Serbian hijacker surrenders in Ireland

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) - A man identified as a Serbian nationalist bombmaker stepped out of a commandeered American Airlines Boeing 707 and surrendered to police today, ending a 22-hour hijacking drama that began on a New York-Chicago flight.

The 136 passengers on the Chicago flight had been released in Chicago. Then the hijacker flew back to New York and switched to the 707 for the

The 707 flew here carrying only the hijacker, his lawyer and a crew of three, authorities here said. No one was harmed.

Irish authorities said the hijacker handed over what appeared to be his detonators and they took explosives off the plane. He and the lawyer were taken to a police station.

The FBI said the hijacker, who had been free on bond in the United States, had been armed with dynamite. The FBI identified him as convicted bombmaker Nikola Kavaja, 45, of Paterson, N.J.

A crew of three were also aboard the plane, authorities in New York said. They were not harmed, Irish officials said.

"Everything is back to normal," a duty office spokesman said. Duty officer Barry Gore gave this account of the surrender:

"The tower contacted the hijacker as soon as the plane came to a stop and appealed to him to surrender. He said he would.

The two men came to the door of the plane, identified themselves to the police officers and soldiers waiting at the bottom of the ramp and walked

Kavaja, he said, went back into the plane and "surrendered what we understand to be the detonators for his explosives at the bottom of the Airport officials later said explosives were taken from the plane, but gave no details. The flight crew began refuelling soon after, Gore said. Scores of Irish police, including a special anti-terrorist unit, had surrounded the plane after it landed at 2:47 p.m. local time - 9:47 a.m. EDT.

Two executives from American Airlines had also flown in from London. In New York at about 4 a.m., the Serbian nationalist had switched from a smaller jetliner he had hijacked 16 hours earlier during a flight from New York to Chicago, the FBI said.

The FBI said Kavaja boarded the second plane at John F. Kennedy hijacker had, saying it could be just what he showed in his hand or dozens of sticks in a satchel believed rigged with a detonator. "The explosives are genuine to the best of our knowledge," Sharp said.

Agents could not explain how the explosives passed airport security in New York's LaGuardia Airport on Wednesday.

There were reports Kavaja wanted to refuel at Shannon and then fly to Johannesburg, South Africa, but a spokesman for air traffic control at the airport said "we haven't the slightest idea what he might want.

John Otto, the FBI agent in charge of negotiations in Chicago said bomb experts told him a device like the one Kavaja was believed to be carrying was sufficient to blow the plane to "smithereens."

An FBI sharpshooter armed with a high-powered rifle was hidden in the darkness beside the runway when Kavaja walked the 175 feet to change planes, but the marksman was unable to get off a shot, said FBI spokesman Quentin

Jurors to hold final meeting

By BILL MODISETT Staff Writer

A federal grand jury in Midland which almost a year ago heard testimony concerning the Jan. 22, 1978, death of Ector County Jail inmate Larry Lozano is scheduled to meet for the last time during its term Friday.

According to U.S. District Clerk

Bobbye Pieper, the Friday meeting of the grand jury will be the final regularly scheduled session before the jury's term ends July 9.

The grand jurors have served for 18 months, she said, which is a normal

It could not be confirmed this week whether Friday's grand jury session will include consideration of the controversial Lozano case. Mrs. Pieper said she did not know that case would be discussed. A secretary in the office of the U.S. attorney at El Paso said U.S. Atty. Jamie Boyd of San Antonio was referring all calls concerning the Midland federal grand jury to the office of John Wilson, public information officer for the U.S. Department of Justice in Washington,

Wilson said he could not answer some of the questions asked him earlier this week, but said the Lozano case is "still being actively reviewed session on Friday will include consideration of the Lozano case could not be obtained.

But the possibility remains the case could be on the agenda since it is the grand jury's final regularly scheduled meeting. However, a special meeting of the grand jury could be called prior to the July 9 expiration date of this term.

The grand jury initially heard testimony from numerous witnesses called in the Lozano case in the early part of July last year. No action was taken by the grand jury at that time, and the case has been under review by the Justice Department ever state have pushed for action, claiming Lozano was beaten to death by deputies of the Ector County Sheriff's Department.

But Ector County officials have staunchly denied that charge and an inquest jury in April 1978 in Ector County agreed, ruling Lozano's death to have been accidental.

Although another grand jury can consider evidence in the Lozano case, Boyd was unavailable this week to answer questions on how it would affect the case to have another grand jury consider it.

Following usual procedure, all testimony given by witnesses to one grand jury would have to be repeated for a new set of jurors. However, the transition possibly could be achieved through transcripts.

Boyd was in Washington, D.C., earlier this month, and his trip raised speculation among West Texans that he was discussing the Lozano case with Justice Department officials.

Veto of housing bill slows effort

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Staff Writer

The Housing Authority of the city of Midland has been slowed, but not stopped, by Gov. Bill Clements' veto last week of a housing bill which would have put a Single Family Mortgage Revenue Financing Program into action in Texas.

Midland's Housing Authority began pursuing the program in early 1979 and was awaiting approval of HB1733 before going ahead with its approach for home loans. Harry Clark, chairman of the local housing authority, said Wednesday that housing authority members are "very disappointed this alternative is not available to us.' The program is designed to provide money for home loans to middle-income families. The money would come through sale of revenue bonds by the Housing Authority. Loans would be administered by local savings and loan associations to applicants who met certain criteria.

A BILL IN the House Ways and Means Committee in Congress is aimed at establishing limits on the applicants' income and amount of mortgage on a house.

Referring to preliminary guidelines of that bill, Clark said the top limit would allow for aid to a family with a $25,000 income wanting to purchase a $45,000 home.

Midland's Housing Authority already had selected an underwriter the firm of Howard, Weil, LaBouisse and Friedrich's, which has a Midland The company is based in Louisiana structed to conduct a feasibility study, and Clark said at the Housing Authority's June session the study was still under way.

In vetoing the bill, Clements described the legislation as an amendment to the local Housing Authority

Because of this practice, "a question exists as to whether they could, under present law, issue bonds for the purpose of acquiring mortgage loans," Clements said.

Historically, the housing authorities' activities have been generally confined to financing, constructing and operating low-income, multi-family housing projects, Clements said in connection with his veto action.

Midland's Housing Authority operates Hillcrest Manor on Scharbauer Drive, a low-income, high-rise housing development for elderly and handicapped persons.

deals with mortgages for low and moderate income families.

To sign all three bills would be a mistake, Clements said.

'There would be a proliferation of bonds on market, making it more difficult for local government entities to sell bonds for traditional purposes," he predicted. "In addition, Congress is proposing new rules that will drastically curtail the sale of these bonds. No one knows what these new rules will be.

"Of all the programs now in effect, the one that has had the most adverse effect on the neighborhoods of the county is the placement of low-income housing by housing authorities. They have in almost every instance resulted in the building and financing of 'tomorrow's slums.

Clements continued by noting recent court decisions have mandated that where federal funds are involved, low-income housing must now be located in all areas of the commu-

Guardsman claims newsman shot by other soldier

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) - A national guard corporal accused of killing ABC television correspondent Bill Stewart claimed before a military tribunal today the American journalist was shot by another soldier who himself was killed in combat later Wednesday.

The corporal, Lorenzo Brenes, testified before a panel convened this morning to investigate the death of Stewart, shot in the head Wednesday as he lay face down at a guard roadblock in Managua, a presidential press card in his hand. Stewart's Nicaraguan interpreter also was slain.

A guard spokesman, Col. Aquiles Aranda Escobar, said earlier that a corporal killed Stewart, that the corporal was in custody and that he would be brought before the court of officers today. President Anastasio Somoza's press secretary, Max Kelly, confirmed later that the suspect was

The ABC and NBC networks were pulling all of their staff out of Nicaragua to protest Stewart's death. Only correspondent Charles Gomez remains behind for CBS.

In the fighting, President Anastasio Somoza's offensive to drive the Sandinista guerrillas from the slum barrios on the eastern side of the capital appeared to have bogged down as the drive went into its fourth day. Residents said guard patrols were taking heavy casualties, and reporters who visited the area saw several bullet-riddled military vehicles.

A guard spokesman said planes bombed the 14th of September Hospital in eastern Managua overnight. He confirmed there were casualties but did not identify the planes.

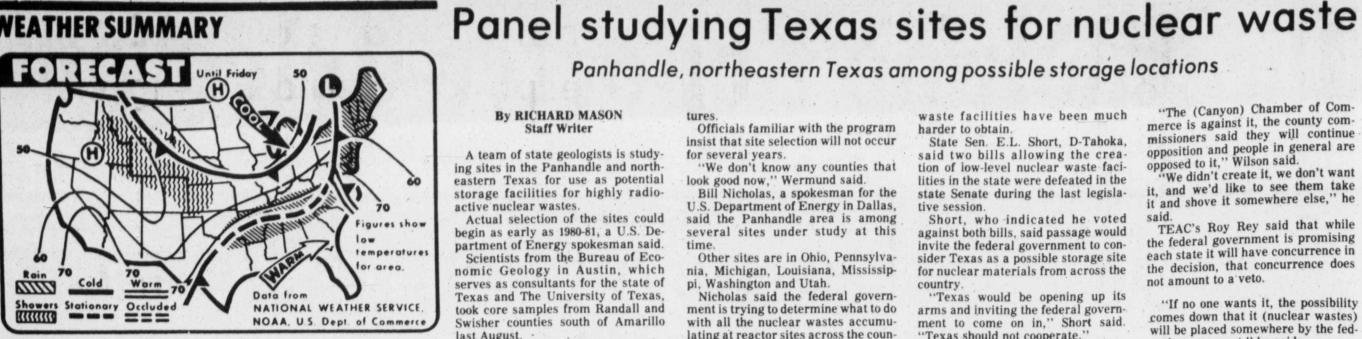

A Sandinista communique issued in Costa Rica and Mexico claimed guerrilla planes had bombed the Managua hilltop where Somoza's "Bunker" headquarters are situated, but journalists quartered at the nearby Intercontinental Hotel reported were unaware of such an attack. Stewart was trying to get through a government roadblock to the fighting Wednesday when a soldier ordered him to lie on the ground, kicked him once in the ribs and then killed him with a rifle shot to the head. Stewart's Nicaraguan interpreter, Juan Francisco Espinoza, also was killed, apparently by another soldier.

Stewart's camera crew, watching from a van parked near the roadblock, filmed the slaying, and the film was broadcast Wednesday night by all three U.S. networks. President Carter said the killing was "an act of barbarism that all civilized people condemn," and Somoza, expressing his "deep and sad condolences," said "the full weight of the law" would be brought to bear on those responsible.

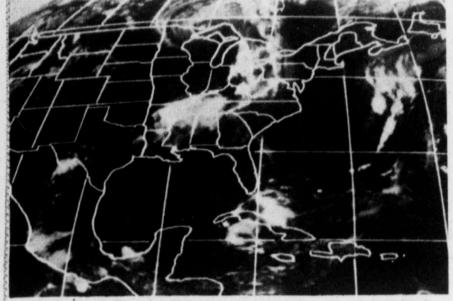

The 37-year-old correspondent, who covered the revolution in Iran in February, had been in Nicaragua for 10 days, ABC said. He was the first foreign correspondent killed in the 24-day-old war between the Sandinista rebels fighting to overthrow the 42-year-old Somoza family dictatorship and Somoza's 13,000-man national guard. Escobar, the guard's public information officer, said officers and noncoms in th unit at the roadblock also would be questioned. He took a copy of the camera crew's video tape for evidence.

Texas has four nuclear reactors currently under construction with the first scheduled to go on line in 1981, said Roy Rey, an energy fund administrator with the Texas Energy Advisory Council in Austin.

While the state of Texas officially supports the development of nuclear energy, endorsements for nuclear waste facilities have been much harder to obtain.

State Sen. E.L. Short, D-Tahoka, said two bills allowing the creation of low-level nuclear waste facilities in the state were defeated in the state Senate during the last legislative session.

Short, who indicated he voted against both bills, said passage would invite the federal government to consider Texas as a possible storage site for nuclear materials from across the

Hospital directors draw criticism from their own board of trustees

By SUSAN TOTH Staff Writer

Midland County Hospital District directors took it on the chin again Wednesday, this time from their own board of trustees.

Members of the board of directors were criticized recently by the family of a doctor seeking to set up practice. in Midland for the handling of his application for hospital privileges.

After meeting with the doctor's family, the directors were criticized for holding what apparently was an illegal meeting under the state open meetings act.

Wednesday they were taken to task again by members of the board of trustees because, it was asserted, they should have referred the whole matter to the trustees rather than trying to handle it themselves.

Trustees approved Dr. Dan Stuckey's application for privileges as requested by the medical staff, but noted that the directors, who met with Stuckey's parents after a letter to the editor appeared in The Midland Reporter-Telegram, should have handed the matter over to the trustees, who are charged with the day-to-day administration of the hospital. "I think the only reason we are questioning this matter now is because this is the first time we have had a report, and we don't know what has already been promised or said to Dr. Stuckey," trustee Rosalind Redfern Glenn said.

Trustee Martin Allday added "this is a good spot for us to get our house in order and accept our responsibility" to handle matters of this type.

Board of Directors President Ed Magruder, sitting quietly through another session of criticism on the situation, agreed. If a similar matter arises again, he promised, it will be referred to the trustees.

"And you can count on that," Magruder said.

Stuckey's application for hospital privileges was tangled in several administrative snags and an apparent conflict in the by-laws of the hospital, trustees were told. Because he could. not be given the type of privileges he requested, Stuckey decided to take his practice elsewhere.

But since the application had come with a favorable recommendation from the medical staff, it was approved by the trustees as a matter of

In other business, trustees were told the hospital is facing a cash flow problem, and that, based on recent figures, the facility's operating loss will be some $132,000 more than originally budgeted.

The loss is the result of several interlocking factors, finance committee chairman John Grimland said, primarily because the patient load is lower than anticipated.

To solve the problem, Grimland suggested the depreciation fund not be paid for the last four months of the fiscal year.

That would add some $120,000 to the cash on hand for operating budgets, he said. The other $12,000 can be made up in other economies, he suggested, because of the lower than anticipated patient loads.

The depreciation fund, which the hospital has paid at some $40,000 per month, already has accumulated about $150,000, Grimland said, which should be enough to cover any equipment to be bought before the fiscal year ends Sept. 30.

Snipers opened fire on at least 18 trucks in 12 states today during a spreading protest by independent truck drivers that is clogging the nation's food and fuel supply lines.

"We've had so many incidents during the night it's impossible to follow them all," said Massachusetts state trooper Dennis Remkus at the Grafton barracks. There were no reports of serious injuries.

Alabama Gov. Fob James encouraged drivers to arm themselves and shoot back if attacked. Illinois Gov. James Thompson said he is considering calling out the National Guard, as some states have done. "It's time to put the billy back in the billystick," James said. "I'd put a shotgun beside and and go ... and I'd kill anybody that tries to stop me." Dairy farmers dumped their milk and farmers watched their fruit and vegetables spoiling as truckers in several more states heeded another call for a shutdown at midnight. The president of the Food Marketing Institute, which represents about half the nation's grocery stores, said in a telegram to President Carter today the industry is "very concerned with maintaining the steady flow of food supplies from farm to table.'

"Food distributors urge the president to take the necessary steps to increase limits on truck length and weights to enable truckers to haul products more economically while conserving fuel," Robert Aders said in the telegram.

Carter was considering whether to lift an order assuring farmers all the diesel fuel they need to free additional supplies for the protesting truck oper-

Massachusetts state police said there were numerous reports of shots fired at trucks traveling Route 146 in Uxbridge and Sutton and others hit by rocks along Route 20 in Auburn.

Newsmen sign letter of protest

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) -More than 70 foreign correspondents covering Nicaragua's civil war signed a letter protesting ABC correspondent Bill Stewart's murder by a member of President Anastasio Somoza's national guard. They charged the government with an inflamatory campaign against reporters.

Stewart was shot and killed at a roadblock in Managua on Wednesday, one day after an editorial in the government newspaper Novedades said foreign journalists in Nicaragua were "part of the vast network of communist propaganda.

"This is a blatant lie," said the protest letter, which was read to Somoza Wednesday night by ABC field producer Ken Lucoff. "It foments hostility towards us and makes our work even more dangerous than it is already.

The editorial said: "No correspondent who has been coming to Nicaragua over the last two years has ever told the truth, either because of payoffs or because they form part of the vast network of communist propaganda that is deceiving the world in the same way it has done since 1939."

Lucoff read the letter at a news conference Wednesday night at which Somoza expressed his "most deep condolences" for the killing of Stewart and his Nicaraguan interpreter and promised that those responsible "will receive the full weight

After hearing the protest, Somoza assured the journalists the killings had been "an isolated incident, and I never wanted it to happen.

One reporter asked if he would 'give the journalists here assurances that your troops will not shoot at or harass them in the future. Somoza responded: "I can give you assurances I will give the order." He said the order would be obeyed, and he added: "You know that being a newspaperman is one of the most whether in peace or war.'

Stewart and Juan Francisco Espinoza were killed Wednesday when the American took his camera crew to a national guard roadblock to film interviews about the fighting between Somoza's troops and rebel guerrilof the American Association of Petroleum Landmen is being held in El Paso this week, hosted by the Midland-based Permian Basin Landmen's Association.

A great deal has been written and said about this somewhat strange hosting arrangement, which is all well and good with Berte Haigh, veteran Midland geologist. He points out, however, that the present meeting is not the first time that a Midland organization has sponsored and staged a convention held 300mites distant in the border city of Haigh said it was the most successful midyear session ever in the history of the AAPG. The South Texas Geological Society, the El Paso Chapter of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, and the New Mexico Geological Society assisted the West Texas group in the hosting duties.

The names of numerous other Midland and area residents prominent in geological circles of those days appear throughout the printed program as speakers, committee members and association officials.

Haigh said facts concerning the meeting of 41 years ago in no way detract from the present meeting of the American Association of Petroleum Landmen, but were presented merely as a matter of historical record.

The AAPG, incidentally, no longer holds big midyear meetings such as the one held in El Paso. According to Haigh, they now have been replaced by regional meetings.

Anyway, meetings of various oil and gas groups have been held at various points in West Texas and the Permian Basin Empire for a good many years now. And here's hoping that many, many more will be held in the future in Midland, El Paso or elsewhere. Petroleum industry personnel always are welcome under any circumstances in this great and friendly region of the Lone Star

Being assembled was a Lincoln Continental Town Coupe with vinyl roof and all the accessories that go along with a classy car. It was the last of the biggies - a "Detroit leviathan" which measures in excess of 19 feet, weighs almost two and one half tons, gets 12 miles to the gallon and costs in excess of $11,000.

Sure, there will be Lincoln Continentals turned out in future years, but they will be shortened and trimmed in weight to gain better mileage. Every effort will

The passing of the big, fine cars is a shame in a way. With it goes a way of life. But that's the way it is in America today.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

The 'unforeseen' was foreseen

WASHINGTON — The frightening "hydrogen bubble" that nearly blew the lid off the Three Mile Island power plant - and the nuclear power industry along with it - was explained away by red-faced federal officials as 'something that had not been foreseen when the reactor was designed. This is simply not true.

We have uncovered evidence from the government's own files which makes it clear that atomic safety experts were worried about the possibility of hydrogen gas problems at Three Mile Island Nuclear Station Unit No. 2 a decade ago, even before the first concrete was poured for the cooling towers foundation.

It is also clear from the nearcatastrophe last March that the response to the expressed fears of the experts was a bureaucratic solution - one that looked good on paper but proved wholly inadequate when the emergency struck.

Before a construction permit could be issued for the Three Mile Island plant, safety experts of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), predecessor to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), made a required evaluation of the design plans. Their report, dated 1969, was both candid and explicit.

"Hydrogen gas would be produced as a consequence of a loss-of-coolant accident." the report warned. "We are currently reviewing the problem of hydrogen production and several methods for control of the hydrogen concentration for all reactors, and have not yet established the methods which will be acceptable."

Having posed the problem — and noted that they didn't have an answer to it - the safety officials incredibly decided it was okay to let things slide. It would be years before the plant would be in operation. So the AEC, with the insouciant confidence of Mr. Micawber, figured that "something will turn up" to solve the hydrogen gas problem

The experts chose to pin their hopes for a solution on the utility companies which would ultimately operate the plant - Metropolitan Edison and Jersey Central Power and Light.

"We conclude," the experts' safety evaluation report said, "that the (utility companies') commitment to study other means of controlling the hydrogen provides reasonable assurance that an acceptable method of controlling the hydrogen concentration ... can be established prior to the operation of TMI 2.

Well, a "method" was eventually found, and it was a typical Washington solution: Guidelines were issued setting strict standards for nuclear reactors' emergency corecooling systems. And in September 1976, a new safety evaluation of Three Mile Island concluded that everything was fine because the plant's emergency system was with the consistent guidelines.

The only trouble was, the

Some hope for foreign language skills in America

WASHINGTON - One of the national shames is the public's illiteracy in foreign languages. It is a longstanding affliction, and as long as we Americans dominated the world, the problem had all the impact on the republic's conscience as a feather falling to earth.

But the time - sired by our virility in World War II - when Americans could get along on English alone is fading. The United States must now get in line after Europeans, Japanese, Koreans, Taiwanese and even Russians to win the world's business and affections. Businessmen and diplomats from these nations usually are multilingual. Our people are not. So we sometimes lose because of our

The facts are scandalous. The U.S. Foreign Service has no foreign language requirements for applicants. About half the foreign service officers dispatched overseas do not meet the language qualification for their positions. When our top officials visit China, they rely on Chinese, not

Americans, for interpreting. U.S. business firms usually count on foreign nationals to keep communications going in overseas offices. Businessmen from other nations simply do better than our people - in this increasingly competitive world market - when products are close in quality and price, because the American must use an interpreter. Many overseas customers resent the implicit colonialism in the refusal of Americans to learn the host nation's lan-

Time was when any first-rate high school required one foreign language for students planning to attend college. The requirement is now the exception. Indeed, only 10 percent of college-level institutions now require applicants to have taken a foreign language. Fewer colleges make it a must to pass a foreign language course for graduation. And the percentage of M.A.s and Ph.Ds proficient in a foreign language dwindles. Many educators, even on the university level, don't want to visit any subject regarded by youngsters as difficult on the poor student body. Distressed over this ignoramous situation, Rep. Paul Simon (D-III.) went to President Carter in 1977 and asked him to form a presidential commission on foreign language. Carter did, and the commission, given a six-month life, began its work

Like most presidential commissions, especially those peopled with academics, this one fussed and snorted. Schoolmen warned that while there is great need for more language study, federal intrusion on curriculum is a danger. Businessmen acknowledged that U.S. advantages in the world market were shrinking, but claimed that if their people needed mere language capability, free enterprise would see to it. There was considerable thumping for an extensive media campaign to waken the citizenry to the low state of language

Instead of forming task forces and knuckling down to work, most commissions hire consultants and think tanks to do the spadework. This commission, with the help of other groups, paid the Rand Corp. $69,000 to tell them that business was concerned about the problem but wasn't doing much about it and the University of Michigan's Research Center some $20,000 for a survey (accomplished by five-minute phone calls to 962 respondents) which reported:

-While 40 percent of Americans claim familiarity with a foreign language, only 24 percent said they could read, write or speak one (that figure is likely inflated).

-Only 30 percent surveyed said they studied a foreign language in school, but 45 percent said they would like to try (ah, hope springs eternal, but do people want to study?). -About 47 percent believe that learning a foreign language should be required of junior or senior high school students. Some 38 percent think there should be a foreign language requirement for admission to college and for graduation as well.

-A vast majority of Americans have no knowledge of foreign languages. Only 8 percent have studied a language long enough (four years or more) to be able to use it.

"This is not only bad for American business abroad," said Rep. Leon Panetta (D-Calif.), "but it's culturally bad for our country too. Panetta, who speaks Italian fluently and can handle Spanish, sponsored legislation requiring the State Department to set a language requirement for foreign service officers. Panetta, Simon (speaks a little German), Rep. Millicent Fenwick (R-N.J.) (fluent in three languages) and Sen. Mark Hatfield (R-Ore.) (who speaks no foreign language) - as members - favor using the Defense

Education Act to help fund and strengthen language departments in all our schools and colleges. This would be money well spent.

Right now, the commission, with the inevitable six-month extension, is drafting its report to the President. It has held public meetings in six cities. and was delighted with an enthusiastic turnout of 500 souls in San Francisco. One of the most encouraging developments is in Oregon where a "Global Competency" program - including achievement in foreign language - is required in public schools

Along the way, the 25 members sounded each other out on their own -language skills. Alas, U.S. Commissioner of Education Ernest L. Boyer, a member, has no foreign language proficiency, according to his office. Nor do a number of other commission

Japanese economic summit becoming an 'energy summit'

WASHINGTON (AP) conference President Carter will attend in Japan next week is being transformed by events into an "energy summit" where leaders of seven industrial nations will be under pressure, to find solutions to the latest world oil crisis.

Although energy problems have been on the agenda of four previous economic summit conferences, they will dominate the discussions at the June 28-29 Tokyo summit, officials say.

Administration officials say Carter will try to devise a joint energy eaders that will give Americans some hope of relief from long gasoline lines, a threatened heating oil shortage and a potential energy-induced economic recession.

Scientists position Skylab for less danger in earthward plunge

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) - Controllers at Johnson Space Center Wednesday placed the aging Skylab into a position they hope will give them better control when the 85-ton spacecraft falls back to Earth, probably sometime next month. Charles S. Harlan, chief of Skylab operations, said the orbiting laboratory responded to commands from the Skylab control center and all systems still functioning appeared to be in good shape during a pass over the Ascension Island tracking station.

Later passes were to be checked to verify the success of the maneuver.

Controllers placed Skylab in a sideways position, designed to stabilize the craft as it approaches the Earth's atmosphere.

Harlan said the craft would be monitored closely to observe whether it remains in position.

Scientists believe the sideways position will increase drag and give controllers a better opportunity to help steer Skylab and its debris from inhabited areas when it begins to disintegrate during its re-entry

The North American Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs has estimated that Skylab will fall sometime between July 7 and 25, with a 50 percent chance impact will occur by July 16.

Space officials have indicated NORAD may adjust its forecast to an earlier impact as a result of Wednesday's maneuver.

The sideways position has never been tried previously with a spacecraft, controllers said, but computer models indicate a disturbance-free condition would exist with the craft in that attitude.

Scientists said the craft would begin a tumbling motion and become completely uncontrollable if today's maneuver were not successful.

With less buffeting, controllers will be able to give additional commands as Skylab approaches re-entry.

Controllers will be able to predict at that point where debris will strike the earth. Should impact be indicated over an inhabited area, a command could be given to steer the craft to an ocean area where risks would be min-

Skylab now is orbiting Earth at an altitude of about 164 miles.

Wednesday's maneuver had been scheduled Monday but was postponed so the orders could be transmitted while Skylab's solar panels were at he optimum angle to the sun.

Billy Carter faces loss of Georgia home, business

ATLANTA (AP) - Billy Carter, whose financial troubles may cost him his south Georgia home, may also be on the way out as a partner in the family peanut business.

A foreclosure sale of Billy Carter's home in Marion County is scheduled July 3. Carter said last week his attorney is trying to negotiate a settlement with the mortgage holder.

Meanwhile, court records show that while the president's brother was being treated at a Navy hospital in Long Beach, Calif., for alcohol abuse, he signed an option to sell his 15 percent interest in the family peanut warehouse to Carter's Farms Inc.

Carter to propose gradual end to trucking regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is proposing a gradual end to federal regulations that protect the trucking industry from competition and cost consumers an estimated $5 billion a year.

The president planned to unveil his long-awaited trucking deregulation bill this afternoon in the White House rose garden.

Administration officials say the proposals will save consumers money, reduce inflated profits, conserve fuel and help blacks and other minorities get into the trucking busi-

Carter's proposals, a summary of which was obtained by The Associated Press, would end legalized pricefixing among truckers, phase out by 1984 all federal restrictions on the commodities they may carry and the routes they must follow, and allow rate cuts of up to 20 percent a year without governmental interference.

They also would make it far easier for truckers to offer new services and greatly increase the kinds of agricultural products that may be hauled without federal rate regulation.

The administration's Council on Wage and Price Stability estimates federal trucking regulations add about $5 billion a year to consumer prices, or nearly $100 a year for a family of four.

Administration officials point to large profits garnered by regulated truckers who own government-granted rights to carry specified commodities on specified routes. In 1978 the largest eight trucking companies had an average return on their equity of 29 percent, about double the rate for unregulated manufacturing firms.

Truckline owners have traditionally opposed deregulation and will mount a stiff challenge to the bill in Congress. Industry spokesmen say regulations have fostered "the best transportation system in the world" and avoided cutthroat competition that would enable strong firms to drive out competitors and raise prices to new highs.

However, a substantial portion of the nation's 100,000 independent owner-operators, some of whom are now involved in sometimes violent protests against many federal regulations, generally would benefit from the greater operating flexibility they would have under the Carter plan.

The main features of Carter's proposal:

-An immediate end to federal restrictions on "backhauls," the loads truckers seek to carry on return trips. The Interstate Commerce Commission estimates that more than 20 percent of all truck miles are driven empty because of regulatory restric-

-An end by Dec. 31, 1983, to all restrictions on routes and commodities. Presently, some freight lines must go hundreds of miles out of their way to serve communities not directly connected by highways specified in their operating permits. Restrictions on commodities, for example, allow one trucker to haul pineapples only if they are mixed with a load of bananas. Another may haul two-gallon paint cans but not five-gallon paint

-Speedier and easier entry for truckers applying to offer new service. Presently truckers must prove, in what amounts to mini-trials that can drag on for years, that the service they propose is "required" for the public's convenience and necessity.

-Repeal the special immunity from antitrust laws that allows regulated truckers to set rates collectively through industry "rate bureaus."

-Allow regulated truckers to raise or cut some rates, within limits, without approval of the ICC, which presently acts as an effective barrier against price-cutting.

-Expand the present "agricultural exemption' to allow unregulated hauling of many more food and farm products. Carter's proposal would allow unregulated hauling of livestock, food and edible products whether processed or not, livestock and poultry feed and a variety of other products produced by farmers or used by them

-Allow farmer-owned cooperatives with trucks, which are exempt from trucking regulations, to carry as much as half their total cargo for non-farmers. This is designed to allow more backhauls and lower co-op ship-

Census takers begin survey of people living near Three Mile Island plant

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) - Parttime census takers have begun a tedious survey that will let government health officials keep track of what happens to people living near Three Mile Island

The 145 census takers, mostly young men and women, got generally favorable reactions from local residents as the program began Wednes-

'It's been splendid. The reception has been excellent, just excellent,' said Ferd Tedesco, public health advisor from the national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta

The census is designed to compile statistical information on each of the 40,000 people living within five miles of the disabled nuclear plant.

It will help show, for example, if radiation that leaked from the plant this year results in an inordinate number of cancer victims 20 years from now. The census takers will be working from three to five weeks on the project, run by the state Health Department with technical assistance and up to $300,000 in funding from the federal government.

WASHINGTON (AP) The airline industry says studies show there are no pylon problems in several models of DC-10s that are even heavier than the DC-10 that crashed in Chicago May Industry officials are asking the Federal Aviation Administration to reverse its grounding of all DC-10s, "or, in the alternative, the DC-10-30 and 40 series.'

The plane that crashed in Chicago, killing 273 persons, was a DC-10-10 model. It was later found to have a crack in the pylon holding the engine to the wing. Similar cracks have since been found on other DC-10-10 models

He's fighting to keep his rig, but losing it would sure be a relief

By PETER A. KOVACS The Birmingham News

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) - For truck driver John Fountain, it was a typical trip, as typical as you can get on a job that can take you to Texas or Maryland at the drop of a hat.

Blockades and violence on the highways have not had much effect on Fountain, although he had to re-route one trip because of a blockade of about 100 protesting truckers on Interstate 59 in northeast Alabama.

He rolled into Hartsville, S.C., last week carrying a change of clothes, a razor, a toothbrush and about 44,000 pounds of tin plate for delivery to

After the delivery, the 33-year-old independent trucker calculated that he would make about $241 on the run from Birmingham to Hartsville. He began to search for freight to haul back. Without a "backhaul," Fountain estimated he would have lost $96.

HE ARRIVED AT Parker Steel Co. in Andrews, S.C. and waited to load. He passed the time completing federally required time logs and finishing other

Then he was called into the firm's office for a phone call.

'Now comes the bad news," Fountain said. After a 5-minute talk with a salesman in Toledo, Ohio, he hung up despondently.

"We don't have a load anymore," he said. He stormed out of the Palmer plant toward his blue 14-ton Peterbilt tractor-trailer.

"Nobody gives a damn. It don't make a bit of difference. The only one that can lose is you," he said, pulling his truck out onto Main Street.

AN INDEPENDENT trucker owns his own rig. He hauls for a trucking firm near his home and gets, at most, 75 percent of the freight charges for The remainder goes to the trucking firm, which provides dispatcher,

"Right now, I'm trying to survive until one of two things happens — things get better, so I can make a living, or I can sell it to someone else and find something else to bookkeeping, bill collecting, licensing and other services.

How much money an independent makes depends on the loads he hauls. Whatever goes wrong, he has to pay for it.

You can see it on the sullen, unshaven faces of the men who sit alone at truckstops. And you can hear it in their CB chatter.

The blockades are relatively new, Fountain said, but for independent truckers, things have actually been getting worse since he bought his first

"I RUN MORE miles and carry more freight. But there is less money left over to feed the family and meet the expenses," said Fountain, a father of three who lives on a 426-acre farm near Birmingham.

Fountain said since late 1976 and early 1977, "I've been getting about half of what I used to make. Now, I'm afraid it might go down to about 40 "Last year, I got $7,000 - a little more than $7,000, but less than $8,

The reason things are worse, he said, is that the cost of running a truck has gone sky high — and it isn't just because of diesel fuel prices. Diesel fuel, which has increased from about 40 cents to 80 cents a gallon since 1973, is only part of the problem.

LABOR CHARGES FOR repairs, Fountain said, have climbed from $12 to as much as $27 per hour over six years.

In 1974, he paid $1,000 for new tires. Early this year, they were $4,300. Replacement wheels were $700 in 1977. Two months ago, they were $1, Insurance, about $2,500 a year, is double what it was in 1973.

The price of the truck itself, Fountain said, has also gone through the roof. When he bought his first rig in 1973, it cost $26,000. His present truck, purchased in 1976, was $59,000. And a similar rig would be $75,000 today, he Fountain said in 1973 he got about 37 cents per hundred pounds for hauling steel from Birmingham to Cedartown, Ga. Now the rate is 45 cents. To Nashville, the rate has risen from about 57 cents to 70 cents.

AND THE RATES are uneven. Steel to Nashville, Tenn., pays more than steel to Dothan, Ala., even though Nashville is 25 miles closer.

For Fountain, the prospect of losing his truck seems to stir mixed emotions. He says he is fighting to keep it, but sometimes he claims that losing it would be a welcome relief.

'Right now, I'm trying to survive until one of two things happens -

Independent trucker John Fountain of Birmingham, Ala., says he can't afford to own his rig and "I can't afford to give it up." (AP Laserphoto)

Carter urged to free more fuel for independent truckers

WASHINGTON (AP) raise the 55-mile-an-hour and length limits were - President Carter is being urged by his staff to suspend a federal rule that guarantees farmers first crack at diesel fuel.

The staff recommendation was made as independent truckers pressed the administration to act to free more fuel for their rigs.

Bill Johnston, a member of the White House domestic policy staff, told the South Carolina congressional delegation Wednesday that he expected the president to end the special farmers' allotment.

The rule in question guarantees priority allocation of diesel fuel to farmers and truckers hauling agricultural products. The rule is due to expire July 31.

Roloff backers block closings

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - Evangelist Lester Roloff's followers - encouraged by a successful stand against the state but confused by conflicting reports about Texas Gov. Bill Clements' role in that stand - gathered here early today to continue their battle

Officials from the Texas Department of Human Resources, armed with a court order to close Roloff's youth homes, showed up Wednesday to carry out that preachers and parents, the officials left without the children they came to get.

Wednesday was to have been the climax to Roloff's six-year battle against the state licenses he's been told to get for his three youth homes. One of those homes, The Anchor Home for Boys in Zapata, Texas, was voluntarily closed by the superintendent late Tuesday without Roloff's approval.

'They'll have to break through the Bible and walk over it," Rev. Earl Little of Garland, Texas said as the faithful locked hands and lined up in front of Roloff's People's Church. Some 100 residents of the Rebekah Home for Girls and 100 from the Lighthouse Home for Boys were inside the church. Roloff officials said parents had taken some 30-40 girls from the Rebekah home.

Many of the Lighthouse residents are over 18 and not affected by the court order.

The DHR officials showed up early in the afternoon. Marlin Johnston, associate commissioner of the agency, was greeted with a warm "Howdy" from Roloff and escorted in a car past the human blockade into Roloff's private home.

The men talked behind closed doors for about 20 minutes. Johnston then was driven away, saying he planned to talk with Roloff later in the day. "We had a nice conversation," Johnston told re-

The preachers and parents retreated into the church to await the next effort to close the homes. Several times later in the day they scurried back into position and held huge flags in anticipation of a

"They're planning to close in. This is the kill," Roloff said at one point when DHR officials were expected back.

A 100-member DHR task force waited at a nearby agency office after traveling in buses and vans from Texas A&I University in nearby Kingsville where they are being housed, but the state never came

"We're barely alive tonight. You think of how close we came," Roloff told the evening prayer meeting. Ben Gallant, a local businessman and Roloff supporter, credited Clements with granting a temporary

'The governor called me back and said he had talked to Attorney General Mark White or his office and Col. (Wilson) Speir of the Texas Department of Public Safety. He assured me there would be order. Confronted by a human wall of Bible carrying no breaking through of people lines or breaking down of church doors," Gallant said after the crowd dispersed late Wednesday. During the prayer session later that night Little praised Clements and urged the capacity crowd of 2,000 to call the governor and congratulate him for having "as much courage as any govenor in the United States.

But immediately after Little recited a telephone number where the governor could be reached, a confused hush blanketed the audience as Roloff brought the latest news. "The newspaper said he retracted the statement," Roloff said in a subdued tone. 'We sure enough need to call him now. I wish the governor would come see us tomorrow night." Gallant stood up and headed to the front of the circular church. He asked the crowd to reserve judgment on Clements until the governor could be

Ector school heads clash with Mexican-Americans

ODESSA - Ector County school trustees and some 25 members of the Mexican-American community disagreed over the school's treatment of minority students during the school board's regular meeting

Mexican-American spokesmen suggested changes in district policy, which earlier this year was criticized by HEW investigators. School officials have claimed much of that criticism is not valid. While Raul Guerrero, director of Concerned Citi-

Clements already has drawn criticism from Babbitt and Texas Mexican-American leaders on his proposal for some sort of registration of Mexicans seeking work in the United States.

The suggestion sounds too much like the bracero program that operated in the 1950s and 1960s, Babbitt

'The bracero program itself is synonymous with all that has been wrong with in our relationship with Mexico," Babbitt said in February when Clements first proposed it.

Since then, Clements has avoided the word "bracero" and calls his proposal "an attempt to document the undocumented worker on both sides of the border."

Babbitt and Brown both say development of Mexico's economy will help solve the illegal immigration

Hijacking greeted with 'calm'

By MARC WILSON

CHICAGO (AP) - The objects looked like shampoo bottles, but some passengers on the hijacked Boeing 727 knew they might be explosives.

Yet, travelers aboard American Airlines Flight 293 said they remained calm and the crew professional while a stocky, middle-aged hijacker sat in the first class compartment of the plane, smoking eigarettes and handling the cylinders.

Jan Miller, 28, of Yukon, Okla., said the hijacker "...had two objects in his hands about 9 to 12 inches long. They looked like plastic shampoo bottles."

The FBI said later the "bottles" were probably sticks of dynamite, from among several the hijacker was believed carrying in a satchel with a

The jet carrying 136 persons was hijacked over Michigan during a flight from New York to Chicago at midday Wednesday. It landed at O'Hare International Airport, where its Serbian nationalist hijacker failed to secure the release of a jailed compatriot. Hours later, the plane returned to New York, where the hijacker commandeered a larger Boeing 707 and continued toward Ireland

Miller, the flight's other passengers and five flight attendants were allowed to walk off the Boeing 727 Wednesday evening, five hours after it landed in Chicago.

Authorites said the hijacker was a convicted bomber, Nikola Kavaja, who seeks independence from Yugoslavia for his Serbian homeland. Miller, among more than 30 Oklahoreturning from Europe, insisted that he saw two hijackers - an older man in the first class compartment and a younger man in the cockpit holding a bottle-like canister.

Later, authorities said they were convinced there was only one hijack-

Another passenger, Jill Swanson, of Schaumburg, Ill., traveling with her 4-year-old son, Joshua, said passengers were "joking and playing cards" throughout the ordeal. "They were just waiting it out," she said.

Mrs. Swanson said the hijacker told passengers that he didn't want to hurt anyone and that he had three daughters of his own.

Janet Blake, 16, of Yukon, Okla., said all she heard the hijacker say was, "I'm serious.

'He just sat up in the first class and they (other passengers) told me all he did was smoke éigarettes. Everybody on the plane was calm. The crew was excellent," she said.

Kenneth Kremer, of San Antonio, Texas, said "American (crew members) took over and did a fantastic

He said he and other passengers in the first class compartment knew the plane was being hijacked while it was still in the air.

However, Miller, a coach passenger, said he learned of the hijacking only after the plane touched down. 'When we first landed,'' Miller said, "we were told over a loudspeaker there was trouble with gate arrangements.

About an hour later, he said, "they made an announcement over the PA ma students on the flight who were (public address) that they were negotiating for control of the plane.'

'Then," he said, "a flight attendant came through telling people quietly that hijackers had taken the plane and were trying to negotiate for the release of a priest held in a Chicago

The priest, a Serbian nationalist convicted in a bombing attack along with the accused hijacker, refused to join Kavaja. But the FBI said the priest may have convinced Kavaja to release the passengers as hostages.

Airplane ticket theft ring smashed after investigation

NEW YORK (AP) — Authorities say they have smashed a $1 million-ayear ring that resold airplane tickets purchased with airline credit cards lost or stolen from business executives by high-priced call girls.

Twenty-one men were indicted Wednesday in the scheme, which officials said involved some $3.5 million worth of plane tickets bought and resold since 1975.

Officials said the case was the largest ever involving airline credit cards. The indictments capped a twoyear investigation by the New York City police, detectives of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, and the U.S. Postal Service. Authorities said some of the cards

Senators Long, Dole tout own welfare plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and its ranking Republican say their plan to revise the welfare system should give states more autonomy and cost less than one proposed by President Carter.

Sens. Russell Long, D-La., and Robert Dole, R-Kan., the chairman and the ranking Republican on the Finance Committee, outlined on Wednesday an approach that deviated sharply from the administration proposal. The plans are so fundamentally different that Long wouldn't predict when some type of changes in the system might be made.

"It's a little late in this session to be sure we could pass it this year if we had determined opposition," he said of his proposal.

It would cost $1.4 billion more than the $30 billion now being spent on welfare. The administration's ideas carry a projected cost of $5.7 billion more than current spending levels. The Long-Dole plan is based on the grants available to the states to run their own programs The senators contend this would eliminate much of the red-tape and bureaucracy that characterizes the present system and give the states;

principle of making federal block which should have a good idea of what's needed for their residents, a chance to run things. But the Carter administration is convinced that a national minimum benefit level is needed as well as a series of eligibility standards that would be applicable in all states. Long, who has opposed steadfastly a national minimum for years, contends that his suggestion would "reverse the trend toward complete federalization of welfare.

Specifically, the Long-Dole bill would replace the practice of supplying federal matching money for state expenses for Aid to Families with Dependent Children with one of block grants. Periodic adjustments would be made for changes in population, inflation and very high joblessness.

Some $1 billion would be distributed to the states as fiscal relief based on population. Seventeen states with the lowest average per capita income would receive $400 million to raise their basic AFDC benefit.

Thefts reported

A 6mm rifle, a telephone antenna and from 16 to 20 eight-track tapes were reported stolen from a car Wednesday, according to Midland Police Department reports.

Mike Holcombe, 3305 W. Dengar Ave., reported the theft. Also Wednesday, Raymond Silva, 307 N. Mineola St., told police that a .22-caliber pistol had been taken from that address.

Silva told police the gun had been in a holster hanging from a door in the back of the building.

Midland County Sheriff's Department deputies received a report of some missing livestock Wednesday.

Jeff Simpson, 3801 Cimmaron St., told deputies four lambs valued at more than $200 were missing.

Can you pass this test?

1. What is the most popular wood in America today?

Oak is America' favorite wood. It surpasses our all time lave for pine by 15%. We credit this selection to oak's hardness, ease of finishing, and over-all beauty and versatility in styling.

2. What is meant by "hardwood"?

"Hardwood" describes any wood that comes from a non cone-bearing tree. Hardwoods actually vary widely in degree of hardness. Some are quite soft, though most furniture made of hardwood has a blend of woods

3. Can two different woods be matched in color?

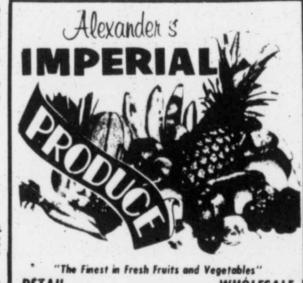

Yes most woods can be finished to match in color because of the zar controlled penetration stein. Bear in mind the "nature" of each wood, including its basic coloring. A beechwood chair, for example, can be beautiful

4. What kind of finish is best for the wood?

Wood, being a natural substance, is in constant force with its surroundings. So, an oil-based stain-sealer and varnish are best. All Zar products available at The Unpainted Furniture Store are manufactured to these Growing up during the tail end of the Great Depression may have had something to do with it; or perhaps being poor. I don't really remember mechanically deboning being poor; we lived well, red meat, a process ate well, but we had very little money. I guess we every ounce of meat, also were poor. By its insistence on labeling mechanically deboned meat (MDM) in such a way as to discourage anyone from buying it and so, in effect, not permitting all' meat to be stripped from bones, the U.S. Department of Agriculture consigns over a billion pounds of meat annually to the garbage can.

This makes me both furious and sad. We can ill afford that kind of waste in today's highcost-of-eating world.

The responsibility for bringing an end to the waste, by issuing reasonable regulations for the production and labeling of meat, lies with Ms. Carol Tucker Foreman. She is the Assistant Secretary of Food Consumer Services in the Department of Agriculture. In 1976, before Ms

Foreman was appointed to her present position, the USDA issued regulations for the use of MDM. They were sound regulations based on a long history of mechanically deboned poultry and fish and mechanically peeled and pitted fruits and vegetables. ### Central YMCA has classes for mothers, their children

Mothers, summer is a great time to get into shape while your children learn swimming and gymnastics, according to Pat Owens, associate executive director at Central YMCA.

Monday and Wednesday mornings and Tuesday and Thursday afternoons are programmed especially for mothers who want to participate in exercise classes while their preschoolers are learning aquatic and movement skills, said Owens. Women's Slimnastics meets from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. and Fitness Fantasia, a program of dance movements and floor exercises to music, meets from 10:30 to 11:15 a.m. For women who would like to swim their way to fitness, a special ladies fitness swim period is also scheduled from 10:30 to 11: 15 a.m

A new program called Women's Sports and Fitness has been initiated and meets from 3 to 4:15 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. The program format for this time period is flexible, and Deborah Christensen, Central Y's women's program director, is attempting to structure the class to meet the needs and interests of participants.

Pre-school swimming instruction for 3 to 6 year-olds and a Mom-Tot swim program for ages 6 months to 3 years is also scheduled Monday and Wednesday mornings. A gymnastic class stressing movement exploration, body awareness and elementary gymnastic skills for 3 to 6 year olds immediately follows the swim class. Nursery service also is available Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings.

Classes in swimming and gymnastics for pre-schoolers also are available on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons while the Women's Sports and Pre-school classes are available to YMCA family members at no charge; non-members may participate for a small fee. Women's Slimnastics is offered to Y-members only, but Fitness Fantasis may be taken by nonmembers for a fee.

For more information about Central's mother and pre-school programs, contact the Physical Department at 682-2551.

Due to increased demand for open recreational swim time at Central Y, 1: 15 to 2: 45 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays is being made available for recreational swim to all Y members. Children, ages 5 and under, must be accompanied by an adult. This schedule will be effective as of June 26.

Registrations for a scuba course starting Monday through Aug. 4 now are being taken at Central Y. Classes will be from 7:45 to 8:45 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays and 9 to 11 a.m. Saturdays. For more informtion interested persons may telephone 682-

Turks extend martial law

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) - A joint session of the Turkish Parliament voted 319-252 to extend martial law two months in 19 violence-plagued provinces in a stormy session enlivened by fist fights and name-call-

Right-wing members opposed the extension. Interior Minister Hasan Fehmi Gunes said there has been a "considerable drop" in terrorist activity in the last two months and the nuclei of some extremist cells have been crushed.

More than 1,500 persons have been killed in partisan strife between ultra-rightists and ultra-leftists in the past 18 months. Martial law was declared in 13 of the country's 67 provinces in December after 111 persons were killed in fighting in a southeastern town. Martial law was extended to six eastern provinces later because of a growing independence movement among the Kurdish tribes.

Ugandans demonstrate against new president

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) - Heavy machine-gun fire erupted in Kampala this morning as tens of thousands of Ugandans demonstrated, protesting that their new president was a standin for Milton Obote, the president Idi Amin ousted in 1971.

'We don't want Obote back." chanted the demonstrators, who marched through the streets all night despite troops firing in the air to try to send them home

Informed sources said at least seven persons were injured by gunfire, including two Britons who were driving through the city Wednesday Stores and offices closed, and the Tanzanian army rushed armored cars to street corners. Informed sources said the government banned all flights into the country for at least

Defense Minister Yoweri Museveni banned further demonstrations and said protesters would be dealt with by law. He said in a midmorning radio. broadcast that the public was being 'manipulated' but didn't say by whom.

The demontrators were brought out by rumors that Obote was returning after eight years of exile in Tanza-

More than 10,000 people assembled outside the one luxury hotel, where most government ministers are living, to demand the reinstatement of former Provisional President Yusufu Lule and the dissolution of the National Consultative Council which dismissed him.

The country's new president, Godfrey Binaisa, was appointed after Lule announced he was resigning.

Lule, who served just over two months after Tanzanian invaders and Ugandan exiles captured Kampala on April 11, was put in office by the Uganda National Liberation Fron, a coalition of about 25 exile factions.

Left-wing and pro-Obote members of the Front accused Lule of taking on dictatorial powers. The dispute was brought to a head when the president twice revised his cabinet this month without seeking the Front's approv-

The Front's Consultative Council appointed Binaisa, a pro-Western lawyer who has been living in exile in New York and London for the past five years.

Controversy over Obote's authoritarianism and socialist policies split Uganda along tribal, regional and ideological lines during his nine years as prime minister and president. The same divisions apparently helped to bring down Lule, a conservative and a member of the country's largest tribe, the Baganda

Support for Obote comes largely from his Langi tribe and the Acholis in the north. Most of Lule's cabinet were Bagandans. Binaisa is also a Bagandan, but acquaintances say his tribal ties are loose Binaisa resigned as attorney general when Obote instituted preventive detention in the late 1960s. He and his family moved to London in 1973 after Amin threatened his life. He moved to New York later and had been practicing law and lecturing about Uganda, associates said.

Also on Wednesday, Robert Astles, Amin's British-born chief adviser, pleaded innocent to armed robbery and auto theft charges.

Muzorewa supporters defect

babwe Rhodesia (AP) -Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa lost his majority in Parliament as eight members of his ruling party resigned from his party and set up one of their own. But white votes are expected to keep the black prime minister in office.

James Chikerema, first vice president of Muzorewa's United African National Council, led the defection Wednesday, accusing the prime minister of "nepotism tices.

The defections left Muzorewa's party with only 43 of the 100 seats in the House of Assembly, Parliament's lower

Amtrak cuts still slated

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration still plans sharp cuts in the Amtrak rail passenger network despite a sudden surge in business and a congressional compromise that might spare some trains, says Transportation Secretary Brock Adams.

"We cannot maintain the existing system because it wastes energy and an enormous amount of money," he said after agreeing Wednesday to review the rail cutback plan and to provide an extra $68.5 million to preserve some trains that have a growing number of riders.

'To preserve it as is would be like putting formaldehyde into a corpse," said the secretary, who has been under intense congressional pressure to revise the planned cuts.

Adams maintained, as he has for months, that on many routes the government could save money by giving Amtrak passengers free plane tickets rather than subsidizing their rail

"He hasn't changed his mind about that," said Transportation Department spokesman Bob Holland. "The subsidies on some of those little-used lines are awfully high. And that hasn't changed, because the trains with the most dramatic rise in ridership are the ones we already said we were going to keep.'

Holland said taxpayers pay $178 for every Amtrak passenger between Chicago and Seattle. A one-way plane ticket, he said, costs $170, cheaper on various economy plans. The subsidy for each train varies depending on use and distance. Between Washington and Atlanta on the Southern Crescent, it is $65 per passenger. A night tourist "super-saver" roundtrip airline ticket between the two cities costs $79. Holland said that if every Amtrak train were loaded on every run, the system would carry only eight-tenths of one percent of the nation's intercity travelers. Autos transport 85 percent, planes 12 percent and buses and other modes about two percent, he added. Adams also said Amtrak fares will rise in the near future, but added that the exact amounts are not yet set. The

The administration announced in January its intention to slash 11,800 of Amtrak's 27,500 miles of routes Oct. 1. a move it said would save $1.4 bil-

He said final decisions on which routes to retain will be made later by Amtrak's board on an objective, nonpolitical basis aimed at saving energy and money

"We are going to let people vote by buying tickets. There are not going to be any political trains," he said.

Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., chairman of a House transportation subcommittee, said the formula would preserve the Washington-Montreal "Montrealer" and perhaps the Chicago-Laredo, Texas, "InterAmerican" and a New York-Florida train.

Amtrak spokesman Joe Vranich said about half the $68.5 million already has been earmaked to keep four trains on their current track instead of being rerouted. They are the Chicago-San Francisco "Zephyr," the New York-Chicago "Broadway Limited" and "Lakeshore Limited," and the Chicago-Los Angeles "Southwest Limited.

Modern-day pirates set five seamen adrift

RAYMONDVILLE, Texas (AP) -Five seamen who wandered the sandy stretches of southeast Texas for three days, eating cactus until they were discovered by ranch hands, have told authorities a harrowing saga of piracy and survival on the high seas.

The men, all Americans, were members of the crew of the deserted, marijuana-laden Nooderkroon, which was found burning in the mouth of the Mississippi River last week, they told

Coast Guard officials said they believed the story, and sent the men to their homes Wednesday. The five asked not to be identified, saying their captors had threatened their families. As the captain told the On May 27, crewmen on the unladen seven men with guns and I didn't ask them any questions. I just did what they told me to do," he said.

The gunmen locked him in his quarters and his men in the officer' mess. Several days later, the five were blindfolded and transferred to the hold of a second ship.

"We couldn't see anything, even after we took the blindfolds off because they put us in the hold," he said. "That hold was very dark, for us

For three days, they trudged through the sandy stretches of the giant King Ranch, which covers four counties, living off sour grapes and cactus and drinking water from cattle troughs. Wednesday morning, they were picked up by ranch hands, who fed them and called ambulances to take the exhausted seamen to Willacy County Hospital.

"I understand it is a true story," said Lt. John Byrd of Coast Guard operations in New Orleans, "Everything they told us is consistent with the incident.

"At the time (the burning ship was found) we thought it was a routine marijuana shipment coming up from down south," Byrd said. "But the men coming on shore the way they did makes sense."

Robot new ad gimmick

By BILL BILLITER The Los Angeles Times

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. - The crowd was whooping it up at the Victoria Station restaurant when the stranger pushed open the doors and barreled in.

"It sure is cold outside," the stranger said. "I need a scotch."

The crowd at the bar at first looked amazed. Then they laughed and moved forward to inspect the dude, whose head glowed faintly, and whose chest contained a color television

'My name is Argon," the stranger told the crowd that surrounded him. From there on, it was just another work experience for Argon, the robot, but it apparently was a lot of fun for the crowd at the restaurant.

They played the TV games on the robot's chest screen, they shook his metallic hands, and they occasionally touched or tapped his plastic body and bubble-shaped head. Argon's promotional visit to the restaurant recently was illustrative of a new business that has sprung up in Southern California: The merchandising of robots as entertainment gimmicks for promotions, trade shows and fairs.

According to the two men who

Lost crew lands safely

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The missing crew of a marijuana ship that burned off the mouth of the Mississippi River last week washed ashore Wednesday in a rubber raft 900 miles west of here at Port Mansfield, Texas, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

The six men were identified only as five aliens and one American by Coast Guard Petty Officer Joe Gibson. He had no report of the condition of the men and no information on how they might have travelled so far in a rubber boat.

'We've sent a Coast Guard investigator from Brownsville (Texas), because we want to ask them a few things, too," he said.

He said the Coast Guard's Marine Safety Office at Port Mansfield reported the incident to headquarters

The six said they were the missing crew of the Panamanian-registered Nordruerkroon, which burned in the Gulf of Mexico Friday about 50 miles southeast of New Orleans.

When a Coast Guard boarding party was finally able to get aboard the ship, they found no crew, but bales of marijuana were bobbing about in theflooded hold.

launched the business a year ago, the use of robots for entertainment is the first phase of an anticipated technological spurt in the embryonic robot

"I think the real breakthroughs will come in the next five years, and these breakthroughs will probably result from people working on robots as a hobby," said Gene Beley of Arcadia, Calif. "Hobbyists will have time to experiment. And I think a market is building where robots can be developed for sale to hobbyists for about $8,000 to $10,000 each."

Argon, the first robot built by Beley and his partner, Ray Raymond of Newport Beach, cost about $50,000. They said their recently completed second model cost about $10,000. Beley said this shows the cost of robots can be reduced through production experience.

Beley and Raymond became friends and business partners because of a mutual interest in robots. "I read an article Gene wrote for a computer journal, and I called him," Raymond said.

Beley, 39, is a former newspaperman, and he said his interest in advanced technology, including robots, was spurred several years ago when he covered a speech by science fiction author Ray Bradbury. Beley said his interest in technology later led him to the emerging field of electronic games, and he subsequently formed his own firm, Android Amusement Corp., in Arcadia.

Raymond, 31, said he has always had an interest in building, designing and inventing things. He owns a firm in Newport Beach that builds and designs specialized equipment for restaurants. "I had some computer programming courses while I was at Cal Poly in Pomona, but the most important thing I learned in college was how to do research," Raymond said, in explaining how he evolved into a designer of robots.

The two men say they complement each other. Beley, who has a master's degree in journalism from the University of California, Los Angeles, says he handles sales and public relations for the robot. Raymond, who majored in technical subjects in college, is in charge of design and construction of the robots.

Raymond intensely studied the robots used in the movie "Star Wars," but he said he was mainly interested in analyzing their psychological impact. Argon, the robot Raymond ultimately designed, does not look like either R2D2 or C3PO, the famed robots of "Star Wars."

Moreover, Argon does not yet have all the abilities of the science fiction

Argon has a computer inside his plastic body, and he moves swiftly and noiselessly on specially built wheels. Beley said Argon is quickly accepted by crowds, and he said people of all ages enjoy talking to the

'We're in our first phase now," Beley said. "Robots now are being used for shows to bring in a cash flow. Later, we'll evolve to other uses for robots. I think the robot industry will have a geometric growth over the next five years.

Mitterand resigns

PARIS (AP) - Socialist Party leader Francois Mitterrand dramatically quit the new European Parliament Wednesday to protest an official recount that gave a Socialist seat to the ruling center-right

Mitterrand said his resignation reflected his "indignation with the dishonorable decision" taken by the National Census Commission and made public less than an hour earlier.

The commission, after recounting and reevaluating some seemingly invalid ballots, gave the seat in question to a candidate from President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's coalition.

The switch gave the majority 26 seats and cut the Socialist total from 22 to 21.

The French Communist Party also issued a statement condemning the decision of the census commission as "an unacceptable power play.

Mitterrand, head of France's most powerful political party and one of Europe's most prominent Socialists, appeared certain to create a major stir with his resignation from the European Parliament, directly elected for the first time just 10 days ago.

Chinese medicines use weird ingredients

By KENNETH L. WHITING

SINGAPORE (AP) - Donkey hide cooked to mucilage. Lizard minus the entrails. Human hair burned to charcoal. Fossil of rhinoceros and the three-toe horse.

Part of a recipe from the cookbook of a witch? Not at all. Each is an ingredient prized for some healing quality in traditional Chinese medi-

Donkey hide reduced to mucilage, known by the scientific term "equus asinus," can be used to treat coughs, nosebleeds and several other ail-

Lizard is said to ease impotence, diabetes and coughing. Incinerated human hair (crinis carbonisatus) treats excessive bleeding. Rhino fossil can be used medicinally for anxiety, insomnia, ulcers, diarrhea and other problems.

These and more than 700 other herbal, mineral and organic items are in a special display at the National Museum. Director Christopher Hooi said it enabled the public "to see, to know and to examine at close quarters what the substances are which they take when they choose Chinese herbal medicine as a means to cure their illness or to lighten the degree of their discomfort.

Traditional medicine thrives alongside its Western counterpart in modern Singapore, where 76 percent of the 2.3 million people are ethnic Chi-

Systematic Chinese medicine including herbology, acupuncture, massage and exercise therapy was well established by 400 B.C.

"Anything that has been going on for so long and accepted must be useful. But Chinese traditional medicine has developed away from science until it has become almost irreconcilable with the latter," said Westerntrained Dr. Gwee ah Leg.

More than 700 shops here dispense Chinese medicine, some of it in direct response to requests from customers. some on prescription written by the more than 500 graduates of the Chinese Physicians Training School.

A Chinese physician diagnoses by first examining symptoms to deter-mine whether the illness should be classed Yin or Yang. This philosophical concept dates to 5000 B.C. Yin originally meant cloudy and Yang sunny. They were believed to be the elements from which the universe evolved and responsible for the balance of life

If the patient responds strongly to the illness, it is said to be Yang, but if the response is weak, the affliction is Yin, one expert explains.

After the Yin-Yang split is determined, the doctor tries to pin down whether it was internally or externally induced, whether it is a hot or cold syndrome, if it is a chronic weakness or due to virus attack.

'Chinese medicine seeks to look after the entire constitution of the persons because a broth contains 20 to 30 ingredients which strengthen the health of the patient besides curing him," said Chinese physician Lee Sek

"On the other hand, Western medicine will cure the afflicted part or organ, but it may have side effects that disturb the proper functioning of other organs.

"We advocate a combination of both Chinese and Western medicine so as to have the best of both worlds, such as using scientific tools to help diagnosis to remedy the deficiencies of the Chinese medical approach," Lee said.

The National Museum exhibition includes sea shells, birds' and bees' nests, fungus, plaster of paris, the shed skin of a snake, processed human excreta, minerals such as fluorite and magnetite, tiger bones, a hedgehog hide, rhinoceros horn, deer antlers and stalactites.

Californian to try acupuncture treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) - A California congressman who seeks to end his. craving for cigars and demonstrate the value of Chinese medicine intends to undergo acupuncture treatment before a House subcommittee.

Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., chairman of the Subcommittee on Science, Research and Technology, says he will let a Chinese doctor jab needles into his ears and hands at a hearing Friday.

"If there's anything about me that acupuncture might cure, I guess smoking is it," Brown, 59, said in his raspy voice.

"I've smoked a pipe and cigars for 20-odd years. One acupuncture treatment probably won't stop it."

Brown, who calls himself a "skeptic of all medicine," will receive the centuries-old Chinese needle treatment at the hands of Dr. Grace Wong, a physician with the Washington Acupuncture Center.

The demonstration, headed by acupuncture center supervisor Dr. Ralph M. Coan, is an attempt to show one of many scientific methods the Chinese can trade for America's sophisticated satellite technology and tractor fac-

Coan said the treatment will involve sticking long and short needles into Brown's ears and hands.

Recipient of a $200 scholarship from the Midland County Medical Assistants is Randall R. Pharis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse R. Pharis. The Midland High School graduate plans to attend Abilene Christian University to study for a career as an optometrist.

Dispute in offing over ocean mining

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A bitter dispute over rights to metal-rich nuggets on the ocean floor threatens to sink the dream of a worldwide law of the sea - but an oceanographer says the standoff is rooted in exaggerated estimates of the minerals'

"Instead of talking about a resource which is being treated as though it is essentially infinite, we are talking about something less than 30 mining sites (in the world)," said G. Ross Heath, dean of Oregon State University's School of Oceanography.

The controversy involves manganese nodules, nuggets spread over much of the world's oceans which contain manganese, nickel, copper, and other commercially valuable metals. A number of American and European companies have invested in future plans to mine the nodules.

Underdeveloped countries, however, contend they deserve a share of profits from "the heritage of man-

The dispute between developed and developing countries has stalemated the five-year conference formed to develop a treaty governing the world's

The first and most widely publicized assessment of the nodules came in 1965, when a University of California-Santa Barbara scientist published an estimate of 1,600 billion tons in the North Pacific.

"Amazingly, this number kept reappearing for more than 10 years," Heath told an international ocean policy symposium at the UC-Santa Bar-But Heath said more recent research has shown the economically recoverable resource to be 2 billion tons or less, enough to support no more than 28 mining operations.

'A number of people are going to make a reasonable amount of money ... but the resource is not particularly enormous," he said.

El Monte favored in West Texas Swim Meet

When it comes to the Allison West Texas Invitational Swimming Meet, well, let's just say very little is left to chance.

Shucks, they've even figured out how many times (1,915) the competitors will be in the Alamo Park Pool during the course of the thirty-second annual event, which begins a three-day run

The only uncertainties involve who'll finish in what place.

IN OTHER WORDS, the ingredients are there for another swimming spectacular. Action Friday and Saturday will begin with preliminaries at 9 a.m. Finals are set for 6 p.m. Sunday's docket has prelims at 8 a.m. and finals at 6 p.m.

The "National AA Times Standard" meet is sponsored by Fred and Sharon Allison in cooperation with the City of Midland Swim Team, Midland Chamber of Commerce, Midland Jaycees and Jaycee-ettes and the Midland Parks and Recreation Department.

Sharon Seay, meet publicity director, said Wednesday that this year's event will be "just as good as last year's...up to the standards we are trying to fos-

And since those standards are high, the competition again should be extremely keen. "We're getting very good people," said COM Swim Team coach John Jordan, adding that an Dolphins squad have a chance of making their country's 1980 Olympic team.

BUT THE Dolphins won't be the only team under scrutiny. The defending champion DADS Club of Houston will be on hand as will the El Monte, Calif., Aquatic Club. According to Seay and Jordan, El Monte is the definite team favorite. If numbers mean anything, El Monte. will have 62 of the 310 entered swimmers.

Also in the fold and capable of big things are the COM Swim Team, NIKE of Rosemead, Calif., Hurricane Swim Club of Miami, Fla., Starlit Aquatic Club of Virginia, El Paso Aquatic Posse and Dallas Swim Club.

Jordan, who recently took the COM resigns from Doug In-gram, feels his 23 entrants will be competitive. Among the top Tall City participants will be Andrew Jordan, a freestyle and individual medley specialist in the boy's 11-12 division, Gretchen Koch in girl's 13-14, Carrie Mayes, who qualified for the junior nationals, in the girl's senior breaststroke and Andrea senior breaststroke, and Andrea Freeman, who's seeded in the girl's 13-14 1500 freestyle.

Heading the star-studded guest list is J. D. Tucker of the Dallas Swim Club. He's the national record holder for the 400 freestyle and will be in the boy's 13-14 division.

OTHER TOP-DRAWER entries include Judy Baker of the Dolphins, a girl's senior breaststroker of world repute; Chris Rives of DADS, a boy's 13-14 IM aficionado who's nationally touted; Mary Ann Brandiger of the Albuquerque Aquatic Club, winner of the National Junior Olympic 200 butterfly crown; and Susan Mead of The Woodlands Swim Team, a stalwart in the girl's 10-and-under division.

A couple of dandy match-ups appear in the offing. In the boy's 13-14, standout Tucker should be pushed by Odessa Aquatic Club's Bobby Breaux. And young Jordan is expected to mix-it-up with versatile Jeff Collison of the Ft. Worth Aquatic Club in the boy's 11-12.

Adding an international flavor will be Phil Van Niekerk, one of a group of South Africans that has been training briefly with the COM Swim Team. Van Niekerk will be in the boy's 11-12 butterfly.

ALSO FROM a foreign port are the Dolphins, a team that should be very strong in the boy's senior division. Mark Hahto, Mike Hoche, Mark Borelli, Cam Green and Greg Davis give the Canadian crew title possibilities in relays and individual events.

According to Seay and Jordan, the 13-14 and senior divisions appear to be as closely matched as ever.

There is no admission charge for the meet and the public is

Carlton halts Braves, 10-4

By The Associated Press

Philadelphia's Tim McCarver may know Steve Carlton better than anyone else. McCarver catches Carlton when the 34-year-old left-hander pitches for the Phillies, and acts as his spokesman when the hurler shuns interviews - which is often.

Wednesday night, after Carlton's four-hitter had helped Philadelphis beat the Atlanta Braves 10-4, McCarver offered this statistic: "That's about the sixth time Steve has stopped a mini-losing streak for McCarver knows his subject. Carlton's eighth victory in 15 decisions this season was, in fact, the sixth one following one or more Philadelphia

"We can't expect that to go on forever," added McCarver. "We've lacked consistency all year."

The catcher had a point there, too. In the 38 games since their six-game winning streak from May 4-9, the Phillies haven't won more than two in a row. And in the 17 games since they snapped a six-game losing streak on June 3, they haven't lost more than

Pete Rose has noticed. The first baseman, who had two of Philadelphia's 11 hits Wednesday night, said, The thing for us to do now is to go to Montreal and get to believing we can win - and win a few in a row."

The Phillies, who begin a weekend series with the National League's West Division-leading Expos on Friday, at least can take with them the solid performance against the Rose's hits moved him into eighth place on baseball's all-time hit list. His fifth-inning double off Braves reliever Adrian Devine and his sixth-inning homer off Joey McLaughlin gave Rose 3,252 lifetime hits - one more than Napoleon Lajoie; Willie Mays. holds seventh place with 3,283.

The veteran said passing Lajoie meant little, "because I've got my sights set on No.1 in the National League." That spot is held by Stan Musial, who collected 3,630 career

Rose is willing to wait to reach that plateau.

"I've just got to concern myself with getting hits and helping this team win," said Rose.

In the other NL games Wednesday, the Expos beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-4 in 11 innings, the Houston Astros trimmed the New York Mets 5-4, the Pittsburgh Pirates bested the San Francisco Giants 8-5, and the San Diego Padres defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 3-1. Rose's two-run homer, Carlton's two-run single and a two-run double by Greg Luzinski were enough to beat Atlanta. The Phillies got five runs in the fourth inning and four more in the

The Braves got an unearned run in the second when Barry Bonnell walked, took third on an errant pickoff throw by Carlton, and scored on a wild pitch. They added two in the sixth and another in the eighth on a home run by Bob Horner.

Jim Mason, a ranking officer of Montreal's "BUS" squad, slapped an 11th-inning double to drive in Tommy Hutton - another BUS member with the run that gave Montreal its victory over Cincinnati.

BUS stands for Broke, Underrated Superstars, and Hutton is the squad's captain. He hit a one-out double, then watched from second base as Jerry White, another club member was walked intentionally.

"I told (teammate) Larry Parrish that it was time to go home and that if he didn't want to win the game, I was going to try," said Mason, who batted .190 for the American League Texas Rangers last season.

"It's just great to help this ball club," said Mason, who was welcomed into the winning clubhouse with a path of blue bath towels that led to his locker.

Joe Sambito continued his remarkable relief pitching and Craig Reynolds had another game-winning hit against New York in the Astros' vic-

Sambito inherited a 3-0 count on Mets shortstop Frank Taveras when he came on in relief of J.R. Richard with none out in the eighth. He needed just three pitches to strike out Taveras and got the next two batters on

Then he watched Reynolds, who had the winning hit in Houston's 18-inning victory over New York Monday, blast a triple which scored Terry Puhl and snapped a 4-4 tie.

Sambito finished up, raised his record to 4-2, and continued his streak: he has not allowed an earned run in his last 27 innings of relief over 16 appearances dating back to May 1.

Pirates 8, Giants 5 Manny Sanguillen's eighth-inning sacrifice fly drove in Rennie Stennett, who had tripled, snapping a tie and carrying Pittsburgh to its fifth consecutive victory.

The Pirates added two ninth-inning

Padres 3, Cardinals 1 Gaylord Perry gave up 11 hits but just one run in recording his 274th career victory and taking over 17th place on the all-time win list.

San Diego scored three fourth-inning runs, two with the help of St. Louis miscues, to insure the tri-

Scott, Royals pound Oakland in 9-2 victory

By The Associated Press

Great Scott! How do you go from second base all the way home on a sacrifice fly?

Even George Scott doesn't know "I never did that before," said Scott after scoring from second on a sacrifice fly in Wednesday night's 9-2 Kansas City romp over the Oakland A's.

The newest of the Royals is not only hitting the ball at a good clip, but showed his teammates some flashy running ability as well in his latest

"I just kept on running," Scott said of the rare play in the seventh inning on Darrell Porter's sacrifice fly. "The third base coach (Chuck Hiller) waved me on and I just never stopped.'

Porter's fly ball was caught by Mike Heath in left, the outfielder making a nice running catch. Heath's momentum carried him nearly to the wall, as Scott took off from second.

"I didn't think he was going to run," said Heath, who appeared to relax a bit after the catch. But when he finally fired the ball back into the infield, the burly Scott was chugging around third and heading safely home. Scott also collected three singles, boosting his batting average as a Royal to .400, and scored three

In the other American League games, the Boston Red Sox whipped the Detroit Tigers 13-3; the Baltimore Orioles stopped the Cleveland Indians 5-3 in a rain-shortened 51/2-inning game; the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the Minnesota Twins 8-3; the Seattle Mariners turned back the Chicago White Sox 5-3: the California Angels nipped the Texas Rangers 5-4

Along with Scott's big night, George Brett had two triples as all nine Kansas City starters hit safely. The Royals collected 13 hits off Oakland starter Dave Hamilton and reliever Craig Minetto, in sending the A's to their ninth loss in 10 games.

Kansas City took a 2-0 lead in the second when Porter homered after Scott's first hit. The Royals broke it open the next inning with five runs on four consecutive hits, a walk, a sacrifice and two more hits. Brett's first triple started the rally

Red Sox 13, Tigers 3

Six different players hit home runs as Boston bombed Detroit behind right-hander Mike Torrez, Fred Lynn, Carl Yastrzemski, Bob Watson, Dwight Evans, Butch Hobson and Jim Dwyer each hit homers in Boston's single-game high of the season. The Red Sox also had five doubles in the assault on four Detroit pitchers.

Torrez settled down after giving up three runs in the first inning and finished with a seven-hitter in improving his record to 7-4.

'They played old-fashioned hard ball with us," said Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson, "and they just beat ur brains out.

Orioles 5, Indians 3

Gary Roenicke, Eddie Murray and Rick Dauer hit fourth-inning home runs to power Baltimore over Cleveland in their rain-shortened contest.

Roenicke hit his 13th homer of the season leading off the fourth against Cleveland starter Rick Waits. With one out, Murray hit his seventh homer, and after Lee May singled, Dauer came through with a two-run shot, his fifth of the season. The home run outburst erased a 3-0 Cleveland lead and gave Dennis Martinez his 10th straight victory after two de-

Brewers 8, Twins 3

Gorman Thomas sparked a fourrun Milwaukee third inning with an RBI double and hit a sacrifice fly in the sixth, while Sal Bando slapped three singles and scored twice to lead the Brewers over Minnesota.

Bando, who had been in what he said was the second worst slump in his 12 major league seasons, has raised his batting average from .221 to .243 with 13 hits in his last 37 times

"I hit .190 until the middle of August for Oakland in 1975, then hit 10 home runs the last month and a half,' Bando said. "But the difference in Oakland was others were picking up the team. Here we have two key guys this season.

EL PASO - The Midland Cubs are finding ways to stay on top in the Texas League West, but they are pushing things to the limit.

Wednesday's 9-7 verdict over El Paso was no different. Eric Grandy and Jim Tracy hit back-to-back homers in the ninth inning to chase home three runs and provided the margin of victory. The homer parade destroyed a five-run seventh for El Paso that had put the Diablos in a 7-6 lead with one frame to go.

Even though it took another heart thumper to get the win, Midland maintained its 1/2-game lead over San Antonio, a 5-4 winner over Amarillo Wednesday. The Cubs have four games left, all with El Paso here, in the first half race and can win the first half title if they can maintain that 1/2-game margin over San Anto-Darrell Turner, 3-2, picked up the win in a fine relief assignment. He came in to stop the five-run uprising in the El Paso eighth and then breezed through the ninth.

A three-run homer by Mark Brouhard off of Mike Allen did most of the damage, but Grandy's two-run blast and Tracy's followup homer saved the day in the ninth.

El Paso loaded the bases in the seventh off Cubs starter Bill Earley, but Perlman came in and didn't allow the Diablos to score.

Tracy had a big night for the Cubs. He went 4-for-4 at the plate, scored twice and drove in three runs. Grandy also drove home three runs. He had a sacrifice fly in addition to his ninth inning homer. Brian Rosinski also homered for the Cubs in the three-run

Jared Martin and Jesus Alfaro both came away with two hits. Alfaro's safties were both doubles and Martin had a double. One of Tracy's hits was also a double The only Cubs who failed to hit safely Wednesday were Dan Rohn and Bill Hayes.

needing last-inning relief help.

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) - Barring any surprises, the coveted Blue Water Bowl in the Annapolis-to-Newport race will go to America's Cup defender Ted Turner and his 61-foot sloop Tenacious.

Tenacious's victory was not confirmed officially by the race committee, but unless someone were to file a protest against Turner - and there was no indication of that - he was assured of victory

The trophy was to be officially awarded today to the vessel that had the best corrected time in the 473-mile race, according to race spokesman

William Stanard. The corrected time will be determined by feeding the amount of time the boat needed to complete the race, the vessel's size and other factors into a computer, Stanard said. Thirty-five of the 75 boats that started the race Saturday afternoon were in port Wednesday Tenacious crossed the finish line at Castle Hill Light in third place Tuesday at 8:21 a.m. The leading yachts, Sumner Long's Ondine and Robert W. McCullough's Inverness, are longer than Tenacious and have larger time runs and Bert Campaneris had two singles, scored a run and equalled a club record with three stolen bases in leading California over Texas.

California's Bobby Grich had his 20-game hitting streak snapped. Jon

Matlack walked him in the second inning, struck out Grich in the fourth and got him to ground out in the sixth. Facing reliever Sparkly Lyle in the eighth, Grich flied to right. Yankees 2-2, Blue Jays 1-3

Bucky Dent singled home the tying run in the fifth inning and scored on a wild pitch as New York edged Toronto in the opener of their double-header.

John Mayberry's 10th home run of the season with one out in the ninth inning gave the Blue Jays their victory in the nightcap.

Cleveland star now free agent

CLEVELAND (AP) - The Cleveland Browns say veteran defensive tackle Earl Edwards became a free agent after waivers on the 6-foot-7, 256-pounder expired Wednesday and he was not claimed by another National Football League club.

Edwards has played 10 seasons as a professional, two of them in Canada. He was previously with the San Francisco 49ers and came to the Browns prior to the opening of the 1976 training camp in a trade with the Buffalo Bills.

Palomino tries Duran

NEW YORK (AP) - Carlos Palomino and his pal Ryan O'Neal both open in New York Friday night. Palomino's appearance is a one-night stand before one of severest "critics" anywhere - Roberto Duran.

While O'Neal opens in a boxing comedy with Barbra Streisand, "The Main Event" in New York movie houses, Palomino will be appearing in a 10-round welterweight fight against Duran Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

Palomino-Duran will not be a comedy. And while, it is billed underneath Larry Holmes' World Boxing Council heavyweight title defense against Mike Weaver, many boxing people consider it the Main Event.

Palomino, an acting student at UCLA who has appeared in commercials and has had a few small roles on television, is the former WBC welterweight champion. That, especially the champion part, seems to make no

There won't be any playing around on Palomino's part. The Mexican-born resident of Huntington Beach, Calif., considers the fight as important as the one he had three years ago to the night he meets Duran. . On June 22, 1976, Palomino chal-

Six elected for Tennis Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) - Four former Wimbledon title winners have been elected to the International Tennis Hall of Fame, as well as two journalists who wrote about the sport.

Margaret Court, Jack Crawford and Frank Sedgman, all from Australia, will join the late Rafael Osuna of Mexico and writers Gladys Heldman of Houston and Al Laney of Spring Valley, N.Y., as Hall of Fame members. Their induction into the hall at Newport, R.I., will take place Saturday, July 14.

Court became the second woman in history to win the Grand Slam, with her singles victories at Wimbledon and the Australian, French and U.S. Open Championships in 1970. Her career included 66 Big Four titles in singles, doubles and mixed doubles between 1960 and 1975. Sedgman, who still participates on the Grand Masters circuit, was Wimbledon and U.S. titlist in 1952. Only a U.S. Open defeat prevented Crawford, the 1933 Wimbledon champ, from gaining the Grand Slam that season. The late Osuna won the 1963 U.S.

Open title and the Wimbledon doubles in 1960 and 1963.

Sunday cage tilts

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) - The Atlantic Coast Conference reportedly is considering televised Sunday night basketball next season.

The Roanoke Times & World-News said today the plan would not call for any additional televised games. The conference has several Saturday games tentatively scheduled for next season that may be switched to Sunday night. Several ACC teams have played nationally televised games on Sunday afternoons - including Duke and Wake Forest, the conference's two church-affiliated schools. The proposal is expected to be a topic at the next ACC meeting, June 29 in Greensboro, N.C.

Trainer suspended

BOSTON (AP) - Officials at Suffolk Downs drugged with the power-

have suspended a trainer indefinitely in connection with reports that horses the trainer handled were ful stimulant Sublimaze.

Trainer Donna DeLucia was suspended Wednesday, according to stewards Thomas Beedem, David Hicks and Gerald Sullivan, who represent the Massachusetts State Racing Commission.

Three more trainers face a hearing Friday in connection with similar charges. The three were identified as Lynn Scace, Carlos Hernandez and

Gerald Souto. In May, another trainer, Jose Martinez, was suspended when a urinalvsis showed traces of Sublimaze in a horse he trained. The mount, Native Bend, finished second in a Suffolk Downs race on Nov. 22. Sublimaze, or fentanyl, is a low-dosage painkiller which is difficult to detect, according to Bruce Aspeslagh, the state's chief racing chemist.

Wimbledon featuring top field

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) -The world's top women tennis players are in complete agreement. The 1979 Wimbledon women's singles will be one of the most open in the 102-year history of the tournament.

"There are a number of players who could win the title," said defending champion Martina Navratilova. "I can think of five or six who could actually win it, and a lot more players who could beat me if I am not playing on top of my game.

Billie Jean King, Evonne (Goolagong) Cawley and Virginia Wade are all capable of winning - and there are a lot of fine young players coming through "It is getting tougher every year, and with the number of youngsters

I think there are five women who have a chance of the title, but I can only think of three men capable of winning the men's singles - Bjorn Borg, John

Holmes heavy favorite to whip Mike Weaver

By ED SCHUYLER JR. AP Sports Writer

Mike Weaver doesn't like to be called "Hercules." He knows the wise guys smile and snicker when they say .... not to his face.

One of the jokes is that after Friday night they can call him "Achilles." Larry Holmes will quickly find his weak point, which is considerably higher than his heel.

"Hercules is a myth. I'm not," said Weaver, who is blessed with a marvelous physique and mediocre record, the dream all fighters hold ... and feelings. Even guys who fight with their fists can get their feelings hurt. "I don't feel good that I'm considered a tuneup," he said. "They'll be surprised." 'Surprise" would not be adequate enough to describe a victory by Mike Weaver over Larry Holmes, the champion of the World Boxing Council's sphere of influence and the best heavyweight in all the world at this point in time. Holmes aready is signed to defend against Earnie Shavers Sept. 14 in a fight that will be televised by ABC from Giants Stadium at East Rutherford, N.J. But network television wouldn't buy Friday's fight at Madison Square Garden. Mike Weaver, the network bigwigs say, is not a worthy chal-

"TV people, what do they know?" sniffed Weaver, sitting in the dining room at a Catskill Hotel, dressed in a sweat suit. He did not arouse curiosity among the other diners.

'What does TV know about boxing?" he continued. "Most boxing experts ... they've never had a glove

'Mike Weaver (rated No. 8 by the WBC) is the No.1 contender available," said promoter Don King, renting the Garden for $150,000 and also showing the fight on a closed-circuit hookup.

But King, admitting he could take a financial bath, is not standing with Holmes-Weaver alone. He also is presenting a really attractive fight a 10-round welterweight bout between Roberto Duran and Carlos Palomiwho has been hurt by the shadow of Muhammad Ali and also by the fact that the heavyweight title is split. This split is keeping Holmes away from John Tate, Leon Spinks and Gerrie Coetzee because they are tied to promoter Bob Arum and are busy fighting to determine who will succeed Muhammad Ali as World Boxing Association champ when he retires. So "anybody" for Holmes this time will be Mike Weaver.

"I'm game to fight anybody in the world," said the 29-year-old Holmes, Rawly Eastwick.

Perhaps Holmes, who is fighting for a percentage of the gate, answered after Holmes knocked out Ossie Ocathat question best when he said: "This man is a man and works hard at his line. You work at a job and you work to better yourself. Fighters are the same way.

Weaver, a former factory worker in Los Angles, will work Friday night for $50,000, not a big purse for some fighters but a Fort Knox for the guy who turned pro for $85 in 1972.

Weaver, one of 15 children, admittedly didn't pay his dues early in is career, and says that his why his pro record is only 20-8.

"Never was in shape for a fight,"

BUSINESS MIRROR Consumer polls reveal growing recession mood

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Recession, officially, is measured by the numbers. When output of goods and services declines for two successive quarters, say the keepers of the numbers, we have a recession.

Even before we tumble into the economic pits we use the numbers to guide us. Like a pilot flying on instruments, we seek guidance from the dials of production, jobs, sales, credit and the like.

This is fine for economists, and obviously necessary too, but for the mass of people a recession has come to mean not so much a numerical measurement as a mood, an attitude, a perception of

Ask almost anyone, for example, if the past four years have been been economically good years or poor and they likely will choose the latter answer. And yet, the economy has been expanding rather than receding.

"So what," they are likely to say, "my buying power hasn't expanded." And, were it their style to do so, they could illustrate their case with the same numbers used to show that times are good. They could show that in the 12 months through

March, straight-time wages rose 7.8 percent, but prices jumped 10.2 percent, resulting in a net loss of buying power. "Isn't that recession?" they ask. They know that passbook savings earn less than 6 percent interest, and U.S. Savings Bonds no more than 6.5 percent if held a minimum of five years, while the inflation rate is 13.9 percent. A net loss, They know that inflation has shrunk their life insurance values, that they can't afford college for their children, that the house they aspired to is beyond their reach, and that they've had to re-Retrenchment isn't expansion, they say. They know, because expansion has been the American tradition, part of our ethos, enscribed in history books. People were brought up on it: Everyone has the chance to do better. They know now that it isn't necessarily so. The mood of personal recession is measured by consumer polls. During the past four years, officially one of the longest continuous economic expansions in our history, consumer moods soured. Throughout the period the growing sense of foreboding, of worry, of anger, of personal recession has been monitored as clearly as those other numbers claim to measure the continued strength of the Which attitude is real: The official one, that the economy has been strong and expanding, or the mood, based mainly on personal experience, that tells us the economy has been getting sicker all the Each has it's use, but they cannot be interchanged. But inevitably they are. The official statistics, valuable to professionals, are too often offered to the public as evidence of their misperceptions. If anything, that use can only make ordinary individuals more cynical. Who knows the condition of family finances better than the head of a family? Who knows better how that family interprets its

WIPP hearings may be held in Odessa

AUSTIN - Attorney General Mark White's office still is awaiting word on when and where hearings will be held in Texas on the Department of Energy's proposed nuclear waste storage facility at Carlsbad, Hearings were held earlier in Albuquerque on the environmental impact statement on the Waste Isolation Pilot Project with Texas sending "observers" from the attorney general's staff.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Rick Lowerre says it now appears the hearings will be held in late July or early August, most likely in Odessa, if a suitable meeting site can be found and if the federal panel can convene Texas will present its principal case at that hearing, Lowerre says.

One major area of concern with West Texas residents and White's office is transportation - with DOE having no transportation plan for consideration at this time, Lowerre says. El Paso began work on passing a city ordinance setting out routes for transporting nuclear wastes through its jurisdiction and other cities are eyeing similar measures. However, it appears the role of the state in moving nuclear wastes through Texas is cloudy. Department of Highways and Public Transporta-tion officials report they can, and are willing, to mark routes designated for transportation of such wastes, but say the department has little or no authority over such movements. Department of Health officials say their difficulty lies in receiving notice of such shipments, and of knowing what routes may have been designated.

It also appears probable the DOE could override local regulations, particularly on highways for which federal funds were used in their construction - as is the case for most Texas roads. And the Railroad Commission reports it has "very little" authority over such shipments, either on roads or by rail, being pre-empted by federal regula-

State officials also agree that the problem "is something we should be looking at," particularly in view of the lack of clear-cut authority and existing

But they also indicate that it likely will be Washington, not Austin, which has the ultimate authority and decisions in the matter.

TWC will hear motions for Stacy rehearings

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Commission will hear motions for rehearings Tuesday on the permit granted Colorado River Municipal Water District for construction of Stacy Reservoir. Motions for rehearing were filed on an amended final order issued by the TWC on behalf of the Lower Colorado River Authority, City of Austin, Lake Travis Improvement Association, O.P. Leonard, Lakeside Irrigation Co., Garwood Irrigation Co. and the wholesale customers of LCRA. The TWC amended its earlier order granting the permit for construction of the reservoir to conform permit language relating to furnishing of an operating manual to a court decision. The hearing will be held in the Stephen F. Austin

State Office Building.

With the same flair for storytelling that has spellbound audiences and juries for more than half a century, Ray Jenkins, now 82, has written his autobiography

Or, as he put it: and after a lifespan of more than 80 years, as a shoeshine, soda jerk, water boy, lumberjack, hobo, coal miner, soldier in the Army, sailor in the Navy, graduate of the University of Tennessee cum laude, 59 years at the bar (including the kind with brass rails), more than 600 homicide cases in court, some national prominence, taking an occasional part in

Knox elected to trustee board of Texas Hospital Association

DALLAS - Norman L. Knox, administrator of Malone-Hogan Hospital in Big Spring, has been elected to serve on the Texas Hospital Association board of trustees.

His term will run through 1982.

He was elected by the house of delegates at the 50th Annual Convention of the hospital group held recent-pleasures of life and living it up to the hilt, trying to give back as much as it gave me, having gone almost the full circle, I now, at the urging of family and friends, record some of the events that occurred along the way. The book, "The Terror of Tellico Plains," published by the East Tennessee Historical Society, Knoxville, sells for $8.

Jenkins was born in Unaka, N.C., but grew up in Tellico Plains, a small mountain town at the edge of the Cherokee National Forest in Monroe County.

The book dwells briefly on his early life, recounts his military experience and details his career as a lawyer in which he built, case by case, a reputation as one of East Tennessee's most outstanding criminal lawyers of the century.

It was 25 years ago that Jenkins was selected, "to my astonishment," as special counsel of the U.S. Senate committee investigating the clash between Sen. Joseph McCarthy and Secretary of the Army

"For the first time in my life I was suddenly catapulted into national prominence, with my picture emblazoned on every major newspaper in the United States," he wrote of those nationally televised hearings. "Heady stuff for a country lawyer, and to say that I was overwhelmed is an understatement.

Throughout the book, Jenkins' well known sense of humor is apparent as he tells his story in lighthearted style, even when the joke was on him.

As Sen. Howard Baker put it in a forward, "By any standards, Ray Jenkins' career has been remarkable; and because I know him to be not only one of the greatest trial lawyers that East Tennessee has produced, but also one of the greatest storytellers, I am grateful for the privilege of writing the introduc-

Students face Regents Exams once again in New York State

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - It is not the best of times for New York State's 611,000 high school students who this week face a 114-year-old rite called the Regents Exams - the granddaddy of all state testing programs.

The written three-hour comprehensives cover basic academic courses, ranging from algebra to zoology. They were established in 1865, and have weathered the storms of "progressive education" and "open education."

And in today's "back-to-basics" climate, when most states are moving toward some form of statewide test to measure their high schools, they are enjoying a new popularity. But New York is still the only state to offer a single state-wide final exam to its students in such a variety of subjects.

They have survived, because people want them, Windsor Lott, chief of the state's testing bureau, said Tuesday. "There's no better form of quality control. "They give parents some assurance their kids are learning something in the various subjects. And teachers like them, because they are a good final exam and provide an incentive to the kids throughout the year," Lott said. The exams, originally for eighth-graders, were set schools were pushing ill-prepared students into high school to get additional state aid.

Not all graduating students will take the Regents can always take that later on.

Exams - only students seeking a Regents diploma, an academic diploma required by most of the state's

The hallmark of the tests, traditionally developed by committees of teachers, has been as much their ability to change with the times as their continuity. In 1891, for example, there were 11 separate exams given in the various subjects now covered by the comprehensive social studies exam, given at the end of the junior year.

'The number of exams was steadily cut during the 1950s and 1960s, and we are down to 21 now. But the percentage of students taking the Regents has remained about 57 percent," Lott said.

The English exam, with its required essays, has changed little, although students are now asked questions about mystery writer Ellery Queen and science fiction author Arthur C. Clarke as well as Shakespeare.

But even high school graduates of 10 years ago would have difficulty recognizing the social studies

Instead of Herodotus, students are asked to interpret Herblock's editorial cartoons and give, arguments, pro and con, on abortion, the death penalty and euthanasia.

The facts they can always look up," said Donald Bragaw, chief of the They were not given in high school subjects until Education Department's social studies bureau.

Braniff to seek fuel surcharges

DALLAS - Braniff International has announced it will ask the Civil Aeronautics Board for fuel surcharges of 10 percent on domestic air fares and 5 percent on international fares, effective in 60 days or sooner if the CAB approves.

The airline cited a 43.5 percent increase in the cost of jet fuel as the basis for the request.

Braniff Board Chairman Harding L. Lawrence said cost of fuel now represents 30 percent of the airline's total expenses as compared to 24.3 percent last December. Fuel is the biggest single expense besides personnel, he said.

Cost per gallon of fuel for domestic flights is 58 cents, up from 40 cents per gallon in December, he said. On international flights, the cost is 66 cents per gallon, up from 51 cents a gallon in December, said Lawrence.

Classes are limited to 25 students meeting between 7 and 9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The course fee for Cake Decorating I is $12 and supplies will cost about $25. Students meet in room 152 of the Science-Faculty Building.

College adviser helps foreigners

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) - Although Arthur H. Tichenor Jr. works at a large Midwestern university, much of his job is dictated by international events.

Tichenor has been foreign-student adviser at Purdue University since 1951, when he came from the University of California at Berkeley where he was assistant director of the International House.

Since then he has counseled several thousand students through their academic lives here, with problems ranging from homesickness to showing a students wife how to do the laundry. Approximately 1,100 foreign students from 90 countries attend Pur-

Tichenor maintains close contact with a foreign student from the time inquiries are made concerning Purdue until the student graduates. Some 8,000 requests for information and admission are received annually from foreign countries, with about 400 new students coming to the campus each year.

"There's a tremendous amount of very personal conversation done in this office - counseling or ventilating as some people would call it," Tichenor says of his job.

"The tension is so much at times that a student will just have to come in here and let it all fall out. The emotional pressures are terrific.' The counselor sees a large part of his role as being a pressure valve for the foreign students. We want to get them in here before they reach the breaking point," he says. "These people are brilliant and impatient. They tend to lose perspective and try to do too much too fast. The disappointment is overwhelming." The foreign students are thousands of miles away from home but they are still deeply affected by events in their own countries, by recent developments in Iran and the Arab world, for example, Tichenor says.

He adds that he is often viewed with "a very unhealthy respect" by some of the freshman foreign students arriving on the campus.

"They're scared to death when they first come in," he says. "They think I have all the power in the palm of my hand. I try my best to show these kids there are kindly people around here they can talk

Tichenor has helped initiate several local and campus programs designed to make the foreign student feel more at home. One involves a luncheon at a nearby church the day of commencement. Adults from the community mingle with the students, congratulating the new graduates on their accomplishments

"It's pretty hollow getting a diploma unless you have someone to share the joy with," he points out. "It's a little bit of public recognition for the students.'

Tichener, who has traveled to some 45 countries, speaks Spanish, German and French fluently. Most of the students who come into his office have a good command of English.

Over the miles and years of international travel he has collected numerous souvenirs and mementos, many of which, he says, are gathering dust in the

"I'm not a museum person," he says. "The things I get more satisfaction out of are the cards and letters from former students at Christmas and New Year's. That to me is one of the signs of someone's having had a pleasant experience here.'

Water sales revenues continue on downtrend

BIG SPRING - Blame it on the weather - at least * that's what the Colorado River Municipal Water District is saying about a continuing lull in revenues from water sales.

While revenues have failed to keep pace, expenses have increased substantially, statistics released by the water district show.

In fact, revenues for the first five months of 1978 are down $26,348 to $2.6 million. During the same five months operating expenses increased 18 percent to $1.3 million. Water district officials said higher energy costs accounted for most of the increase in operating expenses, which jumped 20 percent during the five month period ending May 31.

But officials are blaming cold winter weather and a cooler than average spring for the lull in reve-

Revenues from water sales to member cities grossed $2 million for the first five months, up $220,895 over a year ago, mainly because the CRMWD, which supplies water to Midland and Odessa, increased its rates at the beginning of the Revenues from sales to oil firms are a different matter, however. Through May, revenues were down nearly $200,000 over the same period last year. Total sales only reached $551,280. In addition, recreational revenues were off $6,400, due to weather and low lake levels. Total recreational revenues were $37,978.

Total water sales were down more than 851 million gailons for the first five months of this year.

South screamed for only ten minutes. Why did the ace of spades have to be in the hand that had four diamonds? Why did the other opponent have to have the eight of spades? And why did such tragedies happen only to him?

After discarding the club from dummy South should take both of dummy's top hearts to discard the last diamond from his hand. Then he could lead trumps without worrying about a ruff.

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE Touring Rosalynn makes completely sheltered junket

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rosalynn Carter leads a sheltered life.

The first lady accompanied President Carter to Guadeloupe in January and reported she never saw a topless maiden, although they were plentiful on every beach and at every hotel.

Now she has returned from Austria without a memory of nude sunbathers along the Danube. Actually, Mrs. Carter's river cruise during her husband's Vienna summit with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev took her along a rocky stretch seldom frequented by sun worshippers, nude or otherwise.

Security agents took no chances, however. They made a sweep along the historic waterway in advance of Mrs. Carter, just to make sure.

But perhaps the agents were most interested in protecting the sensibilities of the Carters' 11-year-old daughter, Amy, who made the trip with her moth-

SEN. HENRY M. Jackson, D-Wash., outspoken critic of SALT II, may want to investigate the baggage tags the White House distributed to those who accompanied Carter to Vienna.

The laminated tags feature two triangles, one in red and bearing the hammer-and-sickle emblem of the Soviet Union, the other featuring the stars and

But the Soviet symbol is positioned in front of the Stars and Stripes and appears larger.

Actually, a check with a tape measure showed the triangles to be of identical size but positioned in a way that creates an optical illusion. The Soviet emblem presumably was given the more prominent display as a matter of protocol. Carter was host at the Vienna summit.

FRANK MOORE, the president's chief lobbyist on Capitol Hill, made the flight to Vienna aboard Air Force One in a red turtleneck shirt that matched the color of the Soviet flag.

Gerald Rafshoon, Carter's director of communications, wore his "lucky sweatshirt" — a relic of the president's 1976 campaign.

BEFORE BREZHNEV reached Vienna and began manifesting signs of failing health, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance told reporters the Soviet leader was "in good health."

"The last time I saw him, he was in good shape,"

The chief U.S. diplomat neglected to mention that ne had not seen Brezhnev since October.

WHITE HOUSE PRESS secretary Jody Powell enlivened the summit scene with cracks like, "The Reds and the rednecks squared off today across the table in Vienna.'

When members of the U.S. and Soviet delegations, including be-ribboned generals, lined up for a group photo, Powell observed:

Child mauled by rats expected to survive

LEBANON, Tenn. (AP) — "She was nearly eaten alive," said the pediatrician who treated Valerie Hearn, a 10-month-old child mauled by rats. "It was more than one rat, it appears. They'd had to be big

Dr. Bernard Wiggins, who runs a children's clinic in Wilson County, said the attack that left Valerie in serious condition at a suburban Nashville hospital Tuesday was the worst he had ever seen.

"She had severe rat bites on multiple places of her body — both her hands, her lips, her ears, her nose, her legs and arms, her body, back and shoulders. Her right hand was nearly eaten through. Most of the fat pad in the central area of the hand was eaten out," he said.

However, Wiggins said he believes the child will

"I interned at Washington's Walter Reed Hospital so I've treated rat bites. But this attack is the worst one I've ever seen."

Wiggins said the child might soon have died of malnutrition if her mother had not rushed her to the hospital after discovering the attack.

"It looks like she suffers from palsy. And she's a classic case of a failure to thrive. She's 10 months old and weighs just 10 pounds. That compares with an average weight for her age of 15 to 18 pounds," he The child had suffered from a poor diet and lack of health care even before she was attacked, he said. "It's not an intentional thing. It is just a pathetic Wiggins said he had treated the girl once when she

Officials say 19-year-old Carolyn Hearn and her three chilren lived in a dilapidated downtown neighborhood where Wiggins said he had treated a few rat bite victims earlier.

Joanne Smith, county Human Services Depart-ment supervisor, said the other Hearn daughters, ages 2 and 4, would be examined. Attempts to reach the mother were unsuccessful.

Injury bares gaping loophole in insurance

By KARLYN BARKER
The Washington Post

REEDVILLE, Va. — The "Socials" column of the newspaper in this small Northern Neck town on the Chesapeake Bay wished Kathy Upton "a speedy recovery from her injuries." But it gave no hint of the gruesome

It did not tell how — while grinding fish in a laboratory at the Zapata Haynie Corp. plant here — she accidentally caught her left hand in the grinder, how she screamed as all four fingers instantly were severed at the palm.

The accident changed Kathy Upton's life and horrified her coworkers. Today, nearly a year later, it has left the 27-year-old mother of two in a complex legal controversy.

DISFIGURED AND handicapped for life, Upton faces additional operations in the future. The nerve endings keep growing to the surface of her hand stump "and it feels like an electrical shock," she said. Correcting her condition means new surgery.

She and her husband, Jim, assumed that the accidental death and dismemberment policy available to Zapata Haynie employees would provide some financial relief. They were

Her insurance claim through Prudential would not be honored, she was told, because "you didn't lose your hand all the way up to your wrist."

Next, turning to the state's work-man's compensation program for help, Upton discovered that while her initial medical costs would be covered, her weekly disability allowance would be only $74 a week for 100 weeks. And, though her fingers are gone for life, the best settlement offer under the program has been $17,500.

FINALLY, AFTER BEING told by several coworkers that the grinder machine she used should have been equipped with a safety tray device, she decided to sue Zapata Haynie for negligence. It was then that she learned to her distress that no employee covered by workman's compensation can sue an employer.

Spokesmen for Houston-based Zapata Haynie say they at first prevailed upon the insurance companies involved "because we want to see Kathy get everything she's entitled to" and because "the accident was very traumatic to her and to the company"

The case has yet to be resolved to their employee's satisfaction. Today, Kathy and Jim Upton and their children, aged 9 and 7, live in an old house they rent for $50 a month and do without a phone because they cannot afford the deposit.

THE COUPLE MOVED to Reedville from Alexandria, Va., two years ago, and Kathy Upton had been at the fish plant for about five months when the accident happened.

She worked in a lab, regularly testing fish for protein levels and possible contamination. On the day of the accident, last May 30, she was showing a new employee how to grind whole fish in preparation for the tests but was having trouble making the fish go through the grinding machine head first

"I grabbed four or five fish tails to push them in and suddenly my whole hand just went in the machine," recalled Upton, a slim blonde who spoke of the accident in a quiet, tense voice. "I had to grab my arm to keep it from going in, too."

IN THE SPLIT SECOND before the pain, Upton said she "could feel the pressure and was so freaked out when I couldn't get my hand out that I didn't think to turn off the machine".

When she finally freed what was left of her hand, she ran screaming to the sink. Coworkers rushed to her aid, put a tourniquet on the hand, numbed the pain with ice and drove her to the hospital.

At the hospital, where Upton spent two weeks for initial surgery, the hand became infected. This complicated the injury, and doctors couldn't close the wound for several days.

LATER, ACCORDING to Kathy Upton, the enduring physical and emotional stress of the accident and its aftermath so depressed her that she attempted suicide three times. This, too, complicated her case because the company's regular workman's compensation insurer, the Hartford Insurance Co., balked at paying new hospital and psychiatric care costs.

The workman's compensation program provides nationwide mandatory insurance that all but the smallest of employers must carry for workers. Originally set up about 60 years ago as "a trade-off" for employers and those they hire, it guarantees disability and death benefits for the workers but prohibits them from suing the company they work for if they are injured on the job.

The Upton case was among some 278,000 workman's compensation cases reported nationally in 1978. Benefits to the injured vary from state to state.

Workman's compensation has paid for all of the hospital and surgical bills resulting from Upton's hand injury, an estimated $15,000 to $20,000 to date. The program is paying her $74.24 a week for 100 weeks, about two-thirds of the roughly $113 a week she earned as a clerk-technician for Zapata Haynie. The benefits are tax

KATHY AND JIM Upton had been struggling financially even before the accident. She was a waitress at a nearby restaurant on weekends to help supplement the $110-a-week salary her husband earned building pleasure yachts for a boat company.

Now, without her full Zapata Haynie income, times are even tougher. She very recently took a part-time job as a nurse's aide, but her $2.95-anhour salary soon will mean a decrease in her disability benefits since she has found some employment.

Ira Lechner, a former state legislator and now an Arlington attorney who is familiar with workman's compensation law, said Virginia's injury benefits have improved greatly over the years but still fail to adequately compensate employes in several types of injury cases.

"ON BALANCE, the workman's compensation laws help the employees," he said. "They give up the right to sue the employer, but they get their benefits quicker and are more assured of getting them than if they tried to prove negligence against a company."

There have been glaring gaps in insurance coverage under the program, he said, particularly in Virginia where the state Industrial Commission, which oversees the program, "is very conservative" in awarding certain benefits.

"It's very tough if not virtually impossible" to get payment for medical treatment not directly related to the injury, Lechner said.

Coverage finally was broadened to include surgery for disfigurement on parts of the body other than the face, he said, "after I threatened to bring in three people who had been terribly burned and have them take off their shirts."

UPTON'S ATTORNEY, J. Hunt Brasfield, is challenging the insurance firm's refusal to pay psychiatric and hospital costs associated with her suicide attempts. He says there is "a definite relationship" between the accident and his client's subsequent emotional problems, and he plans to seek a hearing on the matter before the Industrial Commission.

The workman's compensation insurance carrier, Hartford, offered Upton a lump settlement payment of $17,500 at one point to close out her case, but that has been rejected.

"The offers of settlement have not been adequate because in return for several thousand dollars the claimant would be giving up her right to receive future medical payments, and that could be disasterous," Brasfield said.

Kathy Upton, who said she might as well have lost her whole hand for all the good it is to her now, is equally dubious about accepting any lump sum payment.

sum payment.

"They're trying to cut out all medical expenses that might come up in the future, especially if I need another operation, and they want to stop me from seeing my psychiatrist," she complained.

HARTFORD OFFICIALS declined

While anguishing over her disfigurement and the accompanying financial and personal adjustments, Upton kept a journal during her hospital stays. In one entry she described how the accident seemed so "unreal"

— until she looked at her hand.
"I went into the bathroom," she wrote, "and saw my unbandaged hand for the first time in the mirror. I don't know how it's possible, but it seemed to me to look much worse with my body next to it than just looking at it laying next to me in bed. I guess it just seemed less attached to me in bed than it did in the mirror."

Now taking antidepressants and tranquilizers, Upton said she has felt much better since starting to work part-time. "But I don't want to be a nurse's aide the rest of my life," said Upton, a high school graduate who has one semester of college.

ZAPATA HAYNIE, a subsidiary of an offshore oil drilling firm that has construction and fishing plants around the country and overseas, has denied any responsibility for Upton's accident. The safety device she spoke of, a company official said, "is only a feed tray, and that would not have prevented the accident."

In addition, said Zapata Haynie president Pat Doody, "Kathy had always been instructed to use the wooden plunger to push the fish through the machine and I don't think anyone could have imagined someone sticking their hand into a meat grinder without turning it off."

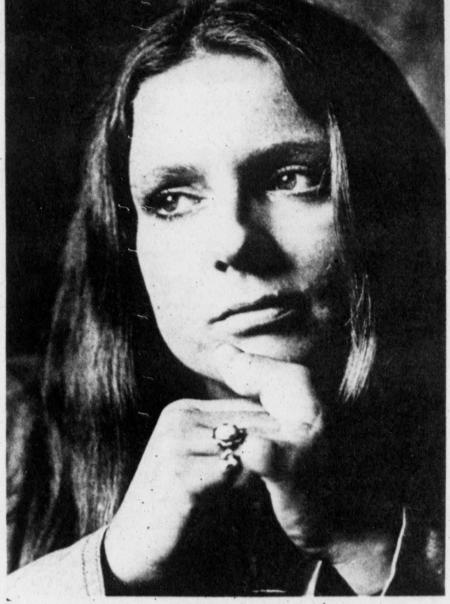

UPTON, WHO SAID she thought her employer's policy covering dismemberment "meant losing a part of my body," was offered her old job back. "But I didn't want to go back there ever again," she said.

"If I've got to live with something like this, I thought that at least if we could make our life somewhat easier, than it wouldn't be all bad," said Upton, who said she is bewildered and angry at her inability to recover more money under her various insurance policies.

A Prudential spokesman, Dan Person, was sympathetic but steadfast in the policy interpretation that defines dismemberment as loss of the hand to the wrist.

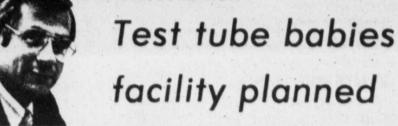

"I wish under circumstances like this, we could pay all the money in the vault, but we have to go by the policy," he said.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Dear Dr. Solomom: I saw the British 'test-tube baby' on television, and she looked beautiful. After eight years of trying unsuccessfully to become pregnant, I'm willing to try anything. Is there now—or is there likely to be in the near future—any medical facility in the United States able to perform the test-tube baby procedure? Is the method used very complicated?—Mrs. A.H.

Dear Mrs. H.: A Virginia facility soon may be the first place in the United States where the test-tube baby procedure will be available. A husband and wife team, Drs. Howard W. and Georgeanne Seegar Jones, of the East Virginia Medical School, are planning to open a clinic in Norfolk. Previous attempts to use the technique in this country have been held back by a requirement that it be approved by the Ethics Advisory Board of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare if performed in an institution receiving federal funds.

The clinic will get around this requirement since it will be established as a separate unit. However, the project has been approved by the medical school's committee on human experimentation.

The procedure involves removing an egg cell from the mother, which is then fertilized by sperm taken from the father. This is done in a petri dish (a glass vessel used for culturing cells). After incubation for several days, the embryo is inserted into the mother's womb.

The British baby, who was born last

July, does appear to be a mormal, bright-looking infant, and the achievement has opened the way to other would-be mothers.

Some controversy has arisen as to the ethics involved in "artificial" conception. Dr. Patrick C. Steptoe, the gynecologist who delivered the British baby, and Dr. Robert G. Edwards, who collaborated with him in developing the procedure, say that its goal is to enable infertile women to bear children. They maintain that like many other capabilities in medicine or technology, the technique could be abused; but, they add, this does not justify denying couples the possibility of parenthood.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've had a mildly elevated blood pressure for several years, and my physician feels I should be on medication. So far, every drug prescribed has caused unpleasant side effects. Are there any antihypertensive drugs that do not produce these effects? — Sam

Dear Sam: The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recently released a new drug, metoprolol-tartrate, for the treatment of hypertensiom. This is the first one of its kind released by the FDA in a decade. The drug is supposed to lower blood pressure with fewer and milder side effects than traditional antihypertensives. In addition, most of these side effects are said to be temporary in nature. Of course, a patient's reaction to any drug is always an individual matter. Check with your doctor and see what he thinks.

Summer spurs film releases

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - They're off and running in chard Kiel) in outer space. the summer movie sweepstakes. Well, walking, any-

The summer season used to be the pits for the movie business, a time when citizens took their vacations or sat on their porches and stayed away from the local Bijou. No more. Now that the film audience is largely youthful, distributors reserve their big attractions for summer. That's when televison is awash in reruns, and the young crowd is looking for nightly diversion.

So far the 1979 season is off to a whimpering start. No blockbuster has yet appeared to match "Star Wars" of 1977, or "Grease" of 1978. Fox's space thriller, "Alien," is performing well in a limited release - almost $15 million receipts in 1,948 theaters after 24 days - but it's too early to determine if it will blast off.

Paramount's "summer vacation plan" of seven releases began wobbily with "Players" and "Prophecy," but it will doubtless advance with Clint Eastwood's "Escape from Alcatraz." Preview reports have been favorable; in any case, Clint Eastwood movies, good or bad, never seem to fail.

As has been noted in this space, it's going to be a chilly summer for movie addicts. Besides "Alien" and "Prophecy," theaters will be offering these thrill-makers: "Dracula," played straight, more or less, with Frank Langella repeating his Broadway role; "The Amityville Horror," spooky doings in a Long Island house occupied by James Brolin and Margot Kidder; "Night Wing," about an invasion of plague-carrying bats at an Indian reservation.

If the summer fare has a familiar look, that's natural. Film companies keep trying to repeat past rabbi crossing the Wild West in "The Frisco Kid." successes; they usually fail but that doesn't stop them. Here are some of the repeats:

Thriller writer lives quietly

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) - Imagine a cold, gray day in some bleak Eastern European capital. Is that Robert Littell, notebook in hand, lurking there, in the shadows of that dreary building?

"I've been accused of doing that," Littell concedes, and you get the impression that words scribbled surreptitiously in that small book soon will be the stuff of another novel.

Indeed, Littell has written five, including "The Debriefing," published this month by Harper & Row. International espionage is Littell's metier, though the notes we've just seen him taking probably refer to things like the weather, the way people dress in winter and the architecture of government build-

For Robert Littell is not a spy.

"I've never lived dangerously," he insists. "Nobody's ever shot at me.

'You project," he says, explaining his rather familiar literary relationship with cloak and dagger. "You build on your experiences, and I've had some rather fantastic experiences, though," with a chuckle, "I've never worked for the CIA or the KGB."

In fact, Robert Littell spent a good part of the 1960s as a specialist for Newsweek magazine on Soviet and Eastern European affairs. That job took him behind the Iron Curtain many times. "My experiences there were profound," he says,

"very moving for me. I began writing about the Soviet Union soon after my first trip there, and I started reading everything I could about that part of "I've gone deeper and deeper into it since then."

Lewinter," was published in 1974. "The Debriefing," taken a shot at me." — Robert Littell. he says, is in a way a continuation of that story. "Without giving anything away," he says of "The Debriefing," "it's about the complicity of the Soviet military establishment and the American military Littell's first novel, "The Defection of A.J.

"I don't know if they meet and do the things I have them do," he says, "but from what I read and hear, I "preposterous and ridiculous. The people in my can imagine that they do."

That says a good deal about Littell's fiction. He seems fascinated by people, caught, though perhaps willingly, in the tightening grip of international politics. His style is clear, crisp, eminently readable, with considerable attention to atmosphere and character development.

"I think what I have going for me is that the situations I write about are psychologically possible," he says. "I don't know whether the action I tell about really happens, but I think it could."

Littell, 44, has since the early '70s lived in Place Cassiers, a village in the south of France which he describes as "a long stone's throw from the Mediterranean." Julia Child, TV's "French Chef;" is a neighbor.

CBS takes first place in weekly Nielsen race

NEW YORK (AP) - CBS knocked ABC out of first place in the networks' ratings race for the second time in four weeks, thanks in large measure to a strong Monday night lineup.

CBS listed three of the four mostwatched shows in the week ending June 17, all but "Three's Company," which was No. 1 in thehratings for the fifth straight week.

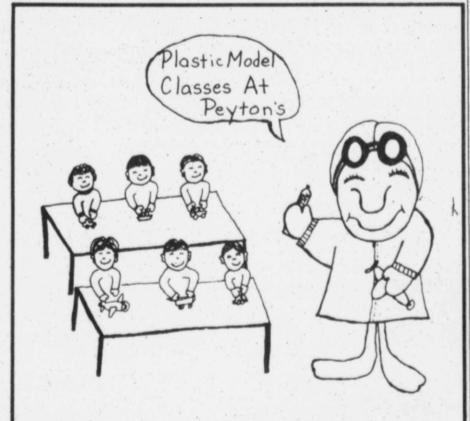

Three shows from CBS' Monday night schedule were right behind - "WKRP in Cincinnati," "M-A-S-H" and "Lou Grant," and the distribution helped the network to a rating for the week of 14.7. ABC was second at 13.8, with NBC third with a rating of 12.9.

CBS also listed the week's No. 6 program, "Barnaby Jones," and ABC walked off the with rest of the Top 10. NBC, in another difficult week, didn't score until 18th place, with a Sunday night movie, "What's Up Doc?"

In a week of repeats, first-run shows did relatively well. ABC's broadcast of "Harry and Tonto," a movie starring Art Carney, was No.-13 in the ratings, and a first-time episode of "Carter Country," also on ABC, was-15th.

ABC had four of the week's five lowest-rated shows, including "Battlestar Galactica" in 62nd place, "Operation Petticoat" 63rd, "The Man Who Loved Bears" 65th and a news special on the SALT II summit, 66th. NBC's "Hizzonner" was No. 64.

Here are the week's Top 10 shows: "Three's Company," with a rating of 24 representing 17.9 million homes, ABC; "WKRP in Cincinnati," 22.5 or 16.8 million, "M-A-S-H," 22.4 or 16.7 million, and "Lou Grant," 20.9 or 15.6 million, all CBS; "Taxi," 20.7 or 15.4 million, ABC; "Barnaby Jones," 20 or 14.9 million, CBS, and "Laverne and 19.6 or 14.6 million, "Mork and Mindy," 19.1 or 14.2 million, 'Charlie's Angels," 18.7 or 13.9 million, and "Angie," 18.1 or 13.5 million,

V to cover anti-abortion meet

NEW YORK (AP) - The same people who brought public TV live coverage of the May 6 anti-nuclear march on Washington - organized, packaged and delivered in 10 days at a cost of less than $2,000 - are back for a live report on another controversial news event.

Reporters, analysts and technicians from the Public Interest Video Network have been in Cincinnati all week, preparing for a 90-minute broadcast Sunday night from the National Right to Life Convention.

The live report, "Abortion: Right to Live vs. Right to Choose," will be produced by the independent group, with help from WCET, Cincinnati's non-commercial station. The special will be beamed to stations in the Public Broadcasting Service network at 10 p.m. EDT.

As with all PBS programs, air date and time may vary, so check local

It's the second major production of the group of independent producers and other television people formed less than two weeks before the May 6 march by anti-nuclear activists.

That hurriedly organized program, 'Nuclear Power: The Public Reaction," was carried live by at least 15 PBS stations, and on a delayed basis by several others.

Nicholas de Martino, one of the indepedent outfit's founders, says 'Nuclear Power: The Public Reaction," was the first live public affairs program ever broadcast in which editorial content was not determined by the system carrying the report.

Transmission was by satellite, using PBS' distribution facilities. The non-commerical network charged $1,-200 for use of the satellite transponder and other technical and administrative assistance.

Access to the satellite was not a major hurdle; PBS can send at least three programs simultaneously. Public Interest Video did, however, have to line up stations to carry the re-

In that same context, public TV stations voted early in June to provide $56,000 for production of the report from Cincinnati, which de Martino says will be anchored by Marie Torre of New York's WABC. Daniel Schorr, the former CBS newsman, will be senior correspondent.

Coverage of the anti-nuclear march was anchored by Davis Prowitt, a producer of science and arts programs for public TV, with David Ensor of National Public Radio, Christine Russell of the Washington Star, Edwin Diamond of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Tom Bethel of Harper's magazine among the correspondents.

De Martino says the live wrap-up from Cincinnati will include filmed reports from the convention made earlier in the week. As with coverage of the anti-nuclear march, Public Interest Video's aim is to provide a platform for consideration of oppos-

The Cincinnati production, which will not be subjected to normal PBS editorial controls, "is a grass-roots approach to a very hot political issue," de Martino says.

The May 6 project, a rather daring venture, appears to have been well-

'It may be the most invigorating television experince I've had in years," Chuck Allen, senior vice president for programming at Los Angeles' KCET, wrote Lawrence K Grossman, PBS' president.

Allen told Grossman the program.

Clements defends decontrol

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - Motorists are in for a financial shock at gasoline stations when oil prices are fully decontrolled, says Texas Gov. William P. Clements Jr., but the federal government could have acted years ago to prevent the trauma.

"While living under governmentencouraged, deceptively low prices, the American public could just as well have been absorbing these cost increases gradually as prices rose according to market forces," Clements said Wednesday.

"Now we're faced with a sharp increase, as we will see with decontrol. It's a bitter pill."

Clements made the statement to representatives of the 36-state Interstate Oil Compact Commission, which ended a three-day meeting.

"Our government has created and is perpetuating a national addiction to energy." Clements said. "We have subsidized consumers and we've had to enter the business of price-fixing. The result ... has been to discourage those incentives that are necessary to increase domestic (energy) produc-

Solar goal reported

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter wants to spend $2.5 billion for solar power by 1985 in hopes the United States can lessen the impact of dwindling oil supplies by obtaining one-fifth of its energy from the sun by the turn of the century.

But various solar proponents - while calling the plan a significant first step - criticized its scope Wednesday as too modest and its linkage to a controversial windfall profits tax on crude oil as too risky and unfair.

Meanwhile, the House Science and Technology Committee scheduled a hearing today on Carter's proposals.

The Carter plan, subject to congressional authorization, calls for:

-A solar development bank providing $100 million a year in interest subsidies to owners and contractors of residential and commercial buildings using solar technology

-A 20 percent tax credit for new homes constructed to rely heavily on the sun, through such designs as heavy use of windows on the southern exposure. The credits, expected to cost the treasury about $1.3 billion through 1985, would be limited to $10,000 per building.

-Increased investment tax credits to encourage solar power in industry and agriculture. This would cost about $350 million.

Carter also proposes a 15 percent tax credit to residents who purchase and install airtight woodburning stoves and an exemption for gasoline-alcohol fuel mixtures from the current 4 cent per gallon federal gasoline excise tax.

In addition, the president recommends significantly increasing fiscal 1980 spending for solar. demonstation projects and research into wind power, biomass conversion, ocean thermal technology and photovoltaics which convert the sun's rays ino electricity.

The president's goal of deriving 20 percent of America's energy needs from the sun represents a dramatic change from current conditions. The nation satisfies only about 5.5 percent of its energy demand from solar technologies.

Carter, speaking from a White House roof while he dedicated a $28,000 solar powered heater, stressed Wednesday that reaching the 20 percent goal will depend on "a strong, concerted effort by state and local governments.

Cholera calling Louisiana home?

By WOODY BAIRD

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - Authorities are worried that the germs that cause cholera, one of mankind's most feared plagues, may have found a permanent home in warm Louisiana waters.

Eleven persons came down with cholera in Louisiana last summer only the fourth reported outbreak of the disease in the United States since 1911 - and cholera bacteria have been fund in various areas of the state

"I'm beginning to believe this is a disease that's with us," said Dr. William Cherry, head of the state health department.

"In countries where people are poor and conditions are poor, it kills a lot of people," Cherry said. "But our people have better nutrition.... The cases have been mild."

The disease causes vomiting and diarrhea and can lead to serious dehydration

Researchers now say it's even pos sible that cholera bacteria are growing wild along the soggy Louisiana

When they closed the waters from the cholera scare in the crabs, the sale of all seafood items was affected. It affected the sale of shrimp, fish, oysters - the complete ball of wax not only in Louisiana but out of state as well," said Preston Battistella, of the Louisiana Fisheries Federation.

"People who received the seafood from Louisiana read inflated stories in the news media about cholera and stopped ordering all seafood," he

"There's no way I can say in dollars and cents what it cost, but I can say first hand that a number of my out-ofstate customers canceled their orders for about two weeks - orders on all

Cherry said, however, that there's no reason to shy away from eating Louisiana seafood, just as long as it is properly cooked.

"Let's say we had the problem of heavy metals like mercury or something," he said. "There's no way to cleanse the seafood. But at least, with

Cherry said the search for the source of cholera will continue, but his hopes of isolating the bacteria aren't high

"We've had such widespread distribution it would be unlikely that we will find one source of contamination which has caused our problems all the way from Lake Charles to St. Bernard Parish, which is our whole coastline,' he said In May, cholera bacteria were found in the sewers of Jefferson Parish, a crowded New Orleans suburb. A month earlier, bacteria were found in waters of coastal St. Bernard Parish There were no confirmed cases, but Cherry pointed out that if the bacteria is in the sewer, somebody in the area has the disease.

Researchers say cholera bacteria apparently have survived in Louisiana for years but nobody knew about

Cherry said blood tests of 100 persons in Abbeville indicated that nine percent had come in contact with cholera at some time in their lives. Other research is under way at Louisiana State University. "Cholera is a disease we really haven't been faced with much in this country," said Dr. Mike Moody, a food technologist with the LSU Cooperative Extension Service.

'Nickel and dime operation' no longers suits Woolworth's

By LEE LINDER

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) - Woolworth officials say their 5,442 stores serve more meals than any restaurant chain and sell more toys than any toy chain in the world.

But nowhere in the stores - which today celebrate their 100th birthday as the world's first five-and-dimes can customers still buy something for a nickel. Only four of the 11,822 items stocked are priced at a dime.

Woolworth's annual stockholders meeting came today to Lancaster, the city where Frank Winfield Woolworth on June 21, 1879, opened his first successful store.

That year, Woolworth had total sales of $12,024, which included business from a second store in Scranton, Pa. Last year the international Woolworth chain grossed more than $6.1 billion, and sales have continued to

The assets of the nation's fourth largest retailer - only Sears, J.C. Penney and K-Mart are bigger include 1,849 stores with the original Woolworth name, 404 Woolco discount department stores, 289 Richman and Anderson-Little men's stores, 2,219 Kinney's family shoe stores, and 1,026 Woolworth-Great Britain stores in which it has a 52 percent interest.

Woolworth's moved out of exclusive five-and-dime retailing in 1932, during the Depression, when its board voted to offer merchandise for as much as 20 cents in order to broaden values. In 1935 the price ceiling was discontinued entirely.

Even so, the words "Woolworth's" and "5 and 10" are recorded in dictionaries, O. Henry mentioned them in his famous short stories, and they were popularized in song lyrics.

Like, "I found a million dollar baby in a five-and-ten cent store." And, "Diamond bracelets Woolworth's doesn't sell, baby." Nowadays, it

The stockholders gathered in Lancaster are scheduled to discuss the effort of Brascan, Ltd., a Canadian conglomerate, to buy all its 29 million shares of common stock for $35 a share. The price on the New York Exchange is about $27.

The proxy statement said the Brascan offer was rejected by directors last April "as grossly inadequate and not in the best interests of the company's shareholders."

Contenders named

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Two strong contenders for the presidency of Texas Tech University have emerged since Dr. Cecil Mackey resigned to become president at Michigan State University.

The Lubbock Avalance Journal reports that Dr. John Bradford, dean of Tech's college of engineering, and Dr. Gerald Thomas, president of New Mexico State University, are frontrunners among the 20 names submitted to the board of regents.

Bradford was in line for the helm when Mackey took over in 1976, and Thomas is a former Tech dean of agriculture.
