CHANGING THE APPOINTMENT BASIS

Legislative committee investigation to locate 200,000 "missing" scholastics, principally in southern Texas counties, points attention to a more earnest legislative sentiment for changing the basis of appropriating school maintenance funds. It has been often advocated, by leading educators and regional organizations and in the form of proposed legislation, that the basis upon which the money supplied by the state school tax is allocated among the schools be changed from a scholastic census to the actual attendance upon the schools. Opposition to such revision has been effective from sections which have a much larger scholastic census than school enrollment. The motive is obvious. These sections are the more populous areas of east and south Texas where large negro and Mexican elements contribute much to the sum of the scholastics and little to the expenses of the schools. White scholastics of the east and south sections of Texas, under the present arrangement, receive a larger appropriation per capita in the ratio that their extra-school population is greater than the extra-school populations of west Texas counties. A larger element of negroes do not attend school and such as do attend do not usually advance beyond the elementary grades. The cost of educating them is made considerably less. They are, in fact, exploited in the sense that their heads are valuable in a tally, but their minds are of little account. At the same time this neglect works to a discrimination against west Texas counties and others of lesser extra-school scholastics by providing the former counties with larger payments out of the school fund than they are proportionately entitled to on the basis of the children their institutions actually attempt to care for. It amounts to west Texas tax-payers paying certain east and south Texas counties a tax tribute.

More than this, the expense of annually taking a census of the school communities runs into a large sum which might well be saved to the students.

The proposed system of allocating the funds on the basis of the children actually attending the schools has logical appeal for both financial and academic reasons. It would insure equitable distribution on the basis of the actual needs of each school. The system would reasonably be expected to cut down the numerical strength of the "basis," but the appropriation would be raised per unit to adjust that condition, while the elimination of such "missing" scholastics as the 200,000 the legislative committee is now trying to find, would increase the appropriation even above what it would proportionately be under the present system. This does not include the further saving to be realized on the costs of census-taking, which may require a constitutional amendment.

From the standpoint of educational gain, the change would have benefits to commend it for their value alone. Instead of having heads counted for their apportionment worth, there would be a counting of heads in the class rooms. There would be a definite effort toward putting every available child in school and keeping that child there. School populations would be a matter of greater concern in areas where the marginal classifications now get earnest attention during the month of March and a "lick and a promise," colloquially speaking, during the remainder of the year. Needless to say, this would mean improvement in educational advantages where improvement is most needed, with a resulting benefit in the literacy level of the state. In other words apportionment on the basis of actual attendance would put a premium on efficiency and a penalty on laxity in classroom education.

THE COLONEL'S IN CONFERENCE

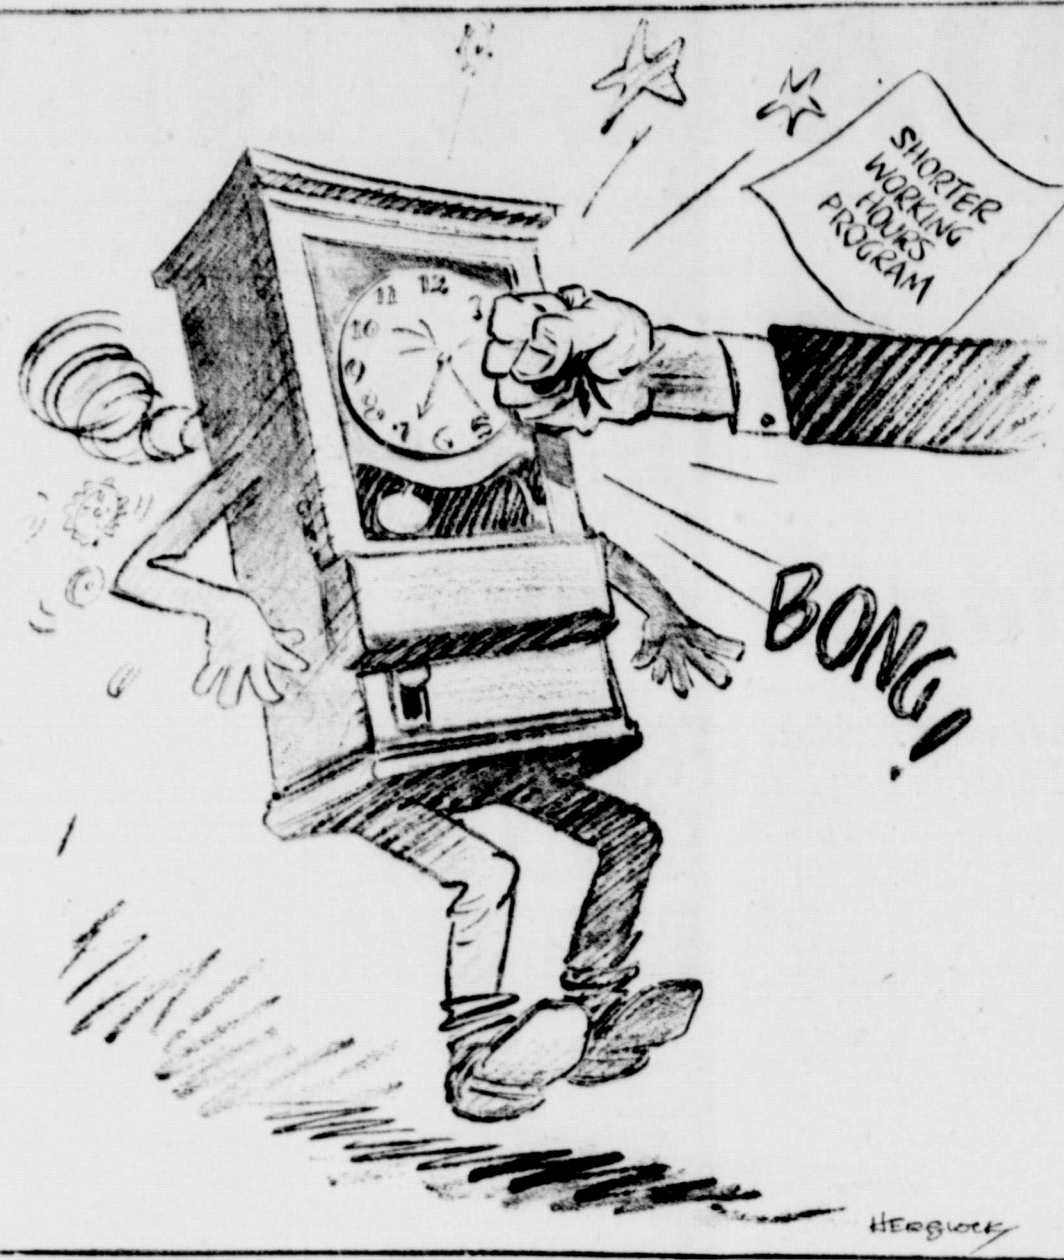

The administration and Col. Lindbergh are publicly on good terms despite the recent "strained relations" that resulted from the flying colonel's criticism of the summary action of cancelling the airmail contracts and the White House retort. Sec'y of War Dern has recognized the authority of the American aviation idol by requesting, ostensibly, at least, and receiving, also ostensibly, at least, some of the technical advice the colonel is paid to hand out to two private companies, one of them a loser by the government's starting abrogation. The government is about the only agency that can legitimately request advice that private concerns pay for. The colonel, whose success in flying is due as much to a temperate mind and a methodical care for the essential details of his job, as to an intimate knowledge of the science of aerodynamics, can speak with an authority for that very reason. The most air-educated flier may be an unwise one and therefore an unsuccessful one. The colonel is entitled to be heard because he seems, with his knowledge, to possess the essential attitude toward flying from which knowledge and the lessons of experience must be judged before they can be applied in reform.

The administration, also, seems to have the right attitude toward the colonel. He is quite too important a factor in relation to American public opinion, and the world, for that matter, to be ignored, much less spurned. The administration could not well afford to deal the opposition such an ace.

NAGGING DEFINED

The chief justice of the high court of Quebec has defined nagging as "the constant reiteration of an unpleasant truth." There is much food for domestic thought in that succinct definition. Obviously, it admits the rightness of the nagger, which will please the tight-lipped "I told you so," who thinks more of rightness than policy; and, obviously, again, it implies a shrewdness that is far from being a lovely characteristic. Who is to blame for nagging? the nagger or the nagged? If the unpleasantness is a truth, it would appear that there is some ground for the repetition, eh wot?

PUNCHING THE TIME CLOCK

Said General Johnson to Citizen Pinchot

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Gov. Clifford Pinchot is the distinguished chief magistrate of Pennsylvania. Gen. Hugh Johnson is the fiery chief of the NRA army. Gov. Pinchot is a candidate for the United States senate, "running as a republican but pledging himself to support President Roosevelt's policy if elected." Mrs. Pinchot made a scorching attack on the NRA. Campaigning for her husband, Citizen Pinchot said that in certain Pennsylvania towns she had not been permitted to speak. Gen. Johnson is a West Pointer. Citizen Pinchot is a fiery warrior for the downtrodden. Gen. Johnson read the biting comment of Citizen Pinchot. He placed this in cold type in order that it might be given a place in the American scrapbook: "I was sorry I couldn't welcome Mrs. Pinchot and discuss her statement. Apparently she did not know the labor cases for which she held us responsible are before the national labor board which has done its utmost to compose them. When she held us responsible for the Pennsylvania towns which would not allow her to speak I would like to ask her who is governor of Pennsylvania." That Johnson bullet must have hit the target plumb center. There is said to be a million organized labor votes in Pennsylvania. More than 300,000 miners are card men. In his two successful races for the office of governor, the miners, mostly democrats, threw their united support to Pinchot and thus placed him at the head of the government of the Quaker state. Now where will these democratic miners go in the senatorial race this year?

It has been satisfactory during the dr

Speaking of the petroleum industry, the enormous possibilities of the East Texas oil field are shown in a recent report of the United States bureau of mines. Ultimate recovery from the so-called East Texas field is estimated by the bureau at anywhere from 1,500,000,000 barrels to 3,000,000,000 barrels. Daily production, it is said by a well known authority from the East Texas field was 447,000 barrels in November, 1933, even with practically every well pinched in below its actual capacity.

Less interest so far has been shown in city politics this year than in many. Although the date for the election of three commissioners to fill many vacancies on the municipal governing body is at hand, no opponents to the three interest elsewhere. We may optimistically explain that beckoning better times have wooed the interest of those who normally stir the political pot, and that these are content to let the brew, agitated no end since the depression hit, remain in a lukewarm condition.

That would indicate a number of things, including a lack of interest in municipal affairs, or a greater interest elsewhere. We may optimistically explain that beckoning better times have wooed the interest of those who normally stir the political pot, and that these are content to let the brew, agitated no end since the depression hit, remain in a lukewarm condition.

It is a fact that politics is a hungry dog's bone (overlook the scream and the metaphors, please); and the subject is well chewed when times are bad and the public disposition is worse.

Mayor Berry yesterday was wondering what had become of politics. He ought to be thankful the thing has gone somewhere else, and he ought to be hopeful it will stay where it has gone at least until over next year. He could then raise his salary, perhaps, or at least not have to cut it any more.

(Since I wrote the above, I learn that the names of three other candidates will be added to the list so that the incumbents will have competition. Petitions required for placing the names of candidates on the ballot were being circulated this morning for L. F. Mendenhall, W. J. Donovan and W. P. Moore).

A Harvard professor, says a magazine item, occasionally punctures the conceit of his students by an assignment to write the states of the union from memory in 15 minutes. How many can you?—no fair peeping!

Miss Attie Stevens' west ward rhythm band, tiny "sixes and sevens" in red and white uniforms, did themselves proud at Eastland Saturday. Miss Ora Howell directs the music for the little band which has been in existence for two years. The Cisco tots won first place in the county over real competition and their success is something to be proud of.

A true sense of rhythm is the basis of all musical appreciation and without that sense a person is as much at loss in the beautiful language of the emotions as he or she would be at loss among the difficulties of English without a knowledge of grammar.
The foundation for musical knowledge and understanding that is being laid in the minds of these youngsters of the second and third grades is perhaps Miss Stevens' most valuable contribution to the educational value of the Cisco schools and Miss Howell's best gift to local musical culture.

Death of Dr. J. W. Hunt, Abilene, founder and president of McMurry college, brings a sense of deep loss not only to Methodists and religious denominations in general but to all west Texas of which the dynamic and courageous educator and church leader was a product so vibrantly in tune. He was born in the west and the fibres of his character were drawn from its influences. He was reared about the red fires of the cattle camps, upon the open range, under the stars of an open heaven, and his sensitive soul was so impressed with the spiritual beauties of these scenes that the essence of them lived in the magic of his oratory.

I heard him for the first time at Brownwood at a state convention of Lions clubs and when I was tired of speechmaking and wanted to go back to Eastland where I worked. But the first few words that he uttered sat me up. At the end of a short 15 minutes, while the entire convention stood and insistently cheered, I was mentally tingling, and intimately resentful that he had merely begun and then stopped.

He was gifted with a voice. It was a vibrant thing, full of pathos and humor. He could turn his audience from laughter to tears with an inflection and a word. Few speakers were so gifted. His vocal powers were a blend of experience and character, a depth, a courage and a vitality, a vigorous almost fanatical missionary spirit of reform. He had many who called him enemy; but none who did not respect him.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?
By EDSON K. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.
Science seems to be the most exacting of dictators. She lays down the law remorselessly in governing our hearts, our minds, and even our appetites.
Not all professors are engaged in running the country and telling us what we must do and what we can't do, but some of them are telling us what we should eat. When we have something the matter with us, a lot of things we don't like.

An English professor recently addressed a medical school and in doing so did a good service to the slaves of science when he cleared away some old ideas. For instance, he had had too much of this most tedious of foods, but we have persevered with it because science, in one of her lighter moods, once assured us that it keeps down weight. But now the learned professor, with a merry laugh, tells us that toast will make us fat. So we can eat something else.

The professor says a slice of bread is richer in calories and produce more weight than a slice of nice fat oysters. So those who afford them and want to be thin and happen to live where they get good oysters need be made no longer.

Well, we still have the two classes of people—those who eat to live and those who live to eat, and the latter will continue to eat everything that looks and tastes good that will have the money to buy.

Relics of Old Boat Are Found in Mud

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 13 — CWA workers digging in the Des Moines river bed here recently uncovered the anchor and other metal fixtures of "The Golden Eagle," semi-legendary paddle-wheel steamer of the old river days.

The ancient 50-foot craft was constructed to make the run between Keokuk and Fort Dodge, but old timers recalled that the trip had never been made. Two things, or rather the lack of them, kept the "Golden Eagle" from taking flight—water and passengers.

If there was enough water in the river to float the boat, passengers invariably failed to show up. And the one or two times when the pride of the waterfront did have a full passenger list, the river resembled a mud flat.

Each Spring "Commodore" Viggers, the owner, repainted the boat in picturesque colors. A stirring christening also was held at each painting time. A crew was hired. The whistle was blown long and loud.

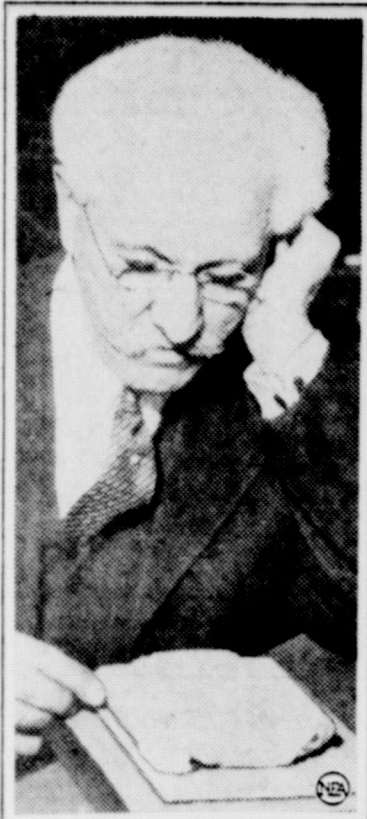

But it was no use. When there was water, there were no passengers; when there were passengers, there was no water. The "Golden Eagle" finally sank in 1914, and as completely forgotten until the recent discoveries.

Tablet Bares Lost History

The small clay tablet which Dr. James H. Hunt, famed authority on the ancient Orient, is studying here, reveals history long hidden of Assyrian monarchs from 2400 to 740 B. C. Written in cuneiform (wedge-shaped characters), it was found in the ruins of King Sargon's palace in Khorsabad.

Child Theater Is Opened in Fresno

FRENSO, Cal., March 13 — Unique in its class, California's first Children's theater was operating full swing here today.

The old woman who lived in the shoe, portrayed by a serious little miss not yet 12 years old, recited biting Mother Goose rhymes beside a curly-haired schoolgirl, who recited was Little Red Riding Hood at least for a day.

The theater was conceived by a group of Fresno State college drama students under direction of John Willis Wright, college drama director.

The project was launched in February, when first tryouts were held in the Greenroom laboratory, ultra-modernistic workshop of the College Theater, the college's thespian organization.

Children between the ages of 8 and 12 years were eligible for the initial trials for membership. Encouraged by the number of parents

Doctors Give Creosote For Chest Colds

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on. Creosolium with creosote and six other highly important medical elements, quickly and effectively stops coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble. Creosolium is powerful in the treatment of colds and coughs, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take. Your own druggist guarantees Creosolium by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creosolium as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creosolium on hand for instant use.—Adv.

It means something—

Perhaps the best type of machine ever built for moistening tobacco. Recently perfected from a model built in our factory and now used in the manufacture of Chesterfield Cigarettes.

This picture shows the machines used to remove the stems from Chesterfield tobacco.

THIS most modern way of moistening tobacco for stemming—first used in the manufacture of Chesterfields—opens up the pores and puts the tobacco in condition to remove the stems.

The tobacco is put into the wire baskets stems down and enters the long steel ovens where the steam comes up from below, softening the stems without wetting the rest of the leaf.

The stems are removed by stemming machines of the latest type.

Everything that modern science knows about, or money can buy, that can make a milder cigarette, a cigarette that tastes better, is used in making Chesterfield.

Cardui a Good Tonic

"After the birth of my little one that I needed a tonic to give me strength to do my work," writes Mrs. G. A. Bounds, of Plain Dealing, La. "My mother had used Cardui with good results. I, too, I again needed a tonic. Cardui being so reliable, I took it and haven't regretted it. I have also given Cardui to my daughter. I am very much pleased with Cardui, and expect to use it in my family as a tonic, when needed. Buy Cardui at the drug store."

BARTER FOR LIQUOR

NEW ORLEANS, March 13 — A New Orleans liquor importing concern paid for the largest shipment of intoxicating beverages to pass over the border here since repeal of the eighteenth amendment — 40,000 cases from Mexico — with commodities, land, onions, shoes, other wearing apparel and groceries, instead of money.

who brought their children to the first trials, Wright announced additional tryouts would be held in the near future.

Objectives of the theater, according to Wright, are direction of the pupil's energies, social integration and recreational activity.

Original members will continue as members for 10 weeks, during which rehearsals will be held three weekly. First projects outlined for the child dramatists were presentation of children's one-act plays and dramatization of juvenile poems.
