

'I have done nothing illegal,' says appointee

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN (AP) — Judicial appointee William "Monk" Edwards admits he gave money to conservative political candidates — including a sealed envelope containing what he assumed was cash to former Gov. Preston Smith — but Edwards says he did nothing wrong.

In a 10-page statement, the former Gulf Oil lawyer said: "I have done nothing illegal. I have done nothing wrong."

Nevertheless, the Senate Nominations Subcommittee voted 5-0 Tuesday to wait a week to act on Edwards' appointment to Sen. Gene Jones can review material on Edwards.

Contacted in Lubbock, Smith denied any contribution from Gulf.

The ex-governor said the story first came up four or five years ago, and was "dispensed with then."

"There never was a contribution made to me by Gulf Oil Co. when I ran for governor," Smith said. "Mr. Edwards never made one penny's contribution to me. I have no recollection of him ever delivering anything to me. I know him, he's a good guy, but he never delivered anything or gave me an envelope. It's just nothing but a pure black lie."

In an affidavit by Edwards, on file in Secretary of State George Strake's office, Edwards said he believes his donation to Smith was for a campaign for lieutenant governor.

Jones, D-Houston, was incensed that one of Strake's employees had refused to allow Jones to inspect the affidavit.

Strake apologized and said he had been at lunch and the employee had merely made a mistake.

Prior to Strake's appearance before the subcommittee, Jones told reporters it appeared Strake was trying to protect "his boss's appointment."

Gov. Bill Clements named Edwards to succeed Lewis Dickson, who retired as district judge in Houston.

Clements referred to Edwards last week as a "super appointment" and added, "My files reflect nothing but praise."

Edwards, former assistant general counsel for Gulf, took early retirement in 1976 and now practices law in Houston.

Senators interrogated Edwards about his role in distributing campaigned funds to Texas political candidates.

An internal investigation by Gulf showed the company paid $50,000 to $60,000 a year to Harris County legislative candidates from 1959 to 1973. The money purportedly was part of a $5.5 million slush fund maintained by Gulf in a Bahamian bank account.

Edwards acknowledged he had contributed $100 each to legislative campaigns in Houston, Pasadena, Austin and Midland-Odessa but said the donations were from his personal funds — not an illegal corporate contribution.

He said he was active in establishing Gulf's "Good Government Fund" in 1970, as well as a prior program by which Gulf executives donated up to $1,500 a year in personal funds for political races.

Gulf's chief Washington lobbyist, Claude Wild Jr., supplemented this fund with approximately $4,000 over an eight-year period, Edwards said.

Edwards said, however, he "was just as startled as anyone else of the disclosure by my company of an illegal, offshore slush fund used to finance political activities."

Voters to express views on Plan O in referendum

Midland school board members tossed their hot potato — Plan O — into the voters' laps Tuesday afternoon.

Before a capacity crowd of some 300 in the Sam Houston Elementary School cafeteria, the Midland school board voted not to vote on the controversial plan to consolidate Midland's two high schools.

Instead, they will wait until voters express a preference in the matter in a non-binding referendum on the April 7 school board ballot.

The 43 vote for the referendum came after trustees failed to pass a motion to forget Plan O altogether and concentrate on other alternatives for dealing with the declining high school enrollment.

The referendum idea, first suggested by Trustee Marshall McCrea Jr., originally was rejected by a 4-3 vote. But, when Trustee Ed Runyan's motion to drop Plan O as an option failed, Runyan called for another vote on the referendum and his vote change swung the result to positive.

ONCE THE referendum issue was decided, trustees took little time deciding they would postpone the promised vote on the matter until after the election.

They originally had said they would vote on the matter at their next meeting, set for 10 a.m. March 19.

In proposing the referendum, after a 90-minute staff presentation of a 31-page report on Plan O and its implications, McCrea noted the vote "would not be binding, but certainly would be influential."

His suggestion was greeted with applause from the standing room only crowd.

Initial objection to the idea came from lame duck Trustee David Grimes.

"I think the public has already spoken," Grimes said to more audience approval. "They've spoken to me, and I do not feel giving our responsibility back to the public for whatever reason adds up

"WE DO LISTEN to the public and to our coaches and to our staff and to our teachers," the outgoing board member said, but added the referendum would only delay the decision and add expense to the election without binding the board to the decision made by the voters.

Trustee Ed Runyan echoed Grimes' feeling that the public vote was unnecessary and suggested the board vote immediately to drop Plan O as a possibility.

Board member Joe Dominey, while agreeing that the referendum probably was not needed, felt the proposal

Cleanup of Whalen Lake under way in response to RRC's mandate

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

ANDREWS — Whalen Lake, the 330-acre salt playa lake that caused environmentalists to be pitted against the West Texas oil industry, is being purged of sludge and pollutants in hopes of satisfying a Texas Railroad Commission mandate.

"This was all cleaned. This beach area here has been all cleaned up," Arnold Darrow, president of the Dallas-based Whalen Corp., said Tuesday.

Darrow flew to Andrews Tuesday morning to tour the playa lake area, which the Railroad Commission ordered closed and cleaned up last September.

Department of Interior personnel and environmentalists had claimed the lake was a hazard to migratory waterfowl stopping over at the lake and was threatening to pollute the immediate region's ground water.

WHALEN CORP. objected strenuously and was supported to an extent by the Railroad Commission staff, but the company lost out to environmentalists' claim when the commissioners made their ruling.

Whalen Lake, a natural brine reservoir, has been used for more than 20 years as a pit for dumping brine, termed a natural flow-out in the production of crude oil.

The Railroad Commission will hold a hearing March 15 to reconsider re-opening Whalen Lake for the discharge of brine.

At a peak dumping rate, Whalen was absorbing up to 400,000 barrels of brine per month.

The use of such salt lakes is an alternative to using deep-well injection as means of disposing of brine, which in cases may be up to 20 or more times more voluminous than the

Carter still cautious about peace gamble

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials are being consistently cautious about President Carter's peace gamble in the Middle East despite more optimistic assessments in Israel and Egypt.

American sources, even when talking privately, emphasize the pitfalls that could again derail the signing of an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty — Carter's unspoken goal as he sets out tonight for Cairo on the first leg of a journey that will last at least a week.

A White House official who asked not to be identified cautioned late Tuesday that at best it will be impossible to conclude all formal action on a treaty during Carter's trip.

The closest thing to public optimism from a U.S. leader came Tuesday when House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said, "I truly believe that he (Carter) not only hopes for success but he feels success is there."

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, who was leaving New York today to prepare for Carter's Saturday night arrival in Jerusalem, was asked to compare his feelings now with those after last fall's Camp David summit meeting. He told reporters:

"There was euphoria (last fall), not only in this country, but in Jerusalem and Cairo and throughout the world. Now we must be very careful. I am hopeful."

Egyptian officials, led by Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil, were equally positive about the treaty outlook.

In Cairo, President Anwar Sadat met Tuesday with U.S. National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski to hear the outline of Carter's proposals. Sadat's reaction was not immediately known, but Egyptian officials said Carter's trip may mean "the final sprint" to a peace treaty.

Because of Carter's absence from Washington, Vice President Walter F. Mondale is canceling a six-day Latin American trip next week. He was to have attended presidential inaugurations in Brazil and Venezuela.

Carter will devote most of his time to business during the trip, but does plan to see Egypt's pyramids.

In Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram today published a schedule for Carter's visit to Egypt. The report said he would take a 100-mile train trip from Cairo to Alexandria on Friday and address the Egyptian Parliament on Saturday.

A White House official had said Carter was seriously considering the train trip in anticipation of drawing a large crowd to demonstrate Egyptian support for a peace treaty.

Plans have already been announced for him to address the Israeli parliament, the Knesset.

U.S. officials maintained a tight secrecy lid on the treaty suggestions broached by Carter to Begin last Sunday — proposals that broke a stalemate threatening collapse of peace efforts.

However, a White House official who asked not to be identified confirmed Tuesday that Carter discussed "in passing" the possibility of a U.S.-Israeli mutual defense treaty with Begin.

The official first said it was "untrue" that Carter had offered Israel such a defense pact, but later acknowledged that such an arrangement was discussed. The change came when the official was confronted with the release of congressional testimony in which Begin said Monday that Carter offered him a defense arrangement with the United States.

Begin reiterated Israeli policy against stationing U.S. troops in Israel and did not specify what kind of arrangement was discussed.

In Jerusalem, Israeli sources said their government has agreed to three compromises advanced by Carter.

Shell Oil will cut force in Midland by about half

By LINDA HILL
Staff Writer

Shell Oil Co. will cut its Midland work force of approximately 100 employees by about half sometime during 1979, an official in the company's Houston office said today.

The Houston official, who asked to be identified only as a company spokesman, said the move is part of a planned reorganization of its production department, with personnel being transferred to Houston.

Shell still is in the "final planning stages" of the reorganization effort, said the spokesman, who added he is unable to say when the transfers will take place.

"I'll have a lot more definitive answers for you in a couple of weeks," he said.

Company officials said an announcement had been planned for about two weeks from now, but an Associated Press report sent out on news wires earlier today sparked a confirmation of the company's plans.

W.T. Weller, Midland divisions operation manager for Shell, said many of the approximately 100 employees in the Midland office are "newly hired young technical staff," many without families here.

He added that he expects the impact on the school system and the real estate market in Midland to be minimal.

The transfers will involve technical staff, said Weller, with "field support" personnel staying in Midland.

Despite the relocations, the Permian Basin will be of increasing importance to the company, Weller said, adding that activity here this year is expected to be at least twice as high as last.

Naval buildup in Arabian Sea could cut U.S. power elsewhere

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's apparent intention to show the flag indefinitely near the Arabian Peninsula could thin U.S. naval power in other critical areas and further stretch the smallest U.S. fleet since before World War II.

The 80,000-ton aircraft carrier Constellation is under orders to sail from the U.S. naval base at Subic Bay in the Philippines to the Arabian Sea area with several escorting warships and an oiler-supply vessel.

Administration officials say the move is intended to underscore U.S. concern about the security of Saudi Arabia and other oil-producing states in that region, especially after Soviet-supported South Yemen's occupation of North Yemen territory and the instability following the Iranian upheaval.

The three smaller warships pausing at Djibouti were detached from the 6th Fleet, at least temporarily reducing that force, which normally has a total of about 45 vessels.

Policy makers would face the decision of whether to scale down the two key fleets to support a continued naval presence in the Indian Ocean and Arabian Sea, or to deploy replacements from the east and west coasts of the United States.

The Navy now has 453 ships, its fewest since the beginning of World War II, and only about half as many as at the peak of the Vietnam War in 1968.

Generally, the Navy tries to rotate ships so that for every one deployed overseas, about two are at home ports for training, repair and crew rest.

However, above average deployments from fleets based in the United States may cut into that pattern and lead to additional sea duty for sailors.

Extended deployments also may be harder on some older ships and add to overhaul and maintenance costs. The Navy is just now recovering from a long backlog of overdue ship overhauls.

Two die, 18 survive avalanche

PARADISE, Wash. (AP) — After living with tragedy for two days, 18 weary college students returned from the slopes of Mount Rainier, where two of their companions died in an avalanche.

The climbers, all students at The Evergreen State College in Olympia, sang and chanted as they hiked Tuesday through swirling snow, fog and winds gusting to 50 mph.

Two other students stayed behind on the mountain and were planning to lead three National Park Rangers to the death site today. The rangers will try to recover the bodies of veteran mountaineer Willi Unsoeld, 52, an Evergreen professor, and Janie Diepenbrock, 21, a student from Sacramento, Calif., who were killed Sunday.

Unsoeld was one of the first five Americans to reach the summit of Mount Everest in 1963.

The students arrived at the Paradise visitors center Tuesday afternoon, nine days after Unsoeld led them up the 14,410-foot peak.

Peter Miller, 26, of Millersville, Pa., was also buried by the avalanche, but his companions managed to pull him out. He suffered a few bruised or broken ribs and a wrenched back.

When the avalanche hit, Miller said, he couldn't see Unsoeld, but saw Miss Diepenbrock appear to fall. He said he dropped to the ground and was immediately buried by snow but managed to form an air pocket with his hands. The others pulled him free about 15 minutes later.

Bad weather prevented a rescue party from reaching the students until Tuesday.

Ian Volles, 21, who assumed leadership of the group after the avalanche, said he hoped the program Unsoeld inspired would continue because "Willi would have wanted us to continue to climb."

Meanwhile, three other U.S. warships, two frigates and a destroyer, were refueling at Djibouti, on the Gulf of Eden, before taking up station, replacing three other warships heading back to the Pacific.

Officials said it is uncertain how long the Constellation and its escorts will remain in those waters, or whether the three other warships will conduct an extended cruise.

If President Carter decides to keep such a continuing naval presence in that critical region, it could reduce the striking power of the U.S. 7th Fleet in the western Pacific and possibly the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

The departure of the Constellation will leave only one U.S. aircraft carrier in the western Pacific. The 7th Fleet is down to 50 ships, compared to about 125, including three carriers, before the Vietnam War.

Jane Byrne receives congratulatory telegram

CHICAGO (AP) — One week after losing to Jane Byrne in the Democratic primary, Mayor Michael A. Bilandic finally has sent the victor a congratulatory telegram.

The message, received Tuesday at Mrs. Byrne's home, said: "Congratulations on your nomination. Best wishes to your family, Michael A. Bilandic, Mayor."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Byrne met Tuesday with 20 of the Democratic Party's 50 ward committeemen and appeared to have won their support. It was her first face-to-face meeting with party officials since winning the nomination.

"It was a very cordial and productive conversation," George W. Dunne, chairman of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee, said after the breakfast meeting. "I can predict Jane Byrne will be the unanimous choice of the Democratic Party."

NATO plans in Communist hands

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany claims a defector from the NATO secretariat staff in Brussels brought the Communists war plans of the North Atlantic Alliance.

A NATO spokesman at the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's headquarters in the Belgian capital confirmed that Ursel Lorenzen, a West German employed by NATO for 11 years, defected on Monday. He refused to say how much access she had to the alliance's secrets but reported that she worked in the Office of Council Operations and Communication, which he said helps prepare for military exercises.

Officials will meet this week to assess what damage she could do," the spokesman said.

ADN said Miss Lorenzen decided to defect because of stepped up NATO "war preparations," including plans for an "atomic attack against the socialist camp" during the Wintex Cimet exercise now being held by NATO.

But the NATO spokesman said the exercise is "a paper exercise, it involves no troops at all," and will conclude in about two weeks.

ADN said another factor in the woman's decision to defect was her learning of the "facist past" of NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns, who last month was listed as a member of the Dutch wing of Hitler's National Socialist movement from 1933-36.

Luns, NATO's top civilian official, was foreign minister of The Netherlands for 19 years after World War II.

He acknowledged he is listed in Nazi membership archives at the Dutch government's War Documentation Center in Amsterdam. But he claimed the listing was a mistake and that he was never an active member of the Dutch party.

There was no indication the defection was related to the recent roundup of at least 12 East German spies in West Germany.

Midlander named assistant auditor

ODESSA — A Midlander has been named assistant Ector County auditor, replacing Tommy Joe Sanders, who became auditor Nov. 8.

Larry Elliott, 36, began his duties in the $18,000-a-year post this week.

Sanders had been first assistant auditor under former Auditor Bill Hicks, who resigned after his election to the Commissioners Court. Since Nov. 8, Sanders has been filling both positions.

Elliott is a 1960 graduate of Midland High School. He received a bachelor's degree in business administration from North Texas State University in 1966.

Hearing for Jimmy Chagra probing dope traffic world

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Prosecutors probed the murky world of narcotics traffic Tuesday at a bond hearing for Jimmy Chagra, a high-rolling gambler whom assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr called "a major figure in smuggling marijuana and cocaine into the United States."

The complicated hearing was regarded by observers as a preview of Chagra's trial next month in Midland.

Kerr, who escaped an assassination attempt in San Antonio last year when his car was riddled with bullets, was the lead prosecutor in what defense attorneys called a "mini-trial" of their client.

Chagra, brother of slain defense lawyer Lee Chagra, was indicted by a Midland grand jury last month on narcotics charges. He is held on a $1 million bond that defense attorney Oscar Goodman of Las Vegas wants lowered. Kerr asked U.S. Magistrate Harry Hudspeth to raise the figure to $1½ million.

Hudspeth said he will make his recommendation on the bond "as soon as possible."

Kerr's main avenue of attack was a sworn statement from a Drug Enforcement Administration informant, Henry Wallace. DEA agent John Poole testified about Wallace's statement after Kerr raised the specter of organized crime.

The statement outlined a complicated series of dope deals, allegedly involving Chagra, dating back to 1977.

Among the incidents the Wallace statement said involved Chagra were:

—A 1977 trip that brought 1,800 pounds of marijuana from Chihuahua, Mexico, into New Mexico.

—20,000 pounds of marijuana allegedly bought in Colombia for import, a deal aborted when the plane carrying the pot crashed.

—A deal for six kilos of cocaine from Colombia.

—Two ships seized off the Florida Coast with 57,000 pounds of marijuana aboard each, dope the Wallace statement said belonged to Chagra.

—Three kilos of cocaine and $40,000 in cash allegedly given Wallace by Chagra to be taken from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to El Paso.

Wallace said in his statement he had received money from Chagra "on several occasions" in "drug-related situations."

Defense attorneys fought back, claiming the government was guilty of misconduct in not allowing them to interview a potential witness (Wallace) in Chagra's trial scheduled next month in Midland.

The defense also said the 4½ years Poole said he worked on the Chagra matter was a further example of government harassment of the Chagra family.

Kerr brought organized crime into the picture while questioning Charles Walsh, an FBI agent from Massachusetts who is assigned to the organized crime squad for the Northeastern United States.

Walsh said he served a man named Michael Caraura with a subpoena to appear before a grand jury investigating racketeering in El Paso. Walsh said he had information linking Caraura to Raymond Patriarca, named by a U.S. Senate subcommittee as the Mafia "Godfather" in New England.

Patriarca's name was used despite strong objections from Goodman.

U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd withdrew his subpoena of Caraura, who told the grand jury he was in El Paso once to do voice stress analyses at Lee Chagra's request.

Jimmy Chagra, who lived for a time at Caesar's Palace hotel in Las Vegas and who owns a home in the gambling mecca, was detained by authorities in Colombia during the 1977 incident described in Wallace's statement.

Another version of the Colombian affair was provided by another witness, Chris Karamanos of Las Vegas. He is a regent of the University of Nevada at Las Vegas and a principal in Jet Avia Ltd., an airplane-leasing firm he said has gone out of business.

He said Jet Avia often provided aircraft for Lee and Jimmy Chagra through Caesar's Palace. He said in 1977, Jimmy Chagra called to tell him former Jet Avia pilot Jerry Wilson was hurt in a vehicle accident in Colombia, and that he (Jimmy) wanted an ambulance plane to go to his aid.

As it turned out, a pilot named Bruce Allen had been hurt in a plane crash in Colombia, according to Karamanos. Wilson apparently was not hurt. Karamanos said Wilson later apologized for the mistake and said Jet Avia would be paid for the "hassle." Karamanos said Jimmy Chagra still owes Jet Avia $15,000 for the Colombia adventure.

None of those who testified directly said they ever saw Chagra deal with narcotics, but Kerr repeatedly pointed out that uncorroborated testimony from a conspirator — in this case, Wallace — is sufficient for conviction.

The final government witness at the day-long hearing was another DEA agent, Gary Carter of Las Vegas.

Carter said he arrested Chagra last week and had information about him from informants. Included in that information, Carter said, was a tidbit that said Chagra at one time had more than $900,000 in cash stashed in a footlocker in his room at Caesar's Palace.

Goodman said the fact his client's trial will take place next month is a major reason bond should be reduced and his client allowed to aid his own lawyers in preparing their case.

Early hearings planned on hospital cost control bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional backers of President Carter's proposal for standby cost controls on the hospital industry are planning early hearings on the bill, being touted as a major anti-inflation measure.

Carter unveiled details of his program at the White House Tuesday, declaring he will "lead the fight on behalf of the American people" against renewed opposition from hospital groups.

A Senate subcommittee, chaired by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., will hold the first hearing Friday at Children's Hospital in Washington, an unusual location virtually certain to guarantee broad exposure.

Kennedy, who was at the White House for Carter's announcement, said in a statement the measure "is a litmus test in the fight against inflation." But at the same time, he added that he favors swift passage of national health insurance legislation, a subject on which he and Carter disagree.

In addition to the Senate hearing, two House subcommittees will hold a joint hearing Monday, taking testimony from administration officials who will outline their case for the measure.

The chairmen of the panels, Reps. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., and Henry Waxman, D-Calif., both support the Carter plan, and Waxman said in a statement the legislation is needed to fight inflation.

"Inflation is our No. 1 domestic problem," he said, "It is extremely serious in the economy as a whole, and it is worse in medical care."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, meanwhile, said he hoped to have the measure on the House floor for a vote by July 1, adding that the proposal is one of the half-dozen most important bills Carter will send to Congress this year.

"We'll do the required and proper work and get it to the floor" for a vote, he said. Once there, he added, "I think we can pass it."

The administration's cost containment measure never made it out of a commerce subcommittee a year ago, in large part because of lobbying by hospital organizations.

"America's hospitals will aggressively oppose this legislation in the interests of those they serve," Alex McMahon, president of the American Hospital Association, said after Carter's announcement. The Federation of American Hospitals also declared its opposition to the measure.

The industry claims its own voluntary program to hold down rising costs succeeded in reducing hospital inflation from 15.8 percent in 1977 to 12.9 percent last year.

Carter's plan also has influential critics in Congress, including Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., who said Tuesday he had "doubts about the wisdom" of applying cost controls to the entire industry. The Georgia Democrat is chairman of a Finance Committee subcommittee that will begin hearings on hospital cost legislation Tuesday.

Under Carter's proposal, hospitals would be subject to mandatory controls beginning Jan. 1, 1980, unless they held their fee increases this year to 9.7 percent — a figure that could rise if a hospital's own expenses rose more than expected.

Officials won't talk to Clements

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements expected some questions, maybe even an argument or two, when he asked Texas' top bureaucrats to help him trim the bureaucracy by 25,000 jobs.

What he got was silence. Dead silence. Even after he almost pleaded for a response from the approximately 400 state agency officials who had turned out to hear him.

"Clements was clearly disappointed. He had called for 'communication, cooperation and coordination' between himself and the agency heads. At the outset, he said he hoped the

Tuesday afternoon meeting would be "as close as possible to a personal visit with you."

"I would say as an impression that we are not communicating very well," the governor said when nobody responded to his first invitation to ask a question.

"Who is in disagreement with what I have said?" he asked. Not a hand shot up.

"Who is in agreement?" Maybe one or two of the approximately 400 officials and high-level employees raised a hand.

"I was hopeful that if one of you violently disagreed, you would say so."

No reaction.

"That's interesting," Clements said resignedly. "I'll see you in your departments. Good afternoon."

The new Republican governor was conciliatory in his appeal for cooperation in eliminating 25,000 of the 169,000 state jobs by the end of his term in January 1983.

He said 85 percent of all vacancies that occur each year could be filled and still meet his goal.

Clements said he "fully recognized" that some agency budgets should grow.

"But I do want to eliminate as much duplication, redundancy and surplus as we possibly can. I want our employees to be fully employed but right now I know they are not, in many instances," Clements said. Some department heads even have told him they don't have enough work to do, he said.

Clements told reporters he thought their presence dampened the possibility of give-and-take between himself and the agency heads.

"I think you fellas inhibited them," he said.

But he said, "I think I have their cooperation. I am satisfied with that."

Kenneth Ashworth, commissioner of the Texas College Coordinating Board, said he thought the officials remained silent because "you are always kind of intimidated in front of a large audience to stand up and talk about the special problems of your program."

"We just didn't have anybody break the ice," he said.

Man immolates self

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — A Chicago man bought a gallon of gasoline at a service station, doused himself with it, struck a match "and just blew up in flames," a witness says.

The man, identified as Kenneth Ziemba, 31, was listed in critical condition early today at St. Vincent Health Center with burns over 98 percent of his body, a hospital spokesman said.

Senate bill extends age for workers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas state employees can look forward to working until they are 70, if senators have their way.

Currently, state employees are required to retire at 65.

The Senate voted 30-0 Tuesday for a bill to make the state retirement the same as a recent federal law prescribes for federal employees and most employees of private firms in interstate business.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said his bill would be optional for local school districts.

It would not apply to employees of state universities and colleges until July 1, 1982.

Whalen Lake cleanup discussed by officials

...alt in the lake. On Tuesday, Handley said there was no fresh water to get contaminated even if Whalen should seep.

THE BLACK IRON sulfide is unsightly but presents no threat to the saline lake, ground water or any waterfowl that might land here, claimed Darrow.

"You can't find any oil on this lake," said Darrow. Were oil in the lake, it eventually would surface, added Merle Handley.

"I say no oil will percolate out of this water," Handley said. "If there were oil out there, you'd see it now. You can't hide oil. There's no way."

According to Handley, contrary to claims by environmentalists that oil pollutants in the lake have caused the death of hundreds or even thousands of migratory birds, he said he knows only 22 migratory birds dying in or around the lake allegedly as a result of brine dumping.

"Any self-respecting bird wouldn't land here anyway," he said. Also, said Handley, Whalen Lake is naturally "five times" saltier than the ocean and never holds any genuinely fresh water.

Police storm motel, discover suspect dead. DALLAS (AP) — Police tactical units stormed a barricaded motel room Tuesday just after a murder suspect inside apparently shot himself to death.

Information officer Connie Smith said Gary Dale Zachery, 29, of Wylie, was found dead in the bathroom of the motel with a shotgun blast in the throat.

Rain, floods continuing in Northeast

By The Associated Press

Rain continued to fall this morning over New England, causing flooding that forced the evacuation of more than 100 residents of four northern New Hampshire towns, civil defense officials said.

No injuries were reported, but officials said flood waters from the Connecticut and Pemigewasset Rivers submerged cars and overturned house trailers.

Civil defense spokesman Dave Cass said the Connecticut River was expected to crest this morning but would probably continue to rise because of an ice jam near Stratford.

Meanwhile, more than 300 families remained homeless Tuesday in northwestern Georgia, which received up to 8 inches of rain over the weekend.

In Illinois, a number of roads remained under water and closed Tuesday.

Light rain also fell this morning over Florida, but began to taper off in many other areas along the Atlantic Coast as a slowly moving cold front pushed out to sea.

Elsewhere, snow fell this morning in some parts of eastern Minnesota and Wisconsin.

In the west, rain showers dotted the north Pacific Coast, with widely scattered rain or snow showers in the northern and central Rockies.

Temperatures this morning were in the 30s and 40s over much of the nation. However, colder readings prevailed from the northern Plains to the northern part of the Great Lakes, as well as in a few places in the Rockies.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 5 below zero in Devils Lake, N.D., to 69 degrees in Key West, Fla.

Today's forecast called for scattered rain showers over Florida, with rain in eastern New England and precipitation scattered across the lower Great Lakes and the upper Ohio Valley.

Shell will cut work force company Midland offices produced no indications that other companies are contemplating similar moves.

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said today he is "disappointed" in the news, but doesn't think it's "any great tragedy for Midland."

"About five years ago, Shell announced it was moving a bunch of people out, and there was great wailing and gnashing of teeth that Midland was going to blow away. But we hardly even noticed it," Angelo contended.

Harry Clark, First National Bank senior vice president and longtime leader in efforts to develop Midland's economy, said today he is sorry Shell is moving the people out, but he said he does not think it will hamper Midland's long-term economic potential.

He predicted that during the next 10 to 15 years, most of the major oil companies will relocate from this area because the emphasis in domestic production will be on off-shore and Alaskan reserves.

"We just need to see the inevitability of going where the action is," said Clark.

However, though he believes the Shell move is the start of a trend, Clark said he is confident that Midland's economy will remain strong.

"The majors have moved out before," Clark noted, and the impact has been "absorbed within a reasonable time."

Clark added that he thinks the Midland will grow in its importance as a center for strong independent oil operators.

The Houston Shell official today denied the Associated Press' report that the re-organization, originally reported as affecting primarily the company's Denver, Colo., office, was the result of unprofitable ventures in Alaska.

"Ask the people in Midland if they have anything to do with Alaska," he said.

The Houston official said the move also will involve most of the production personnel in the Denver, Colo., office this year and "a couple of other" offices at a later date.

No other Permian Basin installations are involved in the reorganization, the official said.

More of same weather forecast. More of the same is the forecast for Thursday, and as "they" say, that's not all bad.

Fair skies through Thursday, is the word from the forecasters at the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport.

Thursday's high is expected to be in the upper 70s, with the low tonight near 40.

Tuesday was another sunny pre-spring day, with a high of 69 and overnight low of 37. Record temperatures for the date were set at a summer-like 90 degrees in 1946 and a wintry 16 in 1931.

Still no rain was mentioned for Thursday or today, so the monthly total of .16 inch and annual accumulation of .58 are likely to stand unchanged.

The sunny weather spread throughout the Permian Basin as area weather watchers in other towns were reporting clear skies and cool temperatures this morning.

to consolidate should not be dropped summarily.

"I think it is our responsibility as board members to base our decisions on facts and not on emotional input," he said. He called for following the original plan to study both the public input and the staff report before voting at the next meeting.

"I THINK I could make a more responsible decision after studying what's been presented here today," Dominey said.

Ann Page, who seconded the motion for the referendum, agreed the board had listened to the district patrons, but added, "I've sat on the other side of the table and know what it's like to feel we're not listening."

"As the public goes to the polls," she added, "they should know that taxes must go up to support the kind of program we have had and (their vote) is a statement that they are willing to spend the money."

The first motion on the referendum failed, as Grimes, Runyan, Warren and James Ramsoure voted against it.

Runyan then moved the board drop Plan O immediately as an alternative in the study of ways to solve enrollment problems.

That motion also failed, 4-to-3. Warren, Ramsoure, Dominey and McCrea were in the majority on the vote.

Runyan moved the referendum question again, and this time it passed with the support of McCrea, Page, Runyan and Dominey.

THE PROMISE of the referendum did not cut short the citizens who had come to speak on the matter, however.

Once the floor was opened to the audience, a parade of citizens came forward with petitions, suggestions, questions and concerns.

Larry McIntosh of Citizens for Two High Schools, an organization organized to oppose to Plan O, delivered petitions he said had 8,000 names. Students from both high schools also presented petitions with names gathered in the schools.

Other citizens expressed concerns about handicapped students at the Midland High School campus, band and athletic uniforms, school song and color selections and continuing traditions.

Others expressed the opinion that there were more important matters for the board to deal with than consolidation.

Three members of the audience stood up to urge the consideration of academic excellence before either athletic championships or equality.

U.S. ambassador received in China

TOKYO (AP) — Leonard Woodcock, the first U.S. ambassador to the People's Republic of China, presented his credentials in Peking today, china's official Xinhua (Hsinhua) news agency reported.

In receiving Woodcock's credentials, Ulanhu (Ulanfu) vice chairman of the standing committee of the National People's Congress, told him "though there are still some problems between the two countries, they will gradually be resolved with the development of their relation," Xinhua said.

But Xinhua said Ulanhu also told Woodcock that a bridge of friendship had been built during the recent visit to the United States of Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping (Teng Hsiao-ping), and "we believe that the prospects for developing Sino-American relations are broad."

The agency said Woodcock replied that relations would continue to improve, and "friendly relations between the great Chinese people and the American people are very important to world peace."

The United States established formal diplomatic ties with Peking on Jan. 1, breaking government-level ties with the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan.

between the schools.

"THERE IS a basic problem in the Midland schools," Kingdon Hughes said. "And that is competency in the classroom. I hope this board will have the courage to get on with the much harder issues."

Third candidate files today for Place 3 on City Council

Place 3 on Midland City Council began to crowd up today with a third candidate's announcement for that post.

Bill Carol Thomas, 33, of 1902 Ward St. filed with the city secretary's office today.

Already filed for that spot are incumbent Carroll M. Thomas, who has served two terms, and Jack M. Moore, former personnel director for the city of Midland.

In announcing his candidacy, Thomas, a 25-year resident of the Tall City, said, "The citizens of Midland deserve a broad choice of candidates for the City Council. I believe that three consecutive terms in any elected office is too long."

"I hope to provide a fresh approach to city government while maintaining orderly growth and development of the city, promoting diversification of industry for this area and taking a firm stand against new taxes," Thomas said.

He is a graduate of Midland High School and Lubbock Christian College. Thomas holds a master of science degree from the Dallas Institute of Mortuary Science, where he was president of his graduating class.

While in college he served as president of Kappa Mu fraternity. A co-owner of Thomas Funeral Home, he has been active with the Midland Jaycees, having been named Rookie of the Year in 1969, having received the Quarterman Award and having served two terms on the board of directors and as past secretary for the group.

He and his wife, Paula, have two children, Kara and Bill Jr. Unopposed for Place 1 and Place 2, respectively, are Doris Howbert and Gordon Marcum II. Both are incumbents. Today was the deadline for filing for City Council positions.

Mrs. Angelo cites 'concern' in filing for school board post

Assuring contested races for every position on the April 7 school board ballot, Penny Angelo filed Tuesday afternoon for the Place 5 seat currently held by David Grimes.

Mrs. Angelo said she became a candidate because "of a deep concern for the future of public school education. As a parent and taxpayer, I believe the school system must have an increased commitment to quality education at a cost the taxpayer can afford."

"I believe very deeply that it is in the best interest of our young people and our community for Midland to have two superior high schools," she said in her prepared statement.

"Just as seriously, I believe it is imperative that we stop making far-reaching decisions based on state and federal government directives rather than on the basis of what is best for our children."

Mrs. Angelo is the mother of four children, one a graduate of Lee High School, two currently attending Lee and one a kindergarten student at Hilllander.

Mrs. Angelo and her husband, Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. have been residents of Midland since 1958.

A graduate of The University of Texas with a degree in education, she taught in the Odessa public school system for two years. She is immediately past member of the board of directors of the Midland Chamber of Commerce and is current president of the Lee Band Boosters.

She is a member of the Midland Symphony Guild and was community coordinator for the Girl Scouts. She is a member of the Young Life advisory committee and has served as chair-

Incumbent David Grimes has announced he will not run for re-election. Midland broadcasting executive Parker Humes is the only other candidate to file so far for the spot.

In the other two places to be filled in the April 7 election, incumbent Ann Page and Joyce Sherrod have filed for Place 7.

Four candidates, incumbent Edward Runyan, Oralia Corrales, Alice M. Greer and Raul J. Salazar, have filed for the Place 6 position.

Ugandan counterattack expected

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Libya is flying massive amounts of military equipment into Uganda in preparation for a Ugandan counterattack against Tanzanian invaders that could come in about a week, Western diplomats said today.

They said tanks, fighters planes, heavy artillery and infantry weapons have been flown to Entebbe, Uganda's international airport on Lake Victoria, in a mission that began about a week ago. They said Libyan and Ugandan cargo planes are making daily flights.

The expected Ugandan counterattack could open up the decisive phase of the four-month-old war, the diplomats said. "The next week or so should show whether the military balance has shifted in favor of Uganda," one diplomat said.

Ugandan President Idi Amin said two days ago that a counterstrike was in the offing. In Uganda Radio broadcasts, he said the time was coming to hit the enemy hard and called on his troops to fight to the last man.

Western diplomats said Tuesday about 1,400 Libyan troops have been flown into Uganda to bolster Amin's faltering forces. In Tripoli, Libya's official news agency denied the report and said the only Libyans in Uganda were teachers, doctors and bank workers. The denial made no mention of military supplies.

But Western sources pictured Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy as disappointed and angered by Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere's rejection of mediation efforts made by Libya, itself, and by the 49-state Organization of African Unity. They said Khadafy decided to give Amin, a fellow Moslem, "all the support within Libya's means."

Nyerere and Amin have been bitter personal enemies since 1971 when Amin overthrew former Ugandan President Milton Obote. Obote, a Socialist theoretician like Nyerere, took up exile in Tanzania, along with his supporters.

Ugandan-Tanzanian disputes have erupted into fighting on at least two previous occasions. Nyerere has presented Tanzania as the injured party in the current conflict, citing Uganda's occupation early in November of 710 square miles of territory in northwestern Tanzania that Amin claimed belonged to Uganda.

The Tanzanian president, rebuffing a mediation group sent to Dar Es Salaam from pan-African foreign ministers meeting in Nairobi last week, said he would not stop fighting unless the OAU condemned Amin and Amin paid compensation for war damage.

Tanzanian invaders reportedly have captured Masaka, a provincial capital 80 miles south of Kampala, the Ugandan capital. The town was reported Tuesday as deserted and in ruins from bombardment.

Diplomats said Tanzanian artillery has been shelling the town of Lukaya, about 25 miles beyond Masaka on the road to Kampala, for about a week but without a further Tanzanian advance.

The diplomats said Tanzanian units are also about five miles from Mbarara, the southwestern Uganda garrison town where heavy fighting has been reported.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Joan Mondale credits herself with bringing around one new patron of the arts — her husband, Vice President Walter Mondale.

"He's learning," she said Tuesday. "He's been to more museums since we married than he ever had before we met. In fact, he had never been in a museum before we met."

Mrs. Mondale, who dabbles in pottery, thinks support of the fine arts is growing throughout the country.

She visited the Albright-Knox Art Gallery for a preview of art from Northeast museums which will be displayed in the Mondales' Washington home through April 1980. Their residence has been a gallery for art of the Midwest and Southwest, she said. The Northeast collection will replace the Southwest display.

HONOLULU (AP) — Former Cambodian President Lon Nol says there are more opportunities for jobs and education in California, so he's leaving Hawaii for a four-bedroom house in Fullerton, Calif.

"Hawaii is nice and the people are friendly, but there seem to be more opportunities for jobs and education in California," he said Tuesday.

Lon Nol will move his family, including eight children, Friday.

He came here in April 1975, just before Cambodia fell to the Communists. Since then he has lived quietly, first in an upper middle-class Honolulu neighborhood, and since May 1977, in a rural community where he and his family raised vegetables.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Marine Sgt. Kenneth Kraus has received Pennsylvania's highest award for bravery, the Cross of Valor, for his actions defending the U.S. Embassy in Iran when it was attacked.

Gov. Dick Thornburgh presented the award Tuesday to the 22-year-old Kraus, of Lansdale. The governor said Kraus "showed what the best qualities of our fighting men are by remaining cool at his post and showing toughness and tenacity."

Kraus was wounded in the Feb. 14 embassy attack and was held in a Tehran prison for a week after being freed. Before disappearing from a hospital the day of the attack, he told a reporter, "We never fired a shot."

SINGAPORE (AP) — Davina Sheffield is one step ahead of Britain's Prince Charles — she's already in Australia.

Charles, however, isn't far behind. He's spending three days in Singapore, but will be flying on to Perth. Ms. Sheffield, the subject of much speculation as a possible wife for Charles, will greet him.

Meanwhile, Charles' father, Prince Philip, dressed in a plastic hard hat, Wellingtons and three-quarter-length coat, inspected Moscow's new Olympic equestrian center and had some astute criticism of his Russian hosts.

The husband of Queen Elizabeth complained Tuesday about a shortage of stadium seating space and identification tags. He's on a three-day tour of facilities for the 1980 Olympic games as president of the International Equestrian Federation.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Country singer Tammy Wynette is reported getting along well following abdominal surgery at a local hospital.

"She's feeling a lot better today," a hospital spokesman said Tuesday. The spokesman said Miss Wynette underwent surgery on Feb. 28. Doctors have not said when she would be going home.

Pioneer of 'test tube baby' claims success with cloning

NEW YORK — The pioneer of the "test tube baby" technique claims to have taken the first successful step toward the cloning of a human.

Dr. Landrum Shettles claims he has techniques that may enable millions of childless couples to have babies inexpensively and easily through a revolutionary "in vitro" — in glass — procedure.

Two "in vitro" babies have been born in the last year in the British Isles, but many other attempts have failed.

The process involves withdrawing an egg from the mother's ovary, fertilizing it in the laboratory with the husband's sperm, then replacing the fertilized egg in the mother's womb, where it develops naturally into a human fetus.

In an article in the March issue of Science Digest, Shettles said he believes that within just a few hours he can place the "in vitro" fertilized egg of a woman with blocked Fallopian tubes in her uterus.

He claims he may be able to place both egg and sperm directly in the uterus.

Under current procedure, fertilization normally occurs "in vitro," and what is called the "blastocyst" is put in the uterus after three days.

Shettles said the key to the process is the position in which the mother lies, the mother's sleeping posture.

He believes if he can keep the "in vitro" mother lying at the correct angle for three days or so, he can successfully implant a fertilized egg that has been outside the mother for only an hour.

Debbie won't do Dallas in LA anymore

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal judge, ruling in favor of the Dallas Cowboys football team, has issued a temporary restraining order to halt the Los Angeles showing of the movie "Debbie Does Dallas" by an adult theater chain.

In a suit filed Monday, the National Football League team and its cheerleaders argued the movie falsely represents the main character as a Cowboys cheerleader and infringes on the use of the Dallas cheerleading uniform.

"The defendants have appropriated the name and are using it for profit," U.S. District Judge Lawrence Lydick said Tuesday. "The fact that the film is pornographic is incidental."

The film, being shown at Pussycat Theaters in Los Angeles, also has been placed under similar court orders in New York, Detroit and Dallas.

Joseph Rhine, a lawyer for the theater group, said the movie was in the third week of an eight-week engagement in Los Angeles. He said stopping it from being shown would cause considerable economic harm.

The suit said: "The film portrays numerous explicit and lewd sexual actions, some of which are performed by the main character of the film who is wearing a virtually identical copy of plaintiff's uniform."

ASIA MEMO: Improved relations with India is China's goal

By EDWARD NEILAN
 Copley News Service

Edward Neilan

WASHINGTON — China's new fast-paced foreign policy is aiming to improve relations with neighbor India.
 Led by the feisty Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, China has already brought about foreign policy reversals by signing a friendship treaty with Japan, normalizing relations with the United States and projecting a new image of cooperation with the world community.
 The "punitive strike" against Vietnam notwithstanding, China's latest foreign policy moves have been peaceful and designed to improve ties and create stability.
 China's "India card" included a recent invitation to Indian Foreign Minister Atal Behari Vajpayee who came to Peking and had talks with Teng and other top Peking leaders.
 Relations between China and India have been strained for more than 15 years due to disputes over borders and because New Delhi was becoming too cozy with the Soviet Union to suit China.
 Just back from his exhausting trip to the United States and Japan, the 74-year-old Teng said, "China and India are the two most populous countries in the world. How can we afford to be unfriendly toward each other?"

 There is no mystery about the main reason for China's expressed urgency in getting Vajpayee and other Indian officials to visit Peking now and to give an appearance of improved ties.
 China would like to drive a wedge between India and the Soviet Union and the time appears ripe for such a maneuver. In Peking's book, former Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi was pro-Soviet. With Mrs. Gandhi out of the leadership picture, with current Prime Minister Morarji Desai on record as favoring less tilt toward Moscow, and with growing apprehensions in New Delhi over Soviet moves in Afghanistan and Iran, the timing is good for a Chinese overture.
 When Vajpayee was in India, Chinese Chairman Hua Kuo-feng asked him to deliver an invitation to Desai to visit China. And Hua said he would be pleased to visit India at an appropriate time.
 Though virtually unreported in the U.S. press, this new interchange between China and India caused considerable uneasiness in the Soviet Union.
 There was almost as much critical comment about China's overtures to India and the Vajpayee visit in the Soviet press as there was when Teng visited the United States after normalization of relations between the United States and China.
 Teng's constant warnings to U.S. leaders during his visit about the threat of the "polar bear" underscored China's preoccupation with countering what it sees as a global offensive by Moscow.
 China saw the Vietnam incursion into Cambodia as blatantly Soviet-backed and has launched the attack against Vietnam to "teach the Vietnamese a lesson."
 The irony of the situation is overwhelming. During the Vietnam War of the 1960s and 1970s, China backed Hanoi against the United States. Now the Chinese want U.S. support against the Soviet-backed Vietnamese who are taking over China-backed Cambodia, now Kampuchea.
 Confused? You're not alone. The key point to remember is that American withdrawal from Southeast Asia and the image of further American withdrawal or pulling back in Taiwan and South Korea has created a new balance of power in Asia.
 The Soviet Union has moved to exploit the situation and China is worried about the Soviets.
 Asia, the world's fastest-growing market, needs stability to prosper. The wrestling between the polar bear and the dragon may delay the true climate of stability that Asia seeks.

West Texas champions

Thirteen-year-old Jim Bob Beam and his 1,305-pound Limousin-Hereford steer, Yackley, have brought fame and fortune to Beam's home community of Patricia, south of Lamesa in neighboring Dawson County.
 In the first place, Yackley last week was judged the junior grand champion steer of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, which really is something in itself. He was judged the best of 1,073 steers which were in competition at the show.
 But topping even the top show honor was the top dollar honor, which established a world record.
 Yes sir, Jim Bob's grand champion steer brought a record $70,000 in Saturday's sale which followed Friday night's final judging. Yes, the $70,000 figure is correct. No wonder the price of steak is a bit high. Four Houston building contractors joined forces to purchase the prize animal.
 Jim Bob is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Beam of Patricia. The elder Beam is a cotton farmer.
 And it just so happens that another West Texas lad, Reagan Brooks, 15, of Coahoma, near Big Spring in neighboring Howard County, had the show's reserve grand champion, a 1,222-pound black animal, one-half Angus and one-half Chianina.

 The reserve champion, named Shipley, brought $45,000 at the sale, which isn't bad either. In fact, it is said to be at or near the world champion price for a reserve champ. The animal was purchased by two Fort Worth men.
 Young Brooks is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Brooks of Coahoma.
 And yet another West Texan, 18-year-old Billy Leavitt of Alpine, showed the grand champion sheep, a 117-pound animal which sold for a record $30,000 to a trio of Houstonians.
 Leavitt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Leavitt of Alpine.
 It really was a great day for West Texans and their champion animals as they set the pace in the big livestock show and sale in "distant" Houston in East Texas.
 Congratulations and all best wishes are directed to Jim Bob Beam of Patricia, Reagan Brooks of Coahoma and Billy Leavitt of Alpine.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

U.S. citizen trapped in Russia

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Almost 30 years ago, a Brooklyn-born, 18-year-old American citizen named Isaac Elkowitz left the sanctuary of the American embassy in Moscow and disappeared without a trace. We now have first-hand evidence of Elkowitz' fate, provided by his one-time cellmate in the Soviets' infamous Lubyanka prison.
 The young American's harrowing story was related to us by Abraham Kalinski, a former Polish army officer who spent more than 15 years in the Soviet prison system and now lives in Israel. He identified Elkowitz as one of scores of innocent foreign nationals who were held captive by the Russians without trial and without trace.
 As Kalinski told the story to our associate Sam Fogg, Elkowitz was a pawn sacrificed in a grim diplomatic chess game played between the United States and the Soviet Union in the years after World War II. The Russians captured Elkowitz not by skill, however, but by treachery. They won the game by cheating.
 Kalinski was undergoing extended interrogation on trumped-up charges when he met young Elkowitz in a subterranean cell in Lubyanka. Fluent in eight languages, Kalinski won the frightened American teen-ager's confidence by speaking to him in Yiddish, and the two became friends. Here is what the boy told him:
 As a child of 7 he was brought to the Soviet Union by his parents in 1943 to visit his father's aged mother. When the Nazis invaded Russia, the family was unable to return to the United States. His mother and father died early in the war, and young Isaac was evacuated to a remote refugee center hundreds of miles from Moscow.

 The young American orphan sent letters to the embassy in Moscow without result. When the war ended in 1945, he hopped a freight and made his way to the capital. He was able to convince embassy officials that he was, in fact, an American citizen, and he was given refuge in the embassy, a decaying building across from the Kremlin.
 The 13-year-old boy was given a job working the embassy switchboard, and attended school in the compound with diplomats' children. On the Sabbath, young Elkowitz attended one of Moscow's few synagogues, escorted by American security guards to prevent his seizure by the Soviets, who contended he was a Soviet citizen.
 Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith exchanged a number of blistering notes with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky over the boy's status. The Russians demanded that the Americans turn him out of the embassy; the Americans demanded that he be allowed to go home to the United States.
 Denied the all-important exit permit by the Soviets, young Elkowitz remained a virtual prisoner in the American embassy. He was given bed and board at American House, the bachelor quarters for embassy clerks and military personnel a mile or so from the embassy. His daily trips between the dormitory and the embassy were made in embassy cars; he never ventured out alone.
 Five years of negotiation failed to budge the Soviets. When Elkowitz reached 18, the Russians announced that he was subject to the draft. In what was seen as a face-saving situation for the Soviets, they agreed that if Elkowitz consented to serve in the Red Army, he would be permitted to leave the country after a token six months' military service.
 Faced with the prospect of spending the rest of his life in virtual house arrest, Elkowitz agreed to the deal. He arranged to send embassy officials a weekly postcard as a sign that he was all right. Then he reported to an induction center.
 A few days later, the secret police picked him up and hauled him off to Lubyanka, where he was interrogated daily for information about the American embassy's operations. That's when he met Kalinski, who suggested he stop sending the weekly postcards as a means of alerting the embassy to his plight. The day after he gave Elkowitz this advice, Kalinski was threatened with solitary confinement, and he and the young American were separated. He never saw Elkowitz again.
 If he is still alive, Isaac Elkowitz would be 46 or 47 by now — too old for the military service that was to be his ticket to freedom, but not too old to be a faceless, hopeless inhabitant of the Gulag Archipelago.
 MEATY PAPERS? The world's biggest meatpacker, Iowa Beef Processors Corp., is fighting desperately to keep a congressional subcommittee from disclosing documents that suggest criminal antitrust law violation by the company.
 The documents in question — more than 3,000 pages, filling seven file cabinets — were taken from IBP by a former employee, and were obtained late last year by the House Small Business Committee's subcommittee on investigations. The packing company succeeded in keeping the documents from being made public as part of a pending civil suit, and IBP lawyers want the same gag rule extended to the House subcommittee.
 The company's concern is understandable. A subcommittee report says the documents disclose "significant, deliberate and repeated violations of this nation's civil and criminal anti-trust laws." Another report states that "I.B.P. officials willfully and intentionally continued to violate antitrust statutes."
 BIBLE VERSE
 O Lord, thou art my God, I will exalt thee, I will praise thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things; thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth. — Isa. 25:1.

Turn the other cheek

The White House announced a few days ago that United States aid to Afghanistan is being "severely" reduced.
 Good grief! Why in the world is it being continued at all? It makes one wonder.
 It has been 10 months since a coup installed a new government in Kabul. And that new government promptly proclaimed its Marxist-Leninist intentions and opened the gates for a flood of civilian and military advisers from the Soviet Union. Then, in December, a friendship treaty with Moscow was signed.
 Meanwhile, a $15 million U.S. aid program which included help with military training was extended, even as it became obvious that Afghanistan made an ideal staging area for whatever help the Russians might be giving the Marxist revolutionaries in Iran.
 This ridiculous act merits a bit of investigative action by the proper committee in Congress.
 The White House finally acted in the matter after U.S. Ambassador Adolph Dubs was kidnapped Feb. 14 and shot to death in a Kabul hotel room.

 The U.S. government has accused the Afghan government of "callous disregard" for the ambassador's safety in a shootout with the kidnapers which was executed with the help of Soviet agents.
 President Carter may have been hoping that Afghanistan would be less inclined to make itself a Soviet puppet if our aid programs continued. However, it is difficult to see any evidence that such hope was justified.
 Instead of cutting back on the programs, the United States should suspend them altogether until it becomes more clear what kind of government the U.S. is dealing with in Kabul.
 The United States likely will continue to receive the same kind of treatment from other countries of Afghanistan's kind until it puts its foot down firmly against unfriendly and terrorist treatment and makes it stick.

WRITE ON:

Americans had best take SALT with a grain of it

By VIRGIL PINKLEY
 Copley News Service

Virgil Pinkley

President Carter is facing difficult situations on at least two of his foreign affairs fields.
 For days and weeks of optimistic forecasts about a new SALT agreement, that one seems to be currently in limbo.
 Also all of the hopes and promises surrounding the Camp David meetings and the shuttle diplomacy between Washington, Cairo and Jerusalem have achieved very little in tangible results.
 The Arabs say they cannot enter into any agreement with the Israelis which will violate their numerous understandings with other Arab nations.
 Jewish leaders continually speak of opening new settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan — something the Arab world says is impossible to accept.
 Even if an eventual SALT accord is reached, you may be certain that it will be at least 80 to 20 in favor of the Russians, just as our previous agreements have been.
 Russians are not going to give up any of their superiority, won over the last five or six years.
 The Kremlin continues to tell us not to build a B-1 bomber and we agree to follow their dictates.
 The Politburo members say they do not want us to improve and increase the number of cruise missiles, so of course, we carry out their desires.
 We tell them that we would like to go ahead and develop the M-X weapons, but here again, the Kremlin says no. So we, in an effort to reach some kind of an accord, acquiesce to their demands.

We are playing with the Russians on a one-way street and following their ground rules.
 We seem so fearful that if we take a positive stand and refuse to budge, some of our potential enemies will be disturbed and might even take hard action against us. The way to be strong is to become strong and stay strong. The way to lead is to develop leadership and then follow the same.
 For more than seven years now the SALT II treaty has been under discussion. It all began during the Richard Nixon years and the willingness to accede to Kremlin demands has pretty largely been continued by the Ford and Carter administrations.
 Oh, for a man in the White House with the military know-how and the courage of a Dwight David Eisenhower! No one of this stature seems visible on the American scene.
 The new proposed SALT II agreement was supposed to be ready when SALT I ended in October 1977. That accord has repeatedly been described by our top military experts and such knowledgeable people as former Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird as having been frequently and consistently violated.

There are two aspects of Russia which we never seem to learn. The first is that the Soviets respect power, and power alone. The more ruthless, the more total, and the more dangerous the power, the more they covet the same.
 Second, the Russians never have kept any really important agreement, especially when they deem it in their best interests to disregard the same.
 Ever since the Cuban crisis, our nuclear and hydrogen weapons and defenses have been steadily reduced while those of Russia constantly increased.
 As long as Americans insist on soft living, want unlimited fun and seek every possible material comfort, this situation will not change. We are gambling with our future and, in fact, with our sheer survival as an independent freedom-loving nation.
 Russian leaders claim that the SALT agreement now under discussion is in balance. But when its terms are closely examined it is obvious that it is loaded heavily in favor of Russia. Otherwise, the Kremlin would not be interested in SALT negotiations.
 The bosses in the Kremlin are saying that our recognition of Red China and other action we have taken in connection with that nation makes it more imperative than ever for Russia to be the supreme military power in the world.
 In the first SALT agreement, concluded in 1972, both countries were entitled to have 2,250 nuclear launching vehicles of all kinds, including 1,320 which can carry MIRV multiple warheads or cruise missiles.
 In the current Soviet missile-building program, however, any equity or slight leadership the Americans may have will be gone by 1985.

 The Soviets are now insisting that they keep their 308 colossal 10-warhead SS-18s but the Americans will have none at all.
 It is known that at present the Russians are building a number of land-based missiles bigger than anything in progress in the United States or on our drawing boards.
 Some of our best-informed experts (Congress and the White House seem to pay little or no attention to their findings and recommendations) say that by 1985 the Russians could have a lead of more than 3 to 1 in the total number of megatons that can be dropped and 7 to 1 in megatons carried in land-based missiles. If these forecasts prove to be accurate, the Russians could destroy most of our missiles in silos whereas theirs would be immune to our attack because our missiles would not have the penetration and explosive power to knock out their silos.

Strange-looking eyeglasses bring sight to blind

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — David Ouellette returned to his home in California recently with an odd-looking pair of eyeglasses worth $2,000 that he said will change his life.

"Now I'll be able to really see the girl I'm with and the pins in the bowling alley," the 31-year-old Santa Monica resident said after Dr. William Feinbloom adjusted the device he claims can improve the vision of legally and partially blind people. About 600 people across the country already are wearing the special "camera lens spectacles" that can increase vision up to 600 percent, the doctor said.

But Ouellette, who has had 3 percent vision since birth as a result of damaged optic nerve fibers, is the first person to be fitted with a lens capable of increasing vision 800 percent, said Feinbloom, who designed the lens. "The lens has increased his vision from 3 percent to 85 percent of normal," Feinbloom explained in an interview. "Not only will he be able to drive a car, but he'll be able to read a newspaper and do odd jobs around the house."

Feinbloom, 75, a New York City optometrist now on the faculty of the Pennsylvania College of Optometry, emphasized that the glasses are useless to the totally blind. "Not cosmetically attractive, the glasses, which cost anywhere from $1,500 to $2,500, resemble two tiny telescopes about the size of a roll of film. They protrude about three inches from the frame.

Each "telescope" contains nine elements of glass and two prisms to form the optical unit. As Feinbloom explained it, the special lens is designed to aid the parts of Ouellette's retina that are still functional. "It's so exciting. How many people get to be reborn at 31? It's like coming out of the womb," said Ouellette, who holds a bachelor's degree in sociology from Western Michigan University.

Ouellette said before leaving Philadelphia that he can now read and watch television, though only at extremely close distances.

"I had my own lifestyle. It was very comfortable. I just bowled a 233 last week. That's why coming here was so scary. I have to start all over. Now I'm going to be very visible, especially with those glasses," he said with a chuckle.

He said he learned of Feinbloom's lens device about six months ago from a news program. He wrote to Feinbloom and, after answering some questions about the extent of his vision for Feinbloom, he was on his way here to see the doctor.

Silkwood jury seated

Two potential jurors were excused Tuesday after stating their opposition to nuclear power.

Silkwood jury seated

One university biology graduate said, "I'm against nuclear energy."

Silkwood jury seated

Another potential juror was excused after telling he had witnessed the first experimental explosion of a hydrogen bomb in 1954.

Silkwood jury seated

He said he saw the destructive power of nuclear energy and could not be impartial.

This also predicted from the bench that the case could take six calendar weeks.

Before jury selection began at 11 a.m., they met in closed session with opposing attorneys for about two hours.

League to hear of city problems on Tuesday

The League of Women Voters of Midland's meeting set for Tuesday will concern the urban crisis, and admittance will be by "ticket" only.

The "tickets" will be articles on municipal fiscal policy clipped from The Reporter-Telegram or another newspaper.

Walter Ashby, senior planner for Midland, will speak to the group about general financial assistance to city government and measures to enhance the economic base of cities.

Ashby will evaluate block grants as opposed to categorical grants, as well as federal involvement in local borrowing for capital expenditures.

Ways to improve the economic base of cities also will be discussed, including an examination of incentives offered to businesses so they will locate, or expand in a metropolitan area.

The morning League meeting will be at 9:30 in the home of Diane Rhoden, 3006 Meadowbrook St. The evening meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. the same day in the home of Charlene Kullman, 1207 W. Storey Ave.

VFV plans more lobbying

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans of Foreign Wars says it may have to become more active politically if veterans hope to compete in Congress against other special interest groups.

In a double-barreled attack on the Carter administration, VFW Commander Eric Sandstrom said Tuesday that his group may set up political action committees to raise money for sympathetic candidates.

"This may well be the needed vehicle to elect to office those who recognize the very special service of our veterans and the debt we all owe them," he said in testimony before House and Senate committees.

Sandstrom called the administration "the most anti-veteran" of any in recent history. And he said Max Cleland, who heads the Veterans Administration, "is knuckling under to the dictates" of the White House.

Sandstrom wants Congress to increase spending by $1.1 billion above President Carter's proposed fiscal 1980 budget of $20.4 billion in veterans programs.

He also called for improvements in medical care, pensions and employment programs for veterans and said the proposed budget does not contain any cost-of-living increase for Vietnam veterans who receive benefits under the GI bill.

Polish dishes among finest

AP Newsfeatures

I've never heard a Polish joke about Polish cooking. That nation's cuisine ranks among the world's finest.

Before the Communists took over, Poland was a land of contrasts, from the rich aristocracy to the landed gentry to the peasants who were usually very poor and had to depend on resourcefulness to keep their larder stocked.

Hence, Polish cookery is one of the world's most varied, from the poached lake salmon, turkey and ortolans enjoyed by the rich to the great roasts served by the country squires and finally the sturdy fare like cabbage soup or buckwheat groats that sustained the peasants.

While the aristocracy depended on their French chefs to dream up creations to whet their appetites, the country folk learned to make use of what was at hand. And there was a variety of good things around them: wild honey, wild berries, mushrooms, game and fish galore.

The best of Polish cooking is of rural origin despite the lavish banquets once served in the great townhouses of the rich. The country gentry, I'm told, formed the backbone of the state rather than the aristocracy.

Among those modeling fashions at the Texaco Wives Club spring style show and luncheon will be, from left to right, Mrs. David Elliott, Mrs. Jim McAninch, Mrs. Jack Goodwin and Mrs. Bill Barker. The event is set for noon Saturday at the Ranchland Hills Country Club. Clothes are from The Gazebo and That Woman. (Staff Photo).

Articuladies hold speech contest

"That Was Yesterday" was the winning topic by Ernestine Russell at the annual speech contest for the Articuladies Toastmistress Club of Midland.

Ernestine Russell

The contest was held recently in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas. Contest chairman was Anna Maitland, a member of the club since 1964.

President Ezra Isbell introduced Dianie Newland as the toastmistress for the evening.

Judges were Maridell Fryer, speech teacher and debate coach at Lee High School; Jerry Watson, teacher of speech, radio and theatre productions at Midland College; and Tommie McSorley, a college speech major.

The winning topic by Ms. Russell was on the subject of women and the progress that has been made in their lives since they gained the right to vote.

Second place winner was Martha Chappelle whose speech title was "Something Funny Happened on the Bride on the Way to the Church." Subject was the blushing bride.

Other contestants were Katie Tevington and Elsie Magee.

Mrs. Russell will now participate in the speech contest at Council Level in Brownfield April 21.

She has been a member of Articuladies for five years, serving as president and vice president, and as treasurer to the Rio Grande Council. She is on the nominating committee at the regional level and plans to attend her first international convention in Denver, Colo., July 18-21.

Toastmistress is a self-development program for women. The organization meets twice a month. The next meeting is at 7:30 p.m. March 12 in the meeting room at Commercial Bank & Trust.

Members in the organization are available to other clubs for speaking engagements.

Cynthia Ann Carey marries

Cynthia Ann Carey, of 2928 W. Louisiana Ave., and Michael Vann Carlton, of 1900 W. Illinois, were married at 7 p.m. Feb. 24 at Berggren's Garden Under Glass in Odessa.

The bride is the daughter of Fay Carey, of 2928 W. Louisiana Ave., and Joe L. Carey of Abilene. The bridegroom is the son of Gene Carlton of Midland and Carolyn Mitchell of Midland.

The Rev. Loye Ruckman officiated the double ring ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Best man was Steve Baker of Midland, uncle of the bridegroom. Matron of honor was Phyllis Bradshaw of Abilene, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Valorie Houston of Midland, sister of the bridegroom; and Debbie Hall of Tulsa, Okla.

Flower girl was Allison Carey of Abilene, sister of the bride. Usher was Bruce McConnell of Abilene, brother of the bride. Groomsmen were Roland Kinsey of Midland, brother of the bridegroom, and Jim Carey of Pasadena, Calif., brother of the bride. Organist and soloist was Mrs. Keith Johnson.

The bride selected a white gown with billows of organza. The organza covered the bishop sleeves and covered the understated Alencon lace and English net tube sleeves. The molded bodice was of heavily beaded lace and featured a Queen Anne neckline. The circular skirt was of organza and flowed to a chapel train. A double wreath of silk roses caught the cathedral length illusion veil which was bordered with Alencon lace appliques. She carried a cascade bouquet of stephanotis, snowflake palms, yellow sweetheart roses and greenery.

Reception was held at Berggren's Garden Under Glass.

The couple will reside at 1900 W. Illinois, Apt. No. 43.

Texaco Wives plan show

Fantasy fashions will be the theme of the Texaco Wives Club spring style show and luncheon. The event will be held Saturday beginning at noon at the Ranchland Hills Country Club.

Following the buffet luncheon, fashions will be presented by The Gazebo and That Woman. A full line of dress and sportswear is to be shown.

Club members modeling fashions for the show will be Mrs. Bill Barker, Mrs. Gayle Blacklock, Mrs. Douglas Duke, Mrs. David Elliott, Mrs. Jack Glenn, Mrs. Jack Goodwin and Mrs. Jim McAninch. Tickets for the event are $6.50 at the door. All Texaco wives, employees and their guests are welcome.

Reservations should be made by Wednesday with Mrs. Jim Seeker, 683-1024, or Mrs. David Elliott, 694-8019.

Attendants are announced

Attendants for the Saturday wedding of Karla Lynn Gregg and Darrell Leigh Jordan of Midland included Cindy Garrett of Bowie.

The wedding was held at 7 p.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church in Stanton.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Eugene Isaacs and H. L. Gregg, both of Midland. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Jordan of Art.

Best man was Shawn

Anderson of Stephenville and matron of honor was Karen Terry of Lubbock. Bridesmaids were Deborah Jordan of Art, the bridegroom's sister; and Karen Hanna, Debbie Jones, and Teresa Whiteside, all of Stephenville. Ushers were Trey Carpenter of Austin and Ike Terry of Lubbock.

Groomsmen were Larry Romine of Stanton, Russell Joseph of Jacksonville, Kerry Gregg of Lubbock, the bride's brother; Lee Woods of Stonewall and Dean Eckert of San Angelo.

Displaying heirloom items belonging to their families are Kappa Deltas, from left, Gayle Dodson, Beverly Sublett and Eloise

Elgin. They are attending a style show held by the alumnae group in the home of Mrs. Sublett at 2806 Stutz Court. (Staff Photo)

Heirlooms shown at luncheon

Members of Kappa Delta Alumnae of Midland either brought or wore items belonging to their families to a covered dish luncheon held in the home of Mrs. Jim Sublett of 2806 Stutz Drive.

Theme of the event was "These Are Kappa Deltas."

Members also brought recipes of the covered dishes, also family heirlooms.

Clara King displayed a scrapbook which featured major events in the life of her grandmother, Mrs. G. S. Beaver of Gainesville, who lived to be 102 years old. At the age of 100, Mrs. Beaver had 283 descendants.

She lived through 19 presidents, beginning with Ulysses S. Grant and ending with Richard Nixon; she saw history made with 16 inventions from the telephone to radar and the admission of 12 states to the union.

She read about nine wars or battles beginning with General Custer's last stand at Little Big Horn, battle with the Idaho Indians, Apache Chief Geronimo on the war path, Spanish-American War, Pancho Villa being pursued by General Pershing, World War I, World War II, Korean War and Vietnam War.

Noteworthy events occurring during Mrs. Beaver's lifetime were: the organizing of American Red Cross in 1881, dedication of the Statue of Liberty in 1886, Oklahoma Land Rush in 1889, opening of Panama Canal in 1914, transcontinental flight from New York to San Francisco in 1921, adoption of Star Spangled Banner as national anthem in 1931, detonation of first atomic bomb in 1945, discovery of Salk vaccine in 1953, first artificial heart plant in 1966 and landing of the first man on the moon in 1969.

Kappa Delta Dottie Barker brought a blue hand-beaded opera bag made by her great-great Aunt Nell in 1906 in Ohio. She made the bag to carry her opera glasses in when her future husband was courting her. A 90-year-old recipe book that had no oven temperatures listed was shown by Helen Davis. In the book, said Mrs. Davis, reference was made to housewives being aided in the kitchen by electric ranges in the future.

Mrs. Davis also brought a 45-year-old Shirley Temple doll with original underwear, and a dress "I made when 13-years-old," said Mrs. Davis.

"The People's Home Library," published in 1916 and belonging to the John Voltin family, was brought for show and tell by Rosemary Cox. The library consisted of a medical book, home recipes and home stock.

Several items were brought by Eloise Elgin, including a christening dress and lace hat worn by Eloise' father, Cleatis Rouch Smith, in 1910 at his christening in Mustang, Kan. in the First Christian Church there, and a China doll, one-inch-tall, played with by Mrs. Elgin's Grandmother Smith around 90 years ago.

She also displayed cookbooks used by her grandmother in the early 1900s and a Bilo doll played with by Eloise as a child in the 1940s.

Eloise contributed "Whole Wheat Freckle Rolls" from her grandmother's cookbook for the luncheon.

A crazy quilt from her mother's side of the family was brought by Beverly Sublett. The quilt was 120 years old.

Gayle Dodson wore a dress belonging to her grandmother, the late Mrs. D. K. McMullan and worn in the 1900s, and a fur coat belonging to her great-grandmother, the late Mrs. John Young, approximately 75 years old.

Mrs. Dodson also brought high-laced boots belonging to another grandmother, the late Mrs. Harry Friend. They were made into lamps. Jamie Dodson, Gayle's daughter, loaned her walking doll to her mother, who dressed the doll in a navy blue taffeta dress she wore and shoes she learned to walk in.

At the event, the Kappa Delta alumnae voted to give monetary support to the Kappa Delta chapter at West Texas State University at Canyon.

Report criticized by radiation experts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two radiation experts are criticizing a White House task force report as not going far enough in stressing the possible dangers of repeated small doses of man-made radiation.

Dr. Karl Z. Morgan and Dr. Irwin D. Bross told a Senate subcommittee Tuesday that the danger, although small, is probably higher than was assumed based on studies of persons receiving high doses of radiation such as Japanese atom bomb survivors.

But Morgan, of Georgia Tech, and Bross, of Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, N.Y., differed on how much the risk might have been underestimated. Bross took the more extreme position.

The two scientists were among a panel of five testifying before the subcommittee on energy and nuclear proliferation. The hearings were continuing today.

The scientists had been asked to evaluate an 800-page draft report on radiation released last week by President Carter's Interagency Task Force on Ionizing Radiation.

The other three panel members said Morgan and Bross may be exaggerating the low-level radiation threat.

But one of them, Dr. Edward P. Radford of the University of Pittsburgh, head of a National Academy of Sciences study on the question, said he felt unnecessary medical X-rays may be increasing some forms of cancer.

St. Ann's Group meets Thursday

St. Ann's Support Group for the Formerly Married will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, at 1601 N. Midkiff St., Apt. No. 105.

The group will review the third tape in a series by Father James Young. The tape is entitled "What Jesus Says About Divorce". A coffee discussion will follow. The group is open to divorced, widowed or separated adults. They meet twice a month on a regular basis. Interested persons can contact Sam Guyton at 682-4582 for additional information.

One of their most recent activities was a workshop on how to figure income tax.

THE FAMILY COUNSELOR

Demands make commitment hard

By the Staff of Family Services of Midland

Q. My girlfriend and I have lived together off and on for six years. We never are able to feel sure enough that we can stay together to marry. Our fights stem from times when we put demands on one another. What are our chances in marriage?

A. You are having difficulty committing yourselves to a relationship because of discomfort with one another's demands. The chances this will change with marriage are slim. The commitment involved in marriage may tell you both that you are cared about; and this results in some new acceptance of demands.

However, your present difficulty with compromising and yielding to one another, plus your pessimism about staying together, suggest you will be easily discouraged when adjustments are called for.

One such couple in counseling recently realized that their conflicts had a good bit to do with their family of origins. His mother had often hysterically screamed and cried in efforts to raise him. When his partner began to raise her voice or feel hurt by not getting a desired response—affection, friendship, agreement—he would withdraw and resist her. This was largely due to a decision to never let another woman make him feel as badly as his mother had. She, on the other hand, desperately needed a comforting partner to provide some nurturing for her that she had never felt in her troubled relationship with her own father.

As they found ways to separate their personal problems from the present, they could see and respond to one another more appropriately.

Q. My boyfriend and I cannot go on living together because I'm always edgy and worried about what my family would say if they knew. He has just been divorced and feels he needs me but is afraid to get married again. What should I do?

A. You sound interested in your boyfriend and family's feelings, but torn between them. It would be sad to have to lose your family's respect and difficult to be at odds with those who care about you. Perhaps though, it is also your own discomfort with your relationship with your boyfriends that is putting you on edge. If so, you are heading for guilt and problems over not fully being able to enjoy this relationship. If you are compromising your self-esteem because you care for your boyfriend, you both may lose some of the good feelings you have for one another as guilt sets in. While guilt is not a good reason to do something, that is where you are at the time. You may, therefore, want to look for a different way to enjoy this relationship. If marriage comes in the picture later, fine.

Your boyfriend must have much leftover pain from his first marriage. It often takes time to risk again as close a tie as marriage. Encourage him to talk with you or another person about his experience. If this relationship is valuable to you, give it time and room to grow.

Fort Worth artist to be honored

Artist Laura Sawyer of Fort Worth will be honored with a tea from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday in the Midland Woman's Club in Hogan Park. The announcement was made during a Woman's Club meeting recently.

Mrs. Sawyer's paintings will be displayed in the Woman's Club during March.

An announcement also was made by Mrs. William N. Sands that a scholarship had been given to a student nurse at Angelo State University and three scholarships to Midland College students.

A new glass front door and new guard shields have been installed on all fluorescent lights in the building, according to a report by the house and building furnishings committee. New ovens and a dish washer are to be installed in the future.

Kathy Eudy of the Junior Woman's Club thanked the Women's Club for participation in the recent style show at the Midland Hilton. She asked all members to attend the 10th annual "Parade of Homes" slated April 22 as the Junior Woman's Club project to benefit the infant care fund at Midland Memorial Hospital.

On March 15, the Midland Garden Club, hostess group, will have a program entitled "Challenge to a Nation," for the March 26 meeting of the Woman's Club at 9 a.m.

Mrs. Aldridge Estes Jr. and Mrs. Joe Feagan were announced as new members at the February luncheon.

DAR chapter hears Carter

The Lt. William Brewer Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met Tuesday afternoon at the Midland Woman's Club to hear Patti Hall Carter give a program on "Toys, Games and Books of Our Heritage."

Dr. Dorothy Wyvell gave the national defense report and presented a resolution, which was passed by the members, for presentation to the state resolutions committee.

Mrs. Carter, wearing her great-grandmother's apron of organdy and lace, displayed dolls, toys, books and samplers from earlier periods. She included her own collection of antique iron toys. The centerpiece for tables were modern children's toys. Mrs. Carter closed with a reading from "Child's Garden of Verses."

Following the program, tea, coffee and cake were served by the hostesses, Mrs. T. V. Dwyer, Mrs. A. W. Pogue, Mrs. Charles E. Prichard and Dr. Wyvell.

'Annie' star ready to retire and be a kid

By CONNIE GRZELKA
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — "Annie" star Kathy-Jo Kelly says "every kid in America wants to be Annie." But after two years with the hit show, Kathy-Jo is ready to go home and "just be a kid."

The 12-year-old remembers when she was an orphan in the Broadway cast and in awe of Andrea McArdle, the first "Annie."

But after doing the show in New York, Toronto, Washington, St. Louis, Boston and Detroit, Kathy-Jo is leaving at the end of its run at the Fisher Theater here in April. "Annie" travels to Chicago next.

The denim-clad, red-haired star kicked off her clunky leather boots, slumped on the couch of the Grosse Pointe home she and her mother are using as their base, and said:

"It's like two people are pulling my arms — show business and being a kid."

Kathy-Jo explains, "I think I've grown three years in eight months on the road. I really think I've matured a lot because of the pressure I've been under."

"In a way, it's good, and in a way bad ... I miss my family and friends, but it's an education by itself."

The 4-foot-11, blue-eyed actress from New York says there have been offers for television programs she might look into, but the main thing on her agenda is "going home, and back to school and being like everyone else."

Her mother, Penny Carroll, a member of the show's chorus, chips in, "That's one of her greatest qualities, she's just a kid. She's so natural — I'd hate to see her lose that."

Kathy-Jo is afraid friends won't treat her the way they used to: "It's just really different."

She's had nasty encounters with envious youngsters before, her mother said, but school kids in the exclusive Detroit suburb and other towns they visited have been friendly, and a lot of new friends stop by the house after school.

But every new stop on the show's road tour means making new friends all over again, then having to say goodbye.

The things Kathy-Jo is pining for are simple. They include: "After-school stuff ... TV at night ... Going to school full time ... and boys."

"The kids don't know how much I miss all that. Now I want to do that, and before I wanted to do this — so I'm all confused."

Kathy-Jo will be going back home alone, though. Miss Carroll is staying in the chorus, so the youngster's stockbroker dad and her 16-year-old sister will be welcoming only one actress back this time.

She and her mom are close, and Kathy-Jo finds "it's sort of comforting to turn around and see her on stage. I like it a lot."

Miss Carroll, who also was a child actress and appears in shows occasionally, said, "Acting is a tremendous sacrifice to childhood. I didn't want any of my children in the theater. I've even resisted and turned down offers for Kathy-Jo. But this entire thing just snowballed on us."

Even when she gets back to New York, Kathy-Jo expects it will be hard to adjust, but like the intrepid Annie she portrays, says, "I can do it if I want."

Kathy-Jo's career started at age 3. She took a break until 8, and had been doing commercials, television, theater and modeling until she joined the hit about the frizzy-haired comic-strip heroine.

She says she'll decide in a few months if she wants to continue in show biz. If she rules it out, she says child psychology could be her career choice.

"A lot of my friends have so many problems. They don't know what to do with them and fall apart." With the tone of someone much past her 12 years, she adds, "We have to stabilize ourselves."

Preceptor Epsilon Delta has cultural program

The Preceptor Epsilon Delta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority met with Edna Sexton, 2309 Fannin St., Thursday for a business session and cultural program.

Mrs. Sexton presented a two part program, one on the breeding and care of cats as household pets, and one on Avon bottle collecting.

The program followed the chapter's theme of "Show and Tell of One's Hobbies." Mrs. Sexton showed a three week old litter of kittens and displayed her bottle collection, giving a perfume bottle as the hostess gift.

Marlyn Butler, social chairman, and Joann Gardner, membership chairman, announced their plans for a March 15 luncheon for Beta Sigma Phi's of 10 years active membership who are eligible to receive the Preceptor Degree.

Martha Jo McNair, 2823 Cimmaron St., will be the hostess for the luncheon.

University has course on money

NEW YORK (AP) — "Women and Money," a course offered as part of the Women's Studies Program in New York University's School of Continuing Education, is designed to help the woman who wants to handle her own finances with confidence.

Topics covered include money management, insurance, housing, choosing financial advisers, investments, tax-saving possibilities, future planning and the financial aspects of marriage, divorce and living together.

DEAR ABBY

Wedding strife: Dad's new wife

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am planning my wedding and need some advice. My parents were divorced four years ago. Dad married again last year. Mom is still single and has a lot of bitterness toward Dad, although I must say in all fairness that she nagged him so much he did well to stay married to her as long as he did.

Also, Dad didn't meet Joyce (his present wife) until his divorce was final, so no one can say she broke up his marriage.

Abby, I want my wedding to be perfect. I want Dad to give me away, and I want Mom and Dad to be there as a couple on that day. Mom doesn't want to face Dad's new wife, and if Dad brings her it will spoil everything for Mom.

My minister says I should invite Dad and Joyce. Should I? Deep down, I hope Joyce will be wise enough to let Dad come alone, but what if she decides to come with him?

Please help me. — IN BETWEEN

DEAR IN: If you're old enough to be married, you're old enough to accept the fact that your parents are divorced and your father has another wife. Quit living in the past when your mother and father were a couple, and get on with the business of living life as it is. Invite your father and Joyce, and let them decide whether Joyce stays home or accompanies her husband.

DEAR ABBY: I have on occasion found the man I date sucking his thumb while watching TV or napping. He is 41.

This shocked me, so I called his attention to it. He became very defensive and quite irritated, and an argument ensued.

Abby, do other adults regress to this kind of infantile behavior? Is this serious enough to require professional help? — WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Yes, other adults have been known to regress to thumb-sucking when they're tired or in need of relaxation and comfort. Aside from the humiliation and teasing they might suffer if this babyish habit is discovered, there's no harm done. If your friend is mature in other ways, overlook it.

DEAR ABBY: To GRANNY, whose grandchildren never send thank-you notes for the gifts she sends:

Don't blame the kids. It's their parents' fault!

I never knew if my grandson received my gifts since he never bothered to thank me for them. One day while talking on the phone with my son, I asked, "Did Jamie ever get the present I sent him?"

My son called out, "Hey, Jamie, did you ever get Grandma's present?"

Then I heard someone yell, "Yeah. Tell her thanks."

Well, that did it. Now I send greeting cards. And if the subject ever comes up, I will explain why. — FED UP WITH BAD MANNERS

DEAR FED UP: I'm sure your cards conveyed the message.

Are your problems too heavy to handle alone? Let Abby help you. For a personal unpublished reply, write: Abby in care of this newspaper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Julia Ward Howe remembered best for poem, not crusading

By JOHN J. MULLINS
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — She was a 19th century abolitionist, crusader for the women's movement and other social causes, but Julia Ward Howe is best remembered for a 20-line poem for which she was paid $5.

The poem, set to the music of "John Brown's Body," was "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." The Atlantic Monthly published it in 1862 and paid Mrs. Howe $5.

Mrs. Howe's great-grandniece, Deborah Pickman Clifford of Cornwall, Vt., author of "Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory," a biography of Mrs. Howe published last month by Atlantic-Little, Brown, doesn't consider being remembered for the poem rather than social reform unfortunate.

"I don't think so, because that's really what she was known for at the time," Mrs. Clifford said in a recent interview.

"She was asked to recite it ... and to tell how she wrote it. In her lifetime she was as well known for the 'Battle Hymn' ... as for being a poet, a reformer ..."

"I don't think she minded that terribly," Mrs. Clifford said. "I think she would rather be remembered for one poem than for one cause because the poem was sort of a national anthem."

The lines of the poem came to Mrs. Howe as she lay awake waiting for dawn in a hotel room in Washington the morning after Confederate soldiers attacked the Union troops she was watching on review.

Mrs. Howe, whose lectures were more popular than her writings, was active in several causes before her death in 1910 at the age of 91.

"She was never known solely as a suffragist and was dismissed at the time by women suffragists as not being single-minded enough. I think we could say her chief concern was the general uplift of humanity," Mrs. Clifford said.

She said it is difficult to know what Mrs. Howe would be like if alive today. Woman's position has changed; her education, good for its time, would be different, and she would be better-informed about more things. But she probably would be an activist.

"She was by no means a radical," Mrs. Clifford said. "She felt that for women themselves, the domestic life was the ideal."

She would have approved of equal pay for men and women, and as for women getting out more in the world, "I think she would approve of that as long as they didn't neglect their families," she said.

"The fact that she was always so forward-looking in her own time, she would be the same today. She was an optimist then; she would be the same today. She made it very clear that as far as she was concerned, the world was getting better ..."

"She would remain an optimist but a conservative in terms of the women's movement."

Mrs. Clifford, whose husband is a history professor at Middlebury College in Vermont, earned a master's degree in American history from the University of Vermont to prepare herself for writing the biography.

Burnet wins Merit award

Burnet Elementary School has received a certificate of Exceptional Merit and has been placed on the National School Safety Honor Roll of the National Safety Council, Schools Superintendent James H. Mailey said Tuesday.

This is the first time the school has received this honor, he noted. "We are encouraged by this recognition of our efforts to build a good safety education program," Burnet Principal Clint Adams said. "We will continue to teach our young people to protect themselves and their fellow students as long as accidents remain the chief cause of death among school-age children."

To gain a place on this honor roll, a school must present a detailed report of its safety program to a local committee. Upon recommendation of the committee, the report is forwarded to the National Safety Council to be listed on the honor roll.

Judge suffers loss by theft

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Wyandotte County District Court Judge John Mahoney has had his gavel stolen from the top of his bench.

Mahoney believes it disappeared a day before he discovered the loss, but he admits it could have been missing for as long as 10 days.

"I don't have much use for it to pound lawyers into submission," he said, chuckling.

House vetoes budget slashes

WASHINGTON—Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Feb. 22 through Feb. 28.

HOUSE

$2 BILLION CONGRESS? The House approved, 249 for and 121 against, a $2.44 billion budget for the Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee. This will fund committee operations during 1979, including salaries for the 100-plus staff members.

Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., a of the 96th Congress to demonstrate a real...commitment to the balanced budget concept so widely supported by the American people."

Members voting "yea" opposed the balanced-budget language.

Wilson, Roberts, Mattox, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, Wright, Hightower, de la Garza, Leland, Gonzalez, Kazen and Frost voted "yea." Hall, Collins, Gramm, Archer, Leath, Wyatt, White, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler and Paul voted "nay."

SENATE

FILIBUSTER The Senate voted, 78 for and 16 against, to make it more difficult for a minority of senators to tie up floor business with extended debate. This rules change put an end to the so-called "post-cloture filibuster." Under that now-prohibited strategy, senators could keep a filibuster going even after its cloture had been voted, by means of introducing hundreds of amendments. The rule imposed by this vote in essence sets a limit of 100 hours debate after cloture has been voted.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., a supporter, said: "I believe that this is the area of self-discipline, and we all have to discipline ourselves...We have got to do that lest we destroy the nature of this body."

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, an opponent, said "our real problem is how do you accommodate the guarantee of rights for each individual member of the Senate and, at the same time, preserve the inviolability of the 100-hour cap?"

Senators voting "yea" favored tightening filibuster rules.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D, voted "yea."

Sen. John Tower, R, voted "nay."

AVIATION FUEL The Senate failed, 34 for and 53 against, to postpone and possibly prevent the removal of federal price and allocation controls from airplane-fuel. This vote was on a motion to pry the Administration decontrol measure from the Energy Committee and send it to the floor, where it stood the possibility of being vetoed by the full Senate. Either the Senate or House may veto an Administration energy proposal such as this deregulation of both general and commercial aviation fuel. As a result of this vote and inaction by the House, the deregulation took effect Feb. 24.

Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, a supporter of killing the decontrol plan, said decontrol would raise prices of other types of oil, and asked: "How can we possibly justify decontrolling an oil product at the same time we are giving serious thought to rationing?"

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., said: "There is no reason to continue controlling a product when its users want it decontrolled, and when the ultimate beneficiaries, the airplane passengers, are certainly better off than the average American."

Senators voting "nay" favored removing federal controls from aviation fuel.

Bentsen and Tower voted "nay."

ROLL CALL REPORT

supporter of the full $2.44 billion banking committee outlay, said: "We are dealing with a $3 trillion economy, and members up here (are) asking such absurd things, or making such absurd statements, as to say that we are in a never-ending upward spiral, that we have a billion dollar Congress. Maybe it ought to be a $2 billion Congress, to operate a little bit more efficiently."

Rep. Ron Paul, R-Tex., an opponent, said: "If this Congress is serious about reducing bureaucracy, cutting waste, balancing the budget and reforming regulations, then let it begin at home by slashing funds" from committee budgets. Paul favored cutting every committee budget by 25 percent.

Members voting "yea" favored the higher budget for the banking committee.

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-2, Jim Mattox, D-5, Bob Eckhardt, D-8, Jack Brooks, D-9, James Wright, D-12, Jack Hightower, D-13, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Richard White, D-18, Charles Stenholm, D-17, Mickey Leland, D-18, Kent Hance, D-19, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, Abraham Kazen, D-23, and Martin Frost, D-24, voted "yea."

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, James Collins, R-3, Bill Archer, R-7, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, Tom Loeffler, R-21, and Ron Paul, R-22, voted "nay."

Reps. Ray Roberts, D-4, Phil Gramm, D-6, Jake Pickle, D-10, and Kika de la Garza, D-15, did not vote.

BALANCED BUDGET The House quashed, 222 for and 197 against, a budget-cutting gesture put forth by fiscal conservatives. With this vote, it refused to call up for debate an amendment which, if adopted, would have required the House to spell out "a method through which a balanced federal budget shall be required."

Fiscal conservatives acknowledged that their balanced-budget language was mostly symbolic. The vote came during debate on HR 18964, a bill to increase the national debt ceiling above its soon-to-be-reached $798 billion level. HR 18964 was later defeated.

Members who voted to quash the balanced-budget amendment wanted the fewest possible amendments to be offered to the debt-ceiling bill, which they favored. One of them, Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., called the conservatives' amendment not germane to the debt ceiling bill and said "in the end it will be a futility."

Rep. John Rousselot, R-Calif., who voted "nay," said it is essential for the House "on the first important vote

Stevens executive denies union boycott effective

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—A union boycott of J.P. Stevens & Co., the nation's second largest textile firm, has failed to hurt the company, Stevens Chairman James D. Finley told the company's annual stockholder's meeting Tuesday.

"The textile union continues to harass the company by continually filing charges and working through churches, church organizations, politicians, universities, students and the like to boycott the purchase of your company's products," he said.

"These tactics, however, have not proven successful, as you can readily see by our published financial statement."

Finley said profits for the company's first quarter, which ended Feb. 3, climbed 35.7 percent to $9.7 million or 75 cents a share from $7.1 million or 56 cents a share in the same period last year.

The boycott of Stevens' products is sponsored by the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union, which has been engaged for years in a struggle with Stevens to organize workers at the textile manufacturer's Southern plants. It has won one election, but has been unable to negotiate a contract.

New ritual for today's lovers

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — From time to time I like to dip into the latest paperback best sellers to find out what's going on in the sandbox of life beyond the reach of the daily newspapers and evening TV news reports.

Jimmy Carter, Deng Xiaoping (Teng Hsiao-ping) and Khomeini may grab the headlines and the prime time exposure, but they're not where it's at, gut-wise, in the beauty parlor or on the supermarket checkout line.

It's from what the great English essayist Thomas Macaulay called "the last fashionable novel on the table of young ladies" that you learn about the real world of the heart and the emotions, the sudden, subtle changes that are taking place in our society.

A columnist can't afford to fall too far behind in the latest trends if he intends to go on being provocative, profound and discreetly represented on the payroll.

Which is why I am grateful to Mary Gordon's "Final Payments," as the blurb on the cover blurbs this is "the international best seller everyone is talking about."

And no wonder. It lets readers in on the new way lovers have of letting each other know they're in love. Apparently, they don't send Valentines any more or go around carving their initials inside a big heart transfixed by an arrow on tree trunks. The ritual is much more intimate.

But first, a word about Ms. Gordon's lovers.

"Final Payments," as you must know if everyone is talking about it, is the story of Isabel Moore, a nice convent-bred Catholic girl who at 30 suddenly faces the world with "its promises of passion and pleasure" after a decade of looking after her stern invalid father, who has just died.

"Hungry for life," as the blurb says, she falls desperately in love with Hugh Slade, a Quaker, a veterinarian, married to a shrewish wife but devoted to his children. He is graying, going bald but has "a classic back," whatever that is. Anyhow, it turns Isabel on.

At Christmas, the illicit lovers exchange presents. He gives her "Northanger Abbey" — "bound in green leather, with pages mottled like a plover's eggs" — because he knows she is hooked on Jane Austen.

With the gift, he reveals the startling new way that lovers have for proclaiming their love to each other.

I wonder if it will catch on.

Since this is a first person novel, Isabel describes the experience: "... He had read it himself first; he wanted to be sure, he said, of what he was giving me. He told me I must look very carefully because he had plucked hairs from the rims of his ears and stuck them on the pages he liked. He said it was a nervous habit; he tweezed the hairs in his ears when he read, but this way it would remind me of him.

"I think there's a little skin on the end of them that makes them kind of adhesive," he said.

"That made me love him again."

In fact, Isabel adds, that idea of sticking ear hairs in the pages made her love Hugh "above all other men."

I tried to imagine what Phillis at our fine little library would do about young lovers who page-marked Jane Austen with ear hairs. Were they already on the lookout for smitten swains trying to sneak a pair of tweezers into the reading room? I tried to think how Jane Austen would sound if Mr. Darcy began plucking at his ear rims in the drawing room at Netherfield to present bookmarks to the Bennet girls.

Getting back to the lovers, Isabel gives Hugh a Swiss army knife.

Since this is the international best seller everyone is talking about, everyone has got to be talking about his reaction:

"He opened the blades, each of them separately, and looked at them with a pure, material absorption that would not have been possible for me, for my father, Father Mulcahy, or for anyone who had been brought up in the Catholic Church."

Right there you realize the social, religious and moral gulf that separates these two ear hair-crossed lovers.

Apparently a cat may look on a king, as the 16th century proverb notes, but a Catholic may not look on a Swiss army knife, at least not with the pure, material absorption of a Protestant and a Quaker.

Some friends dropped by the other night, and by way of being provocative I took out my Swiss army knife and passed it around. I'd bought it myself, so there were no intimations of love hidden among the blades, but I wanted to gauge the reaction for myself.

The lawyer up the road, a Catholic, said he had never seen one before with a fish skinning device. My Jewish neighbor, a retired sales manager, wondered why they still hadn't added a triangular beer can opener.

Sure enough, insurance man, a Protestant, opened all the blades, one at a time, but I couldn't say for sure whether his expression was one of pure, material absorption.

"Needs oiling," he said.

But the good looking blonde divorcee who just rented a house on the other side of the lake did find the little pair of tweezers near the plastic toothpick.

Turns out she hates Jane Austen. And everybody that night talked about a different book, one about the black plague, a new international best seller that everyone is talking about.

I'll have to get with it, but I hate to think what they used for book markers then.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Protein may harm

Dear Dr. Solomon: My 18-year-old son wants to continue his athletic career in college. Since he anticipates much greater competition on the college level than what he faced in high school, he has embarked on a body-building program which includes protein supplements. Two questions: Do the protein supplements do him any good? Can they do him any harm? — Mr. G.S.

Dear Mr. S.: The answer to your first question is "no;" to your second question, "possibly." If your son has a well-balanced diet, the ingestion of protein supplements is of no value—except, perhaps, to the person who sells them to him.

Both athletes and nonathletes require the same amount of protein foods. Protein does not increase strength and it is not stored in the body. Moreover, excess protein intake can lead to dehydration, loss of appetite and diarrhea, conditions certainly not conducive to athletic achievement.

However, athletes do have a need for more calories. For my patients who are athletes I recommend they get about 15 percent of their calories from protein, 30 percent from fat, and 55 percent from carbohydrate.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My four-year-old son has been on the special diet for phenylketonuria. When will he be able to have a normal diet? — Mrs. I.Z.

Dear Mrs. Z.: I'm afraid not very soon. Taking your son off his restricted diet can cause behavioral changes as well as a decrease in IQ.

Dr. Barbara Cabalska, of Poland's National Research Institute for Mother and Child in Warsaw, has reported on a study of 22 patients with phenylketonuria (PKU). Twenty children were on the PKU diet an average of 65 months, while the others had gone off the diet after an average of about 28 months. Children in both groups showed a drop in IQ, and many developed learning disabilities. While they were on the diet, almost all the children had normal electroencephalograms (EEG's); after the diet was ended, only a third were normal.

Dr. Richard Koch, clinical professor of pediatrics at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles, supports Dr. Cabalska's findings. He is studying 155 children, 52 of them over six years of age, and half of these off the special diet. Early results show that those no longer dieting have experienced a decrease in IQ and exhibit EEG abnormalities. Dr. Koch recommends that children stick with the restricted diet or go back to it if it has been abandoned.

Unfortunately, once children are freed from the restrictions, they find it difficult to get back on the regimen, which is a difficult one to follow. It is hoped that an effective modified diet can eventually be developed for older children and adults.

Kennedy urges 8,000 refugees be admitted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight thousand Russian and Eastern European refugees now stuck in Rome should be permitted to come to the United States without further delay, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Tuesday.

The refugees are mainly Russians Jews with relatives or friends in the United States, Kennedy said.

Their numbers are increasing every day, and many of the refugees have been in Rome for three or four months, he said.

In a letter, Kennedy called on Attorney General Griffin Bell to use his authority to admit or parole refugees for humanitarian reasons.

The refugees would eventually come to the United States anyway and Kennedy urged Bell to speed the process "and help avoid needless personal hardship for thousands."

Billy admitted to alcohol abuse center

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Billy Carter, the president's beer-guzzling brother, has been admitted to the alcohol abuse center where Betty Ford and Sen. Herman Talmadge underwent intensive treatment.

The 41-year-old Carter, who once said his beer drinking has been exaggerated but that "some days maybe I drink 20 to 25 beers," was spirited into the sprawling Long Beach Naval Hospital Tuesday evening while reporters were kept away from the admitting area.

A brief statement released by the hospital said only that Carter "has been admitted as a voluntary patient" and was under the care of Dr. Joseph Pursch, the head of the facility's alcohol and drug rehabilitation unit.

Pursch also was in charge of caring for Mrs. Ford in 1978 and Sen. Talmadge of Georgia earlier this year. Both suffered from alcoholism problems. In addition, the former first lady became dependent on drugs taken to relieve arthritic pain.

MEDICAL EXPERTS consider the Long Beach facility's alcoholism treatment program one of the best in the country.

Lt. Cmdr. F.W. Ohnemus, officer of the day at the medical facility, said he could not say for certain under what authority the president's brother was brought to the hospital. But he added, "The secretary of defense can designate whoever he wants to be admitted, and I am assuming he was a secretary-designate."

As to who would pay the bill for Carter's treatment, Ohnemus said, "I assume he will receive a bill the same as any other civilian at the rate of $266 a day. Whether he will pay it or an insurance company will pay it, I don't know at this time."

Carter was admitted only hours after leaving the Americus-Sumter County Hospital in Americus, Ga., where he underwent 10 days of treatment for bronchitis, hospital administrator James Griffith said.

THE WASHINGTON Star reported last week that White House physician William Lukash had been seeking help for Carter from specialists in alcohol rehabilitation. At a recent press conference, President Carter said his brother was "seriously ill" but he did not elaborate.

Carter's problem dates back to the early 1960s when his drinking nearly broke up his marriage, according to a book written by his sister, evangelist Ruth Carter Stapleton.

She wrote that Carter's wife, Sybil, "rarely criticized her man, but they had come close to divorce when oceans of beer began to separate them."

Carter attended meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous for three months markedly cutting his alcoholic intake, Mrs. Stapleton wrote. But Carter said he returned to the beer can on a large scale after reporters invaded tiny Plains, Ga., when his brother was running for president.

"THERE WERE about 100 reporters in Plains, sitting down there with nothing to do, trying to cook up stories," Carter said in a television talk show filmed in California last fall. "That's how it got started."

President Carter was elected in 1976, and Billy received even more attention from the media, being pictured drinking beer in front of his Plains gas station.

In 1977, he loaned his name to Billy Beer, which the label touted as being "brewed especially for and with the approval of one of America's all-time great beer drinkers."

At one time, Billy quipped, "Who knows? Maybe I'll become the Col. Sanders of beer," referring to Harlan Sanders, the fried chicken magnate.

The beer had a heavy, caramel taste and eventually was taken off the market for lack of sales.

Billy claimed his beer-drinking prowess was exaggerated.

"AIN'T NO way I could drink as much as they say I do," he once remarked. "Some days maybe I drink 20 to 25 beers. But not every day."

Officials at the Long Beach hospital have been unwilling to publicly discuss details of the alcohol treatment program, although Mrs. Ford was quoted in a recent magazine article as saying it includes group encounter sessions.

Both Mrs. Ford and Talmadge said after being released that they would continue involvement in group activities related to the rehabilitation program.

Contest winners perform in recitals

Piano students who were named first place winners in the annual Sonata-Sonatina-Concerto Contest held under auspices of the Midland Music Teachers Association recently were presented in a pair of recitals at Midland College, where the contest took place.

Second and third place winners in the yearly competition also were named, but were not heard in recital.

The first place recitalists from Midland, as well as from a number of area cities, were as follows:

Perry McIntosh, Doug Daehling, Marjorie Star, Jenny Laengrich, Harlan Abbott, Melody Stewart, Celia Hobbs, Lori Westbrook, Scott Morris, Tracy Williams, Ginny Carl, Leslie Finkbeiner, Degen Donnelly, Julie Greaves, David Tsai, Julie Tittle, Tommy Nunez, Kelli Rush, Alan Reed, John Latham, Diane Duff, Shelly Pope, Becky Gee, Stacie Wetzel, Wendy Pruet, Shawn McCarter, Nell Fullinwider, Marsha Southerland, Janell Strobel, Jannifer Crawford, Toby Todd, Katherine George, Jimmy O'Neill and Teresa Brown, all of Midland.

Other winners included Laurie Hester and Shelly Baldwin from Andrews, Tammy Blair from Monahan, and Brandi Hayworth, Tami Denton, Latisha Crawford, Pherecia Idleman, Jeff Hines, Caroline Starling and Allison Cannon, all from Hobbs, N.M.

Officials say Sherman church fire was work of arsonist

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — Someone deliberately set the fire that destroyed the parsonage of the controversy-racked First United Pentecostal Church, fire officials say.

Fire Marshal Reese Bowen said flammable liquid was discovered in the charred ruins of the $60,000 brick home, which was ravaged by fire Monday night. No one was injured.

"We have determined it was arson," said Fire Marshal Reese Bowen Tuesday. "We've got some leads we're following out."

Fire inspector C.H. Battles said the arsonist went into the house through a shattered window and sloshed the liquid around the bedroom.

"They had to, the way it burned," Battles said.

Sherman police dispatched 18 officers to the fire scene to control the crowd that gathered outside the blazing parsonage. Police Chief Johnny Burleson said tensions mounted during a brief confrontation between church members and newsmen.

The parsonage was the home of embattled Rev. Charles E. Glass, who was in Lufkin to appear before the denomination's Board of Presbyters investigating allegations by two other ministers and by former members of Glass' denomination, that Glass should be stripped of his ministerial credentials.

More than 150 persons have left the church over the past four years. Glass and his wife have been accused of becoming obsessed with demons, of splitting families and of berating former members from the pulpit.

The deliberations in Lufkin of statewide leaders in the church were conducted in private and featured 12 hours of testimony Tuesday. The board began deliberating its next step late Tuesday night.

The Rev. T. L. Holley, district superintendent, said Glass and 10 others rebutted testimony of six persons who spoke against Glass.

Holley said board members would remain in Lufkin until a decision is reached.

They could exonerate Glass, censure him, place him on probation or withdraw his ministerial credentials.

Glass will receive an automatic trial by a jury of Pentecostal pastors if the board decides to revoke his ministerial credentials. In the case of such a trial, the pastors' decision would be final.

The arson angle was a subject of speculation immediately after the fire because of the split between present and former church members.

Ratings for MTM show disappointing

NEW YORK (AP) — Mary Tyler Moore's first effort of the season, a comedy-variety show on CBS called "Mary," lasted only a few weeks. The extraordinary Miss Moore returned to prime-time Sunday, and the ratings for her new show were far from spectacular.

"The Mary Tyler Moore Hour" on CBS was 29th of 63 programs rated by the A.C. Nielsen Co. during the week ending March 4.

Indeed, another CBS show aired for the first time Sunday, "Stockard Channing in Just Friends," did much better, 14th in the ratings.

CBS, in fact, had four shows in the Top 15, including No. 5 "60 Minutes" and "All in the Family" in ninth place. But it was ABC, with seven of the week's 10 top-rated shows, that came in first overall.

That's nothing new. ABC has been first eight weeks in a row, and 20 of 25 weeks this season.

The week was marked by a return to normal programming. February was perhaps the most competitive month in the medium's history, with programs like "Roots: The Next Generations."

THFC receives application

AUSTIN—The Texas Health Facilities Commission has received an application from Malone-Hogan Hospital, Inc. of Big Spring to purchase and operate a new Rohnar 5580 diagnostic ultrasound system.

If the application is protested by March 12, it will be set for a public hearing.

If there is no protest, the application may be referred to THFC voting session.

Representative makes third run at requiring liability insurance

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, says car insurance premiums will rise slightly if everyone must buy liability coverage, but Texans pay for the accidents of uninsured drivers anyway.

Green appeared Tuesday before the House Insurance Committee, making his third run in as many legislative sessions to pass a compulsory liability insurance bill.

"I am still concerned about that person out there who is not concerned about himself.... I protect that person with my liability insurance, but here I am also protecting me from him with my uninsured motorist or collision premiums," Green said.

His bill would require motorists to prove they have liability coverage in order to get their license plates.

A driver would have to carry an identification card from his insurance company and present it upon demand to a policeman.

Green said 29 percent of all Texas drivers do not have liability insurance and predicted the figure would rise to 32 percent by April, based on a steady rise in uninsured motorists.

In Dallas County, he said, 30 percent are uninsured, 37 percent in Harris County, 45 percent in El Paso County and 60 percent in Webb County.

Texas drivers never will be 100 percent insured, he said, but he predicted the bill would raise the current 71 percent to 80 to 85 percent.

Green said premiums probably would rise because a lot of bad drivers would become part of the rate base.

"But the damage being done now by those uninsured drivers — it is being paid for through our collision premiums or our uninsured motorist premiums or out of our own pockets," Green said.

His bill was endorsed by lobbyists for the American Automobile Association and groups of retired persons.

J. Sam Winters of Austin, lobbyist for the Association of Fire and Casualty Companies in Texas, said mandatory liability has not worked in other states.

He called it "an exercise in futility" that raises premiums, costs tax dollars to administer and never achieves full liability coverage of all drivers.

"The established fact is that has been tried and has proven itself to be a failure, a detriment rather than a benefit," Winters said.

Higher premiums for speeders gets legislator's opposition

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Extra insurance premiums for speeding convictions are "unjustified" and a "rip-off" by insurance companies, Rep. Walter Grubbs, D-Abilene, said Tuesday.

He said there ought to be a law, and urged the House Insurance Committee to give House members a chance to debate his bill prohibiting the surcharges.

Drivers with two speeding tickets in a 12-month period pay about 15 percent more for their car insurance, and the penalty lasts for three years. Surcharges continue to pile up if one gets additional speeding tickets.

The surcharges are imposed by a State Insurance Board rule.

Grubbs said the surcharges total about $13 million a year and most result from driving between the legal limit of 55 miles per hour and the old limit of 70 mph on the highway.

Grubbs said there is no connection between the number of speeding tickets a person has and how safe a driver he or she might be.

"I have a good friend who seems to get a ticket every month, and he is not an unsafe driver. He is just in a hurry. He is trying to make a living," he said.

Grubbs said, "We are all in a hurry and always looking for a Smokey."

"That's why I carry a fuzzi-duster and a CB," said Rep. Jim Browder, D-Coldspring, an insurance agent.

Richard Geiger, lobbyist for the Association of Fire and Casualty Companies in Texas, said insurance companies don't like the surcharges, which amount to only 1.47 percent of their premiums.

"The bill will gather is not worth that," he said.

Attorney released

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Attorney Marvin Mitchelson has been released from a hospital after treatment for a severe coughing attack, which halted the Lee Marvin trial and brought paramedics to the courtroom.

The trial, which focuses on the issue of property rights of unmarried couples, was scheduled to resume today.

Mitchelson, who represents Michelle Triola Marvin, was taken from the courtroom Tuesday on a stretcher with a sheet pulled up over his mouth.

Paramedics administered oxygen in a jury room, then took him to Queen of Angels Hospital, where he underwent several hours of tests. He was discharged late Tuesday afternoon.

A secretary at Mitchelson's office said, "It looks like he's going to be all right."

The coughing attack struck while Mitchelson was cross-examining another attorney, Louis Goldman, and the two were clashing angrily.

Suddenly Mitchelson began coughing. He reached for a glass of water, swallowed several gulps, but doubled over with more coughing. He bolted from the courtroom into a nearby jury room.

A bailiff administered first aid to the lawyer when he began to turn blue.

One-year delay of ban sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress will be asked immediately to hold up for one year any ban on nitrite that might be ordered because of its suspected link to cancer, says Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland.

The moratorium would be sought so a federal law which now prohibits any known cancer-causing food additive can be modified, he said.

An industry group, the American Meat Institute, contends that "no ban on the use of nitrite currently is on the horizon" because evidence is weak that it causes cancer.

The Agriculture Department and the Food and Drug Administration have asked for a legal opinion from the Justice Department on whether nitrite can be phased out gradually, as the two agencies prefer, or must be banned altogether if it is shown to be a cause of cancer.

Bergland said Tuesday if Justice determines that the law is so explicit that it requires an "abrupt end to nitrite" in cured meats and that "we don't have authority for this gradual phase-down, we're immediately going to the Congress and ask for a one-year moratorium, within which we'll try to amend the basic law."

Last August the government released a three-year study by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology that appeared to show nitrates cause cancer in some animals and may do so in humans.

The FDA and Bergland's department want a phased withdrawal of nitrite as other means become available to protect consumers from deadly botulism, a form of food poisoning the preservatives are said to prevent.

If the Justice Department determines that a phase-out is illegal, then the FDA and Agriculture Department must abandon that course, barring congressional intervention.

Bergland, who made his comments in a telephone interview with a group of farm broadcasters, said if nitrite is banned outright, "we would almost certainly have a very major health problem with food poisoning" and that the subject needs "to be handled very carefully."

The agriculture secretary said his department and the FDA are working on "suggested tolerances" for food additives suspected of causing cancer.

"I suspect it's going to be a highly emotional issue, because critics of some sort of tolerance will argue that we're allowing a little bit of cancer" in the food supply, he said.

"I don't think they can prove that contention," Bergland said. "I don't think anybody can establish clearly the linkage between additives and cancer, especially when additives are used in minute amounts, as is often the case these days."

Even so, he said, "a lot of passion is introduced, and that sometimes overwhelms our better judgment."

In its current newsletter, the American Meat Institute says it believes "that no valid scientific evidence exists which would justify a ban, even under the expected attorney general's decision" being awaited by USDA and FDA.

Police union to appeal contempt of court fine

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The city's police union, which directed a 16-day strike that disrupted Mardi Gras festivities and cost New Orleans millions in tourist dollars, says it will appeal a $600,000 fine for contempt of court.

Civil District Judge Richard Garvey imposed the fine Tuesday against the Teamsters union-affiliated Police Association of Louisiana. The city had asked for a $9.6 million fine.

Garvey, ruling that the union failed to comply with his back-to-work orders, said he based the final figure on a statutory maximum of $500 multiplied by the 1,200 or so union members who participated in the walkout, which collapsed last weekend.

"The sentence should meet the offense and the offense was monumental," said City Attorney Donald Hoffman, in asking for a fine of $500 for each of the strikers multiplied by each day of the strike. "The orders of this court have been disobeyed and something must be done."

Union lawyer Sidney Bach argued that the city was partly to blame in dragging out the strike, during which National Guardsmen and state police aided nonstriking officers in protecting the city.

Left pending was an arrest warrant for Teamsters negotiator Joseph Valenti of Detroit, who did not appear in court Monday. Valenti apparently left town before the strike collapsed.

Midlanders attend conference

Four West Texas members of the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters are in Dallas today taking part in the annual conference of the society's chapters.

Representing Midland is John F. Murphy. Attending the meeting from other West Texas cities are Donald R. Thresher, Monahans; John Torrey, Odessa, and Doug Hendrix, Odessa.

Extra funds due city

ODESSA — The city of Odessa should receive an extra $100,000 in federal Community Development funds this year to be used for a grant program in rehabilitating houses in the south section of the city.

Known as discretionary funds, this money will be in addition to the almost $1.5 million in federal tax dollars already earmarked for Odessa.

Jack Dillard, director of housing and community development for the city, has said the grant will be used for the rehabilitation program which offers money to south-side residents for the rehabilitation of their homes.

This extra $100,000 will be added to the $200,000 already designated for the grant project of the 1978-79 year, Dillard said.

The funds became available after several cities in the state either did not use all or any of their CD funds, according to the housing director.

Gasoline made simple.

SAVE 6¢ PER GALLON

A lot of cars are chosen when it comes to fuel. Hondas are different. All our cars operate without a catalytic converter, so you can take your pick of unleaded or regular gasoline.

Now, how could we make it any simpler than that?

WHY BUY A CONDOMINIUM?

Condominiums afford quality living in prime locations. They allow the owner all the financial and tax advantages of owning a home without the headaches.

Condominiums are designed for a more flexible lifestyle. Most important, you have greater control over your housing costs when compared to renting.

WHY BUY A "CHANDELLE" CONDOMINIUM? *

"CHANDELLE's" location at 2100 West Wadley is within minutes of downtown, theatres, recreational areas, shopping, restaurants, schools, churches, the college, and Airpark. At "CHANDELLE" you get an equity investment, the same tax breaks as a home owner, and greater control of your housing costs.

"CHANDELLE" is the only real alternative people have to get away from the maintenance problems - of home owning, and doing it with style.

Come out to 2100 West Wadley or call 684-7884 to find out why "CHANDELLE" is a nice place to call home. Models are open from 12:00 noon until 6:00 p.m. seven days a week.

Three sluggers from past considered for 'Fame'

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Three sluggers known for their muscle but who each finished distinguished careers with lifetime batting averages over .300 were the top possibilities when the Hall of Fame Veterans Committee met today.

Hack Wilson, Johnny Mize and Chuck Klein were overlooked by the writers in the Hall of Fame balloting, but they were expected to be strongly considered by the 18-member committee, comprised of six former players, six executives and six writers. The committee requires 75 percent affirmative votes from the attending members for election. Klein batted .320 and belted 300 homers in 17 seasons with Philadelphia, Chicago and Pittsburgh in the National League. In his first six seasons, he hit .360, .356, .386, .337, .348 and .368. With Philadelphia in 1929, the left-handed hitting outfielder slugged 43 homers, knocked in 145 runs and batted .356. The next year, he had 40 homers, 170 RBI and a .386 batting average.

Hack Wilson played 12 seasons for New York, Chicago, Brooklyn and Philadelphia in the NL, finishing with lifetime marks of 244 homers and a .307 batting average. In 1930, the right-handed hitting outfielder had 56 homers, an all-time high 190 RBI and .356 average.

Mize, a left-handed hitting first baseman, played 18 seasons with St. Louis, the Giants and Yankees, finishing with a career total of 359 homers and a lifetime batting average of .313. In 1947, Mize belted 51 homers and knocked in 138 runs for the Giants.

The committee, which cannot name more than two inductees, will consider candidates from three categories: —Players who retired before 1946; and players who played 10 years in the majors, retired after 1945, have been retired for 25 years and received at least 100 votes in the Hall of Fame voting from the baseball writers.

—Baseball executives, managers and umpires who have been retired for five years.

—Negro League players who retired before 1946; and players who retired after 1946 and had at least 10 years total service in the Negro League and the majors.

Bill Guilfoyle, director of information for the Hall of Fame, said the maximum of one executive can be elect because the priority for induction should be with the players. Warren Giles, the former National League president who died earlier this year, and Tom Yawkey, the late owner of the Boston Red Sox, are possible executive inductees.

Last year's two selections by the Veterans Committee were Addie Joss, a turn-of-the-century pitcher, and Larry MacPhail, an innovative baseball executive for Cincinnati, Brooklyn and the Yankees.

This year, Willie Mays was the only player voted into the Hall of Fame by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Heels picked to win NCAA

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Harrah's Reno Race and Sports Book picked North Carolina Tuesday as a 9-2 favorite to win the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball championship.

Just behind the third-ranked Tar Heels, Harrah's picked UCLA as a 5-1 choice for the championship.

There are two sides to Vegas and Tark The Shark

By FRED ROTHENBERG

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The Strip. Neon lights and high expectations 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. The jingle-jangle of slot machines and the glitter and glamour of the city in the desert.

But there's another side to Las Vegas, one the tourists never see. Surprisingly, Vegas is a very religious, family-oriented town with more churches per capita than any city in America.

And like his adopted city, Jerry Tarkanian also has a double image.

Everyone agrees on one thing — he's a winner. As a matter of fact he's got the best winning percentage of any active major college basketball coach in the country.

Most of his fellow coaches and most of his players at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas are crazy about the man. They say he's 100 percent basketball, an excellent technical coach and a warm, friendly guy fiercely dedicated to his players and to winning.

They also say he'll give his players the shirt off his back — illegal as that might be — but that he's more honest than many coaches. They say it's blatantly unfair that Tarkanian has felt more heat from NCAA investigators than anybody else.

THE NATIONAL Collegiate Athletic Association and much of the media portray a different Jerry Tarkanian. To them, he is "Tark the Shark," the biggest bandit since John Dillinger.

They paint a picture of Tarkanian buying players like they were $5 chips at the casino tables, browbeating professors to get special favors for his athletes and harrasing and threatening any of his players who attempt to blow the whistle on him.

At Long Beach State, where Tarkanian turned a low-budget, basketball program into a national power, the NCAA found numerous violations against football and basketball. Few of the allegations could be traced back to Tarkanian; yet Tark got the headlines and the notoriety.

The school got a 3-year probation, which began after Tarkanian left for UNLV in 1973. He says he accepted a better offer before the Long Beach charges surfaced, but the NCAA and Long Beach President Stephen Horn contend he knew what was coming and skipped town.

The NCAA then found numerous violations against Las Vegas, slapping the school with a 2-year probation in 1977 and recommending a 2-year suspension for Tarkanian — one of the worst penalties against a coach ever. Tarkanian, insisting that he never got a fair hearing from the NCAA, won a court injunction against the suspension but could still lose his job when the appeal is scheduled to be heard this December.

THE TEAM is suffering, too, since it is banned from the NCAA Tournament that begins Friday.

Most of the UNLV evidence implicated John Bayer, Tarkanian's predecessor, who was fired by the university. "I can't believe Bayer didn't protect his ass," Tarkanian said when he arrived. He then stopped weekly payments to the players.

Yet Tark got the notoriety again. In fact, he felt so harassed that he sought relief from his congressman, James Santini (D-Nev.) who initiated the Congressional investigation of the NCAA last year.

"It was a frame-up. They're trying to destroy me," Tarkanian said.

Away from the court, Tarkanian seems absent-minded and preoccupied, hardly a smooth operator. Some say he cultivates that image.

"He protects himself," said one coach. "He turns his head when other people do the dirty work. I like Tark but believe me, he knows everything that goes on."

JERRY TARKANIAN, his wife, Lois, and their four children live at 2905 Justice Lane in a beautiful $100,000 2-story Spanish-style home in the residential outskirts of Las Vegas. The Tarkanians got the house — which has a huge backyard pool — for cost, courtesy of a local builder.

Tarkanian is a squat, slope-shouldered Armenian who has the constant sad-eyed look of a lost beagle. He is 48 but looks several years older. He says his problems with the NCAA hound him all the time.

"It's been hard on our family and extremely hard on me," said Tarkanian, who doesn't smoke but has a raspy voice — particularly during the basketball season. When he talks, he often sounds like the world is on his stooped shoulders. "The most amazing thing is I don't have an ulcer. Sometimes I sleep and sometimes I don't."

"Whenever the team travels, I get it from the fans. They're always on my back, shouting things like 'Hey Jerry, where's your parole officer?' Of course it hurts me."

His very supportive wife, Lois, can articulate his defense against the NCAA, supplying anyone interested with reams of papers and statements that support Tarkanian's position. Taken to bouts of crying, Lois rails at the havoc the NCAA has caused her loved ones.

"Friends who haven't seen us for a while say he's aged a lot," she said.

PEOPLE WHO know Tarkanian best say his only interests are basketball and his family. He loves watching his son, Danny, play basketball for local Gorman High School. Danny, a junior, is one of the top guards in the state, and Tarkanian turned down the Los Angeles Lakers' coaching job three years ago, partly because pro travel would keep him away from his son's games.

Tarkanian has no hobbies. He had a mild heart attack before the first game of the 1976 season and jogged for one month. But then he stopped.

The family used to take August vacations in conjunction with a coaching clinic somewhere. But they haven't taken a trip like that in three or four years.

Tarkanian doesn't dress in 3-piece suits like many of his coaching colleagues. He used to have his hair styled to cover up bald spots but he doesn't bother anymore.

"He had a hairdresser who had him brushing it a certain way," said Lois. "But it kept getting messed up, so he said it wasn't worth it and he got a crew cut. It's terrible but he really doesn't care about his hair."

"Jerry is one of the most down-to-earth people I've ever met," said Dave Pearl, head of the Las Vegas Booster Club that wooed Tarkanian away from Long Beach. "He's not impressed with the glamor of the strip. He'll call you at 3 in the morning to talk basketball. That's all that's on his mind."

"He's a Naismith-type person," said former Marquette Coach Al McGuire. "If you want to get Tark to leave the room, talk about anything besides basketball."

TARKANIAN seldom sits still in his small office in the athletic department. He's constantly in motion, chatting with passersby, diagramming plays on the blackboard or talking on the phone.

"Is he a good jock?" Tarkanian inquires of a friend who knows the man being considered for the open president's position at Las Vegas. "Is that right? He's at every ballgame!"

There are dozens of pictures on the wall, including 8x10s of Tarkanian's players who have made it to the pros; family shots with the emphasis on Danny, and one portrait of Tarkanian being embraced by UNLV supporter Frank Sinatra.

"You won't see him with the glad-handers. He'd much rather talk basketball than sit with Sinatra," said Bill Bray, public relations head at the MGM Grand Hotel.

Bray tells the story of Tarkanian asking him for a job for one of his daughters. Bray asked the coach what she could do. "Gee, I dunno," Tarkanian answered meekly, his shoulders moving closer to his ears than usual.

The story is told that Tarkanian was once asked what insulation he used in his spacious house, the only 2-story home on the block. "What's insulation?" he asked.

"The boosters at Long Beach used to kid me that I didn't know that there was a war in Vietnam," said Tarkanian, who was voted professor of the year by the students at Long Beach for his interest in their activities.

He can remember who went back door for a basket but he has trouble remembering faces and appointments. His secretary, Carol Forsythe, will call him at 5 in the morning to remind him of an early appointment or a plane trip. Except for basketball, he seems somewhat scatterbrained.

"I'd walk in a blizzard before I'd get in a car with him," said Forsythe. "Lois remembers how he used to get lost trying to get home when they lived in Long Beach."

"Does Jerry look like the kind of guy who can cover up crimes like the NCAA says?" asked Lois. "I wish he'd be more 'sharky.' He's really too naive. He trusts everybody. I think that's why he's so strong with black players. He never judges them."

WHEN HE'S walking in the street, Jerry will often pass by friends without saying hello. "I'm the worst guy at recognizing faces," Tarkanian said. "I can't follow a movie from one scene to the next. It's gotten so bad that Lois won't go to a movie with me anymore."

But a coach who requested anonymity says that Tarkanian is not naive about basketball and recruiting. "He'd like you to think he's naive, that he's just off the boat," the man said. "But there's only one thing on his mind. He's gonna win. And he'll do whatever it takes to get there."

Another coach says: "He's like Columbus. Dumb like a fox."

Because he doesn't put basketball in normal perspective, losing seems like the end of the world to him.

"After a loss, he's in agony," his wife said. "He would come home and lie in bed groaning all night."

"Losing just eats at me," Tarkanian said. "I have a hard time shaking a loss. The last two years I have had more losses than usual. I tell my players there is no disgrace to losing, but it is hard for me to live with it."

Tarkanian's obsession with basketball carries over to his players, who come to Las Vegas to learn to be pros. So it isn't surprising that his players have a reputation for being able to hit the jump shot but not the school books. That reputation flows from the top.

New York Tech's Hicks proves you can't keep good man down

NEW YORK (AP) — Last year about this time, Kelvin Hicks ripped his right knee and there was some worry that he had torn up his basketball career along with it.

But it turned out that you couldn't keep a good man down — especially a good, big man like the 6-foot-7 forward from New York Tech.

"He dispelled any doubts as to his effectiveness right away," says New York Tech Coach Sam Stern.

In his first game this season, Hicks scored 38 points against West Virginia State and kept right on rolling. It resulted Wednesday in his selection to The Associated Press' Little All-America team for 1978-79.

Hicks, one of the country's top field goal shooters and rebounders, was joined on the first team by center Mike Harper of North Park (Ill.), forward Paul Poe of Louisiana College and guards Ken Evans of Norfolk (Va.) State and Mark Noon of the University of Hartford (Conn.).

THE AP'S SECOND Team included center Ricky Mahorn of Hampton (Va.) Institute, forwards Reggie Gaines of Winston-Salem (N.C.) State and Frank Wachlarowicz of St. John's (Minn.), and guards Jimmy Allen of New Haven and Curt Clark of Mankato (Minn.) State.

The third team: center Lee Johnson of East Texas State, forwards Thomas Hoey of St. Michael's (Vt.) and Jeff Mosher of Rockford (Ill.), and guards Mike Eversley of Chicago State and Curtis Artis of Pace (N.Y.) College.

The 6-foot-7 Hicks finished with a spectacular 65.3 percent field mark goal while averaging 20 points a game. He also had a 15.04 rebound average.

"He's the best all-around player we've ever had at New York Tech," said Stern. "He not only scores but rebounds, plays defense and handles the ball like a guard. He makes great mid-court passes that help break the other team's press."

The 6-10 Harper is another strong inside force for his team, averaging nearly 23 points and 12.5 rebounds a game.

"MIKE IS the most dominant center in NCAA Division III," said his coach, Dan McCarrell. "He has developed into one of the best centers in the country and continues to improve at a rapid pace. He has the physical ability and attitude to become even greater. He has good hands and a fine shooting touch from the floor with fine play around the basket. He's an excellent leader and co-captain and puts the team first when he's playing basketball."

The 6-8, 200-pound Poe averaged 24 points and 9 rebounds while leading Louisiana College into the NAIA playoffs. He has one of the better outside shots for a big man.

Evans averaged 24.1 points and piled up about 100 rebounds and 100 assists in a fine all-around performance this year.

UK footballers plead innocence

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Eight University of Kentucky football players named in sex-related charges are free without bond today pending a March 29 preliminary hearing in Fayette District Court.

The eight were arrested Monday night. Tom Miller, their attorney, waived formal arraignment Tuesday and entered innocent pleas to all charges before Judge Michael Roney.

The defendants are defensive back Venus Meaux and halfback Henry Parks, both of Harrodsburg, Ky.; fullbacks Randy Brooks of Louisville, Ky., and Charles Jackson of Georgetown, Ky.; quarterback Larry McCrimmon of Tampa, Fla.; halfback Norman Green of Martinsburg, W.Va.; defensive tackle Earl Wilson of Atlantic City, N.J.; and offensive tackle Robert Cobb of Sheffield, Ala.

All were charged with first-degree rape, and first-degree sodomy, according to court records. McCrimmon also was charged with first-degree sexual abuse.

THE NAMES of two women appeared on the court docket as complainants, but Miller said there was only one. He said a recording error caused two similar, but different, names to appear simultaneously.

Horner hearing likely to be held in April

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — An arbitration hearing may be held in April for Atlanta Braves' Bob Horner, the National League Rookie of the Year, according to Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players' Association.

In his annual spring training tour of major league teams, Miller said Ray Grebey, head of the owners' players relations committee, has agreed to move the Horner case to the top of the arbitration docket.

Originally, Horner's case was not expected to be heard until May, well after Atlanta's regular season begins April 4. Grebey had said the case would not be heard until after 10 others on the list.

Vezie to fight cage firing

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Tim Vezie, fired as head basketball coach at San Diego State after a turbulent 15-12 season and rumors of an NCAA investigation, said he plans to take his fight to court to get his job back.

"I do not intend to sit back and watch my entire career and reputation trampled upon — I intend to fight it," the 34-year-old Vezie said Tuesday.

Added to the controversy surrounding Vezie are recent charges by former players of recruitment improprieties.

Other players on Vezie's squad, however, expressed shock and disappointment at the dismissal of their coach.

Celtics can't pay Garden rent

BOSTON (AP) — John Y. Brown says the Celtics are having problems paying their rent and may have to look away from Boston Garden for a new landlord, according to the Boston Globe.

"I'm not threatening to pull the team out of Boston, or anything like that," Brown said Tuesday, "but I'm not staying in the Garden with that lease either."

The National Basketball Association team's lease with the Garden terminates after the 1979-1980 season.

"We're paying the highest rent in the NBA right now, and we can't afford it," the team owner added without disclosing the amount.

Borg beats McEnroe in marathon

VIENNA (AP) — Sweden's Bjorn Borg beat American John McEnroe in the Volo Tennis Cup tournament Tuesday night 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

The match lasted nearly 1 1/2 hours and the 6,000 fans witnessed excellent tennis in which Borg was in difficulty only in the first set.

McEnroe was quicker in the opening set and played strong at the net. He often troubled the Swede with soft returns.

Sting Like A Bee races to finish line first and who else would be in the sulky but Muhammad Ali, who won the charity race at Maywood, Ill., Tuesday night. (AP Laserphoto)

Ali makes 'last ring' appearance in exhibition

BOSTON (AP) — It's billed as "his last ring appearance" and "farewell to a legend." Muhammad Ali himself says, "The worst thing I can do is get back in a boxing ring."

But it's safe to say that Ali's five-round exhibition Monday night at the Providence Civic Center against Jimmy Ellis won't be his last profitable sparring session.

The heavyweight champion will be paid $75,000 for his one-night stand. Ringside tickets, including admission to a prefight cocktail party with Ali, are selling for $50 apiece.

Ali, however, apparently considers the exhibition little more than a quick dose of showmanship because, he said Tuesday, "I'm never getting in a ring for a fight."

Speaking to reporters in Boston and Providence from his Chicago home, Ali said, "I can always change my mind" about retirement. But the legendary heavyweight left little doubt that his fighting days are over. He'll soon embark on world travels, with a stop in Iran to meet that nation's new leaders.

"It's very important that I go out as the heavyweight champion. I'll be the first black man to do it," said Ali. "The worst thing I could do is mess up my image."

He claimed to have rejected a $12 million offer to fight light heavyweight champion Mike Rossman because "even after I'd win, people would say I went out a bum, dodging contenders."

"I went out perfect. I filled the Superdome. I am the greatest of all time and there's nothing anyone can do about it. I destroyed all my enemies."

"I'm bigger than boxing, bigger than football, baseball, the World Series, the Kentucky Derby. I'm bigger than movie stars. Every day I feel good because I went out as champion. My name will haunt all the arenas and gyms. I got away clean."

Sluggish-sounding at first, Ali used the lengthy telephone conference to praise his world peace organization.

In response to a question, Ali said South African heavyweights should be excluded from any future championship tournament because of that country's racial policy. He paused only once during a lengthy dissertation to ask, "Who's paying for this telephone call?"

Ali pays Ellis, his former sparring partner, out of the $75,000 purse.

The champion's last New England appearance was in Lewiston, Maine, nearly 15 years ago, when he stopped Sonny Liston with the famous "phantom" punch in the first round.

Spectacular Bid wins eighth straight race

HALLANDALE, Fla. (AP) — Spectacular Bid remains on schedule for his May 5 date at the Kentucky Derby, for which he is the early favorite. But 19-year-old jockey Ron Franklin, who has ridden the colt in his last five victories, might not be there for the big moment.

Spectacular Bid won his eighth straight race Tuesday in the $200,000 Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park after overcoming traffic problems on both turns — problems that trainer Bud Delp blamed on Franklin.

After the race when asked what he thought about Franklin's ride Delp said, "I think I called him an idiot." Then, he added, "If Shoemaker (Bill Shoemaker, the world's winning jockey) calls me, I won't hang up on him. One of these days he (Franklin) might be riding at Bowie instead of Churchill Downs."

Franklin, who lives with Delp, said of the criticism, "I hear that every day. I deserved it."

"They teamed up on me. It was six riders against one. What can you do?"

Jorge Velasquez, who rode Fantasy 'n Reality, on overhearing Franklin's remarks said, "It's our job to beat the big horse."

The big speculation about the 1978 2-year-old champion, a property who has been insured at $10 million, is who will ride him March 24 in The Flamingo at Hialeah.

Goalie's dream comes true

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Goalie Robbie Moore had dreamed of playing in the National Hockey League. Tuesday, the Philadelphia Flyers made that dream come true.

Moore, 24, just promoted from the Maine Mariners of the American Hockey League, responded with a 5-0 victory over the Colorado Rockies Tuesday night.

"When I woke up in the morning the covers were all over the place," said the 5-foot-5 netminder. "I realized it was a dream, then somebody told me it was in the papers that I was playing."

Moore's first NHL test was not difficult. He was called on to make only three difficult saves as the Flyers outshot the Rockies, 44-22. It was the Flyers' eighth victory, with three ties, in 13 games.

In the other NHL game, the Buffalo Sabres trimmed the New York Islanders 3-2.

The victory pulled the cellar-dwelling Flyers within four points of the idle New York Rangers and Atlanta Flames, who are tied for second in the Patrick Division.

Mel Bridgman's 19th goal of the season at the game's 51-second mark gave Moore all the scoring support he needed. The Rockies didn't even get a shot on goal until nine minutes into the game.

Asked if the inactivity in the Flyers' zone bothered his concentration, Moore responded: "No, I thought it was just great. I was hoping they'd stay up at the other end all night."

"It was a tough game for a kid to play. Not seeing any rubber (shots on goal) in the beginning of the game makes you lose your concentration," said Flyers' Coach Pat Quinn. "That just makes it tougher when you're playing in the big leagues for the first time."

Meanwhile, the Flyers mounted a 17-shot attack on Rockies' goalie Bill Oleschuk in the first period and took another 16 in the second as Paul Holmgren's marker gave Philadelphia a 2-0 lead.

Holmgren, Ken Linseman and Al Hill tallied in the final period.

"They just wore us down," said Colorado

Coach Aldo Guidolin. "They're just bigger and stronger than we were. Our goalie did a great job, but one man doesn't make a difference in a game like this."

Moore, a college All-American at Michigan who has earned three degrees, was asked if playing hockey was just a lark.

The 155-pound goalie replied: "This is what I really want to do. I don't know if it will work out. But this is my first choice."

Sabres 3, Islanders 2

Ric Seiling's second goal of the game, a 25-foot shot with 6:36 remaining, carried Buffalo past New York. The Islanders' Stefan Persson had tied the contest just 1:37 earlier, powering a 40-foot screened shot past Sabres goalie Don Edwards.

Second-period goals by Gil Perreault and Seiling gave Buffalo the lead for good as the Sabres pulled into second place in the Adams Division.

Chicago announces starting exhibition unit

MESA, Ariz., (AP) — The Chicago Cubs Tuesday announced their exhibition opener Thursday against Seattle at Tempe, and that lineup is expected to be the one the Cubs will use in their season opener April 5 against the New York Mets.

The lineup: Ivan DeJesus, ss; Ted Sizemore, 2b; Bill Buckner, 1b; Dave Kingman, lf; Bobby Murcer, rf; Jerry Martin, cf; Steve Ontiveros, 3b; Barry Foote, c; Ken Holtzman, p.

Pro golf ravaged by weather extremes

By BOB GREEN
LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — Notes from the pro golf tournament trail:

The pace of play, greatly improved in four events last year, has slowed slightly early this season.

"The weather has been awful," noted Clyde Mangum, the deputy commissioner for four operations. "It's been so severe you have to expect the pace to slow."

With the exceptions of Tucson and Palm Springs, the touring pros have been subjected to extreme weather of one type or another at every other stop. There's been rain, floods, wind, cold, hail — even some snow flurries. Even Honolulu wasn't exempt. In the week of the Hawaiian Open the sun shone for two hours.

Among other things, the slow pace has fouled up the finishing times insofar as television is concerned — no small problem in that this is the first of a three-year television contract which pumps $30 million into four operations and purses.

A recent $200 fine for slow play, levied against one player and serving as a notice to all others, very likely will speed up play.

THE MISERABLE weather has had other effects, too. For one thing, it has Lee Trevino looking for a new commercial contract.

"I'm gonna try for a contract with Coppertone," Trevino said, tongue in cheek. "I'm gonna have to start using it to get back to my normal color."

And, too, the cold almost certainly has contributed to an unusually-severe rash of injuries and ailments suffered.

"Your muscles don't get loose in the cold weather," said U.S. Open champ Andy North. "In the kind of weather we've had, it's a lot easier to get hurt."

"You know, it's been so bad I really haven't felt like playing golf but a couple of times this year."

TOM WEISKOPF and Marty Fleckman were the latest additions to injury-illness list.

Weiskopf withdrew from last

Women's softball meeting scheduled

The Midland Women's Softball Association has scheduled its first meeting of the year for Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Company.

Anybody interested in participating in the women's softball program is urged to attend.

week's Bay Hill Classic with severe stomach pains. He was rushed to an Orlando hospital for extensive tests.

"It wasn't ulcers and it wasn't gall bladder — and that's what I was worried about," Weiskopf said. "I just have severe acidity and have to be careful with my diet from now on."

Fleckman collapsed on the course at Bay Hill but, after receiving first aid, continued. He said he was told he was suffering from paroxysmal atrial tachycardia. "When you get an attack, your hearts pumps twice as fast as normal and your pulse rate doubles," he said.

Among the others:

Jerry McGee and Bruce Lietzke both have rib-cage troubles. Lietzke is expected back this week. McGee may be out as much as two months.

Leonard Thompson has a knee problem.

PGA champ John Mahaffey has an injured hand that forced him out of the last four tournaments and may be worse than was first thought.

THREE BRITISH Ryder Cup players began a brief, three-tournament swing through Florida last week. Brian Barnes, Ken Brown and Howard Clark may be more accustomed to the British-type winds that have swept the tour this season.

Severiano Ballesteros of Spain, Europe's outstanding player, will begin his United States schedule next week in Doral. He's the defending champion at Greensboro and also will play in the Tournament Players Championship and the Masters.

South African Gary Player, who triggered a string of three consecutive victories in the 1978 Masters, is scheduled to open his American campaign in two weeks at the Tournament Players Championship.

Boyd may return

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The door appears to be open to Bob Boyd to succeed himself as Southern California's head basketball coach.

If that's the case, it's his move.

Boyd announced on Jan. 16 that he would step down as the Trojans' coach at the conclusion of the current season, his 13th. While all sorts of possibilities have been mentioned as to his successor since then, local writers and alumni of the school have urged Athletic Director Dr. Richard Perry to hire Boyd back.

Dr. Perry said Tuesday that nothing has changed since Boyd submitted his resignation.

"We're still in basically the same position we've been in since January," said Perry. "Bob resigned as coach and I haven't heard anything from him. If he were to approach me, obviously I would entertain a visitation with him."

Panel approves pay toilets ban

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Houston housewife has concluded pay toilets doubly discriminate against women.

"As I understand it, men are not required to pay for their use of public restrooms and women are. I thought it was rank discrimination," Bernice Scotty told the House Committee on Business and Industry.

Informed that there are no pay urinals but there are some pay commodes in men's restrooms, she replied: "Men do not have to pay for urinals. Women have to pay regardless. That's discriminatory."

The committee voted 6-2 in favor of a bill that would outlaw pay toilets in Texas public places.

Rep. Al Edwards, the bill's sponsor, said, "Trying to make a profit on the need of people to go to the bathroom represents one of the most rank forms of exploitation."

Similar bills have failed in past legislative session. Edwards' bill goes next to the House for consideration.

Edwards, D-Houston, said some service stations now charge for the use of their restrooms.

Bill Ligon of the Texas Service Station Association said he opposed the bill because it was too vague.

Prisoner objects to peanut butter

CALDWELL, Idaho (AP) — Does a constant diet of peanut butter sandwiches constitute cruel and unusual punishment? What about denial of fresh underwear? These and other alleged indignities are included in a lengthy list of complaints drawn up by Faron Hawkins, who contends he's been the victim of "cruel and unusual punishment" since he was recaptured Jan. 31 after escaping from the Canyon County jail the same day. Hawkins, 20, seems to have Canyon County Prosecuting Attorney Dennis Goff on his side. Goff says he has warned Sheriff George Nourse that if Faron's complaints are legitimate, they could be grounds for a lawsuit.

In a letter to the sheriff, Goff said, "Some of the complaints indicate that some of the measures taken could be sufficient grounds for legal action against you, and are directed toward punishment rather than security."

Hawkins, who is in jail awaiting trial on felony charges of possessing a stolen car, aggravated assault, escape and grand larceny, alleged in his petition that:

—Between Jan. 31 and Feb. 6 he was given only two peanut butter sandwiches to eat each day, one in the morning and one at night.

—Between Feb. 6 and Feb. 16 he was given three peanut butter (or occasionally egg) sandwiches a day to eat and only coffee to drink.

—Between Jan. 31 and Feb. 5 he was held in a cell with a cold floor and not provided socks or shoes.

—Since Jan. 31 he has been forced to wear the same pair of underwear.

—Between Jan. 31 and Feb. 16 he was denied access to items necessary for personal hygiene, such as a toothbrush, toothpaste, shampoo, comb and shaving equipment.

—Between Feb. 16 and Feb. 22, he received one hot meal a day.

Pair charged in Hays slaying

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Police have charged two men described as "drifters" with capital murder in last week's brutal slaying of the chairman of the Trinity University journalism department.

The body of William E. Hays Jr. — who had chaired Trinity University's Department of Journalism, Broadcasting and Film since 1973 — was found in his apartment near the campus Feb. 26. He had been bound, beaten and stabbed.

Police said at the time the motive for the killing appeared to be robbery since a stereo and some credit cards were missing.

Acting on an anonymous tip, police arrested Charles Meyers, 21, and Paul St. Anthony, 26, at a downtown restaurant

Monday night. The two men were charged late Monday with capital murder before Night Magistrate Mary Ladd.

"They're drifters with no address," said Detective Frank Davis.

Nation's largest coffee roasters join in new wholesale price cuts

NEW YORK (ZP) — General Foods, the nation's largest coffee roaster, Tuesday joined the second- and third-ranked roasters in reducing the wholesale price of coffee.

Coffee prices fell for the second time in the past three weeks, reflecting dropping green coffee prices and improved crops.

Reductions of a nickel a pound for ground coffee and 4 cents on some 13-ounce cans of specialty coffees — were announced Monday by the Folger Coffee division of Procter & Gamble Co., the nation's second-largest roaster, and by Hills Brothers, the third-ranked.

General Foods Corp., whose Maxwell House division markets coffee, posted the same reductions today, a spokesman said.

Wholesale and retail coffee prices have been declining for more than 1 1/2 years as South American coffee-growing nations recover from a frost that killed green coffee beans in 1977.

The shortage that followed the frost pushed retail prices above $4 a pound in the United States.

The wholesale price drop could soon be reflected at stores, but many retailers already sell coffee at or below wholesale as a promotion, industry officials said.

Folger's and Hills Bros.' ground coffee declined 5 cents a pound to $2.43. Folger's Flaked brand coffee dropped 4 cents to $1.96 for a 13-ounce can, the company said.

Hills Bros. reduced the wholesale price of its High Yield brand 4 cents to $1.96 for a 13-ounce can. Another San Francisco-based roaster, MJB Coffee Co., also cut wholesale prices of ground coffee by 5 cents to $2.43 a pound.
