Comm'n Votes Favorably on Proposition for Gas Plant

COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED TO SHAPE DETAILS

The city commission last night passed a motion putting it on record as favoring the granting of a gas franchise to the Consolidated Gas company, Hickok subsidiary, and acceptance of that company's proposition for the construction of a municipal distribution system to be financed by the consolidated and paid for out of revenues of the plant, with interest at six per cent, and fixing minimum rates on domestic and industrial gas which competing systems could not be permitted to sell.

Minimum Necessary

Attorney F. D. Wright explained the commission that a U. S. supreme court decision in Texas had decided that municipalities can fix minimum as well as maximum rates. This is necessary, Ponsler told the commission, to protect the investment in such a plant and insure revenues to pay for it in the face of competition.

Cost of System

Ponsler said that estimates obtained by the company placed the cost of a "turn-key" installation at less than $90,000. He said that the company had received a bid from a reliable concern to put in a system, exclusive of meters and service fees, for $66,900.

Appeal of Judgment

Appeal of the judgment for about $50,000 paid due to the bond principle of interest obtained in federal district court by the New York bondholders committee, was directed, in the case, in which a decision was handed down by Judge Wm. Atwell Abilene last week will be taken to the fifth circuit court of appeals.

DELIVERANCE AT HAND: I will be with him in trouble; I will deliver him.—Psalm 91: 15.

SPEAKING OF OMAR BURKETT

Rumors of an impending shift in the personnel of the Texas Railroad commission's oil and gas department supervisory force which may change official faces in the west central Texas district, prompt quick protest against the possibility that Omar Burkett, deputy supervisor in charge of proration in this area, will be transferred. The trouble with Mr. Burkett is that he is efficient, and Cisco and its country seem to have a great deal of difficulty in keeping efficient men. Once they have completed a task or fulfilled a local mission, there is always another job awaiting their calibre out yonder. Mr. Burkett's efficiency is in contrast with the general rule for public employees whose jobs are dispensed under the patronage system. These appointments are too often used more to reward loyalty than merit, and while the necessity for rewarding political support is inescapable under our system, it is not always true that the official charged with the appointment is faced with such a happy combination of ability and desert. Mr. Burkett's long and able service in this district testify to his fitness. He has discharged his duties with an integrity and an ability that have incurred the full respect of the oil fraternity and the general public, and he has at the same time served the district ably in securing for it all to which it is entitled. It is obvious that none can administer the regulations in this area as effectively as he, who is in intimate touch with the details of the situation and conversant with the characteristics, both human and geological, which distinguish the district. His value to the commission and to the oil industry would be depreciated by removing him to a strange locality. It is hoped, if the railroad commission does have in mind a transfer of Mr. Burkett to any responsibility not more important than his duties here, that it change its mind on the matter and keep him in the west central Texas district where he has a man-sized job, as important as any in the state.

EXPECTING A GREAT SEASON

The Lake Cisco Amusement company's plant at Lake Cisco this fall—principally the big swimming pool for which Cisco is noted—is expecting to do the biggest summer business in several years, possibly the largest of its history, according to Albert Hunt, manager of the company. If there is any one thing that distinguishes Cisco above its neighbors as a home town, it is this swimming pool and the recreational advantages created by the lake. The value of this swimming pool is not sufficiently appreciated at home. It is taken too much for granted. Yet, the advantage it makes commonplace here is so rare that the presence of the pool is coveted by every other city without one to compare with it. There are swimming pools and swimming pools, but mighty few have the size which makes the Lake Cisco resort an institution capable of taking care of any water program short of surf bathing and associated seashore amusements. This summer, with its promise of increasing better times should be welcomed as an opportunity to popularize the pool and the lake generally, to an even greater extent than has been done in the past.

ROAD DELAY

Re-topping of Highway 23 ten miles south to Romney is expected to be under way within the next few weeks. This stretch of highway is a part of the federal emergency road building program instituted last summer with the inauguration of the public works administration program. It is to be paid for out of Texas' share of $24,500,000 of the original $500,000,000 road building fund. Other projects were the Eastland Highway No. 1 relocation, the relocation of the same highway through Ranger and the reconstruction of a section of highway west of Rising Star. The Cisco-Romney item—a completion of Highway 23 re-topping begun by the state several years ago and only half done, has been held up through government insistence upon wider drainage structures. The highway, lest we forget, is a federal road, just as is Highway No. 1, and the federal bureau has a habit of insisting upon the best. But, at the same time, the length of time required to put through the department routine the changes incident to a matter of a few feet in width on various culverts and concrete structures, emphasize the delay that seems cannot be eliminated from government procedure even in times of stress. As a matter of fact, most of the PWA program will not arrive in time, it now appears, to serve as a fulcrum for the recovery start. But the employment created will give impetus to the movement.

REDUCTION OF INTEREST LOANS

The federal farm credit administration has reported that the interest rate on farm mortgages in Texas that have been refinanced to the federal land bank has been reduced from a maximum of nine per cent to a maximum of five per cent. An analysis made by the officials of the administration shows that more than half the loans closed in Texas by the land bank and land bank commissioners from June 1, 1933, through March 31, 1934, disclosed that interest charges now carried a maximum interest rate of five per cent with a large proportion on a four and one-half per cent basis. The analysis dealt only with interest rate paid on first and second mortgages and upon short term commercial bank loans. Furthermore, the total of loans closed during the June-March period was approximately $67,400,000.

If the farmer was the original forgotten man, he has been given generous recognition in a New Deal administration has made possible the restoration of his purchasing power and more than a fighting chance to rid himself of his borrowings.

Sit Still, Folks --- The Show Has Just Begun

Building Activities for March Show Big Increase

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

March contracts for construction of all descriptions amounted to $179,161,500. This according to the monthly bulletin issued by the F. M. Dodge Corporation.

This was almost twice the total reported for February and about three times the volume of March, 1933. Increases over both the previous month and March of 1933 were recorded in each of the four principal classes of construction. An important White House announcement.

President Roosevelt announced the administration would extend the blanket NRA code beyond April 30, permitting employers who have not had opportunity to arrange for codes to use the blue eagle emblem so long as they observe the spirit of the NRA.

R. W. Thompson of Fort Worth is the chief engineer for Texas PWA projects. In an interview he said that $40,789,073 in PWA funds involving 146 projects had been approved by Washington officials and bids had been advertised for 37. Contracts have been let for 18 and work has started on 13 of the total of 962 Texas PWA applications, involving $139,487,593.

A NOTED LEADER OF HIS PEOPLE

John J. Blaine of Wisconsin is dead. He was 59. He was a noted leader of the people of the Badger state. He followed the flag of the elder LaFollette. He was born a republican. He served two terms when the elder LaFollette died. John J. Blaine backed to the limit two sons of a great sire—Robert Jr. and Phil. In 1928 Elaine traveled all the road. He was for Alfred E. Smith for president of the United States. He had burned his republican and independent bridges behind him. He went down with Smith. He was defeated for re-election to the senate. President Roosevelt made him a member of the Reconstruction Finance corporation board. Now he has come to join that great commoner known as "Fighting Bob" LaFollette who never lowered his flag in the face of the enemy and fought for his convictions for 36 years—fought for the recognition of the rights of the masses and died in harness as their champion.

This is swift moving world. Now where will the LaFollettes (Bob and Phil) land in the campaigns to come? One of their ablest lieutenants has gone to his reward.

TEXAS EDUCATOR PASSES

Dr. R. L. Marquis has passed out of the picture. He was the president of the North Texas State Teachers college at Denton and had been its president since 1923. Before going to Denton he was president of the Sul Ross normal school at Alpine. He was only 54. He was widely known in educational circles the country over. He was one of the leading civic and welfare workers of Denton, a democrat of the old school and year in and year out whenever the lawmakers were in session under the big dome his face was in evidence and his voice was lifted for liberal appropriations not only for the public schools of Texas but for the university and the minor colleges or institutions of learning. Now there will be a hot scramble for the post vacated and the seekers will be as numerous as they are at the pie counter of a state or federal distributing station.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

Guyle Greynolds is wishing it was true. He looked at me yesterday afternoon with a sad, sweet expression, as if the gods that he were playing a cruel little joke upon him, and remarked that if it had been true he would not have been at any filling station pumping gas and blowing up tires. No, no, Nanette, he would have been dancing a car-margale up and down the concrete of Cisco, tossing confetti from his fingertips and shouting the news to the world.

There would have been no need for me to have driven out to his station an inquired if the report that he had won $100,000 on the Irish sweepstakes, or some such foreign horse racing lottery, were true. I should have known about it before that.

How the rumor got started, Guyle is at a loss to explain. Someone heard a name called over the radio. Perhaps it was a mere shred of a statement, easily blown into a report within a few lips. At any rate the talk was bruited about rapidly enough, and Greynolds was kept busy during a busy day shunting off would-be borrowers.

Such a rumor serves no purpose

Tomorrow's Star Signals

This is an intellectual day but not dependable. In making plans for the day, cover as much business as possible in the early morning. The remainder of the day is over indulgent and unsteady. Women born in the sign Leo (July 23-August 22) should wear evening clothes cut low in the back. Any jewelry used should be placed at the bottom of the décolletage. They are fond of, and look well in, dresses which are buttoned up the back. The Leo man is the true Apollo, and is admired for his physique. The color of Leo, is orange, and one of the stones is the ruby.

TOMORROW'S BIRTHDAY Be careful, not reckless, April 28. Prosperity may come to you October 28 through November 6 if your over-confidence period does not interfere. A constructive conservative period will aid you during April 1935. You will enjoy any form of entertainment on June 6.

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, April 24—If the federal government had preferred to capture the Barrow gang of killers, rather than wait for the sheriffs and constables, it could have done it in an outside limit of three days.

How? Soldiers don't cost much performing squads right in the army posts. Two soldiers assigned to each isolated filling station in Oklahoma, one on duty constantly and soldiers in reach of all the urban filling stations, would have destroyed the transportation of these desperadoes, and isolated them somewhere, dependent on other people's help. True, they might have stolen a car or two more, before caught, but each stolen car would have narrowed the ring that much closer.

Theoretically, the army has enough men to capture an armed band of two men and a woman. The recent "scare" about a new sudden special session of the legislature to create an oil and gas board is typical of many that blaze up and die out in a day. This one had the authority behind it of one member's fears or snap-shot opinion—and even he declined to lend his name to the report. It never had a chance of being however, one can't always tell, as the sudden upjump of the most recent session shows. Tom F. Hunter, announcing his plans to open his campaign at Clinton, Bosque county, April 21, declared himself committed to the idea of a well-armed effective state police to deal with crime such as the state recently has seen. He became the third candidate offering such a pledge; and his statement emphasized the public sentiment was through with caring for anyone. She would give nothing and take all she could get. In time, perhaps, she would learn to love material things that held no warm, treacherous, changing hearts.

Pablito, writing that second letter, had said that he was free, that he loved her and had always loved her, that he always would love her. She had smiled bitterly as she read the words, unable to forget the news that he was engaged. She was through, she decided. She would never again hold out her hands to pain.

The bell on the Field gate post clanged one late August afternoon as the sun was lying on the earth in long, thick, golden streaks. A shabby little boy opened the gate to Norris Noyes, who said he had business with Miss Field.

"She is in the garden, I think," he said. "In the garden beyond the house. You may go there if you like to search for her. Point on the door if you do not find her there. She is somewhere around. She never goes anywhere else. She is sad—ah, sad!"

Noyes gave the shabby little boy a copper and then turned toward the garden that looked over the wall. There she was, as swayed by a wall, a hand on it, her eyes fixed on the flashily white sail of a fishing boat. She turned as Noyes neared her.

"Yes?" she said. "You don't know me, my child," he began, "but I have business with you."

She could not resent the "my child" and in spite of the chill that she was trying to make her protection she felt drawn to this man with the gentle voice and kind, mild eyes.

"Shall we sit down?" she invited. She had not meant to say it. She moved ahead of him toward a marble bench which stood beneath a leaning magnolia tree.

HE settled after she did and turned toward her. "I rained Pablito," he began, and saw her stiffen. "I love him," he went on, "because I know him. Lottie—the girl he asked to marry him—loved him, too. Pablito asked her to marry him because of gratitude and for no other reason. She left us after she saw his face lose color, looking at you."

"There is no reason," the girl said unsteadily, "why I should listen to this."

"Many people feel they do not need to be kind. One sees it and feels it to every hand. But I think, in fairness to yourself and to Pablito, that you should listen."

"If Pablito had been the sort of man who could abandon one woman to run to the arms of another I could understand you," Noyes went on. "But all his unhappiness—and yours—has been caused by his loyalty. You remember Lovelace's old line, don't you? 'I could not love thee, dear, so much loved I not honor more.' Women forget that line. You were engaged to be married, were you not, child?"

"Yes—but I do not wish to talk of this." "Pablito has had very little from life—very little except injustice and hardship and suffering. We are all children, you know. Children until the end of our time. We write, in our various ways, our letters to Santa Claus, and when we don't receive the gifts we ask for life becomes drab. We go a great many places and do a great many things trying to forget that life is bitter if swallowed straight. Pablito is trying to do that now. He hoped that you loved him enough to understand. I suppose only he and his God will ever know how much he hoped that."

She said nothing. She plaited the edge of a handkerchief as she had years before when rebuked by the Mother Superior for eating the peaches which were being saved for Father Ignatius who was coming to visit the convent.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

PABLITO, a handsome youth accused of a murder he did not commit, escapes from Key West to Havana. He meets three thieves, BEAU and LOTTIE. In Havana, under the name of "Juanito," he becomes celebrated. He meets and he and Beau open a gymnasium.

Pablito loves ESTELLE FIELD, daughter of rich JIM FIELD, and she loves him. They meet and plan to marry, but Field breaks up the affair, to send Estelle away. Two years later she becomes engaged to ALEX DAVIDS, a rich attorney.

SIR AUBREY, titled Englishman and Pablito's father, has been searching for his son, consulting BILLINGS, New York detective.

Believing Estelle faithless, Pablito asks Lottie to marry him. Field tests his fortune and breaks his engagement to Estelle. She and her father return to Havana. Sir Aubrey, who knows Pablito is innocent of the murder charge, at last tells the truth.

Estelle writes Pablito, but, feeling he cannot break his engagement to Lottie, he does not go to her. NORRIS NOYES, a lover of Pablito as a child, comes to see him.

Lottie, realizing she stands between Pablito and his happiness, breaks their engagement and departs.

Now go on with the story CHAPTER XLVII BILLINGS, who had written Pablito that Sir Aubrey wished to see him personally and asked the favor of Pablito's address in case he should change it at any time, was headed toward Cuba when he was to meet Sir Aubrey, also on his way there.

It would be hot in Cuba, Billings thought as he rode in the southward-speeding train of a warm August day. Yes, it would be hot in Cuba. But this would be his last trip on the case that had taken so long to untangle. The case that had held so much interest for him. Marcia Treadway, at Como, had met the eyes of a woman who no longer knew her. And Marcia had smiled, seeing in this the sign that her tale was now an old one and that Pablito was safe.

Carlito was kneeling in the Church of the Angels, asking the gentle mother of Christ to forgive him for his intent to kill Jim Field who, before Carlito had reached this triumphant moment, had killed himself. Near Carlito was his son, "Madre Santissima de Jesus." Carlito entreated, "guard my son from the pain I have known and the evil that it caused!"

He left in the alms box a substantial part of his wages and stepped into the blistering heat of the dry street feeling that the gentle mother had smiled on him. Estelle, living in three rooms of the great house that had been her father's, thought bitterly of the transience of men's affections, as she waited for the coming of the winter that would bring northerners to Cuba. Then again she would show the house to possible buyers—a little over-eagerly, perhaps, as she pointed out the beauties of the place and always stopping at the threshold of her father's office where one wet night he had locked the door after him before stepping through the door which is before all men.

Prices for "Gate Crashing" is British Social Circles Vary With the Title

By HENRY T. RUSSELL United Press Staff Correspondent LONDON, April 24—There is an "unwritten" price list for gate-crashing with chaperones in Britain. Just as anyone looking for a meal in a restaurant or hotel, is given a menu which indicates the cost of meal, so those who want to meet London's "400" are tactfully told that the higher the title or the more famous the name, the higher will be the bill.

The cost of chaperoned "gate-crashing" throughout Britain varies. Poor people pay less, and get less. Rich people are made to pay large sums with a smile: from $20,000 to $100,000. Part of the monies expended for being "introduced" to those who ordinarily would not want to meet you is in fees. The rest of the money usually the overwhelmingly large part of it, is in direct or indirect expenses.

Take for instance Mr. M. Bishous, of the town in particular. He is a wealthy dealer in anything convenient. He wants his daughter to meet all and sundry in "high society." He is willing to pay any price for the accommodation. He approaches a friend. After a certain amount of entertaining at M. Bishous' expense, the friend introduces him to someone else who for a consideration arranges that Lady Downout shall chaperon the daughter.

First there is the fee for chaperoning. This ranges from $2,500 to $10,000 for the season. Then the Lady advises that in order to start the ball rolling it is necessary for Mr. M. Bishous to take the house of some noble for the season. This will cost according to the location, and size of the real-estate to be hired, and the fame or importance of the owner. It is not impossible to hire a good class of London residence, including the servants, for between $500 and $1,000 monthly.

The chaperon usually recommends the house of somebody she knows. She, naturally, receives a commission of between five and twenty per cent. Then the business of entertaining London's smart set commences. The cost can be measured in thousands of dollars for a season. This depends largely upon the lavishness of the social climber. Add to this what the chaperon makes him spend in clothes with which to equip his society-thirsty debutante. The bill mounts to in the neighborhood of $100,000 rapidly.

MANCHURIAN RAILROAD HAD PROFIT IN 1933

By JOSEPH H. BAIRD United Press Staff Correspondent MOSCOW, April 24—Despite alleged efforts of the Japanese and Manchurian authorities to destroy the earning power of the Chinese Eastern railroad, the line produced a net profit in 1933 of 11,500,000 gold rubles, the newspaper "Pravda," official organ of the communist party, has declared.

These earnings, $5,750,000 at normal exchange, it is held in government and communist party circles here, plainly refute the argument of the Japanese and Manchurian officials during the Tokio negotiations over sale of the line that the road no longer was profitable.

Profits Despite Opposition "Pravda"—whose utterances are tantamount to official communications here—charges that the 1933 profits were made despite constant efforts of the Japanese and Manchurian officials during the Tokio negotiations over sale of the line that the road no longer was profitable.

Soviet Russia offered last year to sell the line to "Manchukuo." It is owned jointly by Russia and China. After "Manchukuo" was separated from China officials of the new state assumed China's part in its joint operation. Since that time it has been a constant bone of contention between Moscow, on the one hand, and Tokio and Changchun on the other.

The conferees of Soviet Russia, Japan and "Manchukuo" met in Tokio last year to discuss the price of the railroad. Russia asked $125,000,000 for the road. "Manchukuo" offered $25,000,000 and contended that the recent construction of other lines in Manchuria had made the CER unprofitable.

20 Million Gold Rubles Soviet delegates advanced figures purporting to show that the Chinese Eastern had earned an average yearly profit of 20,000,000 gold rubles during the seven years from 1924 through 1930.

"The Manchurian delegation," "Pravda" declared "appeared to be deaf in both ears to the voice of facts and figures and preferred a policy of attacking the rights of the U. S. S. R. in the C. E. R. and attempts to seize the latter."

Texas' First Gas Well Fire in 1867

GRENHAM, April 24—Texas' first flaming gas well, as far as anyone in this section can remember, was that of a well 13 miles north of here near the town of Burton in 1867.

The well was being drilled for water when much hissing and odor rose from the hole. Drillers abandoned the well, declaring they had struck a "salamander's nest," or "struck hell."

Some venturesome blade ignited the well. He and his companions ran to Burton as fast as they could to tell a startled populace they had set the world afire.

The fire was put out and soon the owner was using gas for fuel and lights.

Says Cardui Seemed To Do Her Most Good

"A few years ago, my health wasn't so good," writes Mrs. L. E. Erwin, of Lamar, Mo. "I was nervous and tired, and felt the need of a tonic. My mother advised me to take Cardui. After I had taken one bottle, I found I was getting results. I took about five bottles, and certainly was much better than I had been in some time, as my headaches had stopped. Cardui had done me more good than any medicine I had taken."

HOME PLANS OF GOVERNMENT TO AID THOUSANDS

By CARROLL KENWORTH
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON, April 24—The government is spending $25,000,000 to promote purchase of land and building of new homes for thousands of its citizens in the long-range program for "Resettlement of America."

A special emergency division of government known as "the division of subsistence homesteads" has been created for this purpose and already has begun preparations on 32 sites in 20 states.

The purpose of this enterprise is to place portions of the population now economically "stranded" by shifting tides of business, or farm developments on tracts of land where they largely can be self-supporting.

Homestead Tract
 As the title of the work indicates, they are expected to secure at least "subsistence" from garden, cow, poultry and other food which they can raise. The "homestead" tracts average about four acres in size.

This program is only a part of the sweeping readjustment of population to the land undertaken by President Roosevelt and his "New Deal" advisers. Other aspects include the return to nature of 40 to 100 million acres of land now producing surplus crops, the reforestation of denuded watersheds and creation of new timber reserves, grazing lands and national parks. By mid-April the government had launched resettlement homesteads for 4,310 families, selecting for them 17,240 acres of land. About 20 other projects were under consideration with announcement expected imminently.

"Stranded" Communities
 Communities "stranded" by the closing of industries or mines, are examples. Secretary of Interior Ickes, whom this work proceeds, said that approximately 200,000 coal miners have little prospect of ever attaining permanent work again in their communities, because of the exhaustion of closing of mines.

Large numbers of persons attached to copper, lead, zinc and petroleum production communities are in a similar situation, officials said. Likewise some industries dependent upon timber are in a similar situation.

KNOW THE TRUTH ABOUT MOTOR OILS—Conoco dares to give you the facts!

Here are no idle claims—But PROOF!

COMPARE this positive proof of superiority with all the exaggerated claims you hear about motor oils—the facts can be told. We arranged with the Contest Board, American Automobile Association, to test five widely-known and advertised motor oils along with New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil in a daring "Destruction Test."

These six oils, a single fill of 5 quarts, with no more oil added, in six brand new strictly stock cars, were driven until the motor in each car was destroyed from lack of lubrication. The first oil failed with motor destroyed at 1,713.2 miles—others failed in rapid succession. The best of the competing oils ran a total of 3,318.8 miles... while New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil lubricated its motor for a total of 4,729 miles!... more than 3,000 miles farther than the first oil to fail... and more than 1,400 miles farther than the second best oil. Thanks to Conoco's Hidden Quart protection, this amazing victory stands unchallenged!

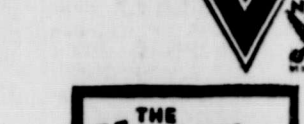

This is evidence... these are facts... that should open a new era of results and economy for your motor. Drive into a Conoco Station or dealer—fill with this New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. There's no longer any guess about what oil is best for your car!

Warning to NEW CAR OWNERS
 Some car manufacturers are using new types of bearings which will stand greater pressures and temperatures, resulting from increased power and speed. New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil has been exhaustively tested on these new bearings. The results show that it gives them greater protection against damage than many straight mineral oils now on the market. Protect your new car by using the motor oil you can be sure of.
