The report concerned the secret dispatch—disclosed in casual dispatches in Roman newspaper—of two divisions of regulars—30,000 men—from the East African Expeditionary force to Libya on the Egyptian Sudanese frontier.

About Our Friends

By STEP A. LONG

Charles Kimmell, J. D. Frank and Wattie Bennie are all lined up for work, they say. On it be the football game? Of course they want to see their buddies, Van Sickle, show his stuff.

Charles Trammell shows he is in judgment. He agrees with us... you understand. When a man agrees with your ideas, he is wise.

Ernest Hughes wants to get married, but he is choicy. He specifies a rich young widow and she must be beautiful. P. R. Warwick speaks up and says that he has the heirs of Hughes in charge, in fact is getting a commission on his matrimonial arrangement.

Ernest Hughes... Dick Giles, too. He did it right well for Lloyd Hughes. Far exceeded his expectations, but Ernest... he would be content with the rich widow, regardless of how she looked. Ernest doesn't expect so much for Ernest. (You have to know Warwick to appreciate this.)

Oran Shackelford, sales manager for the West Texas Utilities company, says the world is unappreciative of kindness. In the case of ourselves, he notes that we did some very nice things in our column recently about Collector Crus Elliott and now this morning he insists right before Shackelford that we pay our bill. It does seem ungrateful.

Richard Bearman, happy and at ease with the world... no worries. Mickey Carroll reports early for work. Robert Elliott and Wyatt Jacobs busy with the new fall goods for men. L. G. Ball calls our attention to the new interior painting at Carl Baird's service station.

Ball did it. They may change the color to green, however. Ed and Smitty Huestis seem to think that everyone should have a lubrication job on their car. And there goes Harvey Thurman and Blair Clark... who next?

CANADA READY TO OFFER U. S. TRADE FAVORS

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 20. — The Canadian government is ready to offer the United States its intermediate tariff and possibly most favored nation treatment in return for a more favorable access of Canadian natural products to the United States market. It is learned the Canadian offer is the latest development in the long negotiations between the two countries for a reciprocal trade pact, and is now virtually the basis of the negotiations.

Objection Has Lessened

What the Canadian government is prepared to grant does not encounter the same degree of objection here, although some industries are inclined to view the proposals unfavorably. The intermediate tariff is more favorable than the general tariff, but the difference is not so marked as it once was. Under the present government, it has been narrowed. Many items, for instance, upon which the British preferential tariff would be 25 per cent, have 33 per cent as the intermediate and 49 per cent as the general tariff. It is understood in view of what American negotiators want favored nation treatment, which would mean tariff treatment as

Texas In Debt But Generous

Texas, in the red eleven million dollars for state administration, its subdivisions owing a billion for public improvements, is lavish to prodigality in giving away the natural resources, common heritage of its people, to those who have vested titles, regardless of whether acquired for much or little value or none.

Texas has been giving away a billion cubic feet of natural gas a day, worth a quarter of a billion dollars a year on final sales, and getting in return about $300,000 from taxes. The state is producing 400,000,000 barrels of oil a year. This oil is paying about $8,000,000 in taxes. Of course Texas users of oil products pay a vast sight more taxes; but about four-fifths of Texas crude oil goes to consumers out of the state.

Texas sulphur pays approximately 2 per cent in state production taxes. All the resources pay ad valorem taxes besides production levies. But there are, among lawmakers, those who believe producers of Texas natural resources, such as oil, gas, sulphur, timber, potash, cement, pay only one-tenth of one-fifth what the state should get out of the permanent depletion of these resources. These lawmakers recall that other states collect four or five times as much as Texas in severance levies, and that production nowhere is stilled by taxes.

Brazil as Cotton Growing Nation

All the great mouth-pieces of propaganda have been telling it to the American world that the South has lost the market for the greatest American "farm" staples—meaning cotton. All the millers of the world, including those of New England and elsewhere, are largely responsible for the propaganda, and the absurd charge that the American people have lost their ancient markets. Now comes the report from Brazil that the cotton crop of 1935 will be a third less than it was a year ago. Throughout all the dead years of American history the propagandists of Europe and many other countries were ever spreading the poison in this republic that unless the Southern and Southwestern farmers produced cheap cotton they would be ruined and foreign planters furnish the world with cotton grown in foreign climes. It is the old story of old wine in a new bottle.

Militarist Culture

The most revolting account of degradation is the brief letter quoted by the Magazine Time of a German mother. It tells of army men teaching the small German school girls they are the unfinished factory of cannon-fodder. With brutal directness these militarists in the grade schools, she said, snap orders for mass production, teach efficiency and try to mold adolescent minds to ideals of war lust.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—Although the U. S. Supreme Court will not officially be installed in its magnificent new building until it meets there for the fall session Oct. 7, the justices are already "moving in."

Several have brought part of their equipment over from the historic old quarters in the capitol building, and one of Chief Justice Hughes' clerks is already beginning to get Hughes' suite in order.

The old-fashioned high-backed chairs have been brought there from the old courtroom and they look very odd indeed in the beautiful, new, up-to-date setting. Of course they will be replaced with modern furniture later.

As soon as a huge rug is set and draperies hung in the magnificent court chamber, the central feature of the new building, it will be virtually completed after four years of work.

THE Gerry collection of 35,000 volumes, legal reports and treatises, old vellum-bound tomes in Latin and Greek dating back 400 years, and one of the general law and police administration, has already been installed in the justices' library.

This collection was made by the late Elbridge T. Gerry and presented to the court by Senator Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island, son of the collector.

It is expected to extend the collection by continuing series of reports already begun. A special act was required to accept the books, and Librarian Oscar Clark is among those who hope that a general law may be passed enabling the Supreme Court library to accept donations generally as does the Library of Congress.

The latter is loaning some 25,000 volumes to the Supreme Court to grace its shelves, which have room for nearly 250,000. Other law collections have already been offered the court.

IT is hard to believe that there is anywhere else in the world so utterly dazzling a pile of marble as this building. The exterior is of white Vermont marble, the interior of Alabama marble, with Georgia marble facing the four interior courts.

About the main court chamber stand huge columns of pink-mottled Siena marble. Marble staircases, marble walls, marble columns and pillars, entablatures, pediments and friezes.

Such wood-carving as graces the heavy white-oak woodwork of reading rooms, dining rooms and private judicial suites has seldom been achieved in this country.

Medallions, friezes, borders, bas-reliefs cut into the oak panels. It is all very beautiful, very massive and dignified, and very expensive. Total cost of the building will be close to $11,000,000.

WHEN the judges take their seats in October to pronounce their verdict on New Deal legislation, they will sit at the head of what is certainly one of the most impressive chambers in the world.

Sculptured friezes run around the four walls at the high ceiling. At the sides of the room march Menes, Hammurabi, Moses, Solomon, Lycurgus, Solon, Draco, Confucius, and Octavian, Justinian, Mohammed, Charlemagne, King John, St. Louis, Grotius, Blackstone, Marshall and Napoleon.

But Who Will Operate the Rubber Stamp?

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Sept. 20 — The Women's Christian Temperance Union is one of the organizations represented at legislative committee hearings on the various 119 bills of bills. Mrs. Claude De Van Watts, state W. C. T. U. president, and Mrs. Thomas C. Jensen, state secretary, attended the opening hearings. "We do not have any bill," she offered, "Mrs. Watts said, 'but we are watching these proceedings very closely, to see the type of bill evolved in the committees of the house and senate.'"

She indicated a dislike for the idea of a two-year trial of the licensing system before voters, pass on the mandatory state-monopoly plan late in 1936. "Our children should not be the ones offered up for such an experiment," she said. The W. C. T. U. will put all its weight behind efforts of legislative cry to prevent any sort of a bill to permit selling drinks in any establishment.

Big ships go up the Neches river to the inland port of Beaumont.

whose ocean-traffic tonnage figures are impressive. In the long fight to get a highway bridge on the New Orleans-Port Arthur-Galveston highway Beaumont, successfully resisted any turn-type bridge or any structure except high enough that the ships could pass under it. Citizens of Beaumont and Port Arthur and of the only county in the United States containing two cities of over 50,000 population, got together to support such a bridge that did not bottle up Beaumont shipping.

Together, they have secured $1,141,742 of federal grant and voted $750,000 county bonds, toward the $2,500,000 bridge. The Texas highway commission soon will decide whether it will add about $200,000 a year for two years to get this needed structure, and to cause the expenditure of the other two millions on the work project.

It is a good point of order: That no bills be received in special session except on subjects submitted by the governor. Rep. Lon E. Alsup of Cartmace made it this session, and laid a dozen bills on the shelf. But it probably served no very great purpose this time of keeping other matters out of the way of the other bills, and pensions hadn't been submitted. The legislature could as well have ground away on measures submitted by the governor as upon resolutions about the rational tariff or cotton prices.

The BLUE DOOR

By Rachel Mack

BEGIN HERE TODAY
RUTH WOODSON, pretty, high-spirited girl of 19, in search of work, seeks refuge from a storm in an old stone house with a blue door in the little town of Worthville. The queer old caretaker, BERTHA GIBBS, whose name was PENNY, thinks Ruth is ELAINE CHALMERS, whose grandfather built the house.

Ruth, needing shelter and having fallen in love with JOHN McNEILL, the young man next door, decides to stay on a while, posing as ELAINE. Elmer, meanwhile, at Graycastle College, votes in a society meeting to win the love of her childhood hero, John McNeill. She plans to go to Worthville.

John has fallen in love with Ruth, whom he calls "Elaine," and they are often next door. Elmer goes to New York and her mother, GWEN DEAL, tells her that Elmer's uncle, ELAINE HUNTER has escaped from an asylum and is thought to be in New York. Elmer spends a gay week-end going about with her name, TRIMMY VAN HARRINGTON. She is half in love with DENNIS DAVIS, a first classman at Amesbury, and looks upon her coming conquest of John McNeill as sport.

Mrs. McNeill returns home from a visit. She and John, alarmed about "Elaine" being alone, call the Hunter house with old Bertha Gibbs, urge her to stay with them. Ruth declines.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXI
ELAINE CHALMERS, kissing Teddy Van Harrington goodnight in the car in the small hours of Sunday morning, refused to let him come in.

"Don't hang around, Teddy," she told him petulantly. "I'll be here till Monday. We've still plenty of time to quarrel."

"I thought you were going back today," he said. "Didn't you say you had classes Monday morning?"

"So I did and so I have," she retorted brightly, "but I'm staying over anyway. I can see your cocktails this afternoon and then till all hours tonight. Run along now and let Elaine sleep."

When a sleepy houseman had let her in she sat in the dimly lit drawing room and thought of Ohio. She had decided not to go back to college at all before the holidays. A three-day absence prior to a holiday would not be investigated. That much at least she had gained by her progress from boarding school chit to college woman. . . . She pretended to go to Graycastle Monday, but instead she'd take a train for Worthville. In that way she'd gain three extra days for conquest of John McNeill.

beds to straighten their borders. She was so engrossed that she failed to hear the hedge being parted and John McNeill stepping through.

"Did I frighten you?" he asked. Ruth laughed. "You did startle me a little. I was afraid it was Penny come to call me down for trespassing in her garden."

John asked, "How's Penny conducting herself by the way?"

"Very comfortably," Ruth assured him. "But there's a couple of good yarns about her that I've never told you."

John said, "I've never heard of it. Tell me." Ruth said, wiping a smudge of dirt from her wrist, "She swiped a set of Stevensons from the library and stuck some other books in their place. I was reading one of the Stevensons at the time and it made me wild. I've seen them since. When I asked her about them she pretended not to know what I was talking about. She can't read, of course, on account of her sight."

"Um-m," said John, drawing on his pipe. "Well, the other incident is louder and funnier. It's about a cake I made for her. The day after her birthday she got her quarterly check from New York. She went down town to bank it and to buy a supply of staple groceries. When I saw all the outlay she'd had sent home, I offered to bake her a day-late birthday cake. She was as thrilled as a child and asked me if I could manage to make the icing pink! I did, by using best water as coloring. If I do say so, it was a beautiful cake."

"Is this story intended to praise your cooking?" asked John, grinning, "or just to make me hungry?"

RUTH wrinkled her nose at him. "I'm not interested in your reaction to the cake—it's Penny's that has me guessing. Well, she began to eat a piece of it with the most heavenly expression on her face. About that time there came a knock on the front door and she went to answer it. She fooled around so long that I cleared the table and began to wash the dishes. Finally she came back, but she'd lost her appetite and all interest in the cake. She said she'd had a telegram that upset her."

"I'll not risk applying for a rush train pass," she decided, "or engage a drawing room. Higate's secretary gets wind of everything. No, I'll buy a ticket and travel like any poor girl who doesn't own a share of railroad stock to her name." It did not occur to her that some girls are too poor to buy even a railroad ticket.

ON the following afternoon, when she was in bed, Ruth Woodson felt moved to explore the flower garden back of the library. It had tempted her from the first. Two long windows in the west wall of the library opened on the garden and stone steps led down from the window ledges.

Ruth was interested. Once the beds had been formally planted, with paths, stone seats and a sundial to enhance the effect. Now everything was a tangle.

Ruth found a few rusty tools in a little shed, chose a hoe, and began to use it on the flower-one," he said. "She took the books, of course, because there was nobody else to take them. She's using them for a door stop. We used to do it at college."

"Marvelous!" Ruth exclaimed, almost seriously. "And what about the cake episode?"

He said, "If the Secret Service hears of this they'll hire me, whether or not. Penny eats in her kitchen."

They both laughed until they were weak.

"Can we go into the library?" John asked.

"Of course we can go in," Ruth answered. "I cleaned it thoroughly a few days ago. Careful as you go in! You'll have to duck the window sash."

She entered by one window and he by another. As they met inside he pretended to be surprised to see her, took both her hands and kissed her boldly and effectively on the lips.

AFTER she had caught her breath Ruth surprised and delighted him by saying, "Wrong cue! We've got to make another entrance, Mr. McNeill!"

So they solemnly went out and came in and did it all over again, this time almost daring to tender.

John complained, "We haven't gotten the thing right yet. Miss Chalmers, there's still too much levity on your part. Let's cut out the entering and concentrate on the finale."

Ruth shook her head and drew away from him. "That's the Little Theater movement for you! You get your own act with rehearsals. Actually her heart was pounding to her frivolous words. 'Have you ever noticed this old globe, John?'"

"Have I?" he exclaimed, whirling it rapidly. "I used to pore over it. It's several sizes larger than yours. What's wrong?"

The two sections of the globe had become loosened at his handling and showed signs of separating at the equator. He lifted off the top section and held it up. "Well, I've half the world at least."

"What's this?" Ruth asked. In the smooth concavity of the lower hemisphere there was a bit of gaudy ribbon, surmounted by a bronze bar. She picked it up and examined it curiously.

She gave it to him and he looked at it for a long time. "It's my Scout badge," he stated, quiet as if he had been looking for it the day before. "Imagine finding it in there!"

She said that he was back again in his boyhood and she was very still while he thought about the little incident.

He said then, "I haven't told you what I came over to ask. Mother wants you to come to supper at 6. Only she calls it tea on Sunday. Afterward she's going out for a while. You'll be expected to entertain me. Mind?"

Ruth told him, "I couldn't make it if you hadn't asked me. Sunday nights are lonesome."

"I hate to think what they'll be when you're gone," he said. "Hush!" replied Ruth. She spoke sharply.

Cisco To Rely Upon Speed Tonight

ELECTRA BOYS MUCH HEAVIER THAN LOBOES

A thin black line of Loboes with the determination in the world tonight will throw that determination against heavier, more experienced team when it hurries itself against the mighty Electra Wildcats from the north country to open the 1935 football season here.

The game is scheduled to start at 7 o'clock and a good early-season crowd is expected. Tickets are on sale for 25 and 50 cents.

First Meeting

This will be the Loboes first meeting with Electra. The season in the past has been opened here with the traditional Gorman game, but this year Gorman was dropped off the schedule for the stronger opponent on the Oklahoma border.

The Electra outfit will have a great weight advantage over Cisco tonight, varying from 13 to 19 pounds to the man. The Electra boys will average at least 165 pounds to the man, with the line much heavier, while the Loboes will be able to weigh in at a scant 152 pounds to the man.

The Loboes will be relying upon speed and deception, coupled with an effort to beat the Wildcats to the change in the line, to offset the weight disadvantage.

Work Together Well

The Loboes are fairly fast and in practice have displayed a willingness to work together well.

Captain Burnam likely will start at right end tonight, it was announced by Coach Dexter Shelley this morning. The captain will be moved back to end from the full-back post to fill the gap left by Wendt, who has a bad leg. Shelley said he did not know if Wendt would be able to play but that he might possibly be used.

The rest of the lineup will be much the same as it has been in practice. The backfield will consist of Stansbury at quarter, Rylee and McCannies at halves, and Woods at full back. Rylee likely will see service at halfback early in the game, as McCannies is out.

TEACHES TELEVISION

MONTREAL — Said to be the first television course ever offered in Canada, the Canadian School of Electricity here has opened a department for training students in the latest development of radio transmission.

FIVE TOMATOES IN ONE

UTICA, N. Y. — Introducing the quintuplets of Little Falls — five ripe tomatoes which grew together from a single stem. The tomato growers grew by accident in the garden of Mrs. E. Primmer.

9 REGULARS TO START TCU GO WITH JACKETS

FORT WORTH, Sept. 20 — The starting lineup of the T. C. U. Horned Frogs against the Howard Payne Yellow Jackets here Saturday afternoon will include nine players who were regular starters last season and one who started some games.

Holt, who played some at guard last year but who did not letter, is the new name in the lineup. Wilson Grueszlose, regular right tackle because of illness in his family reported for practice a week late and is being given more time to get into shape. He will see action Saturday but is not slated to start.

Baugh, although not the regular starting quarter last year — Capt. Joe Coleman got the call most of the time — lettered at the position and started some games. Lawrence has a slight charley-horse and might have to give way to an understudy.

BIG DAM CHATTER

Today it seems more like the old days of Oil Belt football than it has for a long time. I don't know why. Every year about this time things begin to take on a new interest and everybody shows a little more enthusiasm, but for some reason or other this year appears to be distinctive from all the lean years of the depression when people were so worried about their own business to care much whether the Loboes won a game or not.

The Loboes this year have the lightest team that they have ever had, but it probably is the best, temperamentally. The boys do not have the beef of the great 1927 eleven or even of last year. Perhaps they do not have the speed of the 1931 team.

But they have shown a willingness to work together for the highest interests of the team, and that is something that most coaches would not trade for a lot of weight.

The fans have become interested in the team. Every day when there is a scrimmage there is a crowd about as large as that at the opening game three years ago — and that's just at the practice sessions.

They are watching the Loboes, and they are going to be pulling for them tonight when they take the field.

The Loboes will be facing the biggest curtain raiser test that they have ever been asked to take. For 13 the past they have had a fairly easy time in winning from a Gorman team that usually has been lighter and greener than the Ciscoans.

Tonight, however, they will be taken on a much heavier team, and one which last week battled to a reckless tie with Mangum. Olla the eyes of Cisco and of the Oil Belt will be on the Loboes when they sweep out on the field, a wave of black in the night.

WATCH GIVEN CAFFREY FOR GRID TROPHY

J. E. Caffrey today was proudly displaying an engraved wrist watch which was presented to his son, Sentell Caffrey, by the Texas High School Coaches association.

The watch was presented in recognition of young Caffrey's all-state rating, as evidenced by his participation in the all state game August 3. Caffrey played as a back on the North District team, which lost to the South District by the narrow margin of a single field goal.

Caffrey was captain of the 1934 Friday team. The watch, white and yellow gold, had the emblem of the All-State football game on the sides and Caffrey's name and position were engraved upon it.

His father said he would send the watch to the grid star, who is a freshman at Texas A. and M. college. Young Caffrey is rooming with Harry Brennan, another Ciscoan, at the college.

Plowboys To Play Westmoorland Team

STEPHENVILLE, Sept. 20 — The John Tarleton college Plowboys play their first football game of the year Friday night at 8 o'clock, when they clash with the strong Westmoorland college eleven, from San Antonio.

The Plowboys, favored by ideal weather conditions, were sent through thorough work-outs each day last week, and Coaches W. J. Sanders hope to whip the team into shape for the Friday night fracas. The eight letter-men returning to the Tarleton fold this year will probably see plenty of action in the game, as Westmoorland boasts a strong team and may not be easily headed.

Baylor Bears Ready For Southwestern

WACO, Sept. 20 — Light drills marked Friday's practice sessions as Coach Morley Jennings made ready to send his Baylor Bears into battle against the Southwestern university Pirates of Georgetown. Having scrimmaged for six successive days, the Bruin gridders welcomed the letters that their mentor gave them Thursday and Friday. After the two days rest, the Bears are expected to be in perfect physical condition when they take the field against the Pirates Saturday night on Carroll field.

Out of the forty candidates who reported less than two weeks ago for the fall training, some fifteen have performed in a superior manner and these will all see service in the new Green and Gold uniforms as they attempt to thwart the Pirates' attack. The tentative lineup for the Baylor club includes: Floyd, center; Buchanan and Simpson, guards; Parry and Kriel, tackles; Elkins and Clark, ends; Russell, quarterback; Finley and Gorman, halfbacks; and Brewster, fullback.

BIG STABLES SEND ENTRIES TO FAIR MEET

DALLAS, Sept. 20 — Entries from some of the largest stables in America have been received for the opening of the Fair Park racing season Sept. 23 to Oct. 26.

Among those who have signified that they will compete at the track is Joe E. Brown, movie star, who declared that his string of race horses would be entered.

Judge Julius G. Reeder, general manager of the Fair Park track, said that after a check-up on approved applications for stalls and stables, he found that applications for 149 trainers had been approved and that he was short 232 stalls of having sufficient room to care for all the horses being brought here.

Many of the horses, he said, would have to stable at Arlington Downs, near the city, and be brought to the track in vans.

To Open Season

The opening of the Fair Park track officially inaugurates the 181-day racing season in Texas. This year Fair Park has increased its purses and a record entry of one pursers is assured.

During the past two years Fair Park has advanced until now it occupies 16th place among the tracks of the nation in the matter of purse distribution.

Texas, with four major tracks, ranks fifth in distribution of purses. In 1934 distributing total of $855,479. Increased purses in 1935 should add, once Texas still further in the national standing.

Judge Reeder declared that every precaution had been taken to make the Fair Park track as safe as possible this year so that no horses would have to be destroyed.

DESDEMONA

By MRS. W. C. BEDFORD

The first meeting of the Twenty-two Study club for this club year held Tuesday, September 10 at the club house which had been attractively decorated with vases and flowers, pot plants and vines around the colonnades.

MEMOIRS TELL ZIMMERMANN NOTE SECRETS

NEW YORK, Sept. 20—Eighteen years after the famous "Zimmermann note" crystallized American sentiment against Germany to the point of war, the inside story of how the department of state obtained the document was revealed today with publication of the "War Memoirs of Robert Lansing" (Bobbs Merrill). The British secret service turned it over to United States authorities.

The note, Woodrow Wilson's secretary of state wrote, was sent to the German minister to Mexico by Herr Zimmermann, German secretary of foreign affairs, and told the minister to promise Mexico the states of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, if that country would ally itself with the Central Powers.

Published March 1, 1917
Lansing, secretary of state from June 23, 1915, to February 13, 1920, revealed all the details of how the note was received, the maneuvering by the administration in making it public at a propitious moment, and the reaction to publication on March 1, 1917.

The Zimmermann note arrived at the state department February 26, 1917. It "had been obtained by secret agents of the British government and forwarded by them to London, where it had just been deciphered by means of a complicated German code," Lansing wrote. Where the British got the note was not mentioned.

The note, as forwarded to Mexico by Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador to the United States, read:
German Legation, Mexico City, Number 130 (code used).
Foreign office telegraphs January sixteenth.
Number 1. Strictly secret. Decode yourself. We intend to begin unrestricted U-Boat warfare on February first. Effort will be made notwithstanding this to keep the United States neutral. In the event that we should not be successful in this, we propose alliance to Mexico on the following basis: to make war together; make peace together; generous financial support; and agreement on our part that Mexico shall recognize the former lost territory in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. Arrangement of details to be left to Your Honor. You should disclose the foregoing to the president in strict secrecy as soon as outbreak of war with United States is certain, and add the proposal that he shall invite Japan to immediate spontaneous concurrent effort and at the same time use his good offices (or mediate) between us and Japan. Please call the president's attention to the fact that the ruthless (literally inconsiderate) employment of our U-boats offers the prospect of forcing England in a few months to (make) peace. Acknowledge receipt, Zimmermann. End of Telegram.

Bernstorff.
(Parenthetical matter by the author.)
President Wilson Quoted
The excitement that stirred in the White House, state department and inner circles of the Cabinet and congress when the note was read, was intense, Lansing wrote. President Wilson exclaimed, "Good Lord," two or three times as he read it. Secretary of Treasury William Gibbs McAdoo, now senator from California, was called in to decide the best strategy in making it public.

After much conferring, the president finally decided to release the note on the morning of March 1. The administration wished to remain out of the picture in giving out the note, so Lansing called a correspondent secretly to his home and gave him a paraphrase of the note.

Lansing wrote that publication the next morning "created a profound sensation throughout the country" and that "its effect on congress was very marked." Many patriotic speeches followed in congress, and that day the house passed the controversial bill to arm merchantmen, 513 to 13.

The much-sought verification of the note, however, had not yet arrived from the United States Embassy in London. It was not until the second morning, however, that verification arrived.

Zimmerman Admitted Note
Two days later Zimmermann in Berlin admitted the note was genuine. Charges that the government had forged the note, which had been advanced by the pro-German press, collapsed, Lansing wrote.

"The people of the eastern states had been clamoring with increasing vehemence for war against Germany," the memoirs continue, "because of the submarine outrages, but the middle west and the Pacific states had not responded to that spirit. The Zimmermann telegram, however, opened their eyes to the real character and purpose of the Berlin government."

Lansing died Oct. 20, 1928, before he completed the memoirs; hence his account of his break with President Wilson after the war was not written.

Appended to the volume, important in appraising the war period, are personal sketches of Woodrow Wilson, Arthur James Bellfleur, General Joffre, Count von Bernstorff, Baron Zwiadinek and Lansing's personal views on social life in Washington.

My salad I make of finely shredded Chinese cabbage and sweet green peppers with a border of sliced pickled beets.

Easy to Make But the sandwiches are the real achievement. We have named them corned beef rolls.

Two half-inch slices of bread, cut lengthwise of loaf, 1-1/4 cups finely chopped cold boiled corned beef, 2 teaspoons minced onion, 3 tablespoons melted butter, 2 tablespoons prepared mustard, 1-3/4 cup mayonnaise.

Use bread as fresh as you can cut it evenly, because the fresher the bread the neater the rolls.

Stuffed Eggplant One medium sized eggplant, 2 tomatoes, 1-2 cup fine dried bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon minced green pepper, 1 cup chopped shrimp, salmon or tuna fish, coarse buttered crumbs.

Boil eggplant until tender. Drain and cut in halves the long way. Remove pulp and chop. Add tomatoes peeled and chopped, fine dried bread crumbs, butter, salt, and pepper and fish. Fill the eggplant shells with this mixture, cover with coarse buttered crumbs and bake in a hot oven at 425 degrees until brown on top.
