ALASKAN REFUGE.

Bishop Peter Trimble Rowe, Episcopal bishop for Alaska, has suggested that the government send two millions of its unemployed to Alaska. The prelate made his suggestion at a press conference at which he was present while attending the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago.

The same thing that makes a living easier to obtain in Alaska than in Chicago and New York and other great and small cities, makes it even more easy to obtain in Texas and in other states where there is a plot of ground awaiting cultivation. For all the truth that Alaska hardly knows there is a depression, one does not have to go very far from the city in Texas to discover folks who hardly know there is one.

Now, the fact that one has to burn wood in the fireplace and do without those luxuries that a high standard of living brings is nothing to thank the depression for. The fact that one must resort to such expediences to get along is something to put a big question mark before the system that we are enduring.

The announcement from Washington that the United States fleet is to be concentrated in the Atlantic next spring—for the first time in about four years—is, when you stop to think about it, good news.

Both the battle and scouting fleets have been in Pacific waters of late, and it was impossible to avoid the impression that the government, in keeping them there, was devoting at least a part of its attention to the possibility of trouble with Japan.

MOLLIFIED

The Amon Carter-Ferguson political feud is wearing itself out. It is now modified to a point where Mr. Carter introduced Mrs. Ferguson and her husband at the reception in Fort Worth for Gen. Hugh Johnson.

Up to now, every high government official's visit to Texas has brought the old scrap into prominence. It started with Mrs. Roosevelt's visit, then was agitated when the Garner-Farley party was in Fort Worth and Will Rogers tried to soothe the old Texas row.

Maybe this colorful clash of personalities, which started eight years ago this Thanksgiving, will have been harmonized by the flight of years. Or maybe Carter, in his close relationship with the national administration, will just get tired of rubbing it in.

A TEXAS FLAG IN MEXICO.

Former Atty.-Gen. W. A. Keeling, while in Mexico, discovered there the only Texas flag captured from troops defending the Texas republic. It was the flag of a little band of New Orleans volunteers who came to help Houston and Rusk and Austin.

The Texas governors, Dan Moody and Ross Sterling, have tried to get the flag sent back to Texas to be placed in the museum of public history. They did not succeed; but the long-established friendly relations between the people of Texas and the people of Mexico, and between the United States and Mexico governments, at some time should result in Texans receiving the flag back as a symbol of enduring peace between the neighboring peoples.

DIRECT ACTION, THIS

Calling out 100,000 jobless Texans this week is the most impressive stroke of the whole governmental policy of providing work or food for unemployed.

It was ordered by Col. Lawrence Westbrook, relief director as head of the new civil works section, a merger in Texas of $20,000,000 public works and relief projects. The 100,000 jobless will be taken from relief rolls. They represent families of about 300,000 people. Another 100,000 will be shifted from relief rolls to payrols before February.

WELL, LOOK WHAT NEW YORK DID!

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Nov. 16—Approximately 125 additional county administrative officers are being employed this week in the relief organization.

A bonded paymaster will be hired in each county where as many as 200 relief workers are shifted over to the new civil works projects. It was announced at the office of State Civil Works and Relief Dr. Brooks.

In a few of the larger civil works jobs, where supervision is not furnished by county engineering staffs, additional supervisors will be used. Extra help required in the county board officers will be taken from the relief rolls.

The bonded paymasters will be employed to relieve county administrators of a large volume of detailed work in connection with the civil works employment; and to be made responsible for the handling of federal money allotted to the county boards for the civil works projects.

"The Mad Game" Opens at Palace

Opening today at the Palace theatre is Fox Film's latest release "The Mad Game." It is scheduled for an engagement of two weeks. The fact that the story embraces what might be called the county stamping firm—as one of its main characters.

Spencer Tracy who has the leading role, portrays the part of an gangster, who is double-crossed by his associate and railroaded to prison for a five-year term. During his stay in the penitentiary he is terrorized by the country boy who is so ably manifested in his role as the underworld soon gaffer.

"The Mad Game" is said to give Spencer Tracy a remarkable opportunity to display the acting ability he so ably manifested in his role as the underworld soon gaffer. After a wide search for the right play opposite Tracy, Claire Trane who was last seen in "The Last Trail" with George O'Brien, was selected for the part. Others included, notable for their careful selection are Ralph Morgan, Howard Langford, Carrol Nash, John Miljan, Mason, Willard Robertson, Davidson, Paul Fix and Jerry Devine.

Irving Cummings is responsible for the direction of the production. The story is by William Conselman who collaborated with Henry King in the screen play. Patronize our Advertisers.

Relief Workers on Self-Sustaining Basis

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD Speaking of the new program of relief to the needy, the federal administration plans radical changes. To put the program into effect work relief divisions of existing state and local emergency unemployment administration will be "modified." In other words the New Deal administration is to take over work relief.

A conference will be held in the city of Washington on Nov. 14 to which governors, mayors, city engineers and others will be invited to hear and discuss the new program. This is the Washington viewpoint: Approximately 3,000,000 families are being cared for on public relief rolls now.

There were many drouth sections of America during the hot summer months. Feedstuffs as well as pasture lands were allowed 5,500,000 bushels of wheat to be used for livestock food in Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, New Mexico, Kansas, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin drouth areas. The grain is part of the 11,579,000 bushels purchased for the relief administration.

Of course, this is a free country. The people rule. The right of petition is not dead. Washington is the capital of the republic. New York was that in a historic street of Manhattan. All the hotels and apartments and rooming houses on the banks of the Potomac will be crowded the coming winter.

Hoosierland, meaning Indiana, by a majority overwhelming landed in the Roosevelt camp last year. Now local chapters of the Indiana state restaurant association in six cities have voted to take down the blue eagle emblem "because of inability to comply with the NRA code." There are 70 chapters in the state. Should a majority of the chapters vote to send the blue eagle into exile then the New Deal bird will be removed pending adoption by the NRA code of fair competition for the restaurant industry.

Paul McNutt is the democratic governor of Indiana. He forced his legislature to repeal more unpopular laws than the government of any American commonwealth. He is responsible for a liquor control law including beer which is going to net a higher revenue to the state. He was a gallant soldier "over there." He is a scholar in politics, a lawyer and an educator noted for his achievements before he invaded the field of politics.

the high craigs know internationally as the "emblem of freedom and the bird of liberty." All of which is a reminder that in the city of Chicago Col. Hugh S. Johnson said: "No industry has to submit to a code unless it is abusing labor. It simply is not true that any industry has been coerced into a code." There is ever a free press in America and the ballot is ever the thing in the hands of intelligent and patriotic voters.

NATURE AND HUMAN NATURE

Across Lots Sometimes I follow a certain angling path across a neglected field where the meadow larks find available food and shelter in winter.

Sometimes I follow a certain angling path across a neglected field where the meadow larks find available food and shelter in winter. School children, newboys, and those on various occasional errands use this path for reasons similar to mine, no doubt. It seems to have been laid out by some one picking his way over rough obstacles, among tangled weeds, or around prickly patches; hence it has many a turn and crook. The comparatively large yield of a field of crooked rows of corn in comparison to one of straight rows has often been argued. Crookedness increases productivity—in some ways. Therefore if the product of a cross-lot path is saved time and steps and the enjoyment of this economy, then the longer one spends on such a path while his competitors are going via corners the greater his sum total of pleasure.

But by the time one has unblackened a nice pair of shoes by brushing through a tough weedy thicket, has carried snarled coat or trousers from contact with fences to mending by his seamstress, or has in some other way seen his profit turned to loss in some unguarded moment, he begins to doubt the value of his habit. There is folly in many a short cut to an education, to business success, to social standing or to eternal happiness.

But short cuts will never be abandoned because there is something to be said for them. Where are the angling roads that were once characteristic of this western country? I used to go to a country school by a path that lay partly through a neighbor's pasture along some curious grass-grown ruts. Since all traffic was denied out except pedestrian I did not associate these ruts with wagon wheels until I learned from some one that they were scars of an angling road of early days. We have to take the corners now. Yet, by right of eminent domain, we build railroads, pipe lines, and highways along more or less straight courses that save hours of time and millions in money. What we need to learn is to discriminate between straight courses that save and short cuts that waste.

Edith Cavell was a BRITISH NURSE executed by the Germans at Brussels in 1915 for assisting allied soldiers to escape. The Homestake Mine at LEAD, SOUTH DAKOTA, is the largest producing gold mine in the U. S. New Amsterdam, now New York, was founded in 1624.

The UNKNOWN BLOND By Laura Lou BROCKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY On a stormy November evening DAVID BANISTER meets a pretty blond girl and offers her a lift in the cab in which he is riding. Her handbag opens and he sees a revolver inside.

Next morning Banister reads that TRACY KING, orchestra leader in a movie theater, has been found dead in his apartment. Police are searching for an "unknown blond" who started King the night before. Banister, remembering the girl in the taxicab, is puzzled.

He sees her again that morning. The girl tells him her name is JULIET FRANCE and that she knows nothing of the murder. He goes to see his old friend, JIM PANTON, editor of the Freeman Post, and arranges to work on the King murder case for the Post. Pantan introduces J. RAYNOLD, GAINLEY, star reporter. While they are talking the assistant city editor calls. They've just brought that girl in!

"You can't keep him here!" the girl cried. "You've got to let him go!" "Did you see her? Talk to her? Did Sid get any pictures?" "Sure. I gave the whole story to Austin over the phone. They've had her husband here all morning, only they didn't let anyone know it."

"Her husband?" It was Banister who cut in sharply. "They're trying to get a confession from him," Cunningham went on as though he hadn't heard, "but they'll never do it. That guy's too dumb to pull a murder."

"The door at the end of the corridor opened then and an officer in a blue uniform stepped out. Suddenly, with a rush, a smaller figure was beside him. A figure in red and black and tan. A figure stamping and shaking defiant fists and bursting into a torrent of high-pitched hysterical protests. "But you can't keep him here!" the girl cried. "You've got to let him go. Herman's a good man. Just because he loves me you want to take him away. But you can't do it! This is a free country and I'll fight. I'll show you where you've got to let him go!"

Twenty minutes later, with a message signed by Chief Henley in his vest pocket, Banister set out for the Shelby Arms. But he had an errand to take care of first. He walked across town to Sixth street, continued until he reached the Hotel Tremont. Entering, he crossed the lobby, picked up one of the house telephones and asked to be connected with Miss Juliet France's room.

Arrangement with Columbia Pictures

Mid-noon in Panama. Hot Sultry cloudless sky. The sun like a huge pendant of fire in the heavens. One hundred and ten in the shade—and the only shade behind bamboo blinds in the white cement houses.

Panama City a long business street, deserted but for a few white men and a score of negroes who stalked leisurely—a monotonous, jogged pace. Some stopped to gaze in windows. A colored child chewed abstractedly on a stick of sugar.

A modern electric sign—huge, modern and ironic, north the blazing sun—read "POP RILEY'S." Several men stared through the open door at two swaying couples on the dance floor. A rumba orchestra, in shirtsleeves, gave vent to its rhythmic strains. A beautiful, red-haired girl walked up and down, summing the tune. Suddenly she stopped, and stared through a half-open doorway into a small room to the side of the cafe. In it was a man placing filled liquor bottles into a burlap bag. He did it hurriedly, nervously.

The girl turned and called, "Pop!" but her voice didn't carry over the noise of the band. She walked quickly towards the patio, where an old man dozed in a large easy chair. Nearby, sleeping in a hammock, was a younger man. Tall empty glasses were beside both men.

The girl looked at the two recumbent figures for a moment, then said, "Well, well—those two snappy boys, Ambition and Energy." Several men started with a start.

The younger one, Chick Rollins, opened his eyes slowly.

"Hello, honey," he said, drowsily. "The girl sat on the arm of my father's chair. 'I don't want to disturb you hammock athletes, but something's got to be done about that bar-keep.' 'My child, there is only one way for white people to live in the tropics, and that is to observe the customs of the natives.' 'That, listen, Pop—that boy is robbing you of your eye-teeth.' 'And,' continued Pop, 'one of the most necessary customs in a hot climate is the siesta.' 'Pop, I'm trying to tell you that boy is stealing all the liquor.' 'Now, Connie—a little harmless larceny won't hurt anybody.' 'Connie was insistent. 'Yes, but he's taking it away in truck-loads.'"

Pop looked up. "My child, there is only one way for white people to live in the tropics, and that is to observe the customs of the natives."

Pop sighed. "Oh, dear me! With all the beautiful world in sight, why must you be talking about human failings and weaknesses?"

"All right, Pop. Now will you get up?"

The old man rose to his feet with a groan. "Is there no peace anywhere? Do you want me to speak to him?"

"No. Find out what's in that bag and fire him."

Pop shrugged. "I suppose it's easier than listening to you." He walked away.

"And tell him," Connie called after him, "you want a partnership when he opens his cafe. You've stocked it up for him." She turned back to the figure on the hammock.

"And you, Chick," she looked at the smiling face of the man, "I thought you were going to try out that new song."

"Well—I didn't want to interfere with you, baby. I knew you was rehearsing with the band."

"And so you went to sleep?"

"What's the rush? We'll put it in for the next show." He smiled, and his tone was tender. Honey.

"What?"

"Want to do me a big favor?"

"Sure. But don't you come over and kiss me?"

Chick laughed and stood up. "You're too fast for me, Babe."

"That's not giving me too much."

"Ouch!"

He took her in his arms and they kissed. He looked down at her pert nose.

"Love anybody in this neighborhood?" he asked.

"Uhuh. Do you?"

"I'm crazy for certain people with red hair."

"Oh, Mr. Rollins, you wouldn't give a girl ideas, would you?"

"Oh!" Chick exclaimed with pretended surprise. "Have you got red hair? Well, if she fits, go into your dance."

Connie became suddenly serious. "I wish you would."

"Would what?"

TWO ARRESTED HERE CHARGED WITH FORGERY

Cisco police believed they had broken up a forgery ring operating through several counties in this area with the arrest Monday morning of two men, one of whom was found to already have been indicted on three forgery counts by an Eastland county grand jury.

A charge of attempting to pass a forged instrument was lodged against the second man in Justice Wilson's court.

The pair were arrested by Desk Sergeant Stubblefield, who responded to a call from the Hamm grocery store where two men were said to have attempted to cash a check bearing the signature of Henry Schaefer. Accompanied by Asst. Fire Chief Fowler, Stubblefield went to the store, found the men had left on foot and overtook them at the intersection of 15th street and H avenue.

The two were searched at the police station but no papers were found. Returning to the scene of the arrest, the officers found a check where it had been dropped, answering a description of the paper which the two men were alleged to have tried to pass at the grocery store. Mrs. H. W. Hamm identified the men as the pair who had presented it.

Sought for Some Time The smaller of the two men was identified by officers as a suspect whom they had been seeking for some time in connection with the passing of a series of checks forged with the name of Mr. Schaefer. They had kept the investigation quiet for more than a month. He was charged in local justice court under the name of Russell Harding.

Investigation revealed, Chief Purdie said, that Harding is an ex-convict from the state prison at Huntsville. Further investigation of the two men showed that the second of the arrested suspects was the one wanted on a series of indictments for forgery in this, Callahan and other counties of this section. He was named on the police blotter as Lawrence Kent, paroled convict from state reformatory in Oklahoma. The 28th district grand jury had named him in indictments by the aliases L. D. Walker, L. D. Jackson and Jack Hill, officers said. He faces four other indictments in Callahan, they said.

The check which the two were said to have attempted to pass at the Hamm grocery, was made out to Jack Hill and endorsed with that name. Attempted Escape The two were said to have eluded arrest several times, Harding saving his way from Baird county jail twice and from jail at Cross Plains once. An attempt to saw out of the Cisco jail between 12 noon and 1 p. m. Monday was frustrated when Chief Purdie detected the rasp of a hacksaw blade between bars of the cell. Both were whistling, the notes concealing the sound of the saw blade biting into a rivet in the steel lattice across the rear window of the jail, officers said. When, for once, the rests in their whistled tunes coincided and there was a revealing moment without a tune.

The officers promptly placed their prisoners in the inner cell, relieving them of the overhead bars of the inner cell if more saving was heard. "You ought not to be mad at us," it's your duty to catch us and our duty to get out if we can," one of the pair equally reminded Chief Purdie when he promised to handcuff them to the overhead bars of the inner cell if more saving was heard. "You ought not to be mad at us," it's your duty to catch us and our duty to get out if we can," one of the pair equally reminded Chief Purdie when he promised to handcuff them to the overhead bars of the inner cell if more saving was heard.

The two were taken to Eastland and placed in county jail yesterday afternoon. The activities with which the two men are charged began here about October 9, officers said. The investigation was kept quiet, no announcement being made in the hope that those responsible would remain bold enough to cause their detection.

Reduction in Farm Debts Being Planned AUSTIN, Nov. 16.—Plans to secure a downward revision of farm debts where conditions warrant, were made here Tuesday at the first meeting of the farm debt conciliation committee for Texas, appointed by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson. Both the governor and her husband met with the committee. A. C. Williams, president of the federal farm land bank at Houston, also attended.

The enormity of the work being undertaken was indicated by Williams. The federal farm land bank at Houston, he said, has received applications for $100,000,000 since June and has been approving loans at the rate of $1,000,000 a day.

Purpose of the committee is to bring about voluntary compromise between creditors and farmers who are excessively in debt. To do this local committees will be named. Selection of local conciliation committees will begin this afternoon. Patronize our Advertisers.

PRESIDENT TO CARVE TURKEY AT FOUNDATION

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 16.—President Roosevelt, as is his custom in recent years, will have his Thanksgiving dinner this year at Warm Springs foundation, organized by the president to treat the after-effects of infantile paralysis.

Already the patients at the foundation are making preparations for his arrival Nov. 18, after his address at the Georgia bi-centennial at Savannah, Ga., earlier in the day. It always is a real Thanksgiving party when the president returns to the place where he was aided in regaining his own health after suffering from infantile paralysis. Last year he attended the party soon after he was elected.

Special significance will be attached to the visit this year. Georgia Hall, the new foundation building, which was built from donations given by Georgians throughout the state, will be accepted formally by the president on behalf of the foundation on Founders day, Thanksgiving day this year.

Georgia Hall will replace the rambling old Meriwether Inn. President Roosevelt, according to custom, will preside over the Thanksgiving dinner in Meriwether Inn. A roaring fire will give warmth to the big dining hall and the patients attending the dinner will be addressed by the president as the members of the family.

The president will spend most of the time that he is here at his cottage on Pine mountain. He probably will be here two weeks. En route back to Washington, he may visit the Tennessee valley to inspect the huge development.

REV. TURNER TO SUCCEED R. V. O. O. ODOM HERE

Appointment of pastors announced at the concluding session of the Central Texas conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, at Corsicana Sunday brings a new figure to the pulpit of the First Methodist church here, but returns both the presiding elder, Dr. C. Q. Smith, and the pastor of the Twelfth street church, the Rev. B. W. Kramer.

The Rev. O. O. Odom, pastor of First church for almost two years, has been assigned to the Midlothian church, in the Waxahachie district. Assigned to the pulpit he vacates is the Rev. Frank L. Turner, pastor of Mission Avenue church, Fort Worth, for several years, and for the past year also commissioner of Methodist hospital at Fort Worth. In the latter capacity he assumed some of the duties which Dr. Smith, returned to Cisco, as presiding elder of this district, relinquished when he was sent here a year ago.

The new and retiring Cisco pastors will move Thursday, preaching their first sermons in their new posts next Sunday. Ability Known The Rev. Mr. Turner is a comparatively young man, an excellent preacher and an energetic, able pastor. His ability has been demonstrated in his record of taking over a sinking church in the Missouri avenue congregation and rebuilding it into a strong, large unit. He will prove, say his friends, capable of the same with the Rev. Mr. Odom who carried with him to conference last week the best report that the Cisco church has made in several years, in spite of the depressed economic condition of its term here.

In Midlothian, the retiring Cisco pastor was assigned to one of the choice charges of the conference. He will have as his presiding elder, a former elder of the Cisco district and later pastor of Central church, Fort Worth—the Rev. C. O. Shugart.

Dr. Smith Back In returning Dr. Smith to Cisco as presiding elder of the Cisco district, Bishop Sam Hay has won the practically unanimous approval of the district. Here one year, the patriotic former superintendent of the Methodist hospital at Fort Worth, has accompanied a remarkable work and prospect for the next year under his leadership are viewed optimistically by the churches of the district.

In the shift of ministerial personnel, the Rev. F. E. Singleton, another former Cisco First church pastor, was sent to First church, Weatherford and the Rev. P. T. Stanford to Gateville.

The Rev. T. Edgar Neal, formerly presiding elder of this district, was assigned to First church, Corsicana. Dr. F. P. Culver, another former Cisco presiding elder, remains as presiding elder of Fort Worth.

Following are the assignments for the Cisco district: C. Q. Smith, presiding elder; Breckenridge, H. S. Goodenough; Bunyan, W. J. Cloud; Caddo, J. T. Wilson; Carbon, M. A. Walker; Cisco, first church, F. L. Turner; Cisco, Twelfth Street, B. W. Kramer; Burkett-Cross Cut, H. H. Nance; DeLeon, C. G. Henson; DeLeon Circuit, R. T. Wallace; Desdemona-Olden, R. L. Howell; Dublin, P. W. Walker; Eastland, E. R. Stanford; Eolian, A. J. Helms; Gorman, C. O. Hightower; Ranger, J. M. Bond; Ranger Circuit, Ephraim Conway; Rising Star, B. B. Byus; Scranton, G. G. Smith; Sipe Springs, William Fisher.

WOMAN'S GHOST STILL HAUNTS TRAGEDY SITE, RESIDENTS SAY

STEPHENVILLE, Nov. 16.—The ghost of the McDow still walks — and the watering hole by that name in Green's creek near here is shunned by men as a thing accursed.

A pall of gloom seems to hang over the spot kept alive by the three-toed tales of the ranch and farm folk who like near about. The story goes back 70 years. Ranchers coming to the watering hole one day found a woman and her baby murdered on the banks of the creek bank, near the hole.

The tragedy, in time, was almost forgotten — until one evening a man named Petty and his wife stopped at the McDow to get a barrel of water. They saw a woman with a baby in her arms walking to the watering hole. She stopped at the water's edge, gazed across at the Petty's, then walked back to the grave and disappeared.

The Petty water barrel was not filled that night. They, a man named Keith built a house on the bank of the creek, and according to J. E. Fitzgerald of Stephenville, who knew Keith well, he was a brave man. But even Keith said he was incessantly disturbed at night by a woman's screams. He said his place.

A bachelor by the name of Hammonds came to live in the house near the grave, but not for long. He, too, said he heard the screams. One morning neighbors found him dead. He died of fright, they said. The tragedy prompted two farmers to make an all-night vigil at the hole. They went to the McDow in a buggy, but they came home afoot and traveling fast.

Since that time numerous watch parties have been held at the spot, and there are more than a few of the old-timers living today who will swear they have seen the woman and heard her scream.

Although the woman's body was moved from the McDow grave in 1890 and taken to a cemetery, those who know the story maintain the screams are occasionally heard, even in this late day.

GORMAN PEACE OFFICER SLAIN MONDAY NIGHT

GORMAN, Nov. 16.—Funeral services were held at the First Baptist church here Tuesday afternoon for Leon Robinson, 55, night watchman and veteran peace officer, who was shot to death in a strange shooting on the street here Monday night. Mrs. Mae King, a woman 20 years his junior, was critically wounded in the same shooting.

Justice of the Peace J. C. Chapman investigated the incident and returned in verdict which found that Robinson had been shot to death with a gun in the hands of the woman. Chapman questioned 15 persons Monday night and instructed neighbors of Mrs. Mae King, who lies near death in the Blackwell sanitarium here, to appear at his offices Tuesday. The woman was shot twice through the left breast, and physicians declared her condition uncertain if the wounds pierced her lungs, they said, she has little chance to recover.

The shooting broke with such unexpectedness that none of the four eye-witnesses to it could relate accurate accounts. Stood By Auto Robinson was standing alongside the automobile in which Mrs. King was seated when the shooting started. A bullet struck him in the forehead and he toppled to the pavement. His 45 caliber revolver was still in its scabbard when the body was picked up.

Two other revolvers clattered to the street. Mrs. King, wounded by bullets from the larger of these weapons, pitched headlong out of the car. Had Quarreled The justice said he learned Mrs. King, a resident of Desdemona, about 10 miles from here, and Robinson had quarreled. He said the nature of the quarrel was unknown, but revealed that Robinson had arrested the woman several times and that she had paid a fine Saturday night.

During brief intervals of consciousness after the shooting she claimed that the officer first shot her and then himself, the justice said. Robinson had been a local peace officer for several years and had lived in this neighborhood for about 46. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Josie Robinson; two sons, Fulton and Alton, of Beaumont, and two daughters, Mrs. Alice Parker, of Anton, Texas, and Mrs. Lola Palmer, of Roby.

FIRST WORK IS STARTED UPON MIDWEST DAM

By TOM MAHONEY United Press Staff Correspondent KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 16.—Upon the desolate site of old Fort Peck in Montana, 1,956 miles upstream on the Missouri river, the government has started preliminary construction on one of the greatest dam projects of modern times.

An earth-filled dam, 231 feet high, will back up the river for 171 miles to provide navigation of the lower river. The water also will be used for irrigation and the operation of a 90,000-horsepower hydro-electric plant.

The dam will be four miles long at the top and two at its deepest, tallest portion. The impounded water will be three miles wide at places and will assure adequate flood control for a wide area.

25 Millions Appropriated The cost will be between $59,500,000 and $83,000,000, depending upon the elaborateness of the spillway system. An appropriation of $25,000,000 has been made available for diversion tunnels and other work to be done before Jan. 1, 1935.

Some 500 men now are at work under direction of the army engineer's office here. They are completing sub-surface core borings, clearing the site and making preparations for a construction camp and a 10-mile extension of the Northern Pacific railroad from Nashua.

When construction begins in earnest, 6,000 to 7,000 men will be required for completion of the dam. The dam will be completed about the same time the river channel is prepared for navigation to Sioux City, Ia., if the latter project goes forward as at present and water from the dam will facilitate the barge service. Navigation will start from St. Louis to Kansas City next spring.

A 30-hour working week will be observed. E. A. Baugh, project engineer in charge here, Tuesday announced that 816 Texas projects have been approved. Examination of others is continuing day and night to have as many as possible available Thursday morning.

TEACHERS WILL MEET IN AUSTIN NOV. 30 TO DEC. 2

AUSTIN, Nov. 15.—School teachers of Texas will meet here Nov. 30 to Dec. 2 in a convention-clinic to examine the economic health of the state's public schools and their place in the national recovery program.

The capitol city is preparing to house and entertain between 7,000 and 9,000 visitors during the annual convention of the Texas State Teachers association. University student rooming houses and dormitories, as well as private homes, will be opened to the visitors.

After a Thanksgiving service at the University of Texas' Gregory gymnasium, featuring an address by Dr. J. W. Mills, pastor of First Methodist church at Beaumont, the convention will settle down to the serious business of improving the economic welfare of public schools. Five themes are revealed in the school teachers' "recovery" program:

1. Salvaging school children from economic disaster, the subject of the convention's first general session Thursday afternoon. 2. The teacher in today's depression and tomorrow's prosperity, featuring addresses by nationally noted educators and accompanying the association president's annual address and the nomination of new officers Thursday evening.

3. Intelligent reorganization and financing of the state's system of public education. At this Friday morning session, Texas' own leader in education will discuss a financial problem that has baffled the Texas legislature and many tax-payers. 4. Education and recent legislative trends. Whether the Blue Eagle shall also fly over the schoolroom door, and whether an unwritten professional NRA code shall govern teachers, are potential questions for this program.

By pageantry and a motion picture camera, the history of education in Texas, beginning with Spanish rule in 1690, will be unfolded at this Friday evening session. 5. Working out of the depression in education. This theme will be addressed by the convention's final business session, committee reports and the introduction of the association's new officers.

The convention closes Saturday afternoon with a program devoted to negro education in Texas. "Clean-up" Booming Former Gold Center COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho, Nov. 16.—A rich "clean-up" in placer gold ore near Pierce City, one-time famed mining camp, by S. L. Godfrey, veteran prospector, is expected to start a major mining boom in the district next spring.

Godfrey, operating an old dredge, reported he had taken more than $2,000 in gold from the bed of Rhodens Creek in 70 days. His discovery was made in a spot where millions in gold were recovered years ago. Most of the ore came from the stream bed just above bed rock, where early-day miners could not reach with their more crude equipment. Godfrey said.

Hundreds of amateur prospectors have been scattered throughout the region near Pierce City this year, seeking to recover ore overlooked by early miners, or to find some new bonanza. Pierce City in 1861 was a thriving camp, the scene of one of the most famous gold rushes in the west.

The town took its name from Captain E. D. Pierce, who entered the region in search of a legendary mountain of pure gold, the subject of many Indian myths and stories. Pierce never found the mountain, but did discover sufficient placer gold to start a major rush to the district.

One of Every Five Families in Nation Receives Red Cross Jobless Relief in 1933

AN ARMY of volunteer men and women relief workers almost ten times greater in numbers than the standing army of the United States carried Red Cross relief into the homes of America's jobless during the past eighteen months.

Six hundred and forty-five thousand women joined under the Red Cross flag in sewing garments for the needy, in distribution of bread and flour, and in canning foods for their neighbors in distress because of unemployment. A half million men—bankers, lawyers, doctors, merchants and men in every walk of life—gave of their time as chapter officials and as active relief workers in distribution of goods. Thousands of trucks were lent to carry flour and clothing from railroad loading platforms to warehouses, and then into remote rural sections to be delivered promptly into homes where need was great.

"Only the Red Cross could assemble such an army of volunteer workers," was the tribute paid their service. The relief was given to one of every five families in the nation.

Above, part of the nation's great sewing when 645,000 women sewed Red Cross cloth for the needy; at right, every deference was paid to style, as dresses on these girls show. Millions of school children were outfitted by the Red Cross.

It went into every hamlet, village, town and city and to all rural districts. The flour and bread came from $5,000,000 bushels of government wheat and the clothing from $44,000,000 of government cotton, voted by Congress to the Red Cross for free distribution. More than five million families were recipients of both types of relief.

The wheat was converted into 10,688,000 barrels of flour, and 223,901 tons of stock feed. The cotton provided approximately 90,000,000 garments—overalls, jumpers, dresses, underwear, stockings and sweaters, for men, women and children. Blankets, comforters and sheets also were given. Distribution of the cotton clothing and the flour cost the Red Cross $735,000 from its treasury. The last of the flour was shipped by the Red Cross in June, and last of the clothing was distributed in October. Children were clothed for this autumn and their parents given garments to meet their needs. This relief task was assumed by the Red Cross in addition to its other obligations in disaster relief to veterans, health and education. Red Cross aid was given in 117 disasters in the United States and her insular possessions during the year. This relief work is possible through the annual roll for members carried on by Cross chapters each year. Armistice Day to Thanksgiving

PROCEDURE FOR CASTING REPEAL VOTE IN DOUBT

AUSTIN, Nov. 16.—Procedure for Texas to register its vote for repeal of national prohibition is in doubt, other than that the ratification convention delegates will meet in Austin Nov. 24.

The statute providing for the submission of the question and election of convention delegates sets out no procedure, though it was the general understanding a course similar to that followed in casting the state's electoral vote would be followed.

The place for gathering is not designated further than that it shall be in Austin. Following the election of delegates, the session probably will be held in the state secret chamber. The secretary of state calls the presidential electors to order, but the ratification act does not give him that power for the ratification convention.

In the absence of a provision it is expected the delegates will elect their own chairman and secretary. The convention must certify its action to the secretary of state. He will then certify it to Washington.

Lacking any directing head, fears have been expressed that enough delegates will not attend to make the ratification legal. Sixteen must attend Secretary of State Health has suggested each delegate get in touch with his alternate and notify the alternate if unable to attend. Alternates also are requested to communicate with their principals, so one or the other may be present. Certificates of election are being sent out by the governor to each of the 29 delegates and to the 30 alternates. Two delegates and one alternate have died since their election on August 26.

CONGRESS NOW DOMINATED BY INFLATIONISTS

By RAYMOND CLAPPER United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.—Inflation sentiment appears to be the upper hand in congress in light of a poll by the United Press. Indications are that unless administration measures produce results by January, congress will return in a mood to take the teeth.

Fifty-eight per cent of the replies favor inflation. Twenty per cent are opposed to it. The remaining twenty-one per cent either neutral or are not prepared to take a position. Inflationists outnumbered 2 to 1 those opposed by more than 2-1-2 to 1. These figures, gathered from members covering every state, constitute a complete cross-section.

They confirm the belief of chief inflationist, Senator Thomas, Dem., Okla., that congress will return in a mood to take the reins out of the hands of the administration and make a mandatory unless present raising policies produce a clear result. Thomas and Senator Sen. Dem. S. C. have invited Sen. Pittman, Wheeler, Borah, Harbo and Fletcher, to meet with directors of the committee of the national farm leaders at a monetary conference here Friday.

"There must be no fear of pressing inflation if soundly backed currency, adequate for our needs is provided," the call for the conference said. Demand Double Senators Thomas and Smith the president's gold policy making "progress" but that it is 34, double the statutory rate. The president surveyed the suits of his hold operations at a long conference with his ranking financial advisers Sunday. All were carried further until gold is declined to reveal what conditions were reached.

Mr. Roosevelt is under pressure on both sides of the inflation question. Republican leaders in conference here were said to make long-time commitments because of the uncertainty of the administration's monetary policy. Complaint is widespread financial and some business circles that the president is drifting imperiling with one device after another.

Replies received in the Press poll have increasingly strength on the inflation side. Whereas earlier replies from straight out "Yes." This appears to indicate a growing desire for inflation with less and less insistence upon the form used.

Silver advocates comprised 30 per cent of the inflationists. A fractional number preferred distribution of paper money by Mid-noon in Panama. Hot. Sultry. A cloudless sky. The sun like a huge pendant of fire in the heavens. One hundred and ten in the shade—and the only shade behind bamboo blinds in the white cement houses.

Panama City. A long business street, deserted but for a few white men and a score of negroes who walked leisurely—a monotonous, dogged pace. Some stopped to gaze in windows. A colored child chewed abstractedly on a stick of sugar cane.

A modern electric sign—huge, modern and ironic, with the blazings of a neon sign—glowed brightly. Several persons stared through the open door at two swaying couples on the dance floor. A rumba orchestra in a brightly lit room played a beautiful, red-tinted melody. A beautiful, red-tinted girl walked up and down, humming the tune. Suddenly, she stopped, and stared through the open doorway into a small room to the side of the cafe. In it was a man placing filled liquor bottles into a bar-tray. He did it hurriedly, nervously.

The girl turned and called, "Pop," but her voice didn't carry over the noise of the band. She walked quickly towards the patio, where an ash-tray man dozed in a large easy chair. Nearby, sleeping in a hammock, was a younger man. Tall empty glasses were beside both men.

The girl looked at the two re-embodied figures for a moment, then said, "Well, well—those two snappy boys, Ambition and Energy." Several persons awoke with a start.

The younger one, Chick Rollins, opened his eyes slowly.

"Hello, honey," he said, drowsily. "And you're here, sitting on the arm of my father's chair. I don't want to disturb you hammock athletes, but something's got to be done about that bar-boy."

Pop looked up. "My child, there is only one way for white people to live in the tropics, and that is to observe the customs of the natives."

Connie grimaced. "Yes, I know. But listen, Pop—that boy is robbing you of your eye-teeth."

"And," continued Pop, "one of the most necessary customs in a hot climate is the siesta."

"Pop, I'm trying to tell you that boy is stealing all the liquor."

"Now, Connie—a little harmless arcey won't hurt anybody."

Connie was insistent. "Yes, but he's taking it away in truck-loads."

Pop looked up. "My child, there is only one way for white people to live in the tropics, and that is to observe the customs of the natives."

(Poised by Raymond Brown and Helen Twelvetrees.)

Pop sighed. "Oh, dear me! With all the beautiful world in sight, why are you talking about human ailments and weaknesses?"

"All right, Pop. Now will you get up?"

The old man rose to his feet with a groan. "Is there no peace anywhere? Do you want me to speak to you?"

"No. Find out what's in that bag for me."

Pop shrugged. "I suppose it's easier than listening to you." He talked away.

"And tell him," Connie called after him, "you want a partnership when he opens his cafe. You've stocked it for him." She turned back to the man on the hammock.

"And you, Chick," she looked at the smiling face of the man, "I thought you were going to try out that new song."

"Well—I didn't want to interfere with you, baby. I knew you was re-arranging with the band."

"And so you went to sleep?"

"What's the rush? We'll put it in at the next show." He smiled and his tone was tender. Honey.

"What?"

"Want to do me a big favor?"

"Sure. But why don't you come over and kiss me?"

Chick laughed and stood up. "You're too fast for me, Babe."

"Ouch!"

"That's not giving me too much."

"He took her in his arms and they kissed. He looked down at her pert nose.

"Love anybody in this neighborhood?" he asked.

"Uhuh. Do you?"

"I'm crazy for certain people with a bad hair."

"Oh, Mr. Rollins, you wouldn't love a girl idea, would you?"

"Oh!" Chick exclaimed with pretended surprise. "Have you got red hair? Well, if she fits, go into our dance."

Connie became suddenly serious. "Who would?"

"Would what?"

TWO ARRESTED HERE CHARGED WITH FORGERY

Cisco police believed they had broken up a forgery ring operating through several counties in this area with the arrest Monday morning of two men, one of whom was found to already have been indicted on three forgery counts by an Eastland county grand jury.

A charge of attempting to pass a forged instrument was lodged against the second man in Justice Wilson's court.

The pair were arrested by Desk Sergeant Stubblefield, who responded to a call from the Hamm grocery store where two men were said to have attempted to cash a check bearing the signature of Henry Schaefer.

The smaller of the two men was identified by officers as a suspect whom they had been seeking for some time in connection with the passing of a series of checks forged with the name of Mr. Schaefer.

Further investigation of the two men showed that the second of the arrested suspects was the one wanted on a series of indictments for forgery in this, Calhoun, and other counties of this section.

PRESIDENT TO CARVE TURKEY AT FOUNDATION

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 16.—President Roosevelt, as is his custom in recent years, will have his Thanksgiving dinner this year at Warm Springs foundation, organized by the president to treat the after-effects of infantile paralysis.

Already the patients at the foundation are making preparations for his arrival Nov. 18, after his address at the Georgia bi-centennial at Savannah, Ga., earlier in the day.

It always is a real Thanksgiving party when the president returns to the place where he was aided in regaining his own health after suffering from infantile paralysis. Last year he attended the party soon after he was elected.

Special significance will be attached to the visit this year. Georgia Hall, the new foundation building which was built from donations given by Georgians throughout the state, will be accepted formally by the president on behalf of the foundation on Founders day, Thanksgiving day this year.

Georgia Hall will replace the rambling old Meriwether Inn. President Roosevelt, according to custom, will preside over the Thanksgiving dinner in Meriwether Inn. A roaring fire will give warmth to the big dining hall and the patients attending the dinner will be addressed by the president as the "members of the family."

The president will spend most of the time that he is here at his cottage on Pine mountain. He probably will be here two weeks. En route back to Washington, he may visit the Tennessee valley to inspect the huge development.

STEPHENVILLE, Nov. 16.—The ghost of the McDow still walks—and the watering hole by that name in Green's creek near here is shunned by men as a thing accursed.

A hall of gloom seems to hang over the spot kept alive by the thrice-told tales of the ranch and farm folk who like near about.

The story goes back 70 years. Ranchers coming to the watering hole one day found a woman and her baby murdered on the banks of the McDow. They were buried on the creek bank, near the hole.

The tragedy in time, was almost forgotten—until one evening a man named Petty and his wife stopped at the McDow to get a barrel of water. They saw a woman with a baby in her arms walking to the water hole. She stopped at the water's edge, gazed across at the Petty's, then walked back to the grave and disappeared.

The Petty water barrel was not filled that night.

Then a man named Keith built a house on the bank of the creek, and according to J. E. Fitzgerald of Stephenville, who knew Keith well, he was a brave man. But even Keith said he was necessarily disturbed at night by a woman's screams.

A bachelor by the name of Hammonds came to live in the house near the grave, but not for long. He, too, said he heard the screams. One morning neighbors found him dead. He died of fright, they said.

The tragedy prompted two farmers to make an all-night vigil at the hole. They went to the McDow in a buggy, but they came home afoot, and traveling fast.

Since that time numerous watch parties have been held at the spot, and there are more than a few of the old-timers living today who will swear they have seen the woman and heard her scream.

Although the woman's body was moved from the McDow grave in 1880 and taken to a cemetery, those who know the story maintain the screams are occasionally heard, even in this late day.

GORMAN PEACE OFFICER SLAIN MONDAY NIGHT

GORMAN, Nov. 16.—Funeral services were held at the First Baptist church here Tuesday afternoon for Leon Robinson, 55, night watchman and veteran peace officer, who was shot to death in a strange shooting on the street here Monday night.

Mrs. Mae King, a woman 20 years his junior, was critically wounded in the same shooting. Justice of the Peace J. C. Chapman investigated the incident and returned in verdict which found that Robinson had been shot to death with a gun in the hands of the woman.

Chapman questioned 15 persons Monday night and instructed neighbors of Mrs. Mae King, who lies near death in the Blackwell sanitarium here, to appear at his offices Tuesday. The woman was shot twice through the left breast, and physicians declared her condition uncertain. If the wounds pierced her lungs, they said, she has little chance to recover.

The shooting broke with such unexpectedness that none of the few eye-witnesses to it could relate accurate accounts.

Robinson was standing alongside the automobile in which Mrs. King was seated when the shooting started. A bullet struck him in the forehead and he toppled to the pavement. His 45 caliber revolver was found in his scabbard when the body was picked up.

Two other revolvers clattered to the street. Mrs. King, wounded by bullets from the larger of these weapons, pitched headlong out of the car.

The justice said he learned Mrs. King, a resident of Desdemona, about 10 miles from here, and Robinson had quarreled. He said the nature of the quarrel was unknown, but revealed that Robinson had arrested the woman several times and that she had paid a fine Sunday morning after an arrest Saturday night.

Robinson had been a local peace officer for several years and had lived in this neighborhood for about 49. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Josie Robinson, two sons, Fulton and Alton, of Beaumont, and two daughters, Mrs. Alice Parker, of Anton, Texas, and Mrs. Lola Palmer, of Roby.

FIRST WORK IS STARTED UPON MIDWEST DAM

By TOM MAHONEY United Press Staff Correspondent KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 16.—Upon the date site of old Fort Peck in Montana, 1,566 miles upstream on the Missouri river, the government has started preliminary construction on one of the greatest dam projects of modern times.

An earth-filled dam, 231 feet high, will back up the river for 171 miles to provide navigation of the lower river. The water also will be used for irrigation and the operation of a 90,000-horsepower hydro-electric plant.

The dam will be four miles long at the top and two at its deepest, tallest portion. The impounded water will be three miles wide at places and will assure adequate flood control for a wide area.

The cost will be between $59,500,000 and $83,000,000, depending upon the elaborateness of the spillway system. An appropriation of $25,000,000 has been made available for diversion tunnels and other work to be done before Jan. 1, 1935.

Some 500 men now are at work under direction of the army engineer's office here. They are completing sub-structure borings, clearing the site and making preparations for a construction camp and a 10-mile extension of the Northern Pacific railroad from Nashua.

When construction begins in earnest, 6,000 to 7,000 men will be required for completion of the dam. The dam will be completed about the same time the river channel is prepared for navigation to Sioux City, Ia. If the latter project goes forward as at present, water from the dam will facilitate the barge service. Navigation will start from St. Louis to Kansas City next spring.

One of Every Five Families in Nation Receives Red Cross Jobless Relief in 1933

AN ARMY of volunteer men and women relief workers almost ten times greater in numbers than the standing army of the United States carried Red Cross relief into the homes of America's jobless during the past eighteen months.

Six hundred and forty-five thousand women joined under the Red Cross flag in sewing garments for the needy, in distribution of bread and flour, and in canning foods for their neighbors in distress because of unemployment. A half million men—bankers, lawyers, doctors, merchants and men in every walk a life—gave of their time as chapter officials and as active relief workers in distribution of goods. Thousands of trucks were lent to carry flour and clothing from railroad loading platforms to warehouses, and then into remote rural sections to be delivered promptly into homes where need was great.

Only the Red Cross could assemble such an army of volunteer workers, was the tribute paid their service. The relief was given to one of every five families in the nation.

PROCEDURE FOR CASTING REPEAL VOTE IN DOUBT

AUSTIN, Nov. 16.—Procedure for Texas to register its vote for repeal of national prohibition is in doubt, other than that the ratification convention delegates will meet in Austin Nov. 24.

The statute providing for the submission of the question and election of convention delegates sets out no procedure, though it is the general understanding that a course similar to that followed in casting the state's electoral vote would be followed.

The place for gathering is not designated further than that it shall be in Austin. Following the electoral custom, the session probably will be held in the state senate chamber. The secretary of state calls the presidential electors to order, but the ratification act does not give him that power for the ratification convention.

In the absence of a provision it is expected the delegates will elect their own chairman and secretary. The convention must certify its action to the secretary of state. He will then certify it to Washington.

Lacking any directing head, fears have been expressed that enough delegates will not attend to make the ratification legal. Sixteen must attend Secretary of State Heath has suggested each delegate get in touch with his alternate and notify the alternate if unable to attend. Alternates are also requested to communicate with their principals, so one or the other may be present.

Certificates of election are being sent out by the governor to each of the 25 delegates and to the 30 alternates. Two delegates and one alternate have died since their election on August 26.

CONGRESS NOW DOMINATED BY INFLATIONIST

By RAYMOND CLAPPER United Press Staff Correspondent (Copyright, 1933, by United Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.—Inflation sentiment appears to be the upper hand in congress in light of a poll by the United Press. Indications are that unless drastic measures produce more results by January, congress will return in a mood to take the issue.

Fifty-eight per cent of the replies favor inflation. Twenty per cent are opposed to it. The remaining twenty-one per cent are either neutral or are not prepared to take a position.

Inflationists outnumbered those opposed by more than 2-1-2 to 1. These figures, gathered by members covering every state, is a complete cross-section.

They confirm the belief of chief inflationist, Senator E. Thomas Denney, that congress will return in a mood to take matters out of the hands of the administration and make a mandatory unless present raising policies produce a clear result. Thomas and Senator Sen. Pittman, Wheeler, Borah, Hays and Fletcher, to meet with the national farm leaders at a monetary conference here Friday.

"There need be no fear of rising prices if soundly based currency, adequate for our needs, is provided," the call for the conference said.

The president surveyed the results of his gold operations at long conference with his ranking financial advisers Sunday. All members were asked to be carried further until gold declined to reveal what conditions were reached.

Reduction in Farm Debts Being Planned

AUSTIN, Nov. 16.—Plans to secure a downward revision of farm debts where conditions warrant, were made here Tuesday at the first meeting of the farm debt conciliation committee for Texas, appointed by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson.

Both the governor and her husband met with the committee. A. C. Williams, president of the federal farm land bank at Houston, also attended.

The enormity of the work being undertaken was indicated by Williams. The federal farm land bank at Houston, he said, has received applications for $100,000,000 since June and has been approving loans at the rate of $1,000,000 a day.

Agnes, have my Hanes heavyweights come yet?

COMB your fingers through the downy fluff inside HANES Wonderwear. Ruffle it up and smooth it down. Think of the shivers and shakes ahead... think of plowing through snow all day. Then, imagine HANES hugging your legs and arms, and snuggling across your chest!

No matter how much you bend and reach in HANES, there's never a catch or scratch. The spring knit "gives" like your own skin, and snaps back just as smoothly. That's because HANES is knit and cut two ways—to the trunk-measure as well as the chest!

Buttonholes, cuffs and seams are sewed to last the life of the fabric. Stock-up for a warm winter with Wonderwear. P. H. Hanes Knitting Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

There are all sorts and sizes of HANES—shirts and drawers as well as union suits. The Heavy-weight Champion is illustrated.
