

Cancer claims John Wayne at 72

The Duke

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Wayne, a Hollywood hero for nearly 50 years and 200 movies, built his image as a fearless, determined fighter. That was the way "The Duke," died — in a courageous fight with cancer.

As the disease began its final assault and as the pain became more severe, Wayne sometimes refused the drugs that could have eased the way. He wanted, a hospital official said, "to be with his children, his grandchildren.... He would tolerate discomfort just to be near his family."

His seven children were at his side when Wayne, known to friends and fans as "The Duke," died at 5:30 p.m. Monday at the UCLA Medical Center. His 72nd birthday was celebrated May 26.

"He was — and is — an American institution," said actor Charlton Heston. "It's not surprising that, to the end, Duke gave an example of courage that made him more than an actor and friend."

Hospital administrator Bernard Strohm, announcing the death at a news conference three hours later, said Wayne's family planned a private funeral. Announcement of the death was delayed to accommodate the family, he said.

Reaction was swift as the news of Wayne's death flashed around the world. Bob Hope: "We've lost a big one, a jumbo in this business." Jack Lemmon: "John Wayne was bigger than life but he never abused it." Lloyd Nolan: "He was a magnificent man." Lorne Greene: "He had true character." Buddy Ebsen: "He had a big generous heart and a great soul." And the little people, Wayne's fans, offered their tributes, too. Condolence calls from all over the country began pouring into the UCLA Medical Center shortly after Wayne's death and continued today.

Before Wayne's death, cards and letters by the thousands had flooded UCLA from around the country and the world. Queen Elizabeth even sent her greetings and President Carter paid the Duke a bedside visit on May 5.

Countless fans had been following Wayne's final battle since Jan. 12, when a routine gallbladder operation turned into a 9½-hour ordeal as surgeons found cancer in his stomach and removed it.

The next five months brought small successes — release from the hospital, an ovation at the Academy Awards — and gradual, inexorable deterioration. He was back in surgery May 2. This time the cancer was in his intestines.

Wayne — who played the cowboy, the marine, the admiral, the football player — was granted scant expectation of progress, though he was taking short walks near his room, hospital officials said.

Cards and letters by the thousands poured into the Medical Center from around the country and the world.

As a measure of Wayne's immense popularity and almost legendary stature, Congress last month voted to have a gold medal struck in his honor. Among the other 83 recipients of the congressional medal were George Washington and Andrew Jackson.

Death began approaching Saturday, Strohm said, when "Mr. Wayne started doing rather poorly." His vital signs would not stabilize. He slept for long periods and, when he woke, "he would look around and ask for his children."

"No one could predict when death would come."

Wayne had faced cancer before. The disease claimed part of a lung 15 years ago — but the Duke won. "I licked the Big C," he boasted after that 1964 operation.

Then he went to Mexico and began filming "The Sons of Katie Elder," another in the long string of westerns that made Wayne one of the biggest box office draws in Hollywood history.

Wayne's last public appearance was April 9, when he ambled onstage at the Academy Awards. He was, he told a warmly applauding audience, "mighty pleased that I can amble down here tonight."

Wayne presented the award for best picture, for "The Deerhunter," and basked in the lengthy standing ovation, declaring it's "just about the only medicine a fellow'd ever need." The face and body were much thinner, worn down by the disease. But the grin was still there. The voice had not changed.

For all his coolness-under-fire image on the screen, John Wayne was a passionate man in his personal life. See page 4B.

Indicators keep pointing to slowdown of economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy appears to be slowing down, and government officials are taking steps to try to get price increases for some consumer goods to slow down, too.

The latest in a series of indicators on the state of the economy came Monday from the Commerce Department, which said retail sales nationwide fell 0.2 percent in May to $71.1 billion.

The department also revised its April sales figure downward by nearly $1 billion to $71.2 billion. The revised figure represents a drop of 1.1 percent from March.

Meanwhile, the Carter administration announced it would step up monitoring of wholesale and retail food processors to make sure lower farm prices are passed along to consumers. And it moved to increase the nation's lumber supply by allowing more cutting in national forests.

The government also began an appeal of a recent court ruling that eliminated the penalties from its voluntary wage and price program.

The retail sales figures represent a turnaround from modest sales gains in the first few months of the year and booming sales in the final months of 1978.

"It makes the important consumer sector look weaker than we had heretofore realized," said William Cox, a Commerce Department economist. "And it's a substantial part of the economy."

Added Douglas Rice, an economist with Data Resources Inc., a private forecasting firm in Lexington, Mass., "I think this is consistent with a falling economy."

Data Resources is among the forecasters anticipating a mild recession later this year. President Carter's advisers, however, have so far insisted there will be only a slowdown.

The declining retail sales figures, which both Cox and Rice blamed on slower growth in Americans' income, are but the latest of the government indicators to turn downward.

In recent days the government has reported declines in its so-called leading indicators, which are a gauge of future economic activity; consumer debt repayment; industrial production; and wholesale prices.

It was declining farm prices that Alfred E. Kahn, the president's chief anti-inflation adviser, addressed Monday.

Kahn told a meeting of newspaper food editors that the Carter administration will monitor food processors and retailers to make sure recent farm price declines are passed along to consumers.

He said some wholesale and retail profit margins appear to be going up "too sharply," considering that farm prices are stabilizing.

At the White House later, Kahn announced the government will allow more trees to be cut from national forests.

He said the move "promises to make an important contribution to reducing inflation."

Nicaraguan evacuation completed

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A U.S. Air Force transport plane today evacuated 61 Americans, mostly women and children, from this battle-torn Central American capital and flew them to the Panama Canal Zone.

The C-130, which had arrived earlier from the Canal Zone, picked up its passengers — many of them families of U.S. Embassy staff members — at an airstrip here. U.S. officials asked that its location be kept secret for the security of future evacuation operations.

Witnesses reported, meanwhile, that a rocket fired by a government warplane destroyed the Managua building housing the only opposition newspaper in Nicaragua, La Prensa.

An attempt to airlift the Americans out Monday failed when a firefight between government troops and guerrillas blocked the road to the airport. Some embassy dependents had been flown out over the weekend.

Today's evacuation convoy was led by a truckload of Nicaraguan national guardsmen, and shotgunned U.S. Marines also guarded the operation.

After Monday's failure, the evacuees spent the night at the hilltop residence of U.S. Ambassador Larry Pezullo, who has not arrived yet to take up his post.

"If we can't get them to the airport we won't move them," an embassy official had said. "If it's not safe, they won't go anywhere."

President Anastasio Somoza's national guard, meanwhile, pounded Sandinista guerrillas with planes and armored cars in Managua. Fighting also raged in the northern cities of Esteli, Matagalpa and Leon. Somoza estimated 1,300 killed in the two-week rebel offensive, raising the 10-month toll to 4,300.

Large sections of Managua, to which the rebel offensive spread Sunday, were without water and electricity. Few residents ventured from their homes and those who did carried white flags.

Most of the fighting took place in slum neighborhoods where sympathy for the guerrillas is strongest.

Large columns of black smoke rose from opposite ends of the city. Major roads were strewn with debris left from pitched battles between the guerrillas and Somoza's troops.

"Spoon-lickin' good" apparently represents the opinion of Dana Divine, 8, as she tastes a sample in the No-Bake Cooking School being sponsored by the Midland Council of Camp Fire Girls. The class will be held from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Friday in Gardens Assembly of God Church and is open to all girls aged 6 to 8 for a small fee. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

President Carter announces his national health plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced his long-overdue, limited national health plan today, saying it would combine Medicare for the elderly and Medicaid for the poor into a single federal program. And it would guarantee protection for all Americans against the cost of catastrophic illness.

The so-called Phase I would cost $23 billion to $25 billion in new federal spending in 1983, the plan's first year of operation.

Most of the money would be used to double the number of relatively poor Americans covered by state-run Medicaid programs and fold the various state programs into a single federally administered HealthCare system encompassing Medicare as well.

The White House said in documents designed to explain the new plan that Carter remains committed to the universal, comprehensive national health plan he promised during his campaign.

But "in a time of budgetary restraint and concern about inflation, it is not possible to enact a full, universal, comprehensive plan," the administration said. It said the president therefore has decided "to address the most pressing health needs of the nation" in his Phase I proposal, designed to permit eventual expansion to build the complete plan Carter would like.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and a coalition of organized labor, senior citizens, and religious interest groups broke with Carter after he refused to commit himself to seek congressional approval of a single comprehensive plan as he had promised during the presidential campaign.

County can't take a position in Hill house condemnation suit

By BILL MODISSETT
Staff Writer

The Midland County Commissioners' Court cannot join in opposition to the Midland Independent School District's condemnation proceedings against the Irene Hill estate because of potential conflicts of interest, County Judge Bill Ahders said in response to a request for support Monday.

Don McCarty, a member of a group which calls itself People Resisting Inminent Domain Exploitation, appeared before the commissioners to ask for support in the group's efforts to halt condemnation proceedings concerning the Hill property, which includes the Hill house.

The house was built on the corner of Illinois Avenue and F Street early in the 1900s by rancher George F. Cowden.

The school district is planning to use that property and other property between Illinois and Tennessee avenues — from the current Midland High School campus to F Street — to build athletic practice fields and parking lots for MHS students.

McCarty, who said he opposes the eminent domain proceedings, told commissioners "there doesn't appear to be much rhyme or reason" to the school district's condemnation plans for the Hill property.

McCarty said the PRIDE group had collected 3,162 signatures on petitions opposing condemnation proceedings. He said he's certain 2,000 of those signatures are from registered voters.

Ahders told McCarty the court cannot take a prejudicial position in a case that may eventually end up in court hearings. He suggested McCarty present his case before the school board.

PRIDE representatives were scheduled to appear before the MISD board at its regular meeting at 1:30 p.m. today. The board was to meet in the board room of the school district office at 702 N. N St.

"I don't think this commissioners' court can take a stand with one of our judges (County Court-at-Law Judge Willie DuBose) going to hear the case

Lack of quorum prevents change in MCAA bylaws

Plagued with an inability to get a quorum for its recent meetings, the Midland Community Action Agency board of directors had hoped Monday night to amend the organization's bylaws and make it easier to get that magic number for a quorum.

The bylaws change was on the agenda for Monday's meeting. But the board couldn't enact the change because not enough directors were present for a quorum.

At the board's May 14 meeting, director Charlie Welch had proposed a change in the bylaws which would allow the board to conduct business with only half of the "active, qualified board members" present.

Under that change, it would take fewer members to constitute a quorum. Presently it takes 51 percent of the members of the board — or eight members — to constitute a quorum.

All board members reportedly were notified of the impending bylaws change, and an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the members present Monday would have been required to effect the change.

But only six of the board members showed up and no action could be taken. Those present waited half an hour after the meeting's scheduled 7:30 p.m. starting time before conceding that a quorum would not be present.

Four members have resigned from the board in recent weeks, cutting the number of active members to 11. According to Welch, four other board members were out of town Monday and another was ill.

Threatened filibuster may delay action on draft bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to renew peacetime draft registration is ready for Senate action but may be held back from debate because of threats of a filibuster that would tie up work on a major piece of defense legislation.

Draft registration was halted by President Ford under an executive order March 31, 1975, two years after the end of the draft.

New Mexico: Sunny days and clear nights with warming trend continuing through Wednesday. Highs 70s and 80s, mountains with 60s and 70s at lower elevations.

Truckers call nationwide strike

Independent truckers who complain of rising fuel costs and unfair regulations say Americans will be ready to listen when they start feeling the pinch of food shortages.

The protests so far — blockades at diesel pumps, slow-moving convoys or parked rigs to tie up traffic — have forced a few meat-packing plants in the West to shut down.

Parkhurst traveled to Washington Monday to call for the nationwide strike, but he would not predict how many rigs would be shut down.

Iran demonstration canceled

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Supporters of Ayatollah Kazem Shariatmadari, Iran's No. 2 Shiite Moslem leader, canceled a march Friday demanding freedom of the press and speech.

The demonstration was viewed as a major show of strength by liberal and religious groups concerned about erosion of civil rights under the regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Shiite Moslem leader of the revolution that ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in February.

Shariatmadari's office said the march had been canceled because "certain adventurous elements" were seeking to "misuse" it. The statement did not elaborate.

Shariatmadari has substantial support among Iran's 2 million ethnic Turks and elsewhere throughout the country. He has supported a proposal for an elected assembly to approve the new Islamic constitution Khomeini's aides are writing instead of the smaller "panel of experts" Khomeini has spoken of.

Popping aspirin not good idea

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine is taking aspirin every day and says it will keep him from getting a heart attack. Does he know what he's talking about? I'm tempted to do the same.—Mr. T.M.

Dear Mr. M.: There have been studies that suggest that aspirin may protect against myocardial infarction and strokes, but it is still far too early to recommend generally that everyone start popping pills. Studies are continuing and eventually should shed more light on the subject.

In one of the latest, Drs. Ruth Pick, Juan Chediak and Gerald Glick of the Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center investigated the effects of aspirin on male monkeys. They conclude that aspirin did seem to have a protective effect in preventing diet-induced coronary atherosclerosis. Even if these studies are validated, however, there may of course be reasons why some people should not take aspirin. While I cannot make a blanket recommendation against its use, I would

PBRPC to review projects

Community development projects in both Lamesa and Seminole will be reviewed for comment when the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission meets at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Conference Room at the Air Terminal Office Building.

The city of Lamesa is seeking $623,000 in federal funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development for street and utility improvements associated with construction of a shopping center and reconstruction of the Lamesa Cotton Oil Mill.

In addition, federal funds would be used to renovate a city-owned building for use as a day care center.

If approved, construction would begin this summer on the new projects.

Private investors are supplying $4 million to get two of the three projects under way.

About $3 million has been earmarked for the reconstruction of the Lamesa Cotton Oil Mill, which will create 10 permanent jobs and 50 construction jobs.

The city of Lamesa is asking the federal government to underwrite water, street and drainage improvements valued at $328,000 for the mill project.

The city is seeking $33,500 for street improvements associated with the construction of a new shopping center which, when finished, will employ 120 people.

Brady Development Company, a Lubbock firm, will build the project — valued at $1 million.

The remaining $200,000 in federal funds will finance renovation of a city building for use as a day care center.

The day care center, which will be owned by the city, will employ 40 people upon completion. Lamesa is applying for an Urban Development Action Grant. Under federal guidelines, UBAG money is awarded programs which encourage population growth, provide additional employment for low and moderate income groups, and upgrade the city's tax base.

The city of Seminole, meanwhile, is applying to the Farmer's Home Administration for $27,620 to develop a city master plan.

Under the program, the city will assess any local resources which are likely to influence growth, develop a plan based on public hearings and set goals to implement the plan.

Seminole was invited to apply for the funds after the preapplication was approved by the farmers' administration.

Also up for review by the planning commission is a request for $44,637 to underwrite the Permian Basin Criminal Justice System.

When the figure is adjusted for inflation, projected capital spending will rise only 4.5 percent in 1979.

WASHINGTON (AP) — American businesses plan to increase their outlays for new plants and equipment by nearly 13 percent this year, the Commerce Department reported.

The figure is adjusted for inflation, projected capital spending will rise only 4.5 percent in 1979.

The senator replies

Midlander E.V. Mitchell's stinging letter of criticism to U.S. Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., a copy of which was published in this space recently under the heading, "Pure Confiscation," has brought a kind letter of explanation from the senator from Tennessee.

Mitchell, in his letter, criticized Baker for some of his comments made on a television show against the oil industry and its possible nationalization. He also mentioned several other matters, but Baker's reply dealt only with the petroleum aspect and a free market.

A copy of Baker's letter to Mitchell has been received by The Reporter-Telegram. It reads as follows:

"Thank you for your recent letter. I appreciate your comments on my recent statement regarding the oil industry. I very much appreciate hearing your views, and perhaps I can amplify my own.

"My comments on ABC's 'Issues and Answers' have been widely misquoted, so perhaps you will permit me the liberty of quoting myself: 'I believe in free enterprise from the top of my head to the tip of my toes, and I believe in competition in the oil business. I want to see them remain free and competitive.'

"However, my remarks were indeed intended as a warning to the professional management of the oil companies that the tide of public opinion could run heavily against them if the public perceives that price gouging and excessive profits are developing, with those profits being dissipated on enterprises other than energy production.

"Anyone familiar with my long record supporting the deregulation of the oil industry knows that I would be the last one to call for 'nationalization' of the industry. The chaos of government attempts to legislate and regulate our way out of the continuing energy crisis is still very much with us. But there are those who are calling for a breakup of the oil companies even now, and the industry should be fully aware of that danger.

"I believe that the vast majority of Americans would opt for a free market in any industry. If the public sees a fair balance between prices and profits, with the profits being returned to increased energy production, then they will also support the oil industry, in the knowledge that the industry has the expertise and productive capacity to help us meet this national challenge."

And there you have the senator's views on the subject.

Distance no problem

The announcement that the Midland-based Permian Basin Landmen's Association will be the host for the silver anniversary meeting of the American Association of Petroleum Landmen, June 19-20, is not the least bit unusual.

But the fact that the convention, which is expected to attract more than 2,000 persons, will be held 300 miles distant, at El Paso, is somewhat strange.

It was necessary, of course, to schedule the meeting in a city with facilities capable of taking care of such a large crowd, and El Paso got the bid.

But even though the session will be held in the border city, it will be a Midland affair, with members of the Permian Basin Landmen's Association in charge of arrangements and staging. And there is no doubt the Basin landmen will be the perfect hosts in every regard.

It is a distinct honor for the Permian Basin group to have the opportunity of hosting this historic meeting, and its members have gone all-out in arranging a tremendous program, featuring some of the nation's most distinguished speakers. And, of course, the fellowship and entertainment highlights will be tops.

The Permian Basin Landmen's Association long has been one of the national association's strongest and most active units, and its members know their way around in this sort of thing. They are to be commended for their efforts in this regard.

Gene Wentworth of Midland, who is president of the Permian Basin chapter, will take office as first vice president of the American Association of Petroleum Landmen at the El Paso conference.

Co-chairmen of the El Paso convention are Sam Snoddy of Midland and Darrel Canfield of El Paso

CHARLEY REESE
Income redistribution is basis of welfare state

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — Marxism as an economic theory has been thoroughly discredited so that all that remains of the movement among the so-called intelligentsia are the lame brains who adopt it as a religion.

Yet it is interesting to note that many axioms of Marxism have come to be accepted in a society which claims to be and is accused by Marxists of being capitalistic.

Income redistribution is one such concept. It is the basis of the welfare state. In brief, it is the claim that it is morally acceptable to take from those who have and give to those who need — by force. Without the premise that need represents a valid claim on another person's paycheck, welfarism could not exist.

Please note the difference between income redistribution and charity. Charity is the voluntary sharing by one individual with another. Income redistribution is the compulsory taking from one individual to benefit another. Income transfer programs now make up a bigger portion of the federal budget than defense.

Morally, income redistribution cannot be defended. If it were done openly — for example, if a poor man walked into a store and took at gunpoint enough money to buy his children school lunches for a year — it would be called what in fact it is: robbery.

Yet, by giving the gun to the taxpayer and allowing legislators to choose the victims and the beneficiaries, robbery is transformed into humanitarianism.

Whenever you try to make this point, the phony humanitarians throw up need as a red herring. Of course, many people have legitimate needs. Still, need is irrelevant to the question: do you have the right to rob Pete to pay Paul. The answer is, "No." Pete has a right to keep what he earns or receives as a gift or else the whole concept of human rights has to be discarded, which is exactly what Marxists do.

Two other Marxist concepts used to justify this robbery are surplus wealth and collective ownership. What portion of your paycheck is surplus? As for the "nation's wealth," it hasn't got any. There is in reality no such creature known as "the nation;" there are only 220 million individuals and what wealth exists is owned by them, not collectively, but individually. Another argument, not Marxist, used to justify the welfare racket is the social trade-off ploy. They argue that if you do not provide education and vocational training, the poor will then go on welfare and it will cost you more in the long run. The fallacy of this argument is that you do not have to provide the welfare. You could and should opt to let the individual suffer the consequences of his own decisions and actions. No work, no eat.

Real hunger is a powerful motivator and I'm sure if all the income redistribution schemes were halted, we would see a dramatic increase in the labor force.

The spectre of mass starvation which liberals try to conjure up is simply phony. Legitimate humanitarians would still be free to contribute money to anyone for any purpose for any length of time. It would be interesting to see how many liberals would actually part with their own cash, especially if there were no photographer around to take their picture.

You want to know who has a vested interest in the welfare state? Sorry politicians who use it to buy votes. Socialists who use it to expand government power. The bureaucrats who make thousands giving away pennies. The labor unions who cannot maintain a labor monopoly if there are a lot of people clamoring for jobs.

The welfare state did not arise because of pressure from the bottom. It was imposed from top. The truly needy people are as much a victim of it as anyone else for it guarantees they will spend their lives living hand to mouth at the mercy of the bureaucrats.

One pernicious side effect of the welfare state is that it tends to weaken family and community bonds. People tend to say, "I gave at the tax collector's."

Income redistribution cannot be reformed. It must be opposed on moral grounds and abolished. Once this monstrosity of greed, waste and robbery is destroyed, then you can be sure that some legitimate means of helping the truly needy can be found.

After all, the welfare state is a recent invention, dating back only to the 1930s. The American people managed quite well for nearly 170 years without it. We will not last another 20 with it.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Ford's $10,000 Houston speech

BY JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Former President Gerald Ford received a $10,000 honorarium last June for a speech at a conference that was sponsored by a private South African trade organization. Ford's remarks were later used by pro-government forces as part of the South African government's massive propaganda campaign in support of its racially segregated apartheid policy, according to authoritative U.S. government sources.

In light of the resignation last week of South African President John Vorster for his part in the illegal government funding of the propaganda campaign, Ford's acceptance of a whopping fee is especially embarrassing to the man who is still titular head of the Republican Party.

No one is accusing Ford of dishonesty, hypocrisy or supporting racism. His speech was a reflection of his previously known views on South Africa. In the main, he suggested that the United States should not restrict business investments in South Africa or impose other economic sanctions because of apartheid.

But as one authoritative government source told our associate Gary Cohn, "Ford used incredibly bad political judgment."

Ford's speech was delivered to a conference in Houston sponsored by the South African Foreign Trade Organization, an ostensibly private group. But the conference was, according to a reliable source, "orchestrated" in part by South African Information Minister Cornelius Mulder. He has since resigned for his part in the alleged misuse of $60 million to $120 million in secret government funds to support apartheid policies.

The propaganda campaign included alleged payoffs to foreign politicians and journalists, secret funding of a pro-government newspaper in South Africa, and a reported attempt to purchase the Washington (D.C.) Star, presumably as a mouthpiece for South African policies in this country.

An official of the South African embassy here insisted that the Houston conference was run by a private group, but he admitted that the trade organization has received some funds from the South African government in the past.

"The conference and Ford's speech," a U.S. government source told us, "were part of the South African government's propaganda effort to use American business and political leaders for domestic political ends. The intent of the conference was to land someone like Ford. It was a tremendous political coup and an incredible blunder on Ford's part."

Ford's $10,000 speech was used by the South Africans to show that the Carter administration's anti-apartheid stand is not the only — or even the predominant — view in the United States.

"For an ex-president of the United States to go to this conference and accept a large honorarium, while knowing that improprieties in the (South African) Department of Information had been alleged, was naive to say the least," the source explained.

A source pointed out that Ford is not alone in his acceptance of largesse by supposedly private South African organizations. Several members of Congress and congressional aides have accepted junkets to South Africa, and in some instances the "private organizations turned out to be fronts for the South African government.

"It was inappropriate for Ford to take a large amount of cash under questionable circumstances," the government source said. "It could turn out that the private sponsors were really a front for the Department of Information."

Footnote: A spokesman for Ford acknowledged the indisputable facts of Ford's speech and the honorarium involved. But while admitting that the situation was known to be "fraught with peril," the spokesman insisted there was no wrongdoing, because Ford was paid by individual firms and conference participants, not a foreign government.

FORKED TONGUE? American Indians have grown accustomed — if not resigned — to the U.S. government's perfidy and indifference over the years. But it doesn't make the situation any more palatable, particularly when it involves bureaucratic paper-shuffling that affects the health and even survival of native Americans.

Nearly two years ago, Congress revised the food stamp program, ordering changes intended to help recipients on impoverished Indian reservations. The changes have not materialized and Indians have not gained the nutritional subsistence that Congress voted them.

The regulations haven't even been drawn up, much less put into practice. Meanwhile, on the neglected reservations, many Indians grow old prematurely because of malnutrition, or develop diabetes and other afflictions because of dietary deficiencies that could be forestalled with proper implementation of the food stamp program.

And many go hungry because they have no transportation to faraway food stamp centers. Some of the more desperately hungry trade part of their food stamp allotment in return for a ride to pick up the groceries.

Department of Agriculture officials insisted that these rules have a high priority; they will be published and implemented as soon as possible. After 200 years of broken promises, the Indians may be forgiven if they take the bureaucrats' assurances with a large grain of salt.

INSIDE REPORT:
Baker plays hardball in Mississippi appearance

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

CLEVELAND, Miss. — The rich planters and businessmen of the Mississippi delta were not at all prepared for Sen. Howard Baker's performance: playing Henry Cabot Lodge the elder to Jimmy Carter's Woodrow Wilson.

The difference and compromising stance that have been Baker's trademark as Senate Republican leader were dropped when he addressed the 44th annual meeting of the Delta Council, a mirror of the establishment. If President Carter rejects Sen. Baker's amendments to SALT II as President Wilson did, Sen. Lodge's to the Versailles treaty, said Baker, "I don't think there is a prayer" for Senate ratification.

Republican national committee-man Clarke Reed, who previously rated Baker only marginally higher than the new arms control treaty, rushed over to pump the Tennesseean's hand and praise his speech. "Hey, that fellow's playing hardball," one surprised listener commented to Republican Sen. Thad Cochran of Mississippi. Cochran himself admitted he was impressed.

Measured by his own standards, Howard was playing hardball. While lacking the charisma of Ronald Reagan and John Connally, he was slashing away at Carter with unaccustomed vigor here and the next day in Arkansas. If any of the president's men had listened, their lingering hope that eventually Baker will support SALT as he did the Panama Canal treaty would have expired.

Actually, audiences here and at a Republican fundraiser in Little Rock, Ark., were split between Connally backers (including Reed and Sen. Cochran) and Reaganites. A Baker-for-president supporter in the Deep South is as rare as an atheist in a foxhole. If Baker becomes the first resident of the old Confederacy to be nominated for president by the Republicans, it will be without many delegates from his home region.

Nevertheless, Baker's performance here and in Arkansas significantly improved his acceptability. While his nomination would depend not on the South but on the big northeastern and Great Lakes states that backed Gerald Ford in 1976, Baker cannot afford to look to Dixie like a southern-fried Nelson Rockefeller.

That this danger exists is less because of Baker's voting record (25 percent "liberal," 71 percent "conservative" in the last Congress) than the Panama Canal blot. Deny it though Baker and his aides do, his support for that treaty did him per-mament damage — especially in the South.

Consequently, his backers in Mississippi have been hard put to find enough people to fill a committee. When he appeared before the Delta Council, the prestigious audience was prepared to sit on its hands. He responded with an obligatory attack on Carter's energy policy, moving quickly to SALT II. Although Howard Baker could not bring himself to be 100 percent critical, he came close to 90 percent — surprising, considering his usual style.

He revealed that he informed Carter in the White House May 9, the day SALT II initialing was announced: "I don't want you and me to get in the same situation as Henry Cabot Lodge and Woodrow Wilson." That is, the president had better accept amendments — Baker's amendments — or forget about Senate ratification.

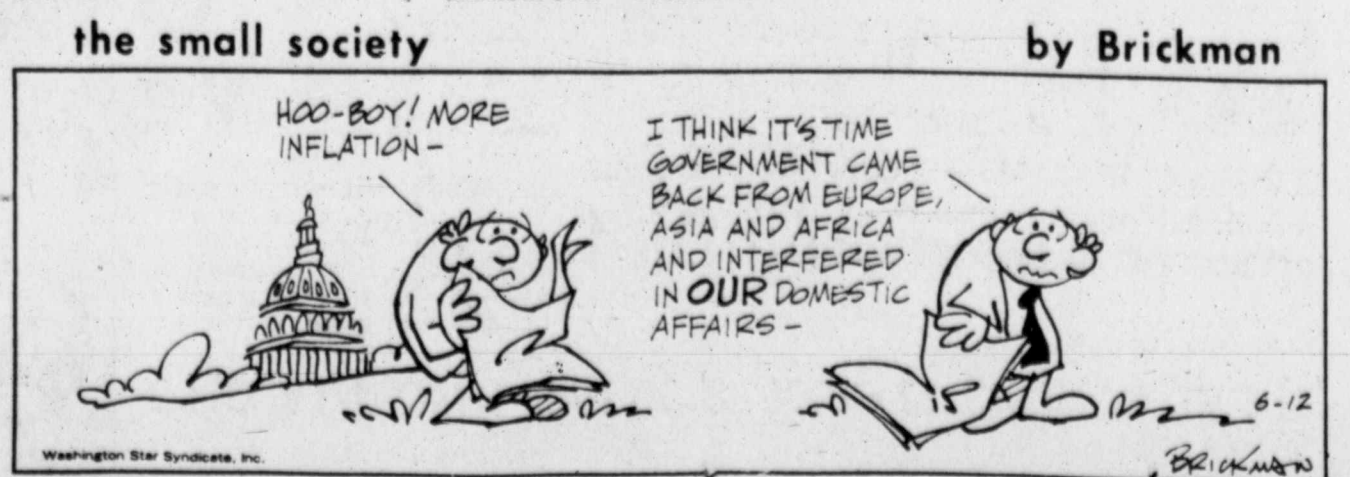

Baker refuses to define his "laundry list" of amendments, but his political speeches give two large hints: an amendment prohibiting concealment of missile test data or telemetry by the Russians; an amendment including the Soviet Backfire bomber as a strategic weapon.

He skillfully fits talk about "telemetry" and "Backfire" into a politically marketable warning of danger to U.S. security, and he emphasizes it heavily — more than either Reagan or Connally. Baker regards declining U.S. strength in comparison with the Soviet Union as a prime political issue. He also feels that as Republican floor leader while SALT is being debated, he is in a better stance to exploit that issue than the former governors of Texas and California.

What's more, what he said in Cleveland, Miss., can be repeated in Cleveland, Ohio. The Lodge-Wilson analogy was used not only here but in Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota and New Hampshire during his Memorial Day recess travels. He is considerably tougher on the oil industry than Reagan and Connally, but otherwise says nothing to annoy hard-shelled conservatives.

"The floodtide of conservatism is running," Baker said in Little Rock. That this should come from the man supposed to represent the Republican "liberal" wing shows how far the center of the Grand Old Party's spectrum has shifted rightward. Howard Baker's "hardball" will pass inspection in the Deep South, leaving him the formidable task of winning the big state delegates from the front-running Reagan.

Hijacker yells apologies to fellow passengers

MIAMI (AP) — A stocky, bearded, man yelled apologies to fellow passengers as Cuban police handcuffed him and took him from a Delta Airlines jet after he forced the pilot to fly to Cuba — the first successful U.S. to Cuba hijacking in 4 1/2 years.

"He said, 'I'm sorry. I have to get to Havana,'" Don Donner of Fort Lauderdale recalled when the plane landed in Miami early today after spending five hours at Jose Marti Airport in the Cuban capital.

None of the 194 passengers or 12 crew members on the New York to Fort Lauderdale flight was injured, a U.S. government spokesman said. Several even said they enjoyed the adventure.

The hijacker, described as a Cuban exile, duped the pilot into believing he had a bomb, said FBI special agent William Nettles. "As far as we know there was no bomb. It's my assumption that he did not have a weapon."

Nettles said Cuban authorities handcuffed the man, escorted him from the plane and said he would be put in prison until the two governments decide his fate.

The man's identity was not immediately released.

Nettles said it wasn't clear why the pilot believed the man had an explosive device. Passengers said the man carried a closed duffle bag.

"When we were in the terminal in Havana, a Cuban — he looked like an official — told me the hijacker was a defector from the Cuban air force who decided he wanted to return to his homeland. I don't know why I was told this," said Sam Kass of Boca Raton, Fla.

The captain and crew who dealt with the hijacker were hustled away by the FBI soon after the plane landed here, a Delta spokesman said. The captain later refused comment.

One passenger was arrested on charges of interfering with a member of the flight crew.

Different way to mark a wedding anniversary

MIAMI (AP) — "I never thought I'd take a trip to Havana on my wedding anniversary — it was very exciting," Maxine Donner chuckled after talking to FBI agents today about her unexpected side trip.

Mrs. Donner and her husband, Don, were among 194 passengers on a Delta Airlines jet hijacked to Cuba Monday from its New York-Fort Lauderdale route.

Activated carbon purifies water

The Home Spa water purifier with the activated carbon filter is solving the bad water problem for Midland families and families nationwide. The Home Spa removes chlorine, sulphates, rust, taste/odor and other pollutants plus reducing the hardness. You get mountain spring quality, delicious pure water for less than per gallon.

The following are quotations from leading magazines on the subject of water and activated carbon:

READER'S DIGEST: "At present, the most promising technique for dealing with chlorine and organic chemicals is the remarkable purifier, activated carbon."

NEWSWEEK: "One of the sure methods guaranteed to remove undesirable pollutants is to run the water through activated carbon."

AMERICAN HOME: "An activated carbon filter eliminates toxic organic pollutants and is excellent for eliminating non-toxic objectionable elements such as chlorine, hydrogen sulphide, and turbidity. No home should be without one."

BROADCAST OVER CBS NETWORK, DEC. 5, 1974: "Activated carbon takes complicated carcinogens out of the water and can remove all of the toxic chemicals we have discussed."

The Home Spa was invented by Leo Weiss, a nationally-known water engineer, who now manufactures the Spa in New York. Tony Rogers, head of Acme Marketing Association at 3103 E. 31st, Odessa, Tx. 79762 is the exclusive distributor for the states of Texas and New Mexico.

The Home Spa has been on the national market for about 2 years now but is new in the Permian Basin. Due to the performance of the activated carbon filter, sales are increasing all over the nation. The filter in the Home Spa is 2 and 3 times larger than in many units selling for $100 and more. Retail price of the Home Spa is only $19.95. The replacement filters are only $7.95 and will purify up to 500 gallons.

The unit is so simple a child can use it. Instead of chrome or stainless steel, the Spa is made of durable polyethylene and will last for many years. The lightness of the unit greatly reduces shipping charges, giving consumers a big savings in cost.

All Home Spas are sold with a 100% money back guarantee if purchasers are not completely satisfied. Out-of-town mail orders will be shipped postpaid the same day as received or call Tony at 367-6977 for free home delivery.

Crane County's flyers feel airport leaves much desired

CRANE — Charles Passur, like other "winging" men around here, has definite ideas on what makes a town more than just another mud hole or sand trap.

"You show me a good, prosperous town," he said, "and I'll show you a good airport."

Now, Crane is fairly prosperous for an oil-patch town, but certainly it's not turning into an industrial mecca.

Passur, who happens to be a pilot without an airplane for the time being, cited Andrews as an example of a prosperous town and the Andrews County Airport as an excellent example of a good airport. Like Crane, Andrews is a well-to-do oil town but is about three or four times the size of Crane.

Andrews has new hangars and three paved runways, including a 6,000-foot lighted strip. "We've got the same kind of money they have," he said. "We could have the same facilities they have."

But they don't.

THE PROBLEM with Crane's airport lies with its three paved landing strips: To varying degrees, they're cursed with gremlins called loose gravel, a few potholes, patches of grass and one strip is sided with mesquite shrubs and high-line poles.

The most "messed-up" strip is the 2,700-foot east-west runway.

"I won't land on that little one," said Eddie Galindo. "I had rather make a cross-wind landing than land on that little one."

And on the 3,200-foot north-south runway, "they need to cut some mesquites," he said. Running parallel to that strip are some highline poles which, so far, haven't clipped any wings off aircraft that might drift off center for one reason, such a stiff wind, or another.

The "main drag" is the 4,200-foot southeast-northwest runway, which needs the gravel and any rocks swept off and a new paving job; the foundation's okay, said businessman-pilot J.D. Richardson. The runway is lighted for night landings.

BUT THE PRIMARY villain is the east-west strip.

"It should be condemned," said Richardson, who flies a 1978 Cessna 210 Turbo Centurion. "Rocks are all over it. You just slip and slide. I won't land on it."

At least not any more, he won't. He did once.

"I almost lost a $100,000 airplane," Richardson said, when he dropped his single-engine Centurion onto that short strip.

Richardson, who runs several businesses, including oil-field well serving, trucking, an automobile-truck parts supply house and a cafe, flies a good deal in his work.

"Aw," said he, "that (flying) is all right if a feller likes it. I love to fly. It helps me in my business. It just saves us a bunch of running."

Richardson flies out of the Crane County Airport; he has little choice as long as Crane is his home and work base.

In addition to his near crack-up on the east-west strip, his airplane's three-bladed propeller has many nicks inflicted by flying gravel, and his paint job is chipped. But he said the mesquite-lined north-south landing strip "is a pretty good runway."

"YOU CAN GO out there (to the airport) and see some new airplanes and see what kind of shape the airport is in," said Ray Littlefield, another airport supporter.

"My prop was eat up all the time," said pilot Vernon Black.

"I'll tell you what," said flier Buster Bowman, "that airport needs something done to it."

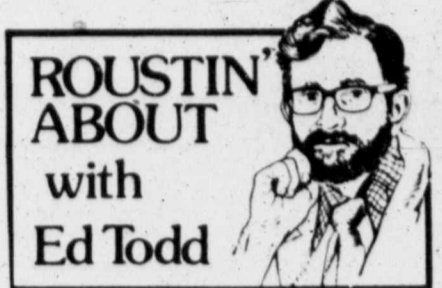

Admittedly, upgraded runways and the apron would be of benefit to Richardson and others who hangar or tie-down their general aviation aircraft out here. A good, safe airport would benefit townspeople whether or not they fly, said Richardson. The asset would be economical — more business all around.

Bucky Scarborough agrees to that.

"We need our airport fixed up," he said. "I think a lot of people around here don't realize what an asset a good airport would be. A lot of people familiar with this place won't come in here, because it damages their propeller."

"They don't want to land when it does harm to their airplane. You can't blame them for that."

Now, Scarborough doesn't have an airplane to fly since he got rid of his Piper Tri-Pacer in a "weak moment." Some "ol' boy who had more money than he knew what to do with" bought the craft from him. But he'd like to have the flying machine back or another one in its place.

THE CONDITION of the runways discourages repeat customers, especially out-of-town visitors and businessmen.

"You get a lot of the one-shot deals," Scarborough said. "A lot of guys will land here one time. And the next time, they'll land in Odessa and drive here."

J.T. Byrd is fairly new to the flying scene. And he allowed that the airport "could use" some fixing up.

"I don't want to say too much about it," he said, "because they (Crane County Commissioners) let us use it. It's the county airport."

Commissioner R.F. "Tip" Tipton, whose Precinct 3 takes in the airport, is a pilot himself.

"I do think it (the airport) needs fixing real bad."

However, he said the Commissioners' Court plans to wait until October or later to start upgrading the main runway and lengthening it by 1,000 feet to easily accommodate larger aircraft, such as executive jets and prop jobs. By October, the county expects to get matching funds from the Texas Aeronautics Commission and thus will be able to more than double what it could now spend on airport improvements. With matching funds, the county would have between $75,000 and $90,000 for upgrading the airport.

"I THINK it would be real dumb to spend" the county's money now and to forego the matching TAC funds, the commissioner said.

Though the runways could use repaving, Tipton said "there's no rocks out there."

Unlike other aviators, he said the airport "would benefit about 15 people," instead of the community as a whole.

"Everything is 'free' in Crane County," Tipton said, "and they (aviation buffs) want everything done for them."

The airport's runways were first hard-topped in the early 1970s, said Smokey Swift, a rancher who was a commissioner from 1950 until his retirement in 1976. Tipton succeeded him.

"The whole County Commissioners' Court has got to have credit for it (the paving). I think it's a great benefit," Swift said.

Johnny Griffin, an instructor-pilot who is president of the Crane Independent School District's board of trustees, favors a better airport for Crane.

"IT NEEDS some work done on it, especially the parking area.

"For our population (4,175 county), we've got a real high interest (in flying)," Griffin said. "It's growing all the time. It's just the best way to go."

Jim Fowler is another fellow who had "rather be flying." He's the airport manager and is a master parachutist. He, too, is concerned about the safety of the airport.

"I don't give a damn how many hours you've got or how long you've been flying, some day you're going to come in 'hot' and hit a rock the wrong way" and crash or do a ground loop, said Fowler. "Some other runways across the country are just as bad or worse, but two wrongs don't make a right."

J.D. Richardson of Crane figures it's about time to get the Crane County Airport fixed up for safer and more inviting take-offs and landings. (Staff Photo)

OF COURSE, more people don't fly than do. And some may be like Ray Bland, who doesn't fly. "I've got that basket truck out there, and, hell, that's too high for me." But he's pro-aviation in Crane County: "Oh, it's a good thing. It's something we do need...because a lot of oil field people fly and need a (safe) place to land."

Another non-flier is J.B. Rogers Sr.

"I don't want no part of it," he said. His son, J.B. Rogers Jr., however, flies and reportedly is interested in a better airport here. But his father takes a hands-off approach. "It makes no difference to me," said the senior Rogers. "I don't fly anything anyway."

Others may be like Passur, who was flying before he got his license in 1946. He started flying in a J3 Piper Cub and worked his way up to aerobatics in the Stearman biplane and other airworthy crafts and crates. "You name it, and I've had it."

"I don't have all that many hours," Passur said, "but I sure have been flying a long time."

And that's what the Crane aviators want: more flying time and safe take-offs and landings.

Candidate Connally fires up mayors with views on energy

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Republicans are shedding their wallflower image at the U.S. Conference of Mayors with the help of the party's plentiful presidential candidates.

John Connally, an announced GOP White House contender, shook the nation's mayors Monday with warnings of locked factories and idle farms and hints of rioting if the energy crisis is not solved.

And the emboldened Republican mayors' caucus followed with an attack blaming Democratic Washington for the cities' ills.

The GOP barrage continued today with House Republican Conference Chairman John Anderson of Illinois, also a declared presidential candidate, among the headliners at the mayors' annual convention.

"We are confronted by a situation which, if we do not respond to it boldly and with a sense of urgency, places at risk the future of democratic societies everywhere," Connally declared.

Connally said if the worldwide shortfall of energy is not dramatically reversed "our farms and factories, and most especially our cities, will suffer severely."

"Broad, deep and prolonged unemployment will become pervasive," Connally said. "The adequacy of food supplies will come into question. Most seriously of all, our basic political institutions and alliances will become vulnerable to radical and dangerous change."

Connally reminded the mayors that many of their cities had been on "the brink of disintegration and chaos" only a few years ago and warned them of "just how fragile the existing order is in many places and how vulnerable."

Teams representing The University of Texas at Austin, Texas Tech University, Texas A&M University and Midland College will compete in the tug-of-war contest. Competition starts at noon immediately behind the MC Student Center.

With students from many colleges and universities attending summer school at Midland College, some good-natured rivalries among the various schools have surfaced.

Teams are limited to eight persons — male, female or mixed — with no weight limits.

Sponsors hope to hold the event annually.

Use caution with mowers

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Be careful using that lawn mower. According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, about 62,000 persons were treated in hospital emergency rooms last year for injuries related to lawn mowers.

Most serious injuries are caused by:

— Stones, wire, cans and bottles run over by the lawn mower being propelled at high velocity and striking the operator or a bystander.

— Operating riding mowers in reverse, striking unseen bystanders.

— Riding mowers which may overturn when operated on steep slopes.

— Contact with a mower blade when cleaning plugged grass from the discharge chute.

— Adjusting riding or push mowers while the blade is still revolving.

Buy a mower that meets specific safety standards. These will have an Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI) certificate or seal.

Take time before mowing to rake up rocks, cans, branches or other debris on the lawn. Watch out for children's toys.

Turn off the mower and disconnect the spark plug or electric plug before unloading or adjusting the machine. Even a slight rotation of the blade could start the engine.

Don't refuel when the engine is hot. Don't smoke near gasoline.

DEAR ABBY

Her wedding ought to be a stick out

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our son is being married in September to a girl he's gone with for a long time. A big church wedding is planned. Yesterday he called and said, "Guess what? You're going to be a grandmother!" I asked, "When?" He said, "In November."

Then I said, "Don't you think you should move up the wedding date?" And he replied, "Oh, no, all the plans are made and we aren't changing anything." (The bride's parents are paying for the wedding.)

Abby, that's not all. The bride's sister is maid of honor and she's expecting in December and she's not married. My daughter is matron of honor and she's also due in December but, thank God, SHE'S married. Now I hear that one of the brides maids (not married) is expecting in October. I can just see that lineup of pregnant women at the altar!

I think they should have a small family wedding under the circumstances, don't you? I just can't invite my friends and neighbors to witness this. They will be bug-eyed! What should I do? — SORRY, NO NAME

DEAR SORRY: I agree. A small family wedding would seem more appropriate. But you weren't consulted — you were told, so invite only those you think will not be bug-eyed.

DEAR ABBY: A divorced woman signed NAMELESS asked if she should let her boyfriend sleep with her while her 15-year-old son was home. I'm glad you said no.

When I was 15 I caught my mother in bed with her boyfriend. I hated it. It hurt me to the core. My respect for my mother dropped so far it wouldn't even register on a scale.

It hurts me to see someone I loved being "used" by a man who couldn't control his urges until after marriage. — JOHN

DEAR JOHN: Why did you assume your mother was "used" by a man who couldn't control his urges? Maybe she used HIM because she couldn't control HER urges.

Or, possibly, nobody used anybody — it was an act of mutual consent.

DEAR ABBY: You wrote, "fly to others you know not of."

Abby, that is bad grammar. There is an old saying, "Never a preposition use to end a sentence with." — EDWIN IN TORRANCE

DEAR EDWIN: Sorry, but I just wouldn't have felt right tampering with Shakespeare's "Hamlet."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "UNCLE BERNIE" IN OKLAHOMA CITY: Don't look back. There's hardly a man alive who couldn't retire comfortably in his old age if he could sell his experience for what it cost

Egypt, Israel end round

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Egypt and Israel concluded their second round of talks on the Palestinian autonomy issue today, agreeing they would try to write an agenda next week for overcoming the "big gap" in their positions.

The discussions began with public acrimony Monday but the negotiators settled down and agreement was reached on several procedural matters, sources said. The talks touched only briefly on substance, Egyptian Foreign Affairs Minister Butros Ghali said.

Officials from Egypt, Israel and the United States, the third partner in the talks, will meet in Israel next week to draw up a list of "what we agree on, and on what we disagree" in the multitude of complicated issues to be discussed in the year-long talks, Ghali said.

The clerk, Janet Hite Gartin, told police two men entered the store about 3 a.m. and, while one held a knife to her throat, the other emptied two cash registers.

Police still were seeking the second man today.

Dominguez's bond was set at $25,000 by Peace Justice Charles Gee Jr.

Brezhnev calls SALT important

MOSCOW (AP) — President Leonid Brezhnev says he hopes his meeting with President Carter this weekend will be an "important stage" in the development of peaceful Soviet-American relations and the prevention of nuclear war.

Speaking at a Kremlin dinner Monday night in honor of Prime Minister Morarji Desai of India, the Soviet leader also said the SALT II agreement he and Carter will sign in Vienna "is a very important step to contain the arms race."

Brezhnev's speech was reported by Tass, the Soviet news agency.

Man pedals across Channel

CAP GRIS NEZ, France (AP) — Bryan Allen, a 26-year-old Californian, furiously pedaled a flying bicycle resembling a giant dragonfly 22 miles across the English Channel today to become the first person to make the flight by human power alone and win a prize of some $200,000. He was welcomed with red, white and blue flowers and champagne.

Allen, wearing shorts, crash helmet, cycling shoes and a life jacket, steered his 50-pound Gossamer Albatross through gusty winds to a beach landing at Cap Gris Nez two hours and 49 minutes after taking off from England, the International Aeronautical Federation said. It was the longest flight of its kind ever and Allen's speed ranged from six to 10 knots.

A posy of red, white and blue flowers with miniature French and American flags was thrust into his hands by Marie Agnieray, the American wife of a retired French merchant marine officer chosen for the honor because she was the only American resident of the little beach resort town. Champagne was quickly broken out.

Countries to take refugees

ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand (AP) — The United States, France and Australia agreed today to accept about 1,000 refugees from Cambodia for resettlement to prevent them from being sent home in a mass forced repatriation by Thai authorities.

About 40,000 Cambodians who fled the war in their homeland have been sent back against their will by the Thais over the past four days. Hartling said they "risk serious danger" on return to Cambodia.

Cubs win over Dodgers, 4-3, in 11th

BY TED BATTLES
R-T Sports Editor

Brian Rosinski, hitting in the .330 range, limbers up before the game. Rosinski delivered the game-winning, bases loaded hit in the 11th inning Monday to give Midland a 4-3 come-from behind win that put the Cubs in a virtual tie for first in the TL West. (Photo by Ted Battles)

Don't be alarmed, but Midland is sinking. It won't fall into the sea like California, it's too far from the Gulf Coast, but Midland is sinking. If you don't believe it, just go out to Cubs Stadium.

At 2,900 feet above sea level, the baseball carries and games are 12-10, 10-7 and 18-11, but the last two nights are proof that the Tall City is slowly sinking. Skeptics argue it's just the wind blowing in from center, but if it gets much worse, we'll be swimming in oil instead of drilling for it.

Still, not convinced. Well, Sunday Midland won 3-1, but without the whole-hearted cooperation of the opposition it would have wound up 0-0. Monday night the Cubs and Dodgers battled 11 innings, some 3 hours and 17 minutes, and managed only seven runs between them. That is not the kind of baseball West Texans know, but it was beautiful nevertheless, especially since the Cubs came out on top.

Outfielder Brian Rosinski delivered a one-out bases-loaded single to right to drive in Midland's second run of the inning. It squared the series for the Texas League West Division lead at 2-2, which leaves the Cubs just three percentage points behind the Dodgers going into tonight's windup game. That, however, is one percentage point better than they were going into the series. It's Reporter-Telegram Family Night, a coupon from the R-T and $3 admits the entire family, and Herman Segelke, 5-3, will be trying to shake a three-game slump for Midland against either Steve Shirley, 3-3, or Doug Harrison, 4-1.

The game will mark the Cubs' last home appearance in the first half race.

THE CUBS kept Midland fans hanging by their fingernails throughout the night. It was 2-0 San Antonio going into the last of the eighth and Mark Nipp, who was to go 10 1/3 innings, had the Cubs on his hip with a three-hitter, bidding to become the second pitcher to shut out the Cubs this season. Dan Rohn singled, stole second and took third on the overthrow, but Jared Martin fanned for the second out. Then Jesus Alfaro hung a 1-0 pitch over the left field fence to dry to tie it up and send the contest into overtime.

The Dodgers jumped in front 3-2 in the 11th off Mike Allen, who gave the Cubs three strong innings in relief of starter Henry Mack, when Gary Weiss doubled and scored on Mark Bradley's sacrifice fly. When Ed Santos singled, Darrell Turner came out of the bullpen to get the final out, and, as it turned out, the win.

Alfaro, who had three hits, ignited Midland's winning rally with a single up the middle and moved to second on Eric Grandy's bunt. Jim Tracy walked and Mickey Lashley finally relieved Nipp, 3-4, the big righthander from Monterey, Calif., who attended Oklahoma University.

Carlos Lezcano singled to center to tie it and after Mike Turgeon walked to load the bases, Rosinski hit a 1-2 on a line to right to win it.

The Dodgers touched Mack for a run in the third on singles by Dave Richards, Weiss, one of Henry's eight walks and a fly by Bradley. They added another in the sixth on a couple of walks and Richards' single, his second of three hits.

Mack, going for his fourth straight, was pitching superbly, but Nipp, now 1-3 against Midland, was even better.

He never gave the Cubs anything good to hit and really made only one mistake all night, the homer to Alfaro.

CUB CLOUTS—The Dodgers have made 25 errors in 10 games at Cubs Stadium. Alfaro's homer was his seventh of the season. Eric Grandy's 14-game hitting streak hit the dust on an 0-for-3 night. It looked, until Alfaro's homer, as though the difference between Sunday's game and Monday's would be Jim Del Vecchio's glove at third. He came up with a couple of fine plays to rob Martin in the first and Rohn in the fifth. However, the night's gem belonged to Midland third sacker Mike Turgeon, racing in to barehand Mike Zouras' tricky hopper in the eighth and in the same motion making the throw. Weiss has been tough on Midland pitching in the series, 9-for-18.

Fred Martin left his mark

For most of the Midland Cubs' seven-year lifetime, the tall, white-haired man with the proud and dignified posture was a familiar part of the Cubs Stadium scenery, both in uniform on the field before the game and later in the stands as he searched for flaws in the performance of his pitching proteges.

Monday Fred Martin, who had been pitching coach for the Chicago White Sox this season, died of cancer in a Windy City hospital at age 63, but most of his coaching career had been with the Cubs.

He was a member of Chicago's ill-fated Coaching Faculty back in the 1960s, that noble experiment in which head coaches were rotated monthly. It was abandoned after a few seasons for Leo Durocher and labeled a failure...but was it?

Every major league organization worth its salt uses a rotating coaching staff now for its minor league organizations, where before the Chicago experiment there had been none. And those close to the Cubs, say it wasn't so much Durocher's genius that made the Cubs a contender in the late 1960's as the groundwork laid by the Cubs' faculty of coaches, maligned though it was.

AFTER THE faculty, Martin managed the Cubs' Texas League club and later became the roving pitching coach, where he was most effective.

Martin was a product of the St. Louis Cardinals' farm system of the prewar era which churned out pitching prospects like Detroit produces autos. If you are old enough, perhaps you remember some...Alpha Brazle, John Beasley, Mort Cooper, Ernie White, Harry Brecheen, Howie Pollet, Max Lanier, those who made it with varying degrees of success, and then there were the Gornickis and Grodzickis who never realized their promise.

Fred was one of those who succumbed to the big money temptation of the Mexican League and the Pasqual brother promises of everlasting wealth. For anyone toiling for the latter day Simon Legree, Sam Breadon, it must have sounded like immancipation.

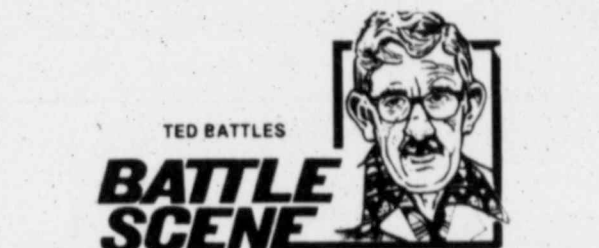

The jumpers were branded as renegades, but as it turned out they were just 25 years before their time and the court decision that made them possible.

Yet, Fred ran a tight ship as a coach when it came to rules and regulations. And maybe he was a little too outspoken for his own good, but then pitching coaches always were a somewhat unique breed. Johnny Sain used to work miracles with pitching staffs, but he was independent and for some reason never lasted long.

AS CHICAGO'S minor league pitching coach, Martin made believers of his young pitchers. Some took his advice as gospel and when someone higher up tried to make a change, the answer often was, "That's not the way Fred showed us."

It may have been one of the reasons, Martin was released by Chicago in 1975. Midland was in El Paso ready to clinch the pennant. One night Fred was there, the next night he was gone...released. The players were incensed and dedicated the clincher to Fred.

The kind of confidence pitchers had in Fred perhaps is best exemplified by Bruce Sutter, one of Martin's most successful reclamation projects. Fred taught Bruce the split-finger fastball, a pitch that has made Sutter one of the National League's premiere relief pitchers. Bruce had permission to call in Fred anytime he was having trouble, even though Fred was working for another organization. Following a front office shakeup, the one that brought in Bob Kennedy as GM, Martin was back in the organization until Don Kessinger, the longtime ex Chicago Cub, was named manager of the White Sox.

Who is qualified to say what kind of a pitching coach Martin might have been. So much depends on the raw material scouts uncover to work with, but in the years Midland has been in the Texas League as a farm club of Chicago, Scot Thompson is the only product on the regular Chicago roster, although many ex-Midland players, including pitchers, are scattered around the majors. The Chicago pitching staff is another matter. Sutter, Dennis Lamp, Mike Krukow, Donnie Moore, until recently Ray Burris and Rick Reuschel all called Martin "coach".

TCU hires promotions director

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — John L. Grace, a former standout baseball player for Texas Christian University, was named director of sports promotions for the university Monday. Grace, 29, a Wichita Falls native, was a four-year baseball letterman for TCU before graduating in 1972.

Presently a sales executive for the Xerox Corporation, Grace will be involved in season ticket sales, advertising and team promotion for the university, according to Athletic Director Frank Windegger.

CART ready for peace

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Championship Auto Racing Teams, offering as evidence of good faith to forego a conflicting race at Trenton, N.J., on June 24, said it was prepared today to make peace with the U.S. Auto Club.

Ray Smartis, general manager of the Ontario Motor Speedway in California, was the CART emissary in the latest move to end a six-month war that has divided championship racing into two openly hostile camps.

Smartis met with the CART board of directors in Trenton Sunday night, then flew to Indianapolis on Monday and met briefly with USAC President Dick King. He was to present a proposal to USAC today.

CART would not divulge details of the proposal because "the whole thing is in Smartis' hands...We don't want to do anything to jeopardize it," said CART spokesman Dan Luginbuhl, vice president of Penske Corp.

USAC spokesman Paul Reinhard said Monday night, however, "It's hard to believe it will be anything new, but maybe it is...maybe it will be something to settle this. You're never sure quite how to react. You don't like to get your hopes up too high for fear it's not going to work."

Raiders release Biletnikoff

OAKLAND (AP) — Fred Biletnikoff, the man who couldn't do anything but catch the ball wherever it was thrown, won't be catching passes for the Oakland Raiders anymore. As of Monday, Biletnikoff was a free agent, cut loose by the Raider team he starred for for 14 seasons despite being only slightly faster than his own linemen.

"Al Davis called me and told me I had cleared waivers and would become a free agent," Biletnikoff said from Dallas where he was at a summer football camp. "Al told me the Raiders were in the process of making some changes and had to make some decisions."

Martin, White Sox coach, dies

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago White Sox pitching coach Fred Martin is dead of cancer at 63. White Sox spokesman Don Unferth said Martin had been hospitalized off and on since spring training. He entered the hospital for the final time last week. Martin, who was from Scottsdale, Ariz., served as pitching coach for the Chicago Cubs from 1961-64 and was a minor league instructor of pitchers for the Cubs and Detroit Tigers for 14 years before signing with the White Sox after the 1978 season.

Evans' hit beats Royals

By The Associated Press
A double by Dwight Evans and a throwing error ended a pitching duel Monday night as the Boston Red Sox stopped the Kansas City Royals 4-0 in 10 innings.
Loser Steve Busby, 2-3, had given up just two hits in 91-3 innings he walked Carlton Fisk and Butch Hobson. Evans slammed reliever Marty Pattin's first pitch into the left field corner for a double, scoring Fisk.

Two-run single by Rick Bosetti and Dave Lemanczyk's six-hitger gave the Toronto Blue Jays a 2-0 victory over the Seattle Mariners while Detroit's Lou Whitaker singled twice and scored two runs to lead the Tigers over the Oakland A's 3-1.
In the National League, reliever Wayne Twitchell gave up one hit in five innings and Lee Mazzilli singled home the tie-breaking run as the New York Mets downed the Cincinnati Reds 3-2.
Rodney Scott's bases-load walk in the 11th inning forced in the winning run as the Montreal Expos defeated the Atlanta Braves 6-5 while Larry Bowa's RBI single snapped a 2-2 tie and triggered the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-2 victory over the Houston Astros.

Ex-Midland Cub hungry as Yank

By BRUCE LOWITT

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Davis has an appetite for life in the major leagues and is making the most of his chance to gobble up some stardom — and some big-league food, too.

Upon arriving in New York barely two weeks ago as Rich Gossage's replacement in the Yankees' bullpen, Davis won three games in his first four appearances.

And he has devoured countless chicken legs, hot dogs and the rest of the goodies set out in the locker room.

"I eat just as much as anybody else does. I'll have maybe eight or nine chicken legs and then a couple of hours later maybe eight or nine more," says Davis, a slender 6-foot-4, 205-pounder. "Heck, I've eaten 25, 26 at a sitting."

"The thing I got kidded about was when I was in Cleveland," George Steinbrenner, the millionaire owner of the Yankees, was throwing a party at an exclusive restaurant "and all we had to do was sign the check and eat all we want. So I had four or five shrimp cocktails for starters, then had a surf 'n' turf, and then a couple of hours later I had the whole thing over again."

Gourmet or glutton — whatever he is before and after games, the 23-year-old Texan seems to be the Yankees' meal ticket during them. It's a far cry from his first try at major league batters.

"Last year I only pitched in games where we were either up by 10 runs or down by 10, where we were either out of it or so far ahead they could take a chance on me." In four games he had no wins, no losses, no saves and a 13.50 ERA.

"NOW I'm throwing the same pitches (mostly sinkers) I did last year but I've got a lot better control of them and a lot more confidence in myself, knowing I can throw it where I want to. Plus being here rather than down in the minors can bring out the best in you."

"I'm just a guy that's pitched a few times and gotten a few wins."

He was a starter in the Chicago Cubs' organization (Midland in 1978) during 1976-78, but when he was traded during the '78 season in the deal that sent Ken Holtzman to the Cubs, West Haven asked him to do some relief, promising he'd be moved into the starting rotation quickly.

Strong 'windfall tax' bill planned

By JIM LUTHER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, in a decision that could ease the political pressure on Democrats, appears determined to write a stronger "windfall profits" tax on the oil industry than President Carter recommended.

As a starter, the panel agreed Monday that the tax should cost the oil companies at least 10 percent more than Carter proposed.

A tough tax making its way through Congress could cool some of the political heat being felt by Democrats who sense voters oppose Carter's decision to phase out federal price controls on domestic oil. Decontrol means more money for the oil industry; the tax would take away part of that windfall.

Several votes Monday indicated Carter may get the tax he wants — so long as he is willing to be tougher on the oil industry.

Awaiting action is an effort by Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, to substitute a far simpler tax than Carter proposed — and to make it far more costly to the oil industry. The Carter administration opposes this amendment on grounds it would deny oil companies the money they need to increase production.

As Congress sought answers to the nation's energy problems, there were these other developments Monday:

—Alfred Dougherty of the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Competition told a House Government Operations subcommittee the current gasoline shortage is traceable, in part, to a decision by the oil companies earlier this year to stockpile crude oil rather than refine it.

But, Dougherty added, he can't prove that allegation because the Energy Department tightly guards such information.

—In New York, an American Petroleum Institute spokesman who asked to remain anonymous said crude oil stocks fell to low levels last winter and the Energy Department asked oil companies to rebuild their inventories. The trade group spokesman added gasoline demand was unusually high in the first quarter of 1979.

—A group of 18 senators, led by Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, introduced a multibillion-dollar package of energy-production bills intended to eventually slash U.S. reliance on foreign oil.

The bills aim to accelerate development of oil shale, coal gas, gasohol and other promising new energy technologies by providing federal subsidies and cutting government red tape.

Meanwhile, the Ways and Means Committee: —Rejected Carter's tax package Monday. Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., tried to delay a vote until the committee could consider amendments, but Rep. Barber Conable of New York, the panel's senior Republican, persisted. Eleven of the panel's 12 Republicans, fearing an even tougher tax, joined with three Democrats to vote for Carter's plan. It failed, 21-14.

—Approved, 21-14, an amendment by Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., that would raise the taxes on oil from "marginal" properties, a new classification created by Carter's bill. The tax would depend on how deep oil is found.

Wildcat trio scheduled

A trio of wildcat operations have been announced in West Texas counties.

Hammon Oil & Refining Co. of Houston No. 1 Ida Sue Johnson will be dug as a 7,700-foot explorer in Kent County, 13 miles southwest of Claiborne.

It is 467 feet from north and east lines of section 31, block 5, H&GN survey and one and one-eighth miles east and slightly north of the only well in the Ida Sue (Strawn oil) pool. It is a southeast offset to a 7,691-foot dry hole and one location southwest of the field's depleted discovery well.

C&K Petroleum, Inc., Midland, spotted No. 1-5 Jordan as a 12,500-foot wildcat in Dawson County, 10 miles northwest of Patricia.

It is 1,500 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of labor 5, league 272, Loving County School Land survey. Ground elevation is 2,964 feet. There is no nearby production.

Threshold Development Co. of Fort Worth No. 1 Rex Wheeler is a new wildcat in Crosby County, 2.5 miles south of Robertson.

Slated for a 4,500-foot bottom, it is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 1046, block 1, H&OB survey and 7/8 mile northwest of the Ridge (Clear Fork) field and one mile northeast of Threshold No. 1 James Jr., recently staked 4,500-foot wildcat.

Martin gains test

RK Petroleum Corp. of Midland No. 2 Paisano Wolcott has been staked as a 12,000-foot wildcat in northwest Martin County, eight miles northwest of Tarzan.

It is 5/8 mile northwest of a well in the Spraberry Trend Area field and 6,395 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 251, Ward County School Land survey.

REEVES TEST

ARCO Oil & Gas Co. will attempt to extend the Scott (Cherry Canyon gas) field from Ward County into Reeves County.

The try will be made at the operator's No. 2-15 Worsham which is 10 miles east of Pecos and 8,000 feet from south and 1,250 feet from west lines of section 15, block 6, H&GN survey.

It is contracted to 6,400 feet and the site is one and one-eighth miles southeast of one of the field's four wells.

PECOS TEST

A. G. Kasper of Midland announced location for a 5,500-foot project in the one-well Pecos Valley (Montoya oil) pool of Pecos County, 10 miles southwest of Imperial.

It is No. 1-A A. C. Atkins and will be dug 988 feet from south-east and 2,104 feet from south-west lines of section 10, block 10, H&GN survey. It is adjacent to the depleted discovery well of the pool.

Gov. Clements warns of possible restrictions

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says government is trying to ease the gasoline shortage but warned Texas motorists — many of whom are planning summer vacations — "It won't be enough, I can guarantee you that."

Texas first will be asked to voluntarily reduce consumption — "We will start out on the basis of 'pretty please with sugar on it'" — then they may be restricted to getting gas every other day, Clements said Monday.

He told a news conference "topping off" has got to stop, that Texans may be limited to filling up their tanks when the cars are at least half empty.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

He also mentioned enlisting the aid of business to make carpooling "fashionable — develop friendships in a carpool, that sort of thing."

As a symbolic gesture, Clements said he might walk to work at the Capitol, only a couple of blocks from the governor's mansion. "It's not that far," he said.

Clements said his office would release a report on gasoline allocation this week.

He responded to reporters' questions after signing a bill extending the life of the State Bar of Texas, which would have gone out of existence under the Sunset process in September.

Clements said he signed the controversial bill into law for two reasons: Chief Justice Joe Greenhill of the Texas Supreme Court "doesn't want this hot potato on his plate," and Clements did not want to call a special legislative session before September to keep the bar alive.

The Legislature rejected the governor's proposals that the bar put its money in the state treasury and reduce the board of directors from 36 to nine, all appointed by the governor. Instead, the bill adds six non-lawyer members.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, would require the bar to hold public hearings on its budget and would settle in the bar's favor the dispute over legality of the bar's debt to build its $8 million headquarters here.

"This is less than a good positive decision," Clements said of the signing. "It's a two-negative decision."

Asked about gasoline allocation, Clements said, "We're trying to make do with what we've got ... We're starting out with a fixed amount of gas. We're just trying to pass around the misery, trying to make it equitable as possible, make it as fair as possible."

He indicated, however, major urban areas, such as Houston, would get extra gasoline.

Asked if he had seen any signs of voluntary efforts to reduce the use of gas, the governor replied, "No, I have not seen any of that."

Oil slick may head for coast of Texas

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — An oil slick, which may become the biggest spill in history, could hit the coasts of Texas and Louisiana next month, petroleum experts are warning.

A ruptured, burning Mexican offshore well is unleashing about 1.25 million gallons of oil a day into the Gulf of Mexico off the Yucatan Peninsula, the director of the Center for Short-Lived Phenomena said Monday.

The exploratory well blew out on June 3, and the uncontrolled gush of oil is escaping through a flaming torch of natural gas, said Richard Golob, whose organization provides information to scientists about natural and manmade changes in the environment and produces a newsletter on oil spills.

"If the oil continues to escape at the current rate and if the well is not capped before the estimated time of control, this will become the biggest spill in history," Golob said.

So far, a slick estimated at 10 miles wide and 100 miles long stretches westward away from the oil well, Golob said. But the slick has already reached offshore shrimping grounds and threatens other important shrimping grounds, he added.

Golob said the prevailing currents will eventually carry the oil along the Mexican coast toward Texas and Louisiana. It will probably take the oil 25 days to drift 700 miles to Texas, he said.

"By then it will have weathered considerably into tar balls," Golob said. However, the threat to American beaches would be worse if a hurricane speeded the oil flow, he said.

"May and June are the start of the hurricane season," Golob said. "This potential could bring to the U.S. coast a significant amount of oil."
