

Some states taking 'pump now, pray later' gas shortage attitude

By the Associated Press

Some Eastern states are taking a "pump now, pray later" attitude to solve their fuel shortage, seeking next month's allocations to meet the clamor for gasoline this week.

And a 10th state — Pennsylvania — decided to institute odd-even rationing to help ease lengthening lines at gas stations. An aide to Gov. Dick Thornburgh said the statewide plan will begin at midnight tonight. Thornburgh is expected to detail the plan at a news conference later today, the aide said.

With many service stations already pumped dry, those still open drew 100-car lines in the New York City area on Tuesday. Gas was stolen in Pennsylvania, there were fights on lines in New York, and an elderly New Jersey man died when he was overcome by carbon monoxide while waiting for fuel.

Officials in New Jersey, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Maine have asked the major oil companies to advance dealers at least part of their July allocations to get through the month.

In New York, officials said they were prepared to thumb their nose at federal regulations and dip into the state's emergency "set-aside" reserves for July to ease the gasoline crunch.

They later backed off and agreed to a plan whereby individual dealers may borrow against July allocations and the state will later reimburse them from its emergency reserves.

Rhode Island officials said only Shell Oil agreed to advance July allocations. There was no word yet on the responses in other states.

But officials conceded the plan could further tighten an already tight gasoline picture for next month.

"We believe we're in the midst of an emergency," said New York Energy Commissioner James Larocca. "It's a calculated risk."

Reports from some oil refiners indicated not much relief was in sight next month.

Mobil Oil Corp. said its July shipments will be 97 percent of what was shipped in 1978, but after making allowances for filling stations in high-growth areas, for state reserves and for agricultural and emergency cases, only 82 percent of last July's supplies will be available for general consumers.

Reports from five other oil companies in recent days showed their shipments will be as much as 19 percent below last July's levels.

Meanwhile, gasoline dealers are demanding the right to charge higher prices to meet inflation. Dealers in Pennsylvania are threatening to close up Thursday and in other states on Sunday.

And Maryland charged in a federal lawsuit that the Energy Department has failed to fulfill its congressional mandate to allocate gasoline equitably across the country.

In New York City, inspectors handed out 80 citations to service stations for various offenses, ranging from failure to indicate fuel supplies on hand to giving certain customers preferential treatment. In Springfield, Mass., several gas station owners were fined from $50 to $500 for charging illegally high prices.

In Texas, five more counties go on odd-even gasoline rationing at midnight, bringing the total to eight counties. Rationing has now been instituted in all or parts of 10 states and the District of Columbia.

In Delaware, where blockades by protesting truckers have tied up fuel deliveries, Gov. Pierre Du Pont said he had no plans to begin rationing.

Mississippi governor makes pit stop in Big Spring

BIG SPRING (AP) — Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch took his 18-wheeler through the southwest flatlands today on his cross-country trip to learn firsthand about the problems of truckers.

Finch and his co-driver, trucker Clarence Harrison from Pearl, Miss., refueled at Big Spring and then pulled out for the long haul through vast West Texas.

"No one knew I could drive it," Finch said earlier Tuesday in Dallas, several hours after he left the governor's mansion in Jackson, Miss.

"I've learned a lot about truckers' problems," the 52-year-old Finch said in Texas. "I never knew how much truckers were being affected by the high cost of fuel."

Finch's truck had fallen in with a convoy of about 60 trucks, but fell behind when the governor and Harrison slowed to a legal 55 mph.

"The governor said he most certainly was traveling at 55 mph and the speed felt like 25 or 30 mph up in one of those trucks," said Robert Burns, Finch's press secretary.

The truck is carrying a load of fluorescent lights bound for a warehouse in Los Angeles. A spokesman at the governor's mansion said Finch was scheduled to roll through Arizona into California today.

"He drove the rig for four hours before he let his teammate drive," Burns said. "When he got through after the first four hours, he said he was dead tired."

Burns said Finch picked up the jargon used on citizens band radios as a convoy of 20 to 25 trucks joined him.

"The majority of the truckers have given positive reinforcement to the governor over the CB," Burns said. He said Harrison and Finch would probably take four-hour driving shifts.

Harrison will pick up a load of produce in California and return to Mississippi, while Finch is expected to return home aboard the state jet, now parked in Tucson, Ariz.

Planes battle over Lebanon

By The Associated Press

Israeli and Syrian warplanes battled in the sky over southern Lebanon today for the first time in five years and the Israelis claimed they downed five Syrian MiG-21s.

The Syrians acknowledged four of their planes were "hit" and claimed two Israeli planes were shot down. A military communique issued in Damascus, the Syrian capital, indicated the four Syrian planes were downed, saying "all remaining Syrian planes involved in the air battle returned safely to bases."

In Cairo, an Egyptian government statement condemned the Israeli attacks on Palestinian targets which set off the dogfight, saying they posed a grave danger to the Mideast peace process.

The Syrian announcement claimed to have prevented the Israelis from "shelling civilian targets in the Damour area south of Beirut."

The Israeli military command steadfastly maintained all Israeli jets returned safely from the raid against Palestinian guerrilla strongholds.

Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization claimed in a communique that its guerrillas brought down two Israeli jets with shoulder-fired Sam-7 STRELA heat seeking missiles.

It was not immediately clear if these were the same planes the Syrians said were shot down.

A wealthy rancher called The Associated Press in Beirut with a report matching the PLO's, saying one of the two Israeli jets went down just inside his property near Kfar Beirut, 35 miles southeast of the Lebanese capital and 18 miles north of the Israeli frontier.

He said three pilots out of the two planes.

The Israeli army spokesman's office said the dogfight occurred during an Israeli air force raid against Palestinian concentrations in southern Lebanon at about 11 a.m. The Palestinian targets were not identified, but presumably they included heavy artillery pieces that have been shelling northern Israeli towns.

"During the operation they were intercepted by Syrian planes," the command spokesman said. "Five Syrian planes were shot down. The Israeli air force continued the mission. All our planes returned safely to base."

The PLO communique said one target of the Israeli attacks was the Ein El-Hilweh refugee camp on the southern fringe of Sidon. The camp houses 21,000 Palestinian refugees.

The guerrillas reported the Israeli attack lasted 45 minutes and left "heavy damage, casualties and several fires."

Israel Radio said the downed Syrian planes were Soviet-built MiG-21s and that the dogfight was near the Lebanese port city of Sidon, 35 miles north of the Israeli-Lebanese border.

Carter answers Japanese queries

SHIMODA, Japan (AP) — Taking a holiday from summitry, President Carter held a "town meeting" today that developed into a seminar on child-rearing, the family and race relations.

Questions put to Carter by ultra-pollite Japanese gathered in a steamy junior high school gymnasium dealt largely with everyday human concerns — a far cry from the tough queries about energy, inflation and foreign policy that have marked similar sessions back home.

The visiting president did manage to touch on the two issues that will dominate the seven-nation Tokyo economic summit that begins Thursday: energy and the plight of Indochinese refugees.

Energy was a primary topic today in pre-summit discussions as Carter returned to Tokyo. Carter administration officials took sharp exception to French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's pointed criticism of U.S. energy policy and Carter was understood to be angry and disturbed.

The French president said in a Newsweek magazine interview that the United States had failed to start reducing energy consumption, comments that a U.S. official, requesting not to be identified by name, called "accusatory and somewhat confrontational."

At the outset of the hour-long meeting in Shimoda, Carter called once again for the industrial democracies to reduce oil imports, achieve greater conservation and develop solar power and synthetic fuels.

On the refugee problem, Carter said: "I hope that the United Nations will very quickly arouse interest among all 150 nations on earth to receive...refugees, and that all of us might focus our criticism or influence on Vietnam to relieve this growing problem at its source."

Shimoda was chosen as the site for the meeting because Commodore Matthew Perry came here with his gunboats, 125 years ago and opened Japan to trade with the United States.

Some 5,000 to 10,000 Japanese lined the curbs as Carter, wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy traveled about the city. The turnout was smaller than

Graduation requirements upped Midland school trustees keep exemptions

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

Midland school trustees Tuesday restricted senior privilege starting this year and upped graduation requirements for 1981's senior class but retained exam exemptions for high school students.

Trustees also were told the district is doing a good job academically based on test results, but that continued acceptable performance may cost more soon.

In a back-to-basics move, trustees rejected the free-for-all senior privilege policy prevalent at Midland's high schools since 1970.

Only certain qualifying seniors will be allowed to leave the campus after attending fewer than six classes.

Previous policy allowed senior students with enough credit hours to graduate to leave the campus after attending four classes, generally in the morning.

In a unanimous vote, board members chose to "raise standards" and restrict that privilege to students with parental permission who had jobs, were married and had household responsibilities or who were attending Midland College under the early admissions program.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS estimate some 200 seniors who have already preregistered will be affected by the ruling. They will have to be contacted this summer to arrange for the extra two classes.

In the same motion, trustees added a required quarter of free enterprise study to graduation requirements for the 1981 seniors.

Only strong arguments from the administrative staff kept the requirement from being applied to the upcoming class. Some students are in a "must-pass" situation already, staff members explained, and adding a requirement after their year is already planned might prevent "more

Varooooooooom: It's the latest 'in' thing

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Several Midlanders in their 60s have purchased them. An 80-year-old man bought one the other day. And they definitely are becoming the "in" things for those in their 50s.

Condominiums, you say? Or toupees or jogging suits or disco lessons?

Nope, it's motorcycles they're buying — machines formerly described by those same purchasers as "dangerous" and for "hippies" only.

Midlanders apparently are not going to stay at home during the gas shortage...not according to a check of Tall City motorcycle dealers' recent sales.

"Bikes," it seems, are booming. An increase has even left some managers with a shortage of models in stock long before the 1980 models are scheduled to appear this winter.

The sales activity can be traced to the nationwide energy crisis.

Spring traditionally is the best time to push motorcycles, Midland's motorcycle sellers said. But this year, sales have surpassed expectations — especially in the past two months, after the gas shortage became so apparent.

THOSE SALES FIGURES are not only for the heavy motorcycles, but for lighter-weight mopeds and "provide-your-own-power" bicycles.

"People out here (in West Texas) in the past have been slow to accept motorcycles since they always had gas," commented Jim Rohn, manager of one local shop.

But with gas climbing toward $1 a gallon so rapidly, Midlanders appear to have been jolted into seeking other means of transportation. And bikes, whether motorized or pedaled, seemingly have been seized upon as one answer.

"Lots of people have been buying motorcycles lately who have never owned one before," said Eddie Patton, an employee of another motorcycle outlet.

"We've got some (buyers) in their 80s down to little kids on mini-bikes," he added.

And it's not limited to any certain class of people. Patton said sales have ranged from construction laborers and people in the oil and gas business to doctors and lawyers.

He cited the example of one woman who works for Exxon Oil Co. He said she bought a motorcycle to ride to work. A few days later, her boss came in and purchased one.

Charlotte Foster, who with her husband operates a Midland dealership on North Big Spring Street, pointed out that a lot of people in their 40s have purchased motorcycles because "it would cost less to get to where they are going."

MOPED SALES HAVE skyrocketed in the Tall City. A lot of young women and middle-age people are going after these lightweight two-wheelers, noted Patton. He added that many of the sales are to people who work downtown, where mopeds are being used as a solution to the parking problem.

Mrs. Foster said her business now gets about 10 calls a day for mopeds.

City exceeds its fuel allocation

By MIKE SLATON
Staff Writer

Midland city officials presently have a proposal before the U.S. Department of Energy office in Houston to allow an increase in the city's fuel allotment, according to Robert Massengale, director of finance for the city of Midland.

The proposal follows a notice last week by Gulf Oil Company that the city had exceeded its fuel allotment for the month of June by 4,000 gallons, according to Massengale.

"We were not even aware that the city had a fuel allotment until last Thursday," said the finance director.

Massengale said that, during a delivery of fuel Thursday, it was mentioned that the delivery was the last for the month.

"The information 'caused almost immediate panic,'" said Massengale.

A meeting Tuesday with Gulf Oil officials, who will carry the allocation increase proposal to the DOE, indicated the city should have no problem getting the allotment increase, Massengale said.

However, said Massengale, the city began taking conservation measures last week when officials became aware of the allocation situation.

Some conservation measures were worked out at that time by City Manager James W. Brown, according to Massengale.

Brown was not available for comment today, but Fred Baker, director of public works, said some of the measures include a directive to city employees to eliminate all unnecessary trips in city vehicles and to shut off the engines of the vehicles instead of allowing them to idle in order to keep radios charged and air conditioners operating.

The allocation problem affects all city vehicles, including those in the police and fire departments as well as garbage and public works vehicles, said Baker.

Main problem with city fuel allocations, explained Baker, is that allocations are based on last year's use and do not take into account approximately 24 new vehicles added to the city fleet this year.

Wants gas on Sunday

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Tourist Development Agency has asked Gov. Bill Clements to consider mandatory weekend gasoline sales in an effort to force gas stations to remain open on Sunday.

Executive Director Frank Hildebrand told the Austin American-Statesman forcing stations to sell gas on weekends "could save the state a lot of gas grief as it faces panic buying on Fridays and Mondays."

Texas area forecasts

West Texas: Sunny through Thursday. Fair tonight except partly cloudy with widely scattered thunderstorms this afternoon and evening mostly in the south. Warmer central and east. Highs mostly in the 80s except near 100 Big Bend lowlands. Lows 62 to 72 except upper 30s mountains.

North Texas: Some cloudiness otherwise mostly fair and warm through Thursday. Highs 80 to 91. Lows 67 to 71.

South Texas: Partly cloudy through Thursday with scattered mainly afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms, more numerous southeast Texas. Highs 80 along the coast to near 100 extreme South Texas near the Rio Grande. Mostly 90s elsewhere. Lows tonight 80 Hill Country and parts of Southeast Texas to near 80 along the immediate coast. Mostly 70s elsewhere.

Port Arthur to Port O'Connor: East and northeast winds near 10 knots becoming east and southeast in 10 to 15 knots tonight and southeast near 10 knots Thursday. Seas 1 to 2 feet. Winds and waves higher in and near scattered showers and thunderstorms.

Port O'Connor to Brownsville: Southeast winds 10 to 15 knots through Thursday and 10 knots or less tonight. Seas 2 to 4 feet. Widely scattered showers and a few thunderstorms.

Extended forecasts

Friday Through Sunday:

West Texas: Clear to partly cloudy with hot afternoons. Chance of thunderstorms Big Bend region and in Panhandle over the weekend. Highs 90 north to 100 southwest. Lows 65 to 75.

North Texas: Partly cloudy days, mostly clear at night. Widely scattered thunderstorms Friday and Saturday, mainly eastern half of area. Daytime high temperatures ranging from lower 80s southeast to near 100 northwest. Night time low temperatures in the mid 70s.

Sounding almost like a broken record, the weatherman is predicting that another sunny day is in store Thursday for Midlanders.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport said the weather should be fair and a little warmer Thursday.

Winds tonight should be light and southeasterly.

No precipitation was recorded for the 24-hour period ending at 6 a.m. today. This keeps the month's total at 2.98 inches, double the average June rainfall of 1.49 inches.

The rainfall measurement so far this year stands at 6.98 inches, almost three-fourths of an inch above the mid-year normal of 6.24 inches.

Sunset will be at 8:59 p.m. today and sunrise will be at 6:45 a.m. Thursday.

Wednesday's high was 89 degrees and today's low was 64 degrees.

The record high for June 26 is 103 degrees, set in 1972. The record low for today is 61 degrees, set in 1968.

The same sunny weather was reported by area weather watchers throughout the Permian Basin.

Showers and thunderstorms were forecast for South Texas today, but most of the state was to have continued fair skies and warm temperatures.

Highs were expected to be mostly in the 90s with readings in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas expected to reach 100.

Some light rain fell along the middle Texas coast during the night, but only Palacios recorded any rain. The showers were still falling during the pre-dawn hours.

Most of Texas had clear skies early today except for along the middle Texas coast. Some low clouds and patchy fog was reported in the Hill Country.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s and 70s. Extremes ranged from 58 at Marfa and 65 at both Junction and Dalhart to 78 at Galveston.

Midland parking lots are starting to fill with a different type of vehicle — the macho-laden motorcycle. And riders are not just those belonging to the younger generation. And Jesse Moore, parts manager for another North Big Spring retailer, said he sold 15 mopeds in one month.

Bicycle sales for the past two months are about 30 percent above last year's sales, commented David Ham, manager of a bicycle store here.

Some bicycle buyers claim they will use these contraptions for exercise, Ham said. But he believes bicycles also will be used for short trips to the store, in place of gas-guzzling automobiles.

And a whole slew of Tall City residents in the 30- to 50-year-old range have been purchasing bicycles. In fact, Ham attributed the increase in sales to that age group.

With sales up so considerably, the problem of not enough supplies to meet the demand has cropped up.

BICYCLES ARE in short supply, Ham said. One of his major suppliers is sold out of its stock, and Ham's business will be getting its last few shipments soon. And another problem has raised its head — a shortage of parts, he added.

Concerning motorized two-wheelers, Patton said one of his motorcycle suppliers is out of every 1979 model, and he's running low.

Because of this, that manufacturer has plans to release its 1980 models several months early — around July to meet the demand, Patton added.

Yet Jim Osborn, manager of a Midland motorcycle facility, said he had "all the supplies I need."

Mrs. Foster could use more motorcycles to sell. She said she can still get a few 1979 models, but they are not her best sellers.

ROHN SAID HIS last shipment of motorcycles has arrived and he only has a few left. Samples of the 1980 models are expected out in six to seven weeks, he said, but orders can't be filled until about October. If he runs out of motorcycles, Rohn said his shop still will be open — for repairs and parts.

Another dealer, Moore, said he already is contemplating what to do when the last of his motorcycles are sold. "I guess I could knit, I could crochet, I could..." he said with a laugh.

His store will remain open for parts and repairs, even though it will cost about $363 a day, Moore added.

Sales to older people could present problems which purchasers and motorists have not considered, Mrs. Foster said.

"You get more people who have never been around bikes (motorcycles), and accidents are more likely to happen," she predicted. "People who have been riding bikes since they were young are one thing. Older people are a whole new ball game."

expected, perhaps because of intermittent rain and the presence of 5,500 police.

In the gymnasium where Carter spoke, about 70 of the 500 people on hand were plainclothes police officers.

Still, the Carters seemed to get closer to the Japanese people here than in sprawling Tokyo. They popped their heads through the open roof of the presidential limousine and waved to onlookers who wagged small Japanese and American flags.

The free-wheeling Yankee tradition of a "town meeting" was unprecedented in Japan, and the traditionally formal, polite Japanese seemed uncertain how to react, and careful not to embarrass their guest.

Before Carter arrived at the school a White House advance man asked for a show of hands from those who planned to question the president.

When only a single hand went up, he said, "I am begging you" to volunteer. The courteous Japanese responded affirmatively.

One of the questions put to Carter were provocative, and mildly so at that.

One woman said she understood "formal segregation" still exists in the United States and asked if Carter would marry a black woman "without any resistance."

After pointing to 25 years of progress in breaking down racial barriers at home, Carter said: "I have never been in love with any other woman except my wife, but I would hope that in the true spirit of equality and in an absence of racial prejudice, that I would not let the color of a woman's skin interfere with my love for her if I felt that way. And marriage, of course, would be part of that relationship if the circumstances should permit."

The president then turned toward his wife, in a front-row seat, and added: "It is a hypothetical question, Rosalynn, and I have no intention to leave you for another woman."

A tangerine farmer tried to raise some sparks by claiming his livelihood was threatened by imports of American citrus products.

Carter said the United States takes great care to avoid disrupting the Japanese economy and pointed to an agreement under which, he said, U.S. exports of citrus products would amount to just 2 percent of Japanese consumption by 1983.

Most of the questions dealt with Carter's memories of childhood, his philosophy on raising children and his thoughts about the family.

Asked if his fondness for Amy might cause him to want her to avoid marriage, Carter said — while Amy grinned — that "I think in a few more years, I hope at least seven or eight more years, Amy will find a good young man, get married and move away."

He quickly added he hopes she'll visit her parents often.

To another questioner, Carter confessed he was paddled by his teacher and said: "perhaps one of the reasons I ultimately became president was because my teachers were very strict..."

The only questioner to address Carter in English was a high school girl who said she had brought to the hall copies of the president's autobiography. "Why Not The Best?" She said she was "much impressed by it."

Carter agreed to autograph the book, and invited the girl to visit him at the White House some day.

The president seemed wistful at one point in talking about living "in the fields and on the farm, in the woods, along the streams" as a youngster.

He concluded: "When I am now in the White House in Washington, my greatest hunger is to be alone, away from security, away from the press, and to be in the fields and the woods again. Maybe when I am no longer president I will have this chance."

Burglaries, thefts reported

Several burglaries and thefts were reported Tuesday to the Midland Police Department, according to officers.

A burglary was reported at the Executive Lounge, 3803 W. Wall St., police indicated. Although there were no signs of forcible entry to the business, an estimated $328.45 was reported taken in the burglary, police said.

Westside Church of Christ, 4410 West Illinois Ave., reported $20 in cash taken from the church. Entry apparently was through a window, police said.

A burglary which resulted in the loss of $80 in cash was reported at Westside Exxon, 4400 W. Illinois Ave., police said.

Entry to the business was gained through a rear door.

A reported theft at a Texas Electric Service Company building on Cotton Flat Road resulted in the loss of a .270-caliber rifle, a four-power rifle scope, a shotgun and a knife, according to police. No information was available on how entry was gained to the building.

A car radio valued at $50 was reported missing from Gary's Automotive, 305 S. Terrell St., according to police.

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements Tuesday announced the appointment of Ector County District Attorney John Green to a one-year term on the advisory board for the Criminal Justice Division.

Man arrested at city hospital

Police responding to an alarm in the basement of Midland Memorial Hospital at 1:34 a.m. today discovered a 28-year-old man apparently trying to escape through an air conditioning vent in the pharmacy, police said.

The man reportedly told police he was there to fix the air conditioning but a quick check with hospital officials indicated the man "had no business being there," police said.

The man was arrested but no charges had been filed early today, police said.

Nothing was missing from the pharmacy during an initial check, police said.

Emergency room personnel reported the basement alarm to police, officials said.

Graduation requirements increased by school board

While students lost unrestricted senior privilege, they retained the right to earn exam exemptions for class attendance and conduct.

Trustee Ed Runyan, a leader in the back-to-basics movement, argued that final exams were an "educational experience, and I don't favor giving away an educational experience for 'unmarred classroom conduct.' No matter how you cut it, it's a lowering of standards."

Teachers in the audience, however, contended the quarter exams were generally just another testing method and that the policy requirements of good class attendance, conduct and a passing grade "make a composite of a student who is achieving."

Moreover, since many high school courses are skills courses rather than content, "if you are a competent teacher, you already know whether he has that skill," teacher Jack Fryar argued.

"It's not a choice between a test and no test, it's a choice between three tests or four," Maridell Fryar added.

THE MOTION TO rescind the policy failed 3-2 with Runyan and Parker Humes voting in the minority. Trustee Johnny Warren, a strong back-to-basics advocate, was not at the meeting, and board president Marshall McCrea did not vote.

In a report on standardized test results for the district, trustees were told their back-to-basics trusts were working.

Some schools, however, especially in the primary grades where students attend neighborhood schools, showed severe problems.

Also, students did not always test up to the expected level based on their IQ scores, trustees were told.

Overall, the district scores improve considerably by the junior high school level, the report showed.

Trustees will get a report on the end-of-year tests and growth shown there at their next meeting.

A preliminary budget study foreshadowed some bad news for taxpayers.

The $5,000 homestead exemption given them by the Legislature as part of the Tax Relief Amendment may cost Midlanders more than it saves.

The Midland school district lost $773,800 in revenue because of the exemptions, but will be reimbursed by the state for only $562,994. The extra $200,000 must be either raised from increased taxes or cut from the budget.

IN MORE MONETARY bad news, trustees were told that because of increasing values and declining student enrollments, the district was losing another $300,000 in state equalization aid compared with last year.

Based on current values and tax rates and including all state aid expected, the Midland school district should have some $1.2 million more in funds than it had last year.

The preliminary budget, however, shows an increase in costs of $2.6 million.

Each penny of the tax rate produces $109,000 in revenue for the school district, so if these numbers were used for the final budget, Midlanders would face a 13 percent increase in taxes.

Trustees stressed, however, that these are only preliminary figures, and the budget will get a thorough going over before it is finally approved in August.

Survivors include his wife, Isabell; a daughter, Barbara Compeau of Lansing, Mich.; a son, Charles Hall of Dallas, and a sister, Evert Theresa Graham of England.

Unemployment goes up somewhat in Midland

Midland's civilian labor force during May edged downward slightly, and unemployment crawled upward, the Texas Employment Commission has announced.

But Midland remained in third place among Texas cities with the lowest unemployment figures with a 3 percent level.

Ranking above Midland for May were Bryan-College Station with 2.5 percent and Austin with 2.8 percent. Midland tied with San Angelo and Abilene. The state rate of unemployment is 4.2 percent, while the national average is 5.2 percent.

Last month, 44,580 persons were eligible to work, compared with 44,690 in April. The figure jumped, though, from 43,490 in May 1978. And TEC expects the number to rise to 47,100 for August.

The Tall City's 3 percent unemployment figure is up slightly from the 2.8 percent in April. The percentage is better, however, than 3.5 percent recorded in May 1978.

But the number of workers looking for jobs is expected to increase to 4.7 percent for August as more people will be looking for summer jobs.

The number of persons unemployed in May was an estimated 1,340. That is expected to go up to 2,200 for August, according to the TEC.

Part of the increase in unemployment last month was attributed to "unstable economic factors," the TEC said.

By August, agricultural employment should be in full swing. And non-agricultural jobs by that time should number to about 39,450.

The TEC, now called the Midland Job Service Office, reported problems in filling openings for accountants, geologists, nurses, clerks, maintenance mechanics, diesel and heavy equipment mechanics, machinists and welders.

A spokesman said a large number of young people are registering with the employment office for summer work.

Employers needing vacation replacements, full or part-time workers, may telephone the TEC office, 501 N. Loraine St., by dialing 682-9421.

Elvis Presley's father dies

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Though his son Elvis earned millions and lived lavishly, Vernon Presley liked simple cooking and shunned the hoopla of Elvis' fame. He died as he had lived — quietly.

"I ate a lot of turnip greens, peas and cornbread growing up," the one-time Mississippi sharecropper once joked. "I enjoy this life but if things ever get that bad again, I could boil up some of the grass," pointing to the manicured lawns of Graceland, the estate belonging to his son, the late rock and roll legend.

Vernon Presley died Tuesday at age 63, a victim of heart disease, the same ailment that killed his son two years ago and his wife, Gladys, in 1958. Funeral services will be conducted Thursday with burial at Graceland, where Elvis and Mrs. Presley are buried.

Plagued by heart problems since 1975, Presley entered Baptist Hospital May 29. His son was pronounced dead at the same hospital Aug. 16, 1977.

Vernon Presley was born in near poverty on a small farm near Fulton, Miss. He married during the Depression, supporting his wife and son by working as a carpenter, farmer and painter. He loaded the family in a 1939 Dodge and moved to Memphis in 1948, where he worked as a laborer until his son rocketed to fame in 1955.

Vernon Presley managed his son's business affairs and was known for keeping a tight rein on money. Elvis designated Vernon as executor of his estate.

Last September, Presley announced his engagement to Sandra Miller, his private duty nurse. A wedding date was never set, however, because of his worsening health.

'Affirmative action' upheld, 5-2

... But Bakke case forbids university race quota policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, providing a major "affirmative action" victory, ruled today that employers with no proven history of racial bias may voluntarily offer special preferences to minority workers.

By a 5-2 vote, the justices ruled that employers may sometimes use racial quotas in their programs aimed at helping minority workers.

In a critically important test case, the court ruled that Brian F. Weber, who is white, was not a victim of illegal racial bias when in 1974 he was excluded from an on-the-job program designed to help blacks.

Writing for the court, Justice William J. Brennan Jr. said that a 1964 federal law that bans racial and sexual bias in employment "does not condemn all private, voluntary, race-conscious affirmative action plans."

Brennan was joined by Justices Potter Stewart, Byron R. White, Thurgood Marshall and Harry A. Blackmun. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice William H. Rehnquist dissented.

Justices John Paul Stevens and Lewis F. Powell Jr. took no part in deciding Weber's case.

Stevens disqualified himself as soon as the court agreed to study it last December. Although he refused to tell reporters why, it has been learned that Stevens did so because he had represented Weber's employer, Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Co., in his days as a Chicago lawyer.

Powell was recovering from surgery for removal of an intestinal tumor when the court heard arguments in Weber's case last March 26.

Weber, a 32-year-old laboratory worker at Kaiser's plant in Gramercy, La., sued his employer in 1974 after being refused participation in a craft training program that led to higher-paying jobs.

The program, approved in a collectively bargained agreement between Kaiser and the United Steelworkers union, accepted minority and white employees on a one-for-one basis.

It was begun in response to Kaiser's concern about the small percentage of its black employees holding craft jobs.

In 1974, 39 percent of the local work force was black, and 15 percent of Kaiser's Gramercy plant workers were black. But less than 2 percent of the plant's craft workers — 5 of 273 — were black.

Also, Kaiser recently had been sued by black employees at two other Louisiana plants for alleged racial discrimination.

Kaiser did not blame itself for the obvious racial disparity in skilled jobs. It attributed the disparity — and the need for a voluntary affirmative action plan — to a lack of training opportunities for blacks in the building trades industry.

Had trainees been selected solely on a seniority basis, no blacks would have been included in the Gramercy program. Therefore, all white applicants were selected from one "pool" based on seniority and all black applicants were selected from a separate "pool," also based on seniority.

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — A year ago, Allan Bakke was a balding aero-space engineering student who had spent most of the '70s chasing his dream of going to medical school.

Now, thanks to the U.S. Supreme Court decision which bears his name, he is living that dream at the University of California at Davis.

Bakke claimed he was denied admission to the UC-Davis medical school because he is white.

The court ruled by a 5-4 vote that Bakke had been illegally excluded and struck down an admissions policy that made race the only factor in considering applications for a certain number of class openings.

At the same time, however, the court — by a different 5-4 split — upheld the idea that race may be taken into account in a university's admissions decision.

The issue presented in the case of Brian Weber which the Supreme Court ruled on today was whether employers with no proven history of racial bias illegally discriminate against whites by giving preference to minority employees. Weber also is white.

Weber, a 32-year-old laboratory analyst at Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Co.'s Gramercy, La., plant sued his employer in 1974 after he was denied a place in an on-the-job training program. Weber charged — and two lower courts agreed — that he was excluded only because of his race.

The Supreme Court ruled by a 5-2 vote that employers may sometimes use racial quotas in their programs aimed at helping minority workers. It said Weber was not a victim of illegal racial bias.

Was the long court battle that Bakke went through worth the effort? He won't say. In fact, he won't say anything to reporters, a silence he has maintained since long before the landmark court decision which got him into school.

"Allan Bakke is a very private person — the principle that he fought for was always more important to him than his own personal involvement in the cause," says Bakke's attorney Reynold Colvin of San Francisco.

Blueprint for freedom

"To regain our freedom, we have to get government hands out of our pockets."

"We have to turn out of government those who say we are not smart enough to spend the money we earn ourselves."

"To put it simply, we have to shrink the government in order to preserve and expand our freedom."

These words of sound judgment and wisdom form a truly great and meaningful blueprint for freedom.

The words are those of Jay VanAndel, the recently-elected chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, voiced in an address delivered at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Atlanta, Ga.

In his address, VanAndel termed inflation and regulation by "big government" two of the gravest threats to freedom in the United States.

He said specific problems needing attention include deregulation at the federal level, the financial troubles of the Social Security system, teenage unemployment, and the cost and availability of energy.

The chamber chairman said, "Freedom is a tender plant. It is rare, hard to start, difficult to cultivate, needs constant attention, and dies easily. Greed and force destroy it. The very wealth and ease and success it produces imperil its existence."

VanAndel, one of the nation's outstanding business leaders, really is an artist, painting as he does in this instance, a vivid word picture which shows clearly and distinctly the hazards facing freedom in America today.

The point he makes is right down the line with a recent comment of Columnist Edwin Feulner of The Heritage Foundation: "The U.S. economy is suffocating under a complex web of federal regulations which is increasing consumer costs dramatically, and stifling the productivity advances necessary to sustain the American way of life."

Back to VanAndel's address, he said, "Once again, as in colonial days, we have government without representation — an army of bureaucrats, not elected and unresponsive to us — control more and more of our daily lives at our expense.

"Once more, local government has become weak and nearly bankrupt, power has now moved to Washington instead of London (as in colonial days), and Washington has become as hard of hearing as London was in 1776."

He charged further that government is so "monstrously big and expensive that we collectively must work from January to mid-June each year just to pay the taxes it levies for its support." Inflated currency, he continued, has devalued money "so that the dollar you had 40 years ago is only worth 18 cents today."

The chamber executive said that government at all levels costs $8,000 per household per year — $160 a week.

He is optimistic that the United States is waking up to the pervasive power of government and that a consensus is building to reverse the trend.

The business leader pledged that the chamber will continue its campaign against inflation and "also will continue to be a leading voice in the fight to prevent mandatory wage and price controls."

VanAndel's cure for inflation, incidentally, is a combination of federal tax and spending limits. He urged, as a first step, statutory limits enacted by Congress.

He cited the competitive system of the free market coupled with a sound currency based on sound government fiscal policies as other ways to successfully battle inflation.

He said that inflation and unwise tax policies have reduced the profitability of American business so much that the nation no longer has the most productive factories and work force in the world.

Mr. VanAndel has a story to tell, and he tells it well — and forcefully. This is the message he will be delivering over the nation for the next year from his platform as the elective head of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. More power to him!

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Saudis cut back oil production

WASHINGTON — Six months ago, Saudi Arabia began pumping oil full-blast to accommodate the United States during the shutdown of the Iranian oil fields. But today, the disenchanted Saudis are cutting back production sharply. "Why should it be Saudi Arabia's responsibility to meet the shortage?" Foreign Minister Saud al-Faisal has demanded.

It's an unsettling question, which poses a direct threat to the oil security of the United States. First, the down fall of the shah jeopardized the flow of oil from Iran. Now the cavalier attitude of the Saudi sheiks raises ominous new supply uncertainties.

The Saudis had always been staunchly pro-American. Then what caused this change of heart? Why are they suddenly unwilling to do the United States any favors?

The answer can be found in White House papers which have been concealed from the American people. Last November, for example, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger warned President Carter of the grim consequences of an Iranian collapse. The curtailment of oil shipments from Iran, he said, could be more serious to the United States than the Middle East oil embargo of 1973-74.

But the Saudis came to the rescue with a dramatic upsurge in oil production. The Jan. 15, 1979, Cabinet minutes, carefully marked for the "eyes only" of top officials, recorded: "Secretary Schlesinger reported that unrest in Iran has resulted in a cut-off of the five million barrels per day production of Iranian oil fields."

"The Saudis and others have increased production of their fields temporarily by over three million barrels per day to replace approximately half of the Iranian supply loss. The net effort is a drawdown of approximately two million barrels per day from world stockpiles. If supplies from Iran are resumed within a reasonable time period, there will be no supply problems next winter..."

The Iranians have returned to their oil pumps. But a hostile Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has shown no disposition to bail out the United States. "We don't need America," he has declared. "It is they who need us. They want our oil."

Intelligence reports tell of turmoil, meanwhile, in the Iranian oil fields. The ayatollah's troops put down an insurrection last month of Iranian Arabs. Their leaders, still unrepentant, are threatening strikes. So at best, the outflow of oil from Iran is uncertain.

Now the Saudis, who supply most of our overseas oil, have turned sour on America. To alienate the friendly Saudis was difficult, but Jimmy Carter managed to do it. He shook their faith in him by failing to protect the shah from the Khomeini revolution. After declaring his unqualified support of the shah, Carter abruptly abandoned him.

The besieged shah had pleaded with the Carter administration for advice and support. But Carter had sent back word that the revolution was the shah's problem. "This is something in the hands of the people of Iran," said the president, with an air of detachment.

The Saudi rulers wondered whether they would receive the same indifferent treatment if their own regime were endangered. They put Carter to the test by calling on him to protect the tremendous U.S. stake in the Persian Gulf oil fields. He responded by ordering the aircraft carrier Constellation to rush, full-steam, from the Philippines to the Persian Gulf. But then he canceled the order, and the carrier dropped anchor off Singapore.

The Soviets tightened the pressure on Saudi Arabia, meanwhile, by airlifting 500 Cuban mercenaries into the Arabian Sea and sending them into action against Saudi-subsidized North Yemen. In response to another appeal, Carter dispatched a dozen F-15 fighter planes to Saudi Arabia. But they arrived unarmed.

Disillusioned and desperate, the Saudis turned to their Arab neighbors, Syria and Iraq, which have close ties to Moscow. The Iraqis quickly persuaded the Soviets to call off the assault on North Yemen. Iraq has also rushed a division of troops to the troubled Iranian border. So instead of the American military muscle that the Saudis had sought, the Iraqis are staging a show of force at the head of the Persian Gulf.

Now Iraq is leading the clamor inside the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries for higher oil prices. Perhaps the Saudis cannot be blamed for paying more heed to Iraq than to the United States.

ART BUCHWALD Horrors! Iran's finest wines go down the drain

WASHINGTON — I happened to be watching the news the other night with Huntsinger, a great wine connoisseur. It was the usual stuff — war in Nicaragua, Vietnam refugees pouring into Hong Kong, congressional gasoline shortage hearings, locust plagues in the Midwest, prices going up. None of it seemed to faze Huntsinger as we looked at the screen. Then suddenly, there was a news story from Teheran. The film showed the Intercontinental Hotel, and said the Ayatollah Khomeini had ordered all the wine and liquor in the cellar destroyed.

Huntsinger jumped out of his chair. "What the hell are they doing?"

"It looks to me as if they are breaking bottles in the street," I said.

He got so close to the screen as he could and said, "Oh well, they're only breaking Chardonnay 1975. It's a good everyday wine but hardly a provocative one."

One of the revolutionaries was shown smashing what looked to be a bottle of Beaujolais. Huntsinger encoored, "I wouldn't be caught dead drinking that. It's for the peasants."

Another bearded soldier broke the top off a white Burgundy. "Did you see what I saw?" Huntsinger shouted. "That was a Chassagne Montrachet 1977! What kind of savages are they?"

"It looks like they're playing hand ball," I told him.

A soldier took his rifle butt and slammed it into a case of Bordeaux.

He said, "I don't believe it. Do you know what he's destroying? A case of Mouton Rothschild 1949, one of the greatest vintages of the century. How can they let children watch this on television?"

"It's a tough world, and you can't censor wine smashing just because it turns your stomach."

"That man is pouring Dom Perignon Champagne into the sewer!" Huntsinger cried.

"What year?" I wanted to know.

"What difference does it make? It's Dom Perignon — the gift of the gods."

"Look at that guy," I said, pointing to the screen. "Isn't he breaking a bottle of Chablis against the curb?"

Huntsinger studied it. "Yes, but it's a very overrated white that reached its peak three years ago."

"Well, you can say one thing about the revolutionaries, they're destroying the good with the bad."

"I don't believe it. They're starting on the Chateau Latour '59. Some day they're going to have to answer to a wine crimes commission for what they've done."

"The Romanee Conti is going next. Look at what a beautiful color it has even when it's poured into the gutter."

"I can't look," Huntsinger said, his hands over his eyes. "No one has ever done that to a bottle of Romanee Conti since Prohibition. Sacre bleu!"

"Don't look now, Huntsinger, but they're throwing hand grenades into the Haut Brion '55."

Huntsinger beat his fists against the screen. "Stop," he yelled. "You're destroying the nobility of France!"

"It's no use, Huntsinger. The Ayatollah is so ignorant he probably drinks Sauterne with Steak Diane."

"What the hell is the CIA doing, letting them dump a million dollars' worth of liquid gold into a sewer?"

"It's too late," I told him. "There goes the last of Iran's Sherry supply. There's no way the Intercontinental Hotel Restaurant will get three stars now."

Huntsinger said, "Good. After what they've done it doesn't deserve a mention in the Guide Michelin at all."

Mark Russell says

The Supreme Court has brought about the possibility of federal agents breaking into the home of a cancer victim and staging a Laetrile bust.

The court says this derivative of apricot pits is an illegal drug. Imagine a narc searching a suspect — "Nothing here but pot, hashish and cocaine. He's clean."

There is no doubt that marijuana will eventually be legalized. Laetrile will remain illegal because they don't want too many people feeling better at one time.

Marijuana is acceptable because they can't prove that it's harmful. Laetrile is illegal because they can't prove that it isn't. Cigarettes are legal because the tobacco lobby is stronger than the apricot pit lobby.

NICK THIMMESCH

Ronald Reagan stars at Petroleum Landmen's meeting

EL PASO, Tex. — The Ronald Reagan speech was the single event the men and women at the Petroleum Landmen's Convention dressed up for. At their earlier meetings, receptions and sports outings, they were in polyester, plaid shirts, blue jeans, even boots. But to hear the gospel, they came in black tie, business suits and long dresses.

Petroleum landmen are a hearty breed who believe entrepreneurs should go get it, make it work for the people's benefit, and their profit, and keep the government out. They don't talk like Harvard Business School grads, but rather like people out of the great Southwestern oil basins. They like what Reagan says.

"A government program is the closest thing to eternal life on earth," he declared to cheers. When he lamented that "120 million Americans depend on the tax dollar," the sign reading, "Free Enterprise — Our Future," fell from the podium. An omen?

Anyway, Reagan skillfully laced his speech with knowledgeable statistics. "Between 1940 and 1977, we increased our money supply 1,000 percent but not our productivity...Three hundred violations were found in the OSHA building." The same with dramatic epigram ("Washington invents miracle cures for nonexistent diseases...We'll all do a lot more driving if government gets out of the way and lets your industry do the job...The problem isn't a shortage of fuel but a surplus of government...The decline of public school education began when federal aid became federal intervention").

He was the Gipper when telling about the plainsman who defied OSHA, saying, softly but firmly, "Maybe it's time us old duffers did something," and in reciting, with perfect timing, how in England, a commoner, viewing a Rolls Royce, vows to remove its owner one day, where in the United States, an ordinary soul, seeing a Cadillac, resolves to earn one.

Reagan is a man of many parts. After the standing ovation and the last so-long to an ardent woman fan, he talked in his car about strategy and plans.

"There is a hunger for leadership out there," he said. "People don't feel they're getting it. Carter's almost as bad as Jerry Brown. Without pause or explanation, he changes directions."

Reagan holds his announcement until fall because he feels people are satiated with politics. "We allow them no rest between campaigns," he explains. "They are asked too often to get up emotionally, so fewer and fewer vote. I am stubborn. Give them a rest and let them worry about the World Series."

He says that "nobody noticed that the great split in the GOP has been gone for quite a while," and that he has never seen the party so unified. "All candidates will have a contest," he says of the 1980 primaries, "and we won't snipe at each other."

"Some people — and possibly President Ford thinks this — believe that with all these candidates, there won't be consensus. Then the convention will look around to get someone not among those running. That could happen."

The flurry of Republican candidates prompted the press to try to poke holes in Reagan's poll-strengthened armor. It apparently found one in the "age issue." Reagan, now 67, says, "The press, not the people, brought it up. It can't be a major issue as long as you're physically able to have your mental faculties. Say, if Javits runs next year (at age 76), that ought to take a little of that age thing off me. And he's going for six years."

So the "age issue," he says, will give way when "serious" issues like energy and inflation are discussed. He claims there was no energy problem until the government got involved, and believes there is no need for a Department of Energy. "It has a budget as big as the total after-tax profits of the entire U.S. oil industry," he says. "What the hell has it accomplished?"

He likens inflation to radioactivity

("You can't control it — it's cumulative"), and says the way to stop it is to keep money tight, cut federal spending, increase productivity, and end unnecessary regulations, which he claims account for 50 percent inflation.

"I'm not sure that when Carter and Kennedy got together on this trucking deregulation, they chose the right thing," he said. "They might be creating hardship and confusion in that industry."

Reagan seems more resigned than weary, but still has that necessary yearning. "My wife and I know what to expect, and how hard and yet rewarding a campaign is," he said. "Things need to be done. If enough people think I can do these things, I'd sure like to take a crack at it. It isn't a hunger to occupy the position. I'd love to take a crack at doing things that need doing."

Malaysia tows more boat people

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The Malaysian navy towed 826 more boat people back out to sea today while almost twice that number arrived in Hong Kong harbor on 12 leaky boats.

The 826, mainly ethnic Chinese from Vietnam, were towed into the South China Sea Tuesday aboard eight boats. They were the latest flotilla from Malaysia's get-tough policy on refugees.

The government said it would maintain its strict enforcement policy and announced it has begun buying additional boats on which to expel the Vietnamese.

Malaysian Home Affairs Minister Ghazali suggested the problem of Indochinese refugees could be solved by establishing a large processing center for the fleeing boat people in the United States or another Western nation.

Ghazali told a news conference Tuesday night that if Western countries did not follow his suggestion Malaysia and Indonesia might establish their own refugee center on an Indonesian island. There are about 76,000 Vietnamese refugees in Malaysia and 34,000 in Indonesia.

Earlier this month, Malaysia announced a strict policy of blocking new arrivals of refugees and forcing those boat people who do make it to shore back out to sea. Since the policy began, officials said 77 boats carrying more than 14,457 refugees have been pushed back into international waters.

In Hong Kong, a government spokesman said 12 rickety boats arrived in groups Tuesday carrying 1,579 refugees. They were taken to a ramshackle government dockyard already packed with 10,000 boat people.

The British colony has nearly 57,000 refugees in its makeshift camps and the spokesman said at the current rate of arrivals, there will be more than 200,000 refugees by the end of the year.

A Japanese Red Cross official said 61 Vietnamese boat people entered the Bay of Tokyo on a Belgian tanker Tuesday night after being rescued last week from a sinking craft in the South China Sea. The refugees hope to settle permanently in Belgium, the official said.

A Vietnamese delegation has been visiting Southeast Asian nations this week to discuss the refugee situation. The various governments have expressed skepticism concerning a Vietnamese agreement negotiated with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees. The agreement calls for the orderly emigration of Vietnamese who wish to leave to countries willing to accept them for resettlement.

The first 107 refugees designated under the plan arrived in Bangkok, Thailand, Tuesday on a special Air Vietnam flight.

The U.N. refugee office estimates there are 350,000 Indochinese refugees in temporary camps in Southeast Asia. Most of them are ethnic Chinese and claim they have faced Vietnamese discrimination.

Most face overcrowded conditions in the various camps. Malaysian officials last week investigated a reported outbreak of Bubonic plague in the rat-infested Tengah refugee camp on Pulau Island. There was no confirmation of the disease, which is transmitted by flea-carrying rats. Health officials were taking steps to exterminate the estimated 19,000 rats and other vermin on the island. They did confirm several other viral diseases among the 9,500 refugees there.

Cliche about heart of gold turns out true in France

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — The flood of refugees pouring out of Vietnam received support from an unexpected source today when a group of prostitutes in Strasbourg launched a major fund-collecting campaign among their sisters in France.

The campaign was initiated by a woman identified only as Isa, one of Strasbourg's estimated 100 prostitutes, who said the fund drive was to prevent a new Holocaust.

"We are doing this because we want to participate in a world mutual aid movement," Isa said.

The Strasbourg prostitutes have begun collecting money which they will turn over to the French Red Cross. They have contacted their fellow streetwalkers, estimated at about 60,000 throughout France, asking each of them to give 50 to 100 francs — $11.50 to $23.00 — for "the Vietnamese women and children in distress."

"In each city in France, one woman must put herself in charge of the collection and then make contact with the Red Cross as we have done in Strasbourg," said Isa.

Zimbabwe Rhodesia order blocks party defectors from assembly seats

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe Rhodesia (AP) — James Chikerema and six other defectors from Prime Minister Bishop Abel Muzorewa's United African National Council were temporarily blocked today from taking their seats in the House of Assembly.

The Zimbabwe Rhodesian Supreme Court issued an interim order restraining the seven from serving as members of Parliament until the case comes before the court again on July 11.

The petition was brought against Chikerema by the UANC and its First Vice President Ernest Bulle.

The court said the elections were held under a system where the public voted for parties and could indicate no preference for individual candidates. If members were free to resign and join different parties, glaring anomalies could be created, it said.

A hearing scheduled for July 11 is expected to last three days and will determine whether the dissidents will be forced to resign their seats with the UANC naming replacements.

The defection by the seven from the UANC last week cost the newly installed prime minister his majority in the 100-seat black-dominated Parliament, which formally opened Tuesday. Eight members originally defected, but one has since rejoined Muzorewa.

Chikerema, who founded the Zimbabwe Democratic Party after defecting, was met by a protest of several hundred Muzorewa supporters as he entered the Parliament building for the opening ceremony Tuesday.

Twelve followers of the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole's Zimbabwe African National Union have refused to take their seats. Sithole began claiming the April elections were rigged when it became clear he would not win the prime ministership.

Muzorewa's party had won 51 seats in the Parliament. Of the 100 seats, 28 are reserved for the white minority, which will maintain control over the army, courts and civil service for five years.

Tape may lead police to 'Yorkshire Ripper'

LONDON (AP) — For four years the Yorkshire Ripper has stalked the grimy industrial towns of northern England, leaving the mutilated bodies of 11 murdered women, nine of them prostitutes.

Now police think a tape recording purportedly from the killer may lead them to him.

"I see you are having no luck catching me," said the taunting man's voice on the cassette received by George Oldfield, the assistant chief constable for West Yorkshire who is leading the manhunt. "I have the greatest respect for you, George. But, Lord, you are no nearer catching me now than four years ago when I started."

Oldfield received the tape, lasting three minutes and 38 seconds, in the mail on June 18 and broadcast it to the nation Tuesday night, along with police numbers to be called if anyone recognized the voice.

Police said they could not be positive the recording was not a hoax, but Oldfield said he is convinced it came from the present-day counterpart of the man — never caught — who slashed at least six London prostitutes to death in 1888.

The cassette had been mailed from Sunderland, an industrial town near Newcastle on England's northeast coast, and detectives said the handwriting on the envelope matched that in three letters received in the past 15 months from Sunderland signed "Jack the Ripper."

They said the letters, which had not been made public, contained details of the crimes that only the killer could know.

Dialect experts said the thick, north-of-England accent on the tape was characteristic of Sunderland. Oldfield said because all the murders took place in Yorkshire or Lancashire, he believed the man lived and worked there, and his Newcastle accent should "stick out like a sore thumb."

"I'm not quite sure when I will strike again, but it will definitely be sometime this year, maybe September or October — even sooner if I get the time," said the recording.

"I'm not sure where. Maybe Manchester. I like it there. There's plenty of them (prostitutes) knocking about. They never learn, do they, George? I bet you've warned them, but they never listen. At the rate I'm going, I should be in the book of records. I think it's 11 up to now, isn't it? Well, I'll keep on going for quite a while yet."

The murders began Oct. 30, 1975, when Wilma McCann, a 28-year-old divorced mother of four, left her young children at home in a public housing development and went to a sleazy nightclub in Chapeltown, Leeds' redlight district, to look for a "client."

The next day a milkman found her body 150 yards behind her house.

Since then, police say, the Ripper has killed eight other prostitutes.

NRC says concrete's safe at Comanche Peak plant

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — No safety threats exist at the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has reported after an investigation into charges that faulty concrete was used at the construction site.

The investigation stemmed from an April story in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. The newspaper reported that former employees of a concrete testing company charged faulty concrete was being used at the site.

The NRC said Thursday that 10 of the allegations warranted investigation. The agency said five could not be substantiated, three could neither be substantiated nor refuted and that two were substantiated.

The NRC said none of the allegations had any bearing on the safety of the concrete.

Texas Electric Service Co., Texas Power and Light and Dallas Power and Light own the Comanche Peak facility jointly. It is located near Glen Rose, Texas, south of Fort Worth.

More senators proposing changes to SALT II pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — A growing number of senators are proposing substantive changes in the SALT II pact with the Soviet Union, any one of which might serve to kill the treaty if adopted.

Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker of Tennessee, who has voiced strong reservations about the treaty, was set to announce his position at a news conference today. He could be a key figure in the Senate's eventual ratification or rejection of SALT II.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, told reporters Tuesday he believes the Soviet Union must be made to understand that the Senate is likely to adopt some amendments, reservations or understandings.

Church hinted that ways are being sought to change the treaty just enough to improve chances for ratification but not enough to cause the Soviets to reject the amended treaty out of hand.

He said he believes it would be a "grave mistake" for the Senate to doom the treaty by adding a "killer amendment" unacceptable to the Soviets.

"It would be preferable for the Senate to kill it outright rather than face a renegotiation which Soviet leaders have said would be unacceptable to them," Church said.

Meanwhile, proposals to amend the pact were made by senators with strikingly different points of view.

Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, a conservative treaty opponent, proposed six substantive changes that he said "underscore the very serious deficiencies in the SALT II agreement." Garn says the treaty is not verifiable and far enough to control the arms race, filed an amendment that would freeze the strategic arsenals of the United States and Soviet Union at their present levels.

"President Carter, as well as those who oppose the SALT II treaty agree um amendment I offer will freeze into place the present strategic balance and make unnecessary the new $75 billion spiral in the arms race in the decade ahead."

Church said he believes the logic of the situation eventually will compel Hatfield and Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., who shares Hatfield's view, to vote for the treaty. "There would be an unfettered nuclear arms race that would be far greater if the treaty were to be rejected than if it were ratified," he said.

Church said if the Senate concludes some reservations or understandings are necessary, the distinction will have to be made between changes that clarify treaty provisions from those that change the terms of the treaty itself.

He said the first type of change might be acceptable to the Soviets while the second variety probably would not be.

Asked for an example, Church said changes might be made to help verify compliance with the treaty while not changing its substance by calling for advance notification of all missile tests and mass bomber flights.

He said the Soviets have found mass flights of U.S. bombers "very scary" because they cannot verify where they are going or what their mission is.

would seriously weaken U.S. security.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., who has criticized SALT II for not going that the United States and the Soviet Union are roughly equal today in the overall strategic balance," said Hatfield in a statement. "The moratori-

Mennonite bill now before Senate committee

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The bill that would allow 653 Mennonites living in the Seminole area to avoid deportation and remain in this country as permanent residents now is before the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee.

The bill should be out of committee within two weeks, a spokesman for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said today. It then would be subject to a vote of the Senate and then forwarded to the House of Representatives for ratification.

Bentsen, who introduced the bill, has asked Judiciary Committee chairman Edward Kennedy to act "as quickly as possible" on the legislation.

Regardless of the outcome of the bill, the Mennonites will be protected from deportation at least until January 1981, which is the end of the current session of Congress, the spokesman said.

However, a spokesman in Sen. Kennedy's office said the bill does not have priority status and that its introduction could be postponed indefinitely. Most special-interest bills, such as the one for the Mennonites, generally fall to pass, noted another spokesman in Bentsen's office.

The Mennonites, from Mexico and Canada, moved to south of Seminole in 1977. They paid $575,000 on a $1.7-million note on 10 sections of farm land in Gaines and Andrews counties and began farming. Their dream was to establish a self-sufficient Mennonite community.

However, the plans went awry when the Mennonites, a fundamentalist religious group which identifies with the soil and, generally, clings to the "basics" of living, developed dissonance and fell behind on land payments. They also were beset by a drought and the lack of water rights for irrigation over most of the farming area.

Most left the land, farmed elsewhere or found skilled jobs in Seminole or outlying areas.

Then, on April 3, the land was sold at auction for $1,151,000 and was returned to Lamesa farmer-rancher Dennis Nix. He initially sold the land to the Mennonites via a corporation set up by The Old Colony Mennonite Church.

Family by family, the Mennonites had moved to the Seminole area more than two years ago, and many invested their life savings in the land, shelter and farming equipment. A few, such as a more "liberal" Mennonite, Peter Bergen, had permanent U.S. residency. Most, however, possessed only temporary visas.

"Unfortunately," said Bentsen, "the group had been misinformed, and they found themselves subject to the possibility of deportation, despite their numerous good faith efforts to comply with American law."

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Services initially told the Mennonites that they would have to leave the U.S. by January 1978. But that deadline was pushed aside when legislation co-sponsored by Bentsen was introduced to grant them permanent residency.

The first bill died when the 95th Congress adjourned before acting on the proposed bill, and the INS imposed a February 1979 deportation deadline.

Just as before, another deadline was cast off when Bentsen announced he would introduce another bill to keep the Mennonites here.

"They came to this country with the hope of practicing their religious faith and contributing to their new home," Bentsen said. "They received, and continue to receive, strong support from members of the community they settled in."

The Mennonites broke off from a colony in the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, in 1977, for they feared their land would be confiscated by the Mexican government. Some Mennonites left Canada, for they could buy land in Texas for far less than in Canada.

"It is hoped that this bill will remedy some of the severe problems that have afflicted these 653 temperate, devout and peaceful people," Bentsen said.

Tourists seek thrill at world's highest waterfall

By MONTE HAYES

CANAIMA, Venezuela (AP) — Waterfalls thundered in the distance. As a flock of American tourists filed past, brightly plumed macaw parrots screeched greetings in Spanish.

George LeRoy, who left Fort Sill, Okla., 20 years ago to search for diamonds in the jungles near here, grinned at the scene.

"Some of these people don't even know what country they're in," he said. "Seeing the world's highest waterfall is a status symbol, something to brag about. They don't appreciate where they are."

Even if they don't know they are in Venezuela, most visitors would agree that Angel Falls is something to write home about. The great waterfall begins its plunge 3,212 feet above the jungle floor, dissolving into mist before it strikes bottom. It dwarfs Niagara Falls 20 times over.

The waterfall was discovered in 1937 by Jimmy Angel, an American bush pilot and adventurer. He spotted it from his small plane while searching for a tabletop mountain he believed laden with gold nuggets.

Angel didn't find any gold, but he returned to Caracas 420 miles to the northwest and told friends he had seen a waterfall "a mile high." In 1949, an expedition led by American photo-journalist Ruth Robertson correctly measured the falls.

The expedition took two weeks to reach and return from the waterfall. Today, using Indian "curiaras" — dugout canoes — tourists can repeat the journey in five days from a closer base camp.

But most limit themselves to an eagle-eye view of the falls, either from a commercial airliner on the way to the camp or from a small plane hired in Ciudad Bolivar on the Orinoco River 165 miles to the north.

The pilot must maneuver down a narrow canyon, an unnerving experience for his passengers if clouds hover around the falls, as they frequently do. In close, from the seat of a small plane, the roar of the mighty waterfall is deafening.

Another American bush pilot, Charlie Baughan, developed Camp Canaima in the 1950s. These days the Venezuelan airline Avensa manages the encampment, made up of a restaurant-bar and several dozen thatched-roof cottages.

The camp sits at the edge of a lagoon formed at the base of seven cataracts of the Carrao River known as Hacha Falls. Palm trees and white-sand beaches border the ink-black waters of the lagoon.

The color comes from tannic acid, which gives the region's rivers a reddish tint in shallow areas, but turns them black as their waters grow deeper.

A visitor to Angel Falls and Canaima will discover a world of cool highlands, broad savannas and flat-topped mountains that soar a mile or more straight up from the jungles below and sprout dozens of waterfalls on all sides. Indians believe gods dwell atop the mist-enshrouded mesas.

The area served as the setting for Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "The Lost World" and W.H. Hudson's "Green Mansions," a tale of the timeless, ageless tropical forest and the bird-girl Rima, who could fade into the coloration around her at will.

Besides solitary diamond hunters like LeRoy, the only inhabitants of this low-size region are a few thousand Indians scattered in remote villages largely untouched by Venezuela's modern oil-rich society.

Otters play in the rivers, while jaguars, tapirs and giant anteaters tread paths hidden by the day-long twilight of the jungle. The forests also conceal 30-foot anacondas, deadly bushmasters, large-headed "bachaco" ants that strip the leaves from every plant in their path and 9-inch-long tarantulas more feared than poisonous serpents.

But few visitors will ever suffer face-to-face encounters with these frightening creatures.

Those who feel adventurous can put themselves in the hands of an Indian guide and take a trip in one of the leaky curiaras.

Charlie Brown likes comic strip

By GALE TOLLIN

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Good Grief! The real Charlie Brown says life has both good and grief, highs and lows, bright moments and dark periods.

The name of Charlie Francis Brown, now 53 and retired, has been used for nearly 30 years by his long-time artist friend, Charles Schulz, creator of the "Peanuts" comic strip.

Brown, a bachelor, lives in a comfortable suburban home with his dog "McGregor," a German shepherd — not a beagle.

Like his cartoon namesake, Brown says he is an intense person. "My life has been a Charlie Brown life."

"Like Charlie Brown, when things go wrong, I go to bed and pull the cover up over my head," he says. "Sometimes I've stayed in bed for three days so I didn't have to face the world."

Although Brown sees similarities between himself and the comic strip character, Schulz says he used only Brown's name, nothing else.

"I used nothing of his personality in the strip," says Schulz, who now lives and works in Santa Rosa, Calif. "I think it would be deplorable to build on your friends that way. I would not take a chance on offending a close friend."

Brown and Schulz worked together in the early 1950s as art teachers here. Brown says he shared with Schulz some of his feelings about life.

One day, Brown recalls, Schulz asked if he could use his name for a comic character he had created, an intense and rather morose boy. Brown says he wanted to see what the character looked like, and was disappointed when Schulz showed him the drawing.

"Can't you make him look a little more like Steve Canyon or Superman?" Brown says he asked the cartoonist.

"But I wasn't the Jack Armstrong type," Brown reflects. "I wanted to be a jock, the all-American boy, but I wasn't. I'm a 'Charlie' and not a 'Chuck.'"

After working as an art director for Catholic youth publications in Chicago in the 1940s, Brown returned to Minneapolis and was employed at the Hennepin County Detention Center, supervising work with erring juveniles.

Brown retired about three years ago after doctors diagnosed cancer and said he would die in three or four months if he didn't have surgery. He underwent three operations, one for the removal of a kidney. "I feel that I have been healed, by the surgery and by my prayers," he said.

He is currently seeking a publisher for his autobiography, "Me and Charlie Brown," which he says will have forewords by Schulz and by two artist friends who, like Brown, allowed Schulz the use of their names for "Peanuts" characters.

Freida Rich is an art teacher in Minneapolis and, like "Freida with the naturally curly hair," has curly hair. The name of Linus Maurer, a cartoonist in California, went to Charlie Brown's thumb-sucking friend, "Linus."

Food shortage fears spread

By The Associated Press

Growing fears of food shortages spread from the East to the Plains as California farmers, unable to get the trucks to haul crops to market, plowed fresh produce into the ground and some Midwestern meat-packers sent their workers home.

And the scattered violence that has punctuated the truckers' shutdown erupted again today with reports of three highway shootings in Illinois and truck firebombings in Indiana and New York.

The only way to save California's agricultural industry, which produces 40 percent of the nation's fruits and vegetables, is to end the independent truckers' shutdown, industry spokesmen told state legislators on Tuesday.

While drivers ended their protests in some areas and tightened their economic stranglehold in others, an Energy Department official said the Carter administration could require an increase in diesel fuel production if refineries don't boost supplies.

The truckers seek lower diesel fuel prices, higher speed limits and an end to weight regulations that vary from state to state.

One trucker spokesman warned that the weekend violence in Levittown, Pa., sparked by the gasoline shortage and the truckers' protest, was only the beginning.

"This country is heading for an emergency," said William Hill, chairman of the Independent Truckers' Unity Committee. "We're going to have rioting in the streets as far as I can see."

But in North Carolina, Gov. Jim Hunt, speaking from the back of a big rig, persuaded drivers blocking a fuel terminal complex to disband.

"You are in the strongest position with regards to how people and public leaders feel about you," Hunt told drivers picketing the complex housing Shell, Exxon and Sunoco terminals in Greensboro.

"If people start running out of gas, losing jobs and cannot get food, they will start blaming somebody. And I think you know who that will be," Hunt said.

The gates of the Georgia Port Authority were cleared of pickets when a judge ordered protesters not to interfere with traffic.

Regulations shackle truckers

Drivers have now become pencil jockeys

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Department official Kenneth Pierson, a onetime driver himself, figures government regulations keep the average independent trucker busy half an hour a day jockeying a pencil.

The typical driver must maneuver through a maze of economic regulations laid down by the Interstate Commerce Commission, of safety regulations enforced by the Transportation Department, taxes collected by the Internal Revenue Service and fees, permits and regulations imposed by every state on every truck that passes through its borders.

Government regulations — those that limit how much a truck can carry and those that make paper shufflers of anyone who wants to move freight in a truck — are one source of irritation, in addition to high diesel fuel prices, among the thousands of drivers refusing to work these days.

A driver has to carry a lot of documents. He must have a license, of course, and a medical certificate signed by a doctor. Federal law requires he carry daily logbooks accounting for what he is doing every hour he spends on the road. He must carry logs with him for the past 30 days.

He must have a way-bill listing the ownership, origin, destination and description of the freight he is carrying.

If he is operating on contract to a franchised carrier (as most independent drivers do, paying them up to 37.5 percent of their receipts) he must carry evidence the carrier is authorized to operate in the states through which he will drive.

Keeping track of these state permits — and paying up to $1,000 a year in fees to renew them — is probably the biggest paperwork burden truckers face.

Drivers must keep additional records in order to pay state taxes on the fuel consumed going through a state minus the amount of fuel purchased in that state. They must hold on to fuel and delivery receipts and a settlement sheet used to settle accounts with the outfit for which they are working.

This story concerns independent owner-operators. These are truckers who own their own equipment and operate on contract with a franchised carrier, carry freight through a broker or work their own deal directly with a shipper.

While trucking deregulation would reduce the paperwork, many of the drivers oppose trucking industry deregulation, proposed last week jointly by President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

They look at the troubles of their exempt-from-regulation colleagues who carry foodstuffs, livestock and plants and say they want no part of that cut-throat competition.

Among the most resented regulations are truck weight limits. Forty states have a uniform 80,000-pound gross weight limit on trucks but 10 states and the District of Columbia impose limits under 80,000 pounds. The limits are 73,280 pounds in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia and 73,000 pounds in Connecticut.

Truckers who cross the country say the Midwest states with limits under 80,000 pounds are "an Iron Curtain," forcing them to carry 10 percent less freight than they could if the 80,000 pound limit was nationwide. They also seek uniformity on the size of trucks permitted.

The White House, responding to the truckers, last week asked the governors of the 10 states with lower limits to temporarily waive their limits.

But critics say heavier trucks will lead to a more rapid deterioration of the interstate highway system.

However, the federal agency which most touches the life of the average trucker is the Bureau of Motor Carrier Safety (BMCS) in the Transportation Department.

The bureau publishes a 168-page booklet listing the regulations a trucker must comply with. The index carries more than 300 entries.

The regulations range from when a person may not climb out of a sleeper berth (when vehicle is in motion) to how many hours a driver can work without resting (no more than 60 in a seven-day period).

Drivers say of all the bureau regulations, the most disliked is one that requires them to keep a logbook reflecting, hour by hour, how they spend their time. Honestly kept, it would reflect whether they had violated the speed limit or drove longer than permitted.

State police ask to see these documents when a driver is stopped. The driver can be fined for not keeping his log filled out.

Many drivers say no one could make a living at trucking if he kept an honest logbook.

Pierson, deputy director of the BMCS, defends the logbook as a safety measure.

Truckers meet with Clements

By The Associated Press

Texas truckers revved up for a meeting with Gov. Bill Clements in Austin today, after a spokesman for independent haulers assured truck company executives the independents want to settle their problem peacefully.

Truckers traveling in convoys from San Antonio, El Paso, Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston, Lubbock and East Texas were scheduled to meet with Clements in his private office at 11 a.m.

One security officer said the Department of Public Safety had received reports that as many as 2,000 trucks might converge on the Capitol in a busy downtown area.

Gov. Cliff Finch of Mississippi was riding with truckers to California to get a first-hand look at their fuel problems and was in the Dallas-Fort Worth area Tuesday.

In recognition of the truckers' protests against rising diesel prices, the Texas Railroad Commission held an unprecedented statewide meeting in Austin on Tuesday to discuss problems of the transportation industry.

General counsel Walter Caven of the Texas Railroad Association said fuel costs rose by 307 percent from 1967 to 1978 and "have been climbing by an unbelievable rate since January."

"If the railroads stopped running," Caven said, "this country would be completely paralyzed in less than 30 days."

Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace said as a result of the energy shortage, "We are perhaps in more peril today than at the beginning of World War II — the only difference is we're not losing men on the battlefield. We're in a war for the economic survival of our nation."

Groups seek end of 'silent tax'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A diverse coalition of 70 consumer, labor and senior citizen groups is calling on President Carter and Congress to take immediate steps to end what it calls the "silent tax" — inflation.

The coalition — Consumers Opposed to Inflation in the Necessities — includes the AFL-CIO, the Consumer Federation of America, the National Council of Senior Citizens and the National Women's Political Caucus.

It is urging Carter and Capitol Hill to take steps the coalition says could cut the annual inflation rate by 3 percentage points over the next 18 months.

The group's news conference today followed by less than 24 hours the government's announcement that consumer prices rose a dramatic 1.1 percent in May, the fourth straight month that saw prices up at least a full 1 percent.

COIN argues that inflation, like a tax, reduces a family's buying power. Last year's 9 percent inflation rate, for example, reduced what each consumer's dollar bought by 9 cents.

Of most concern to COIN are rising prices for food, housing, fuel and medical care, items that constitute about two-thirds of the average family's spending.

Food and fuel prices have been the most troublesome this year. Although food prices rose only a moderate 0.7 percent in May, each of the five preceding months registered gains of at least 1 percent.

Gasoline prices rose 5 percent in May, "bringing the increase so far this year to an annual rate of 55.1 percent," the Labor Department said in releasing the May price report. Fuel oil prices, up significantly for the fourth consecutive month, rose 3.3 percent.

Overall, prices have been rising at an annual rate of 13.4 percent, about double the Carter administration's target.

COIN's members believe the time is right for their proposals.

"They are going into an election year," Gar Alperovitz, the organization's economics adviser, said of the public officials to whom the appeal is being aimed. "They have to get the message that they can't keep doing what they are doing because it isn't working."

Proposals in the "short-term agenda" COIN proposed to break the upward price spiral include:

— Reversal of the president's action to decontrol domestic crude oil prices.

— Congressional passage of a ceiling on hospital cost increases.

— Exploration of fast-hitting, anti-inflationary rebates or subsidies in the food sector.

— The establishment of reserve requirements for mortgage loans that would lower mortgage interest rates.

Several of the measures have been considered.

with little success, in Congress.

The rising fuel costs — and the possibility of more when the oil-producing cartel OPEC raises prices — led Barry Bosworth, director of the president's Council on Wage and Price Stability, to warn, "You can't look for any significant moderation in inflation in the next few months."

Bosworth also admitted to the Joint Economic Committee of Congress that "I would say that the fight against inflation has not gone well."

That's precisely the point COIN intended to make at its gathering.

It was, in essence, a call to action for Americans to prod the government and "to expose inflationary business practices."

"Current economic policies offer little prospect that these (inflation) numbers will be reduced substantially in the foreseeable future," says COIN's literature.

"This silent tax devastates most consumers, but where is the consumer voice in the inflation debate?" it asks.

Carter's anti-inflation program has centered on budget restraint and tighter monetary policy. It was stepped up last fall with the establishment of voluntary wage and price guidelines.

COIN points to the current double-digit annual inflation rate as evidence that the Carter approach — and that of his predecessors — has not worked.

"Except for short periods, all these efforts have failed to have a significant impact on inflation... What is surprising is that, despite their repeated failure, these approaches continue to be taken seriously as the relevant options," the coalition's statement says.

The nation cannot continue, it concludes, "hoping, somehow, to muddle through."

Price of coffee registers third quarter-a-pound rise

NEW YORK (AP) — General Mills, the nation's largest coffee roaster, today joined three other major producers in raising the wholesale price of ground coffee by 25 cents a pound, the third quarter-a-pound jump in the past eight weeks.

The price boost reflects worries that a frost in Brazil and civil unrest in Nicaragua and Uganda will cut the world's supplies of green coffee beans.

General Foods increased the wholesale price of a pound of Maxwell House ground coffee by a quarter to $3.08. It also announced 25-cent increases on its Yuban, Sanka and Brim brands, and said its instant coffee prices are rising by 3 to 3 1/2 cents an ounce.

On Tuesday, 25-cent increases in the wholesale price of ground coffee were announced by Procter & Gamble, whose Folger's division is the nation's second-largest coffee roaster; by Coca-Cola, maker of the Butternut and Maryland Club brands, and by MJB Co., a regional producer based in San Francisco. Each company raised the wholesale price of a pound of ground coffee from $2.83 to $3.08.

Second summer session enrollment set at UTPB

ODESSA — Summer registration is slated for July 16 at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin. Students may enroll from 9 a.m. to noon and from 2 to 7 p.m. in the student lounge.

Both undergraduate and graduate courses will be offered in the second summer session. Classes are scheduled to begin July 17, with late registration continuing through July 20.

UTPB Director of Admissions Robert Warmann noted registration materials currently are available in the registrar's office.

Enrollment at the upper-level university is open to students who have completed 60 credit hours of coursework at any accredited community college, senior college or university.

"Prospective students should notify the registrar at their previous colleges to send official transcripts directly to the admissions office at UTPB, and an application should be on file to avoid a long wait at the time of registration," Warmann said.

Warmann said special registration forms are available for persons wanting to enroll in the Encore program, a no-grade option available to students not pursuing a degree.

New fall date listed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's Skylab watchers now predict the big space station will fall to Earth between July 11 and July 19.

That was the latest from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Tuesday in its daily report on the Skylab death watch. The prediction represented a narrowing of the Monday forecast, which said there was a 95 percent probability the end would come between July 11 and July 21.

Although about 5,000 pieces weighing a total of about 40,000 pounds are expected to survive re-entry heat and hit the Earth, NASA says the chances are extremely slim that they will cause injury or damage.

"Shopping Midland is music to my ears."

Actually, what Ludwig von Beethoven said was "Every creation of art is mightier than the artist."

Were he alive and a citizen of Midland today, we feel sure that the great master would agree that when each of us shops at home, all of us benefit. In a sense what each one spends adds up to a sum greater than its parts.

Here's why. Each dollar we spend in Midland returns to all of us in the form of local tax revenues, sales tax receipts, and charitable gifts generated by Midland Merchants. Our individual burdens are lightened, and all benefit.

The dollars we spend in Midland make Midland a better place. Shop Midland. And make it grow.

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Like many producers, former Columbia Pictures president David Begelman is waiting for a review of his new film — but this review, by a Superior Court judge, could get Begelman off probation in a forgery case.

Begelman, 59, showed his film on the dangers of PCP, or "angel dust," to Judge Thomas C. Murphy on Tuesday. Murphy didn't "review" the film immediately, waiting until today's court session to decide whether to take Begelman off the probation he was given last year on convicted of forging $40,000 in studio checks.

Production of the movie was the key condition Murphy imposed on the film executive when he decided against sending Begelman to jail. It eventually will be provided free to schools, community groups and law enforcement agencies.

The film, narrated by Joanne Woodward and Paul Newman, was also viewed by Deputy District Attorney Sheldon Brown who said he thought the movie was "impressive and very professionally done."

But, said the prosecutor, he still planned to oppose the motion to end Begelman's probation.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Alan Ladd Jr. earned almost $2 million a year and was responsible for the production of "Star Wars," the most successful movie ever. But he's stepping down as president of 20th Century-Fox Pictures when his contract expires.

Ladd, 41, will not renew his contract after Dec. 31, 1980, because of the burden of administrative work, according to Dennis Stanfill, the studio's chairman of the board.

"This prevented him from giving as much time to the production and marketing of pictures" as he would like, said a studio announcement Tuesday. Ladd also resigned from the Fox board of directors, effective immediately.

A decision about Ladd's successor will be made later, Stanfill said. Ladd, the son of the late actor Alan Ladd, joined 20th Century-Fox in 1973. Ladd earned $1.9 million last year.

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (AP) — The hostess of NBC's "Today" show says that despite the visibility of women in broadcasting, generally they're still at the bottom of the business.

"Most women are not yet sitting on boards of directors," Jane Pauley said in an address to the 45th annual convention of the Georgia Association of Broadcasters, which ended Tuesday.

She said a male's earning potential is still greater than that of a woman, and the odds are still in favor of the young white males when it comes to getting hired.

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — For England's 78-year-old Queen Mother, Elizabeth, it's a week of ceremonial duties in Canada and then off to the races.

The Queen Mother is in Canada to open on Thursday the International Gathering of the Clans, the kickoff to a summer-long festival.

She was to present today new flags to Canada's Maritime Command on behalf of her daughter, the Queen. The presentation of a new color is a time-honored tradition of the Canadian military. The color will be used by naval units of the Canadian Forces.

Then Queen Mother heads to Toronto and on Saturday she will attend the 120th running of the Queen's Plate, Canada's richest horse race.

Sailors grounded after rock-throwing incident

NORTH CHICAGO, Ill. (AP) — Some 8,000 sailors at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center have been restricted to base and barred from a nearby entertainment "strip" following two nights of clashes between seamen and authorities.

But some shop owners on the strip, which was pelted with rocks by angry sailors charging "rip-off," say they would fight any long-term "off-limits" order.

The base was reported quiet early today. But Tuesday night, uniformed security personnel, many equipped with riot gear, were summoned to disband some 400 sailors milling about the grounds a half hour before a 9 p.m. curfew. The crowd broke up without incident.

The base commander, Capt. R.D. Colvin, said he was hoping to lift base restrictions today. "We're going to make a very serious effort to reward the 8,000 (who didn't participate in disturbances) for their good behavior," he said.

In all, 32 sailors were arrested and eight suffered minor injuries in the clashes Sunday and Monday night. Four policemen also were injured slightly and the mayor of North Chicago estimated more than $6,000 in damage was done to city vehicles.

The sailors are not expected to return soon to the four-block strip of bars, nightclubs, fast-food restaurants and shops that do some 90 percent of their business with base personnel.

The seamen say the riots were a reaction to the mistreatment they have suffered on "the strip," including exorbitant prices and harassment by prostitutes and drug dealers. Some also cited poor living conditions at the base.

Colvin declared the strip off-limits Tuesday and said military personnel "are not going to be on the strip for a long time."

A liquor store owner, agreeing with a short-term restriction, said a long-term ban would be challenged. "We'd definitely go to court because there's really no justification," said Gus Coroneo.

Officials said Sunday night's mob action was triggered by a fight between a sailor and several civilians at a beach. On Monday night, more than 300 sailors, including 200 who scaled a base fence to get out without leave, went on a rock-throwing rampage on the strip.

Colvin blamed the disturbances on "a few ring-leaders," including some facing drug-related charges.

He denied allegations that poor conditions in their living quarters contributed to the riot. But he did confirm that the base was ranked last in a 1978 Navy survey on the desirability of the service's facilities.

'Warriors' producers being sued by family of murdered youth

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — Friends and family of a youth stabbed to death at a theater showing the movie "The Warriors" are suing the producers of the film, which they said created the potential for violence.

In addition to Paramount Pictures, defendants named in the Ventura County Superior Court suit include the Motion Picture Association of America, Mann Theaters Corp., owner of the theater where the stabbing took place, and the Esplanade shopping center, where the theater is located.

Timothy Gitchel, 18, of Oxnard, died of wounds suffered during a fight involving him, three friends and another group of youths Feb. 12. No arrests were made in the killing, despite an investigation by Oxnard police.

The suit filed Monday claims the film included many scenes of juvenile gang-related violence and killings, and the defendants knew or should have known the movie's main appeal was to impressionable youths who might be inclined to imitate the violence.

The suit also claims the defendants knew or should have known "The Warriors" would attract large numbers of gang members, thereby creating the potential for violence.

Gitchel's mother, Connie Williams, and his brother, Daniel Gitchel, are seeking wrongful death damages. Daniel Gitchel, Frank Rivera and Allan Grantstrom, the friends who were with Gitchel at the movie theater, are seeking personal injury damages for beatings they suffered during the fight.

Five presumed dead after Navy plane crash

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Five U.S. Navy airmen are missing and presumed dead following the crash of a Navy patrol plane in Subic Bay early today.

Helicopter and boat crews picked up 10 survivors from the bay in water 120 feet deep. Lt. Cmdr. Michael T. Sherman, spokesman at the Subic Naval Base, said all were hospitalized but none were in critical condition.

Sherman said the Lockheed P3B Orion crashed as it was coming in to land at the base 50 miles northwest of Manila after a routine patrol. He said initial reports indicated there was trouble with one of the plane's four engines.

Names of those aboard were withheld until their families were notified.

Many hundreds of oldtime Midlanders and friends from all over the country gathered Saturday night in Midland Country Club to help the former Judge Robert W. Hamilton and his wife, Lois, celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

The event was hosted by the couple's two daughters, Emily Hamilton Gunning of El Paso and Ann Hamilton Keetch of San Antonio, a son, Bill, of Terrytown, N.Y. and several grandchildren.

Hamilton arrived in Midland in the mid-1930s from Stanton. After a few years as an attorney here, he was elected district judge, serving in that capacity for seven years.

Later, he was appointed judge of the Court of Civil Appeals by then Gov. Allan Shivers and moved to El Paso.

From there, he was elected to the Texas Supreme Court. After his retirement, he spent some time in the Comptroller's Office to keep busy.

Following sightseeing and a fjord cruise to Pulpit Rock in western Norway, the two families visited Lezland in Denmark before driving on through northern Germany and Holland into Amsterdam, where they took a canoe trip through the city.

They visited the Chateaux of the Loire Valley of France before going on to Paris to enjoy seeing major historical landmarks.

In Switzerland, the Boes' and Gintels visited the bear pits of Berne and the woodcarving center of Brienz, as well as other points near Lake Neuchatel before traveling through Liechtenstein into the Bavarian Alps of Austria and southern Germany.

The parade will begin promptly at 10 a.m. at the corner of Harvard and A Streets. Registration gets under way at 9 at the same location. There will be no advance registration, said Gayle Dodson, parade chairman.

Immediately after the parade, winners will be announced at the Gazebo, located in the park.

There will be first, second and third place winners, along with honorable mentions, in each age group. The Downtown Kiwanis Club will man the concession stand and will conduct old-fashioned games for the children after the parade activities.

All families are urged to bring their children, a picnic lunch and join the fun with the DAR and the Kiwanis for an old-fashioned, patriotic July 4.

Each participant in the parade must be on a sidewalk vehicle such as a tricycle, bicycle, wagon, scooter, etc. The main idea for the judging will be the vehicle most representative of July 4.

Man forced by law to support lover

By CAROLE FELDMAN
Associated Press Writer

TRENTON, N.J. — In a case similar to the Marvin property-rights trial in California, the New Jersey Supreme Court has ordered a man to make good on his promise to support his live-in lover for the rest of her life.

The state's high court said that Thaddeus Kozlowski and his lover of 15 years, Irma Kozlowski, entered into a legal and binding contract even though they never married.

Kozlowski's lawyer said he had no plans to appeal the decision handed down Monday.

"We do no more than recognize that society's mores have changed, and that an agreement between adult parties living together is enforceable to the extent it is not based on a relationship proscribed by law or on a promise to marry," acting Justice Joseph Halpern wrote in the court's unanimous ruling.

Justice Morris Pashman, in a concurring opinion, said the courts must presume that a couple who cohabit without marrying "intended to deal fairly with each other upon dissolution of the relationship."

In the California case, a Superior Court judge in April ordered actor Lee Marvin to pay Michelle Tirola Marvin $14,000 to "rehabilitate" her life after six years' as Marvin's live-in lover. The trial entered its second round this week with Miss Marvin's attempt to win more money.

Mrs. Kozlowski, a Polish immigrant who was married to a man with the same last name as her live-in mate, moved in with Kozlowski in 1962 under the assumption that they would marry.

While Kozlowski worked at his tool and dye manufacturing concern, Mrs. Kozlowski tended house and took care of his children, according to court papers. She also entertained his business associates and had sexual relations with him.

After a brief separation in 1968, the couple reunited. Kozlowski told her he had no intentions of marrying her, but promised to support her for the rest of her life, the court said.

The couple separated again in 1977, and Kozlowski later married a woman 30 years younger than Mrs.

Hunter named to UTPB position

BIG SPRING — Carol Hunter has been named as the new coordinator of the off-campus teaching program here for The University of Texas at the Permian Basin.

As coordinator, Mrs. Hunter will "serve as a community representative for the Big Spring area, handling publicity, registration and student counseling," according to Dr. Thomas Wolff, assistant to the president of UTPB.

Mrs. Hunter will be working with the local industries and agencies in Big Spring to help them obtain their goals through educational programs needed to meet their needs.

She holds a B.S. degree from Baylor University and has done post-graduate work at six universities, including UTPB. Mrs. Hunter has seven years experience as a teacher with the Houston and Killeen school systems, where she taught Latin, speech, history and English.

Mrs. Hunter also has been active in Big Spring civic affairs, serving as president of the board of the Big Spring Independent School District for 1978-79. She also served as the chairman for Governmental Affairs for the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce in 1978, and is the current chairman for the Tourism Committee for the Chamber.

Kozlowski, according to court papers.

The court said Kozlowski's 1968 promise of support and Mrs. Kozlowski's acceptance of that pledge constituted a valid contract.

Mrs. Kozlowski, who is now 65 and being supported by a niece in Michigan, is entitled to a "one-time lump sum judgment" of support that should be computed on the basis of her life expectancy, the court said.

A lower court had awarded Mrs. Kozlowski $55,000, but that order was appealed by the woman's lawyer. The Supreme Court ordered that another hearing be held on the amount of damages.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER
(Thurs. June 28)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is your day to think in terms of what you need to do to obtain the goodwill of associates and the approval of the public at large in your ventures and undertakings. Give full credit where due.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have every opportunity now to show your finest capabilities to bigwigs who can help you to commercialize on them. Get out to amusements but with congenials only.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improve conditions at home and have the rapport there that you wish. Entertain worthwhile individuals and get the backing you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Concentrate on whatever has to do with communicating with others and travel for good purposes. Visit with persons who can be of help to you. Show you are wide awake, generous with all.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A new project may be in the offing, so be on the alert for it, or look into one yourself and add to income soon. Have a frank discussion with a prominent person on how to become more affluent yourself.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make confidential plans that will bring about an upturn in all of your affairs in the near future. Confide only in bigwigs who can help you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Concentrate on your most important goals and know how best to attain them. Avoid one who does not understand or appreciate you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle those affairs concerning friends that will bring you mutual benefits early and well. Get out to important group affairs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you get into civic work you gain prestige, also in business circles. More application to career work will bring in greater benefits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make plans early for a trip you want to take and count the cost well. Use caution in a new condition that suddenly arises.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study your responsibilities well and know how best to handle them. Show more affection for loved ones and get good response.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get those ideas working early that will help you to communicate better with others. Finish any contracts you have pending and get good results. Be more open-minded with others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Organize mutual enterprises with others and handle them intelligently. Don't permit others to undermine you in any way.

Child health program proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Minimum eligibility and benefit standards would be drawn for the nation's 17.4 million poor children under legislation the Carter administration is proposing.

The Child Health Assurance Program would coordinate the government's health care programs by modifying Medicaid and the Early Periodic Screening, Diagnosis and Treatment programs for poor children.

Those are the two main programs that provide medical services to low-income youngsters, who make up about one-quarter of the children under 18.

The proposal drew criticism from the American Medical Association. Dr. William Felch, a Rye, N.Y., physician, said Monday that the plan goes too far and represents a revamping of Medicaid to benefit one group of recipients.

Marian Wright Edelman, director of the Children's Defense Fund, argued only a national health insurance program will ensure that all children receive proper medical treatment. But she added poor children cannot wait until such an insurance plan is put into effect.

Sounds of love arouse her ire

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN friendly girl talk.
 DEAR ABBY: I've been living alone in an apartment for the last eight years and have gotten used to the noises that occur. However, I have recently encountered a noise I don't now how to deal with. It's most annoying since it usually occurs late at night or early in the morning. If you haven't guessed by now, it's my upstairs neighbors' squeaky bed!

In the meantime Pete heard about me and his nephew, so I confessed. Just to get even with me, Pete had an affair with a night nurse. When he told me about it I got mad and had an affair with a cop who had been after me for a long time. Pete had to get even again, so he went to a bar and picked up a girl. Then, for spite, I started in with the cop again.
 Now, it's a contest to get even with each other and we can't seem to stop. How can I put an end to all this? — TOO TIRED TO GARDEN

More unmarried couples living together

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of unmarried couples living together has more than doubled in less than a decade, accounting for about 1.1 million U.S. households, the Census Bureau says.

Meanwhile, more than 20 percent of all households have only a single member as increasing numbers of young career-oriented Americans postpone marriage, according to a new bureau report.

The report on "Marital Status and Living Arrangements" issued Tuesday also disclosed a continuing increase in the number of divorces and predicted that half of the children being born today will spend a significant part of their lives living with a single parent.

As of March 1978, more than one American household in five consisted of someone living alone, the study said.

Most of the growth in single-person households was maintained by people under age 35, the report said, adding this "may reflect an increasing desire among young adults to seek advanced education and careers before marriage."

In 1970, the report said, 17 percent of the nation's households consisted of a single individual. By 1978 that had grown to 22 percent.

The bureau defines a household as a person or group of people living together in a house, apartment or other housing unit.

Sixty-two percent of these single-person households were maintained by women, although since 1970 the proportion of men living alone has grown more rapidly than that for women, the Census Bureau said.

The increase in unmarried couples living together has been even more impressive, up 117 percent.

In 1970, the bureau said, there were 523,000 such households. The number grew to 1.1 million last year.

Three-fourths of these households consisted solely of two partners.

"Wrongful birth" valid claim for damages

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — A pregnant woman deprived of her right to an abortion by her physician's negligence is entitled to damages for "wrongful birth" if the child is born defective, the state Supreme Court says.

The court, by a 7-0 vote Tuesday, amended its 12-year-old ruling that refused to recognize as valid a claim for wrongful birth asserted on behalf of a physically deformed infant.

The justices said that since the so-called Gleitman ruling, the U.S. Supreme Court has established the right of a woman to decide whether to have an abortion — at least during the first three months of pregnancy.

By a separate 6-1 vote, however, the justices upheld another part of the Gleitman ruling that says the deformed child is not entitled to damages for "wrongful life."

The current case involved an Upper Saddle River couple, Paul and Shirley Berman, who alleged that physicians neglected to inform Mrs. Berman of a medical test that could have accurately predicted her 4-year-old daughter would be born a mongoloid.

while the remainder had one or more children living with them. Among unmarried couples, the report said, seven out of 10 were under age 45.

Noting that young people are continuing to postpone marriage, the report said that as of 1978 nearly half of the women aged 20 to 24 had never married. This is an increase of more than two-thirds since 1960. Delay of first marriage was also indicated among women aged 25 to 29.

The bureau said that since 1970 the median age of Americans at their first marriage has increased by one year, to 24.2 years for men and 21.8 for women.

The report also noted that in 1978 there were 8 million families maintained by a woman not living with a husband, a 44 percent gain since 1970. There were 1.6 million families maintained by a man not living with a wife in 1978, bureau officials said.

Black families maintained by a woman increased 65 percent during the eight-year period, the report states, while among whites the growth was 36 percent.

Because of this growth in one-parent families, the bureau estimated that nearly half of all children being born today will spend a large portion of their lives before age 18 in single-parent families.

In 1978 there were 11 million children living with their mothers only, and 1 million with their fathers, the bureau said.

The study also noted increases in divorce for both blacks and whites and all age groups.

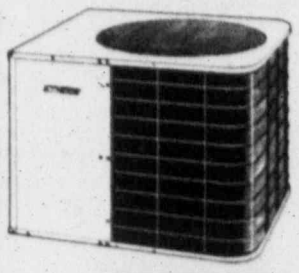

In 1970, the bureau said, there were 47 divorced persons for every 1,000 married in the United States. By 1978 this number had grown 91 percent to 90 divorced persons for every 1,000 in working marriages.

Tall City girls hope to capture beauty title

By PATSY GORDON
Lifestyle Writer

ODESSA — Two Midland girls are among the 27 Permian Basin beauties vying for the 1979 title of Miss West Texas. The contestants have been polishing their acts in rehearsals for the last several days in readiness for the pageant slated Thursday, Friday and Saturday in Permian High School Auditorium here.

The Midlanders are Lisa Rene Montgomery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walker Montgomery, 2409 Culpeper St., and Victoria Printz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Printz of 53 Perrie Lane.

Lisa, 18, stands a stately five-foot-nine-inches tall. She will perform for her talent number a piano medley of Frank Mills' "Music Box Dancer" and Steven Sondheim's "Send in the Clowns." The brunette beauty, a Midland High School graduate, hopes to become a child psychologist. She has had training in piano, choral music and trombone, and "loves horseback riding and playing tennis."

Victoria, also 18, trails Lisa in height by a mere two inches. Also a graduate of MHS, she attends Midland College, where she is majoring in fashion merchandising and geology. At MC, she is a student senator and officer in Kappa Omega. She was a Midland High School cheerleader three years.

The blonde beauty also attended summer school at Guanajuato, Mexico, and has studied Spanish for five years, French for two and German for half a year. During talent competition at the pageant, persons attending will hear Victoria give her interpretation of "You've Got a Friend" both in Spanish and French.

Miss Montgomery is sponsored by Winwood Mall in Odessa and KOSA-TV is sponsoring Miss Printz.

The pageant is being held in conjunction with the Independence Day Festival sponsored by the Odessa Jaycees and Jaycee-ettes.

Another Midland resident, Chuck Moore, will be entertaining during the pageant. He was president of the Midland College student body in 1978-79.

The festival began Monday and runs through July 4. Mistress of ceremonies and choreographer for the pageant will be Linda Bond of Midland, KOSA-TV producer.

According to Ms. Bond, the girls in the pageant will be "Steppin' Out" each night with a dance routine to the song "If They Could See Me Now" from the Broadway musical "Sweet Charity."

All girls, said Ms. Bond, will perform the opening number each night and it will involve traditional dance steps in the style of Broadway musicals such as "soft shoe and many high kicks."

Lisa Rene Montgomery

Victoria Printz

In the production number, the contestants will wear white tuxedo jackets trimmed in blue, green and pink over opera hose, and top hats.

Jeryl Hoover of Odessa, music director for the pageant, will sing in the opening number with the girls. He has had the lead in the last five musicals at Permian Playhouse and Globe Theatre.

"The Permian High School stage is more intimate than the Ector County Coliseum," said Ms. Bond. "And the acoustics are great."

She feels the pageant is more than a beauty contest. "It's also a showcase for fantastic talent," explained Ms. Bond.

Besides the musical introductory number, the contestants will compete in swimsuit, evening gown and talent in the pageant.

In the preliminaries, the girls will be divided into two groups. One group will appear in swimsuit and evening gown competition on Thursday night and talent competition Friday night. The other group will do the opposite.

The 27 contestants will be divided into the groups according to the choice of talent numbers and colors of their bathing suits and gowns to prevent only one form of talent or identical color attire appearing on the same night.

At the Saturday night finals, the 10 finalists are announced at the beginning of the show and these girls compete in swimsuit, talent and evening gown. The names, according to Ms. Bond, are kept secret until the night of the finals.

Also taking part in the pageant will be Tami Jo Whitmire, 1978 Miss West Texas. She will sing the number she will perform at the Miss Texas Pageant July 4-7 in Fort Worth.

The winner of the pageant will receive a $1,200 scholarship to the school of higher learning of her choice, a new wardrobe worth $1,200 and the chance to compete in the 1980 Miss Texas Pageant.

A total of 12 trophies will be awarded to Miss West Texas, the runners-up and winners in preliminary competition.

Tickets for the two preliminary nights will be $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Saturday night tickets will be $4 for adults and $2 for children.

Judging the event will be Helen Mashburn of Fort Worth, head judge; Jean Johnson of Fort Worth; Mike McDermott of Hobbs, N.M.; John T. Perry of Hobbs and Robert Reynolds of Dallas. All of these people are veteran beauty pageant judges.

The other contestants are: Diane Chamlee of Odessa, Laurie Choate of Big Spring, Cynthia Lyn Courtney of Odessa, Mary Alice Cuellar of Odessa, Rhonda Feemster of Odessa, Lerii Fitzhugh of Rankin, Kathy Foster of Odessa; Aida Garcia of Odessa, Vickie Graves of Seminole, Sue Hale of Stanton, Susan Sharinne Harper of Anton, Lori Holloway of Odessa, Petite Ann Lee of Crane, Deborah Denise McDaniel of Odessa, Letitia Moore of Odessa, Becky Neighbors of Andrews and Janice Marie Perritt of Odessa.

More contestants are Dawnelle Phillips of Lamesa, Jill Peyton Price of Fort Stockton, Jona Rhea of Odessa, Gayle Spradley of Odessa, Sonia Renee Striffler of Odessa, Kim Thornton of Seminole, Diane Veigle of Odessa and Leslie Woodard of Pecos.

The pageant begins at 8 p.m. each day. This will be the first time in 15 years the pageant has not been held in the Ector County Coliseum.

Government prepares for conference on women

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is beginning to gear up for a United Nations conference on women next year in Copenhagen.

Sarah Weddington of Austin, Texas, a special assistant to the president, said Tuesday a search is on for an executive director to coordinate U.S. participation in the conference.

She added that the administration is contemplating holding three regional conferences this fall on employment, health and education — topics on which delegates to the Copenhagen conference are to focus.

These mini-meetings would collect the views of women throughout the country for incorporation in the official U.S. policy statements.

In September, 300 to 350 women will be invited to the State Department to hear progress reports from women in other countries on the three issues.

Ms. Weddington said the U.S. delegation to the Copenhagen conference itself probably will consist of no more than 15 members plus the women members of Congress.

The first UN-sponsored conference on women was held in Mexico City in 1975 with about 6,000 persons attending. It launched the UN-designated Decade of Women.

A world plan of action for equality was adopted at Mexico City and the Copenhagen conference is being held, in part, to determine what progress has been made, said Arvonne Fraser, who heads the State Department's Women in Development unit.

As a followup to that international meeting in Mexico City, the United States held a National Women's Conference in Houston in 1976 where delegates from all 50 states and each of the territories adopted an agenda for bringing about equality between men and women.

Retired persons meet for program, dinner

Midland's American Association of Retired Persons met recently for a program and covered dish dinner at the Fellowship Hall of Crestview Baptist Church.

Bea Tiner, president, appointed August Wenck and Charles Sanders for the piano committee. Mrs. Alta Williams, program chairman, introduced the Sweet Adelines for the skit and songs. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Pepper of San Pedro, Calif., Clara Gabbert, Anne Talley, Norma Talley, Norm Talley, Lucille Crumpton, Bea Covert, Elsie Ingham, Katie B. Long Floyd, Robert Webb and Lucile Compton.

The next meetings will be July 2 and July 17. Membership is $3 for one year or $8 for three years. Send checks to Mrs. Ernest Steward, treasurer, at 3412 Douglas St., 79701.

CORRECTION

In the Woolco insert of today's Reporter Telegram, the description of the Lawn Mower on the back page is incorrect. The copy should read... "20" Lawn Mower with 3 H.P. Briggs & Stratton, 4 Cycle Engine & Safety Chute." Price of $74.97 is correct. The Model is WP420 and regularly sells for $95.77. Woolco regrets any inconvenience this error may have caused.

Sandinistas advance northward from Costa Rica

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Sandinista guerrillas were reported advancing northward from the Costa Rican border, attacking towns south of Managua and locked in "ferocious fighting" in the capital in their war to oust President Anastasio Somoza.

Sources linked to the rebels claimed Tuesday they had broken through national guard lines that had blocked their advance northward from the Costa Rican frontier.

The sources said the guerrillas were striking toward La Virgen, six miles south of Rivas where they hoped to set up their provisional government. Rivas is 16 miles north of the border, and La Virgen is the site of a national guard compound and infantry training school.

But a spokesman for the guard, Somoza's army and police force, said reports of the Sandinista advance in the south were "totally false." He said Somoza's troops "made a slight tactical pullback to avoid charges that the national guard was threatening the Costa Rican border." He claimed the guard was holding the Sandinistas approximately four miles north of the border and was inflicting heavy casualties with mortars, artillery and air attacks.

Informed sources said the rebels attacked several small towns between the Sandinista-held cities of Diriamba, 28 miles south of Managua, and Masaya, 20 miles southeast of Managua. They speculated that the Sandinistas were trying to establish a front south of Managua stretching across the isthmus between Lake Nicaragua and the Pacific and cutting off the guardsmen battling on the southern front.

But the guard spokesman said the attacks south of Managua were "only diversionary attacks and have no real significance."

He claimed that all Sandinista positions in eastern Managua, where the rebels have held half a dozen slum barrios for more than two weeks, "will be cleaned out within 72 hours."

The guard claimed early Tuesday that it had driven the rebels from the Belo Horizonte slum, but late Tuesday refugees streaming from the area said the rebels were still entrenched and confident they could defend their positions.

They said there were many dead in the streets, including a pregnant woman, and the stench of decomposing bodies was "unbearable."

Members of Congress belonging to Somoza's Liberal Party met late Tuesday in the Intercontinental Hotel amid speculation they were discussing a successor should Somoza heed the calls for his resignation from the Organization of American States and the United States.

Somoza, his Cabinet and top legislative leaders met Tuesday morning and called a special legislative session for Thursday afternoon. But Somoza's private secretary denied categorically that the president would resign or that the session was being called to discuss a successor. Somoza's term ends in 1981 and he has vowed not to step down until then. His family has run Nicaragua since invading U.S. Marines helped put his father in power 42 years ago.

The guerrillas of the Sandinista National Liberation Front take their name from a Nicaraguan rebel who fought the Marines. The guerrillas' latest offensive began in September with a two-week uprising in which some 1,500 persons were killed. An estimated 10,000 more have died in fighting since.

Attack on shah fails, Iran claims

MEXICO CITY, Mexico (AP) — Police and top security officials today denied reports from Tehran that an assassination attempt was made against Iran's exiled Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi at the Cuernavaca home where he and his family are living.

The head of Tehran's revolutionary court claimed that Iranian guerrillas attacked and slightly injured the shah, but "the jackal ran away this time."

"It is totally false. The reports circulating are just not true," said Capt. Miguel Mengochea Lopez, director of the judiciary police in Cuernavaca, 50 miles south of the Mexican capital.

Robert F. Armao, the shah's chief of staff, said in a telephone interview in New York that reports of an attack were "absolutely false." Armao made his comments before departing for Cuernavaca.

"There have been no attempts on his life or the lives of any members of his family whatsoever. Security remains constant... He's in excellent health," Armao said. He and the shah conversed by telephone at 9:35 a.m. EDT, he said, and "there are absolutely no problems."

Other security sources in Mexico, including one involved in guarding the shah, also denied the report, but asked that their names not be used.

A Mexico City newspaper, Diario de Mexico, reported a helicopter attack on the shah's retreat Tuesday night. No injury to the shah was mentioned. Other Mexican newspapers did not carry the report.

Armao, asked about the report of a helicopter attack, said there was no truth to the story and that on Monday afternoon a personal friend of the shah arrived for a visit via helicopter. He declined to identify the visitor.

Iranian revolutionary court head Ayatollah Sadeq Khalkhali, who announced a reward earlier this month for the assassination of the exiled shah, said the deposed Iranian monarch was attacked as he rode in his car near his Mexican resort compound. Khalkhali said the car in which the shah was riding was destroyed.

"The jackal ran away this time, but he will not escape unharmed next time," Khalkhali told The Associated Press by telephone from his home in Qom, 100 miles south of Tehran.

He said the guerrilla group he heads, the Islamic Fedayeen, was stepping up its plans to assassinate the shah.

"He (the shah) must know that he will never escape from the clutches of the Islamic Fedayeen," Khalkhali said. "Even if he hides in a small corner of the White House, we will pull him out."

Last week, Khalkhali said anyone willing to kill the shah would receive a reward of $143,000. Previously, Khalkhali reported signing a death verdict against the shah, his wife and several other members of his family and said that assassins had been sent to Mexico to carry out the deed.

The shah arrived in Mexico on June 10 from the Bahamas after receiving a 90-day tourist visa with help from former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. He left Iran in mid-January, about one month before the overthrow of his government was completed by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, spiritual leader of Iran's Shiite Moslems. The shah also has spent time in Egypt and Morocco.

Mideast fund bills need to be harmonized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation allocating $1.5 billion to keep U.S. promises to Israel and Egypt during Mideast peace negotiations has cleared both houses of Congress.

But the money for the two countries is contained in supplemental appropriations bills passed by the Senate and House in differing total amounts.

The two catch-all bills, providing money for new projects as well as for federal agencies running short of cash, must be reconciled into a single spending measure.

The version that cleared the Senate Tuesday by an 86-8 vote contains $13.9 billion in all. The House version, passed earlier, contains a total of $11.2 billion.

But the two agree on providing $800 million to relocate two Israeli airbases from the Sinai Desert to the Negrev Desert and $300 million in extra aid for Egypt. In addition, they provide $370 million to underwrite $3.7 billion in military credit sales for Egypt and Israel.

And both the Senate and House versions also earmark $190 million for engineering work on the MX mobile missile.

Other items in the Senate legislation include:

—$1.3 billion to buy four destroyers ordered by Iran in 1974 but later cancelled after the ouster of the shah.

—$2.4 billion for increased military personnel costs, boosts in military retirement pay and military operation and maintenance accounts and $1.4 billion for Veterans Administration benefits and programs.

Search for crewmen continues

FUJICINO, Italy (AP) — Relief workers resumed the search today for more than 20 crewmen believed missing after a French freighter and a gasoline-laden Italian tanker collided and burned near this fishing port 15 miles west of Rome.

Twelve rescue vessels and several Italian army helicopters participated in the operation as workers succeeded in separating the still-burning ships shortly before the tanker sank, 14 miles off the Italian coast.

Authorities had feared the 5,000-ton tanker Vera Berlinger would explode or drag the 12,000-ton freighter Emmanuel Delmas down with it. The ships collided in dense fog early Tuesday, midway between Fujicino, the site of Rome's international airport, and the resort town of Santa Marinella.

Panama Canal treaty bill in trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's effort to get a Panama Canal treaty bill from the Senate that he could not get from the House is already in trouble.

Carter's advisers said Tuesday the bill passed by the House threatens to revive anti-American antagonism in Latin America and urged the Senate Armed Services Committee to go back to the president's original bill.

But Carter's bill drew opposition from some senators on the committee and several of them predicted the committee will approve something closer to the House bill.

Hearings on the matter were continuing today.

Unarmed workers hold embassy

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP) — Police surrounded the Mexican Embassy in this Central American capital today after 20 unarmed textile workers took the ambassador and 19 others hostage to call attention to their demand for labor rights.

"We are comfortable," Ambassador Rafael Macedo Figueroa said in a telephone interview with a Mexico City television station. "But we cannot leave. They put a padlock on the door to the street."

"They are not armed. At least we don't see any arms and they told us they don't have any."

Thirty police officers stood guard outside the two-story building. Macedo Figueroa said the workers were using the occupation as a forum to demand a union and other benefits at two textile factories.

He said a consul was allowed to leave and return with food during the evening.

Panel cites corporate practice study in opening privacy hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many of America's largest corporations collect medical information about employees and use it to make decisions on hiring, firing, promotions and other personnel matters, a new study shows.

The Senate Governmental Affairs Committee cited the study as it prepared to open hearings today on the privacy rights of workers.

Sens. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., chairman of the panel, and Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said the evidence shows U.S. firms often abuse their employees' privacy rights when it comes to medical information.

The survey, sponsored by the University of Illinois, drew responses from 74 companies employing a total of 2.5 million persons. The committee released the results in advance of the hearing.

More than three-fourths of the firms surveyed — 77 percent — responded "yes" when asked if they "collect and maintain any medical information about personnel for use in making employment-related decisions."

When asked if they had a policy giving employees access to their medical information, 55 percent of the firms said "yes," and 45 percent said "no."

Asked whether there was a policy allowing employees to submit corrections or amendments to their medical records, 52 percent of the firms said "yes" and 48 percent said "no."

Red Cross group to see slide show

Wichita Falls Red Cross Disaster Chairman Robert Draper will speak and show a slide presentation of the Wichita Falls tornado disaster at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at 2306 Elizabeth St.

His speech will be a part of the annual meeting of the Midland Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Draper is the Texas Regional Traffic Coordinator for 14 north Texas counties. He also is a member of the board of directors for the Wichita Falls Red Cross Chapter.

The firms were not identified. "The use of medical records by these companies is in conflict with the Privacy Commission's recommendations," Ribicoff said.

The recommendations of the federally funded Privacy Commission do not have the force of law.

Javits said the results of the university study "highlight the need for additional legislation in this area. Personal privacy is one of our most fundamental rights."

A committee staff member, who asked that his name not be used, said firms obtain medical information about workers during employment interviews and from medical facilities operated within the firms.

In addition, he said, there have been cases where outside companies, surreptitiously obtained medical records and then sold them to other firms, such as insurance companies.

Conditions of twins improving

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Separated Siamese twins Lisa and Elisa Hansen are doing so well their condition will soon be upgraded to satisfactory, a University of Utah Medical Center spokesman says.

John Dwan said Tuesday he knows of no reason why their condition can't be upgraded from fair to satisfactory. But he said the attending physician who must make that change, Dr. Stephen Minton, has been out of town for several days.

The girls were joined at the tops of their heads, sharing some blood vessels. Their brains were joined at one spot, but otherwise were separate.

Before the May 29 operation that separated them, Minton described Lisa and Elisa as perfectly normal girls who happened to be joined together. Since the operation, the girls have reacted to things going on around them in a perfectly normal way.

Because of the way in which they were joined, muscles normally used for sitting, standing and walking are not as developed in Lisa and Elisa as in other children their age. Physical therapists working with the girls say they are pleased with their progress, Dwan said.

And Lisa and Elisa are receiving plenty of attention from their parents who visit them in the hospital. "Their father was tossing one of them in the air the other day, and she loved it," Dwan said.

He said the twins will be allowed to go home when doctors determine they are ready. Then, perhaps after several months, they will return to the hospital so bone can be grafted across the tops of their skulls.

At separation, bone tissue was set aside for that purpose, Dwan said. Presently, only skin covers the spot where they once were joined.

"After they go home, one of the biggest dangers they'll face is being accidentally hit on the head," Dwan said. "That could be as bad as anything they faced during separation."

Italy's silent lingo expresso

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

ROME (AP) — When it comes to expressing themselves in any situation, you've got to hand it to the Italians. If you don't, they'll hand it to you in sign language you may never forget.

Although gifted with one of the world's loveliest languages, the language of Petrarch and Dante and grand opera, the Italians have a passion for pantomime, for finger phonetics, that would render them eloquent in a speechless world.

Above the roar of Rome's traffic, against the background din of screeching sirens and bellowing police whistles, a pair of Italian taxi drivers caught in a rush-hour fender bender can convey their emotions in a series of flamboyant gestures that, without a blow being struck, add up to a two-man riot with enough hand signals left over to tell the police and the bystanders where to go and how to get there.

If civilization as we know it suddenly went silent, the Italians could still sing bel canto below the collar button and never miss a note or a nuance.

Italian body language, spoken mainly with the arms, hands and fingers, is responsible for a rich and ever growing literature.

When barbarian hordes besieged the gates of Rome, Caesar's legions rebuked them with the ritual salute of affixing the apex of thumb to the tip of the nose and tooting an imaginary trumpet. Like the "digitus impudens," known in the vulgate as the finger, this wordless one-liner is still with us in impolite conversation. Ted Williams, according to sports writer Red Smith, was once tossed out of a game up in Boston after fans booed him for striking out with the bases loaded "for including everyone from home plate to the right field foul line in a classic Roman gesture reminiscent of a man with a particularly pesky mosquito in the crook of his elbow."

That gesture also enjoys common modern usage. Other silent signs of the times and mores in Italy might not be so well-known around the world. The tourist coming here would be wise to bone up on them, the way TV football fans memorize the referee's hand signals before the season begins.

When an Italian joins all his fingertips together, as if holding an imaginary pinch of salt, it means these are the facts he is giving you, this is the gist of his argument, and you can take it without a pinch of salt.

If he delivers the gesture with two handfuls of the same, all fingertips together like a priest elevating a host, it means you can believe him on his mother's eyes and his daughter's honor.

An Italian says "come here" with a hand wave that in other countries means "goodbye." Here the body language for "goodbye" consists of extending the hand palm upwards and repeatedly closing the thumb against the tightly joined fingers as if catching imaginary rain drops or extracting the soap from one of those dispensers in a pay toilet.

A child disobeys his mother by slicing one finger under his chin, a mild form of "no way" or "forget it." Adults add a few more fingers and come close to fighting words, or lack of same.

"You're crazy" is rendered by rolling the eyes upward and placing the hand perpendicularly against the forehead, fingertips pointing toward the toes, and gently tapping the brow above the bridge of the nose. Americans signify the same by sharpening an imaginary pencil against one temple.

An Italian says "let's go" by waving the fingers of the right hand grasped at the wrist and held close to the stomach by his left hand. The right hand held against the chest to flick imaginary crumbs or feathers from an imaginary cummerbund means "Get lost," "Drop dead," "beat it" or similar expressions of negative intent.

Pinching an infant's cheek means "nice baby," a much admired sign of affection no matter how much the urchin may howl at having his jowls rubberized. Pinching the bustle of a passing beauty is an Italian's way of paying homage to nature's bounty, admiring a work of art, even at the price of having his face slapped or his toes mashed under a stiletto heel.

An Italian motorist cut off on a curve or beaten to an intersection will karate chop the air philosophically with one hand, as if to ask, what can one do in a world of such cretins?

Caught running a stop light or a police whistle, he will show his innocence by removing both hands from the wheel to let the officer know that the vehicle alone is at fault.

The worst that can be said of an Italian by another Italian without anyone saying anything is to raise the pinky and pointer finger to form a pair of horns. This means your wife is playing around and why not, being married to a creep like you?

They have been covertly conversing like this for centuries in Rome. All around the Forum the mute statues of the Caesars with hands on high seem to be talking across the ages to the tourists, demonstrating imaginary ballpoint pens, praising the plumpness of an imaginary kumquat, beating each other to the pass in their chariots, telling the vandals to get lost, even suggesting that Caesar's wife, after all, is not above suspicion despite what Shakespeare had to say on the subject.

Roof-top dairy cow takes up new location on patio

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — After standing on a dairy-farm roof for many years, the cow was sent not to pasture but to Jim McCoy's pool-side patio.

paint the cow in wild colors on every conceivable occasion. It was taken down in 1971.

McCoy acquired the dairy property in 1976, hoping to turn it into an ice-cream parlor. He located the cow in storage, repaired it at a cost of $600, and put it back on the roof.

But this year McCoy decided to lease the building to a restaurant. The restaurant people didn't want the cow, so he retired it to his patio.

Ombudsman's work day busy

By BILL RAWLINS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — When Tennesseans are evicted from their homes or their unemployment checks are late or they are in danger of losing their jobs, many of them call Gov. Lamar Alexander.

"They call the governor's office because they don't know where else to go," Marc Lavine says. "We get all sorts of calls."

Marc — for Marcia — Lavine is Alexander's ombudsman. Ombudsman is a Swedish word meaning a government official whose job is to investigate complaints from individuals involving public officials. Ms. Lavine has a Ph.D. in European history — her specialty is Fascist Italy under Mussolini — and she was an Alexander campaign assistant.

Her husband, Lewis, 31, is a member of Alexander's "brain trust." Ms. Lavine said she had jumped at the chance of being ombudsman. "I like solving problems," she said. "It's a challenge."

Alas, one of the most persistent problems she is asked to solve, housing, "is one the state is almost powerless to do anything about. The housing projects are financed by the feds and they're run by local housing authorities — and there's not much we can do."

But there was the destitute Chattanooga man who had been evicted from his home in frigid weather. He used his last dime to call Alexander's office, collect, from a telephone booth. Ms. Lavine jotted down the number, found the help — and called him back at the booth. Through the Chattanooga Community Action Agency, she found emergency funds to help him and obtained temporary shelter and counseling for him through Chattanooga's Crisis Intervention Center.

Then there was the man who was out of work and whose unemployment checks didn't come regularly. "I called the Employment Security folks," she said, "and outlined the problem. It was something that the man couldn't seem to handle with the staff in the field. And it turned out to be a problem with the computer which was rectified."

It brought "my first formal thank you note."

Then there was the school teacher who was told by education officials that one of the courses he took for a master's degree would satisfy requirements for a teaching certificate. After he graduated, the education officials said they had been wrong — he needed to take another course.

"He was teaching with a temporary certificate," she said, "and what it boiled down to was that if something wasn't done, he wouldn't get paid. I called the Department of Education and asked them to look into it."

"The gentleman actually had satisfied the requirements and just got his certificate."

Dummy's Trump Entry

By Alfred Sheinwold

Whenever you need something you find that you also need something else. Today you need an extra diamond trick, but first you need a trump entry to dummy.

South took the ace of clubs and the top trumps. Then he tried two high diamonds and a diamond ruff. West refused to overruff, and South couldn't get to dummy to ruff another diamond and then again to cash a diamond. Down one.

ONE SPADE

After taking the ace of clubs South can afford only one top spade. Then he takes the top diamonds and ruffs a diamond with the jack.

When West discards, South must lead a low trump. West takes the queen of spades and gives East two club tricks.

When East returns a heart to the ace, South ruffs a diamond high. Now he can lead a trump to dummy's ten and discard his losing heart on the last diamond.

China millions riding bicycles

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second column from comedian Bob Hope, who is touring the "Road to China" prior to filming an NBC-TV special there.

By BOB HOPE

PEKING — Touchdown in Peking! I'm in the home of the Great Wall, the panda and the fortune cookie. I'm confident they'll like me. After all, they know I'm close to Key Luke.

Bob Hope: On the Road Through China

As I stand up in the plane I see through the window two dozen well-dressed dignitaries smiling and wringing their hands in anticipation. As I reach the aisle, I'm suddenly jostled aside by a juggernaut of Japanese businessmen who disembark before me and are welcomed with open arms by the officials outside. I'm met by a deafening silence, interrupted only by the chattering of the Japanese commercial honchos. Mustering all the dignity I can, I saunter nonchalantly to the main building where I'm met by a solitary U.S. embassy official who asks me if I've seen Bob Hope.

I'm soon joined there by Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles, who's making a tour of China along with 12 other American mayors. He informs me that on the plane with us was a consignment of rattlesnakes sent to the Peking Zoo by the Los Angeles Zoo. I say, "Thank God. I thought it was the people who were hissing me."

The impact of China hits us immediately. There are eight hundred million people in China and at any given time, three quarters of them are riding a bicycle. Bicycles are such a popular means of transportation in Peking, that when I first got off the plane, I thought all Chinese were born with pneumatic tires. Bicycles in Peking are everywhere...and I mean everywhere. When we got to the hotel and unpacked, I found one in my luggage. Chinese bicycles come in any color you want...as long as it's black. This works out fine until you come out of a movie and forget where you parked.

Our red flag limousine, China's pride, lets us off at the Peking Hotel where we're ushered into a spacious suite with a television set prominently placed. I turn it on and find an English lesson in progress. I learn quite a bit. I never did get to graduate from "Sesame Street." I turn to other channels but find nothing...no "Mork and Mindy," no "Laverne and Shirley." No me. It's disgusting.

I'm informed I'm due this evening at a 10-course, 20 toast dinner in my honor, an event that's to be repeated almost every day. I make a note to call NBC and demand stunt pay. By the end of the fifth day I expect my stomach to go over the hill.

But we're here and it's very exciting. I'm looking forward eagerly to the next four weeks. Even the promise of an Academy Award couldn't tear me away. I don't think.

Thief sends lady's slipper nearer extinction

HARMONY, Minn. (AP) — Floyd Newell had cared for the lady's slippers for decades. When the last of the wildflowers was stolen, he offered a $50 reward for help in finding the thief.

The 90-year-old retired dentist had tended the plant and four others like it since he bought the 33 acres of southern Minnesota woods in 1943.

The last, one of an endangered species, carried 15 yellow blossoms the last time Newell saw it.

Its theft last month has left Newell bitter and puzzled.

"I don't expect to get my plant back — I don't even think I'll find out who took it," he said. "I'd give a lot to know what kind of person would do that."

"But I just want people to know the importance of leaving those wildflowers alone. It's against the law and it's trespassing, and besides that, it's theft. People need to be told that those flowers are becoming extinct in southern Minnesota."

Some European vacations still on bargain counters

(EDITOR'S NOTE — It's still possible to go to Europe this summer on a modest budget. It is just a case of finding the right places. In this first of three articles on getting the most out of a vacation abroad in this year of mounting travel costs, an AP writer reports on some of the countries in Europe where vacations can be a bargain.)

By RICHARD BLYSTONE

LONDON (AP) — If you've been postponing that vacation abroad because the dollar isn't as almighty as it once was, think again.

With a bit of planning, a dash of adventure and a detour from the beaten track, you may just find that bargain you thought went out with cheap gasoline.

European vacation bargains still exist — they've just moved out of the high-rent district.

IN ROMANIA you can get a night's lodging for the price of a cheese sandwich in Geneva, Switzerland. The cost of one night in a Copenhagen hotel will get you a week's bed and breakfast in one of Italy's most charming hill towns.

Rule One: There's no such thing as a cheap country if you want to go first class. A double room at the Inter-Continental Hotel in Zagreb, Yugoslavia, costs about $74 a night, only about $17 less than its cousin in Amsterdam, Netherlands. In less developed countries, the same conditions that kept potatoes cheap make it expensive to import air conditioners and martini makings.

Rule Two: All the undiscovered gems have been discovered. Shangri-la may exist somewhere but airlines with bargain fare don't fly there. Nowadays finding a bargain means shedding your prejudices against whatever it is that's kept people away so far.

BUT IF YOU don't mind penetrating the Iron Curtain, or risking a little rain in Spain, or walking instead of driving in Ireland, or sharing the Greek isle of Ios with about 5,000 young summer campers, you can get by on a fraction of the going rate for the old Grand Tour.

The first ingredient of a bargain is the dollar exchange rate. Switzerland typifies what to avoid: 10 years ago a room in a top-class hotel was 100 Swiss francs — then $23.10. Today 100 francs buys a night in a middle-class hostelry — but costs $57 in terms of Swiss francs.

In Bulgaria, though, tourists changing dollars get 1 1/2 times the official exchange rate for the local currency, the leva. If you can avoid buying gasoline, at $3.50 a gallon, you'll sleep better in your $2.50-a-night room in a private guest house — even though that price is 45 percent above last summer's rates.

WHAT'S IN BULGARIA? Anything from beaches to boar hunting. The newer tourist hotels offer bowling, tennis and horseback riding — and kindergartens to park the kids.

West Europeans discovered East Europe some years ago, but East Europe is just discovering how to promote itself. Romania has a two-week Transylvanian package tour called "Dracula: Legend and Truth" for $1,000. But unguided you can dine for as little as $10 a day, and a double room at an inn costs $3.

Budapest, the capital of communist Hungary, offers inexpensive hot mineral baths to soothe feet sore from touring Roman ruins. It has been mobbed by the hordes of Attila the Hun but not yet by tourists.

IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA anybody on the street will direct you to a $2 dinner, including beer, a quarter the tariff in a tourist hotel, and the waiter will steer you through the hieroglyphics on the menu. You can get around on a trolley car for the equivalent of nine cents and a concert ticket costs only a dollar.

In Western Europe, Spanish resorts are popular with German and Scandinavian tourists who don't earn that much more than you do. And while Spanish restaurants are no special bargain — $10 to $35 a meal — the drinks are among the cheapest in Europe.

A double room at a fancy Spanish resort hotel will set you back $60 a day, but a whitewashed guest house is only $10 to $15. Spain's cheapest vacation area is the northwest, largely because it rains a lot.

THE SAME GOES for neighboring Portugal, where the smart money goes further when spent away from Lisbon, the capital, and the southern coast. The central and northern beaches flank a beautiful and undeveloped countryside where a guest house costs $3 to $4 a night and the wine is rugged and cheap.

The Portuguese government runs a string of "pousadas" inns where first-class accommodations can be had for $16 and meals for $8. The magic words "tasca" or "restaurante tipico" should get you directed to a $2 to $4 meal and an 80-cent bottle of wine.

In Italy, roam away from Rome. For tiny beaches nestling along a rugged coast, boat trips and voluble natives, try the island of Ponza, 25 miles off the shin of Italy. Seven days with meals at a top hotel can cost less than $200.

OR THERE'S THE sleepy medieval town of San Gimignano in Tuscany, known for its 14 bell towers and narrow streets lined with palaces and old houses. Spare but adequate lodgings for $10 to $30 including breakfast.

It'll cost you $2.20 or more a gallon of gas to drive in Ireland this summer. Which is just as well, the experts say, because the way to see the country is at a walk, and a leisurely one at that.

Start, say, at the old fishing town of Kinsdale in County Cork, the most inexpensive part of Ireland. Walk west, stopping at farmhouses — $10 or less for bed and hearty breakfast — and pubs for the inner scenery.

Rural gas rate hike suspended

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Railroad Commission has suspended natural gas rate increases by the Southwest Texas Municipal Gas Corp. for rural customers in the Alpine, Marfa and Balmorhea areas.

The commission ordered that the rate increases be suspended for 120 days beginning July 9 to give the three cities time to consider similar rate increases for the incorporated areas.

Commission policy is to grant a company's request that the rates for unincorporated areas be set the same as the established rates for the adjacent city, said RRC hearings examiner Jeffrey R. Hill.

The three cities, however, have not yet approved rate increases similar to those the utility is seeking for the rural areas, Hill said.

About 561 residential and small commercial customers would be affected if the proposed rate increases are granted.

Southwest is requesting a 5 percent or a $1.01 increase in rates in the Alpine and Marfa areas and an 8 percent or $1.34 increase in the unincorporated areas near Balmorhea.

House Texans vote against Panama pact

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 14 through June 20.

HOUSE

PANAMA: By a vote of 220 for and 200 against, the House headed off efforts by conservatives to scuttle the Panama Canal treaties. The vote adopted an amendment requiring Panama to pay only $9.3 million to cover U.S. costs in turning over the Canal Zone, rather than the $2.3 billion required under a separate, Republican-sponsored amendment. The vote came during debate on a bill (HR 111) implementing the Canal treaties. The bill was headed for final passage and the Senate.

Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., the sponsor, said that if the House adopted the GOP amendment rather than his amendment the U.S. "would look indecisive and unable to carry out the will of its leaders."

Rep. Mickey Edwards, R-Okla., an opponent, said the U.S. should seek more money from Panama to offset the high costs to U.S. taxpayers involved in turning over the canal to Panama.

ROLL CALL REPORT

Most members voting "nay" were trying to thwart implementation of the Panama Canal treaties.

Reps. Jim Mattox, D-5, Bob Eckhardt, D-8, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jake Pickle, D-10, James Wright, D-12, Mickey Leland, D-18, and Martin Frost, D-24, voted "yea."

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Ray Roberts, D-4, Phil Gramm, D-6, Bill Archer, R-7, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, Jack Hightower, D-13, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Charles Stenholm, D-17, Kent Hance, D-19, Tom Loeffler, R-21, Ron Paul, R-22, and Abraham Kazen, D-23, voted "nay."

Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-20, did not vote.

EVACUATION PLANS: The House rejected, 147 for and 235 against, an amendment stipulating that before a utility can be federally licensed to operate a new nuclear power plant, the state in which the plant is situated must have an emergency evacuation plan as a safeguard against catastrophe. Presently, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission requires only an evacuation plan for the plant site. The amendment was proposed to HR 4388, a fiscal 1980 appropriations bill later passed and sent to the Senate.

Members voting "yea" want statewide evacuation plans to be mandated by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Mattox, Leland and Gonzalez voted "yea." Hall, Collins, Roberts, Gramm, Archer, Brooks, Pickle, Leath, Wright, Hightower, Wyatt, White, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler, Paul, Kazen and Frost voted "nay." Wilson, Eckhardt and de la Garza did not vote.

UTILITY RATES: The House rejected, 136 for and 271 against, an amendment to provide public financial reimbursement to "intervenor" who represent the consumer view point before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC). The amendment sought to provide $550,000 for that purpose. It was attached to HR 4388, a fiscal 1980 appropriations bill later passed without money for intervenors.

The FERC is the former Federal Power Commission. It sets rates and otherwise regulates interstate commerce in natural gas, pipeline oil and hydroelectric power, directly influencing the utility bills of most Americans.

Members voting "nay" were opposed to federal funding of intervenors before the federal utility commission.

SENATE

PEACE CORPS: The Senate rejected, 32 for and 62 against, an amendment to remove the Peace Corps from the jurisdiction of the federal volunteer agency Action. The amendment, offered to a bill (S 239) concerning volunteer programs, would have made the Peace Corps an independent agency. The bill was later passed and sent to the House. The House has voted to place the Peace Corps under State Department control.

Senators voting "yea" favored removing the Peace Corps from Action.

Sen. John Tower, R, voted "yea." Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D, voted "nay."

TVA: The Senate rejected, 33 for and 58 against, an amendment to enlarge the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) board of directors from three to five members and require that at least two directors live in a state receiving TVA power. The amendment was proposed to a bill (S 436) increasing TVA borrowing authority. The bill was passed and sent to the House.

Senators voting "yea" wanted to enlarge the TVA board of directors. Bentsen voting "yea" wanted to enlarge the TVA board of directors.

Bentsen voted "yea." Tower voted "nay."

VETERANS' AID: By a vote of 40 for and 52 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to block cuts of $52-$42 million in veterans' dental care, travel reimbursement, and over-the-counter drug benefits. The Senate earlier had restored part of a larger cutback proposed by the Carter Administration to make more money available for staffing VA hospitals.

The vote came during debate on a bill (S 1039) extending veterans' health care programs. The House had approved a similar bill earlier.

Senators voting "yea" favored retaining the veterans' benefits at current levels.

Tower voted "yea." Bentsen voted "nay."

Pennsylvania senator declines with thanks

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — The senator from Pennsylvania couldn't help but be impressed. The letter from the president of the United States closed, "Please help me. Sincerely, Jimmy Carter."

The letter was dated simply, "Tuesday Morning," and it began, "Dear Friend,

"I want to take a moment from the hectic pace of the Oval Office to bring you up-to-date on the progress of our administration and to ask you to become a contributor to the Democratic Party."

It was in the second half of the first sentence — the part about the Democratic Party — that caused Sen. Richard S. Schweiker to realize something was wrong.

The letter went on for three pages.

It was easy to see why the pace is so hectic. The president talked about bringing peace to the Middle East, about cutting unemployment and getting control of "runaway governments" cutting spending, reducing waste and facing up to inflation.

"We are working for the good of all," said Carter.

He also had wonderful things to say about the Democratic Party and concluded that "frankly, any person who's lucky enough to be president and smart enough to be a Democrat knows that his success, my success, is based on our long party history of great national and international purpose."

Pretty impressive stuff, even to a Republican like Schweiker. So the senator sent this brief reply:

"Dear Mr. President: "I appreciate your taking a moment from the hectic pace of the Oval Office to bring me up-to-date on the progress of your administration and to ask that I become a contributor to the President's Club of the Democratic Party.

"I hope you will understand that I feel I must respectfully decline your kind invitation because of a prior commitment. Many months ago I announced that I would work for the election of Ronald Reagan as our next president."

THE ALPHABETIZED world of Washington faces a serious problem. The federal government has a Department of Energy, which most people refer to as DOE.

There's a strong chance Congress soon will create a Department of Education. Two DOE's?

Rep. John N. Erlenborn, R-Ill., an opponent of creating a separate Education department, suggested the solution to the alphabet problem was to call it the Department of Public Education or DOPE.

HISTORY OF SORTS was made in the Senate the other day.

It was 9:30 a.m. and the Senate had just convened for the day. The acting minority leader was Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M. The acting majority leader was Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

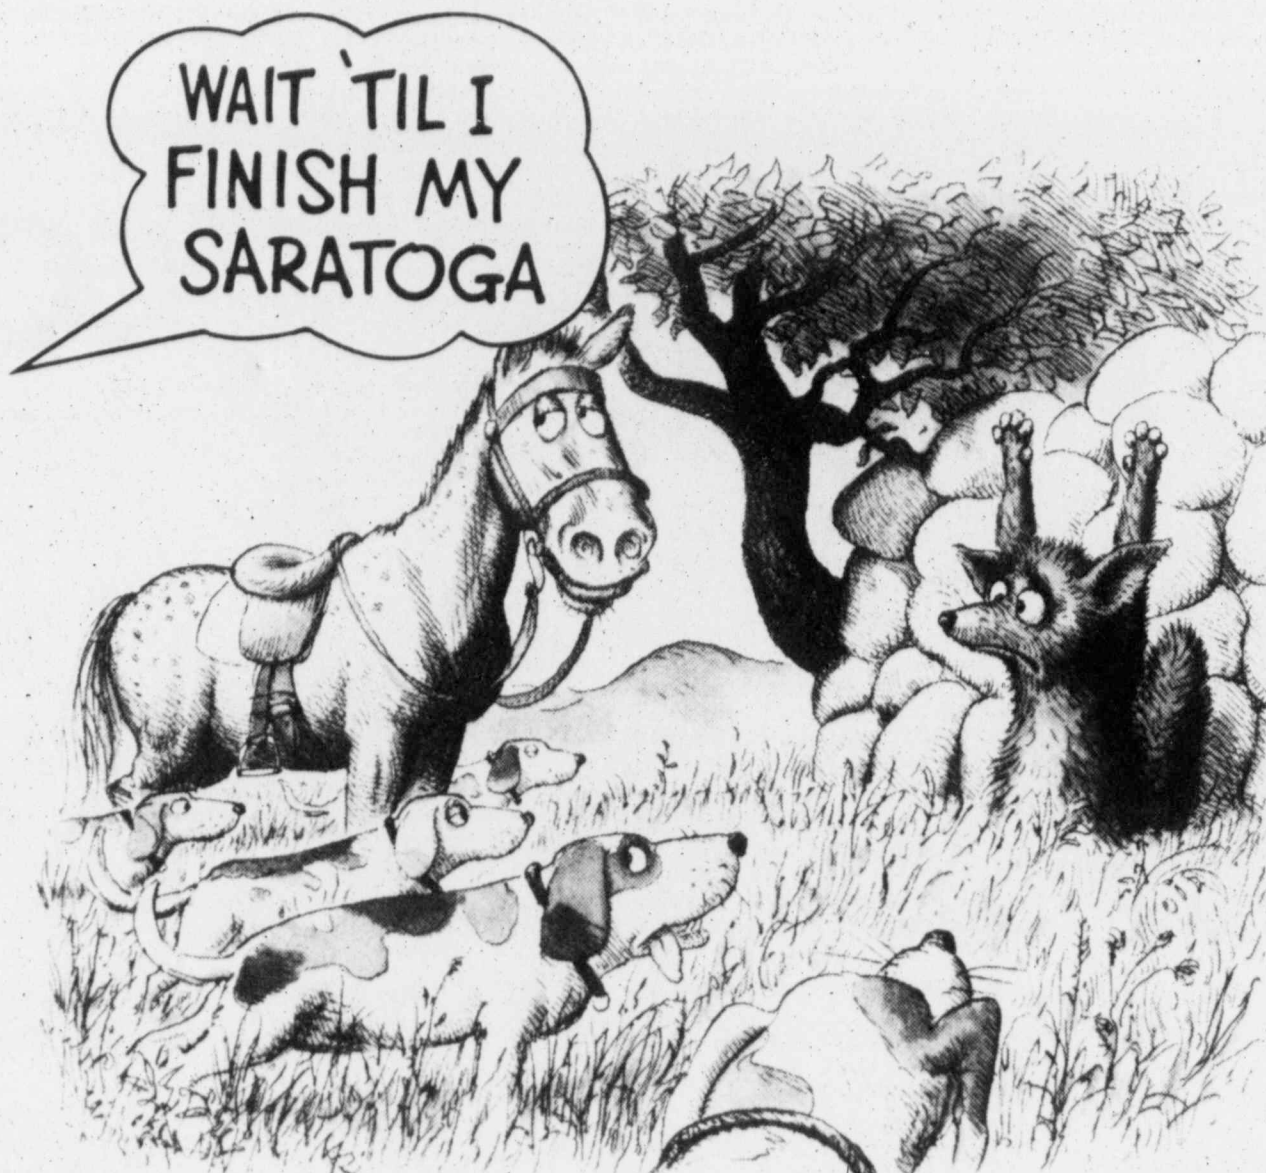

"I wish to note this very historic day in the Senate," said Domenici. "It was well over 170 years before the first Italian senator was elected and now we not only have elected them, but this morning those two strange names ending in 'i' are here representing the two great parties."

After Domenici finished, DeConcini said, "I have to say that this sounds like more of an Irish colloquy than it does a couple of Italians talking."

REP. SILVIO CONTE, R-Mass., managed to string together more puns than votes in a futile effort to kill a federal program which compensates beekeepers for insects lost due to the use of federally registered pesticides.

"I rise in support of my amendment to kill the stickiest, sweetest subsidy of them all," began Conte. "The issue today is to B or not to B.

"The taxpayers are tired of being stung by a bunch of dead bees. Since its creation, this program has allowed a small hive of beekeepers to place their stingers deep in the federal honey pot."

Plane to turn pizza parlor

ROME (AP) — The last of Alitalia's 16 Caravelle planes, which have been jetting through the skies since 1960, has come down to earth.

The airline recently delivered the last jet to a restaurant owner in Livorno, where he intends to convert the plane into a pizza parlor.

Ali calls it a ring career

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, the only man to win the crown three times, admitted for the first time that he sent a letter to the World Boxing Association officially resigning his title, effective immediately.

"Yes, that's the truth," Ali said via telephone from his Los Angeles home. "I'm in a position that I can go no further in boxing."

Last week, Mike Mortimer, the chairman of the WBA championship committee, revealed in South Africa that he received copies of the letter addressed to WBA President Fernando Mandy Galindez in which the 37-year champion relinquished his title.

Martina advances.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Defending women's champion Martina Navratilova began her Wimbledon title defense with a tough first round victory over Tanya Harford of South Africa, 4-6, 6-2, 6-1.

Navratilova was playing in front of her mother for the first time since her defection from Czechoslovakia four years ago.

In other first round women's action: Ivanna Madruga of Argentina upset 12th seeded Sue Barker 6-3, 4-6, 8-6; Chris Evert Lloyd easily defeated Marita Redondo 6-4, 6-2; No. 3 seed Evonne Goolagong Cawley outstroked Marcie Louie 6-0, 6-3, Virginia Wade brushed aside Peanut Louie 6-0, 6-4 and 16-year-old Pam Shriver beat Pat Medrado of Brazil 6-4, 6-3.

In men's play Victor Pecci of Paraguay gave quite an exhibition on center court crushing Sherwood Stewart in straight sets 7-5, 6-2, 6-3.

Jimmy Connors and Guillermo Vilas led the parade of seeded players to the second round as Connors completed a suspended 6-2, 6-7, 7-5, 6-3 win over Jean Francois Caujolle and Vilas punished veteran British left-hander Roger Taylor 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

Only one seeded player fell Tuesday. Corrado Barazzutti of Italy, seeded 16th, lost a three hour marathon to Andrew Pattison 6-3, 6-4, 5-7, 4-6, 6-4.

Mets defeat Travelers, 6-5

By The Associated Press

Jody Davis singled home Randy Johnson with the winning run in the bottom of the ninth Tuesday night as the Jackson Mets edged the Arkansas Travelers, 6-5, in a Texas League baseball game.

In other Texas League action, Amarillo beat Midland, 9-3, San Antonio defeated El Paso, 10-5, and Shreveport and Tulsa split a doubleheader. Shreveport won the opener, 3-0, and Tulsa took the nightcap, 4-2.

Johnson singled, reached second on a passed ball and scored with two outs when Davis delivered a single to left field.

Keith Bodie homered for Jackson in the second inning and Mets catcher Steve Till had three hits, including two doubles.

Patkin makes 'em laugh; Mustad makes 'em weep

By RICHARD VINCENT Sports Writer

The 1,000-plus crowd at Cubs' Stadium Tuesday night had more than just the Midland Cubs-Amarillo Gold Sox game to keep them occupied.

Max Patkin, the famed Clown Prince of Baseball, entertained the throng during the contest and kept everybody rolling in their seats.

There was one slight problem, however. The Cubs lost 9-3 to Amarillo and the fellow that was laughing the most afterwards was Gold Sox pitcher Eric Mustad.

The stocky righthander shook off early control problems and completed a strong seven innings for his fourth victory in his last five starts, courtesy of some nifty relief work from Tom Thurman, who silenced the Cubs in the last two innings. Herm Segelke was roughed-up early by the visitors and absorbed the setback.

The two teams hook-up again tonight for a 7:30 clash that should pit the Cubs' Mark Parker, 5-5, against Amarillo's George Stablein, 6-5.

Mustad, 6-6 for the year, finds the confines of Cub Stadium much to his liking. Earlier in the Tall City, he handed the Bruins their only whitewash of the season.

"I like throwing here, this is a good park," said Mustad, sipping on a Coors while soaking his arm in ice in the Gold Sox clubhouse. "This is a big league field and it really helps to play here because, for one, there are no bad hops."

Once he settled down, Mustad, who pitched half a season for the Gold Sox last year before right elbow surgery, was in command.

"I was kind of wild at first," he said, mentioning the one batter he hit and two wild pitches he uncorked.

Then there was a balk in the first that scored Dan Rohr from third for the Cubs' initial run. Mustad said it was his first balk in three years of pro ball.

"I had to calm myself down after that (the balk)," he said. "I knew that I had to keep the team close."

Mustad also said he was wary of the Cubs' blinding speed on the bases. He said he adjusted his pickoff moves to compensate for that fact. The end result was two key pickoff plays, nailing Jared Martin both times, that hurt the hosts.

But Mustad wasn't the entire Gold Sox show. Steve Smith, Gary Ashby, Brian Greer, Curt Reed, Dane Irtsen and Paul O'Neill each collected two hits in the balanced 14-hit Amarillo attack. Smith, O'Neill and catcher Brad Shames each knocked in a pair of runs.

Amarillo went to work in the fourth with a five run explosion that sent Segelke to the showers early. Greer blasted a double to left-center to open the frame, and following a base hit by Reed, he scored on Irtsen's safety. Shames then chased in Reed and Irtsen with a booming single to left. Then Smith's shotgun single to center allowed O'Neill and Tim Flannery to score.

Tom Butler, in for Segelke after most of the damage was done, got Ashby to ground out to end the disastrous frame.

Ex-Midland Cub pitcher finds success with Yankees

By TED BATTLES R-T Sports Editor

Last time we saw him, he was pitching before 500 fans June 5, 1978 against Jackson at Cubs Stadium in Midland. Now, he was coming in to relieve old mutton chops himself, which might have been a thrill he wouldn't have dared fantasize about as a teenager before his TV set back home in Houston a few years ago. Instead of 500 fans, there were 41,000 hostiles in Arlington Stadium screaming for his blood.

His job was simple enough. Just make 'em forget Rich Gossage and save the day for Luis Tiant.

The aging whirling dervish had burrowed himself into a fine hole, a 2-2 tie in the last of the ninth and trouble on the bases after Pat Putnam led off with a double and Oscar Gamble had walked. And with no one out, the Rangers could almost inhale victory, it was so close.

That's when Bob Lemon in one of his final acts as Yankees' manager, issued the SOS for Ron Davis, not exactly a household word like Rollie Fingers, Mike Marshall or Bruce Sutter in relief circles...at least, not yet.

The lean hawklike righthander, appropriately nicknamed Bird or Slinky not long out of Houston Milby High, came on to get Richie Zisk on a quick comebacker to the box, but the runners moved up and Davis was ordered to walk Jim Sundberg.

If the unknown rookie was quaking in his boots like he should have been, it didn't show as he one-handed Nelson Norman's one-bounce liner back to the box and fired to the plate to start an inning-ending double play. An inning later he had his fifth win without a defeat. Since then he has added three saves, not bad for his brief stay with the New York Yankees.

If Ron isn't replacing Gossage, the Yankees' peerless relief ace, he is at least holding the fort until Rich gets back.

A YEAR ago, among the Midland Cub pitchers, Ron probably would have been one of the least likely candidates for overnight success and readily admits, "I would still be in AA ball if I had stayed with Chicago."

Davis, despite the hostile Ranger crowd, didn't feel alone. After all, he had 30 relatives up from Houston in hopes of seeing him pitch and they made their presence heard when Davis snuffed out the Rangers uprising in the ninth.

The strange part about Davis' success is that in his his years with the Chicago Cubs organization, he was never anything but a starter. In his last start for Midland he went nine innings against Jackson, a game Midland was to win in the 13th. And what's more last year was his first as high as AA ball.

Yet the Yankees grabbed him off the Midland roster last year in the Ken Holtzman trade and now a year later, whatever Tommy John, Ron Guidry and Tiant are contributing toward keeping the Yankees from falling out of the league, Davis is contributing as much and maybe even more.

BRIEFLY, since his trade, the Davis saga has been assignment to West Haven, Eastern League and a very quick look from the Yankees last season, followed by an undistinguished finish as a reliever at West

Butler, however, didn't last long either. In the fifth, he yielded a towering solo homer to Greer before serving up consecutive singles to Reed and Irtsen and a fielder's choice to Joe Hicks, which loaded the bases.

Darrell Turner, who was fairly sharp en route to finishing the contest, followed Butler and allowed a solid double to O'Neill that scored a pair of runs and made the score 8-2.

Midland, which put up one run in the fourth when Eric Grundy doubled off the green monster in center scoring Jim Tracy, manufactured their last run of the evening in the fifth.

Brian Rosinski, who extended his hitting streak to ten games, walloped a triple over rightfielder Hicks' head to begin the uprising. Rosinski came home on Ted Trevino's ground out.

The Gold Sox added an insurance run in the eighth as Flannery reached on an error, went to second on a ground out and rode home Ashby's flash single down the third base line.

After it was all over, Mustad pondered the Gold Sox' second half Texas League title chances. He said a fast start "is really important. We're capable of doing it. I think we'll come out strong this half."

And you know, it might just be true, especially if Eric Mustad continues to have the last laugh.

Kallie Knoetze, the South African heavyweight boxer, said he was unlucky to be scheduled against John Tate instead of Leon Spinks in the WBA semifinal bouts to name a successor to champion Muhammad Ali, who is expected to retire, commenting he too could have easily beaten the Spinks he saw in action against Gerrie Coetzee. Coetzee stopped Spinks while Knoetze was knocked out by Tate. "Spinks fought a crazy first round and would have lost against me too, as well as against any other heavyweight," Knoetze said while predicting a close, good match between Coetzee and Tate when they meet. "Gerrie and John both land heavy blows. The outcome will depend on who manages to hit hard first."

The Midwest Pro Basketball League, the goal of a Texas businessman, has ceased operations due to the inability to attract local ownership, the league's organizer has announced. The league was formed four months ago by Worth Christie of Ailef, Tex. Cities involved in the proposed league were Omaha, Wichita, Little Rock, Memphis, Springfield, Mo., and Dubuque, Sioux City and the Quad Cities in Iowa.

Jerry Tarkanian, coach at Nevada-Las Vegas, is the top candidate to replace Jerry West as Los Angeles Lakers coach, professional Los Angeles Lakers.

Tarkanian is the only man known to have been interviewed by the Lakers' new owner, Jerry Buss. It was Buss who, perhaps inadvertently, announced Monday that former All-Star West would not be coaching the club next season.

Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali confirmed on Tuesday that he sent a letter to the WBA resigning his title, effective immediately. "Yes, that's the truth, I'm in a position that I can go no further in boxing. The only thing I can do to increase my popularity is to lose and win the title back for the fourth time, but I'm too old for that. I'm past 33, which has been the age most heavyweights retire. I'm 37, which is a record for heavyweights. I'm the three-time champ, which is the best way to be remembered."

The New York Yankees purchased veteran outfielder Bob Murcer from the Chicago Cubs in exchange for minor league pitcher Paul Semall and an undisclosed amount of cash, an undisclosed amount of cash to the Cubs. Murcer was batting .258 with seven homers and 22 runs batted in 58 games after being named captain of the club this spring. Semall was 6-3 in 13 starts at Columbus of the International League with a 3.90 earned run average in 92 2-3 innings.

Nancy Lopez and Lee Trevino teamed to win the $82,000 Palm Coast mixed team world championship, shooting a 6-under par 66 to defeat teams of Gary Player-Laura Baugh and Ray Floyd-Midland's Judy Rankin, which tied for second with 70's.

Four Maryland businessmen, concerned over the possibility of Baltimore losing the baseball Orioles, proposed that a $100 million sports complex be built in Howard County. Members of the newly-formed Megaplex, Inc., said they have obtained options on about half of the 500 acres they seek along the Baltimore-Washington highway corridor. The property is located southwest of Baltimore, less than eight miles from the Baltimore Beltway and about 14 miles from the Capital Beltway around Washington, D.C. It is bounded by Interstate 95, Maryland 175, U.S. 1 and Meadowridge Road.

Meadowlands, N.J., Racetrack apparently is interested in putting on a match race between 1978 Triple Crown winner Affirmed and Spectacular Bid. Bud Delp, Bid's trainer, reportedly has challenged Affirmed's people to a winner-take-all match race whose purse might reach $1 million. Louis Wolfson, Affirmed's owner, has accepted the challenge.

Tulsa stadium bond bites dust in light vote

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A $3.7 million bond issue that would have financed a multipurpose sports stadium at the Tulsa County fairgrounds was defeated in a light voter turnout Tuesday.

With all 231 precincts reporting, the totals were 19,194 or 52.7 percent against the proposal and 17,237 or 47.3 percent in favor of it.

Bond approval required a 60 percent vote in favor of the proposal.

A 9,250-seat stadium was to have been built at the fairgrounds to replace Driller Park.

The current stadium was built in 1934. It partially collapsed in April 1977. The Texas League Tulsa Drillers are the primary tenants of the current park.

The proposed stadium would have been used for professional and amateur sports such as baseball, soccer and football.

A group called Citizens for Sports Stadium Committee had spent $30,000 in a media campaign to win voter approval.

There was minimal organized opposition. Those opposing the stadium contended the county did not need such a stadium, or that the proposed seating capacity was too small.

Bears ink top pick

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Bears have signed their No. 1 draft pick, defensive tackle Dan Hampton of Arkansas, and eight other players.

Other rookies in addition to the 256-pound Hampton signing one-year pacts Tuesday were safety Joe Restic of Notre Dame, line-backer John Sullivan of Illinois and safety Dave Becker of Iowa.

Veterans who signed were line-backer Doug Buffone, running back Roland Harper, corner-back Virgil Livers, center Dan Neal and kicker Bob Thomas.

The Bears, who open training camp on July 19 at Lake Forest, said negotiations are continuing with quarterback Mike Phipps and line-backer Tom Hicks, and with two draft picks, defensive end Al Harris of Arizona State and line-backer Lee Kunz of Nebraska.

Astros open 6 1/2 game NL lead

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It was the eighth inning and the Houston Astros needed a pinch hitter.

They needed Denny Walling's hot bat. But Walling, pinch hitting at better than a .500 clip, was their starting right fielder. And he had already hit a three-run homer earlier in the eighth.

Still, Houston was still one run down. So Manager Bill Virdon sent Jesus Alou — and his .053 batting average — to the plate.

Alou responded with a two-run double that carried the Astros to a 6-5 victory over Cincinnati Tuesday night, widening Houston's National League West lead over the Reds to 6 1/2 games.

The NL East leaders, the Montreal Expos, might have used a pinch hitter in the sixth inning — but Manager Dick Williams let Ross Grimsley bat for himself. And the Montreal pitcher came through with a two-run single for the big runs in a 5-3 victory over St. Louis.

WITH CINCINNATI leading 5-1 in the eighth, a single Cesar Cedeño and a walk to Jose Cruz started the Reds' downfall. Paul Moskau got the next two outs before Walling hit his third homer of the season.

With two men on in the first inning,

Moskau had fanned Walling. "I got too anxious in the first," Walling recalled. "Moskau got three high fastballs up in my eyes and I struck out. When I came to the plate in the eighth with two men on, he did the same thing, only this time I was expecting it. I got on top of one and it went out."

"I was kind of reserved when I hit it, though, because we were still behind."

But not for long. Doug Bair replaced Moskau and gave up Alan Ashby's single and Rafael Landestoy's walk. Then Alou took his 1-for-19 bat to the plate and doubled off the wall in left; only the second time this year he'd hit the ball out of the infield.

"I picked a hitter who could hit a fastball," Virdon explained. "Alou can hit a fastball from Doug Bair better than anyone. You go with your best chance. If it doesn't work, you get second-guessed. That's baseball."

For Alou, the double was a long time in coming. "Tonight was my fourth or fifth time in which a hit could mean a win for the team," he said.

And at 36 he's looking for a lot more of them. "I keep the faith in myself. I believe I can hit the ball two or three years more."

George Foster drove in four of Cincinnati's runs with his 18th and 19th homers of the season.

Expos 5, Cards 3
"I'll take it. In the boxscore, it'll look like a rocket. Whatever it takes to win is good enough for me," Grimsley said after the sixth-inning single off the end of his bat gave the Expos their 12th victory in the last 16 games.

Singles by Tony Perez and Gary Carter and Jerry White's grounder put runners at second and third. After Larry Parrish was walked intentionally, Tommy Hutton's grounder scored Perez to make it 2-2 before Grimsley got his two-run hit off pitcher John Denny's glove.

"We had an open base at first," Williams explained. "If I'd gone to my bench, they probably would have walked the pinch hitter. I thought Ross deserved the chance to win the game."

Giants 6, Braves 5
Darrell Evans was ready to take the night off while Heity Cruz started for the Giants. But in the bottom of the ninth, with the game tied, Evans got the call, batted for Cruz and slammed a Gene Garber pitch over the right field wall for his sixth homer.

It was San Francisco's first hit in seven innings — except for the one Bill Madlock got in with his fist.

Atlanta reliever Bo McLaughlin brushed him back in the sixth, so Madlock retaliated. He fouled out and when McLaughlin approached the scene at first base, Madlock punched him. Players from both teams scuffled briefly but only Madlock was thrown out of the game.

Phillies 5, Cubs 3
Singles by Greg Gross, Bake McBride and Pete Rose accounted for one Philadelphia run in the sixth inning, then Mike Schmidt drove in three with his 21st homer of the season to beat the Cubs.

Bob Boone added a homer for the Phillies in the ninth inning. Jerry Martin hit a homer for Chicago.

Pirates 2, Mets 1
Bert Blyleven and Grant Jackson teamed to four-hit the Mets while Bill Robinson, celebrating his 36th birthday, hit a tie-breaking homer off Tom Hausman in the seventh inning and turned in a game-saving catch for Pittsburgh an inning later.

With two away and a runner on second in the eighth, Robinson raced back to the wall in left-center field and, with a last-gasp stretch, hauled in Joel Youngblood's drive.

Padres 5, Dodgers 1
Fernando Gonzalez's three-run homer off Los Angeles' Don Sutton in a four-run fourth inning enabled the Padres to halt their four-game losing streak and hand the Dodgers their 16th loss in the last 23 games.

Bob Shirley pitched his first complete game of the season — but it didn't come easy.

DeMetro denies race track fixing charges

BOSTON (AP) — Charles DeMetro has denied any involvement in an alleged race-fixing scam spanning five Northeastern tracks, saying his only connection with "master fixer" Anthony Ciulla was in trying to recover $3,000 the man owed DeMetro's brother.

DeMetro is one of eight defendants charged with bribery and racketeering in the case.

Ciulla the chief government witness, testified earlier in the eight-week, U.S. District Court trial that the DeMetris were part-owners of Spread the Word, a horse held back in several races to raise odds of his betting colleagues.

Mid-City, North Central win in Little League tournament

Mid-City and North Central took baseball victories Tuesday afternoon in the American Little League Tournament at Garrett-Brown Park.

Mid-City's Clayton Williams Indians posted a 10-6 win in a stormy contest in beating Eastern's Breakfast Optimists. The game was protested in the bottom of the fifth inning. Brad Edgar picked up the mound victory for the Indians while Curtis Alexander was the loser.

Fred Kennedy ripped a triple for the winners and Mark Torres had a home run for the Optimists.

North Central's Tipperary Braves eliminated Tower League's J.C. Williamson Red outfit, 3-1, in a well-played game.

Scott Almy was the winner for the Braves while William Wilmon absorbed the loss for Tower's entry. Tower had lost to the Eastern Optimists in Monday's opening round of the double elimination tourney.

Vance Thurman and Tim Hill banged out doubles for Tower while Allan Foret's solo homer in the fifth inning broke open a 1-1 deadlock.

In today's action, there are two games on tap. In the featured contest, Western's Mallard Exploration and Mid-City's Clayton William Indians square off in a game of undefeated teams while Eastern's Optimists and North Central's Tipperary Braves meet in a survival contest on the South Field. The other game is on the North Field with both being played at 6 p.m. The loser of the Tipperary-Optimist game will be eliminated from the tourney which winds up Saturday if a final game is necessary.

Maree to miss out again in mile run

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sydney Maree is a young black South African and a world-class miler, but because he is the former it appears he will not have a chance to compete at the latter again this weekend.

The 22-year-old Villanova sophomore wants a crack at New Zealand's John Walker, the world record holder in the mile; Ireland's Eamonn Coghlan, indoor mile record holder; three-time AAU 1,500-meter champ Steve Scott and fellow Wildcat Don Paige, the NCAA 800 and 1,500-meter champion who outran Walker last week.

Walker and the others are to run in Saturday's Meet of Champions at the University of Pennsylvania's Franklin Field.

So was Maree, until the Amateur Athletic Union threatened to withdraw the meet's sanction and bar any Americans competing from the 1980 Olympics if Maree competes.

Scott's play may turn Boston sox red

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer The way George Scott is playing these days for the Kansas City Royals, the faces at Boston could soon be as red as their Sox.

Hardly showing his age—which is 35—Scott continued to look like a million Tuesday night with an RBI single in the 10th inning that provided the Royals with a 7-6 triumph over the Oakland A's. The base hit raised his batting average to .417 since he came to Kansas City.

Strangely, none of Scott's 20 hits for Kansas City has been a home run—but the Royals' slugger isn't worried too much about that.

Brett doubled leading off the Kansas City 10th against Jim Todd, 2-4, and went to third on a single by Amos Otis before scoring on Scott's single through a drawn-in infield. Al Hrabosky, 5-3, was the winner in relief.

After Larry Murray's RBI single made it 3-4 in favor of Oakland in the ninth, the Royals scored two times in their half of the inning to send the game into extra innings. Pete LaCock hit an RBI single and Steve Braun followed with a single that scored Scott with the tying run. Tigers 6, Red Sox 4. Camp Summers drove in three runs with a homer and an eighth-inning, bases-loaded single as Detroit defeated Boston. Detroit's Jack Morris, 5-4, went the distance for the victory, scattering seven hits and striking out four. Boston reliever Bill Campbell, 2-3, took the loss.

Pro ball tarnishes Archie's Heisman

By WAYNE LOCKWOOD
The San Diego Union

SAN DIEGO — On a scale of one to 10, Archie Griffin's college football career was an 11. Running for Woody Hayes at Ohio State, Archie made All-America three times and won the Heisman Trophy twice. That is once more than anyone else has won it. Ever.

With Woody leading cheers for Archie ("Best football player I ever coached") and giving Griffin the football 25 or 35 times a game, the tailback from Columbus broke NCAA rushing records by the dozens.

Few begrudged him the success, since Archie was an unusual young man. Not many athletes in the pressurized world of major college football managed to earn a degree in four years... if, indeed, they ever graduated at all. Griffin did it in three-and-a-half.

Archie is not afraid of work. Craves it, in fact. Unfortunately, the Cincinnati Bengals did not share his zest in this regard.

As a result, Griffin's professional football career has been considerably less than an 11.

"On a scale of one to ten, I'd say it's been about a six," Archie decided after due deliberation. "Maybe a seven, but probably a six."

HE MAY have lost a step, but Archie has not lost his honesty. It is difficult to quibble with his evaluation.

Griffin has not been a professional disappointment, exactly. He has, after all, been the Bengals' second leading rusher in each of his three seasons with the club. Last year, he was runnerup to former Ohio State teammate Pete Johnson.

Archie remains a celebrity of sorts, important enough to be invited to such events as the Dewar's Sports Celebrity Tennis Tournament in Las Vegas.

But he is not a star. No, Archie Griffin is definitely not a star in the National Football League.

Some predicted he never would be. While a good college back, Archie was too small (5-9, 193) and a half-step too slow to be a standout pro, they felt.

There was surprise when Cincinnati made him a first round draft selection.

But Griffin never doubted. He still doesn't.

"Nobody can really tell what you can do until they give you the ball," he reasons. "In Cincinnati, running backs don't get the ball that much."

"Anybody who's going to rush for 1,000 yards has to carry the ball around 300 times. I've never had half that many chances in one season."

THERE IS truth in what Griffin says. He has not lugged the ball more than 131 times in any Bengal campaign, even while averaging a commendable 4.5 yards a try as a rookie.

Cincinnati, traditionally, has been a pass-oriented team, using its short game to control the football as other clubs try to do with the run.

The Bengals have had only one 1,000-yard rusher in their history: Paul Robinson (1,023 yards) in the first year of the franchise (1968).

Last year, Cincinnati ranked 18th in team rushing.

"For the way I'm being used, I think I'm doing the job," Griffin contends. "I think I could be used a little better. But I have to adjust to the system. It doesn't adjust to you."

This is not, he indicates, an uncommon complaint among Cincinnati runners. Boobie Clark has protested his lack of activity after 988-yard rookie season and Deacon Turner, the good-looking runner from San Diego State, was in no danger of being overworked his first season.

"Deacon's a good back, really good," Archie evaluates. "But he's found out something about the things we learned before. You're just not going to get to play alot."

It could be argued, of course, that Cincinnati could run the ball more if had better backs. The Bengals may have made exactly this point by selecting Charles Alexander of LSU with one of two first-round selections in the recent draft.

Alexander is two things Archie is not. Big and fast. His presence on the Cincinnati roster can not be considered an encouraging omen. The handwriting on the wall may spell "Goodbye."

"It doesn't bother me," Griffin shrugs. "Being traded is part of NFL football. If it happens to me, I'll be ready for it."

You get the feeling he might even welcome such action.

"It would be nice to play every play, really get into the game," he says.

"The Bengals... they put you in, pull you out. You get the feeling of the game, then you're done."

Whatever happens, Archie will keep working away, giving it his best. This, he feels, is a legacy of Hayes.

"When you play for Coach Hayes you learn a lot about football and a lot about life," he says.

"He teaches you that's it not going to be easy. That you just have to keep on battling and never give up."

Griffin was saddened by the forced retirement after Hayes punched a Clemson player in the Gator Bowl.

"It's too bad people see only the bad things in him."

With runners on in last of ninth and Jim Sundberg at plate...

Ron returns to sidearm and sinker for success

Yankees president) had picked me personally. He apparently had seen me pitch against the Yankees farm club in Fort Lauderdale in 1977 and I guess I impressed him. I always did well against them. He told me I would be in the majors, even when I wasn't pitching well in West Haven. 'Just give your time' he told me."

DAVIS SAYS he likes the pressure of relief pitching, even though it is a new way of life. "I begin to get pumped up around the sixth or seventh inning, but other than that I don't worry about it. As a starter, I'd be awake all night, rolling and tossing, thinking about it."

Davis is a sidearmer now. "When I was with the Cubs, they made me come over the top. And they were right. I could break 92-93 mph with my fast ball. For that reason, they made me stop throwing sidearm. When I got over here, I was still coming over the top, but then I thought, 'Shucks, the Yankees don't know I'm not supposed to throw sidearm' so I went back to it. In the lower minors, Fred Martin (who died a few weeks ago) showed me how to hold the ball to throw a sinker sidearm and I can get close to 90. It's my out pitch now."

As Davis talked, the Yankees, one by one, who had not congratulated him on the field earlier, drifted over... Catfish, Bucky, Beattie, Piniella...

Relief from UIL rules

HOUSTON (AP) — Six schoolboy athletes both won and lost as U.S. District Judge George E. Cline ruled they can attend football and basketball camps this summer.

The relief is only temporary, however. The real court test of a University Interscholastic League rule against attending such camps was postponed by Cline until Sept. 4.

Under Cline's Tuesday ruling, the six could lose a year of varsity eligibility if they attend camps this summer and then see the court uphold the validity of the ruling during the September trial on its merits.

...A young rookie can feel mighty lonely out on mound.

feels more at home than he did a year ago.

"Last year I was in awe of these guys. I felt below the rest. This year I'm contributing and I feel more like a part of the team."

For a guy coming to a strange league and pitching under extreme duress, Davis relies heavily on catcher Thurman Munson on how and where to pitch the hitters, "except tonight with Norman up there 3-2. Thurman signaled for a fastball, but I wanted to throw the sinker. I didn't want to get it inside and jam him, but wanted to keep it outside and get the ground ball." It worked perfectly, the inning ending DP back to the box.

Yes, Davis does notice a difference between Midland and New York City. "Back in Midland I could get by for $250 a month rent. In New York I have a hotel room in Hackensack, N.J., and it's $600 a month." But wish he were back, what do you think?

Cawley rusty threat

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Evonne Cawley, Wimbledon winner here in 1971 and three times a beaten finalist, says she has played so few tennis tournaments this year she doesn't know what she's up against in the Wimbledon tennis championships.

"I have been out for so long, that I haven't seen a lot of the players," she said after cruising to a 6-0, 6-3 first-round win over American Marcie Louie Tuesday.

Cawley missed much of this season with heel and tendon injuries and was out most of the previous two seasons during her pregnancy and after the birth of her first child. She says she again will cut back her tournament schedule when 2-year-old daughter Kelly starts school in a year or so. But now she is full of ambition.

"If anything, Wimbledon is more important to me now," she said. "I would really like to win again before I stop playing."

The popular Australian, who hobbled out of the semifinals here last year with an ankle injury, was not allowing thoughts of retirement to interfere with her progress.

"I haven't really thought of when I will give up for good," she said. "Certainly it is the last thing on my mind at the moment. But when Kelly starts going to school, then that will become more important."

In today's second-round action for the men, third-seeded John McEnroe was to meet Britain's No. 1 player, Buster Mottram, in what some were anticipating would be a match of hot tempers.

Defending champion Martina Navratilova, watched by her mother for the first time in four years, downed the young South African Tanya Harford 4-6, 6-2, 6-1. Mother and daughter were reunited just before the tournament started.

winning pitcher. Ray Williams, also appearing in a relief role, was the loser.

Ron Roenicke, Gary Weiss and Mark Bradley provided the offensive power as the San Antonio Dodgers beat the El Paso Diablos, 10-5.

Roenicke had four hits in an as many trips to the plate, including a two-run homer and two doubles. Weiss went 4-5 at the plate and scored four runs. Mark Bradley had two hits in four trips to the plate and drove in three runs.

Steve Howe, 1-0, was the winning pitcher. Bob Border, 3-4, was the losing Diablos hurler.

Mike Glinatsis hurled a three-hit shutout and Jose Barrios and Bob Kearney homered as the Shreveport Captains won the opener from the Tulsa Drillers, 3-0.

Glinatsis, 5-3, was the winning pitcher. Jerry Vasquez, 0-5, was the loser.

Southpaw hurler Chuck Lamson limited the Captains to eight hits in the second game as the Drillers took a 4-2 victory.

Lamson is now 7-2. Scott Budner, 2-8, was the losing pitcher.

17th victory in 19 games for Baltimore, the American League East leaders and the ninth consecutive loss for the Indians.

Dauer's hit came after Len Barker, 0-1, issued three one-out walks. The ball fell safely when right fielder Bobby Bonds appeared to shy away from the wall just outside the foul line.

Yankees 11, Blue Jays 2
Jim Spencer's two-run homer capped a five-run first inning that powered New York over Toronto. Spencer's sixth home run of the season followed a two-run single by Graig Nettles.

Fred Stanley, who took over at second base in the fourth inning after Willie Randolph was hit by a pitch on the left hip, also drove in two runs for the Yankees with a suicide squeeze bunt and a single.

Mariners 3, White Sox 2
Tom Paciorek's pinch-hit sacrifice fly capped a two-run eighth inning that paced Seattle over Chicago. The Mariners had tied the game 2-2 earlier in the eighth when they strung together three straight singles, the third a run-scoring bloop hit by Dan Meyer off Chicago reliever Steve Trout, 1-3.

Seattle reliever Byron McLaughlin, 4-2, who took over for starter Floyd Bannister to begin the sixth, won the game with ninth-inning relief from Shane Rawley, who collected his ninth save.

"If I could find a copier that uses less power, I'd grab it!"

"What a waste! Before I knew it, my copier ran off 300 copies - all in the wrong size!"

"I'm a patient guy but I get crazy waiting for someone to finish copying a huge stack of papers before I can make my one."

"It would save me money and a big hassle if I could copy on just about any kind of paper."

We solved the problems you had with other copiers. By listening.

- Picture-perfect copies on both sides of almost any paper.
- Easy-to-read control panel outside, and microcomputer inside to reduce error and paper waste.
- "Interrupt" button and electronic memory to do short copying jobs in the middle of long ones.
- Choice of seven paper cassettes from invoice-size to 11" x 17".
- Fast and economical - makes 22 copies a minute and uses only 15 amps.

Hey, look dad, Astros still riding in first

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

HOUSTON (AP) — Sarcasm still was a part of Houston Astros fandom in early May despite a fast start that had the Astros in first place in the National League's Western Division.

One yarn supposedly went like this: "Dad, have the Astros ever been in first place before?" a child asked his father as the watched a game.

"Sure son," the father replied patronizingly, "but never this late in the season."

Well, look again, Dad. Even the most confirmed cynic is finding it difficult to ignore the surprising Astros, who still are perched atop the standings in the final days of June.

They've never been in first place this late in the season either and the baseball experts who predicted a typical second-division finish for the Astros this season are putting this strange phenomenon up for laboratory analysis.

It might begin with saliva tests for the Astros pitching staff, which has survived on few runs and key hits and a team earned run average that likely would be leading the league except for a pair of blowouts.

"Any discussion of our success has to start with the pitching staff," Astros Manager Bill Virdon said. "We've had some injuries but we've been able to overcome them and still get the job done."

The Astros have not been shelling opposing pitchers. They are getting fewer hits than a year ago and rank near the bottom of the National League in team hitting. But the hits have been timely, and Walling has been the most punctual of all. He started this week with 10 pinch hits in 18 tries for the season.

"I'm elated about this whole team," said Walling, who ended last week hitting .556 as a pinch hitter this season. "I'm happy that I can contribute coming off the bench and I'm happy that we are coming together as a team. We were 14 games out of it by this time last year."

THE ASTROS made key off-season acquisitions in obtaining shortstop Craig Reynolds and catcher Alan Ashby and both have been factors in Houston's rise.

"This is a different lineup from last year," Walling said. "It's not just Reynolds and Ashby, we've got (Cesar) Cedeno back in the lineup from his injury and we got a young bench that's doing the job."

Another new face is rightfielder Jeff Leonard, who was good enough to allow Virdon to move Cedeno from centerfield to first base and send Bob Watson to the trading block.

Despite their success, Virdon and the Astros have remained cautious. "The time to talk about streaks is when they are over," said Walling.

KEN FORSCH got the pitching staff off to a rocking start with a no-hitter in the second game of the season. Forsch later became one of four Astros pitchers to spend time on the 21-day disabled list along with starters Vern Riffe and Frank Riccilli and reliever Tom Dixon.

Randy Niemann and Rick Williams were summoned from the minor leagues to fill the injury gaps and air-tight relief by Joe Sambito has kept the Astros aloft despite lack of hitting.

Niemann has a 2-0 record and 2.18 ERA while Williams is 2-3 with a 2.53 ERA and both victories by shutouts. Sambito yielded a grand slam home run to St. Louis' Roger Freed on May 1 and has since appeared in 17 games and pitched 28 2/3 innings without allowing an earned run.

Knuckleball pitcher Joe Niekro became the first pitcher in the major leagues to in 11 games this season in a string that included a team record nine victories in a row.

"I used to get nervous about everything but now I block everything out and it's only me and the batter," said Sambito. "Then when the game is over I can sit back and relax and look at what I've done and say 'wow.'"

Manpower, ink, paper readied for 1980 census

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presses are whirring at three printing plants around the country, and work will continue through November, turning out the 164 million questionnaires to be used in next year's census.

To enumerate America, a project centered on Census Day next March 29, it'll take 85 tons of ink, 35,000 workers, and enough paper to stretch around the world twice.

The 1980 census will be quite different from the first national headcount in 1790, but the questions of privacy and cost that came up then are still with us today.

And while the original purposes of the census — apportioning taxes and congressmen — are also still with us, the work of the census covers a lot more territory now and is much more complex.

Besides the obvious uses for this statistical data, local governments use the figures to decide where to put schools and fire stations, citizens associations look at them to analyze public services, health care planners need the numbers to set up emergency programs and locate hospitals, and private businesses use the figures to target direct mail plans, select a labor pool and even to decide where to build a new drive-in restaurant.

Most of the complaints generated so far have centered on the anticipated $1 billion cost of the census: $4 for each American, compared to $1 a head in 1970.

"Given the uses to which the census will be put, I think it's probably worth that kind of money," Census Director Vincent Barabba said recently.

In one money-saving move, the bureau bought cardboard furniture for the 409 temporary field offices that will be set up to coordinate the census.

Barabba has admitted that, because of the mobility of Americans and the complexity of the job of counting them, the results of the census will not be perfect.

Officials estimate that in 1970 about 2 percent of the white population and 7.7 percent of the nation's blacks were not counted. Barabba said he hopes new counting methods will help, but conceded that the undercount cannot be eliminated completely.

It's in the interest of every American to be counted, Barabba emphasized, because distribution of federal money is based on census statistics.

"The census used to create a profile of our society. But now it's an accounting. You get your share of the government income based on that count," he said.

This year the bureau is launching a special Minority Statistics Program to help overcome the undercount problem among blacks and other minorities.

Specialists will be working with community groups to help inform the public about the census and the importance of being counted. Special programs are being set up to involve blacks, Spanish-origin Americans, Asian-Pacific Island Americans, American Indians, Aleuts and Eskimos.

Spanish-language instructions will be included with the forms.

Also of major importance is the post-census congressional redistribution: a sweepstakes that promises gains for the Sunbelt and losses for older industrial states.

Because the law limits the House of Representatives to 435 members, some seats are moved from one state to another when the population shifts. Advance estimates indicate that states like New York and Ohio will lose two congressmen and Illinois could lose as many as four. Michigan, Pennsylvania and South Dakota will likely lose one each.

Expected to gain two congressmen are Texas, California and Florida and those gaining one apiece should be Arizona, Oregon, Tennessee, Utah and Washington.

For most Americans, the census will be relatively simple: answering 19 questions about themselves, their families and their home on a short form that will be delivered by the mailman. It can be returned by mail, and that will be that.

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — For three years, Mariana Bercovits Greenstein attended classes at the Georgetown University Law Center. She bought the casebooks, read the law and took notes.

In 1978, after her second year at Georgetown, Greenstein worked as a summer associate at the prestigious Washington law firm of Arnold and Porter.

No one, not even her husband, knew that Greenstein, 25, never applied to Georgetown Law, that she was never admitted, paid no tuition, got no academic credit and took no exams.

It was not the first time that Greenstein created for herself the image of a successful young student.

The yearbook for the class of 1976 at Bernard M. Baruch College of the City University of New York lists Mariana Bercovits with highest honors as a psychology student, a college information officer said.

At commencement ceremonies at Carnegie Hall on June 10, 1976, she gave a brief address on behalf of Baruch students — including herself — who had received service awards for contributions to the senior class, the information officer said.

School records show, however, that Greenstein never graduated from Baruch, officials said. She was registered as a student in the spring and fall semesters of 1973, they said, but did not enroll again.

Mariana Greenstein's extraordinary life as a college graduate and law student began to come apart just a few days before commencement ceremonies at Georgetown Law School last month.

When the list of graduating students was posted, a friend of Greenstein's asked school officials why her name was missing, a source said. Then a school official remembered that an out-of-town law firm, possibly checking a job application, had telephoned to ask if Greenstein was a student at Georgetown.

Georgetown's dean, David McCarthy, said in a statement after a Washington Post inquiry that, when Greenstein's case came to the attention of school officials, "an investigation was immediately instituted and the District of Columbia Bar authorities were notified."

"Thereafter, with the full cooperation of Ms. Greenstein, all pending applications for employment have been withdrawn and appropriate notifications to others have been made," the statement said. McCarthy declined to comment further about the case.

"It was a mistake. I knew it was a mistake. I just did not know how to emerge out of it," Greenstein said in a telephone interview.

"I wanted to be an attorney...I still do," she said. "It was a personal mistake. I didn't hurt anyone but myself."

G. Duane Veith, the managing partner at Arnold and Porter, confirmed that Greenstein worked with the firm in the summer of 1978 and that the firm understood that she had completed her second year at the Georgetown University Law Center.

Veith declined to comment further on Arnold and Porter's hiring policies for summer associates. Generally, law students hired by the firm rank in the top 10 to 15 percent of their class and often attend the country's most respected law schools.

Beware that 'gas-line stress'

By JOAN J. CIRILLO

NEW YORK (AP) — A stress expert says motorists should turn their waits in gas lines into opportunities for self-expression and save their aggression for constructive off-the-line lobbying.

"The gas line is not the place to worry about the gas shortage," says Dr. Kenneth Greenspan, a psychiatrist who heads the Laboratory and Center for Stress-Related Disorders at Columbia University.

Gas stations can be places to meet people, break open picnic baskets or leaf through good books, Greenspan said in an interview.

Motorists can channel their anger into action — take it out on politicians and oil companies by demanding answers and solutions to the gas crunch, said the doctor.

He views "gas-line stress" as two-fold — pulses quicken and blood pressures soar because waiting drivers don't know whether the pump will run dry or if the gas crunch is real.

"Just creating the odd-even system helps by establishing some sort of order," said Greenspan. But solutions take time, he said, and, while confronted with the current situation, gas users can work on their attitudes and learn to cope with the shortage.

"People have to stop in the morning and ask themselves whether it's worth waiting on the gas line and if they have alternatives to driving," Greenspan said. "If they do have to go, then they have to accept the situation and do something about it."

The key, said Greenspan, is to focus on something other than the frustration while waiting for the gas.

He recommends doing relaxation exercises, especially for people who always feel pressed for time and, consequently, are most prone to stress.

His formula includes doing anything to make the situation comfortable, plus breathing deeply and sitting back and really feeling the seat of the car.

The psychiatrist suggests bringing along work, a companion, or reading material to make the time go faster.

Motorists should try to view the person in the next car, not as an enemy or competitor, but as someone in the same situation, he said.

"If the guy in front of you cuts in, realize that for some crazy reason he has to. It's his problem, not yours, and it's not worth getting upset about."

Kennedy says Carter moving too slowly in selecting minorities for judgeships

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the Senate Judiciary Committee chairman, says President Carter is making progress in picking qualified blacks and women for the federal bench but the real test will come this summer and fall.

"I think there has been some progress over the current situation," the Massachusetts Democrat said in an interview.

"I think the real challenge is going to be now whether there is a continuing effort by local groups and state groups and by the Justice Department and the president himself to recommend to the U.S. Senate more qualified members of the minorities," Kennedy added.

Carter is nearing the halfway mark in making nominations to 152 new federal judgeships created by Congress last year. Kennedy's committee reviews judicial nominations before sending them to the Senate floor for confirmation.

Both Carter and Kennedy have said one of their aims is increasing the representation of women and of minorities among federal judges.

"I think there has been a serious, important effort by the administration," Kennedy said. "But the real test is going to be the long haul or the completion of the process in the summer and the fall of this year."

According to administration figures, the nominees to whom Carter has given either final or preliminary approval for new positions or to fill existing vacancies will more than double the number of black federal judges, triple the number of Hispanic judges and increase women judges sixfold.

However, the National Women's Political Caucus says less than 10 percent of the new judgeships — "an outrageously small number" — are expected to be filled by women. In a letter to Kennedy June 5, the caucus asked him to halt confirmation activities pending a review of the process.

Kennedy said he will not do so.

"I do not intend to have a moratorium on nominees," he said. "There is an important need in many communities for the judges."

He said experiences have been mixed with the merit-selection commissions established by Carter's suggestion to help select judicial nominees.

He said the panel he appointed to help him fill four new judgeships in Massachusetts was "enormously helpful."

He added, however, "I am not sure that I would have set up mine the way that some (senators) set up theirs. ... In other circumstances, it would appear that the senators have effectively turned over the process to the Justice Department."

Kennedy, like the senators in most of the states, made the final recommendations himself from a list submitted by the panel. Some senators, however, merely forward the commission's list to the administration.

Kennedy said he hopes no senator will exercise the traditional prerogative of objecting to a home-state nominee by failing to return an evaluation slip, but if so Kennedy is "prepared to follow through" on his announced challenge to this tradition.

This Frigidaire Jet Cone Washer gets clothes cleaner than the best selling brand's best washer.*

Because the sock disappears so does the dirt.

Take a look at a Frigidaire Jet Cone Washer. It'll knock your socks off! Independent laboratory tests have proven that Frigidaire's Jet Cone washing action circulates the wash load three times more often per regular wash cycle. And gets clothes cleaner than the best selling brand's best washer.

*Tested in accordance with AAMA's Standard H10.1 Soil Removal Test using a 15-lb. dry weight mixed cotton test load.

Frigidaire's exclusive up and down washing action pulls clothes down to the bottom of the tub where the cleaning power is the greatest. And this is one of the keys to getting your clothes cleaner than the best selling brand's best washer.

For dependable Heavy Duty service: The exclusive Frigidaire Roller-matic mechanism. No gears to wear out. no oil to leak!

To help loosen soil before agitation begins, the exclusive Jet Circle Spray system starts drenching clothes as soon as the water turns on.

UTPB class helps keep tabs on culture

ODESSA—It's better to count beer cans in someone's garbage than to ask them how much beer they drink. At least that's the basis for one course being offered at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin.

"Material surveys avoid the things people think they do, or what they think you want them to do," said the professor in charge of Anthropology 489. "Most social sciences use surveys, but in the course we go beyond what people 'know' they do," said Dr. Gordon Bronitsky.

Students enrolled in his course, "A Modern American Field Culture School," learn a variety of observation and field techniques which can be of use to them in later anthropology or archaeology courses and projects.

"Many of the countries where there are prime archaeological sites have placed restrictions on undergraduate students doing field work," Bronitsky said. "Mexico and Guatemala have said they don't want American students learning techniques on their native sites."

BY DEFINITION, or at least by Bronitsky's definition, "archaeology is the study of behavior through the material culture."

"Field work is field work, whether it's in Midland or in Micronesia. Most people think anthropology and archaeology are studies of the exotics, but they are not. What we are dealing with is the study of peoples and not necessarily ancient peoples," he added.

To make his point, Bronitsky has designed some unusual course assignments. One exercise, conducted during the spring semester at UTPB, allowed students to study the differences in Southern Baptist churches in Midland, Odessa, Greenwood and other communities near the university.

Churches with predominantly white, black or Mexican-American congregations were studied. A comprehensive data sheet was drawn up and the students, each attending a different church, noted the "material cultures" of the churches. One side-light to the study showed the least-decorated churches in the survey were those with a large proportion of Mexican-American members.

"Many people might think the Mexican-American churches would have more flowers and decorations. However, you should realize that most of these people come from a Roman Catholic background and want to reflect their breaking away from that culture," the professor said.

AGAIN, THIS IS looking at what people do, rather than what they say they do. According to Bronitsky, most of the members of the churches surveyed were probably unaware that their church is either highly decorated or relatively undecorated.

Bronitsky and several of his students are working to publish their findings on the Southern Baptists. In the meantime, the professor shares much of the information before social, civic and professional groups in a talk entitled, appropriately enough, "The Archaeology of Southern Baptists."

He is a member of the UTPB Speakers Bureau and can be contacted there for more information.

Most of the students enrolled in the summer anthropology course are not majors in the field. There are both graduate and undergraduate students with a variety of backgrounds. Some of the students are majoring in engineering, behavioral science, management, literature and secondary education.

These students have learned, among other things, that a vacant lot is not vacant.

"THE STUDENTS HAVE found that by examining the material left on the lot it may be used for many purposes. The area may be used as a social gathering place, especially by young boys. It may be used for recreation. We've also determined that vacant lots are used for storage of bulky, relatively low-value, materials such as lumber and bricks," Bronitsky said.

The "cultural material" left behind may include marbles, bits of string, paper cups, cans, broken glass or personal items, either lost or discarded by the people who use the lots. "The study also reveals to the students a great deal about the processes involved as material is deposited on an archaeological site," Bronitsky said.

However, as he points out to students, the material found on the site may be misleading.

STUDENTS TAKE AN archaeology tour of the area within one mile of the UTPB campus during the course. By studying the architecture of the buildings on the tour — a church, a junior high school and a fast-food restaurant — the students determined a number of things about the sites.

They were able to estimate the probable number of persons using the buildings at any one time, the purpose of the building and the value of the structure by estimating the durability and cost of the material used in construction.

One student, Jack Fryar of Midland, noted both the church parking lot and the fast-food restaurant parking lot contained similar "cultural material."

FRYAR OBSERVED THAT if one used only material observation, it might wrongly be concluded that since there was a broken bottle, an empty hamburger sack and a rusty snuff can on the church parking lot, the building must be used mainly for eating and recreation.

"But," Bronitsky pointed out, "you just don't find many pieces of broken crosses or discarded pews and stained glass."

"I became aware," Fryar noted, "of the difficult and almost impossible task of an archaeologist who discovers the ruins of a past civilization and attempts to draw some conclusions about the culture of that society."

Bronitsky admitted material culture-surveys may not hold all the answers to a culture, but was quick to point out that it's still better to look for discarded beer cans in someone's garbage than to ask them how much beer they drink.

"Unless," he added with a smile, "they recycle aluminum."

Firefighters turn down Second Gathering fest

EAST SMITHFIELD, Pa. (AP) — Firefighters in this northeastern Pennsylvania dairy farmland community have rejected a $500,000 offer to sponsor a 10th anniversary re-creation of the historic Woodstock rock festival.

The Second Gathering, as the new music festival is dubbed by promoters, is planned for Aug. 11-16 at a site yet to be picked.

Woodstock Media Ltd., a New York City-based company, offered to pay Smithfield Township Fire Company to sponsor the festival. The arrangement would have circumvented a local requirement that nonprofit groups sponsor any mass gatherings.

But firefighters doused the idea Monday night when festival promoter John Morris outlined details of the proposal, Fire Chief Tom Eldridge said.

"When he heard what people had to say he just said, 'Sorry I took up your time' and that was it," Eldridge said, after Morris made his unsuccessful pitch to 75 residents gathered at the fire hall.

"He said he realized the way it was and he wasn't going to cram anything down anybody's throat."

Location of the proposed site was not revealed. But Eldridge said it was private land near the village of East Smithfield.

"This is a small town," he said. "You can imagine 300,000 people tramping through to this site a few miles out of town."

'Whooo!' is out at Newport now

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Rowles, the jazz pianist, is no Emily Post. But he can help with the fine points of fan etiquette for such events as the Newport Jazz Festival, in which he's playing this week.

This became clear after a visitor insisted the true jazz buff should still loudly cry "Whooo!" during a brilliant bass solo.

"Not now," declared Jimmy. "You shout 'Ole!' Or, 'Just not enough,' which is an old Bosnian expression for 'Too much!'"

This may sound a tad weird. But Rowles, a pockmarked 60, knows whereof he speaks. Highly respected in jazz circles, he's played with the best, among them Billie Holiday, Zoot Sims and Stan Getz.

He fled the Hollywood studios some 10 years ago and now works jazz clubs here. Saturday night, he's playing at a Carnegie Hall concert produced by Mel Torme and Gerry Mulligan.

As a veteran jazzman, he was asked how jazz fans should behave at concerts and in clubs. He gave it deep thought. Then, with a perfectly straight face, he offered this advice for concerts:

"Bring a musket. Particularly if the concert's outdoors. You can use it on fleas and chiggers."

If you lack the price of the concert, he adds, "Just tell the man at the door, 'I'm the arranger.' He'll let you in."

But don't forget the musket, he said. His discourse turned to jazz clubs. Recommended behavior upon arrival there, he advised, is to "throw 50 cents on the stand and maybe get the gang going."

And you'll help a jazz pianist no end if, while he's busy concentrating on a fast, complex number, you walk up and ask, "Do you know 'Sometimes I Wonder?'"

If he says no, just ask for "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head."

If a female singer is on the stand, the knowledgeable jazz fan should always edge up and ask, "Would you do June Christie?"

(This happens surprisingly often, Jimmy notes. True fans never request a song, just June Christie or Sarah Vaughn. He has no idea why this is so.)

It's also okay to talk loudly. Or to hum along with jazz tunes you don't know. It inspires the musicians. However, Rowles warns, "you've got to be close to the stand so they can hear you."

Getting gravely drunk is equally acceptable, he points out, but "you should stagger up on the stand and knock everything over. Particularly the drums. And always spill a drink in the piano."

Does this improve the tone?

"Yes," he says. "It also keeps the piano player from getting 'too hot,' as we say."

It's not certain piano player Rowles is entirely serious about all this. After all, he has the kind of mind that gave jazz a fine cowboy song called "The Ballad of Thelionious Monk."

But he was dead serious about what to do if a husky bouncer threatens to eject you for taking all his advice.

"Use the musket," he said.

Comedy loses more than it finds

By BOB THOMAS

"LOST AND FOUND" re-teams Glenda Jackson and George Segal, which is a blessing; their pairing always provides a touch of class. Mel Frank and Jack Rose, onetime Bob Hope gag writers, provide the stars with some hilarious situations and a fusillade of zippy lines. Jackson's drunken put-down of a pompous movie critic is a delicious bit. But Jackson-Segal were funnier and more human as a philandering couple than as bickering husband and wife. And the new film lacks focus. The major theme seems to be whether Segal will achieve tenure at a small and boring New England college — hardly a gripping issue — and it is never resolved. Maureen Stapleton and Paul Sorvino are wasted in "character" roles. Rated PG for some minor vulgarisms.

GRAND OPENING!

COMMAND PERFORMANCE COMES TO TOWN WITH THE PRECISION HAIRCUT!

The Precision Haircut Explained Precisely.

Because your head is unique, the way your hair grows is equally unique. Really quite different from every one else's.

Precision haircutting is a technique for cutting the hair in harmony with the way it grows. Your hair eventually grows out but it doesn't lose its shape with a precision haircut. Consequently your haircut will look as good after five days as it does after five minutes. And because the hair falls naturally into place you won't have to keep fussing with it. Usually a shake of the head does it.

At Command Performance we shampoo, precision-cut and blow dry your hair for fourteen dollars, whether you're a gal or a guy. And no appointments are ever necessary.

We also offer permanent waves, coloring, frosting and conditioning. But we really shine with precision. And so will you.

CBS sets 'Universe'

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Cronkite's effort to prepare himself for CBS' coverage of man's first landing on the moon, July 20, 1969, is something of a television legend. "I had to," Cronkite recalls, "I had no idea what was going on."

"My old physics professor at The University of Texas must have whirled in his grave when he heard me talk about celestial mechanics and things like that," he says.

Cronkite's reporting on that event and the space program in general established the CBS News correspondent as something of an expert at the difficult job of translating science for the layman.

Now, a full decade after that first moonwalk, Cronkite anchors "Universe," a CBS News science magazine airing Wednesday evening at 8 EDT. The people at CBS call the half-hour show a "pilot," which means they aren't sure whether a series will develop.

"Universe" is one of three science-oriented productions planned by CBS for broadcast in the next several weeks.

A half-hour special report, "Skylab is Falling," will air sometime in July, as NASA's crippled space vehicle is about to re-enter the earth's atmosphere.

In addition, Cronkite will narrate for the CBS Radio Network a half-hour report called "The Space Frontier: What's Next?" The radio documentary, part of CBS News' monthly "Newsmark" series, will be broadcast Saturday night, June 30, at 8:30 EDT. It was timed to coincide with the 10th anniversary of the moon landing.

Producing a program like "Universe" is no easy task, says Cronkite, anchorman for the "CBS Evening News" since 1962.

"It takes a talent for being able to popularize science, to look at a complicated subject and simplify it without disturbing the academic truths."

"That's what makes it difficult for most experts in the field to do," he says. "They don't normally work in laymen's terms."

Indeed, the program's producers brought in biochemist-writer Isaac Asimov as an adviser.

"Universe" includes three magazine-style reports — one by Cronkite on the search for a cure for multiple sclerosis, one by Charles Osgood on recent satellite pictures of the far side of the moon, and one by Terry Drinkwater on the possibility of a major earthquake in the Los Angeles area.

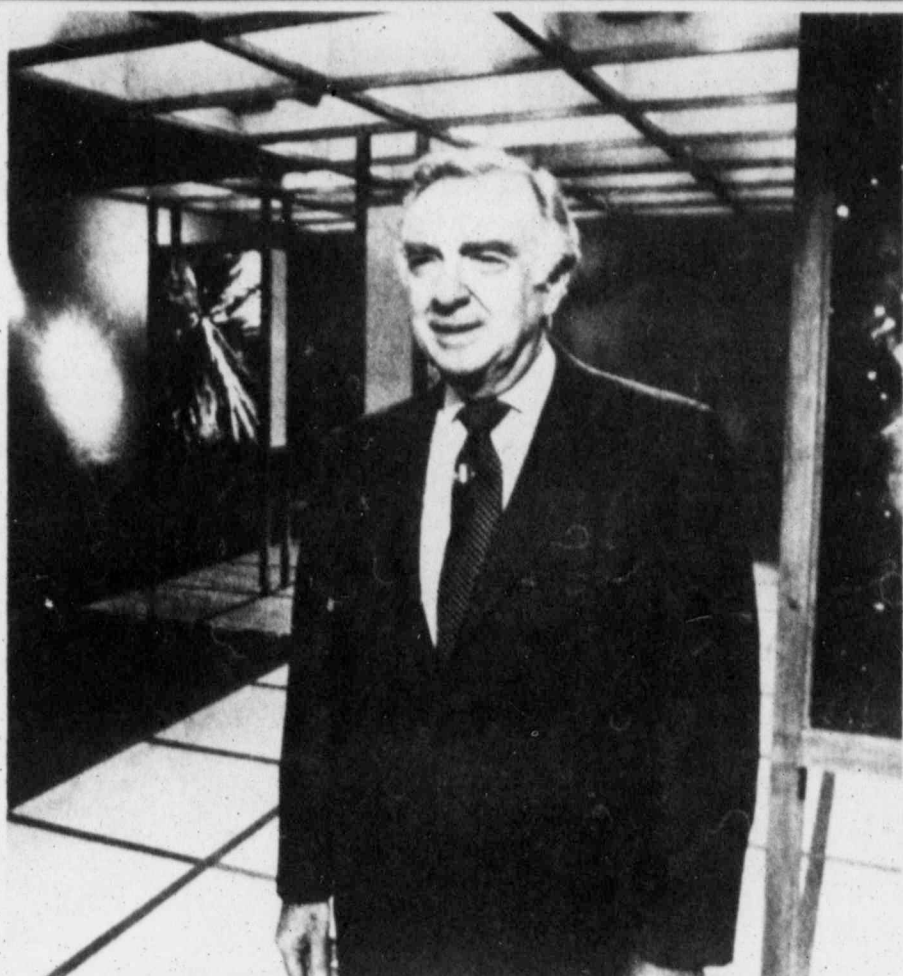

Cronkite insists he's no scientist, "though I guess I have sort of an aptitude for test engineering, riding new types of airplanes and cars and researching data, that sort of thing."

"But I've got a deep feeling that at the very core of everything we do is science, and it's about time for us to know a little more about the world around us, how we affect it and how it affects us."

Developments in the space program offered "a great opportunity to educate with television," Cronkite says. "There was this extraordinary, God-given opportunity to teach, and we had a ready-made audience. People wanted to know how it was being done."

"It would be a great deal more difficult to do that kind of thing on a regular basis," he says. "So with 'Universe,' we do as any magazine would do, using a shotgun approach and hoping some of the pellets will strike."

Ron Bonn was executive producer for "Universe," with segments produced by David Turcemo, Jonathan Ward, David Browning and Barbara Moss and Roger Field.

Established as something of an expert at the difficult job of translating science for the layman, notably by his reporting of man's first landing on the moon on July 20, 1969, Walter Cronkite anchors "Universe," a CBS News science magazine airing tonight. CBS calls the half-hour show a "pilot," meaning that it is uncertain whether a series will develop. (AP Laserphoto)

Failure x 4 = awful failure

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Who says imagination is absent from network television? NBC, through vigorous exercise of fancy, has managed to transmute four failed pilots into the Wednesday Movie of the Week.

Think about it. Rather than having four separate awfuls ruining four separate nights, somebody at NBC was clever enough to bunch them together, thereby ruining only one night.

Now, this mixed batch may not look like a movie to you and me, but it is. Says so right there in the listings. It's called "The Generation Gap," so named because each of the pilots has at least one teen-ager and one adult.

It's as good a name as any for a movie that was born in the throwaway pile. Better than "Four Bad Pilots."

Each is filled with standard, generally unfunny sitcom gags and routines, though the basic storylines are a little different.

The first is "Home Again," about a tough-minded bachelor cop (Darren McGavin) who hates teenagers. In the world of TV sitcoms, of course, such a man is soon to be visited by a teen-ager. He is.

The teen-ager is McGavin's long-lost son, though McGavin never knew he had a son to lose. The boy, who shows up in McGavin's little town as a backpacking hippie, was born of McGavin's old girlfriend, who has recently died.

There are plenty of "Oh, how am I gonna explain this?" jokes, each entirely predictable, and the un-TV-like problem of illegitimacy is cleansed by McGavin's explaining that he never knew the boy's mother was pregnant. He would have married her had he known.

Of course. Actually, that's the best of the lot. McGavin and the kid (Michael Horton) and Dick Sargent, who plays a priest on the show, are pretty good. The story and the jokes are not.

If I didn't know that TV shows cost a lot of money, I'd suggest that "But, Mother..." was made specifically for a summertime throwaway movie. This is odious.

A former madame has problems with her would-be actress daughter, and vice-versa. The show opens with Mom calling for her daughter. "I'm in here, Mother," responds the girl from the bathroom. "Yes, I know," says Mom. "You've just broken the Guinness world record for staying in the john."

Yuk-yuk. There are other gems here, too. Daughter: "You are impossible — I can't talk to you. The only person I can talk to in this building is my psychiatrist."

Mother: "For $60 an hour, I'd talk to you, too." Somebody writes this stuff.

Then there's "Starting Fresh," about a mother who goes back to college and — right, gets involved in generational problems with her daughter, who attends the same college. The rest you can guess.

The fourth part of this movie was unavailable for preview. It is "The Paul Williams Show," with William, as host of a kid's show.

Like I say, it was pretty imaginative of someone at NBC to turn these things into a movie, sort of like making hash out of leftover roast beef.

Come to think of it, even hash is better than this. Oh well, at least it's not a rerun.

Blues Brothers bemuse Stone

By WAYNE SLATER

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP) — Reggie Stone doesn't know quite what to make of the Blues Brothers, who've hit it big with a parody of what he does for real.

Stone is a blues singer from Rock Island, a real blues singer. The Blues Brothers are a skillful imitation by comedians Dan Ackroyd and John Belushi of television's "Saturday Night Live."

The irony is that the imitators have hit a gold mine while the real bluesman is going nowhere.

"I tell you, man, it hurts," Stone said recently, nursing a beer in the half-light of a local bar. "Like I been paying dues for a long time, I been struggling, man. Then I see these guys making it and don't know what to think."

Belushi's and Ackroyd's act, a tongue-in-cheek portrayal of a couple of black bluesmen "from Rock Island, Illinois," is a sellout on the road. Their album is doing very well, and appearances on TV are greeted with enthusiasm bordering on mania.

Stone, though, is still playing the smoky joints around Rock Island, dispensing authentic rhythm and blues, doing it for real. And doing lousy.

"I'm a soul man doing it right and I'm still trying to find that break," he said glumly.

He recalls the first time he ever saw the Blues Brothers.

"It was on TV one night, on 'Saturday Night Live,'" he said. "The music started and there was this introduction for these guys, the Blues Brothers from Rock Island, and this kickin' band started doing Sam and Dave music, you know. The sound was there, the beat, everything, then I looked up and I was shocked."

It was art imitating life, Reggie's life. And not doing it very well.

There were Belushi and Ackroyd singing bogus blues, two young white comedians in grey suits, felt fedoras and sunglasses.

Still, Stone admits the act is clever and the parody appealing.

"Hey, I wish them well, you know, black or white or whatever," he said. "It's just that I been in this business for a long time myself and I'm still trying to find the door."

Stone is a massive black man with thick arms, a bushy mustache and a gold ring. His hair is an extraordinary jungle, and his eyes have the soulful look of a man who has seen bad times.

He has been singing the blues since high school "when me and a bunch of the guys got together and started doing do-wops one day." He has recorded three sin-

Booming market prompts grain reserve pullouts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oats and barley have been called out of the farmer-owned grain reserve and the booming market may soon trigger removal of wheat, corn and sorghum.

The law requires that the grains be taken from the reserve once market prices pass specific levels, which are set above federal support prices.

"That does not mean farmers have to sell their crops," Agriculture Undersecretary Dale E. Hathaway said Tuesday. "They just have to pay back the loans within 30 days."

Hathaway outlined the procedures to reporters three hours before calling in the loans under which the grain is held. It was the first full release of part of the reserves since the Carter administration established them in 1977 as a way to reverse falling grain prices.

Normally, 10-month loans are available to grain growers at the price-support rate, but they pay interest and storage costs. Under the reserves program, 3-year loans at the same rate are available to those who agree to hold their crop until prices rise, with USDA paying storage.

Producers in counties with severe storage or transportation problems will have at least another 30 days to redeem the loans, Hathaway said. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices in each county will evaluate marketing problems, notify farmers that their loans spurred grain prices in recent weeks, even though record stockpiles are still on hand after three bumper crops.

The Russians have bought about 13.2 million metric tons of U.S. grain in the year ending Sept. 30, plus 1.18 million tons of soybeans. They are expected to buy no more than 1.8 million tons more wheat or corn, he said.

AGRICULTURE

have been called in and give them a date for redemption, Hathaway said.

Some farm-state Republicans in the House were working on legislation earlier in the day to prevent what they called "dumping of the reserves" into a market already distorted by fuel problems and truckers' strikes.

Other members of Congress are known to be worried about the calling in of the reserve loans when the fate of this season's grain crops is still so uncertain and exports of food and feed grains are picking up.

"Once a reserve is called, it ceases to exist," Hathaway noted. Prices probably would have to fall to nearly the support levels before reserves would be re-established.

Any reserves that aren't redeemed are forfeited to USDA, which in turn can sell them in the market to recover costs.

Official reports by Hathaway and others of problems with the Soviet Union's wheat crop this year have Hathaway, who met with Soviet grain buyers two weeks ago in Moscow, reported they have said nothing yet about their U.S. plans for the 1979-80 export season. They are expected to buy between 21 million and 28 million tons from various countries.

The 38 million bushels of oats and 40 million bushels of barley technically were already on the market.

The law releases farmers from their contracts and USDA stops paying storage when the average market price is 25 percent above the support price. Those levels were reached May 11 for oats, June 5 for barley, May 16 for wheat and June 19 for corn.

Feedgrain reserve loans must be called when prices top 140 percent of the support rate. The magic number for oats was a national five-day running average of $1.44 a bushel. For barley, it was $2.31 a bushel.

The call point for wheat is 75 percent above the support, or $4.11 a bushel, about 14 cents above prices after Monday's trading, Hathaway said.

Trucker strike may mean higher costs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Like farmers, city dwellers depend on trucks to haul produce from fields to supermarkets. With trucks now parked, farmers face million-dollar losses and consumers are looking at higher prices.

"We're moving headlong into a disaster-type situation," said Jack King of the California Farm Bureau Federation. He said Tuesday that losses have already been "in the millions" for California's $10.4 billion agriculture industry, which supplies 40 percent of the nation's fruits and vegetables.

And Karl Kristlerson of the 1,650-acre Major Farms of the Salinas Valley said that while lettuce was selling on California markets for less than the cost of production, Eastern consumers could be paying more than $1 a head by the end of the week. King said the situation will have reached crisis proportions if the strike by the nation's independent truckers — who carry much of the farm produce to market — continues for another week.

Growers in other states also are becoming increasingly worried.

"Our situation is nearly desperate," said Mer Edmondson, fruit sales manager for Snowkist Growers in Yakima, Wash., where despite the use of rail lines, one grower said, the shipment of cherries has become a "day to day matter."

Sporadic shortages of meat and some fresh produce began appearing from the Midwest to the East Coast as meat packing plants closed and farmers were forced to watch their crops rot in the fields.

Hance tax bill loses

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance's attempt to exempt independent oil producers from the windfall profits tax failed narrowly Tuesday before the House Rules Committee. But Hance, whose 19th Congressional District includes Midland County, said, "I am still determined to fight to defeat the whole windfall profits tax bill. It doesn't make sense to tax domestic production and not tax the foreign producers such as the OPEC countries. He added, "However, if I see it will pass I am still determined to get independent oil producers exempt from it."

Hance had requested the Rules Committee to allow him to offer the exemption amendment before the full House in the upcoming debate Thursday on the windfall profits bill. However, the roll call vote ended in a 7-7 tie which, under parliamentary rules, results in its failure. "That's about as close as you can get," Hance said. "But not quite close enough to get it to the floor. I'm still optimistic because we came so close. Now, perhaps, the Senate can still exempt the independents and it will be settled in a conference committee which would come to a full House vote."

The Lubbock congressman praised Rep. Martin Frost (D-Tx.), a member of the Rules Committee, for introducing the amendment before the committee. "I was disappointed Rep. John Anderson could not be present at the hearing because he would have voted with us. My amendment lost by only four votes in the Ways and Means Committee and by a tie vote in Rules.

"These are perhaps two of the most hostile committees on oil and gas issues in Congress. I hope members of the Senate can recognize this and realize that my amendment would stand an excellent chance of passage if it reached the House floor. If so, the Senate can still exempt the independents and send the bill back for a full House vote."

Strike flows 300 BOPD

The Superior Oil Co., operating from Midland, has potentialized a Fusselman discovery in Terry County, 1/2 mile north-east of Tokio. The strike, No. 1 Pearl Rushing, was completed for a daily flowing potential of 300 barrels of oil and seven barrels of basic sediment and water, through a 10/64-inch choke and perforations from 12,851 to 12,871 feet. The pay was acidized with 2,000 gallons, and the gas-oil ratio on the potential test was 50-1. Total depth is 13,000 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set on bottom. It earlier was reported in error that the discovery completed for the Devonian for a daily flowing potential of 30 barrels of oil.

The top of the Wolfcamp was called at 9,698 feet, the upper Mississippian at 11,867 feet and the Devonian at 12,796 feet. Ground elevation is 3,497 feet. Operator has not reported a top on the Fusselman. The discovery is 2,310 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of section 40, block D-14, C&M survey and one and one-half miles east of the east Yoakum County line.

The wellsite is two and one-half miles northeast of the Tokio, West (lower Wolfcamp) oil pool, four and one-eighth miles west of the depleted Coroco (Wolfcamp and Devonian) pool and three and one-quarter miles north and slightly east of the Tokio, South (Wolfcamp) field.

OPEC price base may be below $20

By MARK POTTS GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Qatar's oil minister said today the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries probably would approve a crude oil base price of less than $20, but allow members to add allowances for different qualities of oil, up to about the $20 level. The price of $20 for a 42-gallon barrel would add as much as 5 cents a gallon to U.S. gasoline and heating oil prices, analysts said. Abdul Aziz Khalifa al-Thani told reporters of the probable decision during a lunch break of the 13-member cartel's pricing meeting here. Final details including the exact amount of the base price are to be worked out in an afternoon meeting, he said.

The decision would be an apparent victory for Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest and most moderate member. The Saudis had adamantly resisted attempts to boost the base price to $20 or more. The decision outlined by Al Thani would in effect unify OPEC prices. Saudi Arabia would be expected to charge the base price while other members who make better quality oil would be allowed to tack on traditional premiums, bringing their prices to about $20 a barrel. OPEC had wanted to set a unified price at this meeting to avoid the leapfrogging surcharges this spring that drove OPEC oil prices up to an average $17.50 a barrel despite the base price of $14.55.

Earlier, OPEC sources had said the cartel probably would reach a compromise base price of $20 a barrel, with all 13 members charging that price. That deal apparently fell through when Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani held out for a lower price. His determination may have been spurred by pressure from United States officials who reportedly were urging him to hold the line. Announcement of a decision was expected today at the end of a two-day OPEC pricing meeting, but there are rumors another meeting might be held Thursday. Today's afternoon session was expected to end at 3 p.m. EDT. In Tokyo, U.S. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said that if OPEC raises the base price to $20 a barrel, the United States will have an oil bill of $65 billion to $70 billion next year. The price increase, which he said would be a 50 percent increase from 1977, would mean "greater difficulty in controlling inflation," he said. The official base price of OPEC oil has been $14.55 a barrel since March 1. But the average price has risen to $17 a barrel because of surcharges added on by all members of the cartel except Saudi Arabia because of the shortage of supply due to the reduction in Iranian production. The surcharges threw world oil markets into turmoil. They also worried some OPEC members because they indicated a break in the pricing unity that has generally kept their foreign customers from playing off the members of the cartel against each other.

The oil ministers during the first day of their meeting Tuesday approved in principle the addition of $800 million to the OPEC fund for the aid of underdeveloped countries, the chief sufferers from the cartel's price increases. The proposal now goes to their finance ministers.

Action due Thursday on excess profits bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — House members expect to head home for the Fourth of July congressional recess to face energy-anxious constituents with two major energy bills under their belts. The House approved late Tuesday a measure to provide a multibillion dollar package of federal subsidies to get the nation's infant synthetic fuels industry off the ground. The vote was 368-25. It will be followed by action Thursday on a toughened version of President Carter's "windfall profits" tax on oil companies. The House Rules Committee paved the way for that vote Tuesday.

"It's important for all of us to go home for the July Fourth recess with something done on this tax," said Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee. He cited rising public anger over gasoline lines and high fuel prices. Supporters of the synthetic fuels bill voiced a similar sentiment, saying action on the legislation will show the American people Congress is moving to solve the energy problem.

"This is not going to stop gas lines but it will show Americans that energy is moving ahead," said House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas. "We are going to declare our energy independence."

The synthetics bill, which still needs Senate action, would authorize the government to pay up to $3 billion in rice supports for fuelmade from coal, shale or other substances. In other energy developments Tuesday: —The Senate approved, 90-3, a non-binding resolution by Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., urging the president to convene an "energy summit" of industry and political leaders to chart the nation's energy future.

—A government antitrust lawyer said the growing trend among oil companies to acquire smaller corporations "risks diverting badly needed funds from the exploration and development" of new energy supplies. Alfred F. Dougherty Jr., director of the Federal Trade Commission's bureau of competition, testified at a hearing of the Senate subcommittee on antitrust, monopoly and business rights.

—Coal industry officials complained that Carter administration policies are restricting the production of coal by not leasing enough land for coal production. The fuel bill passed by the House Tuesday sets a target of 500,000 barrels of synthetic fuel a day by 1984 and 2 million barrels by 1990. By comparison, the United States now consumes about 16 million barrels of oil a day, roughly half of it imported.

Lower rates ordered

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has ordered Shell Oil Co. and other natural gas producers in the McAllen Ranch Field to comply with requests by Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. for reduced rates of delivery. In applying for the special order, Lo-Vaca stated that since early 1978 Shell has refused to honor its requests for production cutbacks from reservoirs in the Hidalgo County field.

Mine area increased

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Railroad Commission has authorized Texas Utilities Generating Co. to expand by 793 acres an area it is surface mining for lignite at the Monticello Steam Electric Station in Northeast Texas. Texas Utilities sought the additional acreage for retention ponds, a grass nursery, dragline and loading station. No new mining areas were proposed.

agree to purchase synthetic fuel to help keep military equipment running. But the president could authorize fuel not needed by the Defense Department to be made available for civilian purposes. The bill would also authorize direct loans and loan guarantees to firms producing synthetic fuels. Some of the money would go to big oil companies, which own a large portion of the nation's coal reserves. The House rejected, 263-117, a proposal by Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., to prohibit big oil companies from getting any of the federal subsidies. Several similar proposals to subsidize development of synthetic fuels — including one sponsored by both Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., and Energy Committee Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. — have already been introduced in the Senate. Jackson has promised Senate floor action by mid-summer and a House-

Senate conference committee is expected to be named to produce a final version of the bill soon. The Rules Committee agreed Tuesday to allow the full House to consider the Ways and Means version of the "windfall" tax bill and two substitutes — one to toughen the tax and one to soften it. The "windfall" tax is designed to capture some of the profits gained by the oil companies from Carter's decision to phase out controls on domestic oil prices. According to revised congressional estimates, the Ways and Means Committee's toughened bill would raise $29.1 billion from 1980 to 1984. That compares with $21.8 billion that the president's bill was expected to raise over the same five-year period. Money raised by the tax would go into a special energy trust fund that would help finance the development of alternative fuels, improve mass transit and assist low-income Americans in paying their heating bills.

Paraquat stirs new hassles with use in Louisiana city

By WOODY BAIRD

MONROE, La. (AP) — Tilly Stone gets angrier day by day — watching the trees turn brown and die from poisonous paraquat herbicide accidentally dumped on her neighborhood.

"I just get disgusted," she said. "And there's been a number of people sick. Of course they say it wasn't the paraquat, but it had to be because there's too many been sick."

Other residents living along the mile-long strip of dead and dying trees were equally upset, complaining that nothing was being done to help them.

"Why should we be stranded out here and not be compensated for what they did to us," said Tommie Reneau. "All they told me was that they were working on it."

The "they" Mrs. Reneau was talking about were the City of Monroe, the flying service whose crop duster dropped the herbicide and the state Agriculture Department.

Paraquat is a weed-killer widely used in agriculture but it is perhaps best known for its use in the United States' plan to wipe out marijuana crops in Mexico.

The spraying in Mexico caused a political uproar when scientists said smoking marijuana sprayed with paraquat could cause serious illness, including permanent lung damage.

The paraquat cloud drifted over the quiet Monroe neighborhood about dusk on May 15. Nearby, a crop duster sprayed the overgrowth at the end of a runway at the city airport.

Officials acknowledge that the paraquat came from the crop duster, but they say reports of the damage have been exaggerated.

"It's not nearly as serious as it has been made out to be," said E.A. Cancienne, a pesticide official with the Agriculture Department.

"I know there are a lot of cases being reported of people being sick or nauseated and all kinds of weird symptoms resulting from that spraying, but I think it's more psychological than physiological."

But Mrs. Stone said she could not go out in her yard for several days after the spraying and birds fell dead out of the trees.

"It burned your eyes and they'd swell," she said. "And the birds, you should have seen the birds, they just died like mad."

Pam Hudson said she was helping Mrs. Stone mow her yard a few days after the spraying and had to stop occasionally to clear about 15 dead or dying birds out of the way.

"Most of them were small birds," Mrs. Hudson said. "They wouldn't be all dead. They'd be like they were paralyzed, like they couldn't see or couldn't move. They were just shaking and had their little heads up with their mouths open."

She said she got sick while mowing the grass and had to stop.

"I started coughing really bad and got short of breath," she said. "I had a cough after that for about two weeks."

But Mrs. Hudson said she didn't go to the doctor because she didn't think of the possibility that her illness and the spray were related.

Cancienne said, however, that he didn't think the herbicide killed the birds.

"That's ridiculous," he said. "If there were dead birds, it's wasn't caused by the paraquat."

He said preliminary reports from his field inspector also indicates that many of the damaged trees will survive.

"Most of them are recovering," he said. "But I'm afraid some of the small trees may not come back and there could be permanent damage to some of the limbs on some of the larger trees."

He said paraquat has been used for 10 to 15 years without reports of a fatal accident in the United States. He said, however, that breathing the direct spray could be a health hazard.

Flying service owner Ray Wright said he had turned the whole thing over to his insurance company.

"As far as the damage paraquat would do to humans or animals," Wright said, "you'd damn near have to stick your head under it and drown."

He said he had taken all necessary precautions before the spraying.

"Sometime you think you have the exact right conditions and some freak (thing) happens and you get a drift. Evidently, it was in this case because it certainly wasn't misapplied anywhere," he said.

But area residents, angry about the accident itself, said they were getting madder because no one seemed concerned about it.

Medical value of vitamin C in large doses questionable

Dear Dr. Solomon: I'm confused about the value of vitamin C. I know there has been some controversy about this vitamin among scientists, and I would like to know more about its value and how much of it should be taken. — Ms. D.C.

Dear Ms. C.: It has been established that vitamin C helps hold body cells together, strengthens blood vessels, helps heal wounds, helps tooth and bone formation and helps resist infection. What is controversial is whether it can prevent or cure colds.

From a negative standpoint, there is some indication that large doses of vitamin C may result in kidney stones, severe diarrhea and possible risk to diabetics. The recommended daily allowance of adults (unless a physician has diagnosed vitamin C deficiency) is 60 milligrams a day, an amount that over time has proven safe and practical.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Are vitamin E supplements effective in increasing fertility? — Shirley

Dear Shirley: Supplements of vitamin E have been found useful in only two conditions — for premature babies who may have received insufficient amounts of the vitamin before birth, and in persons who suffer from an intestinal disorder in which fats are not absorbed properly. There is no valid evidence that vitamin E promotes physical endurance, enhances a person's sexual prowess, prevents heart attacks or slows the aging process, some of the many unfounded claims made for it.

Some of those advocating vitamin E supplements are misinterpreting the results of research findings in laboratory animals; for example, male rats who do not get vitamin E become sterile. However, the converse — that large doses of vitamin E can overcome sterility or impotence in humans — does not follow. By the same token, while vitamin E is essential to maintain pregnancy, a lack of vitamin E has not been shown to be a factor in fertility.

The fact is that vitamin E is present in so many foods, it is virtually impossible for an individual not to have some in the diet. Most foods contain at least small quantities of the vitamin; vegetable fats and oils contain large amounts. Because of this, vitamin E deficiency in humans is very rare.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Most of us have a pretty good idea of what a sound diet should provide. Do you see any value in joining one of the diet groups? — Jan dieters find these clubs to be helpful. Like alcoholics, people who are overweight sometimes need the support of others, with whom they can share their problems, in times of stress. The diet clubs thus provide a form of group therapy. In addition, leaders of these groups who, themselves, have been successful in losing a considerable amount of weight, can serve as inspirations to the members. In some ways these groups emulate the Alcoholics Anonymous organization. (If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Dear Jan: Many

RINGING THE BELL

It's Midland St. Mark in '80

The Black Experience: (Push for excellence) I am somebody — respect me! Protect me! Never neglect me! I am somebody — if my mind can perceive it and my heart can believe it. My mind is a pearl! I can learn anything in the world — Excel!

This is in essence what the Rev. Jesse Jackson told graduating classes in a number of black-oriented high schools in California, Kansas, Texas and several other states on a recent tour.

"We must produce. That is the challenge of this generation. Most of our children are behind, but it is not because of our genes but because of our agenda. We do best what we do most. We are good at basketball. Anyone who can move down a basketball court with precision and does not pass with honors is just plain lazy," said the president of PUSH.

JACKSON CHASTISED students and parents for the neglect that has been given to education, child care and guidance. No parent is too poor to love, to care for his child or to turn-off the television at least two hours a night, he added. Blacks must use every means to transmit love, chastisement and discipline to their children.

"You are not a man because you can kill somebody. You are a man because you can heal, liberate, protect somebody. Where are the young men in the honor society? Are men absent because they are inferior or because they played or because they are given some false definition of what a man is? It is a crisis in our value system," Jackson added.

BULLETIN: The Northwest Texas Conference of the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church meeting in St. Mark CME Church in Pampa the past week is reported to have voted to bring the 1980 annual conference to St. Paul in Midland. This will be the first time in the history of St. Paul that the conference has agreed to come to Midland. It will meet in June, and reports are that St. Paul has already begun preparations to entertain the conference next year. Congrats, St. Paul.

The conference passed resolutions urging increased support of "food for the hungry peoples around the world," increased emphasis on church membership, cultivation and evangelism and greater support of Texas College, a four-year institution of higher learning in Tyler owned and operated by the denomination. There were other highlights that we will take up when we see you here next week. And now off to Dallas for a well deserved vacation and maybe a few days of fishing. We hope.

Controversial evangelist to return to airwaves

DALLAS (AP) — James Robison, a crusading evangelist whose television series was canceled after a program critical of the homosexual lifestyle, told an overflow crowd at Dallas' First Baptist Church Tuesday that he has reached an agreement allowing him to return to the airwaves.

Robison was canceled by WFAA-TV in Dallas, citing the Federal Communications Commission's fairness doctrine. His Feb. 25 telecast sparked protests from the gay community.

"We never objected to his being on the air," said Louise Young, president of the Dallas Gay Political son shows prior to airing. WFAA-TV general manager Dave Lane, who was in the church when Robison announced the agreement, said the pact was not finalized in that the date of Robison's return has not been pinpointed.

Robison aide James Huckabee said the evangelist's program would return in about two weeks. "I'd frankly like to say that they've (WFAA-TV) been gracious and they've been concerned about the public...about the people here in Dallas," Robison said.

He said he would be sensitive to any broadcaster's position in the "hotseat of public skepticism."

"I hope that through the pressures of this experience that I have matured...that WFAA management has had some maturing experience, too. I think that it's been beneficial to both parties," Robison said.

He said he doubted that the Feb. 25 program would be aired again.

"I would never be so unkind as to try to make a request like that," he said.

She said the caucus would not object to Robison's reinstatement but would "urge him to stick to the Bible and not the political."

Robison said he did not regard his agreement with WFAA-TV as a victory. "I'd like to just say God has answered prayer," he said.

The agreement was hammered out at the church just prior to services, a Robison aide said.

"I don't have to compromise my message or my convictions. We have a full understanding together. I feel like I can abide by any policy they have without compromising my message."

Wind, solar energy systems won't supply cheap electricity

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — "The laws of physics will not conform to the whims of the public," said Dr. William Hughes, who has been conducting wind power research at Oklahoma State University for several years.

He said just because the public wants to believe that wind and solar energy will provide cheap, efficient energy doesn't make it so.

"There is no more cheap energy. There will never be any more cheap energy," said Hughes, who is director of the Engineering Energy Research Laboratory at OSU in Stillwater.

Hughes, in a telephone interview, said Americans cannot expect wind or solar power to supply cheap, efficient electricity.

"It will be a long time until small wind systems can compete with commercial electricity. That is if we don't beat commercial energy to death with a sledgehammer or other ways," he said.

Although the wind is free, the windmill that generates the wind isn't. The same goes for solar energy.

Hughes said the cheapest windmill on the market is $3,000. If the cost is amortized over 20 years and the money is borrowed at the going rate and the cost of maintenance and operation are figured in, the cost of wind power is about 20 cents a kilowatt, compared with five cents if the power is purchased from a commercial power plant.

He said a wind system can only produce about a tenth of the power needed for a regular-sized home.

"And you only get it when the wind blows," Hughes said. He added that storage systems are expensive and not very good.

He said that people who say that wind and solar power can be as economical as nuclear power "only wish it so. They have never really calculated the costs."

"Knowing what I know, it just doesn't fit," he said.

An argument used by proponents of solar and wind power — that mass production will bring the cost down as it has in calculators and computers — is false, Hughes said.

"There is not $25 worth of silicone in a computer. But solar and wind power are material-intensive and the cost of materials continues to go up," Hughes said.

"It takes several years of operation just to produce the amount of energy it takes to make the windmill," he said.

Instead of trying to find a cheap source of energy, he said Americans are just going to have to allocate more of their budgets toward energy.

"If we understand that, we can expect a reasonable life. We need to stop looking for villains. It is all our fault. We've had it too easy too long. There are no big villains, just short-term villains."

"It's time we stopped chasing dreams and face reality," Hughes said.

Hispanic Americans seeking action on civil rights cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new coalition of Hispanic Americans said Tuesday it will wage a national campaign "to get action on cases of violation of civil rights" of Spanish-speaking people in the United States.

The new group, called the National Committee for Hispanic Civil Rights, is a successor to the National Coalition on the Hanigan Case, which had been formed to protest government handling of the alleged beatings of three undocumented Mexican nationals in Arizona.

The new group said it will fight for a broader range of civil rights causes involving Hispanics.

Although the men charged in the Hanigan case were acquitted by a state court jury, the Justice Department recently announced a federal investigation on civil rights grounds.

However, the department also announced last Friday that it would not seek indictments in the case of Larry Ortega Lozano, a U.S. citizen of Hispanic descent who died while in police custody in Odessa, Texas.

"The Hispanic community is determined to get action on cases of violation of civil rights," the group said in a statement released at a news conference.

The coalition said it is asking for a federal review of court procedures, including provision of adequate translators at trials and grand jury hearings and the inclusion of Hispanics on juries in such cases.

The Hanigan case involved the alleged kidnaping and torture of three undocumented Mexican farm workers near Douglas, Ariz., in 1976. George Hanigan, 67, and his two sons, Patrick, 22, and Thomas, 19, were indicted by a Cochise County, Ariz., grand jury on 14 counts.

George Hanigan died before the case came to trial, and his two sons were acquitted.

"The outcome of the Hanigan case will set precedents that will have an effect on many cases of brutality, both from the police and from private citizens, against undocumented aliens," the group said.

"The decision of the Justice Department marks the first time that a civil rights case involving undocumented aliens has been prosecuted by the federal courts," it said. "The civil rights of human beings, whether legal or undocumented entrants into the United States, are at stake. Legal history will be made."

Edison, Austin freshman schools are renamed

Midland got two new freshman schools Tuesday, and it didn't cost the taxpayers a thing.

Instead of Edison Freshman School, ninth graders will attend Midland Freshman High School next year. Those who would have attended Austin Freshman School now will be going to class in Robert E. Lee Freshman High School.

Classes will be held in the same old buildings, but — to go along with the new names — mascots, colors and school songs will be changed to match those of the respective senior high schools.

The changes were approved by the Midland school trustees Tuesday at the request of principals from all four schools.

Since students attend the freshman schools only one year, they noted in their request, any school spirit or tradition generated is "forever lost" when the students go to the senior highs.

Also, they pointed out, since the last boundary change, all Edison students later attend MHS and all Austin students attend Lee.

While Edison's school colors already match MHS's purple and gold, Austin students will have a transition period while their current orange and white colors are phased out for the Lee maroon and white.

'Golden Fleece will go on'

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The Golden Fleece will go on," vows Sen. William Proxmire. "I will issue another award next month and shall continue to issue them."

The Wisconsin Democrat, who regards his monthly "fleece" awards as a major weapon in his war against wasteful government spending, said he would not be deterred by a Supreme Court ruling that the target of one of his citations could sue the senator for libel.

"Nothing in the court's decision will inhibit me... I feel no constraint, none, in continuing the fleece awards as I have in the past," said Proxmire in a statement issued a few hours after the court announced its decision.

The first senator to undergo a hair transplant, the senator who runs five miles to and from work, the senator who hasn't missed a roll call vote since April 1966, the senator who has spoken at every Senate session for 12 years to urge approval of the genocide treaty — that senator is not easily inhibited or discouraged.

That senator has been described as a loner, as antisocial, even, as an eccentric.

"All those things are true," Proxmire once said in an interview. "I don't like the term eccentric because it implies that you are off your rocker. I call myself a pragmatic eccentric."

Elected to the Senate in 1957, to succeed the late Joseph R. McCarthy, Proxmire ranks ninth in Senate seniority, is chairman of the banking committee and is a senior member of the Appropriations Committee.

His monthly Golden Fleece awards are directed at what he calls the most outrageous examples of wasteful spending of tax money.

Projects singled out by Proxmire include a $3,000 study of whether Air Force men should be permitted to carry umbrellas, a $2,500 study of why people are rude on tennis courts and a $222,000 study of motorists' attitudes towards large trucks.

In 1975, Proxmire singled out Ronald Hutchinson, a Kalamazoo, Mich., scientist, for his study of why "rats, monkeys and humans clench their teeth."

Hutchinson sued the senator for libel. He claimed that the award severely damaged his reputation.

In sending the case to a lower court for trial, the Supreme Court said that Hutchinson was not a public figure and, therefore, need prove only that the statements in the Proxmire press release were false and caused him harm.

The court also said that the protection against libel, which members of Congress have for statements they make on the House or Senate floor or during other official proceedings, does not extend to press releases.

Test shows rash reaction to nitrite substitute

WASHINGTON (AP) — Persons tasting bacon cured with sorbate, a food preservative proposed as a likely substitute for sodium nitrite, developed rashes and burning throats, federal food regulators confirm.

The Food and Drug Administration and the Agriculture Department's Food Safety and Quality Service have formed a task force to find out exactly what happened and why, said Dr. Donald Houston.

Houston, acting head of the USDA agency, said Tuesday in an interview the whole purpose of the tests is to uncover such problems.

He said the allergy-type reactions and other side effects reported by the taste-testers "raised a set of questions that have to be answered before we proceed" in the quest for an alternative to nitrites. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland and Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. of the Health, Education and Welfare Department say present law requires them to ban nitrite if other scientists uphold a 1978 study that said it causes cancer in laboratory animals.

The Justice Department told Bergland and Califano they could not take nitrite off the market gradually while a search for substitutes continued.

Nitrite is used in 7 percent of the food supply, especially cured meats, to preserve the food and thwart the growth of bacteria that can cause deadly botulism poisoning.

Bergland and Califano asked Congress in March for an exemption for nitrite until their tests find safe and effective substitutes. The current law bans any food additive in any amount if it causes cancer in humans or animals.

No hearings have been held on the exemption proposal and aides said Tuesday none have been scheduled.

Meanwhile, sorbate, already widely used in dairy products, has been viewed as a leading alternative.

On Monday, Rep. Bruce F. Vento, D-Minn., said he had received information "from various sources... that tests on the use of sorbate-preserved bacon caused serious side-effects in the persons who ate the cooked meat" and workers handling it.

The way the bacon was cooked and the quantity of sorbate may be the cause, he added.

Houston said USDA's research was reported to him, "There was some type of allergic-type response that we don't know the cause of."

USDA forced bacon manufacturers last year to lower the amount of nitrite they use.

Its scientists said that when bacon is fried quickly, excessive nitrite mixes with proteins in the digestive system to form nitrosamines, some of which are among the most potent cancer-causing agents.

Vento called for a congressional investigation, saying sorbates may not even retard the formation of nitrosamines.

Meat industry groups say the amount of nitrite used in bacon is too small to be harmful and is less than persons are exposed to in the natural environment.

A C-54 spray plane that crashed recently into Eagle Lake in Maine is towed across the lake by a motor boat early Tuesday. It will be towed to John's Bridge where it will be beached and dismantled. The craft was being used in the Maine Spruce Budworm program at the time of the accident. (AP Laserphoto)

Geophysicists/Geologists

Maybe it's not your fault you're trapped

Many oil companies are just too regimented to offer full-fledged participation to their employees. Instead, people tend to be allocated certain jobs in clearly defined departments, and there they stay. Some begin to feel trapped. Marathon offers a way of migrating out of this trap.

Marathon Oil Company's aggressive and expanding worldwide exploration activities have created an immediate need for experienced geologists and geophysicists.

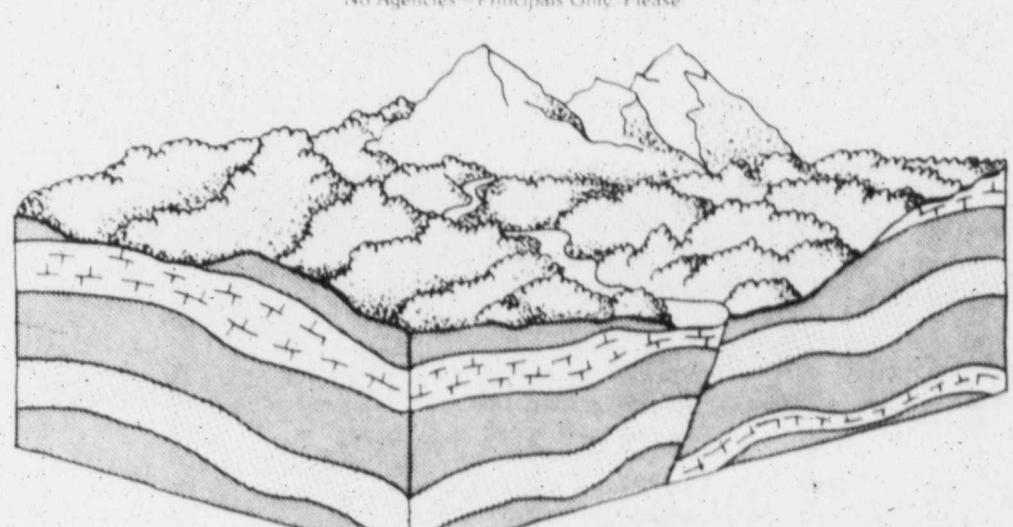

We are looking for people with a minimum of 5 years of oil industry experience and preferably a MS degree, who seek a challenging and rewarding career with a dynamic, successful, growing organization.

Career positions will offer successful candidates opportunity for growth, responsibility and recognition in offices at:

Anchorage, Alaska • Casper, Wyoming • Houston, Texas
Midland, Texas • Lafayette, Louisiana

Chandelle is a Nice Place to Call Home...

WHY BUY A "CHANDELLE" CONDOMINIUM? ***

"CHANDELLE's" location at 2100 West Wadley is within minutes of downtown, theatres, recreational areas, shopping, restaurants, schools, churches, the college, and Airpark. At "CHANDELLE" you get an equity investment, the same tax breaks as a home owner, and greater control of your housing costs.

"CHANDELLE" is the only real alternative people have to get away from the maintenance problems - of home owning, and doing it with style.

Come out to 2100 West Wadley or call 684-7884 to find out why "CHANDELLE" is a nice place to call home. Models are open from 12:00 noon until 6:00 p.m. seven days a week.

With just $2750 down for a 2 bedroom-2 bath "D" model, and a monthly payment of $600... You can have all the economic benefits of "Chandelle", plus enjoy convenient living with a "Touch of Class". That $600 monthly figure includes your mortgage, taxes, insurance, water, sewage, and association fees.
