Solicit Gifts For Ailing Veterans

Gifts for families of sick and disabled veterans are being solicited by members of the American Legion Auxiliary. Each year the gifts are collected by members of the American Legion Auxiliary over this district and are placed in a Gift Shop in the Veterans Hospital in Amarillo. Sick and disabled veterans in the hospital like to send presents to members of their families and they may make their selections from this array of gifts. The gifts are supplied to the veterans free of charge and ladies of various Auxiliary units are on duty to gift wrap the gifts at the hospital. Trays of gifts are carried to the rooms of bed-patients and they are enabled to make their selections for their families in their own rooms.

Supplying disabled veterans with Christmas gifts for their families has resulted in one of the Auxiliaries greatest morale builders for men whose physical handicaps make it impossible for them to provide for loved ones as they might under normal conditions.

Gifts suitable for all ages, including home-made items such as blouses, aprons, etc., are appreciated. There is usually a shortage of gifts for teenagers.

A box will be placed in the office of the Southwestern Public Service Co. in which contributions may be placed. The gifts should be in the box by the first of December.

Producers Consider State Tax

The Board of Directors of the Wheat Producers Association of Texas met recently in Amarillo to consider the possibility of framing an enabling act to be presented to the Legislature for raising funds to carry on the work of the Association.

The group studied the enabling acts of Oregon, Kansas and Nebraska; and appointed J. R. Hogge of Amarillo to make an outline of the type of bill he thought would be best suited for Texas.

It was the consensus of opinion of those present that the growers of Texas would be willing to make a small contribution on the wheat they grew in order to finance and work out their own problems rather than ask the State Legislature for more taxes. The Directors felt that by taxing themselves on the wheat they grew the money could be used directly for solving the problems of the wheat growers in the State.

The attacks of greenbugs, cut worms, and mosaic root rot which practically eliminated the wheat crops in Texas in 1950-51 seemed to be the paramount research problems which need attention at this time.

The bill would probably ask each grower to contribute one-fourth of one per cent of the value of the wheat and this would be used to aid in solving research, marketing, and public relation problems as it relates to the growing of wheat. Since industry in general usually spends twenty times this amount on research alone it was felt by the group that no grower would object to the tax of 1-4 of 1% of the value of the product.

The County Chairman of the Wheat Producers Association would appreciate the comments of the growers of the county concerning the varied reactions to legislation of this type.

Thanking God

Lesson for November 23, 1952

IT IS hard to imagine Jesus observing exactly one day in the year, no more, as a Thanksgiving day. This is not to say that the idea of a Thanksgiving Day is a bad one. The Jews of ancient times, whose religious observances Jesus closely kept, had a whole week of celebrations in the fall, corresponding somewhat to our Thanksgiving day. But Jesus' heart of gratitude was not to be limited by the calendar.

Mistakes About Thanksgiving

There are at least three mistakes which are commonly made with reference to Thanksgiving day. We Christian people make the mistake of limiting our thoughts of gratitude to one day. We count our blessings on this one day of all the year; we go on a kind of "binge" of gratitude.

Dr. Foreman

Another sort of mistake, made by a great many, even of those who are called Christians, is to use the day for purposes that have nothing at all to do with it. Instead of worshipful gratitude to God for his blessings of the year past, the day is commonly used by many for eating too much or for getting drunk at football games.

Retail stores use the day to usher in the Christmas season. In fact, not so many years ago the commercial interests of the country were successful in pushing the day back a whole week just in order to have a longer season in which to sell "Christmas" merchandise.

But the purpose of the day is not to make money or to win football games or to get stuffed with turkey.

Grace Before Shakespeare

A third mistake is to be thankful for only one kind of thing: namely, material blessings such as food, security, good crops and good business. Now our Lord was grateful for such things. More than once we read of his taking bread and giving thanks for it. But as he knew that man does not live by bread alone, so man should not give thanks for bread alone. Most of Jesus' prayers of thanksgiving are for other and higher blessings.

Some well-known writer once commented on our custom of saying "Grace before meat"—the old expression for what is now often called "asking the blessing" at the table. Has God no other blessings for us?

When a person sits down with a great play (say by Shakespeare) in his hand, why not a "Grace before Shakespeare?" How many of us have a little prayer of thanksgiving before reading a book of poetry or going out to look up at the starry sky on a clear night, or before opening a letter from an old friend or before going to the hospital or the dentist? (Yes, indeed; the dentist may not seem like a blessing, but try to stand a toothache all by yourself, or try to imagine going to his office, or to the hospital, before the days of modern medicine, surgery, X-rays, anesthetics and sanitation!)

Blessings of the Spirit

Jesus' prayer of thanksgiving, which our lesson Scripture records, however, is on a higher plane still. The particular blessing for which he thanks the Lord of heaven and earth is in the first place a spiritual one, and in the second place it is not something that came to him but to some one else. He thanks God that a spiritual light has been seen by his most humble friends.

Can we say that many of our prayers are on this high level? Many of us never get beyond the "Gimme" stage. And even among those who do rise to the level of real thanksgiving, it is rare enough to find those who are grateful not only for their own blessings but for those received by others; and how seldom does God hear any note of praise for blessings of the spirit!

This is a high plane, to be reached only by high souls, those who have been intimate enough with Christ to absorb his spirit and attitude. Stupid people, who do not have very good minds, cannot be expected to appreciate blessings of the mind; and people with small and wizened souls cannot feel blessings of the spirit. And only those who practice the Golden Rule every day, so as to put themselves into others' places, and who cultivate the gift of sympathy so as to "rejoice with those that rejoice and weep with those that weep," can have the heart to be thankful when others receive the highest blessings of heaven.

VIEWS AND COUNTERVIEWS

BOOM OR BUST in 1953? Federal economists are split on the outlook. The majority of federal prophets foresee continued good times, but the pessimists have more arguments and are in agreement with many private businessmen.

PRO BOOM
The federal spending prop will be sturdy in 1953. Defense outlays will be at a $60-billion instead of the $50-billion rate now. And plant and equipment expenditure will be equal to this year's level. New home construction will hit around 900,000.

This is a slight drop in home construction from 1952, but this year has been an abnormally good one.

Defense spending has about $10-billion a year to climb before leveling off. Congress, if it eases the excess profits tax as expected, will have to ease the personal income tax, especially the 10 percent boost of 1951, and this will give consumers a psychological impetus to spend more money.

Under our present social security system, if wages and salaries fall a little more than $2-billion, unemployment insurance will put $1-billion back in earners' pockets, keeping buying power safe. And if income drops, the amount taken from it in income tax drops correspondingly, making up for some of the income drop.

Farm price supports will keep agricultural America's income on a fairly even level and preserve rural buying power.

ANTI BOOM
When defense spending starts leveling off, it falls to cover soft spots in the economy—becomes a neutral factor, unable to take up slack in areas where no federal money is spent.

Housing expenditures admittedly will be some lower. Plant and equipment outlays may not live up to their promise of holding their own. These possibilities do not encourage a boom.

When we catch up on war demands, what will we do with the nation's expanded ability to produce? Steel output ability has increased 13 million tons yearly, and other products have made corresponding advances. An overabundance always means dropping prices.

Peak rate for letting government contracts will be reached early next year. Who is going to pay for the goods produced when the government stops picking up the tabs? And dealers may start liquidation of inventories already listed at $70-billion. People sell off what they have stored up, and they don't always place new orders.

Some economists see the current downturn in foreign exports, minus foreign aid shipments, continuing.

Coming Home From School

Your child may go on a tear the minute he comes home from school. Overstrictness at school, too much sitting, too much quiet can make him do it. But even when the school day has gone well, many children put on a show at the end of the day.

Miss Lucile King, Home Demonstration Agent, says life would be simpler if youngsters could put their feelings into words. It is important to be able to translate these feelings to get their real meaning.

The agent says much of this after-school fussing and whining is the child's way of asking for assurance that he still has a warm special place in the home.

Try a simple snack to give your child the assurance he needs. He will respond to a glass of milk and some cookies or a fruit dessert or a pudding, some special treat ready and waiting with you to sit down with him.

Miss King says you want your child's first moving out beyond his home to be a satisfying one, and your attitude towards his going to school is very important. Take time to make his coming home from school each day an occasion.

Fresh Relish

Make a fresh relish from some of the seasonal foods like cranberries and oranges. The flavorful dish is excellent with fall meals and is easy to make.

Miss Lucile King, County Home Demonstration Agent, suggests this recipe for such a relish: put a pound or 4 cups of fresh raw cranberries and one large orange through a food chopper. Mix thoroughly with one cup of sugar, and one cup of chopped celery and a half cup of chopped nuts.

Let this mixture stand in a cool place at least a half hour to blend the flavors. The agent says this mixture should not be kept more than a few days.

Recipe of the Week

Roast Whole Turkey

Start with a ready to cook turkey. Salt inside of turkey. Fill body and neck cavities loosely with stuffing. Stuffing swells as it cooks, so give it room to expand. Fold neck skin toward back and fasten with skewer or a few stitches. For stitching use clean white wrapping cord and large needle. Tuck legs under band of skin at tail or tie down. To do this wrap cord around legs and under tail. This will hold legs close to the body. Fold the wing tips back on the wings. This will help to hold the neck skin in place. Grease skin of turkey with melted or softened fat. Place breast down on rack in shallow pan. Do not add water, and do not cover. Place in preheated oven set at proper temperature. Baste with fat from bottom of pan during baking, and turn from one side of the breast to the other, then breast up. Or cover the top and sides of bird with a loosely woven cloth which has been

Easy Does It

POTATOES are a versatile food, but few people have heard of them served stewed! Melt 4 tablespoons of butter into a skillet, add 6 potatoes, peeled and sliced, then 1 1/2 cups milk and salt and pepper to taste. Cook, covered, slowly, until potatoes are tender.

Sliced orange garnish makes good eating with lamb. Sprinkle them with brown sugar, dot with butter and dust lightly with curry powder and broil.

When next you make cream puffs or eclairs, add some finely sieved banana to the vanilla cream filling. This gives you a novel flavor treat. Sweeten your next batch of applesauce with maple sugar or syrup and serve with cornmeal griddle cakes. You'll like strips of bacon to go along with these.

Chocolate and orange are unusual but welcome team mates. For your next chocolate cake, choc-

- 1/4 cup confectioners' sugar

olate-frosted, grate some orange rind on top and listen to the call for second helpings.

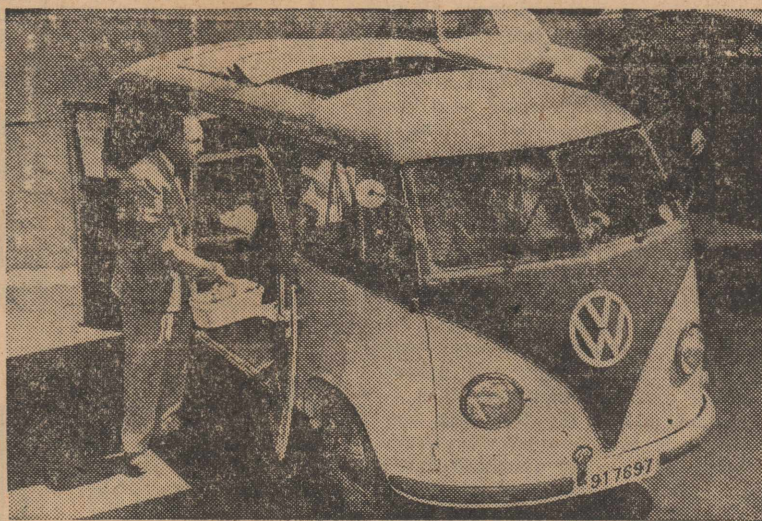

In place of parsley as a garnish, use the parsley in the food prepared and see how much zest it adds to simple dishes. Chop it fine for hamburgers, salad dressings or biscuits.

Shrimp a la king can be prepared the same way as you do the famous chicken dish of the same name. Serve on a bed of well-seasoned peas, or, if desired, on a bed of rice mixed with peas.

Lime frosting on a white cake does wonders in color and taste appeal. Use a package of cream cheese (3 ounces), 2 1/2 cups confectioners' sugar and 1 tablespoon lime juice. If you like, add 2 teaspoons grated lime rind and mix until smooth.

JUST "A LITTLE SOCIALISM"

Many Americans seem to think that "a little socialism" is a good thing — a sort of leavening that will keep free enterprise on its toes, and provide some sort of yardstick for measuring the efficiency of affected industries. And socialism can be stopped, they think, before it goes so far as to be really dangerous.

LONG TREK By DUKE ALLISANT

JACQUES' plight was certainly one to cause him grave concern. While he was away visiting his trap line a wolverine had somehow gained entrance to his cabin and ransacked it.

Jacques was a man of many years experience in the woods. He did not waste time brooding. First he found the faulty door catch that had given the wolverine its admission. Then he took account of the damage. It was even worse than he had estimated. Save for a few cans of meat and preserves, a box of cartridges, a jar of ointment and some manufactured bait there was nothing worth salvaging.

Jacques sat down and did some serious thinking. Beaver Creek, the nearest settlement, was 150 miles away. Jacques had covered the distance in his canoe in four days, less than a month ago. Yet he dared not risk returning by canoe, for the weather already had a bite to it. Soon the northland would be ice-locked. Snow would come.

He would, then, have to walk. Should he, when he reached the fork in the trail 60 miles south, turn west and try to make Gene Robot's cabin, which was 10 miles beyond? He shook his head vigorously. Robot was a lazy, shiftless man. He always remained at the settlement as long as possible before trekking in for the winter. No, the chances were that Robot was not yet located in his winter home.

Jacques began methodically getting together his pack. There was only one thing left to do: Trek the entire 150 miles on foot.

Early the next morning Jacques was ready for the trail. Besides the canned goods and cartridges, his pack contained his sleeping bag, an axe, his rifle, one cooking pot, a spoon and, over all, his snowshoes.

It was scarcely light when he started out. Swinging into the long, graceful stride of the born woodsman, he easily covered 15 miles before 1 o'clock. He paused then, opened one of the cans and ate a strip of meat.

He kept walking till darkness fell, estimating the entire day's distance at a little short of 30 miles.

During the night one of those treacheries of the northland occurred. The wind shifted. It grew colder. At dawn snow began to fall. Jacques woke and sat up with a start. All about the world was cloaked in a blanket of white. A furrow creased his brow. He ate a hasty breakfast (another strip of dried meat) and started once more south. Aloud he told himself that the storm was but a squall, and would soon pass. But his instincts warned him the opposite. And his instincts proved accurate. By noon so much snow had fallen that Jacques had to don his webs.

The wind had risen, whipping the fine particles of snow into his face, rendering visibility almost nil. Jacques was not a coward. He had lived through too many stirring adventures and survived them all to be afraid. Yet he knew that his chances of ever reaching the post alive were negligible. This storm, first of the season, would be a two or three-day affair at best. Perhaps longer. The cold weather had come to stay. The settlement was still more than 100 miles away. He had no food. He had seen no game.

Toward dusk of that second day, utterly spent, Jacques sank to his knees in the deep snow, fighting a losing fight against oblivion.

Jacques opened his eyes and smelled frying bacon and boiling coffee and the delicious odor of tobacco smoke. He felt heat, too, and could only hear the wind in the distance. He rolled over and stared up into the eyes of Gene Robot. Gene Robot smiled down at him.

"'Eet ees goot, my fran', that-you waited till the fork in the trails to give up the long trek, eh? Else Gene he no find you so deep buried in the snow."

Different Mental Attitude Helps

WILLIAM KERMIT MONROE, Lumberton, North Carolina, lost his wife and was left with two little children, one two years of age and the other seven days old when its mother died. The older child was at home with him while the younger was still at the hospital. The doctor said they would keep him there until arrangements could be made to have him somewhere else.

In the meantime William Monroe faced a lot of expense; doctor bills, hospital bills, three special nurses to pay, funeral expense, and also a housekeeper and a nurse for the two year old boy at home. He was already in debt about $2,000.00 and going in debt more each month since he was making only $2400.00 a year as a postal employee.

He worried until he could not sleep at night; he smoked too many cigarettes, and was becoming a nervous wreck. He could not keep both of his babies at home and provide nurses for them, and they were too young to enter an orphanage. Some friends wanted to adopt them, but more than anything else he wanted to rear them together and keep them with him.

On day he decided to talk to his minister. When he stated his problems to the minister, he was told of a similar experience. He said that it was a problem that could not be worked out in a day or two, that it would take some time. And he advised Mr. Monroe to live one day at a time and let tomorrow take care of itself.

Accepting this advice brought about a different mental attitude and a change in Mr. Monroe's life, and things began to work out all right. His nervous condition disappeared and his health returned to normal.

Belgium and the Netherlands were separated by treaties signed in 1839.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From W. C. Norton, Temperance, Mich.: I remember the woodburning locomotives that used to fuel up where we lived. I remember the cradle and wood rake. I remember my first chew of tobacco, although it was 75 years ago.

From Mrs. E. C. Sillin, Utica, Ohio: Mother would take wood ashes and put them in a barrel, pour water over them and get lye. Then she would take several large cans of corn and shell into a large pan and pour some of the lye and water over the corn. She would cook until you could rub the hulls off the corn with your hands. The product was called hominy.

From Mrs. Godfred Eisele, Chelsea, Mich.: I remember when I was about 8, my mother rented a huckleberry marsh. All they paid then was three cents a quart. When I was 17 I worked in a hotel—had to clean and fill about 30 lamps each day.

From Mrs. Nina Brewer, Winnsboro, Texas: I remember when we used to buy a bottle of medicine and there would be a cork-screw inside the box to remove the stopper from the bottle. I remember when spools had 100 yards of thread for five cents (now only 60 yards).

From Olga K. Robinson, Menlo Park, Calif.: I remember back in New York state when the winter's water supply was hauled by man power through a hole in the ice on the Salmon river. After the hole was cut it was enclosed with a box and cover to keep out dogs.

This Petty Pace

(By Brown Lee Yates)

SOMETIMES I think that many persons' disregard of atomic data is like my small daughter's refusal to contemplate the elephant—both are inattention to something too big to comprehend. Some persons stare blankly at headlines proclaiming the wondrous feats of power to be performed by atomic energy in their time and fail to be impressed enough even to read the stories underneath unless they concern some new destruction to be wrought by the A-bomb. The readers save their marveling for a late model motorcar or a new potato peeler or a new track record set by a race horse.

And in like manner my small daughter at the zoo observes the elephant with the same blank stare that persons unlearned in astronomy turn toward the sky when they feel like noticing the heavens at all. It's too big to mean much to them. If the elephant raises his trunk and starts trumpeting, the little girl cringes in fear, much as the adult does when an awful storm breaks with thunder and lightning.

At the zoo, my small daughter reserves her admiration for the tiny birds, snakes, turtles and monkeys. Even the larger examples of these species—the ostriches, anacondas, huge turtles and gorillas—she refuses to speculate about. She isn't swayed by the strength, agility and majesty of lions. Perhaps the monsters frighten her when they roar and show their teeth and she hopes that if she ignores them they will fade like bad dreams.

This is the way some persons heed news of atomic reaction. Of course some crazed ones take enormous delight in contemplating the destruction and death imprisoned in the atom and are fascinated by thoughts of the release of doom, but most normal persons confronted with the subject of the atom plead with their eyes and a half apologetic tongue that you forsake fantasy and discuss food, clothing, politics, football.

Their expression is something like the bored pout my little girl wears when she pulls me away from viewing the elephants and leads me to the bird cages. I suppose that, to her, as to one of the blind men in the poem, the elephant is very much like a wall.

The scientific name for the stone age is paleolithic age.

By LYTLE HULL

A CONVERSATION which your correspondent recently "eavesdropped" in the solarium of a hospital where he was recuperating almost brought on a relapse. Two men were discussing the election, and one was explaining very clearly that the economic structure of this nation could not weather another four years of New Deal uncontrolled—and by now uncontrollable—spending. He cited that no President elected on the Democratic ticket could be in a position to reduce the present runaway situation. He stated that if the New Deal was returned, he expected to be financially ruined within the next few years. (Silently we agreed with him one hundred per cent.)

Not 10 minutes later we were startled to hear this same man say that he was not going to vote at the coming election, as he was infuriated at the way Eisenhower's men had "stolen" the nomination from Taft. There was a sort of stunned silence for a few moments and then his friend stood up and delivered himself about as follows:

"You and I, Bill, have been very successful, self-made men. I know how I made my success—it was by using my brains. But after the statement you have just made, I'm damned if I can understand how you made yours. You have just said that if the New Deal was returned before long to have to sell your business and your home in the country for some worthless deflated dollars and that your wife and children—and nearly everyone else's wives and children in this country—would be hard-pressed to make ends meet. And now you tell me that you are going to present the "despoilers" with one vote because of sentiment. Get this through your thick head, Bill! The American people—or at least those who can see the cataclysm ahead—are not voting FOR ANY-ONE. They are voting AGAINST a bureaucratic octopus which if returned will ruin us."

One who is anosmic lacks a sense of smell.

Built with features usually reserved "for big trucks only" — that's why GMC's last longer!

THERE'S extra value in a GMC pickup, stake or panel truck because there's extra quality in the way it's built—a long list of heavy-duty features that are usually reserved by other manufacturers for their "big trucks only."

First, there's the sturdy, truck-built valve-in-head engine—protected against wear and breakdown by the same features you find in the big 200-H.P. GMC's: Tocco-Hardened crankshaft, air-lube-type main and rod bearings, full-floating piston pins and rifle-drilled connecting rods carrying full-pressure lubrication all the way to the piston pins.

There's extra stopping power in a GMC's burly brakes, extra strength in its deep truck frame—extra comfort in a GMC's longer "pillow-action" springs, extra ease in a GMC's recirculating ball-bearing steering.

They're features usually reserved for "big trucks only"—yours in a GMC at no extra cost. You won't find a better truck on the market!

STRATFORD GRADE SCHOOL NEWS

First Grade

Mrs. Russell's Room
We are enjoying our room. There are a few extra turkeys here and there made from potatoes and feathers. We are learning some Thanksgiving poems.

The Pilgrims were greeted by Indians in our sand pan, so we are learning about friendship and custom of long ago. The "Sand" was given by Mr. and Mrs. Byrd and will prove useful in Social Science. The treats given us by Mrs. Judd and Mrs. Reeder were enjoyed.

Second Grade

Mrs. Peterson's Room
One of the most pleasing programs that we have ever had in our school auditorium was the Wayland College International Choir's concert last Tuesday afternoon and night.

We specially liked the novelty numbers: "Peter, Peter Pumpkin Eater," "Chloe" with the Eskimo comedy, and the quartet's "Tumbling Tumbleweed." Our teacher liked best, the "Go Down Moses" number, "Asleep in the Deep," and the little Japanese girl's solo.

This week we are happy with Jack Morgan over the arrival of his new baby sister. She has put a mighty sparkle in Jack's eyes.

Our Indian unit is coming to a close. We have enjoyed the colorful collection on our tables and wish to thank each one who has loaned us their treasures. Our latest acquisition is a large Indian Chief doll from Mrs. Martha Harrison.

We have learned something of how our forefathers started life in this new country and how they have left us so much to be thankful for on Thanksgiving Day.

Third Grade

Alma Lee Sissom has moved away which leaves us nineteen in our room. This makes a total of thirty-eight for the two third grades.

We are bringing pictures about Thanksgiving. These are for our bulletin board.

Fourth Grade

Miss Cox's Room
We would like to thank Mrs. J. G. Cummings for the beautiful potted plants. They certainly add to our room.

We have a new girl in our room. She is Ida Nell Hemphill who came here from Dalhart. We hope she will like our school.

Our perfect scores in Spelling this week were made by Ginger Brooks, Larry Fleener, Lela Hampton, Jerry Johnson, Natacha Morris, Harry Quinn, Shirley Robbins, Max Roque, Susan Sloan, Carol Smith, Kay Spurlock, and Billy Stone.

Miss Riley's Room

The class has been making Thanksgiving posters this week. Those making 100 in Spelling this week are: Alta Adams, Joe Ray Brown, Lynda Brewster, Gary Mathews, Madelene Reesing, Billy Steinberger, Dennis Walker and Kay Webb.

Fifth Grade

Mrs. Elliott's Room
(By News Committee Linda Taylor, Gay Plunk, and Neil Harris)

Here we are getting ready for another series of six-weeks tests. Each of us are reorganizing factual material from our daily work into well formulated statements. On test days we have a certain amount of fun. Our room calls it matching wits with our teacher, who says she forgets everything on test days. We think it is only for a short time though because we always find our papers checked for especially good answers as well as for incorrect statements.

In Learning Essential English we are working on noun classification. We have found it very interesting as well as beneficial to classify nouns according to our classification chart. For example we learn to recognize at sight whether a noun is common or proper, singular, plural or possessive in form. Many nouns will be listed under more than one heading.

Tonight, November 17, is "our big night." Our room mothers plan to entertain us with a tacky party. Invited guests will be the other fifth grade. We are looking forward to a wonderful time. This is our first night party.

Mrs. Flowers' Room

Those making perfect papers in Spelling last week were: Carolee Baskin, Hal Bennett, Ann Burgess, Bill Casey, Molly Ann Davis, Leon Eden, Sharon Gamble, Dixie Lee Knight, Dwane Lavake, Edward O'Quin, Kay Pickens, Jessie Jean Riggs, and Buster Kitchens.

Librarian for the week is Mary Gay Judd.

The class enjoyed acting out a funny story in Reading Class. The title was "Mr. Wigg's Birthday Party." It concerned a little fat man that liked to laugh. Every time his birthday came on Friday he filled with laughing gas and was stuck to the ceiling until he thought of something sad or Saturday came. This time his visitors, a niece and two children came to his party. They and the table were up in the air and they had the party on the ceiling instead of the floor. The class got quite a few laughs out of the way each person read their part. The purpose of this lesson was to put expression into Reading.

We are starting our review for six weeks tests that begin soon.

Sixth Grade

Miss Crockett's Room
We have a new pupil in our room, Patty Jo Hamilton, from Follett, Texas.

We are sorry to lose Belle Va Thorne. She is moving to Amarillo where she will attend school.

Our Red Feathers used in Spelling this six weeks show approximately 90% of the class scoring 100 for each Friday.

We were glad to have our room represented on P. T. A. program last Thursday evening. Cagle Kendrick played a piano solo. His father, Mr. Kenneth Kendrick, gave an interesting talk on "Blessings of the Home."

Frankie Aduddell and Holly Harrington are spending the day in Amarillo.

Seventh Grade

Miss Patterson's Room
Willy Price has gone deer hunting with Mr. Whittenburg and Mr. Wells.

The students of the Seventh Grade Class have divided into groups to have charge of the bulletin board in the room. Each week a different group is in charge. Some of the displays have been very interesting. We hope they will be better as the time goes on.

Eighth Grade

Mrs. Turner's Room
The grade school boys were beaten 32 to 23 Friday morning by Morse. The girls had the victory of winning the tournament.

Mrs. Schnabel, one of our room mothers, has been very ill in the Guymon Hospital. We hope she gets better soon.

The Home Economics girls have had sewing as their project this six weeks.

W.S.C.S. Circles Have Joint Meeting At Methodist Church

Both Circles of the Womens Society of Christian Service met in the parlor of the Methodist Church for the monthly joint meeting Wednesday.

The meeting was called to order by the program chairman Mrs. Vern Foreman. Mrs. Virgil Plunk played soft music on the piano.

Mrs. V. Foreman read the scripture lesson. The hymn, "Oh Master Let Me Walk With Thee," was sung by the group led by Mrs. James Cameron. Mrs. R. W. Standefer, Jr., read a short poem, "The Creative Christ." Mrs. W. P. Cummings gave a talk entitled "Take The Church to the People." "Stone Front Churches" was discussed by Mrs. Harry Sears. "Broom Brigade" was given by Mrs. Evelyn Harding. "Drive-in Churches" was given by Mrs. Vern Foreman. "Puppets" was read by Mrs. A. E. Pronger, Jr. "Brides Go To School In India," was the topic of Mrs. J. B. McWilliams.

The program was closed by prayer led by Mrs. J. G. Cummings. Twenty-one members, 3 visitors and 3 children were present.

After the program Mrs. A. L. King called a business session. Mrs. C. C. Plunk read the minutes of the last meeting. Letters of thanks from boxes sent to various missionary projects, were read by Mrs. Plunk. The Treasurer's report was made by Mrs. Harry Sears. Mrs. Emil Blank reported on the district meeting held in Amarillo. The report was very interesting and informative. Mrs. Harry Sears told about the new Wesleyan house located in Amarillo. It was decided to meet December 17 for our Christmas meeting.

The first Wednesday in December was decided upon for the book review and silver tea. Committees were appointed. All who are interested, are invited to attend. The book reviewed is "Cry, The Beloved Country," by Alan Patton.

The president asked that each Sunday School Class represented have a short prayer meeting for the revival.

The meeting was closed with seventeen prayers.
