GOV'T OPENED BUYING POWER U. S. IS TOLD

BOULDER DAM, Sept. 30. — Government spending has created the purchasing power—now it is up to private industry to maintain the recovery pace set by the New Deal, President Roosevelt told the nation today. The $108,000,000 Boulder Dam, completed with PWA funds and America's greatest engineering project since the Panama Canal, served as a fitting backdrop to Mr. Roosevelt's speech, which clearly indicated the administration also had completed its major financing program in putting the idle back to work.

"It is a simple fact," the chief executive said as he participated in the dam dedication exercises, "that the government spending is already beginning to show definite signs of its effect on consumer spending, that the putting of people to work by the government has put other people to work through private employment, and in two years and a half we have come to the point where private industry must bear the responsibility of keeping the processes of greater employment moving forward with accelerated speed."

Pointing to projects, large and small, as laudable means of meeting the economic crisis, he observed: "In a little over two years this work has accomplished much. He has helped mankind by the works themselves, and at the same time created the necessary purchasing power to start the wheels of what we call private industry."

Morse, author of the license bill legalizing by-the-drink sales in hotels, restaurants, and cocktail bars, directed his remark at the bone-dry definition of an open saloon adopted by the senate. ## Renewal of Welfare Services

President Roosevelt opened the 1935 "mobilization of human needs" meeting with the assertion that "in spite of definitely brighter economic strides, the problem of welfare services demands the best of both the government and private agencies." Speaking to delegates of welfare organizations of the nation he reiterated "the government is withdrawing as rapidly as possible from the field of emergency home relief." He emphasized that the government was moving successfully toward "a substitution of work." In other words the substitution of work for the dole.

It had to come in America. Gerald Swope of New York, a famous industrialist, is the chairman of the famous charity relief welfare organization of America. The head of the New Deal administration facing Chairman Swope and a vast number of delegates placed this in the record: "For the third time we have the opportunity, face to face, to pledge at once the substance and sinews of government and of privately organized welfare agencies in the services of the less fortunate of the land. The fact that you have maintained your support of welfare services with a shrinkage of only 13 per cent of the amount raised since 1929, is remarkable. I am glad to know that you halted the retreat at that point a year ago and now are headed once more toward the front. Let there be a general advance from that point in the 350 campaigns which have been organized for the autumn of 1935."

In other words, the federal government has substituted a wage for the dole and the 48 states and their municipalities will be asked to take the load off the shoulders of federal taxpayers. This is the sixth year of the depression. It is agreed that the dole has no place in the economic life of the country. Billions have been spent by the federal government and will continue to be spent this winter and the coming summer to make it possible to relieve human distress and suffering as well as to provide work for idlers of the nation who are fit to work.

It is not a political issue. It should be non-partisan from top to bottom and from start to finish.

Texas Wool and Mohair

Texas is one of the greatest of wool and mohair states. Producers are minded that America's wool and mohair industry, "caught for years in the world collapse of values, has reached the level of recovery where it can now laugh at the depression." Furthermore and to the point, other branches of the important textile industry also have reached modern advances in recent months, trade reports show, but wool appears to be leading the parade. There is life in the old land yet. There is faith in the government of the fathers. A flag floats over the nation that is unswayed. And the constitution, drafted by the men who made the republic as virile and as aggressive today as it was in the long ago when this was a nation of 6,000,000 instead of the greatest of republics with a population of 126,000,000. Why worry? There is work cut out for all and the real defenders of the constitution are the men and women who believe that the rights of humanity should be given an even break with the property rights of those who have accumulated great fortunes.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

Willis Thornton, NEA Service Staff correspondent, is pinch hitting for Rodney Dutcher, NEA and (Name Paper) Washington correspondent, while Dutcher is on his vacation.

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—You might think, to read the papers these days, that the State Department was concerned exclusively with war and peace and Ethiopia and neutrality. But not quite. Slowly, doggedly, and with a skillful persistence that has won the admiration of many who follow the situation, Assistant Secretary Francis B. Sayre and Henry F. Grady have been making real progress with the trade agreements which are the keystone of the administration's hopes for restoring international trade.

Such agreements have been definitely concluded with Cuba, Brazil, Belgium, Haiti, and Sweden. That with Brazil has been ratified by the House and will be put in operation as soon as the Senate acts. Hearings have been completed on proposed agreements with Spain, Switzerland, Holland, Finland, Canada, France, Italy, Colombia, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua. These are hearings to which manufacturers and others concerned are invited, so they may say their say on advantages and disadvantages to them of the proposed agreements.

This completed, negotiations are opened with the countries concerned. That is the state of proposed agreements with the second list of countries.

County Boards of Parole in Texas

Governor James V. Alford has announced that parole boards have been approved in eight counties in Texas through the cooperation of district governors and presidents of local service clubs. Bexar county is the eighth organized. County parole boards are to be charged with the community service responsibility of rehabilitating paroled or pardoned criminals and making periodical reports to the governor. This is as it should be. In the past, convicts out of the penitentiary on parole or pardon have been on their own, and the inclination to return to a life of crime has been ever present. A paroled prisoner or a pardoned convict should be provided with a job. Man must eat. He must have a wage-earning job or return to a life of criminal activities. Without aid, it is almost impossible for him to walk in the road called straight.

permitted aged Texans to share in the federal social security benefits. Senator Shivers' bill would protect the state pension fund further by giving it a first claim against any estate left by a pensioner, up to the amount that had been paid him in pensions.

Naturalized as well as American-born citizens would be eligible for the pension under the Shivers bill. West Texas Chamber of Commerce has written all members of the legislature from its section, urging that the ad valorem tax burden on farms, ranches and livestock be modified, and favoring a general sales tax to pay state costs and absorb the reductions. "At least one-half the new revenues raised should be used to supplant and replace present taxes on real estate and visible property," it insisted. The plea urged that old-age pensions be extended only to the needy, and be limited to $7,500,000 a year, or about two-thirds the estimated minimum if each person is to receive $15 per month.

The West Texas petition is signed by Ray H. Nichols of Vernon, president; James D. Hamlin, chairman, and H. C. Custard, vice chairman, of the public expenditure commission of the regional organization.

The BLUE DOOR

By Rachel Mack © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

RUTH WOODSON, pretty, penniless girl of 18 weeks, seeks shelter from a storm in an old stone house with a blue door in the little town of Worthville. The queer old housekeeper, BERTIE GIBBS, also known as "MOTHER," mistakes her for Edna's CHILMERS, whose grandfather with JOHN McNEILL, and decides to stay on a while, pretending to be Elaine. Elaine Chalmers, at her husband's house, is a society meeting to win the love of her childhood hero, John McNeill. John receives a letter from her and realizes that the girl next door is an impostor. He loves her regardless. He is called out of town suddenly and leaves a note to Elaine to come to him. Ruth persuades him to prove his sanity legally.

John, meanwhile, is hurrying home to see Ruth. Elaine, leaving the house for good, arrives and discovers that Ruth has been here. She thinks cruelly and Ruth leaves. She is picked up while high-thinking and given a maid in Cleveland. John, meanwhile, is hurrying home to see Ruth.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

ELAINE, hatless, her hands in the pockets of her sports coat, went through the althea hedge into the McNeill estate.

She rang the bell, and presently was admitted by Susie.

Elaine said, "Do you remember me, Susie? I used to visit next door at my grandfather's with interest."

Susie beamed with interest. "Yes, ma. I shure does, Miss Elaine! It's been winter to see you ever since you been ova there. Me an' Ebe, we been watchin' for a glimpse of you for a week."

"Oh, have you?" replied Elaine. Susie said, "Sunday night when you come for tea, me an' Ebe was off."

Elaine forced herself to smile. She thought, "So the little devil's been here for tea!" She asked Susie, "When do you expect Mr. John home from Washington?"

Susie brightened. "We done had a special delivery tethal from Mr. McNeill 'bout a hour ago. It see like Miss Florence's husband a little girl is goin' to get well. Praise de Lawd. We shure has been trouble since dat nasty-lookin' telegram done come Monday."

As Elaine Chalmers looked infinitely interested and sympathetic she continued: "Mrs. McNeill said it was a mighty bad accident. truck hit de car an' bashed it. Mr. Burr's hurt worst. He's great help to de president. Mr. F. well Burr!"

"Oh, yes," agreed Elaine, willing to cater to Susie's pride in her family. "I often read about him in the newspapers. I remember when Miss Florence married him, too. I was about 8 years old that summer and I went to the wedding at St. Stephen's church with my grandmother. It was the first wedding I'd ever seen."

Susie was charmed by these recollections, and continued to be expansive. "Mrs. McNeill done say in her lertah she think Mr. John'll be comin' home any day now. Mr. John's a mighty smart business man, Miss Elaine. When he was jus' 21 years old he finish college. For three or four years now he's been helpin' to run his papa's factory an' doin' fine with it. Been like he 'erited his papa's judgment."

"No wonder you're proud of him," Elaine said. As she talked to Susie she strolled about the wide hall and living room, casually glancing at book titles and framed photographs. She noticed that the McNeills read the same books and magazines which people in New York were reading. On one of the bookcases was a silver-framed photograph of the most interesting young man she had ever seen. She knew at once that it was John McNeill. Her heart beat rapidly. She remarked, with a confidential smile, "I think he's even more attractive now than he used to be at 16, Susie!"

"Seem like he think the same thing 'bout you," Susie stated.

Elaine said, "I'm awfully relieved to hear how well things are going in Washington. Have Mr. John come over to see me the minute he gets back, will you Susie?"

When she entered the Hunter hall she saw a telegram lying on the table. It was addressed to Miss Elaine Chalmers.

She opened it and read John's message, intended for Ruth.

Elaine's emotions were mixed. She was elated to know that she would be face to face with him in the morning, yet she was angered to think of him sending an affectionate telegram to "that nery little tramp."

She sauntered into the dining room and was surprised to find the table set for two.

"Penny!" she called, hearing her moving around in the kitchen. "Have you invited somebody to dinner with me?"

There was no answer from the kitchen, but behind her someone entered the room from the hall. Elaine turned and faced a tall, distinguished-looking man of about 50 whose lean face wore a quizzical expression. They looked at one another.

"Uncle Duncan!" Elaine said in a queer voice.

PANGBURN and JOHNSTON'S BETTER

There was a stubby pencil in his purse. She fished it out, smoothed a piece of wrapping paper and began to write an imaginary letter to John McNeill. She wrote: "Dearest John: I wonder if you'll care when you come home and find me gone? Or is that what you wanted to happen? I know it was dreadful for me to pretend to be what I was not. But the thing just happened. I suppose Elaine Chalmers will fascinate you when you see her. I think, dearest, she's come out to Ohio for that very purpose. I called her a wasp and she called me a tramp. We were both right. However, I have a job now and have stopped wandering for time. I'm taking care of a woman's house and two perfectly obnoxious brats, but it pays very well and I mean to make good at it. The little room where I live is comfortable and hideous. I'm lonely, dear, and not as brave as I thought I was. I'll love you forever. I mean to write it twice. Ruth."

Then she tore the letter into small pieces and went to bed. (To Be Continued)

Duncan Hunter said, "I'm going back to give myself up tomorrow. Then I'll get a sanitary hearing and win my freedom. I've not tried that process before because I was under the impression I'd killed a man. Your parents, my dear niece—" his voice and face became bitter—"permitted me to think my victim had died."

Elaine smiled sympathetically. "They told Gwen about it in the letter, and she told me. You were clever!"

Elaine said, "I'm going back to give myself up tomorrow. Then I'll get a sanitary hearing and win my freedom. I've not tried that process before because I was under the impression I'd killed a man. Your parents, my dear niece—" his voice and face became bitter—"permitted me to think my victim had died."

Lobos Looking to Sweetwater Game

COACH LAUDS BOBCATS FOR GREAT TEAM

Cisco's Lobos today had put the San Angelo defeat behind them and were looking forward to their meeting with the Sweetwater Mustangs on Friday.

Coach Dexter Shelley this morning was optimistic over the Cisco chances in this week's contest. "I don't know, but I think we can take them," he said.

The boys are apparently in good spirits as well as in good physical condition, their coach said. Rylee, who was injured in the San Angelo affair, was not badly hurt and will be ready for action.

"The boys realize that it wasn't a disgrace to lose to San Angelo," Shelley said as he praised the team's opponents of Friday night. That team would have done credit to a college. It would have shown up mighty well in the Texas conference.

Real Ball Club
Shelley offered no alibis for the 4 to 0 defeat at the hands of the bobcats but simply said that "San Angelo has a ball club."

"They just wore us down and we didn't have any reserves," he said. The entire squad at San Angelo averaged 168 pounds, around 23 pounds heavier than our first string. The boys did mighty well to hold them scoreless for the first half.

Shelley said he had not seen the Cisco boys this morning but that he believed everyone is in good shape and is looking forward to the sweetwater game.

The team will probably get into the heaviest part of its preparations for Friday's game about tomorrow or Wednesday, it was indicated.

BIG DAM CHATTER

The Oil Belt took three licks last weekend, despite all this column and three football squads could do about it.

Eastland was turned back to Olney, a Class B aggregation. Cisco met a cyclone at San Angelo in the second half. Ranger found that Amarillo that blew to a state championship last season—maybe more so.

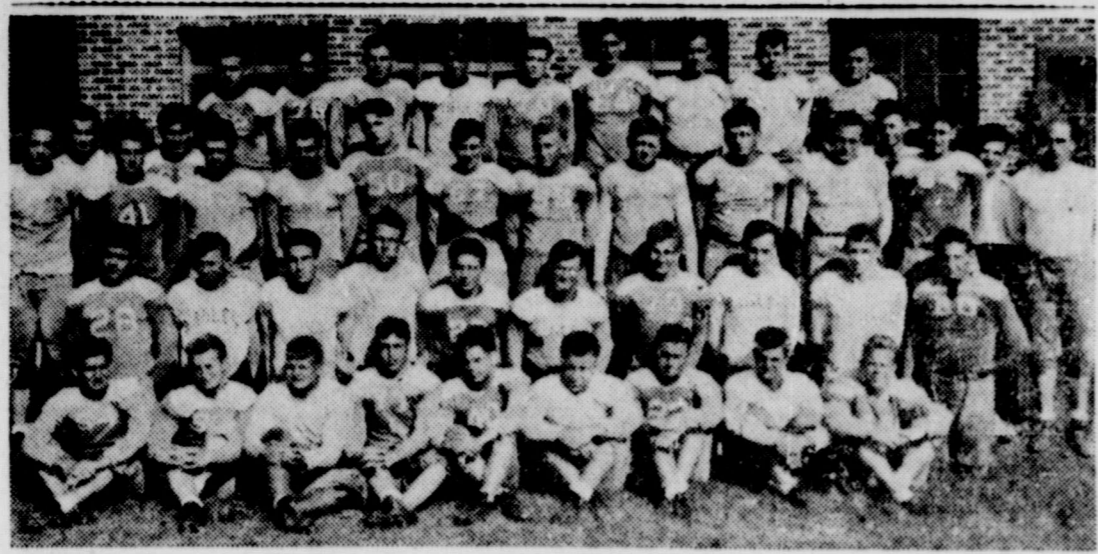

This week's contests will bring together Eastland and Brownwood in a conference game, Breckenridge and San Angelo, Cisco and Sweetwater, Lubbock and Abilene, and Ranger and Polytchnic of Fort Worth.

Two of the games will be standouts in the matter of interest. Eastland and Brownwood will draw the eyes of the fans because they will be meeting in the first conference game. Abilene and Lubbock will furnish the other thriller in all probability. Coach W. B. Chapman will be leading his Westerners down to meet his old enemy, Dewey. Mayhew, and his Abilene Eagles. It'll be like old times.

In the Southwest conference this week there will be one conference game and four inter-sectional tilts. The TCU Horned Frogs will take on the Arkansas Razorbacks in the contest looking forward to the championship. The game will be at Fayetteville.

The Texas Aggies, smarting from last year's defeat, will take on Pop Warner's justly famous Temple Owls in Tyler at the Rose Festival.

Squad of Denton Eagles Who Showed Up Well Against TCU

HOOKS AND SLIDES

PIRO football is a matter of cold calculating business. Not only is this true with the gents who own various clubs in the National and other leagues, but it is adopted creed of the players.

The casual observer watching money players on the field notes little difference in the game from that played by college lads, except that made necessary due to rules, one of which allows the pro to pass any distance behind the line of scrimmage, where the college rule limits a pass to five yards to the year of the line.

But back of the maneuvers the pros negotiate, every plunge into the line, every sweep around the ends, and every deceptive pass, is the haunting thought that to fail might mean the loss of a job, and the necessity to hunt elsewhere for cakes and coffee money.

An interesting letter is at hand from Damon (Buzz) Wetzel, former Ohio State star fullback, who now is playing with the Chicago Bears. Buzz, who worked in the art department of NEA Service prior to a leave of absence to play with the pros, gives an excellent example of the impression a boy, fresh from college, gets when he turns pro, and the slowdown on how the teams operate.

"As you know," Buzz writes, "the team meeting next year's college All-Stars will be the league champions. Also, post-season and exhibition games, along with a possible movie short and a trip to the Hawaiian Islands, are other prizes to shoot at. So you can judge for yourself the attitude the fellows have on winning games."

Nice Chaps, the Pros
"ABOUT the fellows in general"—half the All-Stars were scared stiff from newspaper halcyon on the big boys when they met the pros. But after a few minutes of play they were easy to take.

"The Bears appeared tough on the field, and at times dirty, but after meeting them, I never have seen such a fine group of fellows. Practice is a ritual that must be observed. All sessions are on the dot—on the field at 9 o'clock in the morning in uniform—and I mean on the dot! The workout starts with an exercise drill that would make any military school take notice.

"Smoking is allowed in leisure hours, but Halas has weeded out the drinkers. Orders to be in bed by 11 are not checked on except the night before the game. They say Coach George Halas has ways of finding out things, so the boys watch themselves pretty closely. "Gambling has been eliminated and thereby a lot of hard feelings that springs up after someone has lost fifteen or twenty bucks on a trip is done away with."

Experience Is Teacher
"AS to the old pep talk before the game, it is different in this respect—the players already know football, and are capable of solving the problems and improving offense and defense themselves. Their experience in playing several times against opponents of various teams during the year enables them to work out a system against any individual who has been a thorn in their sides."

"So the pep talks boil down to Halas telling the boys just what the game means to them and what is at stake in the league race. "The club pays all expenses when on the road, as in baseball, and it really is a business, with a business-like atmosphere."

"There's not much dirty play, for to treat an opponent dirty is to invite a lot of kicks in the pan your self."

Lucrezia Bori To Be On Air Sunday

Lucrezia Bori, the great soprano who has been called "the savior of the Metropolitan," will be presented as guest soloist with the Ford Symphony Orchestra and Chorus under the direction of Victor Kolar in the Ford Sunday evening hour of Sunday, October 6. The program is heard from 9 to 10, Eastern Standard Time, over the complete coast-to-coast network of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Although Miss Bori is Spanish by birth and Italian by training, few artists in this country enjoy the universal affection and esteem which are given to her by American public. She was born in the romantic Spanish city of Valencia, and began to sing in childhood as naturally as other little girls begin to play with dolls. Her musical training in Spain began in the pig-tail era, and continued until she had reached the age of seventeen when she transferred her activities to Italy. There she studied under great Milanese masters, and made her debut with tremendous success in the part of Micaela in "Carmen." Two years at La Scala followed, after which she achieved one of the greatest triumphs ever known at the Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires. Her next step was to the New York Metropolitan, where she made her American debut opposite Caruso. She has been with Metropolitan opera ever since.

When the depression was at its worst, and the Metropolitan opera was threatened with extinction through lack of funds, it was Miss Bori who was appointed chairman of the committee for saving Metropolitan opera. So successful was the campaign supervised by the committee that $3,000,000 were raised in a comparatively short time and what is perhaps the world's greatest operatic institution was enabled to continue operations without interruption.

when the Cadet defense cracked a bit in practice scrimmage. Or "you'll never get past Temple's line of scrimmage if you don't drive harder than the boys," when the offense happened to bog down.

This is the second year of the Aggies' and Owls' two-year contract. It probably will not be renewed. And football records show the Aggies never have played a football team a series of games without winning at least one.

There's no hint of the "make a good showing" idea in the Aggie camp. They're out to win. "Pop" Warner, Fullback Dave Smukler, the entire Temple team and the opinion of critics in general notwithstanding. They may not do it, but an overflow crowd at Tyler that afternoon will have seen a Maroon and White Texas Aggie eleven trying really better than it knows how to take "Pop" Warner's scalp back to College Station.

Shorter Lengths In Cotton Reported

For the past four weeks the weekly grade and a staple reports for Texas have shown changes toward shorter staple lengths each succeeding week. This result is evident from the smaller proportions of the longer lengths which are currently received from the various districts as well as from the large proportions of cotton shorter than 7-8 inch now being received from District 3, District 5, and District 8.

The predominating staple lengths for cotton classed to date is 15-16 inch which represents about 50 per cent of the crop. About 22 per cent of the crop this season to date is 7-8 inch, while nearly 7 per cent is sorter than 7-8 inch. Cotton with staple 1 inch or longer constitutes about 21 per cent of the crop.

The cotton classed during the past week is of lower average grade than cotton classed in former weeks this season. For the season to date, approximately 50 per cent of the cotton classed is middling, 18 per cent is strict middling, and 24 per cent is strict low and low middling (white and extra white). About 8 per cent is middling spotted and strict middling spotted.

AGGIES LOOK FOR REVENGE ON TEMPLE AT ROSE FESTIVAL GAME ON SATURDAY
By T. B. KETTERSON
COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 30.—Led by the veteran Glenn Scooby (Pop) Warner, probably the most colorful figure left in football today, a powerful Temple University Owls grid team, one of the strongest in the East, will come to Tyler Oct. 5 to battle the rejuvenated Texas Aggies. It not only will mark the first time in years, at least, a major Eastern team has invaded Texas but also will be the first big time college football game to be played as a feature of the annual Tyler Rose Festival.

"Pop" Warner built great football machines at Haskell Institute and at Stanford University, and now he's doing the same thing at Temple. A keen student of the gridiron sport, he long ago devised and developed the wingback formations so widely used today and which are often called the "Warner formations."

It will be the second meeting in as many years for the Aggies and Owls. Warner's crew literally smothered the Owls in the past year at Philadelphia on a rain-soaked field. It was the Aggies' first trip East of record, and their hopes had been high.

The raindrops fell steadily on the Aggies while they were taking that defeat sank deeply. Coach Homer Norton and his veterans of that retreat from the East have been talking to themselves about it ever since and planning revengeful measures.

As early as the past March, in Spring practice, every play, every defensive hint, has been given with the idea it may work not only in Southwest Conference competition but also against Temple. It's been "Dave Smukler (Temple's ruthless fullback) will tear you to pieces if you don't do better than that."

Tomorrow Is Hundredth Anniversary Of First Shot in Texas Revolution

The Texas revolution was conceived in the minds of peaceful men. While mounted messengers were still carrying across Texas the speech delivered at Brazoria September 8, 1835, by Stephen F. Austin, in which the gentle "Father of Texas" counseled resistance against destruction of constitutional government, the restless Texans at Gonzales were stirred to action by a man of God.

As Mexican forces approached the little community which was soon to become famous as the Lexington of Texas—the site of the first shot fired in the Texas struggle for independence, Oct. 2, 1835—the Texans of Gonzales responded to a stirring address delivered on the eve of the battle by the Reverend W. P. Smith, picturesque Methodist minister and circuit rider. His heroic words helped to change the destiny of the western world.

Speech Changed Destiny

"Fellow soldiers: To cap the climax of a long catalogue of injuries and grievances attempted to be heaped upon us, the government of Mexico, in the person of Santa Anna, has sent an army to commence the disarming system. Give up the cannon and we may surrender our small arms also, and at once be the vassals of the most impetuous and unstable government upon earth.

"But will Texas give up the cannon? Will she surrender her small arms? Every response is 'no, never!' Never will she submit to a degradation of that character.

"Fellow soldiers, the cause for which we are contending is just, honorable, and glorious—our liberty! The same blood that animated the hearts of our ancestors of '76 still flows warm in our veins.

Attack Planned

"Having waited several days for the Mexican army to make an attack upon us, we have now determined to attack them on tomorrow morning at the dawn of day. Some of us may fall, but if we do, let us be sure to fall with our face toward the enemy. Your humble speaker has had the pleasure of examining the contemplated plan of attack. It is judiciously arranged; and to show you that he has some opportunity of judging, he would simply

Liberty or Death

"With us, everything is at stake—our firesides, our wives, our children, our country, our all! Great will be the influence over the colonies resulting from the effort we are about to make. We must sustain ourselves in the contest. This will inspire confidence in the minds of our countrymen.

"Fellow soldiers, march with bold hearts and steady steps to meet the enemy, and let every arm be nerved, while our minds are exercising with the happy reflection that the guardian angels are directing our course.

"Let us all go into battle with the words of the immortal Patrick Henry before the Virginia House of Burgesses, deeply impressed upon our hearts, when, with arms extended toward heaven, and with a voice of thunder, he exclaimed in the most patriotic manner, 'give me liberty, or give me death.'

Pioneer of County Buried at Gorman

GORMAN, Sept. 30.—Funeral services for Mrs. W. V. Whaley, longtime resident of Eastland county, were to be held at the Baptist church this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Whaley died at her home here at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. She was well known throughout the county.
