Carter's energy plan already facing trouble

Carter's new energy plan to couple higher domestic oil and gasoline prices with a "windfall profits tax" is

tax proposal the president announced

Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

In a nationally broadcast address, the president said he would gradually lift price lids on domestically produced crude oil, leading to total decontrol by mid-1981 - a goal long sought by the U.S. oil industry.

Administration officials said the plan would add 4 to 5 cents a gallon to the price of gasoline and other petroleum products by mid-1981. But other unofficial estimates put the total increase at up to 15 cents a gallon.

Carter's address came two years

Congress as "the moral equivalent of war," a package of proposals that took Congress until last fall to pass. Carter said the action would help conserve oil by making it more expensive and also would provide a financial incentive to U.S. oil comfields

And he told Americans: "Each of you will have to use less oil and pay more for it." He said this would help move the nation away from its heavy reliance on imported oil.

To keep oil companies from gtting too rich from decontrol, Carter proposed the "windfall profits tax" on half the extra revenues that oil companies would get from higher prices.

Proceeds would be used to aid poor families, for mass transit projects and to help develop new energy sources.

U.S.-produced oil is now held at about $9 for a 42-gallon barrel. Carter's plan would allow it to rise gradually to the world market price of about $15 a barrel. Administration officials said the decontrol plan was designed in such a way as to dampen its inflationary impact this year

ing at an annual rate of about 10 percent in 1979 They added that the increase would be about two-tenths to three-tenths of

WASHINGTON (AP) - Here, at a glance, are the highlights of President Carter's energy address:

of Carter energy plan

OIL PRICING

Carter proposed a timetable for phasing out federal price controls on crude oil by September 1981. Administration officials say the rise of U.S. oil prices to world levels will add about 4 to 5 cents per gallon to the cost of a gallon of gasoline. Other estimates have ranged up to 15 cents per gallon.

WINDFALL PROFITS TAX

He proposed a tax of 50 percent on additional company profits produced by removal of price controls on oil already in production. Officials say the combined effect of this "windfall profits tax" plus regular federal, state and local income taxes would actually recover for the public some 70 percent of the additional profits from decontrol.

ENERGY FUND

Carter proposed an Energy Security Fund, drawing on some $11.4 billion or more of the additional oil tax income during the next three years, to provide about $2.1 billion in aid to the poor, $700,000 to improve mass transit facilities and $8.6 billion to increase domestic energy sources.

HEATING AND COOLING

He pledged to put into effect, as soon as Congress approves, mandatory thermostat limits in non-residential buildings. Temperatures could be set no higher than 65 degrees for heating and no lower than 80 degrees for cooling

DRIVING

Carter urged motorists to reduce their driving voluntarily by 10 to 20 miles per week, perhaps by leaving their cars home one day a week. He also ordered phasing out of free and cut rate parking now available to many federal employee.

STATE GASOLINE TARETS

He proposed setting state targets forreducing gasoline consumption, to be met by voluntary actions if possible

GAS STATION CLOSINGS

If it becomes necessary to close gasoline stations on weekends to save fuel, states could submit alternative conservation plans subject to federal approval Gas station closings on weekends would become mandatory in a state that failed to to meet conservation goals

NUCLEAR POWER

He announced establishment of an independent commission to investigate the accident at Pennsylvania's Three Mile Island nuclear power plant, but said he will continue to seek legislation for speeding the siting and licensing of nuclear power plants and other major energy facilities, including coal slurry pipelines.

OIL PIPELINE

He proposed special legislation to override state and federal laws as needed to authorize quickly the construction of a pipeline to carry tankerdelivered Alaska oil from California to Texas.

TAX INCENTIVES

Carter proposed a federal tax credit of $3 a barrel to encourage production of shale oil, a tax credit for residential wood stoves, additional tax credits for equipment and architectural constructions using solar energy, and permanent exemption of "gasohol," an alcohol-gasoline mixture, from the gasoline tax

THE ENVIRONMENT

He postponed for one year the next planned reduction of lead in gasoline. This would save the oil needed to replace the lead while maintaining necessary octane ratings.

The petroleum industry apparently is pleased with President Jimmy Carter's decision to decontrol oil and gas, but figures he could have implemented the proposal when he first took office 27 months ago.

"We are pleased with this," A.W. Dillard, president of the 1,500-member Permian Basin Petroleum Association, said today in a press conference called to respond to Carter's plan.

President Carter announced his long awaited plan on national television Thursday night

"He (Carter) has decided that energy is much more important than anything else at the present time," Dillard said in the 30-minute conference at Midland Regional Airport.

However, Dillard, an independent oil operator based in Midland, said he was not pleased with the president's windfall-tax prosposel to siphon off "excessive profits" from the industry

'The government is going to sop up everything you make (anyway)," he said industry could put that money to far better use than the gov ernment could, he said.

'I think they'll throw it away," he said "I don't know what Congress will do" with the tax money should it implement the tax, he added. An aide to U.S. Rep. Kent Hance at noon today said the congressman would vote against the windfall-tax proposition when it comes before Con-

"The windfall profit tax is going to remove the money required to produce more oil in this country (and) to find more oil," Dillard claimed

The oil man said the president in his message "just harped on the point of windfall profits ... unearned income

However, Dillard said he doesn't "think Congress will buy it" What he would have preferred the president had said is this, noted Dil-

You people in the industry have the expertise. Use that money judi

Dillard said decontrol would tend to increase the selling price of fuel but the increases are coming right along with the increases in foreign oil prices and the "tilt" in refining And driving up the price of fuel "until it hurts" is the only way the U.S. consumer will conserve energy, he said

Dillard said the per-gallon price of fuel eventually would hit the dollar mark whether or not decontrol was implemented He proposed yet another way for the government to encourage con

Referendum tops Saturday ballot

"Are you in favor of the consolidation of Robert E. Lee High School and Midland High School?

Midland voters will get a chance to answer yes or no to that question Saturday in a non-binding referendum item on the school board ballot. Voters also will choose three school board members, city council members and directors for the Midland

County Hospital District Saturday. The plan to consolidate the high schools, called Plan O by friends and foes alike, was offered to school board members again in January as a solution to the problems of declining secondary school enrollments and temporary imbalances in the two schools' student populations.

Before district staff people could present the study of the plan the board called for at the meeting, however, citizen's groups had formed to oppose it, petitions were circulating to stop the plan and irate parents were flooding the school district office and board members homes with phone calls Faced with an overflow of public input, board members called for the referendum to let still more Midlanders express an opinion on the Plan O calls for using the current Midland High School campus for all sophomore students and the current Lee High School campus for junior and senior level classes

By consolidating the schools into a single high school with two campuses, most of the problems of declining enrollments would be solved, school officials said. In addition, frequent boundary changes to keep the two school's enrollments as equal as possible would As enrollments continue to go down, proponents of the plan contend, specialized classes with fairly small enrollments would become too expensive to offer, and some classes offered several times each day would be offered only once, increasing scheduling problems for students interested in taking the classes.

Plan O, to proponents, is a way to available at the least cost to the taxpayer

According to proponents, the first year of the plan, 16 teaching positions could be eliminated because of the decreased duplication of courses in both high schools, and some estimates of the tax dollar savings are as high as $300,000.

Opponents claim the problems created by the plan would be greater than those solved. They call for the keeping of tradition with each of two high schools having a varsity team and organizations so more students can participate. Some opponents of Plan () contend

Governor wanted North

By LINDA HILL Staff Writer

Gov. Bill Clements told the Highway Department the North Loop around Midland and North Route to Odessa were priority items in his book, he said Thursday

But, Clements said, "I don't consider that intervening.'

Clements spoke at a press conference Thursday afternoon. He was in Midland for a private reception to help retire his campaign debt. While here he met with Highway Department officials to discuss plans for the highway projects.

The department this week awarded $3.5 million to purchase right of way for the twin projects, after earlier turning down requests from city and county governments involved for money to help ease the local burden.

The governor said he became interested in the project when Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. called him about it. Clements also said he had talked to State Rep. Tom Craddick and County Commissioner Win Brown of Midland. All three of those officials are Republican.

"There are a lot of funds in the Highway Department, and it generally becomes a matter of priori ties...There's a real sense of flexibility in the Highway Department,' Clements said.

However, he said, the $3.5 million is all that will be available. "This $3.5 million is your hunting license, and the ball is in your court

The four governing bodies will have to decide how to split the money. Also at his press conference. Clements reiterated his pledge to deliver a tax cut to Texans He promised to veto any appropriation bill which does not include such a cut. But, though he has said he advocates a $1 billion reduction in taxes over the biennium, he declined to name the minimum amount he would

The governor said he is "optimistic" the Legislature will pass a tax cut, because "I don't think they want to work all summer.

Voluntary belt tightening may help stem inflation

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) -Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal says mandatory controls are not the answer to stemming inflation and that business, labor and government will have to tighten their belts voluntarily instead.

"The dilemma we face today is that of exorcising a deeply ingrained psychology of inflation," Blumenthal told an audience Thursday at the University of California at Berkeley, where he was named alumnus of the

Blumenthal said actions to fight inflation must be voluntary and insisted controls distort the econony and damage free enter-

Without offering a specific plan, he said "the size of government must be reduced. Unnecessary regulation must be eliminated. The energy economy must be rationalized.

While Blumenthal said controlling inflation would be a lengthy task, he contrasted it with the post-World War II era when "presidents waged war on tangible enemies.

"It is infinitely more difficult to rouse the people to fight something so invisible and complex' as inflation, he said.

In addition to the Plan O referendum, voters Saturday will choose their representatives for the school board, city council and hospital district board of directors.

In the Place 5 race for the school board, voters will choose between Penny Angelo and Parker M. Humes. Incumbent David Grimes is not seeking re-election.

For Place 6, voters will choose from a list of four candidates: incumbent Edward E. Runyan, Alice M. Greer, Oralia "Lillie" Corrales and Raul Jimenez Salazar.

If none of the four school board candidates gets a majority of the votes, runoff balloting on the top two vote getters will be April 28. Place 7 pits incumbent Ann Page against Joyce Sherrod. The city council also has three positions before the voters Saturday, but only two races are contested.

Even though the two contested races attracted three candidates each, no runoff will be needed since only a plurality is needed to take the city council places Place 1 pits Woodrow Wilson Bailey

Two incumbents, L. Decker Dawson and Robert L. Pendleton, chose not to run for reelection.

Animal shot day set in Midland

By RICHARD MASON Staff Writer

In the wake of a growing rabies problem in surrounding counties, Midland veterinarians are planning an animal vaccination day later this month, while Midland County commissioners have scheduled the second of two public hearings on a countywide animal vaccination ordinance for Monday.

The vaccination day tentatively has been set for April 21, according to Jewell Smith, chief sanitarian for the Midland City-County Health Department. Under the proposal, veterinari-

A backfire through the carburetor caused a truck to catch fire in the 3700 block of West Wall Avenue Thursday, fire department officials said.

Heavy damage was done to the motor, inside of cab and the bed of the truck owned by La Casa Nursery, officials said.

The fire occurred about 2:20 p.m. and took firefighters 21 minutes to ans would open their offices early in the morning and remain open all day to accommodate county residents seeking to have their animals vaccin-

Final plans for the vaccination program should be completed by the middle of next week, Smith said

"We're not in danger in the city, but the counties around us are," the sanitarian said. "In Ector County, 11 people are being treated for rabies. Locally, there is nothing alarming, but we want to be on the safe side." Local veterinarians noted that Midland County "was in a relatively free area" at this time.

"There's no immediate problem," Dr. S. B. Shannon said Thursday. "This is just preventative vaccination to stop an epidemic from breaking

According to Byerly, six cases of rabies in skunks and foxes were confirmed in Midland and Martin counties in the period 1976-78.

"Advocating vaccinations is the only thing you can do," Byerly said.

According to Dr. O.C. Collins Jr., rabies are "endemic" to Texas year round. However, cases become more prevalent in the spring and summer when animals such as skunks, fox, and bats begin to mingle.

According to Durward Wright, Precinct 1 commissioner, the county currently does not have the authority to enforce animal vaccinations.

"There's no ordinance outside the city limits," he said Thursday. Wright said the proposed ordinance was a preventative measure. "There's no impending disaster about to occur, but we want to take steps to handle any situation should it occur," the commissioner said.

Howdy, bankers!

this weekend to the 6th District, Texas Bankers Association, and Midlanders are delighted to have this distinguished group of financial, civic and cultural leaders from across this vast West Texas territory as their guests.

JAMES N. ALLISON (1902-1975)

More than 200 delegates are expected for the meeting, which opened this afternoon and which will continue through Saturday.

The six Midland banks are the official hosts for the conference -Commercial Bank & Trust Co., Metro Bank, The First National Bank, The Midland National Bank, Texas National Bank and Western State Bank.

The number of Midland banks may be somewhat surprising to some of the visitors, since the Tall City had only four banks when last the association met here. This is an example of a growing Midland and a fast-developing West Texas.

Bankers always will find a warm welcome most anywhere they choose to meet, but in Midland the handclasp and the welcome are a bit more sincere and meaningful due to the fact Midland long has been the financial center of the vast and rapidly-developing Permian Basin Empire of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico, in which bankers have played and yet play leading roles. It is not surprising then that the welcome mat always is out to all bankers in the Tall standards and we will show you

The Tall City of Midland is host aggressive, progressive, cooperative bankers who are leading the way in community growth, development and betterment.

JAMES N. ALLISON JR. (1931-1978)

West Texas bankers, generally speaking, fit into this particular category and the rest of us are grateful to them for their leadership, their aggressive spirit, their vision, their cooperation and their willingness to serve others.

We would hate to think what most of our West Texas cities might be were it not for the counsel and leadership provided so graciously and generously by members of the banking frater-

We have wanted for a long time to have the opportunity of expressing appreciation to West Texas bankers for all that they have done for their home communities and for West Texas in general, and we don't know of a better time than right now to say "THANK YOU! '

An exceptionally fine program has been arranged for the Midland meeting and it is hoped that everyone will find it both rewarding and enjoyable.

It is hoped also that the visitors will have the opportunity of touring the city, in order to see first hand the growth and development which have been Midland's in recent years.

Meanwhile, bankers, we are delighted that you came our way on this particular occasion; we hope that you will have a good Show us an aggressive, time while here and that you will progressive city by today's cone back to see us at every op-

Just common sense President Carter had some success last year in his campaign to cut through the federal rules and regulations which add an estimated $100 billion annually to consumer costs.

Partial deregulation of the airlines was accomplished. leading to dramatic reductions in fares and innovations in service.

Now he is taking aim at others of the "90 separate regulatory agencies issuing 7,000 new rules every year" that he found when he arrived at the White House more than two years ago.

The focus this year, he said, would be on legislation to deregulate railroads, trucks and construction of nuclear power plants, to streamline controls over hospitals, and to improve monitoring of drugs.

The Carter call for "common sense" in reforming the "bewildering maze of paperwork, bureaucracy and delay" will win the approval of the consumer who bears the burden of regulation's by-products - loss of productivity and increased inflation.

The Lord is good to all: and his tender mercies are over all his works. - Psalm 145:9.

CHARLEY REESE Writer cites symptoms of emotional immaturity

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla .- There is a sacrilegious story about a righteous farmer who consistently got a bad deal from Mother Nature - hail, locusts, and finally a thunderstorm with lightning which set his barn on fire, burned it, and killed his livestock. The embers set his house on fire and he lost that, too.

Through intercession, the farmer miraculously obtained an audience with the Almighty and asked him what he had done to offend him. The answer was: "Nothing. I just don't like you."

As bad a story as that is, it does illustrate a point which many people have trouble living with and that is that injustice exists. Sometimes the injustice is perfectly legal. Sometimes there is no remedy. You might say that nowhere is it written that life has to be fair. In many cultures today and in other times, it wouldn't be necessary to make this point. That life was dangerous, that often problems could not be solved, that bad luck or bad people could do you in, were accepted truths with which even children were famil-

with a money back guarantee and full warranty become fairly widely accepted. Only in America could that happen because only an exceedingly rich and benign and relatively safe society could provide enough cushion against the usual hard knocks that youngsters could grow up thinking life was a piece of cake and it was theirs by right.

I think the generally accepted description of that state of emotional immaturity is "spoiled." Some youngsters grow out of it but others remain emotional runts right on into senility and beyond.

You see evidence of this immaturity in those people who absolutely refuse to recognize that some people are evil. To these naive souls, every bad act can be scribed to a misunderstanding or failure to communicate. I have often wondered of what benefit it would have been for a Jew on the way to the gas chambers to have had a totally accurate and complete understanding of the man who was sending

It's a fact some people become more despicable the better you understand them. Their souls are like the faces of some ladies of the evening. You really don't want to see them stone cold sober and in the morning sun.

Another aspect of emotional immaturity surfaces when a person has spent all his years in blissful ignorance and in neglect of his civic responsibilities. Cruel fate throws him into the system and, lo and behold, he discovers it doesn't work. The jerk is outraged. Bureaucrats are rude, laws don't make sense, government invades privacy and pocketbook! So what else is new? There is no fury like the fury of the owner of a freshlygored ox, especially one who has been indifferent or stupidly unaware of the fate of everyone else's oxen

Too much contact with these emotional runts makes you despair of democracy, but in actuality, they have always been around. We just made this mistake of enfrachising them and giving them a platform via the media which too often has all the discrimination of a $2 whore.

Lest any perennial misreaders waste a 15-cent stamp, let me state explicitly that emotional runtism is not a condition found in any one race. creed, sex, nation, or income bracket. In fact, the search for scapegoats is as much a symptom of emotional immaturity as the search for perfection. So, too, is crybabyism which is a search for excuses.

The emotionally mature person has a healthy ego with no need to become an overgrown dependent or to force others into dependency. He has no use for either scapegoats or excuses. He has the courage to recognize the existence of evil but not be overcome by it. He has the patience to seek solutions without expecting instant success and he has the intelligence to deal with injustice without becoming embittered by it.

These people, not the runts, have dragged societies and nations screaming and kicking into better futures. There aren't many around, but then there never have been.

INSIDE REPORT:

Jerry hasn't helped balanced budget movement so far

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Although backers of the balanced-budget movement hope the transcontinental trip to New Hampshire by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. will help their cause in New England, they ruefully complain that the charismatic Californian has done more harm than good so far.

Strategists for the constitutional amendment to require a balanced federal budget believe they might have won the support of the required three-fourths of all state legislatures by now if it had not been for Brown's unrequested endorsement. They are sure the amendment would have carried in California had it not been for that state's governor.

The reason: Thanks to Brown's endorsement, the amendment lost the support of his enemies and President Carter's friends. First on the list was California Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, who was moving toward support of the amendment but abruptly opposed it when it became exposed to the Brown-Carter cross-

Nevertheless, the balanced-budget movement eagerly pressed Brown to visit New Hampshire and hopes he will address other state legislatures. Their reasoning, as explained by one strategist: "Since Jerry already has done us all the damage possible, we might as well get some benefit out of his campaigning ability."

A footnote: The balanced-budget movement is getting torpedoed by another famous Californian, tax-cut crusader Howard Jarvis. The father of Proposition 13 makes no bones about his contempt for the constitutional amendment. On a recent visit to Washington, Jarvis lobbied against it with such notables as Sen. Russell Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

MEXICAN ENVOY

The question of who shall replace Patrick Lucey as Ambassador to Mexico has triggered a replay of last year's noxiously bitter Senate race in Texas between Republican Sen. John Tower and Democrat Bob Krueger.

Former Rep. Krueger, who speaks fluent Spanish, very much wants the Mexico City post. He has strong support from his influential fellow Texan, Ambassador Robert Strauss, as well as Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of

But Tower, who barely edged out Krueger last year, is not about to be magnanimous in victory and is aggressively trying to veto Krueger. Tower's reason: An American of Latin ancestry ought to be ambassador to Mexico. Tower's authority: No less than a statement to that effect made by Krueger during his Senate campaign. A footnote: For far different rea-

Efforts to move to Alaska's capital city continue

By WILLIAM ENDICOTT (C) 1979, The Los Angeles Times

ANCHORAGE, Alaska - For a dozen years, some determined residents of the populous Anchorage area have been trying to wrest Alaska's state capital away from Juneau in the state's remote southeastern panhandle, two time zones away.

"If you lived in California and your capital was in Mexico City, you'd want to move it," Anchorage businessman Frank Harris said. "That's about the way it is with Juneau and friends were making progress.

Alaska voters in 1974 approved an initiative calling for the capital to be moved by October of 1980, and two years later they chose a marsh near

Willow, 35 miles north of Anchorage, as the new site. But the best-laid plans have a way of going awry, and it now appears that the capital will remain in Juneau at least for the foreseeable future.

"If you took a vote today, the vast majority of Alaskans still would vote to move it," Anchorage writer Virginia Breeze said. "They just don't want

Elections set in Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) -The Rhodesian government today set April 17-21 for the elections that will lead to limited black rule and probably a stepup in the guerrilla war for unrestricted black power.

The election will allow all Rhodesia's black adults to vote for the first time and choose a black prime minister to replace Ian D. Smith who once vowed Rhodesia would never see black rule "in a thousand years." A black president also will be chosen as nominal head of a black-dominated Parliament. But under terms of a constitutional accord that Smith and three black moderates worked out 13 months ago, whites will continue to hold 28 of the 100 National Assembly seats and a quarter of the cabinet posts. The whites, who represent 3 percent of the 7 million population, also will control for at least five years the armed forces, the civil administration and the judiciary.

As a result, whites will wield considerable powers even after the first black prime minister is appointed a few weeks after the results of the elections are known.

Their 28 seats will give the whites an effective veto bloc against efforts by the 72 black members to tamper with the new constitution which features important safeguards for the future of whites in a black-ruled Zimbabwe-Rhodesia, as the country will be known.

But guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, who reject the accord as a sellout, have vowed to press on with their six-yearold war that has cost 15,000 lives, sabotage the elections and topple the government that emerges.

lication Thursday of a new decree permitting revolutionary courts to renew operations after a three-week suspension ordered by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Unofficial reports said several other trials were also under way today in Tehran. Meanwhile, the state radio reported that 19 policemen and SAVAK secret police agents had been arrested in the western city of Sanandaj for putting down anti-shah demonstrations on the eve of the February revolution.

The radio said the Tehran trial of Maj. Gen. Iraj Amini-Afshar opened in the early afternoon and that the verdict could be known by evening. The location of the trial was not announced, except that it was at the "central branch" of the Tehran revolutionary court. At least 13 generals already have been executed since the revolution.

Amini-Afshar was martial law administrator of the city of Najafabad near Isfahan and was accused of putting down anti-shah demonstrations in both cities.

He served in Iran's special forces under Gen. Manuchehr Khosrowdad, who was executed Feb. 15.

The executions in Isfahan were carried out less than 24 hours after the government published a decree outlining new court procedures written after the trials of members of the royal regime were suspended March 16 because Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan objected to their secrecy and

The radio announcement said those executed were Mahmoud Shaeedi. Kamal Adib and Mahmoud Asgarizadeh. It said Shaeedi and Adib were interrogators for SAVAK, the shah's secret police, who were convicted of torturing persons, and Asgarizadeh was a policeman who killed a leftist guerrilla.

The radio said the executions took place "in accordance with Article 33 of the revolutionary court decree, which allows court sentences to be carried out immediately." The announcement indicated they had been tried befre the decree was issued, but apparently their sentencing was delayed until it came into force

Their deaths brought to at least 65 the number executed by Khomeini's firing squads since he came to power Feb. 12 after the year-long revolution that drove the shah from Iran.

conviction upheld SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The California Court of Appeal has upheld the 1977 conviction of Patricia Hearst's one-time fugitive companion, Wendy Yoshimura, on weapons charges. NASA may give shuttle project to private firm

SEATTLE (AP) - Space agency officials say they are considering turning over the space shuttle program to a private aerospace corporation once it is off the ground.

Boeing, Rockwell International and McDonnell Douglas have each expressed an interest in taking over the program from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

'What we've seen so far encourages us to keep studying it," said Boeing spokesman Jim Grafton.

The first shuttle is scheduled to be launched late this year. When it is fully operational in the mid-1980s, NASA officials say, they will not have the manpower to handle the pro-

"We have over 450 flights scheduled through 1990," said Bob Gordon, a NASA spokesman at the Johnson Space Center in Houston. "It builds up, at first a flight every several months, then once a month and finally once a week. At any given time, we could have two shuttles in space and one ready to go.'

The shuttle will carry aloft satellites for private companies and other payloads, some of which could eventually form manufacturing plants on space platforms circling the Earth.

NASA officials say theirs is essentially a research and development agency and they do not want to get bogged down with the shuttle.

"It will eventually be like a truck line or a railroad and could fall under the Department of Transportation," Jim Kukowski, a NASA spokesman in Washington, D.C., said of the shuttle program.

The estimated cost of developing and testing the shuttle is $9 billion, with each additional orbiter costing about $600 million.

Kukowski says it is too early to know what will be involved in turning the program into a commercial venture, but it represents a "natural evolution."

Rockwell, the principle contractor for the shuttle, and McDonnell Douglas also are working on studies.

"We fully expect it to be an industrywide competition," said Earl Blount, a Rockwell spokesman. "It's way downstream, but NASA has invited the industry to look at it and we're definitely interested.

Teamsters, truckers stuck on 25-cent issue

WASHINGTON (AP) - Bargainers for the Teamsters union and the trucking industry are struggling to overcome a 25-cent contract difference and end a nationwide work stoppage that has forced thousands of auto workers off their jobs.

"It's tough," chief federal mediator Wayne L. Horvitz said late Thursday after more than five hours of bargaining failed to produce a settlement. "It's tough once they're out on strike."

The two sides agreed to resume their discussions

Sources close to the talks said union and industry negotiators began their discussions on wages separated by only 25 cents an hour over three years. The industry had been refusing to grant the additional money, saying it would exceed President Carter's anti-inflation guideline.

The talks, the first since the six-day shutdown began Sunday, came as hard-hit automakers announced more layoffs and shortened work shifts and the president of the United Auto Workers, Douglas A. Fraser, appealed for a "fair" settlement without regard for Carter's wage standard.

The guideline has played a key role in the negotiations, with administration officials urging the two sides to settle within Carter's voluntary 7 percent annual wage ceiling.

Fort Dix should be set aside as national youth preserve

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) - Although it seems a foregone conclusion, as immutable as the K.P. roster, the Defense Department is permitting public comment for 30 days before making a final decision to close Fort

By way of comment, which was never encouraged when I was an inmate there, I should like to propose that Fort Dix and especially the road to the rifle range, be set aside as a national youth preserve, a sort of Monument Valley of missed late ado-

Like a couple of million other Americans who were inducted there and there later separated (how I still love the military's use of that verb), I left my youth at Fort Dix. N.J

I never got to leave my heart at the Stage Door Canteen, although I once did misplace a jaunty garrison cap bought at nearby Model's there, but I the drafty old wooden barracks at Dix.

The years I should have spent hating my father, baiting my teachers, smoking pot, vandalizing my neighbor's property, puncturing my arm with needles and performing similar anti-social acts of my peer group were all swallowed up in four short days that linger in my memory under the chapter head-ing, "Turn the other cheek and Cough."

THE TROOP TRAIN full of us New York draftees arrived late at night in those bleak Jersey Pinelands. There was hardly time to grab a few winks on those chaste narrow cots, before real bugles heralded the dawn and a voice bellowed "all right, you guys," and something about grabbing your ho-

That jut-jawed authority figure wore three stripes, carried a clipboard and rarely used an obscenity where a threat to outright violence would do.

He could hold an M-1 rifle by the trigger housing in one hairy paw and fire it like a pistol. We would have followed him through hell. And shortly thereafter

Sgt. Hublein was of Germanic extraction - by Ludwig The Mad out of Ilse Koch, it was widely believed. He had a thing, almost psychotic, about arranging the combs, brushes, handkerchiefs, rifle bore oil and other knick-knacks in a straight line of diminishing size in the top tray of your footlocker. The same held for the boots, shoes and shower clogs beneath the cot, which had to be made up with hospital corners so tight that a half a dollar would bounce a full four inches. I have been in a thousand de luxe hotels since then, and they don't make hospital corners or half dollars like that any more.

UNDER HIS TUTELAGE, we learned that in the Army the cardinal numbers began with "Hup" and only went to four, that about-face was executed by placing the tip of the right toe behind and slightly to the left of the left heel, that GI clothing came in two sizes: too small and too large, that the latrine doubled as the library and writing room and sometimes as the casino after lights out, that everything on the parade ground that wasn't nailed down had to be either painted or picked up, that the coffee was spiked with whatever is the opposite of an aphrodisiac, which made it taste like whatever is the opposite of coffee, that something on a shingle was a breakfast fixture in the messhall, except on Sunday when you could have your eggs - real eggs not powdered - any way you wanted them. Some of us got religion at Fort Dix:

"All right, you K.P.s, there's a truck outside the mess hall if anybody wants to go to Catholic Mass.' We dropped our scrubbing brushes, abandoned the potato peeling machine and let others pass the ammunition while we praised the Lord.

"All right, you K.P.'s, there's a truck outside if anybody wants to go to Protestant services," We all born again Christians, excep Sabbath when we embraced the faith of Abraham and the Prophets.

It was hell on the athetists, which is no doubt why none are found in foxholes.

FOXHOLES, AT FORT Dix anyway, were dug to expiate pitted rifle bores, missing buttons, beds that wouldn't bounce a half buck and other military failings. They were supposed to be at least three feet deep, but the first one I ever dug only went down a foot because my partner in crime was a veteran goldbrick who knew his way around the system.

"That's deep enough," he decided, inviting me to join him in resting on a shovel. The young second looie just out of O.C.S. who had "gigged us," flunked us at rifle inspection, returned to check on

"Is that all as far as you got?" he demanded. "Hell no," cooly replied my new mentor. "We had it near finished till some colonel came by and wanted to know what idiot ordered us to dig holes that people might fall into after dark. He told us to cover it

.Well, don't stand there, COVER IT UP."

The adult world began right then. Three days into age 18. Next day we hiked out to the rifle range. Without rifles. They hadn't been issued yet. So why did we hike to the range? Because it was there. And we weren't

Like I said, Fort Dix was our Monument Valley. The camp opened in 1917. The fossils of several generations are out here in those 55 square miles of dust and duty.

World grain harvest may be smaller

- Major winter grain areas of the world have come through the severe cold weather in "fairly normal" shape, although there are prospects some harvests may be smaller than last year's.

Was that really a chicken seen wandering through Midland?

Midland wears a nickname of "The Tall City." But it isn't so tall that there aren't a few vestiges of the once-rural cowtown from which the towering buildings rose. One wanderer from the past Thursday was an apparently flightless fowl — a lone chicken amidst stone, glass and gleaming chrome...and at one point, a case of feathers and clucking betwixt tires and curb. It was no typical barnyard settings and certainly no place to lay an

Actually, downtown Midland probably played host to an escapee hen on both Wednesday and Thursday.

Myrtlene Bearden, who manages a centrally located office supply store, said she first spotted the chicken meandering down the sidewalk

She said she told office workers what she saw, or thought she saw, but they seemingly did not give much credence to her chicken story. Feathers gave proof to her story Thursday afternoon, though, when the misguided hen confronted a car in front of the business. Car and chicken collided. Physical damage was negligible to both. The incident, however, caused the intrepid urban clucker to retreat to safety between the Gulf Building and Gihls Tower.

There, cornered by concerned, curious and clearly amused Midlanders, the chicken gave up the razzle-dazzle freedom of big city life for security and loving care in the home of one of its captors.

Saboteurs bomb industrial plant

LA SEYNE-SUR-MER, France (AP) - Saboteurs set off three plastic charges today at an industrial plant where components for two experimental nuclear reactors for Iraq were under construction, French police said. The 3 a.m. bombing reportedly caused several million dollars worth of damage and represented the first incidence of organized sabotage against France's nuclear energy development program.

Police said the blasts, which they described as very powerful, blew out windows and much of the roof of the building in this Mediterranean town just outside the naval and industrial center of Toulon.

There was no official indication of damage to the nuclear-related materials inside the plant or of any potential danger from radiation to area residents or to the environment as a result of the bombing.

But informed sources said several nuclear-related components were destroyed or severely damaged, including parts for the Iraqi project. One was a metallic block to hold atomic batteries, due to be shipped to Iraq in a few days, sources A second lot of damaged materials included equipment to load nuclear fuel into a reactor, on order for a Belgian firm, the sources added. Also damaged was a giant lid for a storage container for radioactive materials, ordered for a West German nuclear power plant at Kalkar in the Rhineland Palatinate, sources said. French police and bomb squad specialists, carrying out their investigation in the strictest secrecy, said the bombing appeared to be the work of welforganized professionals. Officials said three watchmen were on duty at the time of the bombing but there were no injures. The Iraqi reactors, ordered in 1976, were near completion after 300,000 man-hours of labor, sources said. There was no indication of the extent of their

there was danger Wednesday," he said. "Wednesday night, it was known that an awful bash had been given the plant." Engineers were cooling the damaged nuclear reactor and removing gas from its sealed dome and its coolant system today. They were awaiting the go-ahead on a 10day plan to drop its temperature below the boiling point while pressure drops to normal.

After reaching cold shutdown - the point where the reactor poses no threat of escaping control — radiation spills can be mopped up and 250,000 gallons of contaminated water converted to sludge and buried.

Now, moments after telling reporters about the scene in the death cell, where Evans was told he would live, the 56-year-old Roman Catholic priest broke - collapsing in tearful embrace with a friend.

The relief also was evident among the small collection of death penalty opponents who had gathered near Holman Prison waiting for the state to execute the 29-year-old drifter from Beaumont, Texas at 12:01 a.m. CST

When word came down that Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist had stayed the execution until April 13, the "abolitionists" hugged each other and announced that their scheduled candlelight vigil and liturgy would be held as a "service of celebration.

Evans' life had been spared just six

But Evans, who had refused to appeal his death sentence, was not typical of death row inmates around the country, according to death penalty

Although Evans' refusal to fight for his own life was considered a setback by the abolitionists, the real defeat had come in a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision involving John Spenkelink, a condemned Florida inmate fighting to stay alive.

In that Supreme Court case, antideath penalty attorneys had argued unsuccessfully that imposition of death sentences was discriminatory in that the race of the vicitim determined the severity of the punishment. Using a Northeastern University of Boston study, they argued that about 84 percent of the nation's condemned had been sentenced to die for killing whites, while the majority of murder victims are black.

Gov. Fob James had deliberated for about six hours Thursday over a request from Evans's mother the judicial process. Evans, a 29-year-old Texas native who gunned down Nassar while the victim's two young daughters were nearby, had repeatedly asked for death to end what he called "a hell on earth in prison."

On the day before his scheduled execution - which would have been the first since Gary Gilmore faced a Utah firing squad Jan. 17, 1977 — Evans voiced repentence for "a wasted life" and seemed firm in his resolve to go ahead with the electrocution.

But, with the stay, there were signs Evans might change his mind. The Rev. Kevin Duignan, his closest friend in recent months and the man who told him of the stay, said Thursday night he still believes Evans will view the court's action as "a message from God" to try to live.

- A woman who ignored Gary Gilmore, who was to die. her son's objections and executed by a Utah firing fought to block his execution in the electric chair received both a stay of his sentence and a scolding from Supreme Court Justice William H. Rehnquist.

Why, demanded Rehnquist, did she wait so long before acting on her son's behalf? He said last-minute appeals are a "tactic unworthy of our profession" and put undue pressure on a justice to grant the requests.

Acting on an appeal by Betty Evans, Rehnquist late Thursday ordered a stay of the execution of her son, John Louis Evans III, at least until April 13.

Rehnquist said he personally opposed granting the stay and was satisfied that lower courts had examined adequately the question of whether Evans, convicted of murder in Alabama, was mentally competent to decide whether he wanted to appeal.

However, he said he had to represent the full court on the matter and noted that there had been substantial disagreement among the justices in-1977 when the court refused a stay request at 9 a.m. Thursday - 15

Cal students set raffle for pot

Avant-garde university town wants to limit arrests for marijuana smoking

By JOHN C. EAGAN

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Raffle tickets are on sale around town in support of an initiative on this month's city ballot to stymie enforcement of marijuana laws. The prize: some high-grade Colombian pot.

of marijuana laws. The prize: some high-grade Colombian pot.

This is the second time this avant-garde university town tried to limit arrests for marijuana smoking, but the first one ran into trouble in the courts.

The move is not surprising in a city dominated by the University of California, known for student activism in the '60s. The city adopted a voluntary busing plan 10 years ago and last November voters passed a rent control intiative.

On the same ballot April 17 with the marijuana initiative is a measure that would ban the city from depositing funds with banks that deal directly or indirectly with South Africa, whose racial policies have become a target in university communities across the country.

Anti-pot campaign treasurer Steve Bloom predicts 8,000 raffle tickets will be sold. He explains the prize this way: "We are saying that marijuana should be legal, and we're acting as if it is."

More than 2 000 signatures for the marijuana initiative were collected.

More than 2,000 signatures for the marijuana initiative were collected in this city of 114,000 residents with 72,133 registered voters. When-through a mixup they were filed a day late, the City Council, which supports the measure, voted to place it on the ballot.

The South African issue won a ballot spot by initiative petition. The City Council placed a companion measure on the same ballot to clarify the intent of the initiative.

Without the clarification, opponents claimed the city would be forced to form its own bank because no bank would qualify under vague provisions

Mayor Warren Widener predicts both measures will be approved. His assessment is shared by Berkeley Citizens Action, a coalition of about 100 assessment is shared by Berkeley Citizens Action, a coalition of about 100 community groups that has been a major supporter of both measures.

There has been no organized opposition to the marijuana measure, which would ban the city from spending money to enforce state and federal laws against the substance.

A similar intiative adopted in 1973 was nullified by the courts because it directed the police not to enforce marijuana laws. Supporters believe they have overcome that legal tangle by this time merely prohibiting the spending of money.

The measure specifically orders the City Council not to allow city funds to be spent on enforcing anti-marijuana laws. It also orders the council to lobby for legalizing marijuana and to "seek to ensure that the Berkeley Police Department undertakes similar lobbying."

Police Department undertakes similar lobbying."

The proposal also says that University of California police "should adhere to the marijuana policy of the City of Berkeley as established by this ordinance."

"Basically, we have such a policy already," said Mayor Widener. "We have instructed the police to put the lowest possible priority on enforcing marijuana laws. We want them to deal with serious crimes, and not hassle someone over smoking a joint."

City Police Capt. Darrell Hickman said the department made 59

City Police Capt. Darrell Hickman said the department made 59 arrests last year where marijuana was the only offense. "We don't have a written policy on this or any other thing — we enforce the law," he said.

UC Police Chief William P. Beall said he doesn't keep statistics on how many marijuana arrests are made, but he reported the 309 drug law arrests last year were mostly for pot — even though such crimes are not a high priority for his officers. He noted that none of those arrested were students, and that the vast majority were adult males.

If the marijuana ordinance is passed, Beall said, "We will try to have a uniform policy with the city police. But whatever the voters in this city do won't change the state law."

There is opposition to the proposal to require that city funds be deposited only in banks without direct or indirect ties to South Africa — a move aimed at putting the financial squeeze on that nation to end its racial separation.

That measure calls for a nine-member citizens committee to recommend steps for shifting funds to banks without ties to South Africa. Widener estimates $100,000 to $250,000 annually is involved.

Senate OKs bill to continue state board for accountants

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senators said Thursday the State Board of Accountancy can operate for another 10 years, but only if it keeps its money in the state treasury.

The Senate approved on voice vote and sent to the House a bill reconstituting the state board that regulates public accountants. The board had been reviewed by the Sunset Advisory Commission with recommendations that the agency be continued but changes made in its operations.

An effort by Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, to authorize recognition of accountants who do not take the the Certified Public Accountants examinations failed 21-7.

"There is a large group of people who have some training in accountancy and prepare income tax statements and such things. All I'm asking is that they be allowed to call themselves an "accountant" if they have a degree in accounting," she said.

Sen. Ike Harris, R-Dallas, said any accountant with 30 hours of training could take the CPA examinations and there was no need for a lesser li-

Sen. Pete Snelson, D-Midland, successfully attached an amendment requiring that all fees and monies taken in by the board be deposited in the state treasury in a special fund that could be used only for administration of the State Board of Accountancy. The key vote favored his amendment 17-13.

"They are using the power of the state to collect the money," he said. "I think the state should have a say in how the money is spent."

Recently, Snelson was unsuccessful in attaching a similar amendment to a bill that would continue the State Bar of Texas as a state agency for the next 10 years.

West opened a low club, hoping his partner would win the first trick with the jack. East would surely-return a heart, and West would be the toast of the town.

NO TOAST
Instead of toast, west got egg—over his face. East played the jack of clubs at the first trick, but South ruffed. What's more, South worked out what was going on in clubs—and understood West's reason.

Declarer therefore drew three rounds of trumps and then led dummy's nine of charts for a finesse. When this held (East couldn't gain by playing the ten), South continued hearts and finessed with the jack. He gave up only one heart trick, making his slam.

Too much brilliance may light the

Trading stamps are still big business

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Remember licking those trading stamps and pasting them onto a blank-paged book when you were a child?

The basics are still the same: one small stamp for a 10-cent purchase and, when full, the book is worth $3 in merchansise or $2 in cash.

After a bad period in the sarly 1970s because of the Arab oil embargo and inflation in general, the business is a lot more than a few stamps at the grocery or general merchandise store. It includes business motivation, world travel tours and truck stops at service centers where drivers pick up a lot of stamps.

The hardest period for stamp companies hit suddenly in 1973-74 when the Arab embargo on oil went into effect. Where service stations had been a standby part of the business, operators suddenly found themsevles able to sell everything they had and didn't feel the need to have a special incentive to get business, said Dick Sanders, district manager for Sperry & Hutchinson.

"Why did the service stations need to give away

Green Stamps when they could sell all they gas they could get anyway?," Sanders summed it up.

Then with inflation making everyone wary of costs, lets of stores began pushing discount prices.

costs, lots of stores began pushing discount prices and cut out stamps as an incentive.

A lot of companies folded as a result. Sperry &

Hutchinson, which is diversified, survived.

Sanders, whose district office includes virtually all of Oklahoma, about one-third of Texas, all of Missouri and New Mexico and Memphis, says the district did about $50 million worth of business last year, up 20 percent for the year. He hopes for a 30 percent climb this year.

The business incentive program has proven a big boost in the last decade.

I took Alice (made up name) to Aspen for a weekend of skiing because the girl I had planned to take got the flu and couldn't go. The hotel reservations were paid for in advance and I didn't feel like going alone.

Well, Alice took the weekend far too seriously, and now she insists she's "in love" with me even though I never told her I loved her. In fact, I told her up front I didn't want any serious

DEAR ABBY: I'm an eighth-grade teacher who thought your column, "Rules for Baby-sitters" was so valuable that I had copies made for all my students. We discussed your rules in class, and one boy suggested this additional rule:

"Write down the address of the house where you're sitting and keep it next to the telephone in case you have to call the police or fire department."

Oftentimes sitters know how to get to a house but don't know the address. This is very important when calling the police or fire department. -INDIANA TEACHER

Miss Archer makes so slow I thought I'd Two lovers just slipped

COLLEGE STATION-We all know Tennyson's line that "in the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love," but did you ever wonder how kissing began?

An anthropologist at Texas A&M University thinks he has the answer. It's as plain as the nose on your face.

"Prehistoric societies didn't leave us any written records of how kissing began, but we do know by 2000 B.C. something happened," said Dr. Vaughn M. Bryant. "By then, lovers in ancient India are depicted as rubbing and pressing their noses together."

"From what I can tell, two people must have been pressing their noses together one day, slipped, and discovered kissing," Dr. Bryant grinned. "They undoub-tedly found that more en-joyable."

By 500 B.C. Indian literature is full of vivid descriptions of how lovers should kiss and the thrills it would bring, he noted. The good news of kissing spread quickly from ancient India to the Middle East.

Alcohol is for cars, not people

Brazil seeks fuel made from home-grown sugar cane

By BRUCE HANDLER

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) - Brazil wants its cars to run on alcohol made from home-grown sugar cane instead of on gasoline made from imported oil. This could allow the fast-industrializing nation to escape from the economic domination of the OPEC

There are critics, though, who say the country's much-heralded alcohol conversion plan is not ambitious enough and the military-run government really hasn't gotten serious about alcohol power.

Under an alcohol program that began in 1975, the annual alcohol production here has increased from 160 million gallons to nearly 700 million gallons, with a 1 billion-gallon jump forecast for next year.

The government oil monopoly, Petrobras, is adding alcohol in steadily increasing amounts to the gasoline it distributes throughout the country, thereby making imported crude oil "stretch."

More than 700 cars in Brazil - ranging from the official limousine of the governor of the southern state of Parana to the repair fleet of the phone company in Sao Paulo, the nation's largest city now run on pure alcohol. There are plans to increase the number of all-alcohol vehicles to 10,000.

Drivers of alcohol cars say they run just as well as on gasoline and that sometimes they get better mileage and less engine wear.

A typical car engine can operate on gasoline diluted with 20 percent alcohol without need for major modification. Technicians have developed techniques for converting a small gasoline engine that of a Volkswagen "Beetle," for example - to run on 100 percent alcohol by making 40 easy and inexpensive adjustments and parts changes. The critics, however, point out that Brazil now imports almost 85 percent of the nearly 1 million barrels a day of crude oil it uses and that this year's oil-import bill will be a record, more than $5 bil-

They also note that Brazilians are driving more

cars than ever before, with annual production here now above the 1 million.

Alcohol supporters argue that the government should pour massive resources into this fuel, raising production to 8 billion gallons a year. They say plans should call for the conversion of millions - not just thousands - of Brazilian cars. About one-fourth of all the oil Brazil imports is used for making gasoline for passenger cars.

Brazil's new president, Joao Baptista Figueiredo, a retired army general who took office in March for a six-year term, has promosed to "intensify" the alcohol program and to support alcohol research. But he also has pledged to back increased domestic oil prospecting - despite the fact that Petrobras now spends a record $1.5 billion a year to drill wells at home but has been unable to increase output. One of the most persistent critics of Brazil's alcohol program is Jaime Rotstein, thead of a large Rio-based engineering firm. "It's very simple. Brazil has hardly any oil. It could have lots of alcohol," says Rotstein, who has just written a book, "Alcohol — An Agenda for the Present." Rotstein says Brazil's alcohol program is "slow and unambitious," and he sees the current OPEC oil price increases as "a declaration of war from a powerful foreign enemy." He says Brazil could become "a world leader in renewable sources of energy - immediately."

Brazil is the world's biggest sugar cane grower, and for generations sugar mills here have been producing alcohol for a cheap and popular rumlike drink. Brazil also is No. 1 in cassava root, a plant that can be made to yield alcohol. And the country has vast amounts of idle farmland that could be used for alcohol-producing crops.

And Antonio Evaldo Inojosa, the president of a large sugar growers' cooperative near Rio, says: "If the government really wants to solve the energy program, it should invest in alcohol." He claims Brazil could produce enough alcohol to run all its cars by spending $15 billion - about three years' worth of oil imports at today's prices.

To unravel bureaucratic tangles that now surround Brazil's alcohol conversion program, alcohol boosters propose the creation of a centralized agency to implement alcohol policy. As things are set up now, six cabinet ministries are involved in alcohol policymaking.

White House solar heating system is economic dog

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new solar hot water heating system being installed at the White House costs thousands of dollars more than originally estimated and it probably won't pay for itself in energy savings, officials say.

Intended by President Carter as a showcase for non-polluting, energy-saving solar technology, the new system is an economic dog, by official White House estimate.

The president began talking more than a year ago about putting a solar system in at the White House. After considering and rejecting a number of even less cost-efficient systems, Carter finally selected a relatively modest design for 32 solar panels on the roof of the mansion's West Wing, where they are supposed to be relatively inconspicuous. Construction work which began Monday is expected to be completed by May 1. The system is designed to supply about 75 percent of the hot water used in the West Wing offices, most of which goes to wash dishes in the White House staff

When the design was announced to reporters last

September, the president's cousin, Hugh Carter, who administers the White House payroll and expenses, said it was supposed to cost $24,000 to install and would cut utility bills by $1,000 a year to start. At that rate, he said, it would fall somewhat short of paying for itself over its expected 20-year life, assuming energy costs go up only 6 percent a year. "It's a little bit on the negative side," he said. "However, the lowest bid received on the project was $28,099, more than $4,000 higher than projected."

Worse, it was discovered that $7,000-worth of roofing work has to be done before the solar panels can be put in, although White House officials say this work eventually would have been necessary any-

On the plus side, administration officials convinced the Fine Arts Commission, which can veto changes to the White House's appearance, that there was no need to install a new balustrade to hide the solar panel. That would have boosted the cost $6,000 Hugh Carter insisted last September that putting the system in at the White House involved special construction problems that make it more expensive than a comparable system at an ordinary business or residential site. But he did not estimate how much of the cost could be ascribed to these special prob-

The White House solar project, however, has one large advantage over a private sector project: no visible interest costs. If a businessman borrowed money at the current prime rate of more than 11percent a year to finance a project that cost $28,000, the projected $1,000-per-year savings would cover only a fraction of the yearly carrying charges.

Hugh Carter conceded that the main purpose of the White House project is symbolic.

"Putting it here, the president would display enough leadership to emphasize his solar energy policies," Carter said. "We wanted to set the example because solar energy is the coming thing.'

The No. 1 Issue In The School Election Is Some

As unheard of as it may be, in Saturday's School election we urge you to vote to try to solve the main issues! Despite all the uproar, the primary issues are not what happens outside of school not band uniforms, not varsity teams, not choir trips to Europe, not busing, not enrollment projections - declining or otherwise - believed or unbelieved (these are mostly special interest side issues, important, but secondary) . . .

We believe the real issues are:

- 1. $80 million who is best qualified to effectively spend this amount of the taxpayers' money during their term in office?
- 2. End Product are you satisfied with the results the Midland Independent School District is obtaining? If your answer is "yes" forget about Nos. 1 and 3 - vote for any candidate - and write your school board to let them know you're satisfied (in fact, let them know they're doing a great job! They would like to hear from you!) If your answer is "no", then how you vote is very, very important.
- 3. Separate but Equal Policy can it be made to work? If so, who will be most conscientious and effective in requiring enforcement?

ISSUE NO. 1 - The current school budget is some $26,000,000. The three people you elect, plus four others, will, at their sole discretion for all practical purposes, spend about $80 million of taxpayers' money over the next three years. In conjunction with the other public officials you elect - the Mayor, City Council, Midland College Trustees, etc., they will set the value of your property and tell you how much in taxes you must pay. Your only ultimate recourse if you disagree is through a law suit. We don't disagree with this legal procedure, we're merely trying to point out the power inherent in school board membership.

ISSUE NO. 2 - Test scores available indicate that young people moving through the MISD system are getting about an average education - maybe a little above, maybe a little below - when compared with the rest of the young people in the United States. You citizens of Midland have one of the highest average educational levels, one of the highest percentage of high school graduates going on to college, and one of the highest per capita income levels of any city in the U.S. It is inconceivable to us that you can be satisfied with average performance!

Whether you are or not, you must let your school board know what you will accept! Write them!

ISSUE NO. 3 - Since Lee High School was created there has never been a candidate for the school board who has not favored this policy (at least publicly). This policy didn't work twenty-five years and more ago and it's not working now. In our opinion, Midland High is scholastically inferior to Lee now and the gap is widening. The gap is not wider because Lee is apparently only slightly above the national average. Whatever the reasons, the RESULTS are what count. We expect our school board members to live up to their com-* mitments to quality and equality, or to be honest with us and say "we can't accomplish this" and change the board's policy and thereby the Districts direction.

Being a school board member in this day is a tough damn job. The problems are large and complex. Solutions don't come easy. We want to publicly say "thanks" to those who are willing to serve. At the same time we fervently believe the election of anyone other than those best qualified to oversee the running of a $26,000,000 per year, 1,600 or so employee operation, is a terrible disservice to the young people who one day must make a living for themselves and to the taxpayer.

Being a parent, a Republican, a Democrat, a Socialist, a teacher - has very little to do with being qualified to handle this job. All wisdom and ability are not granted to persons solely by geographical location. By the same token, all candidates are not created equal. We can't tell you voters how to pick and choose, but we sure hope you think before you vote.

Insufficient evidence to convict policemen

HOUSTON (AP) - Jurors who found two former policemen guilty of conspiracy and perjury in the Randall Webster "throw down" gun case say prosecutors failed to present sufficient evidence of willful and intentional violation of the civil rights of the Shreveport, La., youth.

Danny Mays, 29, and Norval Wayne Holloway, 32, could receive up to 10 ears in prison and $20,000 lines for their convictions on the lesser charges but were judged innocent of the more serious civil rights violation

A third former officer, Paul Dillon, 30, was found innocent of all three charges Wednesday by a federal court jury that had deliberated 36

The conspiracy charge alleged the three had conspired to place a gun beside the body of Webster to make it appear he had been armed before being shot to death at the end of a Feb. 8, 1977, high speed chase with

Mays, who contended his gun discharged accidentally, could have drawn up to a life sentence had he been convicted on the civil rights charge. The other two could have drawn up to one-half that time as accessories to that charge.

Ray Bass, one of the defense attorneys, said it is difficult to see how the jury could rule there was no civil rights violation while deciding there was an attempt to cover up such a

But jurors Patricia Sullivan, Emma Jean Quebedeaux and Chester Kennard disagreed.

Mrs. Sullivan acknowledged that deciding whether Mays "willfully, knowingly and intentionally" violated Webster's civil rights was the jury's toughest job.

"You would have had to be a mindreader to have known Mays' intent," Kennard said. "You didn't know whether he did it intentionally. The government didn't produce enough evidence to prove it without a reasonable doubt."

"The word 'intent' just kept jump ing out at us," Mrs. Quebedeaux said. "There was just not enough evidence to convict Mays of intentionally killing the youth and taking his civil

The throw down gun involved in the case was traced to the police property room where it had been obtained during a suicide investigation and where records indicated it had been destroyed.

"The throw down gun, we couldn't get that out of our heads," Mrs. Sullivan said. "It was the key. No one wanted to convict the young men, but we couldn't get around that throw

"Without the gun, the prosecution wouldn't have had a case," Mrs. Quebedeaux said.

Mrs. Quebedeaux said the trial was torture and "I think we all thanked God when it was over.'

"We'd start our deliberations each day with a prayer and when we finally ended our deliberations we all joined hands and said a silent prayer," she said.

The trial began with a fourth defendant, Robert Steven Bloodworth, 25, a patrolman who has been working at a desk job since the fourth were indicted last year.

After testimony began, U.S. District Judge Finis Cowan granted a motion to try Bloodworth separately. Without elaborating, the patrolman's lawyer, Michael Ramsey, said the quality evidence against Bloodworth differed from that against the three other defendants.

On Wednesday, the government filed a motion to dismiss the indictment against Bloodworth.

U.S. Attorney Tony Canales said the action was taken because the jury had acquitted Dillon "and Bloodworth was in no different position than Dillon.

Century-old mystery may be solved

Shaggy-haired but gentle 'Wild Man' victim of cruelty

YAKUTSK, U.S.S.R. (AP) — A Siberian school-teacher believes he has solved the century-old mystery of the "Wild Man" of Yakutia, a shaggyhaired, shrill-voiced creature of the north.

According to the findings of I.E. Grovich circulated in the Soviet Republic of Yakutia, the Wild Man was a tragic victim of tribal law and pagan cruelty among the Chukchi, a tiny band of Siberian natives who have inhabited the arctic coast for hundreds of years.

Soviet scientists acknowledge the existence of the Wild Man, known as "Chuchuna," which means outcast in Yakutian dialect. They now accept that more than one stalks the frozen taiga here, but they are referred to in the singular, Wild Man.

But Grovich's book, based on 50 years of interviews and research, is the first concrete theory to explain how the Wild Man came to be.

Old and young Yakutian residents still talk with fear about Chuchuna, and the legend is passed down from generation to generation.

Ever since the Wild Man was first sighted in Yakutia in the late 1800s, the descriptions given by witnesses have all been similar in details of his appearance, manners and behavior.

Gas pumps may be going metric

WASHINGTON (AP) The U.S. Metric Board is deliberating whether to urge that gasoline pumps be changed to the metric system when the advent of $1-a-gallon gas makes some pump changes necessary.

Hats going to museum

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Charles B. Wheeler, leaving City Hall after eight years as mayor, says he plans to donate his nationally known collection of hats to a Kansas City muse-

"They're doing me a favor, taking them off my hands," said Wheeler Wednesday, announcing that he was giving the 400 hats to the Kansas City Museum of History and Science.

Wheeler, defeated in the mayoral primary in February, must be out of his City Hall office by next Tuesday to make way for Mayor-elect Richard L. Berkley.

The mayor's collec-tion, which gained local and occasionally national publicity, began growing shortly after he took office in 1971. The colledtion includes hard hats, felt or cloth hats, even an Indian headdress.

According to witnesses, the Wild Man is tall and thin, standing more than six feet with arms hanging below his knees. Wrapped in bear or reindeer skins, his body is covered with long, shaggy hair.

The creature feeds on raw meat, can run well, use bow and arrow, and throw a spear with ease. Sometimes he reportedly sneaks up on hunters' camps or settlements to steal food, or even kidnap women. Only rarely has Chuchuna attacked a hunter or reindeer breeder who unexpectedly encountered the creature in the North. Most times, the Wild Man would run away, emitting a shriek. There has never been a single report of Chuchina killing a man, woman or child here, indicating he has gentle streak. When Grovich arrived in the Siberian settlement of Olenyok in the 1920s, he was amazed at the local people's fear of Chuchina. They would not venture fice on Thursday and out alone at night, afraid of an attack by the Wild Friday from 9 AM to 5

The Evenki tribesmen, who most frequently sighted Chuchina, told Grovich that the creature was ing Aid Specialists will be inhabited by evil spirits, and it meant certain death at our office at 104 N. "O" to cross its path.

Without food, clothing or weapons, the tribesmen were forced to fend for themselves on the taiga. According to tribal law, they had no right even to speak to their relatives.

Grovich's theory explains many oddities about the Wild Man: why only men were sighted and never women; why they knew how to use spears or bows and arrows; why they never killed anyone and chose to run away; why they communicated only in a shrill scream.

The last "trustworthy" sighting of the Wild Man dates back to the 1950s, on the Adychi River in Yakutia's Verkhoyansk - one of the coldest inhabited areas of the worl where temperatures hover between minus 40 and minus 65 degrees centigrade in winter.

In the latter half of the this century, schools were established in many tribal settlements in Yakutia and natives placed in large collective farms in accordance with Soviet plans.

Grovich maintains that the Chukchi tribe's pagan ways have grown less severe because of education, and that the practice of casting out some of its members is no longer part of tribal custom.

It is not known how many wild men are left in Yakutia. Soviet scientists believe, and Grovich agrees, that most have either died or retreated even deeper into the Siberian taiga, away from hunters, reindeer-breeders or geologists.

Senators rap sale of computer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's de cision to allow the sale of a sophisticated computer to the Soviet Union is "an inexplicable act of weakness and retreat," according to two senators.

Democratic Sens. Henry Jackson of Washington and Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York also charged Thursday that the sale mocks the Carter administration's commitment to human rights.

Earlier in the day, the Commerce Department said Carter had reversed his decision of last year not to sell the computer to the Soviet news agency Tass. At the time, he cited national security reasons and U.S. displeasure with the trial of Soviet dissidents and American journalists.

One administration official who asked not to be identified said the new export license granted by the Commerce Department was requested by Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps.

"The computer system covered by the current application is a modified version of the one requested in the initial ap-plication," the White House official said. 'Mrs. Kreps sought the president's concurrence. He agreed.

The sale, however, still may not go through. A Sperry Rand Corp. official pointed out that "the Soviets had announced last week that they had bought another system." He explained: "We have the license. We don't know if we have the sale.

Pollution hurts fish eggs, scientists find

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) - Scientists say they have shown for the first time that everyday levels of oil pollution and other chemicals in the waters off some East Coast cities are killing the eggs of commercially important fish.

They said they found that these common pollutants cause genetic damage to the eggs, destroying their ability to grow and mature.

"This is the first demonstration of an impact on the spawning of a commercial species from a contaminant," said A. Crosby Longwell, who directed the study.

Miss Longwell, a geneticist at the National Marine Fisheries Service lab in Milford, Conn., outlined her findings Thursday at a meeting of the International Council for Exploration

The study was conducted on mackerel eggs in the Atlantic off New York. The area of the study, called the New York Bight, is a common dumping ground for sewage and industrial chemicals. Though these waters are very dirty in some places, Miss Longwell said several other cities along the East Coast also have heavy pollution that is probably causing similar prob-swim back out to deep water. The researchers examined chromosomes in 10,000 mackerel eggs scooped from the water in 80 spots as far as 60 miles off the New York and

New Jersey coasts. "Along the New Jersey coast, the fish eggs had almost total mortality,"

Miss Longwell said. They found that the amount of genetic damage in the eggs was directly linked to the levels of pollution. It rose proportionately with increases in concentration of heavy metals, such as zinc and copper, and hydrocarbons, such as oil and pesticides

There were no reports of fatalities in the explosion Thursday.

The driver, Rick Compton, 24, of Montcalm, was admitted to Stevens Clinic Hospital along with five of the 13 people treated there, nursing su-

Three other people were treated at other hospitals and released.

A police officer at the scene said Compton apparently jumped from the truck before it exploded after catching fire on a narrow, winding section of U.S. 52 between Northfork and Keystone, in a spot where houses sit close to the road

150 evacuate in fire's wake

SULPHUR, La. (AP) — A fire raged out of control at a butane supply company early today, and firefighters backed off from a burning 30,000-gallon tank of the volatile gas when the tank threatened to explode, police said.

An estimated 150 persons were evacuated Thursday night from a sparsely populated area within one mile of the Butane Equipment Co. located about a mile away from this community in the southwestern corner of the

No injuries were reported. Firefighters extinguished fires on two smaller tanks, but the 30,000-galion tank was still burning early way, said state police Sgt. Ron Odum at nearby Lake Charles. Firefighters withdrew from the immediate area because the liquid gas in the burning tank was transforming into a vapor and expanding faster than relief or "popoff" values could let it out, Odum said.

The tank was forming blisters, or swelling, he said.

Unmanned fire hoses were left spraying water on the tanks.

Plane rolls over 360 degrees, lands safely

DETROIT (AP) — The 80 passengers aboard the TWA flight from New York to Minneapolis had just eaten a mid-air snack when they felt the craft begin to vibrate.

Suddenly, the plane swerved to the right, completed a 360-degree barrel roll and nosedived from 39,000 to 12,-000 feet - 5 miles - in a matter of seconds at a speed apparently exceeding that of sound.

"You could feel your face pressed back and the blood rush to your head," said 22-year-old Chell Roberts, a University of Utah student who was aboard. "Everyone was screaming. I thought it was over.'

"We were just through eating when it happened ... People started to scream and a flight attendant started to cry," he said. "It's really a funny feeling to see what everybody does before they think they are going to

BUT NOBODY DIED Wednesday night. Only three people aboard suffered minor injuries.

Federal Aviation Administration inspectors said it was "miraculous" and "unprecedented" that the Boeing 727 jetliner survived such mid-air trauma before being brought under control in a desperation maneuver. Langhorne Bond, head of the FAA, commended the pilot, identified only as H. Gibson of Chicago.

"I can't think of any other incident where a (commercial, passenger-carrying) plane has done a complete 360-degree rollover and survived," Bond said Thursday.

"The miracle is that it held together under such extraordinary speed and circumstances," he said.

Bond and other FAA officials flew in from Washington to survey the damaged craft at Detroit Metropolitan Airport. The plane, with a sevenmember crew, made an emergency landig at 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Propped up by jacks, the plane sat on an airport side runway as mechanics, FAA officials and reporters examined the damage. Flaps on the right wing were ripped off during the descent. Pieces of metal hung from that wing and from the fuselage around the landing gear doors on both sides. Inside the airliner, newspapers and magazines were strewn on the floor. A large sack of used airsickness bags stood in the aisle.

TWO TAPES, ONE recording cockpit conversations and one recording radio conversations with the ground, were sent for study to the National Transportation Safety Board in Wash-

Preliminary evidence, Bond said, indicated that the flight was "very routine in clear weather" when the plane "began to vibrate, went out of cruise control, rolled to the right, did a complete turnover and dived to the ground

'We don't know what caused it at this time," Bond said.

At that point, the pilot tried to slow the descent by deploying devices on the plane designed to increase drag. But the wing flaps, spoilers and leading-edge slats proved ineffective at the speed the plane was traveling and were torn off.

The pilot then lowered the landing

"It is clear that that is the event that allowed the crew to regain control of plane," Bond said.

'There is nothing in the manual to tell you what to do," he said, commending the pilot.

age to the leading-edge slats (section missing at left), flaps and landing gear. (AP Laserphoto)

Chuck Foster, associate administrator of the FAA for aviation standards, said the plane was flying about 500 mph before the trouble hit, but in the dive apparently exceeded 650 mph - above the speed of sound at that altitude and temperature.

"I'VE BEEN TOLD that the airspeed indicator was pegged all the way over to the edge," Foster said. "If that proves to be the case, it will be the first time in FAA history that an airplane (not designed for it) had exceeded those speeds and survived."

The Boeing 727, a tri-jet airliner, was introduced in 1964 and is still in production

Roberts, a junior in business administration at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City, was sitting in the plane's seventh row with his 21-yearold wife, Louise, who is 51/2 months

They were interviewed in Minneapolis on the way back from a threeweek trip to Spain.

"At first, I thought the pilot was trying to avoid another plane, Roberts said. "I looked around me and there was a stewardess sitting right behind me, crying. I thought about my family and about my wife and my little baby I thought I'd never see."

Roberts said after the plane leveled out, the pilot spoke calmly into the intercom telling passengers, "There seems to be a small problem but we seem to have it under control.'

Flight attendants gathered near the plane's kitchen, which was torn apart by the force of the fall, Roberts said.

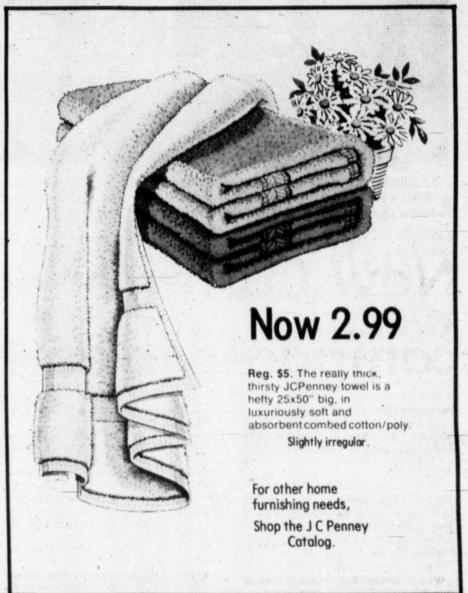

"THEY CLOSED THE curtain and had a meeting," he said. "We headed for Detroit and made one pass over the airport and saw all the fire trucks - it wasn't very comforting.'

The flight attendants "got us into the emergency position," Roberts said. "We took off our shoes, removed the sharp objects from our pockets and got ready for a crash. Then we landed and it was much smoother than we expected."

The plane made its landing about 30 minutes after trouble began.

According to the airline, two of three passengers who reportedly suffered bruises and minor injuries did not require immediate treatment. The third was treated at an area hospital and released.

All the passengers but one continued to Minneapolis on a Northwest Airlines flight.

Western nations praise Carter's energy moves

By The Associated Press

Leaders of the West's most powerful economic nations today praised President Carter's moves to conserve energy in America, the world's biggest user, saying all industrial nations could benefit

In Tokyo, a spokesman for Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira welcomed Carter's decisions, disclosed to the American public Thursday evening in a nationally televised broadcast.

Chief Cabinet Secretary Rokusuke Tanaka said Japan understood Carter acted to restrain inflation. He said the Japanese government hopes the measures will help the United States improve its balance of payments and stabilize the dollar and thus be better for other developed countries.

But Carter's announcements had little impact on the dollar during trading at the Tokyo Foreign Exchange today. One banker said traders responded with only mild enthusiasm because Carter plans to decontrol the price of domestic oil gradually over a 28-month period instead of doing it at once.

When Carter attended the Western economic summit in Bonn, West Germany, last July, he promised other leaders he would move to curb America's seemingly unending thirst for energy, especially petroleum.

Today, West German officials, recalling that promise, said his decision to end price ceilings on domestic crude by 1981 and ask Congress to impose a "windfall profits tax" on oil companies was a solid plan.

Government spokesman Armin Gruenewald told reporters Carter had written Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in advance outlining his energy

In Paris, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing said he approved of Carter's conservation plan and hoped Congress would act quickly on the question of windfall taxes.

ATLANTA (AP) - A sure way to get Americans to conserve gasoline is to make them pay closer to what foreigners pay for it - from $1.50 a gallon in England to $3 in Israel, Secretary of Transportation Brock Adams says.

Adams, who was attending an antiinflation conference Thursday, said he would continue to push for a 5cent-per-gallon federal tax on gasoline to finance the search for alternative energy sources.

Adams said he tried to get Congressto approve the 5-cent tax last year, but it was rejected.

"I think we ought to try to get that passed again," he said, adding that he had argued then that "the 5 cents would be lost in the price increase anyway and that if we didn't pay it ourselves we would just pay" it to the oil-producing nations.

Speaking at a joint meeting of the Council on Foreign Relations and the Foreign Policy Association here, Brown said Thursday that attempts by SALT foes to tighten such an accord would be a tragedy and undo years of work.

He said a new arms limitation agreement was needed to improve America's chances of nuclear retaliation in the event of a Soviet attack and to curb Moscow's offensive power.

He argued a new agreement would allow the United States to expand its strategic nuclear efforts, but also would create a stability of competition that would allow the balance between the superpowers to be "maintained at a substantially lower level of destructive power."

He said SALT II would make it 'significantly less expensive - perhaps as much as $30 billion less expensive over the next decade - for the United States to maintain that

"Neither the U.S. nor the Soviet Union has a clear military advantage and we intend to assure the Soviets don't gain one," he said.

When asked how soon a new SALT agreement might be reached, he said, 'weeks. I wouldn't say how many.' Agreement would be followed by a summit meeting to sign the pact, which then would go to the Senate for ratification, which requires a twothirds vote for ratificatione.

Brown's remarks followed the Wednesday night start of the administration's campaign for SALT when Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, told the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations that Washington and Moscow "are on the verge of an historic

Farm loans going at record levels

WASHINGTON (AP) - Loans by member units of the Farm Credit System set records in 1978 and are expected to increase further this year, according to its top officials.

Donald E. Wilkinson, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, says the continued growth in lending will be due in part to "continued improvement" in the general farm economy, including a willingness by many farmers to buy additional land.

Net farm income jumped about 40 percent last year to about $28.2 billion from $20.1 billion in 1977. The Agriculture Department says a further gain is expected this year, perhaps to around $31 billion.

The FCA is an independent federal agency that oversees the Farm Credit System, which includes federal land banks, production credit associations and banks for cooperatives.

In an annual review, the FCA reported that total lending by the system last year was a record $45.1 billion, up 15.9 percent from $38.9 billion in 1977.

Wilkinson said strong demand for loans developed in the second half of last year - coinciding with rising prices for livestock and generally improved prospects for many other commodities.

"New loans by the federal land banks during the fourth quarter of 1978 were up 27.6 percent over the same period in 1977, the highest fourth-quarter growth rate in four years," the report said.

No federal money is involved in the system's loan operations.

Sales of those totaled $50.9 billion last year, up 30.2 percent from $39.1 billion in 1977. Securities left outstanding at the end of the year were $41.7 billion, compared with $36.8 billion at the end of 1977.

Last year's business by units of the system included:

-Federal land banks loaned $6.4 billion, up 12.3 percent from $5.7 billion in 1977. Loans outstanding on Dec. 31 were $25.6 billion, up 15.8 percent from $22.1 billion a year ear-

-Production credit associations, which make short-term loans to help farmers cover production costs, loaned $23.4 billion last year, up 15.8 percent from $20.2 billion in 1977.

That conviction was overturned on appeal and a

The indictment returned here Thursday charged that Dr. Archie Herman Burkhalter hired a hit man to kill John W. Hensley of South Padre Island. Hensley, 40, was blinded when a single shot, fired from the truck of a specially equipped Cadillac, ripped through his skull on Feb. 15,. The indictment also named S.J. Wilburn, 56, and Scott David Minnick, 21, both of Pasadena.

A source close to the investigation, who asked not to be identified, confirmed that Pasadena-area officials were looking for Burkhalter late Thursday. The source also confirmed information contained in an unsigned copy of the sealed indictment obtained by The Associated Press.

Passadena police detectives said late Thursday night they had been unable to locate Burkhalter.

Hensley is married to Burkhalter's ex-wife. The doctor had previously been indicted for kidnapping his ex-wife,, Laurita, from South Padre Island in October. The 42-year-old woman allegedly was taken to a Pasadena hospital owned by Burkhalter. She was later released unharmed.

The latest indictment claims that Wilburn tried to kill Hensley "for remuneration" from Burkhalter. The doctor and Minnick acted "with intent to promote and assist the commission of the offense,' according to the sealed indictment.

Minnick and Wilburn were arrested shortly after the shooting that took place on South Padre Island near Hensley's apartment.

Both have been jailed since the arrest. Until the

The documents were brought here by a Houston reporter who said they were left in his car. He said an anonymous caller had told him to leave his unlocked car at a specified location.

First, Gorman Thomas broke his no-hit spell with one out in the sixth inning, and then several others got into the act as the Brewers scored four runs en route to a 5-1 victory.

"I was surprised things went so smoothly at first because I usually struggle in the beginning of the year,' said Guidry, a 25-game winner for baseball's world champions last Guidry had thrown just 40 pitches while retiring the Brewers' first 16 batters. But then he went to a 3-2 pitch on Thomas, and the Milwaukee hitter smashed a line drive single to left.

Judy Rankin takes lead over Lopez

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) -Last year was one Judy Rankin would just as soon forget, but ask how she's doing these days and she might reply: 'Swimmingly.'

The dominant player on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour just two years ago, Rankin was bothered by back trouble in 1978 and won only one tournament. The Midland, Tex. native played well Thursday. But, her back helped by swimming,

Rankin flashed her old form Thursday in the opening round of the $305,-000 Dinah Shore Winners Circle, clipping five strokes off par with a 67. That gave her a 1-stroke lead over shots, carded six birdies and one bogey en route to a 32-35 over the 6,272-yard, par-36-36 Mission Hills Country Club course. Lopez, who won nine tournaments last year as a rookie and has captured two events this year, had six birdies and two bogeys. Post birdied five holes and had one bogey.

JoAnne Carner, also a two-time winner this year, shot a first-round 69 and was grouped two strokes back of the lead with Laura Baugh, Chako Higuchi, Donna Young and Debbie

"My back finally got so bad last year that I did what doctors had been telling me I should do for a long time," said Rankin. "I took about 31/4 months off. I had the trouble, which was at first a muscular problem, since 1973, but it turned into a degenerative disc and was giving me nerve problems

"I finally got frightened enough to do what the doctors told me to. The doctors also prescribed exercise, and Rankin found swimming did

"I tried a zillion exercises, but nothing helped as much as swimming," she said. "I swam whenever I could. And now, although my back hurts a little when I get tired, it doesn't restrict my swing like it

Rankin, a 34-year-old who lives in Midland, Texas, had won a total of 11 tournaments during 1976-77, and in 1976 she became the first woman golfer to earn more than $100,000 in a single year. Although she won just once - last August in 1978, she ranks second behind Kathy Whitworth on the LPGA's all-time earnings list with more than $650,000 in her career.

Lopez said she was pleased with her opening 68, although she added: "I did not play as well as I would have liked. But I finally hit my irons good. I got my confidence back.

The final two rounds of the 72-hole Winners Circle will be nationally televised Saturday and Sunday.

The tournament, sponsored by Colgate-Palmolive Co., carries a $37,000 first prize.

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) - It's almost too good

Treacherous old Darlington Raceway is smiling on the competitors for the 23rd annual Rebel 500 stock car race Sunday.

'The track is so good right now, it scares me a little," said Donnie Allison who won the pole Thursday with a sizzling lap at 154.797 mph, just off the five-year-old track record. "The (asphalt) sealer is wearing off, and the track is getting tight. The car really sticks in the corners.

"I have mixed emotions about that. If it stays comfortable to drive on, fine. But it can change so fast here. You can go through a corner 100 times the same and the 101st time it'll be completely differ-

"This isn't a track you can get careless on - it'll come up and bite you."

Allison knows all about the dangers of the infamous old 1.366-mile raceway. He's never won here, often met misfortune and can seldom remember bright moments in his experiences here.

"I've always liked this race track. I'm not like some of the drivers. I like driving it. Maybe it's the challenge. I've finished second a couple of times More often than not, I've been knocked out of a win by a lot of freak things," he recalled. "But I always like the track.

"One day I'm gonna win."

A win at Darlington carries a special peer prestige unmatched by any of the tracks on the Grand National circuit. The old saying goes: If you can win at Darlington, you can win anywhere. "I feel really good about our chances here this time. I had a lotta good luck helping me to win the pole," Allison said. "And finally my crew has caught up from all the troubles at Daytona and Rockingham, and can work on improving the car instead of patching it up all the time."

Allison demolished two cars earlier this season in much-publicized smashups with Cale Yarborough. Both were put on probation for the run-in at Daytona. The probation was just lifted earlier this week.

"We're through playing catchup. We're ready," said Allison, who is still looking for his first win of the season. This is the eighth of 31 races on the

Chaps entering net tourney in Abilene

The start of spring break for the Midland College tennis teams means the beginning of lots of competition. The Chap netters play in Abilene this weekend, then head for a major collegiate tournament in Oklahoma

Friday and Saturday, the mens team will play in the Hardin-Simmons University tourney in Abilene. This competition includes Midland College, North Texas State, New Mexico State and host Hardin-Simmons. The womens team has dual matches in Abilene, playing Abilene Christian University Friday afternoon and Hardin-Simmons University Saturday

Monday through Wednesday, both mens and womens teams are competing in the Oklahoma City University Tournament, which will include both senior and junior college teams.

Coach Brian Gilley got a good effort from his womens team Tuesday when they went to Hobbs for a conference match against the New Mexico Junior College womens team. The Chap squad swept the matches, taking all four singles and both doubles encounters.

After a brief holiday, Gilley's charges jump right back into conference action, playing their final dual meet against South Plains College in Levelland April 21. The conference tournament is slated for Roswell April 27-28, and the Region V tournament will be played at Midland College May 4-5.

Lou Holtz has praise

tor trio

FAYETTEVILLE Ark. (AP) — Arkansas football Coach Lou Holtz praised a trio of young defensive players Thursday after the Razorbacks completed their 13th practice session of spring training.

"Phillip Boren had an exceptionally fine day at defensive tackle, and George Hall was impressive at noseguard,' Holtz said after the twohour workout. "We also were glad to see Teddy Morris back out there after some injuries. He looked good."

Boren is a first-semester freshman from Dallas Carter who plays at left tackle. Hall and Morris both are sophomores from Little Rock.

"We had a little bit more physical practice than I had anticipated," Holtz said. "But the defense got better today."

He said the Razorbacks worked hard on their kicking game. John Scott threw some hard blocks on punt returns, Holtz added.

He said the Razorbacks need more work on offense, though. "Our backs are starting to run better, but we are dropping the ball on the ground too much. The passing game leaves something to be desired at times.

The Razorbacks will be idle Friday and will scrimmage Saturday.

Patriots name Erhardt as new head coach

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) - The New England Patriots have kept their coaching situation a family affair, promoting assistant coach Ron Erhardt to head coach and personnel director Frank "Bucko" Kilroy to general manager.

"I want the job," Kilroy said Thursday. Added Erhardt, the National Football League team's offensive coordinator, "It's the chance of a

The Patriots called a noon news conference today to make it official.

The promotions followed a settlement with the University of Colorado, which obtained the services of Chuck Fairbanks, who jumped his New England contract as coach and general

Patriots owner William H. Sullivan

Jr. settled on Kilroy and Erhardt on Wednesday at the team's headquarters. Though Sullivan wanted to clear the choice with the club's directors mostly his own family - little additional confirmation was needed.

Erhardt, 47, is the seventh head coach of the team that has made the playoffs two of the past three years. He ran the Patriots' offense. Kilroy, 57, a former NFL player, coach and scout in several cities, has been highly successful masterminding Fairbanks' college draft picks.

"There's a lot of scars," said Kilroy, alluding to the Fairbanks mess. "Assistant coaches had been sitting on razor blades for two or because Patriots insiders, including the players, lobbied vigorously for the promotions that Sullivan accepted.

The hiring of Erhardt, who once had a 62-7-1 head coaching record at North Dakota State, ended the chance of NFL comebacks at New England of such former coaches as George Allen, Hank Stram and Dan Devine.

"You may get only one opportunity in a lifetime to be a head coach in the NFL," said Erhardt. "There are only 28 jobs. Certainly I've wanted it."

No big shakeup of holdover assistants under Fairbanks is expected, nor will there be big changes in the Patriots offense, designed in large part by Erhardt. He's the one who called the plays for quarterback Steve Grogan.

Kilroy, meanwhile, suggested Thursday that his player personnel post may go to one of his own aides, Tom Boisture or Mike Holovak, a former head coach of the Patriots.

Kilroy still is shaken by Fairbanks' decision to jump his Patriots contract, and there is bitterness that the ex-coach was recruiting for Colorado while supposedly prepping the Patriots for the playoffs last December.

New England lost to Houston, after an 11-5 season. Sullivan decided he didn't want to gamble by choosing an outsider for the jobs.

"I'm going to be my own man," pledged Kilroy, who came to the Patriots in 1971. "I got the ego trip business out of my system a long time

Erhardt came to New England in 1973 as running back coach. He was promoted to offensive boss when Red Miller quit to take the head job with the Denver Broncos.

HOUSTON (AP) -Amateur umpire Murray Strey has one game of major league baseball experience but he says their won't be a drop off in officiating tonight in the National League opener in the Astrodome between the Houston Astros and Atlanta Braves.

"It's feeling that we can do the job," said Strey, one of three amateur umps scheduled to fill in tonight for the striking National League umpires. "I've never known of a game being lost by an umpire yet."

Strey says there is no danger he'll be imtimidated by the major league players after surviving the disapproval of Pittsburgh's Dave Parker last year.

The rejuvenated Oilers, who lost to the Steelers in the American Football Conference title game last season, will play the Cowboys in Texas Stadium on Nov. 22. Thanksgiving Day. Houston plays Pittsburgh Sept. 9 in Pitts-burgh and Dec. 10 in the Astrodome.

Fans are behind the Umpires

By BERT ROSENTHAL AP Sports Writer

Outside Yankee Stadium, about a dozen major league umpires were picketing and some fans were yelling, 'We're in your corner," a twist of fate for the usually beleaguered arbiters. Inside the stadium, where the New York Ynkees were beginning teir quest for a third straight world championship against the Milwaukee-Brewers, four replacment umps, including a sales representative for a distillery and a forklift salesman, were preparing to work the game.

REPLACEMENT UMPIRES also worked Thursday's four other major league openers - Toronto at Kansas City and Cleveland at Boston in the American League and San Diego at Los Angeles and New York at Chicago in the National League. But there was no other picketing by the 52-man crew of striking major leagues umpires, whose only working member is

"I expected them to be yelling, 'We hope you'll get a raise so you can buy glasses,"' Bill Kunkel, a former Yankees' pitcher and an 11-year umpiring veteran, said about the surprisingly sympathetic crowd in front of Yankee Stadium. "You know, stuff like that. But they didn't. Nobody said a single negative thing. I loved it, as much as I love umpiring.

Inside the stadium and at the other parks, there also was surprisingly little umpire baiting ... despite the relatively inexperienced umpires working the games.

ONE OF THE few negative notes was expressed by San Diego Manager Roger Craig. "I think they cost us a run in the first inning," Craig said. He was referring to a play in which the Padres' Gene Richards was called out for trying to stretch a single into a double. Craig said he thought Richards was safe. But Craig added, "I thought overall they did a good job.'

He might not have been so easy on them if the Padres had not beaten the Dodgers 4-3.

The Dodgers-Padres umpiring crew included Fred Brocklander, who has worked in the Eastern League and the Pacific Coast League and signed a major league contract Thursday; Jim Scott, a property manager in Vernon, Calif., who has umpired college games; Charlie Lupo, a restaurant manager, and Boyd Mauer, a high school English Department chairman.

The Yankee Stadium crew included Al Forman, a National League umpire from 1961-65 and now a sales representative for a distillery; Fred Stenn, who worked in the American Association and briefly in the American League last year; Jimmy Dunn, the forklift salesman, and Richie Lazar, who is in the catering busi-

That leaves $26,000, and the government took $4,-600 of that. At the end of the year, I'm ashamed to show my wife what I made for being away from home for 200 days.'

BESIDES KUNKEL, other umpires protesting outside Yankee Stadium were Marty Springstead, Al Clark and Dave Garcia of the AL, and Shag Crawford, Nick Colosi, Frank Pulli, Terry Tata, Dick Stello, Eric Gregg and Andy Olsen of the NL.

Nuggets topple New York as streak continues

By ALEX SACHARE AP Sports Writer

"Three weeks ago I didn't even have it in my mind that we might win the division title," says Denver Coach Donnie Walsh.

'Then, when George McGinnis got hurt (last Friday), I thought for sure we wouldn't do it. But that injury has turned out to be a motivating factor for us. We have a lot of veterans and they have responded to the challenge."

The Nuggets, led by veterans Dan Issel and Charlie Scott, posted their ninth victory in 10 starts Thursday night by beating the New York Knicks 114-107 to climb into a tie for first place with Kansas City in the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division. At stake is a bye through the dangerous best-of-three first round of the playoffs.

In the only other NBA game Thursday night, the Detroit Pistons rallied to defeat the New Orleans

Denver has two road games left, at Boston Friday night and Philadelphia Sunday, while Kansas City plays at home against New Jersey Friday night before finishing its season at Indiana Sunday.

"We're not really concerned about the division title," claimed Issel, the 6-foot-9 center who had 20 of his 28 points in the second half and also grabbed 15

"What's most satisfying is that we're playing our best basketball of the year going into the playoffs," he added. "This hasn't always been true of Denver.

'Everyone has given up worrying about his individual game. The primary goal has become winning, and unfortunately that wasn't the case earlier in the The Nuggets are 18-9 after a nerve-wracked Larry

Brown resigned as coach on Feb. 1 and was replaced by Walsh, his top aide.

"Larry was very uptight," Issel said. "Donnie is more relaxed and easy-going, and he's transferred that to the club.

The Nuggets have now won two of their three starts since losing McGinnis because of torn ligaments in his left ankle.

'When that happened it became a do-or-die situation for the rest of us," observed Nuggets guard David Thompson

Pistons 120, Jazz 104

Detroit forced 12 turnovers in the final quarter and outscored New Orleans 42-16 in the last period to win. Leon Douglas and Terry Tyler got nine points apiece in that final period.

The defeat dropped New Orleans' record to 26-55 and assured the Jazz of finishing with the worst

Texas auto dealers may be Doggett's next target

Youngest Texas senator finishes fillibuster, prepares for another

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texas automobile dealers appear the target of Sen. Lloyd Doggett's next filibuster.

Doggett, D-Austin, led a 15-hour attack Tuesday night and Wednesday against changes he said would dilute the Consumer Protection Act.

He donned his tennis shoes again Thursday in preparation for a blast against letting auto dealers charge $35 for paperwork in car sales. But the youngest senator agreed to postpone his performance until Monday, giving senators a weekend break.

'There is absolutely no reason to add this on," Doggett, 32, said after the Senate adjourned for the weekend. "The tax collectors are only getting paid 65 cents for this work. For what reason should we put on $35 except that Gene Fondren wants it passed.'

Fondren is chief lobbyist for the Texas Automobile Dealers Association. Sen. Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, said the auto dealers asked him to introduce the bill authorizing a $35 documentary fee.
"For some years, both state and federal authorities recognized the authority of auto dealers to make these charges," Creighton said. "But a cou-

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Final passage is expected Monday on a House bill that would remove the age and sex restrictions on the legal definition of "sexual contact" with the breasts. The House voiced its tentative ap-

"I think this is a way we can have a juvenile make restitution. It may be a way to curb crime," Rudd said.

"You mean you are going to make these little hoodlums responsible for the damage they did?" asked Rep. Forrest Green, D-Corsicana, with mock horror

"I'm going to try," Rudd said. Current law merely makes a parent liable for malicious damage caused by a child, which leaves it up to the property owner to take the parent to court and collect if he can.

The bill also would let a judge order a parent who had contributed to his child's delinquent conduct "by a willful act or omission" to change his

Rep. Luther Jones, D-El Paso, the sponsor, said the bill "recognizes that the juvenile problem is intimately related to the family or caused by the family." He said the bill was endorsed by Gov. Bill Clements and the the Texas Family and Juvenile Judges Association.

Rep. Melchor Chavez, D-Harlingen, was less successful with his bill setting up a statewide juvenile probation system under the present Texas Adult Probation Commission.

The bill would have made $14 million in state funds available in 1981 and more in subsequent years - to county juvenile probation offices that complied with standards set by the commission.

House members defeated it, 65-66, but plans reportedly were in the works to develop a compromise and then ask the House to reconsider.

Washington distributed a letter from Ron Jackson, executive director of the Texas Youth Council, opposing

Jackson said he feared many counties simply would substitute state dollars for local probation dollars, with no net improvement in juvenile prople years ago; the documentary charges were found to be in violation of the federal Truth in Lending Act."

It helps the consumer if a dealer does all the paperwork connected with title transfer, registration and license fees, the sponsor added.

"People and paper cost money in this day and time," Creighton said.

"If this bill passes, it would raise the amount of money you have to pay down on a car," objected Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur. Dealers should absorb such costs into their overhead, added Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, D-Galveston.

"By passing this, the Legislature would be saying that we favor such a fee, yet a dealer is collecting that now because you know he's not selling that car at a loss," Schwartz said. "The downtown merchants don't come down here and ask for an overhead charge."

The Galveston senator then asked to "put a call" on the Senate to prevent anyone from leaving while Doggett hooked a microphone around his

"It's a good move. It'll get us more time to prepare," said Doggett. He said he and several other senators had amendments to offer and debate the same procedure used Tuesday.

Documentary fees have been ruled illegal if they are not disclosed, Doggett said. But auto dealers feel they need special authorization to charge the fee, even if specified.

A class action suit has been filed against seven Fort Worth auto dealers, seeking to have documentary fees declared illegal as well as a court order requiring refunds to thousands of customers. The Texas Tax Assessor-Collectors Association opposes the fees.

"We think the public would be misled into incorrectly believing that the fee is for the office of county tax assessor-collector since the preparers are sometimes unsalaried deputies appointed for the dealers' convenience," Mae Barnes, association president, wrote the chairman of a House committee considering companion legislation.

He said Congress is now considering legislation to place mandatory cost controls on hospitals which do not hold cost increases to a 9.7 percent annual rate by the end of 1979.

About 150 people attended a health cost conference Wednesday with President Carter and Department of Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano, he sald.

House spending committee moves in secret toward final decision

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A snappish and log-rolling House Appropriations Committee held a brief and possibly illegal closed meeting Thursday as it moved toward a final decision on the state budget bill.

Committee members decided late Thursday to join the rest of the the Legislature in a long weekend and not return to work until Monday morn-

A number of decisions remain to be made on higher education and special provisions, called riders.

On a motion by Rep. Bill Heatly, D-Paducah, the committee went into secret session briefly to talk about college presidents' salaries.

"In executive session, we discussed the problem of discussing salaries of people who were in the room. ... We decided after we went into executive session not to discuss any particular salaries," said Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, committee chairman.

The Texas Open Meetings Act, House rules and the state constitution require legislative committees to do their work in public.

"I guess you could say I made a mistake," Presnal said of the closed meeting.

Rep. Don Rains, D-San Marcos, chided Heatly for opposing a $2.2 mil-lion proposal to help state colleges with declining enrollments. Heatly had moved to add $29 million in startup money for a new campus of San Jacinto Junior College

"This is a lot more critical than starting a new campus," Rains told Heatly accused the eight declining colleges of trying to change rules they had supported for years.

'The formula (for college financing) is two decades old. They've never said they want to hold the line on this even through they were growing. Now that they are losing, they want to play another game ... We shouldn't change the game they have been playing and had a pep squad for the past 20 years," he said.

Drink bill attacked in Texas House

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Sen. Walter Mengden ended up Thursday defending his bill to raise the state's drinking age to 19 against attacks it would contribute to teenage unemployment. 'There are a lot of 18-year-old high school seniors and college freshmen trying to work their way through school, but under this they couldn't work in a restaurant that serves beer," said Sen. Gene Jones, D-Houston. Mengden, R-Houston, told the Senate that school teachers and administrators have complained of drunk students attending classes and showing up intoxicated at school-sponsored acti-

"All the education associations in this state favor a higher drinking age," Mengden said. His bill would raise the state drinking age from 18 to 19. The legal limit was lowered in 1973 from 21 to 18. 'This is the Unemployment Act of Texas of 1979," quipped Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas. Even before the drinking age was lowered from 21, Jones said 18year-olds could work in places that served alcoholic beverages. Mengden's bill had been reported favorably from the Senate State Affairs Committee. But committee member Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said employment restrictions never were discussed "I don't believe the question of employment opportunities ever came up," Brooks said.

The sponsor agreed to postpone Senate consideration until Tuesday to allow him to remove the work restrictions.

However, some senators opposed the entire concept.

TORONTO (AP) - Margaret Trudeau says the death of her closest friend, Queen Alia of Jordan, was the final event that led to the end of her unhappy marriage to Prime Minister Pierre Eliott Trudeau.

She said she met the queen when King Hussein visited Canada in 1974. 'Within hours, she had taken me in hand, forced me to laugh about our lives, poked fun at my fears," Mrs. Trudeau wrote in the latest serialized installment of her autobiography, "Beyond Reason."

When told of the queen's death in a 1977 helicopter crash, "I started shaking," she said. "Tears poured down my face. It was too much for me. It made a mockery of all our conversations, the way Alia had kept insisting that everything would turn out well for both of us." After that, "Pierre and I discussed our future calmly. We agreed that nothing should happen precipitately. I would leave for a 90-day trial separation — and we would take it from there."

Mrs. Trudeau also wrote that she began smoking marijuana as a reaction to the jealous and brooding manner of her husband. Faculty strike at Boston University enters second day; Talks stalled

BOSTON (AP) - Negotiations were stalled as a faculty strike entered its second day at Boston University today, disrupting classes for many of the school's 25,000 students.

"The place is closed," said Pat Jackson, a teachers union spokesman who claimed at least 80 percent of classes were canceled Thursday, the first day of the walkout.

A university spokesman, Wes

Christenson, estimated 50 percent of the classes had been canceled, with none in session in the College of Liberal Arts but all operating in the engineering school. Striking teachers claimed at least 400 of the 800 full-time faculty had joined the strike by the American Association of University Professors. Clerks and secretaries also walked out to support the faculty strike.

Blind mechanic 'listens, feels'

By KEN HERMAN

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) -Valeriano Silva is a darn good auto mechanic but you'll have to forgive him if he takes a bit long to fix your late model car.

The 68-year-old South Texan admits the newer cars give him a little trouble. He's more comfortable working on older vehicles.

But that's understandable for a man who has not seen a car since Detroit introduced its 1948 models.

"I always worked long hours, day and night. Little by little I just went blind. The doctors said they didn't know why," Silva said as he worked on a car in the garage behind his

Peter Gennaro dances to the top

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) - It is said Peter Gennaro, a successful Broadway choreographer, began his career as a kid who tap-danced for change in the streets of New Orleans. You tell him this, he laughs.

"Yes," people say I danced on the streets for nickels," he says. His brown eyes twinkle. "Well — I didn't. But I did dance a lot of my father's tavern. And people used to give me coins for it."

Gennaro, a short, energetic man with pepper-grey hair, currently earns his coins choreographing "Carmelina," a new musical opening here Sunday. His previous effort: The hit musical, "Annie."

He got in the business 31 years ago, dancing with the San Carlo Opera, where he met and wed his wife, His career might have begun earlier, in 1946, when he auditioned for "Call Me Mister," a musical based on Army life in World War Two. The show was produced by an Army pal, actor Melvyn Douglas. You never will guess who was the featured hoofer in the Army Special Services troupe Douglas ran in Calcutta, India. Alas, sighs Gennaro, son of immigrants from Sicily, "when I auditioned, the choreographer didn't think I was good enough. So I enrolled in the American Theater Wing here for two years. "I studied everything, but my aim was to be a dancer. I wanted to be Fred Astaire, like everybody

The post seemed to be filled. But Gennaro soon was working steadily, hoofing in shows like "Pajama

Game" and "Bells Are Ringing" before his great leap forward into choreography in 1955. The show afoot: "Seventh Heaven." Then came co-choreography on a biggie, "West Side Story," then solo work on "Fiorello," "The Unsinkable Molly

Brown," and several others that, ah, sank. He also logged five years as the Radio City Music Hall's choreographer, plus TV, where his sprightly, often funny work still appears. It was featured in the 1960s on NBC's "Perry Como Show." Question: How does a guy go about choreographing a show after he's read the script, heard the music and gotten a rough idea of things? Well, if you want to be formal, you can use a dance notation system called Labonotation, says the dancemeister: "I studied it in school, but it's too complicated for me. I use my own system.

"I scribble on scripts to get what I want. I also draw patterns on a floor plan of the stage. It's like those football diagrams you see, with little arrows going every which way.'

Enter the dancers to learn his steps. They must be lively upstairs, too, as change is constant: "I pick up thing very quickly, a step comes to me very fast. Sometimes I have trouble getting it across, because before they've learned it, I've forgotten

He grinned. "So that's why I have to have an assistant, to take it all down." His aide in "Carmelina" knows all about this problem. She's his daughter, Liza, and also is dancing in the show. When the steps are learned, the show is set and the curtain finally rises, what does a choreographer then have to worry about?

"We all have one overriding fear. And that is, we want every number to stop the show. And when they don't..." Peter Gennaro's voice trailed off. He commenced laughing, mocking the threat of doom.

"But you can't stop the show unless you have great material to dance to."

'Beach Boys' hang on

By YARDENA ARAR

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - If truth in advertising standards applied to names of music groups, the Beach Boys would be in serious trouble

True, two of them live at the beach, but let's face it: They've barely sung about it for a while. And even the broadest definition of a boy would have to be stretched to include five males who are well into

But for most of the fans who have followed them since the height of the early 1960s surfing craze, the Beach Boys have always been more than a name anyway. They are a state of mind, a symbol of a carefree, sunwashed lifestyle whose weightiest concerns are wheels, weather and women. Make that

It's been a long time now since the Beach Boys have rocked the record charts, and there are those who say their continued efforts only prove that maybe it is better to quit while you're ahead.

The Beach Boys disagree.

'Success is an ongoing thing. You don't have more or less with the Beach Boys," says Al Jardine, sitting with fellow Beach Boys (Men?) Mike Love and Carl Wilson in a darkened conference room at their publicists' Beverly Hills digs.

"I don't look at charts and gauge our success or our endurance by that. Some people may say, 'I'm as big as my last thing.' But I think we're beyond

Jardine has a point. In this age of the instagroup listen to it once and then it's gone - there's something solid and comforting about seeing the Beach Boys' name on a new album.

At least you know what to expect - rich harmonies featuring boyish-sounding lead vocals and those signature falsetto flourishes.

There's only one surprise on their latest release, "L.A. (Light Album)" and considering today's musical climate it's not that big a shock: One of the tracks, "Here Comes the Night," is disco.

"We're not going disco," cautioned Wilson. "ONE of the cuts on the album is a disco cut. It was Bruce's idea to do it," he adds, throwing the ball to quasi-Beach Boy Bruce Johnston.

Johnston, for those who haven't followed the group closely, played substitute falsetto for onetime head Beach Boy Brian Wilson on tours from 1965 to 1972. A producer and songwriter of no mean talent - he wrote "I Write the Songs" for Barry Manilow -Johnston is apparently back with the group for

"It's the best time to do it," Johnston said, rising to the defense of his disco brainchild.

"Because it's out there, it's happening. I keep telling the guys it's like a costume to wear for one number if we were doing a show. It was a chance to use that format to have a long cut on our album which enabled us to stretch out our vocals and have kind of an iiteresting corner of the album.'

That business dispensed with, the conversation turns to the subject that has dominated Beach Boy talk for quite a few years now: The mental and physical well-being of Brian Wilson, the group's founder and resident eccentric genius.

Wilson's problems - ranging from overweight and deafness in one ear to drug abuse and writer's block sent him into an 11-year withdrawal from public life. It was welcome news when the big man with the magic falsetto returned to active duty in

But it's doubtful that he'll ever be the guiding force that he was in earlier years.

"He sang on a good deal of the tunes (on "L.A."), and wrote and arranged, but his involvement level is not up to what it has been on other albums," said Carl, the youngest of the three Wilson brothers

It appears Brian will continue to tour with the group. "It'll be a surfing bonus," joked Johnston. "We'll have the battle of the falsettos."

Irish group makes debut in 'Playboy'

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) - The Irish Ballet Company made its American debut Wednesday night, and its dancing was so infectious that at least one member of the audience kicked up his heels in imitation during inter-

The dance was more traditionally Irish than classical ballet, enhanced by music that was a full partner in creating an evening of Gallic charm.

The full-length "The Playboy of the Western World," based on the J.M. Synge play, will be danced at each performance. It was choreographed by Joan Denise Moriarty, who set up a ballet school in Cork in 1947 and founded the Irish Ballet Company in 1973.

"Playboy" is full of feisty jigs and other Irish dance steps. The company told its story well with a minimum of mime.

The last act begins with all-out dancing, and the story is all but forgotten for a time. Then the plot reasserts itself: Christy wins the pony race, his Dad turns up alive; and Pegeen mourns her loss of the only playboy of the Western world.

Anna Donovan, a healthylooking girl and a lusty dancer, and Sean Cunningham, who can swagger or cower, danced the principal roles, well supported by the other dancers.

The Chieftains, seven men who play Irish airs on such instruments as the Uillean pipes, the flute, fiddle and tin whistle, are providing the music for the two-week engagement at the City Center.

The group organized the score for the dance, including the love-ly "The Ladies of Ireland," which they did in the movie "Barry Lyndon."

Syrup makers revive time-honored tradition

By STRAT DOUTHAT

RONCEVERTE W.Va. (AP) - Wendell and Emily Holswade watched with smiles as their son Chris grabbed a spoon and headed for a big pot that sat simmering on a wood-burning stove in the kitchen of County home Standing on tiptoes, 11year-old Chris stuck the spoon into the pot and scooped up some of the clear, thin liquid. Then, with a smile, he took a long, slow sip.

Although he didn't know it, Chris Holswade had just performed a time-honored ritual, one that dates back to the days of the early settlers. Like countless thousands of children before him, he was "testing" the maple syrup.

But unlike the settlers, who learned from the Indians how to make the naturally delicious concoction, Chris' father taught himself the finer points of maple sugarmaking.

"I learned when I was a boy, growing up near Spencer," said Holswade, still watching his son gingerly taste the simmering syrup. "I taught myself by trial and error.

A FRIENDLY, soft-spoken man of 45, Holswade brought his family back to West Virginia in 1974, after battling the pressures of urban life in Alexandria, Va., for 12 years. And among the first things they did, after settling in an old house once owned by Emily's father, was begin tapping maple trees that abound on the small, hillside farm.

"We got two gallons of syrup the first year and three quarts the next year," said Mrs. Holswade, who was raised in a house at the bottom of the hill. "But the next two winters were too cold and we didn't make syrup. This winter was of plum trees and dwarf apple trees, Holswade, a laboratory technician, explained how he takes the maple sap. "Using a brace and bit, I drill a hole an inch in diameter about a foot from the ground," he said. "I go in about three inches. Then, I insert a piece of threaded plastic pipe fitting in the hole and place a gallon jug under the pipe to catch the sap. If the conditions are right, the jug will fill up in four or five hours.

Conditions weren't right on this day, howev-

"Too cloudy," Holswade said, as he and his son examined a partially filled jug on a rock be neath a plastic tap. "The sap runs best on sunny days when the wind is coming from the west. Also, you get more sap if you place your tap on the southwest side of the tree. I've found that the flow is considerably less on the north side."

Brooks became comic despite early aversion

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - As a boy, Albert Brooks shunned the ambition of becoming a comic - "it had overtones of playing the lounges in Vegas and being the opening act for Lena

His reluctance was perhaps natural. His father was Harry Einstein, known to radio listeners as Parkyakarkus. He played second banana to Eddie Cantor, later had his own radio show, even died in the harness while making jokes at a Friar's Club dinner for Lucille Ball and Desi

Growing up in the high rent district of Beverly Hills, Albert became a best friend of Rob Reiner, and the pair listened for hours to the at-home drolleries of Carl Reiner, Mel Brooks and other funnymen. Another close friend was Larry Bishop, son of Joev.

"So when I enrolled at Carnegie Tech, I considered myself an actor, not a comic or comedian," says

Inexorably, he was drawn to comedy, and now he has enjoyed the ultimate ego trip: Directing a movie called "Real Life."in which he stars as himself, a comedian named Albert Brooks.

The Paramount release tells of a research crew led by Brooks that invades the life of a Phoenix family to photograph the events of a year. The worst happens.

The veterinariaan father (Charles Grodin) loses a prize horse by a mis-take on the operating table. The wife (Frances Lee McCain) gets upset with her husband and makes a play for the research leader. When she visits her gynecologist, he turns out to be a baby-seller who has been exposed on "60 Minutes."

Brooks off-camera is a more gently persuasive man of 31 years. While he eschews the nerviness of his comedic self, he admitted that it took three years of "gung ho" to get "Real Life"

The feature had its beginnings when Brooks was asked to emcee "Saturday Night Live." When he declined, he was asked what he would like to do for the NBC show. "Make movies," he replied.

Brooks produced six short films for the first season of "Saturday Night Live." Some were puzzling, some were outrageously funny, particularly his satire of TV network promos, 'Super Season."

Since movie studios were receptive to comedy films, Brooks decided to try his hand at the long form. He dropped out of performing three years ago and searched for a story idea. After a go-around with the theme of the encounter movement, he was inspired by the public television series "An American Family," which reported the happenings of the Bill Louds of Santa Barbara.

"I guess what really motivated me was the quote by Margaret Mead," said Brooks. He includes the anthropoligist's remark in the foreward to the movie; she termed the series "as new and as significant as the invention of drama or the novel. ...

Brooks wrote the script with Monica Johnson and Harry Shearer, then spent eight months in search of financing — "I spent a lot of time in the Beverly Hills Hotel talking to Texans." He finally found an angel in Jonathan Kovier, co-owner of the Chicago Bulls pro basketball team. "Real Life" was filmed in six and a half weeks in Phoenix and Los Angeles during late 1977. The budget: "Slightly under a million." Brooks spent seven months in the cutting room, then offered it for release. Warner Brothers, Universal and Paramount said yes, Paramount made the best offer.

Amoco stakes Oil industry spokesmen have mixed reactions

By MARK POTTS

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil industry officials praised President Carter's decision to gradually lift price controls on domestic crude oil. But they also criticized his proposal to tax the "windfall profits" that would result, saying the tax would virtually negate any benefits from decontrol. Price decontrol - which is expected to add several cents a gallon to the price of gasoline by the time it is fully implemented in September 1981 - is designed to encourage exploration for more oil. And the higher price, it is hoped, will discourage consumption somewhat.

Gulf Oil Corp., in a statement released after Carter's speech Thursday night, said the decontrol proposal was "a step in the right direction. Gulf pledges to use any resulting revenues from decontrol to develop more energy resources." Gulf called the proposed windfall profits tax "unnecessary," and added, "Existing tax laws will provide additional tax revenue from increased oil prices resulting from decontrol." Gulf claimed current tax and royalty payment laws would erase half of any windfall profits resulting from crude oil decontrol. But many other firms - including Exxon, the nation's largest oil company - withheld comment on the speech, other than to say that the proposals so far were too vague and more time was needed to study

Most of the points outlined by Carter had been expected by oil company executives, and several - including domestic crude oil price decontrol - represented the fruits of intense lobbying by the oil industry.

Charles DiBona of the American Petroleum Institute, a Washingtonbased industry group, said, "(Carter's) decision to start removing federal controls on the price of domestic crude oil is a significant and necessary step toward increased domestic petroleum production, increased conservation, more rapid development of other American energy resources and eventual reduction of our dangerous dependence on imported oil."

Mobil Corp, said: "We've been calling for gradual decontrol since 1974. We've always said the responsible way to decontrol is to do it gradual-

Board blames human error

WASHINGTON (AP) - The offshore oil rig Ocean Express sank in heavy seas off the coast of Texas three years ago because of equipment failures on two of the three assisting tugs, the National Transportation Safety Board said today.

Thirteen of the 35 persons aboard the rig drowned when a self-powered survival capsule sank. The board recommended that the Coast Guard improve the safety of such capsules. Contributing to the accident, the board said, "were the lack of preparation for towing emergencies, the lack of complete information in the rig's operating manual, and the inaccuracy of the National Weather Service's weather forecasts.' The Ocean Express had been moved by three tugs to a new drilling site 30 miles offshore from Port

O'Connor, Tex., on April 15, 1976. Its 312-foot-long legs were extended to a depth of 148 feet, but worsening weather prompted officials not to extend them to the bottom.

The board said waves could have been as high as-30 feet, although forecasts called for maximum waves of 18 feet. One of the tugs became partially disabled with an engine problem and a second lost its towline to the rig. With one remaining tug unable to control it, the rig turned broadside to wind and seas, capsized and sank, the board said. A Coast Guard helicopter rescued the barge master, while 14 crew members climbed aboard one enclosed survivial capsule and 20 got in an-

The 14-man capsule was rescued by the nearby vessel Nicole Martin. The crew of the tug Gulf Viking tied a line to the second capsule, but before rescue could be made, the capsule capsized and only seven of those aboard survived.

The board said the capsule could have been tipped over either by the waves or a combinatioon of the waves with the tripping forces imparted by the small line attached to the rescue

Investigators found that the Ocean Express did not have spare tow lines rigged for quick use, main deck fittings which were easily accessible in bad weather, or upper deck rigging for towing. The operating manual for the year-old rig, which had been prepared by its builder, Bethlehem Steel Corporation, "did not contain complete structural, stability and operating information or appropriate guidance for emergency situations," the board re-are not necessary." Abroad, reation to the Carter statement was positive. In Brussels, Common Market Energy Commissioner Guido Brunner said Carter's proposals were "a great step forward" to stabilizing the U.S. dollar.

Investment points to additional recovery

CORPUS CHRISTI - Railroad Commission Chairman John H. Poerner Thursday said a $1.6 million investment in the Texas Petroleum Research Committee carries the promise of recovering 100 billion barrels of additional oil from Texas producing areas. Poerner described TPRC's budget request to the Texas Legislature for the next biennium as a reasonable commitment, particularly in light of the nation's $2 billion-a-month bill for imported foreign oil and national security considerations.

The research committee is a tripartite endeavor of the University of Texas, Texas A&M University and the Railroad Commission to maximize the recovery of hydrocarbons and other Texas natural resources. As Commission chairman, Poerner chairs the sterring committee of the research committee. Poerner pointed to the 100-billion-tion's energy problems and the achievements of the 30-year-old research committee. Resolution of the energy crunch won't result from simplistic ap-proaches, the energy regulatory offi-

Poerner said TPRC, over the years, has published and distributed more than 200 bulletins and technical papers on various recovery techniques developed in its laboratories that resulted in significant contributions to the nation's energy larder. The committee's work has been a particular boon for small producers and independent oilmen who must rely on public programs for scientific and technical information such as TPRC has provided, he noted.

Since TPRC developed and distributed a series of papers on well fracturing, a number of years ago, Poerner reported, "oil and gas opera-tors have produced more than $10 billion of oil and gas from fractured

Also, he cited, TPRC's method of determining bottom hole pressure of oil and gas wells for surface measurements, operators have saved $100 million with the likelihood they will save another $100 million over the next 20 years.

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP)

- The state of martial law imposed on Bangladesh since a 1975 coup was lifted Friday, President Ziaur Rahman announced.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

WASHINGTON TODAY As reactor cools, Congress heats up for inquiries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now that the nuclear crisis at Three Mile Island is cooling, congressional investigators are warming up for rival inquiries into what happened, who's to blame, and what should be done about it.

The nuclear power people, the electric company and the government's regulators can count on testifying at assorted, sometimes competing House and Senate hearings that are likely to go on for months.

On a subject as momentous and as dramatic as the future of nuclear power and the hazards of the accident near Harrisburg, Pa., almost any committee of Congress can find a reason to get into the Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., got there first with a hearing Wednesday before his health subcommittee on the potential impact of the accident upon people who live in the Harrisburg, Pa., area and those who work at the plant. Kennedy took the occasion to say that there should be a new, independent federal agency to investigate any future nuclear accidents. He said the Nuclear Regulatory Commission won't do because it sets the safety standards that have to be assessed when things go wrong.

The Massachusetts senator not only got there first, he got there second, with a hearing Thursday before the Joint Economic Committee on the question of who should pay for nuclear power plant shutdowns. House and Senate panels with direct responsibility for nuclear power issues are planning to begin their public inquiries later. There's no question that the whole area of nuclear power needs careful scrutiny in Congress. That was true before the accident and it is more urgent now.

There is legislation to be handled on the future of nuclear power and the way it is regulated. It wasn't just the plant that broke down at Three Mile Island. There will be legislation seeking to have the Nuclear Regulatory Commission take charge in any future emergency and tell the neighbors what is

There is a bill in the House to lift the 21-year-old ceiling on iability claims in nuclear power accidents. The limit now is $560 millon, put there in the first place because without that protection against damage suits, power companies were wary of getting into nuclear operations at all. The bill would repeal that and limit liability only to the total assets of the company involved. There have been calls for a congressional moratorium on the opening of new nuclear power plants. There are 90 under construction to go with the 72 that already have been opened.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., who heads the Senate panel on nuclear power, said that Three Mile Island can serve as a valuable early warning signal. We must use this opportunity to review serious problems in our nuclear regulation and response systems and to proceed rapidly to effect reforms,'

The question is whether a profusion of congressional hearings will provide that kind of reasoned appraisal, and deal with the concerns — and fears raised by the accident. A succession of rival inresolve it.

Nor would the search for a reasoned solution be enhanced by an effort to fix blame and find a villain for the piece. There are warnings in Congress against the influence and money behind the nuclear power industry.

The industry opened its own credibility gap and damaged its own image when its spokesmen tried to declare the Three Mile Island episode over just as it was beginning.

But if the nation has gone too far too fast with nuclear power, as critics contend, it's not enough to blame the power companies. It was, after all, a national decision, made years ago when advocates of nuclear power were claiming they could produce electricity so plentiful and so cheap that it wouldn't be necessary to keep track of how much a household

It didn't turn out that way, but it has turned out to be cheaper than electricity generated by burning

And consumers, including congressmen, don't stop to ask whether there is a nuclear plant somewhere behind their electricity. They just expect the lights to go on, and they expect the power company to make sure that happens.

GIs developed own methods of dentistry

CHICAGO (AP) - American pilots held prisoner in North Vietnam developed innovative self-help dentistry to overcome some of their dental problems, two dental researchers report. Some of the problems resulted from torture, others because dental care had been poor before they entered combat, they say. The report was prepared by Dr. Charles R. Diem of the Naval Regional Dental Center and Dr. Milton Richlin, a psychologist at the Center for Prisoner of War Studies of the Naval Health Research Center, both in San Diego. It appears in the April issue of the Journal of the American Dental Association. The report was based on interviews and military dental records of 111 men held captive for an average of six years.

The former prisoners said medical and dental assistance provided by the North Vietnamese was considered to be "barely adequate first aid" and was requested only when the POWs were desperate. They reported that during extractions teeth were fractured and the roots not removed or the wrong tooth was removed. Dental treatment also was performed without anesthetic after the patient was told, 'You Americans must learn to suffer." About a third of the captured Navy fliers, in addition to the usual dental problems, had fractured teeth from stones in their food or from torture and

Diem and Richlin said the "ingenious methods of dental first aid developed by the GIs included the use of sterilized sharpened nails, wire, razors and other nomemade instruments to lance and drain abscesses, which relieved acute pain." Bamboo and nails also were used to dislodge pieces

"Tobacco juice" was used by some to obtain relief from pain, and the prisoners hoarded salt to ease the pain from abscesses by rinsing or massaging, or

Bright child's boredom at school prompts lawsuit

By TIM FOUGHT
McHENRY, Ill. (AP) — At age 10, Thomas Irwin is brilliant, but he is "bored to death in school," his mother says. Bored enough for his parents to file a $1 million suit against the school district over the quality of his educa-

With an IQ tested, his parents say, at about 170, he is bright enough to read and understand the lawsuit filed

'The state law says each child should be educated to the maximum extent of his ability, and they (school officials) have failed to do this," Thomas, a fifth grader at Edgebrook Elementary School, said in describing the basis of the suit.

His parents said they decided it was time to file suit when the school board reversed a decision to let Thomas attend a high school class, the only one he found stimulating.

Their suit seeks $1 million in damages and a court order directing the schools to provide a program of "academically excellent" courses for Thomas, which his mother, Janet Irwin, said should meet his interest in advanced science instruction.

School district officials have declined to comment. District lawyers are to file a formal response by the end of April. His father Ronald, a lawyer, said

Thursday he hopes arguments in Circuit Court can begin in May. Joyce Van Tassel of the Illinois

Office of Education in Springfield said the suit could give the courts an opportunity to define, for the first time, how far public school systems are obligated to go in providing extra programs and classes for bright chil-

She said similar suits fied in Pennsylvania and New Mexico reached inconclusive results, although they did prompt those states to adopt or improve aid programs.

Mrs. Irwin said her son started playing chess and absorbing scientific articles from an encyclopedia when

Mrs. Irwin says school officials took her son out of a program for gifted children because "he needed to be calmed down in class." The program, the Irwins claim, was heavy on instruction in photography and crafts and light on the science courses that

In early March, school officials agreed to let Thomas into a high school Spanish class, which he says has been stimulating.

However, some school board members said they feared that putting a grade school pupil in a high school class would set a bad and expensive March 13 to remove Thomas from the Spanish class, prompting the suit. Since then, the board has backed off and allowed Thomas to stay in the class. But Irwin says the suit will

death next week JACKSON, Miss. (AP) - The Mississippi Supreme Court is awaiting the state's reponse to defense efforts to block the execution of Charles Sylvester Bell, who could become the first person to die in the state gas

"He still says he's innocent and he would like to have a new trial," said Paul Richard Lambert of Hattiesburg, Bell's court-appointed attor-

Unlike Alabama inmate John Louis Evans III, whose execution was stayed Thursday over his objections, Bell repeatedly has appealed to state and federal courts.

His latest effort came this week when lawyers asked the state Supreme Court to authorize a court hearing on several legal questions. Justices indicated they would make a speedy decision after receiving the state's response.

The state Supreme Court upheld the death sentence last May, then refused to hear another appeal. The execution was delayed again during an unsuccessful effort to get a U.S. Supreme Court review

Lambert said he expected the court to order a stay of execution, but "if not, something will immediately be filed in federal court. It's got to be

He said Bell, 22, was taking the pressure "pretty well, at least as best as could be expected.' If his appeals fail, Bell will go next Tuesday night to a small room near the death row cells in the state penitentiary at Parchman, and then into the newly renovated gas chamber in an adjoining room for the Wednesday morning execution.

"As far as what we have to do with the execution, everything is ready,' warden Steve Hargett said of the renovation of the chamber, which was has not been used since May 1, 1964. Bell was convicted for the June 21, 1976, slaying of Danny C. Haden. The slaying occurred, the state said, after Bell and three companions, armed with shotguns and a rifle, robbed Haden, took him to a secluded wooded area near Hattiesburg and "summarily executed" him with a shotgun blast to the neck.
