Program's status reviewed

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Staff Writer

A Single Family Mortgage Revenue Financing Program for Midland is in a state of limbo until the federal and state governments can make final decisions on bills affecting the pro-

Harry Clark, chairman of the city of Midland Housing Authority, reviewed the status of the program when the board met Wednesday.

The program, in operation in other states, involves selling revenue bonds with the money to go to moderate income families for home loans. An underwriter already has been selected and the authority's agreechanged to include this program.

Clark said two bills pertaining to the program and clarifying its use in Texas have been passed by the Legislature and are awaiting the governor's signature.

The bill in the U.S. House of Representatives has not come up for a vote. according to Clark. He said the House Ways and Means Committee has finished its hearing on the bill and added there has been some opposition registered by national savings and loan associations.

Maximum guidelines for giving the home loans stipulate that family income can not exceed 115 percent of the median income for the city and that the house to be purchased cannot be more than 80 percent of the median-priced house in 1978 in the city.

Applied to Midland, Clark estimated this means the maximum family income to qualify for the program would be about $20,000, based on a median of $17,000.

The highest-priced house to qualify for such a loan would be in the $40,000 to $50,000 range, based upon the median price for 1978 of somewhere in the $50,000s, he said.

The suggested maximum is a little lower than the $22,500 the Housing Authority had considered, the chairman added. Clark said the feasibility study

Wholesale price hike is smallest in months

est 0.4 percent in May - the smallest increase in nine months - with a sharp drop in beef prices getting much of the credit, the government said today.

The May increase was a marked turnaround from the 0.9 percent wholesale price rise in April, together with increases of 1 percent or more in the first three months of the year.

The Labor Department report offered further proof that the nation's economy has begun to slow, which might help ease the high rate of inflation so far this

Wholesale food prices fell 1.3 percent in May, the largest drop since February 1976. Beef prices at wholesale fell nearly 7 percent, the first decline after five consecutive months of large increases.

"It's bound to have some effect at the retail level." said John Early, chief of the Labor Department's division of industrial prices. "Most food changes passthrough very rapidly.

At the same time, however, the wholesale prices of consumer goods other than food rose 1 percent in Early blamed the continuing increase on rapidly rising gasoline and fuel oil prices. Gasoline prices went up 4.2 percent in May, for an increase of nearly 12 percent in the past three months. Fuel oil was up 5.4 percent, or more than 18 percent since February.

Government economists had been predicting the slowdown in food prices. The rising petroleum prices are blamed on a worldwide shortage and rapidly escalating charges for crude oil from producing nations.

Wholesale price changes are included in the Producer Price Index, which reports prices at three levels: the wholesale or finished goods level, when goods are ready for sale to the final user; the intermediate level, where they have received some processing, and the crude level, where goods have not yet received any pro-

The Producer Price Index stood at 212.4 in May, meaning that goods that cost $100 at the wholesale level in the 1967 base period cost $212.40 last month.

The index last month was 10 percent ahead of a year ago, the Labor Department said. If wholesale prices continue to rise for the next 12 months at the same rate they did in May, the annual increase would be only 4.9 percent, said a government statistician who asked that his name not be used.

May statistics indicate that prices rose 1 percent at the intermediate level and 0.8 percent at the crude level.

Food prices declined modestly at both levels. But non-food prices, particularly for petroleum products, rose 1 percent for partially processed goods and 2.3 percent at the crude stage.

At the finished goods level, prices eased for pork, fresh fruit and eggs as well as beef.

Savings likely to show up at the supermarket will be offset by more expensive prices for such goods as gasoline, home heating oil, tires, plastic goods and leather footwear, the Labor Department said.

The wholesale prices for items of this nature rose 1.6 percent in May, the third consecutive monthly in-

"In the three months ended in May, these prices advanced at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 20.1 percent, the fastest rate for any three-month period since the summer of 1974," the price report said.

The government has been eager to see prices at both wholesale and retail levels start dropping from current rates which, if continued, would put inflation over 10

Synthetic fuels promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) - A guaranteed price for synthetic fuels will prompt the private sector to start production, says House Majority Leader Jim Wright.

The Democrat from Fort Worth said Wednesday that "synfuel" production incentives are a likely centerpiece for an intensifying congressional drive toward energy solutions.

"There is a growing consensus on the need for dramatic action to increase our domestic energy supplies," he said after congressional leaders met with President Carter at a White House session.

"I am less discouraged right now than I have been in two years." Wright said.

He said the program shaping up in Congress includes proposals to guarantee a government market for up to 500,000 barrels a day of synthetic fuels, expedite a pipeline to move Alaskan oil from California to Gulf Coast refineries and authorize the president to "fast track," or grant priority status to certain energy projects.

A bill that has the approval of the House Banking Committee but has not reached the floor would allow the government to contract for up to 500,-000 barrels a day at a fixed price.

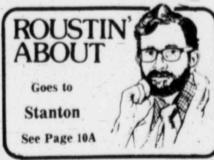

"We are going to create a synthetic fuel industry," Wright said, adding that increasing the ceiling to 2 million barrels a day has been discussed.

Any synthetic fuel - biomass, from coal or shale - would qualify for the price guarantees under the bill sponsored by Rep. William Moorhead, D-

Wright said the time between the decision to start a plant and the first production might be about five

"I think it's time to make a commitment," he said "We need the sense that Franklin Roosevelt had in 1941 when the Japanese cut off our rubber supplies.

Ed Rothschild of the Energy Action Educational Fund, a consumer group, said any proposal to give government support for a synthetic fuel industry should include partial government ownership.

"There is no way the government should be subsidizing this kind of technology at all unless the government runs and owns it," he said. "I think they should stand on their own two feet.

Earl Ross of the American Petroleum Institute, a producers' group, said the organization had not taken a position on the Moorhead bill.

"Our basic position is that we're in favor of all synthetics," he said.

Wright said he favored government action to insure construction of the troubled Long Beach, Calif., to Midland, Texas, pipeline. He said the government should operate the finished pipeline if a purchaser from the private sector could not be found for

The third proposal in "the package I see shaping up" would allow the president to declare that an energy project had top priority and could not be subject to delay for any reason, Wright said.

'My interest right now is not putting a Band-aid on the wound," he said. "My interest is curing the can-

Midland County to receive federal funds for paving

Midland County will get its $230,000 for paving streets from the Department of Housing and Urban Develop-

County Judge William Ahders said he was notified Wednesday of HUD's approval for the Community Development funds

But first the county must submit an 'environmental assessment" of the streets that will be paved, he said.

The evaluation will look at how vegetation and animals in that area will be affected by the paved streets, Ahders said Wednesday

Jerry Tschauner with the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission will assist with the study and it should be completed in about a week, according to Ahders.

Another 45 days will be needed for approval of that study before the paving can begin.

About four to five miles of dirt roads in the county's "windowpane" areas will be the primary target, Ahders said.

Included are such roads as Dunagan, Howell, Jane, Wolcott, Summitt, Longview, Hikes, Montgomery, Goodnight, Loving, Chisholm and

Ahders said the Dallas HUD representative advised him the countycould have its own road crew do the work or have it contracted to a firm. But the judge said it will be cheaper for the county road crews to do the

The two-month lag will give the county time to try and work out an arrangement with the city on some of the dirt roads, Ahders said.

Instead of doing just the section in the county area, if the street extends for another block or so into the city limit, the county will complete the paving if there is some reimbursement arranged, he explained.

At the time Midland County applied for the CD funds for the streets, a Section 8 rental subsidy program also was attached. Anders said his office has not heard anything regarding that

Why DO people go to high school reunions?

Editor's Note: What's the undeniable appeal of a high school class reunion? A 1969 graduate of Midland High School, Cliff Avery tries to answer that question, in his unique fashion, in the following article. Now employed by a Lubbock television sta-tion, Avery will be in attendance Saturday at the MHS class of 69's afternoon picnic at Hogan Park and evening dance in the Midland County Exhibit Building.

By CLIFF AVERY

"Are you gonna go?" I'd heard that tone before. Over games of chance like Acey-Deucey and Three-Card Guts with a kill hand. The voice, now as then, was searching for confirmation, not facts. He'd called halfway across the country to make sure he wasn't going alone, half-hoping he'd be spared packing up wife and kid. If nobody else from the old gang was going

"Yeah, I guess I gotta go," I said, verbally shaking my head as if some external force - God, the federal government or my wife - compelled my attendance at the 10th reunion of the Midland High School Class of

I hoped my friend on the other end of the line would see I would be dragged to the festivities in purpleand-gold chains and forced to sing the alma mater with the subtle persuasion of burning bamboo shoots wedged under my toenails.

OKAY. I ADMIT IT. I want to go ... for the same reasons people watch # wrecks, fires, earthquakes and "Laverne and Shirley." I know it is considered passe to get enthused about a high school reunion. People develop twitches when confronted with the notion they were once naive, yea, even innocent. These days one is expected to spring forth, full blown with the canny street smarts of Starsky and Hutch.

But, like everyone else, I will go to see who ended up in Huntsville and who is begging nickles for the Hare Krishna. You don't pay 25 bucks for barbecue and beer; you pay for gossiping that's catered. But I can't gripe, because I'm sure to get a good rate of return on the initial capital outlay (you have to learn terms like that before a reunion, because somebody inight actually have made it through law school.)

You see, on that graduation night, I stood up there on the MHS stage and made some pretty strong predictions about what we - the 'Class of Stars' would do for the world. A decade later it turns out I was mostly

But it wasn't all my fault. To charges of aggravated assault on the future, I can only plead not guilty by reason of insanity - not mine, the rest of the world's.

SUPPOSE, FOR EXAMPLE, on that starry May night so long ago, I had left my seat and predicted that in 10 years, Saigon would be renamed "Ho Chi Minh City." That a vice president would plead nolo contendre to charges of income tax evasion: that a president would bug the White House and be saved from impeachment by the hair of his chinny-chinchin only by resigning; that it would take a dollar to buy a loaf of bread or a gallon of gasoline, but for $20 you could buy a computer the size of a credit card; that a congressman would be assassinated by a transplanted California cult in a place called Guayana and that, in remorse, 900 people would line up at a poisoned Kool-Aide stand; that an African dictator would erect a statue to Adolph Hitler and that they'd take Star Trek and Gunsmoke off the tube.

One...just one...of those tidbits and they'd have jerked me off the stage, stuck a "Chiquita" sticker on my forehead and packed me away with the rest of the bananas. And if I'd told them that when next we met, a building taller than the Wilco would rise above the Midland skyline; that part of that skyline would include McDonald's golden arches while Kingburger, alas, would succumb and that the city we scorned as provincial and backward would be in such a boom that some of those white-robed graduates would actually be living there...they would have taken away

Study says health insurance will benefit terminally ill

BOSTON (AP) - Proposed national catastrophic health insurance, intended to pay big medical bills, would devote "a large portion" of its resources to high-cost treatment for people about to die, a study

Doctors at the University of California Medical School in San Francisco studied the records of patients who ran up large bills at 17 hospitals in the San Francisco area.

They found that 13 percent of the patients died in

"These data indicate that without a formal social decision on this matter, a large portion of national catastrophic health insurance resources will be devoted to persons who will die soon after receiving high-cost medical treatment," the researchers

They did not reach any conclusions on the value of such insurance, nor did the researchers offer any options for consideration in the debate over a national catastrophic health insurance plan.

The proposed catastrophic insurance would pay for health expenses above a certain dollar amount,

The study, directed by Dr. Steven A. Schroeder,

The study said this kind of insurance would pay a large part of the total charges at all kinds of hospitals and would "result in movement toward increased subsidization of acute-care hospitals.'

In the study, the number of patients whose bills. exceeded $4,000 ranged from four at a community hospital to 24 at a referral hospital.

'Hospital costs charged to these patients ranged from 20 to 68 percent of total billings, with the highest percentages generally occurring at large referral hospitals," the study said.

The highest-priced treatment was for newborn children, many of them suffering from respiratory distress syndrome. "The typical high-cost adult patient in our sample suffered from chronic heart disease or cancer and had been receiving treatment for some time," they said.

A separate report, written by two lawyers at Duke University Law School, suggested that more competition among health insurance companies could help cut medical costs.

"Physicians should recognize that a more competitive health care market would provide the best defense against government resulation," wrote was published in today's New England Journal of Clark C. Harighurst and Glenn M. Hackbarth.

- The House tax-writing committee is taking a close look at a plan to give moderate-income homebuyers tax credits to ease the bite of soaring housing costs. The proposal surfaced Wednesday in the House Ways and Means Committee as an alternative to state and city programs that use tax-exempt bonds to finance some single-family home purchases.

The committee appeared on the verge of approving a bill that would have restricted those mortgage bond programs when the tax credit idea was proposed by Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr., D-Ind.

With the tax credit concept showing strong support, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ores, the panel's chairman, postponed action on the bill for two weeks so Jacobs' proposal could be studied. This (the tax-credit idea) is not a matter that we have held hearings on," Ullman said. "It has far-reaching consequences.... We can't afford to act in the dark." Although lacking details, Jacobs said his proposal would eliminate the middleman costs of the existing bond programs while providing the same financial benefits to low- and middleincome homebuyers.

He said the tax-credit approach would cost no more than the proposals limiting the mortgage bond programs, which are expected to cost the government $1.5 billion a year by 1984.

The committee staff said the Jacobs proposal possibly could be implemented by permitting qualified single-family homebuyers to claim tax credits of 10 percent on their mortgage interest, with the credit limited to Getting sidetracked has been one of the nation's most popular participatory sports. I ran across one exclassmate who, in almost the same gasp, extolled the healthful virtues of vegetarianism and admitted she was up to a pack of cigarettes a day. I packed one friend off to study French; she graduated a geologist.

And in that summer following graduation — when man's landing on the moon and Woodstock were the two major, if irreconcilable events — one of my closest friends marched off to the regimen of the Air Force Academy while another pursed the suitably left.

Special counsel blocks plea bargaining plan

ATLANTA (AP) — The special counsel investigating loans to President Carter's family business said today that he blocked a plea bargaining arrangement involving a possible witness in the parallel government investigation of Bert Lance.

Paul J. Curran, the New York lawyer appointed to investigate the Carter peanut warehouse in Plains, Ga., and its loans from the National Bank of Georgia while Lance was NBG president, said he took the action to keep options open for his own

WASHINGTON (AP) - Thirteen-year-old Katie Kerwin of Denver correctly spelled "virescence" and "maculature" today to win the 52nd annual National Spelling Bee

Miss Kerwin, whose brother Greg and sister Mary both were finalists in the spelling bee in previous years, outspelled 108 youngsters to win the $1,000 prize and a shiny gold cup. She jumped in the air in delight when she finished spelling "macula-

OC seeking replacement for reassigned tennis coach

ODESSA - Odessa College is hunting a new tennis coach to replace twotime national championship winner Virginia Brown, who has been reassigned to a teaching position in physical education. Ms. Brown said this week she would accept the offer of a teaching job at the same pay and benefits she was paid as tennis coach. She was able to successfully appeal an administration attempt to fire her.

OC officials refused to discuss their reasons for taking away Ms. Brown's coaching duties. But they dispute her claim that a personality conflict between her and Athletic Director Barry Rodhaver is the cause.

OC President Dr. Phil Speegle reversed his decision to fire Ms. Brown after a faculty tenure committee ruled the non-renewal of her teaching contract was unjustified.

According to Speegle, Ms. Brown will remain at her present salary of $21,266 for 10 months a year.

Speegle said they expect to find someone for a salary of between $16,-500 to $18,500 for 10 months of coach-

Speegle acknowledged Monday he initially planned to terminate Ms. Brown's employment at Odessa College, but changed his mind after the college's tenure committee ruled in her favor following a lengthy appeals

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - President Anwar Sadat and his ruling National Democratic Party, riding the crest of peace with Israel, are expected to be the big winners today as Egyptians elect a peacetime Parliament

More than 1,500 candidates, including 950 independents, 335 National Democrats, 176 Arab Socialists and 78 Liberals are running for election to the 380-seat unicameral legislature known as the People's Assembly.

The NDP held 312 of the 350 seats in the old Parliament which Sadat dissolved unexpectedly in April. A party spokesman predicted the NDP would extend its control over the new legislature in the tightly structured election.

Thirty new seats have been earmarked for female representatives and 99 women are running for them, although they may also run against men for other

Recent election restrictions have barred extremist parties on the right and left which have voiced opposition to the peace treaty with Israel. The government also outlawed campaign criticism of the treaty as well as attacks on Egypt's basic social and political system

The campaign restrictions resulted from two referendums in which Egypt's 10.3 million voters overwhelmingly supported the treaty and Sadat's plans for restructuring Egyptian politics.

Meanwhile, Israel and Egypt took hardline bargaining positions as they prepared for Monday's second round of talks on autonomy for the 1.1 million Palestinians living under Israeli rule on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip. Israel and Egypt opened the talks with a ceremonial meeting in the Israeli town of Beersheba last month. The next session is to be held in Alexandria, Egypt.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin told a meeting of his Herut Party in Tel Aviv Wednesday night that Israel would use force to prevent the establishment a Palestinian state on the West Bank

"I told the president of the United States that if the administrative council will announce that a Palestinian state has been set up, we will arrest all 11 members and restore the military government-within 24 hours," he said:

Under terms of the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty, West Bank and Gaza Palestinians are to elect an administrative council to implement autonomy for the occupied areas.

Begin, speaking at the conclusion of a convention that overwhelmingly re-elected him party chairman, said Jewish settlement would continue inoccupied Arab lands, despite sharp criticism from the United States and Egypt who claim the settlements are illegal and hamper the peace process.

Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said Wednesday that an Egyptian working paper for the autonomy talks calls for "an immediate halt" to the building of new Jewish settlements and seeks the release of all Palestinian political prisoners.

Israel "must take action to recultivate confidence among the Palestinian people," the news agency quoted the paper as saying.

Pope to return

KRAKOW, Poland (AP) - Pope John Paul II set off today on an emotion-packed excursion that was to take him to his hometown of Wadowice and a Mass in the ruins of the Nazi death camp at Auschwitz-Bir-

The papal helicopter lifted off from a grassy field near downtown Krakow as hundreds of well-wishers ran along the ground below, waving at the former Krakow archbishop.

Thousands of other Krakow residents lined the pope's route to the field. Armed with umbrellas against a morning drizzle, they cheered and sang and clapped as the pope drove

For 20 miles in every direction around Krakow, papal and Polish flags fluttered every 100 yards or so. Streamers calling out "witamy" -'welcome" - were hung over intersections.

Barns were painted with primitive pictures of the holy father and hundreds of balconies and doorsteps were decorated with miniature altars. "There never has been a time like this in all the history of Krakow," said an old man on the motorcade route. 'All of a sudden everyone is kind and considerate to one another. There never has been such a spirit of joy in the city. It is like a feast that keeps going on.

Thousands stood in the rain cheering as the pope's helicopter landed in the center of Krakow Wednesday evening, bringing him from western Poland to the ancient city he served as archbishop-until his election as pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church last October.

Crowds 20 deep chanted and clapped as the pontiff traveled a flower-bedecked route to the cathedral at the hilltop Wawel Castle.

Poland's mightiest bell, weighing 16 tons and dubbed Zygmunt for a Polish king, tolled a welcome as the motorcade climbed the approach to the fortress.

The pope said evening prayers at the tomb of Poland's patron saint, Stanislaw, then retired to the samesimple bedroom he used when he was Krakow's Archbishop Karol Wojtyla.

The crowd in the square outside did not disperse, and he appeared at a window to shouts of "It's your town! It's your town!"

"Aren't you going to sleep?" the pope asked repeatedly, and each time the crowd shouted back, "No!" "Well I am," the 59-year-old pontiff said, and calmed the throng by having them join him in a prayer.

The pope came to Krakow after three days in Czestochowa; site of Poland's holiest Catholic shrine, the Jasna Gora Monastery, where he challenged the Communist government to recognize religious rights and improve the conditions in which the church operates.

Council taken in Iran city

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Revolutionary guardsmen took City Council members hostage in the Kurdish city of Sanandaj, cradle of ethnic revolt against the four-month-old Khomeini regime, and demanded the Council be dissolved, the newspaper Ayandegan reported today.

It was not known how many captives there were in the City Council headquarters. An official at the governor-general's office in Sanandaj told The Associated Press by telephone that "negotiations" were going on, but refused to describe the situation fur-

The Council, composed of 10 men and a woman, was formed in March to take over administration of Sanandaj. Its formation was a concession to Kurdish militants who battled troops for five days in the western Iranian city, leaving 200 dead in the fight for greater autonomy.

The guardsmen on Wednesday demanded the replacement of the City Council by the Revolutionary Committee that previously controlled the city. The committee, linked to the Central Revolutionary committee in Tehran, was dissolved after the March

Schmidt opposes time limit

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) - West German Chancel lor Helmut Schmidt says any move to set a time limit on the prosecution of Nazi war criminals would "intolerably strain" the world's sense of justice.

Schmidt spoke Wednesday night at a dinner at the University of South Carolina marking the 100th birthday of the late James Byrnes, former secretary of state, U.S. Supreme Court justice and South Carolina governor. Earlier Wednesday, Schmidt met for nearly two hours with President Carter in Washington, discussing topics including energy, arms limitation and the military situation in Europe:

KUCHING, Malaysia (AP) - Thirty school children and a teacher trainee drowned today when their bus plunged into a lake outside Kuching, rescue officials said. They said 14 youngsters were missing and that 23 other persons, including the driver, survived.

Rescue workers said they had recovered the bodies of 19 girls from the lake, 11 boys and the teacher trainee. All were from the secondary school near Bau Lake, site of the disaster.

U.S. ships leave Indian Ocean

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States has removed the aircraft carrier Midway and six other ships from the Indian Ocean, an indication that the government does not intend to establish a permanent fleet there now.

The carrier and its escort and support ships left the area Wednesday, giving the Soviet Union, at least temporarily, a dominant naval position there.

Tanzania to withdraw troops

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) - Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere said he is pulling his troops out of Uganda now that the new government there is in control of the entire country and troops loyal to deposed dictator Idi Amin had been captured, killed or fled the country.

Radio Tanzania announced the withdrawal Wednesday, but said an unspecified number of troops would stay behind to help with police duties and training Ugandan soldiers.

The broadcast said Nyerere told Tanzanians to welcome the returning troops as heroes. The radio did not say when the troop pullout would begin.

Carter to keep sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is expected to notify Congress that he has decided not to lift economic sanctions against Zimbabwe Rhodesia. according to today's Washington Post.

But the Post, quoting congressional sources, said Carter also is expected to say that he will reconsider his decision if the new Salisbury government significantly broadens its base of support.

Bokassa restricts student arrests

PARIS (AP) - Emperor Bokassa I of the Central African Empire, whose troops reportedly killed about 100 schoolchildren after they were arrested, has decreed that anyone who arrests a student "for any reason other than common-law crimes" can be fined or jailed, his official news agency report-Amnesty International reported last month that the students were arrested April 18 for protesting Bokassa's order to wear uniforms to school. The human rights organization said the children, 8 to 16 years old, were beaten or stabbed to death or suffocated in overcrowded, tightly sealed cells.

By JOHN BRONSON

CONWAY, Pa. (AP) — Every 15 seconds, a rail-road car rumbles over a hump at the world's busiest classification yard here. From that point on, a computer does the "thinking" and gravity does the

The Conway Yard, located on a three-quarter-mile strip of land between a highway and the Ohio River, stretches for four miles and has 99 tracks on which freight cars are sorted by destination

When the car is pushed to the crest of the grade the hump — it rolls to the proper track as a computer sets switches and controls the car's speed with retarders, a braking system in the rails.

Activity at Conway is an awesome sight, one that might surprise anyone with the notion that railroads are the dinosaurs of American business.

There is a constant hum of activity around the yard, once a showcase of the former Pennsylvania Railroad and now owned by Conrail, the government-assisted corporation that took over six bank rupt railroads.

'We move anything you can think of through this yard — produce, autos, beer, rubber tires — the works," said Victor Turziu, an assistant terminal superintendent. "There are other yards with more acreage, but this is the busiest." An odor of diesel exhaust hangs in the air as powerful locomotives, their diesel engines throbbing and throaty horns blasting, weave through spaghetti-like strands of rails.

Conway's roundhouse, an antique from the steam era, is the hub of maintenance facilities for the 375 diesel engines based here.

Scores of battered, rusty freight cars await repair in nearby shops. Their dingy appearance contrasts sharply with the bright pastel blue-and-white livery of Conrail's locomotives and cabooses stored here by the dozens.

But the heart of Conway, 20 miles west of Pitts burgh, is the twin humps and the classification yards they serve. It is here that steel from Chicago and grain from the Midwest is sorted for delivery in the East, and everything from thumbtacks to oysters from the Atlantic Seaboard is funneled toward the

As the cars slide over the apex they are automatically weighed and, without stopping, roll about 4 miles per hour to the classification track.

Along the way, pneumatically powered retarders pop and hiss into position on the inside rails, clamping a brake shoe against the car's wheels with the screech of steel on steel to slow the car.

Each track has a predetermined assignment either a specific city or another railroad. After the cars are coupled and a locomotive and caboose added, a four-man crew starts the train on its

Conway handles about 160,000 cars and dispatches or receives about 1,800 trains each month, Turzui

All the bustle is overseen from the yardmaster's tower, a glass-enclosed perch six stories above the main administrative building, which houses yard offices and dormitories for train crews with overnight lavovers.

Leon Leonard, a 25-year veteran, is the eastbound yardmaster during the day. Before him is an array of toggle switches, telephones, a microphone and clipboards - all of which help him keep track of the thousands of cars in the yard below.

Terse commands and reports crackle through the radio speaker. Leonard's fingers lightly flick several switches as he barks into the microphone "8232, 98 cars. Go to work, Lee." Somewhere out in the maze, a yardman obeys the order.

"You put in a good eight hours here. It's the hot seat," Leonard said. "But when you watch the freight moving out, you really feel like you're doing your job."

And while workmen around the yard mutter that "things just aren't the same anymore," there's still a feeling that railroads will regain some of their lost

"As the energy crisis tightens, you'll see more dependence on the railroads," Terzui predicted. "This country couldn't operate without a railroad."

Two oilmen bank on offer of Rolls

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Two persons have taken the Penn Square Bank up on its recent offer to give a Rolls Royce to anyone depositing $1 million, a bank official says. "You have to admit, offering a Rolls Royce is a heckuva lot better than waffle irons," Bill P. Jennings, bank chairman, said. He said one Rolls Royce transaction is complete and another is pending.

Jennings said the first depositor was an Oklahoma City oilman who does business here and in New York City and who operates an ocean-barge firm. Jennings declined to identify the millionaire, saying he wanted to protect the privacy of the account. He said the man received a Rolls Royce Silver Shadow II in lieu of interest on a six-month certificate of deposit.

"It's the ultimate in premiums and the cost is really a little better than current interest rates," Jennings said.

The second potential $1 million dollar depositor also is an Oklahoma City oilman. Jennings said the second man will, however, have to wait until the bank's Rolls Royce promotion is over to drive his new British fuxury car, since it is the one being displayed in the bank's lobby.

"We had to knock a hole in the wall to get this one in, and I didn't want to go through that again,' Jennings said.

Andrew Young again

Although Andrew Young, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, has been comparatively quiet, verbally, that is, in recent weeks, he apparently hasn't changed one bit, as evidenced by his sounding off on Rhodesia and other matters in recent days. And this is most unfortunate. He should have been dismissed from his post months ago.

Young said on a tv show Sunday that the recent election in Zimbabwe-Rhodesia was neither fair nor free, and that the United States should delay rescinding its economic sanctions against the

You perhaps will recall that observation teams from America and other countries have declared publicly that the election was fair, free and in perfect order. Yet the ambassador says just the opposite. But he was against the election and what it stood for in the first place. So, what can one

"I don't think our government ought to go looking for trouble to get into," Young commented, adding that the sanctions question and the entire Zimbabwbe-Rhodesia issue are really British problems. He said the British are "basically stalling" on the sanctions issue. "That's pretty wise," he said.

Young went on to say that when the U.S. Senate passed a resolution calling for an end to sanctions imposed during the reign of Prime Minister Ian Smith, it was an "emotional response" and the political realities were not thought out.

This observation must have been anything but favorably received by the Senate, which, in our estimation, had acted with sound judgment in the matter.

Emphasizing his belief that the election in the African nation was not fair or free, he said both blacks and whites "never had a chance to discuss the options."

We still will take the word of the on-the-ground observers that the election was in order, and we yet are of the opinion that the sanctions should be lifted - NOW.

And, again popping off on matters closer to home, Andy Young said on another recent occasion,"I do not see any difference in the so-called due process in Florida where (convicted murderer) Spenkelink died in the electric chair... and the socalled due process of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.'

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell later told reporters that President Carter "does not agree" with Young's view. Asked if the president had communicated with Young about this recent lipservice, Powell said he did not know what, if anything, Mr. Carter may have done. Not much of an answer for a press secretary, was it?

But, needless to say, Ambassador Young once again has added to the mounting problems of President Carter. Why the president hasn't fired Young long before now we will never know. But, for that matter, why did he hire him in the first place?

The Abilene Reporter-News said editorially that "perhaps Andy Young really does not see any difference between Spenkelink's execution - after years of appeal consideration through the entire court system of Florida and the United States Supreme Court - and the whambam discount-rate executions in Iran of former supporters of the ousted shah. He has a certain myopia on some subjects. But other opponents of capital punishment surely can see a difference.

"One is a justice system which permits capital punishment under extreme circumstances, after extended opportunity at several levels for commutation of the sentence.

"The other is pure revenge in minimum time with no appeal.

"Another difference is obvious in the piles of Iranian bodies after the frequent judgment days."

The U.S. justice system or revenge ... take your choice.

We believe that a vast majority of Americans favor the justice system route - Ambassador Young notwithstanding.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Who's holding reins in China?

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - Red China is the despair of Western intelligence experts. If, as Churchill observed, Russia is a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma, mainland China is a fortune cookie wrapped in an egg roll inside a bowl of fried rice.

Our China watchers are not only in the dark about what is going to happen in Peking, they often don't even know what has already happened there. A measure of our experts' befuddlement is the fact that they didn't learn of Hua Guofeng's appointment as acting premier until weeks after the event - and then only by reading about it in a Hong Kong

"According to a Western press report, a Chinese foreign ministry spokesman said today that Public Security Minister Hua Guofeng has been appointed 'acting premier,'" a U.S. intelligence report states. This intelligence scoop was classified "Top Secret," naturally.

Trying to keep track of fluctuations in what intelligence insiders jokingly call the "Peking Order" is a baffling and frustrating task. Although it sounds like an attempt to handicap a horse race, trying to unravel the complexities of Chinese politics is a deadly serious exercise. The direction taken by the most populous nation on earth can be of crucial importance to the rest of the world, and any signposts pointing toward that direction cannot be ignored by our policy

The ups and downs of recent months

- abrupt reversals of economic and ideological policies - have convinced the intelligence community that Red China is experiencing one of the most volatile periods in its turbulent 30year history. In the dog-eat-dog tradition of Communist regimes, someone must be saddled with blame for the "failure" of policies that have now been declared mistaken. But intelligence sources told our associate Tom Rosenstiel they still haven't figured out who will be the scapegoat this time around.

Our experts think it's possible that current kingpin Deng Xiaoping remembered by most Americans as the genial little man in the big white cowboy hat - will lose some of his power in the current shakeup. This will be nothing new for Deng, described by one intelligence source as "acerbic, hard-driving and un-diplomatic." He already has been purged twice and rehabilitated twice.

The keenest speculation centers on Hua, whose rise to power so astonished the Western experts. One secret analysis frankly called Hua's appointment in 1976 as acting premier a "revelation." According to an intelligence rundown the year before, Hua was considered a possibility for top leadership only "over the longer term," since he had come to Peking from the hinterlands only a year

American China watchers, who had expected Deng to be named premier. quickly developed 20-20 hindsight after Hua's appointment. "In retrospect," says another secret CIA report, "it is obvious that Deng's ascension to power was opposed at every step by the left ... Indeed, in some respects Hua Guofeng would be a better man for the premiership than Deng ... Next to Deng, in fact, Hua is the most logical candidate for the job.

Hua's greatest asset is considered to be his ability to avoid identification with any one faction in the deadly tong wars of Chinese Communist politics. While this deprives him of a power base, this weakness is believed to be offset by his acceptability to all factions as a compromise leader.

Whether Hua's tightrope-walking skill will get him through the current crisis is not at all clear to our intelligence experts. But then, it's probably not clear to the Red Chinese leadership, either.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: One of the continuing complaints about Jimmy Carter and his White House staff is that, after two years, their relations with congressional leaders are still amateurish to the point of chaos. In an effort to counteract this prevailing impression, Carter has let it be known that the White House "leg men" on Capitol Hill-the special assistants who handle the nuts and bolts of coordination - have access to the Oval Office. Every morning, when Carter meets with his chief congressional liaison man, Frank Moore, he invites Moore's House and Senate assistants, William Cable and Danny Tate, to sit in. -While Robert Strauss was struggling to work out a trade agreement with the Japanese that would give the United States a better position in the market, little did he realize that a wily Japanese toy maker was already undercutting his efforts, and using President Carter to do it. A new windup novelty that's becoming popular in Washington is 'Jimmy, the Walking Peanut.' The 4inch toy is a yellow plastic peanut with a grinning Carter face and two little feet. "Just wind him up and let him go!" the instructions say. Jimmy inches his way across a flat surface at a slow, deliberate pace, but the slightest obstacle stops him cold. Are the Japanese trying to tell us something?

The softball season is in full swing in Washington. As a wellintended effort to let the Central Intelligence Agency work out its hostilities toward the press in a harmless manner, we challenged the spooks to a game on the Washington Monument grounds. Shortly before game time. CIA spokesman Dale Peterson called and canceled because of rain. It was, he said, pouring at CIA headquarters in suburban Langley. Va. But it's not raining in town, we told him; surely the CIA, with all its sophisticated equipment, could tell what was going on five miles from headquarters. Nope, replied Peterson, that would constitute "domestic surveillance."

ty programs, but the big money eludes them.

The first few weeks of the course would deal with how to bribe a government official, explain the going rates for people in charge of handing out contracts, and methods of dropping the money on them so it can't be traced back to the briber.

The second part of the course would concern itself with the actual bilking of the government and would include drawing up phony contracts, getting paid for work that was never done, handing in invoices for overruns that do not exist, teaching methods of disguising faulty work that does not meet government specifications and how to open a secret Swiss bank account. For those who found this part of the program difficult, one of the contractors could give a special class in remedial cheating.

Because some of this information could get boring, I believe the best way of dramatizing it would be by students playing various roles some would be dishonest GSA officials, others would be greedy contractors and a few might take the parts of whistle blowers and FBI

At the beginning of the game $1.2 million of play money would be put in a black bag and each member of the class would be challenged by how much he could stash away in his pockets before getting caught.

The final days would be devoted to how to deal with the problem if you are caught. A list of the best criminal lawyers in the country would be handed out, and the people conducting the course would explain how to turn state's evidence in exchange for being allowed to plead guilty to only one charge, as well as how to negotiate for complete immunity. The students would also be taught how to dress for their trial and how to look remorseful when appearing before the judge for sentencing.

It is obvious that not everyone in a white-collar criminal. But hopefully this type of instruction will inspire people in the community to realize that the system is so much kinder to those who steal on a large scale from the government than the ones who only cheat on food stamps.

If we're going to send our white-collar criminals out to serve the community we should take advantage of their skills. We're wasting their talents if we make them empty bedpans or head up Boy Scout troops. If they can tell poor people where the money is, our welfare rolls could be cut in half.

Quietude and the problem of independent colleges

COLLEGEVILLE, Minn .- The world turns slowly for the Benedic tines, founded nearly 1,500 years ago. Nowadays, however, like everybody else thriving in this pressure cooker, the educator-monks here feel the urgency of modern technology's instant counting and predicting. A few generations or centuries ago, the Benedictines didn't fuss over fluctuations in enrollments. Indeed, in recent years, their St. John's University had all the students it could handle and, in 1977, turned away appli-But now, St. John's and the other 900 independent colleges and universities in the land fret over both the inclinations and numbers of the current and upcoming classes of high school graduates.

First off, the Census Bureau's latest estimate of college enrollment showed a far sharper decline than expected, even though it came at a time when the number of people of college age (18-21) did not decrease. For a variety of reasons, not all economic, some 400,000 fewer people enrolled this past fall than in 1977.

Next, the drop of the birthrate that began in the '60s will cause an estimated 19 percent decline in the number of 18-year-olds emerging in the '80s. In the Midwest area served by St. John's, there will be 29 percent fewer 18-year-olds around, so their numbers problem is more critical.

Independent schools worry more about this outlook than state schools. Historically, these schools get caught in the crunch of declining enrollments and income to a greater degree thantax-supported institutions which usually cost students less to attend. Now educators these days are probably no more virtuous that the general run of souls and can be tempted to compromise to keep enrollments up. At a recent conference on "The Integrity of Higher Education," fears were expressed that the autonomy of colleges - facing declining enrollments could be threatened by government, corporations and accrediting bodies out to impose their will.

There are also troubling signs that colleges might engage in shady recruiting practices, offer questionable "life experience" degrees, eliminate science, language and even residency requirements, lie about vocational benefits in their programs, indulge in grade inflation and generally pander to students.

Indeed, according to the Chronicle of Higher Education, some schools are already huckstering. Frothier examples include distributing monogrammed Frisbees to the hoards of high schoolers cavorting at Ft. Lauderdale during spring break; issuing "Jog Your Mind" T-shirts to enrollees in adult education, and an aborted scheme to pay a $100 scholarship bonus to students for every new student brought in. Egads.

The more serious effort to get students is the "nonprofit marketing" movement now in vogue. Outside firms or resident vice presidents of marketing employ the identify-attract-satisfy consumer approach. The University of Mississippi, informed by a tyrannical survey, that it was regarded as "not a very friendly place," hired an advertising agency to improve its image. Other marketeering takes form in operating recruiting booths at shopping centers and aggressively working the 'women's market.'

Now all this is a lot for even the worldliest monks to handle. After all, St. John's still teaches Hebrew, Latin and scholastic studies and is rightfully proud of its acclaimed Monastic Manuscript Library and its ecumenical institute where Protestant, Orthodox, Jewish and Catholic thinkers

And while St. John's predicts a drop in its present enrollment of 1,769 to 1,398 by the end of the '80s, and hopes it will go no lower than that, its uniqueness might prevail in holding

St. John's focuses a great deal on teaching students how to think, how to sort out their values (with Benedictine Christian prodding) and how to develop as people and get along with one another. Indeed, noncredit sessions are offered to students whose parents have separated or divorced, for those who can't concentrate and worry too much, and even in gestalt group experience. By being on a wooded, lakeside campus, many miles from a metropolitan center, there is not only greater detachment but also more opportunity for self-discovery

But St. John's also loves spirited public debate. Phyllis Schlafly and Karen DeCrow went at it here in the dead of last winter over ERA; so did Mortimer Adler and Harvard's Lawrence Kohlberg over whether values can be taught at all. The "Think Small" vs. Development argument rages, and so do some student leaders against the administration over food, the university budget and tuition. St. John's may be in the woods, but it is a lively place, even in this era of calm campuses. If heavy thinking becomes burdensome, there's always beer, cross-country skiing and the girls at nearby St.

Benedict's. Recently, an accrediting group noted the "uncommonly high" quality of human relationships, adding: "the team members commented among themselves that the St. John's campus is a civilized corner of the world which in too many other corners are disturbingly uncivilized.

We need all the St. John'ses of the independent school world for their diversity and independence. State schools are the foundations, but 900 others provided the challenge.

Tech president to be recommended as new president of Michigan State

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) -The appointment of Texas Tech President Cecil Mackey as the new president of Michigan State University is expected today, ending the school's 19-month search for a new leader.

The MSU Board of Trustees is to meet at 9 a.m. to receive the recommendation from a special committee set up to find a successor to Clifton Wharton resigned in November, 1977 to become chancellor of the State University of New York.

Mackey, 50, was named in April news reports as one of the three top candidates for the job, but withdrew his name from consideration because of the disclosure.

University of Kansas Chancellor Archie Dykes and Ohio University President Charles Ping were also named as leading candidates. Like Mackey, Dykes withdrew once his status was disclosed. Ping went through a series of interviews, then bowed out two weeks ago.

Mackey reportedly got back into the running after he was assured that his status in the search would not continue to be leaked to the news

He has a record of effectiveness in dealing with the Texas Legislature and executive branch of government, according to the MSU search and selection committee, although he was also described as an inaccessible ad-

STANTON - Farmers will do just about anything for a good rain. Now, they would like some say-so as to when it falls, how much, where and how long the underground seasoning (moisture) stays put and when the sun shines on their crops.

No such luck. But late last week, the rain clouds let loose here with a gully-washer. Many farms, freshly planted in cotton, were drenched. And even the farmers who were "washed out" were grateful for the

"I lost one place, but that's all right," said cotton farmer Bill Stone, who likely will have to re-plant some of his acreage. He'll be "scratching,"

'untimely" rain.

'With all that much rain, it (the crop) is going to be better" than before. His rain gauge ran over at his place west of Stanton

In some places, more than five inches of rain fell. He took it in stride

So, too, did R.S. "Rattlesnake" Lewis, but he hasn't a whole lot to lose by a drenching or a drought. After 21 years of breaking the soil west of here, he turned in his plough several years ago and retired.

But, naturally, the weather and farming still interest him; they're inseparable. "Oh," said Lewis in a come-whatmay manner, "sometimes you plant three or four times a year.

East of town, around the Lomax community, a good two-inch rain wet the fields. It was fine rain.

But after it stopped and the sun came out, a tough crust formed over the top soil. And most of the cotton sprouts were unable to break through the tough crust, though they doubtless sensed the light of day.

To compound that is this: The wind and rain caused additional top soil to blow from rows, to fall into the furrows (beds) and to bury even deeper the struggling cotton sprouts. Rotary hoes came to the rescue.

Four John Deere diesel tractors pulling 10-row rotary hoes were going over Neil Fryar's cotton acreage and were freeing the cotton. He farms 3,000 acres. "We're trying to 'scratch' it up,' said Fryar. "We think we can." The four tractors can cover about a section in a dusk-to-dawn workday. Each of the 62- to 63-picker wheels on each 36-foot-wide rotary hoe knifes into the earth, loosens the soil, break the compacted soil into chunks, clots dust like a passing wind devil. "And it gets rid of the little weeds, too," said Fryar.

In addition, the multi-purpose rotary hoes keep soil from blowing by breaking up the furrowed fields into Running the tractors over Fryar's

3,000 acres of cotton fields this week were Manuel Prado; his son, Carlos Prado; son-in-law, Rufino Novola, and Fryar's farming son, Stevie.

'There's some cotton that's trying to come up," said Manuel Prado after they finishing scratching one field and were heading to another, "and we've got that crust there. We break the crust up (into clods) and loosen it up, so it won't blow.

After working Neil Fryar's fields, the crew often joins in and helps Fryar's other son, Danny, "scratch" his now-drying fields. Danny Fryar farms about 2,000 acres.

"We've got to put in many hours to get the crop in," said Manuel Prado. "We don't mind. That's just the way it is.

New water quality levels for '83 to cost Texas $6.1 billion

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - It will cost Texas $6.1 billion to meet federal water quality levels for 1983, an executive assistant in the Texas Department of Water Resources said Wednesday:

"A fish in every stream is a laudable goal," Robert Fleming told a University of Texas conference for teachers of free enterprise. "But I doubt that has ever existed.

Some 87 percent of Texas stream miles already meet the 1983 standard and another 4 percent to 4.5 percent will be in compliance by the deadline. The Federal Water Quality Act calls for a state's waters to be "fishable and swimmable."

Actor Jack Haley dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Jack Haley, the man millions will always remember as the Tin Woodman in the film classic "The Wizard of Oz," has died at the age of 79.

Haley entered UCLA Medical Center Saturday after a heart attack, lapsed into critical condition Monday and died at 1:04 p.m. PDT Wednesday, said hospital spokeswoman Bonnie Whitham.

Haley's former vaudeville partner and wife of 52 years, Florence McFadden, was at his bedside.

Haley starred in vaudeville, Broadway musicals and 50 movies as an actor and song and dance man, but his 1939 performance as the Tin Woodman brought him the most

Haley's last public appearance came April 9 at the Academy Awards, when he joined with the "Oz" scarecrow, Ray Bolger, to present an

His son, Jack Haley Jr., president of 20th Century-Fox Television Productions, produced that telecast and directed the 1972 movie "Norwood," the last film in which his father appeared.

A deeply moved Ray Bolger said, "A very dear friend - a man I loved and adored - is gone....It will always be an honor to have been with him in a film that has become an international

"You can't be happy here if you don't see any hope for people who are suffering, impoverished and in pain,' remarked about his charita ble activities. "My being so lucky, I want to give some of it back."

A sea navigator's son, Haley made his debut as a singer at 6 in Boston, then ran away to New York at 18 to go on the stage. He made his Broadway debut in "Around the Town."

Haley's first movie appearance was for Paramount in "Follow Through" and "Here Comes The Groom." His career flourished at 20th Century-Fox, where he starred with Shirley Temple, and in "Pigskin Parade" with Jack Oakie and young Judy Garland.

"Wake Up and Live." in which he introduced the standard "Never in a Million Years," was Haley's favorite Haley's son Jack Jr. was married for a time to Liza Minnelli, the daughter of "Oz" star Judy Garland.

In addition to his son and wife, Haley is survived by a daughter, Gloria.

Funeral services were scheduled for Monday at The Church of the Good Shepherd in Beverly Hills.

SALT problems admitted

WASHINGTON (AP) - Carter administration officials acknowledge that U.S. and Soviet negotiators are having problems in wrapping up a treaty to limit strategic nuclear weapons.

Earlier Wednesday, Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker said in a speech that negotiators were working around the clock to resolve "important and extremely sensitive" issues of the treaty.

President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev are scheduled to sign the treaty at a summit meeting in Vienna June 18. A White House official, who asked that his name not be used, said the Soviets were maneuvering to extract some last-minute advantages but that the United States was remaining

The official said the Soviets are trying to "push for language that was not quite agreed on.

Meanwhile, a State Department official, who also requested anonymity, said the negotiators in Geneva might still be working on the treaty text until the last minute.

Man-made marijuana eases cancer nausea

BOSTON (AP) - A man-made form of marijuana, described by one researcher as "a godsend," dramatically eases the severe nausea that often accompanies cancer chemotherapy, a study shows. But a drug company has stopped trying to clear the experimental medicine for gener-

The research showed that the drug. called nabilone, is more than twice as effective as anything now available for the distressing side effects of cancer medicine.

However, Eli Lilly Co., the drug firm that developed nabilone, suspended testing because of its toxic effect on dogs, even though those problems have not been seen in humans

An editorial in the New England Journal of Medicine, where the study was published today, urged Lilly to resume testing the medicine on people. These tests are necessary before the drug could be approved by the Food and Drug Administration for widespread use.

Nabilone is a synthetic drug that is very similar to THC, the active ingredient of marjuana. However, unlike pot, nabilone's chief effect is drowsiness rather than euphoria.

In studies at the medical schools at Indiana University and the University of Arizona, researchers experimented with 113 patients who had nausea and vomiting because of chemotherapy. They took alternate doses of nabilone and Copazine, another medicine frequently given to off-set chemotherapy.

Ninety of the patients, or 80 percent, said they felt better after taking nabilone, while 36 of them, or 32 percent, responded to Compazine.

Dr. Terence S. Herman, who directed the latest study, said about 40 percent of chemotherapy patients are nauseous, and the symptoms are severe for 10 percent to 15 percent of

"I have known patients who would rather die than go through chemotherapy," Herman said in an inter-

"The worst flu you have ever had is no worse than what these people must face about every three weeks," he said. "Some people retch for 48 hours after chemotherapy. And for these people, this drug is a godsend."

Eli Lilly stopped human trials with the drug after the company found that it caused seizures and sometimes death when given to dogs.

However, the metabolism of dogs is different from that of people, and the dogs took the drug for much longer periods than humans would.

The editorial, written by Dr. Murray E. Jarvik of the Brentwood Veterans Administration Medical Center in Los Angeles, said Lilly's logic in stopping the experiments was "faulty."

"Nabilone is intended for seriously ill patients with cancer, for whom the risk of death is quite high," he wrote. "Furthermore, it is to be used only for short periods of time, so that chronic toxicity in dogs is probably irrele-

In humans, the side effects of nabilone were similar to those of Compazine - sleepiness, dry mouth and dizziness. But the nabilone side effects were twice as frequent and often

Marijuana reformer raps medical policy

WASHINGTON (AP) - A marijuana law reformer says the government's stance prohibiting doctors from prescribing marijuana for medical reasons while allowing them to prescribe morphine freely "is just ludicrous."

"It's very disappointing," Alice O'Leary, of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, said after the Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced it wants to keep marijuana under the most stringent federal drug con-

HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. told the Drug Enforcement Administration Wednesday that he and his health advisers feel marijuana should continue to be handled like heroin — as a drug for which there is no accepted medical use.

"The concept that marijuana can't be used safely under medical supervision is just ludicrous when doctors can prescribe drugs like morphine and darvon," Miss O'Leary said. "Physicians are highly trained individuals, and marijuana is not all that complex a drug, despite what HEW would have us

HEW is sponsoring studies in which cancer patients use marijuana to avoid nausea during chemotherapy, and glaucoma patients use it to reduce eye

A dozen states have legalized use of marijuana for those medical purposes, although their doctors and health departments still must get special federal permission to use it.

The red-tape involved in securing that approval has discouraged doctors from working with marijuana, according to Miss O'Leary and other NORML officials, who petitioned the government seven years ago to reclassify it.

In March 1978, a Food and Drug Administration advisory panel said controls on two marijuana ingredients should be relaxed a bit to facilitate re-The panel suggested moving the ingredients, including delta-9-tetrahyrdocannabinol (THC), from Schedule I of the Controlled Substances Act, with heroin and LSD, to Schedule II, with drugs like morphine and cocaine.

The law states that Schedule I drugs have no accepted medical use, while Schedule II drugs have a recognized use but under severe restrictions. HEW, in a 10-page brief released with Califano's decision, said the FDA advisers were off-base.

The brief, drawn largely from a memorandum by FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy, said there was no evidence to show rescheduling would facilitate research and, furthermore, HEW was trying to do that in other ways.

The brief said the public abuse of marijuana was "well documented," and that if pure THC — the ingredient that makes people high — became "generally available, it would undoubtedly have a high potential for abuse.

States that have legalized use of marijuana for medical purposes are: Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, Minnesota, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Texas, Virginia, Washington and West Virginia. In Maine, similar legislation is awaiting action by the

Critically ill youth gets miracle kidney

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Critically ill Steve Little got his miracle when doctors gave him a transplanted kidney from his mentally retarded sister, in an operation allowed by a landmark Texas legal

Both Steve, 14, and his 15-year-old sister, Anne, were in stable condition early today at the Bexar County Medical Center after the five-hour operation Wednesday. The 4th Court of Civil Appeals here cleared the way last February for Margaret Little, the children's mother, to allow doctors to use Anne's kidney for the transplant. Doctors say it will save Steve's life. Attorney R.H. Wester Jr., appointed to protect Anne's legal interests, had gone against the parents' wishes and challenged a Nov. 17 Guadalupe County probate court ruling allowing the transplant. He contended Texas law did not allow organs to be removed from mentally incompetent persons and donated to others.

Anne, who suffers from Down's syndrome or mongolism, was the only one of Steve's six brothers and sisters who had an acceptable kidney for Steve.

Psychologists who examined Anne said she didn't comprehend the transplant, but was very loving toward her brother and would have suffered psychologically had her brother remained ill or died.

Steve, whose one kidney never fully developed, had been living on kidney dialysis since his second kidney had virtually ceased to function three years

Can't find fault with fault-finding

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I've stolen all my life. I started taking small things from my friends. I've stolen money from my mother's purse and also my father's pocket. I've even shoplifted just to get away with something. I've never been caught. I guess I've been lucky, or maybe just good at it.

I'm also a terrible liar. I make up things just to get people to listen to me. I don't have any friends, and I'd like_at least one. I work hard to impress people but always end up making a fool of myself.

I'd like to be a good person but I don't have the will power to do what's right. Dishonesty seems to come more natural to me. I need some help before I end up in jail. So, Dear Abby, what can you do for a 15-year-old failure? I can't talk to my parents. -A NO-GOOD GUY

DEAR GUY: A guy who knows his faults as well as you know yours is no "failure" in my book.

You are fair enough to blame only yourself for your weakness, smart enough to know that you lie to attract Paul Stafford. attention, and sufficiently honest to admit you want friends and a clear conscience.

If you have a school counselor, make tracks for that office. If not, tell your parents you have some personal problems you would like to talk over with someone at the mental health clinic. Once you get the help you need,

DEAR ABBY: You wrote, "Under certain circumstances, a child CAN be darker than its darkest parent." Abby, since there are only two parents involved, you should have used "darker" instead of "darkest." Just thought you should know. -ENGLISH BUFF DEAR BUFF: I knew. But "darkest" somehow sounds better to my ear. Just as "put your best foot forward" should be "put your BETTER foot forward" if one wants to be absolutely correct. However, I'll opt for putting one's BEST foot forward - whether I'm referring to a person or a centipede. DEAR ABBY: I called a young lady

I know and invited her to attend a sailing regatta with me on the 4th of July. It's one of the nicest affairs of the season and entails the races in the afternoon, followed by dinner and dancing at the yacht club.

Instead of saying yes or no, she asked me to call her around the 25th of June and she'd tell me then.

Abby, if she turns me down, I'll have to ask somebody else, and by then all the best girls will have been asked. Why do you think she's waiting, and what should I do? -

DEAR PUZZLED: She could be waiting to see if she gets a better

Spanish traditions glow on the charcoal grill

NEW YORK, N.Y. - Spaniards learned long ago that their favorite foods were even more delicious when cooked over a bed of coals. Paella, a traditional triumph, was in fact, first cooked alfresco - in a pan over open Recapture that heritage with a Grilled Chicken and Sausage Paella recipe. For a hearty outdoor flavor, charcoal broil the chicken and sausages while you prepare the delicate seasonings and rice in the pan right next to them on the grill. In the final cooking stage, combine the crisp chicken and sausages with other ingredients, cover, and leave on the grill until done.

Paella on the grill give new form to cookouts, while keeping preparation simple. Easy pack-up of ingredients and cooking tools makes it great for camping. The built-in time saver is great, when serving the immediate family or large crowds. Also, you can make any combination of foods right on the grill - in a variety of cooking ware, such as covered skillet, pot or casserole dish While starting the fire, snack on Spanish stuffed green olives and toasted almonds and sip Spanish red wine. To begin your fire, line the bottom of the grill with heavy-duty aluminum foil for faster cooking and easier cleaning. Stack the briquets in a pyramid for good air circulation around the coals. This will help the fire catch. Be sure to use a good charcoal starter. It may be liquid, jelly, wax or electric. If you use liquid or wax types, allow a few minutes for the briquets to absorb the fluid before lighting.

When the briquets are covered with a light grey ash, the fire is probably ready. To double check, see how long you can hold your hand, cautiously, palm side down, at cooking level. If you can keep it in position for 2 seconds, the temperature is very hot; 3 seconds, hot; 4 seconds, medium; 5 seconds, low.

When the coals reach the right temperature you can start to grill the chicken and sausages and prepare the

To prevent flare-ups from the fat drippings, lace a drip pan made of heavy-duty aluminum foil directly under the chicken and sausages, with the coals laced to the sides of the drip pan. This indirect cooking method also keeps the chicken from burning and makes clean-up easier.

While the paella is simmering over the coals, serve another Spanish tradition, tapas. Grilled Meatball Kebob Tapas, a cross between appetizers and hors d'oeuvres, are delicious for

Thread meatballs, artichoke hearts and mushrooms alternately on skewers. Grill over the cooler part of the fire (medium-low heat) near the periphery of the coals for about 10 minutes. Use the hand test to see if you also need to lower the temperature. If so, spread the outer coals away from each other or raise part of the grid. Brush lightly with the artichoke marinade to keep the vegetables

1 cup whole Spanish, stuffed green

Before cooking, shape a drip pan from heavy-duty aluminum foil. When coals are ready, use tongs to carefully arrange coals around drip pan. Place chicken and sausages over drip pan. Grill over hot coals for 20 minutes or until chicken is almost fork-tender, turning occasionally. Meanwhile, heat oil in 4-quart paella pan or 12-inch skillet about 4 inches above hot coals. Add onion and garlic; saute until tender, stirring constantly. Stir in rice and saffron; stir to coat rice grains well with oil. Add broth and heat until boiling. Place grilled chicken and sausages in rice mixture. Cover pan with foil. Movepan to over drip pan and grill about 25 minutes or until rice is tender and all liquid is absorbed, stirring gently with fork occasionally. Lightly toss in green beans and olives, cook until green beans are tender.

MANNER ... Modular and their contemporaries who want a casual and adaptable style

The idea was simply so good that furniture in the modular manner especially upholstered pieces that can be arranged in a variety of ways, has rapidly become a popular style for homeowners in every age group.

Modular groupings are often fairly large, but the ability to arrange the pieces in any shape you want, whether L-shaped, Ushaped or in conventional sofo and chair groupings, make them adaptable even to smaller rooms. Since these groups often involv multiple pieces and a large "mass," muted colors such as the off-whites and naturals, or simple patterns are a good choice unless your room is vast enough (and the background unabtrusi to accept a large expanse à strong color or pattern. Mrs. Al G. Langford, whose hus-band has been president of Midland College since its beginning some 10 years ago, is an unpretentious, congenial person who enjoys remaining in the background, "because I believe there should be only one leader in a family," she says.

Illustrating the suggestion she is not an ostentatious individual, Mrs. Langford finds humor when, on several visits to the MC campus, she has been asked, "Does your husband work at the college?"

The Langford family moved to Midland in 1969, when Dr. Langford became president of the college. They moved to Midland from Lubbock, where he completed studies for his

She was born in Dallas, attended public schools there and began her college studies at North Texas State University. She worked a year and completed her degree at Howard Payne University in Brownwood, where she met Dr. Langford. At the time he was studying for his master's degree at Howard Payne and coaching in DeLeon. They were married in Brownwood.

Mrs. Langford has taught school in DeLeon, Gatesville, Lamesa and Midland. "After I retired from teaching, I felt left out when members of the family would leave for school every morning, so I did substitute teaching here for while. Today, that feeling of being left out is almost gone.'

She does hint, however, she might return to teaching at some later date. But for the present, she is satisfied with her role as wife, mother and homemaker. She is busy maintaining the attractive and comfortable four bedroom townhouse at 902 E. Sorrel Lane the family has occupied about a year, and keeping members of her busy family on their respective schedules. The living area of the home has an eye-catching atrium with a fountain and tropical plants, so Mrs. Langford is "learning to enjoy

Sports play an active role in the Langford household. Al Jr., 19, like his father, is a golfer. He played with the Lee High School golf team, and now is attending M€. Lance, a 17year-old sophomore at Midland High School, enjoys all sports, particularly football, when he is not making attractive pieces of furniture for the Langford home. His accomplishments in this direction include a china cabinet and chest.

Lee Anne, 15, is a student at Edison Freshman School. She likes gymnastics and shares her mother's love for tennis. She will be attending a tennis camp in New Braunfels this summer. She also is a golf enthusiast.

Mrs. Langford is a true tennis buff. So much so that she had to forsake the game for a time because she developed "tennis elbow." She has been playing with the Midland Women's Tennis Association about four years.

Mrs. Langford says she is not a leader now in organizations, but still participates in activities of Delta Kappa Gamma, an organization for women educators, and the Midland Branch of the American Association of University Women. She also plays bridge once a month with a group of friends and enjoys the art of crewel. The family belongs to the First Baptist Church and Midland Country

Currently, Mrs. Langford is preparing for one of her "official duties". as wife of a college president. The presidents of junior colleges throughout the state and their families will be in Midland July 12-15 for an annual meeting. Mrs. Langford is responsible for entertainment for the wives and families. The Langfords will be entertaining the early arrivals to the conference with a party in their

Entertaining for the Langfords also includes an annual open house during the Christmas season for full-time faculty members and their spouses. "It also is becoming a tradition for the MC choir to be entertained in our home at Christmas," says Mrs. Langford, who prepares all the food for the several hundred guests at the open house and the choir. There also are informal backyard parties for smaller groups and parties to introduce new college faculty members.

WASHINGTON (AP) More moderate surgery should replace disfiguring radical mastectomies as the standard treatment for earlystage breast cancer, a National Institutes of Health panel has concluded. In a consensus statement developed Tuesday on treating the leading cancer in women, the panel also said doctors should try to give patients time between diagnosis of the disease and treatment so they can consider therapeutic options. Some women's rights groups and others claim many doctors are insensitive to the trauma caused by radical mastectomies and routinely perform too many. The resolution calling for doctors to use biopsies and other diagnostic tools to confirm cancer before using radical therapy was pushed by panel member Rose Kushner, a patient advocate from Kensington,

Ms. Kushner said doctors too often decide treatment for patients in the operating room when they can't consider options. Surgeons on the man, Dr. John Moxley of panel agreed that a waiting period is possible in many cases, but added that some patients want now is good evidence doctors to make the decisions and that this option should be left open. The panel, including

WASHINGTON (AP) - A coalition of civil rights groups, by coincidence displaying extraordinary timing, has asked all federal courts to stop discriminating against blacks and Acting only hours after the Supreme Court announced decisions Tuesday in two closely watched sex discrimination cases, the coalition asked the federal courts to practice what they preach.

"For many years, the federal judiciary has been committed to the enforcement of the guarantee of equal protection as applied to the practices of private and public employers," the groups said. "Unfortunately, this commitment ... has not provided equal employment opportunity within the federal courts. The groups asked the U.S. Judicial Conference, a kind of board of directors for the federal court system, to quickly consider a cure for "manifest race and sex discrimination caused by (the courts') employment prac-

One of the Supreme Court's sex bias decisions Tuesday dealt a major setback to the women's rights movement. By a 7-2 vote, the justices ruled that veterans' preference laws do not impermissibly discriminate against

The justices upheld as constitutional a Massachusetts law that provides. an absolute, lifetime veterans' preference in public employment. Because the Massachusetts law is stronger than a similar provision used by the federal government and laws in 45 other states, the ruling might spell doom for any future sexbias attack on those laws.

Under the Massachusetts law, all military veterans who pass a civil service qualifying test are automatically ranked higher than all non-veterans - even those with higher test scores.

Most other states and the federal scheme provide a "points system" in which a veteran's test score is supplemented by a certain preference for-

In Massachusetts, less than 2 percent of all military veterans are women. Other states reflect similar percentages, in part due to federal laws that for years prohibited women from comprising more than 2 percent of the workforce of the nation's armed services.

The court's ruling was praised by the American Legion and panned by the National Organization for Women.

In a separate case, the justices split 5-4 in ruling that a woman who claims she was fired by former Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., because of her sex may sue her ex-boss in federal court for back pay and damages.

The exact position of the battle isn't known, he the guidance of psy- said. But Jones jettisoned his cannon the morning after the battle in an effort to keep the ship afloat. British divers and fishermen have spotted the cannon in the area.

With the position of the cannon, Cussler sought out tide data for the days in question. The British Admiralty has kept tide records since 1720. This, plus a wind estimate, 'narrowed' the search to a 9- by 17-mile rectangle of North Sea

IT'S A PATCH of water so famed for bad weather and ripping tides that divers can work only in June.

"With our equipment and good weather, we can eliminate 15 square miles a day. I'd like to see 20 days of working weather, but if it's nasty we may get only 10,' Cussler said.

The timbers of the hull decks and masts would have rotted away. But the searchers hope to spot the ship's distinctive ballast mound. Built as a merchantman, the Bonhomme Richard needed 70 tons of pig-iron, cannon balls and stone to weigh it down.

AS FOR THE psychics, Cussler consulted a few "because I wanted to open every door - but we're not holding our breath."

Any artifacts recovered from the ship would go to British, U.S. and French museums: "When there's no treasure involved, you can be very magnanimous,' Cussler said.

But even if the search fails, Cussler plans to continue the ocean salvage business next sum-

HIS MISSION then will be to find the Confederate submarine Hunley, which sank after becoming the first sub ever to sink another ship in battle. Both searches are bankrolled by a foundation Cussler set up to support marine archeology.

The foundation is named the National Underwater Marine Agency Inc., a title drawn from Cussler's half-dozen sea adventure books.

But the author insists his search for the Bonhomme Richard is firmly grounded in reality.

"Nothing has ever come easy for me," says Cussler, a tanned, powerfully-built resident of a Denver suburb, amateur diver and former advertising man.

"TITANIC,' when it clicked, was my fourth book. People say congratulations, you're an overnight success. Overnight, yeah - 11 years.'

Cussler said he now likes to mix writing with projects - of which the Bonhomme Richard is the latest.

"I've always wanted to do something like this. The success of the books has at least given me the opportunity," he said.

MC to start more courses next week

With less than a month remaining in the summer semester of Adult Education classes at Midland College, area residents still have the opportunity to enroll in a variety of short courses beginning next week. Pre-enrollment is in progress now in room 140 of the MC Occupational-Technical Building. Those wishing to sign up for courses may do so between 7 a.m. and noon and 12:30 and 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Only one 10-week course is scheduled during this period. Al Wein-kauf's basic course in Dog Obedience Training will begin Monday and continue through Aug. 13 This course is ideal for those wishing to enter their dogs in competition or for those who simply want a well-mannered pet. Classes meet from 7 to 8 p.m. each Monday in the MC Gym. Course fee is $12. Classes can accomodate 12 students.

Karate I (Tae Kwon Do), taught by Lee Yoo Sun, meets Mondays through Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m. for four Classes stress mental and physical discipline, self-defense techniques and releases from holds. Classes meet in the Gym, and course fee is $32.

Karen Sharma's four-week course in Belly Dancing I meets from 7 to 9 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays in the Gym. Classes are limited to 20 students who will be taught the basic body movements of the dance. Course fee is $16.

A four-week course in beginning bridge, using the Goren Method taught by Joe Salman, covers introduction, bidding, play of hands, leads and scoring. Classes meet Mondays and Thursdays between 7 and 9 p.m. in room 106 of the Occupational-Technical Building. Course fee for Bridge I is $16.

Real Estate Funadmentals I is a four-week course covering professional standards, appraisal, marketing, finance, law, taxation and salesmanship pertaining to real estate.

Don Harvey, course instructor, holds classes from 7 to 10 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays in room 100 of the Occ-Tech Building. Course fee is $45 and books may be purchased at the MC bookstore.

Judy Morrison teaches a threeweek course in Watercolor during which students will learn the use of transparent colors, composition, and the theory of perspective. Students should bring paper, brushes, colors and water container to the first class. The course fee is $15. Classes meet from 7 to 9:30 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesday in room 104 of the Occ-Tech Building.

A first-time offering this summer is Kathy Brown's three-week course in the techniques of basket weaving. Basketry includes the hands-on application of construction, use of tools and materials, coiling, twining and plaiting. Classes meet from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays in room 106 of the Occ-Tech Building. Course fee

A final course in Calligraphy, taught by Laird Considine, meets Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 9: 30 p.m. in room 106 of the Occ-Tech Building. This is a three-week course teaching italic script writing useful for invitations, posters, advertising and letter writing.

Cost of supplies is approximately $15. Classes are limited to 15 students, and supplies must be ordered in advance. The course fee is $15.

Judy Morrison demonstrates the art of oil painting with students participating in the application of design

The reason is only the top people in Congress are allowed to fill up at the pumps, located near the entrance to an underground Senate garage.

The Washington Post reports in Wednesday's editions that House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass.; Majority Leader Jim Wright Jr., D-Texas, and Minority Leader John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., have their Lincoln Continental limousines filled

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., D-Tenn., also use it, the newspaper says.

The price at the prestigious pumps was set in competitive bidding for the supply contract last year, according to Elliot Carroll, executive assistant to the architect.

Despite the cut-rate, those who fill up are not picking up the tab. The government is.

House Speaker O'Neill ran up the largest bill - $1,720 - for oil and gas for his limousine last year. Taxpayers also shelled out $27,256 for his limo, which included $22,548 for the chauffeur's salary, $2,450 for leasing the car and $538 for tires and chauffeur

"We just started hitting the ball," said Montreal's Tony Perez, one of three Expos to get two hits in the big inning. "He (Atlanta pitcher Phil Niekro) started getting behind and had to come in with his fastball."

Ellis Valentine, who also had two hits in the inning, was delighted. "It's the second time we really exploded on them," he said. "I enjoyed every minute of it."

But Montreal Manager Dick Williams was compassionate.

"I'm sure they were not happy," Williams said of Atlanta. "That sort of thing is really discouraging to a team. I know because I've been on the losing end of 21-7 and 21-2 scores in my managing career.

"We beat Atlanta 19-0 here last year, but we generally don't fare that well against them," Williams said.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Is a freeswinging slugfest tough on a baseball coach'

Just ask Fullerton State's Augie Garrido. "That was a 12 Rolaid game," Gar-rido said after his team outlasted Arkansas 13-10 Wednesday night in the College World Series. The 27-hit game, highlighted by five home runs, was a pitchers' night-mare. Arkansas took a 2-0 lead, Fullerton went on top 8-2, Arkansas made it 8-6, Fullerton pulled out to an 11-6 advantage and the Razorbacks cut to 11-10 before the Titans finally put it The offensive fireworks followed a well-played game in which Pepperdine eliminated top-rated Texas 6-4.

That set up a showdown tonight between conference rivals Fullerton

(58-14) and Pepperdine (53-17), with the winner to meet Arkansas (49-14) for the national title Friday night. Texas, a 9-4 loser to Arkansas Tuesday night, finishes the year 55-8. Dan Hanggie and Mike Garcia swung the big bats for Fullerton. Hanggie belted a grand slam in the Titans' seven-run second inning and Garcia tagged a three-run shot in the Hanggie, who is Fullerton's No. 2 RBI man on the year with 67, has been a key player in the series because the Titans' top slugger, Tim Wallach, is batting only .235. Hanggie is hitting 375 and has driven in six runs.

"The ball I hit for the grand slam was a high slider," Hanggie said. "As for my defensive and offensive play in the series, I feel very confident. I haven't felt tight at any time.

We can win this whole thing." Arkansas, which tied a series record by hitting three home runs, was hurt by two plays on the basepaths.

Kevin McReynolds was thrown out at home in the fourth inning when he tried to score from first on Mike Martin's double and Jeff Ash was nailed in the sixth when he tried to go from first to third on a single to left.

"We were hoping to stay close and do some things in the late innings,' Arkansas Coach Norm DeBriyn said. "I thought the key to the game was Ash being thrown out at third when we were behind only 8-6.

"I'll take the blame for that. I thought he could make it.

McReynolds, Johnny Ray and John Hennell homered for Arkansas. McReynolds, a freshman, also slapped two singles, raising his series average to .714.

Tonight's game matches teams that split four contests during the regular season. Fullerton, rated third nationally, won the Southern California Baseball Association title and eighthrate Pepperdine was runner-up.

Both teams lost their opening games of the series, but have bounced back to win three straight. First round losers have won the series on five other occasions.

"I look for a dogfight with Pepper-dine," Garrido said. "It should be exciting and it should be pretty well played. The pitchers will know the hitters and we'll know how to position our people. Because of that, it will tend to be more like a professional game.

Garry Humpston stroked a two-run, tie-breaking double down the left field line in the eighth inning to lift Pepperdine past Texas. Humpston, who was 1-for-9 in the series when he stepped to the plate, connected off reliever Keith Walker and made a loser of Texas ace Jerry Don Gleaton, who suffered his first setback in 14

The altercation between the two came after the fourth race Wednesday. At the start of that race, Ski Pants, a 2-year-old ridden by Cordero, ran into Franklin's mount, Lorine. Both horses finished out of After dismounting, the two had words on the way to the jockeys' room. There, witnesses said, Franklin hit Cordero with his helmet and there was some Some witnesses thought Cordero threw a punch, but others said he didn't. The stewards told both jockeys to keep their mouths shut about the inci-

Franklin is fortunate the incident will not affect his Belmont status, a race in which Spectacular Bid winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness - is

NEW YORK (AP) — Jockey Ronnie Franklin was the odds-on favorite to win the Triple Crown.

"No horse is unbeatable," said trainer Loren Rettele, who has twice chased Spectacular Bid with Golden Act. "Secretariat got beat. That proves it." The great Secretariat lost five times. But he sure didn't lose in the 1973 Belmont Stakes, winning in a record 2: 24 by a record 31 lengths to become the first Triple Crown winner in 25 years.

Spectacular Bid has lost twice but his third defeat is not expected to come in the 11/2-mile Belmont Saturday. Instead the $200,000-added classic is expected to be his 13th straight victory and make him the third Triple Crown winner in three years.

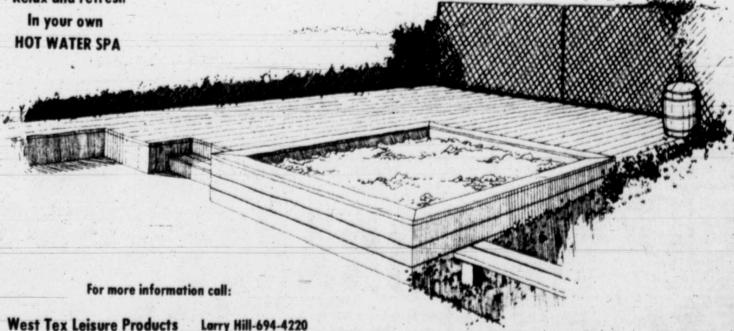

Entries were to be made today, and among those expected to be named to oppose Bid are three colts who tried him in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness Golden Act, third and second in the Derby and Preakness, respectively; General Assembly, second and fifth, respectively; General Assembly, second and fifth, respectively, and Screen King, sixth and third, respectively.

Post time for the 111th Belmont is 4:38 p.m. CDT. The proceedings will be televised by CBS from 4

Following a two-mile gallop by Spectacular Bid Wednesday, trainer Bud Delp said he didn't care how many 3-year-olds were entered against his star and predicted Bid "is going to be better for this race that e ever was.

Maybe, but horse racing is a "show me" business - and Golden Act trainer Loren Rettele is one man who Bid will have to show again.

NFL coaches face new rule

NEW YORK (AP) - National Football League coaches will be getting a letter from Commissioner Pete Rozelle shortly pointing out the dangers of the "chop block" and asking those who coach that manuever not to use it anymore

Rozelle had hoped to have something stronger to get the message across, such as a rule barring some forms of the chop block and a 15-yard penalty for offenders. Club owners were not willing to go that far, however, and the expected vote Wednesday to outlaw that block never materialized. The club presidents ended their two-day meeting only recommending that the chop block not be used.

The chop block, a relatively recent innovation, is blamed for an increase in leg and knee injuries to defensive linemen. The manuever involves the use of two offensive players. Usually an offensive lineman at least partially engages an on-rushing defensive player, then an offensive back comes from the side and hits the defensive player low, around the knees.

Those who opposed a rule outlawing that manuever held it would be too difficult for officials to decide between a chop block and a double team block, which was not at issue. The key would be whether the rusher was engaged by the offensive lineman or whether he was breaking free when he was hit low by the second player. If he were at least partially engaged by the first player, it would be a chop "It was felt it would put too much added pressure on the officiating,' said Browne. "Secondly," Browne said, "there was a question of how a rule against the chopblock might affect the overall protection of the quarterback. If you're not letting that back block low, in effect, you are taking away some of the quarterback's protection. In most cases, the quarterback is the most valuable player on the team, and some clubs felt they wanted to give the quarterback the most protection they can.

If you're a betting man and have any of those little green George Washington portraits left after the Belmont Stakes Saturday, here's a tip offered free and without obligation.

Billy Martin not only will be back as manager of the New York Yankees, he could be calling the shots by the July All-Star break - or shortly afterward.

Who says so?

Not owner George Steinbrenner. "We are continuing our talks - nothing definite yet," the big boss says. Not Billy, who still insists, "I'll be back in 1980 with a two-year contract.'

How come a change in midseason? Easy. Steinbrenner watchers know he

Get ready for Martin

So far his instincts have been generally good. He hired the controversial, thrice-fired Martin originally because the team needed an injection of Martin's kind of fireworks. Billy can sting tender nerves but he can also manage a ball club and ignite emotions.

George took the rubber bands off the free agent market by signing Catfish Hunter for $3.5 million and then courting Reggie Jackson to change residences for $2.9 million. From then on, as the Yankees moved to three league championships and two World Series titles, George played his big

When Yankee squabbling dropped the champions 141/2 games out of the lead last July, Steinbrenner began getting impatient. The team was loaded with stars. The least thing it needed was conflict. Exit: the feisty, volatile Martin. Enter: placid, lowkey Bob Lemon. It worked like a

Through no fault of Lemon's but largely because of injuries, the Yankees so far this year have shown little get-up-and-go. There are signs of complacency and over-confidence. The champs look as if they could use a swift kick in the pants. That's Martin's forte.

Steinbrenner is not the kind of man to let a dormant situation exist for long. He is too much a perfectionist, too proud, too impatient and too impetuous

The bottom line is this: Good ol' Bob Lemon can't wait to shuck his uniform and trade it for leisure. Scrappy Billy Martin can't wait to get back in

Truck kills Tech athlete

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech football player Jim Wosoba died Wednesday morning after he was run over by a truck in an industrial accident in Shelby County, Ky., univeristy officials announced. He was 20.

"This is a tragedy not only for the Wosoba family but for everybody that knew Jim at Texas Tech," said Head Coach Rex Dockery. "It's unbeliveable how quickly things like this can happen.'

Wosoba, a sophomore, was redshirted last season but expected to contend for the starting center's role this year.

He will be buried Friday at 10 a.m. at the Middletown Christian Church in Louisville. There will be a memorial service at the Park Heights Baptist Church in his hometown of San Angelo also Friday at 10 a.m.

Wosoba was working construction near a group of loud machines when a truck backed up and ran over him.

He was an honor student at San Angelo Central High School before he attended Texas Tech where he played little for the Red Raiders during his first two seasons.

"He was the most improved offensive lineman we had this spring. He was definitely a starting candidate at center," said Dockery.

"His father told me Jim told him when he came home for the summer that he had paid the price his first two years a Texas Tech and he was determined to start Sept. & against Southern Cal," Dockery said.

Glenn Burke skips town to avoid lowly Oakland

OAKLAND (AP) - Outfielder Glenn Burke, who went from the top to the bottom when he was traded from the Los Angeles Dodgers to Oakland, has walked out on the A's, saying he is through with baseball.

Burke, who came to the lowly A's last year in a trade for outfielder Bill North, cleaned out his locker after Monday night's 14-inning loss to Cleveland. However, Manager Jim Marshall said he didn't know about the departure until arriving at the ball park Tuesday night.

"Someone said it wasn't anything that had to do with the club, that he had some personal problems to work

You'll enjoy going to 'Heaven

"Heaven Can Wait" is frothy-but-fun. I don't suppose anyone would go out on a limb with the claim that this comedy is one of the stronger productions of Midland Community Theatre but on the other hand, it's not one of the weakest, either. It's an evening's entertainment and that's that.

A Review

The comedy, which opened in Theatre Midland last weekend, will have a performance at 7:30 p.m. today and additional presentations at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. There'll be a matinee at 2:30 Sunday and final performances June 14, 15 and 16. Reserved seating for all remaining performances is available through the box office, 682-4111.

"Heaven Can Wait" is the disarming tale of an ambitious young prizefighter, Joe, who is the victim of a heavenly mistake - he has been brought to the Pearly Gates 50 years before his scheduled time of arrival there.

Joe is naturally indignant at the mixup, and the powers-that-be at the gates are acutely embarassed but there isn't much they can do about returning Joe to his earthly body, because Joe's manager has had the remains cremated.

Thus, most of the play's merriment grows out of the search by the heavenly authorities for a suitable

Humorous complications and misadventures ensue as the pugilist is transferred from one body to another (even though, to the audience, Joe looks exactly the same no matter which body he happens be occupying).

MCT director Rick Schiller is fortunate in having Frank Motycka Jr., in the part of Joe. Motycka is a good actor and he handles the comedy aspects of the part quite expertly. Also turning in an exceptionally good characterization as the fight manager, Max Levene, is Jerry Watson, who also has a fine flair for Brian Sayre is excellent as the gentle and benign Mr. Jordan, a kind of heavenly admissions officer at the Pearly Gates, and Mark Phillips does well as the bungling heavenly messenger who mistakenly delivers Joe to the Pearly Gates.

Kitty King is winsome and winning as the girl with whom Joe falls in love. Alinda Wisenbaker and Kenn S. George play a villainous pair who attempt to murder Joe while he is occupying the body of a millionaire business tycoon. Linda Salt has the role of the tycoon's secretary-receptionist. There is a large cast of supporting players.

The sets for this comic fantasy are well-done, particularly the Art Deco set of the millionaire tycoon's drawing room. It's really one of nicest, most eye-appealing sets I've seen in several sea-

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Every time I have to say a swear word, I feel kind of uneasy," admitted Jack

It wasn't that he had turned suddenly prudish. Not that at all. He simply was unnerved by rehearsing the hit play "Tribute" in a hall at the Hollywood Presbyterian Church, corner of Franklin and Highland Avenues.

The operetta is being revived by HGO to honor the late composer's 100th birthday. Performances will be given at Miller Outdoor Theater in Houston's Hermann Park June 5 through 16.

Hungarian-born Friml was one of the leading composers of the 1920s and '30s. While perpetuating a European-style musical theatre ("operetta") that was colorful, nostalgic and melodious, he at the same time infused his work with an energy and accessibility that made him very much a part of the music theater scene of his adopted country.

With "The Vagabond King" which was premiered in New York City in September, 1925, Friml swept theater-goers into a world of fantasy and heroism.

'The Vagabond King" is based on a drama titled "If I Were King," and is the fanciful tale of how folk poet Francois Villon became King of France for a day and saved his country from an enemy inva-

The operetta's melodies, rich in emotion and spirit, include such well-loved songs as "Only A Rose," "Love Me Tonight," "Some Day" and the stirring call to arms, "The Song of the Vagabonds."

Theater school to begin Monday

Theater school for children in first through sixth grades will begin Monday at Midland Community

Registration for the school is now under way at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

Beginning Monday and continuing through July 12. children in grades 1, 2 and 3 will have class sessions on Tuesday and Thursday mornings. Classes will stress creative drama, said MCT children's theater school director Debbie Waddell.

Young people in grades 4, 5 and 6 will have theater school sessions on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings through July 16, Miss Waddell said.

The students will participate in a production class. The class members will work in a group called "The Park Players," and will present a play in certain of the city parks during the week of July 16.

Additional information on the theater school summer classes may be obtained from Miss Waddell at Midland Community Theatre, 682-2544.

Lemmon was a participant in the beginnings of "The China Syndrome," having long been an oppo nent of nuclear power.

"I held off taking other pictures for a long time, because I was afraid I might not be available for it." said the actor. "It seems that some of the best pictures I've had, like 'Wine and Roses' and 'Save the Tiger' and 'Syndrome,' have been projects that nobody wanted to make."

"We had one hell of a time getting 'Syndrome' made. But, you know, that worked to our advantage. If we had gone ahead earlier, we wouldn't have had Jane (Fonda). The television reporter was going to be played by Richard Dreyfus. When he had to drop out, somebody suggested casting the role with a woman. It seemed like a dumb Hollywood idea, but with Jane doing the part, it worked.

Play 'Life With Father' held over in Odessa

ODESSA - There's a bona fide theater classic, one of the all-time comedy favorites in American theater, onstage at Permian Playhouse.

It's "Life With Father" and there will be final performances Friday and Saturday nights at Odessa's community theater, located at 310 W. 42nd St., adjacent to Ector County Colise-

A review

The comedy, originally scheduled to close last weekend, was held over for additional presentations this weekend. Seating for the 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday performances may be reserved by telephoning the box office, 362-2329.

"Life With Father." dating from the 1930s, was adapted by Lindsay and Crouse from Clarence Day's book of the same title which tells of Day's boyhood in an upper middle-class family in New York City in the 1880s. But particularly it is the story of Day's parents - his quick-tempered, strong-willed father and his gentle and soft-spoken (but just as strong-willed) mother. The Permian Playhouse version, staged and directed by PPH director Cov Sharp, is fortunate in having an excellent actor and actress. Charlie Guy and Mary Skinner, in the paren-

Both are fine in their respective stage assignments and much of the sheer delight of the play is due to their good work. (And the play really is sheer delight, with its gentle wit and frequently humorous situations.)

And there are other excellent performers in the production as well: Anne Caldwell is splendid as Margaret, the cook; Zack Harwell does well as Clarence Jr.; Ron Bennett, Damon Reeves and Delano Lopez are good in the roles of the younger Day boys; Missy Davis is just fine in the role of the young lady from out of town to whom Clarence Jr. is attracted Still others in the cast are Ann Carrell, Volker, Mary Lou Berggren, Nancy Barbre, Gary Lipscomb, Roger Bryant and Carla Bryant.

Stock market gains

stock market pushed higher for the third straight day Wednesday with energy issues again leading the way. Trading was the heaviest in more than two months.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained 4.16 points to 835.50. New York Stock Exchange volume rose to 39.83 million shares from Tuesday's 35.05 million in the busiest session since April 4, when 41.94 million shares were traded. Advances led declines by about 2-1 among NYSE-listed issues

Wall Steet's volume leader, and one of the biggest gainers among energy isues, was Great Basins Petroleum, which jumped 41/4 to 1134 on the American Stock Exchange.

The independent oil and gas producer, with sizable natural gas reserves in Canada, said it is considering selling a "substantial portion" of its assets or merging with another firm.

Other energy gainers included Charter, up 3% at 23%, Atlantic Richfield, up 1% at 65%, and Standard Oil of California, up 11/4 at 481/8 Halliburton was among oil field service issues gaining ground, rising 1% to 68. McDonnell Douglas, its DC-10 aircraft grounded by federal order, dropped 21/2 to 20%. The company has been under pressure since an American Airlines DC-10 crashed in Chicago last month, killing 275 people.

BUSINESS MIRROR NAIC kicks off drive to attract more investors

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) - Convinced that the individual investor is getting a bad deal because of adverse politics, the National Association of Investment Clubs has decided to represent him.

Several factors, including a decline in its own membership, motivate the NAIC, which until now has spoken mainly for clubs. But the primary one is the feeling that politicians are ignoring investor needs.

One of its first goals will be the promotion of legislation to allow a 20 percent tax credit on the first $2,000 of new investments in stocks, meaning $400 less in taxes for an individual and $800 per couple.

Tom O'Hara, chairman, and a former director of the New York Stock Exchange, believes such a ruling would help reattract an estimated 10 million

By his estimates, the investor population has fallen to 23 million, compared with a high of at least 33 million a decade ago. The decline has badly hurt the nation's economy but it is correctable, he feels. If this legislation reattracted those 10 million, O'Hara said, it would mean at least $20 billion of new capital to spur industry, lessen inflation, produce tax revenues and create jobs — 250,000 of them.

Comparable legislation has been passed in France and Sweden. In each case, funds must be "new" savings rather than transfers from other investments - and must remain invested for a minimum If these countries changed direction, O'Hara reasons, the United States can also. "For 10 or 12 years our tax policy has deemphasized ownership of se-curities," he complained. An injustice, he said. "Dividends and investments still pay the highest tax rate," he said. "We reduced the tax on earned income, but not on dividends. And divider 's still are

The climate has hurt the NAIC, too. At its peak in April 1970, it represented 14,101 clubs, but as market interest fell, along with prices and the number of shareholders, its membership dropped to 4,300.

The decline didn't worry the association very much, because membership in the past has always grown as marketplace interest returned. The bigger worry was that market interest might not return without a tug.

O'Hara and the NAIC board are certain they can muster a powerful lobby of individual investors. Their incoming mail tells them so, and now their outgoing mail, millions of pieces, will broadcast the

By SAM HARTZ

WASHINGTON (AP) - Finalists in the National Spelling Bee starting here Wednesday may be interested in the tale of how a misspelling etched in marble was finally fixed after 21 years. Few of the 109 regional champions who toured the Capitol earlier this week may have noted the inscription, "John C. Breckinridge" on the pedestal under his bust in the Senate gallery That was corrected from "BreckENridge." But it wasn't easy, records in the Office of the Architect of the Capitol show. BreckINridge was vice president from 1857 to 1861.

Like all vice presidents, he is entitled to a bust in the Senate — with the name on the pedestal. No matter that he was expelled from the body in 861 because of Southern sympathies. The misspelling saga began when the chamber was redone in 1951. All pedestals were replaced with new ones of Red Levanto marble. But Breck-INridge's came back with the boo-boo. After that, the work was portrayed in Congress' official works-of -art book with the legend:

"JOHN C. BRECKENRIDGE(1) Vice President of the United States...(1)The correct spelling of the name is BRECKINRIDGE.'

In 1959, former Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., rose to laud past Kentuckians who served in the Senate. And he put the finger on the pedestal problem, saying:

"I am going to ... see ... if we can obtain funds from somewhere to appropriately spell the name and the state of that great Kentucky family." But the wheels didn't turn until a 1972 newspaper article drew attention to the longstanding boner. Shortly after, the pedestal read, correctly, "Breck-INridge.' And how was the change wrought in marble? You might say no stone was left unturned. The sculptor lettered the name on the back of the pedestal. Then it was shifted around 180 degrees to read "BreckINridge" to all who gaze at it there in the gallery's northeast corner.

DALLAS (AP) - The managing director of the Airline Passengers Association says he will seek a congressional investigation if Federal Aviation Administrator Langhorne Bond does not resign immediately.

Hard-to-fit people face shoe problems

CHICAGO (AP) — Used to be that when a convict with a size 19 foot or a roller-skating chimp needed a shoe to stand in, they knew where to head.

But that won't be the case much longer, because the two customers, along with 6,500 others, will be on their own when Ben Newman Shoes closes forever around July 1.

And when that small shop that catered to hard-to-fit feet for more than half a century is boarded up, down will come this sign:

"SHOES - Women 1 to 14, AAAAAA to EEEEEEEE; Men 4 to 18, AAAA to EEEEEEE." And down will come the smaller sign beneath it: "B. Newman."

Down will come, too, the stacks of shoeboxes that served as furnishings, as well as the 30 wooden theater seats and the flourescent fixtures that cast a dim white light over the mountains

Now, Ben Newman's son, Mel, who ran the business alongside his father for years, is holding the establishment's first and last going-out-of-business sale.

"The response has been terrific," Newman says, adding that he's received letters and telephone calls from across the nation.

"Sometimes I cry with them on the phone," the elder Newman's widow, Bertha Newman, says. "What am I going to do, Mrs. Newman?' they say. Where am I going to buy shoes?"

It was because the volume of local customers fell off after World War II that Ben Newman carved out his unique niche with unusual sizes.

Gradually, the store attracted customers from across the country. People on vacation in Chicago, conventioneers and those problem-plagued, hard-to-fit feet all walked into Ben Newman's and walked out smiling.

Canyon strike may not help

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - The discovery of oil off the East Coast, announced earlier this week by Tenneco, may be a case of too little, too far. For now, the five companies that abandoned the area say it is not big enough to draw them back.

Industry experts said Wednesday that the discovery made Tuesday in the Baltimore Canyon Trough by Tenneco Oil Exploration and Production Co. after 13 dry holes may not be sufficient to justify development.

"If this was on shore, it would be a hell of an oil find," said one expert. "But if you're talking huge production platforms and oil pipelines at $1.5 million a mile, well, then it's just a drop in the bucket "It's just too early to tell whether this is a fluke or if it means they have a reservoir that's oil out there," said the expert, who asked not to be identified. "But it's the first flow of liquids in the Baltimore Canyon, and that's important. 'It's a time for cautious optimism." Frank Basile, the Interior

Department's regional manager for the Outer Continental Shelf, said. Tenneco said it struck high-quality, "sweet" oil — crude oil low in polluting sulfur - in its first wildcat well about 105 miles east of Atlantic City. Rigs in the Gulf of Mexico and, to a lesser extent, off California, have been producing crude oil for years, but this is the first East Coast

Tenneco's find was in the same 18. 400-foot hole where its semi-submersible rig Zapata Ugland discovered a significant amount of natural gas

two weeks ago. Tenneco said the oil was found in a three-foot vertical zone at a depth of 8,318 feet below the seabed. It said the crude oil flowed at a rate of 630 barrels a day. Because of the increased costs, offshore wells must produce much more daily than onshore wells. For example, the average wells in the North Sea generate at least 2,500 barrels a "That wasn't much of a show. I'd say 630 barrels is peanuts out there,"

Speed up action taken

ASTIN, Texas (AP) - Rapidly rising diesel fuel prices has caused the Texas Railroad Commission to adopt an emergency rule to speed up action on applications by motor carriers for higher rates.

Jerry Spence, assistant director of the commission's transportation division, said diesel prices ranged from 50 cents to 60 cents a gallon in March but now range from 90 cents to $1. "We've been advised of virtually

Pipeline ownership data sought by authorities

By JEFFREY MILLS

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal authorities took a first step today toward barring oil company ownership of petroleum pipelines, a move that might have the effect of holding down gasoline costs. The Federal Trade Commission announced it will seek public comment on a "petition for rulemaking" to prohibit oil companies from owning the pipelines. Major oil companies now own most of the nation's petroleum pipelines, which move oil from wells to refineries and then to mar-

The Federal Register notice requesting comment on the issue would declare oil company ownership to be 'an unfair method of competition" and illegal under the antitrust laws, the FTC announcement said.

The FTC action was taken on a petition it received in January from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who asked the commission to forbid locations for 79 oil and gas projects during Memorial wWeek in the Permian Basin of West Texas and southeast New Mexico.

Seventy five of the projects were staked in West Texas counties.

The leading Railroad Commission of Texas District was District 8-A, headquartered in Lubbock, where 26 field projects and eight wildcats were staked.

The District 8-A wildcat sites were staked in Cottle and Crosby counties, two each; Dickens, Kent, Lamb and Scurry.

Operators requested permission to drill 20 projects in District 8, headquarted in Midland, including three wildcat projects. Tehy are in Andrews, Pecos and Winkler.

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) - Admittedly Jim Helzer gets a lot of mail. But his own ZIP code? Wyoming's capital has three ZIP codes.

One for regular mail. One for state government And one for Helzer's Unicover Corp. He gets 15 million pieces of mail a year - by the truckload — hauled to a tightly-guarded building.

signs and markets first-day covers to 150,000 stamp collectors First-day covers are customized envelopes usually with artistic designs, affixed with commemorative stamps. They honor an important event - as when the United States landed men on the moon - and some not-so-important events. They're canceled on the day of issue by only one Helzer's philatelic business means travel around the world, including a trip to the Soviet Union to negotiate rights for first-day covers of space Helzer says Unicover, which employs 160 persons, "is the biggest of its type in the United States and probably the world, but you have to be careful about such claims. We try to deal with subjects of universal appeal, like space, flowers ad animals," Helzer said. "Not stamps that emphasize the glory of the Soviet state. We're not interested in that, because most collectors aren't interested.

The worst subject for a first-day cover? "That's easy," Helzer said. "Great worms of the world." The most controversial? "A United States issue on family planning. We called it the 'birds and bees' stamp," he said. "A great loser was a collective-bargaining cover. 'Now there's nothing bad about collective bargaining. But the design was terrible. It looked like a credit card. The most bizarre cover? "One was issued by an Arab nation which could be played on a record Unicover, using the trade name Fleetwood, deplayer. Ironically, there are few record players in the country that issued it. The most ironic cover? "Well, the Soviet Union issued a stamp dealing with human rights.' Helzer, in his 30s, formed the business 11 years ago, and the growth rate has been more than 50 percent a year. Unicover markets all first-day covers offered in the United Sates, Canada and Britain, and selected issues from 130 other nations. Why should collectors go through dealers like Unicover, when they can deal directly with postal Unicover saves collectors the trouble of "dealing directly with governments and provides original art and historical information on the first-day covers,'

Helzer said. But he concedes collectors can make amazing discoveries without going through dealers.

Recruiters accused of malpractice

WASHINGTON (AP) - Army investigators will soon begin looking into suspected malpractices by recruiters in four cities who may have helped prospective volunteers cheat on entrance examinations, sources say.

The sources, who requested anonymity, said teams of investigators from the Army Recruit ing Command are about to begin checking on recruiter practices in Chicago, Dallas, Boston and Montgomery, Ala.

Investigators are already looking onto allegations that recruiters in the Charlotte, N.C., area coached potential enlistees to help them pass

Suspicion that improper coaching practices might be more widespread arose when recruiting command officials noted what were described as "abnormal patterns" in computer runs on the results of vocational aptitude tests elsewhere, the sources

Start from the back, when you buy your next car.

A lot of people often pick up a magazine and start reading it from the back pages to the front. And this is also a good way to buy a car!

We'd like to invite you to walk in our place through the back door, where our service people work. You'll notice that a lot of our dealership is devoted to service. And you'll also see people who are experts at repairing and maintaining automobiles.

These days our fine service department is one of the three reasons why so many people buy cars from us: Service, selection, and, of course, low prices. Here are some examples:
