TEACHERS TO HOLD MEETING HERE IN FALL

The Oil Belt Teachers association will hold its fall meeting in Cisco Saturday. It was announced Thursday by Supt. R. N. Cluck of the schools here.
The selection of Cisco for the meeting came to Supt. Cluck in letter from W. A. Ross, principal of the Mineral Wells high school and president of the association.
Date of the meeting will be set between 500 and 600 at least are expected to attend the meeting, Supt. Cluck said.
"We are going to invite all teachers in the Oil Belt association," he said. "Instead of making it just an executive meeting we will make it as large as a regular spring meeting."
Cisco has sought for fall meeting for some time, various civic groups having their support to the schools help bring the body to this city.
Organized Here
It is particularly fitting that the meeting should hold this meeting in Cisco. Supt. Cluck said. "It was organized here five years ago and has continued to grow until it is one of the important teachers associations of the state."
The meeting will last one day,
Saturday, when questions as to plans for the fall will be discussed. There will be a banquet for the teachers in the evening.
They are grateful to Ranger and Supt. Cluck for their courtesy shown by the Ran-school system," Cluck said. "It was partly through their efforts that we were able to bring the meeting here."
He explained that Ranger had declined the meeting but had withdrawn in favor of Cisco.

Suspect Held For Tourists' Death

WRECK SPOT IS FOUND IN NEW MEXICO

SANTA FE, N. M., June 28. —
The search for the bodies of "the missing tourists centered today in an area about 30 miles south of Socorro, N. M., after an important new clue was discovered there.
Investigators found the point at which the car of Mr. and Mrs. George Lorus and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer, all of East St. Louis, Ill., was wrecked, apparently by the person who killed them.
At the scene of the wreck they found a vanity case, pieces of blood-stained upholstery, a packet of matches bearing the advertisement of an East St.
Louis establishment, and some pieces of aluminum which had ripped from the car in the wreck.

DALLAS, June 28. — Police here arrested a 36-year-old man today who gave his address as Socorro, N. M., and who, they said, resembled closely the man sought in connection with the disappearance of four Illinois tourists in New Mexico.
Lieut. Douglas Walsh, head of the Dallas police identification bureau, said a thorough check of identification revealed damaging resemblance of the man to a suspect who left a trail of stolen and forged travelers checks to which the name of George Lorus has been forged.
Lorus and his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer of East St.
Louis, Ill., disappeared after they were last seen in Vaughn, N. M., May 22.
The man arrested is accused of attempting burglary of a store in Oak Cliff, Dallas residential district.

skull was crushed and his body mangled.

Cisco Merchants Serve You Best

There is no statement more fallacious than "you can buy cheaper out of town." Yet it surely is not uncommon in Cisco. Every town and city has its population of mail order and out-of-town buyers, but fortunately for the home-town merchants, the home-town itself and the residents in that town, that proportion of out-of-town buyers is never very large. And the number grows smaller as home-town merchants become regular users of the home-town paper's advertising columns.

There may be instances where there have been apparent economies through buying away from home, but how do the books balance at the final reckoning? If the purchases have been made by mail what saving is left after the time, postage and carrying charges are deducted? Is the railroad fare added to the shopping expenses on those bargain hunting excursions to nearby city or larger town? Is there not also a value in dollars and cents for the worry, delay and disappointment that is inevitable in mail order buying?

There is an unselfish, community side of this buying-home question which cannot be ignored by the good citizen. People who believe in Cisco must believe in its merchants, who are an integral part of their town. Buying-at-home serves a double purpose when people buy at home. Through their buying the home-town merchants prosper, the town prospers because of the prosperity of its merchants, public improvements follow unimpeded prosperity, and the public benefits from the improvements. Can anybody afford to trade away from home when there is always a means of getting what they want at home and at as good or better prices than the same goods cost away from home?

Back To The Farm Movement

Two recent surveys cast new light on the current status of agriculture.

There has been a small but encouraging rise in value of American farms. Between March, 1934, and March, 1935, values rose in 30 states, declined in but five and remained unchanged in the other 13.

"Back to the Farm" is becoming a reality. Where a few years ago, the farm population was being depleted by an exodus to the cities, the trend has completely reversed and streams of people are going from urban to rural areas. A number of reasons lie behind this, such as industrial unemployment, the development of profitable specialty farming, and the desire of immigrants to leave the cities for the land. In addition, the number of individual farms is on the increase. In New England alone, there were 162,000 producing farms on January 1, 1935, in contrast to 125,000 on April 1, 1930.

All of this speaks well for the future of agriculture and a self-supporting citizenship. It is natural that people should win their living from the land. And the great progress made in developing more scientific farming methods—largely due to the efforts of large agricultural cooperatives—is immeasurably improving the farmers' opportunity to till the soil at a profit. All in all, it is safe to say that the agricultural situation is basically better now than at any time since depression set in.

The Price of Undue Haste

"Haste," according to the Travelers Insurance company, "causes nine out of ten automobile accident deaths."

There are various forms of hasty driving—all of them reprehensible, all generally unnecessary. Exceeding the speed limit is the most common form—and is the most important single cause of fatal accidents. Reckless driving—such as cutting in and out of traffic, passing on hills and curves, etc.—is another form. So is driving on the wrong side of the road. So is usurping the right-of-way—which is an especially prolific source of accidents, serious and minor, in towns and cities.

Last year haste in its many forms was the direct cause of about 30,000 deaths, to say nothing of hundreds of thousands of injuries, and property damage running into the millions. At best, those hasty drivers might have saved a few seconds or a few minutes by being reckless—they might have reached some distant objective half an hour sooner than if they had driven carefully. What a price they and their innocent victims paid for that potential saving in time.

For every driver who is hasty because of a genuine need to get somewhere in a hurry, a hundred drivers are hasty for no reason at all... because they are congenitally careless, irresponsible or incompetent. How long are we going to permit these drivers to sacrifice thousands of lives a year on the altar of recklessness?

Value of the Home Paper

There are few "weeks" celebrated in this country that are more worthy of celebration than the "home paper week" recently observed in Kansas. It was made a big occasion in most of the cities and towns, with fitting ceremonies and addresses and serious attention in the schools.

Here are some typical extracts from school children's essays on the subject:

"The home paper and the community are closely and inseparably linked. One cannot grow without the other."

"The section of the paper that I like best is the page containing the news of the neighboring communities. Everyone should be interested in his neighbors."

"If the home paper could talk, it would say: 'I am a friend to all men, women and children. I am read by young walter who never forgets a face or a name. We walked down to the Mississippi river; it is 80 feet deep at Memphis. Memphis is of ever growing importance because it is a transfer point for goods shipped from the north and east and middle west by river, and sent to the southeast and the southwest by rail. Memphis plans to extend its harbor which is the Wolf river, a tributary which enters the Mississippi at Memphis, and to build a grain elevator to store wheat brought down from the Missouri river, recently canalized, for re-shipment by rail. Flood control work in the lower Mississippi is nearly completed, and Army engineers who have directed the job think they gave Old Man River licked. The floods you read about last spring were in tributaries of the Mississippi, not in the Father of Waters himself. Memphis has a new Riverside drive, built by relief labor. Went to Court Square, full of trees, squirrels and pigeons; it is right on Main street (yes, the name has never been changed) where stores are doing a thriving business. The George T. Broinax jewelry store has customers in New York City. The James S. Robinson drug store, old-fashioned drug store, which has no soda fountain, and no novelties, but limits itself to prescriptions and standard drugs, has customers all over the world. Memphis, most of whose people never used a pair of skis, makes more of them than any city on earth. Every May Memphis has a magnificent Cotton Carnival, which is growing in brilliance every year. We inspected the site of the proposed Sibley Forest, which Meeman has promoted. About to be purchased with Federal funds, it will give Memphis something which is rare in America—a natural forest park of more than 10,000 acres only ten miles from the city limits.

GRASS FARM AT STAKE

and old. All of me is read. The children quarrel over me. The old folks hurry to read me. Because I am a carrier of the home news."

A large paper in a large city, edited by a man who was once a small-town editor, adds this testimony:

"It is the daily and weekly papers in small communities that are the bulwark of honest government in this country. The small town editor has a broad vision. His contacts with his readers are personal. He knows the warp and woof of the community life, and through his paper he reflects a sentiment that is healthful and constructive. The small town editor has herein an advantage over the editor of the big city paper. The latter has to get his inspiration inside of four walls, and seldom meets with the people."

recent session of the legislature, as an attorney fighting the bill strongly urged by Amos G. Carter of Fort Worth, friend of the Roosevelt administration and the Roosevelt family. Mr. Carter protested strongly against practice that permits hospitals to exclude the family doctor of a patient. Overton, as attorney, represented the hospitals and doctors aligned with the hospitals.

It is always open season to capitalize on the name of a nationally prominent person, and no name ranks for the purpose with that of the Roosevelts. So when Elliott Roosevelt, vice president of the Texas Young Democrats, made a fine fight at the Amarillo convention against resolutions attacking the new deal policies and administration, and when James Roosevelt also joined in this program, the field was all set. So Overton went back to Dallas and announced a "revolt," with all the trappings, including a proposal to oust Elliott Roosevelt. Chairman Cusack of the Dallas club, called a meeting, and the Overton resolution, as offered by a third person, was overwhelmingly defeated. That put an end to the one-man "revolt" that had gained front-page space throughout Texas—solely upon Mr. Roosevelt's prominence. The only possible hang-over is the proposal of some other ambitious Young Democrats that they would oust Mr. Overton and one or two others for having sponsored the attack on Elliott Roosevelt.

So much for the Young Democrats' one-man revolt in Texas. If a definite poll were taken, it is clear that about 85 per cent of all adults would record their support to the principles and policies of the New Deal administration. Most of the remaining 15 per cent would not be business people, as is assumed, but would be the world war veterans who feel, with controversial notice, that they have been made to bear too great a share of the retrenchment and shifting of government-benefits to others. Mr. Overton got glorious publicity out of it while it lasted, and it took only the first official action by the first Young Democratic club to repudiate his whole undertaking and to support the stand of Young Roosevelt at the Amarillo convention.

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, June 28. — One young Dallas lawyer's disagreement with Amos G. Carter, Fort Worth newspaper publisher, produced the entire episode labeled throughout the state as a Young Democrats' revolt against Elliott Roosevelt and the New Deal. The young lawyer is Phil Overton of Dallas. He got more square yards of publicity out of a one-man attack upon the prominence of the Roosevelt name than anyone in recent history. Overton was in Austin during the

Summer Sweethearts

JOHN KAYE came back to the drawing room and fled manfully. He had to rush, he said. He would be back as quickly as he could. Perhaps they would not have flushed the rubber. . . .

JOHN KAYE watched him go. John could hear Victor Stryker telephoning Mrs. Willetts, asking if Lucy wanted to make a fourth. He felt guilty, but escape was too tempting.

Driving past the Parker's gateway, he felt an unaccountable impulse to see Zoe again. Her warm and impulsive sympathy had been very sweet that afternoon. Perhaps he could talk to her about Katharine.

The girl who came toward him was fragrant in delicate blue lace. Her brown curls radiated about her small head. Her eyes were fringed with dark lashes.

"Why, Zoe's a beauty," thought John Kaye, surprised that he had not noticed it before. He had always counted her a mere child, frivolous and amusing. Today she had shown a sweeter, deeper, more womanly side? Some ancient scales seemed to have fallen from his eyes. . . .

For a moment they stood, regarding each other. Then the man said, haltingly, "I thought I dropped a glove here today. . . ."

Zoe shook her head. "Don't believe so. Gerda would have given it to me, if you had."

That glove was in her childish treasure box, along with other hoarded mementoes.

"Some day, perhaps," thought the girl with sudden presence, "I shall tell him about it."

"May I stay a long enough to smoke a cigarette?" the man asked, glancing from the book she held to the glowing grate fire.

Zoe's heart cried, "Stay a long time, my darling."

But she was all demureness as she answered him.

Did You Ever Stop to Think

EDSON WAITE
Shaw & O'Neil

Zoe said, "My dear, I'm terribly sorry. I knew you'd have to know sooner or later, but I hoped it would be some other way."

The marriage certificate of Michael Heatheroe and Katharine Stryker lay on the table between her and Dr. Kaye. He glanced at it, glanced away.

"But I had thought," she said in a puzzled tone, "when she left I certainly thought—"

Zoe patted his hand. "I don't know what this is all about," she said. "But I'm certain Katharine never meant to hurt anyone. She must have had a very good reason for not telling us."

"I've been there, myself," she added after a moment. "I guess you know about that. Loving anyone and finding out you don't count, and feeling nothing's worth while. . . . But you know all about that. You saved me from something terrible. I'll never forget it. That's why I wish I could help now."

"It's all right," Dr. Kaye muttered. "It's my own fault. I was just a fool, I guess."

Much, much later, after he had gone, Zoe reviewed the scene, remembering the way he had looked—the hurt in his eyes. She had tucked the tell-tale document away in an envelope and had mailed it to Katharine at Silencia, Koanne, New Mexico. With that out of her hands, she felt definitely safer.

It was a pity Dr. Kaye had had to learn the news thus. If it had not been for Gerda and her hateful shepherd dog it never would have happened. Gerda was definitely a trouble maker, but this time she had been an unwitting one.

Zoe went through the morning room. Gerda was picking up fallen flower petals; there were late chrysanthemums in all the vases. Gerda turned, spying something out to Zoe. "I guess the doctor dropped this."

Zoe took it. John Kaye's pigskin glove. It was a special gifting glove, one of an old and beloved pair. She recognized it.

"Thanks, Gerda. I'll see he gets it."

SHE went upstairs. Her own beautiful room was in perfect order. Her dinner dress, an affair of delicate blue lace, was laid out on the bed. Her little quilted slippers and transparent stockings

WELCOME Humble Boosters!

Cisco Grows With Humble

Realizing that Cisco owes a great deal of the Humble companies for growth as a city in the past and for the present position as a key city in the Humble system, the Daily News, on behalf of the citizens of Cisco, extend a welcome to the Humble Boosters for their annual picnic here Saturday.

Cisco and Humble have grown together. When the big boom struck the Oil Belt, Humble was one of the companies to locate headquarters here. During the years since that time, Humble has always maintained at least a part of its West Texas interests as centering about the Cisco offices.

The Humble company and its employes, cooperating with the city of Cisco, have been able to do many things which neither alone could have accomplished.

City pride and the pride of achievement have marked the relations between Humble employes and officials and the city from the beginning of their association.

The Daily News, realizing that the steady payroll of the Humble companies here have added greatly to the city's income, both in times of prosperity and through the depression, feels that Cisco has been fortunate in having such a group of people and such a company located here and centering division activities here.

At the same time, Cisco has been able to offer something in the matter of desirable location, a progressive city, a fighting spirit that moves forward, and a feeling of good will in return.

It is with this thought foremost that the Daily News extends a welcome to Humble officials and employes to hold their picnic here this year and other years in the future.

Bring your families. Enjoy Lake Cisco. Try its boating, its fishing, its swimming pool, and the other recreational features. Above all, get acquainted with the people of the city, who already know you as a group but want to meet you individually.

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY MARY E. DAGUE

STANTIAL one-dish vegetable meals that with the addition of bread and butter, salad and dessert send the customers out feeling well-fed but not stuffed, are also in high favor this year for dietetic as well as financial reasons.

These hearty vegetable dishes may be made up of two or more vegetables and they often have cheese, peanut butter or egg added. The combinations are finished in the oven and are served from the casserole or baking dish, effecting a worth while saving of dishes.

Here are some garnishes that will make them twice as appetizing: Sprigs of parsley, sprays of tender watercress, slices of hard cooked egg, threads of canned pimento, rings of fresh green pepper, cross sections of stuffed olives, spots of paprika, sprinklings of minced parsley, grated raw carrots, chopped salted nuts, grated cheese and minced chives. Some of these materials always are at hand.

Wooden Shoes Gain Dutch Popularity

HOLLAND, Mich., June 27.—Ten times as many wooden shoes are being made and sold now as were several years ago, Chester Van Tongeren, operator of the only wooden shoe factory in the country, reported today.

Most of the output of his workshop, however, goes to tourists. A few persons of Dutch and Belgian descent still use the sabots to work around the barn or in other jobs.

Van Tongeren was a junior at Hope College when he entered the World War. In 1928 he opened his shoe factory on the second floor of his father's tobacco shop. Friends predicted the venture would fail.

Beginning with five assistants, Van Tongeren now employs more than 100 men. The work is not limited to wooden shoes. Souvenirs of every kind leave the Holland factory daily for every city in the United States. They range from ash trays to miniature windmills. All are made of wood.

Van Tongeren views the success of his venture as not phenomenal. "It's just a matter of bringing out something new and being everlasting on the alert for ideas," he said.

SOVIET URGES RECORD GAINS IN BIRTH RATE

By JOSEPH H. BAIRD
United Press Staff Correspondent
MOSCOW, June 28. — A campaign for an increase in the population of the Soviet Union, reminiscent of that conducted in recent years in Germany and Italy, was started today by Pravda, the chief organ of the Communist party.

Recalling that since the revolution, the population of the Soviet Union had increased by 25,000,000 Pravda declared:

"We are sincerely happy at this increase. Our tempo must break all records in this field, too."

Further on the lead editorial continued:

"The greater our birth-rate, the quicker we will be able to put our potential wealth to the service of the people who have cast off age-old slavery to capitalist landowners and kulaks."

Capitalistic Countries Attacked

The appeal for an increase in the Soviet population was combined with a bitter attack on conditions in so-called capitalistic countries, where Pravda maintained the "holy maternal instinct" was being suppressed because of "capitalistic obstacles."

Pravda's outspoken editorial is highly interesting in connection with the recent campaign here to abolish or at least strictly control abortions.

For many years the Soviet Union has been regarded by the outside world as extremely liberal regarding the freedom of the individual to practice birth control. Since the revolution until recently the state has maintained clinics where operations were possible for the payment of an insignificant fee, while birth-control literature was freely circulated.

Inasmuch as Pravda always sounds the dominant note in forecasts of state and Communist party policies, it is reasonable to suppose this trend of thought is rapidly approaching an end.

Military Preparedness Seen

No explanation for this sharp break with past policy was given, but undoubtedly it is not entirely unconnected with the policy of military preparedness for which throughout history rulers have considered a high birth-rate necessary.

The appeal for an increase in the Soviet population was combined with a dark picture of the condition of women in capitalistic countries.

After recalling the falling birth-rate in France and England, Pravda continued:

"Capitalism has entered a blind alley. To continue its existence it daily destroys thousands and thousands of human lives. Armed conflicts, wars, galloping shooting of refugees, voluntary hunger and poverty of hundreds of millions, prostitutions and abortions which main women—such is the other side of capitalistic civilization."

Stalin Is Quoted

"In our country the woman-mother is the most honored person. In the increase of the population of our country we see the source of an increase of wealth of the country and its successes because (quoting Stalin) of all valuable capital in the world the most valuable, the most important, are people."

"The law is a strong protector of mother and child. Capitalistic barbarity takes away from woman what is dearest to her—her right to maternity."

Let's Call Them "Typhoid Flies"

Effort to change the name of the common house fly to typhoid fly is the motive behind a movement started by Dr. L. O. Howard, government entomologist.

The name "house fly" is too tame. The fly is accepted as a nuisance, but not considered as the dangerous insect it is. Government health authorities have proved that the common flies that buzz about homes and kitchens carry bacteria, which can infect human beings with at least a dozen diseases in addition to typhoid.

Dr. Howard states, "Even if the fly were a creature difficult to destroy, the failure on the part of people to make any effort to reduce its number could properly be termed criminal neglect. As it is now an easy matter to do away with flies, this neglect becomes an evidence of ignorance. It is the duty of every individual to guard against the occurrence of flies upon his premises."

As Dr. Howard says it is no longer difficult to rid a house of flies. Research at the Mellon Institute in Pittsburgh made possible by a fellowship provided by the Rex Research Corporation has developed a liquid which when sprayed in a fine mist kills flies. Commercially this product is known as Fly-Tox.

WOLVES MORE FEROCIOUS

SHORTER SUMMER DULL PERIOD IS FORESEEN BY BUSINESS BUREAU

AUSTIN, June 28. — Indications are growing that the period of normal summer dullness will be shorter and milder this summer than a year ago, according to Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director and statistician of the bureau of business research of the University of Texas.

The following favorable factors may be listed in support of this opinion, Dr. Buechel pointed out.

Recent supreme court decisions have greatly clarified the longer-term business outlook. Principles underlying these decisions may be expected to apply to certain other New Deal legislation, which has been so disturbing to business in recent months.

The current crop outlook in the vast drought stricken area of last year is the best in several years. Farm prices probably will be maintained both as a result of low stocks and the increased domestic demand for farm products which will follow the expected upturn in urban industry. Western railroads particularly will benefit from the larger farm income arising both from the crops and from government subsidies.

Transition Less Severe

The transition to pre-code operations promise to be far less severe than was expected earlier.

There have been wide gains in residential building activity. May contracts were up some 81 per cent as compared with the corresponding 1934 month. Although the increase is measured from a very low base, residential activity thus far this year has made the first significant upturn since 1929.

Machine tool orders have shown a sharp increase contrary to seasonal trends, the May total having reached the highest figure for any similar month in five years. This development suggests that the long delayed upturn in the capital goods industries may be getting under way.

A moderate improvement in rail equipment purchases is expected in addition to the larger revenues accruing to railroads from the better crops and favorable prices, the carriers are expected to seek additional funds from the government for equipment rehabilitation. A number of roads also are readjusting their financial structure. As a result of these developments, some stimulus to the heavier industries should be provided from this source.

Industry Strong

The inventory position of industry generally is strong. This should prevent a sharp decline in business activity this summer and should have a stabilizing influence on prices. Reduced inventories may well provide the basis for a better than seasonal upturn in business this fall.

On the other side of the picture, aside from normal seasonal forces, is the ever-present fear of highly restrictive legislation. Indications are that the president's "must" program will be pushed through despite the doubtful constitutionality of much of the proposed legislation. Hence, spells of uncertainty so characteristic of recent years, will continue to grip business from time to time during the coming months.

The foregoing summary suggests that constructive forces appear definitely in the ascendency. Another basis for optimism is the recognition among a growing number of people that business management has two payrolls—that it pays its own employees and what it pays indirectly to employees of enterprises from which it buys—and that the margin above costs does not remain unspent.

A shrinkage in the indirect payroll accounts for most of the unemployment of the depression. Lack of corporate and business buying rather than lack of consumer buying is the primary cause of continued economic distress. When profits reappear and confidence rises, business will again become a large buyer. As the producers of durable goods get under way, the unemployed will be reabsorbed in these industries, their buying power will be increased, and the demand for consumption goods further extended.

If the outlook for improvement in international trade were as bright as that for domestic industry and trade, there would be still further assurance that the depression has definitely been left behind. Texas, particularly, could then look forward with confidence because of the large part her two leading products—cotton and oil—play in international trade. Should foreign trade continue to lag, however, there is a likelihood that this state will not in future months make so favorable a relative showing as it has in the past few years, especially in comparison with the Corn Belt states.

GOV'T FLOOD CONTROL AIDS VALLEY LAND

McALLEN, June 28. — Because of the government's giant flood control program, thousands of acres of land in the Upper Rio Grande valley escaped damage in the recent floods.

The gigantic flood control system was constructed in as a result of the disastrous floods of 1922, when thousands of acres of fertile farm land was devastated.

The original construction cost -1,600,000 but since then the government has spent an additional $2,000,000 in improving and maintaining the original project.

The government also has cleaned and kept virtually bare the floodway channels so that water can pass swiftly and in great quantities into the floodways. The entire levee system has been strengthened and rebuilt throughout its 175 miles length.

When the river reaches a stage of about 20 feet, the water starts flooding into Hackney's lake about six miles southwest of McAllen. The lake overflows in turn between the two levees forming the south floodway branch.

Water also leaves the Rio Grande and enters the north floodway branch at a stage of about 23 feet at Cjo de Afua southwest of Mission. The two floodway branches join south of Phorr, then continue as one to Mercedes, where they again branch.

One arm proceeds north from Mercedes, then turns east to the Gulf of Mexico, passing between the towns of Sebastian and Combes in Cameron county. The other arm continues east from Mercedes emptying into the Arroyo Colorado.

The Arroyo has also been improved, straightened and cleaned out to permit faster flow of floodwater as a part of the government's program. It empties into the gulf northeast of Harlingen and Rio Hondo in Cameron county.

QUINCY, MASS. — Two bats broke up an inquest at a state fire marshal's hearing here.

The bats, which flew out of the folds of two flags, were captured by assistant state fire marshal George O. Mansfield. They have been adopted as pets.

CAMERA PUTS LIGHTNING IN SLOW MOTION

NEW YORK, June 28—Slow motion cameras have been used by science editors of The Country Ho to measure thunderbolts and estimate just how much electricity is released in a flash of lightning.

Considering all the noise a thunderstorm can make, it is a little disconcerting to discover that the average thundercloud has a store of only just about as much electricity as flows through an ordinary electric light bulb in a minute. It generates this much electricity in five minutes, maintains it at this value for a longer or shorter period, and then lets it fly as a flashing flash at a pressure of about 5 billion volts, enough to blow a man down, or a horse, or even a small house. The pressure makes the discharge both spectacular and dangerous, and the thundercloud machine is continuously generating electricity at this pressure a single cloud often developing 3 million kilowatts of power.

Photographs indicate that when a cloud is ready to hurl a thunderbolt it first cozes out a tiny tongue of flame. This stretches eastward about 50 yards from the cloud. It pauses and then fades out for a 10,000th of a second. It then reappears and stretches another 50 yards. This process continues until the ground is reached. Branch tongues often spring out from it. The instant the leading tongue lashes the earth, the main part of the stroke begins. A brilliant flame sweeps upward from the ground toward the cloud, retracing the path literally blazed by the leader. This second stroke is much quicker, lasting but 50 millionths of a second.
