Nuclear radiation continues to leak

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Radiation leaks from the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant continued today, authorities said, as a debate grew over what was described as one of the most serious such incidents in this country's history.

"The vapor that is now going into the atmosphere is from a sump pump and is only mildly radioactive within accepted limits," said Don Curry, a spokesman for the Metropolitan Edison Co., owner of the plant. The pump is designed to remove water after it has cooled the reactor.

"We concede that it's not just a little thing," Curry said. "In terms of publicity it will probably surpass the Browns Ferry incident."

Until now, a March 1975 fire in the control room of the Browns Ferry nuclear plant in Alabama has generally been considered this nation's most dangerous incident involving a nuclear reactor.

Low level radiation was detected in the air as far as 16 miles away after an apparent valve failure Wednesday morning resulted in excessive pressure being built up in the water used to cool the reactor core at Three Mile Island.

"Some of the water vapor, through the venting system, went into the atmosphere," Curry said.

Curry said the latest radiation measurements outside the plant were at two to three millirems. Individuals are exposed to up to 30 millirems in a single X-ray examination.

Walter Creitz, president of Metropolitan Edison, said on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" show this morning that the plant shut down safely and that the level of radiation released "would not endanger or injure any people."

Creitz said his company did not know what equipment had been disabled or what precisely caused the accident.

"Anything that man makes will not operate perfectly," he said. "A piece of equipment failed."

In the meantime, Sen. Gary Hart, who chaired the Senate Public Works subcommittee on nuclear regulations, said today the plant had been shut down four times "for various kinds of malfunctions or failures to meet regulations" since it started operating in December.

The Colorado Democrat, in an interview on NBC's "Today" show, said he was briefed Wednesday night by investigators from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission who told him human error may have contributed to the accident.

State officials said they had no plans to evacuate any of the 15,000 people living within a mile of the site, and workmen at the site and residents nearby seemed unperturbed.

"You get more radiation from standing out in the sun than we do inside the plant," said one worker just back from a Wednesday shift.

Crews of 70 men each wore hard hats and protective clothing as they worked around the clock to mop up radioactive water in an unprotected auxiliary building next to the reactor.

The crews were changed every hour to prevent fatigue and avoid over-exposure to radiation. The reactor — in use only since December — would be shut down for at least several days, authorities said.

The $1 billion plant is owned by General Public Utilities, an energy consortium in which Metropolitan Edison Co. has a half share. Each day the plant remains closed could cost Metropolitan Edison nearly $1 million depending on how much electricity it must buy from other power firms.

Radiation was released when "hot" water was diverted to the auxiliary building, where clean water normally is cooled. Then plant officials vented steam from the building without knowing it came from radioactive water. The wind spread the particles away from the site.

"Nothing critical failed, but it's a dirty problem that's going to take some time to clean up," said Charles Gallina, an investigator with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Gallina called it one of the worst nuclear accidents on record, saying the problem was not the amount of radiation released, but the wide area of exposure.

Gallina said investigators would zero in on why a valve feeding to a water pump closed when it should have stayed open. However, Babcock & Wilcox Co., manufacturers of the water pump, denied there was a valve failure.

"The (utility) company told us that it was a failure of a valve due to the emergency cooling down system," Lt. Gov. William Scranton III said at a news briefing. "We have to take their word at this time for today's purposes. But this will be investigated, no doubt about it."

Not only do birds of a feather seemingly congregate in particular places, this group of cedar waxwings perched on a spindly live-oak tree in Midland offers an additional epigram: the flock that flies together apparently stays together. A bird sanctuary, Midland enjoys a

Mexico plans oil price hike

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico will raise the price of its oil when the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries put their new rates into effect April 1, but the amount has not been determined yet, the head of the Mexican oil monopoly said Wednesday.

PEMEX Director Jorge Diaz Serrano said the price would be higher than the $14.54 per barrel the OPEC members decided on Tuesday. But Mexico, which does not belong to OPEC, has always charged a higher price because it is closer to its main market than the OPEC producers.

Diaz Serrano refused to reveal the new price because he said Mexico is still negotiating with its customers. Mexico now charges $14.10 a barrel for its oil.

Mexico exports 440,000 barrels a day to the United States, 60,000 to Spain and 30,000 to Israel. Mexico's reserves are put at 40.1 billion barrels, but experts say those could rise to above 200 billion.

Arab League split over how to punish Sadat

Saudi Arabia refuses to break off relations with Egypt

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — The Arab League conference to punish Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was split today, with Saudi Arabia refusing to cut off its multi-billion dollar aid to Egypt, and Syria, Libya and the Palestinians boycotting the others because they would not vote economic sanctions against the United States.

Official sources said the 15 delegations remaining at the conference of foreign and finance ministers would agree to a partial boycott of Egypt for signing the peace treaty with Israel. But a Lebanese journalist allowed inside the closed door meeting Wednesday said the only delegate whose government can put effective economic sanctions on Egypt, Prince Saud al Faisal, the Saudi foreign minister, refuse to promise to break relations with Egypt and cut off all economic aid to Sadat's government.

Official sources said the majority of the delegations also rejected the demand by Yasser Arafat of the Palestine Liberation Organization for an economic war on the United States for sponsoring the treaty, including an oil embargo, a boycott of all U.S. companies in the Middle East and no more imports from America.

The sources said the ministers had neither the authority nor the desire to take action against any country except Egypt.

Arafat and his PLO delegates angrily left the meeting, followed by the Syrian and Libyan delegations.

"Don't make murderers of us. Don't make gangsters of us," Arafat told the meeting, apparently hinting at PLO retaliation. The chief has warned in the past that his guerrillas would attack Arabs who refused to retaliate against the Egyptian-Israeli treaty.

The rest of the delegates were expected to agree to implement the resolutions drafted at an anti Sadat summit conference in Baghdad last November. They call for a boycott of Egyptians dealing with Israel, an annual $3 billion fund for arms for the PLO and Israel's Arab neighbors, and Egypt's suspension from the Arab League, which Egypt suspended itself from on Tuesday.

But the only action that would have any appreciable effect would be with drawal of the $2 billion a year in financial aid Saudi Arabia gives Egypt and removal of $1 billion in Saudi petrodollars deposited in Cairo banks.

An oil embargo would have no effect since Egypt produces more oil than it needs.

Meanwhile, in Washington Egypt has registered grave concern over what it calls unacceptable new U.S. security assurances to Israel.

But it was not immediately clear what, in a practical way, Egypt could do about the American pledges to Israel, outlined in a memorandum released Wednesday.

The memo includes a promise to urgently consider an increased show of American strength in the Middle East and emergency arms shipments to Israel if Egypt violates the peace treaty signed Monday.

"It gives the United States the right to impose a military presence in the region for reasons agreed between Israel and the United States," Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil wrote Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

Carter decontrol plans 'overdue', say Midlanders

By GUY SULLIVAN
Staff Writer

President Jimmy Carter's proposal to decontrol domestic oil prices on a gradual basis is long overdue, two oil industry spokesmen in Midland said today.

A third industry spokesman here said he could not comment on Carter's proposal until he learns the details.

Administration sources said Wednesday President Carter has decided to decontrol domestic oil prices gradually and to support legislation to impose an excess-profits tax on oil companies.

Under federal law, about half of the oil produced in this country is subject to federal price controls and sells at less than half of the present world market price.

Lifting controls would permit prices on this oil, which represents about one-quarter of U.S. consumption, to rise to the world level, now $13.34 a barrel.

"We've always been for decontrol," said Ed Thompson, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

"But I think cutting off the tail of the dog slowly hurts a lot more than cutting it off all at once."

Thompson referred to what he described as "an inevitable price increase of domestic oil and the products made from it."

"I don't know of anything that's selling for less these days," he said.

Thompson said he has been attending meetings around the nation "and consumers have indicated they would prefer decontrol of domestic oil and gas with the assurance that the products would still be available."

All people hear about is "a shortage of gasoline and rationing stamps," he said today.

He said had any of the federal administrations in the last 15 years listened to the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, "we wouldn't be in the (energy) shape we are today."

The association consistently has suggested the federal government get out of the oil and gas business "and leave it to the people who know about it," said Thompson.

However, "the government is still involved," Thompson said. "So we still have problems."

Al Dillard, president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, today said he doesn't believe the Carter administration has come up with any set proposals yet "on decontrol of domestic oil prices."

"I'd say if they decontrol prices immediately, it would do one thing which was supposed to have been done a long time ago: that is to bring the price of domestic oil up to world market prices," he said.

He said that was the intent of the federal Energy, Price and Consumption Act of 1975.

"The federal agencies involved saw fit not to comply," said Dillard.

"The political and economic realities of this thing are both something else," he said. "We've contended that decontrol would be the best thing for stimulating production in this country."

But Dillard said the "easiest way out of the political-economic situation on this issue" would be to deregulate on May 31, 1979, all new oil, enhanced and secondary recovery projects and deep marginal production.

He also urged decontrolling "old oil" between June 1, 1979, and Sept. 30, 1981.

Dillard described such a proposal as being both "economically and politically realistic."

He added, "The only way you're going to really make the American consumer quit driving so much is to hit his or her pocketbook so hard that, when they drive to the store, they'll think about it, remembering not to do something today they could have done yesterday."

Joe McShane, president of the National Stripper Well Association, said here today, "I don't know the details to President Carter's proposal yet. Until I do know them, I cannot comment on the issue."

The association he heads represents owners of wells producing less than 10 barrels of oil per well per day. McShane said.

Federal pre-emption hinted in Sohio case

WASHINGTON (AP) — California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. fended off charges of engaging in presidential politics Tuesday to deny that he sought to block construction of a California-Texas pipeline to carry Alaska oil to the nation's interior.

Brown, testifying before the Senate Energy Committee on his role in the pipeline issue, blamed delays the project has encountered on Standard Oil of Ohio officials and its parent firm, British Petroleum.

Meanwhile, Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger told the panel the administration wants the pipeline completed and is considering possibly proposing legislation that would preempt the State of California in guaranteeing that the project would be finished.

Schlesinger joined Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus in telling Congress the pipeline was a major federal priority for bringing Alaska oil to the rest of the nation.

He said he was optimistic the project would go ahead, but that if it encountered new snags, the administration had "a fallback position that might include federal pre-emption in this area."

At issue is Sohio's announcement last week that it was abandoning plans to build a $1 billion terminal for the pipeline in Long Beach, Calif., because of years of court delays and the inability to obtain permits from California.

The project would ship Alaskan crude oil through an existing pipeline to Midland, Texas, for eventual distribution to markets in the East and Midwest.

Energy Committee Chairman Henry M. Jackson lined up the panel of witnesses to determine the likelihood that the project would be completed.

But most of the session was consumed in barbs exchanged between

Brown and Republican members of the panel.

Brown denied doing anything to delay the project, but reiterated his position that Sohio would have to pay not only for controlling its own pollution at the proposed terminal, but also for reducing emissions from other industries in the area.

This is required by the federal clean air law, Brown said.

"There is no reason why the pipeline cannot be built," he said. "All we ask is a few pennies a barrel to clean up the garbage and toxic materials that will develop from the project."

Then Brown launched an attack on British Petroleum, which he said was attempting to maximize its own profits with little regard to American energy consumers or the U.S. environment.

TEXAS AREA FORECASTS

West Texas: Partly cloudy with scattered thunderstorms. A few possible severe storms tonight. Partly cloudy Friday. High 70s and 80s. Low 40s and 50s. High Friday 70s north to mid 50s south.

North Texas: Cloudy with scattered showers and thunderstorms beginning west today and spreading into East Texas by evening. A few thunderstorms are expected to become severe late today and tonight. Rain ending followed by clearing skies becoming fair and warm on Friday. High 70s to 77. Low 40s west to 60 southeast.

South Texas: Windy and warm with scattered showers and thunderstorms starting this afternoon over northeast Texas, moving south and east tonight, ending Friday. Thunderstorms possible severe north portion this afternoon and tonight. Partly cloudy and warm Friday. High 70s and 80s. Low 40s to 50s. High Friday 70s north to mid 50s south.

Port Arthur to Port O'Connor: Small craft advisory in effect. South and southeast winds 20 to 30 knots today and tonight, shifting to westerly 15 to 20 knots Friday. Seas building to 8 to 12 feet. Winds and seas higher in widely scattered showers and thunderstorms becoming more numerous tonight and Friday.

Port O'Connor to Brownsville: Small craft advisory in effect. Southeast winds 20 to 30 knots today and tonight, shifting to westerly 15 to 20 knots Friday. Seas building to 8 to 12 feet. Winds and seas higher in widely scattered showers and thunderstorms becoming more numerous tonight and Friday.

Chance of thunderstorms removed from Basin forecast

Another heavy dew may have fooled a few Midlanders into thinking rain fell this morning. It didn't.

And this morning's clear, blue sky might have had some expecting a peaceful, ho-hum weather day. Maybe, but not necessarily.

It promises to be windy and dusty today through Friday.

However, thunderstorms and showers forecast for this afternoon and night were nixed this morning, as rain clouds bypassed Midland and drifted easterly into the Abilene area, said a weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

In their place in the Midland area were to be "patchy blowing dust," gusty winds and fair skies through Friday.

Westerly winds today were to be 20 to 30 mph and gusty. Wind velocity should slow to 10 to 20 mph by tonight.

Area towns for the most part this morning reported sunny, clear skies. Andrews, however, noted increasing cloudiness.

Rainfall so far this year stands at 1.23 inches, slightly more than a half inch below the first three-month normal of 1.74 inches.

Precipitation for March has been 81 inch, while the average for March is 59 inch.

Wednesday's high reading was 70 degrees, well below the record high of 92 degrees for a March 28, set in 1963.

This morning's low of 52 degrees was more than 30 degrees off the record low of 18 degrees for a March 29 set in 1944.

Sunset today will be at 7:06 p.m. Sunrise Friday will be at 6:41 a.m.

Lab tests show masks contained carbon monoxide

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Three firemen fighting an early Sunday fire at a cafe died because their oxygen masks apparently contained carbon monoxide, city officials have concluded.

The officials called a news conference Wednesday night and said laboratory tests in Dallas on the firefighters' air packs showed they contained carbon monoxide.

Autopsies on the three showed they had a 50 percent level of carbon monoxide in their blood. A level of from 50 to 75 percent produces a coma, followed by death, officials said.

Earlier had been thought the men died because of toxic fumes, perhaps from ceiling tile, but no traces of other poisonous vapors was found in the victims' bodies.

The men were found lying on the floor, within six feet of each other, in a part of a restaurant that wasn't on fire early Sunday. Their deaths mystified fire officials who weren't aware the men were missing for awhile.

Fire Department officials immediately discontinued use of compressors, previously used to replace oxygen in firefighters' oxygen packs.

Teamsters union, truck negotiators reject proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for the Teamsters union and the trucking industry remain in "complete disagreement" after rejecting each other's revised wage proposals.

The Carter administration, meanwhile, is deciding whether to relax its anti-inflation guidelines to accommodate the nation's largest union.

With a possible trucking strike looming this weekend, the industry's chief negotiator broke a long silence Wednesday by declaring the two sides remained far apart and by blasting the administration for its "inept" handling of the crucial negotiations.

A nationwide strike is possible when the current contract expires at midnight Saturday, although the union has indicated it might launch selective strikes or seek a contract extension.

The exchange of money proposals marked the first time since last week the two sides have discussed economic issues in their negotiations for a three-year contract to cover about 300,000 drivers and warehouse workers.

Border states forecasts

Oklahoma: Considerable cloudiness and mid-level clouds with showers and thunderstorms a few possible severe. Thunderstorms ending early Friday morning. Partly cloudy and warm Friday. High 70s and 80s. Low 40s and 50s. High Friday 70s north to mid 50s south.

New Mexico: Windy today and Friday. Scattered showers both days. Most numerous mountain sections. A little cooler south and east today. High 60s north to the middle 70s southeast. Low teens and 30s northwest and northeast to mostly the 30s elsewhere. High Friday 60s north to the 40s lower elevations south.

Man satisfactory after shooting

A woman entered the 7-Eleven store at Terrell Street and Florida Avenue about 5:40 a.m. today, said police, and told the two clerks there that she had shot a man.

Owen Douglas Snodgrass, 43, of the 500 block of South Mineola Street was found shot in the chest when police arrived at the address given to them by the woman, identified as Gloria Elliot Price, 34, authorities said.

Police said one of the clerks at the store handed them a .32-caliber revolver, which, according to the clerk, was taken from Ms. Price.

Snodgrass was listed in satisfactory condition early today at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Incumbent Ann Page, who is seeking re-election to Place 7 on the Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees, issued a statement today in which she reiterated her opposition to Plan O and a proposed alternative.

Plan O calls for combining Midland High School and Lee High School students into one high school with the sophomores attending Midland High School while the two upper level grades attend Lee High School.

Mrs. Page is being opposed by Joyce Sherrard, a teacher in the school district who has proposed keeping the two separate high schools, but adding freshmen students to the schools to up the expected declining enrollment in future years.

The incumbent, in her statement, said she believes new ideas in education should be encouraged, when realistic, and that all aspects of these new ideas should be studied and explained.

"It is unfortunate for Midland that answers to the problems in the proposed alternative plan have not been addressed," she said.

Because of her experience on the school board and having studied various proposals in the past, Mrs. Page said she is able to point out serious problems in the alternative plan such as renewed government intervention, under-utilization of plant facilities and unfair busing.

"After much extensive study and hard work, our community was able to develop a plan acceptable to the Justice Department," she said in reference to the busing proposal implemented two years ago in Midland.

"To adopt an alternative plan as proposed, the issues of racial balance and busing would be reopened," she said. "This is a known fact by those previously involved with federal government negotiations and is not negative thinking. Midland should not be forced to suffer the agony of re-negotiation."

Mrs. Page said she believes Midland has the opportunity to develop the best school system in Texas with-

British election called after Callaghan ousted

Margaret Thatcher may become Europe's first female prime minister

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II today called a general election for May 3 following the ouster of Prime Minister James Callaghan's minority Labour government in a historic no-confidence vote Wednesday night.

Callaghan's office said in an announcement that the monarch set April 7 for the dissolution of the current Parliament and May 9 for the first session of the new Parliament.

The government was ousted by a margin of only one vote, 311 to 310, in the House of Commons. If, as opinion polls indicate, the opposition Conservatives win the election, their 53-year-old leader, Margaret Thatcher, will become Europe's first woman prime minister.

The announcement of the date for electing a new House of Commons came after a somber Callaghan drove to Buckingham Palace to inform the queen that his government no longer commands a majority in the house. The monarch has to dissolve Parliament before an election can take place.

The monarch normally calls an election on a date recommended by the outgoing prime minister. The Conservatives had been pressing for April 26, the earliest possible date, to maintain their political momentum. The government of the outgoing prime minister normally stays on in a caretaker role until the election.

Callaghan, nicknamed "Sunny Jim," managed only a wan smile and a wave.

Mrs. Thatcher, by contrast, had a bacon-and-eggs breakfast in bed after celebrating with friends until 2 a.m.

On the London Stock Exchange, share prices soared. The market hopes a Conservative election win will bring former monetary policies and a business boom.

Dealers cheered as they raced across the trading floor after the opening bell rang. "It's boomville down here," one excited broker declared. "I haven't seen a single loss all morning."

In Commons Wednesday night, Mrs. Thatcher casually moved the motion "that this house has no confidence in Her Majesty's Government," then accused the government of four things she said contributed to Britain's decline during its five years in power: too little attention to formation of capital, too much state centralization, an imbalance of power between unions and employers, and lack of government support for the rule of law.

"The government has failed the nation, lost credibility and the time for it to go has come," Mrs. Thatcher declared.

Callaghan replied that his government had an "outstanding record of social services and economic performances." He accused Mrs. Thatcher of making her "grab for power" only after thoroughly sounding the small parties holding the balance of power because neither major party had a majority.

"When she discovered that the Liberals and the Scottish Nationalists were going to do, she found the courage of her convictions," he scoffed, and added:

"The minority parties have walked into a trap. The current joke is that it is the first time in recorded history that turkeys have been known to vote for an early Christmas."

When the vote came, the 279 Conservatives were joined by 13 Liberals, 11 Scottish Nationalists, 5 Ulster Unionists and 3 Ulster Independents. On the other side were 303 Laborites, 2 Scottish Laborites, 3 Welsh Nationalists and 2 Ulster Unionists. Beside the non-voting speaker and three committee chairmen, two members from Northern Ireland abstained.

It was the first time Parliament had voted a government out of office in 55 years. The last one was headed by Britain's first Labor prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald.

The Laborites said they would have won if they had sent an ambulance for the only absent member of the house. He was 72-year-old Sir Alfred Broughton, who was in a hospital recuperating from a heart attack. His vote would have meant a 311-311 tie, which would have been broken in Callaghan's favor by the Laborite speaker of the house, George Thomas.

out a restructuring plan. In stressing a goal of academic excellence, the school board member included the following objectives:

- Institute competency testing.
- Emphasize basic courses of reading, writing and arithmetic in elementary school.
- Begin stricter ability grouping in all grade levels.

— Improve classroom discipline by incorporating in-school detention centers at the secondary level.

"We must provide the best education possible at the elementary level, thus enabling our children to develop to their potential in the upper grades," she said.

If she remains on the school board, Mrs. Page said she wants to continue working to improve the schools and produce better students.

"Neither Plan O, nor the proposed alternative (from Mrs. Sherrard), speaks to the issue of academic excellence, and education in Midland can not be improved simply by reshuffling students into different school configurations," she said in her statement.

Park sought as Passman witness

MONROE, La. (AP) — A legal fight is shaping up over whether Tongson Park, the key prosecution witness, can be called as a defense witness in the bribery trial of former congressman Otto Passman.

Prosecutors rested their case Wednesday but planned today to begin arguments before U.S. District Judge Earl Veron on a motion to prevent defense attorneys from recalling Park as a witness.

Defense attorney Camille Gravel contends Park is a critical figure in his case. Gravel said the fact that he had the South Korean businessman under cross-examination for five of his eight days on the witness stand was irrelevant.

"He was their witness and I didn't have to present my case then," he told reporters Wednesday.

Nuclear power, a must

The French, said an old philosopher, are wiser than they seem.

When the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries boldly demonstrated five years ago that it could control the supply and price of oil, France responded with a major commitment to nuclear power. Last month, after the Iranian crisis again revealed the fragility of the West's oil supplies, the French government voted to accelerate its nuclear program.

Now, France expects to be generating half its electricity with nuclear power in seven years. It has built the world's largest plant for reprocessing nuclear fuel. In 1983, it expects to become the first country to generate power from a breeder reactor — the new technology which extends the usefulness of uranium as a fuel and by-passes the spent-fuel disposal problem by consuming it in another type of reactor.

France is exporting nuclear plants to China, Iran, Iraq, South Africa, Pakistan and Libya, and by the mid-1980s may become the foremost source of advanced nuclear technology. The American scientists and engineers who pioneered that technology are watching the initiative flow overseas while their own government fumbles endlessly with decisions that should have been made five years ago.

The United States still is generating almost one-third of its electricity from oil and natural gas — and only 12 percent from nuclear power. Nuclear development in America is virtually at a standstill, not because of technical or safety problems but because public policy has become the captive of an anti-nuclear lobby.

That lobby is exploiting the remote statistical probabilities of nuclear accidents to frighten Americans into foregoing the abundant, non-polluting source of energy that nuclear technology can provide. Rational debate on nuclear safety issues is being overwhelmed by noise from the streets. An anti-nuclear demonstration with actors, actresses and folksingers at the mike gets more attention than the dry prose of studies which show a weight of scientific opinion supporting the reliability of nuclear safety systems.

The lobby's current theme is that there is no safe place to store waste from nuclear power plants. Who says? The Environmental Protection Agency has studied 60 "event chains," such as earthquakes or inadvertent drilling, which could disturb spent nuclear fuel buried in deep salt deposits. There is little risk, says the EPA study, and even the worst-case assumption would entail health effects that are "quite small."

The federal government has identified an ideal storage site for spent nuclear fuel, in a salt bed under New Mexico soil. Some geologists say the salt strata apparently have not moved in at least 200 million years. Yet anti-nuclear organizations are still insisting there is no "safe" way to dispose of nuclear waste.

There is an anti-nuclear lobby in France, but it is not dictating French nuclear policy. The French government has looked at the pros and cons of nuclear power and concluded that the safety problems in operating nuclear reactors and handling nuclear materials are manageable — indeed, that they are much more manageable than the economic and social problems that would overwhelm a modern industrial nation that allows itself to run short of electricity. That conclusion is inescapable — and wise.

Unless the U.S. government wakes up to this fact and does something about it, this nation one day will find itself in the dark, while France and other European nations glow brightly from the power produced by perfectly safe nuclear plants.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

U.S. Army uniforms gather dust

In dry accountants' language, the report disregards the horror of a burning tank and deals only with the strain that would be put on the medical facilities if the tank crews were sent into combat dressed in their current issue, cotton fatigues.

"Burn victims require long hospital stays and significant amounts of intravenous fluids and antibiotics in their treatment, as well as extensive medical care," the auditors point out matter-of-factly. "During the initial phase of a war, medical resources would be extremely limited. An unusual number of burn victims will have a serious impact on our medical treatment capabilities."

While the report bases its criticism on strictly practical considerations, an earlier Pentagon survey cited by the auditors gets a little closer to the terrible human side of the equation. The study, which dealt with the 1973 Arab-Israeli war, noted that 11 percent of the casualties in armored combat vehicles were burn victims. The severity and extent of burns diminished when crewmen wore Nomex uniforms," the study showed.

Another disturbing statistic from the 1973 war showed that about 90 percent of the tanks destroyed were knocked out by other tanks. This fact, coupled with recent intelligence reports that Soviet tanks outgun and outmaneuver American armor, makes clear the danger our tank crews are in.

And it's not just other tanks that pose a threat. Recent advances in anti-tank weaponry include use of fighter planes, helicopters, personnel carriers and hand-held guns that penetrate armor with explosive darts.

The Army claims it would cost an astonishing $4.5 million — more than two-thirds the cost of the uniforms themselves — to distribute the 119,630 Nomex trousers and 166,723 shirts on

ART BUCHWALD

$1,000 per plate took care of tip, everything

WASHINGTON — I have a confession to make. I was invited to the White House for the signing of the Begin-Sadat treaty Monday with my wife, and it didn't cost me a dime. Please don't get me wrong. I would have been willing to pay $1,000 for the invitation (at least my wife would have), but the telegram arrived and there was no mention of making a contribution.

This could mean one of several things: (1) President Carter is very pleased with the suggestions I had made in resolving the pull-back from the Sinai; (2) Jerry Rafshoon is trying to win me over to his man for the 1980 campaign; (3) the name Brzezinski went in the computer and somehow came out as Buchwald; (4) the Carters wanted to borrow our salad plates for the dinner; (5) I'm the only one in Washington who still thinks Bert Lance is a good banker.

It was a very nice evening as Middle East peace treaty dinners go. There were about 1,400 of us, and it was hard to tell the difference between those who had paid to get in and those who were there on freebies. We assumed that Begin and Sadat were not asked to contribute, but we weren't sure if the President had made Rosalynn or Miss Lillian kick in a grand.

Art Buchwald

The lady I sat next to asked, "Are you with Sadat or Begin?"

I told her I was with President Carter.

"Who invited you?" I asked her.

"We got our invitations through Tickertron," she said.

I seemed surprised. "How did that happen?"

"Well, we're tourists from Lafayette, Ind., and we're staying at the Hilton. We went to the hotel ticket agent and asked her what was playing in Washington tonight. She told us what was at the Kennedy Center, the National Theater, the Arena Stage and the Uptown Movie Theater. She also said she could get us two seats at the White House for a dinner in honor of Begin and Sadat for $1,000.

"My husband went through the roof. He said, 'Isn't that a lot of money for a dinner at the White House?' and the lady replied, 'Sadat and Begin are only playing for one night, and $1,000 takes care of everything including the tip.'

"My husband wanted to know where our seats were located, and the Tickertron lady took out a plan of the tables in the tent. She showed us two seats, but they were in the back, quite far from Begin, Sadat and Carter, so he said, 'Don't you have anything better?'"

"The Tickertron lady replied, 'I have two over here by Henry Kissinger, but they also happen to be next to the kitchen.'

"So we finally settled on this table. Where did you buy your seats?" the lady asked me.

I was too ashamed to admit I was there on the cuff so I said, "We got ours at the box office in front of the White House. I stood in line for two hours. My wife has never been to a peace treaty dinner before. We were going to use the money to pay the orthodontist, but my wife said since he's been waiting six months for his $1,000 he can wait a little longer."

"I'm glad I came," the lady confided to me. "We never see Begin or Sadat in Lafayette, Ind. When I get back my friends are going to be green with envy. Every time they've been in Washington and asked to buy tickets to a White House state dinner they were sold out."

"Well, this is sort of a special event," I said. "In the past you had to give at least $10,000 to the Democratic or Republican Party to be invited here. But with all the large tents on the lawn they were able to reduce the price so the average person could afford it. Would you like some more roast beef?"

"Yes, please. Do you think Begin or Sadat will sing?"

"For $5 billion in military aid, you better believe it."

Mark Russell says

Under the new treaty, Israel will withdraw from the Sinai in nine months to make way for 10,000 new settlements — by Burger King, Colonel Sanders, Pizza Hut, Radio Shack and K-Mart.

One month after that, the two countries will exchange ambassadors, each country giving back the ambassadors they have been holding for years.

Then, the King Tut exhibit will go on display in Jerusalem, and Sammy Davis will open at the Cairo Hilton.

At the signing, both parties told Carter, "We will beat our swords into plowshares and our spears into pruning hooks — but don't mess with our tanks."

It was Jimmy Carter's finest hour. Meanwhile, back in California, Jerry Brown was sitting in his room in front of a map trying to figure out how to unite Ireland.

NICK THIMMESCH

Egyptian-Israeli treaty: Like putting aside first drink

WASHINGTON — So now the Middle East, that ancient, turbulent region, steeped in religion and humanity, and which gave roots to us all, has experienced yet another historic event: a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel. Naturally, there are consequences.

Treaty or no, the United States is now deeply involved and committed in the Middle East. We provided more than our "good offices," as they say in the diplomatic game. Our President plunged into the middle of it, and gave an inordinate amount of time and energy to the process which put Anwar Sadat and Menachem Begin on the front lawn of the White House to sign the document this week.

Our center role also amounts to a calculated risk of offending or even losing good friends in the Middle East — Jordan and oil-rich Saudi Arabia to name two. And we are hardly winning Arab Oscars from Syria, Libya, Algeria and other states hostile to the treaty.

Moreover, President Carter, at a time of dangerous inflation, has pledged billions to Egypt and Israel. There hasn't been much complaining in Congress yet, but when this happy week has passed, gimlet eyes will begin focusing on what checkbook diplomacy will cost the U.S. taxpayer.

The National League of Cities recently took sharp exception to Rep. Robert Gialomo's (D-Conn.) remarks that social programs would have to be cut to offset new budget outlays for Middle East peace and higher energy prices.

Israel can now reasonably expect Egypt to not wage war, to become increasingly civil, even friendly, and thus allow the Jewish state to turn to its many other problems. The treaty does not allow Israel to push the West Bank and/or Palestinian problem aside. If anything, these thorns will pierce deeper.

The wisest Israelis know that there must be justice for the Palestinians. It does not serve Israel to see its soldiers fire into a crowd of demonstrating Palestinian youth, killing two and wounding others, in the fashion of National Guardsmen firing into comparable youth at Kent State University in 1970.

It is not in the Jewish character to seal off towns on the West Bank as the Israeli military has, allowing no citizen to leave his house. Nor are curfews, brutal treatment of others and administrative detention part of Jewish tradition.

There are clear signs that Israeli citizens feel that their nation should not become a military state. It will take time for Israelis to feel more poised and less threatened, but that time will come.

And yet, Begin, a man I like because he is authentic and blessedly bereft of a public relations sense, was well suited to be a principal figure in the peace process. Right or wrong, Begin possesses credibility because he has been through it all.

Sadat, the initiator, goes home to Egypt grateful for peace but expecting much from it — some alleviation from the poverty, discomfort and confusion the Egyptian people suffer.

He was instrumental in delivering peace, but now he must deliver a better life, and that challenge is equally difficult. He has put Egypt in Jimmy Carter's hands; his lavish praise of Carter at the signing ceremony reflects the condition.

The rest of the Arab world does not now countenance Sadat. The Saudis harden their position on the Palestinian question, though they want no Palestinians in their own vulnerable country.

There will be loud threats by Arab states against Israel, Egypt and the United States, and it's possible extremists might even attack U.S. offices and embassies. The Palestinians are contemptuous of Israel's notion of self-rule. The Lebanese wounds, far from healed, might be ripped open again.

If war is drunkenness, this week's treaty is the putting aside of the first drink. But, oh, the problems ahead. Israel should have small fear that Syria or Iraq will attack, but Israel experiences more and more guerrilla war on the West Bank.

The minds of the Arab nations to the treaty swim in anger and frustration, and how will these minds finally settle? Jimmy Carter knows that if the continuing peace process gets sticky in the months ahead, it will get stuck in the 1980 primary and general elections, with all the emotion and demagoguery that goes with them.

And yet, the treaty signed on that cool, sunny afternoon on the White House lawn this week is worth it all.

Pentagon to close more bases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon, under intense political pressure, was announcing today moves aimed at closing, reducing and consolidating military bases across the country to save more than $400 million a year.

If all the plans are carried out, the Defense Department could cut more than 40,000 of its 3 million civilian and military personnel from the payroll.

Defense officials refused to identify the affected bases in advance of an afternoon announcement. But it is known they plan to clear up some cases dating back to the Ford Administration in 1976, as well as proposals the Carter administration made last year.

Sources who declined to be identified said a major part of the plan calls for studies aimed at streamlining supply operations and shifting to civilian contractors some support missions now handled by defense workers.

The Pentagon says it has saved about $5.4 billion in operating and personnel costs as a result of base streamlining actions over the last 10 years.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown has said about $1 billion still is being wasted by operating bases "we do not need."

The defense secretary said last year that excess bases "turn out to be rather difficult to eliminate" because of opposition from congressmen and from what he called "vociferous" elements of the public.

According to a variety of sources, these are some of the expected actions:

—The Army's basic training center at Fort Dix, N.J., will be closed, while the one at Fort Jackson, S.C., will remain open. Fort Dix still has a chance, however, to become the home of the 2nd Infantry Division, due to be withdrawn from South Korea.

—Defense supply and logistics centers and depots in a number of states will be merged.

—Army anti-aircraft missile batteries in Florida and Alaska — the service's last in firing position in the United States — will be closed.

—The Marines will retain recruit training camps at Parris Island, S.C., and at San Diego. The Pentagon had considered closing one of them.

—The Navy will keep open its boot camps at San Diego and Great Lakes, Ill. The Pentagon said last year it was thinking of shutting either of them.

—The Army will move out of Fort Wadsworth and Fort Totten, and the Old Bellmore air defense missile site, all in New York.

—The Air Force will keep both Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., and Lowry Air Force Base, Colo., but close Goodfellow Air Force Base, Texas.

San Angelo base will be shut down

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — The closing of Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo was one of 103 military cutbacks announced today in Washington by the Pentagon.

The closing, confirmed Wednesday by governmental officials, will save $10.8 million a year, the government said.

It also was learned Wednesday that the helicopter repair facilities in New Cumberland, Pa., will be moved to the Army depot in Corpus Christi, in a move that over a period of four years will involve the transfer of 233 civilian jobs and three military positions. The Corpus Christi depot now employs 3,200 civilians.

The Goodfellow base will be shut down "sometime in 1981," with the base's training missions moved perhaps to Keesler Air Force Base in Mississippi or to Cory Station at Pensacola Naval Air Station in Florida, it was learned.

The government spokesman said cryptologic training will be consolidated at "some other base," but said the Air Force has not decided which base will be chosen.

The study will take 90 to 120 days, he said, and once concluded it will take "about a year" for the closing of Goodfellow to be completed — a tentative closing date to be sometime during fiscal year 1981, which begins Oct. 1, 1980.

Keeping a careful watch on just exactly where the needle is going Wednesday is Midland blood donor Ronnie Schultz, 20, a second-year student at Midland College. West Texas Blood Service's Pam Davidson of San Angelo carefully extracts a pint of blood. The drive held at Midland College Wednesday was to replenish supplies at Parkview Hospital, which uses 25 to 30 pints of blood a month. (Staff Photo)

Inflation believed fueling capital spending boom

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the gloomy economic scene of recent months, rife with news of oil price increases, inflation and talk of recession, business spending on new plants and equipment may be rising sharply soon, one economic consulting house suggests.

"The prevailing evidence continues to suggest that the preconditions for an acceleration in capital spending are firmly in place," says A. Gary Shilling & Co. in a recent report. Is a capital spending boom almost upon us, and why is capital spending worth watching? Here are some questions and answers about capital spending:

Q. Why is capital spending important?

A. When inflation hits the double-digit range, as it has recently, attention increasingly turns to worries over the future. That's where plant and equipment spending comes in. New, or renewed, industrial plants fight inflation by improving the nation's productivity. Industries which don't rebuild inefficient plants face the prospect of rising production costs and shrinking profits.

Q. What has been the spending trend in recent years?

A. According to the Conference Board, a business-sponsored research organization, 1978 capital spending by the nation's 1,000 largest manufacturers ran 11.8 percent ahead of 1977. The main exception was the steel industry, where "outlays lagged for the second year in a row, showing a 24 percent drop from their 1975-76 record."

Q. What's the outlook?

A. The Conference Board has predicted that capital spending will rise 8 percent in 1979, while capital appropriations — or authorizations to spend money in the future — will advance by a slim 1.3 percent. At Philadelphia's Provident National Bank, meanwhile, economists are predicting a slowdown in capital spending plans if the economy cools this year. Yet, no "broad-based capital spending decline" is in sight, and growth in business investment will be "outperforming the economy as a whole by a good margin" in 1979.

Shilling's analysts also are optimistic. Business has been "very cautious" since the 1974-1975 recession. But factories now are running at an estimated 87 percent of capacity, "well above the threshold rate of 85 percent that historically has fostered a change in business caution toward stepping up plant and equipment outlays."

"The need for new capacity is usually first recognized at the division level" of corporations.

"Recycling in the Kitchen"
Leftover meat and vegetables can make excellent additions to homemade soups and stews. The U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs suggests that you keep a supply of plastic containers on hand for storing leftovers. Freeze them for use at a later time in preparing imaginative, economical meals. Safeway stocks a wide variety of convenient plastic bags and containers in many sizes and shapes.

Leftovers needn't be boring the second time around. An economy-minded cook regards leftovers as a challenge to creativity. Even a leftover hot dog, sliced up, can add interest and flavor to scrambled eggs or soup.

TV scriptwriter prefers to avoid Hollywood's pace

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio (AP) — Suzanne Clauser, who is one of television's more sought-after scriptwriters, refuses to be cast in a typical TV mold.

She won't pay airfare to attend show business parties; she prefers to work where she can watch both her typewriter and washing machine, and she likes to live in her country split-level with its serene view of a rural creek through her favorite window.

Living in Hollywood where everyone talks, eats, drinks and breathes television, she said, would be too nerve-racking.

Working in a small basement room of her split-level house, she did the most recent script of Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women" book. It became a two-part, four-hour television show.

"I loved it as a girl," she said of "Little Women." "Of course, I hadn't read it for 30 years. I jumped up and down when they asked me if I wanted to write the script."

"It's a remarkably modern story, especially in the society of today. It's excellently written. I was able to use some of the dialogue without changing it."

Mrs. Clauser, 49, says she is a fluke among scriptwriters because she and her husband prefer to live in the country along U.S. 68 near here. She considers her start at scriptwriting as an oddity. The late Rod Serling, author of "Requiem for a Heavyweight," and "The Twilight Zone" series, was teaching a writers' workshop at Antioch College.

He critiqued one of her scripts. She sent it to the "Bonanza" producer, who accepted it — and her career was launched.

"Bonanza" aired 10 more Clauser scripts in later years.

She also scripted such TV movies as "Pioneer Woman," about the struggles of a frontier wife; "The Family Nobody Wanted," about a couple who adopted nine children of different races, and "A Girl Named Sooner," about an unwanted girl in an Indiana town.

Mrs. Clauser flies to Hollywood three or four times a year for conferences, but most of her conferring with producers is by phone.

"I'm certainly not at the top, but I'm doing very well in my career," she said. "My agent has told me, 'You are considered to be one of the better writers out here.'"

"But I'm no millionaire, and I never will be."

Her rejection list includes several TV-movie scripts, three pilots, one documentary-drama and a full-length film adaptation of the book, "The Trumpeter of Cracow."

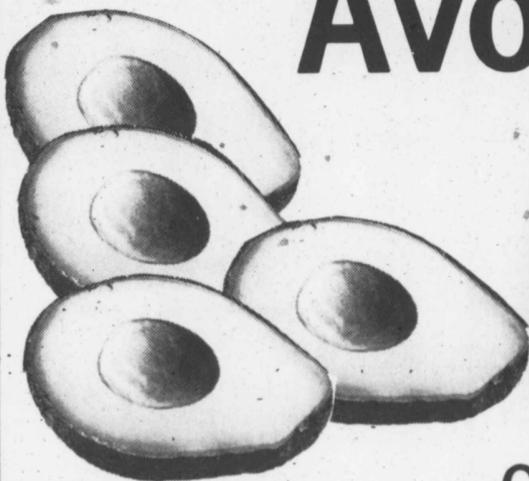

"I've paid my dues," she said. "No, I haven't broken even. I've had more scripts rejected than accepted."

Floods move into Arizona

By The Associated Press

The rain and high winds that have plagued the Midwest and the Pacific Coast have moved into the Southwest causing millions of dollars in damage in Arizona, and flash flood warnings indicated more rain may be on the way.

To the North, a flood watch was posted for parts of Utah and heavy snow warnings cautioned motorists against unnecessary traveling in the Colorado mountains.

Wednesday's thunderstorm centered on the Phoenix area. The National Weather Service said winds up to 85 miles an hour were recorded along with heavy rain and hail.

Firemen said the storm caused an estimated $2.5 million damage in one north Phoenix area. Utility companies said about 35,000 houses and businesses were without power at the height of the storm as the winds toppled power lines and poles.

Roofs were blown off houses, trees were felled, fences were blown down and numerous minor injuries were reported from flying glass. Numerous power outages were reported.

In Illinois, where the rains came again Wednesday, the Red Cross reported that 3,200 families have been affected by the flooding. More than 2,000 persons have been evacuated because of the flooding from the Illinois River. Another 50 families have been evacuated from Prairie Du Chien, Wis., because of flooding along the Mississippi, the Red Cross said.

The National Weather Service issued a statement saying it appeared the worst flooding was over along the Mississippi and the chance of a second crest next month has been "sharply reduced." In addition, the slowly falling Rock River, where several hundred residents were homeless after flooding last week, was not expected to crest again this spring, according to meteorologist James Wiggins.

A revised forecast issued by the weather service calls for a secondary crest of 13-15 feet at Davenport, Iowa, where floodstage is 15 feet. The Mississippi at Davenport rose to 15.15 feet last Saturday before receding.

Showers were also expected today from the Pacific Northwest across the lower two-thirds of the Rockies. Occasional thundershowers were called for from the upper two-thirds of the Great Plains through East Texas, the Mississippi Valley, the Great Lakes, the Ohio Valley and New England.

Temperatures around the nation early today ranged from 2 in Devils Lake, N.D., to 75 in Laredo, Texas.

Here are some morning temperatures and conditions around the nation.

Eastern — Atlanta 60, clear; Cincinnati 65, cloudy; Cleveland 58, cloudy; Detroit 54, clear; Indianapolis 60, partly cloudy; Louisville 67, partly cloudy; Miami 69, windy; Nashville 67, partly cloudy; New York 42, windy; Philadelphia 40, cloudy; Pittsburgh 49, cloudy; Washington 48, cloudy.

Central — Chicago 56, thunderstorms; Denver 45, clear; Des Moines 40, partly cloudy; Fort Worth 65, windy; Kansas City 64, cloudy; Minneapolis-St. Paul 35, cloudy; New Orleans 65, clear; St. Louis 65, partly cloudy.

TSU regents appointed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements appointed three regents Wednesday for Texas Southern University in Houston.

The nominees are Marjorie Arst and Winston Webster, both of Houston, and Howard Kirven of Dallas.

The governor also named Joe Pyle of San Antonio to the Texas Board of Health; Albert Heldenbrand of Selman City to the Commission for Indian Affairs; and David Oliver of San Antonio to the Texas Board of Licensure for Nursing Home Administrators.

All the appointees must be confirmed by the Senate.

Texas woman's body found in apartment

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An 18-month search for a wealthy Texas woman apparently has ended with the discovery of the mummified remains of a body in the apartment of her philosopher-poet lover, police said.

Police said Ira Einhorn was arrested Wednesday after the unidentified body, shrouded in plastic and covered with newspaper, was discovered in a trunk in a closet at his apartment near Drexel University.

The body was believed to be that of Helen "Holly" Maddux of Tyler, Texas, who was 31 when her parents reported her missing in September 1977.

Einhorn was charged with murder and held without bail, pending an April 5 hearing, police said.

Einhorn is widely known in the city for his counter-culture activities.

GIRLS DISTRICT MEET

Grady's Superintendent Bill Baker, left, and Principal Harvey Tubb view new construction going on at the rural school 17 miles northwest of Stanton.

Support, school pride make education Grady's best crop

GRADY — Midway between Lenorah to the east and Tarzan to the west is Grady.

It cropped up like a new-born island amid a sea of cotton in 1951. Its principal product is education.

And that's all Grady is: a rural school that's just as good as most and generally better.

At least, that's the viewpoint of Principal Harvey Tubb.

"Our faculty is as good or better than most, including Midland's," said Tubb.

And facilities, mostly bounded by schoolhouse-red brick, are modest — not lavish — and reflect planning and, most recently, non-deficit spending.

Superintendent Bill Baker is proud of that and of the 200-student school he oversees with the consent of the ruling trustees.

GRADY HAS "PRIDE, good program offerings" and the support of the communities, Baker said, and offers more than the basics.

"The day's gone when you can give the three R's and keep your school going."

"You've got to have proper financing, good leadership and a good board of trustees," said Baker, who, like Tubb, is a former coach and is into his 30th year in public education.

(Both graduated in the Class of 1949 at Texas Tech University but weren't pals then as they appear to be now; they didn't even know one another back then.)

"Schools won't just run themselves," said Baker, who's into his seventh year as chief administrator here. "They've got to be progressive. You got to be competitive."

Helping the school system stay notches above the mediocre is Board President Newell Tate, whom Baker calls the "most diversified farmer in Martin County."

"I DON'T KNOW where you'll find a better one (trustee). He's kept in tune with things pretty well...in education across the state and everywhere."

Tate, who lives at Tarzan, runs cattle and grows cotton, alfalfa and grain. He's a conservationist and "actually rotates" his crops, Baker said.

The 15-acre Grady campus has 20 classrooms, a library, two gymnasiums, two tennis courts, a track field "that's as big as Texas Tech's," a cafeteria, shop, an auditorium and four additional classrooms on the way, and six "teacherages" (housing for teachers).

Baker's and Tubb's teacherages are the brick ones; the others are frame.

There's no band hall here, for there's no band to play the school song, to sound the school's glory or prod the fighting Wildcats to victory on the football field, on the track or on the gymnasium floor.

Grady ISD was a product of the consolidation of three school districts: the Grady ISD, Lenorah Common School-South Plains ISD and Valley View ISD.

The school was named for Grady Standefer, who sold land to the new school district about 1950. School colors are gold, white and black.

THE GRADY SCHOOL is following the trend of nixing study hall, which makes time for six class periods instead of five, Baker said.

"Of course, too, we have no study hall, and that cuts down on your discipline problems about 100 percent," he said.

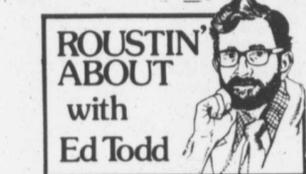

The school also is shy of a deficit, which could make up for being without either a band or a study hall.

"Now, a lot of schools are over-spending. Let's face it," the superintendent said.

"Just because you've got the money, that's no reason to spend it... But if there's a need, I say spend it."

Right now, the school is building and financing, in part from its $938,000 annual budget, a 500-seat auditorium and four additional classrooms to be completed this summer. No bond issue was called to finance the new construction.

The second gym, two classrooms and dressing rooms were built in 1973, and the shop and three additional classrooms were built in 1975, again, with the tax revenue brought in by the farm land, the 700 producing oil wells, pipelines, gins and other businesses in the 300 square miles making up the Grady ISD.

SINCE 1976, Grady's maintenance engineer, Jack Pattison of Midland, has constructed two tennis courts and the administrative offices.

"Ah, man, he makes his wages every day," the superintendent said. "Sure does."

The white-haired Pattison is a former building contractor who opted to spend his latter work years on campus.

"Oh, I've built a few of the half-moon houses, too," Pattison said.

The older part of the campus was built with bond money and includes the three wings, 1950; the library, 1960, and the cafeteria, 1964.

Unlike the earlier work, much of the newer building is financed with "money out of the hip pocket," said Tubb.

Some of that pride and spirit Baker mentioned is reflected on the walls of the men's dressing room.

Coach Richard Gibson has posted such go-get-'em-cats signs as "Guts and Determination," "No Pains — No Gains," "Strive for Perfection," "Think Success" and "Grady Rides on Wildcat Pride."

"He gets the maximum out of the kids," Baker said of Gibson.

Grady's six-man football team pits its pride against Loop in Gaines County, Wellman in Terry County, Whitharral in Hockley County, Three Way in Bailey County and Cotton Center in Hale County.

The Wildcat basketball teams play Greenwood in Midland County, Sterling City in Sterling County and Garden City in Glasscock County.

GRADY IS THE EIGHTH school system Baker has been associated with in his 30 years of school work. He started out at Tarzan's South Plains school just three miles to the west and from there went to Flower Grove, Sweetwater, Kermit, Andrews, Wellman and Fluvanna before coming to Grady.

"I made a circle and came back," Baker said, "and enjoyed every bit of it."

Tubb started his career at Whitharral and taught at Ropesville and Wellman before settling down at Grady two years ago.

Baker said the outlook at Grady appears promising.

"I would be naive to say I don't see a good future for it. I don't see anything but good."

Students in kindergarten and grades one through 12 are bused in over six routes. The 23 faculty members either live here or in Big Spring, Midland or Stanton.

Enrollment, which peaks out at about 250, largely is seasonal and depends on the prosperity of the cotton crop.

Baker doesn't see a substantial increase in enrollment unless farmers sell plots of land to city people who wish to move to the country.

"If someone would sell acreage, it (enrollment) would explode," as it did at Greenwood in neighboring Midland County, Baker said.

The superintendent doesn't visualize that happening here.

"They (farmers) have got their reasons," he said. "Land's pretty invaluable, too."

Baker also has his reasons for staying out here. He enjoys the rural atmosphere and his role, as does Tubb. Baker's wife, Laura, is the fourth-grade teacher here; Tubb's wife, Mary Ann, is the school secretary.

A punningly whimsical testimony to Baker's task is a wooden sign, given to him by Trustee G.D. "Shot" Sawyer of Lenorah, and which reads:

Old Supts. Never Die — They Just Lose Their Principals

Rural Grady Independent School represents only one of two school systems in Martin County. Stanton, which has an enrollment of 820, is about four times as large as Grady. (Staff Photos by Ed Todd)

He was a deacon at Plains Baptist Church.

Other survivors include his wife, a son, two daughters, six brothers, a sister, 14 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Carson City newspaper loses offices to flames

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Four fire departments and a firefighting editor were unable to save the Nevada capital's only daily newspaper from a raging blaze which gutted its offices.

As firemen left the soggy, rubble-strewn building early this morning, Nevada Appeal newspaper executives met in the former bridal suite of a motel across the street. They vowed to continue publishing without missing an issue by printing papers at a sister paper in Las Vegas and airlifting them to Carson City.

Flames shot 20 to 30 feet above the roof of the Carson City Nevada Appeal building during the hour-long blaze which started shortly before midnight Wednesday, Fire Chief Bernie Sease said.

Sease estimated the damage to the four-year-old one-story brick building at $300,000 to $500,000.

Among the firemen battling the blaze was Appeal Editor Steve Frady, a volunteer fireman in nearby Virginia City, who donned a helmet and turnout and plunged into the flaming building when he arrived shortly after 11:30 p.m.

The blaze buckled the roof and gutted much of the windowless building's interior, including the newsroom and advertising departments. Soggy gray rubble lay in mounds on desks beneath the skeleton of a drop ceiling. Phones in some places melted and wood panelling was deeply charred.

The paper's pressroom suffered only smoke and electrical damage.

Other survivors include his wife, a daughter, two sons, two stepdaughters, a stepson, seven grandsons and eight great-grandsons.

Arson suspected in fires

BOSTON (AP) — Fire officials blamed arson for a number of fires that started within 90 minutes at two of Boston's most fashionable hotels early today. Nearly 2,000 guests fled into the night.

Police said at least 67 persons were injured, mostly from smoke inhalation. At least three were burned seriously, and at least two heart attacks were reported.

Boston Fire Commissioner George H. Paul told reporters the fires at the chic Copley Plaza and the Sheraton Boston Hotel "were definitely set" but he declined to say whether they were linked.

However, he said security was being heightened at the city's other hotels.

The fire at the Copley started about 1 a.m. The Sheraton, just two blocks away, reported its fire at 2:26 a.m.

Both fires were under control about two hours after they started, and personnel in both hotels were busy making arrangements for guests to stay at other hotels.

Silkwood suspected co-worker

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Karen Silkwood wasn't sure how she was contaminated with plutonium, but she believed it had to be the work of a Kerr-McGee employee, according to testimony by a friend.

Excerpts from a pre-trial deposition by Jean Jung, a nuclear plant co-worker of Miss Silkwood, were read into evidence Wednesday in the $11.5 million Silkwood plutonium contamination case. Mrs. Jung lives in Colorado and was unavailable to testify.

In the deposition, Mrs. Jung told of talking with Miss Silkwood at about 7 p.m. on Nov. 13, 1974, 30 minutes before Miss Silkwood was killed in a one-vehicle auto crash.

Mrs. Jung said Miss Silkwood's eyes brimmed with tears as she talked about the contamination of her and her apartment.

"She said, 'I can't believe who would do such a thing like that. It has got to be somebody that works for Kerr-McGee that can get it out,'" Mrs. Jung said.

Miss Silkwood's survivors are suing the Kerr-McGee Corp., claiming negligence in the radioactive contamination of her and her apartment the week of Nov. 5, 1974.

Earlier this month, Kerr-McGee lawyers said Miss Silkwood, a union activist and a lab technician at the nuclear plant, may have contaminated herself because she was unable to come up with proof the company was falsifying quality control X-rays and reports on fuel rods being manufactured for an experimental reactor in Hanford, Wash.

But Mrs. Jung said Miss Silkwood told her she was successful in getting the documentation she began collecting two months earlier.

"I'm on my way to Oklahoma City to the Holiday Inn West to meet with Steve Wodka and David Burnham," she quoted Miss Silkwood as saying the night of her death.

Wodka is an Atomic Workers union investigator and Burnham is an investigative reporter for the New York Times.

Despite the fact the Oklahoma Highway Patrol concluded Miss Silkwood fell asleep at the wheel and ran off the road the night of Nov. 13, 1974, an accident investigator hired by the union concluded she may have been run off the road.

In conversations after a union meeting the night of her death, Mrs. Jung said Miss Silkwood told her she had enough plutonium inside her to eventually kill her.

U.S. District Judge Frank G. Theis of Wichita, Kan. told jurors he was allowing the testimony to be introduced "to show the mental state of Karen Silkwood at the time." He admonished jurors against taking what Mrs. Jung said Miss Silkwood told her as fact.

Affirmative action programs may be hit by court ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court will decide by July the outcome of a "reverse discrimination" case that could affect future efforts aimed at making up for past bias suffered by minorities and women in the nation's job market.

Specifically, the court will rule on whether Brian F. Weber is right in arguing that it's against the law to exclude him from an on-the-job training program because he is white.

Weber's employer, his union and the federal government told the court Wednesday that no law was broken in 1974 when an affirmative action program at Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Co.'s Gramercy, La., plant excluded him.

Weber's lawyer and, so far, two federal courts say the program was illegal.

At issue is a portion of the 1964 Civil Rights Act barring bias in employment based on race, sex, religion or national origin.

The Supreme Court, after hearing 90 minutes of arguments Wednesday and already having read dozens of briefs espousing both views, must determine whether Weber was illegally harmed by a program aimed at landing more blacks in higher paying craft jobs.

The program, begun under a collective bargain agreement between Kaiser and the United Steelworkers union, specified that blacks and whites in equal numbers would be accepted.

Weber, a 32-year-old lab technician, sued Kaiser. He said blacks with less seniority than he were accepted ahead of him because of the program's racial quota.

Had seniority been the sole basis for accepting applicants for the program, few blacks would have been included.

At the Gramercy plant, only 2 percent of the craft jobs were filled by blacks although blacks comprised 39 percent of the plant's overall workforce.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, without reaching the broader issue of whether affirmative action in employment ever is permissible, struck down the program.

It ruled that employers may not voluntarily establish an affirmative action program to redress society's past sins. And it said an employer's past bias must first be proved or admitted before any remedy may be tried.

"On its face, isn't this a discrimination against white persons?" Justice Potter Stewart repeatedly inquired Wednesday.

While lawyers for both sides answered "yes," they differed as to whether such discrimination is permitted under the 1964 law.

TML wants cities to say whether to tax autos

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A representative of the Texas Municipal League has asked the Senate Finance Committee to let cities decide for themselves whether to place a property tax on automobiles.

Gail Graydon, Dallas assistant city attorney, said Wednesday that Dallas would lose at least $3.2 million per year under the automobile provision of a House bill implementing the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment.

The House bill exempts from property taxation two automobiles or light trucks per family and reimburses school districts for their losses in the first year.

"Many of the services that cities provide are related to the use of automobiles," Graydon said.

He asked the finance committee to consider instead a bill sponsored by Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, that would ban a state property tax on automobiles but leave a local option for cities, counties and school districts.

Voters approved the Tax Relief Amendment last November but it will be the Legislature that decides how several parts of the measure should be implemented.

The implementation bill (HB 1060) was sent to a subcommittee for further study at the request of Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, finance committee chairman.

The House passed the bill March 19, including provisions for more than $430 million in state payments to local school districts.

Once the Senate passes its version of the bill, it will be sent back to the House to get approval of any changes made.

Charles Mathews of the Texas Association of School Administrators said he was "generally pleased with 1060."

He said, however, school districts should be reimbursed for the loss of automobile property taxes in both years of the 1980-81 biennium, not only the first.

Bexar County's tax assessor said the House bill would not give tax offices enough time to change their computer programs.

"We would have some problems getting this done," Ben Shaw said. "I would hope that Jan. 1 should be enough time."

The bill says the new tax relief provisions would apply to 1979 property tax notices.

House passes bill to give felon vote

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas House passed a bill Wednesday that would automatically restore convicted felons' right to vote after they serve their time, including parole.

A 92-48 vote sent the bill to the Senate, which passed similar legislation in 1977 only to see it vetoed by former Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

An amendment denying two-time losers automatic restoration of their full citizenship rights failed to win the two-thirds vote required for changing a bill when it is before the House on third reading.

Rep. Tip Hall, D-Denton, said the Legislature should assert it was willing to trust a person who has been to prison or on probation once but "the second time we are not so sure."

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Clay Smothers, D-Dallas, said he knew some ex-convicts who were "better citizens than those who have never been behind those walls."

Hall's amendment won a 72-68 majority but a two-thirds majority was required.

Under present law, an ex-convict can regain his right to vote only if the governor pardons him or a district judge grants his petition for restoration of his civil rights.

Weekend junket popular event for legislators

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — More than 70 legislators have signed up for a weekend visit to the Lower Rio Grande Valley, with expenses to be paid by local businessmen, chambers of commerce and hotels.

"The press is not invited," Rep. Melchor Chavez, D-Harlingen, told the House on Wednesday.

Some legislators apparently had been less than pleased when an Austin American-Statesman reporter accompanied them on a recent junket to Houston. He wrote they spent more time socializing than viewing urban problems.

The host for the Valley trip is Sen. Raúl Longoria, D-Edinburg, and his office said 76 legislators had said they would attend.

Chavez called the trip, "the bracero program in reverse; we are going south."

There will be breakfasts, luncheons, cocktail parties and trips to Matamoros and Reynosa.

Four buses will leave the Capitol 30 minutes after the Legislature adjourns Thursday for the weekend.

Beer in smaller bottles may be approved today

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texans who fill up easily could buy beer in 7- or 8-ounce bottles under a bill that is expected to win final legislative approval today.

Final passage of the bill, which advanced 110-28 Wednesday, would send it to Gov. Bill Clements for signature or veto.

While the measure would offer beer drinkers a wider selection of bottle and can sizes, opponents warned it would put an end to backyard keg parties.

Rep. Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, the sponsor, beat back seven attempts to change the bill, which was approved exactly as it left the Senate.

The bill would allow sale of beer in containers of 7, 8 and 16 ounces in addition to the present 12-, 24- and 32-ounce bottles and cans. The new container sizes could be sold only in six-packs or other retail packages of three or more.

Opponents of the bill concentrated on provisions setting up a "three-tier" system that would prohibit distributors from selling beer directly to retail customers.

Rep. John Wilson, D-LaGrange, was outvoted, 83-48, when he tried to restore the right of distributors to sell cases and kegs of beer off their docks to consumers.

He said the bill would "effectively do away with keg beer, at least in rural areas."

"It will increase the cost to consumers. They will have to go to the H.E.B. (grocery) and buy canned beer for these parties and celebrations they have bought keg beer for," Wilson said.

Lewis defended the bill as one that would "allow brewers to compete with other brewers, distributors to compete with other distributors and retailers to compete with other retailers."

"It is going to help all consumers," Lewis said.

Wilson said Lewis was asking the House to "validate a deal cut before the session between wholesale beer distributors and retail package stores." He said that while the beer distributors' lobby wanted the bill, individual distributors "understand now they bought a pig in the poke when they accepted the deal cut by their association."

Lewis also mustered a 76-56 vote to defeat an amendment allowing the Spetzl Brewery, maker of Shiner beer, to continue selling direct to consumers.

Rep. Bob Leonard, D-Fort Worth, failed, 86-46, to eliminate all state restrictions on beer container sizes, saying that should be left to the market.

"If people want to buy it in a thimble, I don't care. That's their right," said Leonard.

Trade deficit progress noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — New figures on U.S. exports and imports indicate the nation is making headway in efforts to lower its international trade deficit from last year's record $28.4 billion.

The U.S. trade deficit fell to $1.3 billion in February, the lowest single-month level in nearly two years, the Commerce Department reported Wednesday.

The decline from $3 billion in January was attributed, in large part, to a sharp drop in oil imports and an improvement in trade of manufactured goods.

Overall, the department said, the value of imported goods fell 8.8 percent from a January level of $16.2 billion to February's $14.8 billion. Exports rose 2.9 percent from $13.1 billion in January to $13.5 billion in February.

A Commerce Department analyst who asked to remain anonymous said he was "encouraged" by the February figures and said they suggest the administration's projection of a $22.5 billion trade deficit this year is attainable.

And the improved trade picture could give new support to the dollar, which has been recovering in recent months from the battering it received during the past two years.

The February deficit of $1.3 billion was the smallest for any month since a $723 million deficit in May 1977, Commerce officials said.

The biggest improvement in February was a 17.5 percent drop in the value of imported oil to $3.29 billion, lowest in six months. The volume of oil imports was down nearly 19 percent, to 238 million barrels.

The Commerce Department analyst attributed the decline in oil imports to the shutdown of Iranian oil fields during that country's revolution.

Fife's attorneys file motions on his behalf

ODESSA — Lawyers for Stephen Patrick Fife Wednesday filed three motions on behalf of their client before Judge Joe Connally of the 244th District Court here.

One motion requested by attorneys Royal Caswell and Cynthia Clack requests a psychiatric examination for Fife "prior to any further proceedings in this case."

Another motion requested Fife be put in custody of his attorneys so he might assist in preparation of his case.

A third motion requests a list of 12 separate types of evidence from local authorities.

Fife, 22, has been charged with the alleged murder of Catherine Ann (Fifi) Murphy, 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murphy Jr. of Odessa. Her body was found in a Crane County grave Feb. 8.

Judge Connally on March 22 ordered Fife's trial moved to Fort Worth.

Caswell and Clack had sought the venue change because of pre-trial publicity given Miss Murphy's disappearance, the discovery of her body and the arrest of Fife.

The trial is scheduled to start May 7 in Tarrant County with Judge Connally presiding.

First case of rabies reported in Odessa

ODESSA — The first Ector County case of rabies in a domestic animal in more than five years has been reported by an Odessa veterinarian.

Dr. Sheridan L. Duncan reported Tuesday afternoon that he had received positive tests returned on a dog from the Pleasant Farms area of southern Ector County.

Dr. Bob Barkley, an associate of Dr. Duncan, said today the dog was spotted by some residents of the area when it was bitten by a skunk. Dr. Barkley said that incident occurred last Friday.

He said a resident shot the dog and brought it to the animal clinic here. The veterinarian said tests were sent to the state laboratory in Austin and the case of rabies was confirmed Tuesday.

"In the five years I have been practicing in Odessa, I know of no positive cases in a domestic animal," said Duncan. "And I know of only two cases in 14 years this has happened."

He said citizens living in and around Odessa should have their domestic animals — such as dogs and cats — vaccinated and should keep them inside yards.

In addition, he said rural residents should have their domestic animals vaccinated for rabies at least once a year as a precautionary measure.

The program includes group lectures and individual counseling in how to improve eating habits, how to attain and maintain physical fitness through self discipline and self motivation. Also, nutrition education, jogging, hiking, nature appreciation, learning the art of relaxation, plus activities such as canoeing, volleyball and archery.

The site of the camp will be in the YMCA's Camp Flaming Arrow, which is located in the hill country near Kerrville. There are 5-day (Monday through Friday) and weekend (Saturday and Sunday) sessions available. The total cost is $40 per day, first session starts April 4.

For registration call or write the Central Branch YMCA, 903 N. St. Mary's St., 78215, (512) 227-5221.

Swimwear takes big plunge

The Los Angeles Times Necklines dive 20,000 leagues under the waistline. Leg openings reach clear up to the ribs. And bustlines and midriffs resplashed, shirred, draped, pleated or cut into abstract, geometric shapes.

Swimwear designers are, indeed, taking the big plunge this season, giving the tank suit and maillot bold new lines. Basically, the idea is to show as much skin as possible in a one-piece swimsuit without falling out of it — not the most comfortable idea in the world, but then neither was the string.

It's a racy, spacy Barbarella look. And as designer Betty Beck of Elisabeth Stewart says, "There's nothing timid about it. The new swimsuits show less in the right places. They are sparse, aggressive, geometric and terribly bright. They are also terribly sexy."

Perhaps the most daring suits of the season are designed by Norma Kamali, who appears to defy the laws of gravity with such sizzlers as her "Lizard Suit" (narrow strips of fabric wrapped around the body) and suits with plunging necklines. "There is a phrase used in interior decorating and all forms of design," says Kamali. "The phrase is 'less is more.' This is how I see my swimwear. As for Lizard, I meant it to look like body paint or body decorating."

Halston, who is featuring a series of deep V-neck and V-back tank suits this season, agrees that swimsuits are getting bolder, but he adds, "they are also looking sophisticated and designed."

"I think the whole concept of swimwear is getting more original. There's more of a fashion consciousness than before," says Halston.

DEAR ABBY

Honesty is best policy

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I want to share something with you that bothers me. My brother and six other guys were drinking at a friend's house. They were all on the basketball team at the time. The rule of the team is that no player is allowed to drink.

Well, the coach heard about it and got all the guys together and asked them flat out if they had been drinking. Two "brave" guys admitted it. The others lied.

I always thought honesty was the best policy, but I've changed my mind. The two guys who told the truth got kicked off the team. The ones who lied are still on it.

I no longer believe it pays to be honest. This incident proved it — DISGUSTED WITH LIFE

DEAR DISGUSTED: The guys who were kicked off the team were punished for breaking the rules, not for telling the truth. Everyone must live with his own conscience, and the two who were honest scored much higher in self-esteem than those who lied.

Don't blame the coach. He had to stick by the rules, but I'm sure he appreciates the integrity of the two who confessed their guilt. (I'll bet he reinstates them. Please let me know.)

DEAR ABBY: My wife read the letter from TIRED PARENTS and handed it to me without comment. These parents were tired of supporting their 30 and 25-year-old sons, who were lazy good-for-nothings and always in some kind of trouble.

What a contrast to our son, who has always been independent and highly motivated! He worked his way through college and has a bachelor's degree and master's from one of the top universities.

We helped him a little his first year; from his sophomore year on he never asked for a cent. He now has a very responsible position with another fine university and a bright future.

You could not find a more thoughtful son. He always remembers our birthdays and anniversaries. On Mother's Day and Father's Day he always calls AND sends a present. Though he is nearly 30, he has never missed a Christmas at home with us. His gifts are always special.

Incidentally, our son is a homosexual. We don't understand why he is this way. We were hurt and upset when he told us. But we have never stopped loving him, and we feel it would be ungrateful to complain or pray that things were different. The Lord sent us a wonderful son who is "a joy in our old age," and we feel truly blessed. —PROUD PARENTS

DEAR PROUD: And your son is truly blessed to have such understanding parents.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to donate my eyes and kidneys and any other parts of my body that would be of use to a living person (after I die of course), but I doubt if they would be good enough.

You see, I'm 72 years old, have had a gall-bladder operation, two heart attacks, and put drops in my eyes regularly for glaucoma.

I wonder who would want my eyes? And since the rest of me isn't in very good shape either, would it be worth the trouble to donate any of my parts to that organ bank you wrote about?

You may print this because I'm sure other people want to know the answer, too. —ALL USED UP IN HIBBING, MINN.

DEAR ALL: Organs that are not suitable for transplants are useful for research and teaching, so please don't hesitate to register with The Living Bank, Box 6725, Houston, Texas 77005.

Wedding bells in your future? Whether your lifestyle is bridal gown or blue jeans, Abby lays it all out for you in her booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Honor society meets

"Happiness is Honorary Women of Distinctive Service" was the program presented by Anna Mae Klapproth, Pearl Watson, Hazel Smith and Blanche Plunkett at the March meeting of Epsilon Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, an international honor society for women educators.

The group met in the home of Marsha Samponaro, 1009 Neely St.

Charter members Hilda Hinds, Blanche Plunkett, Lois Rogge, Hazel Smith and Ruth Erskine were presented with a chrysanthemum.

"Golden moments" was presented by Pearl Watson. A notable award was presented to Frances Walker.

Golden Years awards were recognized with presentation of a red rose to Ruth Erskine, Hazel Smith and Carolyn Sowell.

Class reunion scheduled

Monahans High School graduating class of 1949 is planning a reunion June 9-10 at the Monahans Country Club.

Although an effort is being made to contact all members of the class, several have not been located, according to Mrs. Raymond Fletcher. Persons who have the addresses of any class members should contact Mrs. Fletcher at P. O. Box 1803, Monahans, Texas, 79756.

Home hair dryers may be harmful

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — New government tests show some home hair dryers release asbestos fibers, considered a cancer-causing material, and an environmental group charges that as many as 10 million of the units may be harmful.

Susan King, chairwoman of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, said in a broadcast interview Wednesday the agency had learned "that the hair dryers that we put under test Monday at the National Bureau of Standards do in fact contain asbestos."

The material is used as insulation in the dryers.

"We will proceed with the testing to determine the nature of the fibers that are released and the degree of hazard to consumers in foreseeable use of the product," Ms. King said in an interview with Washington television station WRC.

But in a petition filed with the agency today, the Environmental Defense Fund said the government should ban the future use of asbestos insulation liners in hand-held hair dryers. The private group estimated that the number of dryers with such liners could total 10 million.

Scientists have linked the breathing of asbestos fibers with an increased risk of lung cancer and other serious diseases. The environmental group's petition also calls on the commission to force manufacturers to replace or repair asbestos-containing dryers now in use.

The television station had pressed the issue with the agency, submitting its own results of tests done for the station by a private firm. It also supplied hair dryers for the National Bureau of Standards to examine.

Its tests of 112 new and used hair dryers showed that 24 brands contained asbestos, the television station said.

"Of those that contained asbestos, every one spewed out asbestos fibers that can be breathed," said Lea Thompson, a WRC reporter.

The station said some General Electric, Sears, Montgomery Ward and Hamilton Beach models were found in the independent tests to have asbestos. It said that Gillette, the largest manufacturer of hair dryers, stopped using asbestos insulation in 1973.

Easter Egg Cake is a delicious dessert that's both festive and easy to make. All it takes is a basic yellow sheet cake, buttercream frosting and a little imagination. Youngsters will be delighted to help and they can be rewarded with leftover pieces of cake, icing and candy decorations.

Easter Egg Cake is festive, easy

SUGAR LAND — Just in time for the holidays here's an "Easter Egg Cake" that will let you say Happy Easter a little different way this year. What child wouldn't be delighted to find a decorated Easter cake as a table centerpiece—or alongside a colorful Easter basket? Easy to make and easy to decorate, this "Easter Egg Cake" is sure to capture the hearts of children everywhere.

EASTER EGG CAKE

- 1 3/4 cups sifted flour
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 3/4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
- 1/2 cup shortening, butter or margarine
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup milk

Sift flour, sugar, salt and baking powder together in a bowl. Add other ingredients and beat well with a wire whisk or electric beater for three minutes. Pour mixture into 9"x13" pan generously greased and floured. Pre-heat oven. Bake at 350 degree for 25 to 30 minutes or until cake tests done.

EASY-SPREAD ALMOND BUTTERCREAM FROSTING

- 2 cups sifted powdered sugar
- 1/3 cup whipped-type margarine
- 3 tablespoons cream
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract (use vanilla, if preferred)

Beat powdered sugar into margarine gradually. Add cream to mixture one spoonful at a time. Add almond flavoring. Beat until mixture reaches spreading consistency. Add more powdered sugar, if necessary. Frost top and sides of cake. To achieve a smooth surface, dip spatula frequently into hot water and lightly skim spatula across cake surface.

Let cake cool. Remove cake from baking pan and place on serving platter. Or, place cake on stiff cardboard cut slightly larger than egg-shape oval and covered with colored foil wrapping paper. Cut a piece of light-weight cardboard or rigid paper to Slice orange pieces in half from top to bottom (making two slices out of one). Slice about 20 in half. This will be enough for top and bottom of cake. Press cut sides into frosting along bottom edge of cake. With toothpick, lightly sketch an oval into center of cake. Using green food coloring, tint one cup shredded coconut. Fill oval with tinted coconut. Cut remaining orange slice halves again. This time cut along the edge about 1/4" from outside curve. Outline coconut oval with the thin orange candy slices in scallop pattern.

FOOD

TO MAKE BUNNY

Slice two regular-size marshmallows in half (making four round pieces). Place two pieces, cut side down, in center of green coconut oval. Use a little leftover frosting to cement marshmallows to cake. Cut one of the remaining marshmallow halves in two. Shape gently to make bunny ears. Place ears on bunny. From last marshmallow half, cut round piece for tail. Place on bunny. Cut tip from a pink jellybean for bunny nose. Draw whiskers and eyes with black felt pen. Arrange jellybeans nest beneath bunny.

To make bunny

THE BUTCHER

Don't get stuck by stickers at meat counter

By MERLE ELLIS

It is becoming increasingly critical, to survive the high cost of food, that we become better, more cautious and careful buyers. It's likely to be a rough year.

Newspapers have been full of news of higher food prices for the past few weeks. The Agriculture Department was estimating late last fall that retail food prices would most likely rise by about seven percent in 1979. We are now barely into that year and Howard W. Hjort, the Department's chief economist, has already said that the increase probably would be around 8.5 percent.

Considering the January increase alone was 0.9 percent and the worst is yet to come, an increase of 11 or 12 percent sounds to me a lot more likely, and meat prices probably will lead the way.

To prevent those percentages from putting too great a pinch on your pocketbook, you're going to have to pay very close attention to what you're doing when you do your shopping. You need to be careful, be wise, and BEWARE.

When it comes to shopping for meat, here are a few things to watch for: Beware of supermarkets that play music. It's pleasant to shop in pleasant surroundings. I know, but when you walk into a supermarket and hear soft music filling the store, realize that the reason is to lull you into spending more time than you need to there, and very likely more money. Tune it out and proceed with caution.

Beware of supermarkets with extremely long and lovely meat cases. Realize when you see such a case that a steer only has so many parts — same goes for a lamb and a pig and a chicken — and a butcher who is required to keep such a case full and attractive is going to have to come up with a lot of cuts that those critters don't have. It's called merchandising.

In a case like that, you will almost certainly find all kinds of "cuts" that aren't cuts of meat at all. They're recipe names. Top round steak, for example, will be labeled "top round" in one part of the case, cut a bit thinner and labeled "breakfast steak" in another, cut thick and labeled "London broil" in another and possibly cut in other ways and labeled "Stroganoff," "teriyaki" or "barbecue" steak.

It takes a lot of cuts to fill a large, lovely meat case, but you'll save a lot of money if you stick to the basic cut, in this case, "top round," and don't pay a premium to have the butcher plan your menu for you.

Beware of stickers or you're sure to get stuck. A few years ago, the National Livestock and Meat Board came out with a recommended list of terms to be used in the labeling of meat. It was an attempt to eliminate the kind of merchandising we were just discussing. Many markets use the standard terms, but in most it hasn't changed any merchandising practices.

Now, you are apt to find the standard term listed in fine print on the label along with the weight and the price, and on another part of the package, in big bold letters on a bright colored background, an eye catching sticker that can stick you. When you see such a sticker, let it be like a red flag that warns you to beware! You will almost certainly pay more for a cut of meat with a sticker that states "London broil," "Chateaubriand" or "Bar-B-Q" than you will for one without.

Beware of "BNLS," that's the accepted label abbreviation for boneless, and it often costs more than it's worth. For some reason, I assume because most folks consider them waste and throw them away, people seem willing to spend more money, often considerably more money per pound, for a piece of meat that has no bone than for the same cut with the bone left in.

Now, with some cuts check out the price of that makes sense, but whenever you see "BNLS," beware! Often that the cut with the bone left in, plus a good pot of soup, may beat "BNLS." These are just a few of the many things we need to be aware of, and beware of, if we are to become better, more defensive buyers in today's high cost of living world. Good Luck!

Hospital patients get gourmet meal

By CHRIS ROBERTS
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Kamol Phutlek, La Terrasse's talented Thai chef, gulped when he walked into the huge kitchen at Einstein Medical Center, Northern Division.

"So big," he said. "Hope it turns out all right."

Then he slipped into his white apron and began a creation of cream of cucumber soup, chicken crepes stuffed with mushrooms and splashed with mornay sauce, watercress-divine salad with vinaigrette dressing, poached pears in raspberry sauce.

The elegant meal, prepared by the hospital staff under Phutlek's watchful eye, was served on Wednesday to some 300 patients and 800 hospital employees, who agreed everything turned out just fine.

"It was delicious," said Leonard Keavick, hospitalized with a herniated disc. "I never thought my hospital insurance would cover a gourmet meal."

"Absolutely excellent," said Robert Gildea, who had undergone a hand operation. "It was quite different from the regular hospital fare, although the food here is good."

Gourmet meals are to be served monthly at Einstein, prepared under the supervision of other chefs from such well known city restaurants as Le Bec Fin, Wildflowers, Frog and the Chestnut Hill Hotel.

"They're donating their names, their recipes, their chefs and their supervision," said Martin Goldsmith, the Einstein vice president who came up with the idea. "We're the benefactors of a lot of good spirit."

The haute cuisine is offered at no extra cost to patients on a regular diet.

Reader asks if there is an Easter bunny

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I am 6 years old. Some of my friends say there is no Easter Bunny.

Mama says, "Ask Cecily. If you see it in her column it's so."

Please tell me the truth. Is there an Easter Bunny? — KERI.

DEAR KERI: On Easter Sunday some young children, waking to find marvelous colored eggs, believe the Easter Bunny brought them. But often their friends scoff at the idea.

Is there a real Easter Bunny? You might as well ask: Is there a real Peter Rabbit?

Peter Rabbit was the creation of a gifted lady named Beatrix Potter. She wrote a story about him called "The Tale of Peter Rabbit" and painted some enchanting pictures to illustrate it.

That was over 75 years ago — long, long before you were born — and yet today Peter Rabbit is still with us. So are his mother; his sisters, Flopsy, Mopsy and Cottontail; and Mr. McGregor, in whose garden Peter lost a shoe in a cabbage patch. Peter Rabbit will go on living as long as there is an English language.

Yes, Keri, there is an Easter Bunny — just as there is a Peter Rabbit. You can tell your friends that the Easter Bunny came into being because some people wanted to give small girls and boys a special taste of joy on Easter Sunday. The Easter Bunny sprang from a lovely thing called imagination, and from the good feelings fathers and mothers and grandparents and aunts and uncles have for children. Although you can't see or touch imagination and feelings, they are just as real as eggs and cabbage patches.

As far as I know, Beatrix Potter never told whether Peter Rabbit colored eggs for Easter. But I believe he did — with red cabbage leaves and brown onion skins from Mr. McGregor's garden. — CECILY.

BUNNY-STYLE EASTER EGGS

Warm 2 large white eggs under the hot water tap. Put them in a 1 1/2 quart saucepan. Tear off 3 large dark red leaves from the outside of a red cabbage head and tear each leaf in half. Cover the eggs with the leaves and add 3 cups hot tap water. Simmer for 30 minutes, uncovered. (The eggs will still be white.) Cover the saucepan and let stand at room temperature for 2 hours. The eggs will turn a beautiful mottled blue.

Follow the previous directions but instead of red cabbage leaves, use a big handful of brown onion skins and 3 1/2 cups water. (The onion skins will float.) After simmering, the eggs will look pale orange; after letting them stand 2 hours they will turn a handsome terra-cotta color. The onion water can be used to color 2 more eggs in the same way.

Water gardening boosts production

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Water gardening is increasing in popularity among home gardeners and researchers are mounting efforts to boost food production in this manner to save time and space.

But we'll stick here to so-called hydro-growing or hydroponics with plants commonly found in the home. It opens a new field for many apartment dwellers.

You can find plant materials suitable for water gardening in most florist shops and garden centers. Then all you'll need is a water-tight container. Experiment with small plants rather than large ones; they're easier to work with. Start with plants with well-developed roots, although you can use almost any plant that roots easily from a cutting.

Raise the plants in fertilizer-enriched water in ceramic bowls, glass dishes, jars, or even photograph display cubes if they're waterproof. We are advised against using containers made of copper, brass or lead because corrosion caused by the fertilizer solution is likely to release chemicals harmful to plants.

Plants thus grown should be supported with stone chips, such as are used in aquariums — gravel, pebbles or coarse sand — most of them available in pet shops.

Start by washing the container with soap and water to discourage fungal and bacterial growth. Wash the gravel. A water-soluble plant food should be used at a fourth the label-recommended strength. Start with a gravel or pebble base, to which you should add a bit of granulated charcoal to keep it sweet. Wash potting mixture or soil from plant roots before arranging them in the container, trimming injured or decayed parts with a sharp knife or scissors.

After arranging plants, add gravel or stones to base to support them, planting at the same depth that the plants grew in pots. Then add the water-fertilizer mixture until half the depth of the gravel is under water. Retain this level constantly, since the lower half of the gravel medium becomes a reservoir of water and nutrients for plant growth.

assistant business manager; Gloria Caldwell, model, and Ernestine Hunt, sponsor. The fashion show is set for 3 p.m. in the Hilton Ballroom. (Staff Photo)

Benefit style show set for Sunday

Voices of Zion organization is sponsoring a benefit style show with the theme "Singing Melodies of Springtime" Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Hilton Ballroom.

Spring fashions will be featured from local merchants, including Dunlap's, Grammer-Murphy, Marilyn's, Together, Margaret's, Alyce Owens, Upstairs-Downstairs, and Mister Penguin Tuxedo.

Special attraction will be a showing of April shower brides. Models will be Gloria Caldwell, Donald Mosley, Dereck Berry, Connie Robertson, La-Dante White and Anthony Niblett.

Dorothy Yarbrough and Margie Lomborge will be the commentators.

Music will be provided by Noble Carrida of Andrews.

Another main attraction will be the appearance of an Easter bunny modeled by Sandra Lee.

Benefits from the show will go toward the organization's community projects. Donations of $5 will be accepted. Door prizes are to be presented.

Threaded nails will solve problem

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q.—A few years ago, I finished our attic. I used some kind of wallboard. I don't remember now what kind, except that it wasn't regular gypsum board. Some of the nails have started to come out, not very much, just enough so that you can see they are there. I hammered some of them back, very gently, then covered them with a patching plaster that matched the white finish of the wallboard very well. Now the same thing is happening again. Is there some way I can hammer back these nails so that they do not keep coming out?

A.—Yes. First, go out and buy some threaded nails. Hammer back the old nails once again, then drive in a threaded nail close to each nail that was loose. Using a nail-set, recess the old nails that were coming out as well as the new threaded nails. Fill these holes with patching plaster, leaving the patches slightly above the surface to allow for shrinkage. A day or two later, sand down the surfaces and, where necessary, apply a very thin coat of patching material. Be prepared for the possibility that some of the old nails which haven't popped yet may do so at a later time.

Q.—The bottom half of our bathroom walls is covered with ceramic tile. The top half is painted. We intend to repaint the top half soon. When we do, we would like to clean the tile to make it sparkle again like it did when it was new. How can these tiles be cleaned without damaging the surfaces?

A.—The tiles may merely be dusty. If so, wiping with a damp cloth or sponge may be all that is necessary. If some of the dirt resists, use a soapless detergent. Still heavier accumulations may require a stiff bristled brush along with the detergent, brushing away the dirt and grease after soaking the tiles well. If these methods still do not accomplish the desired result, scrub lightly with a household cleansing powder. In that event, be extra sure that the tiles and dried with an old and are rinsed thoroughly towel.

Think slim for fall fashions

By DANIELA PETROFF
AP Fashion Writer
MILAN, Italy (AP)—A few fashion suggestions for fall and winter from the ready-to-wear catwalk in Milan.

From now until October, think slim. Pull in the stomach and waist, relax the shoulders, cut out the bust exercises and avoid food whenever possible. Find yourself a medieval torture rack, the kind that stretches limbs to the breaking point, and use it daily.

If you survive, by October you should be tall and thin enough to fit into next winter's fashions.

Pencil skirts in flannel and tweed, fitted jackets with narrow raised shoulders, clinging silk and wool jerseys, middle to above-the-knee hemlines, belted waists, all combine to give that neat and tidy look which can be totally destroyed by a sloppy figure.

After almost a decade of letting it go under bulky sweaters and loose sack dresses, the time has come to get the shape back together again.

So far the blue ribbon for the neatest, trimmest look goes to Krizi for the gray flannel pin-stripe suit shown in her ready-to-wear collection Monday afternoon.

Reminiscent of Marlene Dietrich at her coolest, the suit has an envelope skirt buttoned in front and a single-button, three-quarter-length jacket and was worn with high-heel walking shoes, black hat and cane. For colder days, there is a collarless opussum jacket with circular designs.

Another designer who likes them slim and trim is Basile. He showed tight-fitting knit suits and dresses to a packed audience Tuesday morning.

There's no room for a sag or a bag in his above-the-knee black sweater dresses, the slim waistline of his skirt or the soft roundness of the jacket shoulder. Pants are not hip hugging, but their relaxed amplexness continued to the ankle is not meant to be filled out.

Nighttime clings to the Basile silhouette as he introduces gold- or silver-sprinkled silk jersey, stolen from circus trapeze artists. Soft-shouldered, printed kimono jackets add cozy sophistication to the sexy look of the gowns.

An American gift to Italian ready-to-wear comes in the Geoffrey Beene package, a blend of Milan businesswoman chic and Manhattan penthouse elegance. His daytime wear in efficient lightweight wool tweeds is designed with three or four interchangeable components to fit the needs of the fast-moving modern woman.

Beene, an American in Milan, has successfully combined the quality and imagination of Italian fabrics with the linear practicality of the American look.

Russian media undergoing facelift

By BARTON REPPERT

MOSCOW (AP) — In the wake of pointed criticism by President Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Union's government-controlled newspapers, radio and television are undergoing changes aimed at grabbing the attention of readers, listeners and viewers.

By Western standards, the changes — ranging from a new nationwide television program on foreign affairs to modernized layout of newspaper pages — appear relatively modest.

However, they are major steps in this country, where for decades the news media have been distinguished largely by stodginess and tedious rivers of official propaganda.

In his unusually tough criticism, on Nov. 27, Brezhnev asserted that Soviet media have failed to provide "enough principled, major statements touching on urgent problems of economic and social life."

He told the Communist Party's Central Committee that "not infrequently, newspaper materials and television and radio broadcasts are not convincing enough ... They are overburdened with general phrases which say nothing to the mind or the heart."

Brezhnev was particularly hard on coverage of foreign news. "It is high time to make reporting on international affairs prompt, more understandable and more concrete," he declared.

"International commentaries should follow, as they say, hot on the heels of events and sum them up. What we need is not a repetition of accepted truths, but in-depth and well-argued analysis of the facts of international life."

Within weeks after the speech, changes began to appear. So far they have included: — A new television program, "Today in the World," broadcast Monday through Friday evenings in two separate 15-minute editions. It is devoted to foreign news and commentary. The show's informal format contrasts with the stiff, dry tone typical of most Soviet newscasts.

—Upgrading the main evening TV news program, "Time," with headlines at the start of the show as well as new graphics and theme music. The program's regular half-hour air time has been expanded by five minutes.

—A reworked design for one of the two pages normally allotted to international news in the government newspaper Izvestia, which has a nationwide circulation of more than eight million. The new layout focuses on a column, headlined "Day of the Planet," bringing together items from around the world.

—Faster reporting and comment on major international developments by the official news agency Tass.

This speedier reaction was illustrated Monday when Tass carried a Washington-dated advance story about 45 minutes before the scheduled White House signing of the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty.

Just as Western news agencies carried bulletins on the signing, shortly after 10 p.m. Moscow time, a Radio Moscow newscaster was simultaneously presenting for Soviet listeners the Tass account — labelling the treaty "an act of capitulation and treason."

Some Moscow observers say the more rapid reporting apparently is geared to help offset Western shortwave radio broadcasts, such as those of the Voice of America and the British Broadcasting Corp.

In the past, Soviet listeners often learned of major overseas developments via Western stations several hours or even days before they were mentioned in the Soviet media.

An official of the Soviet State Committee for Television and Radio, however, denied that Western broadcasts were a significant factor behind the upgrading effort.

"Our government isn't especially concerned that our people listen to programs of the BBC and Voice of America," said Yuri A. Letunov, a member of the state committee's information board and former chief editor of the "Time" news program.

In an interview, Letunov said the media changes were in accord with "Leninist traditions" of propaganda.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — John Wojtowicz, the real-life desperado portrayed in the movie "Dog Day Afternoon," is out of jail, out of work and may soon be out of wedlock.

Wojtowicz, 33, said Wednesday that his wife, Carmen, had sued for divorce, accusing him of adultery with a male lover in jail and with Liz Eden since his parole last November.

It was to finance the sex-change operation of Miss Eden, then known as Ernest Aron, that Wojtowicz pulled the celebrated 1972 bank holdup that cost him six years in jail, he says. But he claims he has not been with Miss Eden since then, and says he will countersue.

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Pops maestro Arthur Fiedler has a new namesake — a 100-foot-long firetruck.

"I hope I deserve it," said the beaming 84-year-old Fiedler, who makes a hobby of fire-engine chasing.

Deputy Fire Chief John McCarthy said the truck will be called the Arthur Fiedler Memorial Aerial Tower. In a ceremony Wednesday in City Council chambers, the Museum of Transportation also named the firehouse holding its fire collection after Fiedler.

Three days earlier, Fiedler had returned to the podium to lead the Boston Symphony in a four-minute rendition of "The Stars and Stripes Forever." It was his first performance since undergoing brain surgery in December.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope and his wife, Dolores, are getting honorary doctor of humanities degrees from St. Louis University.

Officials at the Jesuit school said Wednesday that the presentations will be made May 12, during commencement exercises.

The Hopes' daughter, Linda, graduated from the school in 1960, Hope entertained at its 1959 founders day celebration and received the university's Spirit of St. Louis Award in 1968. The Hopes have contributed to the school and to St. Louis Children's Hospital.

ATLANTA (AP) — Billy Carter is feeling fine and looking forward to the end of his treatment for a drinking problem, his friends say.

"I have talked to him on the phone several times and his voice sounds great," Tandy Rice, his agent, said Wednesday. "He sounds better than ever. He sounds like the old Billy Carter."

The president's brother was voluntarily admitted March 7 to the Long Beach Naval Medical Center in California where former first lady Betty Ford and Sen. Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia also were treated. Carter obtained special permission to enter the government hospital and will pay the $242-per-day tab himself.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service, claiming Tongsun Park owes $5 million in back taxes, has auctioned two luxury cars confiscated from the South Korean businessman.

Park built up a fortune as an agent for sales of U.S. rice to South Korea, he says, by funneling money to congressmen.

The IRS held the auction Wednesday in an attempt to stave off mounting storage costs and depreciation on a 1976 Mercedes sedan and a 1976 Cadillac El Dorado.

The Mercedes went to Ray Burnett Volkswagen of Alexandria, Va., for $18,001, and the Cadillac to Michael Harr of New Jersey, according to the IRS in Baltimore. No price was given for the Cadillac. The agency received 96 bids, IRS spokesman Harvey Hammer said.

The cars were seized in 1977 from Pacific Development Inc., a company Park controlled. He is contesting the government's claims.

Verdict may take some time in Houston trial

HOUSTON (AP) — The jury in the trial of three former Houston policemen charged in the shooting death of a Shreveport, La., teen-ager may be a while deciding its verdict.

The jury, which isn't being sequestered, entered its second full day of deliberations at 9 a.m. today. It already had been at its work a little more than eight hours.

The possible shape of things to come entered the courtroom of U.S. District Judge Finis E. Cowan Wednesday when the jury foreman asked what procedure the panel should follow if deliberations continued into the weekend.

Cowan told the jury to set its own schedule, advising that if a verdict were not reached today, the jury could work Friday and Saturday, or take off until Monday.

The defendants — Danny H. Mays, 32, Norval Wayne Holloway, 29, and Paul D. Dillon, 38 — were charged in connection with the Feb. 8, 1977, death of Randall Alan Webster following a high-speed police chase in southwest Houston.

The defense contended during the trial that Mays shot Webster in self-defense. The prosecution alleged the officer's pistol went off when he struck the youth in the head while he was trying to surrender.

The prosecution accused all three of conspiring to cover up the truth by planting a "throw-down" gun beside Webster's body and lying to the grand jury that investigated the incident.

This trial is one of a series of actions taken against members of the Houston Police Department. It follows recent convictions of several officers, including a former chief, and precedes a case still pending against two former officers.

Former police chief Carrol Lynn was convicted last December of four charges stemming from a scheme to collect a $45,000 bribe from former Houston oilman John Vincent Holden, who was charged in another case with mail fraud and violations of securities violations.

In an earlier trial, three officers were found guilty of drowning Joe Campos Torres, 23, on May 8, 1977, in the waters of Buffalo Bayou, a stream flowing through a section of downtown Houston.

A federal court jury convicted Terry Denson, 27, Stephen Orlando, 22, and Joseph J. Janish, 22, of a felony violation of Torres' civil rights.

Six officers originally were involved in the case. Torres had been arrested three days before his death during a disturbance at a tavern.

The case now pending involves two former officers indicted by a grand jury on civil rights charges stemming from the July 1975 slaying of Billy Keith Joyvies, 18.

Oswald's mother says 'there was conspiracy'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The mother of Lee Harvey Oswald says a recent statement by a retired FBI agent that Dallas police ignored a warning Oswald would be killed two days after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy confirms her belief in a plot.

Mrs. Marguerite Oswald, 72, in a telephone interview from her home in Fort Worth, Texas, copyrighted Wednesday by the Kansas City Star, said, "There most certainly was a conspiracy. I don't know whether Lee was involved, but I do know he was framed."

"I have a feeling that no one knows who killed President Kennedy," she said. The Warren Commission concluded that Oswald was the assassin, and fired the fatal shot Nov. 22, 1963, in Dallas.

Evidence shows universe may expand forever

NEW YORK (AP) — A satellite studying X-rays coming from deep space has sent back new evidence the universe may expand forever, its galaxies rushing away from each other at speeds approaching that of light, scientists say.

The satellite, known as the Einstein observatory, is providing the first detailed pictures of X-ray-emitting objects other than the sun.

Dr. Riccardo Giacconi of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., principal investigator for the project, said the observatory's preliminary results should fuel debate over whether the universe is "open," and constantly expanding, or "closed," meaning it eventually would collapse back on itself.

Of course, the time scales involved in such a collapse are mind-boggling — the sun would have long burned out before the universe collapsed. But the subject is of intense interest to cosmologists trying to understand nature on its largest scale.

Both views — collapse and expansion — depend on the currently accepted theory that the universe began with a cataclysmic explosion known as the Big Bang.

The Big Bang is a possibility of the theories of Albert Einstein. But it was not proposed as a theory until astronomers realized in the 1930s that all the galaxies were speeding outward, sometimes at near the speed of light.

The modern view interprets this as the aftermath of a Big Bang some 20 billion years ago.

The question: Does the universe contain enough matter so that gravitational attraction will eventually halt the outrush of its galaxies or will it expand forever?

All the known stars, galaxies and nebulae provide only a tiny percentage of the mass needed to collapse the universe.

But debate flared when an X-ray satellite launched in 1977, a predecessor of the Einstein observatory, detected a diffuse "background" X-ray radiation pervading space.

One interpretation was that the radiation came from a previously unknown hot gas filling the spaces between clusters of galaxies, including the cluster that contains our Milky Way galaxy.

"The consequence of this was far-reaching," Giacconi said. "One could compute that the hot gas would provide enough matter to provide the missing mass necessary to bind the universe gravitationally and cause it to collapse."

But the Einstein satellite is 300 times more sensitive to detail than the earlier satellite. Giacconi said that although it has been pushed to only one-fifth of its power of resolution, it already has found that at least one-third of the background radiation is due to individual sources of radiation, rather than a thin diffuse gas.

Grand jury seeks help in Laredo investigation

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — A Webb County grand jury has asked for help from Attorney General Mark White in investigating "past wrongdoing in the city of Laredo."

"This investigation is to include, but not be limited to, elective officials, program directors, public servants and community businessmen who have received compensation for services," the grand jury said in a statement Wednesday.

The panel then recessed until April 17.

The jury has been looking into alleged improprieties in city government since last April 1. Wednesday's report said the continued investigation "is based on information presented to us." No indictments were issued.

Washers resolve knotty problem for San Antonio

By GREG THOMPSON

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Think you've got a rotten job? Meet Lupe Tapia, the man who must wash the outside of the 96 huge windows atop San Antonio's 622-foot Tower of the Americas.

Four times a year, the 5-foot-4, 45-year-old maintenance man must scrub off the dead birds, bugs and bats from the outside of the 5,184 square feet of glass enclosing the tower's circular restaurant at 570 feet.

It's part of his regular job. There's no extra insurance, no hazardous duty pay, not even a special safety system — probably because Tapia never leaves the comfort of the restaurant to do the job.

The outside windows are washed from the inside, thanks to a small electromagnetic gadget invented 10 years ago after embarrassed city officials realized they had absolutely no way to wash the windows on their gleaming new Hemisfair tower.

"I guess they thought the windows were too high to ever get dirty," Tapia shrugged as he scrubbed.

As a matter of fact, city officials claimed in 1969 during the height of the controversy that the architect had told them exactly that.

The irritated architect denied saying the windows would never get dirty and contended that budget-conscious city officials had trimmed a window-washing system from the proposed plans.

Meanwhile, increasingly irate diners were forced to view the city at mealtime through grimy glass coated with the shattered remains of kamikaze birds, bugs and bats.

To fully appreciate the logistical problem, you must first understand the shape of the tower's tophouse. The circular structure crowning the slender tower flares out from the bottom, making it look something like a deep salad bowl and rendering it impossible for even Spiderman to reach the windows from the outside. There are also no ledges and the breezes at that height are a bit stiff — often reaching 60 miles per hour.

One amateur mountain climber offered to go over the outside observation deck, which is at 579 feet, and wash the windows with a chemical while dangling only from a nylon climbing rope.

An attractive, 23-year-old housewife and mother actually said she could do the job while swinging on a rope beneath a hovering helicopter. Another less-daring housewife wanted to use a hose from a helicopter, while one helpful citizen suggested that an airplane be used to seed the clouds above the tower with a detergent.

The manufacturers of the glass also got into the act. Their plan was for every sixth six-by-nine-foot panel to be removed each year — by their employees, of course — so the adjoining glass could be washed.

Frustrated city officials finally turned to Southwest Research Institute here, where inventor Robinson Brown came up with the ridiculously easy solution. It cost the city a paltry $14,000.

Two men on the outside observation deck, guided by another assistant with a walkie-talkie inside the restaurant, use an extendable boom to lower the flat, 8-by-10 inch magnetic device to the window about 10 feet below.

The device has small rollers at each corner, rubber squeegees all around its rim, and electromagnets inside, activated by an electric wire from the observation deck.

Water, detergent and vinegar, pumped from the observation deck through a hose connected to the device, squirt on the windows. The men there regulate the flow of solution.

Tapia, holding a similar electromagnetic device inside, then connects with the outside magnets through the 3/4 inch-thick glass. The squirting water or detergent is squeegeed away as Tapia's hand easily moves the two devices together across the glass.

There is some inconvenience for visitors. Excess water dripping from the tower occasionally douses an unsuspecting tourist below.

The only climbing Tapia must do is on a 17-foot ladder inside the restaurant to reach the top panel. His only physical complaints from the job are a sore arm and sore feet from standing on the rungs of the ladder.

To move the ladder and boom over to the next glass panel, Tapia merely moves the restaurant's revolving floor. It takes about three sunny days to wash all the windows.

"It's so easy and simple, and it isn't dangerous at all," Tapia said.

"I have fun with it, though. When I tell my relatives I am going to wash the outside windows, they can't believe it. They tell me, 'If the city paid me $1,000 an hour to do that job, I wouldn't go out there.' Then I tell them how easy it is. But it took me some time before I convinced my wife."

Asked if he would have ever considered going outside to wash the windows, Tapia looked down, paused a long time and said, "I wouldn't be too excited about it."

Friendship born in war continues

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — A friendship between a former American soldier and a little Dutch girl is still alive 35 years later.

When he was stationed in Maastricht, Holland, in 1944, Stephen Fedorko befriended a 9-year-old girl. She was hungry, and Fedorko fed her. C-rations.

When he left Holland, he left without saying goodbye, but the girl, whose own father was killed in the war and who regarded Fedorko as something of a substitute father, never forgot him.

She tracked him down through the U.S. Embassy in 1972 and ever since they have been in touch.

Recently, the girl, Marika Janssen, visited Fedorko and his family with her husband, Matthew, and their daughter, Patricia.

Grand Prairie City Council proclaimed the Janssens honorary citizens. The Janssens gave the city tulip bulbs from Holland to be planted in city parks.

Gas bills to bring hospital enclosure

That gold card Midlanders will get in their June gas bills won't be another cost pass-through.

It's an explanation of the Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room procedures.

The cards — brainstrom of the hospital trustees' Citizens' Advisory Committee — are being inserted as a public service by Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

The cards explain when and how to use the emergency room and what financial arrangements are possible for the services.

War enemies meet on Maui

By ROBERT HEILMAN
The Seattle Times

SEATTLE (AP) — Standing atop a tall bookcase in a Seattle apartment is a delicately carved figure of Kannon Bosatsu, Japanese goddess of mercy.

It was presented to Ed Short by Nokiji Ikuta, Japanese fighter pilot who shot down Short's brother, Bob, in a dogfight in China nine years before Pearl Harbor.

The Japanese killed the American flier in one of those incredible mixups which are bred in wars — in this case the war between Japan and China in the 1930s.

Ed Short has learned something of compassion from Ikuta, for the one-time Japanese pilot regretted his deed and spent long years trying to find his victim's family to express his contrition.

More than four decades later he fulfilled his dream and shook Ed's hand on the Hawaiian island of Maui, where the Ed Shorts live part of the year in retirement.

Short respects the man who killed his brother and admires his sincerity and persistence.

"Why should I harbor bad feelings against a fellow who was doing a job? For years I thought about an airplane whose pilot won a dogfight."

"But it was the airplane I thought about. Now I think about a man, for I have met him and he has peace in his own mind after being disturbed about it for a long while."

There are similarities between Nokiji Ikuta and Robert M. Short.

Both were 27 at the time. Both were lieutenants, although the Japanese was on active service and in uniform, and, technically, Bob Short was a civilian.

International politics were as complicated then as always.

Short had been in the U.S. Air Corps Reserves and was working as an assistant manager of Pierce County Airport near Tacoma. It was 1931, and the Depression was taking hold. Bob lost that job, spurned one offer of a position which meant flying faulty planes and finally hooked on with L.E. Gale Co., representing United Aircraft, an organization which sold Boeing products.

Short was delivering a plane to China — it was fully armed and had Chinese markings — when he was shot down. But only after he had downed five Japanese planes, according to reports.

When Bob Short got to Shanghai, there had been no Chinese pilot available to take delivery of the fighter plane.

"The story I got," Ed said, "was that Bob spent the next three days persuading T.V. Soong, finance minister, that he should fly the plane to Nanking for delivery. But at Nanking he discovered the air force had moved to Soochow."

Ed Short also learned from an American newspaperman that a train in the area was filled with refugees, and one of the passengers was Chiang Kai-Shek — hence his brother's zeal in taking after the six Japanese planes when they appeared.

Bob Short became a Chinese national hero. He was buried at Soochow with full military honors. A shrine stands in his memory at Soochow airfield.

After many years and much backtracking, and even more praying for his victim's eternal welfare, Ikuta discovered the existence of Bob's brother, Ed. He wrote a letter to Ed in August 1974 confessing that "it was I that staged a big air battle against your brother at Soshu in China and knocked his plane out of the sky Feb. 22, 1932."

It took two years to find Ed Short and give him the letter. The links that finally formed a chain between Short and Ikuta were numerous and fateful.

They included a lead that the Short family lived in the Pacific Northwest, a Japanese newspaperman, a Tacoma newsman who knew Ed Short and, finally, mutual friends in the Hawaiian Islands.

The two men met in a garden in Maui in April 1977. They've kept in touch since the meeting.

Both the dead pilot's brother, a retired garden-equipment businessman, and the man who shot him down — Ikuta and his wife operate a kindergarten in Tokyo — say they have found a certain peace of mind.

MHS YOUTH CENTER CHATTER

Drama students go for district

By CECILY SHULL,
JANE FORSYTH
and VALERIE VAN PELT

What is FUN, EXCITING, DRAMATIC, and hopefully another VICTORY for MHS??? The drama students' One-Act play, of course!! Today the students take their show to Big Spring to compete in district competition. Cast members are Dode Harvey, Rod Steele, Scott Morris, Phillip Coffield, Edward Coffield, Connie Velasco, Greg Hancock, Bob Glenn and Matt Vaughan. Linda Trollinger is in charge of lights, and Valerie Van Pelt is stage director and sound technician. BREAK A LEG! We'd love to see you go to State!!

In other district competition, our dynamic diamond studders socked the Big Spring Steers 3-1! Mike Feldt, David Brigham, and Jimmy Zachry were outstanding in their fields! (HA HA) Keep the undefeated trend alive, Bulldogs!

FOR YOU CREATIVE competitors, the deadline for Midland High original literary publication Candle in the Wind is Friday, April 6. Entries can be any original writings, black and white art work, or photography. All material must be submitted to Ms. Stall or any staff member in Room 204.

Something else you can expect is the SPECIAL PROJECT for the Youth Center. This year the project will be in May. HUSH! HUSH! it's still a big secret, however. The project this year will be a very special surprise.

THOUGHT OF MAY brings exciting and memorable thoughts for Seniors. Sunshine, rest, graduation, and of course, THE ALL-NIGHT PARTY!! Thoughts of the All-Night party, however, bring many hesitant thoughts from parents. For all of these apprehensive parents, there will be a special meeting TONIGHT at 7:30 in the Lee High School Youth Center. This meeting is very important for all parents to attend. Seniors, be sure and send your parents to the Lee YC tonight!

Once again we have Seniors in the spotlight. This week's Junior Rotarians are Louise Morgan and Randy Pharis. Congratulations!

See your stars shining bright Saturday night (at the Senior Girls' Party!!!!)

P.S. Congratulations to Vicki Vasicek and Jeff Bramlett for winning the Abilene Tennis Invitational! We are proud of both of you!

LATE NEWS FLASH: The Bulldogs Baseball team did it again!! Tuesday it electrified the Abilene High Eagles 5-3! Now our Dogs are tied in the district race with Abilene Cooper!

Tom Pontano, dandelion farmer

He raises dandelions, on purpose

Often accused plant sought for delicate salads, potent wines

By JULES LOH

VINELAND, N.J. (AP) — Standing with Tom Pontano in his field, you sense an irony. In his secret heart, he hopes his crop won't bring a price that makes it worth picking.

"I need to get at least $3 a half bushel," he said. "It does not look like I'm going to get it." His eyes brightened. "So I'll just have to let the whole two acres go to flower."

Pontano grows dandelions, on purpose. At restaurants in Philadelphia and New York, at sidewalk markets in Italian neighborhoods, the first tender leaves of that often accused plant are sought as a springtime salad delicacy.

Should dandelions go to flower, alas, only one purpose remains for them. Make wine.

"I'm down to my last jug," Pontano lamented. He brought it from the kitchen, his last gallon jug. It was barely half full. The color of the liquid was the color of a dandelion. "You mean you have never tasted dandelion wine?" he said.

On a tree stump in the front yard he placed two Styrofoam cups and carefully spilled a precious dollop into each.

"Talk about potent," he said, and got no argument, "one winter I took a jug of this stuff with me while I spread manure. You should have seen the tractor tracks the next day. They weaved all over the field."

"I don't like to think of going through a winter without dandelion wine. We're just going to have to make some more."

Pontano is 29 and counts himself lucky to have gotten into farming when he did, five years ago. "A year later and I wouldn't have been able to afford the investment." He farms 43 acres of greens: lettuce, parsley, cabbage, dill, dandelions.

"Making dandelion wine is a big event," he said. "A bunch of us, all relatives and friends, get together and do it."

"The worst part is picking the flowers. We get the kids to do that. Then we all get together and cut the oranges and the grapefruit, drink a little of last year's wine, make a night of it, or two nights."

"We do this over at my uncle Caesar Simone's place. He is the wine-maker. Everybody has his own recipe, but people who have tasted his wine say it is the best. His father taught him, or his grandfather. Somebody from the old country."

What is his recipe? "Ask him."

Caesar Simone, winemaker, is a type-cast patriarch: thick gray eyebrows, terra-cotta hands, a voice as resonant as a village bell.

"To make 50 gallons of dandelion wine," he said — for who would want to make less? — "you will need three bushels of dandelion blooms, two crates of grapefruits, a crate of oranges, a pound of yeast, 150 pounds of sugar and 50 gallons of water."

Now feds fight over revealing nitrate's future

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two federal agencies are in a tussle over where and when to announce a Justice Department opinion on whether a widely used food preservative will have to be banned outright if it is shown to cause cancer.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland earlier this week told a group of farm editors that an announcement of the Justice Department's decision would be made Friday afternoon.

Bergland said he and Joseph A. Califano Jr., secretary of health, education and welfare, would be present but, "I don't know what I'm going to say yet."

The opinion was sought months ago by the two agencies after a report last summer indicated the preservative — sodium nitrite — may cause cancer.

Other studies had shown that nitrosamines, which are formed from nitrite when bacon is fried at high heat, can cause cancer in laboratory animals.

Meanwhile, several members of Califano's staff have been in contact with Bergland's office about the news conference on the nitrite question, contending that the briefing should be held today or next Monday so it would get better news coverage.

Eileen Shanahan, HEW assistant secretary for public affairs, reportedpartment last year reduced the amount of nitrite that can be used in making bacon and is monitoring compliance through regular tests of fried bacon.

Agriculture and HEW's Food and Drug Administration asked for the opinion in hopes the two agencies could gradually phase out use of ni-trite if it is shown to be a cause of cancer.

Further tests and other snarls have also developed, however, so that whatever Justice says may be meaningless for months until those other issues are settled.

Bergland has said a number of times that if an outright ban of nitrite is forthcoming, he will "immediately go to Congress and ask for a one-year moratorium" so there will be time to change the law so nitrite can be used and phased out gradually.

Also, Bergland has said, USDA and FDA are working on "suggested tolerances" for food additives suspected of causing cancer so that those can continue to be used in the food supply according to federal limits.

Nitrite has been used in the processing of bacon, ham and other products as a preservative and color enhancer and to prevent the formation of organisms that can cause botulism, a deadly food poisoning.

Sources indicated Justice Department lawyers believe it would be illegal to phase out nitrite gradually if it is shown to be a cause of cancer.

ly wanted the news conference to be in Califano's department. But at Agriculture, Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman was said to be holding out for having the event on Bergland's turf.

As a result of the concern about nitrosamines, the Agriculture Department instead of banning it outright, as is required under current law that prohibits the use of known cancer-causing additives in food products.

Sources close to the situation indicated more than a month ago that Justice Department lawyers believe it would be illegal to phase out nitrite

Trade board, regulatory agency at odds over whether wheat trade ban was needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Chicago Board of Trade and a federal regulatory agency are still at odds over whether a trading ban was needed because of a possible disturbance in the wheat futures market earlier this month.

Gary L. Seevers, chairman of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, said Wednesday that the board permitted a small group of speculators to buy up so much wheat that "there was no longer a free and open market."

Appearing before the House Agriculture subcommittee on conservation and credit, he insisted that his agency was correct in ordering a halt in the trading of March wheat contracts because "manipulation was possible."

The CFTC was not accusing either the board or individual traders of illegal actions, Seevers said.

A federal judge in Chicago lifted the ban which was in effect only on March 16. The commission is appealing the ruling.

Seevers' testimony was disputed by Robert

K. Wilmoth, president of the Board of Trade, who declared that the board "did not then, nor does it have now, information which shows that there was an actual or attempted manipulation, corner or squeeze of the market."

The controversy between the agency and the board was heightened by news reports that a big speculator in March wheat was commodities dealer Leslie W. Rosenthal, who also is vice chairman of the board.

The commission ordered the trading ban after it found that four speculators held contracts for 9 million bushels of wheat while only 2.4 million bushels were actually available for delivery.

Farm group repairing damage to Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of farmers are plowing and planting seed to repair damage to the grassy Mall, where hundreds of tractors ripped the turf and gouged holes during last month's protest by the American Agriculture movement.

Chuck Kanten, a farmer from Milan, Minn., said Wednesday "at least a dozen" tractors, along with chisel implements, disks and grass seeders are being used in the repair.

Side areas of the Mall are being planted with grass seed on top of existing sod and then rolled with machinery to help smooth the soil, Kanten told a reporter.

But in one large center section of the Mall, a showpiece area for millions of tourists who visit nearby museums and art galleries, Kanten was told by the National Park Service to plow the old sod with his chisel.

"I walked across this section first, looking it over, and I could see no need to tear it up, to re-sod it," Kanten said.

"But after I started digging I could see why. The grass roots are only about one-quarter of an inch deep and then its like a hard shell."

YES, THERE IS A MATH PROBLEM IN THE SCHOOLS

In recent months, when they were not devising or revising consolidation plans, our officials have spent a great deal of time pondering over a possible math problem in the school system. Does a problem exist? We think so.

The revised Plan "O" presented at the March 6th school board meeting contained the following statement: "Varsity participation would decrease, but not to a great degree." Not to a great degree? Where we now have two varsity football teams, we would have one under consolidation. Where we now have two 4-A marching bands, we would then have one. Where we now have two boys and two girls basketball teams, we would then have one of each. In every sport where we now have two varsity teams, we would have only one after consolidation.

Is there a math problem in the schools? Yes, when reducing a program by half does not "decrease participation to a great degree" then you have a math problem. We see where the problem starts.

Dreamboats rolling from private plants

By BOB BAKER
The Los Angeles Times

WESTLAKE VILLAGE, Calif. — The sounds you are about to imagine come from men ripping the guts out of a new $18,000 Cadillac Seville.

Don't worry. They're merely labor pains. A tiny, dead chunk of the American Dream is being reborn.

Three years after the last American car manufacturer stopped making convertibles, luxurious new ones are reappearing from surprising sources.

The work doesn't take place in Detroit; it goes on in little factories tucked away in suburban industrial parks in Westlake Village and Simi Valley north of Los Angeles.

Workmen from competing firms decapitate and virtually demolish a new four-door Seville and transform it into an ostentatious two-door convertible that will be put on the market at $39,000 to $60,000.

In Westlake, veteran Los Angeles car dealer Irv Ogner calls his creation a Sam Remo. In Simi, factory owner Milan Daniel names his product after himself: the Milan Roadster.

Production at both plants began several months ago in a calculated effort to fill a small void in the American automobile market. Sales are reported excellent.

While a variety of business, social and environmental factors during the 1970s convinced American auto firms that the convertible was a dead horse, Ogner and Daniel say numerous affluent buyers continue to treasure the thought of a new one.

"The response has been phenomenal," Daniel said.

"Every car that comes off that (assembly) line has a hot seat waiting for it," Ogner said.

The last convertible made by a major American manufacturer — a white Cadillac Eldorado — rolled off the General Motors assembly line in the spring of 1976, ending a 74-year era of American ragtops.

The convertible reached a zenith of popularity after World War II, and by 1963 more than a half-million a year were being sold, accounting for 7 percent of U.S. car sales.

Then the demise began. Installation of air conditioning in most other cars, fast freeway driving and federal rollover safety standards helped to erode the convertible's appeal, industry officials said.

American Motors dropped convertibles in 1968, followed by Chrysler in 1971 and Ford in 1973. GM's Chevrolet, Pontiac, Buick and Oldsmobile divisions phased them out in 1975, leaving only the Cadillacs.

Ogner, president of Ogner Motors, estimates that he and Daniel are among only four or five small manufacturers of customized convertibles in the country.

"There will be others who'll try to go into it when they see the demand, but they'll have trouble succeeding," Ogner said. "It takes a large investment because of the overhead."

Ogner's workers remove the interior and the doors of a Seville and strip off the roof. They install longer front doors and then add special features, such as customized chrome, heavily padded British leather seats, a rosewood control console and, of course, leather convertible top.

Depending on the other "extras" the customer requests, the price ranges from $45,000 to $60,000.

About half are sold directly to customers, the rest to Cadillac dealers, Ogner said.

At Daniel's Simi Valley factory, where the finished product sells for $39,000, the changes are more obvious. Daniel not only removes the two back doors, but converts the car to a two-seater, shortening its length by 1 1/2 feet.

No discounts from manufacturer's list price on these convertibles transformed from Cadillac Sevilles. Philip Wegener, in driver's seat, discusses merits of the Milan

Enzyme may be cancer clue

By KEVIN MCKEAN
AP Science Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Scientists say they have discovered a mutant enzyme that could lead to development of a more reliable blood test for the detection of cancer.

The test may be especially useful in detecting cancer of the pancreas, the second most lethal form of the disease, behind throat cancer.

The enzyme, known by the abbreviation GT-II, has been found in the blood of 72 percent of all cancer patients so far and in 84 percent of patients with cancer of the pancreas.

Dr. Frank Rauscher Jr., the American Cancer Society's senior vice president for research, said the GT-II test appears promising because it is more reliable than any existing blood test for cancer.

The GT-II test could prove especially useful in cancer of the pancreas, which is usually not detected until it has spread too far to be stopped, Rauscher said in an interview.

Dr. Kurt J. Isselbacher of Harvard Medical School, one of the discoverers of the enzyme, said in an interview that nearly a dozen drug companies had expressed interest in developing the GT-II test into a commercial procedure.

Isselbacher, who was here attending a cancer society seminar, is chief of the gastrointestinal unit at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, which holds the patent for the test.

The hospital plans to award the development contract within a month, and the tests could be ready for submission to the Food and Drug Administration within two years, Isselbacher said.

He said the GT-II test has yet to point falsely to cancer in a healthy person, although it has not always detected the presence of cancer.

GT-II is short for galactosyltransferase isoenzyme-II, a substance first identified by Isselbacher and Dr. Daniel Podolsky of Massachusetts General, in collaboration with Milton Weiser of the State University of New York at Buffalo.

West overruffed with the queen.

No matter what West returned, South could draw trumps and claim the rest.

SHOULD DISCARD

West should discard instead of overruffing with the queen of spades. West's queen is sure to take a trick in any case; he will get a second trump trick if he has patience.

West can cover with the queen if South leads the ten of spades; but will otherwise play the seven or nine to drive out dummy's king as cheaply as possible.

The successful player knows that it usually pays not to overruff with a sure trump winner. Keep your trump strength and length while declarer weakens his trumps by ruffing.

Yankees picked to win as rich get even richer

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

The rich got richer in the American League East over the winter as owner George Steinbrenner sought to solidify the New York Yankees' hold on baseball's world championship.

The Yankees dipped into the free agent marketplace, adding two important veteran pitchers — Tommy John and Luis Tiant.

John is important because he throws a devastating sinker and will fit right in with the spacious dimensions of Yankee Stadium.

1979 Prediction — New York, Milwaukee, Boston, Baltimore, Detroit, Cleveland, Toronto.

WITH THE addition of John and Tiant, the Yankee pitching picture is crowded.

Manager Bob Lemon's starting lineup is intact. First baseman Chris Chambliss, second baseman Willie Randolph, shortstop Bucky Dent and third baseman Graig Nettles are all potent hitters and defensive standouts.

Among the main gunners will be Milwaukee, which made an interesting run at the top under first year Manager George Bamberger a year ago.

OFFENSIVELY, you don't have to worry about the Brewers. They led the league in seven hitting departments last season and the lineup packs plenty of punch with outfielders Larry Hise, Gorman Thomas, Sixto Lezcano and Ben Oglivie, and an infield composed of Sal Bando or Don Money, Robin Yount, Paul Molitor and Cecil Cooper.

That's bad news for Boston. The Red Sox, frustrated by two near-misses at the division title in the last two seasons, did nothing to improve their outlook this year.

That means, with Tiant gone, the pitching burden falls squarely on the shoulders of Mike Torrez, Andy Hassler and 20-game winner Dennis Eckersley.

Not if Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver has anything to say about it. The Orioles are always interesting and will, as usual, be a contender with some solid talent.

The pitching, once more, centers around perennial 20-game winner Jim Palmer. Behind him are Mike Flanagan, Scott McGregor, Dennis Martinez and free agent pickup Steve Stone, with Tippy Martinez, Don Stanhouse and Joe Kerrigan ticketed for the bullpen.

Ken Singleton, Al Bumbry and Larry Harlow are the likely outfield starters, with first baseman Eddie Murray, Rich Dauer at second, Mark Belanger at shortstop and third baseman Doug DeCinces manning the infield.

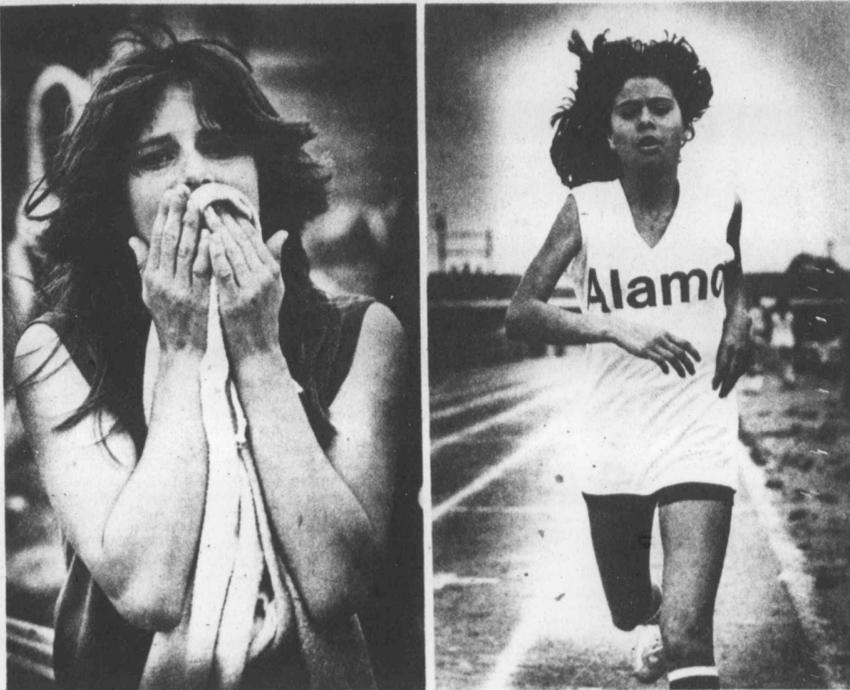

Detroit has a new manager and Les Moss brings with him a positive attitude. "I think the Tigers have a good chance to make a run for the pennant in 1979," he said.

FOR THAT to happen, Detroit needs a healthy Mark Fidrych. The Bird had a few tentative flights during spring training, but Moss isn't counting on him immediately and has pencilled in a starting rotation of Dave Rozema, Jack Billingham, Milt Wilcox and Kip Young, with John Hiller and newcomer Aurelio Lopez in the bullpen.

The Tigers have some exciting young talent in their lineup, headed by first baseman Jason Thompson, rookie of the year Lou Whitaker at second, shortstop Alan Trammell and outfielder Steve Kemp.

Moss must find a designated hitter now that Rusty Staub has decided to become a fulltime restaurateur.

Cleveland, a disappointing sixth last season, has added speed and power this time around. The Indians should score some runs. How far they can go will depend on a relatively inexperienced pitching staff.

Emotions were on display at Memorial Stadium Wednesday in the City Championship Junior High Track Meet. Seventh grader Paula Chambers, left, of San Jacinto sheds a few tears after losing in the City tracksters run wild

By RICHARD VINCENT Sports Writer

Stars of the future emerged Wednesday afternoon at Memorial Stadium during the first day of the City Junior High Track Championship.

After nine events in the girls seventh grade division, Alamo leads with 137 points followed by San Jacinto with 52 and Goddard with 42. With nine events completed in the eighth grade girls division, Goddard leads with 104 followed by Alamo with 81 and San Jacinto with 42.

ALL BUT one girls running event was completed Wednesday and there was quite an assault on the record book as 15 old marks were shattered and one was tied.

The boys divisions completed field events Wednesday, except for the freshman pole vault, which was still being contested late in the evening. San Jacinto, with a near sweep, topped the seventh graders with 59 points followed by Alamo with 37 and Goddard with 25. The Mustangs also led the eighth grade division with 59 followed by Goddard with 51 and Alamo with 14.

In boys frosh action, minus the pole vault, Austin had 47 and Edison had 46.

ACTION WILL be renewed at 3:30 p.m. today at Memorial Stadium, with the boys running finals and the girls field finals on tap. The top four placers in each division qualify for next week's Midland-Odessa meet which will be at Memorial Stadium.

The sprints were where the girls record book took the greatest beating. In the 220, Henderson of Alamo broke the seventh grade mark with a 27.2 while Williams of Goddard tied the eighth grade standard of 28.4 and Austin's Butler cracked the ninth grade best with a 27.8.

Lee of Alamo snapped the seventh grade girls best in the 330 with a 43.50 and a new eighth grade record was set by Laura McKee of San Jacinto with a 44.2. Also felled was the frosh 440 best, which Butler eclipsed with a 60.8 that gave her a second record-setting effort.

ALAMO HAD excellent success in the 80 yard hurdles where Bryson's 12.6 set a seventh grade mark and Pace's 11.90 was an eighth grade record. Merritt of Edison smashed the frosh standard with a 12.1 clocking.

Maggie Marmalejo of San Jacinto established a record in the 660 with a fine 1:58.7 that shaved a full seven seconds off the old best.

Relay records toppled in the 1320, where Alamo sped to a 3:17.15 in the seventh grade division, the 880, where Alamo had 1:54.4 in the seventh and Goddard had 1:54 in the eighth, and the 440, where San Jacinto clocked 53.9 in the seventh and the Austin frosh had 52.4.

Other girls winners were Lance of Alamo in the seventh grade 1320, Ochoterena of Alamo in the eighth grade 1320 and Rodriguez of Edison in the frosh 1320. Lewis of Goddard in the eighth grade 100 and Olsen of Austin in the frosh century, and Griffin of Alamo in the eighth grade 660 and Rickey of Edison in the ninth grade 660.

TWO BOYS records, not counting the unfinished frosh pole vault, were established. Gibbs of Goddard popped 18-4 in the seventh grade long jump and Troy Bush of San Jacinto scaled 5-10 in the eighth grade high jump.

Seventh grade boys winners were Ross Petree of San Jacinto in the high jump, Arch Graham of San Jacinto in the pole vault, Donald Thurman of San Jacinto in the shot put and Gibbs.

Eighth grade titlists were Bush in the high jump, Ruben Rameriz of San Jacinto in the pole vault, Blake Liberty of San Jacinto in the shot and Dickson of Alamo in the long jump.

Frosh champs were Scott Sears of Edison in the high jump, Andy Pace of Edison in the shot put and Campbell of Austin in the long jump.

Nancy Lopez favored again

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Nancy Lopez, shaking off the sophomore jinx and looking for her third straight victory, is the clear-cut favorite in a $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament scheduled to begin today at Mesa Verde Country Club.

Winner of nine tournaments last year during her stunning rookie season on the tour, Lopez has won the last two LPGA tournaments on the tour.

A victory last week in the Sahara Open boosted her into an early lead in money winnings with $42,300. Lopez, 22, won $189,813 last year.

With the addition of Slaton and Cleveland and the continued improvement of the rest of our pitching staff, I look for the Brewers to be a bona fide threat to win the Eastern Division and possibly the American League pennant in 1979," said Bamberger.

That's bad news for Boston. The Red Sox, frustrated by two near-misses at the division title in the last two seasons, did nothing to improve their outlook this year.

That means, with Tiant gone, the pitching burden falls squarely on the shoulders of Mike Torrez, Andy Hassler and 20-game winner Dennis Eckersley.

Not if Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver has anything to say about it. The Orioles are always interesting and will, as usual, be a contender with some solid talent.

The pitching, once more, centers around perennial 20-game winner Jim Palmer. Behind him are Mike Flanagan, Scott McGregor, Dennis Martinez and free agent pickup Steve Stone, with Tippy Martinez, Don Stanhouse and Joe Kerrigan ticketed for the bullpen.

Ken Singleton, Al Bumbry and Larry Harlow are the likely outfield starters, with first baseman Eddie Murray, Rich Dauer at second, Mark Belanger at shortstop and third baseman Doug DeCinces manning the infield.

Detroit has a new manager and Les Moss brings with him a positive attitude. "I think the Tigers have a good chance to make a run for the pennant in 1979," he said.

FOR THAT to happen, Detroit needs a healthy Mark Fidrych. The Bird had a few tentative flights during spring training, but Moss isn't counting on him immediately and has pencilled in a starting rotation of Dave Rozema, Jack Billingham, Milt Wilcox and Kip Young, with John Hiller and newcomer Aurelio Lopez in the bullpen.

The Tigers have some exciting young talent in their lineup, headed by first baseman Jason Thompson, rookie of the year Lou Whitaker at second, shortstop Alan Trammell and outfielder Steve Kemp.

Moss must find a designated hitter now that Rusty Staub has decided to become a fulltime restaurateur.

Cleveland, a disappointing sixth last season, has added speed and power this time around. The Indians should score some runs. How far they can go will depend on a relatively inexperienced pitching staff.

SAN ANGELO — The San Angelo Relays opens a two day run here Friday at 1 p.m., and for six District 5-4A teams it will be the final tuneup before next week's District 5-4A track meet in Big Spring.

Midland Lee's high flying Rebels will take their high powered scoring attack against some new competition in search of their fifth track title of the season, and some highly touted Midland High individuals will also find out how they stack up prior to the district meet.

The reason this meet is so important is that both Abilene Cooper and Abilene High will be in the meet. Lee and Midland High have not faced the two powerful Abilene schools this year, and that makes for some interesting matchups. Lee's 200 meter ace Dwight Washington and Midland High's 100 meter speed burner Jeff Robnett will again face a major test. Both Washington and Robnett lost for the first time this year last week in Andrews in those two races to Carlisbad's Kelly Johnson. This week it will be Cooper's Charles Rainey who will provide the excitement.

Rainey owns a 9.5 100 yard time this year and a 21.46 in the 220 yards. Robnett has a 9.8 while Washington owns a 21.9. Those two races could be the highlight here Saturday in the finals and the highlight of the 5-4A meet next week.

Friday's San Angelo schedule begins at 1 p.m. with all running preliminaries in four divisions. The only AAAA finals Friday will be in the discus and long jump. Saturday's field event finals begin at noon with running finals to begin at 1:30 p.m. Friday Midland High's David Simmons will try to remain unbeaten this year in the discus. He owns the state's best mark of 186-11, but he has mostly been around the 160-foot mark.

Saturday Lee's Jeff McCowan will try to stay unbeaten in the shot put. He owns a 61-2, but has been over 60-feet only once this year. The shot put should be a Tall City plus with Simmons, Lee's Rodney Taylor, Herb Pearce, and Midland High's James Lary. Taylor and Pearce have been within 1/4-inch of each other the last three weeks with Taylor winning twice in the personal battle. Simmons has won only once in this event this year as McCowan has had the best of that show.

Other than the 100 and 200 meter races, the two relays should be interesting. Lee will face Cooper for the first time in the sprint relay with Mark Landers, Elmer Montgomery, Phil Carleton and Washington doing the chores. Cooper owns a 42.9 this year while Lee stands at 43.0.

The mile relay of Montgomery, Arthur Pertile, Carleton and Washington owns a 3:22.6 this season in converted yards and should be the class of the San Angelo meet. Odessa Permian ran a 3:20.6 in El Paso last week, but the Panthers are not entered here. Odessa High is also not entered, and is the only other 5-4A team absent. Lee, however, has not lost to Permian this season in four meetings, unless you count a disqualification by Lee at Pecos.

Lee's Carleton will face Abilene's Eddie Gullien for the first time this year while Permian's Ray Crumley will be absent. Carleton has a 50.3 best this year while Gullien has a 50.4

Crumley has the best of 49.3, but Carleton has beaten him before this year.

The 330 hurdles will be exciting with Lee's Stewart Lauffer going against San Angelo's Scott Leverette. Lauffer has won two of three meetings this year. Midland High's Bobby Floyd is also improving in this event.

Midland High may again be without Jerry Zachery again this week in the 110 hurdles, but Link Grimes could take up some of the slack as Zachery is unable to run.

Lee's Arthur Pertile is coming off of his best time of the year in the 800 meters with a 1:58.3 at Andrews. He will battle San Angelo's Frank Rodriguez in this one. It could be a dandy.

Lee's Steve Hooper is coming off a victory in the mile, but Cooper's David Nelson owns a very good 4:24.2 this season, far better than any other 5-4A milers. Midland High's Bob Glenn has finished second three weeks in a row in the mile, but he will be hard pressed to keep that streak this week.

Lee's Jody Sessom scored 25 points for the Rebels last week, and he hopes to pick up points in the long jump and pole vault this week. Montgomery will also be in the long jump along with Forrest Allen. Montgomery has been sick and Washington is suffering from a slightly twisted ankle.

Midland High also hopes to get points out of Billy Taylor in the 100. Taylor, however, will be running in the 400 meters for the first time at his own request. He will drop out of the 200 meter race.

Lee hopes to add fuel with points from Brian Briscoe and McCowan in the discus. Lee's Landers will be in both sprints and Gary Butler will be in the 800 run along with MHS' Gene Tuttle.

Arizona raindrops cause lonely wails

MESA, Ariz. — The state flag is at half mast and Wednesday has been postponed. It's raining in Arizona. In all the years we've been coming to this winter desert oasis, it has never happened before and it was always wondered what would happen if it did.

Rain in Arizona is such a rarity, that Chicago Cubs' scouting director Vedic Himsel, back when he was farm director, would now and then dream, without any real hope, for a rainy day just to give the players a break.

And so what do they do when the Valley of the Sun is rendered out of order by a steady, daylong rain? Mostly, they wail in despair at the unkind fates and curse that Apache who must have done his rain dance back in the Superstitions.

At Ho Ho Kams Park, the game with San Diego had already been scratched. Over at Fitch Park a few blocks away where the minor league clubs workout, Farm Director C. V. Davis interrupts the morning meeting of minor league coaches and instructors in his office to direct a hunt for a new meeting place. It seems the roof leaks, something no one knew about before the move from Scottsdale, simply because it had probably never been tested.

ACTUALLY, THE ROOF wasn't the only reason C. V. wanted a meeting room. Infield Coach Bobby Adams needed something big enough to serve as a classroom to conduct an instructional slide clinic for large groups of players. Clinics are usually conducted out here in bright sunshine.

After listening to the harrowing details of a Texas writer's hasty arrival Tuesday and subsequent mad dash to Sun City to catch the 14-7 Chicago-Milwaukee mismatch because he knew Midland and Wichita were off in Tucson that day, Manager Randy Hundley informed, "Oh, we didn't go. The bus broke down, so we just stayed home and played Wichita."

As far as the new Midland Cubs manager is concerned, it was no great disaster playing Wichita instead of Jersey City, Cleveland's AA club. Hundley feels the bulk of his team is still on the AAA club's roster and it's a question of Wichita Manager Jack Hiatt making up his mind. "We haven't had any surprises on players coming up from the rookie and A leagues and trying to make it with us," says Randy, who last year was forced to abandon a major league career that had been hobbled in recent years by injuries to begin a managerial career with the Bradenton Rookie League club last year at a tender 35 years of age.

THE ONLY Midland player from last year on the present AA roster are pitchers James Overstreet, 2-2 with Midland in only 24 innings; Tom Butler, 5-7 as a reliever and starter in 113 innings; Jack Ledbetter, 3-5 in 74 innings of a sore-armed season; and outfielder Brian Rosinski, who was recently assigned to Midland after a .252, 11 homer rookie year in the Texas League.

One high Cubs' official indicated Herman Segelke could wind up back on the Midland roster for another year of seasoning after impressing Chicago with his new found maturity with the big club during an exhibition look.

Segelke was 8-8 last year with six complete games for Midland.

BETWEEN THE RAINDROPS — New faces in the Cubs' instructional facility include Ken Rudolph, ex-catcher now managing the Sarasota Rookie club; Jim Napier, replacing Hundley at the Quad Cities A club, while Adams, Billy Williams, hitting coach; and Barney Schultz, pitching coach, are among the familiar faces who are back. . . Midland travels to Sun City today to play Holyoke, Milwaukee's Eastern League club. . . Chicago is at Phoenix for a night game with San Francisco, a game that members of the Midland Booster Club-Chamber of Commerce trip will catch.

Rainey earns start with Boston's Sox

By The Associated Press

If the Boston Red Sox hit like they did Wednesday, it won't make any difference who does their pitching. And on those days when the big bats aren't booming, rookie right-hander Chuck Rainey could become a very important moundsperson.

Rainey pitched six innings in Wednesday's 15-5 exhibition rout of the Chicago White Sox. He allowed three runs and five hits while walking six—not the most impressive figures in the world.

But he settled down after a rugged second inning in which the White Sox combined three singles, a sacrifice fly and three consecutive walks for three runs.

THAT IMPRESSED Manager Don Zimmer, who said the 24-year-old Rainey has won a job and promptly penciled him in for a start against Milwaukee on April 18.

"He's shown me that without a doubt he's a big league pitcher," Zimmer said. "He has a pretty good idea of what he's doing out there. He throws a sinker, a changeup, a slider and a curve. He didn't throw the ball as well as I've seen him throw down here, but when he threw strikes he was okay. He got some ground balls when he got the ball over the plate."

The pitching-poor Red Sox received more good news when ailing relief ace Bill Campbell unlimbered his sore elbow and pitched two scoreless innings.

In the catching department, rookie Gary Allenson, who may be pressed into regular service if Carlton Fisk's aching elbow doesn't get better, sparked Boston's 19-hit attack. He hit his third homer of the spring, a double, two singles and had four RBI.

Jim Rice and Rick Burleson also homered. Rice capped a seven-run second inning by lining a two-run shot some 450 feet for his fifth pre-season homer. Jim Dwyer had three hits and Burleson, Jerry Remy, Carl Yastrzemski, George Scott and Butch Hobson two apiece.

KANSAS CITY'S injury situation also took a turn for the better. Rich Gale, last year's rookie sensation, allowed seven hits and one run in seven innings. And third baseman George Brett, making his first spring appearance, delivered a key single in a three-run eighth-inning rally that lifted the Royals to a 4-2 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds.

Gale won 14 games but was troubled late in the season by shoulder stiffness. Brett underwent surgery on his right thumb a few weeks ago.

"I felt real good," Gale said. "Even better than the last time, which was the best since July. I was able to throw harder, freer and easier."

Elsewhere, Geoff Zahn, Gary Serun and Mike Marshall combined on a five-hit shutout as the Minnesota Twins handed the world champion New York Yankees their 15th setback in 20 exhibition games, 3-0.

Rookie catcher Alex Trevino of the New York Mets drove in three runs with a single, double and triple in an 8-4 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers, who wasted a pair of home runs by Dusty Baker.

The Houston Astros got four-hit pitching from J.R. Richard and Frank Riccielli and edged the Montreal Expos 1-0. Steve Stone hurled six strong innings and rookie Sammy Stewart retired the final nine batters, giving him 17 scoreless innings this spring, as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Toronto Blue Jays 5-2.

RICHE ZISK'S two-run homer in the first inning started the Texas Rangers to a 4-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves. Jack Morris allowed one run in seven innings, including a home run by Keith Hernandez, as the Detroit Tigers defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 4-1.

The Cleveland Indians scored all their runs in the fifth inning, three on Andre Thornton's double, and defeated the San Francisco Giants 5-2. Sore-shouldered Wayne Garland pitched four scoreless innings for the winners.

Lee Lacy drove in the tie-breaking run with a pinch single in the eighth inning and the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 5-2.

Russian wrestlers defeat Americans

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—The Soviet Union used two pins in the final three matches Wednesday night to hand the American national wrestling team a 7-4 defeat at the King's College here.

In all, the Soviets dominated their only Eastern United States appearance, winning seven of nine matches. Two of the American victories came from forfeits while Iowa's Bruce Kineth and Lehigh's Mark Lieberman accounted for the remaining U.S. points.

Kineth, voted the NCAA's most outstanding wrestler at its recent meet, recorded the lone American pin when he stopped Russian Mayrbek Yusupov with 11 seconds remaining.

Larry Brown becomes UCLA's head cage boss

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Many college coaches hope for the day when they can advance to the professional ranks, with a corresponding jump in pay and prestige.

Not Larry Brown. Brown, who resigned as coach of the Denver Nuggets earlier this year, said Wednesday that he is extremely happy to be UCLA's new basketball coach.

"This is a great moment for me, and I hope in the future UCLA can say the same thing," Brown said at a press conference announcing his appointment. "I was hoping I wouldn't have to go back to the pros. The pros are good for certain people, and it gave me the opportunity to coach. But I didn't think I was suited to that type of job."

"I love to coach basketball," he continued, "and I think I can contribute more in the college game than in the pros."

Brown, 38, succeeds Gary Cunningham, who resigned last week, saying he wants to spend more time with his family. Cunningham said he plans to take an administrative post at UCLA.

Brown was a guard at North Carolina, played and coached in the now-defunct American Basketball Association, then coached the National Basketball Association Nuggets. He was captain of his college team and a U.S. Olympian in 1964.

In 1968, the 5-foot-9 Brown was the Most Valuable Player in the ABA All-Star game.

He is the seventh UCLA basketball coach in its 61st year of basketball.

"This school has a great academic program and an unbelievable basketball history," said Brown, alluding to the 10 national titles in 12 years UCLA won under John Wooden.

Gene Bartow succeeded Wooden when he retired, then Cunningham took over when Bartow quit two years ago.

Those three former Bruin coaches are, in contrast to the colorful and sometimes fiery Brown, reserved individuals. Brown's vocal sideline tactics in the pros caused him to be ejected from more than a few games.

His only college coaching experience came as an assistant at North Carolina, but Brown said he expects no adjustment problems.

UCLA Athletic Director J.D. Morgan, recuperating from open heart surgery and pneumonia, selected Brown and also made his first public appearance since his illness to present him to the news media.

CART announces new TV package

JACKSON, Mich. — U. E. (Pat) Patrick, president of the Championship Auto Racing Teams, Inc. (CART) announced here today that agreement has been reached with ABC-TV to televise the Gould Twin Dixie CART Indy Car race scheduled for April 22 at the Atlanta International Raceway.

Patrick said that ABC will provide same day coverage of the second CART event of the season, which will feature two 125-mile races with a winner named for each race.

The agreement has special appeal for Midland since Midland race car owners Jim Hall and Bobby Hillin both have entries in the race. Hall's Pennzoil Chaparral will again be driven by Al Unser, who finished fourth in CART's first race this month in Phoenix, Ariz. Hillin's Longhorn Racing Team will have 1978 rookie of the year Tom Bagley aboard. The Longhorn team finished eighth in the Phoenix race.

CART consists of owners and drivers who have broken away from the grip of the United States Auto Club. CART is in its first year of existence, and with their second straight TV package, the group appears to be on firm footing. Hall is on the CART board of directors.

"We know we are on the right track toward providing a first class show for racing fans everywhere," Patrick stated. "At our first race in Phoenix, Gordon Johncock's victory margin was just one second over Rick Mears, and two-thirds of the field was still running at the finish. We look forward to racing of this fine caliber at Atlanta."

"We are certainly pleased that ABC will televise the race. Atlanta's high banked turns allow wheel-to-wheel competition at speeds in the 200 mph range. It should be a great race for the television audience."

Patrick also announced that 20 signed entries for the Gould Twin Dixie have been received, including Hillin and Hall.

Other top drivers confirmed for the event are Bobby Unser, Johnny Rutherford, Johncock, Danny Ongais, Mears, Wally Dallenbach, Mike Mosley, Lee Kunzman and Larry Rice.

Other drivers are Bill Alsup, Salt Walther, Joe Saldana, Tom Frantz, Steve Krisloff, Pancho Carter, Spike Gehlhausen and John Mahler.

Al Unser will be driving Hall's car that won last year's Indianapolis 500 title and the Triple Crown of racing. Hall, however, has developed a "ground effects" car that will debut at the Indy 500 in May.

Hillin's Penske PC-6 entry didn't get much test time at Phoenix, and the Longhorn team plans to test extensively before this race. Hillin's team worked together for the first time at Phoenix. Longhorn is also completing work on two additional Cosworth engines.

Both Hall and Hillin's entries experienced handling problems in the Phoenix race, but both were running when the race ended.

Hogan hosts 5-4A golf

If Midland High and Midland Lee plan to make a move in the District 5-4A golf race, Friday might be the best time to do it.

The Bulldogs and Rebels will be playing on their home course, Hogan Park Golf Course, as the tour swings through the Tall City for its fourth stop. The district season concludes the next week in Odessa.

Midland High led the district after two rounds, but dropped three strokes behind San Angelo following last week's action at Big Spring. San Angelo has a 952 cumulative team total while the Bulldogs are at 955.

Next, in order, are Abilene Cooper, Odessa Permian, Midland Lee, Big Spring, Odessa High and Abilene High.

The top two teams from the 5-4A tour will gain a berth in the regional tournament in Lubbock next month. Midland High is still hoping to nail down the district championship and hope to make their move on the Hogan course. The Rebels will have a tougher time of gaining a regional berth. The Rebs must make up at least 24 strokes in the next two weeks. Lee stands at 979 teamwise.

Attendance climbs

NEW YORK (AP)—With one week remaining in the exhibition baseball season, 13 major league clubs already have established one or more spring training attendance records, the Baseball Commissioner's office announced Wednesday.

Clubs reporting season records are Boston, California, the Chicago Cubs, Montreal, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Seattle and Toronto. Those who have set new single-game highs are Houston, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, San Diego, and Texas.

The world champion New York Yankees, while having a sub-par exhibition season, have played before 16 sellouts in their first 19 games, including all 12 on the road.

Last year's spring training attendance was 1,146,597, the highest total since teams discontinued barnstorming tours. An overall record may be set this season.

Richard Minnix, eighth with 238. The home course in golf is a distinct advantage for the local linksters. Many of the 5-4A championships are determined by how well the teams perform on the home course. This would seem to be the opportunity both local schools have been looking for. The players are scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m.

Of course, there's a group of local players in the thick of the race. Midland High's Jeff Lutke is third with 233 while Midland Lee's Grant Spencer is fourth with 235. Midland High also has Robert Upham, tied for fifth with 237, and

Drought is over, but Rebels lose

By BOB DILLON
Sports Writer

The drought is finally over for Midland Lee. Although the Rebels didn't win Wednesday, they did manage to end a 19-inning scoreless streak with a four-run outburst in the bottom of the fifth inning before finally losing to Lubbock Monterey's Plainsmen, 7-5, at the Lee diamond.

Coach Ernie Johnson's crew had been shutout by San Angelo and Abilene Cooper on two-hitters, but Clay Calhoun's three-run homer in the fifth with the Rebels trailing 4-1, tied the game and made things a lot more comfortable for the Tall City team.

MONTEREY HAD taken a 4-0 lead off righthander Mark Denny with single runs in the second, third, fourth and fifth inning. Lee, meanwhile, had no hits off Ricky Pinkerton until catcher Tom Morrison led off the bottom of the fifth with a single. Pinch-hitter Lester Young and Dwayne Holmes followed with base hits to load the bases with nobody out. Steve Pitts rammed a long sacrifice fly to center to score Morrison and the drought was finally ended. John White, who had a miserable day at the plate, popped out to second and Calhoun then unloaded his three-run shot over the fence in left to tie the score at 4-4.

Terry Willis walked, but was forced at second on Wade Cartwright's grounder at short, but the Rebels were back into business. Monterey scored an unearned run off Denny in the second inning on a two-base throwing error by Cartwright along with a passed ball and groundout to second by Kelly Smith.

STEVE COLEMAN led off the Monterey third with a double and scored on a single by Randy Ledbetter for a 2-0 lead and in the fourth inning, Tom Bevin had a triple that was misplayed in right when Robert Perez got a poor jump on the ball. Bevin scored on a single by Smith. Smith was then picked off by Morrison, but the Plainsmen held on to a 3-0 lead.

The fourth run for the Lubbock nine came on Pinkerton's homer over the scoreboard in left in the top of the fifth inning. Then came Lee's outburst to tie the score to make a game of it in the bottom of the inning.

Monterey came right back to score three runs in the sixth inning with an error by Holmes at second, opening the gates. His error along with a walk to David Faulkner and a passed ball, put Denny in a hole again. Andy Barron delivered a run-scoring single and Pinkerton's two-run single that barely fell in safely in left, plated two more runs that were the difference in the game.

LEE WENT down in order in the bottom of the sixth and Cartwright came in to relieve a tired Denny in the seventh and got the Plainsmen down in order. Lee made one last attempt to pull out the game in the bottom of the seventh inning, but the rally fell short. Holmes led things off with a single and Pitts suit with a base hit.

The Midland Lee junior varsity baseball team defeated the crosstown rival Midland High Bullpups, 3-2, Wednesday with an unearned run in the top of the seventh inning.

Lee's Wright scored the winning run on a Midland High error in the top of the seventh. Lee's Jeff Hicks went the distance to pick up the win for the Rebels while Midland High's Justin Morrett absorbed the loss. Hicks also led the Rebels with two hits in the contest. Midland High's Russell Hayes led all hitters with a three-for-four plate performance. Midland High and Lee meet again today at 4 p.m. Wednesday's game was a makeup contest from a game that was rained out earlier this season.

Lee will be seeking their third victory in as many days when the two teams tangle today. Lee defeated Monahan's, 7-6, Tuesday when Bill Derr's two-run double in the seventh pulled out the victory for Rebel reliever David Jennings.

Lee's Jeff Hicks went the distance to pick up the win for the Rebels while Midland High's Justin Morrett absorbed the loss. Hicks also led the Rebels with two hits in the contest. Midland High's Russell Hayes led all hitters with a three-for-four plate performance. Midland High and Lee meet again today at 4 p.m. Wednesday's game was a makeup contest from a game that was rained out earlier this season.

White struck out for the third time and Calhoun walked to load the sacks with one out. Willis popped up harmlessly to Pinkerton on the mound and Cartwright singled in Holmes to make it 7-5. The rally ended, however when Tyler struck out with the bases loaded.

The loss gives Lee a 12-7 season record while Monterey is now 8-3 going into it's doubleheader with Pecos on Saturday. The Rebels travel to Big Spring for a date with the Steers Saturday in a District 5-4A game.

John close to being Red

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Pitcher Tommy John very nearly joined the Cincinnati Reds when he left the Dodgers after last season despite the urging of Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda.

"I almost became a Cincinnati Red," John said. "I came very, very close."

Instead, he accepted an offer the New York Yankees made while Cincinnati was off on a tour of Japan, and now John is across Tampa Bay training with the New York team in St. Petersburg.

"A thing that hurt was the Reds ... were out of touch for a while. If it had been another week or 10 days before they left for Japan, I could very well be over there right now pitching to Johnny Bench," John said.

Reds President Dick Wagner did not talk about the negotiations for a long time, but this spring told pretty much the same story as John; if he had come back from Japan earlier, or left later, he might have been able to sign the former Dodger star who became a free agent.

That would have galled Lasorda, who John said had a special interest in the negotiations.

Chaparrals win conference match

ROSWELL — The Midland College mens tennis team Wednesday defeated New Mexico Military Institute here, 6-3, while the Chaparral womens netters tied NMMI, 3-3. The Western Junior College Athletic Conference matches had originally been scheduled for last week but were postponed because of inclement conditions.

MC Men 4 NMMI 3
Singles: Jose Rivera lost to Thomas Anderson, 6-4, 7-6; Des Ward def. Pat Luehstorf, 6-2, 7-6; Steve Wyatt lost to Jeff Cooke, 6-1, 6-4; Oscar Oliverson def. Proshak Ghakar, 6-2, 6-2; Scott Dunn def. Mong Bai Fong, 6-3, 7-5; Mike Burch def. Scott Goldberg, 6-4, 7-5. Exhibition Match: Dave Rovin def. Bob James, 6-1, 6-1.

MC Women 3 NMMI 3
Singles: Kathy Bovell lost to Brigitte Grabner, 6-6, 6-9; Leslie Miller lost to Linda Enamank, 6-1, 7-5; Debbie Smith def. Helen Maisei, 6-1, 6-1; Karen Young def. Seymour Alchall, 6-2, 6-4. Exhibition: Mary Jane Spencer lost to Staci McCaffery, 7-6, 6-1, 6-1. Doubles: Miller-Smith lost to Grabner-Enamank, 6-2, 7-5; Spencer-Young def. Mafou Alchall, 6-6, 6-1.

Lee's Wright scored the winning run on a Midland High error in the top of the seventh. Lee's Jeff Hicks went the distance to pick up the win for the Rebels while Midland High's Justin Morrett absorbed the loss. Hicks also led the Rebels with two hits in the contest. Midland High's Russell Hayes led all hitters with a three-for-four plate performance. Midland High and Lee meet again today at 4 p.m. Wednesday's game was a makeup contest from a game that was rained out earlier this season.

Lee will be seeking their third victory in as many days when the two teams tangle today. Lee defeated Monahan's, 7-6, Tuesday when Bill Derr's two-run double in the seventh pulled out the victory for Rebel reliever David Jennings.

Ticket policy is adopted

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Virtually all of the tickets available to the general public for the 1980 Winter Games here next February will be sold through brokers who will charge additional commissions and likely package the tickets with transportation and housing arrangements.

And many of those who do attend may have to see an unpopular event in order to see a "glamour" event like hockey.

The board of directors of the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee adopted a ticket policy Wednesday night, allocating roughly 300,000 tickets to the general American public, 74,000 to corporate sponsors, 50,000 to area residents, 39,000 to Canada and another 39,000 for the rest of the world.

The policy, which organizers say is subject to revisions, also sets aside nearly 48,000 tickets for dignitaries and friends of the LPOOC in addition to the roughly 75,000 official passes, which are not included in the ticket count.

National Olympic Committees in Canada and foreign countries will distribute 78,000 foreign tickets, while the LPOOC will select its distributors and sell a few tickets on its own, according to Robert Ohanesian, who developed the ticket policy for the LPOOC.

Ticket prices range from $10 to $60, tax not included, with bulk sellers authorized to add commissions of up to 10 percent on resales.

At least half the general public tickets will go to those preparing "homogenous" tours packaging tickets, transportation and housing.

Templeton apologizes

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Garry Templeton, in an abrupt turnaround, has apologized for his bitter tongue-lashing of St. Louis Cardinal management and says he no longer wants to be traded.

"I want to do anything I can to help this team," the 23-year-old shortstop said Wednesday after reading a written retraction of the verbal blast he launched Tuesday.

"I feel my problems have been properly aired, and I am anxious and ready to get back to playing baseball to the best of my ability," Templeton said in the statement issued after a series of meetings with his agent and Cardinals General Manager John Claiborne.

Tuesday, Templeton lashed out at the Cardinals, maintaining he would not give a full effort on the field.

"I'm not even trying to go out and do my best," he said. "I think they're too chicken even to trade me."

He said a major part of his disagreement with the team has been management's criticism of his "style" of playing shortstop. He has been accused of nonchalance.

Templeton, who hit .280 in 1978 and committed 28 errors while leading a National League-leading 40 errors while handling more chances than any other NL shortstop, said his latest disagreement with the club was resolved during a Tuesday night meeting with Claiborne attended by Templeton's agent, Richman Bry.

Replays get thumbs down

DALLAS (AP) — Video tape replay for professional sports is still science fiction thinking.

That's the conclusion reached Wednesday in a sports-broadcasting panel moderated by ABC News and Sports President Boone Arledge which involved Commissioners Pete Rozell of the National Football League, Bowie Kuhn of major league baseball and Larry O'Brien of the National Basketball Association.

"It is a horrendous technical problem," Arledge said. Various camera angles make consistency impossible, he added.

"We'd love to have it but it is not feasible now," said Rozelle, who recently concluded a meeting with NFL owners in Hawaii.

"All 28 clubs concluded it was not feasible; perhaps technology in the future will make it possible," Rozelle added.

A controversial pass interference play against Dallas cornerback Benny Barnes in the Super Bowl triggered renewed pleas for video tape replays. Rozelle later admitted in a letter to a fan that no call should have been made on the play.

Tex Schramm, president of the Cowboys, was in the audience when Rozelle fielded the question.

Noting Schramm's presence, Rozelle mused "I wonder where that question came from?" Schramm laughed.

O'Brien said there are just too many calls made in NBA games, adding "We'll just have to be subject to human frailty."

Kuhn said "By the nature of our game it is not as difficult to officiate.

There hasn't been as much of a hue and cry in our sport. Our people (the umpires) have been doing a good job."

On another topic, Kuhn warned his umpires that contingency plans are ready if they fail to show next week for the opening of the regular season.

"I hope these decent men see the error of their ways," Kuhn said. "We (major league owners) have plans for an alternate approach. The umpires would be making a serious mistake if they do not show up for work."

The 51 umpires who work for both the National League and American Leagues have yet to sign their 1979 contracts and have boycotted spring training. Substitute umpires have called the exhibition games in Florida and Arizona.

A federal judge ruled Tuesday he lacks the authority to order umpires to go to work.

The umpires want more money and other improvements in a collective bargaining agreement fashioned last year. They are in the second year of a five-year agreement.

"It is unfortunate that we have the problem we have, but in this case they (the umpires) are way off base. ... What they are doing is wrong," Kuhn said.

Larry Bird starts negotiations

BOSTON (AP) — Indiana State star Larry Bird will begin — and possibly complete — contract talks with the Boston Celtics on the eve of the National Basketball Association team's season wrap-up.

Celtics President Red Auerbach spoke to Bird on the telephone Wednesday and the college player of the year agreed to face-to-face negotiations in Boston during the weekend that begins April 6.

The last-place Celtics finish the season with a home game against Denver on April 6, and away-and-home games Saturday and Sunday, April 7 and 8, against the New Jersey Nets.

Celtics Vice President Jeff Cohen said Bird — Boston's No. 1 draft pick last year as a junior — still doesn't have an agent. But he is expected to bring a representative to Boston for his meetings with Auerbach.

The French Lick, Ind., native plans to play in an all-star game this weekend in Las Vegas.

The Celtics have until the NBA draft in June to sign Bird to what is expected to be a multi-million dollar, long-term pact. Otherwise, the blond pivotman who led Indiana State to the NCAA finals will go back into the talent pool of the draft.

Celtics officials say their efforts to reach an agreement with Bird won't necessarily be hindered by owner John Y. Brown's statement Tuesday he plans a run for the Kentucky governorship and may sell his share of the NBA team.

When Brown sells out, his Celtics partner, Harry Mangurian, may purchase full ownership in the team.

MIAMI (AP) — Members of the Baltimore Orioles bullpen are expected to have good arms, a variety of pitches ... and lots of patience.

With the addition of Steve Stone, acquired through the re-entry draft, the Orioles now have five pitchers who won 83 games last season and completed 70 of their starts.

Baltimore led the league with 65 complete games last year, an accomplishment which also led to grumbling in the bullpen. Reliever Joe Kerrigan had stretches of 24 and 17 days of inactivity, and Tippy Martinez once went 26 days without pitching.

"I think our starters are the best," said Jim Palmer, who had a 21-12 record last year and has topped 20 victories in eight of the last nine seasons. "I believe the five of us can win 90 games."

Palmer is 33 and Stone, who was 12-12 with the lowly Chicago White Sox last season, is 31. But the other starters are young and still developing.

Mike Flanagan, 19-15 last year, is 27; Scott McGregor, 25, had a 15-13 record; and Dennis Martinez, coming off a 16-11 season, is only 23. Each has less than three years of major league experience.

Manager Earl Weaver will have to do some juggling to keep the starters happy this year, too, since their combined 178 starts of a year ago is 16 more than the schedule calls for.

"This year's schedule almost dictates four starters in April," said Ray Miller, Baltimore's pitching coach. "In the past, we usually had three games every four days for the first month, but this year we have 16 games in the first 17 days."

"We'll use the fourth starter earlier than usual," Miller said, "and we'll have more work for the fifth man."

Lee Trevino goes back to old irons

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Lee Trevino has returned to some old familiar clubs and to an old, more familiar style of play.

Now, all he needs to do is return to his old familiar effectiveness.

"I've gone back to those old irons I used to win the 1971 (U.S.) Open and the (1974) PGA," Trevino said before today's first round of the $300,000 Sea Pines Heritage Golf Classic.

"And I've gone back to fading the ball, working it from left to right. That's the clubs and the fade I won all those tournaments and all that money with."

"For a while there, I was trying to draw the ball. But there's nobody in the world can draw it and fade it perfectly all the time. So I've gone back to the fade."

"And, just a week ago, I went back to the old clubs with the stiff shaft."

Trevino had changed his style of play after his back surgery a couple of years ago.

"I had to do it because of the back. I couldn't get through the ball with my legs. That's the reason I changed. But the back's fine now. I don't even have to do any exercises or anything. So I'm going back to the fade."

And it seemed to work.

Trevino had one of his strongest showings of the year last week in the Tournament Players Championship and came here as a definite contender for the $54,000 first prize.

"I'm playing better. I'm getting closer," said the brash and brassy man who ranks as one of golf's greatest gate attractions in history.

"I'm not through yet," he said. "I'm 39, but I've got some more years in me. I'll know when it's time. Nobody will have to tell me. When I start missing three or four cuts in a row, I'll know it's time to head for the barn and you just won't see me any more. But that's down the road somewhere."

Trevino, a runnerup six times in the last 12 months, has his major opposition in Tom Watson, Lanny Wadkins and defending champion Hubert Green.

Wadkins became the first double winner of the season with his convincing triumph last week in the TPC. Watson was runnerup, the third time this season he's been second, and the 1977-78 Player of the Year said he's more satisfied with his game than at any other time this year.

Green, twice a winner of the Heritage, took the Hawaiian Open title earlier in the year.

Bird is tragic figure

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

every nook of his life — the price of fame.

THIS IS a cynical and often caustic world. Not every report suited the young man's fancy. He became bitter, suspicious and — in the end — a sullen recluse.

This majestic giant of a man, although a campus idler, shows no trace of being spoiled. Misunderstood? Yes. Arrogant? No. He plays the game unselfishly. He fights like a tiger. Teammates and associates hold him in the highest esteem.

The kink in his rugged armor is naive. He must do the cloak of campus hero. He must move into the hard-bitten world of pro sports — perhaps as a million-dollar bonus baby of the Boston Celtics.

Now his skills go out on the market shelf — to be admired, bought and sold like a can of beans. People who buy a ticket feel he is part of their property. He must relate. He can't lock himself in an invisible isolation booth. He can't be an island.

Some have tried it with disastrous consequences.

Roger Maris and Enos "Country" Slaughter have been deprived of deserved niches in baseball's Hall of Fame because of their bitter feuds with the press. Inability to cope wrecked the career of Duane Thomas, who could have been one of football's finest ball-carriers.

Jimmy Connors and Ilie Nastase, in tennis, have alienated millions of fans. Nastase's court tirades have eroded his talent. Bill Walton's erratic moods have dulled his potential impact on basketball.

On the other hand, Muhammad Ali used the press forum to become the most recognizable figure — in sports or out — of our time. Arnold Palmer's charisma, creating Arnie's Army, changed the whole face of golf. O.J. Simpson and Pete Rose have used the product-selling "Green Giants" of their professions.

They have shared their lives with the world. They have become personalities — not just moving automations. The "Bird" must recognize this, give of himself and roll with the punch. The world is his and himself. He had proved more accessible after the Sycamores' first-game victory.

His teammates showed, as did the stout-hearted kids of DePaul and Penn, whose hurt and disappointment certainly were as deep.

EXCUSE US if you think this is a cry-baby whimper from a wounded player. The media (a ghastly label) have been exposed to worse indignities and survived. It is Bird's right, as a free man in a free society, to take the press or leave it, except in this case there are underlying obligations.

In Bird's case, the most demanding obligation is to himself.

He is a marvelous talent with a fantastic future, if he doesn't blow it. He has proved himself one of the great basketball performers of our generation — a strong, naturally gifted young player capable of earning a king's riches as a pro.

He hails from a rural community, French Lick, Ind., population about 1,000. He preferred to remain in his home state and play with a relatively little known school in Terre Haute. Almost solely because of his skills, this team swept through 33 games and gained No. 1 national ranking before bowing to Michigan State in the NCAA finals.

No one ever accused the "Bird" of being sophisticated. Acclaim and myriad honors fell upon him with such sudden impact that he found it difficult to cope. As the No. 1 college basketball player in the nation, he was swooped down upon by strangers from everywhere seeking to peek into

Haynes testifies against summer training camps

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Summer basketball and football camps for high school athletes would be just another place where "minority kiddos get the short end of the stick," says a South Texas athletic director.

C.E. "Chuck" Haynes of Corpus Christi testified Wednesday against Sen. Ron Clower's proposal to open training camps to Texas youths.

Now, a youngster who attends a basketball or football camp loses his eligibility, unless he has court permission.

Haynes said when he coached at Gladewater years ago, the football team was able to go to summer camp because the school district was oil-rich. But Marshall, for example, did not have enough money to send its players, he said.

"After two weeks of summer camp, we were at mid-season strength," said Haynes. "It was unfair, and I see that now."

Tony Koriath, an Austin lawyer, said Clower, D-Garland, introduced the bill on his behalf. Koriath said he had a direct interest since his son William is a freshman at McCullum High School and wants to play basketball.

Koriath described the UIL, which governs public school athletics, as a "phantom system nobody can understand or explain. ... You are judged guilty when you walk in. Basically, there are no remedies. There is no way ordinary folks ... can get due process and have an effective right of appeal."

If UIL representatives show up, he said, "we will have made progress, because you will have actually seen somebody from the UIL."

Several witnesses did show up to oppose Sen. Ron Clower's bill, including representatives of the UIL, Texas Association of Secondary School Principals, Texas High School Girls Coaches Association, Texas High School Coaches Association and Haynes, representing the athletic directors association.

Jack Johnson of Southlake, representing the UIL, said the organization "believes the rule has merit," but he noted UIL member schools will vote next week on a referendum that could abolish it.

Waltz scores upset over Dick Stockton

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Butch Waltz scored an upset victory over third-seeded Dick Stockton in the sixth annual Dayton Pro Tennis Classic, but afterward said, "I think it was a pretty boring match for the crowd."

Waltz defeated Stockton 7-6, 6-4 Wednesday in a serve and volley battle. The young California netter didn't lose his serve in the entire match and ended the competition with a service ace.

"My serve was on and his was off," Waltz said. "I really don't feel I played very well but Dickey also played poorly."

In another upset, by the same 7-6, 6-4 score, Sherwood Stewart, who also is a big serve and volley man, ousted another big server in Hank Pfister.

Their match was one of each player holding service down to the final game of the second set when Stewart finally broke Pfister's serve.

Harold Solomon, the top-seeded player, seemed a little rusty in his opening match but was just coming of a three-week layoff because of an injury. After a slow start, he ousted Mike Cahill 6-4, 6-2.

Reid, Fernandez win

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Top-seeded Kerry Reid defeated Barbara Hallquist 6-1, 6-2 and Maria Fernandez upset No. 2 seed Regina Marsikova 6-7, 6-4, 7-5 Wednesday night in the quarter-finals of the $35,000 La Costa Tennis Classic.

Karen Susman defeated Laura DuPont 6-3, 7-5 in another quarter-final match and Sue Barker beat Betsy Nagelsen 7-5, 6-2.

Reid had downed Kym Ruddell 6-2, 6-3 in second-round play earlier in the day and Fernandez had defeated Diane Desfor 6-4, 7-5.

In other second-round matches Wednesday, No. 3 seed Barker topped Valerie Ziegenfuss 6-1, 6-4; Susman defeated Jean Hepler 6-3, 6-2; DuPont defeated Terry Holladay 6-3, 6-7, 7-6; Nagelsen defeated Sue Stap 6-4, 7-5 and Marsikova defeated Maren Louie 2-6, 7-5, 7-6.

The tournament is a prelude to this weekend's $200,000 competition that will feature Martina Navratilova, Chris Evert, Tracy Austin and Dianne Fromholtz.

Evert plays Austin in Saturday morning's first semifinal match with Navratilova and Fromholtz meeting in the second. The winners will advance to Sunday's showdown.

30 wildcats, 82 field projects reported in Basin

Thirty wildcat operations and 82 field projects were announced last week in the Permian Basin of West Texas and southeast New Mexico.

The 112 total includes 43 projects in the huge District 8 of the Railroad Commission of Texas. Of that number, 11 are wildcats.

Ector County led all other District 8 (headquartered in Midland) counties with 10 field projects. Sterling County gained three of the wildcats and Glasscock and Pecos each gained two. The other wildcats were spotted in Crane, Loving, Reeves and Ward counties.

District 7C, headquartered in San Angelo, processed application for permission to drill nine wildcats and 17 field operations. Five of the explorers were reported in Runnels County, while Irion gained two and Coke and Upton each gained one.

The New Mexico counties of Lea, Eddy and Chaves reported five wildcats and 14 field wells. Eddy gained four of the wildcats and the other was staked in Chaves. Lea reported nine field operations.

Carter consulting with congressman

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, described as ready to lift price controls from domestically produced crude oil, is directing intensive consultations with members of Congress on a promised new energy blueprint.

Congressional leaders were called to the White House today to discuss with Carter the broad range of options confronting him.

Senators who met privately Wednesday with top administration economic officials reported the president is prepared to lift price controls but remains unsure of how to go about it.

The biggest question marks, the senators said, involve possible imposition of a special tax to accompany deregulation, and whether Congress would pass necessary tax legislation.

Although Congress rejected Carter's 1977 proposals for taxes on crude oil and gasoline, two Republican senators said the country might be better off had Congress been more receptive to the president's original energy program, passed in bottled form last year.

These sentiments were expressed by Sens. Charles Percy of Illinois and Pete Domenici of New Mexico after a bipartisan congressional group met

White has high hopes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General Mark White thinks there is a "good chance" that President Carter will listen to Texas officials and remove ceiling prices for domestic crude oil.

White sent the president a letter Wednesday and said he will follow that up with a visit to Washington next week. He indicated there might be a visit to the White House.

White said in his letter to the president that "By relying on the free market system and bringing an end to the price ceilings on crude oil, you will place this country on the surest path to reaching that goal."

White told a news conference Wednesday he will be in Washington next week for a conference of attorneys general and "will meet with some high energy people."

"I have no comment on that," he replied when asked if he had a date to talk with Carter.

White said in addition to stressing deregulation of domestic crude, he will urge action by Carter to be sure that profits from increased prices will go to increase production.

"I believe we have a good chance of success," he said.

Wednesday with Carter to discuss energy matters.

If Carter produces a bold program, said Domenici, "we'll back him up."

The extent of administration consultation with Congress was underscored by Carter's personal involvement, as well as by the meeting of senators on Capitol Hill with Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, Budget Director James T. McIntyre Jr. and Carter adviser Stuart Eizenstat.

The Wednesday session in the office of Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd was similar to one held last Friday with a different group of lawmakers.

Carter originally had indicated to congressional leaders he would unveil his new energy strategy Thursday. But White House press secretary Jody Powell said the president has ordered a reworking of option papers and would not have his decisions ready for announcement before next week, at the earliest.

Existing price controls on oil, which keep the price of U.S. oil at about $5 a barrel below world market prices, expire automatically in September, 1981.

However, the president will have the power as of June 1 to lift them sooner—either all at once or gradually—without congressional review.

More oil yield, conservation not enough committee advised

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Neither increased oil and gas production nor conservation are enough for the "long haul" in energy, Sen. Bob Vale told a Senate committee on Wednesday.

The natural resources committee approved four bills Wednesday, including three by Vale, to encourage the use of alternate forms of energy.

"We must face the fact that increased production of traditional fossil fuels and conservation are not enough for the long haul," said Vale. "Fossil fuels are finite; whether that finiteness means they'll run out in 20 years or 2,000 years makes no difference. They are a source of energy that is non-renewable, ever costly and highly polluting. We should not build our reliance on them, indeed, and we should decrease it."

"The once far-off spectre of ... $1 a gallon gasoline is here now," he said.

"We are at the mercy of foreign sheikdoms that are ruining our economy — yet nothing is getting done," he added.

Vale's bills, which were approved 9-0, would:

— Require anyone planning to construct or renovate an electric utility plant to study the feasibility of using solid waste as fuel and to file a report with the Public Utility Commission.

— Allow electric companies to make a higher profit rate on solar or wind energy if it is cheaper than electricity from traditional sources and require the state to use solar energy in its building. The bill also establishes a solar licensing procedure to protect consumers.

— Remove the 5-cent state tax on gasoline if it contains at least 10 percent domestically produced alcohol, which is known as gasohol.

Sen. Bob Price, R-Pampa, had a similar gasohol bill, and it also was sent to the Senate floor on a 9-0 vote.

He said he was sponsoring a bill to provide $20 million to build a gasohol plant.

The alcohol for gasohol would come from refining agricultural crops, and Price said the method holds the "greatest potential for agricultural products on the horizon today."

State Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said 20 percent of the farm acreage in Texas is not in production and this could be utilized for gasohol. "Gasohol's time has come in Texas," he said.

Vale said he had "no illusions" that his three bills would "solve the energy crisis," but "given time they will make a significant dent in it."

Wildcat reported in Lubbock area; field wells final, tests scheduled

New Reserves Group, Inc., of Midland No. 1 Texas Tech has been spotted as a 6,500-foot wildcat in Lubbock County, six miles northeast of Idalou.

It is 1,980 feet from south on 660 feet from east lines of section 20, block X, John H. Gibson survey. Elevation is 3,252.05 feet. The site is 1.5 miles north of the Idalou (Strawn) field.

PECOS WELL

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 2-D F. Schlosser and other has been completed two miles north and slightly west of the Rojo Caballas, South (Devonian) field of north Pecos County, nine miles south of Coyanosa.

It finished from the Devonian for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 24,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 17,858 to 18,170 feet. The pay was acidized with 18,000 gallons.

Total depth is 18,205 feet and plugged back depth is 18,185 feet. The location is 2,200 feet from north and 1,600 feet from west lines of section 23, block 49, T-8, T&P survey.

HNG Oil Co. of Midland No. 2-13 Phillips-TXL is to be drilled as a 5,800-foot project in the Aylesworth (Cherry Canyon) pool of Reeves County, 20 miles northwest of Pecos.

Location is 5/8 mile west and slightly south of HNG No. 2-12 Sabine, the pool discovery, and 1,707 feet from north and west lines of section 13, block 55, T-4, T&P survey.

LOVING WORK

The Petroleum Corp. of Delaware has completed an extender in the Wheat (Delaware) field of Loving County and has staked a stepout to the new well.

The extender is No. 2-46-U Bass. It completed for a 24-hour flowing potential of 36 barrels of oil, gravity and gas-oil ratio not reported, and 29 barrels of water, through a 24/64-inch choke.

The pay was acidized with 500 gallons and fractured with 3,500 gallons. Total depth is 7,100 feet and 4.5-inch casing is set at 7,100 feet.

The site is one location west of other Wheat production and 660 feet from south and 2,680 feet from east lines of section 46, block 53, T-2, T&P survey. It is 5.5 miles northeast of Mentone.

The new project is No. 1-46 Jones, 5/8 mile northeast of No. 2-46 Bass. Scheduled for a 7,100-foot bottom, it is 1,980 feet from south and 990 feet from east lines of section 46, block 53, T-2, T&P survey.

SCURRY RE-ENTRY

Empire Drilling Co. of Dallas announced plans to re-enter a former well in the Arah (Ellenburger) field of Scurry County and plug back to 4,450 feet for tests as a wildcat.

The operation is the former Sun Oil Co. No. 1-E Shannon Estate, 12 miles northwest of Snyder.

The location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 330, block 97, H&TC survey. It is one and five-eighths miles west of the Revilo (Glorieta) pool.

SCHLEICHER TEST

Tucker Drilling Co., Inc. of San Angelo No. 2 Jeannette Wheeler has been staked as a northeast offset to its No. 1 Jeannette Wheeler, discovery well of the Page, East (4620) field of Schleicher County.

The project, 10 miles southeast of Eldorado, is 1,450 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 24, block L, GH&SA survey. It will drill to 4,750 feet.

It also is seven-eighths mile northeast of the field's 5,150-foot pay.

IRION PROJECT

Fortune Drilling Co., Inc., of San Angelo No. 1-B Baker has been staked in the Cal (Canyon oil) area of Irion County.

It is 3/4 mile north of production and 1,865 feet from north and 560 feet from west lines of section 1150, W. H.

Smith survey. Ground elevation is 2,419 feet.

The project is separated from production by a depleted Ellenburger well. It also is 1/3 mile east of Canyon oil production in the Kingsley field. The site is nine miles southwest of Mertz.

Contract depth is 7,300 feet.

SUTTON RE-ENTRY

Amoco Production Co. announced plans to re-enter its No. 1-C Jack W. Brown, former producer in the Whitehead (Strawn) field of Sutton County, and test it above 7,300 feet.

Operator will attempt to complete the project as a two-mile southwest extension to Canyon production in the Sawyer multipay field.

Location is 17 miles southwest of Sonora and 1,493 feet from north and 1,514 feet from east lines of Mrs. Catherine Anderson survey No. 11.5.

Amoco originally completed the well in January 1977 for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 185,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 8,839 to 9,004 feet. Total depths 9,320 feet.

Depco extends gas pool

Depco, Inc., of Midland No. 3 Mid-west-Federal has been completed as the second well in the Sand Ranch (Atoka gas) pool of Chaves County, N.M., 15 miles northwest of Caprock.

The operator reported a calculated absolute open flow potential of 830,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 9,058 to 9,068 feet. Tubing pressure varied from 1,461 pounds to 599 pounds on the four-point test.

Total depth is 9,630 feet and 4.5-inch casing was cemented on bottom.

LEA GASSER

Texas Oil & Gas Corp., operating from Midland, has completed its No. 1 Osodo-State as a 1/2-mile southeast extension to the Osodo, North (Morrow gas) field of Lea County, N.M., eight miles north of Oil Center.

It finished for a daily flow of 4,100,000 cubic feet of gas through a 1/4-inch choke and perforations from 11,324 to 11,340 feet. Flowing tubing pressure was 3,550 pounds.

Hole was drilled to 11,600 feet and 4.5-inch pipe was set on bottom.

Wellsite is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 29-205-36E.

STATE LINE WELL

HNG Oil Co. of Midland No. 1-21 Wilson-Federal is a new well in the state line (Yates) area of Lea County, seven miles southwest of Jal.

It finished for a daily flow of 54 barrels of oil and 15 barrels of water, through perforations from 3,113 to 3,223 feet and a 14/64-inch choke. Gravity was not reported and the gas-oil ratio is too small to measure.

Location is 1,650 feet from south and 330 feet from west lines of section 21-265-36E.

Total depth is 3,340 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set at 3,340 feet. The pay was acidized with 2,000 gallons and fractured with 20,000 gallons.

MARATHON WELL

Marathon Oil Co., operating from Midland, reported potential test on a well in an undersigned Drinkard area of Lea County, four miles southwest of Eunice.

It finished in the Drinkard on the pump for a daily potential of 201 barrels of oil and 254 barrels of water, through perforations from 6,533 to 6,621 feet. The gravity is 35.9 degrees and the gas-oil ratio is 1,796-1. The pay was acidized with 4,275 gallons and fractured with 4,800 gallons.

The total depth is 6,800 feet. Location is 430 feet from north and 2,307 feet from west lines of section 1-225-36E.

ROOSEVELT AREA

Enserch Exploration, Inc., of Midland No. 1 Lambirth will be drilled as an 8,000-foot project in the Peterson, South (Fusselman) area of Roosevelt County, 10 miles southeast of Elida.

The project is 510 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 30-55-33E.

Flowing oil discoveries final; wildcats scheduled

A pair of oil discoveries have been completed in Andrews County, another has been finished in Scurry County, and wildcat operations have been announced in Sterling, Crane and Tom Green counties.

Terra Resources, Inc., of Midland announced a flowing Strawn oil discovery at its No. 1 Dan E. Whately in northwest Scurry County, two miles south of Fluanna.

The operator reported a 24-hour

ENERGY OIL & GAS

flowing potential of 479 barrels of oil, no water, through a 33/64-inch choke and perforations from 7,863 to 7,870 feet. Gravity of the oil is 40 degrees, and the gas-oil ratio is 417-1.

The project was drilled to 8,331 feet in the Ellenburger and plugged back to 7,920 feet. The pay was acidized with 250 gallons.

The Strawn was topped at 7,723 feet on kelly bushing elevation of 2,668 feet. The Mississippi was entered at 8,157 feet and the Ellenburger was topped at 8,303 feet.

The discovery is 1/2 mile north of the abandoned Drilxco (8495 Strawn) field.

REEF OPENER

Florida Gas Exploration Co. of Midland No. 1-A University has been completed as a flowing discovery in the Strawn reef in Andrews County, 13 miles northeast of Andrews.

The operator reported a 24-hour potential of 270 barrels of oil, gravity unreported, through a 14/64-inch choke and perforations from 11,198 to 11,241 feet after 7,250 gallons of acid. Tubing pressure was 590 pounds. Gas-oil ratio is 1,925-1.

The well is one mile northwest of the Block 6, North (Devonian) field. Total depth is 11,250 feet and 5.5-inch casing is cemented on bottom.

PUMPING DISCOVERY

Charles L. Walker of Odessa No. 2-C Underwood has been completed as a pumping San Andres discovery in Andrews County, 11 miles northwest of Andrews.

The strike, 3/4 mile southwest of a dual Ellenburger and Strawn producer in the Block A-34 field, finished for a daily pumping potential of 21 barrels of 34-gravity oil and five barrels of water, through perforations from 4,656 to 4,676 feet.

Total depth is 4,755 feet and 5.5-inch casing is cemented on bottom.

The Yates was topped at 2,820 feet, the Grayburg at 4,630 feet and the San Andres at 4,653 feet. Ground elevation is 3,201 feet.

Operator acidized the pay section with 3,000 gallons and fractured with 10,000 gallons.

Wellsite is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 17, block A-34, psl survey.

STERLING WILDCAT

Northern Natural Gas Co. No. 1-134 Cole has been spotted as a 4,300-foot wildcat in Sterling County, 15 miles south of Sterling City.

The location is 2,320 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of section 134, block 6, H&TC survey. It is one mile east of a 5,500-foot dry hole and one mile southeast of the depleted discovery of the Mulberry (Wolfcamp oil) pool.

CRANE PROSPECTOR

Exxon Corp., operating from Midland, staked its No. 185 J. B. Tubb as a 5,800-foot wildcat in Crane County in the Sand Hills multipay area. The project also will test the field's Juddkins 2520 pay and the Tubb 4120 pay.

The drillsite is 1,320 feet from south and 2,680 feet from west lines of section 29, block B-27, psl survey and 15 miles west of Crane.

TOM GREEN TEST

Doralex Energy, Inc., of San Angelo No. 1 Peggy Bollinger is a 990-foot oil wildcat in southwest Tom Green County, 1/2 mile west of Knickerbocker.

Location is 4,610 feet from the north line and 835.6 feet from the east line of German Emigrant survey No. 804. Ground elevation is 2,024.3 feet.

WARD PROJECT

Texaco Inc. No. 1-B State Gas Unit will be re-entered and tested as the second Atoka gas well in the Caprito multipay area of Ward County, 11 miles northeast of Barstow.

Originally completed as an Ellenburger gas well at total depth of 13,880 feet, it is 2,640 feet from north and 1,320 feet from east lines of section 15, block 18, University Lands survey.

The Atoka will be tested above 13,322 feet. The only active Atoka gas producer in the field is Mobil No. 1-36 University, one and three-quarter miles to the northwest.

OFFSET TEST

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 11 Crawlar Field Unit will be drilled as a west offset to its No. 4 Crawlar Field Unit, a producer in the north side of the five-well Crawlar (Tubb oil) pool in Ward County.

Scheduled for a 5,300-foot bottom, it is eight miles southeast of Monahans and 467 feet from north and west lines of section 8, block B-20, psl survey.

ECTOR FIELD AREA

Getty Oil Co. No. 2-10 Headlee Devonian Unit will be drilled in the Headlee (Devonian pool) of Ector County, inside the city limits of Odessa.

The project is 2,616 feet from south and 1,523 feet from east lines of section 7, block 41, T-2-S, T&P survey. It will drill to 12,075 feet as a gas project.

Goen well potentials

Robert Klazuba of For Worth No. 1 Chester Schwethelm finished as the second well in the Fuzzy Creek (Goen gas) pool of Concho County, 5 miles northeast of Paint Rock.

Operator reported a calculated open flow potential of 1,590,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 3,356 to 3,362 feet. The gas-liquid ratio is 25,966-1.

Location is 3,890 feet from north and 560 feet from west lines of Conrad Frey survey No. 6.

Total depth is 3,450 feet and 4.5-inch pipe is set at 3,425 feet.

Colorado City gets 'Oklahoma!'

COLORADO CITY — "Oklahoma!" that rousing, tuneful musical, is the current attraction at the Colorado City Playhouse.

The musical, a collaborative effort of the famed music-and-lyrics team of Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II, opened Wednesday night at the Colorado City Opera House. It will have a second presentation tonight, and additional performances Friday and Saturday nights. The schedule continues with performances on April 4, 5, 6 and 7. All performances begin at 8 p.m. and tickets are on sale at the box office before show time nightly, subject to availability.

"Oklahoma!" has been in rehearsal here for the last several weeks. Based on writer Lynn Riggs' "Green Grow the Lilacs," the play is set in Indian Territory, just before it becomes the state of Oklahoma.

ENTERTAINMENT

"Oklahoma!" is a veritable feast of tuneful songs with catchy lyrics, including such favorites as "Surrey With the Fringe on Top," "Kansas City," "The Farmer and the Cowman," "Oklahoma!" and "I Can't Say No," plus such charming ballads as "Many A New Day," "Out of My Dreams," "People Will Say We're in Love," and "Oh, What A Beautiful Morning."

The Colorado City Playhouse version has been staged and directed by Carl Beery Moore and George Womack. Marsha Moore is the producer. The musical directors are Kent and Betty Holder.

The "Oklahoma!" cast is headed by Diana Davenport, a public school teacher in Colorado City, as Laurey. Ms. Davenport is filling her first stage role at Colorado City.

Curley in the Colorado City production is played by Chris Hubbard, minister of music and education for First Baptist Church of Colorado City, in his initial stage appearances here.

Others in the large cast include Bill Martin as Jud Fry, Quin Thornburg as Ado Annie, Nell Holman as Aunt Eller, Greg Chaney as Will Parker, Porter Richardson as Ike Skidmore, Elaine Fugate as Gertie Cummings, Tandy Curlee as Andrew Carnes and Mac McKinnon as Ali Hakim.

Holloway has dual career

Organist Clyde Holloway of Houston, who will play a recital Friday night in the sanctuary of Midland's First United Methodist Church, is an educator as well as a performer.

Holloway is professor of music, chairman of the keyboard department and coordinator of advanced studies at the Shepherd School of Music at Rice University in Houston, as well as professor of music and artist-in-residence at Houston Baptist University. In addition, he serves as organist for Christ Church Cathedral in Houston.

Previously, Holloway was professor of music at Indiana University.

The guest artist's recital at 8 p.m. Friday is sponsored by the West Texas chapter, American Guild of Organists. The public is invited to attend free of charge.

In addition to his teaching duties, Holloway is in wide demand as a solo organist and recitalist, filling numerous engagements each year through the U.S.

He has played for national conventions of the American Guild of Organists in the past, as well as performing at numerous AGO regional conclaves. He gave a series of recitals in the Auditorio Nacional in Mexico City at the invitation of the cultural ministry of the Mexican Government, and has played numerous programs in the West Indies and in major European cities.

American Guild of Organists is an organization with chapters throughout the U.S. and Canada, dedicated to the cause of worthwhile church music. The annual spring recital presented by the Midland-based West Texas chapter of the AGO is made possible through the donations of the chapter's patron members.

For his Friday night recital, Holloway has programmed works by Max Reger, J.S. Bach, Paul Hindemith and Franz Liszt.

Noguchi gets design commission

HOUSTON — Isamu Noguchi, one of the major artists working in the world today, has been chosen to design a new sculpture garden for Houston's Museum of Fine Arts.

The park, to be known as the Lillie and Roy Cullen Gardens, will occupy a one-acre block north of the museum, linking the museum's Mies van der Rohe-designed facade with its new Alfred C. Glassell Jr., School of Art. (The new glass block-and-concrete school structure, designed by S.I. Morris Associates, was dedicated Jan. 11.)

Noguchi has visited the Houston museum on several occasions to discuss the sculpture garden project.

A model for the park was submitted to the museum in 1977 and a revised plan is to be presented this spring. The sculpture garden is expected to be completed within a year, creating one of the largest art museum complexes in the U.S.

Funding for the sculpture facility was provided through a financial gift from the Cullen Foundation which also included funds to acquire sculpture to be exhibited there. The sculpture works will be primarily works from the late 19th Century to the present, and most of the pieces will become part of the museum's permanent collection, although space also will be available for long-term loans from museum friends and patrons.

Known primarily for his large-scale public projects and environmental works, Noguchi has designed a number of other sculpture gardens, including the sunken gardens at the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York City, a white marble garden at the Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library at Yale University in New Haven, Conn., and the Billy Rose Sculpture Garden at the Israeli Museum in Jerusalem.

Benji to grow even more human

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Benji, the dog that seems almost human, will become even more so in his newest picture, "Oh Heavenly Dog."

The movie is about a private detective who is killed and forced to return to earth as a dog to solve his own murder.

Benji has also run into some very human bureaucracy. Producer Joe Camp wants to film the movie in London, but so far British officials are sticking to their rule that all dogs entering the country must spend six months in quarantine.

Midlander to perform at TTU

LUBBOCK — Rehearsals are well under way for the Texas Tech University Theatre's production of "Panchito," scheduled for presentation April 6 through 11.

Among the cast members of the show is Kimberly K. Weaver of Midland, a Tech sophomore student and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver of Midland.

She is working as a singer and dancer in the production. In the past, she has worked in several Midland Community Theatre productions, including "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" and "Jabberwock."

"Panchito" is a dramatization of the life of Francisco "Panchito" Villa, the Mexican folk hero and leader who, according to legend, was called by God to lead his people in a revolt against oppression in early 20th Century Mexico.

The play-with-music was written by Dr. Clifford Ashby, professor of theater arts at TTU, who also is directing the premiere production here. Lyrics were supplied by Dr. Ashby's wife, Sylvia Ashby, a former teacher of English in the Lubbock public schools. Music for the show was composed by Charles Addington, a Lubbock businessman.

Diana Moore, professor of dance at TTU, has done the choreography for the show; she is blending structure and spontaneity in the various dance scenes in the production.

The University Theatre box office has opened for the sale of tickets to all performmances of "Panchito," and may be reserved by telephoning the box office at 806-742-3601.

UTPB faculty musicians to play

A recital by several members of the music faculty at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin is scheduled tonight.

The 8 p.m. event, to be open to the public without charge, will be in the faculty dining room at UTPB.

Soprano Janis Archer, now of Midland and formerly of Monahans, a part-time vocal instructor at the university, and Dr. Frank Varro, assistant professor of music, will be soloists in the recital. They also will present a vocal duet.

Pianist Pam Bristol of Midland, another part-time instructor at UTPB, also will play on the recital, in addition to Bert James, flute, and Mike Acord, clarinet.

The recital will be followed by a reception honoring the performers.

Choir groups to harmonize in UTPB event

ODESSA — Choral students from community colleges in this area will join forces Friday at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin when UTPB holds its first "Community College Choral Invitational."

Dr. Frank Varro, assistant professor of music at UTPB as well as director of the Chorale of the Midland-Odesa Symphony, will be the clinician for the event.

The student groups will join together during the day to rehearse for a massed choir concert scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday in the faculty dining room at UTPB.

The evening concert, to be open to the public, will feature choral ensembles from Midland College, Odessa College and UTPB, along with a brass ensemble from Odessa's Permian High School.

Other choral groups invited to participate in the Friday workshop and clinic are from Howard College at Big Spring, West Texas College at Snyder, South Plains College at Levelland, and New Mexico Junior College at Hobbs.

Jazz musicians to jam tonight

An improvisational concert is planned tonight by jazz combos at Midland College.

The event will begin at 8 p.m. in the recital hall of the Fine Arts Building and will be open to the public without charge.

The concert will feature a faculty jazz combo as well as a student jazz group. Don Haddad, member of the college music faculty, has assembled the show and is director of both groups.

Members of the faculty combo, all of whom teach music classes or provide individual instruction, are Dale Sterling, trumpet; Jim Ranier, vibes and bongos; Jim Vaughn, bass; Bob Farris, drums; Kyle Covington, guitar, and Haddad, piano.

The student combo is made up of Elizabeth Lutton, tenor sax; Leslie Cunard, flute; John Amos, clarinet and flute; Robby Barrett, bass; Gay Patterson, piano, and Anne Carroll, piano.

Between them, the two groups will offer such popular favorites as "Foggy Day," "You Are the Sunshine of My Life," "After Midnight," "Equinox" and "Blues in B-flat."

Art exhibit, piano recital to be Snyder Sunday events

SNYDER — Two special events are planned Sunday afternoon at Western Texas College of Snyder.

Judges rate 77 musicians as superior

Midland piano and voice students who are members of junior music clubs affiliated with the National Federation of Music Clubs participated in an annual spring music festival recently.

Seventy-seven superior ratings were given by the festival judges, including eight third-year superiors.

Receiving the superior rating for the third year were Deanna Baker, Missy Kibler and Susan Fry, all members of the Grand Staff Club; Shai-lete Dunnam, Doug Daehling and Tammy James, all of Chopin Club; Kathy Taylor of Sibelius Club; Cindy Kreger of Weddle Club. The eight students received gold certificates.

Other students receiving superior ratings included Alicia Thompson of Sibelius Club, Tommy Nunez of Chopin, Carole Scott of Harmony and John Heard of Chopin.

Mrs. Hans Roweck, a Midland piano teacher, is chairman of the NFMC junior music clubs festival.

A tense moment in Midland Community Theatre's "The Prisoner of Second Avenue" is enacted by Darrell Ward and Coila Morrow, in the roles of Mel and Edna Edison. The Neil Simon comedy concludes its run at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave., with performances tonight and Friday and Saturday nights.

Lobby during 'Prisoner' run features paintings by Cullar

Watercolor paintings by Texas artist C. Warren Cullar make up the gallery show in the Theatre Midland lobby during the run of "The Prisoner of Second Avenue."

The Neil Simon comedy opened March 16 as Midland Community

Theatre's second attraction of its 1979 season. MCT season memberships will continue on sale through the run of "Prisoner," offering considerable savings over the price of tickets purchased singly. There are numerous categories of membership available to the public, including regular, patron, sponsor, sustaining and benefactor memberships, and full information is obtainable by contacting the MCT business office at 682-2544.

"Prisoner" will have performances tonight, and Friday and Saturday nights, with a holdover performance scheduled for Friday, April 6. The Theatre Midland box office, 682-4111, has reserved seat tickets for all remaining presentations.

Cullar, the featured artist at the theater, maintains his studio at Bertram, in the Texas Hill Country.

Jack Warden arrives at peak

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Some actors bloom late. Like Jack Warden, nominated for an Academy award and now starring in a television series, "The Bad News Bears."

Not that Warden has suddenly burst into prominence. His weather-worn face, burly build and rugged manner have been familiar in movies and television for more than two decades. Now he seems at a peak, nominated for supporting actor as the sardonic football trainer in "Heaven Can Wait" and toplining CBS's Saturday night drive for ratings with a team of kooky subteen baseballers.

Warden plays the manager of the Bad News Bears, the role filled by Walter Matthau, William Devane and Tony Curtis in the three feature movies made by Paramount. This time the players are not Little Leaguers but students at a school for difficult children.

Warden is Morris Buttermaker, a swimming pool cleaner who revenges himself on a deadbeat client by driving the man's car into his pool. The judge's decision: Jail or coaching the Hoover Junior High School Bears.

Since he has an Oscar nomination and has made five movies in a row, you might wonder what Warden needs with a TV series featuring a bunch of kids.

"I'm excited about it," he said. "The scripts have been wonderful, and after all, the play's the thing, whether it's King Lear of a half-hour situation comedy."

Faberge objects now on exhibit

EL PASO — A dazzling array of delicate jeweled objects created for the Russian Imperial Court by Peter Carl Faberge is the major attraction currently at the El Paso Museum of Art.

"Treasures of Peter Carl Faberge" is the title of the exhibition, which came to the El Paso museum after a successful sojourn at the Amarillo Art Center.

The show presents objects from the collection of the late Matilda Geddings Gray, and the collection is now maintained and circulated by the Matilda Geddings Gray Foundation. The display will be on public view here through the end of May.

Peter Carl Faberge (1846-1920) is best-known for the exquisitely jeweled, enameled and decorated "Easter eggs" which he created for members of the Russian imperial family and members of the court in the decades immediately preceding the Russian revolution. Several fine examples of eggs are included in the show here.

Faberge's work represents the height of excellence in technical precision, imagination and fine craftsmanship. The ingenious conception and masterful execution so evident in these works of art surpass even the richness of the materials used in their creation.

Commuters take courses on 'brain train'

SWINDON, England (AP) — The train speeding toward London is teaching Spanish, French, German and economics to commuters every weekday morning.

The new "Brain Train" special, one of several operated by Britain's national railway, helps travelers pass the time usefully and pleasantly.

Passengers can join a special coaching car where three instructors hold classes.

Rising costs, quality of water among district's problems

BIG SPRING — The 1978 operating report of the Colorado River Municipal Water District pinpoints some of the problems area water suppliers wrestled with during the past year, said district officials.

Among these areas are mounting costs for producing water, water quality and a budget squeeze, said officials.

Rising energy costs resulted in a typical cost of 10.19 cents per 1,000 gallons of water from Lake Spence to Big Spring.

Officials said for every 1,000 gallons of water over estimated consumption, the district receives six cents.

Mis-estimating of consumption by cities, however, is adjusted in fixed charges the next year. But for the year in which it does occur, this puts the district in a hole on extra deliveries.

The cost of water during 1978 was 36.98 cents per 1,000 gallons to Odessa as compared with an average of 25.29 over the years; to Big Spring 30.04 against an average of 19.29; to Snyder 26.83 compared with an average of 19.78.

Power costs for pumping ranged from 1.13 cents per thousand gallons from Big Spring to McWhorter station in eastern Martin County up to 7.68 cents per thousand gallons for pumping Odessa city wells, or 6.80 cents for pumping SACROC brine wells.

The average cost of the initial lift from the main sources of supply was 4.18 cents per thousand gallons. To this, however, was added the cost of other lifts at booster stations on the supply lines.

Another problem, said officials, is that of quality. Successive drought years since 1972 have eroded quality seriously, but had it not been for the district's efforts, the picture would have been far worse, said officials.

These officials said during 1978 the district diverted 1.28 billion gallons of poor quality low flow from the Colorado River near Colorado City, and this represented a diversion of 10,500 tons of chlorides (about twice that in weight in salt).

Also diverted from Beal's Creek above Big Spring were 105 million gallons containing 8,600 tons of chlorides. Together these accounted for 19,100 tons of chlorides which will not get into Lake Spence.

Officials said although the Beal's Creek volume was less than one-twelfth of the Colorado City diversion, it accounted for 44 percent of the diverted chlorides.

Forgery conviction overturned

AUSTIN—The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday overturned a Midland County forgery conviction because of "improper instructions to the jury."

Walker Cadd Jr. was indicted for possessing a forged writing with intent to pass it.

However, the trial court's charge to the jury instructed them to convict Cadd if they found he possessed a forged writing with intent to issue it.

"Issuing and passing are different," ruled the court, explaining issuing requires only "to send forth or deliver," while passing requires not only delivery, "but also acceptance and a completed transaction."

"The court's charge to the jury authorized conviction on a charge which was not contained in the indictment, and which required less proof," ruled the court as it remanded the case back to the trial court.

Additional tennis classes being offered for ladies

The city Parks and Recreation Department will offer an additional ladies beginning tennis class from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays April 17 through May 16.

Registrations are being taken now at the Parks and Recreation office, 300 Baldwin St., for the class.

In another appeal from Midland County, the court found errors by the trial court, but said the mistakes were not certain enough to overturn the conviction.

Cecil Ray Willis was convicted of a rape following several previous convictions, including a 1965 conviction in Hidalgo County on a guilty plea.

In his defense, Willis tried to subpoena his attorney from the 1965 case in order to show he was represented inadequately.

However, the trial court excused the attorney from appearing.

Willis appealed, arguing the trial court judge was guilty of a great abuse of discretion and had denied him a basic right.

Four short courses to begin at MC

Four non-credit short courses offered through Midland College's Department of Community Services are scheduled to begin next week.

Belly Dancing I, taught by Karen Sharma, is a four-week course geared for building muscle tone in the female body.

Beginning Belly Dancing deals with basic body movements using all body muscles. Classes are limited to 20 students meeting from 7 to 9 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays in the MC Gym. Course fee is $16.

Introduction to Stock Market, taught by Dan McAngus, is a three-week course meeting from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursdays in room 100 of the Occupational-Technical Building.

McAngus offers a basic course in the meanings of investments, types of stock, risks, methods of investing, how to read financial news, speculation and the selection of securities. Course fee is $15.

Vannah Kleinbeck teaches students the art of caring for house plants in a four-week course meeting Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. in room 106 of the Occ-Tech Building.

Beginning with the selection of plants, Mrs. Kleinbeck explains lighting, feeding, watering and how to pot and multiply various plants. Care of terrariums and hanging baskets is included in the course. The fee is $8.

A Saturday morning course in Automotive Air Conditioning begins April 7 and continues for four weeks. Class hours are 9 a.m. to noon and students meet in the Occ-Tech Shop.

Ernest Beck, course instructor, explains how to check belts, evaporator, compressor, hoses, clutch, condenser and dryer for proper operation. Students learn to evacuate and charge the air conditioning system and check it for leaks. Course fee is $15.

Pre-registration is in progress now in room 140 of the Occ-Tech Building from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. The office will remain open during the lunch hour.

More information may be obtained by calling 684-7851, extension 147 or 216.

TV ads for children criticized

DALLAS (AP) — A Federal Trade Commission official says television advertising of children's products should be regulated, but a National Association of Broadcasters lawyer claims a cut in advertising would not guarantee sales would decline.

"Cigarette ads were taken off radio and television, but cigarette consumption did not go down; it's gone up. More importantly, cigarette consumption among young children has gone up, and they were never even exposed to advertisements on television at all," NAB counsel Brenda Fox said in a debate at the association's convention.

"Children are different than adults, in particular with the maturity with which they make judgments," replied Tracy Westen, deputy director of the FTC's consumer protection bureau.

Bikinians may move again

Radiation forcing islanders to flee

HONOLULU (AP) — The people of Bikini Island, forced to move last year, however, that the islanders who returned to Bikini had increasing levels of radioactive cesium-137 in their bodies, ingested when they continued to eat local coconuts and produce though they were asked to eat only imported food.

Last September, a ship returned 139 residents of Bikini to Kili, about 550 miles away, where the government is providing housing and constructing other facilities for them. The islanders consider the move to Kili only temporary, however.

"We must find a place to live until the radiation has left our island," the Bikinians said in a statement. "We were hoping to explore the possibility of living in Hawaii until we can return to our own island."

TO THE Bikinians, Kili has drawbacks. It's relatively small, lacks a lagoon for extensive fishing and has rough winter surf that makes it difficult to bring people and supplies in and out, says Robert Law, liaison officer in Honolulu for the Trust Territory.

"During the period they can't return to Bikini, they are looking for something other than of the Pacific, but about 400 remained on Kili.

Medical tests showed that the islanders who returned to Bikini had increasing levels of radioactive cesium-137 in their bodies, ingested when they continued to eat local coconuts and produce though they were asked to eat only imported food.

The Bikinian-Kili Council of community leaders met earlier this year with Susumo Ono, the director of the Hawaii Department of Land and Natural Resources, and Ono said the council might visit Hawaii later on an inspection tour.

Ono said the council said the Bikinians might want to move to Hawaii Island, the southernmost of the Hawaiian islands, the largest and the second most populous with about 78,100 people.

THE COUNCIL, Ono said, wants a parcel of land on which the Bikinians can maintain their former island lifestyle and not be restricted.

"I told them that I could not think of any place on the Big Island (Hawaii Island) where that would be possible," he said.

After he described Hawaii's job market, zoning and fishing laws, schools, hospitals and other conditions, Ono said, "They were discouraged ... but they didn't want to close the door entirely on the possibility of Hawaii being a relocation area."

The Bikinians might not be greeted with open arms, however.

Hawaii Gov. George Ariyoshi advocates a policy of controlled growth, including proposals to discourage immigration to the state.

Hawaii County Mayor Herbert Matayoshi noted: "The unemployment index is high and anyone seeking employment will have a difficult time unless a person has special skills that are going to be marketable."

An adviser to the Bikinians, Ataji Balos, told a reporter in the Trust Territory that the islanders want to be on American soil in Hawaii "so that they won't be forgotten by the U.S. government."

Conviction overturned; Court orders new trial

AUSTIN—The Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday ordered a new trial for Juan Jose Hernandez, convicted of murder in the death of an Alpine motel clerk during a robbery.

The court overturned Hernandez' conviction and life sentence on the grounds the testimony of Palmira Hernandez, an accomplice in the robbery who was granted immunity by the state, was not properly corroborated.

According to the court's opinion, Ms. Hernandez, a former employee of the Ramada Inn in Alpine, helped Juan and Alvaro Hernandez plan the robbery which took place Sept. 16, 1975.

Her testimony, the court said, indicated she placed a false report of an accident on a highway outside the town to divert the police, with the three proceeding to the motel, where the robbery took place, with the two men robbing Robert Beard, the clerk on duty.

Alvaro Hernandez shot Beard in the head with a .22-caliber rifle after the other two had left the motel, the court reported.

Alvaro was arrested for another offense several days later, and Ms. Hernandez agreed to testify for the state after police investigation. Alvaro was convicted in Pecos County of the murder and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The court said that at Juan's trial in Crane County, on a charge of venue, there was no testimony other than that of Ms. Hernandez to place him at the scene of the crime, commenting, "The record here is absolutely devoid of any such incriminating evidence."

Since the testimony of an accomplice witness was used but wasn't supported by other testimony or evidence, the conviction "must be reversed and remanded for a new trial," the court concluded.

Four A&M regents named to committee

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Four members of the Texas A&M University System Board of Regents have been appointed to a committee to search for a chancellor to replace Dr. Jack K. Williams.

Williams resigned in January.

Members of the committee appointed Tuesday include Clyde H. Wells, board chairman from Granbury, H.C. Bell Jr., Austin, Alfred T. Davies, Dallas, and Joe H. Reynolds, Houston.

Members of the board of regents also approved a measure under which the Texas Legislature will be asked to designate Prairie View A&M as a "statewide special purpose university."

Soviet workers relax with strobe lights, rock music

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Strobe lights are flashing, rock music is blaring and glossy photographs of roses and sailboats line the orange- and green-painted walls of this plush pleasure chamber.

A local discotheque? A private club? No, it's the "relaxing room" at the Vilnius furniture factory in the Lithuanian capital, designed to refresh weary workers for a few minutes a day and send them back to the job full of energy.

"We think it will raise labor productivity," said factory deputy director Jonas Urniezhis about the unorthodox experiment.

"We know that a person gets tired after two hours of work, and relaxing in this room for 8 to 10 minutes helps restore his strength."

It is just one of many new gimmicks being used in Soviet factories to boost worker morale and cut down on loafing.

Soviet industries have long been plagued with absenteeism, inefficiency and low quality of work among their employees.

According to one official estimate, some 100 million working days are lost every year due to fluctuations of manpower. That's equal to a daily absence of some 400,000 workers nationwide.

Even such standard incentives as cash bonuses, tourist trips abroad and automobiles haven't induced workers to try harder in the past.

In recent years, more so-called "scientific" methods have been employed. In the neighboring Baltic republic of Estonia, a system of flexible working hours was introduced into many factories to allow workers to be their own "time clocks" and spread out their chores.

In a plant outside Leningrad, workers are being dosed with ultraviolet rays and so-called "oxygen cocktails" to perk them up.

And to cut down on the number of industrial accidents and injuries, several Moscow organizations, including the Soviet national airline Aeroflot, have been charting the biorhythm cycles of their employees to determine their most "critical" days each month.

The need to step up labor productivity is particularly acute in Lithuania, which, like other European parts of the Soviet Union, is suffering from a manpower shortage because of a sharp drop in the republic-wide birth rate in the past decade.

So far, no information is available on whether the relaxing room at the Vilnius plant is doing its job, but a psychologist from Vilnius University is keeping close tabs on the project, officials say.

Since the chamber was outfitted last year — 15 years after the factory itself was built — it has been "very popular" with the 200 workers from three departments allowed to use it twice a day, welcome relief from the incessant noise and obnoxious varnish smell that permeates the entire working area.

"You get accustomed to the smell," said Lushka, a 47-year-old loader-driver, who has worked at the plant for three years.

She earns 200 rubles a month ($300) to support her three children.

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE

Menu of peace dinner wasn't kosher

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Guests at this week's state dinner celebrating the Israeli-Egyptian treaty were offered the option of kosher food, but the menu itself violated the dietary laws observed by Orthodox Jews.

The publicized menu featured, among other items, beef and cheese-sticks.

Alone, either would be acceptable. Together, however, they run counter to the Orthodox practice of not consuming meat and dairy products at the same meal.

So some guests faced a choice of leaving the beef untouched, or ignoring the cheese product.

The Egyptian guests, as Moslems, had their own problems with the menu. Three kinds of California wines were served — but Moslems cannot touch alcohol.

So when the time for toasting came, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat raised to his lips a champagne glass filled with water.

ceremonies, Sadat always took precedence over Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin. He met with Carter first, stood and sat at the U.S. president's right hand and, when all three spoke or offered toasts, preceded Begin to the microphone.

Reason: Sadat is a chief of state while Begin is a head of government, outranked in protocol by Israel's ceremonial president.

Rosalynn Carter faced a challenge last weekend that would have fazed many a veteran politician. At the annual dinner of the Gridiron Club, she was enlisted to deliver a traditional rib-tickling speech on behalf of the Democratic Party.

Heightening the challenge was the fact that she followed the Republican speaker, the undeniably witty Henry A. Kissinger.

Mrs. Carter proved adequate to the task, captivating her audience from the moment she drewled that it had been a pleasure listening to the Germanic accent of the former secretary of state — because "I love to hear you Northerners talk."

The first lady also told about a four-state trip she made earlier in the week and noted to much laughter that one of the four doesn't even hold a presidential primary.

Some of the one-liners prepared for Mrs. Carter by White House speechwriters were discarded, however, because they were considered too barbed.

Husband Jimmy was in Elk City, Okla., on the night of the dinner, but Mrs. Carter was an energetic political stand-in. During breaks in the program, she made a point of touring the long head table, leaving no hand unshaken.

Congress members and garment union and industry officials were meeting with Carter when Sol Chaiken, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, effusively praised White House trade negotiator Robert S. Strauss.

"Bob, all our workers certainly owe you a debt of gratitude," said Chaiken.

Carter interjected: "I can always tell when a cabinet officer is making progress. It stops being the Carter plan and becomes the Califano plan, the Strauss plan. ..."

When Carter convened an energy conservation brainstorming session at Camp David, Md., last week, two extra helicopters were assigned to haul his advisers to and fro.

The two choppers burned something in excess of 300 gallons of fuel for the roundtrip.

House plans Texas' 150th anniversary of independence

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—A House committee has started the ball rolling for a gala statewide celebration in 1986 of the 150th anniversary of Texas' independence from Mexico.

The House Business and Industry Committee recommended House passage of Dallas Rep. Chris Semos' HB 1379 to create a Texas Sesquicentennial Commission to begin planning the 1986 celebration.

The commission would have a four-person staff. The nine-member commission would be appointed by the governor, House speaker and lieutenant governor.

Semos said the legislation is an outgrowth of an interim study made by a special five-member subcommittee on tourism. Semos served on the subcommittee which held hearings during the past year in Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, Austin, El Paso and Amarillo.

Though the Sesquicentennial celebration might be centrally based in a city such as Dallas, Semos said the observances would be statewide in scope. Semos suggested the celebration could start with the Sun Bowl Parade in El Paso and carry its thrust to other cities throughout the state.

Though El Paso and Amarillo may seem remote to other parts of the state, Semos noted that museums at West Texas State University at Canyon and The University of Texas at El Paso were established as direct result of the Texas Centennial in 1936.

"We want all 254 counties to participate," the legislator said.

"Some might think we're starting the movement too soon," Semos added. "But with the Legislature meeting every two years, indeed we are not starting too soon. In fact, we may be two years too late."

Semos noted that the 1936 Texas Centennial celebration was designated world's fair status by the Bureau of Fairs in Paris. He said it might be possible for the Sesquicentennial to receive a similar designation.

"All of this takes time and we're not too soon," Semos said.

The Semos bill has a clause calling for the commission to self-destruct on Sept. 1, 1987—after the 1986 celebration.

Testifying for the Semos bill was Rep. Dave Allred of Wichita Falls, whose father James Allred as governor in 1936 played a major role in the Texas Centennial celebration.

The Dallas Chamber of Commerce board of directors has endorsed the concept of the Sesquicentennial Commission.

Earthquakes shake quiet farm town

ANNA, Ohio (AP) — When times get dull, this quiet little Shelby County farm town has a dubious advantage over most other quiet little farm towns.

Every once in a while its residents experience earthquakes.

Not every Saturday night, mind you. But the earthquakes of Anna occur more often than just about any other place east of the Mississippi River and often enough to earn this community of 800 souls the nickname "The Earthquake Capital of Ohio."

Anna has been the center of more than 30 earthquakes since 1875, when the first quake was reported, said Michael Hansen, a geologist with the Ohio Department of Natural Resources' Division of Geological Survey.

He said most of the quakes had been fairly small — on the order of 3.2 on the Richter scale, although the March 9 quake of 1937 hit 5.5, toppling chimneys, damaging buildings and knocking merchandise off store shelves in Indianapolis, over 100 miles away.

"We really don't know why they occur, for sure. People get freaky about things, particularly since nuclear plants are being constructed around the state," Hansen said.

Because people "get freaky" when earthquakes and nuclear power stations are mentioned in the same sentence, Anna has a lot of influence in Washington, D.C., particularly in the construction of nuclear plants as far away as Detroit and Chicago.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is spending about $120,000 a year monitoring the village with seismographic stations in an attempt to learn exactly what is making the terrain rumble periodically.

Scientists haven't learned much in three years of earthquake listening.

"The frequency of quakes is very low, punctuated by quakes of 3.5 every couple of years and quakes of 5 or so less often," said Fred Mauk, a University of Michigan seismologist.

Hansen said there'd been only one small quake — on June 17, 1977 — since the monitoring equipment had been installed.

Hansen said Anna was in an area which could suffer from moderate earthquake damage like toppled chimneys, cracked plaster and the demolition of less substantial structures. He said the area included all of west-central Ohio and also extended to Cincinnati.

Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt is assisted from his wheelchair into a car Wednesday after he was found guilty in Fulton Superior Court on eleven obscenity counts in Atlanta, Ga. (AP Laserphoto)

Larry Flynt found guilty on obscenity charges

ATLANTA (AP) — Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt says neither his conviction on obscenity charges nor the threat of imprisonment will keep him from selling his sex-oriented magazines in Georgia.

After a jury found Flynt guilty of 11 counts of obscenity Wednesday, Fulton County State Judge Nick Lambros fined him $27,500 and sentenced him to terms totaling 11 years in jail, to be served consecutively.

Lambros said the jail terms would be suspended on payment of the fine and on the condition that Flynt refrain from violating Georgia's obscenity laws again.

But Flynt said at a news conference after the trial that he intended to continue selling Hustler and Chic magazines here. "The judge said as long as I didn't break any Georgia laws," he said. "Who's to say future issues will be obscene?"

Defense attorney Herald Fahringer noted Flynt continues to sell the magazines in Cincinnati, where he was convicted on similar charges.

Fahringer said he would base an appeal on Lambros' refusal to allow the defense to introduce the results of a poll that reportedly showed most Fulton County residents believe people should be allowed to read sexually explicit magazines.

Flynt, who was released on $27,500 bond, said he "felt there was collusion between the prosecution and the judge."

"There was no way I could get a fair trial," Flynt said. "He (Judge Lambros) excluded all our attempts to show contemporary community standards."

Flynt, heavily guarded during the eight-day trial, remains paralyzed from the mid-thigh down since he was shot from ambush a year ago during a similar obscenity trial in nearby Lawrenceville, Ga. The charges in that case were dropped following the shooting.

House cracking down on pawnbrokers, shops

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House members agreed with the pawnbrokers' lobby Wednesday that it should be harder to open a pawnshop.

They tentatively approved a bill raising financial requirements to become a pawnbroker and denying a pawnshop license to persons convicted of theft, forgery, fraud or crimes involving "moral turpitude."

A final vote was expected today. The Senate still would have to decide whether to accept minor amendments added by the House.

If the bill becomes law, a person who wants to open a pawnshop will have to prove he or she has liquid assets of $50,000, compared with $25,000 under present law.

Existing pawnshops, however, would not have to meet that requirement.

Investigation fees for license applicants would be increased from $250 to $1,000.

Not only the pawnshop but also its employees would be licensed.

The Texas Pawn Brokers Association has lobbied heavily for the bill, which also is supported by the Texas Municipal Police Association.

Rep. Ron Waters, D-Houston, attempted Wednesday to require pawnshops to photograph and obtain identification on persons pawning items.

He said this would help police locate persons who steal articles and "fence them" by taking them to a pawnshop.

Rep. Clay Smothers, D-Dallas, argued that it would "require people going into a lending institution (a pawnshop) to submit to the degradation of being photographed and fingerprinted." The amendment did not mention fingerprints.

"You are trying to increase the bad image pawnbrokers have," he told Waters.

Waters said he didn't mind having his picture taken when cashing a check at some grocery stores.

"I realize pawnshops aren't the only places that fencing goes on, but that happens to be the bill before you today," said Waters, adding that his office in Houston is above a pawnshop.

Waters' amendment failed, 107-30.

He also failed, 89-46, to make existing pawnshops meet the $50,000 assets requirement that new ones would have to satisfy.

Murder charges dropped against Robaczynski

BALTIMORE (AP) — Prosecutors today dropped all murder charges against Mary Rose Robaczynski, a nurse accused of the mercy-killing deaths of four patients.

State's Attorney William Swisher told a news conference that, in return for the government's action, Mrs. Robaczynski had agreed to give up her license as a registered nurse.

On Wednesday, prosecutors had refused to confirm published reports that they had decided to drop all charges against the former nurse at Maryland General Hospital.

Her first trial ended in a mistrial last week.

Two more defendants draw sentences in tax scheme

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Two more defendants have been sentenced out of the 26 present and former Big Spring residents who were charged recently with participating in a fraudulent income tax scheme in 1976 and 1978.

Wednesday's action in federal court raised to six the number sentenced in the scheme. Of the individuals indicted Jan. 16 by the federal grand jury in Lubbock, 24 have pleaded guilty. One defendant is a fugitive, and another is set to go to trial May 14.

Larry G. James was given a three-year suspended sentence and three years probation Wednesday, and Jerry D. Hankins was sentenced to two years in prison.

James previously pleaded guilty to filing a fraudulent 1977 income tax return in Snyder showing a refund due, and Hankins pleaded guilty to lying to a federal grand jury in Lubbock last September. The Lubbock jury was investigating a fund scheme.

Those participating in the scheme were accused of presenting income tax papers showing alleged tax return due, and "sold" them to financial firms at a discount rate for quick cash. The returns later were proved to be fraudulent, with fictitious names.

Man's malpractice suit against parents dismissed

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A 25-year-old Boulder man says he will appeal the dismissal of a $350,000 malpractice suit he filed against his parents for allegedly neglecting his welfare.

District Judge Murray Richtel, in a ruling Wednesday, said Tom Hansen's assertions were without merit and that legal sanctions stemming from child-raising should be applied only in extreme situations. He found that no such situation existed in Hansen's case.

Hansen filed suit 11 months ago claiming he would need psychiatric care for the rest of his life because his parents neglected his need for food, clothing, shelter and love at crucial times in his life.

Named as defendants were his mother, Shirley Hansen of Boulder, and his father, Richard Hansen of Hilo, Hawaii.

"We both love our son and we just feel rather helpless, especially since the lawsuit," Mrs. Hansen said after the ruling. "Before the lawsuit, we were an emotional support for him."

Reviewing Mrs. Hansen's parental conduct, Richtel said, "the picture emerges of a parent motivated by her child's best interests using every reasonable means at her disposal to perform the task of parenting in a decent and reasonable manner."

In filing suit last April, Hansen alleged "willful and wanton neglect" by his parents. He claimed he was punished for being suspended from school at age 14 by "being forced to work long hours at menial labor on little food."

In requesting a summary judgment last January, Mrs. Hansen depicted her son as a "hippie" who was suspended from high school for selling marijuana, who lived with friends on a beach, and who declined to accept his parents' offers of psychiatric care and formal education or seek a job.

King of Malaysia dies of heart attack

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The king of Malaysia, Sultan Yahya Tuanku Petra, died of a heart attack today at the national palace, the Malaysian prime minister announced.

The sultan, an elected monarch, was 62.

The deputy king, 48-year-old Sultan Ahmad Shah, automatically becomes the acting king.

Prime Minister Hussein Onn said on national television and radio that Yahya Putra was stricken at 3:45 p.m. local time. He had been reported in good health, only slightly troubled by arthritis.

The prime minister said seven days of mourning have been declared. The king's body will be flown to his home state capital of Kota Bharu, where burial services will be held Saturday.

The king died shortly before he was scheduled to meet with visiting Crown Prince Hassan of Jordan.

The king in Malaysia is a constitutional head of government like Britain's Queen Elizabeth II. He does not have any political power. Yahya Petra was the sixth king of Malaysia under a system that came into effect after independence from Britain was granted on Aug. 31, 1957.

Malaysia follows the British parliamentary system with a prime minister, a lower elected house and an upper house appointed by the government.

Yahya Petra was elected and installed king on Sept. 21, 1975, together with Ahmad Shah as deputy king.

Nine of the Malaysia's 13 states have sultans, who are hereditary leaders, as heads of state. Under the constitution, the sultans meet every five years or soon after the death of a king to elect one of their number as king and another as deputy king.

It is possible for a king to be re-elected, but in practice it has never been done and the deputy king has always been elected as successor.

Questioning of Garwood cut

GREAT LAKES, Ill. (AP) — Doctors cut back their questioning of Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood after his attorney objected because of the possibility his client's answers might be used in a possible court-martial.

Attorney Dermot G. Foley also said he would not allow a Marine interrogator to interview Garwood as scheduled today.

Garwood, who is at the Great Lakes Naval Hospital, is charged with desertion in time of war and collaboration with the enemy in connection with his disappearance in Vietnam in September 1965. He has been classified officially as a POW and returned to the United States last week.

Recreation fee gets approval

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Senate Education Committee voted 8-0 Wednesday to permit Texas Tech University to charge students a $25-a-semester recreation fee.

It is the first such fee at a Texas college, the committee was told.

Your cat may be contagious

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors have found that people can become sick from a usually harmless parasite that is spread by cats.

Researchers at the federal Center for Disease Control documented an outbreak of the disease, called toxoplasmosis, at a riding stable in Atlanta in October 1977. They said the illness is probably much more common than previously realized.

Of 86 people who used the stable, 35 became ill while two others showed signs of infection. All of them recovered, although the disease caused one pregnant woman to have a spontaneous abortion.

The doctors said theirs is the first positive evidence that people become sick from this disease after catching it from cats. Until now, it was thought to be caused by eating poorly cooked pork or lamb.

A report on the findings was published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The doctors said that in the Atlanta outbreak, the disease was caused by eggs of the parasite toxoplasma gondii deposited on the ground in cat excrement. People apparently caught the disease when they breathed dust stirred up by horses.

Dr. Steven M. Teutsch, one of the researchers, said in an interview that house cats probably would not spread the disease as long as they were kept inside, their litter boxes were clean and they were not allowed to eat raw meat.

Symptoms of the illness are similar to mononucleosis. They usually include fever, headache and body ache that can last for several weeks.

The disease is most dangerous to pregnant women, because it can cause birth defects to a fetus. Occasionally, the illness also leads to blindness in young adults. However, most people have the infection without showing any outward symptoms.

Disco, massage parlor fire kills 15 persons

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Fire roared through a Manila discotheque and the massage parlor above it early today, and investigators said 15 persons were killed and two others were missing.

The Philippine News Agency said all the dead were in the massage parlor, which it said had no fire exit. Nine of the dead were hostesses, investigators said.
