consumption, is suddenly importing enough American hops to make more than a billion gallons of beer a year.

The chairman of the Idaho Hops Commission, Ray Obendorf, said the Soviet purchases have turned the hops-farming industry around. He said he doesn't know why hops are suddenly popular in the U.S.S.R., but authorities there have been campaigning recently for a switch from vodka to beer and wine, apparently in an attempt to combat drunkenness.

Posters in Moscow have depicted vodka drinkers lying in gutters while portraying wine and beer drinkers as wise sophisticates. The official press has called for efforts to improve Russian beer, which is considered inferior even to that of Eastern Europe.

Hops are a basic ingredient of beer, primarily responsible for flavor. They are the flowers of a twining vine in the mulberry family.

A few years ago the Soviets didn't buy any U.S. hops, but between September 1977 and September 1978 they bought 3.7 million pounds and the rate has more than tripled since then, Obendorf said.

Evangelical group works worldwide without expecting worldly reward

By EDGAR MILLER

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — From an office on the outskirts of town, Spiros Zodiates runs a multinational enterprise which reaches into 73 countries on five continents. But while most multinational companies do business with the affluent, Zodiates looks for the poor, the outcast and the unwanted.

For, unlike the heads of most multinationals, Zodiates expects no monetary return from his far-flung enterprises. On the contrary, it's all outgo — about $4 million a year.

Zodiates runs AMG International. AMG stands for Advancing the Ministries of the Gospel, an evangelical, non-denominational organization. It was changed in 1974 from American Mission to Greece since the organization had long since outgrown its Greek operation.

AMG, started in 1942

by George Georgakis, a Greek in New York, to help the people of Greece and "bring the gospel to Greeks in New York," today runs orphanages, hospitals, day-care centers and schools. Zodiates left Greece to join AMG as general secretary in 1946 and became president in 1965. The group moved its headquarters to Chattanooga this year from New Jersey.

As a missionary organization, AMG International is a bit unusual. Most churches send their own missionaries to spread the gospel in foreign lands. Zodiates' group prefers to train residents of the countries to do the work.

"We believe there should be no Americans or foreigners where natives can do the job," Zodiates said in an interview. He says that using Americans, AMG's worldwide charity and evangelization work would cost $40 million a year. But it only takes about $50 a month to support an AMG missionary in most places, Zodiates said. AMG exists mainly on voluntary contributions from private citizens.

"We do not seek the sponsorship of any church," Zodiates, a Baptist, says. The missionary activities include scripture distribution in local languages, newspaper evangelism, radio evangelism, gospel films, Bible conferences and student training.

In 1977, AMG spent $579,000 on radio evangelism and another $370,135 on radio and television ministries. It spent about $600,000 for evangelistic newspaper ads in the United States and abroad.

The group owns three radio stations of its own — in Columbus, Ga., South Charleston, W.Va., and Jacksonville, Fla. — and sponsors religious broadcasts over 600 other stations.

The biggest item on AMG's budget is its orphan and relief program which accounted for $769,000 last year. Just back from a visit to India, Zodiates was excited about his group's work there among the lepers, orphans and scavengers.

"We do what Christ did; we touch the lepers," he said.

Prisoners said mistreated

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — A leading spokesman for Cuban refugees Tuesday accused the United States of "prolonging the sufferings and waiting time" of freed Cuban political prisoners who want to come to the United States.

The Rev. Manuel Espinosa, secretary-general of the Civic Christian Movement, said less than half of all political prisoners released from Cuba's jails want to go to the United States and that U.S. red tape is unnecessarily delaying their departure.

Espinosa made the remarks in an interview with Radio Denmark, conducted by telephone from Miami. "Cubans are no longer the good propaganda material they used to be," said Espinosa, whose organization has been working for the release of political prisoners in Cuba and advocates full normalization of U.S.-Cuban relations. Cuban President Fidel Castro announced in December that he would release 3,000 of Cuba's 3,500 political prisoners. Castro said they would be freed as rapidly as the United States would accept them and U.S. officials said they would be willing to accept 400 a month. Attorney General Griffin Bell said the cases of former political prisoners still living in Cuba who wished to emigrate to the United States would have to be considered after the first prisoners were released, which would take about eight months. But in recent weeks, State Department officials have said they were attempting to accelerate the process of screening applicants.

State Department sought recall of diplomat opposed to China policy

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—The State Department has confirmed that it sought the recall of a Taiwan diplomat last month as a result of his activities opposing the Carter administration's policy on China.

The diplomat, I-cheng Loh, the director of the China Information Service in New York City, was reassigned permanently to Taiwan several days after charge d'affaires S. K. Hu was called to the State Department Jan. 15, to receive U.S. complaints about Loh's conduct. The meeting occurred after Loh denounced U.S. policy toward Taiwan and urged Congress to adopt resolutions on Taiwan's behalf.

In a Feb. 2 letter to Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., the State Department wrote:

"Mr. Hu was asked what would be the reaction of his government were an official of the American embassy in Taiwan to cause to be published articles calling on the people of Taiwan to protest President Chiang Ching-kuo's policies and to write members of the legislative yuan (parliament) asking that they pass laws embodying such protests. Charge Hu agreed that such action amounted to gross interference in internal political affairs, and that his government would not countenance such actions by any foreign diplomat."

Hu then agreed that "it would be best" for Loh to be reassigned. Stone had sought clarification from the department on the circumstances of Loh's departure.

The letter also said the U.S. government in December had "called to the attention" of Taiwanese authorities Loh's role in "making arrangements for so-called spontaneous demonstrations" against U.S. policy.

Staff Sergeant James Garrett takes a break during testing of the Army's new XM-1 main battle tank at Fort Bliss.

Ex-Midlander now involved in testing of tank project

FORT BLISS — Staff Sergeant James Garrett, 25, formerly of Midland now is involved in the testing of a multi-million dollar tank project.

One of the largest defense procurements for 1979 may be in the form of a 59-ton tank called the XM-1.

With a price tag of nearly $1 million each, the U.S. Army's new XM-1 main battle tank may soon be replacing the M-60 tank, which has been in use since the early 1950s.

Staff Sgt. Garrett is assigned to H Company, Third Armored Cavalry at Fort Bliss. During the testing he is working as a gunner of an XM-1 tank.

In this job, Garrett operates the "nerve center" of the the tank, said Army officials. He sits in the right front portion of the vehicle and operates a maze of switches, lights and equipment. And in the event of injury to the tank commander, Sgt. Garrett is to assume control of the weapon.

Staff Sgt. Garrett enlisted in August 1972 and took basic training at Fort Polk, La.

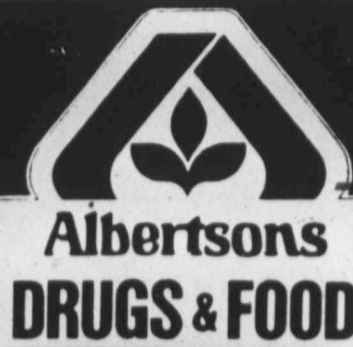

Staff Sgt. Garrett graduated from Midland High School in 1971. He received the Good Conduct Medal, among other military decorations.

Prior to joining the Army, he was employed as a manager for McPhail's Exxon Service Station in Midland.

Owner of Rio Grande island plans new nation

By KEN HERMAN

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — You may snicker now, but Herbert Williams, a man who has grown immune to skepticism, says they'll be flocking to his Rio Grande island when the casinos open.

The 68-year-old retired Air Force colonel says he'll soon establish Cherokee Nation — an independent country on an island in the muddy waters that separate the United States and Mexico.

And where on the 180-acre oval island will the casinos be?

Probably not far from the international banks, which will be close to the television station; over by the university, near the office of ship registry, down the block from the high-rise condominiums.

Those plush condos, of course, will be set apart from the hustle and bustle of the nation's first industry — a flying-machine factory.

"It's certainly going to happen," Williamson, who claims to be part Cherokee, said at his Brownsville apartment.

The island, south of Los Indios in Cameron County, was "created by an act of God" — just like Williams' official letterhead says. When Hurricane Beulah blew through in 1967, it sent the river flowing over a strip of land that once connected the island to the United States leaving a new island in the Rio Grande.

"Both countries only claim to the middle of the river," the Texas native said. "This is a big tract. Not something a turtle would get up on."

Williams and a few friends bought the island. Now, with several legal battles behind him and maybe more ahead, Williams says his dream nation is drawing near to reality.

"It'll be just like Texas was 100 years ago," Williams said.

Except, of course, for the tax-shelter banks, the gambling and the flying-machine factory.

Williams says the nation's initial revenue may come from a Seattle firm that makes Flash Gordon-like one-man flying contraptions. He says it plans to move part of its operation to Cherokee Nation.

The planned bank would allow U.S. citizens to sidestep the taxman.

"I had a couple of doctors who hate lawyers with a passion. They came down from the west and they're interested in putting in a bank of their own," Williams said.

The multi-story condos would help rich Americans avoid inheritance taxes, Williams added.

The ship-registry idea is aimed at drawing business from Liberia — where ships have been registering for years to avoid high registration costs elsewhere.

But in the long run it might be the gambling that makes Cherokee Nation. Nick Malant, a Brownsville attorney representing Williams, said it would not be hard to get "Las Vegas money" interested in the island.

Williams says the gambling would be watched over by the island's government — a democracy based on "Americanism."

"We'll set up our own cabinet and have ambassadors. We'll print our own money," he said. "But the big purpose is that we'll put in an international television station and hook it up to Telstar and broadcast all over the United States and Mexico."

While Williams and friends are spending much time setting up Cherokee Nation, U.S. officials seem unconcerned.

A State Department lawyer in Washington said starting a nation might not be as simple as Williams thought. The lawyer said Cherokee Nation leaders would probably find themselves in court if and when the casinos opened and if the country issued passports.

Even Malant agrees that starting a country is somewhat of an unknown procedure.

"The only way I've seen it done is by force of arms against another government," he said.

Hugh Calvert, an engineer with the International Boundary and Water Commission, said the land was not a true island. Calvert said it was connected to Mexico by a small strip of land. But Williams said that strip had been built by a man who claimed he owned the land. He also said he had already won that battle in the Mexican courts.

Operators report 74 oil, gas strikes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission received reports of 57 gas and 17 oil discoveries in the last half of January, the commission's oil and gas division reported Tuesday.

There were 49 gas and 25 oil discoveries in the same period last year. Gas discoveries from Jan. 16-31 included 20 in deep South Texas, 13 in Southeast Texas, six in West Central Texas, five in the San Angelo area, four in East Texas, three each in the Refugio and East Central Texas areas, two in the Panhandle and one in North Texas.

Oil discoveries included four in Southeast Texas; two each in deep South Texas, West Central Texas, Lubbock, North Texas and the Panhandle areas; and one each in the San Antonio, San Angelo and Midland areas.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has approved 161 applications in its new program for well determination that stems from the federal Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978.

Commissioners approved the latest batch of 112 applications Monday.

The act requires the commission to determine categories for gas wells in Texas. Operators have filed at least 1,768 applications for well determination since the program began two months ago, a staff member reported.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An Eagle Pass trucking company's request for a public hearing on its request to transport general commodities has been approved by the Texas Railroad Commission.

The hearing for the Basse Truck Line Inc. will be held Feb. 27 through March 2 at the Eagle Pass Public Library. It concerns the company's application on various routes between Eagle Pass and San Antonio.

The commission approved the request Monday.

The request was first granted for 15 days starting Jan. 16 when the company reported it would have to close the plant unless it could get extra service, a commission spokesman said.

The emergency extension allow transportation from the Amarillo plant to points within a 50-mile radius of Fort Worth.

Oil value increases

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock said the value of crude oil produced in Texas increased last year to an average of $8.93 per barrel, a 7.2 percent increase over the previous year.

Bullock said a study of oil production, prices and tax revenue was featured in the January issue of "Fiscal Notes", a monthly financial report published by the Comptroller's Office.

The Comptroller reported that production of crude oil during fiscal 1978 totaled 1,059.8 million barrels, compared to 1,112.2 million barrels in 1977.

This represents a decline of 4.7 percent, the largest decline in the last five years.

An examination of quarterly price increases show that the price per barrel of crude oil jumped from $3.48 during the second quarter of fiscal 1973 to $6.77 for the same period of the following year.

Average Texas crude oil prices per barrel have steadily increased over the last five years to the current record levels.

Europe, Japan begin to feel oil-cutoff pinch

By ED BLANCHE
LONDON (AP) — Europe and Japan have started to feel the pinch of the oil cutoff in Iran and the impact is beginning to ripple through the energy-hungry industrialized world, a survey showed Tuesday.

No longer bankrolled by $22 billion a year in oil revenues, Iran has been forced to cancel huge contracts that could cost jobs in many Western nations.

In the United States, President Carter ordered federal agencies Tuesday to press their fuel-saving efforts in a drive to head off manda-and a promise from the United States to make up any shortfall for five years.

Fuel prices have risen 10 percent in Denmark and 8 percent in Sweden because of the cutoff. Denmark got nearly one-fourth of its oil from Iran, Sweden 15 percent.

Sweden's Commerce Minister, Hadar Cars, has urged his nation to start saving energy. Giuseppe Ammassari, director of energy resources at Italy's Industry Ministry, has warned of impending shortages because of the Iranian crisis.

Britain, which got 16 percent of its oil requirements from Iran, has seen prices for premium gas at the pump go up over the past month from $1.20 to $1.40 a U.S. gallon.

Government officials in most European countries, such as Spain, the Netherlands, Sweden and West Germany, say there is no immediate crisis because they have reserves to last between two and three months.

The loss of the oil revenue, a surge in anti-Western sentiment and Iran's reduced role in international politics has led the new government of Prime Minister Shapur Bakhtiar to seek cancellation of massive defense contracts with the United States, Britain and their European allies worth an estimated $10 billion.

Among the major deals with the United States expected to be cancelled are for F-16 fighter jets worth $3.5 billion, seven Boeing Airborne Warning and Control Systems worth $1.1 billion and 20 McDonnell-Douglas F-4 fighters worth $500 million.

Tehran has also indicated it wants to suspend or cancel British arms contracts worth $4 billion. These include an order for 1,250 Chieftain tanks and a surface-to-air missile network.

But the oil revenue loss also will force a drastic cutback in non-military trade with Iran. The United States alone listed exports of $3.4 billion to Iran last year.

More than 300 U.S. companies had sales offices in Iran last year, and an estimated 40,000 to 50,000 Americans lived there before the turmoil erupted. Only a handful of companies are still there and U.S. Embassy officials say only 5,000 U.S. citizens are currently in Iran.

British government officials estimate some 1,170,000 jobs are dependent on Iranian contracts.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

tory conservation. Government and industry analysts warned that several more months without Iranian oil could lead to gasoline shortages this summer, heating shortages next winter and higher prices for both products.

The U.S. Department of Energy has put together a plan for limiting gasoline consumption, such as requiring gasoline stations to close early and on Sunday. That plan could be put into effect April 1 if there's no sign of improvement in the situation.

Iranian oil workers striking against Shah Mohammad Reza Palavi cut off exports which normally amounted to about 5.5 million barrels a day in December. Output had been reduced since the end of October.

British Petroleum, largest of the 14 Western companies in a consortium that ran Iran's oilfields, said not a drop of crude has been exported since Dec. 26.

The country that was once the world's second largest oil exporter after Saudi Arabia now is only producing a paltry 664,000 barrels a day, which is barely enough to meet domestic needs.

The loss of Iranian oil has slashed world output by about 5 percent at a time when supplies were starting to tighten and prices were rising.

Japan, the world's second largest importer of oil after the United States, imports 997 percent of its oil and 20 percent of that came from Iran.

Last month the Japanese launched an energy conservation drive and the government warned it may have to dip into its strategic 90-day stockpile to keep industry going.

Israel once got about 60 percent of its petroleum from Iran, or 90,000 barrels, but it claims to be well prepared for a cutoff with a large reserve

Monsanto completes opener from Pennsylvanian in Ward

Monsanto Co., operating from Midland, has completed a Pennsylvanian gas discovery in Ward County, and wildcat operations have been announced in Reeves, Lea, Fisher and Val Verde counties.

Monsanto's No. 1 Kelton was completed six miles north of Poyote in Ward County from the Pennsylvanian for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 1,927,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

The gas-liquid ratio is 112,000-1, with gravity of the fluid 49.6 degrees.

The completion was through perforations from 14,252 to 14,306 feet. Amount of stimulation, if any, was not reported.

The discovery is bottomed at 19,870 feet and plugged back at 14,360 feet. Five-inch liner is set at 19,870 feet. Prior to the Pennsylvanian completion, the Ellenburger was tested through perforations from 19,402 to 19,838 feet and the Devonian was tested through perforations from 16,403 to 15,443 feet.

The Atoka was topped at 14,080 feet on ground elevation of 2,682 feet. Other tops include the Bell Canyon at 4,954 feet, the Wolfcamp at 11,055 feet, the lower Mississippi lime at 15,169 feet, the Devonian at 16,285 feet and the Ellenburger at 19,282 feet.

Well site is 1,320 feet from south and west lines of section 94, block F, G&M&A survey.

REEVES EXPLORER
Northern Natural Gas Co. announced plans to re-enter an old Arno (Siluro-Devonian) well in Reeves County, 13 miles northwest of Pecos, and test the upper Delaware from 4,372 to 4,379 feet as a wildcat.

The project is No. 1 Betts Gas Unit, 1,320 feet from north and 1,320 feet from east lines of section 24, block 54, T-4-S, T&P survey.

VAL VERDE TEST
American Quasar Petroleum Co., operating from Midland, has been spotted as a 16,500-foot wildcat in Val Verde County, 14 miles southeast of Pandale.

The prospector is to be drilled as No. 1 Albert, 2,180 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 7, block OV-3, Anna L. Carey survey, abstract 3790.

The drillsite is four miles north of the shallow parmer field. There is no nearby deep production.

FISHER EXPLORER
Stroube Production Co., Inc., and G. F. Reiff, Inc., both of Dallas, announced plans to drill a 4,250-foot wildcat in Fisher County, one mile northeast of Rotan.

It is No. 1 Annie M. Weems, et vir, and is in the north edge of the Rotan (Hope and Flippen) field. It is separated from production by depleted producers.

The drillsite is 630 feet from south and 1,825 feet from west lines of section 171, block 2, H&T&C survey.

LEA RE-ENTRY
Sun Oil Co., operating from Midland, announced plans to re-enter an old dry hole in Lea County, 10 miles southeast of Minesand, and deepen to 13,000 feet. The old total depth is 12,657 feet.

The project, No. 9 V. D. Sawyer, originally was drilled by Oil Development Co. of Texas as No. 1 Santa Fe-Pacific and abandoned in December 1949.

The location is 1,980 feet from north and 990 feet from east lines of section 27-9S-36E and one location east of shallow production in the Crossroads pool.

PECOS EXTENDER
C. E. Lawrence & Associates of Midland No. 2 Moex has been completed as a 3/4-mile south extension to production in the Sun Valley (Lower Tubb) field of Pecos County, 14 miles west of Girvin.

The operator reported a 24-hour flowing potential of 92 barrels of 34-gravity oil and no water, through a 1/4-inch choke and perforations from 3,013 to 3,060 feet.

The gas-oil ratio is 600-1. The pay section was acidized with 2,000 gallons.

Location is 1,673 feet from south and 2,465 feet from east lines of section 24, block 48, University Lands survey.

The well is one and five-eighths miles northwest of other Farmer (San Andres) production.

Location is 1,500 feet from south and 1,441 feet from west lines of J. R. Burnett survey No. 2, abstract 5892.

The total depth is 3,158 feet and 5.5-inch pipe was cemented at 3,181 feet. The plugged back depth is 3,080 feet.

CRANE PROJECT
Southern Royalty Co. of Midland No. 1-11 Gulf-Edwards has been staked as a 3/4-mile northeast step-out to production in the Crawar (North Devonian) field of Crane County, eight miles southeast of Monahans.

The test, slated for a 6,800-foot bottom, is 990 feet from south and east lines of section 11, block B-18, psi survey. It is 3/4 mile southeast of a 6,644-foot dry hole.

GLASSCOCK OFFSET
Lingen Exploration, Inc., of Houston will drill its No. 1 Horwood Trust as an 8,000-foot project in the Crede, West (Wolfcamp) area of Glasscock County, 25 miles southeast of Big Spring.

The site, 1/3 mile southwest of the pool's discovery, is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 32, block 30, W&N&W survey.

REEVES GASSER
Chevron U.S.A., Inc., No. 3-27 Reeves-State is a new well in the King Edward (Silurian) field of Reeves County, 13 miles southwest of Orla.

Operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 22,800,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 15,417 to 15,427 feet after a 3,500-gallon acid treatment.

The total depth is 15,470 feet and 5-inch casing is set at 15,456 feet. The plugged back depth is 15,436 feet. No fluid was produced with the gas.

The new gasser is one mile south of the pool's Silurian gas discovery. Location is 1,400 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 267, block 45, psi survey.

HOWARD EXTENDER
Zinke & Philpy, Inc., of Midland No. 1 Homan has been completed 3/4 mile west of the Moore field in Howard County, five miles southwest of Big Spring.

Completed from the field's regular pay, it finished for a 24-hour pumping potential of 48 barrels of 31-gravity oil and 12 barrels of water, through perforations from 3,102 to 3,130 feet. The gas-oil ratio is too small to measure.

The pay section was acidized with 6,000 gallons and fractured with 9,000 gallons.

Total depth is 3,200 feet and 4.5-inch casing is set on bottom.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 1,000 feet from west lines of section 7, block 33, T-1-S, T&P survey.

YOAKUM OILER
North American Royalties, Inc., No. 1 Price has been completed in the Block D (Devonian) field of Yoakum County, eight miles west of Plains.

One location north of the discovery well, it finished for a daily pumping potential of 25 barrels of oil and no water, through perforations from 11,269 to 11,279 feet. The pay was acidized with 500 gallons.

Total depth is 11,958 feet. The gas-oil ratio and gravity have not been learned.

Location is 860 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 363, block D, John H. Gibson survey.

CROCKETT WELL
Robert M. Wynne of Midland No. 1-24 University is a new well in the Farmer (San Andres) pool of Crockett County, 28 miles northwest of Ozona.

The well finished on the pump for 57 barrels of oil and 8 barrels of water per day, through perforations from 2,274 to 2,418 feet.

The gravity is 34.4 degrees and the gas-oil ratio is 775-1. The pay was acidized with 3,000 gallons. Total depth is 2,600 feet.

Location is 1,673 feet from south and 2,465 feet from east lines of section 24, block 48, University Lands survey.

The well is one and five-eighths miles northwest of other Farmer (San Andres) production.

MIDLAND WELL
Cities Service Co. No. 4218 Dora Roberts Ranch Unit has been completed in the Dora Roberts Ellenburger field of Midland County, 12 miles southeast of Odessa.

Operator reported a 21.5-hour flowing potential of 633 barrels of 50.8-gravity oil and four barrels of water, through perforations from 12,828 to 12,864 feet after a 1,500-gallon acid treatment.

The gas-oil ratio is 1,848-1. Total depth is 12,920 feet, 5.5-inch pipe is set at 12,919 feet and the plugged back depth is 12,915 feet.

Well site is 660 feet from north and 2,110 feet from west lines of section 42, block 41, T-2-S, T&P survey.

LEA PRODUCER
Amoco Production Co., operating from Levelland, has reported potential test for its No. 3-DR State in the Lusk (Wolfcamp) area of Lea County, N.M.

The well finished for a 24-hour flowing potential of 340 barrels of oil and 62 barrels of water, through perforations from 10,721 to 10,728 feet. The pay was acidized with 1,000 gallons. Gas flowed at the rate of 408,000 cubic feet per day during the potential test.

Total depth is 12,971 feet and 5.5-inch casing is cemented at 11,100 feet.

The potential was gauged on a 24/64-inch choke.

Location is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 16-19S-32E.

STONEWALL AREA
The Desana Corp. of Midland No. 4-122 Flat Top is a new well in the Biggs (Swastika) field of Stonewall County, 10 miles south of Old Glory.

Operator finished the well on the pump for 80 barrels of 41.2-gravity oil and 100 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio too small to measure, through perforations from 3,211 to 3,213 feet. Completion was natural.

Total depth is 3,320 feet and 4.5-inch pipe is set on bottom.

The well is a southwest offset to one of the three other Swastika wells in the field and is 330 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 122, block 1, BBB&C survey.

SUTTON COUNTY
William Perlman of Houston No. 1-112 Mack Cauthorn has been completed in the Shurley Ranch (Canyon gas) area of Sutton County, 13 miles southwest of Sonora.

Operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 1,425,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 6,666 to 6,675 feet. Completion was natural.

The well is 1/2 mile east of other Canyon gas production in the field and is 1,038 feet from south and 1,298 feet from west lines of section 112, block C, H&T&C survey.

COTTLE SITE
Perkins-Prothro Co. of Wichita Falls No. 5-B Carroll is to be drilled as a 4,900-foot project in the Cee Vee (Canyon) area of Cottle County, 12 miles northwest of Paducah.

The operation is one mile west of the field and separated from production by dry holes.

The location is 467 feet from north and 1,750 feet from west lines of section 1, W. B. Plemons survey, abstract 881.

HOUSTON (AP) — With income from oil and natural gas production up substantially, Tenneco Inc. reported record revenues and earnings Tuesday.

The 1978 earnings of $466 million or $4.53 a share compared with $427 million or $4.38 a share in 1977.

Total revenues of $8.76 billion were up from $7.4 billion.

The figures were released simultaneously in Houston and New York, where James L. Ketelsen, chairman, appeared before the Society of Security Analysts.

Increased income was reported for operations in construction, farm equipment, automotive parts, chemicals, and investments. Shipbuilding operations were said to have been reduced by the settlement of claims against the U.S. Navy and losses on commercial ship construction. Lower packaging results were attributed to softer prices, a strike, and a litigation settlement.

Tenneco said October-December gave the company its best quarter in history, with revenues totaling $2.4 billion compared with $1.9 billion a year earlier. Earnings of $135 million or $1.31 a share compared with $119 million or $1.20 a share.

The bonuses for 415,000 acres topped the previous high of $39.2 million in 1965. About 1.2 million acres were available for lease.

"This record-high total of bonuses is more evidence that oil and gas exploration in Texas is hot and heavy," Armstrong said.

Bonuses hit $45 million

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong said Tuesday oil and gas companies have paid a record $45 million for drilling rights on state-owned land.

The bonuses for 415,000 acres topped the previous high of $39.2 million in 1965. About 1.2 million acres were available for lease.

"This record-high total of bonuses is more evidence that oil and gas exploration in Texas is hot and heavy," Armstrong said.

Artist catches true Indian mystique

Classic Collectibles' featured artist for February is Teri Sodd. A Southwestern dweller, Ms. Sodd is a foremost artist in the depiction of the Native American. She knows, understands, and has great affection for the people, and her works are true and revealing. The pastels, leather on wood, and copper etchings all reflect her intense interest and knowledge of the Indian culture and lifestyle.

Robin Gregory Farwell is also featured at Classic Collectibles. She is a unique water colorist with her very own technique. Her Nature subjects are portrayed in a completely realistic manner, with vibrant colors and great clarity. Only a few Gregories are now on hand, but there will be more soon.

owner of Classic Collectibles, will be adding a new item to her collection of decorator and collector's art. A taxidermist of great skill will be showing small pieces.

A very new item of interest in the gallery are wooden plaques mounted with convex ovals of porcelain decorated with bird pictures, then covered with tiny glass beads, then fired. The process gives the pictures a velvety, luminous quality which is quite unique. These are moderately priced, and must be seen to be appreciated.

Dinah Paris will be going on a buying trip soon, and may perhaps be adding two or three new artists to her collection.

Classic Collectibles is open 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, or by appointment any time. Come by 1903 McDonald Street, or call 694-0412.

Al Zertuche has four varieties of packaged pecan trees at the bargain price of $9.49. Around him is grouped a new shipment of lovely, multi-trunked Youpon Holly trees, and, at right, apple trees. This is the time for tree planting, for they will come out at the first warm weather, and it will then be too late to plant. Al's Garden Center, 2007 N. Big Spring Street.

Trial set in cookie deaths

DURANT, Okla. (AP) — Trial has been set for Feb. 21 for J.D. Jones, a former exterminator charged with manslaughter in the deaths of three children who allegedly ate poisoned cookies he used to kill rats.

Charges have been pending for three years against Jones, 29. Jones claims it would have been impossible for youngsters to pry open the sprung doors on the pickup truck where the cookies were kept and then find them in a covered can stuffed under the truck's seat.

Fourteen children became ill in the incident and three eventually died — Joseph Whaley, 2; John Whaley, 4; and Tracy Lynn Beshirs, 3. Trial of the case also has been complicated by the fact the father of one of the dead children was killed in a recent auto accident and the child's mother was seriously injured, District Attorney Ron Stubblefield said.

Packaged trees bargain at Al's

Al wants all his good friends and customers to know it is really time to consider that it is tree planting time, though the weather has not been encouraging to outside activities. The stock of fine, sturdy trees is very good now, and Al and his men will do the planting for you if you'd rather. The packaged pecan trees are Burkett, Stuart, Western Schley, and Wichita varieties.

There are some bright and pretty plastic pots, 4 for $1. For your houseplants, try Jobe's houseplant spikes, for trouble-free feeding. Come by 2007 N. Big Spring and talk to Al about all your landscaping needs. He knows his business, and is a good man to do business with. Phone 682-6182.

Another rewarding plant which thrives in the Midland soil is the grape. Al has Concord (for jelly) and Thompson Seedless (table grape). The packaged roses are in stock, and it is rose-planting time.

The Sunset Books on plants and their culture are reduced at Al's Garden Center from $2.45 to $1.50. They will not last long at this price.

Ruling favors TESCO

FORT WORTH — Electric companies in Texas cannot, and should not, be forced to interconnect with utilities in other states, Federal District Judge Robert W. Porter of Dallas has ruled.

To force such interconnection would decrease reliability of electric service to Texas customers, the judge said in his opinion.

The ruling was made in a lawsuit filed by Central Power & Light and West Texas Utilities against Texas Electric Service Co. and Houston Lighting & Power.

The lawsuit challenged TESCO's and HL&P's right to refuse to interconnect with utilities that are interconnected across state lines.

CP&L and WTU are subsidiaries of Central and South West Corp., a holding company for utilities in several states. They also are part of the Texas Interconnected Systems, a group of utilities interconnected within Texas.

The lawsuit dates from May 4, 1976, when WTU began transmitting TIS power into Oklahoma. Within a few hours, TESCO and HL&P each disconnected from all systems connected to WTU.

WTU and CP&L contended that the refusal of TESCO and HL&P to remain connected was in violation of federal antitrust and restraint of trade laws.

In his ruling, Porter called WTU's "midnight wiring" of its system to Oklahoma a "secret and clandestine maneuver."

He said TESCO and HL&P are not violating antitrust or restraint of trade laws by restricting their services to Texas.

The companies, he said, "have a right to restrict their operations to the state of Texas where they reasonably and in good faith believe that such operation is in the best interests of ... their customers."

Billboards like this one are appearing in cities west of the Mississippi River as the community of Booneville, Ark., population 3,600, expands its quest for family doctors. (AP Laserphoto)

Wanted: Doctors for Booneville

By JOE WHEELAN

BOONEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Wanted: General practitioners weary of city life to set up practice in west Arkansas community of 3,600. Annual salary $80,000-$100,000.

Billboards with that message have gone up in 10 cities west of the Mississippi River. Their purpose is to recruit doctors for Booneville, a foothills hamlet 30 miles from the interstate highway.

There weren't any takers right off the bat, but townfolk have reason for hope. A similar campaign in Oklahoma last year was a success.

"Booneville Arkansas Needs Family Doctors. Call Chamber of Commerce 501 675-2666," suggest the signs put up in Little Rock, Wichita, Kan.; Las Vegas and Reno, Nev.; Albuquerque, N.M.; Oklahoma City, Muskogee and Tulsa, Okla.; Spokane, Wash.; and Fort Smith, Ark.

"It would have to be someone interested in general practice," says Jean Wade, secretary of the Booneville Chamber of Commerce. "And there's not a lot of night life here. That would be a consideration. But Fort Smith is 38 miles away."

Donrey Media Group is handling the recruiting campaign for the community, which only has to pay the cost of the billboards. Mrs. Wade said a similar Donrey campaign in an Oklahoma town last year netted about a dozen doctors.

The Booneville Chamber of Commerce has taken charge of the drive to attract doctors to Booneville. The community has two general practitioners — not enough to serve the 15,000 people who live in the area, Mrs. Wade said.

She said Booneville needs two or three more doctors. Another two doctors also are needed in nearby Charleston, a community of about 2,500, but Booneville's shortage takes precedence, Mrs. Wade said.

Booneville had four doctors a year ago. One left Booneville last April so that he could perform surgery full time, and the other left in October to go into semi-retirement, Mrs. Wade said.

The town has agreed to pay half the moving costs of any doctors who decide to move to Booneville. "If they like us and we like them, we would reimburse them for the rest," said Mrs. Wade.

Mrs. Wade ticked off Booneville's sources of prospective patients effortlessly: a 47-bed hospital, a 100-bed nursing home, three major industries with a fourth on the way — all of them with between 100 and 350 employees.

"We need doctors to handle all of those physicals," she said. But why would a general practitioner pick up and move to Booneville? "It's a good place to raise your children," said Mrs. Wade, who moved to Booneville from Phoenix, Ariz., 20 years ago. "It's really just sort of a slowed-down, good life."

Agricultural land taxation studied

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—The sticky question of how to calculate the value of agricultural land for taxation purposes was assigned to the Senate subcommittee Wednesday.

Senate Bill 6, sponsored by Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells, and Senate Bill 58, sponsored by Bob Price of Pampa, address the issue, but a couple of key differences remain to be ironed out before the committee, and the entire Senate, votes on a bill:

Creighton's bill includes commercial forestry property with agricultural and livestock land that would be taxed on the basis of what it produces, instead of its market price.

Price's legislation excludes forestry property—a move that has brought criticism from East Texas foresters, who claim their property would end up supporting area farmers and ranchers being taxed at lower levels.

Price's legislation would have the School Tax Assessment Practices Board develop and distribute standard manuals to ensure uniform valuation of open space land across the state.

Creighton's bill would require the State Comptroller to develop and distribute those manuals.

Both bills would set the income capitalization rate to determine the value of open-space land at 10 percent, or an amount equal to 2 percent greater than the average variable interest rate set out by the Federal Land Bank of Houston, whichever is greater.

The higher the capitalization rate, the higher the tax break for agricultural producers.

Both bills also contain "roll back" provisions requiring that if agricultural use stops on a particular piece of property, the land will be appraised at market value and the owner will pay the difference between taxes on product and market values, for the previous four years, plus a 5 percent annual interest charge, calculated from the dates when the higher taxes would have fallen due.

Alpine firm applies for new branch

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Home Help Care, Inc., Alpine, has applied to Texas Health Facilities Commission to establish a branch office in Alpine.

The application has been set for hearing April 2.

The branch office is to offer skilled nursing, physical therapy, medical social services, home health aide, occupational therapy, speech therapy, diabetic education and nutritional counseling.

The service area is to include Brewster, Culbertson, Hudspeth, Jeff Davis and Presidio counties.

If the application is not protested by March 15, the hearing may be waived and the application referred to a THFC voting session without a public hearing.

HONDA CARS USE REGULAR GAS SAVE 6¢ PER GALLON

A lot of cars are choosy when it comes to fuel. Hondas are different. All our cars operate without a catalytic converter, so you can take your pick of unleaded or regular gasoline.

Now, how could we make it any simpler than that?

What can you expect for $3999?

You can expect an awful lot if you buy a Honda Civic 1200 Hatchback.

We don't sell a Honda until it's finished.

SCOUTING'S 60th ANNIVERSARY

FEBRUARY 4th - 10th

Scouting today's a lot more than you think!

Sure, it's camping. But there's more to it than that. Scouting teaches boys to respect the environment, to work together to get things done, to manage their personal lives and to make the most of their abilities. It helps them become good citizens and valuable members of the community. Scouting enriches the boys' lives and ours in all sorts of ways. We salute the work our Scouts are doing!

The Boy Scout Oath or Promise...

ON MY HONOR I WILL DO MY BEST: TO DO MY DUTY TO GOD AND MY COUNTRY, AND TO OBEY THE SCOUT LAWS; TO HELP OTHER PEOPLE AT ALL TIMES; TO KEEP MYSELF PHYSICALLY STRONG, MENTALLY AWAKE, AND MORALLY STRAIGHT.

The Scout Laws...

(1) THE SCOUT IS TRUSTWORTHY A Scout's honor is to be trusted. If he were to violate his honor by telling a lie or by cheating, or by not doing exactly a given task, when trusted on his honor, he may be directed to hand over his Scout Badge.	(2) A SCOUT IS LOYAL He is loyal to all to whom loyalty is due, his Scout leader, his home and parents and country.	(3) A SCOUT IS HELPFUL He must be prepared at anytime to save life, help injured persons and share the home duties. He must do at least one "Good Turn" to somebody every day.	(4) A SCOUT IS FRIENDLY He is a friend to all and a brother to every other Scout.
(5) A SCOUT IS COURTEOUS He is polite to all, especially to women, children, old people and the weak and helpless. He must not take pay for being helpful or courteous.	(6) A SCOUT IS KIND He is a friend to animals. He will not kill or hurt any living creature needlessly, but will strive to save and protect all harmless life.	(7) A SCOUT IS OBEDIENT He obeys his parents, Scoutmaster, patrol leader and all other duly constituted authorities.	(8) A SCOUT IS CHEERFUL He smiles whenever he can. His obedience to orders is prompt and cheery. He never shirks nor grumbles at hardships.
(9) A SCOUT IS THRIFTY He does not wantonly destroy property. He works faithfully, wastes nothing and makes the best use of his opportunities. He saves his money so that he may pay his own way, be generous to those in need and helpful to worthy objects. He may work for pay, but must not receive tips for courtesies or Good Turns.	(10) A SCOUT IS BRAVE He has the courage to face danger in spite of fear and to stand up for the right against the coaxing of friends or the jeers or threats of enemies and defeat does not down him.	(11) A SCOUT IS CLEAN He keeps clean in body and thought, stands for clean speech, clean sport, clean habits and travels with a clean crowd.	(12) A SCOUT IS REVERENT He is reverent toward God. He is faithful in his religious duties and respects the convictions of others in matters of custom and religion.
