PROGRAM FOR HISTORY CLUB IS ANNOUNCED

The closing business session and special for the Texas Historical club of Randolph college will be held Monday afternoon at 2:30 in the parlor of Tyndall Hall, girls' dormitory. Dr. Lee Clark, honorary member of the club, will open the program with a prayer, after which "The Eyes of Texas" will be sung by the entire group. Miss Nell Alexander, president, will preside over the brief business session. Mrs. Lee Clark will play two of her own piano compositions after which Miss Ruby Russell, librarian, will read several selections of cowboy poems. Dr. Clark will give a brief talk on "Texas Indians" as gleaned from his own personal experiences and observation. Dr. Clark is one of the outstanding historians of Texas history. Francis E. Barnes, corresponding secretary of the club, will relate a "Texas Legend" as the closing speech for the evening. The club is becoming well-known over the state because of its far-reaching contacts with Texas pioneers, libraries and personal contacts by the members.

Cisco boys and girls will line D avenue at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when Santa Claus rides down the street on the Cisco fire truck, distributing candy as he goes. The Santa parade will begin at the Laguna hotel corner, Fourth and D, and will proceed southward along D avenue. The Lobo band will march with the good saint and furnish music for the occasion. Santa Claus, who is due to arrive somewhere on the Bankhead highway west of Cisco, will be met with the fire truck and a bodyguard of firemen and brought to town. There he will go on a sight-seeing expedition through the residential section before starting the parade. Cisco merchants, headed by Mitt Williams and Herman Wood, are sponsoring Santa's appearance. He will have 300 pounds of candy to give away, and will need two firemen to help him distribute it. An unusually large crowd is expected to be in the business district for the event, which will form a similar feat last year, witnessed the encounter.

NEW MYSTERY AT EL PASO IS BEING PROBED

EL PASO, Dec. 14 -- With the investigation of one mysterious death of a woman definitely closed with the conviction yesterday of Arthur Wilson, given a life sentence for the death of Mrs. Irene DeBolt, Cleveland widow, Sheriff Chris Fox of El Paso turned today to another mysterious death of a woman. The new mystery is that of a woman, probably 30, who was found dead at one of the higher class hotels here a week ago today. It was first announced she had committed suicide. Then doctors said she died of natural causes, but a checkup of things in her room (minds and report suicide again) Sheriff Fox was dissatisfied with the suicide theory. Every launcheon mark was carefully removed from the woman's clothes. She left only a small amount of money and fragments of a torn photograph of a young man, a watch and a few trinkets.

Students Ousted in Huey Long 'Free Press' War

The furor stirred up at Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, by the expulsion of five students and the suspension of others who rebelled against alleged press censorship attributed to Senator Huey Long had country-wide reverberations as student groups adopted resolutions defending freedom of the student press. Principals in the L. S. U. fight include (1) Miss Helen Kilkison, Baton Rouge newspaper correspondent whom students said was appointed by Long to censor the Reveille, semi-weekly student newspaper; (2) President James M. Smith, whom students accused of submitting to Long's "dictatorship"; (3) Miss Grace Williamson, who was made editor when the Reveille resumed publication under faculty supervision; (4) Jesse H. Cutler, who resigned as editor and was expelled; (5) Carl Corbin, who resigned as assistant editor and was suspended. The Campanile war memorial tower at the entrance to L. S. #### ENTIRE CREW OF USWORTH IS RESCUED

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 -- All hands were rescued today from the sinking S. S. Usworth in Mid-Atlantic. Two men from the rescue ship were lost.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 -- A lifeboat from the Jean Jadot capsized today in the Usworth rescue efforts and two of the crew were lost. Mackay radio reported a message from the S. S. Black Gull, relayed reports of the mid-Atlantic battle to save the ships crew, which said the lifeboat turned over in high waves. Another lifeboat battled towering waves to the side of the sinking steamer and took off five of the crippled vessel's crew. Radio messages from ships which sped to the side of the Usworth described the drama of the rescue under some 8,000 miles off the coast of Newfoundland had been fighting storms for three days. Another steamer, the Ascania, also lost lifeboats. Messages said the crew of the Usworth was believed to number 26.

MORE ARRESTS ARE EXPECTED IN TULSA CASE

TULSA, Dec. 14 -- New arrests were expected today in the investigation of the killing of John Gorrell and the mysterious fatal shooting of Sidney Born, Jr. Authorities disclaimed any knowledge of the matter, but it was said a warrant had been issued for the arrest of a wealthy Tulsa youth. Born, who died Sunday night, was to have been an important witness in the trial of Philip Kennamer, federal judge's son who is charged with the murder of Gorrell who was shot Thanksgiving night. Sheriff Charles Price said it had been reported that a man in a black overcoat walked away from Born's car Sunday afternoon before the youth was found dead. Another report said a young man was seen following Born after Born tried to telephone Kennamer from a drug store. Price's theory was that another person must have decided to kill Born because Born had seen him when he drove Kennamer to the rendezvous with Gorrell before the killing.

BANKERS WILL FINANCIERS FOR RECOVERY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 -- The administration expects banks and financiers rather than the "little fellows" to supply the bulk of the $3,000,000,000 additional money needed to finance the government recovery program. The $3,500,000,000 must be borrowed if the administration holds to its original plan to encourage participation in a limit of $31,834,000,000 was the public debt. It will stand now at approximately $28,000,000, a new record high. Provision to give big business the bulk of financing most of the recovery program reported to the United Press by a source today. The decision reached to encourage participation in small means to spend and help to boost prices, consumption and employment. It is directly opposite to the fighting policy in war times when government tried reduced prices and consumption in order to gain prices on war supplies. There were made to borrow savings from small fellow and thus force use of sever necessities.

MANY ATTEND CARNIVAL FOR LION CHARITY

With a crowd of people that almost completely filled the big Country club reception room, the Lady Lions presented a carnival and entertaining program last night that was equal to any traveling carnival so far as concessions and prizes were concerned and from a financial standpoint point was very satisfactory to them. The Lady Lions staged a carnival that was very realistic. Many booths presided over by women of the organization and teeming with prizes confronted one at every turn. A huge wood fire in the old fashion fireplace made the atmosphere cozy and warm. Hamburgers, hot dogs, cake and coffee satisfied those who were hungry. Games were numerous both down stairs and on the mezzanine one could have his fortune told or could visit the sideshow "for men only". A steel jail had been provided and for minor offenses or for no offense at all, men were incarcerated until their times were paid. Johnny Cox, Mr. and Mrs. George A. D. Anderson and L. A. Harrison distinguished themselves as actors of no mean ability. It was an evening of harmless amusement, in which everyone participated and which was enjoyed to the fullest. The women especially thank all merchants who donated, all who assisted in any way, members of the Lions club or otherwise. The proceeds will be used by the Lions organization in furthering its work for the community during its next year's activities.

Lack of Nickel Is Lucky for Burglar

If you're afraid of burglars, you'd better carry a nickel. That's the conclusion a Cisco woman came to last night. Discovering someone attempting to burglarize her house on Randolph hill, the woman immediately rushed to call the police headquarters. The catch came when the only phone available was of the pay-before-you-talk variety. The operator asked for her nickel, and neither she nor the phone could make the change. Frantic for the safety of her home, she offered to drop in a quarter, while police at the other end of the line waited. A quarter would not do, she was told. So, according to the story told by Cisco police this morning, it was necessary for the woman to come to the police headquarters for aid, while the police themselves were waiting to leave but not knowing what the address was. Yes, the burglar got away.

JAFSIE'S PART IN LINDY CASE IS RECOUNTED

EDITOR'S NOTE: Through an amazing combination of circumstances, an elderly educator in the Bronx found himself, within a week of the Lindbergh kidnaping, the sensational center of the negotiations which, he and Col. Lindbergh believed, were destined to bring about a return of the child. The beginning of this action and the frustration of their hopes are told in the following dispatch, fourth in the current series by Sidney B. Whipple of the United Press.

By SIDNEY B. WHIPPLE. United Press Staff Correspondent (Copyright 1934 by United Press). "I would gladly give $1,000 -- my life savings -- to see the kidnaped Lindbergh child restored to his mother's arms," Dr. John F. Condon told a reporter for the Bronx Home News. There was nothing unusual about Dr. Condon's offer to act as an intermediary. Many other, and perhaps more excited, persons had announced publicly their willingness to be go-betweens, among them Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton university, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia, and men of similar rank. Dr. Condon's offer was printed, as a news story, in the Bronx Home News of Sunday, March 6. Within 24 hours it brought a response from the man who said he was in possession of the child. Condon was well-beloved in the Bronx. He had an acquaintanceship of thousands. He had lectured at Fordham for years, and was known to the young people of that section as a benevolent, kindly, old gentleman who made a life practice of "doing good". On the night of March 6, the good doctor rushed, trembling, into the restaurant of his friend, Max Rosenheim, on the Grand concourse, and taking him aside, showed him what was the first of a long series of ransom notes. The note, stamped with

Hidden Balk Kidnap Attempt

Hugenie Grew, adopted daughter of Randolph Clark Grew, brother of the U. S. ### Bad News for the Bucs

The Chicago Cubs should have an easy time taking the Pittsburgh Bucs into camp next year—at least when Tex Carlton is on the mound. himself and thus became noted as "Jaisie"—and evicted in a dramatic meeting with the professed kidnaper near a Bronx cemetery.

"There are five of us in the thing," the extortioner told Jaisie, "and we will have to have $20,000 more than the original $50,000 we asked."

Jaisie argued long over the wretched business, but said he would do what he could. But he insisted that the kidnapers must prove they had the child in their possession and suggested they deliver some "token" as proof.

"Very well," said the negotiator in his guttural German accents, "we'll send you the child's sleeping garment."

It was not until three days later, however, that a package was delivered to Jaisie and opened by Col. Lindbergh at Jaisie's home. It is related that, for the first time since the kidnaping, the colonel burst into tears when he saw the little woeen sleeping suit, with the threads dangling from the sleeves where the tiny aluminum cups had been torn off.

The suit was taken to Hopewell and again identified by Mrs. Lindbergh and the child's nurse, Betty Gow. There was no doubt that the negotiator in the Bronx cemetery was in contact, at least, with the kidnaped baby.

Jaisie and Col. Lindbergh drove, the following night, to St. Raymond's cemetery, as directed by the kidnaper in a note sent to Condon through the medium of Joseph Perrone, a taxicab driver. The "gang's" emissary paid Perrone a dollar to deliver the message.

While Col. Lindbergh sat in the automobile, Condon walked along Whittemore avenue. From across the cemetery fence came a voice—

"Over here, doctor, come over here!" Col. Lindbergh heard the voice and parked well its accents.

Jaisie demanded a receipt from the kidnaper for the $50,000 he was carrying. The extortioner said "it would take him 10 minutes or more to get one, indicating he would have to "see someone else." So Jaisie waited.

He was rewarded, nearly half an hour later, by receiving a note which pretended to tell the whereabouts of the baby.

"The baby is on board Nelly," the note declared, directing Lindbergh to go to Gay Head, in Vineyard Sound, where the boat would be found.

"There are two women there. They are innocent," the note concluded.

The kidnaper sped away in the darkness with his $50,000. Col. Lindbergh embarked on a two-day aerial tour of Long Island Sound. Coast Guard ships saw his great plane zooming above them. Natives at Vineyard Haven saw him step ashore from his plane and heard him make inquiries as to the boat "Nelly."

There was no such boat. Col. Lindbergh had paid his $50,000—for nothing!

Pralines (Mexican Pecan Candy)

Mrs. L. J. Hazlewood, farm food supply cooperator for the Carbon home demonstration club gives the following recipe for pecan candy. Mrs. Hazlewood got the recipe from a friend in town who is interested in helping clubs with new recipes. This can be used as given or peanuts may be substituted for the pecans. The farm women like the peanuts as they are available on most of the farms and the pecans are short this season.

1-3 cups brown sugar
1-3 cup butter (Crisco or other compound may be substituted for butter, but use only one tablespoon.)
2 cups pecans or other nuts
1-4 cup water

Mix sugar, butter and water together and heat to boiling. Add pecans and cook until the candy forms a hard ball in cold water. Beat for about five minutes and then drop from the spoon onto waxed paper. When cold remove from the paper and sieve or put in candy jar for later.

Clothing Demonstration
"A foundation pattern (individually fitted) is the way for all women to have well fitting garments," states Mrs. W. E. Morris, Class 1 clothing demonstrator for the Reich home demonstration club. Mrs. Morris has completed her pattern and will keep a record of the clothing purchased during the year's time and improve her storage to make it adequate for the family of four. In the storage she will include a low rod at one end for the children's garments. With this, the children will be able to take care of keeping their garments up out of the way and in good condition.

Cuttings
"Strip all leaves except top two to save vitality and prevent moisture loss when putting out cuttings," states Mrs. Louis Pitcock, yard demonstrator for the Ranger co-workers home demonstration club. Mrs. Pitcock has her cutting bed well spaced and cultivated and the soil is in the best shape for rooting these cuttings. This is a good time to get the cutting rows started in the garden where they can be cultivated along with the garden from time to time. Mrs. Pitcock will put approximately two hundred and fifty or three hundred cuttings in her bed to use in the spring and fall plantings. The screen planting will be made in February using as many native plants as are available at this time.

Can Butter
"Work all milk and water out of butter, pack solid in number two or three cans, to overflowing, wipe off around edge with clean dry cloth and seal, states Mrs. J. B. Eberhardt food supply cooperator of the North Star home demonstration club. Mrs. Eberhardt can butter in this way and sends to her daughters who are attending the University. She uses cans which have been used one or more times and the cost includes the new lid and postage which totals fifteen cents for a number three can. The butter will stay fresh for several weeks when canned this way. The girls have fresh butter at all times at a cost of only fifteen cents for more than two pounds when packed in a number three can. This is helping keep the expense of the food down. Mrs. Eberhardt has been sending butter to the girls this way for two years and is still doing so.

the characteristic red and blue rings, with the pin-holes forming a duplicate of the triangle discovered on the original note left in the baby's crib, "accepted" Condon's offer to act as an intermediary, and advised him to get in touch at once with Col. Lindbergh, to obtain official sanction for his actions.

From Rosenham's restaurant, Dr. Condon attempted to telephone to Col. Lindbergh. But when the connection was out through, he was too overcome by emotion to talk, and so it was his friend, Rosenham, who told the Colonel what the note contained.

"Get a fast car and come to Hopewell at once," the colonel directed. Through the night, Condon, Lindbergh, Rosenham and the colonel's advisers discussed the note. That it was genuinely from the kidnaper there was little doubt. Colonel Lindbergh ordered packages of ransom money, totaling $50,000, prepared, and gave Dr. Condon full authority to act.

A series of further ransom notes, in reply to advertisements published in various newspapers, including the Brock Home News, came to Dr. Condon—who had used his initials, J. F. C., to invent a signature for

He found the specific gravity of gold and silver and was able to tell how much of each the crown contained.

Women Refuel in Endurance Hop

The precious gas needed to continue their attempt to set a new endurance flight record for women was being run into the plane of Jean La Rene and Henrietta Sumner high above Oklahoma City as this photo was made from another plane. ### Woman River Pilot Tell Experiences

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 14.—Of man river's "outstanding daughter," Mrs. Mary B. Greene, 66, only active woman licensed river pilot in the country, told delegates to the Mississippi Valley conference some of her many experiences during her lifetime on the river.

Mrs. Greene has held a pilot's license for 41 years, and except for a time out on land to educate her two sons, she has been on the river since her marriage to the late Capt. Gordon Christopher Greene in 1890.

She now lives on the steamer Tom Greene, one of her three boats. When it is not out on a trip, it remains tied up at the Cincinnati wharf.

Her husband took her to live on a river packet that plied between Pittsburg and Parkersburg, Mrs. Greene told the delegates.

"Everywhere he went on the boat, I went too, so I soon decided to get a license. When he bought his second boat, he put me in charge and at the height of business we had nine steamers," she said proudly.

Since then, however, bus and train competition has taken much of their business and the company works with them instead of against them now. Principal runs now are between Cincinnati, Louisville, Ky. and Huntington, W. Va.

Mrs. Greene did not think it any more unusual for her to take up steamboating to help her husband than it was for other women to help their mates in a restaurant.

LOCAL LABOR FOR BUILDING OF CARBON BLACK PLANT ANNOUNCED

Local labor will be used in the construction of the new Hickok carbon black plant near Cisco. It was announced by A. S. Hickok, head of the company, here last night. He has been here several days, conferring with local representatives of the company.

"Nearly all the labor will be local," he said. "This does not mean, as was explained, that all the labor will be taken from within the Cisco city limits, as was the case in construction of the local gas plant, but it will be from the Cisco area."

When asked for an estimate of what this would mean, R. L. Ponsler, superintendent of the Hickok interests in Texas, said, "I figure that the plant will cost $200,000 and that the labor will amount to about 40 or 50 per cent of that."

No definite site has been selected for the plant, Hickok said. The company has in mind two locations, both near Cisco, and will choose one of them.

"It will probably be about the first of the year before the actual work begins," Hickok said. "It takes a good while to get all the details worked out, but when they are worked out we will move a good deal faster."

Engineering Details
It was explained that the details to be worked out lie entirely in the engineering department, fitting the matters of construction to the conditions prevailing in this area.

"There have not been any of the financial problems that sometimes require more time than those in the engineering field," Ponsler said. "We have not had to bother about where the money is coming from."

Experts Differ On Value of Colleges

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 14.—Three of the leading educators in Pittsburgh disagreed on whether "youth would be far better off just reading books than in spending four years in American colleges," a statement made by the author, Kenneth L. Roberts, in Detroit.

"American colleges are rotten," declared Roberts, himself a college graduate. He deplored lack of coordination of subjects in all college curricula and praised technical schools.

Only Dr. Charles E. Prall, dean of the School of Education at the University of Pittsburgh, agreed with Roberts' first statement.

"Certainly a college education can be secured by reading books," the dean said. "In fact practically anyone can educate himself. But how many are doing it?"

Dr. Charles Watkins, assistant to the president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, took a different viewpoint, stating that "it all depends on the individual and object in view."

"It's an extreme opinion," Dr. Watkins said. "Naturally, much must be studied which really has no bearing on the major course, but how else can a broad education be secured?"

Reverend J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University, laughed down the entire idea. He said:

BEAUMONT, Dec. 14.—Collection of quail killed in this section is the new hobby of district game warden Keller Hines. He wants to study the feeding habits of quail in various counties of the state.

Guns, shells, a game bag no longer complete a hunter's outfit in this section. He also takes along an envelope addressed to Hines, cuts the craw from each quail he kills, sends it to the game warden by first class mail.

RAT BITE CAT

FORTSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 14.—Mark Corke, 64, reports the rats at his farm and vicious things. Catching one of them, he placed it in a large steel barrel with a cat. Several minutes later he looked in the barrel. The cat was gone. The rat was licking its chops.

Promoting A Balanced Abundance

Two seasons of trial have shown that in the Agricultural Adjustment Act, with its combined provisions for processing taxes and benefit payments as a means of cooperative crop adjustment, American agriculture for the first time has an effective means of adjusting its production to the needs of the market, declared Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace in his annual report to President Roosevelt.

In advocating continuance of the adjustment program, Secretary Wallace states that hereafter the task may include adjustment of production to a rising demand and certainly will not require crop reduction exclusively. The purpose, he declared, is to promote a "balanced abundance," in which all producing groups in the country industrial and agricultural, "should beware of falling into the pit of scarcity economics."

The farmer's greatest present need, as he continues his efforts to produce a balanced output, is that of getting full employment to the industrial population, so that consumers may be able to pay fair prices for higher consumption. A reduction in output is described as only a partial and paradoxical answer in the long run to the crying need of balanced abundance.

The report recognizes that crop control involves a restriction of agricultural opportunity and declares that the only alternative is recovery in agricultural exports. This, says the secretary, can only be sounded achieved on a reciprocal basis, with this country importing goods in return. The advantage to the American farmer of enabling Europe, always the principal outlet for our farm products, to buy here once more would be enormous and such a policy, the report maintains, would result in cessation of existing penalties by European countries on American industry. "Industry as a whole," the report adds, "has as much to gain from this program as agriculture."

Reviewing results of farm recovery policies, the secretary says that in 1932 the average farmer, after paying interest, taxes and expenses of production, had nothing left for capital and management. In 1933, for the first time since 1929, he had left a small net balance, after writing down his capital structure. In 1934 he realized a substantial further improvement. Estimates of cash income from farm marketings on a calendar year basis, with rental and benefit payments for 1934 and 1933 included, were approximately $6,000,000,000 in 1934, as compared with $5,051,000,000 in 1932. Farmers benefited from dollar devaluation, crop adjustments, extensive debt refinancing through the Federal Farm Credit Administration, from drought and some reduction taxes.

American agriculture, the report notes, was "developed largely for trade with the outside world, which has not yet materially revived." Consequently, the farm recovery of the last two years is mainly the result of domestic changes, in which the activities of the Federal Government have been the most important element.

All Advantages Are On One Side

One of the favorite political dictums is that public ownership of power companies would make it possible to give the public much cheaper service. Advocates of public developments point proudly to the examples of a few municipal plants which sell power at somewhat lower rates than do comparable private plants.

What they don't point to is the fact that any private utility could also give the public cheaper service if it had the same advantages as the average public plant. Government owned projects pay little or no taxes, while the private utility pays out around 15 per cent of its total revenue to the tax collector. Some utilities pay upwards of 20 per cent. In a recent statement, for example, the head of a large eastern utility said that taxes cost his company more than the generation of power.

Publicly-owned utilities, in most instances, are not subject to any kind of regulation. They may pursue unorthodox accounting practices, and are free from the strict rules laid down by commissions for private plants. In some states, where investigations of private utilities have been started, the entire cost must be paid by the utility, thus adding heavy costs to operating expense, for which it receives nothing in return.

Publicly-owned utilities are often given accounting, technical and other services by city departments, for which no charge is made against the utility. Private companies must pay the entire bill for these essential services.

And so it goes, with public plants holding the advantage all along the line so far as running expense is concerned. Yet it remains a fact that, in a thousand instances, private systems have taken over municipal systems, improved service, lowered the cost of power to the consumer, and paid heavy tax bills to all forms of government.

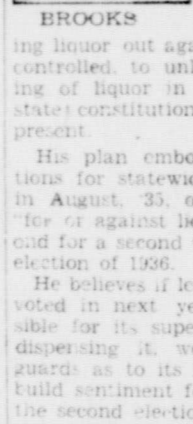

"We are engaged as a nation in undoing mistakes of the past, rectifying them so that in the future we won't be paying so much of a penalty as we are paying today," President Roosevelt.

New Travel Plan Is Offered by Expert

PARIS, Dec. 14 - Mayor Hierignon of Biarritz, one of the leading travel authorities of France, has just launched a travel idea that marks rock bottom in cheapness of sightseeing for 1935.

The mayor is offering a $200 trip, France, New York to New York, with three days in Paris and a thousand miles of travel to the east, south or southwest of this country. He says he is well aware that there will be no immediate profit in his venture, but he hopes that such a trip will inspire travelers to talk to their friends about the wonders they have seen in France and thus stimulate travel to an extent which will, in the long run, fully justify his bold experiment.

Did You Ever Stop To Think By Edson R. Waite Shawnee, Oklahoma

LEWIS J. RAEMON, business manager of the Aniston (Okla.) Star, says: "Any newspaper man will tell you that printing names of people, especially the names of your neighbors and friends make a paper next of human interest. Perhaps next of interest is reading about people we know is reading about things which we own and use or wish to own."

Advertising brings us news of familiar articles we all employ or hope to obtain. It enlightens pleasant sensations as we pause to admire the pictured smart lines of an automobile even though priced beyond our means. As we read an advertisement relating the superior shaving qualities of the very same kind of a razor which we used this morning, our own good judgment is confirmed for selecting that particular razor. What could be more intimate, more personal or concern us more vitally?

If anyone doubts the fact that interests is aroused by advertising a simple experiment will demonstrate otherwise. Into the hands of the doctor place a magazine printed in a foreign language unknown to him. Let him therein see the picture or trade-mark of an article or product frequently advertised in our own American publications - it will rise out of the printed page and catch his eye like an old familiar landmark. Ask any dough-toy who saw American cigarettes advertised in a French paper if this isn't true.

CHINESE SEND TROOPS AFTER BANDIT BAND

SHANGHAI, Dec. 14 - The Chinese Nationalist government, acting on strong representation from the United States consular forces, today sent 10,000 soldiers into search for the band of bandits who killed two American missionaries and kidnapped their infant daughter.

Spurred by American demands for swift punishment of the slayers, the government began pursuit of a bandit band estimated to number at least 3,000 desperate men, although there were only 200 in the group which raided Tsingteh and carried off Mr. and Mrs. John Stam and two-month-old Helen.

The bodies of Stam and his wife were found eight miles from their mission but the fate of the child was not known. There was no trace of the infant mentioned in the reports from province from which foreigners have begun a hasty exodus.

As they fled westward into interior China, the bandits destroyed roads and bridges behind them, making the task of their pursuers doubly difficult. The foreigners evacuating the province found their pathways to the well-policed Yangtze river ports blocked by the bandits' depredations.

Conditional Pardons Granted to Two Men

AUSTIN, Dec. 14 - Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson today granted a conditional pardon to W. D. Strebeck, Harris county, who was serving an 11-year term for murder. He entered the prison in August, 1931.

Van Turman, who was convicted in McLennan and Stephens counties on a theft charge and was sentenced to five years, was granted a conditional pardon. He was sentenced in January, 1933.

Police Called To Aid in Crime Fight

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 - A call of mobilization of the police of the country to fight crime went out today from the closing session of Attorney General Homer Cummings' crime conference.

After organizing the 600 crime experts into a "general staff" to lead the war on crime, Cummings issued a call for the public to volunteer the cooperation of its police agencies.

Among the recommendations contained in a series of resolutions the delegates proposed a national scientific training in Washington for crime fighters, a sort of West Point for police officers.

It was the usual story of the "lady of the house forgetting to put the cat out while the bird was flying around after a bath." A solicitous group of fire-fighters was all that saved "Kittyball" from execution.
