Michelin announces Midland plant to employ 700

Staff Writer

Midland's increasing industrialization came to the fore Monday night, when a Michelin Tire Corp. executive announced the building of a multimillion-dollar rubber-mixing plant here.

Groundbreaking is to begin in 1980. The "aesthetically-designed" plant is to include 500,000 covered square feet on an 230-acre site west of Holiday Hill Road and between Interstate 20 and U.S. Highway 80. It should be in operation by 1982 and employ a work force of 700.

"We found many conditions attractive about Midland," Reggie Wells, Michelin's divisional manager of career development, said at the annual Midland Chamber of Commerce membership dinner in Midland College's Chaparral Center.

Wells listed Midland's appeal to the tire company: "...industrial growth, public schools, higher educational opportunities, attention to the arts, transportation, water, utilities, a pleasant lifestyle, people concerned about their environment, fiscally responsible government on all levels.

Wells said Michelin likes the "outstanding quality" of the people here. "The positive attitude of Texans, their independent nature, their industriousness, their pride in productivity and quality are evident," he said, "and are desired personal traits of Michelin employees."

Wells said Michelin also found appeal in "the atmosphere that exists which fosters the growth of the free enterprise system.'

In addition to the Midland plant, Michelin is considering construction of two other plants in Texas.

The second plant, which would be the radial-tire manufacturing facility in Texas, would be near Austin. The third plant, which would produce steel cords, would be at Temple.

Rubber from the Midland plant and steel cords from the Temple plant would be shipped to near Austin for the making of tires.

Wells said Midland city and county officials "have been most helpful" to

He listed some citizens who worked with the company: Doug Henson, banker; Howard "Rocky" Ford, president of the Industrial Foundation of . Midland; the Scharbauer family of ranchers and landowners; Joe Kloesel, president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce; Grant Billingsley, the chamber's economic development manager "who has practically lived with our people in the field," and Ron Schwisow, chairman of the chamber's Midland Area Sales Team.

'Michelin looks forward to becoming a solid member of your industrial community," Wells said.

Michelin, a tire-manufacturing factory which originated in France around 1890, first came out with a removable pneumatic bicycle tire. It was produced in 1891 by Edouard and Andre Michelin.

Today, Michelin employs more than 110,000 people in 50 facilities worldwide, Wells said.

In 1894, Michelin decided that automobiles, too, needed pneumatic tires to help make the horseless carriages "practical and popular."

"Innovations continued," Wells said. "In 1923, Michelin produced the first low-pressure passenger tire with an unheard of tire life of 10,000 miles. In 1930 came the first 'tubeless' tire."

Michelin came out with the first "metallic" tire, which turned out to be "a milestone in the development of heavy-duty truck tires," he said.

The firm introduced the steel-belted "X" radial passenger in 1948 — 15 years before any other manufacturer marketed a radial tire. Later, Michelin introduced the American motorists to the radial tires.

He said Michelin opened plants in the United States to meet the "evergrowing demand" for radial tires.

Michelin broke ground for its first U.S. plant, at Greenville, S.C., in 1973, and the first tire was manufactured there two years later.

Since then, Michelin has opened a rubber-mixing plant at Anderson S.C.; built a truck tire plant at Spartanburg, S.C.; is constructing a small truck and recreational tire plant in Dothan, Ala.; has built corporate headquarters for the manufacturing division in Greenville, S.C., and is to build a radial tire manufacturing plant in Lexington, S.C.

Contest for slogan promoting chamber to pay someone $250

In an effort to focus attention on the Midland Chamber of Commerce and the role it plays in helping build a better city for all residents, officials today announced a special promotion that will make one citizen

The project, planned by the chamber's Public Relations Committee and announced during a news conference today, will begin with a slogan contest. This is open to residents of Midland County and will feature a $250 prize for the winning slogan.

The second phase of the campaign will be launched in the fall with plans calling for the winning slogan to be used in connection with, a variety of publicity and promotional materials.

The contest begins today and ends at 5 p.m. May 25. Winner will be announced May 31.

Harry Clark, chairman of the Public Relations Committee, said the slogan campaign was selected as a means of obtaining the broadest public participation in the project. It is focusing attention on the varied roles the organization has in relation to Midland and its people.

"In the modern-day world, a slogan is used as a rallying point for creative and centralized efforts, and we hope this slogan will be a rallying point for the chamber's efforts," Clark said.

He emphasized the chamber is seeking a slogan that best communicates the ways in which the chamber's work helps, directly and indirectly, make life more fulfilling for every Midlander Contest rules are as follows:

Entries must be 10 words or less and emphasize the chamber's relationship to the citizens of Midland or to the total community

- All entries must be submitted on a 3-by-5 inch card or paper with the slogan on one side, and the entrant's complete name, address and telephone number on the other side. There is no limit to the number of

U.S., Egypt pressure Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) - The United States and Egypt put pressure on Israel today to stop its attacks on the Palestinians in Lebanon, but Prime Minister Menachem Begin vowed to keep up the war on "terrorists who spill the innocent blood of men, women and children."

State Department officials in Washington expressed concern as Israeli jets on Monday made their second raid in two days. The officials said U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis met with Israeli officials in Jerusalem and urged their government to halt the attacks.

Egypt's acting foreign minister, Butros Ghali, called for firm U.S. intervention to check the Israelis. He said the air strikes were exposing the Middle East to grave dangers. But there was no indication of adverse effects on the Israeli-Egyptian negotiations that opened Sunday to arrange Israel's withdrawal from Sinai. Israelis said guerrillas were trained in the camps for raids on Israel, but the Lebanese government said the planes Sunday hit the north Lebanese village of Mohmara, killed six Lebanese at a wedding celebration and wounded more than 20 others.

No casualties were reported in the raid Monday on an area held by Palestinian guerrillas near the south Lebanese town of Reihah, 11 miles from the Israeli-Lebanese border.

Begin, opening the summer session of the Israeli Parliament Monday. said Israel would continue attacking Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon "until they are unable to carry out their missions of murder."

Referring to the Palestinian attack April 22 on the coastal town of Nahariya, in which four Israelis and two of the three raiders were killed, he said: "We will not wait for the next attack after Nahariya. We will give them no rest.

Begin's speech also included an invitation to Lebanese President Elias Sarkis to meet him and negotiate a peace treaty between Israel and Lebanon, but Lebanese Premier Salim el Hoss rejected the offer immedi-

"Begin's offer is blackmail," el Hoss said in Beirut. "The offer is a maneuver to camouflage Israel's attacks against innocents in Lebanon.' Shimon Peres, leader of Israel's opposition Labor Party, said Begin's proposal was a farce.

"As if Sarkis would decide to come without the consent of Damascus," he commented, referring to the 22,000 Syrian troops occupying northern and

Heads you win, tails you lose

WASHINGTON (AP) - Car owners have one chance in two of getting their vehicles repaired right at a fair price, says Transportation Secretary Brock Adams.

And he adds: -The average car owner is overcharged $150 annually in repairs made on his or her car. -Fifty-three cents of every dollar spent on fix-ups go for unnecessary repairs. Those are some of the conclusions of a government-sponsored undercover survey of garages in

Drivers in the study took cars with carefully planned malfunctions to 62 randomly selected garages to come up with the results.

The report on the experiment also found: -Nine times in 10 when the motorist's complaint concerned engine performance, the garage made an unnecessary repair or missed the real problem.

—The rate of over-repair or under-repair was 32 percent for complaints concerning brakes, 44 percent for suspensions and 51 percent overall.

'Outright criminal fraud is only a small part of the problem," Adams told a news conference Monday. "What we have instead is a variety of wasteful practices, including habitual over-repair or 'package deals' such as replacing points, condensers and spark plug wires when only one spark plug is needed; replacing parts until the problem goes away even though one part may have been needed, you wind up buying the whole batch; and finally, just plain old lack of competence to do the job right,'

He said the government was not trying "to indict the entire auto repair industry." No fault was found in half the garages visited, he said. The survey was conducted in Atlanta, Philadelphia, Miami, Houston, Nashville, Tenn., White Plains, N.Y., and Brooklyn, N.Y. It cost $66,000. Adams declined to identify the garages, but he said their names will be turned over to local authorities for possible prosecution.

Men and women, whites and blacks, received comparable treatment when they sought help for their cars, he said. No distinction was found between garages in big cities and those in the suburb of White Plains, N.Y., he said.

Adams called on the auto repair industry to police itself and to start a system of certifying repair businesses which comply with industry-designed stan-

Until that happens, the transportation secretary advised drivers to use diagnostic centers or visit several garages for estimates and evaluations before deciding where to go for repairs.

Summer gas shortage: How serious will it be?

NEW YORK (AP) - Transportation Secretary Brock Adams and gasoline industry officials appear at odds about how serious the nation's gasoline supply squeeze will be this sum-

Adams said Monday that the current long lines at California gas stations are a harbinger of things to come in many parts of the nation in the next few months

But industry officials said that while supplies of gasoline are tight and may get tighter, the lines in California are unique to that state.

"You see a picture in your morning newspaper of long lines, and the first thing you think is, 'I've got to fill up this morning," said Edward Murphy, director of statistics for the American Petroleum Institute, an industry group. "If a lot of people do that, you've got problems.

According to Murphy, this sort of panic buying is causing problems in California. While other states have had some problems with gasoline supply, they have not been as severe as in California.

"The situation is probably not going to get any better during the summer than it already is," said Carl Meyerdirk, a spokesman for Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, which markets Amoco gasoline. "Conceivably, it could get

The shortage of crude oil brought on by the Iranian revolution is one of the most important factors in the supply situation. Iran is now producing only about two-thirds as much oil as it did before the revolution.

Polygraph experts dispute tests on Talmadge charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — An FBI polygraph expert says Sen. Herman Talmadge's chief accuser appeared to lie when he said Talmadge knew of a secret bank account and that Talmadge knew campaign contributions were put into the account

But a second polygraph examiner says he found "no reaction indicative of deception" when he asked Daniel Minchew if he lied to the Senate Ethics Committee when he told them Talmadge knew, in 1973 or 1974, of the

A third polygraph expert told the committee Monday that he found Minchew, a former top-ranking aide to the Georgia Democrat, told the truth when he said he gave Talmadge money from the secret account.

The committee is investigating allegations of financial misconduct against Talmadge

There was no immediate explanation why FBI examiner James K. Murphy and private polygraph examiners Benjamin Malinowski and Raymond Weir came up with different interpretations of Minchew's truth-fulness on a key point.

However, all the questions asked by the three examiners were phrased differently, with the questions asked by Murphy and Weir going to differ-

For example, Murphy said he found Minchew appeared to lie when he was asked if Talmadge knew of the account, if he showed Talmadge monthly statements from the account and if Talmadge knew campaign funds were funneled through the account.

But Weir said he found that Min-chew told the truth when he said he gave Talmadge funds from the secret Weir said he believed Minchew also was truthful when the former Tal-madge aide said Allyne Tisdale, the senator's financial secretary, helped convert campaign contributions to Talmadge's personal use.

Murphy said a test he gave Minchew indicated Minchew told the truth when he said he did not fabricate memos, one of which appeared to indicate Talmadge was aware that campaign contributions were being diverted for his use.

"I found no reaction indicative of deception on that question," Murphy

Those memos, signed "at," are a major issue in whether Minchew is to be a credible witness in the Ethics Committee's hearing.

He also cited an ailing John Ingram for his role in MidTran, a public transportation system for the "handicapped, the needy and those in the 'employment force" who don't or choose not to drive personal automobiles to work.

In referring to Midland's recent surge in industrial, business and residential growth, Feldt said that Midland has a "more imaginative, creative group of people than any place in the country," and recapped the factors making up the city's economic boom:

-The "new, vibrant economy" as reflected in $87 million in building permits issued in 1978.

-Additional wings to Midland Memorial Hospital.

-Additional stories to The First National Bank and the construction of downtown buildings, including the Blanks, Cox and Gibraltar Savings Association building

-Construction of the new Theatre Midland (Midland Community Theatre) and Midland College's Chaparral Center.

-Midland Exhibition Center, now under construction. -Air service of Braniff International Airways at Midland Regional

Inflation-weary Americans say corporate profits 'too high

NEW YORK (AP) - Most Americans are not pleased with recent reports of record corporate profits, an Associated Press-NBC News poll

The inflation-weary public says business profits are too high and that it is company executives and large shareholders — rather than the public or employees — who benefit most from higher corporate earnings.

Despite these negative views, Americans are split on whether the government should impose controls on those profits.

In recent weeks, corporation after corporation has announced higher profits in the first quarter of this year: Exxon, up 37 percent over last year's first quarter. Atlantic Richfield, up 61 percent; Du Pont, up 48 percent; Union Carbide, up 58 percent; Chase Manhattan, up 78 per-

Five percent of the 1,600 adults interviewed nationwide by telephone

Part of the negative reaction to business profits comes from the public perception of who benefits from such earnings. Thirty-seven percent said top-level executives reap the benefits of big profits, while 33 percent said the money flows to large shareholders of the corporations. Sixteen percent said the corporations themselves get most cent said the profits go to the companies' employees One percent said all categories benefit and 6 percent are not sure. As one might expect, those who say business profits are too high are most likely to favor controls on such earnings. Those who said profits are too large favored controls by a 58-33 mar-

On the other side, those who said profits are about right opposed controls by a 63-29 margin and the small group which said profits are too low opposed controls by a 51-31 edge.

As with any sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News polls could differ from the results of interviews with all Americans with telephones because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls with 1,600 interviews, the results should vary no more than three percentage points either way simply because of sample errors.

El Salvador leftists release five hostages

dor (AP) - Leftist foes of El Salvador's military government released their five hostages from the Costa Rican Embassy but continued holding the building, the Metropolitan Cathedral and six hostages in the French Embassy today.

There was no immediate explanation for the release Monday night of Ambassador Julio Esquivel Valyerde, two Costa Rican secretaries and two Salvadorean cleaning women who were taken hostage Friday afternoon by three members of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc armed with machetes and pis-

The release was announced by Foreign Minister Jose Antonio Rodriguez Porth. He said the raiders still held the Costa Rican embassy, that 16 other members of the Revolutionary Bloc who took over the French Embassy 15 blocks away Friday afternoon were still holding Ambassador Michel Dondonne, Counselor Jean Durffaud and three others there, and that a third still occupied the Metropolitan Cathedral. There were no hostages at the cathedral.

A Salvadorean guard at the French Embassy and one of the raiders were wounded during the attack there, but the guard was released during the week-

The Popular Revolutionary Bloc is an organization of peasants and workers demanding social changes in El Salvador, an impoverished, densely populated Central American country long dominated by a small, wealthy oligarchy. The raiders demanded the government free five leaders of the Revolutionary Bloc they said were arrested recently. A government official said only two of the five were in custody and they were arrested April 30 on minor charges. But a spokesman for the group holding the French Embassy said the five "are being held in an unknown location by security forces." The leftists also called for an international inquiry into human rights violations in El Salvador and demanded the French and Costa Rican governments go before the United Nations and the Organization of American States and denounce the "state of repression in El Salvador."

Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero, the country's military president, refused to deal with the Bloc, declaring he would not negotiate "with subversive groups trying to disrupt order in the country." But 15 labor unions held a two-hour strike to demonstrate solidarity with the militants, and diplomats said this might lead to a nationwide general strike later in the week.

The leftists on Sunday rejected an offer of safe conduct to Costa Rica and asylum there and said they wanted to remain in the country. Philippe Cuvilier, a French government representative sent from Paris, said Panamanian President Aristides Arollo also offered

British politician Thorpe's trial begins today

LONDON (AP) - Jeremy Thorpe, former head of the Liberal Party, went on trial today on charges he and three other men plotted to murder Thorpe's alleged homosexual lover.

The four are accused of conspiring to kill former model Norman Scott in 1977 because they feared his claims of sexual relations with Thorpe would wreck the party leader's career. The prosecution says the man they paid to kill Scott backed out at the last mi-

Thorpe also is charged with incitement to murder. The maximum sentence on each of the charges is 10 years in prison.

The brown Rolls-Royce carrying 50-year-old Thorpe drew up in front of the Old Bailey. The politician moved silently through the swarms of wait ing journalists and into the gray stone court building, where he underwent the formalities of a police search.

Thorpe's wife Marion, in a black velvet suit and orange blouse, waited quietly beside her husband until an elevator arrived. He gave her a kiss and was led away to No. One Court-

Troops advance in north Uganda

MASINDI, Uganda (AP) - Tanzanian and Ugandan troops are advancing toward northwest Uganda for the showdown in their campaign to crush the remnants of deposed President Idi Amin's army.

Ugandan scouts warned the Tanzanians they would be met by spears and arrows from the local population in Amin's native West Nile district, in the northwest corner of the country. Residents fleeing from the area report about 10,000 soldiers loyal to the fugitive despot are there readying for a determined fight.

All the defendents have denied the charges, and Thorpe also denied that he had homosexual relations with

The trial was postponed for eight days so Thorpe could run in the general election, but he lost the House of Commons seat he had held for 20 years by a large margin. Thorpe resigned three years ago from leadership of the middle-of-theroad Liberal Party-because of mounting scandal over his alleged relationship with Scott, who is now 38 and earns his living taking care of horses. The criminal charges did not emerge until last August.

Thorpe's co-defendants are David Holmes, 48, a friend and former deputy treasurer of the Liberal Party; George Deakin, 35, the owner of a night club in Wale, and John Le Mesurier, 46, a businessman in Wales.

After the Eton and Oxford upbringing typical of Britain's ruling class early success in politics. Thorpe had a brilliant future. He led a strong revival of the third-party Liberals, was a member of Queen Elizabeth II Privy Council and was mentioned as a possible prime minister if a standoff between the Conservative and Liberal parties made a coalition government necessary.

Thorpe's bright future began to fall apart after Scott appeared in Barnstaple Magistrates' Court in North Devon. Thorpe's parliamentary district, on a welfare fraud charge in 1976. Pleading guilty to illegally obtaining about $25 dollars in benefits, Scott said on the witness stand: "I am being hounded by people just because of my sexual relationship with Jeremy Thorpe."

The prosecution alleges that the four defendants plotted against Scott's life between Oct. 1, 1968, and Nov. 1, 1977, and that former airline pilot Andrew Newton was paid the equivalent of $10,000 to kill Scott. Newton testified at a preliminary hearing last December that he drove Scott to a lonely moor in North Devon one night in October 1975 but never intended to kill him and shot Scott's pet Great Dane instead.

The prosecution claims the money to pay Newton came from Jack Hayward, a British tycoon and Liberal Party benefactor who lives in the

Another witness at the preliminar hearing, Peter Bessell, a former Liberal member of Commons now living in California, claimed Thorpe suggested that Scott be lured to the United States, killed there and buried under a new freeway.

The trial in the oak-paneled No. One court at the Old Bailey is scheduled to last six to eight weeks, but some lawyers say it could take as long as three months.

If the 12-member jury cannot reach a unanimous verdict, the judge, Sir Joseph Cantley, can decide to accept a 10-2 majority verdict.

Pakistan proliferates

Back in 1947 the United States proposed an international ban on all nuclear weapons. The Soviet Union rejected this offer. Since then the difficulty of capping the nuclear arms genie has baffled statesmen the world over

And only a few weeks ago news from Pakistan provided a textbook example of both the dangers inherent in the spread of nuclear weapons and why the nonproliferation goal is so elusive.

India has refused to sign the non-proliferation treaty presumably because it fears China and China's budding stock of nuclear weapons. This perceived threat from China obviously provided an inducement for India's own nuclear program, which included the successful test of a nuclear device in 1974.

This test rattled Pakistan, a country which has lost three wars to India since 1948. Now comes the not-surprising news that Pakistan, which declined to sign the non-proliferation treaty because India would not sign, appears to be developing its own facility to manufacture bombgrade uranium. As the Pakistanis presumably see it, they are only taking prudent measures to deter India from nuclear intimidation.

The Carter administration's best efforts to persuade India to open its nuclear facilities to international inspection, and thus prove its pledge not to develop and deploy nuclear weapons, have been rebuffed, insofar as we know. Undoubtedly, the Pakistanis will prove no less stubborn, notwithstanding the cutoff of all U.S. economic and military assistance as dictated under present circumstances by non-proliferation legislation passed by Congress in 1977.

What makes the Pakistanisituation even more worrisome is that most of the components for a uranium enrichment facility were. apparently purchased more or less openly in Western Europe despite supposed international safeguards against the transfer of nuclear weapons technology.

This hazardous breach of security should be the subject of some immediate consultation between the United States and its allies in Western Europe.

Meanwhile, the Carter administration has no choice but to use whatever political and economic means it can to persuade both India and Pakistan to back away from their prospective nuclear arms race.

The Senate Budget Committee exhibited a foolish, false economy in rejecting the chance to purchase four guided missile destroyers for the Navy at saving of some $800 million.

The four Spruance-class ships are among the available bargains, now that the new government of Iran has cancelled major contracts for military purchases from American manufacturers.

The ships are under construction at Litton Industry's Ingalls Division yard at Pascagoula, Miss. The Navy could purchase these badly needed escort vessels for $1.35 billion, roughly two-thirds of the cost of the ships if construction of identical models were begun this year or next.

But the Budget Committee, alert for once to save a dollar even if it means higher costs tomorrow, vetoed the Navy's proposal.

It is said that some committee members also balked at the prospect of repaying Iran's new government the $450 million aiready advanced toward the purchase price at a time when Tehran is boostimg oil prices. The logic of this last argument is somewhat baffling. Does it have to cost the taxpayers $800 million or more in lost savings just so the Senate Budget Committee can communicate its pique over rising oil prices?

The full Senate only partially rectified this foolishness by accepting an amendment to the budget resolution authorizing purchase of two of the four

It is hoped that common sense prevails in the House in the form of permission for the Navy to buy all four, even if something less pressing than the Navy's shipbuilding program must be shaved to finance the bargain.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Businesswomen 'given business'

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - Women who run their own companies are being given short shrift by the Carter administration on their fight for a fair share of government contracts under the anti-discrimination statutes.

In plain terms, the Small Business Administration is giving women the business figuratively but not literally. Though by law, companies owned by women can qualify as disadvantaged contractors eligible for special consideration in government awards, in practice they are being virtually shut out by the SBA.

The reason is simple: The "black capitalism" program set up under President Nixon was designed to set aside a certain amount of federal spending for underprivileged contractors. That was in the days before women's equality became a major political issue; blacks and other ethnic minorities were regarded as the only targets of the program, and the SBA has become oriented in that

And black business interests are determined to protect their hard-won turf "If while women join the minority umbrella, we can just wrap it up and go back to the plantation," one black business lobbyist told us.

Yet the disadvantaged status of female-owned firms is undeniable. According to the last census, women own fewer than 6 percent of the nation's businesses and these account for only .3 percent of all sales.

These statistics make a convincing enough case, but the Civil Rights Commission has also made an official finding that women have beendiscriminated against in the federal procurement process.

But minority groups - through their political clout and the experience in government contract hunting they have acquired over the years - have succeeded in limiting the access of businesswomen to the federal contract pie set aside for minorities. Today only about 30 of the 2.700 firms in the so-called "8-A" antidiscrimination program are owned by white women.

A recent SBA investigation concluded that the exclusion of women from the set-aside contract money has not always been legal. The investigators' report has been suppressed by SBA officials since it was completed in October.

The investigators found "obvious and deliberate" discrimination against Marilyn Andrulis, a white woman whose 8-A status was revoked because the SBA decided she was not socially disadvantaged. Officials interviewed by the investigators admitted Andrulis was kicked out of the program "simply because she was a woman," a source told us.

The investigator found that similar sex discrimination exists throughout the SBA. They recommended agencywide reform, as well as administrative action against two of its officials.

But the well-entrenched minority groups have successfully blocked the reform moves. Their allies in the SBA have squelched the report and their representatives have managed to lobby through Congress changes in the law which make 8-A status even more difficult for women to obtain.

President Carter's response to the plight of businesswomen was to create an Interagency Task Force on Women. The task force is expected to release an executive order on women's business enterprise within a few weeks. But a rough draft we obtained indicates that the Administration is more concerned with cosmetic changes and high-sounding phrases than in substance.

"All it is, is nice PR," one women's rights advocate told our reporter Rochelle Sharpe. "All I hear is, it's 'nice-to-women' year. Women don't need to be patted on the head ... We need money opportunities."

peaceful use of nuclear energy. No Latins question their sincerity.

The Argentines, like most of the other Latin American countries, long relied primarily on oil-fueled plants for the generation of electric power. That made economic sense to them. until the Arab-dominated Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) began forcing oil prices to today's unprecedented levels.

Then Argentina, and the others. began turning their attention to nuclear power.

In the beginning, those countries that felt the need for a more reliable source of fuel than OPEC oil worked out arrangements with the U.S. government for the uranium they required for their nuclear reactors.

It was with the understanding that the United States would supply the uranium necessary that Argentina and Brazil initially contracted for nuclear power plants built by U.S. companies.

But after Westinghouse started the construction, Brazil, for example, learned that it really had no guarantee that the United States would, or could, supply the fuel.

So the Brazilians turned to West Germany and, in 1975, committed themselves to a plan that envisions the building of eight more nuclear reactors by 1990, along with plants for enrichment of uranium and reprocessing of spent fuel.

Eventually, the Brazilian accord with the West Germans would make that South American nation "independent" of foreign sources of fuel and technology Brazilian ambitions early caught the eye of President Jimmy Carter who objected to the nuclear autonomy of Latin American and other developing countries on the ground that they might use their knowledge to make atomic weapons.

Mr. Carter brought considerable diplomatic pressure to bear, first on Brazil and then on West Germany, in a futile effort to get the two countries to call off their arrangement.

Brazil, like Argentina and the other Latin American nations that are developing nuclear industries. disclaims any intention of employing nuclear power for other than peaceful purposes.

However, the Three Mile Island incident has emboldened those Brazilians who are opposed to their country's nuclear development.

Once it became apparent that the accident in Pennsylvania was not of catastrophic proportions, Brazilian nuclear critics chose to attack their government's program for its heavy

According to estimates widely publicized in Brazil, achievement of the complete nuclear cycle and construction of the eight reactors will cost the country between $25 billion and $30 billion.

Brazil is the biggest of the Latin American nations, with a population of around 120 million people, nearly double that of Mexico, and a land area more than three times that of Argentina. But it is sadly lacking in petroleum resources and, until recently, at least, its hydroelectric power potential was said to be limited. However, some knowledgeable Brazilians now insist that the nuclear program should be scaled down, and the savings spent on projects that might be of more immediate benefit to the nation.

Nevertheless, President Joao Baptista Figueiredo, who took office in mid-March, and his minister of mines and energy, Cesar Cals, have said the nuclear program will proceed, although with additional safeguards against the human errors that apparently set off the Three Mile Island mishap.

Brazil expects that its first nuclear plant will start generating electric power between September and December 1980

Mexico and Venezuela will enter the nuclear field a few years later.

Jerry Brown: 'Alive, well as presidential contender'

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

SACRAMENTO, Calif. - While Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and his inner circle rejoiced April 26 over good tidings from New Hampshire, bipartisan enemies down the hall in the state Senate were plotting a select committee investigation designed to That is the essence of Jerry Brown's undeclared campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. His strength is being on the popular side of cutting issues, as shown that day when the New Hampshire Senate passed the constitutional amendment for a balanced budget. His weakness is disrespect among Democratic politicians, as shown by the would-be Brown probers here. Brown believes he has much the better of that tradeoff. "The legislators simply have missed what is going on in the country," an exuberant Brown told us the day of the New Hampshire triumph, for which he justly claimed some credit. He will ride prevailing popular opinion not perceived by many politicians, at home or away, in his imminent challenge of President Carter.

Thus, while those politicians (including Carter aides) have buried Brown after prolonged abysmal pub-licity, he exuberantly considers himself alive and well as a presidential contender. Furthermore, while preparation is not nearly so expensive as in several Republican presidential efforts, Brown's men are quietly pre-paring to run for the White House, as they did not do in the impromptu 1976

Brown's exuberance is fueled with the nuclear power issue, which reached a critical mass in the Three Mile Island accident. By refurbishing his anti-nuclear credentials. Brown strengthened tattered links to the left (including activists Jane Fonda and Tom Hayden). In his most recently nationally televised appearance on ABC's "Good Morning America," he belabored Carter for placing undue reliance on the nuclear option.

The overriding reason for those tattered links to the left has been his late advocacy of a balanced budget, and that is the real thrust of the Brown presidential effort. Accordingly, the April 26 New Hampshire Senate vote - despite White House lobbying to the contrary - was seized on by Brown as proof of his own political viability.

Brown was on the phone that day exchanging mutual congratulations with new friends in New Hampshire. The governor told us to pick up an extension to listen in to his talk with state Rep. Mark Bodi, a 24-year-old Democrat converted by Brown to the balanced budget during Brown's abortive trip to Concord, N.H., April 2. Such words have eased Brown's humiliation in backing out of testifying in New Hampshire for the balanced budget amendment under pressure from pro-Carter Democratic leaders. Even aides who privately admit Brown's handling of the New Hampshire affair was atrocious believe he gained sympathy and support there by avoiding confrontation. Nor are there worries about adverse repercussions from Brown's African safari with singer Linda Ronstadt. His aides believe the extravagantly publicized vacation was not only popular with younger voters, but also brought him wider recognition. "How else," asked one aide, "could he get on the covers of Newsweek and People magazine in the same No governor is a hero to his own

"There is no security," said the 50year-old author-comic, who hasn't decided if he wants to be an actor

RRC upholds dumping ban on Whalen Lake

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN-The Texas Railroad Commission left intact Monday its ban on dumping oilfield brines into Whalen Lake in Andrews County as it continued to check into controversy surrounding the playa lake.

Chairman John H. Poerner and Commissioner Mack Wallace sent the case to Special Counsel Rex H. White for further review after reviewing the recommendation of Oil and Gas Division hearing examiners to reopen discharge facilities of the Whalen Corp., subject to conditions.

"I have been out there and there are some things I want checked on," said Poerner in a motion to have the special counsel enter the case. For more than five months, the commission has prohibited Whalen Corp., and oil operators from discharging salt water produced in oil recovery operations into Whalen Lake. The ban was ordered after Chief Engineer Bob R. Harr reported

Erskine of Midland who maintains that use of all playa lakes for oilfield brines disposal should be ended permanently. Peden said he questions whether Mrs. Erskine is a proper party to the Whalen Lake proceedings. He said she did not file a petition to intervene in the case.

Mrs. Erskine, who identifies herself as a wildlife rehabilitator, has testified at several commission hearings dealing with oilfield disposal

Oil producers testified that closing the lake to brines disposal could lead to premature abandonment of marginal production and an estimated loss of 20,000 barrels of oil per month.

Poerner, pointing to higher crude oil process, said he is puzzled by the "economics" cited by operators predicting production losses without the disposal facilities, apparently, be said, production continues despite the increased cost of brines disposal since the Whalen Corp. facilities have been.

Poerner contrasted the disposal cost of 7 cents a barrel at Whalen Lake to 27 and 28 cents a barrel at other area disposal facilities operators now use.

Examiners pinned these conditions to their recommendations to reopen the disposal facilities at Whalen Lake:

-Whalen Corp. must comply with commission rules on disposition of skim oil.

-The company must upgrade its disposal facilities as it has proposed

-Whalen's skimming facility will operate during normal business hours only, or at other times when company personnel can supervise the receipt of salt water into the lake. At other times, the facility must be locked.

-Oil and grease content of produced salt water discharged into the lake will not exceed an average of 72 milligrams per litre over any 48-hour

-Whalen will not discharge unskimmed produced salt water, raw crude oil, waste oil, or similar material into the lake and will take reasonable steps to prevent others from doing so. -Whalen personnel will report any flow-line break, any unauthorized dumping or any similar occurances which might result in pollution to the commission.

-Whalen will continue its clean-up operation on the lake and the lake perimeter to remove crude oil accumulated as a result of disposal of produced salt water.

others of the male species. "I used to talk about chickens a ot," he said of his growing-up years

"(Take a) rooster: He's a fool. He struts," and does not much more, except crowing.

Bean let loose with a "cock-a-doodle-doo.'

"He (the rooster) is a foreman with nobody below him.'

The strutting rooster just struts, crows, feeds and procreates. But the hens, who "do all the

And radio-man Humes, who also became an occasional comic, earlier noted that the night's chamber of commerce crowd was in noticeable contrast to other crowds, presum ably those younger people attracted by rock 'n' roll and other pop-art concerts that attract attention from law-enforcement agencies. 'We had 600 in attendance (tonight), no police and only one assistant constable," said Humes.

And he seemed soothed by the serene music played on the harp during the dining hour by Paula Hahn.

"I sort of felt like I had gone to the big chamber of commerce in the sky," Humes said.

Garden City: It's in the middle of life in Glasscock County

GARDEN CITY -- Garden City probably has more one-thing things than just about any place - from Podunk to Dallas.

And Dallas, as all Texans know, is where bigness begins. It ends at Podunk, wherever that may be. Some say it's Garden City.

"Yeah," said Mary Lou Overton, who holes up in the 70-year-old sandstone courthouse here five days a week, "the town's right in the middle of the county.'

There's not much else.

The county is Glasscock, population about 1,500, and the town, if you can figure out where it begins and ends, has about a 10th of that. Maybe more. It's not incorporated, which theoretically leaves this farmingand-ranching community with fewer headaches than its Big Brother

'We've got one town, one school, no doctor, no lawyer, one grocery store, two cafes, two filling stations and one garage and that's it," said Mrs. Over-

She is the dual-roled county-district clerk in the stately and sturdy old courthouse, which fits well in this rugged country. It's been reworked in the inside; wood paneling, lowered ceiling, air conditioners and 217 padded courtroom seats, including 78 in the balcony.

This is too good a building to destroy," she said. And the county commissioners surely figured it would be cheaper (and more popular and realistic) to revamp than to re-

"They (the commissioners) felt like this was a landmark in the county, and they wanted to preserve it.' There's even a blazen orange telephone in the clerk's office. "The district judge said this was a hot-line to Darrell Royal (The University of Texas football king)," the clerk joked. A short-wave, multi-band radio was picking up some country-and-western music out of Midland, 37 miles away, on this particular sleepy afternoon. The clerk and her assistant, Betty Pate, apparently had caught up with work and chatted for a spell. Tavie Murphy, who keeps the sheriff's office running when Sheriff Royce "Booger" Pruit or Deputy Bill Decker is away, happened by. A hallway separates the two offices. "I don't know any gossip," she said upon entering. "I refuse to tell any gossip. Just because I'm the sheriff's secretary doesn't mean I know gos-

Then the sheriff came in.

And the whole crew started discussing what Garden City has and doesn't have.

The town does have one doctor, Travis Pate, but he's a Ph.D. sort not a "real (M.D.) doctor." He works on bugs, rather against most of the "bad" ones. He's a consulting entomologist who does business as Pete's Ag Service with the farmers and ranchers here and about, including Midland. He belongs to Betty Pate.

Though Garden City might be the only "town" around, there is, of course, St. Lawrence - a farming community which boasts a Catholic Church and a parish hall - to the south. And remains of a couple of has-been communities, long since faded, lay to the northeast:

Drumright and Konohassett. Mrs. Overton picked up on her earlier listings of the many "one-nesses" of the town. "We've got one abstract office, one ASC office. That's about it." She paused. "We've got a tire store."

"You start talking about that," pitched in Mrs. Pate, "and it sounds like we're booming.' Even the sheriff, who does far more chawing on cigars than he does on words, admitted that Garden City has

"one of everything." Just about, anyway, including the

Organizations fueling fight over right to smoke in public

By The Associated Press

To puff, or not to puff - in public anyway. That is the question in Dade County, Fla. In New York, legislators emerged from smoke filled backrooms and OK'd a public smoking ordinance of their own.

The referendum today in Florida fueled familiar arguments. Some restaurant and shop owners led by Dade Voters for Free Choice said the ordinance, if passed, would hurt business. The Group Against Smokers Pollution, GASP, said public health would be hurt if it didn't.

GASP forced the vote with 10,000 signatues on petitions. Peter Georgiades of Action on Smoking and Health in Washington D.C., said if it passes, "People all over the country will take heart and attempt it."

The proposed ordinance would confine smoking to special lounges in workplaces and schools and stop it in health facilities except hospital rooms where the patient asks to smoke

Restaurants would have to divide seating space and partitions would be required around smoking areas in waiting rooms and lobbies.

Bars, tobacco stores, hotel guest rooms, pool halls, gambling establishments and boxing and wrestling arenas would be exempt. The arguments on street corners, bars, restaurants and in homes continued Monday as the furious last-minute campaigning peaked. "We want our freedom from pollution that is killing some of us," said GASP spokesman Dr. Charles Tate.

"The question is whether the government has the right to tell me I have to build a partition in my private law office," said Free Choice spokesman Neal Sonnett.

Larry Kay, regional director of the Bagel Nosh restaurant chain, got right to the point.

"It stinks," he said. Kay's two-word summation would have been lost on New York Assemblyman Richard Gottfried, who said Monday: "Your right to blow smoke around ends where your neighbor's nose begins.'

The Manhattan Democrat's argument apparently fell on receptive ears - and noses. The Assembly voted 80-58 to ban smoking in most public places, except for designated smoking areas. The bill now goes to the Senate, where its fate is uncer-

For New York's non-smokers, it was their biggest victory yet. Last year, the Assembly turned down two no-smoking bills.

Supporters offered arguments identical to their Florida counterparts chiefly a healthier environment all around.

On occasion, though, something magic happens to Ken Allswede.

Suddenly his eyes narrow, his neck muscles twitch, his pulse quickens in his temple. His step is sure, light, his manner bold. He is alert. He is confident. He is alive.

"Put a cue stick in my hand and I guess I am a different person," he said. "The game does that to you. It demands all your concentration.

Timid players don't do well." Ken Allswede is a three-cushion billiards player.

He was one of 24 who came to Milwaukee recently from around the Midwest for a tournament. They arrived carrying leather cue-stick cases, like clarinetists assembling for a concert, and met in the billiards room of the Antlers Hotel, a tired old hangout that must have been grand when it was built in 1927.

"Not many places have billiards tables," Allswede said, as if by apology. "Pool tables are all over, but not billiards tables. This place isn't much, but the tables are superior."

Three-cushion billiards, students, bears no more relation to pool than checkers to chess; only the playing surface is similar.

ets. Billiards tables have no pockets. Billiards players use three balls only. To score a billiard, they must hit a ball into another ball, bounce it off at least three cushions, then hit the third

Sinatra seeks press muzzling aid

WASHINGTON (AP) - Singer Frank Sinatra, who has had his share of run-ins with reporters, is appealing to 2,000 of the nation's political and business leaders for help in "reining in.the runaway press. "If you do this, I will enlist in your army any ol' day," Ol' Blue Eyes wrote at the conclusion of a two-page

A spokesman said the letter was mailed along with a reprint of a 30page magazine article critical of the

"He's practicing democracy, the principle of speaking up," said Lee Solters, a spokesman for Sinatra in Los Angeles. "He has as much right to speak up as anybody.' Solters said Sinatra sent his letter and a copy of the article to President Carter, members of Congress, governors, business leaders, heads of the country's college journalism departments and editors, publishers and news columnists.

"He's mailing it to anyone who would have any kind of interest in what that pamphlet has to say,' Solters said

The reprinted article, "The Powers of the Press: A Problem for Our Democracy," was written by Washington lawyer Max M. Kampelman, a former aide to the late Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey. Kampelman's article first appeared in Policy Review, a quarterly journal of the Heritage Foundation, a conservative "think tank" in Washington.

The article characterizes the press as a "powerful, ever-growing institution with huge financial resources to supplement the power it wields in its control over the dissemination of news, but ith fewer and fewer restraints on its powers.'

In his letter, mailed last month, Sinatra wrote that he had "met and confronted the unlimited power of the "It frightens me as a husband and a parent who is concerned for the wellbeing and future of his family. And it certainly frightens me as a member of the Republic which it threatens."

Charging the press with operating with "an irresponsibility that is almost beyond comprehension," Sinatra's letter said he was sending copies of the Kampelman pamphlet: "Because you have been subject to this irresponsibility in your personal life and in the office you hold.' He added:

"I beg you to lend your moral persuasion as an outstanding leader and the prestige of your high office to the crusade of reminding the press that there is more to the Constitution of this great nation than the First Amendment it so frequently hides Solters said Sinatra had sent the letter and accompanying article to about 2,000 people, and was planning to ship it to more. "He's had a tremendous response saying he's got a lot of guts," the spokesman said.

Sinatra's mass mailing is the latest round in his long-running dispute with

In 1976, for example, the singer barred reporters or editors of the Reno, Nev., Evening Gazette and State Journal from attending his supper club shows at Stateline, Nev., after publication of an article he considered unfair.

Also in 1976, he sued columnist Earl Wilson for $3 million after Wilson published an unauthorized biography that Sinatra said was "false, fictionalized, boring and uninteresting.'

In the same year, Sinatra became involved in a publicized squabble with columnist Mike Royko. After Royko published a column saying Sinatra was followed by an "army of flunkies" and had a full-time police guard while in Chicago, the singer responded by calling Royko a "pimp."

The columnist printed the letter and offered to sell the original to the highest bidder, with the proceeds going to the Salvation Army.

DEAR ABBY

Hubby's porn too graphic

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN-

DEAR ABBY: My husband went to Japan on business and brought back some Oriental "art" that really has me baffled. It looks like pornography to me, but my husband says it is valuable erotic art - centuries old. (It shows men and women in all sorts of intimate positions. One looks like a bunch of contortionists at an orgy.) I wouldn't think of hanging any of this stuff in our home, and it seems ridiculous to spend money on something you have to hide away in a closet. My husband paid a small fortune for it.

Abby, how do you tell the difference between valuable art and cheap pornography? - WONDERING DEAR WONDERING: Webster defines pornography as "writings, pictures, etc., primarily intended to arouse sexual desires." (This could be good or bad, depending on the

All such art is not cheap, bad and worthless. Some (known as erotic art) is expensive, good and valuable.

Take your husband's collection to a reliable art dealer. For a fee, an expert will appraise it.

DEAR ABBY: Your best friend is filing for divorce, and she asks you if you knew all along that her husband had a mistress for many years. You know it is true, and everyone else knows it. What do you tell her? -WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: In the first place, common gossip is not necessarily fact. I would tell my friend that I have no reliable evidence to confirm her suspicions. (True, you haven't.)

A good friend spares unnecessary pain whenever possible. For you to join the others who said, "I knew it all along" would only add to your friend's

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with a great guy. (I'll call him Bill.) We've known each other for 10 years and have gone together for two years.

We are totally happy together. I have joined Bill in his business and we work well together. We have talked about marriage, but Bill says he will not marry me until I submit a list of all the men I've made love with. I'm 35 and have never been married. Bill is 37 and has been divorced twice.

The men I've had affairs with were all decent. men and I was never promiscuous.

I do not intend to have any affairs outside my marriage and I haven't looked at another man since I started going with Bill.

I do not feel that my past relationships have anything to do with Bill or our future together. Am I wrong? And what should I do about Bill's demands? - CONNECTICUT

DEAR CONN: Your past relationships are none of Bill's business. If you must either meet his demands or say goodbye to this "great guy," say goodbye.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ASHAMED IN LAUDERDALE: Don't ever be ashamed to admit you were wrong. It's one way of saying you're smarter today than you were yesterday.

What is a school volunteer? Ask the students

By PATSY GORDON Lifestyle Writer

Everyone knows by now that all people need a little praise now and then for a job well

And this especially goes for all volunteers in the Midland public schools who give untiringly of their time and efforts by serving as crossing guards at the various schools so students can get to class without being hurt. And by helping with holiday parties

And by helping students with the three R's And by helping in the school

And being Halloween carnival workers.

And by being chaperones for field trips

The list could go on and on if there was time and space, but during National Volunteers Week last week, these unselfish people got a day of recognition from the Head Start program and the Midland City Council of

"A school volunteer does various jobs such as helping teachers. In fact, a teacher is a school volunteer," Jessica added.

Kelly Nance seems to be trying to talk a parent into being a volunteer with his essay. "Our school has had some volunteers to help with the costumes for the Christmas program and other stuff. I think it would be fun to be a school volunteer, don't

Ana, a second grader at Bowie, describes a school volunteer as someone "who helps us every day. Like the cross-walk lady. And sometimes reads us a story and gives us treats. She helps us every day in a special way. She helped plan the carnival and the Christmas party." Sharon Allen, another Bowie second grader, offered this definition. "A school volunteer is a mother or father who gives their free time to help up children learn to write, spell and work problems.'

Names of three volunteers kept showing up in several of the essays. They were Mrs. Furgeson, Mrs. Meadows and Mrs. Out of the mouths of babes

No surprises in energy plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter has quietly sent his "Second National Energy Plan" to Congress and there are no big surprises. He says, as he has before: Keep trying to save oil, keep using nuclear plants, keep looking for better and cleaner energy sources.

The 400-page plan, known as "NEP-2," repeats policies Carter has already proposed - ending oil price controls while imposing a "windfall profits" tax - and provides analyses to support them.

The plan, required by Congress to be turned in two years after Carter's highly publicized first report, was sent to Capitol Hill Monday.

Under policies laid out in the plan, the administration says:

-The average household's gasoline expenses would rise about $38 - to $761 — in 1981, with increases ranging from about $36 in the Northeast to about $40 in the Midwest.

-The average household's payments for home heating oil would increase about $29 - to $430 - ranging from about $13 in the warm Southwest to about $33 in New England.

-The extra costs for gasoline and home heating oil would hit hardest at high-income households.

Disposal pits given RRC okay

AUSTIN - The Railroad Commission of Texas Monday ruled that continued use of earthen pits for the disposal of produced water in McCamey field oil recovery operations will benefit agrcultural and petroleum activities in Upton County

Chairman John H. Poerner and Commissioner Mack Wallace made that determination during the weekly conference on Oil and Gas Division matters in accepting recommendations of Senior Staff Engineer Eugene W. Day Jr. on salt water disposal practices in the West Texas field.

Commissioner James E. Nugent was on an out-of-state trip and did not vote on the matter. Day conducted a commission-called public hearing March 13 on disposal practices in the McCamey field.

More than a dozen oil operators, ranchers and representtives of public agencies in Upton County appeared at the Austin session to support the continued use of earthen pits on an individual lease basis with Railroad Commission approval.

The McCamey field has produced more than 100 million barrels of oil since its discovery almost 55 years

In continuing its approval of the disposal practies in the McCamey field, the commission member

1. There is no major source of fresh surface or subsurface warer in the field. Continued use of earthen pits for water disposal does not threaten any major source of fresh surface or ground water.

Wallace said, "If you close down the pits, you close down the county, and I don't think we want to do that.

2. Produced water from the field is utilized for livestock watering in certain areas of Upton County, which would otherwise have no source of water supply.

3. There is an estimated 10 million barrels of remaining recoverable oil reserves in the field. Continued use of earthen pits for collection and/or disposal of produced water in the field will result in greater ultimate oil re-

4. Approximately 700 producing wells in the field make an average of 2.75 barrels of oil per day, with an estimated average water cut of at least 90 percent.

Contract awarded

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. - Maurer Engineering, Inc., Houston, has been awarded a $44,800 contract by the Department of Energy for a study on improving methods of measuring residual crude oil saturation of underground reservoirs.

The contract was announced by the DOE energy technology center in Bartlesville, Okla., which will monitor the work.

The project will include a comprehensive review of methods presently used by industry, universitites, and government agencies for handling, storing, and testing cores from oilproducing reserviors.

The objective of the work is to produce recommendations for improving those methods-and, in turn, provide more accurate estimates of the quantity of crude oil contained in undergroud formations, if any. The study is scheduled for completion by the end of August 1979.

Gas forms changed

AUSTIN - Brevity and clarity mark permanent rules that the Railroad Commission of Texas adopted Monday for processing well determination applicatons under the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978.

Paperwork of gas producers will be pared a minimum of five pages per application and for some producers the reduction could amount to 100 pages, Chairman John H. Poerner and Commissioner Mack Wallace were advised by the commission's Office of Special Counsel.

The new provisions will replace emergency rules in effect since Nov. 27 and will be effective pending action to develop, coordinate and adopt an alternate state plan.

The new rule will be forwarded to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and should be in effect within-20 days, Poerner said. Under the federal gas policy act,

Texas and other producing states are required to categorize gas wells under four classes for pricing purposes newly discovered production, new production from an existing area of production, deep, high cost and stripper well gas production. Well determinations by the states, however, are subject to remand or rejection by the

The new rules cover definitions pertinent to the NGPA, well determination application procedures, documents supporting applications, and commission action on applications.

The commission also reported that its Form F-1 — Natural Gas Policy Act Supplemental Application - is being simplified and shortened.

Windfall profits tax runs-into opposition

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - President Carter's new "windfall profits tax" proposal ran into criticism Monday in Senate Finance subcommittee as oil-state senators and other conservatives blasted the White House for blunting incentives for new oil exploration.

During a session in advance of House hearings now scheduled for Wednesday, panel members argued that the oil companies should be able to keep all new revenues they get the search for more oil. Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., finance committee chairman, told Carter officials that "under your program the industry can raise enough money to stay at the mercy of the Arabs as long as you remain in government which may not be that long. Long berated administration spokesmen, "Did it ever occur to you that you people are flirting with the survival of freedom in this nation and on this planet?'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congressional energy leaders say President Carter's revised gasoline rationing pian stands a better chance of approval than his first version. But extremely close votes are expected.

fight," said chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., of the Senate Energy Committee. His panel was taking up the modified measure to give the president standby authority to order rationing at a hastily called meeting today. A Senate floor vote was planned later in the day if the committee approved the plan. "I would assume we'll get it out of committee. But on the floor, the vote could be very close. There's going to be quite a debate,'

Jackson said. And Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich chairman of the House energy and power subcommittee, said he anticipates the plan will face considerable resistance in the House if it passes the Senate: "It will be difficult," Dingell said. Both Jackson and Dingell said they endorsed the changes made by Carter, which they claimed improved large and where more gasoline has been used in the past. Carter's 'original plan would have allocated rationing coupons based solely on the number of registered cars in a household. Under the modification, the amount would be based half on the number of vehicles in a family and half on the amount of gasoline historically used in each

The modified formula also would allow households to get ration rights for no more than three vehicles. The changes were aimed at picking up support for the plan from various congressional critics. But Jackson said in an interview there are still "so many competing interests" that even the new plan could be in jeopardy. "I have yet to see a proposal that is considered by all involved as being fair," Jackson said. "This is an effort to find some accommodation. I just don't know what will happen on it." However, Jackson said, if the revised rationing plan isn't approved, probably no plan can pass. The administration says it has no intentions of using the rationing planin the near future, but that Congress should approve it so the president could invoke it if needed.

In a related development, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., strongly criticized Carter's proposal for a "windfall profits" tax on additional revenue oil companies would realize under his companion proposal to remove price controls from domestic crude oil starting next month.

Long, chairman of the Senate Fi nance Committee, said denying the oil industry money to increase production would-leave communist nations in a position to dominate the world.

the oil companies all they need for new exploration.

Emil M. Sunley, deputy assistant secretary of the Treasury, tried to defend Carter's actions by telling Long "the administration is doing essentially what you want done decontrolling oil prices" and that the profits tax was part of the package.

Sunley also contended that the relatively mild "windfall profits" tax proposal was "not a pussy cat tax that some have suggested." Carter's proposal would bring in between $500 million and $1 billion a year in new Neither Long nor other subcommittee members appeared to be mollified by Sunley's reference to the decontrol action. Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, the subcommittee's chairman, said he saw "really no need for a windfall tax" of any kind. Other panel members agreed. For all the strong rhetoric, insiders said the subcommittee's reaction did not necessarily mean that the full finance committee ultimately would not enact some form of excise tax on the oil industry, although it most likely will be weaker than Carter has proposed. Long has hinted he would be willing to push through some sort of windfall tax if it incuded a hefty "plowback" provision allowing the oil companies to escape tax on money they reinvest in new exploration. Both the administration and Democrats on the House Ways and Means committee oppose any such move. Sunley said a plowback clause would create "distortions" in the way industry stepped up its investment. "We have serious problems about its wisdom," he said. Carter's proposal is designed to si phon off some of the extra revenues that the oil companies would reap from his decision to lift domestic price controls, and use the money for rebates to finance new energy research and help the poor cope with higher gasoline prices. The measure has been criticized by

Federal policies attempt overkill, say economists

By DONALD C. BAUDER Copley News Service

In a Grade B cops and robbers movie circa 1950, the villain tiptoed up to a woman lying in bed and unloaded a pistol into her skull. It turned out, however, that the trip was wasted: The lady in bed wasn't his intended victim. Moreover, she was already dead. He had been pumping those bullets into a corpse.

It was a case of overkill on a mistaken target, and the villain pleaded innocent of a crime on the grounds that you can't murder a dead person.

Today, the nation's monetary authorities also are attempting overkill on an inappropriate target, but they may not be able to hang their defense on some legal sophistry. They may be overkilling the economy into a deep recession.

That is the opinion of monetarist economists those who believe that the growth of the money supply is the major determinant of the economy's

The monetarists-who almost alone predicted this year's horrendous inflation - are nearing a consensus that, once again, the Federal Reserve has applied the brakes too hard too late in a futile attempt to correct a problem which was foreordained many months ago.

The Fed is excessively restricting monetary growth in an attempt to stem today's inflation - but today's inflation was caused by excessive monetary growth last year, say the monetarists. In tightening the spigot too severely, the Fed will bring on the worst of two worlds - a recession accompanied by high inflation. If the misguided overkill continues, we conceivably could suffer double-digit inflation and double-digit unemployment at the same time, say some of the monetarists.

It's a question of varying time lags, say the monetarists. A given policy response - be it tight money or easy money - will affect economic growth in six to nine months and prices in 18 to 24 months. Thus, the post-November restrictive posture will cause a recession later this year, but it will not start hosing down inflation significantly until next year.

And if history is any guide, say the monetarists sorrowfully, the Fed will overreact again during the recession - providing excessively easy money to combat the recession, which will have been set in concrete many months earlier.

According to figures released by the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, money growth in the last five months has slowed drastically - representing the sharpest deceleration of recent history. M1, or cash plus checking deposits, soared at an 8 percent annual rate from April through November of last. year and since then has dropped by 1.6 percent at an annual rate.

Similarly, demand deposits, after growing by 7.3 percent from April through November, have plummeted by 5.3 percent. The adjusted monetary base (member bank reserves at Federal Reserve banks plus currency in circulation, adjusted by the St. Louis Fed for reserve ratio changes) has grown by 5.5 percent in the last five months after growing, by 9.8 percent in the previous seven months.

"That's the sharpest cutback in monetary growth I can remember, going back to times such as 1959, when people didn't know any better. It's faster deceleration than we had leading up to the 1973-1975 recession. Yet (Treasury Secretary Michael) lumenthal wants the Fed to tighten even more. It's idiotic," said Professor A. James Meigs of the Claremont Economics Institute at Claremont Men's College, Pomona, Calif.

"From here, any further tightening would be economic suicide," said Jeffrey Nichols of Wall Street's Argus Research Corp.

"In the last 100 years, the degree of severity of a recession has been directly related to the degree of monetary restraint prior to it.

"And the monetary restraint since last fall already has been sufficient to cause a downturn or recession," said Nichols, who foresees three quarters of recession beginning fairly soon, with real (inflation adjusted) economic growth declining by 2.5 percent while inflation averages 9.5 percent this year, falling off in late 1979 and early 1980.

Tennessee doesn't honor ex-president

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)-"You Remember Tenesse Johnson.

That's what Hollywood called the movie it made about him. Maybe you know him better by the name President Andrew Johnson. Well, he's not forgotten down home either, but his memory is not what you'd call universally revered.

Apart from the U.S. Park Service's preservation of his Greeneville house, business, grave and monument, there isn't a lot in these parts to bring him

Johnson, a Democrat, was elected to the White House by a majority of one — John Wilkes Booth. In 1868 he became the only president to be impeached, escaping conviction by but a vote. Departing from Washington in 1869, he didn't return until 1875, when he became a senator. He died that You may suspect Johnson's service to the Union caused some resentment on the home front. He was impeached as much for Southern sympathies as anything else, but you'd be right.

So the state Capitol boasts marbles and bronzes of President Andrew Jackson, Ku Kluxer Nathan Bedford Forrest, Boy Hero of the Confederacy Sam Davis, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Pvt. Alvin York, Admiral David Farragut, Sen. Ed Carmack and Albert Gleaves. And statehouse tourists may pay respects to President James K. Polk's remains. The names of state office buildings echo the praises of others, but the only reminder of Johnson is an 1870s portrait hanging near the Capitol information

An English earl, a German baron, a' French marquis and a Cherokee chief made the roll of Tennessee's 95 counties. As it happens, Union County was so named in 1850 for its non-secessionist sym-pathies. Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe — Virginians all — Van Buren of New York and Tennesseans Jackson and Polk are on the list. And Jackson, father of the spoils system, is attended by a platoon of Army pals — Coffee, Dyer, Lauderdale,

There are nearly four-score heroes from various wars among the 95 - including a rank of New Englanders - but no Andrew Johnson, the man who presided over the peace concluded at Appomat-

Oh, there is a Johnson County. But that's Thomas Johnson, one of the early settlers of the Doe River.

And there's a Johnson City — after Henry Johnson, a storekeeper there when the railroad came through.

'Nuclear park' studies continue

By DAVID BRISCOE

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - The government is proceeding with studies of colossal nuclear power complexes - capable of generating 41/2 times more power than present facilities - despite problems at existing plants and heightened public concern about atomic energy.

Being studied are huge nuclear clusters in Utah and South Carolina that would provide power for millions of customers in several states

The federally sponsored studies will cost $1.3 million, but the plants may never be built at the sites being inves-

Governors of both states have expressed reservations about nuclear power, and one official noted that Utah, with its uncertain water supply, and South Carolina were chosen only because they were the only two states to display any interest.

The Utah center, estimated to cost $10 billion, would increase the assessed valuation of the entire state by nearly two-thirds and create a construction city of 20,000 or more. Nine or 10 plants would be built within a single fence near sparsely populated Green River in eastern Utah.

The South Carolina complex would be the largest in the world - 12 reactors generating more than 14,000 megawatts of elecricity near Lake Hartwell on the Georgia border. The complex, estimated to cost $12 billion is not far from Anderson, S.C., population about 30,000, and several smaller communities in South Carolina and Georgia.

Theoretically, it would provide enough electricity to supply a city of about 14 million people — equal to the population of South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia. The Utah complex would produce up to five times the 2,500 megawatt generating capacity of Utah Power & Light Co., which serves Utah and parts of Idaho and Wyoming.

The output from the two complexes alone would equal half of today's U.S. nuclear power production.

The largest existing nuclear generating facility — three reactors at Decatur, Ala. — puts out about 3,200 megawatts.

Government scientists say the clusters would make it possible to keep an elite corps of nuclear experts on hand. Other advantages cited include the need for only one battle to win approval for the project, more efficient construction, increased security, and better safety measures.

The Utah and South Carolina "nuclear power centers" - once called "nuclear parks" by some power experts - wouldn't be completed until perhaps 2020.

Environmental, social, political, legal and technological concerns will be covered in the two studies, scheduled to be finished in 1981. Congress would then decide whether to go fur-

The studies are being funded by the U.S. Department of Energy at a cost of $800,000 in South Carolina and nearly $500,000 in Utah.

James Byrne, study director for Utah, said the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pa., and recent concern over danger from low-level radiation have not hindered the studies. But he said there would be more emphasis on "radiological and safety considerations" and on public reaction.

He said a major question in Utah, where there are no nuclear power plants, is water. State officials say water would be available, but it would have to be purchased from those who hold water rights.

In South Carolina, which has several nuclear plants in operation and others under construction, water is not a problem.

John Sharp, energy adviser to South Carolina Gov. Richard Riley, said major concerns are over regulation and taxation, since several states would use the power. "That would be an awful lot of real property. We've got to decide who would own the plants, whether they would be taxed and who would get the tax revenue,' he said.

The studies will address whether the state or public utilities should build the plants

Nuclear energy picture still 'hangs in doubt'

WASHINGTON (AP) - The fate of nuclear power "hangs in doubt," says the chairman of a House energy subcommittee after a tour of the disabled Three Mile Island power plan in Pennsvlvania. Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz.,

made that assessment Monday after he and 14 other House members toured the site of the nation's most serious nuclear reactor accident.

"You get inside one of these things and you realize how enormously complex and complicated they are," Udall said. "Maybe the technology is so complex it's beyond the ability of even well-intentioned people to con-Udall said his subcommittee will hold at least four months of hearings on nuclear issues raised by the March 28 accident at the central Pennsylvania power plant. By next fall, he said, the full House Interior Committee which has jurisdiction over most nuclear issues - will begin voting on legislation affecting the fate of nuclear energy.

During Monday's tour, the congressmen were told by a control room supervisor that federal inspectors should have known about a hydrogen explosion in the damaged reactor two days before it was formally reported to the Nuclear Regulatory Commis-Jim Floyd told the congressmen

Metropolitan Edison, which runs the power plant, did not officially notify the NRC of the explosion — the first sure sign that nuclear fuel inside the reactor had been damaged — until

Victor Gilinsky, a commission member on the tour, insisted that commission officials knew nothing about the explosion until March 30. He said this was the first time he'd heard that plant operators knew about the explosion when it happened and also the first time he'd heard that NRC inspectors may have been present as witnesses. "It will be (the) subject of meticulous review," he

Had the commission known about the hydrogen explosion as early as March 28 "we would have taken a much more serious view of the accident." Gilinsky said.

Floyd, who recounted the events of that first day for the visiting legislators, said the hydrogen explosion, which occured about 10 hours after the accident began, showed up clearly on a control room instrument which recorded pressure in the reactor ves-

He told the congressmen this happened in full view of plant operators and of several NRC inspectors in the control room.

"We assumed they knew what we were doing," Floyd said.

Company officials have said the significance of the explosion or 'pressure spike" was not understood until much later.

"There was a monstrous amount of data available and the significance of the spike was not fully understood at the time," Herman Dieckamp, president of General Public Utilities Corp., told the visiting congressmen. General Public Utilities is the parent firm of Metropolitan Edison.

Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass.. disagreed. "That defies plausability," he said. "There is no doubt in my mind that they knew about it at the time it happened and covered it

In related developments Monday: -Federal officials said technicians will start work in three weeks to clean up an estimated 600,000 gallons of radioactive water spilled during the Three Mile Island incident.

-President Carter told nuclear energy foes an immediate shutdown of the nation's nuclear power plants is "out of the question." He commented during a meeting with the coordinators of Sunday's anti-nuclear demonstration here.

-Professor Glen Schoessow of the University of Florida said a table-top model of a nuclear reactor built by nuclear engineering students will be brought to Washington May 22-24 to show House energy research and production subcommittee members what happens in accidents such as the one at Three Mile Island.

-Consumer advocate Ralph Nader said in congressional testimony plans for protecting the public during nuclear accidents "have no crecibility" and provide only "an illusion of protection.

-The Oregon House approved a moratorium on nuclear power plant construction that would ban construction of new nuclear power plants in Oregon until ground is broken somewhere in the country for a permanent storage facility for high-level radioactive waste.

Completion of final details on the two-story parking lot at Midland Regional Airport should be approved by the Midland City Council when it meets at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Council Chambers at

On the agenda is a project to seal the cracks and joints in the general aviation parking ramps and authorizing the aviation director to submit a request to the Federal Aviation Administration for its partic-

The bid for an addition to the air cargo building and other improvements at the terminal building should be accepted and a contract awarded.

The city also will consider entering a contract with Parkhill, Smith and Cooper, Inc., for engineering services on a proposed access road connecting the airport with FM 1788.

A traffic hazard situation at the intersection of Scharbauer Drive, Golf Course Road and L Street will be reviewed by the Public Works Department. The council also will consider initiating a study of the Northwest Midland Drainage Channel.

Also out of that department are requests by the State Highway Department for installing water and sewer service on a tract outside the city limits, establishing a "no parking" zone at 405 N. Marienfeld St., marking a handicapped parking zone in the 400 block of West Missouri Avenue and applying for a grant from the Governor's Office of Traffic Safety for coputerized accident record system.

Resolutions approving change orders on the work for Hogan Park Pro Shop and the parking lot there will be discussed.

Also on the agenda is a request from Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church for approval on various items concerning the annual Family Fair July 28-29, a resolution authorizing the city to enter the U.S. Conference of Mayors deferred compensation program and a request from Heath Furniture to lease parking space.

A request by F.C. Stickney for zone changes on 14.51 acres of land from office and single family to commercial will be discussed. A public hearing will be held at 1:35 p.m. on the request of Midland Community Theatre for a specific use permit for the sale of beer and wine at 206 S. Colorado St.

Judge denies Chagra's motion to dismiss jury

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has denied a motion from Jimmy Chagra to dismiss a federal grand jury investigating racketeering. Chagra, who is under indictment on drug related charges by a federal grand jury in Midland, argued the grand jury has been exposed to prejudicial publicity in the case.

But U.S. District Judge William Sessions denied the request Monday, saying he polled the grand jurors and found Chargra's arguments unfounded. The judge said none of the jurors was exposed to anything that would cause them to make an "unfair

Small loan fee to increase under terms of bill passed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texas House members have tentatively approved a bill allowing consumer finance companies to charge almost three times as much for $100 to $300 loans as they now do.

The bill advanced 79-48 Monday, with a final vote expected today, which would send it to the Senate for further action.

Rep. Don Cartwright, D-San Antonio, the sponsor, said interest rates on consumer loans have been unchanged since 1967, making small loans un-

He said the volume of $100-$300 loans had dropped by about 80 percent in recent years because interest rates were inadequate. Cartwright's bill allows an "acquisition charge" of $5 a month, up to a total of $15 for the life of a loan, plus an installment account handling charge of $3 per $100. This will provide a reasonable return to investors to put money back in this area," Cartwright said.

The bill would raise interest on a six-month $150 loan from an annual effective rate of 30.23 percent to 90.53 percent. The rate on a $300 loan for six months would rise from 30.23 percent to 75.07 percent.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, said the bill would give Texas an unwanted distinction among the states.

We would have the highest interest rates in the United States of America on this kind of loan," Bryant said. "... I can't understand how this bill got on the floor in the first place.'

He said consumer finance companies were "a healthy industry. They don't need increases of 300 percent." Bryant won approval of an amendment prohibiting lenders from collecting the $15 acquisition charge when an existing loan is renegotiated

Cartwright complained the amendment "would deny the right to renegotiate" a loan but failed, 44-79, to table it. The amendment simply says to the companies, 'You can't hook them for another $15 every time you talk a borrower into refinancing a loan,'

In another borrower-creditor action, the House defeated, 46-92, a bill allowing forced sale of homesteads for debt if a home had been paid for and then used as collateral for a new loan.

A constitutional amendment also would have been needed to change the state's protection for omesteads.

"People don't want Big Daddy government telling them what to do. Put another way, people want to be free to make their own mistakes," said Rep. Chase Untermeyer, R-Houston, a co-sponsor of the bill. But opponents said lenders would pressure would be borrowers to refinance their houses and use them as collateral for loans. The bankers out there are just like the alligator in the swamp, out for all they can get. ... You'll have all you need to buy yourself a Dairy Queen and maybe go broke and leave mama and the kids without a homestead," said Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange.

'Money flight' fears caused Clements to change his mind

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements says he changed his mind and decided to back a bill raising the 10 percent ceiling on mortgage rates because it would protect Texas from a "money flight.

"It was not a decision I took light-' Clements told members of the Texas Bankers Association Monday. "But it was a timely one, and protects us from money flight.

I was getting into a situation where the average homeowner was not able to buy," he said, adding that it also threatened a crisis to the construction trades "and tens of thousands of workers.

Clements said he expects the Legislature to pass a new usury bill within the next two weeks.

The state's 10 percent usury ceiling has been a subject of heated debate in recent weeks because it has limited the flow of funds into home mortgages. The governor at first said he would veto an attempt to lift the ceiling, but, he told bankers, he was 'under extreme pressure to do something. What he has proposed, he said, is a 12 percent cap on a floating interest rate, keyed to the rate on 10-year treasury bonds, plus 2 percent. There would be no penalty for refinancing, and Attorney General Mark White has ruled that owner refinancing would not violate the Texas Homestead Act, Clements reported. In his speech to the banker's open ing session of their annual convention. Clements also touched on a number of things being debated in Austin — the state budget, a manager system to operate when the legislature is not in session, the Mexican drug traffic, concern over the education system, and the energy short-

On the latter topic, he received several rounds of applause when he told bankers that "President Carter's energy program is a disaster for the state of Texas," and that "we want to tell Washington what we want to do instead of them telling us what we've

Cubans prove gracious losers

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The first Cuban track athletes to run in the United States in 18 years were not in top form and did not win an event at the UCLA Invitational meet. But they were extremely gracious losers.

"I wanted to come to the United States and have the experience," said Alberto Juantorena, the famed "Cuban Horse" who won two gold medals in the 1976 Olympics. "I think it is good for relations between the two countries.

Juantorena, obviously not in good condition, finished third Sunday in the 400 meters behind winner Willie Smith and runnerup Herman Frazier. Afterward, he congratulated and hugged Smith, who called the victory

"the biggest win of my life." Smith, from Auburn, was clocked in 45.55 seconds, Frazier in 46.04, and Juantorena — the Olympic champion in both the 400 and 800 meters finished in 46.20. The Cuban ran in only the 400 at the meet. For the second time in a month, University of Maryland sophomore Renaldo Nehemiah rewrote the world record in the 110-meter hurdles. Last month, helocked a 13.16, and cut that down to 13.00 Sunday.

School funds bills reported to floor

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Both houses of the Legislature received long-awaited school finance bills Monday, each adding $1 billion to state aid to local districts over the next two years.

The measures approved by House and Senate committees defy Gov. Bill Clements by continuing the automatic salary increases received by teachers in the early states of their careers.

But they differ widely in cost-of-living raises. Next step will be debate of state school aid on the floor of each chambe of the Leislature.

A House-Senate conference committee will determine the final shape of state aid to public schools in 1979-80 and 1980-81. It will work closely with soon-tobe appointed conferees on the state budget bill, since total spending for all purposes cannot exceed state

The House Public Education Committee's bill would add $1.08 billion to state school aid, while the Senate Education Committee's version would cost about $77 million less.

Senate committee action came shortly after senators passed that chamber's $20.8 billion version of the general appropriation bill.

The Senate bill includes $450 million legislators had promised local school districts they would receive as reimbursement for revenue losses caused by the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment.

The House voted earlier in the session to place the reimbursement money in a separate bill. This makes the House school finance bill a far more generous one to the school districts than the Senate bill.

School teachers would receive raises totaling $424 million from the House bill, compared with $317 million in the Senate bill.

Most teachers would get a 7 percent cost-of-living raise from the House bill, while the Senate bill provides 5.1 percent increases. Both bills would continue automatic experience step-ups through the first 16 years of a teacher's career in addition to costof-living raises — something to which Clements

The House committee recommended a $9,388 starting salary this fall for new teachers, compared with $8,650 in the Senate bill and $8,460 under exist-

Beginning salaries would rise in September 1980 to $9,082 under the Senate bill and $10,036 under the House bill - reaching the teachers' long-sought goal of a $10,000 minimum salary.

Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, won a 5-4 committee vote to add an extra $3.8 million to beef up salaries for beginners.

"I want the brightest and the best going into teaching, and I think we are paying the price today, with regard to ability, for some of the things we did in the past," Ms. Glossbrenner, a former teacher, told the House committee.

The two bills have identical amounts of $264 million to prevent scheduled rises in local expenditures for the Foundation School Program, a boon to property taxpayers.

Senators have a more generous amount for maintenance and operation, which pays for non-salary items ranging from chalk to floor wax to window glass. It is $155 million, compared with $117 million in

That was the resonse Clayton made Monday to the compliments he received in traditional Speakers Day

Former Speaker Byron Tunnell of Tyler, who made the main address, bragged on the Legislature and Clayton in particular.

'Statistics show that more than 150,000 bills are proposed in legislatures throughout the nation and legislatures are getting longer and longer," Tunnell told the House. "No longer can a farmer or businessman or even a lawyer take time off from their own business to be a legislator. As a result, in several states 20 percent of the legislators have never had a full time job.

"In Texas we have been able to maintain a good cross section of legislators and the result shows ... there is no cleaner or efficient state government in America than right here. These things you have done under Speaker Billy Claton. We are proud of these accomplishments and of you Mr. Speaker."

Helping Clayton celebrate Speakers Day were former speakers Tunnell, Robert Calvert, Price Daniel Sr., Claud Gilmer, Durwood Manford, Reuben Senterfitt, Waggoner Carr, and Rayford Price.

Texas senators don't want control delays

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas' senators say they will prod federal agencies reviewing the application for a South Texas drainage system in the hope that more floods and health hazards can be avoided.

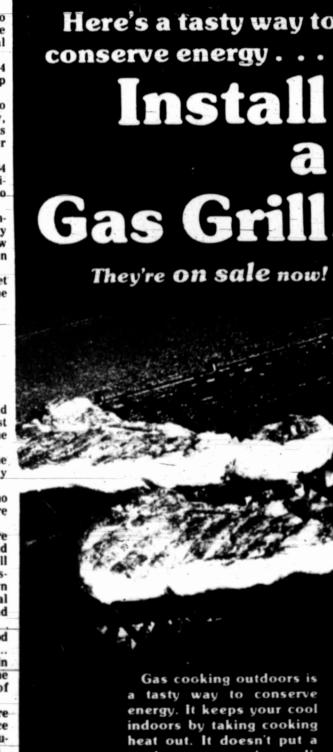

Officials from Hidalgo and Willacy counties, angered by delays in their $29 million project awaiting approval by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, had requested Monday's summit conference with U.S. Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and John Tower and U.S. Rep. E. "Kika" de la Garza.

to issue the permit," Hidalgo County Judge Ramiro Guerra said at the Capitol meeting.

Guerra said he believed lawsuits threatened by environmentalists were causing the delay. Chester Johnson of the Willacy County Drainage District said the decision to solve the problem locally was made after waiting for years for a federal flood control system for the entire Valley. Voters in the two counties approved bond issues in 1975, and the application for the permit from the Corps was "Frankly, I believe that the Corps has been afraid submitted the next year. Here's a tasty way to

College building bill approved

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - General tax revenues instead of a state property tax would finance construction at 19 state-supported colleges under a proposal approved Monday by the Senate. The constitutional amendment went to the House on a 25-5 vote. If approved by representatives, it would be submitted to the voters in November. Opponents claimed the fund should take care of more colleges than just the 19 that benefitted from the 10-cent per $100 state ad valorem tax. The prpoperty tax has been attacked as unconstitutional in federal court.

State Senate approves appropriations proposal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - It took the Senate less than two hours to accomplish what the House needed four days to do - pass a 1980-81 state budget. Senators observed a tradition - sometimes grudgingly - against amending their finance committee's. proposal Monday before approving a $20.8 spending

The budget goes back to the House where representatives are expected to reject it and request appointment of a conference committee to work out differences. The Senate version would cost the state $500 million than the House budget.

Sen. Grant Jones, Senate Finance Committee chairman, urged colleagues to reject floor amendments to the appropriations bill and to allow House-Senate conferees to work out differences.

"If we begin making changes, it will be difficult to resist making other changes," Jones, D-Abilene. His exhortation did not stop some members from

"It is not a fair situation because you do not have all the schools participating on an equal basis," said Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texarkana. Howard, who graduated from Abilene Christian College, was prepared to filibuster against the proposal last week but agreed to wait until after the week to attack the fund. The University of Texas and Texas A&M receive funds from the constitutionally dedicated Permanent University Fund (PUF), which receives the earnings from oil production on university-owned land. Under the proposed constitutional amendment, the two systems' 21 component campuses would benefit from the PUF. Howard said the SHEAF would not operate the same as PUF. The new fund would be appropriated according to a formula devised by the Legislative Budget Board and possibly the College Coordinating The PUF formula is set constitutionally and under no legislative controls, he added.

State's role being eyed

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Mary Northern died before the U.S. Supreme Court could rule on the state-ordered amputation of her frozen, burned feet. But researchers studying the year-old case hope it will help them learn more about government's role in the lives and deaths of others.

The 72-year-old woman was taken from her littered, condemned childhood home in January 1978 and hospitalized in the custody of the Tennessee Department of Human Services. Doctors said she was in imminent danger of death unless her feet, seared when she tried to thaw them over fireplace coals, were removed.

Miss Northern said she would rather die. Judges said the department could permit doctors to pro-

Miss Northern's lawyers had begun to fight the order in an appeal to the nation's highest court when a blood clot killed the former debutante more than three months later.

"It struck me that it was an excellent case study of people who may or may not be competent and what we do with them," said Keith Lundin, a Nashville lawyer commissioned by the Rand Graduate Institute to study her case. "The interesting thing in the Miss Northern case was that despite this woman's constant statements to the contrary, we ordered her to have her feet cut off if the commissioner of human services felt she should have her feet cut off. It's sort of bizarre if you think about it.

"We are dealing with something that we are doing more and more and that's government intervention in people's lives," he said. Lundin and anthropologist Virginia Abernathy are interviewing judges, lawyers and doctors who were involved in the case for a book intended for use in public policy schools, law schools and professional schools "Right now, we have not very well established guidelines for competency and evaluating competency," said the anthropologist. "So it is not clear whether a person's lifestyle - whether they are eccentric or not, whether they have mental illness or not, whether they disagree with the medical recomendations - are the criteria.

"We hope to try to develop some guidelines, or make some suggestions for guidelines, that will have some applicability across a number of cases," she

A tombstone in a Nashville cemetery marks the final resting place of Mary Northern, 72, a recluse who died May 1, 1978, after refusing to let doctors amputate her frostbitten, burned and gangrenous feet. But the issue of the power of the government over a person's life raised by her case refuses to rest. (AP Laserphoto)

Plan for Palestine outlined clauses were added. JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Among the new clauses, Haaretz listed these: Begin has proposed a 30-point plan for Palestinian -"Land required for military purposes and for self-rule in Israeli-occupied territories that reserves unowned public land for future Jewish settlements.

The newspaper Haaretz published the major points of Begin's proposal today. It said the five-page document concluded with a flat statement that Israel would never permit the creation of a Palestinian independent state, and that Israel would assert its claim of sovereignty over the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip after a five-year interim period of autonomy.

A cabinet committee of 11 ministers is to study the plan and fashion a final negotiating position for opening talks with Egypt scheduled to last 12

Israeli sources said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance may visit Jerusalem and Cairo this month for initial contacts on the plan for self-government by the 1.1 million Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza. Both areas have been under an Israeli military government since 1967.

A general autonomy framework was agreed upor

by Egypt and Israel in the Camp David accords of last September. This outline must now be honed into a workable project covering such details as who will vote for a self-governing council and the precise powers of that body.

Begin's proposal was based on the 26-point peace plan he offered to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat on Christmas Day 1977 in Ismailia, just one month after Sadat's breakthrough visit to Jerusalem. Several clauses were modified to conform with wording agreed upon in subsequent negotiations, and a few

Viets' ship anchors

PATTAYA, Thailand (AP) - The U.S. frigate Robert E. Peary sailed into this coastal resort early today with 448 Vietnamese refugees rescued from the South China Sea three days ago.
United Nations and American Embassy officials

boarded the ship, anchored offshore, to begin questioning the refugees. All who want to go to the United States will be admitted there since they were picked up by an American ship. The fate of the others was not known since the Thai government has not indicated whether it will let any of them land.

William Mathis, the skipper of the 4,000-ton frigate, told reporters the Peary spotted the refugees'

55-foot boat drifting about 80 miles off the Malaysian coast. He said both the boat's engines were broken down and the refugees were running out of water and The frigate, on a routine run between Singapore and Pattaya, took the refugees aboard and tried to tow the boat, but it sank, he said. Most of the refugees are ethnic Chinese from Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon. They said they sailed May 1 from the port of Rach Gia, 137 miles

Four-time Indianapolis 500 winner A. J. Foyt arrives at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway to begin preparing for the May classic. Foyt does not expect to have his new Coyote racer on the track for practice until Wednesday. (AP Laserphoto)

Foyt takes long blast at CART

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A.J. Foyt, denounced as a conspirator in a plot to keep his top rivals out of the Indianapolis 500, figures he has no need for Championship Auto Racing Teams and "they sure don't need me."

The four-time Indy 500 winner was an original director of CART when the dissident group of car owners and drivers broke with the U.S. Auto Club late last year. But he soon returned to the established sanctioning body, satisfied that a number of USAC rule changes were steps in the right direct-

Like it or not, Foyt is still considered the biggest name in auto racing. And his defection back to USAC did not sit well with many CART people, who claimed he was responsible for engineerng the original exclusion of the Indy entries by six other CART directors

"They can't back up any of their statements," said Foyt, who has entered four cars in his bid for a record 22nd straight Indy start. "They all blame this thing on me, but I didn't have a vote (in USAC's decision)."

Foyt laughed off the CART contention that he wanted such drivers as Al and Bobby Unser, Johnny Rutherford, Gordon Johncock and Wally Dallenbach out of the race in order to make it easier for him to win his fifth

"Yeah," he sneered sarcastically, "that's why I've beaten them so much more than they've beaten me, because I'm so scared of them.'

Foyt wasn't called to testify last week in the U.S. District Court hearing that resulted in an order reinstating the six CART teams, but he indicated he might not have appeared even if he had been subpoenaed.

"I'd have come to Indianapolis when I was ready," he said. "They could have subpoenaed me, but I've got some pretty good lawyers too. They'd have to handcuff me and take me to jail; that's the only way I'd be

The 44-year-old veteran from Houston, who has won more Indy car races than any driver in history and is the only one to have won six USAC national driving crowns, felt there were "a bunch of unnecessary statements" before and during the court hearing.

"I felt they were derogatory against racing and I wanted no part of it," Foyt continued

"They didn't want to run here in the first place. It's awful funny they came back like crybabies on their knees. When they got in trouble they realized how big this race was. And I'm sure they had some pressure put on 'em (by their sponsors)," he said.

When I first started out, there were no questions, no courts, you just didn't race if you screwed up. What's the use of having an association if you're going to be overruled all the time by a judge," Foyt added.

"The Indianapolis 500 is like the Kentucky Derby. There's a lot of great horse races, but only one Kentucky Derby. And there's only one Indianapolis 500. My greatest ambition was to come here the first time and qualify," Foyt said. "All the stuff them guys are talking about is hogwash," he said of CART's gripe over USAC's rule change that lowered manifold pressure boost from 70 inches to 50 inches for eight-cylinder engines. "Most of them don't even know what a piston is. It (the lower boost) is no big thing. It makes no difference if you're satisfied with it or not, you've gotta try new things to

"When the boost was 75 inches, fine, they said raise it to 80 inches. Then they don't want any limit. One day it's this and one day it's that," he said. "It's gotten to where it's just a pain to

But Foyt isn't ready to quit, at least not for another two or three years, he

And as for the CART-USAC bickering, he added, "I'm going to do what I want. If they don't like it, fine. I've never run in a group, and I don't have

Dallenbach, the drivers' representative with CART and Johncock's teammate, said the time lost waiting for the court ruling was not all that critical

'We were fortunate it was not really a setback. The crews on my team were able to continue working, anticipating a favorable decision," said Dallenbach. 'Any setbacks would be in the engine department, setting the cams and pistons. You don't just pull 200 horsepower from a machine of this nature and expect everything to be the same," the 42-year-old veteran from Basalt, Colo., said. Another reinstated CART driver who is not too happy with the lower boost is Rick Mears, the fastest rookie qualifier in Indy history a year ago at better than 200 mph and co-rookie of

"It's almost like coming back as a rookie," the 27-year-old driver from Bakersfield, Calif., said of the change that is expected to drop speeds 10-12 mph from last year.

"I'd just as soon run at the faster speeds, because it's harder to drive and it makes the good drivers stand out," Mears continued. "I feel I can't show the kind of effort I'm capable of doing with the lower speeds:

USAC's rationale was that the lower speeds would tend to equalize the entire 33-car field and make for a more competitive race. Mears agrees that's what's likely to happen, but he still doesn't like it because it will take away a good driver's advantage.

"This year, you'll have rookies running as fast as the front runners. Last year, I ran as fast as the front runners, but it meant more because it was at the higher speeds.

Russo named coach

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) - The Shreveport Journal reported Monday that Andy Russo, basketball coach at Panola (Texas) Junior College, will succeed J.D. Barnett as head basketball coach at Louisiana Tech in nearby Ruston.

A school spokesman would neither confirm nor deny Russo has been chosen to succeed Barnett, who resigned two weeks ago to become head basketball coach at Virginia Commonwealth University.

The spokesman said a search committee would submit a nominee to Tech's board of trustees on May 14.

In two years as head coach at Panola, Russo guided the Ponies to a 15-13 record in 1977-78 and to a 30-6 record and a national tournament berth in 1978-79 after inheriting a team that won just six games prior to his arriv-

Unser among fastest

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Speeds may not be as high as last year, but the competition is expected to be just as fierce at the Indianapolis 500 May 27.

Practice for the race got into full swing Monday as more than two dozen cars went out on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway track.

Rick Mears, Johnny Rutherford, Al Unser and Gordon Johncock, four of the eight newly reinstated Championship Auto Racing Teams' drivers, were among the fastest of the day.

Mears, co-rookie of the year in 1978, was tops at 187.578 mph; two-time winner Rutherford hit 186.451; three-time and defending champion Unser was next at 183.038 and 1973 winner Johncock reached 182.334. Danny Ongais also topped 187 and Mike Mosley reached 182, but all were well below the one- and four-lap qualification records of better than 202 mph set last year by Tom Sneva.

Unser seems to be back on track for another strong bid for a repeat title. He is driving the new "ground effects" car owned by Midland's Jim Hall.

The lower speeds are the result of the U.S. Auto Club's rule change that cut the allowable manifold pressure. That was one of the key issues that led to the CART defection from USAC and ultimately the rejection and court-ordered reinstatement of six

USAC President Dik King issued a statement Monday, however, that the issues haven't been

"As we understand it, the decision pertains only to the Indianapolis 500 for 1979," King said in a prepared USAC statement. "The court has retained jurisdiction to make certain that the race is run without interference or disruption - under the USAC

"And while the (CART) teams will be able to compete, the court did not exonerate the six car owners, which was the group against which the USAC board's original action had been taken. At no time did the board take any action against the drivers of these cars," he said.

"Because of the assurances made in open court by the car owners, who said they would not interfere or disrupt USAC's supervision of the race, we are not anticipating any difficulties. USAC does not harbo any resentment or bitterness."

In all, 27 cars got in practice laps Monday, the heaviest day so far leading up to Saturday's pole-position qualifications for the May 27 race.

Spike Gehlhausen, who earlier in the day reached 171 mph, suffered first- and second-degree burns over his buttocks, side and arms when a water hose broke during a practice run. Gehlhausen was treated at the Speedway hospital and released.

Running game tones NBA playoff contest

PHOENIX, Ariz (AP) - With both teams insisting they can outrun the other, tonight's National Basketball Association Western Conference playoff game between Seattle and Phoenix should show whose fast break is really faster.

"Do they really think they can run better than we can?" asked Seattle's jet-propelled guard Gus Williams, who takes offense at any suggestion that the Phoenix Suns can outdo the SuperSonics.

"I think we can run with anybody," said Williams. "We have the guys to get the boards and the guys to

Seattle lost to Phoenix 113-103 here Sunday but takes a 2-1 lead into the fourth game of the best-ofseven series tonight. "The faster the pace the better we like it," responded Phoenix guard Paul Westphal. "We're at our best when the play is spread over the full Williams led all shooters in the third game with 35 points, but it wasn't enough to hold back the com-pined efforts of Westphal and teammates Walter Davis and Truck Robinson. Westphal paced the Suns The Suns' first victory came without much help from star center Alvan Adams, sidelined after

Kramer, who effectively took over Adams' chores Sunday, will be asked to do it again tonight. Adams is expected to be out of action for the fourth game.

Besides scoring 11 points, Kramer held Sonics center Jack Sikma to seven points in the last three

The Sonics have clearly been masters of the backboards, but even that superiority faded when they decided to run against the Suns.

There were times when our guards were taking off, and we allowed their guards to slip in and help on the boards," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens, "We allowed them two and three shots and that hurt

As for the Suns, they feel their best basketball is yet to come in the series. "We can still do some things we haven't done yet."

said Suns Coach John MacLeod. "When we start reacting to their double team, it's really going to loosen things up. He said the Sonics have been double-teaming Westphal and Davis. That means we have a man open, and it's a matter of spotting the open man and getting the good

San Antonio moves to Texas

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) - George Gervin and the San Antonio Spurs aren't conceding the defending champion Washington Bullets anything, especially now that the National Basketball Association Eastern finals are moving to Texas.

"Look, don't worry about us - we're tough," said Gervin. "We'll show them and everybody else who says we can't win in the playoffs. When we play our game, we can do anything we want.'

The Spurs now get an opportunity to display their playoff talents before their hometown fans. With the best-of-seven series tied at one each, Game 3 will be played Wednesday night and Game 4 is set for Friday night, both in San Antonio.

The Spurs played their game in the series opener here last Friday night and blew the Bullets out of the Capital Centre, 118-97. The Bullets came back on Sunday and crunched the Spurs 115-95 behind the play of Wes Unseld, who had 26 points and 22 rebounds, and Kevin Grevey, who rediscovered his shooting eye in the third quarter to score 12 of his 18

Gervin and James Silas combined for 62 points Friday night but produced only 36 points, 11 in the second half, on Sunday and played terrible transition

They got the fast-break opportunities when we started to miss," said Spurs Coach Doug Moe. "We weren't getting back. Guys were standing around. We didn't do a good job of keeping pressure on them. When their fast breaks worked, we weren't as tough

"I'm supposed to be the first guard back on transition and I wasn't getting there," said Silas.
"Maybe I was trying to think of too many things at one time. We played the same defense that we did against Philadelphia (in the semifinal series) but Grevey is a lot better shooter than (76er rookie guard) Maurice Cheeks. You can't give the Bullets that many easy baskets.'

Gervin, the two-time NBA scoring champion who isn't noted for his defense, suggested the Spurs might have been outsmarted as well as outplayed.

"All of us might have been concentrating on shooting and rebounding too much," he said. "Grevey and Bobby Dandridge were leaving early (on the fast break) and we just didn't pick them up.

Washington Coach Dick Motta wasn't too happy with his team's performance, especially in the first half when San Antonio jumped off an 8-0 start and led throughout the first 24 minutes.

'We didn't play well in the first half and I didn't think we'd be able to salvage it," said Motta, who let his team know his displeasure at the midpoint break.

The Yankee manager is as perplexed as anyone about the Mariners' success against the two-time world champions. It happened again Monday night, when Seattle beat the Yankees for the fourth time this year without a defeat and for the 13th time in 25 tries in the three years they've been in the American League.

"It's amazing," said Seattle's Dan Meyer, who knocked in a club-record seven runs in the 12-4 rout. "I wish I could explain it. If I could explain it, we'd do it againt everyone else."

But they obviously haven't been playing the rest of the league the way they've been playing the Yankees — a team they beat three straight times out on the West Coast recently with late-inning lightning.

They didn't wait too long this time to put the game away, breaking a tie on Meyer's grand slam in the fifth inning. They scored four more times in the eighth when Meyer collected his seventh RBI on a bases-loaded walk to break the club record of six set by Leon Roberts.

"That was the first grand slam of my life — I never even hit one in Little League," said Meyer, who more than doubled his season's RBI output with his big night

Meyer, who came into the contest with a .219 batting average, two homers and six RBI in 22 games, rapped a run-scoring single and sacrifice fly off Luis Tiant in the first and third innings and then slammed his grand slam off loser Paul Mirabella.

Governors defer action on move

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP) - The board of governors of the National Basketball Association has voted to defer action for at least three weeks on the proposed shift of the New Orleans Jazz to Salt Lake City.

Larry O'Brien, NBA commissioner. said Monday the board had decided not to take action on the request because "it is our view that we do not have all the details.'

Representatives from New Orleans, seeking to keep the Jazz in Louisiana, and Salt Lake City appeared before a board advisory committee Monday morning to make their bids for the franchise.

The advisory committee was to make a recommendation to the board of governors, which was scheduled to vote on the matter later in the day.

BUT AFTER meeting behind closed doors for several hours, O'Brien emerged and said the advisory committee had been asked to gather more information on the proposed move O'Brien did not specify the issues

The transfer issue surfaced last month when Jazz majority owner Sam Battistone and Larry Hatfield, team operations chief, announced their intentions to shift the franchise to Salt Lake City.

They negotiated a conditional 20year lease to play in the 13,600-seat Salt Palace which would take effect if the board of governors approve the

Meanwhile, Hyatt Management Corp., which operates the Louisiana Superdome where the Jazz plays its home games, said it would seek to keep the team in New Orleans. The team has six years remaining on its Superdome lease and Hýatt officials have indicated that a series of suits could be filed against the team if it

"But we didn't come here to threaten," Denzil Skinner, Hyatt president, said Monday after appearing before the advisory committee. "We came here in a 'Save the Jazz' effort. We are here in a spirit of cooperation."

Skinner, New Orleans Mayor Earnest Morial and Laurence Eustis, Jr., of the Save Our Jazz Committee represented New Orleans at the meeting. Mayor Ted Wilson spoke on behalf of Salt Lake City.

WHILE ACTION was deferred on the proposed franchise move, the governors did approve the sale of the Indiana Pacers to California businessman Sam Nassi and the transfer of Boston Celtics stock held by John Y. Brown to Harry Mangurian. The two each had held 50 percent of the team's stock.

The governors also voted to alter procedures in future college drafts by which players would be eligible for selection by pro teams.

O'Brien and David Stern, the NBA's general counsel, said that starting with the 1980 player draft, there would be two ways collegians would be eligible to be drafted. First, would be as exists now, when a player completes his college career. The second would require an undergraduate with remaining eligibility, but whose class had graduated, to renounce that eligibility 45 days before the draft.

Stern said such a move would eliminate situations such as the one that ' existed this past season when Larry Bird, college basketball's Player of the Year, played his final year at Indiana State after being drafted by Valdosta State, Ga., will host the South Atlantic Regional May 11-13 and play Rollins, Fla. West Georgia will meet Columbus, Ga.

Florida Southern will host the South Regional May 11-13 in Lakeland, Fla., and will face Central Florida. Florida International and Eckerd, Fla., will square off in the other first-round contest. Troy State, Ala., was selected Monday to play in the South Central Regional hosted by Jacksonville State, Ala., but the other teams, pairings, dates and site will be announced later.

DALLAS (AP) - Lynn Swann cross your heart gen ruled Dallas cornerback Benny Barnes was Despite vociferous protests, the 33-yard penalty stood at the Dallas 23. Several plays later Franco Harris bolted 22 yards for a touchdown. Pittsburgh recovered the ensuing fumbled kickoff and scored again. Turn out the lights.

Lynn was in Dallas Monday, promoting hoola hoops and frisbees and faced the question of guilt with a big grin. "Barnes slipped and fell down on his own," said

Swann. "I didn't push him. The ball was in the air-Terry had thrown it up for grabs-and I slowed down. Benny went down as I went towards the ball and I tripped over his leg." Once the question of guilt was settled, at least in

Barnes was wearing the wrong kind of shoe which could have caused him to fall down. "Someone told me he was wearing a combination AstroTurf-natural turf cleats--that he wasn't wearing the seven cleat shoe like everybody else," said

Swann's mind, Swann disclosed that he thought

Swann. "Maybe that is why he fell." Barnes was bothered by calcium deposits in his ankle most of the year and usually wore as protective a shoe as he could get on. Any way Pittsburgh had decided they could burn the Dallas cornerbacks before the game.

'Their safeties and cornerbacks were run-conscious," said Swann. "All we did was just fake the ball to Franco." Swann also said Dallas should have done a better scouting job on the other Steeler receiver, John

"I went down the field on one play and drew three defenders with me while John just had the cornerback to beat on a 75-yard touchdown play," said Swann, who added "There was no way that penalty beat the Cowboys. We had been converting on third down all day and we would have done it again.

Oilers face playoff test

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) - Owner Peter Pocklington can't understand his Edmonton Oilers.

"Why doesn't a team like this do everything to win?" he asked after the Oilers were whipped 8-4 by the New England Whalers Sunday night.

The loss forced a seventh and deciding game here tonight in the World Hockey Association semifinal series.

Pocklington has thought "long and hard" about why the Oilers are struggling against the Whalers after finishing in first place - 15 points ahead of fourth place New England - in the regular season.

Seattle's Ruppert Jones hits the dirt after he was struck by a pitch from New York Yankee pitcher Paul Mirabella Monday night. Jones stayed in the game, but Mirabella left when Dan Meyer hit a grand slam homer later in the inning to defeat the Yankees. (AP Laserphoto)

Error causes Cubs to lose

SAN ANTONIO - Dan Rohn's tworun error in the eighth inning Monday night here propeled the San Antonio Dodgers past the Midland Cubs, 3-2. and enabled the Dodgers to take a four percentage point lead in the Texas League Western Division race.

Rohn's miscue happened with two out as Gary Weiss hit a grounder off the Cub second baseman's glove that bounded into rightfield. On the play, John Shoemaker tallied from third and Tack Wilson scored from sec-

The Dodgers grabbed their first run in the second inning after Jesse Baez scored when Ron Roenicke drew a walk with the bases loaded. That was just one of 11 free passes that Midland hurler Henry Mack yielded during the his three innings of work.

Midland scored in the first when Carlos Lezcano singled and later pranced home on an error by Mike Zouras. In the third, the Cubs added their final run, as Javier Fierro tripled and later tallied on Rohn's sacrifice fly to center. ,

Bob Shirley went the distance for the Dodgers, scattering six Cub hits. Although Mack walked 11 Dodger hitters, Darrell Turner got stuck with the setback in a relief role. The teams will renew hostilities here tonight at 7:30. The two teams wrap up the series with games on Wednesday and Thursday.

Winter tour nets rise

NEW YORK (AP) - More than $1.8 million will be available on the women's winter tennis tour next year. it was announced Monday.

A $300,000 championship at Madison Square Garden will highlight the 11-stop tour, which is expected to feature the world's best women players, including Martina Navratilova, Chris Evert Lloyd and Tracy Austin.

Rangers' magic number now five

that hasn't been said, the only statement that hasn't been made, was chalked on a blackboard in the New York Rangers' dressing room at their suburban practice rink.

The board rested on the tiled floor at the entrance to the showers. The message on that board told the Rangers — and everyone else — everything they had to know.

In block letters, it read: "The magic number is ..." And then there was a number; the number was five five victories stand between this surprising team and the National Hockey League title New York has been without since the spring of 1940.

If the Rangers beat the New York Islanders in Game 6 of their Stanley Cup semifinal at Madison Square Garden tonight, the number will be four. But those four would have to come against another team, either the Boston Bruins or the Montreal Canadiens.

That chase could start as early as Thursday, affording center Bobby Sheehan his first NHL plane trip with the Rangers. Sheehan, who spent the entire regular season as a member of the American Hockey League's New Haven Nighthawks, wasn't promoted to the Rangers until after the opener of their quarter-final series against Philadelphia.

The Rangers commuted by bus during that series, and have traveled by car in this all-New York semifinal.

"We've had 12 games in the play offs, but we've only been on a plane twice: going to Los Angeles in the preliminary round and coming back after we won," observed Rangers defenseman Carol Vadnais. 'Sheehan's all upset," continued

Vadnais. "He said, 'Here I am, riding the buses all season in the minors, and now I'm in the NHL and I still can't get on a plane."

He will get on one if the Rangers win Tuesday, or Thursday, if the Is-series. That doesn't mean the Rangers are looking past the Islanders in any way, it does mean they are confident of converting their two chances

Their penalty killers have frustrated the Islanders' vaunted power play 20 times in 20 tries, and goalie John Davidson has stopped 118 of 130 shots in the five games.

Davidson would make no predictions, but he would make one admission: "This is the tiredest I've ever been," said the 6-foot-3, 205-pound goalie after Saturday night's wild 4-3 Rangers triumph. "I love to eat - I can really put that food away - but I know I'm tired because I haven't had an appetite for two weeks now.

Funeral set for Bill Lucas

ATLANTA (AP) - Most of the leaders of major league baseball will be here Wednesday to attend funeral services for the Atlanta Braves' Bill Lucas.

Lucas, 43, a vice president and director of player personnel for the National League team, died Saturday at South Fulton Hospital. He had been in a coma since last Wednesday after suffering a massive brain hemorrhage and cardiac arrest at his Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and representatives from just about every major league team are expected at the 11 a.m. services at St. Paul of the Cross Catholic Church, said Braves spokesman Bob Hope. Burial will follow at Westview Cemetery with only family and close friends attending.

Boston promises seven full games in title series

BOSTON (AP) - "There will be a seventh game," promised Boston Bruins Coach Don Cherry, whose team faces elimination from the National Hockey League playoffs to-

The defending Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens can move into the Cup finals by beating the Bruins at Boston Garden, repeating a scenario from last year.

Montreal leads the best-of-seven series 3-2 in games. A year ago, under the same circumstances in the finals, Montreal took a similar margin into the Garden and won the championship in the sixth game.

This time, it's the semifinal series that has put Boston on the verge of starting its long summer. "We have to go out and blitz them."

said Cherry, who claims his troops were not demoralized by Saturday night's 5-1 loss at the Forum in Montreal. It was the Canadiens' best game of the series as the champions unleashed a barrage of shots at goalie Gilles Gilbert.

"You have to shoot to score," said Montreal defenseman Larry Robinson. "In the other games we weren't shooting enogh. This time we weren't throwing the puck away. We were making plays."

Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman called it "a complete game" by his club, adding that the Canadiens played well in the other contests too even though several of his players said the team was lucky to win the opening two games at the Forum.

Boston won Games 3 and 4 at the Boston Garden, a small rink said to favor the slower Bruins. 'They won their home games and we have to win ours," said Cherry. But home-ice advantage may mean little if Montreal continues to rack up shots on goal. The Canadiens had 40 in Game 5. They hadn't had more than 24 in the first four contests.

A key to the Montreal attack may have been the return of left winger Steve Shutt. He had been idle with a deep charley horse. Said Canadiens' star Guy Lafleur, "I have so much familiarity with him and how he plays and so much confidence. I can head for the holes and know the puck will be there. With him on the ice I get more chances and I take more chances.

With Shutt skating on the line that includes Lafleur and Jacques Lemaire, the Canadiens took a 3-0 first period lead and never looked back. "They played their best game and we played our worst," said Cherry. 'Now we have to be ready.

George Allen seeks throwback owner

WASHINGTON (AP) - George Allen says he's looking for a pro football owner who is a throwback to the good old days, one who values a Super Bowl trophy more than ledger book that's in the black.

"I would like to think there is one owner that is committed and dedicated to winning," said Allen, a football coach with impeccable credentials but no team. "I would think there is one owner in the league that is committed to excellence and feels George Allen would give him a championship and a Super Bowl victory

"I don't think you've heard the last from George Allen-yet," he said.

Allen, despite his 120 victories in 12 seasons, was fired by the Washington Redskins and the Los Angeles Rams and sat out the 1978 National Football League season as a television commentator and newspaper columnist

He says he doesn't have a job for the upcoming season but doesn't think there is a concerted effort by the 28 NFL owners to keep him out of pro football. "I would like to think that's not so," said Allen, who will collect $150,000 to $200,000 from the Rams for two more years. "I think the major reason I don't have a job is because there were so few jobs last year and two were filled within the organization. The timing was bad.

Four teams changed coaches after the 1978 sea-

Allen also believes there might be some complacency among NFL management because the television contract just about assures everyone will make money, win or lose on the playing field.

Stephen Sondheim's hit "Sweeney Todd" got nine nominations in the musical category, while "The Elephant Man" got seven in drama when the American Theater Wing announced its nominees on Monday.

It won't help at the box office now, but Michael Bennett's "Ballroom," which folded after a short run, got the next-highest number of Tony nominations for a musical - eight.

The nominations, by a five-member panel of theater journalists, will be voted on by 550 members of the theatrical profession and the awards will be made here June 3.

Shows first produced in England dominated the nominations for best play - "The Elephant Man," by Bernard Pomerance, an American; "Bedroom Farce" and "Whose Life Is It Anyway?." The only American nominee was Arthur Kopit's "Wings."

tions Commission is beginning a review of whether federal regulation of radio stations should be relaxed and by how much.

Nearly all radio broadcasters advocate deregulation, but many do not like the steps recommended by the commission staff. In advance of the commission's public meeting today, its seven members did not indicate how soon they would rule. It is known they do not agree on the process to be followed.

The proposed deregulation would eliminate certain programming restrictions, such as those on the amount of non-entertainment programs and time devoted hourly to commercials, and that portion of the fairness doctrine requiring coverage of controversial issues.

The proposal also would ease "ascertainment," a trade term for the requirement that stations determine the needs and interests of their communities through interviews with representative groups and try to meet those needs.

The commission's Broadcast Bureau has recommended a six-year experiment in more than 100 markets - apparently those with 10 to 12 radio stations. Such a term would allow every station to go through at least one of the normal three-year license periods

The staff proposal would retain other portions of the fairness doctrine, requiring coverage of both

Small market broadcasters have sent commission members about 600 letters complaining that the proposal to deregulate only larger markets is discriminatory and should be extended

But some FCC staff members say if the smaller market stations are deregulated, they would cut down on local news, public affairs and other informational programs because they have a monopoly resulting from a lack of competing signals.

The National Association of Broadcasters disputes this, saying that virtually every market has competition from out-of-town signals, and that all listeners

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

The heavier the smoker, the greater the anxiety

Dear Dr. Solomon: I can appreciate why smokers find it so hard to kick the habit, but why do they ever start? Is there a difference im personality between people who smoke amd those who don't?-Cliff

Dear Cliff: Studies of medical students at the Johns Hopkins University by Dr. Caroline B. Thomas have revealed some interesting findings. An analysis of their smoking habits showed that the "heavier" the smoker, the greater the anxiety experienced under stress. Feelings of anger under stress also increased, but to a lesser extent.

Cigarette smokers consumed more coffee and alcohol as their rate of smoking increased and, as a group, were more verbal and aggressive. One may speculate that the kinds of behavior patterns associated with heavy smoking reflect personality characteristics which make it difficult for the person

Conversely, nonsmokers appear to have personality traits which make smoking distasteful to them. They tended to drink less coffee and alcohol and showed less anxiety and anger under stress. Their psychological profiles seemed to suggest steadiness and regularity.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My sister recently gave birth in the maternity ward of a modern hospital. I'm not sure why, but her obstetrician monitored the fetus with an electronic device while she was in labormaybe because there is a history of diabetes in the family. I wonder how safe it is to use this equipment during childbirth.-Mrs. G.Y.

Dear Mrs. Y.: Others apparently share your concern. The National Center for Health Services Research has raised a question about the routine use of electronic fetal monitoring. It says the procedure may be dangerous to both mother and child, and that the risks may exceed the benefits. These risks include pelvie infections in mothers, and hemorrhage and infection in babies.

Those who support this monitoring technique maintain it can save the lives of many infants and prevent permanent damage, such as brain damage, which might occur if the infant is deprived of oxygen. Electronic fetal monitoring can alert physicians to the meed for early intervention in delivery. For example, the necessity for induction of labor or a cesarean delivery may become apparent in some

As you can see, though, the last word on the subject

Dear Lr. Solomon: Is it possible to tell at birth whether a child has sickle cell amemia?—Mr. B.C. Dear Mr. B.C.: Yes, it is possible, but only by using special test designed for this purpose. Other means are not possible because the disease does not usually show itself until the child gets to be at least six months old. This is when the symptoms of the disease

The quarrel erupted just as the SCLC, which led front-line civil rights confrontations from Selma, Ala., to Cicero, Ill., in the 1950s and '60s, appeared to be regaining its balance.

Williams - a rabblerousing field organizer under King — was named executive director in 1977 as part of a compromise in which the Rev. Joseph Lowery was elected president, succeeding the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy.

Over-the-counter sleep

 Non-prescription sleeping aids will come under the close scrutiny of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in the next month, HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr.

The over-the-counter pills were brought to the attention of the government last week after an expert panel concluded the active ingredient commonly used in the aids is a potent carcinogen in animals. Califano, in an interview on ABC News' "Issues and Answers," said Sunday that the result of the government's review of the pills could be action that "would lead to us taking them off the market.'

A panel of the Clearinghouse on Environmental Carcinogens found that methapyrilene, an antihistamine, caused liver cancer in one laboratory animal study and is responsible for deaths of nearly onefifth of the rats in an-
