NRA Claims Re-Employment of Two Million Workers

CAPITAL SETS EXAMPLE FOR LOCAL DRIVES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Re-employment of two million persons, including payrolls $30,000,000 a week, claimed today as the national NRA administration pushed its Eagle drive through the phase of setting of bursting bombs, the setting of capital, led by Administrator S. LEACH SPEAKS TO LIONS CLUB ON NRA CODES

Lion W. J. Leach, who has just returned from Washington, D. C., where he was invited to assist in making the code for his character of stores, was the speaker for the program by invitation at the Lions luncheon today. Leach gave the club an insight into the forming and making of codes. He also gave some interesting observations on the human side of really big men. Some of his associates in the conference were worth many millions of dollars and their word was really law to many thousands of employees yet, they were very common and approachable. It was a give and take matter, he said. Almost everything accomplished was a matter of compromise between seemingly conflicting interests. For instance labor and capital were each, at least, looking after its own interests in every question presented. But he was impressed at every turn by the fact that while the administration is not antagonistic to big business, yet it is seemingly looking after small businesses and is not desirous of any little concern being harmed in the least way, but rather desirous that it shall prosper to the fullest extent. Mr. Leach said that he had seen people make fools of themselves during the world war and during the Ku Klux Klan days by allowing their enthusiasm to run ahead of their good judgment but at no time has there been greater danger from headheadedness than now. He complimented the present N. R. A. organization in Cisco on its careful and conservative administration of affairs up to the present and urged that it continue to act only as authentic orders for procedure were received. "We can easily do ourselves lasting harm if we advance too rapidly and without careful consideration of each step taken," he said.

Grid Candidates to Start Grind Friday

Cisco football fans, anxious for a bird's-eye view of the 1933 Lobo prospects will have that opportunity, barring rain or other unforeseen accident, Friday morning when Coaches Shelby and Hodges summon eight letter men and a variety of other more or less promising material to the first practice session of the new season. Equipment will be issued to the squad tomorrow afternoon at the school building. Beginning Friday morning and until the opening of school, practice sessions will be held in the forenoon instead of the afternoon. Of the eight lettermen expected to answer the call of the coaches they are left from last year's line and include Capt.-elect Latch, and five are backfield performers. Plenty of Backs. With no dearth of ball carrying material the coaches will be occupied in filling holes in the forward wall that graduation and eligibility left from last year. The veterans around which the line will be molded are Latch, tackle and captain; Rutledge, end, and Claude-Blackburn, guard. Promising prospects include Red Timmons, 205 pound tackle ineligible last season; Tipton Page, 175, who hails from Sandy and Gerald Merckel, guard. The mentors will have choice among a fairly large field of new but not bad material to complete the problem. The backfield should not give great cause for worry. Coming up from last year's team are Barker, half, Caffrey, full, St. John, quarter, Steffy, full and Bill McMahon, half. Each of these youngsters lettered in last season's play and there are enough of them and of new candidates to make competition for the positions back of the line pretty warm.

HOUSTON, Aug. 30.—Storm No. 9 of the current hurricane season was lost somewhere in the Gulf of Mexico today. MACHINE GUN VOLLEY KILLS ONE OFFICER

SOUTH ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 30.—Seven men held up two post office guards today, seizing a $30,000 payroll, shot down two policemen, killing one and then in a frenzied pursuit poured out a murderous fire from sub-machine guns as their two automobiles sped out of town. The holdup was staged in front of the post office. One of the policemen, Leo Pavlek, was killed instantly. The other, John Yeaman, was critically wounded. Two post office guards were on the steps of the post office building and two policemen were waiting for them at the curb when the deluge of bullets was released. The first three machine guns burst from the cutting at the side of the police automobile. His partner, Yeaman, armed only with a revolver was believed to have shot one of the bandits in the abdomen. Two of the bandits rushed up the steps to where the guards were lying prone and snatched the payroll satchel. Several spectators say they saw the bandit shot by Yeaman being dragged into one of the two automobiles of the gang.

JUDGE UPHOLDS FARM ACT.

The chief justice of the supreme court of the District of Columbia has dismissed the suit of two Chicago milk dealers for an injunction restraining Sec'y of Agriculture Wallace from enforcing terms of a milk retailer's code.

Said Justice O'Donoghue: "A national emergency exists and the welfare of the people is at stake."

This is the second instance in which a phase of the Roosevelt emergency recovery program has stood the judicial test in a District of Columbia court.

Recently an Austin student of government remarked that the courts would uphold the legality of the industrial recovery act. He cited reasons similar to the opinions handed down by the District of Columbia judges.

The national recovery legislation is not to be assumed unconstitutional simply because the judicial opinions so far expressed have ignored the issue.

Final determination of the issue rests with the supreme court of the United States. But by the time it reaches that tribunal there may be no need of a recovery program.

OIL ADMINISTRATOR.

Hard-working, efficient Mr. Ickes, who used to be known in Illinois as the husband of his wife, will czar the oil industry.

Mr. Ickes will head a board of 15 members, the remaining 14 to be drawn from the ranks of the industry, who will administer the code recently adopted for the industry.

The president's naming of Sec'y Ickes as oil administrator indicates the determination of the president to keep a close personal touch with the administration of the oil industry code.

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER. United Press Staff Correspondent. AUSTIN, Aug. 30—Dan Moody, known as the "boy governor" but an even 40 now with thinning hair, has no desire to hold another public office.

I quit when I was still young enough to get out and make a living. I have seen too many men give all their youth to public office. For a time it seemed that they can get anything they want. But the time comes when they lose and, seemingly, are forgotten.

Former Governor Pat M. Neff is another who quit public office in time to give impetus to a new vocation. He accepted the presidency of Baylor University.

Former Governor Will Hobby, ended his public life early enough to return actively to the publishing business, banking and insurance.

Former Governor James E. Ferguson, at 68, seems to have reversed the program. He is expected to seek re-entry to public office. Meantime, he edits the Forum, runs his Bosque county farm and dairy, practices law and advises his wife, Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

Former Governor Ross J. Sterling, his one many-figured fortune wrecked by the depression, is said to be waiting favorable opportunity to re-enter the oil business in which he amassed wealth before.

Former Governor O. B. Colquitt after leaving public life to go into an active oil business returned to an appointive office when President Herbert Hoover made him member of a labor-mediation board. Recently he visited Austin. He is oldest of the living former governors of Texas.

Governor Ferguson gives ear to her politically astute husband before appointments are announced. Therefore it will be no surprise if the new member of the state board of control comes from near the state border. It probably will be some one not mentioned so far.

Adrian Pool, retiring member, is the only one of the three men on the board not from central Texas. Claude Teer, chairman, is from Granger, Williamson county. John Wallace is from Teague. Freestone county Pool came from El Paso. The late R. B. Walthall, who was on the board before Pool, came from east Texas. Dr. H. H. Harrington, who antedated Walthall, was from the lower Rio Grande valley.

Lee Satterwhite, of Odessa, former speaker of the house of representatives, might be named. He has not been politically aligned with the Fergusonists. But "Governor Jim" knows how to make friends of opponents. Satterwhite is not only from west Texas; he has been from the panhandle and from east Texas. Satterwhite would accept the post. His appointment would probably clear the way for Roy Tennant of Temple to make the race for state railroad commissioner in 1934. Tennant was appointed on the board of control by Mrs. Ferguson when she was the governor before. Tennant and Satterwhite both ran for railroad commissioner last summer in different races. Both laid a foundafigures and letters on orange. The color will be reversed for trucks. It was discovered that in making the more than a million and a quarter plates, it is cheaper if one color combination is used.

Jig-saw puzzles are out of date in Austin. The latest puzzle is whether a contract has been let for the W. J. McDonald astronomical observatory joint project of the University of Texas and the University of Chicago in the Davis mountains.

A group of high-retailer oil attorneys gathered here on August 21 for a pipe line rate hearing looked sheepish when some recalled their pleas made to District Judge J. D. Moore not to set the state's anti-trust suit against oil companies for trial in Austin during the hot weather.

Texas auto license plates for 1934 are the last ones that will form a background for Hollywood girls seeking free publicity. In recent years the Texas plates have been made in Los Angeles. The plates were photographed with the girls as background or foreground and widely used. The background for the 1935 plates will be the "Big House" inside the walls at Huntsville. Manufacture there had been ordered.

The 1934 plates were ordered before the prison plate plant was approved by the legislature. The passenger car plates will have black

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON M. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma.

Governor-General Frank Murphy of the Philippine Islands, says:

"Enlightened and progressive government will be concerned with the economic and social conditions under which the millions of humble citizens live and toil for their daily bread. It will be anxious to know the reasons for gross inequalities and social injustices, wherever they may be found, and study and apply proper and effective measures to correct them. It will constantly aim to prevent and suppress practices and institutions when by men, when so disposed, are able to take unfair advantage of their fellows, rob them of a just share of the fruits of their labor, and deprive them of the means and opportunity of self-advancement."

"With every agency and instrumentality available to it, with all the right and power at its command, with a resolute and unflinching determination that will not be balked by stagnant tradition or narrow prejudice or self-interest, it will seek to help the underprivileged, to protect the weak and untutored against the strong and unscrupulous; and it will seek to make education, healthful living conditions, fair and impartial justice, steady employment at a fair wage, adequate care of the sick and indigent, and all the other benefits of civilized society, available to every man, woman, and child."

"In short, it will be the business of government, while keeping its own house in order, to wage relentless and increasing war on human exploitation, ignorance, disease, dishonesty, and injustice in every form, whether it be economic, or social, political or moral, in order that every man among us may enjoy for himself and his family the full blessings of true liberty and enlightened democracy."

There is urgent need in government for administrative ability, but there is also urgent need for human understanding and sympathy. To look upon government as a mere business problem is to see it only in part."

auditorium is being decorated and equipment installed. There will be quite a staff working Sunday because of the time limit for the opening.

ON Sunday morning, as he had promised, Dick tucked Eve into the roadster and drove the short distance to the new building. The white brick and terra cotta structure loomed up 17 stories high. They entered the lobby where workmen were laying rich, heavy carpeting over thick padding. Here the walls were paneled in gold satin brocade and a gold chandelier with hundreds of intricately cut crystals lighted the scene.

They passed through the auditorium where the seats were being installed. The silver screen was already in place. Dick took Eve up in the dressing room elevator and she saw modern conveniences in almost luxurious form for the comfort of the actors and actresses. She was particularly impressed with the laundry and drying room and the nursery for the children of the stage-folk. Eve looked down at the stage from the fly-loft and became slightly dizzy.

"Now I'll show you the 'green room,'" Dick told her as they stepped into the elevator again. They descended to a room opposite the wings, beautifully decorated in white and gold. In the center was a billiard table, and great soft, easy chairs were grouped about. "No matter what its color scheme may be this room is called the 'green room,'" Dick explained. "It is the actors' sitting room. Later on you will see it in use."

An organ had been installed and was being tested. Snatches of melodies filled the air. Dick glanced about and saw no one observing them. He gathered Eve close in the shadow of the wings, for a brief instant.

"The first kiss on the new stage," he murmured.

EVE was always to remember that Sunday. It gave her her first insight into the romance of building. Dick's employers, she knew, specialized in the construction of theaters but it was not until that morning that she appreciated the extreme skill required for this branch of work. The owners had spared no expense to create beauty as well as utility and the result was breath-taking in effect.

The day meant more than that to Eve. The uneasy feeling she seemed to slip away from her. Dick was all kindness and consideration and Eve was ashamed of the fact that she had doubted him, even for a moment. She resolved to make this up to him in the future. Dick's love was suddenly the most important thing in the world for her and she wanted him to know it.

She curled up in a lounge chair that afternoon with a new book. She made it a point to bring home a book from the circulating library each week-end. After she finished reading the book Eve always entered its title and the name of its author in a tiny notebook she carried in her purse. She had tried this system when she was in school and had followed it fully ever since.

MONDAY morning Eve returned to her work as though spired. She thought of the tresses soon to come to the floor for the opening of the theater. She decided to make an especial mention of her patronage in the store. She wrote, Barnes, Dick mended her for her foresight. That noon Eve accompanied Marya to a Scottish tearoom with a twinkling-eyed Highland told their fortunes by reading leaves in their tea-cups. Eve attached no significance to the prophecies made for her but Marya was apparently overjoyed because the seeress predicted she soon be married. Eve smiled herself. It would not take time to tell her to predict marriage a girl as sweet and lovely as Marya.

WHEN the home edition of the evening newspaper was delivered to the office Eve turned to financial pages. Strangely, she thought, how light-hearted she had been but an hour before and her world was plunged into the Pure Soap, Inc., had gone down.

It was hard for her to concentrate on her work for the hour. As soon as she saw the hour she was due she sought the corner for the Pure Soap, Inc., had gained its loss and closed at same figure it had been trading at for a week.

The next day, however, there was much trading in Pure Soap, and it gained three points. Her hopes soared. She walked to the office as though entranced, then worked as one possessed.

"Why the effervescence?" Arlene.

Eve merely smiled and did not answer.

Dick was glad to find her cheerful that evening. He considered at her joyousness but much as she had nothing particular to relate he attributed mood to good health and good spirits.

The next day Pure Soap gained two points. It seemed Eve that this was too good to be true.

Thursday the stock gained more after a day of brisk trade. It fluctuated a bit then and Friday exactly 10 points above price at which Eve had made initial investment.

Ten points! Eve figured gain. Oh, this was fun, she thought. At that rate she could make — loads of it! No wonder she was so much excited about the stock market. Sell! Indeed, Eve told herself. Not when Soap, Inc., was advancing at that rate. She would hold out. She had advanced five more points (To Be Continued)

BALBO AND AL WILLIAMS, OLD FRIENDS, MEET

"Bring your plane, next time you come to Italy." With these words and outstretched hands, General Italo Balbo greeted Captain Al Williams noted flyer, at Floyd Bennett field, New York city municipal airport. The American aviator had just staged an aerial show for the benefit of the Italian hero.

Although this was the first personal meeting of the two fliers following the landing of the spectacular air armada in New York city, Captain Williams, now with the Gulf Refining company, had greeted General Balbo officially 2,000 feet above Manhattan as the 24-ship air fleet reached New York. Immediately afterwards, Williams had rushed to Floyd Bennett field where he spoke for 15 minutes over the Columbia broadcasting system, giving a radio account of the arrival of Mussolini's peaceful invasion of the United States.

This was only the first of three broadcasts in which Balbo's aviator manager told the entire country about Balbo from a real Flyer's point of view. The second talk was given in conjunction with Ted Husing, and the third described the Italian fleet's departure for Rome where a tremendous ovation awaits the sky conquerors.

There was something peculiarly significant in the meeting of General Balbo and Captain Williams. Previously, Williams had invited the Italian aviation chief to send an Italian flyer to America as a guest of this country. For various reasons, the general's reply was "No." Whereupon the ex-navy lieutenant rushed to Rome, secured an interview, and won Balbo over. Five minutes at the telephone and the general turned around with the words: "An Italian pilot will be on his way to America in 48 hours."

It was during the same interview that General Balbo sought Captain Williams' advice on aviation in Italy. The latter's reply was brief. "Always lead your men. Don't follow." The general went before the Italian chamber of deputies with this message and won them. With this advice in mind he led Italy's air forces to South America at their head. In the recent Rome-to-Chicago hop he employed the same strategy.

The aerial show which Captain Williams put on for General Balbo at Floyd Bennett field was significant to both. The Italian leader had heard of Al Williams—of his precision, his airmanship, and of the daring outside loop which the Amer-

YOU'D LIKE the ROBINSONS

THEY'RE the kind of people it's nice to have as neighbors. They always seem to have such a good time together. Their home isn't large, but it's furnished in excellent taste; everything fits perfectly, as though it had been made especially for the very space it occupies.

And their dinners are charming. Not expensive, but different . . . new and interesting dishes that other people haven't heard of yet. Mrs. Robinson dresses beautifully, too. Her clothes have that air of coming straight from Paris, yet she doesn't spend much on them.

If you should ask her how it is she manages things so well, Mrs. Robinson would smile and say, "It's really very simple. We budget our income. That tells us how much money we have to spend. And we read the advertisements. That tells us how to spend our money wisely."

"Man Who Dared" Opens at Palace

Today marks the premiere of "The Man Who Dared," the new Fox production with Preston Foster and Zita Johann in the featured roles at the Palace theatre here. This is the film that is based on some of the incidents in the life of Anton Cermak, late mayor of Chicago.
Taking its cue from that character in recent American history, the film traces the development of a young Bohemian immigrant from his humble beginnings to the achievement of great influence and power. It depicts his battle for the inalienable rights of this country's inhabitants and shows his fearlessness in his undaunted struggle for personal freedom. His fight is an unselfish one against the corrupt elements in both high places and low. He is the antagonist of the dishonest powers as well as the men they hire to carry out their sinister program.
Throughout his struggle for the supremacy of right, he is aided by his love for a girl of his own nationality. Behind all of his activities is the knowledge that he is doing what she would expect of the man she loves. He courts danger and personal disaster, but she would rather have him that way than have him succumb to dishonesty. Their love is a tender one, marked by the hectic turbulence of a raucous period in recent times.

Preston Foster has the role of the conquering immigrant, and Zita Johann portrays the part of the woman he loves. Others in the supporting cast, headed by Joan Marsh and Irene Biller, are Clifford Jones, June Vasek, Leon Waycoff, Douglas Cosgrove, Douglas Dumbrille, Frank Sheridan, Leonid Snegoff, Elsie Larson, Lita Chevret, Vivian Reid, and Matt McHugh.
The original screen play was written by Dudley Nichols and Lamar Trotti. The production was directed by Hamilton MacFadden.

Approve Plan to Aid Border Exchange

EL PASO, Aug. 30. — The U. S. department of state has approved a card identification plan which El Paso and other border business men believe will liberalize immigration restrictions and make possible a freer commercial exchange between the Mexican and American merchants.
Under the plan, suggested by the department of labor after it had been proposed by the border merchants, a Mexican wishing to visit this country temporarily could do so by presenting a card bearing his identification and photograph to customs officers. The plan would not apply to any but Mexican citizens.
El Paso immigration officials were awaiting definite instructions from Washington before putting the plan into effect.

WE DO OUR PART

Mr. President!

The Humble Oil & Refining Company and its 10,000 employes subscribe without reservation to the NRA Code for the Oil Industry; we know that the principle behind your recovery program is not an experiment but a proved success.

The NRA Code for the Oil Industry lays down the broad principles of a "square deal" between employer and employe. The Humble Oil and Refining Company and its employes have recognized the soundness of these principles for many years; and insofar as it was practical for one company alone to do so, the Humble Company has put them into effect. The maximum hour week, minimum wage scales, and collective bargaining have been basic factors in Humble's management-employe relationship.

In 1932 the Humble Company completed a progressive adoption of the five-day week, making it operative in all departments. Under this plan...

a leading feature of the President's recovery program—personnel has been maintained at a maximum; hundreds have remained at work who must otherwise have been let out, and more people were put to work. In the year which has passed since the Company's adoption of the five-day week, personnel has been increased by more than 10 per cent.

So we know from experience, Mr. President, that your recovery program is not an experiment but a proven success. It must be equally successful in its nation-wide application. We subscribe to it without reservation; we will follow the spirit as well as the letter of our code.
