Hance bill may prohibit state tampering

Federal legislation prohibiting states from tampering with the proposed Standard Oil Co. of Ohio pipeline between Long Beach, Calif., and Midland may soon be introduced by U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, the congressman said today

Hance, a Democrat, represents the 19th Congressional District, which in-

Officials of Sohio announced Tuesday they do not plan to pursue the oil pipeline which was to have transported Alaskan crude from California to Project-killing delays cited by Sohio officials included endless government permit procedures, pending and threatened litigation and the prospective unavailability of two natural gas lines which were to have been converted to the oil pipeline.

"I'VE BEEN FOLLOWING this project very closely," Hance said today. "I wasn't surprised" that Sohio pulled out of the proposed oil

"We've had tremendous problems with California state agencies and their environmental groups," he continued. "On the other hand, the federal government had approved most of the federal permits to do the job." Hance cited "the state of California" as the "big problem" in announcing today he is "looking into the possibility of introducing legislation that would prohibit state agencies from tampering with or exercising any control over this proposed oil pipeline.

Hance said, "The major reason this project is so vital is that it's going to cost consumers more for each barrel of oil that goes through the Panama Canal. The projection is that this pipeline would have saved American consumers $500 million per year in projected lower fuel costs.

"This project is the second biggest one that this country has seen in energy development. The first one was the Alaskan pipeline project,'

"I THINK NOW is the time for the public officials and the people of this country to take a stand and demand that common sense be the prevailing

The freshman congressman declared: "Gov. (Jerry) Brown is possibly liable and this exemplifies that he does not have any of the qualities of being a national leader because he's doing a poor job as governor of

"If he wanted to show real leadership, then this project would have had no problems in California," said Hance today.

Higher-priced crude oil products are forecast by Permian Basin residents in view of Standard Oil Co. of Ohio's decision not to go through with

A Midland County oil spokesman, a private citizen, a Sohio official from the Oklahoma City regional office and a banker gave their reactions to the situation late Tuesday

Generally, higher-priced crude oil products are expected to affect Midland as much as the rest of the nation in the months ahead because of an apparently more costly method of transporting the Alaskan fuel - by tanker ship to Gulf Coast refineries instead of overland, sources said.

OTHER THAN HIGHER costs, the impact on Midland probably will be minimal because only a storage facility and pipeline crew employed by Sohio would have been involved in sending oil on to Gulf Coast refiners from the Tall City, most of those interviewed said.

Ed Thompson, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petrologum Association, found no fault with Sohio's move:

"You can't blame Sohio for reaching this decision, because they made every effort to build the necessary line to connect up with the El Paso

PACTEX project, designed to relieve a surplus of Alaskan oil on the Pacific Coast and deliver it cheaply to the East and Midwest, Sohio Chairman Alton Whitehouse said Tuesday it was "astounding" that his company encountered so many bureaucratic obstacles while the nation faces an en-

"I'm afraid new major energy projects in the United States have little hope of success today," he said at a news conference at Sohio headquarters here

'A quagmire of federal and state regulations now exists that can bog down any project, no matter how worthy and regardless of the national interest

PACTEX would have allowed the shipment of 500,000 barrels of Alaska North Slope oil daily from Long Beach, Calif, to a distribution center in Midland, Texas. From there, the oil. would have entered existing pipelines for distribution throughout the East and Midwest pany had hoped it could save between 75 cents and $1 a barrel by using the pipeline rather than the canal. Whitehouse said a key factor in Sohio's decision to cancel the 5-yearold project was the company's inability to get commitments to use existing natural gas pipelines for portions of Birakos, a spokesman for the South Coast Air Quality Management District, said Sohio itself caused the major delays in the project.

Birakos said hearings were sche duled this week and that a decision on permits for the terminal at Long Beach could have come Saturday.

The agency has been reviewing the application since March 3, 1977, "But only 10 months were taken up by public hearings. The other 14 were spent waiting for Sohio to bring data to us," Birakos said. Jim McJunkin, general manager of the city-owned Port of Long Beach, where Sohio had planned to build a $350 million terminal, said the city expected to earn $80 million over the next 40 years from the project. He echoed Sohio's assertions, attributing the company's action to "a multitude of regulatory agencies ... pulling in all

John Poerner, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates oil and gas in the state, called Sohio's decision tragic and charged that California and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. did not support the project enthusiastically enough.

"I genuinely feel that, rather than any one individual, it was the system or pattern of regulatory permitting that exists in California," he said.

Meanwhile, Alaskan officials said Sohio's announcement underscores the state's need for permission to

THE TIMES OF MY LIFE: PART THREE

'I didn't know whether to say thank you on not' to the President

By BETTY FORD with Chris Chase

In June of 1972 the news of a Watergate break-in had hit the papers, but it seemed like such an inept effort at God knows what by God knows whom that it didn't affect the voters. Nixon beat McGovern in 49 states — but still Congress remained in Democratic hands. Jerry began to face the fact that he was probably never going to achieve his 24-year dream of being Speaker of the House.

He promised me he would retire at the end of President Nixon's second term, but he said he felt he ought to continue as, Minority Leader until then. I agreed to that. We'd already been thinking about Florida as a possible retirement place, weighing the virtues of the East Coast against the virtues of the West Coast. We wanted to be close to the children, so they could visit often, but we didn't know in which directions the children would choose to roam.

Mike and Jack were already gone from home, Jack to Utah State University, where he was majoring in forestry, Mike to Massachusetts, where he was enrolled in divinity school. Jerry and I thought that was fine. We believed in independence. Just because his father was a lawyer didn't mean Mike should be a lawyer. In any case, Jerry and I decided, no matter where we retired to, we'd keep Susan bet me five dollars that the President would choose Jerry to replace Agnew, and I lost the bet. 'Your father is much too valuable in the House, getting legislation through," I said. "The President would never take him out."

Jerry too was so sure Susan's intuition was laughable that he tried to discourage David Kennerly, who was working for Time magazine photographing possible Vice Presidential candidates. When he got in touch with Jerry, Jerry told him to save his film. "It's not going to be me," he said. (David paid no attention, so he had Time's cover shot ready to go when Jerry was nominated.) There were other signs besides Ken-nerly's attention that should have warned me. In the two days between Agnew's resignation and the President's announcing Agnew's replacement, our phone never stopped ringing. A reporter would call up and say, "Has your husband told you to get your hair done?" or, "Has your husband told you to go out and get a new dress?" to which I could answer quite honestly, "That's the last thing he'd tell me."

Cabinet accepts key compromises

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli Cabinet today accepted President Carter's two key compromises to pave the way for an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, but postponed until Sunday its final decision whether to approve the pact, Cabinet ministers said.

Commerce Minister Gidon Patt said, however, that today's action did not complete the work the Cabinet still needs to carry out examining the treaty in its entirety.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter returned to a hero's welcome today bringing as the bounty of his shuttling summit an agreement by Egyptian and Israelf leaders to accept compromise peace terms and their pledge to push for final approval of a treaty

"I believe that God has answered our prayers," Carter said.

Carter's optimism was bolstered by the Israeli Cabinet, which approved two remaining compromises already accepted by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. The Cabinet vote was 15 to 4 after nearly six hours of de bate. "There will be a peace treaty," said Minister Yitzhak Modai,

'Handling' of Sohio project angers solons

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Powerful congressional leaders Tuesday angrily criticized California officials for their handling of the abortive Sohio pipeline project and promised hearings and investigations.

However, federal energy policy is not expected to change significantly in the immediate future, according to knowledgeable sources.

There will be renewed discussions about swapping surplus Alaskan crude oil with Japan or Mexico, but Congress is unlikely to change the law, which now forbids exports of Alaskan oil.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the key energy and power subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee, said he would hold hearings soon on the reason for the collapse of the Sohio project after five years of discussions and planning.

At the same time, Sen. Henry Jackson, Wash. chairman of the Senate Energy Committe, announced that he would ask the investigative arm of Congress, the General Accounting Office, to conduct

Meanwhile, the excess North Slope crude that cannot be used by West Caost refineries will continue to move by tanker through the Panama Canal to Gulf Coast refineries and pipelines. Alaska's prolific wells yield 1.2 million barrels of oil daily, with 800,000 barrels consumed on the West Coast.

The 400,000 barrels-per-day surplus will grow to 550,000 by the end of the year, as production is increased to help offset the loss of Iranian oil. The Long Beach, Calif., to Midland, Texas, pipeline connection would have shaved 75 cents to $1 from the cost of each barrel of oil

"Maybe it's inefficient and expensive, but at least the oil is moving," a Congressional energy expert

Secretary of Energy James R. Schlesinger, who has been critial of what he believes were inordiante delays by California regulators, declined to comment on the Sohio action. "We're still studying it," a spokesman said.

But administration officials were obvioulsy frustrated by the failure of the plan. "It's hard to develop energy resources if you can't move them," one high-ranking official said. Department of Energy planners had hoped that the pipeline eventually would move large volumes of crude oil to Texas. clearing the way for further drilling and production

With some heat, Rep. Dingell called collapse of the project "a sorry comment on the quality of leadership that is being brought to bear on resolving our national energy problems." He said the hearings by his subcommittee would try to determine "what needs to be done to prevent a recurrence of this shabby performance.

Dingell, who discussed the project in a lengthy conversation with Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. Tuesday, said California officials "put parochial and political interests ahead of those of the nation." He also blamed federal officials for failing to "exert the national leadership that is necessary to resolve local and environmental issues.

Sen. Jackson said he was deeply disappointd. "Our institutions are paralyzed," he said. "We simply cannot seem to make a decision any more.'

Jackson noted that all major federal permits had been granted, and that approval Arizona, New Mexico and Texas. "Unfortunately two regulatory bodies in California had not acted,

Jackson said he would ask the General Accouting Office to review the history of the Sohio proposal and determine the causes of the delays.

I intend to look at all options that would lead to full utilization of Alaskan oil and to reduce our dependency on imports," Jackson said. One option might involve the shipment of surplus

Alaskan oil to Japan in exchange for crude purchased by Japan in the Middle East. Or Alsakan oil could be shipped to Mexico's west coast in exchange for petroleum from oil fields in eastern Mexico. Variations of two or three-way exchanges involving the United States, Japan and Mexico are possible. But all of them would require a change in the law prohibiting Alaskan oil exports.

He said environmentalists "were worried about the effects of the pipeline on the flora and fauna out in the Orla-Mentone area, about 100 miles Thompson laughed when describing the "flora and fauna" in that area as

"mesquite, cactus and tumbleweeds, along with rattlesnakes, coyotes and

"THIS IS THE sort of thing that has hampered the building of this line until they defeated it," he said. "I'm sure Ralph Nader and the Sierra Club and others were involved.' However, as far as Midland is concerned, Thompson said Sohio's decision not to build the line "won't hurt Midland. "Sohio has the oil, and there is no use building an oil pipeline when there's no oil to transport," Thompson explained. "Midland was to have had a terminal where this oil would have been stored before it could be moved on to the Gulf Coast and Midwest refineries.

INSTEAD OF BY LAND, Sohio "will just have to send its Alaskan crude oil to refineries by ship tanker through the Panama Canal until we give that canal away," he said.

'The Panamanians have already begun talking about raising the tanker passage costs. That's going to raise the cost of Alaskan crude oil higher than OPEC oil is now.

'The only answer to all of these problems is to increase production of American crude oil," Thompson said. "You don't build oil reserves" with talk of lowering thermostats. How can you conserve something you don't have? We better do some exploring and developing, so we can have something to conserve."

He said he believes there would have been no more than 15 or 20 Sohio employees involved in the proposed Midland terminal and storage opera-

Texas officials deplore abandonment of pipeline

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The scrapping of a proposed $1 billion oil pipeline that would have stretched from California to Texas has been termed "tragic, most tragic," by the chairman of the Texas Railroad Commis-

The Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) announced Tuesday it is abandoning the project that would have pumped 500,-000 barrels of Alaskan crude daily through Texas and into America's

We were counting on construction of the pipeline to allow Alaskan oil to enter the pipeline arteries of the Unit-ed States," said Railroad Commission Chairman John Poerner.

Sohio Chairman Alton W. Whitehouse made the announcement in Cleveland just one day after Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger told a Senate Energy Committee hearing in Washington that he believed the pipeline was needed by the nation.

"The project-killing delays were endless government permit procedures, pending and threatened litigation, and the prospective unavailability of two natural gas lines which Sohio proposed to convert to the oil pipline," said Whitehouse.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements, who headed an oil exploration firm before his election, also bemoaned the deci-

"This would have been a means by which we could have corrected the maldistribution problem on the West Coast in a highly efficient and cost effective way. It's a tragedy," he

"I think that again we have a clear demonstration of excessive government interference and red tape with the result being that a project has now been abandoned that was very cost effective and certainly needed in the energy crisis that we are in now.'

Sohio has tried since 1974 to obtain federal, state and regional approval for more than 700 permits to build an oil tanker terminal, storage tanks and

Plaques given past presidents

Plaques were presented to all past presidents of the foundation — Al Hamilton, now of Carlsbad, N.M., Allday, Grimland and Barclay.

The presentations were made by Joe Kloesel, president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

The annual audit report, submitted by Bill Sanders of Main Lafrentz & Co., was accepted and approved by the board.

A resolution memoralizing the late James N. Allison Jr., for outstanding service to the foundation, was adopted by the board, along with authorization to name a major thoroughfare in the foundation's Phase II development in Allison's memory Barclay reviewed the foundation's activities of the past year, along with the development of the Phase II property, which is adjacent to the Phase I Park. He said engineering work has been completed on Phase II and that development contracts have been let. Pricing schedule and deed restrictions on the additional property will be handled by the executive committee.

Barclay said the foundation has had an exceptionally good year, operated on a "totally businesslike basis." A financial report for the year was submitted by Tyler, who also discussed "things to come" in 1979-80.

The year's land transactions were reviewed by Grant Billingsley, manager of the Economic Development Department of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, who works closely with the foundation. Copies of a new brochure on Midland Industrial Park, including both Phase I and Phase II, were distributed to the directors.

pipeline to move Alaskan oil from Long Beach, Calif., to a national pipeline distribution center in Midland. Whitehouse said regulatory delays and inflation eroded savings of 75 cents to $1 a barrel Sohio hoped to realize by using a pipeline instead of shipping oil through the Panama: Canal.

"I'm afraid new major energy projects in the United States have little hope of success today. A quagmire of federal and state regulations now exists that can bog down any project, no matter how worthy and regardless of the national interest," said Whitehouse.

Pipeline plans had federal approval, but California authorities had not completed action on the necessary permits, although Long Beach voters approved construction of the terminal for the pipeline. Environmental and other citizen groups have challenged the project on the grounds that it would increase air pollution in an area that already suffers from poor air quality.

Whitehouse said changing estimates on the availability of two natural gas pipelines earmarked for conversion to crude oil pipe were a key factor in the decision but he said regulatory delays were the principal

Continued pit use urged

AUSTIN - Sixteen witnesses, including Upton County Judge Peggy Garner, Tuesday urged the Railroad Commission to continue use of open pits for produced salt water from the McCamey oil field - calling it vital to the area's economy.

Judge Garner reported local tax revenue from the field exceeded $200,-000 last year, and predicted some 40 percent of that would be lost should the RRC ban use of the pits.

Flip Whitworth, Austin attorney for Crystal Oil Co., Shreveport; Chaparral Minerals, Abilene, and Texas Pacific Oil Co., Dallas, said the ban could result in an ultimate loss of 5.1 million barrels in production.

The three companies are the principal operators in the 54-year-old field, which has 963 wells, with 701 producing, 229 shut-in and 33 used for injection, oil and gas consultant Mac L. Cedar of Austin reported.

Several witnesses stressed that the saltwater pits are used by wildlife and livestock with no apparent harm, and stressed that efforts have been made to keep the pits in good order.

Also testifying were officials of the McCamey Independent School District and McCamey Hospital and Convalescent Center.

Isolated light rainshowers appeared from New England to Florida. while more shower activity moved through the Pacific Coast, spreading across the Sierras into southern Nevada and northern Arizona.

moved "I don't see how we're going to get out of our current energy crisis," she

E.E. Young, vice president and general manager of Sohio's Continental U.S. Petroleum Division in Oklahoma City, Okla., Tuesday said, "You can imagine how long we've been trying to fight this thing. "We started production from Prudhoe Bay, Alaska, in 1977. I'd say we've been working on it since 1975."

Young said Sohio started out trying to convert a pair of abandoned natural gas lines into oil pipelines stretching from West Texas to California "so we wouldn't have to build a lot of pipeline.

Long Beach voters approved a citywide referendum in November 1978 allowing Sohio to build the terminal there, he recalled. "There was a lot of apprehension because of pollution," said Young.

"THE COMMUNITY of Long Beach, however, voted to approve. We'd traded off and agreed to put in some anti-pollution devices on an existing electrical generating plant in exchange for the chance to get started on building the terminal.'

He said in January 1979 Sohio also sought "legislative relief" from California lawmakers and Gov. Jerry Brown. "There were no results,"

Young recalled when Exxon also was involved in the oil pipeline

"They threw in the sponge because they saw the writing on the wall before we did." "I'm afraid new major energy projects in the United States have little chance of success today," Young said. Charles Fraser, executive vice president of First National Bank and former president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, opined that the effect would be minimal:

"I don't think the direct impact on Midland is going to be material,"

"THE TRAGEDY is that their decision prevents the most economical means of transporting Alaskan crude oil to the Texas Gulf Coast, where the refinery capacity exists to process the fuel."

Fraser said Midlanders were supporting the proposed oil pipeline 'when I was president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association - about two years ago. At that time, there was at least one federal environmental hearing held in Midland."

He said the Alaskan crude oil, about 1,200,000 barrels of oil per day, amounts to "more than we were importing from Iran. Now this Alaskan crude oil must be shipped by tanker. The net effect is that it's going to increase the cost of gasoline and other refinery products. And that will have impact on the nation as well as in Midland.

"It's just another example of environmental laws costing us a disproportionate amount on our refined products."

President Nixon had said he was go-ing to announce the name of his nominee on the night of October 12, so that night, when Jerry came home for dinner, I was rustling steaks, something simple that I could throw on the table, in order for him to be able to eat quickly and get back to the White House for the big disclosure.

We were eating when the phone the rang. It was the private phone, the unlisted one which had no extensions, and which we didn't let the children use. (Susan and Steve kept the other phone so busy nobody could ever get through to us.) Susan leaped to answer, convinced it would be the President. It was the President. Jerry went to the phone

"I've got good news," President Nixon said, "but I want Betty to hear

"Well, I'm sorry, Mr. President," Jerry said, "but you'll have to call back on the other phone. There's no extension on this one. President Nixon called back and told us both that he'd picked Jerry to be his Vice President. I didn't know whether to say thank you or not.

My lord. I was wearing slacks and a blouse, and Susan was already up in my closet trying to figure out what I could change to. We had to go to the White House immediately; the whole ceremony was going to be on TV at nine o'clock. I was starting to quake, but Susan kept her head and went on thumbing through my wardrobe. "It can't be a print, and it can't be black, and it should be a pretty color..."

When I got to the White House, I was shoved through the door of the East Room and told to go down and sit front row, where Pat and Julie and Tricia and it seems to me both of the girls' husbands were sitting, and there was no empty seat.

"Pat," I whispered, "they told me to come sit with you," and she said, "Oh, yes, of course, I'll move over," and Pat and I shared one chair. I was scared to death. President Nixon was talking about the person he was nominating, how many years he'd served in Congress, and the applause was already beginning because the members of Congress knew exactly whom he was talking about, and Jerry was very well liked. I still couldn't believe it.

Jerry got up and took the accolades, and then they asked me to come up, and afterward there was a receiving line, and everybody came through and shook our hands.

In the midst of the congratulations, I heard Jerry explaining to the Presi-dent that on the following morning he (Jerry) was supposed to fly to Michigan for Red Flannel Day. Cedar Springs, in our Congressional district, is the red flannel capital of the United States. Of the world, as far as that's concerned; that's its claim to distinction. And Red Flannel Day is a big celebration, everybody has to wear red, and there's a Red Flannel queen, and a band. "That's okay," President Nixon said, "it's perfectly all right, you go ahead. I'll see that you have a

I still didn't know what had hit us, but I was excited, and so were the childrer. We didn't have a chance to think at out what it really meant.

Big Spring man in Abilene jail; Intimidation charged

ABILENE - A Big Spring man was in Taylor County Jail here today, being held in lieu of $100,000 bond after U.S. Magistrate Bill Brister charged the defendant with intimidation of federal witnesses Saturday.

The man, James W. Brown, 51, also is a defendant in a multi-person tax fraud case scheduled to go to trial here March 26 before U.S. Judge Halbert O. Woodward, representing the U.S. Federal Court for the Northern District.

Brown allegedly threatened two codefendants in the tax fraud case, Nathan Baker, 24, and Douglas W. Smith, 46, both of Spring, said C.W. McMenamy, special agent with the federal Internal Revenue Service criminal investigation division here.

McMenamy said Baker pleaded guilty to the tax-related charge. Smith, however, is slated to go on trial later this month with 13 of the 26 defendants, McMenamy said. A total of 11 of the 26 defendants have pleaded guilty - including six from Big Spring, said federal officials. There are a total of 14 defendants from Big Spring involved in the case, which will be tried in Lubbock, officials said.

All the defendants involved have been released on bond except seven who remain in federal custody including five from Big Spring, McMenamy said.

Brown was taken into custody late last week, the agent said. He said Brown was arrested by IRS special agents from the criminal investigation division on the basis of a complaint filed by federal agents based on information supplied by Baker and Smith.

McMenamy said on Jan. 16 a federal grand jury in Lubbock indicted the 26 West Texans for filing fraudulent tax returns.

"The scheme involved working up fake W-2 forms and taking these to commercial tax preparers in Midland, Hobbs, N.M., Snyder and Sweetwater," said McMenany,

"The false tax returns showing the tax refund amount would then be sold to a commercial buyer or 'discounter.' The commercial tax return preparers would then submit those tax returns to the IRS as claims for refunds," McMenamy said. "That's how we became involved." Assistant U.S. Atty. Roger McRoberts will represent the government in the tax fraud trial.

In a speech Tuesday to the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association here, Clements said tough deals must be made with other countries, which "have hard currency that they can pay, as governments, for the production."

The governor said that when he and state Agricultural Commissioner Reagan Brown and others visit Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union this fall, they will be seeking tough and fair prices.
"No giveaways," he promised.

"It will be a trip for agricultural purposes," he said. "We are going in order to see if we can't further exploit, and that is the right word, those markets for agriculture products, not only in Texas, but in the

Don't blame farmers for damage, Senate told

WASHINGTON (AP) - Farmers who spent about month here demanding higher supports for their products should not be blamed for the millions of dollars worth of damage caused during their protest, spokesman for the group says.

Butch Neel of Windom, Kan., told a Senate subcommittee Tuesday the farmers could not be held responsible for the damage to the Mall, the grassy promenade that runs from the Capitol to the Wash-

'If there is any blame, it must rest with Congress and the Carter administration for allowing agriculture in America to get into such a position,' Neel said

American Agriculture movement members brought nearly 2,000 tractors to Washington early last month to demonstrate for substantially higher government supports for their products.

After a traffic-snarling "tractorcade," police corralled the tractors on the Mall behind a barricade of buses, cars and other city vehicles. Most of the farmers left earlier this month.

A report to the subcommittee placed the cost of disruption and damage from the demonstration at about $3.6 million.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the subcommittee and a member of the Agriculture Committee, told protest leaders: "You have hurt the cause of farmers.

Washington Mayor Marion Barry said the net cost to his agencies for the protest was $2.57 million. The National Park Service has estimated it will cost some $500,000 to repair the Mall.

Meaningful protest

Here is something which should gain and hold the attention of the Soviet Union, as few other things

The 2,400 American scientists who have chosen to restrict their cooperation with the Soviet Union as a protest against Moscow's suppression of human rights hardly could have selected a more effective censure.

Notwithstanding its scientific excellence in selected fields, Moscow badly needs the technical assistance it gains through Soviet-American scientific collabora-

The distinguished list of American scientists who have joined in this collective expression of conscience includes 13 Nobel laureates, the presidents or former presidents of 20 scientific organizations, and 18 past or present directors of major laboratories. In short, this quasiboycott represents a profound setback for Soviet science.

In a political sense, the protest is no less devastating. As Cornell University's Kurt Gottfried notes, "Scientists were perhaps the first Americans to cross the chasms of the Cold War." What most of them found on the other side was a Soviet regime as contemptuous as ever of the notion that each human being has intrinsic moral Detente and the betrayed human rights promises of the Helsinki agreement ring hollow indeed for those political and moral dissenters locked up in the huge Gulag Archipelago.

Although unlikely, the Soviets could respond to this mass protest by freeing Yuri Orlov and Anatoly Shcharansky, the two Soviet scientists whose imprisonment on political charges triggered the present breakdown in scientific cooperation.

But the release of Orlov and Shcharansky wouldn't begin to erase the moral culpability of the Soviet regime or alter Moscow's commitment to extinguish liberty.

The question for American scientists, then, is whether there is any acceptable rationale left forcontinued collaboration with the Soviet Union, whatever the fate of Orlov and Shcharansky.

The American scientists hold the upper hand in this particular instance. They have gone the limit in attempting to work with the Soviets, but, as others have learned the hard way, it is next to impossible to do business with the Russian Reds.

The scientists are due a vote of thanks from their fellow Americans for their commendable action in this regard.

'Full commitment'

Three rousing cheers for St. Mary's University at San Antonio, which, according to the San Antonio Light, is the first universty the nation to openly declare its full commitment to the free enterprise philosophy.

This is a tremendous, farreaching development and the university is due the all-out support of the nation's business interests. Other universities in Texas and elsewhere have free enterprise chairs and offer various courses on the subject, but the San Antonio school is believed to be the first to declare full commitment.

In line with its commitment declaration, St. Mary's, on Monday and Tuesday of this week, sponsored a "National Symposium on the Philosophy of Free Enterprise," with five speakers of national prominence speaking on the interlocking relationships between economic liberty and political liberty. The speakers were Tom Connally and William Simon, both former secretaries of the U.S.

Treasury; Irving Kristol, professor of urban values at New York University; Alan Greenspan, New York econonic con-Herbert Stein, sultant, and chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under two presidents.

We will go along with the Light, which commented editorially, "The university and colleagues in the business community are to be commended for their efforts to underscore the vibrancy of a system so essential to the American way of life.

WASHINGTON - As the price of gasoline keeps going up, people may have to resort to buying it on longterm credit.

The scene is the branch of Morgan Chemical Bank of America. Mr. Klingle is ushered toward the loan officer's desk.

"Can I help you, Mr. Klingle?" "Yes sir, I would like to make a gasoline loan.

"Very good. How much gas were you going to buy?" "A full tank. We want to attend our

WASHINGTON — An earnest Jimmy Carter is using all the powers of the presidency to bring peace to the Middle East before another Arab-Israeli conflagration disrupts oil shipments to the United States. Yet apprehensive Washington strategists wonder privately whether he can keep wonder privately whether he can keep the fabric from unraveling. With the best of intentions, Carter Yitzhak Rabin was then prime minister of Israel. Carter invited him to the White House and took him upstairs into the family quarters. For two hours, Carter expressed his deep personal feelings for Israel. He swore to Rabin that the United States would preserve Israel. He would see to it, the president said, that Israel continues to exist for a thousand years.

They emerged warm friends. Carter never dreamed, confidants say, that Rabin would be upset in the next election. The opposition leader, Menachem Begin, had a reputation as hard-headed and hard-lining. He had also criticized Israel's kowtowing to the United States.

Anxiously, the president brought the victorious Begin to the White House and again spread on the molasses. Begin was properly impressed and came away praising

But privately, Carter remained uneasy about Begin. The White House kept in close touch with the losing Labor Party leaders. The president's national security adviser. Zbigniew Brzezinski, huddled repeatedly with Begin's rivals. The word seeped out that the White House regarded Begin as too uncompromising to make peace. If he remained prime minister, it was whispered, he could jeopardize Israel's special relationship with the United States. The whispers, of course, got back to Begin. Intimates say he was hurt and angry. He was also disillusioned over the way his private understandings with Carter be misunderstandings. The Israeli leader, ever blunt, spoke privately of "deception" and

'duplicity. The relationship turned colder after Begin ordered the retaliatory invasion of Lebanon in March 1978. Begin, thereafter, paid a call at the White House where he found the president chilly. He returned to Jerusalem to find his political base being undermined. Rightly or wrongly, Begin suspected that Carter was trying to promote a coalition between his own Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and Labor Party leader Shimon Peres.

But Brzezinski even more than Carter offended Begin. According to one report, Brzezinski once lectured the Israeli leader in language that Begin felt was insulting. Angrily, he reminded Brzezinski that he was talking to the head of an allied nation. Thereafter, Begin referred to Brzezinski privately as "ocher Israel," meaning anti-Israel. When reports of this remark were published, the Israeli embassy vehemently denied

Carter faced with energy test of political courage

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - President Carter's policymakers have traveled a torturous two-year path to this unexpected conclusion: decontrol of crude off prices is essential to any sensible energy program, despite the political retaliation it would provoke. Carter's men have grudgingly come around to accepting the oil industry's insistence that this country will never shake off dangerous dependence on foreign oil until exploration and production are encouraged by removal of artificial price restraints. But such economic sense could be political suicide, considering how it would outrage Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and the environmentalist-consumer con-

Beleaguered Jimmy Carter, therefore, is faced with a major energy test of political courage. Shielded by aides from the contamination of even meeting with oil industry leaders, he must decide soon whether to provoke the Kennedyites by not merely talking to oilmen but granting their fondest de-

The necessity of removing stultifying oil price curbs has been pressed in the government's inner council by its wiser heads: Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, Federal Reserve Chairman William Miller. Nevertheless, it has been widely assummed their counsel would be overriden by Carter's domestic policy staff.

That assumption was jolted by the policy staff's chief, Stuart Eizenstat, when interviewed on NBCs "Today"

program Feb. 28. Describing the question as whether to "deregulate the price of domestically produced crude oil, which is now controlled at artificially low prices," this senior presidential aide continued: "To the extent that we do deregulate, there would be a mild inflationary impact. However, it would have positive response in terms of additional supply on this country and

In essence, Eizenstat concluded, We do have to balance off what would be good energy policy against what temporarily might have a mild inflationary impact.

"I can't believe it," one corporate expert on oil questions told us, when he read the transcript of the largely overlooked "Today" interview. "Eizenstat sounds like Bill Simon." It was less surprising to oil lobbyists flation insignificantly, could be psychologically debilitating in fighting inflation. Anti-inflation chief Alfred Kahn has warned the White House it could encourage unions toward higher settlements in current negotiations. Yet, as Eizenstat hinted over nationwide television, the tradeoff is obviously in favor of decontrol. The problem is political. Since Kennedy is viewed at the White House as the only real threat to the president's re-election, is it worthwhile to bait him on a domestic question dear to his

One of the few oil industry figures with good political connections to the White House believes that is why Carter's door is closed to oilmen. Giant oil company presidents do not even get the courtesy of a reply to their requests to see the president, and independent producers fare little better. A Dec. 12 request by the independents to see Carter was denied, and was renewed Feb. 28.

In the interim, the president did grant an audience to consumer and environmental lobbyists opposing decontrol, headed by ex-Kennedy aide James Flug. On Jan. 4, shortly after that meeting, Carter wrote a gushy letter to Flug praising "a process of constructive consultation and cooperation between us" and "look(ing) forward confidently to our continuing collaboration." Moves toward decontrol would end "collaboration," with instantly escalated attacks from Flug

- and from Kennedy. Against that, the president must weigh what many Department of Energy officials now admit: the federal government's strangulation is primarily responsible for the acute shortage of lead-free gasoline, drastic reduction in drilling operations and continued dependence on foreign oil. If the president does not begin phased decontrol under law beginning June 1, it is highly improbable that controls will end abruptly as scheduled on Oct. 1, 1981. It is, then, truly a last

A decision, which had been expected by mid-March, now may be delayed by Carter's Mideast mission. But there are signs that he has begun to focus on this problem as one that surmounts his old neo-populist hazing of big oil and actually goes to the heart of national security.

Very soon, the president must decide whether to follow Eizenstat's "good energy policy" at the risk of antagonizing Teddy Kennedy. Apart from deciding the nation'a energy future, it will tell much about the Carter presidency.

Substance to reduce cholesterol studied

Dear Mrs. W.: A substance that may do just that has been developed and is being studied. Sucrose polyester (SPF), a synthetic agent, has been found to eliminate the part of cholesterol (called high-density lipoproteins) that contributes to the risk of heart attacks. It has not yet been determined whether SPF will be produced in liquid or solid form, but it may become available as a cooking oil. Researchers at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine tested SPE on 24 healthy men, 20 to 43 years of age. All showed reduced low-density lipoproteins in their cholesterol. However, SPE left unchanged the portion of cholesterol (high-density lipoproteins) which is believed to have a protective effect against heart attacks. Also of importance is the fact that

SPE appears to have no side effects.

Another study, at the Veterans Administration
Hospital in San Diego, showed that the drug contains no calories. Those involved in the study were also found to have lower cholesterol levels.

One disadvantage of SPE is that it hinders the body's absorption of fat-soluble vitamins, especially A and E. A person using SPE in a diet may therefore have to take vitamin supplements.

The safety and effectiveness of SPE will have to be determined more fully before the company holding the patent will be permitted to market it. Despite the fact that SPE might eventually be available for use as a cooking oil, the Food and Drug Administration classifies it as a drug. SL PD Dear Dr. Solomon: From what I read in the papers, the latest wonder

Dear Mel: It is difficult to judge from your letter whether the weight loss experienced by your friend was due to the wheat bran or to whatever else the prescribed diet included-or excluded. Nevertheless, there has been at least one report of wheat bran resulting in weight loss.

According to researchers at the Arhus County Hospital in Denmark, 25 nurses who took ap-proximately 0.84 ounces of wheat bran daily over a period of five weeks showed a significant decrease in average body weight. Adding wheat bran to the diet increases the frequency of bowel movements, and it is assumed the weight loss resulted from increased caloric loss in the form of fecal fat.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What are red blood cells?-Ms.

Dear Ms. K.N.: One of the four main parts of blood. They move continually throughout the body leaving oxygen at places along their route and picking up carbon dioxide— a waste product of the body.

Oregon seeks ban on disposable diapers

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — The state that banned pull tabs and aerosols now wants to do away with disposable diapers and plastic milk bottles. There are also bills before the 1979 Oregon Legislature to ban the use of plastic meat wrappings and single-serving size packets of ketchup and mustard. Some legislators would like to extend the ban to plastic soft

"Oregon has always been very innovative when it comes to environmental issues before the rest of the country," said state Rep. Mary Burrows of Eugene, sponsor of the bill to ban throw away baby diapers. She said she wants to prohibit the use of disposable diapers in Oregon because they are not biodegradable and it's against Oregon law to dump untreated solid waste in landfills. "I was really apprehensive that people would perceive it as a big joke," said Ms. Burrows. "But one of the first letters I got was from a forestry official who said the diapers are their biggest problem.

"I've had four children and I didn't have a dryer," she added. "I've been there. I don't think people realize sometimes there is a need to detour our own convenience.

A hearing on the plastic bottle bill drew plastic industry representatives from New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey.

'Other states have given up,' said state Rep. Nancie Fadeley, sponsor of the milk bottle bill. "Oregon was ahead on the bottle bill and aerosol ban. Oregon goes ahead and does it. We listen to what people want, not the lobbyists.

Ms. Fadeley had to schedule an extra session of her committee Tuesday night to accommodate all the industry witnesses who had flown in to testify about the proposed ban on returnable plastic milk bottles. Oregon's bottle bill, which took effect in 1972, prohibited the sale of non-returnable beer and soft drink containers and made pull rings on beverage containers illegal. In 1975, the Legislature banned aerosol sprays because of evidence that fluorcarbons damage the earth's protective ozone layer. That ban

Another bill sponsored by Ms. Burrows would require that fresh meat, poultry and seafood be packaged in biodegradable containers. The measure would ban the use of polyvinylchloride as a wrap for perishable food after July 1, 1980.

In addition, Rep. Tom Mason of Portland has introduced a bill to stop restaurants from using single-service disposable condiment packages.

Balanced budget isn't cure-all

WASHINGTON (AP) - The mayors of several major cities say they're faced with serious economic problems, but a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget isn't the solution.

While the mayors were delivering that message to a House Budget Committee task force Tuesday, two congressmen were announcing that 31 House members will join forces in a bipartisan search for ways to balance the federal budget.

Reps. Harold L. Volkmer, D-Mo., and Andy Jacobs, D-Ind., said the group will call itself the Balanced Budget Caucus.

The caucus will specifically examine ways to eliminate the federal budget deficit by voluntary, statutory or constitutional controls and limitations on the actions of Congress," Jacobs said. Meanwhile, House Mitional convention to propose an amendment requiring a balanced budget probably would not solve the nation's finan-

Speaking to the National Association of Counties, the Arizona Republican said the only solution to rising taxes and government spending is to elect a more conservative Congress.

New York City Mayor Edward I. Koch told the budget committee he has rejected a request from California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. to support a constitutional convention calling for a balanced budget.

San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein noted that California gets $10 billion a year in federal aid. "If Jerry Brown is really serious, he'd renounce the money," she said. "He won't do it because we need it."

Other mayors agreeing that federal funds included James D. Griffin of Buffalo, N.Y., and Kenneth Gibson of Newark, N.J.

The mayors did have some criticism for federal programs. Koch noted that New York's welfare and Medicaid bill is $4 billion a year and that local taxes pay more than $1 billion of the cost. "The president is not doing enough about it," he said. "It's no good ... it's breaking our

Crossing guard Dixie Smith is accustomed to stopping traffic. She does it twice each school day on North A Street to ensure her young charges at Bonham Elementary School get across safely. By now, the six-year veteran has both the children and the traffic pretty well trained, she notes. (Staff Photo)

Crossing guard sees mission as one of love

By SUSAN TOTH Staff Writer

People don't become crossing guards for the money. Or the job

The position doesn't offer much of But there are rewards. Dixie Smith, has been at the job for six years and has missed only two days. "This is just something I like to do," Mrs. Smith said. "I love every one of these children, and I know every one of them by name that cross at my walk," she said. She's on duty every school day from 7: 30 to 9 a.m. and from 2 to 4: 30 p.m. stopping traffic on N. A Street in front of Bonham Elementary School to sure her charges a safe crossing. "They're special to me, and I want to look after them closely," she said explaining her commanding nature when braving the traffic flow. "Talk about a busy street, especially in the mornings. Most of the drivers are courteous, though," she added. While the crossing guards are hired through the city police department, they cannot issue tickets since they are not commissioned officers.

The guards are placed at crossings selected by the city traffic engineers based on traffic flow and speed, Waid

The children, Mrs. Smith noted, are well trained in safety procedures.

"They stand right there on the curb until I get to the middle of the street and get all the traffic stopped," she said. "They only come across when I

"Of course, that takes a little training, but I've been here for a few years and they know me and I know

The crossing guards are hired each school year as temporary part-time employees of the city, Waid explained, and, like Mrs. Smith, "are usually just people concerned with the welfare of children."

Like the postmen, the guards are on duty in all kinds of weather, but "it's not so bad," Mrs. Smith contends.

"We have overcoats and boots and just about everything," she said. And the smiling faces of the children twice a day can make up for a lot, she added.

Deliveries by water district continue to lag in February

BIG SPRING - Deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District continued to lag during February, but practically all the loss was in the volume to oil companies, said district officials.

During February, the district pumped 1,052,271,636 gallons to its customers, down 7.68 percent or about 87 million gallons from the same month last year.

For the first two months of the year, deliveries amounted to 2,162,927 gallons, a decline of 10.87 percent from the same period in 1978 because of substantial losses in a severely cold January, according to officials.

Municipal deliveries in February were 757,281,600, only 1.5 million gallons below last February. Deliveries to oil companies for the month, however, were 294,990,036 gallons, off 22.57 percent because no surface water is being sold for secondary recovery, said officials.

For the first two months of the year oil company deliveries have amounted to 625,384,327 gallons, down 25.33 percent.

Odesa used 312,834,000 gallons, up 2.57 percent over February 1977; Big Spring used 162,193,000 gallons, down 2.25 percent; Snyder 54,175,000 gallons, down 6 percent; Stanton 6,198,-000 gallons, down 16.79 percent; Midland, 215,420,000 gallons, down 1.59 percent; and Robert Lee 6,460,800 gallons, up 64.19 percent.

Hearing on Whalen Lake scheduled Thursday in Austin

A hearing to determine if Whalen Lake, located near, Andrews, should be re-opened will be held Thursday before the Railroad Commission in

The executive committee of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, acting on behalf of the 1,300 member organization, last week approved a resolution asking the RRC to re-open Whalen Lake.

Whalen is a playa lake in Andrews County which has been used since 1967 as a brine water disposal facility.

The association pointed out in the resolution that the closing four-and-ahalf months ago has imposed economic hardship "upon certain oil producers resulting in the loss of production and revenues and resulting in a critical loss of revenue by brine hauling contractors in Andrews County.' Another section of the resolution said no conclusive proof has been presented to demonstrate that Whalen Lake is a hazard to migratory fowl or a threat to ground water. The group also noted that the RRC's professional engineering staff has recommended more than once that Whalen Lake be re-opened to avoid the loss of crude oil reserves.

The PBBA also supported the implementation of reasonable RRC standards for waste contaminates in playa lakes used as produced in water disposal systems. The West Central Texas Oil and Gas Association on Monday also endorsed the resolution.

ODESSA—A 23-year-old Odessa man was in the City Jail today in lieu of $65,000 bond, charged with the Oct. 7, 1978, murder of a 22-year-old Odessa man who was found stabbed once in the chest of a parked car here, police said.

Deputies recover sticks of dynamite

ANDREWS - Andrews County Sheriff's Office deputies recovered 109 sticks of dynamite Tuesday, and officers arrested two adults and detained two juveniles in connection with the previously reported disappearance of the explosives.

Deputies recovered the dynamite early Tuesday. It had been discovered to be missing from a countyowned explosives building.

A sheriff's office spokesman said 30 of the dynamite sticks were discovered buried under the ground and the remainder "was just laying on the ground" when lawmen happened on to the explosives cache at a site near Shafter Lake in Andrews County. Authorities received information late Monday night which led to the recovery of the stolen explosives, said the spokesman. After locating the stolen dynamite, deputies detained two juveniles in connection with the alleged burglary of the explosives building, located just outside the Andrews city limits. Officers also said they arrested Danny G. Webb, 19, and Clyde G. Carter, 22, both of Andrews, Tuesday in connection with the case. Both men were released on $2,000 bond each today after they were charged with unlawful possession and transportation of explosives - a second degree felony - before Peace Justice Jay Williams.

Authorities said no firm motive surrounding the burglary of the dynamite had yet been established. "The only thing we can figure is that maybe they were going to resell it," said the sheriff's office

The dynamite was taken sometime "within the last two weeks," said the spokesman.

DEAR ABBY: I was disappointed in your advice to carry no wedding gifts to the reception. You said gifts should be sent to the bride's home before the wedding or to the couple's home afterwards so as not to be a problem for the bride's mother, who already had enough on her mind.

You also said it was a pain in the neck to have to haul a carload of wedding presents home. Boy, I should have had such a pain in the neck!—J. IN PASO ROBLES DEAR J.: Although the mail has

Israeli women dodge draft; Detectives sniff them out

AP News Special By MICHAEL PRECKER Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - More and more Israeli women are dodging the draft on religious grounds, and the government is using private detectives to find them out.

Five women were arrested last week for driving on the Sabbath after securing exemption from military service by claiming it would interfere with their religious observances. A police spokesman said they were asked to be on the lookout for them because the Defense Ministry questioned the veracity of their

Ultra-orthodox Jews believe a girl should remain at home until she marries. They say the army corrupts young women by allowing them to mix with men without supervision. To satisfy this 5 percent of the population, strict adherence to Jewish law was made grounds for exemption of women from the two-year period of military service rquired of women after they are 18. Formerly women claiming this religious exemp-tion had to go before a military board that questioned them on religious law and traditions. Last year religious parties that hold the balance in Grime Minister Menachem Begin's coalition government pushed through a law abolishing the boards and requiring only the filing of a declaration that the young woman observes Jewish dietary laws and does not travel on the Sabbath.

"They can send them in the mail, right from the beach," said Orly Dahan, an army veteran now studying at Hebrew University. He is a member of the Movement for Equal Service, a new organization pushing for a law that would require women exempted from the army to perform two years of alternative service.

Most men are drafted for three years. About half the draft-age women are released from the obligation because they marry, claim religious exemptions or fail to meet health or educational standards.

Although it would give no totals, the Defense Ministry said the number of women claiming religious exemptions recently has risen from 22 to 27 percent of all those applying to escape the draft. "We can respect the conscience of a religious person, but we don't have to give a prize for it," said medical student Eliav Tsarfati of the equal service group. "So let's arrange a way for her to do her duty without a conscience problem. If we send her to school or to the beach, that's not fair.' Two bills for national service for women were recently defeated in the Knesset, the Israeli parliament. The sponsor of one of the bills, Shulamit Aloni, said the defeat "has nothing to do with what's right. It has to do with what keeps the government in power. There is no law, religious or not, that should prevent women from helping children and toe elderly or aiding the retarded or those in need of wel-

What to serve for a late supper after the theater, a movie or a TV program?

Whenever the question comes up I think of the Gay '90s. Those were the days when late suppers "Diamond Jim" Brady was known for giving them lavishly after taking friends to Broadway shows. One of his favorite dishes was said to be Soft Clams a la Newburg a rich combination of clams, truffles, Madeira, egg yolks and cream.

Today, taste in general is a far cry from Diamond Jim's. Friends tell me that now one of the best late-supper dishes is a Noodle Salad, the recipe in "Florence Lin's Chinese Regional Cookbook," published by Hawthorn in hardcover several years ago and now out in softcover Mrs. Lin's book is a treasure; her Noodle Salad and her other recipes are delicious, interesting and

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - Kathy Mohr and her 6-month-old son are periodically hooked up to computers, watched, prodded and harassed in tests at the Waisman Center of the University of Wisconsin here.

It's not because there is anything wrong with either mother or baby; they're both in perfect health, normal in every way. In fact, that's why they and hundreds of other Madison area parents and children are studied at the center each year.

The decade-old Harry A. Waisman Center on Mental Retardation and Human Development is a modern eight-story building which spawns thousands of research projects in its annual budget of more than $5 million, most of it from the federal and state governments.

The center's interdisciplinary approach, with scientists from different fields working together, is geared toward learning how and why humans come to be who they are: physically, mentally, emotionally and psycholo-

Consequently, much of the research involves people who are not retarded or otherwise handicapped.

Mrs. Mohr, 29, said the center asked her to be a research volunteer when her son Alex was 3 months old.

"I'm doing it for two reasons," she said. "First, if there was anything wrong with Alex, the people at the center might spot it quickly. Second, the research might someday help babies born with problems."

In one test, Alex was put in one of the center's sound chambers and given a nipple hooked to a computer. As different sounds were piped into the room, his sucking was registered and recorded

In another sound chamber project, electrodes were attached to Kathy to record her phsyical reactions to recordings of a baby screaming.

Bertie Donovan, a young Ph.D. at the center, said the tests were part of research designed to examine parents' responsiveness to their chil-

"There's a growing body of knowledge indicating that the infant's development is affected by how responsive and sensitive the mother is to the infant's signals," she said.

Like much of the research at the Waisman Center, Ms. Donovan's project is preventive, with the ultimate goal of helping mothers and fathers be better parents so their children are happier and healthier. "That's the challenge in all this,"

she said. The 350 faculty and staff with offices and labs in the Waisman Center represent 19 different departments of the university, ranging from electronics experts and neurochemists to social workers and vocational rehabilitation counselors

Besides research, the Waisman Center, named after the late UW scientist known for his work in mental retardation, provides on-the-spot training for 1,000 UW students each

Much of the student training is in programs run by the center to provide services to the retarded and developmentally disabled and their families.

There is a school geared especially for children who are either retarded or "at risk" for retardation because of various hereditary or environmental factors, and a program to help severely and profoundly disabled adults learn how to live outside an

"These people won't fit into estab-lished programs," said Dr. Jules Rosenthal, assistant director of the center. "They were not considered salvageable. This program proves they

One of the other many programs at the center is a clinic where handicapped clients are brought from all over Wisconsin by doctors, social workers or their families.

The clients stay at the clinic only a day or two, undergoing batteries of tests given by Waisman Center professionals and the UW students they are instructing in 12 disciplines such as speech therapy, nursing and nutri-

Little actual treatment is provided, but the clinic makes diagnoses and recommendations, including sinformation on where classes, training or treatment is available in the client's home area.

"There is something done for everyone who comes in here seeking help,' Rosenthal said. "There's no treatment, generally, but we say what's wrong and what should be done.'

BUSINESS MIRROR Deal on China claims leaves business cold

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The settlement of $196 million in claims against China for less than 41 cents on the dollar can hardly bring cheer to those whose property was seized by Fidel Castro.

They try to remain confident that the U.S. Government will do better by them because, among other things, their $2 billion in losses are thoroughly documented. But they worry, and often they get

As one corporate claimant put it, "If we were reimbursed we'd invest it in plants and machinery to make jobs for Americans. When Castro doesn't pay us it means he can pay his big debts to the Russians.

Trying to be optimistic, David Wallace, chairman of Bangor Punta Corp., which has a U.S.-certified $53 million claim against Cuba, said the China settlement "puts a floor under our negotiations."

But Bangor and other companies have been waiting a long time too, since 1959 and 1960, and not a penny has been paid. Their only relief, they say, has been relatively minor - through income tax deduc-

Meanwhile, the debt rises. Unilaterally, the U.S. Foreign Claims Settlement Commission says claimants are entitled to 6 percent interest a year. But even that isn't likely to cover replacement costs.

Said Wallace "Even if we got 100 percent and interest it wouldn't equal replacement," which he set at $250 billion. "We lost fields, sugar, refineries, a railroad and the most modern wharf in Cuba."

Bangor Punta and about 50 other institutions Allied Chemical, the First National Bank of Boston, the University of Chicago among them - meet regularly as the Joint Corporate Committee on

While some, such as Bangor Punta, may have been approached separately by Cuban officials, they choose to put their faith in Washington, which since the early 1960s has had their unusually well documented claims.

The files show claims of $1,851,057,358, growing at 6 percent a year since 1962. About $1.6 billion is owed corporations; private citizens lost $233 million, churches and schools about $13 million. Under the Cuban Claims Act of 1964, the government certified these amounts and, in the words of President Lyndon Johnson in signing the act, "this bill will provide for the adjudication of claims." For Washington to consider settling for a percentage of the claims, as in the China situation, would be 'dreadfully unfair," said Wallace. As it is, he said, the totals represent only a percentage of

But an even greater fear grips some claimants, although they don't like to talk of it. They have put their faith in the U.S. government. They hope their government doesn't abandon them.

While government officials have given little indication of doing so, the fear remains. From time to time elected officials have suggested, for example, that normalization of trade come first, settlement later.

Lest such thinking gain headway, the Corporate Committee seeks to impress on Americans its view of proper priorities: Claims settlement first, trade and diplomatic relations later.

"If trade relations are normalized in advance of a settlement, the Cuban Government will have nothing to gain by paying the claims," it states in a booklet aimed at heading off such an eventuality.

That, in fact, is the one of two major reasons for the committee's existence. For Congress to reverse the sequence, Wallace declares, would be a "gross miscarriage of justice - morally reprehensible."

In addition to its own members' claims, however, the committee has an even broader concern, expressed in these words from its booklet:

"If the United States does not insist upon payment by Cuba for the properties taken from U.S. nationals, this could encourage other nations to confiscate Americans properties without compensation." Such expropriations, it states, would violate international law, create severe international tensions and cast a cloud over international trade and investment, mainly with less developed nations.

Kahn threatens firms that violate price guides

CHICAGO (AP) - President Carter's chief inflation fighter is threatening to make public the names of businesses that are not holding the line on

Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, told the Economic Club of Chicago on Tuesday he has identified "several" businesses that have not complied with Carter's price guidelines. He said that if they do not respond to government inquiries, he would, "with a degree of enthusiasm that I suspect some of you may consider unseemly, identify them publicly.'

Kahn was critical of the business community and small and medium-sized firms in particular for not doing its share in fighting inflation.

In his strongest comments to date on business cooperation with the wage and price standards, Kahn said, "You, all of you, are on the spot and in

He said he was not advocating boycotts of companies that do not comply with the guidelines.

"We will inform consumers who is complying with the standards and who is not and let consumers decide what to do," Kahn told reporters after his speech to some 1,200 executives.

He said last week's announcement that wholesale prices advanced 1 percent in February after a 1.3 percent gain the previous month was a "catastro-

Art burglaries tough to solve

(AP) - Where a $1 million Rembrandt masterpiece hung for 30 years, the M.H. de Young Memorial Museum now displays a portrait of the 17th century painter by an unidentified disciple.

Rembrandt's "Portrait of a Rabbi" and three less valuable paintings were stolen last Christmas Eve by a burglar who pried open a skylight and lowered himself into the museum. Police report that their investigation is at a dead end, but the FBI still has an active investigation under way in other cities.

Two days after the San Francisco burglary, the Art Institute of Chicago was victimized by thieves who stole 19th century paintings by Paul Cezanne from a storage room. The value: $3 million.

Chicago police also say they have no suspects or leads in their case. The Art Institute is offering a $100,000 reward for information leading to recovery of the three paint-

Swan expresses some puzzlement when asked why Superman has retained his popularity over the years.

"I don't know. Personally, I would assume it's because all of us have our Walter Mitty side and this is room for escape, I guess."

City, county have plan for handling disaster

By GUY SULLIVAN

If a tornado or any other major disaster ever strikes Midland County, a plan exists to coordinate efforts to provide first aid, shelter and damage assessment.

That plan is called the Midland County Civil Defense Disaster Plan. And it involves more than 30 agencies, hundreds of city and county employees, plus citizen volunteers. The volunteers come from groups ranging from the American Red Cross and Salvation Army to amateur radio club members, who would combine to provide food, clothing, shelter and emergency communications. Bob Edgerton, an employee of Mobile Oil Corp., is Midland County's civil defense coordinator, designated for the job by Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr.

EDGERTON CONSTANTLY must update the various aspects of the city-county disaster plan.

Recent rainstorms and high winds, which broke windows and blew over a house under construction, point to one more reason why a city-county disaster plan is vital, said Edgerton.

'The only thing we can do is to protect people by giving them as much advance warning of disasters as possible," he said.

"We must also protect property from damage and assess the overall cost immediately after such situations," he added.

The main idea of the city-county disaster operations plan, he said, is to "get all of the facilities of the city and county working together to relieve suffering

Edgerton said private organizations play an equally important role to that of city and county employees in major emergencies.

AS MIDLAND COUNTY'S radio officer for 10 years, Edgerton has some experience and knowledge of emergency communications.

An amateur radio operator, he stays alert to coordinate such service for Midland County through the Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Services

"RACES is merely a way amateur radio operators can be reorganized as an operating unit to provide backup communications for communities during times of disaster," said Edgerton.

As for what all these citizens and public employees would do in the event of a disaster on the order of a local tornado, Edgerton said, "Initially we'd have to take care of the search and rescue job.

"THEN WE WOULD define the extent of damage, trying to get an overall cost estimate" for repairs and rebuilding

He said both the city and county would be reponsible for getting in touch with the Texas State Disaster Emergency Service Division of the Department of

That agency would then seek answers to questions about how many people were killed, how many citizens were missing and the extent of property

"THIS REQUIRES TEAMS of volunteers looking at the damage and compiling information at a central location," he said.

"People needing shelter would be going to available schools and churches under the city-county civil defense disaster plan," said Edgerton.

"Groups such as the American Red Cross and the Salvation Army would be involved in providing food and shelter for the victims and relieving their misery," he said.

The recovery operation would "depend upon the extent of the damage," Edgerton said.

"ALL DAMAGE ESTIMATE information compiled would enable the governor to decide if he should designate the county a disaster area," he said.

"That's necessary before a region can qualify for various forms of state and federal disaster relief,"

He said: "It's necessary to have the capability of reacting to a major disaster. If it does occur, you must have the capability for dealing with it."

According to U.S. Weather Service officials, Edgerton said, "The potential is high in this area for a maxi-killer tornado. "But even a medium-size tornado can do a lot of damage and hurt many people - if they don't get out strikes is: "Get into the southwest corner of the house or building. A big closet would do: Also, the interior of a bathroom with no windows is a good

Virtually all off-duty policemen and firemen would be called to duty immediately if disaster struck, he said. Public works employees of city and county staffs would be called upon to help, Edgerton said.

A diagram displayed by Edgerton, actually a page out of the city-county disaster plan, shows a variety of agencies involved in communication with each other for the safety of the area in case major

These agencies include the Department of Public Safety, National Weather Service, private and public shelters, police and fire departments, American Red Cross, State Guard, wreckers, ambulances, airport staffers, sewage treatment plant staffers, health personnel, radio stations, airport staffers, school transportation personnel and many others.

Tornado safety tips offered

Hot, humid, windy weather can be a dangerous signal for Texas during the spring months.

That's because these weather conditions breed tornados, and Texas is the most tornado-prone state in the nation, according to Dr. Gary Nelson, extention agricultural safety engineer at Texas A&M University.

Texas has an average of 103 tornados a year, most of them occurring in April and May when there are violent winds, severe thunderstorms and masses of cool and warm air colliding with

Most damage is done by what National Weather Service officials call "maxi tornados," those with winds of more than 200 mph which remain on the ground for more than 30 miles. While maxi tornados represent only about 3 percent of all twisters, they account for 90 percent of tornado deaths, officials said

City to study drainage measures By LANA CUNNINGHAM

Ponding and additional storm sewers will be investigated further as a solution to northwest Midland's drainage problems after the City Council Tuesday approved the general concept.

Fred Baker, director of public works, said the State Highway Department has warned him some drainage problems may develop around the intersection of North Midkiff Road and FM 868 during the construction of the North Loop Road.

Current plans call for three culverts to be installed diagonally across FM 868, dumping water into an area south of FM 868 and east of Midkiff Road, an area being developed by Magnatex into a shopping center.

Amount of runoff to the Magnatex section "is not significant" now because the area has not been developed, Baker said. Some small playa lakes in the area also take up part of the runoff.

A 10-acre lake, or pond as Baker referred to it, would be dug north of FM 868 to gather water draining from that area. A storm sewer system going down Midkiff and connecting with the Northwest Drainage Channel would handle the runoff at the beginning of a storm.

Once that runoff has been handled, water collected in ponds and smaller storm sewers then would be allowed to flow into the drainage channel, according to Baker.

"Ponding is a more viable solution for drainage," Baker told the coun-

Drainage plans for Magnatex's development have not been studied by the Public Works Department, Baker said, adding that a problem area will occur at the southeast corner of that plot. A preliminary plat shows townhouses and a park will be built in that

Baker also noted that a preliminary drainage report compiled by Parkhill, Smith and Cooper made recommendations based on a 100-year flood level with improvements slated for existing drainage in the area around Haynes and Ward streets.

The council authorized Baker's department to prepare detailed storm sewer plans with a ponding area. The Highway Department is ready to go with widening Midkiff Drive, but is waiting to see what the city plans to do about drainage before proceeding, Baker said.

Joe Reed with Ed Reed and Associates reviewed a water supply study completed by his company in which future needs for the city through 1990 are outlined.

Based on water usage from 1969-78, the city will consume an average of 16.5 million gallons per day by 1985 with a peak load at 40.43 million gallons per day.

By 1990, the city should be using an average of 18.75 million gallons per day with the peak at 45.94 million gallons per day, he said.

To meet the increased load by 1990,

Individual Retirement Accounts at First Savings are the sure way to build for a secure retirement, and get a tax break at the same time.

If you're working for a company that does not have a retirement plan and you feel unprotected, then an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) at First Savings is the thing for you.

With an IRA, you save for the future at the impressive current interest rate of 8% (effective annual yield 8.33%). Deduct whatever you save - up to $1500 - from you gross income, and defer every penny in taxes on your IRA until you withdraw it, normally after retiring. Then, you'll probably have less income and possibly be in a lower tax bracket.

(NOTE: There are severe penalties for withdrawals before age 591/2.)

Here's an example of what an IRA can do for you. If you start an IRA at age 30, and deposit the maximum of $1500 per year until age 65, at the current interest rate, your IRA will be worth over $300,000. That's a tidy sum to start retirement, if you want to retire that young. By the way, your IRA is in addition to standard Social Security benefits. But remember, the deadline for starting or adding to your IRA is the date your taxes are due.

So stop by either First Savings office . . . downtown at 500 West Wall or San Miguel Square . . . , and let the "FISCAL FITNESS PEOPLE" show you the sure way to save for retirement. It's getting later than you think ...

Agents can wreck team in a hurry

By AUSTIN WILSON

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - An unscrupulous agent can ruin a young man's life, so college coaches had better be able to spot the four-flushers and advise the talented basketball player, say three men who've gone through that mill.

In the most recent incident to receive wide publicity, Louisiana State University star forward DeWayne Scales, a sophomore, was suspended for having repeated contacts with a professional agent, violating the team's game plan to show off his own talents, then lying to his coach about the whole thing.

Coach Dale Brown said the decision to suspend Scales was the hardest thing he's had to do since he began coaching at Columbus High School in North Dakota 22 years ago.

Brown -as every coach must do when he disciplines a player—had to consider the ultimate welfare of the player as well as the welfare of the rest of the team, the school and the

ALSO INVOLVED is an NCAA rule that makes a player ineligible as soon as he signs a contract with -or gives a verbal commitment to - an agent. There's no evidence that Scales made any such commitment

Agents are apparently an unavoidable fact of life for the successful college coach and the talented play-

"Agents have always been a pain in the butt," said Tulane's Roy Danforth, whose Syracuse teams were perennial performers in post-season tournaments. "I think they definitely upset the player, especially if he's an undergraduate.

Carl Stewart of Southern lost Frankie J. Sanders, one of the nation's leading scorers, at the end of last season. Sanders had a year of college eligibility left, but Stewart foresaw the loss of his star. To build a successful program, one must recruit talented players, and that means agents aren't far behind, he said.

"It's certainly not in the best interest of the team or the kid for an agent to be in the player's room," Stewart said. "But I don't know of too many of the good ones who haven't been contacted - at least indirectly - by some agent. "They're not going to wait until a player has been drafted to come around and sign him up.'

AL MCGUIRE, who retired after taking Marquette to a national championship, agreed.

"These agents can make basket cases of young kids," he said. All three said it's important to have as much light on the situation as possible as early and as constantly as possible — even from the first contact with a player when he's still in high school

"I feel very strongly about this. When we are recruiting an exceptionally talented basketball player, we must tell him, 'In the event your talent warrants that kind of consideration, you can go hardship with our blessings," said Stewart. "But I don't believe in leaving it there. We should know who's representing the young man and what kind of representation he's getting - within the bounds of the NCAA, since it won't permit a school or any official of the school to represent a player.

"It's not fair to the kid to say, 'Hey, I hope everything goes okay for you, then pat him on the back and watch him leave. It has to go beyond that." He suggested that the NCAA sponsor mandatory seminars for all players on the agent-athlete relationship.

DANFORTH SAID schools should be permitted to keep an attorney and a tax authority available as advisers to the players, so the athlete could sit down with the agent and the advisers to make sure he's not being bilked.

The problem, they said, is that not all agents are ethical and few players are equipped to discriminate.

"You get these agents, and they blow smoke rings at you," McGuire said. "If a kid like Scales doesn't watch it, he'll wind up in tap city. Kids think the pro game is Camelot. It isn't anything of the kind. It's a cold, calculating business.

The problem, they said, is that not all agents are ethical and few players are equipped to discriminate.

The rest of the players on the team are sometimes cast as innocent bystanders, victimized by having the star they supported taken away from them on the threshhold of greater victories - or at least more of them.

"It shouldn't have any more effect on them than that player making

What really hurts in football is when Oklahoma comes to the Cotton Bowl and whips up on the Longhorns with a team that is all-Texas, except for a token Sooner or two.

Bulldogs power by Coronado, 9-5

Sports Writer

What a diference one day made for the Midland High School baseball

Tuesday afternoon at the Memorial Stadium diamond, the Bulldogs used three homers, two by Jimmy Zachry and one by Tracy Gann, to defeat the Lubbock Coronado Mustangs, 9-5.

The victory, which left the Bulldogs with a 5-3 ledger, came just one day after Midland High dropped a disap-pointing 6-4 decision to Snyder.

Bulldog coach Larry Peel attributed the triumph to timely hitting. "We got the base hits when we had to," said Peel. "I was really pleased with our hitting. Everybody played a super Zachry, who collected five runs batted in with his two circuit clouts, paced a 10 ten hit Bulldog attack. Senior rightfielder David Brigham contributed three hits, including a key triple in the sixth, and catcher Tommy Munoz added two hits and drove in a pair of runs.

Coronado, 5-4 for the campaign, threatened early when centerfielder Robert Ledbetter opened the game with a ground-rule double. The slightly-built senior advanced to third following a wild pitch, but died there after Booth retired the side.

Midland wasted little time in jumping on Mustang ace Gene Segrest, who started the game with a 2-0 worksheet. Leadoff hitter Mike Feldt drilled a single up the gap and moved to second on a wild pitch. Munoz reached on an error, giving the Bulldogs runners on the corners. Then Segrest hung a fast ball that Zachry swatted over the left centerfield fence. Later in the first, Paul Cox gave the hosts a 4-0 lead when he singled Tracy Gann home from sec-

Neither squad threatened in the second or third stanzas, although Coronado's Bryan Brock appeared to be in scoring position in the second. But he tried to stretch a sure double into a triple and was gunned down.

In the fourth, a Mustang uprising began when Jim Wells slashed a base hit with and drove in a pair of runs.

MIDLAND WASTED little time getting after Mustang pitching ace Gene Segrest, who came into the game with a 2-0 record. Leadoff hitter Mike Feldt lined a single and Munoz reached on an error before two-year varsity letterman Zachry smacked a hanging fastball halfway to Odessa. Later in the first inning, the Bulldogs went up 4-0 after Paul Cox singled home Gann, who had walked and reached second on a wild pitch.

With one out in the fourth, Coronado began an uprising when Jimmy Wells slapped a base hit. The Mustangs eventually loaded the bags and scored a pair when Munoz, after forcing out the lead runner at the plate, threw wildly to first base while attempting a twin killing. Eventually, two more runs scampered across as senior leftfielder Kelly Howell hit safely.

But the Bulldogs, who mustered only a measly three hits against Snyder, weren't to be denied. They went ahead 5-4 in their half of the fourth after Brigham hit safely and scored on Munoz' spiffy double.

Gann's towering solo shot over the rightfield fence in the fifth was all the Bulldogs needed. Still, Midland rapped out three sixth inning hits,including Zachry's second tape measure blast, which came with one man on base.

Rick Powell, who succeeded the struggling Segrest in the fourth, absorbed the setback and fell to 0-2 for the year. The Mustangs dropped to 5-4 for the young season.

Monterey raps Rebels LUBBOCK - Lubbock Monterey continued its winning ways here

Tuesday afternoon.

The Plainsmen, fresh from a threegame sweep of Midland's Tournament of Champions over the weekend, romped past the Midland Lee Rebels, 11-4 at Lowery Field in a non-district baseball game.

Kent Potts and Rick Pinkerton shared the pitching duties for the Hub City team which collected 12 hits off righthander Dwayne Holmes who went all the way on the mound for

Lee Coach Ernie Johnson decided to pitch Holmes all the way since his Rebels are in the Hobbs, N.M. Invitational Baseball Tournament Thursday through Saturday and will need all the pitching they can muster if they have to play four games in the New Mexico city

Monterey took an early 3-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning and added four more runs and had the Rebels down 10-0 before the Tall City team scored a single run in the top of the fifth inning. Monterey made it 11-1 with a run in the bottom of the same inning, but Lee did manage to score three times in the top of the sixth, but it was too late by then.

Temple cage star charged with arson

police said.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - A star player for the Temple University basketball team has been charged with setting a fire outside his girlfriend's dormitory room, police said.

Bruce Harrold, 21, the second-highest scorer on the team from Sharon, was charged with arson, risking a catastrophe, recklessly endangering others and making terroristic threats.

Terry Willis and Danny Rabb pounded doubles for the Rebels while John White chipped in with a triple,. but three Lee errors hurt at key

With the loss, Lee takes an 8-4 record into the Hobbs tourney on Thursday when the Rebels face the Carlsbad, N.M. Cavemen in the 1 p.m. (CDT) contest.

Pinkerton had the only extra-base blow for Monterey, a double as the Plainsmen are now 6-3 after a slow 1-3 start.

The fire was set March 1 outside the sixth-floor room of Audley Warner, 19, in Hardwick Hall, police said. Harrold, according to police, had quarreled with Warner earlier about her refusal to attend a game. No one was injured in the fire, but hundreds of students were sleeping in the dorm when it broke out, police

Bonds' bat makes impression

By The Associated Press

Bobby Bonds, who reported to the Cleveland Indians only last week, seems to be making up for lost time.

The slugging outfielder, who was reluctant to join the Indians after being traded for the fifth time in six years, had three hits and three runs batted in - including the tying and winning hits - Tuesday as the Indians beat the Milwaukee Brewers 10-9 in 12-innings.

And, says Cleveland's Len Barker, "You ain't seen nothing yet."
The 32-year-old Bonds is being used as a designated hitter while he catches up with the rest of the club in conditioning. He cracked a two-out, 10th-inning single to tie the game 9-9 and added a 420-foot homer to win the game in the 12th.

That capped the day for the Indians, who trailed 8-1 after five innings but pulled even on Paul Dade's two-out single in the ninth.

"Those first few innings were like a circus," said Cleveland Manager Jeff Torborg. "I didn't like that, but winning makes you feel better.'

GOLF NOTES

Injury jeopardizes golfer's earning ability

By BOB GREEN

MIAMI (AP) - Notes from the pro golf tournament trail: The great, over-riding concern of any athlete is the possibility of a disabling injury. That's doubly true of the professional tournament golfer.

The state of his health directly effects his earning ability.

Athletes in team sports are protected, at least to a small degree, by their contracts. A running back, a goalie, a pitcher or a backcourt man can be disabled early in the season and continue to

Jack Nicklaus his salary for the remainder of the year. If it's a permanent disability, it's possible he could continue to be paid for the life of his contract. Not so the golfer. His earnings in his sport are winnings only. His income from golf is only the amount he can gain in competition. If he is unable to play for a month or so, he's simply lost a chance for the amount of money that was up for grabs at that time. If he can't play, and play well, his income stops immediately. If it is a permanent disability, his golf income is permanently ended

A surprising number of injuries have afflicted the touring pros this year. All effect, to a greater or lesser degree, their victims.

Barry Jaeckel, winner of last year's Tallahassee Open, is the latest. He'd been having some troubles with a thumb. While visiting the New York Yankee training camp, Jaeckel decided to have Yankee medical personnel check it out. An examination disclosed a hairline fracture. The hand is in a cast and he'll be out out of competition and out of an income for several weeks.

Among the others are John Mahaffey (hand), Tom Weiskopf (stomach), Leonard Thompson (knee), Bruce Lietzke (ribs), Jerry McGee

The danger always is there.

WITH THAT in mind, many players have questioned the wisdom of Jack Nicklaus' offseason preference for skiing, an extremely high-injury sport.

"You can't live your life in a plastic bubble," Nicklaus shrugged. "I enjoy skiing. My kids enjoy it. You can't just close yourself off from life. I try to be as careful as I can. I don't want to get hurt. But if I get hurt," he shrugged again, "I get

There is insurance available - at a very high premium - for the leading players.

BRUCE DEVLIN'S career has been affected greatly by health problems. A series of operations for vericose veins in the legs put him on the sidelines at one time or another.

"My golf career now, however, has taken a backseat to television and business," said Devlin, an Australian who once said he provides the NBC golf commentary crew with "the poor man's British accent."

Carew wields bat the way Picasso wielded brush

The Los Angeles Times Syndicate

PALM SPRINGS, Calif.—The odd thing about Rodney Cline Carew, the legend, is that he didn't come to L.A. under glass, like the Mona Lisa, King Tut, or the crown jewels, and they didn't send him direct to the Huntington Library or L.A. County

You are surprised a work of art like that is allowed to roam free. You would think that Lloyds of London or somebody would insist on an armed guard, a Brinks truck or bullet-proof glass.

America doesn't think very much of its art objects anyway. The statue of David would probably be turned into a McDonald's. Westminister Abbey would have slot machines in it.

Rod Carew is Picasso at the plate. An artist at work. He wields a bat the way Pablo wielded a brush. He is a portraitist. The game, the score, the league pale into insignificance. People come to see the artist, not the contest. Who won? is like asking who won, Caruso or Carmen, Gielgud or Shakespeare?-"I saw Carew go 4 for 5 tonight," a spectator might say proudly. "How did the Twins do?" he may be asked. "I forget," he'll say.

BUT NOW the work of art has been taken out of Minnesota, where the supporting cast was merely a bunch of spear carriers. Everybody else played the butler or offstage sound effects there

Now those Philistines, the California Angels, want the work of art to help out with the dishes, rake the yard. They want Rembrandt to do ceilings, Horowitz to play for weddings. They want a pennant, not Picasso, money, not masterpieces.

Ali agrees to exhibition -

DENVER (AP) — A Denver boxing promoter says Muhammad Ali has agreed to participate in an exhibition bout here in May against an as-yet-undetermined opponent.

Lyle Pedersen, a trainer and promoter, said the bout would be part of a full boxing card at McNichols Arena. He said the date of the event had not yet been selected but that city officials had given clearance for the arena to be used.

Pedersen said there was a possibility the opponent would be a "former world champion," but he'did not

The promoter said he had arranged the bout with Chris Dundee, older brother of Ali's long-time train-

I mean, what do these vulgarians think they're getting - a Pete Rose? A Country Slaughter? Do they want head-first slides, collisions at second base? Should he now swing at pitches in the dirt to aid a stealing base runner?

Purists are of an opinion that Rod Carew should never get his uniform dirty, be made to hit behind a runner, bunt for anything less than a base hit, or collide with a catcher. Anything else is like requiring Man O'War to talk, too

WHAT ROD Carew does best is get to first base, 300 times a year in his good years. About a third of that time, he gets to home base, too. And this on a team that finishes 171/2 to 19 games out of first place every year, a team going through the motions. Its fans only looked up when Carew came to bat.

But it was Caruso appearing in draughty tents, or touring the country with a steel band, conducting a sing-along in a theater.

Even a great artist needs a setting. If Caruso needed the Met, and DaVinci the Louvre, Carew needed a World Series. It's like every actor wanting to play the Old Vic. Even Carew needs prime time.

Almost every player in the Hall of Fame played in a World Series. Rod Carew is the greatest active player, and maybe one of the greatest players ever never to play in a World Series. For Rod Carew not to play in one is like an admiral never going into battle, a gambler never catching a royal flush.

I ALWAYS thought Rod Carew was such a cut above the average even good hitter in this league he has been, at times, as many as 78 battingpoints ahead of his nearest competitor — that he should be made to call his shots like Willie Hoppe or Minnesota Fats. "OK, now I'm going to hit this one exactly 385 feet into left center at longitude 32 and latitude 35. It will travel at a velocity of 107m.p.h., apogee 18 feet 5 inches, and hit the fence on the second bounce." If it doesn't do exactly as he says, it doesn't count.

Or, he may be required to lay a bunt precisely 111/2 feet in front of the plate, or a ground ball just 21 inches outside the stretched hand of the third baseman. Carew once bunted a ball at third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez that had such backspin on it that Rodriguez originally backed up on the ball, and then chased it almost all the way to home plate, as it spun back on him like a Jack Nicklaus wedge to a soft green. "I walked to first," Carew recalls.

HE HITS home runs only when absolutely neces- ly got, too.

sary. He has stolen as many as 49 bases a season, but 'only when the situation called for it." In other words, in 11-0 games where stealing a base is like putting a puck in an empty net, Carew declines fattening his average.

You can see why purists might worry what might happen to this priceless object in the heat of a pennant race, the way the Vatican might worry about sending the Pieta on tour in a country with a

Rod Carew averages 1.27 hits a game - some guys don't average that a month - he strikes out less often than a sailor with a waitress. "His weakness is single," Jim Lonborg once grumbled. He doesn't require of a pitch that it have a Good Housekeeping Seal on it, having drummed many a ballfour against the left field fence. He can pull, push, drop or orbit the best pitches the league can offer. 'My weakness? I think it's a fastball right down the middle," he laughs. The last one of those he saw was when he was a boy playing at the Gatun Locks in the

We have lost the Panama Canal, but we have gained the pride of Panama. If Jimmy Carter doesn't find a way to make us return it, too, the Angels could yet become the first expansion team in the American League to win a pennant.

BUT THE BUBBLE gum set's priorities in baseball for Rod Carew are (1) to win his eighth batting championship and catch Honus Wagner for second place in the all-time lead and (2) bat .400.

Will the pressure on him to win the pennant take a hammer to that museum piece, Rod Carew? Will the beautiful batting stroke be reduced to a roundhouse swing for the fences and home runs? Will the .388 and .366 and .364 batting averages slink to .292 as he battles the pitchers for long ball, gets reckless on the bases, turns from a Ted Williams to an Eddie Carew grins. "I don't think I'll pressure myself to change now that I've come over here with such high hopes. Thope to do the things I've always done and, if the team executes the small things, too - like moving the runner, hitting to the opposite field, and wearing out the pitchers — I think that my game will suit here and will result in a lot of runs - and a lot wins - and a lot of pennants.

In that case, he can really go to his rightful place in the game — a World Series — where his fellow works of art, Babe Ruth, Hank Aarong Roberto Clemente and even Al Kaline and Charley Gehringer eventual-

Mayor Edward Koch, Sophia Loren

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) - If Mayor Edward Koch went home from work with lipstick on his collar, blame it on Sophia Loren. Miss Loren went to City Hall to promote her new book Tuesday, and the event turned into a kissing bee. She kissed Koch, he kissed her; she kissed other city officials and City Hall aides. When it was over, she sped to the airport, and Koch exclaimed, "There's never been a more beautiful woman than Sophia to visit City Hall. She's a beautiful woman with great charm.' The mayor escorted Miss Loren, who carried an Italian flag, into the ceremonial Blue Room, packed with reporters and city officials.

"She is beloved not only in New York City and the United States but throughout the world as a great artist," Koch declared.

Then he recited several sentences in Italian, which he said he had practiced for a long time.

'You are the most beautiful woman in Italy, and also I and all the Italian-Americans believe that you are the most beautiful flower in all the world. I love you very much," Koch said, according to the official translation released by his press office.

"I was not prepared for such a wonderful, wonderful reception," Miss Loren responded. "I can't find the right words."

MONROE, La. (AP) - A group of high school journalism students got a classroom visit from a major newsmaker - Tongsun Park - and found out something about gag rules.

Park said he couldn't discuss with them the trial of former congressman Otto Passman. Park is the key witness in the trial.

Park was spotted in the Monroe airport last week by a group of students, and he offered to talk at the school.

. He spoke to about 50 students Tuesday and said he would like to come back Friday, according to Hope Carroll, a journalism student at a West Monroe high school. Park, who testified in court Tuesday about his relationship with

Passman, answered questions about life in Korea, compared systems and traditions and he said peace in the Middle East would be a good

Although a cyclone was whipping down the coast at about 20 mph, Charles and staff planned to leave the gold mining town of Kalgoorlie late today for Geraldton, about 300 miles north of Perth. "Rain by itself won't stop us," a staff member said. "It will have to be fairly rough to prevent the visit and the betting is that we will go." Wind gusts of up to 65 mph battered Carnarvon, 200 miles north of Geraldton, and hundreds were evacuated. Charles got his first look at a gold mine when he dressed in protective clothing and was lowered below the surface to see operations of the Mount Charlotte gold mine. He spent an hour underground after a 10-minute ride in the nine-man winding cage - the only link to the surface.

Army chief of staff calls for immediate institution of draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army's top military and civilian leaders are sparring over whether to bring back the draft and let Uncle Sam call up as many as 100,000 recruits each year for mandatory training and standby duty.

The dispute erupted Tuesday after a surprise call by Gen. Bernard W. Rogers, the Army's chief of staff, for immediately instituting a limited version of

He proposed a lottery system for picking recruits and said the country must be willing to prosecute draft evaders.

Uniformed leaders of the Air Force, Navy and Marines, although not specifically endorsing Rogers' proposal, predicted that a draft is likely, if not inevitable. They were unanimous in urging renewal of a system requiring young people to register for possible service.

Within two hours of Rogers' recommendation, made to a congressional subcommittee, his civilian boss distributed a statement saying the general's plan clashes with official Army policy.

Army Secretary Clifford Alexander said, "To enact a draft, I believe, would be unnecessary, unfair and counterproductive to the best interests of the Army." He said there is no need now for a draft of any kind - including the one proposed by

The disagreement between the two Pentagon officials probably will spread to Congress, where the debate so far has focused on plans for military registration - which would fall short of a draft. Registration bills have been proposed in both houses of Congress, and legislation for a limited draft is pending in the House. Rogers, the Army's top person in uniform, made his proposal to the Senate Armed Services manpower subcommittee, which is investigating widely ack-

tary for an emergency.

Although active-duty forces have fallen short of their recruiting goals this year, the biggest problem is in the reserves, and particularly the individual ready reserve - the manpower pool chiefly for use as replacements for wartime battlefield casualties. Rogers said the individual ready reserve is 500,000 people short of its 700,000 authorized strength. He proposed an annual draft of 75,000 to 100,000 people for a six-year obligation in the individual ready reserve. After an initial training period - perhaps six months - recruits would return to civilian life and remain on standby for possible duty for the remainder of their service. Rogers suggested they be recalled twice for two-week refresher courses. 'If this session of Congress could reinstitute the draft, I would be in favor of it," Rogers testified. He said the Pentagon is equipped to handle the new recruits but noted, "the major difficulties would be getting the legislation passed.' Gen. Louis H. Wilson, commandant of the Marine Corps, told the committee a draft will be unavoidable in the 1980s. "I believe the trend is unmistakably down as far as recruiting is concerned," he said. Gen. Lew Allen Jr., Air Force chief of staff, and Adm. Thomas B. Hayward, chief of naval operation, initially testified that Congress should not enact a draft this year. After Rogers made his proposal, Allen said a draft for the individual ready reserve "is likely to be required" and should be done when it can be accomplished in an orderly fashion. Hayward said a draft is not inevitable but "it is likely."

Rogers urged registration of women but said he was not prepared to recommend they be included in a draft. Allen and Hayward said registration of women is not essential and there is no need to draft nowledged problems in mobilizing the nation's miliwomen. Wilson advocated registering women.

Van Vactor, 50, was seized from his office Friday at the Dansalan Junior College in Marawi City on the island of Mindanao. A note Tuesday from the kidnappers, believed to be Moslem guerrillas, said Van Vactor would be killed if 500,000 pesos, or $67,000, wasn't delivered in three days.

"I have told our people in the Philippines to be prepared to do whatever's necessary to save his life," said the Rev. Paul Gregory of the church's Board of World Ministries in New York. "I'm not certain when the 'three days' they spoke of will be up, but I assume they mean today or tomorrow. The sooner we handle the ransom, the better."

Marvin judge kills subpoena

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The judge in the Lee Marvin trial has quashed a subpoena for private notes taken by a lawyer during talks with a young actor who claims he had sex 25 times with Michelle Triola Marvin while she was living with Marvin.

Miss Marvin's attorney, who sought the notes, declared in court Tuesday that he plans to present testimony that the witness - actor Richard Doughty - is a homosexual.

Marvin Mitchelson, who paused in his cross-examination of Marvin to argue the motion concerning Doughty, said evidence of homosexuality would cast doubt on Doughty's claim that he had a lengthy sexual affair with Miss Marvin, 46, while she was still living with Lee Marvin, 55.

"I am putting you on notice," said Mitchelson, "I will put on a witness to testify about Mr. Doughty's reputation in the gay community as a homo-

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - An Israeli soldier was traded for 66 Palestinians at Geneva airport today in the first prisoner exchange between the Jewish state and the guerrillas.

Avraham Amram, captured 11 months ago during Israel's invasion of southern Lebanon, was swapped for 60 Palestinian men and six women who were arrested in Israeli-occupied territories.

The names of the Palestinians could not be learned immediately. Negotiations for the trade were conducted over the last several months.

The exchange announcement was made by the International Committee of the Red Cross, which said initially it acted "as a letter box" between the Israelis and the Palestinians. It said Amram arrived from Damascus, Syria, on a Bulgarian Airways plane, that the Palestinians arrived from Israel on a chartered plane five minutes later and parked at opposite ends of the airport. Half the Palestinians were released, put on a large airport bus and driven toward the Bulgarian plane, stopping some distance away. Then Amram was released from the Bulgarian plane, put on a smaller bus and driven toward the Israeli plane. The remaining Palestinians. among them several women, were then released.

Amram, a 33-year-old army reservist, will go to Tel Aviv in the Israeli aircraft as soon as formalities have been completed, and the Palestinians will be taken to Tripoli, Libya, in the Bulgarian plane, the Red Cross said.

It said the prisoner selection was made by the two sides and the Red Cross proposed Geneva for the swap because it would have been difficult to find a place agreeable to both parties in the Middle East itself."

Israeli reports say Amram was the only Israeli taken prisoner during the three-month occupation of southern Lebanon.

Amendments made Tuesday would require that students receiving the grants must also be paying tuition at least equal to the regular tuition required at a state college or university. Maurice Bishop, the 33-year-old opposition legislator who led the coup, declared an 8 p.m.-6 a.m. curfew and called on the 110,000 people of the 133-square-mile island to go back to

Bishop's "revolutionary army" struck before dawn Tuesday while Prime Minister Sir Eric Gairy was in New York, reportedly on United Nations business. Gairy, 56, checked out of his New York hotel Tuesday night and afterward could not be found by reporters. A rebel broadcast called him a "criminal dictator" and said the United States would be asked to extradite him to face trial on charges of murder and fraud.

Bishop said in a telephone interview that most of his men were civilians armed with shotguns, pistols and rifles collected "from friends in the United States and Europe." The revolt began with an attack on the island's police barracks and the radio station. Bishop, who leads a democratic-socialist party called the New Jewel Movement, set up headquarters in the studios of Radio Grenada and dubbed the station "Radio Free Grenada."

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Preudhomme broadcast an appeal to police holding out to surrender, and the last resisting police station gave up at 4 p.m.

Al Gilkes, a reporter for the Bridgetown newspaper The Nation, said in a telephone call from Grenada that the "atmosphere was very cold and very quiet," that all policemen had been sent home after they surrendered but that two high-ranking officers were under arrest. The U.S. Embassy in Barbados, 250 miles northeast of Grenada, said a policeman was reported killed in the rebel attack on the barracks near St.

George's, the capital.

The rebels closed the airport, blocking the runway with luggage carts, and all flights to the island were suspended. However, Radio Grenada assured tourists that they would be safe and were welcome to

About 400 American tourists were reported on the island along with 130 permanent American residents

Land of his birth pays Albert Einstein tribute

ULM, West Germany (AP) — They haven't put up a memorial yet at Albert Einstein's birthplace in Ulm, but it and other German cities are not neglecting the 100th anniversary of his birth. A major theme is remorse about Nazi persecution of Einstein and other Jews.

"For us it is a point of honor," said Lord Mayor Hans Lorenser of Ulm. "Einstein was born here. His family came from this region. We deeply regret that Einsteinstrasse was renamed by the Nazis."

Einstein, who would have been 100 this Wednesday, revolutionized physics with his Theory of Relativity decades before he fled the Nazis. Now he is being honored not only by Ulm, but by Munich, where he was educated, and in Berlin, where he was a profes-

West German President Walter Scheel, at ceremonies in West Berlin, noted that Einstein would not return to Germany after the war because "he didn't think the German people were able to live in freedom."

"We have proven the opposite," said Scheel. "This is a free country" - one he says is entitled to honor the late scientist.

East Germany, too, has commemorated Einstein's birth. Prime Minister Willi Stoph said Einstein was not a Marxist, but was "a great humanist whose work and personality served humanity and peace."

In Ulm, a 1,100-year old town of half-timbered homes and narrow, cobblestoned streets on the Danube River, Einstein is the most famous native. In 1929, he wrote to an Ulm townsman: "The town of one's birth clings to one's life as something equally unique as the origin of one's own mother. We owe part of our being to our birthplace. Thus do I regard Ulm with thankfulness, because it combines noble artistic tradition with an unpretentious and healthy character." Then came the Nazis. A decree issued here in 1934 stripped Einstein of his German citizenship, and Einsteinstrasse - a street that had been named in his honor after he won the 1921 Nobel Prize for physics - was renamed Fichtestrasse after a 19thcentury German nationalist.

But that was minor compared with the destruction of Ulm's 500-member Jewish community. The synagogue was burned in 1938 and at least 180 Jews, including four of Einstein's relatives, were dragged away to death

An "Einstein and Ulm" exhibit opened Saturday, with 800 persons at the ceremony. The mayor announced a scholarship to go to a Jewish graduate student from a foreign country for study at Ulm University.

Although Einstein refused the city's offer of honorary citizenship after the war, Ulm officials say he reached a sort of reconciliation with his hometown. Archive Director Hans Eugen Specker cites letters he wrote to Ulm in 1949 and 1954 thanking it for birthday greetings. But Alfred Moos, Einstein's 65-

year-old cousin who lives in Ulm, is skeptical. "He had very ambiguous feelings about Germany. He didn't want to insult anyone," Moos said. "I'm convinced Einstein himself would never have given his permission for this exhibit.'

Moos said the tributes fail to mention that Einstein "was a pacifist and a Zionist who even helped Communists who were persecuted after World War I. He helped dozens of people immigrate to the United States (fleeing the Nazis) by writing immigration affidavits.

Einstein was born in Ulm on March 14, 1879, and spent only the first 15 months of his life here. His family moved to Munich when his father's business failed in Ulm.

Some of Einstein's most important work was done in Switzerland, where he lived early in the century. He became a Swiss citizen then, but resumed German citizenship after returning to Germany in 1914.

In 1934, he took a position at the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton, N.J., and by 1940 had become an American citizen. He died in 1955 in Princeton at age 76, never having returned to Germany.

House Texas still reluctant to vote major budget cuts

WASHINGTON-Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 1 through March 7.

DIGGS ISSUE. The House voted, 322 for and 77 against, to sidestep a vote on whether Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich., should be expelled from the House. Diggs became a convicted felon last October when a jury found him guilty of 29 counts of diverting employees' salaries to his own pocket.

He has appealed the conviction. With this vote, the House referred to the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct the question of what discipline should be imposed on Diggs by the House. Had the referral move failed, an expulsion vote was in order.
Members voting "yea" wanted to avert a vote on expulsion.

Reps., Samuel Hall, D-1, James Collins, R-3, Ray Roberts, D-4, Jim Mattox, D-5, Phil Gramm, D-6, Bob Eckhardt, D-8, Jack Brooks,

D-9, Jake Pickle, D-10, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, James Wright, D-12, Jack Hightower, D-13, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Kicka de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Mickey Leland, D-18, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, Abraham Kazen, D-23, and Martin Frost, D-24, voted "yea."

Reps. Bill Archer, R-7, Charles Stenholm. D-17, Kent Hance D-19, Tom Loeffler, R-21, and Ron Paul, R-22, voted "nay." Rep. Charles Wilson, D-2, did not vote.

BUDGET CUTTING. The House voted, 262 for and 139 against, to spend $38 million that both the Administration and the Appropriations Committee had wanted taken out of the health resources budget approved last year by Congress. The money is for grants to schools for medicine, steopathy and dentistry and various nurses' training programs. The Administration wanted the cut as part of an overall $700 million "rescission" in the current fiscal year budget. The vote came during debate on HR 2439, later passed and sent to the Senate.

Hall, Roberts, Mattox, Gramm, Archer, Eckhardt, Leath, Wyatt, White, Leland, Gonzalez and Loeffler voted "yea."

Wilson, Collins, Brooks, Pickle, Wright, Hightower, de la Garza, Stenholm, Hance, Paul, Kazen and Frost voted "nay."

2,600 PERCENT. In a vote of 249 for and 163 against, the House approved a $519,000 budget for the Rules Committee in 1979. Last year, the committee budget was $19,200. The new figure represents and increase of about 2,600 percent over 1978.

The "traffic cop" committee, which controls the flow of bills to the floor, has a new chairman this year, Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo. Among other reasons for the larger budget is his addition of two fully-staffed subcom-

Members voting "yea" favored the budget increase.

Wilson, Roberts, Mattox, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, Wright, Hightower, Wyatt, de la Garza, White, Stenholm, Leland, Hance, Gonzalez, Kazen and Frost voted "yea."

Hall, Collins, Gramm, Archer, Leath, Loeffler and Paul voted "nay."

TAIWAN. The Senate voted, 57 for and 38 against, to table and thus kill an amendment to continue official government-to-government contact with Taiwan. The amendment would have established a U.S. Liason Office in Taiwan, rather than the unofficial "American Institute" the Administration wants to establish there while it cements diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China. The vote came during debate on S 245. a bill setting up procedures for conti-nuing commercial, cultural and other unofficial ties between the U.S. and Virtually all senators voting "nay" opposed establishing diplomatic relations with Peking.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D, voted

Sen. John Tower, R, voted "nay."

Turkish government eyeing youthful assassins

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Young political assassins, some in their midteens, are spreading terror across Turkey and fear into its classrooms. Officials say the youths were responsible for 1,000 killings last year as leftist vs. rightist violence mounted. All of this has led the government to take a deep look into the causes of terrorism. There is a growing belief among experts that explanations of the past - wherein undefined "foreign conspiracies" were named as the driving force behind terrorism — do not lead to lasting solutions, even if they had any factual basis.

Many youths, although a minority, are splitting into political groupings of the right or left with the resulting violence and fear creeping into class-rooms. Soldiers in battle dress guard many schools. To head off leftist and rightist violence students are escorted to and from school by the police.

"I have a childhood friend at the same school who has become a leftist," said a young woman college student in Ankara. "I am afraid to go near her; there would be trouble from the rightists if I became in any way identified with the other side.

"When the teacher assigns any reading, I am at a loss to choose a book which will not be considered as either leftist or rightist by one group or the other," she added.

Recent arrests and trials have focused attention on the youthfulness of some terrorist suspects.

A 17-year-old rightist, Veli Can Oduncu, is on trial, accused of seven counts of murder. Another rightist, Mithat Simsek, 20, is charged with eight political assassinations, including that of a leftist professor. He was first jailed at age 14 on a weapons

Police claim both are linked with the "Idealist" youth clubs, the main right-wing group in Turkey's bloody left-right gang war.

Oduncu, one of nine children in a family of immigrants from Turkishspeaking parts of the Soviet Union, was only 15 when he started his "political" career, according to court evi-

In his testimony to the military prosecutor, released to the press, Oduncu said, "One day I was sitting in a coffee house in Salihli (western Turkey) with two friends. A group came in. They beat us up with clubs and chains. Later I discovered that my friends were Idealists and that's why we were beaten. I became an Idealist too."

Jobless and having left home, Oduncu spent his days at coffeehouses frequented by rightists and at a rightist-controlled youth hostel.

The prosecutor's office said Oduncu was charged with two assassinations of leftists and spent two years in

Released from prison, the prosecutor added, he joined rightist friends again and acquired a gun. He was caught after allegedly robbing a jewelry shop and firing at a rival youth

Last December, Oduncu escaped from prison with 12 others, the prosecutor said, adding that he allegedly was involved in five more assassinations until his recapture several weeks ago. Questioned about his political ideology, Oduncu was quoted as telling the prosecutors, "I am a rightist and I am opposed to leftists and communists. But I really don't know what rightist or leftist means. All I know is that my family ran away from the cruelty of communism and RIDGEFIELD, CONN. (AP) - The shortage in our time of truly creative cursing is another sure sign of our culture's decline.

People have lost the gift for invective, the talent for imaginative malediction.

The prevalence of by now meaningless fourletter obscenities and crudities in the theater. in the movies and more and more on TV - excused on the grounds of realism - is further proof that we have forgotten how to fulminate. Words fail us when it comes to calling down ill luck on an adversary, which is why the English language is no longer as rich or inventive as it used to be.

THE LAST decent curse I heard uttered was on the streets of Cairo (Egypt not Illinois) after a downtown fender bender between a taxicab and a tourist bus both attempting to negotiate a traffic circle in the same lane at the

It reminded me of Kipling's "Kim," where the boy hero, better known as "little friend of all the world," hears a whip-cracking Hindu horseman denounce the driver of a cart that has broken down and is blocking the Grand Trunk Road:

The process involves freezing the healthy bone marrow of patients so that it can be transplanted to replace diseased marrow when the leukemia has progressed. The transplants would enable patients to undergo more intensive radiation and chemical treatment than at present because there would be more healthy tissues to resist the damaging effects of the therapy.

Freezing and storing a patient's own bone marrow would also help overcome the present difficulties of bone marrow transplants matching donors and the strong possibility of rejection. Doctors would have a bank of marrow tissues from which to select the matching cells.

The head of the research program and director of the hospital's department of hematology, Dr. James Biggs, said 'long-term recovery" may be possible with the new technique. "It sounds attractive but it may turn out to be a fizzer," he added.

Mediators will meet

CHALMETTE, La. (AP) -Federalmediators will meet Thursday with both sides in the strike at the Tenneco Oil Co. refinery in Chalmette - for the first time in six weeks.

Federal mediator Ernest Demcheck said he'll meet separately with representatives of management and the 385 striking members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union.

"There are quite serious issues involved, and there appears to be great distances in the position of the two parties at this time," Demcheck said.

The union members walked off their jobs Feb. 3. Their contract expired Jan. 7, and they had been negotiating with company officials for a month prior to the expiration. When an impasse developed, they broke off talks and walked out.

The chief difference appears to be the union's contention that its workers should be able to refuse to do jobs which they believe unduly hazardous. It's an especially emotional point, since in an explosion at the big Chalmette refinery killed 13 and injured 10 on Aug. 12, 1976.

The last strike at the Tenneco refinery in Chalmette was in 1969, and it lasted 134 days.

International calls off deal

By WILLIAM GLASGALL NEW YORK (AP) - International

Paper Co. Tuesday abruptly called off its planned $650 million sale of oil and gas operations to Gulf Oil Corp. and said instead it intends to sell the business for about $705 million to Southland Royalty Co. and a division of Tenneco Corp.

An agreement in principle to sell the General Crude Oil Co. operations to Gulf was announced March 2, about three months after International Paper, the world's largest paper maker, said it would entertain bids for the subsidiary. But the Gulf pact fell apart after Southland and Tenneco Oil Co. jointly made a better offer on Monday, said Southland spokesman Steve Howard.

In Pittsburgh, Gulf spokeswoman Dorothy Brown said, "we are aware" of International Paper's decision, but "have nothing to add at this time." International Paper spokesman John Guiniven said the company tentatively accepted the higher offer because 'we have a responsibility to our shareholders."

Howard said the acquisition could be completed "by the middle of the year," and added that the cash offer probably will be financed by "some borrowing" from banks. Tenneco did not disclose how it intends to raise funds for the acquisition.

The General Crude Oil division is based in Houston and has oil and gas operations in the United States, Canada and Barbados.

The Houston-based Tenneco and the Forth Worth-based Southland have aggressively expanded their oil and gas reserves through acquisitions of other companies' assets. According to E. Anthony Copp, an analyst at the brokerage house of Salomon Brothers, those actions may be signs of a growing trend.

"A lot of medium-sized producers have been acquiring reserves lately,' said Copp. "The price (of acquiring other companies' reserves) may be cheaper than finding them on their

In February, Southland spent $126 million for some of Shenandoah Oil Corp.'s oil and gas properties. The acquisition followed Southland's acquisition of Aztec Oil and Gas for $168 million in 1976.

Tenneco, a diversified oil, gas and chemical producer which also builds ships and automobile equipment, recently teamed up with Mesa Petroleum Co. to buy oil and gas properties worth $340 million from Ashland Oil

Tenneco also has stepped up its spending on oil and gas exploration in the Atlantic off the U.S. East Coast, in the Gulf of Mexico and in Louisiana. Officials have said nearly half of the company's $1.15 billion 1979 capital expenditures budget will go for oil and gas projects.

Brown says Standard culprit in pipeline halt

The Los Angeles Times

SACRAMENTO, Calif. - California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. moved uneasily Tuesday to pin the blame on Standard Oil of Ohio for its cancellation of a project to ship Alaskan oil via Long Beach, Calif., to Texas.

But even as the Brown administration began to react publicly, after several hours of confusion and pri-

One early indication of the potential national impact on Brown, who is weighing a challenge of President Carter in 1980, came from former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, the front-runner for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination. REFERRING TO SOHIO'S complaint of "endless government permit procedures" and "overlapping regulation of multiple government agencies, particularly in California," Reagan declared from his Santa Barbara County ranch, northwest of Los Angeles:

"It's another example of where we've gone overboard in regulation without really assessing the overall effect on the economy and on employment - let alone our dependence on foreign oil. It's about time that someone in office started using some common sense."

In Sacramento, the Democratic chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, a frequent Brown critic, said the governor should "have exerted the leadership necessary to have expedited this project for the sake of the state and national interest."

In fact, the Brown administration. under the direction of Air Resources Board Chairman Tom Quinn, had been deeploy involved in the Sohio prooject for three years - toeing a politically fragile line between a coalition of business and labor interests who wanted the facility built and environmentalists who feared it.

tion helped negotiate a landmark agreement between Sohio and Southern California Edison Co. Sohio would pay $78 million to clean up pollution caused by an Edison electric power plant. Thus, there would be a pollution "trade-off" - which could possibly result in cleaner skies.

TUESDAY, AFTER the sudden change of events, Brown was at an unaccustomed loss for words. Instead of appearing personally before reporters and telelvision cameras, as he normally would, the governor sent out his top aide.

Davis said "the completion of the approval process in California was virtually days away" and indicated Sohio was not telling the full story about its reasons for dropping the Davis said, reading from the prepared statement. "Others suggest Sohio wishes to use unregulated tankers instead of transporting Alaskan oil through the interstate pipelines that are subject to federal regulatory jurisdiction.

"Finally, recent reports indicate that additional gas supplies from the Gulf coast and Mexico may make switching the pipeline from gas to oil inadvisable. Whatever the full story, California supports the national poli-

HE POINTED OUT that the project was not designed to solve California's energy needs, but the rest of the nation's.

Wallace blames Carter

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texas Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace blamed the Carter administration Wednesday for cancellation of the proposed pipeline to carry Alaskan oil from California to Midland, Texas.

"While the project was in fact stymied by the incomprehensible actions and inactions of California officials, the overall responsibility for a national energy policy lies in Washington,' Wallace said in a letter to Energy Secretary James Schlesinger.

"History will judge very harshly those who are responsible for the failure to expedite this method of bringing energy to a fuel starved nation," Wallace added.

Standard Oil Co. of Ohio announced Tuesday it has cancelled the pipeline plans. The 1,000-mile project would have brought half a million barrels of oil daily from Long Beach, Calif., to Midland.

Sohio blamed delays in government permit procedures, threatened litigation and other problems.
