EUROPE AWAITS FIRST NEWS OF WAR

Win First Test Vote in Texas House

ITALIAN, ETHIOPIAN ARMIES FACING EACH OTHER ACROSS NARROW FRONTIER STRETCH

(Copyright by, United Press, 1935.)

ROME, Oct. 1. — Italians today awaited news that war with Ethiopia had started in the wild frontier zone bordering the East African colonies of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland.

Statements of official spokesmen left no room for doubt that war is both inevitable and imminent. In a broad zone between the Italian colonies and Ethiopia, Italians armed with every engine of modern warfare, and Ethiopian tribal warriors faced each other.

An official dispatch from Asmara, capital and chief war base of Eritrea, denied that Ethiopia had retired 20 miles behind the frontier as Emperor Haile Selassie had said in a telegram to the League. Ethiopian outposts remained where they always had been, the dispatch said and many points had been reinforced.

Indicative of feeling here, a spokesman, commenting on reports that Italian troops had crossed the frontier, said he had no news of such an advance, but it was believed that Ethiopians in the ill defined zone would be out of hand soon and would attack Italians suddenly.

BRITAIN AND FRANCE NEAR PEACE UNITY

BULLETIN

PARIS, Oct. 1. — Britain and France moved a stage nearer to unity today in the face of growing threats of war. Official spokesmen said the chances were three to one that France would support Britain. This development came after "vitally important" talks between Premier Pierre Laval and Sir George Clark, British ambassador, and a meeting of Laval and the Prince of Wales.

PARIS, Oct. 1. — The Prince of Wales was host to Premier Pierre Laval and the ministers of marine and post offices at a British embassy lunch today, which followed a conference between Laval and Sir George Clark, British ambassador. Both conversations were regarded as developments of importance in the Italian Ethiopian dispute, coming at a time when Britain is seeking to gain French support in the crisis and France seeks in return to win Britain's agreement to act with similar firmness in any crisis involving Europe—really Germany.

President Sees Boulder Dam Marvels on Trip West

Bulking far over all other attractions on President Roosevelt's cross-country and sea journey was the engineering marvel of the age, Boulder Dam nearing completion, as shown here. The huge power project was the scene of one of the chief executive's major stops. "Key points" in the mammoth barrier are indicated on the picture. Accompanying the president on his trip was Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, inset, below, under whose jurisdiction come the great power and reclamation projects of the New Deal. The president, speaking at the dam yesterday, said that government spending had created purchasing power and that it is now up to private industry to maintain the pace set.

CHARITY BODY ORGANIZATION TO BE MONDAY

Organization of the United Charities and Welfare association of Cisco will be next Monday, according to President J. T. Elliott today. The meeting will be held in the mayor's office of the city hall at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Elliott said, with a representative from each religious civic, and fraternal organization of the city expected to send a representative. "This is a proposition that we can't afford to play around with," Elliott said today. "The president has already told us that the relief of the nation this year is going to depend largely upon private charities. We must get busy at once. Each church should select a representative, or the pastor himself should attend the meeting Monday. The president of each civic organization should come if his or her club does not select a representative before that time. I'd especially like to see the women's club of that city have their delegates there. Many of the lodges meet this week and we hope they will send." Each organization of the groups named is allowed and expected to have one member on the executive committee. The executive committee will select an executive board when it meets Monday.

Over 500 Teachers Expected As Oil Belt Meeting Here Planned

DOCK WORKERS IN FOUR PORTS STRIKE TODAY

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 1. — Union longshoremen struck today in four gulf ports, menacing the nation's sea traffic on both coasts as well as throughout the gulf. While pickets swarmed over docks in New Orleans, Mobile, Pensacola, and Gulfport and police organized to prevent violence, Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward C. Grady flew toward Los Angeles to prevent the spark of strife from spreading to the powder boxes which the west had been since the strike of 1934. Heads of the International Longshoremen's association said dock workers at all gulf ports and on the Atlantic and Pacific would refuse to load ships bound to or from the four ports of the strike.

Organization Formed Five Years Ago In Cisco Assembly

Possibility that between 500 and 700 teachers in schools of the Oil Belt will attend the fall meeting of the Oil Belt Teachers association here this month was seen last night as the executive committee of the organization planned the meeting. The organization, which was formed in Cisco five years ago, will meet here Oct. 29. The executive committee, in a meeting with Superintendent R. N. Cluck and Principal H. Brandon of Cisco last night, confirmed the president's election of Cisco as the fall meeting place. The association is composed of schools of 14 counties. Curriculum revision, with emphasis upon the practical needs and the application of principles, will be the general subject of the meeting. A general assembly will be held at 3 p. m., with sectional meetings at 4:30 when the organization convenes, it was announced. A banquet will be held at the Laguna hotel at 7 o'clock that evening. W. A. Ross, principal of the Mineral Wells high school and president of the organization, presided at last night's meeting.

FAIR SAILING IS AHEAD, FDR TELLS NATION

MEMORIAL COLLISEUM, LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1. — Economic America has come through the stormy seas into fair weather, President Roosevelt today told a huge California audience gathered in the Coliseum. The chief executive expressed his views, based on the observations of his swing across the continent that took him into the great industrial, agricultural, and mining regions. "As you know, I have not come here today to speak formally, or even to speak to you about the problems of your national government," he said. "I can tell you truthfully, however, that in crossing the continent, I have been heartened more than anything else by the looks on people's faces. In these past years I have labored, I have tried to visualize the difficulties under which such a large number of our families have labored. I have tried to visualize the insecurities that have beset the lives of millions of our families."

Bankers Find West Texas Recovering

SAN ANGELO, Oct. 1. — West Texas is in better condition than it has been in many years, presidents of federal intermediate credit banks in many western cities said today at the conclusion of a tour of the west part of the state. "The entire west side of Texas is in better physical condition than at any time in my recollection," Dwight Reardon, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit bank at Houston reported. Others on the tour also expressed amazement at the extent to which West Texas has recovered from last year's drought.

SCHOOL PLANS PARENTS NIGHT FOR THURSDAY

Thursday night of this week will be parents night at the high school. It was announced today by Superintendent R. N. Cluck. The time for the event has been set for 7:30. Each parent who attends will be given his child's schedule and will follow it, spending about five minutes in each class under the regular high school teachers. "The purpose of parents night is two-fold," the superintendent said. "First, it is to give the parents and teachers a chance to know each other and to form a better understanding of the child. Second, it is to give the parents an opportunity to have the object of each of the child's subjects explained by the teacher so that a better understanding of why the subjects are offered may be obtained." A large crowd is expected for the parents night program. A similar event was held two years ago, with a large number attending. Most of the parents who go to the school Thursday night will be others than those who attended the previous program, it was said. Following the schedule of short classes refreshments will be served by the high school home economics department.

Truck Law Probers Weighing Evidence

AUSTIN, Oct. 1. — Legislative investigators of alleged abuses on Texas truck operators by motor carrier law enforcers today were weighing evidence presented by both sides last night. Representatives of truckers, in North, East and South Texas all reported alleged indiscretions of officers stopping trucks. Truck operators preferred to pay charges, just or unjust, witnesses said, rather than face a greater expense of carrying the case to court. Mark Marshall, director of the motor transportation division, said delays to truckers were necessary since the only way officers have to ascertain what goods were being carried was to stop the trucks.

Moran's Fair

Moran is planning a fair for this fall, to begin on Friday of this week and to last through Saturday. Cisco has been invited to attend. Well, why not?

This is a good opportunity for promoting better feeling between the Shackelford county and the Eastland county neighbors. Fairs are that kind of events, anyway. There have been several in this area recently—the Pleasant Hill-Shady Grove, the Rising Star, and the Eastland county fairs. At some the Ciscoans have turned out in fair numbers, while at others they were not particularly evident.

Cisco is seeking ways of widening its trade territory, and this is a good one. Go to Moran. Talk with the folks at the fair. Then invite them to Cisco.

Cisco soon will be having its Boosters' first anniversary jubilee and will want a crowd. Although it is primarily for Ciscoans, the Boosters certainly would welcome friends from Moran and other nearby cities and indeed intend to invite them. Then a little later, the Eastland county livestock show will be held at Cisco. That is right down Moran's alley, so to speak. The stockmen of Moran should be interested in what the stockmen of Cisco and other points hereabouts are raising, and if they are given the proper kind of invitation, they undoubtedly will come, many of them to leave with a better feeling for Cisco.

The Lobo band will be at the Moran fair on Saturday afternoon and will play a concert, it has been announced. The Ciscoans would do well to follow the band. Besides stirring up a lot of good feeling, they likely will enjoy the fair.

Progress Toward War

Things moved forward rapidly yesterday in the war preparations in Africa and in Europe. The United Press reported in a copyright story, that Italian military activities had begun on three fronts, apparently looking forward to an early invasion of Ethiopia. From three sides, the story said, the Roman Legions are preparing to begin their march upon the capital of the ancient Christian kingdom nestled in the black continent.

At the same time, another copyrighted story by the United Press said that Ethiopia's plan for general mobilization—due to Italian activities, Emperor Haile Selassie said—might "force Italy to make advances at strategic points to insure the safety of its East African colonies."

Not to be outdone, the League of Nations announced that it would call an emergency meeting of its council, probably to decide whether it actually will enforce the penalties it has already promised, if Italy crosses the borders of Ethiopia.

And all the time all nations are waiting and watching for the rain to stop.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

Willis Thornton, NEA Service staff correspondent, is pinch-hitting for Rodney Dutcher, NEA Washington correspondent, while Dutcher is on his vacation.

BY WILLIS THORNTON NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt undoubtedly would appreciate a quiet, peaceful session of Congress next winter, but Congress is likely to have different ideas.

For it looks as if the people who have been demanding that Congress assert itself and shake loose from White House dictation are to have their wish. Even if the president did announce that "the basic program now has reached substantial conclusion and the breathing spell is here."

But there will be controversial bills, and reform bills, too, despite the White House dictum.

It won't be the administration's fault. All the reformers are by no means in the administrative end. There are quite enough in Congress to assure a lively session without White House stimulation.

Congress, asserting that wished-for independence of the executive, passed the Spanish War pension bill and the potato control bill, neither of which the administration wanted. In fact, the AAA has consistently held potato control impossible to administer, and tending to boost the price of still another staple "poor man's food."

It wanted no part of it, but now, in the face of open defiance by some farmers, it must try to administer the will of Congress as best it can.

THIS winter the World War bonus will come to a head immediately. A vote has been cast used in January. The administration is against it. But this time it looks as though Congress will show its independence and pass it anyway.

And that will be a business jitters they can't lay at the White House door. Roosevelt "took the rap" by vetoing it once; he can't be expected to take it forever.

As to reform of the O'Mahoney bill aimed at federal control of interstate business through a system of federal incorporation, or practically licensing, will be actively pushed by the American Federation of Labor.

It's not an administration bill, it's not part of the "basic program," but it's going to get strong backing from congressmen who have declared their independence of all that. Another business jitters that isn't the administration's baby.

The United Textile Workers are going to go to bat for the Ellenbogen bill, which does for the textile industry what the Guffey bill does for soft coal.

STRONGER neutrality legislation, a new relief appropriation, ship subsidy policy, legislation to solve the perennial railroad problem, the food and drug bill, a move to liberalize the social security act even before it gets going, the Walsh bill to put NRA conditions in government contracts, a permanent wages-and-hours bill being studied by Senator Wagner, long-pending copyright legislation—all these have backing among congressmen who are manifesting that independence of administration direction which so many have longed for.

It assures a lively session without regard to administration views.

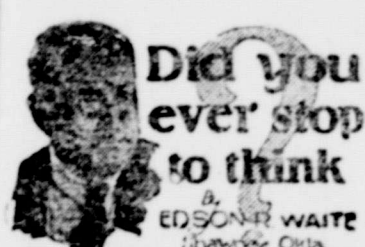

It assures a lively session without regard to administration views.

OUT OUR WAY

The President's Speech

President Roosevelt, speaking at Boulder Dam, yesterday told the nation that it is now up to "private industry" to maintain the recovery pace set by the New Deal. The chief executive pointed out that the New Deal actually has set a pace with its government spending, and left the impression that the program for such spending is practically complete. The president answered critics who have been crying that the spending program is running up a big debt that is not justified by results by saying—"It is a simple fact that the government spending is already beginning to show definite signs of its effect on consumer spending, that the putting of people to work by the government and in two years and a half we have come to the point where private industry must bear the responsibility of keeping the processes of greater employment moving forward with accelerated speed."

Did you ever stop to think... EDSON WAITE

Well Known Trainer Coming With Circus

What do you think of the intelligence of elephants, Capt. Ben? As one of the first questions I am asked, here is my answer: The elephant is the first in animal brains, first in their schooling and training and they lead the class in real intelligence. When my father who was an elephant trapper and trader in India, he started me on my career as an elephant trainer and to learn their habits. My first job was an elephant tender. That is one of the first things to learn, in fact you learn to care for them in order to know their ailments, tricks and good traits. Then teach them whatever you want, but always use kindness, because an elephant never forgets. And today I remember that advice as it has given me the pleasure of training the greatest herd of performing elephants in the world. And my youngest pupil is Little Mona, a ten-year-old Indian elephant that can read and write her name on the blackboard and pick out the various colors placed before her when asked to do so. So I feel that I have been well paid for the time and efforts I have put forth in the care and teaching of the big lumbering fellows that look at you all the time, and you would never know it.

When asked about the old story of the fellow who gave the elephant a chew of tobacco and twenty years after the elephant remembered the fellow one day while in the tent of a circus and was killed, Capt. Ben says this is all on old circus press agent story because the elephants like tobacco better than anything you can give them. So never be afraid to give an elephant a chew of good tobacco as that is a real treat to him.

The BLUE DOG

Rachel Mack

BEGIN HERE TODAY RUTH WOODSON, pretty, penniless girl of 19 in search of work, seeks refuge from a storm in an old stone house with a blue door in the little town of Worthville. The queer old housekeeper, BERTHA GIBBS, also known as PENNY, thinks Ruth to be ELAINE CHALMERS, whose grandfather built the house. Ruth falls in love with JOHN McNEILL and decides to stay on, posing as Elaine.

Elaine Chalmers, at Graycastle College, vows in a sorority meeting to win the love of her childhood hero, John McNeill. John receives a letter from Elaine and realizes that the girl next door is an impostor. He loves her regardless. He is called out of town suddenly and leaves a note of explanation for Ruth, but Bertha Gibbs fails to tell her. Ruth fears John has gone away in disgust. That night she saves Elaine's uncle who has been hiding in the old house after escaping from an insane asylum where he has been unjustly held. She persuades him to prove his sanity legally.

Elaine arrives and discovers Ruth has been using her name. She talks cruelly and Ruth goes away. As she is hitchhiking to the city, she is picked up and given a job in that city as housemaid. Elaine talks with her uncle, while John is hurrying home to Ruth. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXX JOHN McNEILL, arriving in Worthville Thursday morning, took a taxi to his home. He let himself in with a latch key, deposited his bags in the hall and walked to Susie. When she came on the run from the back of the house he talked to her for a few minutes, giving her the detailed family news which she craved.

Presently he looked at his watch and said, "Before I go to the factory I'm going over to the Hunter place."

"You bettah!" Susie agreed. "Miss Elaine done come ova here restiddy to get news of you. She tell me to have Mr. John come to see her, minute he gets home."

"She did, eh?" exclaimed John pleased. When he knocked at the front door, Bertha admitted him. "John asked, 'Is it too early for me to see Elaine, Bertha?'"

The old woman stared at him queerly. He thought she had not heard and repeated the question. Bertha Gibbs, still silent, turned to look in the direction of the upper hall. He followed her gaze. A girl was coming down the stairs, but it was not the girl for whom he waited. This one was a glamorous stranger. She wore smoke-gray satin lounging pajamas held at the waist with a heavy red sash. The sash swayed about her knees in rhythm with her languid walk. Her hair was gold-brown. Her eyes were dark. She was very, very beautiful and she was smiling at him.

"John McNeill!" said the girl, in a voice that was somehow tender in spite of its clipped tones. "Do you remember me?"

John said, "Elaine Chalmers." It was more of a statement than a greeting. "Where is she?" he asked. ELAINE felt a stab of irritation. "Do you mean the girl who was using my name?" she asked, looking regretful and letting her smile fade to a sad little ghost of a smile.

"Yes," replied John McNeill sharply. "She went away yesterday morning soon after I came." Elaine said "It seemed best. She flew into won that car—if I had only entered." Figure it out, you have everything to gain by joining the Opportunity club and nothing to lose. There is no cost now—or at any time to enter, to compete or to win, the prize of your heart's desire in the big list. Any one of them is yours. For the effort.

TEXAS-L. S. U. IN SPOTLIGHT FOR WEEKEND

are asking. The Horned Frogs are generally thought to have a safe edge over the Razorbacks, but anything might happen up in the Arkansas hills. T. C. U. has not won from the northern team since 1932.

Another contest that will get a big play is the Aggie-Temple go in Tyler. Major college football games in this particular section of the state are not plentiful and the game will undoubtedly attract a big crowd, even though it is considered a sure thing for the Red Devils from Philadelphia. Temple's tea nated 12th in the nation last season and won from the Aggies 40 to 6. True, the Aggies are better this year -- but not that much better.

Another Pennsylvania invader moves into Houston -- the Nighthawks of Duquesne from Pittsburgh. They should give the Rice Owls some stiff competition but the local eleven is expected to win.

S. M. U. may have trouble against Tulsa U. in Tulsa. The Golden Hurricane was slipped up on last week by the Central Oklahoma Teachers and defeated 9 to 0. They'll be as mad as a tornado this week, and might prove to be quite a blow for the Mustangs.

Baylor has still another practice go, taking on Texas A. & I. under the lights in Waco Saturday night.

Cardui Pain Relief Also Strengthening For Weak Women

Failure to receive proper nourishment from the food they eat is believed to cause many women to have monthly suffering which stronger women escape.

Promptly relieving certain functional pain, and (by its continued use) strengthening the entire system,—Cardui has won the praise of thousands of women.

"I suffered quite a bit of pain, cramping and bad feeling and this made me extremely nervous," writes Mrs. H. Anglada, of Biloxi, Miss. "A friend recommended Cardui and I commenced using it right away. Cardui did me so much good — built me up and I was much better in every way. I took twelve bottles in all. I am glad I heard of Cardui."

Of course, if Cardui does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.
