

Okay County Road Paving

The Texas Highway Commission has taken the first step to inaugurate a new 2-year Farm to Market Program for Texas. Herbert C. Petrey Jr., chairman of the Highway Commission, stated that the funds for this 1959-60 State Farm to Market Road Program are derived from and are to be expended under the provisions of Senate Bill 287, Acts 1949, Fifty-first Legislature.

Charles W. Smith, district engineer of the Texas Highway Department at Amarillo, has stated that the following Farm to Market roads in this area are scheduled for work under this program.

In Sherman County, extending from the end of FM Road 2349, east, north and east 4.2 miles to a proposed FM Road at the Hansford County line at an estimated construction cost of $85,000.00.

This project was selected by the State Highway Department after consultation with Sherman County Commissioners Court.

It was announced that work will begin on this project as soon as final planning is complete and necessary right of way is secured by Sherman County.

H. L. Gallegly, senior resident engineer, will be in charge of the work in this area.

Norman Martin Is Promoted

Norman Martin of Stratford was recently promoted to room leader in his dormitory at Cal Farley's famous Boys Ranch.

In his new job, Martin not only has the responsibility of helping the youngsters under his care to learn how to keep the room orderly, but also helps them with their school work and counsels them about their personal problems.

Martin works at the barn as his vocational study, and is very interested in livestock and animal husbandry. Just now he is breaking two colts.

Three Sisters Celebrate Birthdays

Three sisters, Mrs. Leonard Hale of Plains, Kansas, Mrs. Bessie Portal of Preston, Kansas, and Mrs. A. L. Sutton, celebrated their birthdays Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Sutton. The three sisters and their families observe this annual meeting each year. One sister was born on the 26th and the other two on the 27th of November. They choose the nearest available day to meet at the home of one sister for the annual birthday party.

Those enjoying the party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Sutton Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Brown and daughters, Susan and Mary Alice, all of Plains, Kansas, Mrs. Bessie Portal of Preston, Kansas, Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Snodgrass and Lia of Dumas, and Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Sutton and daughter, Lynda.

Meditation Of A Principal

Thanksgiving as a holiday for 1959 is by now history, yet in reality our thanks should be continuous, for life and health and opportunity. Thankful for the freedoms that we enjoy and I am afraid to take too much for granted, anyway its good to be back in school, working with youngsters who are pushing forward, keeping life on the move.

We have finally achieved a goal long sought after here in high school. The library and study hall have been separated. This means that the study hall will be as the name implies, purely for studying the subject matter at hand, while the library will be open to the student to browse around among the books, to do research work or to read for enjoyment and cultural purposes. Our librarian Mrs. Winifred Smith, has done a lot of work toward the improvement of the grade and high school library. More than two hundred new books consisting of fiction, biography, and academic subjects research books have been added. It is gratifying, to see this kind of improvement in an area that really needed a change. In the not too distant future all of the library books will be put on shelves out in the reading room proper which will speed up the check out and check in process. This person sincerely hopes that students will take advantage of this new opportunity to not only become better acquainted with the library but to really do some extra reading and research work. It is a known fact that students

I'm six years old and in the first grade. Please bring me a Derringer belt buckle, basketball and goal set, stereophonic phonograph and if you can manage a few little small things like new socks and shirts.

Please don't forget Lynn. He's my brother, 10 years old, and he'd like some new cars and a truck for his train. Also I have a lot of little friends, Phyllis Quin, Terry Bell, Ken Plunk, well that's just a few of them, but please remember everyone.

I have tried so hard to be good. So we'll be seeing you and we love you lots.

Your friend,
Steve Gaylord

P.S.: I would like a Superman suit if you have one to fit me.

Dear Santa Claus:
I am six years old. For Christmas, I would like to have a pretty baby doll, a travel set and a drawing set.

I will be at my grandma's.

Dear Santa:
I'm a little girl four years old and I am so anxious for you to come and bring me a nurse set, a big baby doll, a real little kitchen and some games.

My little sister, Vicki, would like a baby doll and a safety school bus. She would also like lots of candy and gum.

We'll be at our grandmother's for Christmas, so please leave our toys there.

Terri and Vicki Bell

Dear Santa:
Please bring me a dolly, because my sister, Judy, is going to get me a doll buggy, I think. I would also like to have a little toaster and some dishes. Dwayne, my brother who is nine, wants a miniature camera with two rolls of film. Please bring us some fruit and candy.

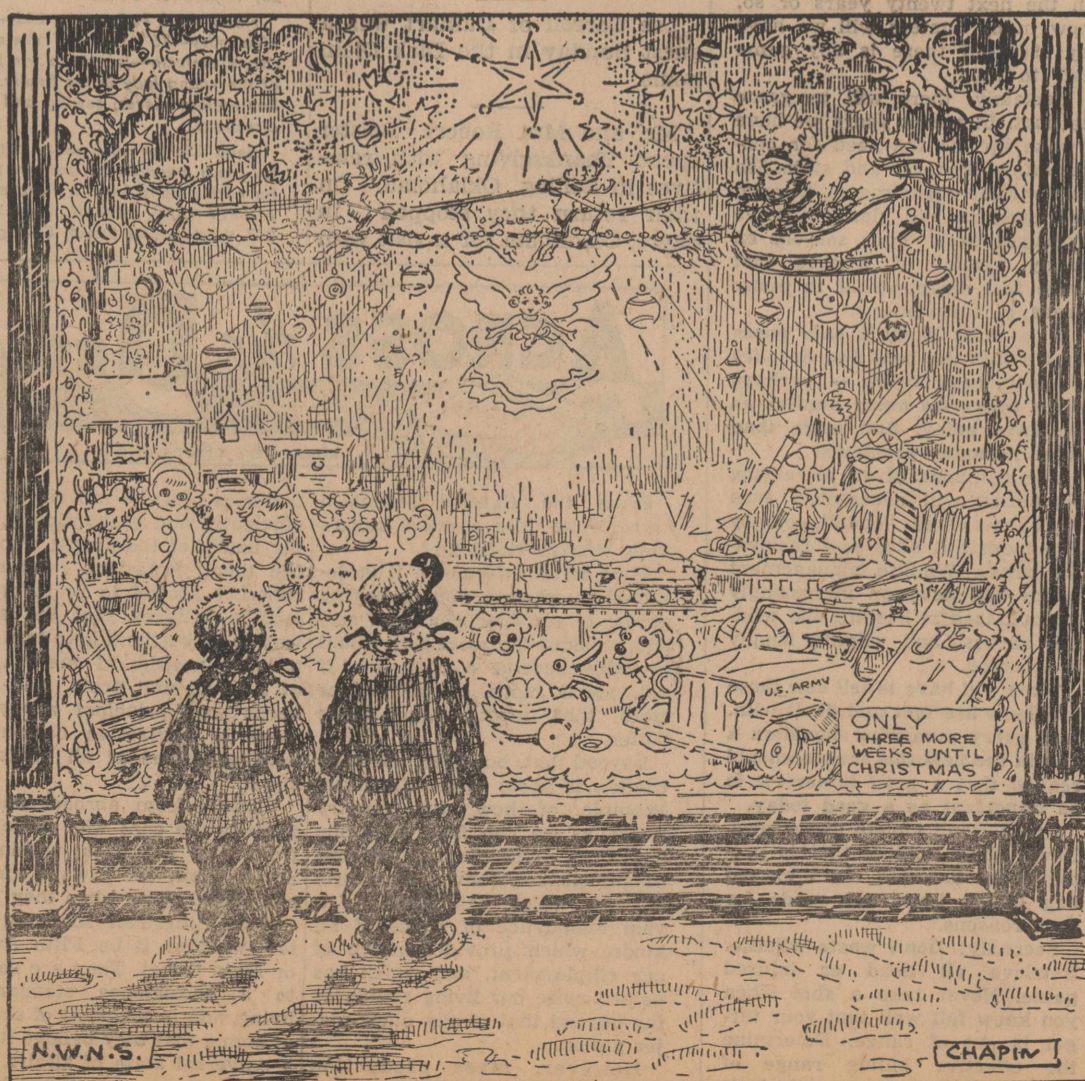

I love you Santa Claus.

Today, according to reliable estimates, some 16 million Americans enjoy some form of hunting. With our population expected to increase by 100 million in the next twenty years or so, how many hunters will we have by 1980—if there is any game left to hunt.

Certainly, there will be game to hunt. In recent years we have "woke up" to the need for conservation. Federal and state fish and wildlife departments, through management and planning, have "brought back" open seasons on many species of wildlife that were fast disappearing in many areas of the century.

It is most likely a safe guess that within the next two decades we will have twice — perhaps three times—as many hunters as we have today. And more than twice as many problems!

The demands of an increasing population will necessarily turn more and more "open" country into industrial sites and residential areas. Wildlife management teams will have an increasingly difficult task in keeping the wildlife harvest and wildlife supply in balance.

Time will have to tell how these problems are met and dealt with. But, every man who shoulders a gun in the field this season should realize that a good tomorrow is as important as a good today.

First: Don't violate game laws. Never shoot wildlife that is protected by law and don't exceed bag limits. Laws are made for good reasons.

Secondly: Don't waste wildlife. Retrieve all dead or injured game. Never take a shot when you know full well that your target is out of range. Determine the effective killing range of your rifle or shotgun and don't waste ammunition—or wildlife—by shooting beyond that range.

From the Catskill Mountain Star: What does a retail store's show window stand for?
First of all, of course, it is designed to interest you in buying goods. If you like what you see, and consider the price fair, you'll probably become a customer. If not, you'll move on to another store that meets your needs better.
Beyond that, however, the show window is about as good a visual example of how this country works as we can find. We pride ourselves, and justly, on our magnificent system of mass production, which has given us a vast abundance of goods of all kinds, which provided much of our employment, and which has helped raise our living standards far beyond that of any other major nation.
However, mass production would not be a success, or even a possibility, without mass distribution. The goods from the

What Does A Girl Stand To Lose?

By C. D. Smith

This week's letter: "Ever since I started high school, my parents have been strict with me. Maybe it's because I rode home from a ball game with three boys that were pretty wild. Nothing happened, honest, but someone started stories about me. When my parents asked me about riding home with these boys, I lied. My brother said he heard someone say they saw me with them. Finally, I told the truth—that I did ride home with them. I have her father continues to be displeased with her because she made a mistake. But, she is very wrong when she says that she has "nothing to lose." If she continues to be friendly with these boys or goes riding with them, she will certainly lose forever the chance to win back her father's trust and confidence.

All of us make mistakes, at one time or another. And we generally must pay for these mistakes in one way or another. But when we recognize that something is wrong, and then continue to do it, we are no longer making a "mistake." We are deliberately doing something that we know is wrong. There is a big difference. We think the young lady can win back her father's confidence—if she keeps the right kind of company and proves by her actions and attitude that she is striving to be the type of daughter that he wants her to be. She must not let that one "mistake" turn into a habit.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, NATIONAL WEEKLY NEWSPAPER SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

SCANNING THE NEWS

THE U.S. Air Force's proposal to build an advanced radar and communications center on the site of Kennesaw Mountain National Battlefield Park near Atlanta, Georgia has been enthusiastically received by conservationists and Interior Department officials for two apparent reasons: (1) Would acceptance of the USAF plan jeopardize other national parks in the future, and (2) Would technological advances in the future require additional construction which would take up more park space.

The reasons why the USAF chose the Kennesaw Mountain Park site were explained to conservation leaders in Washington at a special meeting in the office of Roger Ernst, Assistant Secretary of the Department of Interior for public land management, according to the Wildlife Management Institute.

Kennesaw Mountain National Battlefield Park occupies the crown and slopes of the 1,800-foot mountain, which was the scene of action in the Civil War's battle of Atlanta.

More than 100 potential sites were investigated, USAF spokesmen told conservation leaders. The primary factors that led to the "reluctant" selection of the 3,094-acre park were its favorable location with respect to existing trans-continental communications lines, the solid structure of the mountain core and the park's proximity to a support base where military personnel could be billeted. Defense requirements demand that the installation be erected in a stable subterranean formation with up to 400 feet of natural rock cover overhead.

A USAF construction man explained that the SAGE unit's surface features would consist of an access road, parking lot, air shaft and entry tunnels. These would be in a little-used part of the park, he said, and construction scars would be obliterated.

Park attendance records show increasing public use of Kennesaw Mountain National Battlefield Park and this year more than 188,750 persons visited the monument in a six-month period.

Here N' There
 Professional football players are tough—they have to be. So, whenever they give special praise to one of their fellow players, particularly if he is on an opposing team, such praise is justly deserved. This has to be true in the case of Johnny Unitas, quarterback for the Baltimore Colts—the man most pros believe "has ice water in his veins." Unitas starred at the University of Louisville, failed in his first try with another pro club before Baltimore signed him up for a 3-cent postcard and a telephone call. Today, Unitas makes some $20,000 a year and in the opinion of just about everybody who knows anything about professional football, he earns every penny of it . . . Repercussions from the first fight and almost sufficient complications to prevent a return bout between Ingo Johansson and Floyd Patterson piled up with the New York suspension of Patterson's manager Cus D'Amato and the disclosure that promoters of the fight agreed to sell 200 working press tickets and split the proceeds.

MISS JAMAICA Shella Chong was crowned "Miss Jamaica" in an island-wide contest to select Jamaica's most beautiful woman. Oh, yes: 36-24-36.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va.: I remember when the Lone Scouts of America were potent competition for the Boy Scouts.
 The Boy Scout movement was brought to the United States by a Chicago publisher, W. D. Boyce, who had observed its workings in England. After a few years Mr. Boyce decided there was a need for an organization which would extend the benefits of Scouting to boys in small towns and the country who could not belong to Boy Scout troops. So he formed the Lone Scouts. The title meant that a boy could do his Scout work alone or he could belong to a tribe of five or more. (The Lone Scouts used the American Indian for a model rather than the Boy Scout military basis.) However, large numbers of boys in big cities also joined.

During its nine years of existence, the LSA enrolled almost half a million boys. Its most outstanding feature was the official "Lone Scout" magazine, written during most of its career by the Scouts themselves. Many now famous men were Lone Scouts and contributed—some successfully, some without much luck—to the magazine. Eventually, the Lone Scout organization was merged with the Boy Scouts, but the spirit of the old LSA still lives in the Elbeetan Legion, founded and operated by Charles Merlin of Hudson Heights, New Jersey. This unique group has no officers and no dues and exists solely that many hundreds of middle-aged men may keep alive the friendships they formed in their boyhood by correspondence and writing for the magazine. Merlin issues a monthly magazine, The Elbeetan.

While sinking over half of the total Japanese ships destroyed in World War II, American submariners lost 52 subs and 3,505 men, approximately 14% of the total operating submarine personnel.

who learn how to use the library facilities in high school find it much easier to get their college work.

By this time report cards have gone out to parents. It would be well if you would examine carefully the marks on your child's report card. If grades are below passing (70) a conference would certainly be welcome by this office. The parent and the teacher and administration should work hand in hand to find out why a child is not doing work that would entitle him to make a passing grade.

Recently I was asked why is it that often times a student will make high grades in high school and make low grades in the same subject in college. There are many factors that enter into the total picture.

In the high school the relationship of student and teacher is much closer than in college, high school teachers constantly remind, encourage and prod, if necessary, the student to do a better work. The high school student receives a lot of attention both at home and school.

In high school daily work counts 3, and the test 1-4. This is probably a bit liberal in comparison to the college method of using only the test grades. Now let's see what happens in college. A student is transplanted into a new and strange environment. Instead of getting the attention from home and teacher he begins to give his attention to someone else. Assignments are cut and dried. If you get them correctly you are OK, if not no tears are shed by the instructor, professor or doctor whichever the case may be. The student has lots of competition in the college class. Eager beavers are on every hand, students that have learned how to study, that have goals, and want to achieve, that will apply polish if necessary to achieve their desired goal. A college class can really be discouraging due, that themes must be written correctly, that a pop quiz may come on the day after the night before when you went to plans and decisions for himself. There is no one to remind the student that book reports are swim with the load that is really heavy if he did not get a good foundation in high school. Many factors enter into the picture for your child or mine that plans to attend college. Come by the office sometime. I would be happy to talk over various phases with you, the parent. In college the boy or girl begins to face the facts of the cold cruel world of "standing on your own feet."

By LYN CONNELLY

TED BROWN emcee of ABC-TV's crossword-puzzle quiz show, "Across the Board," recently experienced one of his greatest thrills when Benny Goodman told him he enjoyed listening to him. "I desperately wanted to be a radio announcer when I was younger," says Ted, "and I'd practice for hours introducing the great bands of the day, especially Goodman's. A friend introduced me to Benny at the Yankee Stadium during a ball game and when he told me he had caught some of my radio shows, I almost flipped."

Brown, born in Collingwood, N.J., is a versatile and talented performer. He sings, acts, mimics and is a fast man with the ad-lib. He debuted as a radio disk jockey and local sports announcer after school hours at a Roanoke, Va., station while attending Roanoke college. At the college he was quarterback on the football team, basketball center and a swimming champ. Brown finished his schooling as World War II broke out, entered the Army air corps and served as a radio operator on a B-17. On his 20th mission over Europe his plane was hit over Frankfurt by a German fighter and only he and the tail gunner survived.

"I had put my parachute on about 10 seconds before we were hit," Brown recalls. "All the service schooling I thought I slept through—on how to survive—came back to me as I floated down. I landed in a tree and saw a German soldier running toward me pointing his revolver. I had my .45 ready to use, but as the soldier came closer I saw that he was smiling so I put my gun back into its holster. Brown spent 15 months in a prisoner-of-war camp—stalag Luft-3.

What's the Best Time for a Battery to Quit?

Actually there's no good time to have your battery go dead, but the nearer you are to a Phillips 66 Station the better.

Your Phillips 66 Dealer can quickly provide you with a new Phillips 66 Trop-Artic® Battery, and he'll back its long-lasting qualities with a written guarantee.

Go to your Phillips 66 Dealer for products and services that will keep your car running at its best the year around. With your Phillips 66 Dealer "it's a pleasure to please you."
