Proposals 'welcome'

TOKYO (AP) - Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping said today that his government "wholeheartedly welcomed" proposals in the U.N. Security Council calling for the withdrawal of Chinese troops from Vietnam and Vietnamese troops from Cambodia, the Kyodo news service reported from Peking Kyodo said Teng added: "We would not make that a bargaining condition." It said that was taken to mean that China might pull out its forces out of Vietnam even if Vietnam did not withdraw from Cambodia.

Raid reported

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) The Rhodesian air force made its first raid on Angolan territory today, bombing a "very large" training base for Joshua Nkomo's guerrillas, the Rhodesian military command announced.

A communique said the 1950s vintage Rhodesian Canberra bombers and Hawker-Hunter fighters flew across Zambia to make the attack and all returned safely

Risk 'higher'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Many amputees run a much higher than normal risk of developing cardiovascular disease and dying of heart attacks, says a new study

The study of amputations resulting from injuries, done for the Veterans Administration, is the first solid evidence of a link between amputations and heart disease. VA spokesmen say it could mean higher benefits for some veterans

Soviets in orbit

MOSCOW (AP) - Two Soviet cosmonauts circled the Earth today making preparations to dock with the Salyut 6 space

Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported that the flight by Vladimir Lyakhov and Valery Ryumin aboard the Soyuz 32 spaceship was proceeding normally in its second day. There was no indication when they would link up with the space station, which has been in orbit for 16 months and has been host to a number of Increasing cloudiness tonight, becoming partly cloudy Tuesday. High Tuesday in the mid-60s. Details on Page 2A.

Midlanders had two possible views of today's solar eclipse, depending on their facilities for viewing the phenomenon. At top is the eclipse as seen through a telescope equipped with neutraldensity filters on the campus of Odessa College in Odessa. Below left is what most Permian Basin residents probably saw, at least in Midland, with the most visible part of a 60 percent eclipse being a rainbow-like aura which fully encircled the sun. At bottom right is the same event as witnessed in Olympia, Wash., where clouds which threatened to obscure the total eclipse there broke for a few seconds to give a clear view. (Staff Photos by Brian Hendershot and Bruce Partain; other, AP Laser-

'Dark of sun' pays last visit of this century

SEATTLE (AP) - Portland, Ore., was plunged into darkness at 8:13 a.m. PST today, but clouds prevented residents from a good view of the last total eclipse of the sun in North America this century.

Skies began to darken about 7:45 a.m., and complete darkness covered Portland - the largest city in the eclipse's path — by 8: 13 a.m. It began to get light again at 8:16 a.m.

Residents had to rely on television pictures taken from planes flying above the thick cloud cover. ABC-TV carried the event live nationally.

East of the Cascades, broken clouds provided some view of the sun as the moon started its west-to-east march across the sky.

A mattress of clouds several thousand feet thick covered most of the area as the moon's shadow made its nationally televised landfall at Agate Beach, Ore., shortly after 8 a.m.

The skies were saturated with air traffic as observers went aloft to beat the clouds with a view from

Other scientists, lamateur astronomers and the curious gathered on parking lots, porches, decks and grassy knolls, with their telescopes, homemade pinhole projectors and commercial viewers.

For many, the thick cloud-cover turned the eclipse into the greatest cosmic disappointment since the Comet Kohoutek disappeared into the heavens five years ago without living up to its ballyhooed brilliance.

Repeated admonitions not to look at the sun during the period of the eclipse seemed academic as the grey skies drew a leaden sheet between the viewers and the solar spectacle.

Most of the homemade viewers were certain to be relegated to the attic as curiosity pieces, since the next total eclipse of the sun in North America won't come until the year

The Federal Aviation Administration duty officer at Boeing Field in Seattle said "the airspace is saturated" with aircraft hoping to carry observers above the clouds for a view of the eclipse

"I understand it's in that optimum flight area," he said. Some flights were being held on the ground. The tower at Boeing Field said at least one charter jet was not allowed to take off.

In Pasco, Wash., breakfasters at the Red Lion Motor Inn watched from the window as the moon moved slowly between the sun and Earth, dipping in and out of the clouds. As a Pacific front pushed the clouds in from the coast, observers aloft were the only eclipse-chasers with a guaranteed chance to see what they

Among groups chartering planes, the Seattle Science Center offered an unobstructed view plus a champagne brunch 35,000 feet above the Columbia River gorge. The ride on a chartered Alaska Airlines 727 jetliner cost $115 to $135 a person.

Today's eclipse was the first total eclipse visible in the United States in nearly nine years and another will not come around until 2017. A total solar eclipse occurs when the moon moves between the sun and Earth.

The 175-mile-wide moon shadow was due to hit the West Coast near Portland, Ore., at 8:13 a.m. PST and cross Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec at more than 3,000 mph. Along that path, the eclipse was to last from 45 seconds to a top of 2 minutes, 36 seconds — in Helena, Mont.

Other parts of North America had to settle for a partial eclipse - weather permitting.

Despite the overcast, thousands of travelers from around the country mobbed small towns of the Pacific Northwest and northern Great Plains in a replay of the solar mania that seems to grip humans when the moon blocks the view of the sun.

Ira Schneider, 46, of New York City led a group of 75 amateur astronomers to Lewistown. He went to South American last year for a total eclipse in Colombia, but he was foiled - by clouds. Still his mood was upbeat.

"There is a festive air about the whole occasion," Schneider said, as Lewistown's 8,000 residents girded for an expected 4,000 visitors. "People are very elated and excited even if they are usually conservative and scientific.

School authorities in Yakima, Wash., and Butte, Mont., ordered schools to open an hour early so children would be in class and not staring at the eclipse, possibly damaging their eyes. Pendleton, Ore., school officials urged parents to keep children home until after the eclipse.

During the last total eclipse visible in the United States - on March 7, 1970 — 121 people suffered permanent eye damage from looking directly at

Although the eclipse attracted throngs of amateurs, none of America's major solar observatories sent a scientific expedition.

Dr. John Eddy, a solar physicist at the high altitude observatory in Boulder, Colo., laid the blame on Skylab, which was launched in 1973. He said the space vehicle's hundreds of instruments and space-scanning electronic eyes had unwrapped the mysteries of the solar eclipse.

"Skylab killed Christmas as far as solar astronomers going on expeditions is concerned," Eddy said.

Chinese infantry met with stiff resistance nese infantrymen striking from three directions attacked the strategic Red River transportation corridor that leads to Hanoi but were meeting stiff resistance today from Vietnamese forces, Hanoi radio said. In Peking, Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-Ping said the China-Vietnam war might end in about 10 days.

The Soviet news agency Tass, citing 'reports reaching Hanoi," asserted that Chinese troops were preparing to invade Vietnamese-dominated Laos. In a speech in the west Russian city of Minsk, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko today reiterated the Kremlin's warnings to the Chinese to pull out of Soviet-allied Vietnam. "The Soviet Union resolutely demands that the Peking leadership end against the Socialist Republic of Vietnam and immediately withdraw Chinese troops from its territory," he

Tle Vietnamese broadcast claimed that in weekend fighting counter- attacking troops had inflicted 1,400 casualties on the tank- and artillerybacked Chinese invaders around Cam Duong, south of Lao Cai in the Red River valley. Lao Cap, a provincial capital, was reported captured by the Chinese last week. The area is about 150 miles northwest of Hanoi. But Chinese Vice Premier Wang Chen was quoted as telling British reporters that the invasion force would not try to advance down the valley toward Hanoi. Teng was interviewed by Takeji Watanabe, chief of Japan's Kyodo news service. The Chinese leader compared the war with the 33-day-long China-India war of 1962 and said the fighting might end in about 10 days 'or a few days more because Vietnam is stronger than India.

He said his government welcomed proposals in the U.N. Security Council calling for withdrawal of Chinese troops from Vietnam and of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia, and he added, "Would not make that a bargaining condition," apparently meaning China would pull out without a reciprocal Vietnamese withdrawal from Cambodia.

Teng also said that when full U.S. Chinese diplomatic relations were established Washington wanted China to commit itself against the use of military force

But we refused that, because we could not tie our hands.

At the time, U.S. officials were believed most concerned with Peking's intentions regarding Taiwan. Teng was asked why China feels it must "punish" Vietnam. "Our objective is a limited one," he said. "That is, to ueach them they could not run about as much as they desired...

"They controlled Laos, invaded Cambodia, signed a peace treaty with the Soviet Union that is a military alliance in nature, and encroached on Chinese soil at will.

China has said its invasion was aimed at "teaching Vietnam a lesson" after months of border provocations. Peking said it wanted no Vietnamese territory but would occupy about 38 square miles of disputed territory that Vietnam has been holding for years.

A Tass report from Hanoi today said China "is preparing the ground for spreading its aggression also to the Laotian People's Democratic Republic. For this aim Chinese troops are being massed at the point where the borders of China, Laos and Vietnam join." The Tass report could not be confirmed immediately.

Sources in Peking predict a big Chinese offensive in Vietnam in a few days, Kyodo reported. Some analysts in Bangkok say it may come in the Lang Son area, 80 miles northeast of

Iranian press reports execution of torture expert, floggings

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The execution of another official of Shah Mohmmad Reza Pahlavi's secret police and public floggings for violators of Islamic law were reported today. The newspaper Andegan reported that Mohammad Hossein Naderi, the secret police's torture expert in the central city of Isfahan, was brought to Tehran and executed by a firing squad Sunday night. There was no confirmation of the report from aides of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, whose security committee has executed eight generals and a police commander accused of setting a theater fire that killed hundreds in Abadan last year. Two other police officers were reported shot by firing squad Feb. 19 in Najafabad, central Iran, for killing anti-shah demonstrators. There have been unconfirmed reports of other executions by vigilante groups.

Execution sentences have been passed by special revolutionary tribunals set up by Khomeini. The ancient tradition of public floggings for violations of Moslem law has been revived by Islamic courts. They have been administering justice under the supervision of local religious leaders and applying Moslem law since Khomeini's revolution was victorious on

Press reports said a large crowd in the city of Zanjan, 180 miles north of Tehran, looked on Sunday as a thief was given 25 lashes for breaking into a widow's house. A crowd of 5,000 turned out in the eastern city of Kerman when two youths got 30 lashes each for drinking liquor. In Yasooj, two men got 80 lashes each for drink-

Tehran Radio reported Sunday that Khomeini called on foreign nations for the delivery of former Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar, indicating that he had escaped abroad.

Bakhtiar, a longtime opponent of the shah who tried unusccessfully to stem the Khomeini revolution by getting the ruler to agree to a limited monarchy, disappeared after he resigned Feb. 11. He was reported under arrest or under the protective custody of his successor and former political ally, Prime Minister Mehdi Bazar-

Khomeini's aides staged a show of force Sunday to counter leftist guerrilla groups challenging the conservatism of his revolution. Some 2,000 troops of the new National Guard marched through Tehran shouting

"Long live Khomeini!" Aides said the Shiite Moslem patriarch would return this week to Qum, the holy city 100 miles south of Tehran where he was the religious leader until the shah exiled him more than 14

One aide said Khomeini "will be as active as he was in Tehran." But there was speculation that his departure might enhance the authority of Bazargan and his government and diminish the authority of Khomeini's revolutionary committee, which has been acting as a separate government answerable to no one but the ayatol-

Khomeini met Saturday with Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Vinogradov and told him Iran wants good relations with all countries but will "fight with all our strength" against foreign interference. It was Khomeini's first meeting with a representative of a major foreign power. His warning against interference was believed intended for the United States as well as the Rus-

China seeks U.S. help in blocking Taiwan

PEKING (AP) - China's finance minister asked Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal for help today in removing Taiwan from four international financial organizations as Blumenthal opened talks on settling $197 million in U.S. claims for property seized by Chinese Communists.

According to a U.S. official who attended the first day of talks, Chinese Finance Minister Chang Chingfu said he "deplored" the fact that the institutions still recognize Taiwan, which he referred to as a "province of the motherland

"The government of the People's Republic of China is the only representative of the people of China, Chang was quoted as saying.

The World Bank, the International Monetary Fund, the International Finance Corporation and the Asian Development Bank were the four institutions Chang mentioned, said the U.S. official, Assistant Treasury Secretary Joseph Laitin Laitin quoted Chang as asking the United States "for help in bringing about a prompt settlement of this question.

The issue is a vital one for China since the country could be Eentitled to as much as $700 million a year in development loans from the World Bank alone, much of it interest-free.

Officials in the United Wtates and from the financial institutions have said nothing has to be done about the problem until China actually tries to take the Chinese seat in the oganizations, which it has not yet tried to Laitin said Chang and Blumenthal also discussed how China intends to pay for its ambitious development plans, and Chang said China was willing to switch from oil to coal for domestic Eenergy to make more oil available for export and pay for im-

saying during the talks that he would "like to see a building with a big sign on it, saying! 'Bank of China,' on Wall

Laitin said the settlement of the claims was discussed, and talks will continue in smaller working groups. Americans hope to get the Chinese to agree to pay 40 cents on the dollar.

China has a counter claim for about $80 million in assets in the United States which the U.S. government Blumenthal, who lived in Shanghai as a teen-ager during World War II, greeted Vice Premier Yu Qiu-li and other officials in Chinese as they met in the conference room of the Great Hall of the People

There was no indication of any strain resulting from Blumenthals criticism of the Chinese invasion of Vietnam during his toast at a banquet in his honor Sunday night. He said then that if the conflict continues, it could slow the development of Chinese-American relations because "our bilateral relations, particularly our commercial and scientific relations, will only flourish in a world of peace and stability

Blumenthal is expected to express the U.S. government's concern over the China-Vietnam war again Tuesday afternoon when he meets with Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping.

Power Co., a subsidiary Laitin also quoted Blumenthal (as

The secretary is seeking settlement of nearly 400 claims by American businesses and individuals. The largest is one for $53.8 million by the Boise Cascade Corp. for the Shanghai

Ship sinks after being hit by tanker

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) -The Coast Guard tried to lighten a 612-foot ship loaded with sulfur that blocked the Neches River today. It sank after being struck by a Liberian tanker Sunday during turbulence on the river, a major shipping channel in the Beaumont-Port Arthur area.

No one was hurt, and officials said no pollutants were leaking into the river, but three ships were backed up waiting to use the blocked channel.

The ship, the Marine Duval, was not completely submerged, and Coast Guard crews began pumping the sulfur onto a barge Sunday night. A spokesman said they would later try to pump water out of the ship's hull.

All 19 persons aboard the Marine Duval got off safely after it was rammed amidships while maneuvering in the river about 4 a.m., a Coast Guard official said.

"She is crossways in the middle of the channel of the river. The vessel has sunk right where she's at," Chief Petty Officer Bill Odom of New Orleans Coast Guard said. "She's not submerged, but she's sitting on the

Angleton suspected as Soviet 'mole'

WASHINGTON (AP) - A published report says CIA officials once developed a case that the agency's counterintelligence chief James Angleton might be a Soviet agent, but William Colby, the CIA director who pressured Angleton into retirement, says he never had any doubts about his lovalty.

Newsweek magazine reported Sunday that a special CIA unit searching for a "mole," or high-level Soviet agent within the CIA's ranks, at one time developed a case against Angleton, but that top agency officials dismissed it in 1974 as too circumstantial and speculative.

Newsweek's report follows a year of printed and private speculation about the possibility of a Soviet mole inside the CIA. Fueled by the case of a low-level former CIA employee convicted recently of giving the Soviets a secret U.S. spy satellite manual, interest in the agency's decade-long search for a mole has generated newspaper and magazine stories and even has been treated in a book.

Colby himself has begun public speeches by denying he is the mole The mole search was conducted largely by Angleton, and Newsweek reports that, although nothing ever was proved, a score of CIA officers came under suspicion of being moles during the 1960s and the careers of several suffered as a result.

Sheriff's deputies arrest 10 men in connection with illegal cockfight

Midland County Sheriff's Office deputies arrested 10 men Sunday night in connection with an alleged illegal cockfight held about 1.5 miles south of Deputies also arrested a man for alleged public intoxication on the Officials said two deputies attended the event on land near County Road 116 off Cottonflat Road after receiving a tip from an informant.

Officers entered a vacant lot shortly after 6 p.m. and saw some buildings with pits inside, a spokesman

Both dead and live roosters were observed in cages on the property, according to reports. Deputies also saw two roosters fight each other in one of the pits, officials said.

Various dead and live roosters were confiscated, along with paraphernalia such as spurs, which were tied to the ankles of the roosters for the fighting, said officers.

A substance believed to be methamphetamine also was confiscated, said officers.

Rooster fighting is illegal in Texas, said authorities. Cruelty to animals is a misdemeanor offense.

Early today, four persons charged with cruelty to animals had been released on $500 bond each. Released were Robert Lee Gray III,

Mrs. Corrales, a native Midlander and community volunteer, outlined six other election goals, including continuing to seek academic and vocational excellence and furthering a balanced curriculum - including fine arts, academics, athletics and career awareness

Other goals listed in her prepared statement were "continuing a meaningful staff development program for educators, keeping effective compensatory programs and screening others to meet the needs of students, placing a top priority on fiscal responsibility with budget increases carefully scrutinized and justified, and instilling discipline and respect for authority in every classroom in the district. Mrs. Corrales is past director of Family Services lease-purchase housing program and was a field worker for the Human Relations Council. She currently serves on the Midland County Hospital District citizens advisory committee and has served on the Governor's Conference for the Aged.

She was a member of the Committee on Emergency School Act, designed to help ease the transition for desegregation of Midland's schools.

"I see the need for an excellent basic foundation, especially at the elementary level, balanced with strong elective and extra-curricular programs to prepare our future citizens," she said. "I believe my experience in the community and in the business world, coupled with a dedication to hard work, provides the right balance to help lead our schools forward." She and her husband are the parents of six children, three of them graduates and three of them current students at Lee High School. Mrs. Greer is a veteran of 28 years in the teaching field. She taught 17 of her 18 years in Midland at Fannin Elementary School. "I feel this experience gives me the authority to ask the citizens of Midland to elect me to Place 6 in the election April 7.

Van Horn council ousts police chief

VAN HORN - Van Horn Police Chief Buddy Harris is out of a job today after a vote at a special session of the City Council Saturday.

The move in the hastily called session came after months of discussions on ways to cut expenses in the city budget. Although the police department has been within its budget, the city's sewer and water department is in financial trouble.

The reason the police department was singled out for budget cuts has created controversy in this predominantly Mexican-American town.

Many Mexican-Americans in the community reportedly contend discrimination against the two Mexican-American patrolmen on the police force under Harris is the real reason for the action.

Governors seek out expert in fighting battle of the budget turned to a congressional expert today for guidance in their ever more difficult and confusing drive to force the federal government to balance its budget without crimping theirs.

The expert, Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, was the featured speaker for the first general session of the National Governors' Association winter meeting, where the battle of the budget already was raging.

Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll, the group's chairman, said he invited Rodino because Carroll thinks the movement to call a constitutional convention that would draft a balanced-budget amendment is becoming as confusing as it is heated.

Sunday, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., said on a television interview show that he would press his crusade for such a convention. Carroll said later this was "reckless" behavior.

Brown and Carroll, both Democrats, did agree that the states should be prepared to do without their allotment of federal revenue-sharing aid if necssary

Unemployment shows increase

Unemployment in Midland County increased slightly during January, according to a spokesman for the Texas Employment Commission.

The labor force also went up by 1 percent during this period, bringing the total number of people working in the county to 43,260. That put employment growth for the past year at 5.6 percent, the spokesman said.

December recorded 43,050 persons working with only a 3.4 percent unemployment rate.

The rise in unemployment was attributed to seasonal effects and bad weather conditions. But the commission indicated it expects Midland to bounce back with the advent of spring and the Easter

Forecast for April calls for 44,240 persons to be working and only a 2.9 percent unemployment rate. That would reflect a total of only 1,300 persons not working, down from the 1,760 reported by the TEC The total civilian labor force should keep going up, according to employment authorities. They expect Midland County to have 45,540 persons eligible to work in April. In January, there were only 45,020 According to officials, an after-the-holidays slump predicted for January was softened by the continued need for Midland's working force in the local expanding economy.

Midland's rate of unemployment still is lower than the state average of 4.4 percent and the national average of 6.4 percent.

TEC reported openings remain for skilled and experienced workers. Some of the harder-to-fill openings are for accountants, engineers, drafters, machinists, nurses, clerical personnel, mechanics, truck drivers, welders and restaurant personnel.

High prices indicate short supply of beef

HOUSTON (AP) - Ranchers say the high prices being paid at the Houston Livestock Show sales give evidence to the short supply of beef cattle.

Heifers sold Sunday at prices 140 percent higher than a year ago and bull prices were 70 percent higher at the 12th annual all-breed commercial female and registered range bull auction.

Buyers acted like they have a lot of confidence in the future," said J.D. Sartwelle Jr. of Port City Stockyards at Sealy.

The 655 head sold for $501,040. Heifers averaged $741, compared with $306 last year. Bulls averaged $1,145 compared with $684.

WASHINGTON (AP)-The nation's governors to help Uncle Sam get his books in order. But this brought on another brouhaha from their col-

> The governors' executive committee promptly voted support of continued revenue sharing although they were willing, the members said, to accept 'their share' of federal spending cuts.

> Like President Carter, the governors have been on record for some time in favor of a balanced federal budget. They say they are required to operate in the black and Washington should do the same.

> But the issue took on new fire after California voters launched the so-called taxpayers' revolt last summer. Brown, who at first opposed his state's tax-restriction initiative, is now leading a drive to force federal fiscal restraint.

According to a count by the National Taxpayers Union, 28 states have called for a convention, which the Constitution provides may be called to propose amendments if 34 states petition Congress. Thirtyeight states are required to ratify any amendment, whether proposed by a convention or by Congress itself.

Brown said he would talk to fellow govenors during their three-day meeting here and perhaps travel to other states to preach the cause. He said California cut back its spending after the voters' mandate last year and the same kind of scare might get action from Washington. "I think the federal government, if they feel the harsh winds of this call to convention close enough, they're going to take the same attitude and start cutting a lot of things," Brown said. Carroll said he favored a less-drastic approach and said governors are seriously concerned about some congressional threats to balance the federal budget by ending aid to the states.

Critics of the convention idea say such a body would not be limited to the budget question, but might rewrite or greatly alter the Constitution.

Clements explains cutting pay raise

Bill Clements, whose proposed budget slashed a raise for schoolteachers recommended by the Legisla-tive Budget Board, says the board added the teachers' pay raise only as an afterthought when it realized it had a surplus of funds.

"I just don't agree with that kind of budgetary control and discipline,' Clements said in a "Capital Eye" news interview program broadcast Sun-Clements trimmed the budget board's recommendations before passing on the proposed spending plan to legislators in hopes of giving $1 billion in tax relief, as he had promised during his campaign last year. "The Legislative Budget Board was working on their budget and they reached the last day and they found out that they had a $600 million or $700 million surplus, so they said, 'Let's just give a big raise to the teachers," the governor said. "I don't think their foresight and their judgment in this regard should override," he said. "They end up with a lump sum, so they say, 'Well, we've got to get rid of this some way, so we

AUSTIN (AP)-Gov. just throw it into this pot.' Well, I just don't agree with that kind of budgetary control and discipline.

The budget board recommended an annual 5.1 percent raise for schoolteachers, who now get raises from the state ranging from 3.2 percent to 4.9 percent annually, depending on their experience. Clements' proposed budget included a 5.1 percent raise for state employes, and he was asked about the gap between them and teach-

"What I think may well happen in the legislature is that our schoolteachers and our state employees will be put on exactly the same basis," Clements said. The teachers and the state employees should receive the same percentage increases."

DEAB ABBY' I just lost the only man I ever loved. When I came home last evening I found a note from Jimmy saying, "Goodbye"—after we lived together for a year.

In his note he said that my job was changing me into a hard person, and he couldn't ask me to quit because he thought it was what I really wanted to do. (It's not true. I hate my work, but the money is too good to pass up.)

Abby, I am a prostitute. The money helped pay our bills. Jimmy's job didn't pay much, and we needed the

Cesar Chavez trying again to organize farm workers

"I can assure you it will be much easier for you than it was in 1962," Chavez said, referring to the beginning of the UFW in 1962. "The people were scared then. Nobody should be afraid here."

The UFW effort in Texas has been plagued by a split in the ranks. But, with solidarity as the key word here, the 320 delegates worked themselves into a minor frenzy unanimously approving a resolution calling for "Una Sola Union" — one union.

"We don't want to be confused with that man with the black hat," one speaker said. The "man with the black hat" is Antonio Orendain | WEST WOOD

- a former Chavez aide who split from the UFW in 1975 and started the Texas Farm Workers Union. Orendain's group was some 500 miles away - in Dallas on a march to Austin — as the delegates here shouted the "one union" cheer.

At a press conference later, Chavez said he is "open" to allowing the TFWU to re-join the UFW. He said he knows of no philosophical differences between the two organizations.

The solidarity theme carried through the day as some 33 resolutions were approved unanimously. The resolutions call for increased wages, better working conditions, workmen's copensation coverages and other issues.

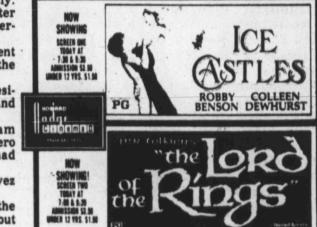

Chavez also backed resolutions opposing President Carter's seven per cent wage guidelines and the Bracero program.

The longtime farm workers leader said the presidential wage guidelines do not apply to growers and therefore should not be applied to field laborers.

The resolution opposing the Bracero program branded the system as "semi-slavery." The Bracero program ended in 1960. For two decades it had allowed Mexicans to work in the U.S.

"It would wreck the entire wage system," Chavez complained. The union president told the delegates that the Texas branch of the UFW had come a long way, but still has much organizing to do. At the press conference, he said the Texas workers

BRIDGE

Bypass bogeyman to insure contract

On a recent trip to Australia I discovered bridge players there resemble those in North America: declarer would rather make his contract than go down three.

Today's hand, contributed by Frank Cayley, dean of Australian bridge writers, shows what happens if South takes the tempting diamond finesse. As the cards lie, the diamond finesse fails. East switches to the six of spades, and South is down three. NOT BAD LUCK

"Bad luck?" Cayley asks. "Certainly not. Bad play—failure to identify East as the bogeyman who, if possi-ble, must be prevented from gaining the lead.

"More thought can lead you to bypass the bogeyman. Cross to dummy with the ace of hearts at the second trick. Then lead the jack of clubs for a finesse. It loses, but only to the harmless hand, and game is now unbeatable."

West cannot hurt you by leading spades, and you can take nine tricks against any defense.

DAILY QUESTION

Your partner doubles, and the next player passes. You hold: S-Q97654; H-Q; D-K43; C-753. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs. You would pass for penalties if your six spades were in such sequence as Q-J10987. Your actual spades are no threat to declarer; and he might very well make an overtrick or two at one spade doubled. Since you don't have an unbid suit of four or more cards, you should bid a three-card suit. Some experts would bid two diamonds because your diamonds are stronger than your clubs.

Alarming concession

Senate ratification of a new Soviet-American strategic arms limitation treaty is likely to rise or fall on the question of verification. Unless the Senate is convinced that the United States can detect Soviet cheating, the treaty almost certainly will be rejected. And properly so.

Thus, it was startling last December when Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance compromised U.S. verification capabilities by agreeing to permit the Soviets to encode the transmission of some test data from missiles in flight. Telemetric encryption, as this practice is called, goes to the heart of the verification process. Without the data from Soviet missile test results, the United States could not determine with any certainty whether missiles being tested violate arms limitation agreements.

Suppose, for example, the Soviets were to encode the transmitted results from tests of their intermediate range, mobile ballistic missile, the SS-20. Because this two-stage rocket lacks intercontinental range, it is not counted toward either the 1972 SALT I limits or the ceilings established in the prospective SALT II treaty.

But with simple addition of a third stage, the intermediate range SS-20, becomes the intercontinental SS-16, a rocket limited by SALT I and SALT II. Without access to test results, U.S. intelligence might not be able to determine if the SS-20 were in fact being tested with a prohibited third-stage booster.

According to former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird. something very similar to this actually occured several years ago, and led to a prompt American complaint to Moscow. Encoded test results were then viewed as a prima facie violation of Article V of the SALT I agreement, which prohibits the United States and the Soviet Union from any interference with each other's "national technical means of verification" - a euphemism of reconnaissance satellites from various forms of eavesdropping. What made Vance's concession to the Russians on encoding all the more alarming was that it left the Soviets free to decide what should be encoded. Good grief!

long-range electronic

The ambiguous language of this concession would permit encoding except when the practice would jeopardize verification of treaty compliance.

But, in effect, the Soviets could encode whatever test results they choose so long as they insisted that the information did not bear on SALT-imposed limitations. Hence, the Russians become their own policemen.

The Secretary of State somehow must have overlooked this concession. Surely, he would not have thrown this in for good measure or would he?

This folly recently bore first fruit in the form of Soviet encryption of results of a test firing of an SS-18, the largest and most destructive intercontinental ballistic missile in either country's arsenal.

And although the United States objected, the Soviets have only to assert, however implausibly, that the test did not encroach on any arms limitation agreement. Under the terms of the Vance concession, what response is left for the United States? This question should be directed to Mr. Vance.

It should not be necessary to point out that blind faith is wholly unwarranted when dealing with the Kremlin on matters of national security.

As recently as his State of the Union address, President Carter pledged that the prospective SALT II treaty would not be based on trust on the Soviet Union's "good intentions."

But that is exactly what verification via interception of telemetry will rest on if the Vance concession remains a part of SALT II.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Pentagon badmouthing its foe

WASHINGTON - Once again we've caught the Pentagon trying to sabotage the Renegotiation Board, the watchdog agency charged with reviewing defense contracts and cracking down on profiteers.

It is largely because of the militaryindustrial complex's uncomplicated lobbying that the Renegotiation Board is scheduled for extinction on March 31. President Carter wants Congress to continue funding the board, which over the years has extracted millions of dollars in excess profits from greedy defense contractors.

But White House policy doesn't keep the Pentagon brass from tinuing to badmouth the Renegotiation Board at every opportunity. Last month, David Koonce, chairman of the Defense Department's contract finance committee. popped off in derisive fashion at the board in a speech to the National Contract Management Association in Los Angeles.

Unbeknownst to Koonce, an official of the board's Western office was in the audience. She took detailed notes and prepared an internal memorandum for her bosses.

According to the memo. Koonce said the Renegotiation Board "had harassed everyone ... did not pay for itself ... was a good example of cops costing more money than the robbers were stealing ..."

The memo reports that "Mr. Koonce said he had fond hopes that the Renegotiation Board would be killed in committee." though he also said he wouldn't believe the board was going out of existence "until I see Referring to proposed charges in the Pentagon's profit-level calculations, Koonce told the meeting, according to the memo, "if he could defeat Renegotiation by publishing changes to the profit policy, he intended to 'crank them out on toilet paper."

When called by our associate Tony Capaccio, Koonce did not deny his hostility to the Renegotiation Board. But he did-claim that some of the comments were misquoted or taken out of context, and were supposed to have been off the record anyway.

White House insiders told us they are checking into the matter, because Koonce's comments, if accurately reported, were "totally against administration policy." And when the defense industry's Minish, D-N.J., learned of Koonce's remarks, he dispatched a stinging rebuke to Defense Secretary Harold Brown. "It is my understanding," Minish wrote, "that it is customary for the President to determine the policies which his administration will follow ... If Mr. Koonce wants to represent the interests of defense contractors, he should not be masquerading as an employee of the American taxpayer."

CYNICAL COPS: California probably has more than its share of extremist groups from every cage in the political zoo - nut cases like the Symbionese Liberation Army on the left to the Posse Comitatus on the right. So it's understandable that the state's law-enforcement officials have developed elaborate methods for training police and military personnel in the control of civil disorders and terrorism.

But one facility offering such education, the California Specialized Training Institute at San Luis Obispo, appears to have reacted to the threat of extremism with some extreme teaching aids and attitudes of its own. The institute has trained more than 14,000 students from every state and many foreign countries and has been given nearly $5 million in federal funds since 1971.

Our reporter David Henry obtained few of the institute's training manuals, and some of the language reveals an irresponsibility that should cause concern among citizens across the country.

There are references in a 1974 manual to minorities as "mad dogs." for example; a certain lawyers' group is flatly labeled "communist," students have "the gullibility of a

The manual, entitled "Citizen Violence and Terrorism," shows a curiously ambiguous stand on violence, deploring it among both "mad dog" minorities and "militant whites," but then asserting that "legitimate violence is integral to our form of government, for it is from this source that we can continue to purge our weaknesses." This dogma is repeated in the manual's advocacy of "the purge of all objectionables in the system who have acted in obstructing the entire criminal justice system.

When not approving fanaticism, the manual seems to be espousing cynicism. "It is necessary," manual states, "for the police executive to treat his occupation like all other executives. He must do it well but not so well that he puts himself out of a job. He must reduce crime but not stop it."

The institute's director, Col. Louis O. Giuffrida, approved that particular manual himself, but said he hadn't really had time to review it thoroughly. He also suggested we were lifting quotes out of context. In any case, he said, the manual had been replaced.

made about none of our secret U.S.

Let me spell it out. The Arabian penninsula states are still in the Middle Ages. It makes as much sense to sell them sophisticated hardware as it would to sell advanced computers to Idi Amin. People who have not mastered the broom do not need jet fighters or guided missiles.

Furthermore, the threat to these governments is not from an external invasion but from a coup or interanal insurrection and big ticket hardware is useless against both.

To top it all, the people who run these governments don't like us. They re hostile and contemptuous of us Historically, religiously, and culturally, they are anti-Western and they remain so despite the fact they are ripping us off with their oil cartel and investing some of the loot in our

They may not like Russians but individual liberty is as alien a concept to them as Santa Claus. They are survivors first and last and are not even loyal to each other much less to us. The lesson Carter has taught them with the Iranian debacle is that it's not safe to be an ally of the U.S.

Since Carter doesn't know anything and apparently cannot learn anything, the Congress will have to look out for us during the next two years. It could start by strengthening the CIA which is the best defense against Shah-chasers. Then it should outlaw all foreign aid, credit, loans or any other form of assistance to the OPEC nations. It should prohibit the sale of military hardware more sophisticated than a bolt action rifle to the Arabs. It should levy an export tax on wheat and other food products that would triple the price to foreigners.

We have just two chips in the world game - food and technology and so far the dunderheads in Washington have piddled both away without gaining us one single advantage.

We will pay dearly for Carter's bumbling efforts which let old Shahbaby go down the tube, but if the Congress manages to learn something from the experience, it might be approach to California. Experienced from Carter's lack of a California Democratic politicians with no love base. Even Brown's enemies concede

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

INSIDE REPORT:

LOS ANGELES - Having done nothing about laying the groundwork for a 1980 presidential campaign in California, President Carter's political operatives are now compounding that error by scheduling no activity before or after his March 2 fund-raising speech in Los Angeles.

That has encouraged the conclusion here that the president's sole interest in the nation's most populous state is to take the California money and run. The state's Democratic politicians believe the White House has conceded California, both for the Democratic primary and general election, and is interested only in tapping the eternal fountain of Los Angeles green.

Correct or not, this appraisal contributes to the widespread conclusion here that Jimmy Carter is among the walking dead politically. He is seen a sure loser to Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. or Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in the Democratic primary and to Ronald Reagan in the general election. A 34 percent statewide approval rating in a new private poll confirms that judgment

While Carter's declining political health is under preliminary diagnosis in Washington, he has been interred in California as a political corpse. Reagan's principal professed worry is that he will be denied the Carter record to run against in 1980 if the Democratic nominee is Brown or, more likely, Kennedy

crat Brown, will attack him for ignoring world and domestic crises. Both these camps attack the Pollyanna tone in his State of the Union

But Carter's deterioration could at least be controlled by prudent management. His schedule for the California trip reveals a primitive White House political operation. At this writing, two weeks before the event, plans call for a Washington-to-Los Angeles roundtrip to address the March 2 dinner raising Democratic National Committee funds-and nothing more.

In response to pleas that the president show his flag to more than merely $1,000-a-plate black-tie diners at the Beverly Hilton Hotel, White House aides have entertained the possibility of one brief appearance on the way back to the airport the morning after the dinner. National Democratic finance chairman Charles T. Manatt, a leading California politician, has suggested a quick visit to UCLA (though college campus appearances on Saturday mornings are earmarked for disaster). Lack of interest in expanding the president's trip reflects his overall for Brown - state Treasurer Jesse Unruh, state Controller Ken Cory, state Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy - would relish charting Carter's campaign plan. None has been approached.

This becomes even more difficult to understand in that chief Carter political operative Tim Kraft was a former Unruh aide (in Unruh's abortive campaign for mayor of Los Angeles). The fact that Kraft's principal activity on trips out West has been to court Brown money men strengthens the theory that his interest here is primarily financial. The president's greatest weakness in California is the influential Jewish community. A "counter-Carter" dinner is being held March 1, the night before Carter's - in black tie, in the same hotel, with about the same number of people, but at only $25 a shot. A potpourri of anti-Carter Democrats is being sought as speakers: Cesar Chavez, Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, Gloria Steinem.

Sponsors of the counter-dinner complain that holding the president's dinner on Friday night, the Jewish Sabbath, demonstrates "insensitivity" - which only proves that a declining politician can do no right. In fact, Friday night political affairs have been commonplace here, without criticism. Stressing that he himself is Jewish, national Democratic treasurer Evan Dobelle told us: ") suspect the criticism is political, not

But that only begs the question of why there is political criticism, apart his balanced budget theme is far more relevant to voters than Carter's claim that they never had it so good. The president is suffering here not only because of what he is but because of what he says.

The consensus within the White House is that those sunbleached Californians who give huge majorities to the likes of Ronnie Reagan and Jerry Brown should not be taken seriously. Since Carter won in 1976 while losing California, why consider the state as anything more than a campaign warchest? That attitude ignores what happens to presidents who misread the issues and are clumsy in their politics. It can only heighten what is already a high degree of peril in Carter's presidency.

Egypt, like Iran, dealing with wide Islamic revival

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - President Anwar Sadat talks about policing the Middle East and wants billions of dollars worth of American arms to do the job with. But at home he has to contend with the same wave of Islamic fundamentalism that drove the shah of Iran from power.

Moslem revivalists have become prominent in the past four years. partly due to causes similar to those which provoked the Islamic backlash against Westernization and foreign influence in Iran.

The fundamentalists are extremely suspicious of both the United States and the Soviet Union, oppose peace with Israel and want Egypt's laws to be taken unchanged from the Koran, the Moslem holy book.

"The Moslems are coming despite Jewish cupning, Christian hatred and the communist storm," said a recent headline in the Moslem magazine Al Itissam (The Refuge). It typifies the general attitude of the movement and its new confidence.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's success in Iran has given comfort to the revivalists, but their movement predates his upheaval in Iran. It is made up of several groups which do not seem to be connected, and some of them are rivals. But their avowed goals are basically the same - rectitude in public and private life, rejection of things foreign which don't conform to the Koran and spreading the Islamic faith.

Sadat allowed the fundamentalists free rein while he was busy cracking down on leftist opponents over the past three years.

At the same time, he courted Western investment, which brought with it consumer goods, inflation and a rapid change in urban life styles. Perplexed, many Egyptians returned to Despite these similarities to the situation in Iran, there are very significant differences. The Egyptian fundamentalists do not call for the overthrow of the government as Khomeini. Spokesmen say their principal aim is to make the Sharia, the Moslem code of ethics and religious practices, the law of the land.

Unlike the shah, Sadat is a deeply devout Moslem whose religious credentials are impeccable. The Moslem clergy is markedly pro-government, and the grand sheik of the Al Azhar Mosque, the foremost interpreter of the Koran, is appointed by Sadat.

The fundamentalists also have been allowed to oppose Sadat's Camp David agreement with Israel openly, warding off any charge of repression on that score.

Sadat recently issued directives to his officials to reinforce the call to Islam. There is talk that religion will become an official subject in the universities, and committees in parliament are completing legislation to enact some aspects of the Sharia into public law. "Sadat's measures are probably meant to satisfy some Islamic demands," said a Western expert on Moslem affairs, "but they also underline the point that he and the government are the repositories of Islamic purity, not the fundamentalists." The movement recently has begun to take an anti-American tilt. Al Itissam, affiliated with a group called The Sharia Association, charged in January that American aid was conditional on the government imposing birth control on Moslems only.

Al Dawaa, the magazine of the Moslem Brotherhood, recently printed details of a purported Egyptian-Israeli-American plot to break up the revivalist movement. It later pub-strength of the movement. Spokesmen of the various groups are secretive about their followers, maintaining that "all Moslems are with us."

Their most evident influence is on the campuses of Egypt's 12 universities, which have a total enrollment of about 500,000. In the past two years, the leadership of more than half the student unions has been taken over by fundamentalists, and they are strong Perhaps a third of all coeds now wear Islamic dress, covering everything except the face and hands. Many elderly women have also reverted to some form of such dress, a fashion virtually unseen on Cairo streets only five years ago.

Final decision due on one-way streets

The determining vote on one-way streets in the Tall City should be made when the Midland City Council meets at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in Council Chambers at City Hall.

An ordinance establishing one-way streets on portions of Illinois, Texas and K Streets is up for a second reading. If passed, the ordinance goes into effect as soon as signs can be placed.

The one-way streets will start at North K Street and extend eastward. The original plan called for them to stop at U.S. Highway 80 East. But after protests by some merchants located at the eastern tip of the streets at the last council session, another stopping point was suggested.

This new stopping point is the basis for another ordinance to be considered on first reading. The council will consider making Weatherford and Fort Worth streets one-way between Texas and Illinois.

The council should hear a report from Black and Veatch, a consulting firm, concerning the status of the city's application for a discharge permit in connection with expansion of the Water Pollution A hearing was held Feb. 13 by the Texas Water

Commission on the city's application to expand the plant but with employment of an "energy conserving Also on the agenda is consideration of a resolution changing the agreement with the Housing Authority of the city of Midland. This would enable the housing group to probe the possibility of a loan program for middle-income families wanting to purchase Among other items to be considered by the council are acceptance of a grant offer for MidTran, a transportation system for Midland; a resolution approving a grant application for a Midland Rape Crisis Center, and possibility of constructing an addition to the building occupied by Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission. Two ordinances for review pertain to alcoholic beverages in city parks. One will make it unlawful to possess or consume alcoholic beverages in certain city parks while the other makes it unlawful to possess the drinks except in the original unopened container in or upon the streets of Midland. A request from the Midland County Commissioners to close Baird Street between Illinois and Texas will be discussed. Under the planning and zoning items, the council should consider a resolution recommending review of the park acquisition program. The Planning and Zoning Commission approved the plan at its Feb. 19 meeting and is asking the council to adopt and follow the plan. Public hearings will cover issues on removal of structures, issuance of temporary special permits for mobile homes, a zone change request by Joe Hernandez, a request by Lamar Advertising for a billboard, a zone change request by Herman Harris and zone changes requested by Exeter Corporation. Other zone changes listed for consideration are those requested by HBF Corporation and Clyde

Lazy visitors to Mexico snooze in sharkskin suits

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent

ISLA de MUJERES, Mexico (AP) — This is the place where Jaws snores.

In 60-foot deep Caribbean caves off the Yucatan coast man-eating Requiem sharks and other finny fiends doze as docile as tourists on a chaise lounge or the natives at siesta time in the shade of a sombre-

Macho Mexican divers with names like El Zorro the fox - and El Canon - the cannon - swim up alongside the sleeping 18-foot monsters to nudge them and even try to lift them.

Occasionally a tourist with diving experience will strap on an oxygen tank and take the plunge to eyeball the basking carnivores, who eyeball them right back, since a shark sleeps with its baleful eyes

Most visitors to the Yucatan, however, content themselves with the purchase of a T-shirt with the caricature of shark logging z-z-z-z's or hang around the diving shacks waiting for the professionals to return in their little lobster boats from the shark

The snoozing sharks have brought a minitourist boom to Isla de Mujeres, which means island of omen and now plays host to a number of pregnant

Marine biologists are not quite sure why the sharks choose the ocean caves off the Yucatan for their slumbers, although pregnancy may be a factor. It was previously thought that the shark was nature's No. 1 insomniac, that he was fated to swim unceasingly with his mouth open and his powerful fins and tail constantly churning in order to keep the oxygenrich water flowing over his gills.

Now it appears the sharks come to Mexico for the same reasons as the winter tourists: to get away from it all, catch a little rest and maybe like the marijuana crowd zonked out on reefers enter a torpid narcoticized state induced by the natural conditions found in the caves beneath the reefs. Scientists have found that the seas off the peninsula have a strange tranquilizing effect on these man-eating monsters. Jaws down here becomes slack-jawed and would just as soon patted on the snout by a passing tourist as graze on his double knits.

For one thing, the quality of the sea is different and soothing to the shark. Fresh water seeping from the mainland's water table lowers the salinity, the salt content, of the water, which seems to help the shark breathe. The water also has a higher oxygen content, higher acidity and higher carbon dioxide, all of which enable the shark to take a break from his constant swimming. Some scientists think the fresh and salt water current moving through the caves activate the sharks gills enough to allow him to snooze without gasping for air.

There is another theory that the coming together of fresh and salt water creates an electromanatic field that has a hallucegenic effect so that the shark actually gets high. In his comatose state, the shark is rarely bothered by the powerful lights turned on him by marine photographers, although a sudden flash from a camera will cause him to wake up and move on to another siesta spot with an angry, sand-churning swish of his tail.

The caves also serve as a kind of a car wash for parks. Parasites that attach thems shark's body seem to loosen their hold in waters with a lower saline content. Sharks in the caves also get cleaned quicker by the remora, their slave fish also known as the shark sucker, which are better able to nibble at the free-loaders attached to the shark's gills, eyes and nostrils when the great beast is not in motion roving the deep.

Divers marvel at the sleek cleaniness of the sharks dozing in these deep water caves with names like El Puente — the bridge — some of them as cavernous as cathedrals. Requiem sharks, also known as tiger sharks, are the main visitors to the caves and have the reputation of being the most vicious maneaters. But the shark R & R area also is visited by lemon sharks, blue sharks and reef sharks, any of which could fricassee a basking tourist at one gnosh of its double row jaws.

Although a hibernating shark gathers no gringos, at least so far, visitors to the Yucatan would be well advised to let sleeping sharks snore and concentrate their underwater sightseeing on eyeballing the schools of angel fish and other colorful species the size of sardines passing over nearby Garra-

Jaws, when disturbed, could turn out to be as testy as a grizzly awakened from his winter cave. And a

After all the Requiem shark didn't earn its menacing name for sleeping on the job, and one who has swum so far to catch a couple of winks and hang a "Do Not Disturb sign" on his snout is bound to be more than a bit put out at being harassed by noisy tourists invading his underwater hacienda.

Study reveals doctors use too many X-rays

Dear Dr. Solomon: With all the warnings about the dangers of radiation, physicians still order all kinds of X-ray examinations. Isn't there something contradictory about this?-Mr. A.E.

Dear Mr. E.: I would not dispute your implication that some patients are exposed to unnecessary and possibly harmful radiation through the excessive use of X-rays, although undoubtedly we would all agree that X-rays should be taken where a medical need for them exists. This contention is supported by a study carried out in two hospitals in the State of Washington that showed that 40 to 60 percent of all skull X-rays on patients with head trauma could be safely eliminated.

Over a three-year period, doctors in one of the hospitals used a rigid set of criteria for selecting patients for skull X-rays. The practice was monitored monthly by a utilization review committee. As a result, skull X-rays in the hospital's emergency room were reduced by 40 percent.

The second hospital, which did not impose any ontrols, had a 64 percent increase in skull X-rays turing the same three-month period. No significant difference in patient care between the two hospitals ould be identified. It was therefore concluded that he eliminated X-rays were unnecessary.

Dear Dr. Solonon: I will be having an operation for cataracts in the near future. My doctor tells me that lens implants are now available. Have there been my studies done to determine how safe end effective se lenses are?-Mrs. L.V.

Dear Mrs. V.: The Wilmer Institute of the Johns Hopkins Hospital compared 100 patients who had intraocular lens implants with 100 patients who had attact surgery without lens implantation. There were more operative and postoperative complications in those patients with lens implants. The visual results, however, were similarly good in both groups after an average followup period of one year. Long-term results are still unknown.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What are some of the signs of syphilis?—Linda F.

Dear Linda F.: The signs of syphilis are not painful at first. The first sign is usually a sore (called a "chancre") that may look like a cold sore or pimple. This sore is highly infectious and appears where the germs entered the body.

In a woman, it is sometimes very difficult to notice the first signs of syphilis because the painless sore often hides in the internal sex organ (vagina). In men the chancre usually appears on the sex organ (penis) or near it. This sore or chancre will disappear even without treatment, but the disease is still in the body starting to do damage.

Three to six weeks after the sore or chancre appears, there may be a body rash, fever, sore throat or hair falling out in patches. Syphilis is then affecting the entire body and is still highly infectious.

Keep in mind that the signs of syphilis may resemble those of any one of a dozen other diseases. These signs and symptoms will also disappear without treatment. Only a physician can diagnose and treat the disease.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Facing a 613-yard hole, a par 5, and you have a great tee shot with a driver where the wind isn't much of a factor, what club do you take from your bag for that second golf shot?

Lanny Wadkins just kept his driver and used it again from the fairway and got close enough to the 17th hole to use a sand wedge to the green even though he wasn't in the sand.

The ball stopped two feet from the hole, Wadkins carded a birdie and that brought him the championship of the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open

Dodger pitcher Houston could become raring to play

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Reliever Terry Forster, who underwent surgery on his pitching elbow last November, says he'll be ready for the Los Angeles Dodgers' baseball season-opener on April 5.

Forster, the National League champions' top reliever last season with 22 saves, is currently throwing at only about 50 percent efficiency.

"I'll be 100 percent by the start of the season," said the 27-year-old lefthander after Sunday's rain-shortened workout at the Dodgers' spring training camp. "When I had the operation I did it with the idea that I'd be ready by the time the season started. I still feel that way.

"Right now I'm throwing about 15 minutes every day against a wall," added Forster. "I'm not going to cut loose for a while. The adhesions are still tight in my arm. Once I break those I'll be fine."

Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda has indicated that he'll open the season with a nine-man pitching staff and a five-man starting rotation. He also said there remains a chance of the club making another trade, but until a decision is made on Forster any deals

Eight OSU players file law suit

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) -Lawyers for eight Oklahoma State athletes will file a federal lawsuit here Monday challenging the handling of a federal grant program, according to the Daily Oklahoman.

The Lynda Fillmore story for Monday's editions quotes attorneys James P. Linn and William Skepnek

The lawyers said they will file suit on behalf of seven football players and one basketball player challenging Oklahoma State's handling of Basic Educational Opportunity Grant funds. They said other studentathletes contacted them but refused to sign affidavits joining in the lawsuit.

The awards range from $50 to $1,600 and are determined by such factors as the financial standing of the student's family, whether the student is a resident or non-resident, and what year of post-high school education the student is entering.

In addition to athletic scholarships, NCAA rules allow the acceptance of any money from home, Social Security, veteran's and ROTC benefits. BEOG monies are excluded Regulations allow athletic scholarships to cover room, board, books, tuition and fees and $300 in federal aid on a full grant-in-aid and $400 if books aren't included.

Skepnek said OSU lists the expenses for a junior or senior

Spurs capture Texas shootout

By The Associated Press

It was supposed to be an old fashioned Texas shootout, the winner being the team that was quickest on the draw. Instead it was the San Antonio Spurs' much-maligned defense that defused the Houston Rock-

"They can say what they want about our defense, but we just shut them down completely in the first half," said San Antonio Coach Doug Moe, whose team broke out to a 65-44 halftime lead and went on to beat the Rockets 127-107 Sunday

The victory extended San Antonio's lead over Houston to three games in the National Basketball Association's Central Division.

In other NBA games, the New Jersey Nets beat the New York Knicks 116-102, the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the Denver Nuggets 119-111, the Kansas City Kings trimmed the Seattle SuperSonics 114-106, the Washington Bullets topped the Golden State Warriors 99-89, the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Chicago Bulls 117-108, the Portland Trail Blazers defeated the Detroit Pistons 126-119 in overtime, the San Diego Clippers outscored the Boston Celtics 131-116 and the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Indiana Pacers 118-108.

While the Spurs lead the NBA in scoring, they rank third from the bottom in defense. But they held Houston to 14 points in the second period on 23 percent shooting, taking command of the game. Overall the Rockets shot just 37 percent, compared to a season mark of 49.6.

"The first half was the best half of basketball I've seen us play in three years here," said Moe. "It was awesome. The Rockets are the best pure shooting team going, but I never saw them shoot an open shot in the first

"We were very pumped up to play defense," said Spurs forward Allan Bristow. "When we play good defense, it makes our running game

Offensively, George Gervin led the Spurs with 32 points, Billy Paultz added 24 and Larry Kenon 22. Moses Malone had 33 points and 25 rebounds

Nets 116, Knicks 102 John Williamson, who scored just two points before fouling out as New York beat New Jersey 111-107 Saturday night in New York, scored 30 as the Nets gained revenge on their home court Sunday.

The Nets took control with a 22-4 spurt that began late in the third period and helped them to a 102-85 advantage. Williamson had 10 of those points.

"I took total responsibility for the loss last night," said Williamson. "I let the team down. We had to have this game. It feels great to beat the Knicks. I love to play them. Our games prove who is the king back 76ers 119, Nuggets 111 Philadelphia trailed 100-85 with 10 minutes to play before running off bursts of 14 and nine consecutive points to win. Julius Erving had 12 points in the stretch run for the 76ers and Darryl Dawkins nine. In his first home game against his former teammates, Denver's George McGinnis scored only 10 points, none in the second half.

Kings 114, Sonics 106 Kansas City posted its 15th straight homecourt victory and widened its Midwest Division lead over Denver to seven games as Otis Birdsong scored 34 points. The Kings led by 12 at the half and by at least eight the rest of

Oilers edge by Bulls, 5-4, in WHA play

By The Associated Press The Edmonton Oilers seem to be greasing the skids for the rest of their World Hockey Association rivals.

Sunday's 5-4 triumph over the Birmingham Bulls was the first-place Oilers' 10th straight triumph and gave them a three-point lead over New England. Not only that, but Edmonton also has played three games less than the second-place Whalers, six less than the third-place Winnipeg Jets and two less than the fourthplace Quebec Nordiques.

In other Sunday action, the Jets downed the Whalers 7-5, while Quebec and the Cincinnati Stingers battled through a scoreless overtime to a 1-1

Stan Weir scored two goals to lead Edmonton over Birmingham for the Oilers' 22nd triumph in their last 26 home games. Dennis Sobchuk scored what proved to be the game-winner with a 35-foot slap shot 38 seconds into the final period. That gave Edmonton a 5-2 lead, but goals by Birmingham's John C. Stewart and Craig Hartsburg 64 seconds apart made it close.

Wayne Gretzky and Blair MacDonald scored the other goals for Edmonton, while Paul Henderson and Louis Sleigher tallied for Birmingham. Jets 7, Whalers 3

Winnipeg got three goals from Morris Lukowich and a pair from Peter Sullivan. Lukowich, a 22-year-old left wing who had 40 goals last season, hiked this year's output to 50 with one in each period. Mark Howe scored twice for the Whalers, who were playing their third game in three nights and ninth in 13 days. Whalers goalle Al Smith was ejected in the first period for being the third man in on a Nordiques 1, Stingers 1 Marc Tardif's 35th goal of the season on a second-period power play earned Quebec the tie. Tardif's booming slap shot beat goalie Michel Dion at 13:22 of the second period just six seconds before a penalty to Cincinnati's Jamie Hislop would have expired. Bill Gilligan gave Cincinnati a 1-0 lead with 54 seconds left in the opening period when he deflected Byron Baltimore's shot from the blue line past Quebec goalie Richard Broof the fourth quarter when the Bullets broke open a close game. It was Washington's 23rd victory in 29 home

Cavs 117, Bulls 108 Cleveland scored 10 of the game's last 12 points to beat the Bulls. Rookie Mike Mitchell led the Cavs with 24 points, but it was a pair of baskets by center Elmore Smith that touched off the decisive flurry at the end.

Clippers 131, Celtics 116 San Diego posted its fifth straight victory and climbed one game over .500 at 32-31 by scoring 72 points in the second half. Lloyd Free scored 38 points and backcourtmate Randy Blazers 126, Pistons 119

Lionel Hollins scored six of his 29 points in overtime as Portland snapped Detroit's four-game winning streak and climbed to the .500 mark at

Lakers 118, Pacers 108

Los Angeles moved into first place in the Pacific Division, one-half game ahead of Seattle, by beating the Pacers behind 23 points apiece by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Adrian Dantley. Los Angeles took the lead for good by outscoring the Pacers 19-6 in four minutes of the third quarter, then clinched the victory with a 20-7 burst to start the final period.

The New York Rangers scored an important held their opposition without a shot on goal in victory and suffered a sea period. They had acrious loss - all in the same game.

The Rangers, second in the National Hockey League's Patrick Division, beat the first-place New York Islanders 3-2 Sunday night. They also snapped a 10-game goal scoring streak by second-year right wing Mike Bossy and held the Islanders without a shot on goalie Doug Soetaert in the second period.

But in the process, they lost their leading scorer for the rest of the regular season, Center Ulf Nilsson suffered a fractured right ankle when checked into the boards by defenseman Denis Potvin with 1:20 left in the first period. The players' upper bodies collided explosively, but Nilsson's skate 'must have gotten caught in the ice," said Potvin.

The injury will take at least six weeks to heal. In the other NHL games, the Montreal Canadiens downed the Washington Capitals 8-5, the Detroit Red Wings crushed the Colorado Rockies 8-1 and the Pittsburgh Penguins tied the Chicago Black Hawks 2-

Aminoil USA geophysicist Mike Pilson says the only way to measure success of someone in his line of work is to look at the track record for finding deposits of crude oil in natural gas. This task has become increasingly difficult, he says, as more and more prospects have been drilled.

Aminoil geophysicist believes track record correct yardstick

HOUSTON — There are probably as many ways to measure career success as there are careers. For actors, one measure of success is the Oscar. For a scientist, success might come in the form of a Nobel Prize. But for a geophysicists, says Ainoil USA's Mike Pilson, there's only one measure -the ability to find crude oil and natural gas.

Pilson, who has been a geophysicist for Aminoil since June of 1978, notes that for an individual in his line of work, success means "you've got to find commercial deposits of hydrocarbons wherever they happen to

He points out that this job has become more difficult over the years as more and more large prospective hydrocarbon structures have been drilled. Despite steady advancements in technology, the interpretation of geophysical data in an attempt to find smaller prospects is still an extremely subtle science.

It's not unusual to give two experienced geophysicists the same data, Pilson explains, and get remarkable different interpretations.

"The pressure is always there to make the best possible interpreta-tion," Pilson continues, "because a geophysicist is measured by whether or not he actually finds hydrocarbons. That's always the bottom line."

TWA cancels six flights

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Trans World Airlines canceled six of its 53 flights out of Kansas City International Airport because of jet fuel shortages. The airline said five flights would be canceled today.

The cancellations, the airline's first since the widespread oil shortages caused by the Arab oil embargo of 1973, resulted from reductions in fuel from Texaco and Champlin, major TWA suppliers, said Larry Hilliard, director of corporate communications for the airline.

Texaco and other jet fuel suppliers reported earlier this month they were experiencing spot shortages. The tight supply has been caused by the cutoff of oil from Iran because of the political upheaval there and a travel boom that hit the nation's airlines last summer as deregulation led to reduced fares.

Two of the canceled TWA flights were to Chicago, two to St. Louis, one to Boston and one to Miami. They will be reinstated today, and TWA will cancel two flights to New York, one to St. Louis, one to Pittsburgh and one to Columbus, Ohio.

If fuel supplies increase, the full flight schedule could be restored by Tuesday, company spokesman Louis Fourie said in New York.

C. W. King appointed

Charles W. King has been appointed manager of exploration of Union Oil Co. of California's Central Region in Midland.

King previously was regional geophysicist for the company's Gulf Region in Houston.

In his new post, King will be re-sponsible for the company's onshore exploration activities throughout the continental United States, with the exception of the Pacific and Gulf coast areas.

King holds a B.S. degree in Geophysics from the Massachussetts Institute of Technology. He joined the company in 1963 and is a member of the Society of Exploration geophysicists and the Houston Geophysical Society.

Passengers on the canceled flights Sunday were told of other flights available to their destinations, Hilliard said.

Pilson began to acquire the skills to successfully search for oil and gas by attending Virginia State University and the University of Washington, where he received a master's degree

"Even though I had several job offers after I graduated from Virginia State," he says, " I had made up my mind to continue studying for an advanced degree. I figured it would be a valuable asset as my career pro-

Pilson worked for one other oil company before joining Aminoil and says he was surprised to discover how little he knew about the practical aspects of geophysics once he began his professional career. "I discovered that academic training only familiarizes you with the terms you need to know and serves as a stepping stone into the dustry. It takes anywhere from 5 to 10 years to really become a professional in this business.'

As a geophysicist, Pilson's responsibilities include interpreting geophysical data to map prospects, travelto field locations to monitor well tests and seismic work, and even dealing with various governmental agencies which require detailed reports on Aminoil's exploration and production

Pilson wants to improve his skills as an explorationist by working in as many different exploration areas as possible. This will enable him to eventually become familiar with a wide variety of potential hydrocarbon-bearing formations.

"When you are able to get experience in one area and then move on to something new," Pilson says, "a job remains challenging, and, for me, that's what keeps it interesting."

Amoco Production Co., operating from Midland, has completed its No. 3-H David Fasken as the second well in the Fasken (Wolfcamp, North) field of Andrews County, 18 miles north of Odessa.

The operator reported a 24-hour flowing potential of 182 barrels f 38.6-gravity oil and two barrels of water, through perforations from 8,-420 to 8,470 feet.

The gas-oil ratio is 615-1 and the pay was acidized with 6,000 gallons.

The hole is bottomed at 13,105 feet and seven-inch casing is cemented at totsal depth. The plugged back depth is 8,600 feet.

The location is 990 feet from north east lines of section 37, block 42, T-1-N, G&MMB&A survey.

REOPENER FINALS

Union Oil Co. of California, operating from Midland, has reopened Ellenburger production in the Andrews multipay field of Andrews County, one mile southwest of Andrews.

The well, No. 2-E J. E. Parker Unit, finaled for a 24-hour pumping potential of 163 barrels of 43-gravity oil and 579 barrels of water, through perforations from 12,442 to 12,468 feet. The zone was acidized with 700 gallons.

The well is bottomed at 12,494 feet and seven-inch casing is set on bottom. The plugged back depth is 12,493

LEA WELL Pogo Producing Co., operating from Midland, has announced potential test for its No. 2-L-99 State, new Morrow gas well in the Gramma Ridge pool of Lea County, N.M.

The operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 3 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 16,856 to 16,870

The well is 1,780 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 28-21s-34e and 17 miles southeast of Halfway.

CROCKETT PROJECT

Regal Petroleum Corp. of Wichita Falls No. 3 Todd Estate is to be drilled 7/8 mile north of the shallow oil reopener in the Howard Draw multipay field of Crockett County, eight miles northwest of Ozona.

The project, scheduled for a 1,350foot bottom, is 1,800 feet from south and 467 feet from west lines of section 39, block WX, GC&SF survey. Ground elevation is 2,317 feet.

R. L. Adkins of Sweetwater staked his No. 1 Wimberly as a south offset to the only well in the Bonner (Flippen oil) pool of Fisher County, five miles northwest of Eskota.

The project, slated for a 6,300-foot bottom, is 2,090 feet from north and 330 feet from east lines of section 3, block 21, T&P survey.

MCCULLOCH STRIKE

Haynie Ivy of San Angelo has completed his No. 1-A Neill Marshall as a Canyon gas discovery in McCulloch County, 12 miles north of Brady.

Operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 2,600,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 610 to 660 feet after 500 gallons of acid and 10,000 gallons of fracture solution. It has been suggested that the discovery be designated the opener of the Hall (Canyon gas) pool. The opener is one location southeast of Mississippian production and one location southeast of 773-779 gas sproduction in the field. The Canyon was topped at 610 feet on ground elevation of 1,600 feet.

Baltimore Canyon bids to be seen Wednesday

AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Several years after the oil presumed to be off the Atlantic Coast was ballyhooed as the answer to East Coast energy needs, you still can't fuel your car or heat your home with it.

Legal and technical problems, and just plain bad luck, are keeping the area from playing a key part in the nation's energy picture.

Now, though, the stage is set for another try. On Wednesday, the federal government will open bids from oil companies for drilling rights in more areas of the Baltimore Canyon, the bestknown of the Atlantic offshore areas. And a U.S. Court of Appeals last week lifted an injunction against the sale of sites in the Georges Bank area off Cape Cod. The East Coast offshore oil fields were never intended to help relieve the nation's reliance on oil imports before the next decade. But now even the most optimistic analysts don't expect to see energy from the Atlantic

In fact, the amount of natural gas produced from the two successful Atlantic offshore wells in a day would be less than enough to heat 100 averagesized homes for a year.

"I THINK IT'S going to be a long, slow process to find the oil and gas out there," one industry source said.

The numbers involved are what caused the initial optimism. The Atlantic Coast area is believed to hold 13.5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas - about eight months worth of U.S. supply - and a lesser amount of crude oil.

Five years ago, with foreign oil prices rising, that looked great, especially to the East Coast, which uses four times as much imported oil as other parts of the nation. But attempts to rush into production brought environmental protests that are still being sorted out. As a result, only two areas have been explored, and only partially at that.

Wells off Georgia and the Carolinas in the region known as the Southeast Georgia Embayment produced nothoil firms have just given up on that area.

Drilling in the Baltimore Canyon has been just about as unsuccessful. Eleven wells have been completed in the year since exploration began, and nine have come up dry. The other two produced natural gas, but not nearly enough for commercial production.

BUT WHILE Wednesday's bidding on additional Baltimore Canyon tracts will probably not garner the $1.1 billion in bids the first auction of sites brought, it is seen as a key to the area's future.

"I think the next stepping stone to see what the outlook is is to see what

Gulf workers back on job

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) -Union workers at the Gulf Oil Co. refinery here were called back to work today for the first time since

Striking machinists ratified an agreement with the refinery in a Sunday afternoon vote, bringing to an end a 48-day strike that has kept about 2,900 union workers off their

Gulf had to settle with six different labor groups, and the machinists, with about 160 employees, were the last ones to approve an agreement. A tentative settlement was reached Saturday night, and a vote was held Sunday afternoon.

Union officials said all groups generally got raises of about 8 percent the first year of a two-year contract and a 5 percent hike guaranteed on the second year with the option to reopen wage talks next year:

Notices were being sent out to the refinery's workers Sunday night, telling workers to report beginning with today's 6 a.m. shift. Supervisory personnel at Gulf have been operating the refinery since office workers, members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union, set up picket lines Jan. 8. All other unions honored those picket lines.

Office workers, comprising about 150 of Gulf's employees, settled a week ago, but as they signed their two-year contract, the International Association of Machinists called a strike, and the work stoppage contin-

The biggest union, comprising general plant workers, never set up picket lines, but reached agreement Thursday. The chairman of that group, A.T. Lackey, said he was satisfied with the results of the settlements. "Overall we are satisfied, but we were looking for a whole lot more," he said, "Most workers got a pay raise of 73 cents an hour, which is about 8 percent. We are guaranteed 5 percent in the second year but we have a wage reopener clause." He said some smaller groups got 80 cents an hour

Gulf officials were not available for the industry does in this next bidding sale," said Henry A. Hill, regional exploration manager for Continental Oil Co., which has drilled two "dry holes" in the Baltimore Canyon.

Exploration experts say a drilling success rate of one in five is good, and that is about what has happened in the Baltimore Canyon. But the hits have not been where most of the gas and oil is supposed to be.

Most of the nine unsuccessful wells drilled in the canyon have been drilled on a gigantic geological structure called "Stonedome." Other wells were drilled on a smaller structure a few miles south. Shaped like upsidedown teacups, these structures were believed to be the best hopes for gas and oil in the area.

But that did not prove out. "You drill your best shots first," said a drilling expert for one company that's had its share of Baltimore Canyon failures. "It's disappointing that the biggies have not been productive so

INSTEAD, THE TWO discoveries of natural gas have come on the fringes of the Baltimore Canyon area, near the edge of the continental shelf about 100 miles offshore. There, Texaco found a small amount of gas and is now looking to see if there's enough to begin production, and a group of firms drilling under government contract struck gas accidentally - in a well supposed to be only a geological

The well hit a tiny amount of gas, and the discovery made a site next to it a hot item in Wednesday's sale.

Once Wednesday's sale is over, government officials will begin planning the next auction of East Coast drilling rights - this time for Georges Bank. Last week's court approval of drilling there - with conditions to safeguard the bank's rich fishing grounds paves the way for an auction, probably in September, government

Georges Bank has been a hot issue among environmentalists, the government and the oil companies because of the fishing there.

As a result, the court order requires the companies to, among other things, set up a fund to compensate fishermen for any loss in business due to an oil spill. Massachusetts is seeking even more stringent fisheries protection, and that worries the oil com-

This tinkering with the rules, though, is nothing new to oil companies. They experienced the same two decades ago when they started out in the Gulf of Mexico, which today is the United States' key offshore oil-producing area.

In fact, executives say, that experience is taking some of the mystery out of operations on the East Coast. "I think it's getting to be more normal," said Hill. "It's getting to be similar to the Gulf Coast in its early stages of drilling and development.

But that doesn't make it any easier. "My optimism has faded considerably from what it was before the first lease sale," said Hill. "I think it's going to be a long pull.'

On the bill which would allow a retired policeman to carry a handgun for five years after his retirement, as a safety precaution, Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland voted yes. The measure "failed to suspend" 22-8.

On a 23-4 vote, the Senate also refused to consider a bill which would have allowed an individual landowner to re-plat his property from residential to commercial status. Currently, state law requires 100 per cent agreement among landowners in the plat before such a switch could be made.

On that isssue, Snelson voted yes.

Meanwhile, the House handled less controversial legislation, which was approved by overwhelming votes, on such issues as burdensome requirements of the state's egg inspec-tion law; repeal of bonding requirements for school bus drivers and authorization for the State Department of Health to provide additional help to persons with cyclic fibrosis.

STANTON — A trip back for seconds apparently was the undoing Saturday of three Midlanders who were arrested in connection with the burglary of a Stanton drug store.

Charged with burglary are Billie Lynn Bailey, 24; Mitchell Melvin Bailey, 18, and Dennis Lee McElroy, 19, all of the Haystack Apartments.
Stanton Police Chief Jerry Register said three persons were seen with a car backed up to the pharmacy and arrested as they were leaving about 8:40 p.m. Saturday.

Police said they recovered 24,496 pills, about $400 worth of general merchandise and a safe which held $1,000 in cash and narcotics valued at about $2,800, Register said. Police said the retail value of the stolen items was approximately $11,- 000, but their street resale value would have been between $20,000 and Register said the three told authorities they had been in the store earlier and came back to get the safe.

McElroy and Mitchel Melvin Bailey were in the Martin County Jail today in lieu of $15,000 bond each. Ms. Bailey was free on $15,000 bond.

Foreigners seeking to invest millions in U.S. real estate

By PATRICK TYLER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - One day last November, one of Richard Shadyac's wealthy Arab clients came to Washington with $25 million to spend on a downtown office building.

After an intense search by Shadyac, a real estate lawyer here, the Arab left town, empty-handed. Shadyac says he has a dozen other Arab clients who would buy in Washington tomorrow if they could find the right deal.

That is the story of downtown Washington real estate: it has become one of the most sought after investments in the world.

Eight large buildings have been sold to foreigners in the last four years.

Foreign investors from the Arab world and Western Europe are dangling millions of dollars before the owners of downtown office buildings. But the owners, delighted by high returns and the best investment security in the country, are, for the most part, not selling.

EVEN WHEN a transaction occurs, it is nearly impossible to document the extent of foreign ownership in urban real estate. Sales are handled by intermediaries sometimes in the name of Caribbean-registered corporations that blur nationalities.

A survey of more than a dozen brokers and lawyers indicates that whatever their national origin, foreign investors are retreating before a perceived threat of Eurocommunism and seeking refuge for their capital.

In addition, they are reshuffling their investment portfolios, especially those of large pension funds, whch have just recently recognized the advantages of American real estate investments.

Moreover, they are taking avan-tage of the depressed position of the dollar on international money markets by investing in choice American properties.

"THE COMPETITION is stiff," said Neil Krucoff, a real estate law-yer who recently handled a $12.5 million sale to a group of Europens. "I would venture to say that there are as many European investors interested in downtown as there are buildings downtown," Krucoff added. But with some noteworthy exceptions, property owners are fending off the assault, which is coming not only from abroad, but also from out-oftown American investors, who have recognized the strength and security of the Washington market.

"There's absolutely nothing for sale," said Shaydac, the real estate lawyer who says he represents more than 20 "individuals from the Arab

"I must be looking for good invest-ments for 10 to 12 (Arabs)," said Shadyac. "I'm talking solid investors who would buy tomorrow if the right property were on the market. You just can't buy a building in D.C. if you wanted to." But buildings have been sold and foreign investors have established a significant beachhead in downtown Washington.

Perhaps the most visible foreign purchase here in recent years was that by Kuwaiti Investment Company in 1975. The Kuwaitis paid $22 million for the 12-story, governmentleased Columbia Plaza near the State

THE MAN WHO handled the Kuwaiti sale, Warren K. Montouri, vice president of Shannon & Luchs Co., said, "We are trying to acquire properties for other foreign investors," but "it's become a problem of the availability of property here there just aren't many reasons for

One of the reasons downtown building owners don't want to sell is that occupancy rates in Washington - and therefore investment security - are among the highest in the country.

"Office building space tends to be a refuge for capital looking for a solid market," said Dustin Cole, marketing manager for the National Building Owners and Managers Association. "The most interesting thing about Washington is that it's probably the most stable market in the country."

Cole said the most current figures from a voluntary survey of the association's membership show 98 per cent occupancy rates in Washington, compared with 94 percent in Houston, 92 per cent in Chicago and 95 per cent occupancies in San Francisco.

In some cases it is more than security. When the lawyer who sold the Vermont Building here first encountered his French-speaking buyers, "These people were impressed by having two buildings close to the White House. That had never impressed me.'

But there are other reasons why downtown property owners are holding on to what they have, according to brokers.

WITH HIGH occupancy rates, returns on investment for premium buildings can be as high as 20 percent, though the average yields are among

And to sell means paying capital gains taxes. The tax on a $5 million sale, for instance, can be as high as $1

"Say you sell," said William Savage, president of Savage-Fogarty, a foreign-owned investment firm here. 'You got a tax to pay, then what do you do? There's not another building around. What are you going to do that's better than the building you got?" Exact determination of the level of foreign investment in downtown Washington - or any other downtown is currently unachievable. Congress passed legislation in 1978 requiring foreign owners of farmland to register with the Department of Agriculture, but there is no similar requirement for urban real estate.

"These people are not looking to buy up the world," said Shadyac, the lawyer representing several Arab interests. "They're looking for solid investments with a halfway decent return at this point," he added.

Motivation aside, tracing the ownership of foreign-owned properties can be arduous.

FOR EXAMPLE, the purchase of the Highland Towers Hotel on Connecticut Avenue NW was officially made by Dainar N.V., a corporation registered in the Netherland Antilles in the Caribbean.

Man 'satisfactory' following mishap

ODESSA - An 18-year-old Midland man was listed in satisfactory condition today in Medical Center Hospital here following a two-vehicle ac-cident Saturday, said a hospital spokesman and authorities.

Larry David Riggan of 3005 Meadowbrook Drive was hospitalized for treatment of multiple contusions. Also injured in the accident were two Odessans, Mike James Atkins, 17, and Alex Twig Fraley, 21.

The trio was injured about 4 p.m. Saturday when vehicles driven by Atkins and Riggan collided on East 42nd Street near its intersection with Grandview.

Atkins and Fraley were treated and released from the hospital, said a hospital spokesman.

NEW YORK (AP) Athletes might improve their performance if they got "high" on their own blood rather than turning to vitamins, according to a recent report.

Studies on blood boosting - the removal and subsequent reinfusion of the athlete's blood - can improve exercise time and performance by as much as 40 percent, according to the report in The. Physician and Sportsmedicine maga-

Under the boosting program, a physician removes up to a quart of blood from the athlete. The blood is then frozen in a process that prevents red blood cells from dying.

More snow falls on Midwest; View of eclipse threatened

By The Associated Press

A nasty winter dumped more crippling snow on the reeling Midwest today and pushed streams and rivers to flood stage from North Carolina through New England.

Snow, ice and floods closed schools, stranded motorists and knocked out power as the storm pushed eastward.

And in the Northeast, a mattress of clouds thousands of feet thick threatened to block out North America's last view of a total eclipse of the sun until the year 2017.

Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson declared 30 counties in the southern part of the state snow emergency areas and mobilized National Guard units, mainly to aid an estimated 2,200 motorists stranded on highways. Armories in Salem and Cairo were converted to emergency shelters.

At least six deaths were blamed on the storms. Evacuations were under way in Maryland and Virginia, and rescue crews were on alert all along the Atlantic Coast.

Snow and ice forced schools to close in many areas from Cleveland to Boston and Massachusetts authorities set up evacuation centers to prepare for flooding in coastal communities where 14.6-foot tides were expected. National Guard units were standing by in Atlantic City, N.J., and Long Branch, N.J., where abnormally high tides also were expected National Guardsmen earlier in the morning evacuated 75 residents from a mobile home park in Vineland, N.J., flooded under 3½ feet of water. In New York State, hundreds of schools were closed as ice-heavy limbs crashed onto power lines. In an area south of Buffalo and Rochester, snow was

Odessa police probing burglary; Cash missing

ODESSA — Odessa police Sunday were investigat-ing a weekend residential burglary here in which $8,500 in cash reportedly was taken. Mrs. Dale Lane told police someone broke into her home between 7 p.m. Saturday and 2: 10 a.m. Sunday and took the cash. Entry was gained by someone who broke the latch on a kitchen window, reports indicated. The burglars then went to the bathroom, and pried the latch from a metal box containing about ten bags of "company money," said officers. Burglars also took Mrs. Lane's purse, which she said, contained about $500. She told officers she was not at home during the break-in. She said when she arrived home the front door of the residence was open. As of early today, officers said they had not recovered the money or apprehended a suspect.

Residential burglary reported

A.J. Adkins of the 1900 block of North Benton Sunday night told Midland police that a burglary of his residence sometime between 3:45 and 10 p.m. Sunday resulted in the loss of $945 in property. Adkins told authorities a television set, silver dish, gold rings and assorted change were taken. He reported the apparent theft at 10:30 p.m. Sun-

Police said entry was gained by someone who pried open a door on the north side of the home.

Authorities evacuated the residents of tiny Bremo Bluff in central Virginia as the James, Shenandoah, Roanoke and Dan rivers rose.

Evacuations continued up the coast. Some residents of Greensboro, Md., were asked to leave their homes when the Choptank River overran its banks, while in Federalsburg Police Chief Joseph Koski imposed a 10-hour curfew Sunday night.

"I'm concerned about people traveling around and looking," Koski said. "If the water did come up fast, I want to be able to get police into the area to move stuff without interference."

The Allegheny River flooded the business district of Oil City in northwestern Pennsylvania, leaving stores and restaurants under 4 feet of water.

The National Weather Service said the Monongahela and the upper Ohio rivers from Pittsburgh to Wheeling, W.Va., would continue to rise today with more rain.

In New England, where streams and rivers were already swollen by melting snow, authorities mobilized for possible evacuation. Flood warnings were hoisted for Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. Tides of 2 to 3 feet above normal were expected.

The weekend snowstorm battered parts of Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Arkansas. Hardest hit was southeastern Missouri, especially Cape Girardeau, where up to 2 feet of snow, swirled by 50 mph winds, stranded hundreds of motorists and knocked out electric power in what local residents called the worst storm in more than 60 years. Gov. Joseph Teasdale called out 250 National Guardsmen to patrol the area. "It's unbelieveable. We've never seen anything like it in this part of the state, ever," said Jim Gates, a Jackson, Mo., radio reporter. 'We've had more (snow) in the last 24 hours than we get in a year," said James Garstang, an air traffic control specialist at the Cape Girardeau airport.

A 51-year-old Glencoe, Mo., man died Saturday night when his car skidded out of control on a snow-slicked road, the Missouri Highway Patrol said. of family silver. Taken Wednesday, Feb. 14 in Midland.

In Arkansas, 16 inches of snow buried Mena, in the west-central section of the state and police reported several hundred persons stranded on U.S. 71 where snow drifts topped 3 feet. The storm spread across the Mississippi River

Indianapolis braced for 8 inches of snow and its airport closed twice Sunday as only a handful of flights were able to take off.

A Delta Air Lines DC-9 plane skidded off an icy runway but its two passengers and crew of five were not injured.

Two persons died in traffic accidents on Indiana highways. At one point during the storm, the state highway department pulled its salting trucks off the road after several were involved in accidents.

Rain preceded the snow in most eastern and southern states with the heaviest rainfall centered in North Carolina. Five inches of rain dampened the Charlotte area in two days and minor flooding was

New Jersey panel to decide future of state's legal casino

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Casino Control Commission today decides the future of the East Coast's only legal gambling casino when it meets here to vote on a permanent license for the Boardwalk casino of Resorts International.

Four of the five commissioners must vote in favor of a license before it can be issued

The vote follows seven weeks of hearings into the Florida-based conomerate, which has invested more than $50 million into the former Chalfonte-Haddon Hall hotel here and also operates two casinos in the Baha-

"The decision will be a critical one for this town," said William Downey, executive director of the new Atlantic City Casino Hotel Association. "Many potential casino hotel investors are watching the actions of the commissioners this first time around.

The casino's nine-month temporary permit, issued when it opened last May 26, expires at midnight Monday and cannot be renewed without an act of the legislature, which is unlikely.

A vote of the commission, either for or against Resorts International, will mean that the casino would not have to close down temporarily. If the license is rejected, a state-approved conservator would take over the ca-sino hotel and run it during certain court appeals.

Nevada's gambling giants plan to open their own casino hotels here. Caesars Palace and Bally Manufacturing Corp., the slot machine maker, hope to open this summer with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Hilton, Harrah's, Golden Nugget, Penthouse, Playboy and others to follow.

The 30 days of commission hearings into Resorts International centered around 17 legal objections filed by the state Division of Gaming Enforcement following a year-long, $1.5 mil-lion investigation into the firm.

The state charged that the company had ties to organized crime figures in Florida and the Bahamas and dealt with investors with criminal records during the development of its Para-dise Island casino hotel complex near
