Eagle Powerhouse Subdues Eastland

EASTLAND, Nov. 18.—Eastland's Eagles were unable to stop Abilene's powerhouse attack here today and the Eagles went home with the long end of a 31 to 0 score. Brookshire led the scoring for the visitors with the first two touchdowns, four points after touchdown, and a field goal.

The Mavericks withstood the initiative of the Eagles, only to allow touchdown in the opening minutes of the second quarter when Brookshire circled left end for five yards and a touchdown. In the same period Brookshire raced 20 yards through rough left tackle for the second quarter.

The Mavericks scored their lone touchdown when the passing combination of Tully and Garrison mentioned long enough to complete a series for a gain of 43 yards. The Mavs were desperately flinging passes that almost clicked as the game ended. Coddell and Pennington each scored a touchdown and Brookshire kicked a field goal in the last quarter.

Although Brookshire was the chief gainer for Abilene, many of the gains through tackle were made possible by the blocking of Captain Coddell at left half. Robertson played a great game for the Eagles tackle. The passing of Tully and the kicking of Garrison were outstanding for Eastland. In the final quarter Garrison got off a kick at traveled 75 yards from the line scrimmage.

William C. Bullitt, state department expert on Russian affairs, whose long advocacy of American recognition of the Soviet Union was rewarded in his appointment by President Roosevelt to be this nation's first ambassador to the new Russia, whose government Friday was officially recognized by the United States. CUBAN GOV'T PREPARES FOR NEW OUTBREAK

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 18.—Reports that enemies of the San Martin government planned a new revolt, and would use a squadron of bombing airplanes operating from a Florida or West Indian base, caused electric activity at the presidential palace today.

It was reported everywhere that a revolt was planned before December 1. Soldiers at the palace were busy engaged in sand bagging windows, constructing barricades at entrances and adding to the arsenal of machine guns and cannon on the roof.

Military telescopes were erected for use in spotting aircraft.

Developments of vital importance in Cuban-American relations were foreshadowed with American Ambassador Sumner Welles en route to a conference with President Roosevelt at Warm Springs.

PROTEST MAY BE LODGED IN FOOTBALL CASE

No definite answer had emerged Saturday night from the uncertainty which still cloaked the case of the alleged inelegibility of a member of the district-leading Ranger high school football team.

Ranger school officials, having withdrawn an earlier admission that the player, Horace Hill, was over age together with an agreement to forfeit the three conference games in which he had participated, had no statement other than to declare that the next angle from which they awaited developments would have to promise something conclusive before they would consent.

Meanwhile, Cisco school authorities announced that unless some voluntary action was forthcoming by late Monday afternoon to clear up the question a formal protest probably would be filed.

Such a protest, it was said, would be "conditional," indicating that it would serve to put the protest of the inelegibility of the Ranger player on record, while not seeking to press for immediate action before the Ranger authorities have ample time to satisfy their minds upon the character of the new evidence they were investigating.

"Unless something definite is done to clean up this case by late Monday afternoon a written protest will in all probability go forward to the committee chairman at Abilene," said Supt. R. N. Cluck late Saturday.

It was said at Ranger that the delay was occasioned by difficulty in making contact with a witness in Oklahoma. It was believed, however, that a definite statement would be obtained from this source by Monday.

If Ranger, who has not lost a conference game, should forfeit, it will place Abilene in the forefront of the oil belt parade without a defeat and the Lobos second with one loss and a chance to tie the Eagles for the title in the Thanksgiving day battle.

Harvard Professor Will Succeed Payer
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18.—Francis B. Sayre, professor of law at Harvard university, today was appointed assistant secretary of state. He succeeds Harry Payer, who was transferred this week to the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Recognition Expected to Stimulate Vast Flow of Trade Between Russia and U. S.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18.—President Roosevelt's break with the non-recognition policy of his four predecessors in the recognition of the Soviet government was expected to stimulate a vast flow of trade between America and the Soviet Union.

Recent studies made for the state department estimate the Soviet will place here within the year orders for goods worth $250,000,000.

Exchange of ambassadors between Washington and Moscow as well as the establishment of consulates by each nation in the leading cities of the other is expected shortly.

Ever since the president entered the white house last March he had been preparing for the momentous step.

For months the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and other government organizations have been studying means of financing American exports to the Soviet.

The state department, meantime, has conducted a thorough inquiry into the diplomatic, political and legal aspects of recognition. These studies, placed before the president recently, prompted him to end the long era of Soviet-American isolation.

May Retard Japan
Major diplomatic reverberations are expected from this new cohesion between the United States and the Soviet, particularly in the Far East. Observers here believe it will retard Japanese expansion on the Asiatic mainland and in the islands of the Pacific, inasmuch as the Soviet and America are now better prepared to cooperate in safeguarding their Far Eastern interests.

Administration officials believe, however, that the president's recognition policy was prompted primarily by a desire to build up Soviet-American trade, and the diplomatic consequences are incidental.

Recognition of the Soviet government became virtually certain June 4 when the Reconstruction Finance corporation authorized a loan of about $4,000,000 to Russia for the purchase of American cotton.

The loan was approved by then Secretary of Treasury Woodin and President Roosevelt. Issuance of such a loan was regarded as tacit recognition of Soviet stability and ability to pay. Further loans may

MORATORIUM LAW GOES TO HIGHEST COURT

AUSTIN, Nov. 18.—Validity of the state moratorium law delaying forced sales of real estate, will be considered by the state supreme court here December 6.

A group of cases involving validity of the act will be heard at that time before all nine members of the court.

The act provided that a foreclosure might be stayed for 180 days if the property owner made affidavit to the district court that earlier disposal would result in a sale below the reasonable value. A second extension of 180 days was permissible were conditions are still unfavorable at the expiration of the first 180-day period.

ARBITRATION IS REMOTE IN RAIL DISPUTE

HOUSTON, Nov. 18.—Prospects for arbitration of the dispute were up to the Southern Pacific. The railroad issued a statement which did not mention arbitration.

J. G. Torian, assistant general manager of the railroad, declined to elaborate on the statement passed out to newspapermen. Principally, it consisted of a description of some of the issues involved.

The strike vote was being taken among employees belonging to the four organizations. The votes will be counted at a meeting here next week, probably Wednesday, and the strike, if it is voted, will be called after formal notice has been served on the railroad management.

Republicans Opposed
The republican administration stoutly opposed recognition of the Soviet because she defaulted on the debts of the Kerensky and Czarist governments.

Senator George Norris of Nebraska was the only prominent republican to advocate resumption of diplomatic relations.

"Since the Soviet government was organized, she has never defaulted upon the payment of a single obligation," he said. "She has met every debt contracted. Our allies owe us billions."

When the czar's government fell in 1917 a provisional government was established in Russia under Alexander Kerensky. The latter was recognized by the United States, holding away until the fall of 1917.

1,515 PROJECTS APPROVED FOR RELIEF WORK

AUSTIN, Nov. 18.—The state relief commission today announced that approved work projects in Texas as total 1,515, sufficient to provide employment for 92,300 men until approximately February 1.

More than 100,000 men are now at work under the civil works administration program. Some of them, however, still are at work on clean-up campaigns which are not listed as work projects proper.

The second meeting of the new Texas relief commission will be held here Monday, Tuesday the relief program in Texas will be forwarded at a statewide meeting on subsistence homestead proposals.

Gas Main Under Highway Lowered

A crew of 20 men has been put to work by the Lone Star Gas company lowering a 6-inch high pressure gas line across highway 187, known as the Leary cut-off, which the state has started rebuilding.

Aspires to Toga

Cong. Joseph W. Bailey, Jr., of Dallas, who has announced he will be a candidate for the U. S. senate against Sen. Tom Connally. Young Bailey is the son of the late Senator Joseph W. Bailey, famed constitutional lawyer and statesman.

BAILEY THROWS HAT INTO RING FOR US SENATE

In a brief statement Saturday, Cong. Joseph Weldon Bailey, Jr., made known his intention to be a candidate for United States senator from Texas in 1934.

Probability of such an announcement had been frequently discussed in the press, but Cong. Bailey had withheld any comment until yesterday morning when he made known his intention in a personal message to the Daily News editor, enclosing a copy of the announcement which he had issued to the press for release Sunday morning.

"When congress adjourned in June and permitted my return home," the statement said, "many of my friends insisted I should become a candidate for the senate of the United States in the primaries of 1934. There has been some discussion of this in the newspapers, and as I have now reached a decision I feel that it is best to let it be known immediately."

"I disagree with the junior senator from Texas on many governmental questions. This being true, I have decided to accept the responsibility placed upon me by my friends and announce that I will be a candidate for the United States senate in 1934."

Will State Platform Later
At the proper time I will file my name and state my position on all such public questions as affect the people of the state of Texas, and will, of course, conduct an active campaign next summer.

"Jos. W. Bailey, Jr."
Mr. Bailey, who thus aspires to a toga so illustriously worn by his late father, is now serving in his first political capacity as one of three congressmen-at-large elected from Texas in 1932. His home is at Dallas; and he some time ago made known his intention not to oppose Hutton Summers, congressman from the district in which his residence is located. Redistricting of the state by the last legislature carved no special bailiwick for Mr. Bailey. He indicated he wanted none, declaring, his wish to devote himself to private practice and leave politics alone.

Saturday's announcement helps to crystallize a political situation which has become confusingly jumbled with prospect and prediction.

Will Oppose Connally
In entering the senatorial primary, Cong. Bailey will oppose Sen. Tom Connally, who, like himself, served in the lower national house before seeking election to the senate.

Cong. Bailey appeared twice in Eastland county during the current phase of the political cycle, once last year in behalf of his own candidacy for the democratic nomination as congressman, and last summer at Lake Cisco in a joint discussion of the issue of national prohibition with Cong. Sterling P. Strong, also a congressman-at-large, and an ardent dry. Young Bailey attacked that question from the standpoint of the democratic conception of constitutional government upheld by his father, and asserted that national prohibition violated the sovereignty of the states. He advocated its return to the states as has been done by repeal of the 18th amendment.

SAYS ACT WAS IN THE SPIRIT OF JEFFERSON

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 18.—Desire for world peace was the most compelling motive in the negotiations that led to recognition of the Soviet Union, President Roosevelt declared today.

Addressing an audience of 40,000 in commemoration of Georgia's 200th birthday, the nation's chief executive pointed to the bridging of Soviet isolation as an act "in the spirit of Thomas Jefferson."

Amid the cheers of the vast crowd that filled every seat in the stadium, Mr. Roosevelt also digressed long enough to chide those people in disagreement with the nation's monetary policy, adding as he had done before, "that we cannot cure in the short space of one year the chronic illness that has beset us for a dozen years, nor restore the social and economic order with equal and simultaneous success in every part of the nation and every walk of life."

"It is the pioneering spirit and understanding perspective of the people of the United States which already is making itself felt among other nations of the world," the president said.

"The simple translation of the peaceful and neighborly purposes of the United States has already given to our sister American republics a greater faith in the professions of friendship than they have held since the time over a century ago when James Monroe encouraged them in their struggles for freedom."

LITVINOFF SEEKS TRADE ARRANGEMENTS
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18.—A rapid growth of American trade and new alignments in world politics appeared today as the likely first fruits of renewed diplomatic relations between Washington and Moscow.

Happy, following his greatest diplomatic victory, Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff sought today to complete arrangements for trade. He was expected to confer during the next two days with officials of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and other government economic agencies.

Terracing Machine Won by Boys Arrives
The terracing machine donated by the Brown Tool company, of Breckenridge, and won by the Cisco and Part-time F. F. A. chapters for having done the most terracing in this F. F. A. district, arrived Saturday morning. Vocational Instructor Jim Bird announced.

The two chapters, having won this machine, are eligible to compete in a state-wide contest for a larger one, also donated by the Brown Tool company. They will enter this contest, Mr. Bird said.

At a meeting of the Part-time chapter at the Lutheran school, Thursday evening, a policy under which the machine will be operated was determined upon.

At that same meeting President Alvin Wendt of the chapter, named committee members whose duty will be to draw up a program of work for the chapter this year. These committees are to report at the next meeting.

RUSSIAN RECOGNITION

American recognition of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, more conveniently known as the Soviet Union, has responded to a preponderantly favorable opinion in the United States, judging from an editorial survey made some time ago by the American Foundation.

In the United States and in the Soviet Union the economic implications involved in the diplomatic act receive the most attention. Russia in the past, in spite of this government's fictitious assumption of no Soviet government at all, has made large purchases here.

Now, however, with the American government having, in effect, informed Russia that the Soviet Union is recognized by this nation as existing, as representative, as responsible, and, therefore, as a respectable member of the family of nations, the two countries may delegate representatives to sit down together and arrive at an accord upon the methods by which they will govern trade intercourse of their nationals.

Roosevelt's announcement yesterday that a desire for world peace was the foremost motive in this government's recognition of Russia means, in the last analysis, that world peace can be served by admitting Russia to a world convention that promotes the best economic interest of all.

STEEL IS SATISFIED

The steel industry's request for a six months extension of the code under which it has been operating and the granting of that request by the national recovery administration, apparently set at rest an apprehension that had arisen to the effect that steel would eschew further experience with the fair competition agreement which will have ended three months of effect Sunday.

There had been talk and even published predictions that steel would refuse to continue under its code at the expiration of the tentative period, and also that the automobile industry will not ask for an extension when the initial period of the agreement under which it is operating expires December 31.

City Officials and Newspapermen Enjoy Rare Evening With Wild Duck a la Hunt

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hunt, of the Lake Cisco Amusement company, Friday evening were hosts at their Lake Cisco lodge with a wild duck dinner for members of the city officials family and the Cisco Daily News.

The game fowl, which Mrs. Hunt herself had shot as well as placed in her rare manner, was the piece de resistance of a meal served to a group of guests that included Mayor J. T. Berry, Coman's H. A. Bible, J. R. Burnett and H. C. Henderson.

Some of those who enjoyed that hospitality were present on the previous occasion when a custom was begun which the Hunts promised Friday night they would continue as long as they are at Lake Cisco.

WILL THEY CARRY HIM?

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

It has been advocated to Specs that Specs advocate some sort of a "trade-pulling" program for Cisco between now and Christmas.

J. J. Collins, hardware merchant, suggested that D Avenue, the Main Street of Cisco, be decorated with the light streamers and, perhaps, the Christmas trees that in past seasons have made the business area of Cisco a Christmas-tide attraction among small cities.

Back in the flush years some Cisco benefactor had a brilliant idea and that year the busy thoroughfare was roofed with a multi-colored web-work of tiny lights.

The period of the decoration roughly extended from Turkey day to Christmas and the latter end of the year was made much more pleasant and suggestive of its usually happy season by this evidence of the interest of home town people in the place of their residence.

There should be little need of reminding you folks of what used to be, but for the fact that of late I have noticed numbers of faces that are carried about as if they belong here but which are quite strange to my eyes.

Coupled with the fact that there are few desirable houses to be obtained in all this city — compared with the ease of obtaining such a year or so ago — this presence of strangers argues that the dwindled ranks are filling up and perhaps there is reason and opportunity for a more enthusiastic attack upon the problem of walking up the dizzying civic morale.

I don't know what should be done to stir up any movement. You business men should attend to that, but with the new money that is evident in the trade areas from which we invite business it occurs to me that there is now an opportunity to make an investment in community business enterprise pay.

It has gotten to the point that J. T. Elliott and myself have been thinking seriously of deserting civilization, cranking his still extant and still bucking public jumper and seeking Alaska or Colorado or some other remote spot to look for gold.

The fact that only about half of those listed for work on the Leary cut-off project reported Thursday for the initial dirt-moving ceremonies was an astonishing report to most readers who had taken it a matter for granted that the highway department would be swamped with demands for employment.

The fact is capable of more than one interpretation, but it does indicate that the men or either employed or don't want to be employed. In view of the experience of the department in other projects started in the depression, it is safe to say that they were employed. Times of doubt, are not as bad as they once were and things are getting better.

In the newspaper profession it is often the veteran who commits the worst error; in automobilizing it is more than likely the most experienced driver who is guilty of the most egregious mishandling of the machine, and now, in hunting, it is a man who has hunted everything in the catalogue, from bear to rabbit, who is guilty of mistakes.

The UNKNOWN BLOND

By Laura Lou BROOKMAN

ON A stormy November evening DAVID BANNISTER meets a pretty blond girl and offers her a lift in the cab in which he is riding. Her handbag opens and he sees a revolver inside.

THE pain in his back was sharp and knife-like. Bannister's face twisted in agony but he did not cry out. It was his assailant that became vocal with a sharp, angry, "Me-ow!" and then repeated it again, "Me-ow! me-ow!"

Bannister stooped quickly and picked it up.

But was it a cat? Bannister had never seen such a creature. For a moment he thought it was a monkey. No, it couldn't be. It was drawing away from him, issuing hissing noises that were unmistakably unfriendly, unmistakably feline.

All this while Bannister had been kneeling. Now he set the animal on the floor, got to his feet. "Me-ow!" cried the cat and backed away.

The fur over its eyes and nose and covering its chin was very dark — almost black — with the definite outline of a mask. From out this mask bright blue eyes gazed with a sinister leer. The ears were dark, too, and the feet and tail. The rest of the body was brown, shading from rich chestnut on the back to creamy ivory on the chest.

A cat? Yes, Bannister knew what it was now. The masked face made it look rather like a monkey or a raccoon but it was a cat all right. A Siamese cat, a member of that cat family known as "royal" because for centuries they were pets of Siamese royalty.

The man rubbed his bruised shoulders. "All right," he said, "we'll call it a truce—so long as you don't try that trick again! Lord, what claws! Keep your distance and I'll keep mine."

There were two windows in the bedroom. One on the south and one on the west. Bannister stepped to the nearest of them and looked out. Nothing below but a spooch pound . . . 15c hind a boxwood hedge. It was a neat cottage, rather old-fashioned. Shades were drawn at the windows. Bannister knew the place. It belonged to old Judge Price, retired now and living in Florida.

But there was nothing to be seen from that window to explain the brownish stain on the carpet. That, of course, must be where they had found Tracy King's body.

Bannister turned, giving his attention once more to the interior of the bedroom. It must have been rather untidy even before the detectives had made their search. There seemed to be so much in the room: a bed; a chest of drawers — several of them pulled out and spilling their contents; two chairs, one of white leather of modernist design; a night table holding a carafe and empty glass; a wardrobe trunk tilted on end; a small radio. Golf clubs sprawled in one corner. There was a stack of magazines on the radiator and a pile of music on the floor. There seemed to be ever so many smaller articles in the room, too — brushes and toilet articles on top of the chest of drawers; a large mirror above it; a photograph in a silver frame showing a pretty girl smiling — Denise Lang; a cocktail shaker on the trunk; a sweater and suit of clothes hanging across the back of one of the chairs. On the wall Bannister noted a large framed photograph of Tracy King himself. There were some others which Bannister assumed to be theatrical acquaintances. One he recognized as a Broadway star. Most of these photographs had inscriptions written across one corner.

Yes, the place was certainly chaotic. And yet there was nothing there that seemed out of keeping with what Bannister had learned about Tracy King. A vain man, no doubt. Extravagant or he would not have been living at the Shelby Arms. A young man who liked to give parties, judging from the tall glasses and bottles Bannister had seen in the living room. A young man, above all, who liked to have a good time and generally succeeded.

learned about Tracy King. A vain man, no doubt. Extravagant or he would not have been living at the Shelby Arms. A young man who liked to give parties, judging from the tall glasses and bottles Bannister had seen in the living room.

THE door of the clothes closet was ajar. Bannister drew it back, then whistled softly to himself. Tracy King must certainly have had a weakness for clothes! Rows of suits hung there — two dozen at least. They were in shades ranging from pale beige to black. A plushy brown overcoat stood out bulky and beside it was a tweed top coat. There were sweaters and leather jackets and even a silk-lined evening cape. A white mess jacket and a tall coat hung side by side. On the floor were shoes—more than a dozen pair—and on the shelf above Bannister could see several hats.

He closed the door with a murmur, half of disgust. It was just as he turned to go back to the living room that the object on the floor caught his eye. Bannister stooped quickly and picked it up. He was studying it a moment later when he heard the outer door open. Bannister dropped the object inside his pocket. An instant later Link, the hotel clerk, appeared in the bedroom doorway.

"Sorry to be gone so long," he apologized. "I thought it would only be a moment but there are so many things—" He did not complete the sentence. "The place is upset," he went on. "Nothing goes right. It's been that way since last night."

parment in other projects started in the depression, it is safe to say that they were employed. Times of doubt, are not as bad as they once were and things are getting better.

In the newspaper profession it is often the veteran who commits the worst error; in automobilizing it is more than likely the most experienced driver who is guilty of the most egregious mishandling of the machine, and now, in hunting, it is a man who has hunted everything in the catalogue, from bear to rabbit, who is guilty of mistakes.

"The air was full of white feathers," choked K. H. Pittard, who roared his way from one end of avenue to the other, slapping his legs and guffawing enough to alarm the Cisco police department. "Pat, don't that boys!"

"Things thought he had killed every 'duck' in the lot, and was scowled up."

Pittard hasn't fully recovered from the experience and O. J. Thillingham draws a sheep grin every time he sees his erstwhile "pal."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The big packers, spanked once, are back for more of the same.

Their newly-proposed marketing agreement, contents of which are guarded closely, looks like the first one offered.

The first one was turned down by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace because it didn't assure better cattle, sheep, and hog prices for farmers and didn't protect consumers. Independent packers didn't think it was so sweet, either.

Now the Big Four return as if to sing, like the Three Little Pigs, "Who's afraid . . . ?"

If this keeps on, and unless the AAA changes its policy, the packers are likely to find themselves threatened with imposition of federal licenses. Roosevelt has promised Wallace complete backing in any decision as to packers.

Allocation of the amount of purchased meat animals among packers still is provided by the revised code. Each packer would now the amount of the others' bids.

Competitive bidding at Chicago now is the farmer's only price protection, according to the liberal group in AAA, and if packers knew they weren't bidding against one another they could bring down prices. Virtual control of supply by the Big Four would make for monopoly.

Then the American Institute of Meat Packers, which presents the agreement and proposes to make allocations, would establish prices and differentials in various territories. Opponents say this would end price competition in selling.

The A. I. M. P. also still insists on allowing the NRA only partial access to its members' books, which is another point at issue.

SINCE Sol Bloom's Italian cook chased a Fascist diplomat with a carving knife, the social racket here has had no such excitement as that caused by Mussolini's order that his government's officials marry or resign.

The surprise of Ambassador Augusto Rosso, of Lieut. Col. Marco Penaroli, military aide; of First Secretary Bartolomeo Misone, of Secretaries Andrea Ferrero and Giuseppe Tommasi—all bachelors—was equalled only by excited speculation around town as to what they were going to do about it.

Thus far any moves these gents have made to get off the spot have been made strictly in private.

JUST before Envoy Maxim Litvinov arrived, Soviet Representative Boris E. Skvirsky gave his last large annual dinner party for friends. The occasion was the 16th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution. Candelsticks, nut baskets, autumn leaves, plates and other trimmings were in red.

Appetizers of caviar on blintzes and sturgeon, borscht, lobster patties, chicken with pea-stuffed artichokes, pate de foie gras and baked ice cream gave everyone plenty to eat. Russian newsreels were shown.

Skvirsky doesn't wear evening clothes at his own parties. He left Russia before Moscow entered international diplomacy in a big way.

Heavy Industry in Russia Shows Gain

MOECOW, Nov. 18 — A considerable increase in the average productivity per worker and the fine showing of the automotive industry are the chief favorable developments in the first nine months of this year in the Soviet Union's heavy industry, complete figures just published indicate.

Heavy industry showed an output of 9.6 per cent above the same months a year ago. That is substantially below the plan but the increase was achieved despite the dismissal of tens of thousands of workers.

REAT BATTLE FOUGHT OVER FRENCH WINE

PARIS, Nov. 18.—A great commercial battle is being fought over French wine.

On one side are the producers of one of the smallest but one of the finest crops in years, and opposing them are dealers, some of whom sought options on the grapes before they were picked.

Prospects of an early boom in the port trade appear to have made dealers willing to take a long chance on the eventual market, largely as a result of American prohibition refusal, but the producers are holding out for a better market.

At Barzy-sur-Marne, a large part of the crop was sold to a new champagne house for one franc, 50 centimes (six cents at par) per kilogram before harvesting.

While some Bordeaux proprietors still have from one-fourth to one-third of the 1932 wines on hand, prices reportedly are soaring in offers for the 1933 vintages. High class vintages command up to 5,000 and 6,000 francs per barrel of 220 quarts before the market is definitely established.

Many proprietors in the Saint Emilion region of Bordeaux estimate the reduction in quantity at less than 30 per cent under 1932, which was a low year. Some champagne crops were a third below normal also.

Burgundy and Alsace report a much less quantity although the wine is of excellent quality. The vintners everywhere foresee a bullish market with prices better than any since several years back when eventually the producers are ready to sell.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

Coaching Situation

REVOLT against Coach Sam Willaman and Athletic Director W. St. John at Ohio State since the Michigan victory has brought to light a strange situation.

Some of the players leading on the job . . . others quitting cold turkey . . . and the campus at Columbus all agog. You may be interested in some of the following talk:

Sam seems incapable of getting the boys to go out there and play their heads off for him . . . certain football critics say he is a good coach technically . . . others declare he has messed up the wing-back system until you wouldn't know it.

Telling It to Padlow

THERE'S the case of Padlow, and . . . a young man inclined to loaf in practice. Sam tried to get him peevish by bawling him out before the squad . . . which Padlow scented . . . Padlow's trouble with Willaman started when he was called for allowing the first Michigan touchdown while the squad looked at movies of the game . . . then the end threatened to quit and aired his grievance, he found many supporters, including some plummy newspapermen who have been taking after Willaman.

They say a pat on the back would have made a good end out of Padlow . . . but he's a sulker now . . . and that same thing is true in the case of Rosequist, who "ought to be the best tackle in the country." . . . Dissension on the squad has fostered friendships and enmities that are not forgotten during the actual games . . . thus, the boys won't block for Carl Cramer because he is regarded as "teacher's pet." . . . The boys are blocking for . . . they like him . . . watch in go!

feat Disastrous

WHEN there's this angle State adherents have come to view a mistake the placing of the Michigan game as the third on

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

PARKE H. DAVIS still insists that the longest forward pass ever thrown in a football game traveled 87 yards . . . it was from Bradbury Robinson to John Schneider . . . and it helped St. Louis to beat Kansas in the merry year of 1906.

The next longest, Davis continues, was pitched by Brick Muller to Howard Stephens . . . 70 yards, on behalf of California against Ohio State in the Rose Bowl game of 1920. . . Maybe you don't remember Red Grange as a passer, but he could heave that leather neatly . . . he's down in the books with a 49-yard line to Leonard in the 1925 Michigan game . . . and a 25-yard pass to Kassel . . . the throw that won the game from Nebraska in 1934.

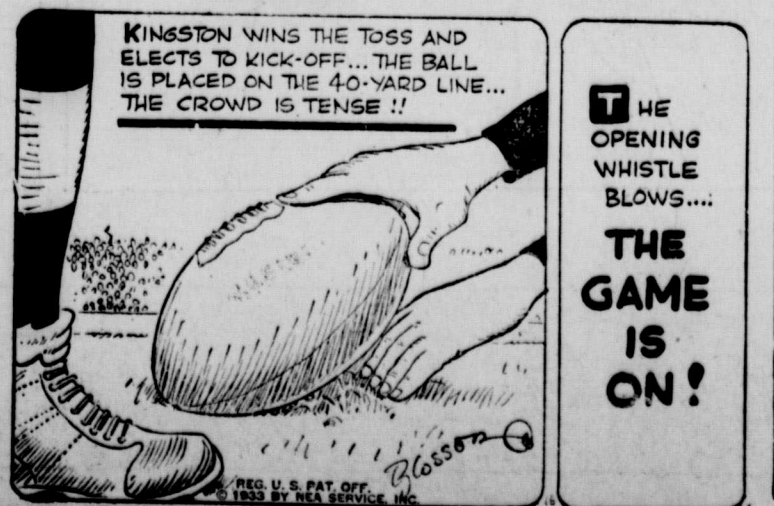

One of the finest passes in the book is that 60-yarder from Cruickshank to Sturgis the pass that enabled little Bucknell to beat powerful Pitt 20 years ago.

the schedule . . . if the game were later, Ohio could take a defeat without it being so disastrous, either artistically or financially. St. John has agreed to the third game theory with the idea of assuring at least one big crowd per season, but now he is beginning to come around to the idea that Michigan should be played later.

But Mister Yost of Michigan will have a lot to say about that, as he has been strong for the third game setup . . . and why not? . . . with the great teams Michigan has been enjoying.

Maybe Willaman is slated to get the ax after this season. . . Then we come to the question: Who will succeed him? . . . The job used to pay $6500 . . . but took a fat cut a year or so ago. . . How many famous coaches would rush into the Ohio hotbed at those prices?

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY SISTER MARY NEA Service Staff Writer

THE home-maker who must practice strict economy will find it well worth her while to cure a ham and shoulder and side of pork at home. It's much less trouble than the uninitiated imagine and home-cured ham is something to be proud of.

Lard, too, can be tried out in one's own kitchen to good advantage and home-rendered lard is satisfactory in every way.

Naturally the smoking can't be accomplished at home, but as most butchers have their own arrangements for smoking meats, they are willing to look after this part of the curing for their customers.

There are two common methods of curing pork. "Sugar cured" meats are usually considered the finest. Although those cured in brine are preferred by some persons.

To Sugar Cure Pork. Fifty pounds meat, 2 1/2 pounds salt, 2 1/2 ounces pepper, 1-2 ounce saltpeter, 2 cups molasses.

Rub about 1 tablespoon table salt around the bone of ham and shoulder. Rub both sides of meat well with molasses. Mix salt, pepper and saltpeter thoroughly and rub well into the meat. Use about one-third of the mixture and let stand three days. Rub two more times at three-day intervals, making three rubbings in all. Let stand in a cool, dry place for from four to six weeks. The famous Virginia ham is allowed to cure from two and one-half to three months. At the end of the curing period the meat is smoked or not, as preferred. Hang up in a cool, dry place.

To Cure With Brine. First rub each ham or shoulder with 1 tablespoon powdered saltpeter. Rub around the bone with 1 teaspoon black pepper. Mix

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Grapefruit, cereal, cream, crisp broiled bacon, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Cream of parsnip soup, toasted crackers, celery hearts, whole wheat rolls, peach butter, milk, tea.

DINNER: Slice of ham baked in sweet cider, mashed sweet potatoes, broccoli with Dutch sauce, jellied fruit salad, cheese cups, floating island, milk, coffee.

1 1/2 pounds brown sugar with 2 cups salt and rub meat well with this. This quantity is enough for fifty pounds of meat. Put a layer of salt in the bottom of a tub. Put in meat, skin side down. Sprinkle with salt and add more meat. Let stand in this salt for eight days.

Take out meat, wipe off all the salt and wash tub. Combine 4 ounces of saltpeter, 8 cups molasses, 2 cups salt and 2 gallons of water. Boil and skim. When cool pour over meat in tub. The brine should cover the meat. Let stand in brine four or five weeks, turning meat once a week to be sure it is curing evenly. Bacon will cure in three weeks. Remove from brine and smoke.

"Leaf" lard may be bought in any butcher shop or city market and tried out at home. Cut fat in small pieces. Put into a large kettle with just enough water to cover bottom of kettle. This prevents scorching when fat is first put over the fire. Cook slowly, stirring frequently, until the pieces of fat are crisp and crackly. Strain through cheesecloth into crocks. If you haven't a lard press put the cracklings into a jelly bag and squeeze out as much lard as possible.

Do not smoke. Remove from brine and smoke.

Daughter of Cabby Is Social Leader

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 18 — The recent marriage of Eleanor Curran to Major Eric R. Loder of Britain revived the story of how the daughter of a New Orleans hack driver rose to rule the highest social circles of Europe and America. She was noted for her beauty, while still a child. She was working here as a telegraph operator when she met a young Italian, Count Guglielmo Moroni, an attaché at the Italian consulate here. They fell in love and eloped to the Gulf coast. The couple moved in exclusive circles throughout this country. On a visit in the East, the young count and countess met Colonel Robert Colt, the revolver king. The count soon left the service of his government and accepted a position with the Colt company in the Far East. The countess remained behind and while a house guest at the Colt estate near Providence, R. I., she met Sir Mortimer Davis, a Canadian multi-millionaire. They fell in love. The countess secured a divorce and married Sir Mortimer. They became familiar figures in the capitals of Europe. In 1928 Sir Mortimer died, leaving an estate worth $15,000,000 divided equally between his wife and only son. Since that time Lady Eleanor has continued to reside abroad. She recently was married for the third time to Major Loder, grandson of the late Sir Robert Loder.

CLEAN FOOTBALL by JOCK SUTHERLAND FAMOUS PITTS COACH

THE rules state that a lineman may make use of his arms, if he keeps his hands together, if he does this he may legally use the projecting parts of his arms on offense. This rule gives the linemen a great many opportunities for poor sportsmanship. The accompanying sketch shows why. Here the offensive lineman at left is attempting to throw his opponent backward. His hands are poned together, which is intended to mislead the referee, but his arms are NOT close to his body. He has thrown them out and up, catching his opponent under the chin and delivering a blow that can break the defensive lineman's neck. Officials cannot be too strict on this type of play. The penalty of half the distance to the goal line is hardly stiff enough.

League Radio Will Broadcast News

GENEVA, Nov. 18 — The wireless department of the League of Nations has announced that it is prepared to broadcast weekly bulletins in Portuguese to Brazil and other parts of South America, from Radio-Nations, the League's wireless station. These bulletins, which would aim at giving League news of special interest to Latin-America, would last from five to seven minutes, to be followed by Latin-American diplomats resident here, or attending international conferences. The final decision with regard to the carrying out of this program will depend upon whether South American wireless organizations and the public wish it. League wireless experts believe that if the plan is to be successful South American broadcasting stations must be willing to co-operate and perhaps to re-broadcast League programs to stations in South America.

Golden Age Ends for Mexican Borderites

EL PASO, Nov. 18 — The 14-year-old golden age appears to be about ended for brewers, distillers and saloon owners of Mexican border towns.

Legalization of 32 beer in the United States has reduced the "border barons" to what approximates hard times for them, and repeal of the 18th amendment is the knockout blow.

From Tijuana to Juarez to Matamoros a pall of pessimism hangs over once crowded and gay drinking resorts.

Agua Caliente in Lower California, once the play place of Hollywood, faces virtual extinction as a mecca for Americans because of legalization of liquor in California.

At Juarez cafe men admitted 32 beer in Texas had cut into their profits to an extent where now they operate in many instances at a loss.

Practically the only place in Juarez making money from American patronage is the Tivoli gambling casino. Even there, however, the flow of gold has been curtailed. The days of huge bets are over. Ten-cent chips are in demand.

Situated at the end of the International bridge the casino usually is crowded, but its gambling facilities appear to be the only attraction. There's beer here for those who want it.

With the prospect that their glittering establishments soon will become counterparts of the "ghost" mining camps of the southwest, many Mexican caterers to the American thirsty are rushing to enter the liquor industry in the United States. Distillery and brewery owners are considering proposals to move to the United States, leaving most of their $1,500,000 investment behind.
