

Wheat Harvest 75% Complete

Wheat harvest in Sherman County is estimated as being 75% complete although local showers falling over the territory Monday evening shut down operations in most fields Tuesday.

Early reports of yields in irrigated wheat fields range up to 50 and 60 bushels to the acre. Some dry-land wheat on summer fallowed land has produced as high as 31 bushels to the acre. In some localities where rainfall was insufficient the yields are said to have dropped to as low as 6 or 8 bushels to the acre. Numerous fields produced 18 and 20 bushels of wheat to the acre.

Those completing their harvest early were able to sell their wheat for $1.75 a bushel. Early maturity of Panhandle wheat before wheat from other areas arrived on the market was credited with this situation. The net county loan rate would be about $1.69 a bushel for wheat placed in government storage.

Wheat in Sherman, Ochiltree and Dallam Counties ripened earlier than wheat to the south. Moore and Hartley Counties have wheat which matured slower than that in the favored counties.

Crosby and Dickens Counties report harvest in full swing with yields averaging 20 to 25 bushels to the acre.

In the Littlefield area wheat is maturing rapidly and harvest is getting well underway with average yields.

Harvest in the Plainview area is 50% complete and with favorable weather, will be completed this week end. Yields are from average to above average in irrigated acreage.

In the Potter County area harvest is 15% complete with yields averaging from 10 to 15 bushels per acre, with some fields producing as high as 20 bushels.

Harvest has been completed in the Pampa area.

We each received one of these 4-H folders and these index tabs which you see in use here. In our record we have sections for such things as newspaper clippings, project pictures and awards. Our leaders went through each section explaining it to us. This gave us a greater understanding of the purpose and value of a record." ## 308 Pay Fines For Fishing Without Tags

Fishing violations topped the list of arrests made by game wardens during the month of May, according to the report of the director of law enforcement of the Game and Fish Commission.

There were nearly 400 fishing arrests made by the wardens, with 308 of them for failure to have a license. The Texas license costs $2.15 and is good for both fresh and salt water and for residents and non-residents alike.

Although all legal game hunting has been closed for several months, there were several violations for killing quail, doves, ducks and even killing deer in the closed season.

The 448 persons arrested in May paid fines of $7,596.45 plus court costs of $852.00.

Eight persons served time in jail for their violations.

"We do everything we can to publicize license requirements for the fishermen," the director said. "Despite the warnings, however, people still take a chance on getting caught and many of them do. If you plan to fish outside your home county, or with a rod and reel anywhere and are over 16 and under 65 you'll need a license."

Today's youngsters don't leave footprints on the sands of time, just tire tracks.

Sherman County 4-H girls will compete for honors in the County 4-H Girls Dress Revue to be held in the county exhibit building Thursday, July 2, at 2:30 p. m. There are 54 girls enrolled in 4-H clubs and about 25 are planning to model garments which they have made in the dress revue.

Blouses, skirts and school dresses which have been made by the girls will be entered in the competitive event. The winner of the contest will represent the county in the district dress revue.

Garments which will be entered in the dress revue should be turned in to the office of the county home demonstration agent by 9:30 a. m. on July 2. Mrs. Charles Durr of Kerrick and Miss Barbara Fain, Hansford county home demonstration agent, will judge the entries.

Mrs. Ruby Campbell, Sherman home demonstration agent, announces that mothers of the girls and all interested persons are invited to attend the dress revue.

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS

How Long Does A Girl Wait for Dates?

By C. D. Smith

A teenage girl writes: "All during high school, my parents refused to let me date... other than on rare occasions. 'Wait until you're out of high school,' they kept telling me. Well, I am now out of high school, but they now say 'Wait a while longer!' How long am I supposed to wait until I feel free to say 'yes' when a boy asks me for a date?"

It isn't, of course. What happens, sometimes, is that they keep saying "wait" until they get to the point where they say "You're old enough, but you don't know anything about getting along with the opposite sex." And, if the child always followed the advice to "wait," this is quite true. We don't learn how to get along with people unless we associate with people.

Parents are wrong to raise their children to a certain age, then say, "You're old enough now. Do anything you want to do." It just doesn't work that way. Life is a living experience and wisdom, character and prudence do not come with a certain age. They come through experience.

The best way to solve this particular problem, if it can be done in this fashion, is by calling a "family conference" and putting the cards on the table. It's much better to face up to the situation and try to work out a satisfactory agreement than to concede to the parents—having no dates at all, or "slipping" behind their back to have dates without their knowledge. Often situations of this kind resolve themselves when they are met squarely and with determination. After all, few parents are completely unreasonable!

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, NATIONAL WEEKLY NEWSPAPER, SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

Save Your Lives By Being Alert

"Share the road — arrive alive!" In these words Major R. A. Crowder, commanding Region 5 of the Texas Department of Public Safety, today urged all motorists to support the share the road program of the Department of Public Safety for the July 4th holiday.

"To stay safe in traffic, the driver must be keenly aware that he's not the only one on the road," Major Crowder said. "He's just one of many drivers, so he must keep in step with the others and share the road with them," he continued.

Crowder said this involves, first of all, a willingness to share, and then the skill and judgment to do the right thing at the right time.

He gave the following rules as a guide to drivers to help fit their driving to the pattern of holiday traffic:

1. Keep alert. Develop defensive driving. Study the road ahead for accident situations. The higher the speed the farther ahead your attention must be fixed.
2. Think ahead and plan emergency measures. Know your own and your car's capabilities. If the car ahead should suddenly block your lane, could you stop? Could you swerve to avoid an accident?
3. Be adaptable. Get the feel of changing traffic, road and weather conditions and adjust your speed immediately.
4. Pace yourself by the traffic around you. This includes noting traffic behind through constant use of your rear-view mirror. Don't race, lag, or ride the bumper of the car ahead.

5. Take only your share of the road — in the proper place. Keep in the proper lane. Pass only when you see you have

GREENS WRITE FROM GERMANY

Ralph Green writes of experiences he and Mrs. Green are having in Europe. Mrs. Green is the former Letha Gail Fedric, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Fedric, and is making her home in Augsburg, Germany to be with her husband who is assigned to duty with the U. S. armed forces in Germany.

Part of the letter follows: We had been planning this trip for about six months, but didn't know exactly when it would come true. We had our route pretty well determined, but at the last minute, we had to change our original plans because the exchange here was out of the French Esso gas books. Servicemen traveling in France can purchase French gasoline at Quartermaster authorized places much cheaper than buying on the economy. Since petroleum products are so high, gasoline runs around 75c per gallon.

We departed Augsburg via the autobahn for Stuttgart. They lend to rapid travel, but sight seeing from them is difficult. We are familiar with the scenery from Augsburg to Stuttgart, so didn't mind too much in making time on the autobahn. We arrived in Stuttgart prior to the exchange opening, so decided to see the main part of town. Stuttgart is one of the larger towns in Germany now as before the war. It still hasn't been completely rebuilt; there are ruins all over the town, particularly in the government buildings. We wanted pictures of these and other sights of interest there.

We departed the city with the aid of an American serviceman there who is familiar with the complicated highway system running through most large German cities. The drive from Stuttgart to Strassbourg, France, our immediate goal, was very beautiful. Just outside Stuttgart, we found ourselves in the low rolling hills typical of southern Germany. It was on a secondary road, good, but not much traffic. The open country is beyond description. The sloping hillsides are a maze of small, variegated patches. All the crops are up now due to the early spring this year, and each little patch has its own product. The various shades of green, the brown of freshly plowed plots, and the bright yellow of mustard and dandelions presented the appearance of gazing at a large patch-work quilt. The farmers undoubtedly don't welcome the dandelions, but they add to the color and beauty of the country. The tracts of land, of all sizes and shapes, neatly planted and meticulously cultivated, match and compliment each other.

Farther on into the southwest, the hills became more accentuated, the trees became thicker, the road more winding, and you discover that you are in the heart of the Schwarzwald, the famous Black Forest. And black it is, even at midday and with the sun shining brightly. The bright yellow greens of the seasonal vegetation, just recently foliated, offers a sharp contrast to the dark shade of the evergreens. It was early afternoon when we reached Strassbourg, and could immediately feel the difference in the pace of the inhabitants. The German's hurry-scurrying had slowed down to a snail's pace here. The historic cathedral, dating from 1017, looks unfinished, having only one spire built on a broad front, apparently constructed for two. A walk through the main part of town was interesting. The tulips as well as other flowers were in bloom in the parks and the whole appearance of the city was a well-kept flower garden. We regretted leaving so soon, but had to be on our way.

Being on a very limited budget, we decided to save travel expenses and camp out. Since the Europeans are an out-door people, camping sites are numerous and well marked. We easily found an excellent place for our first night in Metz, France. It was located near the center of town, on the banks of a little river, and facilities were close. The owner spoke English and informed us there was no charge, so we joined about half a dozen other families and prepared our evening meal. A German couple parked near us and soon we were in conversation. Speaking very good English, the wife acted as translator, however, about the only conversation he made was to compare the miles per gallon on our Volkswagon Karmann Ghia to the kilometers per liter of his Mercedes. She explained that she had learned English from an American soldier who had stayed in their home after the last war when her mother was very ill. She still corresponds with him and his family.

Uncle Sam's palace, the puppet, was our home and the sleeping bag our bed for the next few nights. This was Letha's first experience in either and she was somewhat hesitant. Come morning, she was pretty well convinced that a field soldier doesn't lead too bad a life after all!

We needed to make the Belgian coast by that evening, so we departed Metz rather early. We headed north into Luxembourg, and into the capital city of the same name. It is an old town and the French influence very evident. We visited the palace of the Grand Duchess and spent an hour driving around the city. It is mostly a farming and dairying country, but very prosperous in appearance. We have decided that

6. Obey to the letter all traffic laws, signs, signals and the dictates of common sense and courtesy. If you make a mistake, don't lose your head. Don't jeopardize yourself and others by hasty, foolish sudden moves.

The major had a special word to say about the enforcement of traffic laws over the July 4th holiday. "Careless and reckless drivers are going to be arrested by members of the Department of Public Safety. Every available man in my command will spend extra hours patrolling, not to see how many arrests can be made, but to see if a few lives can be spared this Independence Day in order to make it a safer and more pleasant holiday for the safe, law-abiding driver."

try became. We can say that we made it to Brussels the year after the fair. It is indeed a huge city. A tour of it would take hours, so we concentrated on the route through to the fair grounds. Most of the buildings have been removed, but a great number of people still visit the Atomium, landmark of the fairgrounds. We left Brussels and took the autobahn to Ostende, on the Belgian coast. After inquiring on ferry rates and schedules, we decided to alter our plans and take the Ostende-Doper ferry to England instead of the one from Calais, France. We made arrangements to leave the car near the station during our stay in England.

With time to visit Dunkirk before nightfall, we drove south into France. Due to the inability of the navigator to read the map, our few ounces of gasoline began to diminish as the kilometers still stretched before us. We arrived in Dunkirk on bare fumes and promptly the car died. Little French boys, inquisitive of Americans driving a bright red German automobile, swooped down upon us. We incorporated their horsepower and pushed the car to the station and repaid them with good old American Wrigley's Spearmint. In the process of priming the fuel pump, the car became flooded. So while waiting for the car to start, we took a leisurely tour around Dunkirk, and enjoyed a cup of coffee in a sidewalk cafe.

In searching for a place to sleep, we re-entered Belgium. The camp site was at the end of a long winding trail and in the process crossed the French border again. Our second night was spent on the sandy beach just inside France.

If you ever cross the English channel on a boat, be sure to take plenty of clothing. The wind blows around the decks of those boats 90 to nothing and they move at only 20 knots. We took the bare minimums on the trip to England because we were just going to be gone over night and in this case, the bare minimum was too bare! We nearly froze until we moved to the end where the sun was shining and there actually took a nap and blistered. We enjoyed the conversation with an English boy who had spent some time in the United States. As we approached land, the sea gulls became more numerous and the steep white cliffs of Dover came into view through the haze. They are exactly like you have read: almost perpendicular walls of solid white cliffs of chalk. The contrast of the bright green of the vegetation growing on the surrounding hills and extending up to the very edge of the cliffs is fascinating. It is only when you get real close that you discover the cliffs aren't actually white, but gray, and are spotted with vegetation and dark splotches of other minerals. With the sun shining, they were a beautiful sight when we approached them. After the custom's check, we boarded another mode of transportation, the railway car, for the short ride to London.

For two and one-half hours we bumped along and stopped at every station between Dover and London. We arrived at Victoria Station in downtown London about 5. The hotel at the station was a little rich for our blood, so we took off carrying all our possessions in search of a place to hang our hat for the night.

You have always heard that the English are a reserved people. If they are, they show it in an unusual manner. Throughout our stay, we were impressed with the friendliness of most of them. We were standing on a windswept corner, apparently confused as to what street to take, and with tourist written in capital letters across our foreheads. An old gray-headed lady marched right up and in the most English English said "May I direct you?" We were so taken aback, it was a moment before we could answer.

We found a very nice private hotel, dumped our suitcases, and took off. Luckily we had accidentally picked up a map of London from the American Express here in Augsburg. We were within walking distance of Buckingham Palace, so that was our first stop. It is another of those indescribable places. All the flowers were in bloom, every blade of grass in its proper place. The flag was displayed indicating that the Queen was in residence. We spent several minutes admiring the militariness of the guards and then proceeded to Hyde Park. It is so large that you could actually become lost in it. We spent the better part of an hour roving through the beautiful flowers, ponds, and trails.

On our way back to the hotel, we bought fruit for an early breakfast. The old fruit peddler was perturbed when I reached for an orange displayed on the rack. He practically slapped my hand, and informed me that that fruit was the display, and he sold from the box behind the stand. Knowing we had such a short stay, we decided to be up and out early. The lady that ran the hotel was quite upset when we explained that we wouldn't be able to

By six o'clock the next morning we were already on our way around town. The underground railway system had intrigued us since we'd been there, but had not the remotest idea of the schedules or how the system worked. We ventured down the steps and approached the ticket seller. I went back to get Letha. She was mildly upset when she saw that I had two tickets and did not know anything except that the London Bridge Station was where we wanted to go and that it was in the middle of town! Luckily, we were on the right side of the tracks to catch the train going in the right direction. Before we knew it, we were seated and on our way. Enroute, we decided that another station would be closer to our destination and we got off there.

Lady Golfers Change Play To Monday Mornings

The Womens Golf Association of Stratford met June 16 in the home of Mrs. Harold Oquin. It was voted to play golf on Monday mornings at 8:00 o'clock instead of Thursdays.

One new member, Mrs. Ronnie Mills, was welcomed into the association. Golf balls won during the month were presented to Mrs. M. L. Mitts and Mrs. Jimmy Jackson.

Members will take turns serving refreshments at the golf course on Monday mornings.

Mrs. Oquin served refreshments to Mesdames Alma Lee McMahan, Hazel McBryde, Doris Parker, Darlene Smith, Alora Taylor, LeRayne Donelson, Alta Mitts, Juanita Donelson, Gaynelle Riffe, Reba Pittman, Alice Jeffcoat, Mary Riffe, Ruth Grene, Peggy Jackson, Ruby Palmer and Ninva Mills.

necessarily expensive wasted motion, but milestones along the long, hard road to democratic compromise.

"We've crossed a lot of bridges we won't have to cross again," said Rep. Don Kennard of Fort Worth.

No Surrender
Legislature was thrown into another session when the House rejected, 117-to-23, a conference committee tax bill that was largely based on Senate thinking.

Some House members were indignant that three of the five House appointees signed the conference committee report which House opponents called a "complete surrender" to Senate wishes.

House passed a tax bill that was divided 50-50 between taxes on business and selective sales taxes. Senate pared back the business taxes to about 18 per cent, added new or heavier sales taxes to make up the difference.

Conference committee proposed a bill that would have raised $177,066,000 with essentially the same levies approved by the Senate plus a temporary hike from $1 to $2 in drivers licenses.

Appropriations conference committee was reportedly deadlocked and never made a report.

After the new session opened, most of the same taxing and spending bills were introduced again, including the twice-killed abandoned property bill.

House quickly re-passed the same appropriation bill it had passed before. Most bills are expected to follow the same pattern they did in the last special session, up to the point where the conference committees start working out differences.

One Made It
Only major money bill to make the grade is the bookkeeping bill, passed by both Houses and signed into law by the governor.

Effect of the law is to change accounting procedures so that an estimated $28,000,000 more will be credited to the state's general fund when the fiscal year runs out August 31.

It means that much less that has to be raised to balance the books.

Student Fee Bill Back

Rep. W. S. Heatley Jr. of Paducah re-introduced a bill to let colleges require students to pay up to $30 a semester for various campus services.

Bill passed the House last session, but died in the Senate on the last day. Sen. William S. Fly of Victoria was Senate sponsor.

Heatley, Fly and other supporters pointed to the crying need for new money and said college presidents were urging the bill. Opponents said there were better places to get money than from working-their-way college students who would rather do without the football tickets, parking spaces, etc., covered by the fee.

Oil Cut Again

Texas oil production will take another tumble when the July allowable takes effect.

Railroad Commission ordered production cut by 226,044 barrels a day and run on a nine-day producing pattern. Ten S. Fly of Victoria was Senate sponsor.

Oil men testified that they not only had more gasoline than they could sell, but faced the prospect of running out of storage space.

The calves were kept in a corral and were fed 10 pounds of sorghum fodder, 2 pounds of oats and 1-2 pound of cottonseed cake per head per day. There was no difference in the amount of feed consumed by the two groups. They were handled identically except that the tranquilized calves were in one pen and the controls in another.

Individual weights were taken as the calves were placed on wheat pasture after nine days in the corral. The calves were weighed again individually after twelve days on wheat pasture. The average weight on the non-tranquilized calves on November 12 (weaning) was 504 pounds, the average weight on November 21 was 484 pounds, giving a nine day shrink of 3.97 percent. The average weight on December 3 was 503 pounds and at the end of 21 days the shrink was .20 percent.

The average weight of the tranquilized group on November 12 was 512 pounds and on November 21, 480 pounds, giving a nine day shrink of 6.25 percent. Their average weight on December 3 was 507 pounds and at the end of 21 days they had a shrink of .98 percent.

STATE LEGISLATURE IN SECOND SPECIAL SESSION

(By Vern Sanford)

AUSTIN — At it again, for the third time this year, Legislators go into the second special session wearier, but wiser.

Midnight wind-up of the second session brought show-down votes indicating what each house will and will not accept in the way of a tax program.

Next conference committee on taxes will know that the line of compromise must be finely drawn between Senate and House thinking.

In addressing the new session, Gov. Price Daniel reminded lawmakers of the "up against it" state of things. "Every function of state government depends on enactment of an appropriation bill before September 1 with a tax bill to support it," said the governor.

State's fiscal year and present appropriations run out August 31. Unless a new appropriation bill can go into effect the next day, the whole state operation, including hospitals, schools, employe salaries and pensions, will stop.

This is unthinkable, of course. No lawmaker could go home and face the voters with things in such a state.

But there's another pinching factor which the governor emphasized. Cost of deficit financing plus loss of potential tax income means that each day's delay costs the state an estimated $200,000. Despite this, the House took a four-day weekend and the Senate, 3 1/2 days.

But some lawmakers seemed to feel the delays, deadlocks and head-knocking were not
