Graduating seniors from each of the five city high schools toss their caps in celebration of the end of one phase of their lives and the beginning of another. Graduation ceremonies are slated for 8 p.m. Friday for Dunbar-Struggs, Lubbock High and Coronado and for 8 p.m. Saturday for Estacado and Monterey. Seniors representing their schools are, from left, Manuel Salinas of Monterey, Trina Foster of Dunbar, Winston Gipson of Estacado, Don Arterburn of Coronado and Linda Shrimplin of Lubbock High.

City graduates reaching new milestones

he graduating seniors from the five city high schools will reach a new milestone in their lives throughout the weekend when they receive the diplomas that traditionally mark the end of childhood and entry into the adult world.

Approximately 1,928 students from Monterey, Coronado, Lubbock High, Estacado and Dunbar-Struggs will formally end 12 years of education in ceremonies slated for tonight and Saturday nights.

Graduation exercises will begin at 8 p.m. today for Coronado, Dunbar and Lubbock High.

Coronado students will hear classmates Malena Badell and Tim Walker speak during the ceremony at the Municipal Coliseum. They will address this year's graduation theme, "Dream a Dream and Live a Life." Jay Gordon, assistant superintendent for instruction will present the Coronado graduating class of 603 to school trustees Lynn Stafford, Brad Crawford and Giles M. Buddy" Forbess Dunbar-Struggs students Jill Michelle Smith, Patsy June Lockhart and Thomas Roy Braxton will speak to their graduating class of 156 on the theme "Either We Will Find a Way or We Will Make One

Superintendent Ed Irons will be present for the ceremonies at the Municipal Auditorium to present the class to school board members Charles Waters and Montie

The Civic Center will be the site for graduation exercises for the 343 graduates of Lubbock High School.

Speakers James Shelby, Rudy Alvarado, Jayna Allgood and Linda Shrimplin will speak to their classmates on "An Opportunity to be Unique." School trustees Jose Ramirez and Harold Harriger will hand out diplomas to the seniors following presentation of the class by Dr. E.C. Leslie, assistant superintendent for administration. Exercises for the Monterey graduates will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Colise-

'We Make it Happen" is the theme for speeches by students Rynnea Darnell, Peter Harris, Paul Hancock and John Kim.

Estacado seniors will graduate at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Auditorium Students Jeannette Baker, Willie Queenan and Anna Diego will speak on the theme, "Today's Dreams - Tomorrow's Realities." Ron Gooch, assistant superintendent for business affairs, will present the 209 graduates to board members Crawford and Hasie.

Major airlines revise schedules

ubbock residents planning to use the airlines for their summer vacations will find their choices of flights drastically altered after June 1 — and not all the changes are for the better. All four of Lubbock's airlines — Continental, Braniff, Southwest and Texas International — have plans for changing their service into the city, and two of them, Continental and Braniff, are cutting back on the number of flights involving Lubbock.

Continental especially is reducing its service into the city. Beginning June 1, the carrier will drop all flights between Dallas-Fort Worth Airport and Lubbock, leaving Braniff as the only airline flying between DFW and Lubbock.

The cutback of flights comes as part of a complete overha system, and is being called strictly an economic move by Continental officials. The airline still will fly between Lubbock and El Paso and Albuquerque, and has applied for service connecting Lubbock with Denver, Houston and Austin.

"As part of our overall economics policy under deregulation, all our red ink routes are going," said Tom Currigan, a spokesman in Continental's home office in Los Angeles. "Most of those Texas routes, including the Lubbock-Dallas connection, are TEXAS INTERNATIONAL has applied to the Civil Aeronautics Board and received approval to pick up the two daily flights between DFW and Lubbock, but has not announced a definite start-up date.

"We have no immediate start-up plans," said TI's Peggy Dyer. "We plan to begin as soon as we can, but right now, we're just not ready to fly them the way we want TI will fly two roundtrips daily, the same as Continental, Dyer said, adding fares would be $28 regular and $18 discount in each direction.

Braniff also is reorganizing its system for the summer, and dropping some flights into Lubbock in the process. Most of its schedule changes will affect Lubbock only by rearranging departure times, but the carrier is cancelling two flights daily from DFW to Lubbock.

Braniff is cancelling its 10:20 a.m. and 10 p.m. flights into Lubbock on June 1, leaving four flights daily in both directions between the two cities.

Under its rearrangement plans, Braniff will move its daily flights from Lubbock to Dallas from 6:55 a.m., 9:40 a.m., 11:40 a.m. and 3:40 p.m., to 6:30 a.m., 9:35 a.m.,

Flights from Dallas to Lubbock will not be affected, except for the 10:50 p.m. flight, which will be moved to 10:30. The other three flights into Lubbock will re-

Braniff also is adding one flight Saturday and Sunday

CONTINUING WITH its ambitious expansion plans, Southwest soon will raise the number of flights between Dallas' Love Field and Lubbock. The airline will add one more weekday roundtrip and three Sunday roundtrips between the two cities, making nine daily roundtrips and seven each weekend day.

Although no official plans have been announced, both Delta and Trans World Airlines have shown interest in adding Lubbock to their respective route systems.

Delta, which shares a terminal at DFW with Continental, has been rumored reads to take over Continental's operations there. Continental officials say they soon will sublease their terminal space and all groundhandling operations to Delta, but deny Delta will fly the routes in Lubbock. Delta would need CAB approval to pick up the Lubbock routes, just as TI did.

Talk of expansion from the north by TWA also seems unfounded, though TWA officials admitted to considering linking Lubbock with their hub in St. Louis.

Frontier, Ozark and North Central Airlines all have applied to the CAB for permis sion to connect Lubbock with Austin, Houston and Denver, but none can act until the CAB grants approval.

It is likely all three carriers, along with Continental, which applied for the routes first, will receive approval, said Gary Edles, special counsel to the CAB. He added it was just as unlikely that all those receiving permission would actually initiate serv-

Stanwood Corp. was forecast to have the largest price increase, an average of 70 percent. Farah Mfg. was forecast to rise an average of 47 percent, and After Six, Inc. was forecast to rise an average of 39 percent. Analysts said Warnaco Inc. might rise an average of 36 percent.

Stanwood, the analysts thought, might drop by 10 percent which leaves a forecast net gain of 60 percent. Analysts said Farah Mfg. might drop by 27 percent. They forecast that After Six might drop by 22 percent, and Warnaco by 11 percent. This means analysts see Stanwood Corp. as having the greatest chance for gain with the least downside risk of all the stocks surveyed.

Analysts liked Stanwood, manufacturer of Healthknit underwear and a supplier of house-brand menswear to chain store retailers (Sears, K-Mart), because of its recent reorganization. However, they cautioned that pending legal action could substantially affect the company's profitability. They liked Farah, which manufactures mainly slacks and sport jackets, due to its efforts to return to profitability. After Six was said to dominate a newly stronger formal wear market, and Warnaco was liked be-

What a deal!!!

With the recent gasoline crises seeming to become worse, Update photographer Jim Watkins got a real surprise when he filled up his car at a local station. The pay window showed only 75 cents due with over 20 gallons purchased. But, in the end, the window didn't tell all when he went to the counter to pay, thus ruining what appeared to be a bright spot in all the darkness.

Problem is not more money

THE FIGHT against inflation is forcing a choice between greater military strength and programs ostensibly designed to foster domestic well-being.

This choice is crystallizing between those calling for uncritical support of the American defense establishment and those doubting the usefulness of force.

Force, however, is an abstract concept. In many cases, the perception of it alone is sufficient. In others, it must be exercised and applied by men using weapons within an organizing framework.

It was in such an application of force that the American military proved inadequate to the task in Vietnam.

OUR TACTICS sought to bombard the enemy into submission. Our supporting manpower system was inappropriately premised upon a nation-in-arms approach to war. Inasmuch it hindered development of tactics and skills needed for skirmishes in jungles and rice-paddies at night.

American inability to develop and apply the military potential of the resources allocated is the obverse way of saying that a much larger military capability could be generated from existing allocations.

We and our allies need more military forces. We can no longer rely on nuclear superiority to offset our deficiency in conventional weapons in Europe, or elsewhere, if the situation deteriorated.

"(But) we should not allow the fact that the Soviets now outspend the United States tempt us away from the real problem," writes Steven L. Canby in the current issue of the AEI Foreign Policy and Defense Re-

"The Soviet economy is inefficient, and its costs are high," observes Canby, former Rand Corporation economist. "Budgetary comparisons overstate the real difference. That their equipment may be cheaper than ours because it is less burdened by superfluous features is a different question."

STRATEGIC FORCES have been, and still are, the undergirding of American strategy. It has been strategic superiority that has allowed the U.S. to extend the protection of deterrence to our allies.

It is the folding of this nuclear umbrella that is causing dismay among our NATO al-lies, and has caused the new prominence and importance of conventional forces.

But we must not underuse, or overuse, our resources. "It is difficult for the U.S. to hold the rest of the world in awe of its great military power if it renounces the role of global policeman," writes Lloyd Norman, former Newsweek Pentagon reporter.

Power is not respected if it is not used when needed, or if the authority controlling it appears, as does the Carter administration, to be diffident or indecisive. This is a divergence that more money alone will not

By U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentse

On September 10, 1976 a bomb exploded in a locker at Grand Central Terminal in New York City.

The blast killed one police officer and disfigured another.

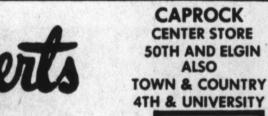

It was later determined that the bomb was the work of four terrorists from Croatia, one of the six "nations" that make up Yugoslavia. The terrorists were part of the Croation separatist movement that has been active for the past several years. In addition the bombing, the Croation terrorists had also hijacked a TWA airplane that day.

All four were later convicted and given stiff prison sentences for their roles in this bloody and brutal crime. Two of them, Zvonko Busic and his wife Julienne, received life sentences. Two others, Peter Matanic and Frane Pesut, each were sentenced to 30 years in jail.

I was outraged to learn a few weeks ago that at a recent hearing Federal Judge John Bartels of New York reduced the sentences for these terrorist criminals, making it possible for them to be out on the streets as early as December 31 of this year.

The sentence reduction is a mockery of justice and an open invitation to fure acts of terrorist violence.

The growing incidence of crime terrorism in this country and around the world is abominable. The destruction of innocent lives in the pursuit of political objectives is reprehensible and alien to the tradition of a free and civilized society. There is no excuse, no justification, no reasoning that suffices tho make these acts anything else.

With summer upon us. Roberto Spence School is now making plans for its new classes

"Have you decided what you want to accomplish this summer? If the answer is 'no,' why not give Robert Spence a call? Maybe you want to be a model, or perhaps you just want to be a model person. In any event, Robert Spence has the training you desire. The Robert Spence School is located in the Terrace Center, 4902 34th St., Suite 15, phone 797-8134, in Lubbock.

Registration is now underway for summer classes which will begin June 4. The registration deadline is June 1. Classes will be offered with various schedules of daytime and evening class-

Fully Certified

All schools in Texas that are teaching any course of instruction must be certified by the Texas Education Agency. This is not only a protection for the school but for its students. The Robert Spence School and its staff are certified by the Texas Education Agency and is owned and directed by Brenda Becknell.

Classes are offered in Self-Improvement and Personal Development, Professional Modeling, the Classic Woman Course, the Little Princess Course and the Young Miss Course, and all are designed to assist girls and women toward the self-realization that leads to mature confidence in one's own image. No more than eight students are assigned to a class, so instructors can devote individual attention to the needs of each.

The basic course in self-improvement consists of instruction in several fundamental elements which combine to develop the truly poised person. The ele-ments include posture and walking, skin care and make-up application, hair styling, figure correction, speaking, wardrobe coordination and personality devel-

Beyond the self-improvement course, Robert Spence offers instruction in pro-fessional modeling which opens career vistas to many women. The school functions as an agency and has placed many women in modeling jobs in the Lubbock area, Dallas and New York.

The Classic Woman course is designed for the woman who is interested in updating her wardrobe, make-up and being poised in all situations she may encounter. The course is especially successful for business organizations, clubs and area groups.

Qualified Instructors Instructors other than Miss Becknell include Lynette Thuett, Gloria Madrid, Robin Becknell, Donna Chandler, Linda Wilks, Johnnie Hardage, Janey Euresti,

Jim Wright: Chef likes pressure, tells secrets

Creativity in the kitchen is one thing, but when it comes to serving large numbers of people, most of us probably would stick to a more simple menu. Elegant, of course, but simple.

Jim Wright, chef at the Lubbock Hilton Hotel, however, has other ideas about banquet menus. Simplicity has its place, he says, but creativity is "where

THE EXACTNESS of sauce dishes is one of the challenges Wright likes best about cooking gourmet foods. "I enjoy preparing them," he says, "because they have to come out right or they don't come out at all."

Multiply the difficulty of creating a perfect sauce by 100 or 200 persons at one banquet; add the responsibility for soup, salad, vegetable and dessert courses - all piping hot or chilled, delicious and ready at the right time - and you have the reason that many head chefs are old before their time.

Wright, whose grin appears easily, counters he likes the pressure, however. "I like the challenge of a good-sized banquet." he commented.

His answer to the strain of planning, preparing and organizing so many meals at once is to "just get your head down and keep working." A good crew, which he's glad to have at the Hilton, is essential to the effort, too. "You don't lose control if you have good help," he says.

RECIPES WITH a gourmet flair are Wright's current interest, but his career has focused on many other kinds of cooking, too.

Wright says he's been a chef for the past eight years, and was a cook for nearly eight years before then. A chef, he says, is in charge of the entire kitchen operation while a cook's job is simply to

Without a wife and family, he's moved from California through Nevada and Colorado, to Lubbock.

Along the way he's been impressed with regional influences on eating. Californians, he noted, have a wide variety of cuisines available to them, perhaps because the prople there have migrated from so many different areas.

In Carson City, Nev., where he was a sous-chef, Wright remarked on the considerable Basque influence. "We served huge platters there, family style, with lamb chops or rack of lamb, a chicken dish, spaghetti and a meat stew, all on the same platter."

HE FINDS West Texans prefer plain cooking for the most part, but he expects interest in the gourmet dishes he will be introducing.

In addition to gourmet dishes at banquets. Wright hopes to experiment with some cooked-at-the-table meals, and gourmet specials offered in the dining room at the Hilton.

Some of his favorite recipes follow:

Gary Coleman stars as 8-year-old Arnold Jackson. In the show, he and his brother are adopted by a wealthy widower. Although Gary is 11, he is the size of a 5-yearold. He had a kidney transplant when he was younger.

"I just might be in this laugh stuff for years," Gary Coleman told The Mini Page.

An 11-year-old who acts and talks much older and looks much younger than he is, Gary is a smash hit as Arnold Jackson on NBC's TV show "Diff'rent Strokes."

"They didn't plan for me to steal the show," says Gary.

But steal it he does. "Gary is one of the hottest little properties in TV," an expert told us.

"I got my start when I was 5, modeling clothes at a local department store. The manager discovered me. He helped us sign with an agent," he says.

Modeling led to TV commercials and later the show.

We got his autograph for you!

Schooling

Gary has three hours of school a day. He is taught by a tutor. Sometimes he is able to "bank" hours or be with the tutor longer so he doesn't have school every day.

Gary is a good reader. He has always read above the reading level for his age.

His mother does not help him with his lines.

"He has a system of his own. I don't know how he does it," she added.

Hobbies

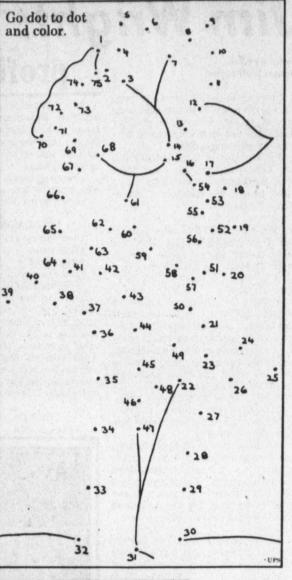

"The money doesn't matter," says Gary. But it has helped him pay for one hobby: collecting model electric trains. He is also interested in space, aircraft and reading. He likes to write and illustrate his stories.

His best friend is a 112pound German shepherd named Champion.

He is also very close to the other stars of the show, Conrad Bain and Todd Bridgers.

By Jeanne Lively Update Staff Writer

When Update visited with coffeedrinkers at Dunkin' Donuts, those interviewed had definite views and opinions about such a plan.

Charles B. Eickenhorst said, "It would work for some people, but I don't think it would necessarily work for me. I work for the railroad and don't always know where I'll be working from one day to the next. I use my car of course to get to work. But, I'd really like to know whether there really is a gasoline shortage - I don't think the true situation has been fully explained by any-

Ronald Strain voices similar feelings about leaving his car home one day a week. "Sometimes," he said, "it would be okay to do it. But the location of where I work changes, and it might not always be convenient, depending on where I am working at the time. If I'm working out of town, I have to have my car to get to work. Sometimes I work from zero to 300 miles away. I don't know what to think about whether there is or isn't an actual gasoline shortage. All I know is that it came up mighty Scott Stansell said, "Most of the time I could probably do without driving my car one day a week. But, I'd hate to be limited that way, for any length of time. I suppose there must be a gasoline shortage, and we'll just have to try and cope with it. However, it would be 'rough' to only be able to buy $5 worth of gasoline at a time - there'd have to be a way to control 'gasolinehoppers'.

Donald Austin teased Update at first, giving his twin brother's name instead. But the other 'half' kept things 'straight' by warning, "You'd better get him to use his real name and not mine.

So, the 'real' Donald Austin said, "That $5 wouldn't even start the two cars I own. However, you'll have to ask my wife about whether she'd be willing to leave each of the cars home one day a week - she drives more than I do.

Donis Austin commented, "Five dollar purchases would 'swamp' the gas stations even worse than they already are. And, if this plan comes about, then there'd have to be something to keep people from going to one station after another to fill up their tanks. But my wife drives more than I do.

Casablanca (2138 19th Street) - Bad Jammin' will be playing progressive jazz Chelsea Street Pub (South Plains Mall) - Texas Rain, a band which has as its foundation a few ex-Peyote members, will play contemporary acoustic music tonight and Saturday. There's never a cover charge at Chelsea's.

Cold Water Country (7301 University) - Leroy Preston, a former member of Asleep At The Wheel, and his band Whiskey Drinking Music will play tonight and Saturday. The cover charge is $2 for men, with women admitted free.

Country Squire Dinner Theater (2 1/2 miles outside Loop 289 on Brownfield Highway) — Already playing to sellout crowds is the musical "The Sound Of Music," directed with great style and wit by Paul Prece and starring Martin McDonald as Captain Von Trapp and Leslie Thurman as Maria. Miss Thurman seems to improve with every show and makes excellent use of her comic timing here. The rest of the cast is also excellent, overall, but look for some wonderful enthusiasm and lovely singing from Debbie Lehnick as Liesl. This young woman is going to go places. The play is preceded by dinner each night: lasagna on Tuesdays, seafood on Wednesdays and the usual roast beef buffet Thursdays through Saturdays. Ticket prices have been boosted for this show to $8.95 on Tuesdays, $10.95 on Wednesdays and Thursdays and $12.95 on Fridays and Saturdays. Students may purchase tickets at a $2 discount on Thursdays and Fridays. A Sunday performance is also offered at 6:30 p.m., with no dinner served that night and the price set at $6 for adults and $3 for students. Advance reservations are strongly ad-

Red Reider Inn (6025 Avenue A) — The banquet room on the second floor of the Red Raider is now being used for "Follies of Henry VIII," a dinner theater concept which sees the audience taken back to a 16th century pub and entertained with dinner, wenches and, well, royalty. It's patterned after the successful concept restaurants where a member of the audience may grab a chicken leg with one hand and a wench with the other. Though inconsistent, the humor and unique attributes provide a memorable evening. Standouts in the show are Scot Purkeypile as Master Bates, Toni Cobb as Rosie and all of the wenches: Toby Probasco, Heather Hollingsworth, Julia Roberts, Batto of the wenches: Toby Probasco, Heather Hollingsworth, Julia Roberts, Betty Tousch, Diane Hosey and Becky Mathis. on screen

Backstage I - "Coming Home." Winner of three Academy Awards for best performances by an actor and actress, and best original screenplay. No doubt one of the most important films released in 1978, this movie takes a look not at the politics of Vietnam, but at the physical and mental scars administered to the men and women caught up in the war fought there. Jon Voight gives the best, the most sensitive performance of his career, and very much deserved his Oscar for his portrayal of paraplegic veteran Luke Martin. Bruce Dern offers his usual strong performance, and might have won a Supporting Actor's Oscar any other year; no one could compete with Christopher Walken (in "The Deer Hunter") in 1978. And Jane Fonda is often moving as the Marine's wife caught up in love and the aftermath of the conflict. The film won eight Oscar nomi-

Backstage II - "One More Time." X-rated material.

Cinematheque - There will be no more Cinematheque classics screened until Texas Tech University resumes classes in the fall.

Cinema West - "Winter Kills." This film was made two years ago and yet is only ust now hitting the screen. It boasts a good cast, including Walter Huston and Jeff Bridges, and deals with the later discovery of an assassination conspiracy. Sound familiar? Not screened at press time.

Fine Arts Drive-In - "Anita" and "Swedish Minx." X-rated material

Fox I - "Manhattan." This is Woody Allen's best film to date, an absolutely flawless film of purpose, a loving and extremely personal mixture of wit and tenderness which manages to spark both comedic and emotional reactions as it damns fashionable intellectualism in favor of the drama of losing relationships. The laughs are plentiful, but they are neither nonsensical nor nonstop. "Manhattan" is Allen's most moving and human and entertaining film. It is further, in my opinion, the best film yet released in 1979. Filmed in black and white, with Diane Keaton and Mariel Hemingway co-starring Fox II - "Grease." The soundtrack album grossed more than the movie (just like 'Saturday Night Fever''), but repeated viewings by the nation's youth still made 'Grease" a big winner at the box office. The film is a very corny look at the 1950s, not at all accurate and only occasionally enjoyable. Olivia Newton-John's performance is absolutely awful, but John Travolta supplies an admirable energy on screen. And if you'll accept funny, talented Stockard Channing as a high school student, well, I guess you're willing to accept just about anything...

Fox III - "Hanover Street." If you love old fashioned film romance, this is the picture for you. But the film offered just a few too many flaws and overly sappy moments to sweep me away. The cast is strong — Harrison Ford is the American bomber pilot who falls in love with the lovely Lesley-Anne Down, who in turn is married to British intelligence officer Christopher Plummer — but the material is weaker than anticipated. The firebombing of London is well filmed, though, and Richard Masur is responsible for some much needed comic relief.

Fox IV - "Can I Do It 'Till I Need Glasses?" This is the R-rated sequel to the sexual spoof "If You Don't Stop It, You'll Go Blind." Not screened at press time

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Front Screen - "Grease." See comments under

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Back Screen — "Hooper." Burt Reynolds is a hoot in this funny, funny diversion about Hollywood stuntmen. Fine support is offered by Brian Keith, Jan-Michael Vincent, Sally Field and, yes, even Terry Bradshaw. Though the humor is first rate, the film is also an obvious ode to movie stuntmen: their drive their feelings and code of honor. A sidenote: Burt Reynolds began his career taking punches as a stuntman long before he was ever allowed a speaking part on camera.

Sunday Marathon: The back screen of the Goldén Horseshoe Drive-In will offer a marathon of four movies at 9 p.m. Sunday, lasting until 4 a.m. The films are "Supervan," "Stingray," "Macon County Line" and "Thunder And Lightning." Patrons who stay for the whole shebang will be awarded a free pass for a future movie as they

Home Box Office - This pay television station offers movies and specials not presently on Lubbock's big screens. Premieres are held on HBO each weekend evening and then repeated throughout the month. Tonight will see HBO premiere an all-star country music festival, featuring performances by Roy Clark, Tammy Wynette, Mel Tillis, The Oakridge Boys, Freddie Fender and Don Williams. Saturday should mark a highlight, with Gary Cooper's "The Hanging Tree" making its cable television debut; look for sup-porting performances by Karl Malden and George C. Scott. And on Sunday, it's laughs galore in the black comedy "The End," a film which proves Burt Reynolds a skillful director and one which should have won Dom DeLuise at least a supporting actor's

Showplace I - "Hooper." See comments under Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Back

Showplace II - "Prisoner Of Zenda." A new comedy with Peter Sellers playing dual roles. Not screened at press time.

Showplace III -- "Silver Streak." The comedy which helped make Richard Pryor a household name. Uneven during the opening moments, despite solid performances from Gene Wilder and Jill Clayburgh (the best she's EVER looked on screen, by the way), the pacing picks up when Pryor enters the film and then never lets up. This is the film with the now classic scene in which Pryor attempts to teach Wilder how to "be black" Hilarious material

Showplace IV - "Jaws." The original Great White Shark is back, terrorizing Amity and audiences. One of the finest horror films ever made - and it is indeed a film of horror — director Steven Spielberg grants the killer beast an almost mythical quality, urging us to root fiercely for gladiators Roy Scheider, Richard Dreyfuss and Robert Shaw. A movie which will be remembered

Showplace V - "Voices." From the previews, it looks like this one may be the tearjerker to follow "The Champ." Michael Ontkean is a young pop singer who falls in love with Amy Irving, a deaf woman who desires a dancing career. Both young thespians are extremely talented. (You'll remember Ontkean from "Slapshot" and Miss Irving as the surviving entity in both "Carrie" and "The Fury.") The film has definite possibil ities, and looks to be a must for romantics. Not screened at press time.

A sidenote: The deaf in southern California have picketed the film, stating that it stereotypes deaf persons and protesting the casting of a hearing actress in the starring role. MGM refutes the charges.

Showplace VI — "Love At First Bite." Surprise! This spoof on the Dracula legend is really pretty funny, actually hilarious whenever Richard Benjamin is on the screen. The plot finds George Hamilton, as Count Dracula, evicted from his Transylvanian castle and traveling to the Big Apple in search of fashion model Susan Saint James (who goes blonde for this film). Benjamin is a psychiatrist and a descendent of a noted vampire hunter. The laughs come pretty much non-stop, with everyone involved keeping the mood tongue-in-cheek. Look for Arte Johnson as the count's bug-eating loyal assistant.

It was on May 26, 1978 that the Take Your Pick entertainment calendar made its debut. And it, like the Lubbock entertainment scene, has grown in the year that followed. Fifty-two weeks ago, for example, Showplace was still a fourplex, the South Plains Cinema had only two screens, and there was less live entertainment listed. "Star Wars" was entering its 49th straight week in the city, and "The Goodbye Girl" was enjoying its 23rd week of business. As the city grows and more entertainment opportunities make themselves available. Update plans to be there to serve as a guide. This page is handled completely by William Kerns. He's the one who checks out the live entertainment, reviews the films and plays, and researches upcoming concerts and the like. So if you've got questions, comments or requests, give him a call by 5 p.m.

South Plains Cinema I, Mall - "Escape To Athenia." Little could be ascertained about this film by press time. Not yet screened South Plains Cinema II, Mall - "Battlestar Galactica." Filmed in Sensurround. the gimmick which now proves that spaceships sound like rollercoasters which sound like airplanes landing on ships which sound like earthquakes. (Have I forgotten anyone?) I have to admit up front to being predjudiced. I despise the Sensurround process and believe it has no place in a fourplex theater where it will undoubtedly disturb the patrons in the next theater. And I do not like the idea of a TV movie (the premiere twohour episode of ABC's "Battlestar Galactica") being re-edited and released as a feature film at new feature prices, no matter how superb the special effects. I saw the episode on television, but this feature version was not screened by press time.

South Plains Cinema III, Mall - "Dawn Of The Dead." This film carries no rating, and the law states that the only rating which can be self-applied is an X. Though there is no sexual pornography in this movie, it might very well be the first which could have earned an X through violence alone, as it stands out as the most gory and brutal horror film yet released to an unsuspecting public. And yet, I liked it a lot. Writer-director George Romero uses overkill literally, to the point where we are no longer shocked by his zombie murders (this is a sequel to 1968's "Night Of The Living Dead," where the dead return to chow down on the living). Romero's sense of humor is evident through out, and that installation of humor into such a grisly effort makes for a very nice effect. But stand warned: this remains a violent, gory, brutal film which those with weak stomachs will not be able to sit through. I do not use that description lightly. Heads are blown off: entrails are dined upon. Quite a few viewers have already walked out, telling theater manager Robert Hurley they "just couldn't take it."

I urge you not to argue with management if told your children cannot be admitted.

South Plains Cinema IV, Mall — "Same Time, Next Year." Playwright turned screenwriter Bernard Slade has refused to open up his tepid little Neil Simon clone for the screen and, a a result, the cinema version of his hit stageplay is predictable to the point of being yawn inspiring. The whole thing is just too stage-y — but luckily for Slade (and us), the performances are strong enough to keep us from walking out. Alan Alda and Ellen Burstyn work wonderfully together; one only wishes they'd held out for stronger screen material Village — "Smokey And The Bandit" and "Convoy." The hilarious and the boring side of trucker movies, respectively. "Smokey And The Bandit," while hardly taxing the mind, is nevertheless quite an enjoyable diversion. Burt Reynolds' sense of comic timing shines through again and again and, while the more highbrow critics slammed this movie (one Dallas critic said the movie was not released, but "escaped" instead), it's not hard to see why it became one of the highest money-making pictures of our time "Convoy," on the other hand, is Sam Peckinpah's latest excursion into mindless slow motion asphalt antics; it could also prove to be his swan song. (But then, why people opt to make movies from songs like "Convoy" and "Harper Valley PTA" still baffles

Winchester - "Beyond The Poseidon Adventure." Well, Irwin Allen's last disaster movie. "The Swarm," proved to be a disaster at the box office as well. But the man who gave us "The Poseidon Adventure" and "The Towering Inferno" is hoping for a comeback with this sequel to the former film. It seems more dangerous adventure is attached to the capsized, upside down vessel after divers try to extract the valuable car-go. The picture stars Sally Field, who has already told the press she "did it for the money," Michael Caine, Peter Boyle and Telly Savalas. Not screened at press time.

Morning Shows - Showplace Six will screen "The Return Of The Magnificent Seven" at 10 a.m. Saturday. The admission charge is either a Rainbow Bread wrapper, a Dr. Pepper bottle, a Borden's Milk carton (milk cartons from school cafeterias are not acceptable) or $1 in cash. (A sidenote: The original "The Magnificent Seven" will be screened at 10:30 p.m. today on Cable Television Channel 8.)

Midnight Shows - Showplace Six will screen the cult classic "Harold And ide," a black comedy which must be seen to be truly appreciated, at midnight today and Saturday. The film stars Bud Cort and Ruth Gordon, is populated with songs by Cat Stevens and is directed by Hal Ashby, who went on to direct "Shampoo," Glory" and "Coming Home." It's a funny movie. Showplace will also offer late screenings tonight and Saturday of "Voices," "Love At First Bite," "Jaws," "The Prisoner Of Zenda" and "Hooper." Check the movie listings in today's Avalanche-Journal for exact

Plastic surgeon also shows skill in the kitchen

SHOW THE WAS SELECT TO A WORLD OF THE SELECT THE SELECT

Dr. Leonard Koch

A deft hand is required in the operating room and Dr. Leonard Koch (his specialty is plastic surgery) of Lubbock has this. But he also is skilled in the kitchen, much to the delight of friends who have sampled his gourmet fare.

Dr. Koch admits having the reputation of being a good cook. "Sometimes this works against my wife and me," he said, "because friends will say 'Oh, I hate to ask you to dinner - you're such a good cook.' My answer to that is, 'I'll eat almost anything and am not 'picky'

DR. AND MRS. Koch enjoy sampling the foods of the different countries they've visited. And although neither of them mentioned the fact, friends say they have literally dined all over the world. Friends also say that Dr. Koch invariably returns from one of the couple's far-flung trips with his suitcases bulging with ethnic recipes from the country visited, in addition to cooking utensils and condiments. The latter items are important to Dr. Koch, because he enjoys cooking "as the natives do." In other words, to cook "Chinese" he chooses a wok (deep Chinese skillet) to prepare the dish. A Cantonese cook would use peanut oil in the wok, so he does also.

Dr. Koch is a native of San Antonio, and as a youngster loved to watch his mother cook. He left his native city and state while attending college and medical school and doing internship and residency. But, whenever he wasn't staying in a dormitory and had his own apart-

AS TIME approached for Dr. Koch to decide where to begin his medical practice, he quickly realized he wanted to return to Texas. He recalled, "I just knew where I wanted to live and work. In 1965, Lubbock had no plastic surgeons. In fact, at the time, Lubbock was the third largest city in the state without a plastic surgeon, so Lubbock it was. I've been here ever since." I've been here ever since."

Dr. Koch says he likes to cook for the simple enjoyment of doing it. He admitted, too, that he likes to cook for the enjoyment of others. "I suppose I cook also because it is relaxing. But, in addition I contain the suppose I cook also because it is relaxing.

tion, I enjoy good eating.
"As I've mentioned earlier, I'll eat almost anything anyone places before me. However, I seem to cook gourmet foods automatically and believe others too can make something special out of ordinary

"I will say to those who may be fearful of attempting gourmet dishes, that I can recall one occasion when we were dining at a famed Colorado hotel and the cook 'slipped up' when it came to the salt. So, even an experienced cook

THE SURGEON says he enjoys pre-paring Chinese foods, particularly the dishes of the province of Canton. "I like to cook it," he emphasized, "because I like to eat it. Again, many cooks, both new and experienced, won't attempt to prepare Chinese dishes, believing everyto be as complicated as 'Peking Duck'. Peking Duck is difficult - I've never even wanted to try preparing the dish — and some meat-filled pastries are difficult, too. In the case of the pastries, I've heard that most Chinese now do not attempt to make them, preferring instead to purchase them from a bake shop. But the majority of Cantonese dishes are not so difficult to prepare and with a little practice most cooks can prepare a near-authentic dish.

pare a near-authentic dish.

"I like the versatility of using Chinese recipes. In the majority of recipes, a cook can choose from beef, chicken or pork. Also, a variety of vegetables—whatever is available around the hitchen—can be put into the pot, Cook-— whatever is available around the kitchen — can be put into the pot. Cook-ing vegetables in a short time helps to retain nutrition, as well as to keep their nice, crispy texture. A calorie-conscious person can indulge himself and consume more Chinese food than he ordinarily would otherwise.

While Dr. Koch has newer recipes that he has added to his collection, because of innumerable requests from his friends, the following is an old favorite!

CHICKEN ALMOND

4 thsps. peanut oil
4 cup blanched whole almonds 2 raw chicken breasts, boned skinned and diced 1 clove garlic, minced

1/4 tsp. black pepper 4 tsp. monosodium glutamate 1/2 tsp. salt

2 tbsps. soy sauce 1 cup diced celery in water and diced cup cold water

1 small can bamboo shoots, drain

1 small can water chestnuts, draine

I tsp. sesame oil
Heat peanut oil in wok or deep skillet. Fry almonds until golden brown and set aside. Add chicken, garlic, pepper, monosodium glutamate, salt and stir, fry until almost done, add soy sauce and celery and stir for a minute or two, then cover for two or three minutes. Add mushrooms, fungus and chicken broth; cover until mixture boils, then thicken with cornstarch mixture and reduce heat. Add bamboo shoots, water chestnuts and ginko nuts and heat; stir in sesame oil and place in serving dish. Garnish with almonds and serve with hot rice. Lubbock is being invaded by nice and not-so-nice flying creatures.

The nice variety are the magnificent brown-black, orange and white wing-tipped monarch butterflies who are beginning their annual spring migration from Mexico and South America to northern United States and Canada. The first of the species were spotted in south Texas during April. During May, the "nomads" may be seen in the Lubbock area, passing through shortly afterwards the remainder of the state.

Dr. Donald Ashdown, professor of entomology at Texas Tech University, says he isn't positive but believes he already has seen several of the species. He explained, "While I (and others) possibly may have seen a few monarchs this year, we are seeing only the vanguard of the many others who will come later. Ordinarily, monarchs are slower to ar-

Dr. J.W. Stewart, an entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, warns persons not to collect or harm monarch butterflies seen. He emphasized, "The challenge for this tiny trophical dweller has been to rack the climat-

Naturalists believe the monarch has survived only because of its migratory habits, since civilization has made serious inroads of many feeding areas. Their journey is not without danger — both natural and manmade. So far, the twiceyearly cycle continues, and the flight of the monarchs brings color and beauty to excite the nature-lover, as well as create interest among those engaged in serious study of insects and their habits.

Author and naturalist George Ordish, who wrote "The Year of the Butterfly," introduced an approximate calendar of the life-cycle of the monarch: the caterpillar is hatched from eggs located on the underside of a milkweed from perhaps August 8-29 in a northern part of the U.S. or Canada; passes into adult-hood around September 12-17; begins the journey southward on a date near September 12-October 8; may have reached Maryland by October 8; and arrives safely in December to spend a

After the sojourn through the winter, the monarchs will begin to be restless, becoming northbound near March 17. Their journey will probably end in May. But, as June turns to July, the urge to move north begins to fade.

Why are butterflies important to ecological balance?

Butterflies serve as a food for other insects and birds; and butterflies keep down a domination of milkweed (a reasonably abundant American plant that is noxious to man and animals).

One could say that butterflies have a commercial function, bringing tourists to such places as Pacific Grove, Califor-nia and Lighthouse Point, Florida, when they swarm and bring wintertime beau-

Lubbock is currently merely "enduring" the visit of some unwelcomed guests, the "cutworm" moth. Dr. Ash-down commented, "The moths are worse on a cyclic basis. Obviously, this is the year they are bad. The moths do not

Dear Dr. Petty: My brother lost his job in a fabrics store because he couldn't see small differences in color in materials. Could his color blindness be

You infer your brother is color blind, and he may very well be. However, it's possible he has a color deficiency. A deficiency in color perception can sometimes be improved to some degree, depending on the cause of the problem. Lighting is absolutely necessary for proper color seeing in many cases. Example: Flourescent lamps are not as good for some people as incandescent in color vision. Sometimes, color vision is hampered by such a problem as infected teeth or sinuses, elimination of which improves one's color discrimination.

Other examples could be cited. Unfortunately, true color blindness will, so far, not respond to treatment of any kind. It has been observed, however, that a few people seem to learn to de-gree of color discrimination by sheer practice, effort, and comparison-developing something akin to improved color vision. It may be worth the effort, because color vision is required in many pursuits. Send your brother to a doctor who can give him a color vision test. He'll then know for sure.

you and your pet

Canine distemper (CD) is a viral infection and the most serious disease of dogs. CD may cause either death or permanent disability in infected dogs. For this reason, it is vital to protect your puppy by vaccinating it against disternper as early as possible.

A puppy's mother passes antibodies to her litter through her milk. These antibodies protect each pup against such diseases as distemper - but only temporarily. As the puppy grows older, the maternal antibodies begin to disappear and the the pup becomes increasingly susceptible to CD. At 6 weeks of age (about the age of weaning), 50 percent of all puppies have lost their maternal antibody protection and are susceptible to distemper, Virtually all maternal antibody protection is lost by 12 weeks of age. Therefore, your veterinarian may recommend distemper vaccination at, or shortly after, 6 weeks of age

Facts about Canine Distemper · Canine distemper is a worldwide viral disease of dogs.

 With today's large pet population, nearly every dog will be exposed to CD at some time during his life.

 Once symptoms appear, there is no treatment for the viral infection. Canine distemper causes death in many dogs. Dogs that live through the disease often never fully recover. · Symptoms of distemper include rising temperature, discharge from eyes and nose, behavioral changes (often depression), and apparent nervous disorder such as seizures, "gum chomping", and jerking movements.

Conventional Canine Distemper Vaccination

A pup's material antibodies protect it from CD virus for a brief time, but during that same period of time the antibodies also neutralize CD vaccine. Only when the pup's maternal antibodies subside, and the puppy is susceptible to the disease, can conventional vaccination be effective.

Because loss of maternal antibodies varies from puppy to puppy (even within the same litter), and because there is no convenient way to tell when a particular pup is susceptible to CD, this series of shots is usually given to provide protection at the earliest possible date.

A New Approach: Distemper-Measles Vaccination

In recent years, scientists have discovered an interesting phenomenon: a dog's system cannot completely distinguish between the canine distemper virus and the human measles virus. This means that vaccinating the puppy against one viral disease (measles) can stimulate immunity against another viral

This phenomenon increases the chance of CD protection in the young puppy for two reasons:

The measles vaccine is unaffected by maternal antibodies for CD, so the puppy will have immunity against CD even if it still has protective levels of temporary maternal antibodies, and Measles vaccination does not interfere with a follow-up vaccination at 12 to 16 weeks.

Controlled experiments have shown that 96 percent of all puppies vaccinated with a combination distemper-measles vaccine were protected at 6 weeks of age: 50 percent were protected by the distemper fraction alone: another 46 percent by the added measles fraction.

If the puppy is susceptible to CD, that fraction of the vaccine takes effect; if not, the measles fraction protects until long-term CD vaccination is administered at 12 to 16 weeks of age.

Puppies older than 12 weeks of age should respond to standard distemper vaccinations, and this is the immunization recommended for these older animals. But for maximum protection of the young puppy, a program consisting of a combination distemper-measles vaccination between 6 to 12 weeks of age, followed by standard distemper vaccination at 12 to 16 weeks, is often recom-

Caution: The distemper-measles vaccine should not be used on female pups over 12 weeks of age because maternal measles immunity may neutrilize the vaccine when used in pups of the next generation.

T.G.&Y. — quality with low mark-up

T.G.&Y. Stores Co., a division of the Chicago-based City Products Corp., has grown from 15 stores in 1936 to 911 stores with annual sales in excess of $1 billion currently.

Such a growth pattern, according to J. M. Newgent, president and chief executive officer, can only be explained in terms of people — people who like the firm's concept of merchandising and people within the organization who have "good ideas and an untiring desire to do more for America's buying public."

Lubbock Family Center Manager George Deahl, whose 96,000-square-foot store opened at 5001 Brownfield Road in 1968, defines T.G.&Y.'s marketing methodology as a combination of quality merchandise with the lowest possible mark-

Elaborating on the concept, Deahl added that the customer has "the best buy for the money," and that the firm is "very competitive."

He said, "We check out the competition, and set prices at the lowest level possible to still make a profit."

The organization has utilized a ware-

Fran Keller, administrative assistant in Oklahoma City, relates that three businessmen started a warehouse operation in that city in 1936 to increase their purchasing power.

"The purposes of this company," she said, "were to consolidate the buying of merchandise, keeping books and records, and warehousing for their individual stores, as well as supplying merchandise to other retailers."

The three men were R. E. Tomlinson, E. L. Gosselin and R. A. Young namesakes of the future T.G.&Y. stores.

After about two years of operation in Oklahoma City, the organization moved from its 10,000-square-foot structure to quarters containing 35,000 square feet in a three-story building. The first floor was made up of a retail store in the front with shipping and receiving facilities in the back. Half of the second floor was used for general office space. The warehouse occupied the third floor plus the remaining half of the second floor.

In 1950, T.G.&Y. moved into an ultra-modern office and warehouse building in Oklahoma City. The facility was ultimately expanded to almost 275,000 square feet of floor space.

P.G.&Y.'s Lubbock warehouse also represents a monumental utilization of space. The facility, including both offices and warehouse, contains 306,320 square feet of floor space, and services 94 stores in this region.

In 1977, a new concept of warehousing-distribution warehouses was introduced. According to the firm, the new type is designed to distribute promotional, seasonal and new item goods to the immediate area, with no back-up stock for reorder purposes. "Everything moves directly to the stores."

Three of the new warehouses are presently in operation. They are located at Orlando, Fla., Hattiesburg, Miss., and Edmond, Okla.

Plans call for an additional distribution center to open soon in Shelbyville, Ky.

T.G.&Y. considers its stores to be of three classes: an expanded variety store, ranging to about 15,000 square feet and carrying limited junior department store lines; the family center unit ranging from 20,000 to 30,000 square feet; and larger family center units ranging from 40,000 to 80,000 square feet.

Lines carried by the stores depend to a degree upon the demand for hardware, wearables, fabrics, automotive lines, as well as other departments.

The company reports that sales volume has tripled since 1970, "reflecting the company's strategy on constantly upgrading its retailing techniques and store sizes.

"Wide merchandise assortments and value-priced name brand lines have transformed a small variety chain into a high volume mass merchandising company," according to T.G.&Y.

The firm notes that computerized warehouse inventory and store reorder systems, as well as expanded warehouse and truck fleets, have sharpened distribution capacity.

T.G.&Y. says store expansion programs in the '70s have been geared toward big store family centers (20,000 to 80,000 square feet). In 1978, 31 new stores were opened, all of which were the large family centers. New stores plus expansions brought

New stores plus expansions brought the company's total operating square footage to 20.7 million by the end of

The firm plans to open 55 new family centers and expand or relocate 28 existing centers for an additional 2 million square feet of space in 1979.

Deahl, who has been in Lubbock for 11 years, has watched the company's local operations expand in a similar way. The firm now has stores at 5001

The firm now has stores at 5001 Brownfield Road, 314 University, 3422 Ave. H, and 5302 Ave. Q, in addition to a store in Slaton.

All sectors of T.G.&Y.'s operations are considered strong by Deahl. However, if there is one department which has a starring role at T.G.&Y., it appears to be the fabric department. Aside from stores devoted entirely to that line of goods, T.G.&Y. probably has the most extensive range of fabrics and the most competitively priced goods in the city.

There is a lot of competition in Lubbock, according to Deahl, who adds, "We do a lot of business, and that business is increasing."

room of First Federal Plaza downtown.

Bill Horton was named to succeed
Dr. Preston W. DeShan as president.
Other officers elected included David Miller, vice president; Les Eubank, treasurer; and Janet McWhirter, secretary.

The "sword of hope" award was presented to First Federal Savings and Loan Association for providing facilities, hosting and catering the unit meeting and for offering volunteer time of numerous employees.

A special award also went to the citizens of John Knox Village for continuing readiness and assistance, especially in manning the information and guidance programs: and to Dave Knapp of the Avalanche-Journal for continuing cooperation and interest in the ACS.

Special recognition went to A.C. Wimberly of KMCC and to the Channel 28 station for producing and coordinating public service announcement ads; Mike Ogletree of Market Media for writing and coordinating the spots; and to Lisa Paikowski of the A.J for a feature series on cancer patients.

DeShan recognized Dr. John O'Brien, last year's crusade chairman, and lauded Tom McGovern for his work in increasing public education and Dr. Charles Votava for increasing professional education. Both are committee chairmen. Jeanne M. Knapp, public information co-chairman, was cited for outstanding achievement in public information.
