RUMORS BRING PEACE HOPE AS ITALIANS MASSING MEN UPON EGYPT-LIBYA BORDER

Roosevelt Is Due To Land Tomorrow

EASTERN CUBA LASHED TODAY BY HURRICANE

HAVANA, Oct. 22 — A hurricane that took at least one life and caused unestimated property damage whipped across eastern Cuba today and on northward, threatening the Bahama islands and possibly the upper Florida coast.

Fighting in Ethiopia, mostly localized and scattered, began to assume serious proportions today in both the north and the south. A desperate battle in which the Ethiopians rashly attacked Italian enmasse was reported from the north near the Sudanese border. Dedjasmach Ayaleu, one of Ethiopia's leading warriors, was gravely wounded.

The Italians likewise advanced in the south, penetrating deeply into Ogaden province.

It was rumored in Rome Mussolini might soon indicate his final demand as the price of peace. Paris and London were not optimistic, however. It was believed Mussolini would drive ahead until he had subdued the northern, eastern and southern regions, and then offer to settle on the basis of permanent Italian control of those regions.

The indications in London were that Britain would not consent to such terms. The outcome of the three day foreign debate in the house of commons was awaited with eager interest and expected to do much to clarify Britain's stand.

TWO NEGROES CONFESS THEY KILLED GIRL

HOUSTON, Oct. 22 — Officers revealed today that two negro youths held in jail here for safe keeping have confessed they attacked and killed Miss Geraldine Coleman, 19-year-old farm girl near Columbus Friday.

The negroes, one 15 and the other 16, were brought here last night by the sheriff of Columbus. Each blamed the other, saying the girl had been struck on the back of the head with a club.

Miss Coleman, honor graduate of Columbus high school, was slain after she had ridden her horse to a peach orchard where she hoped to trap thieves. Her body was found in Columbus creek. Physicians said she had been assaulted.

According to officers, the negroes said Miss Coleman found them near a tree which had been stripped of pecans. They denied knowing anything about the theft.

Panic Halted By Nurses' Heroism

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 — Nurses early today prevented panic and possibly disaster by transferring patients, many bodily, from a flaming wing of Samaritan hospital.

The fire was confined to an outer wall where it resulted from a shorted electric circuit. Thirty-seven men and women patients and 10 babies suffered no apparent ill effects.

Loboes Out For Revenge In Breck Contest

BEAT LAST YEAR REASON FOR EFFORTS

Loboes will be out for revenge Friday when they take on Breckridge Buckaroos on the field.

Loboes will be out to get back some of the touchdowns they made last year at Breck, which were not into their afternoon's total.

Loboes lost to the Bucks last year by the narrow margin of one point, after spending the afternoon crossing the Green's goal line of their touchdowns were back when it was ruled that Lobo ball carrier had stepped out of bounds.

This year the Buckaroos, after losing last season, are determined to win the district championship, according to most sportsmen. They have changed coaches and have a new team.

Prince Elmer Shotwell, who was to have a try at East Texas, Loboes, always willing to give more fight against Breckridge than almost any other team, is ready to shoot the works when the Bucks when the two meet this weekend.

Shelley and Van Sickle, promoting their charges, getting ready for the scrap, and will be ready for a strong offensive battle. Past defeats are to be forgotten; the present serious business of beating the Buckaroos.

BIG DAM CHATTER

Breckridge is getting pretty cocky about that game here Friday. Taking what the fans up there are saying and what has leaked into the papers, one would think that the game itself is just a formality.

Here is just a little of the sort of junk the Breckridge fans are talking. This appeared in Leard W. Cope's "Sport Squibs" in the Breckridge American.

"With Brownwood's defeat, Eastland's victory over the Bulldogs, Cisco and Eastland already out of the race, it looks like the guy betting five dollars that Breckridge wins district honors this year is betting 5 dollars on the outcome of the Buckaroo-Eagle game that will be pulled here in about three weeks."

The Breckridge scribe is already making Brownwood a present of that fourth quarter touchdowns the Lions earned against the Bucks last week. He is giving it to them through the accident route.

To quote him again:

"If you like to say it this way, the green wave continued to roll last Saturday. But the rolling was a little less smooth, a little more turbulent than any of the former games with the exception of the Angelo affair. There were times when Brownwood looked pretty good, but never did they offer a serious threat to the Buckaroo goal. Never had possession of the ball inside the Buck's 20-yard line. Except, of course, when the boys pounced on the ball behind the Buck goal line for six points.

"The Lion score was purely accidental. It was a slip up and if things had gone as they should the Lions would have gone away in the same condition as the other Buck opponent have."

"It looked to nearly everybody at the game that John Cook, the back who muffed the punt, had the ball over his own goal line and was tackled by about a dozen Lions, but evidently he fumbled."

"John probably feels pretty low about the whole thing, but it is just one of those things that happen in a football game. There are those who howl he should have let it go over the goal line instead of trying for it in the first place. Some-time they don't bounce on over the goal line. Anyway, John would have got the thing and possibly brought it back up about the 15-yard line, if he hadn't been a little quick on the trigger. That shows the effect of lack of experience. It probably won't happen to John again either."

Golf Chat

By WILLIAM PHILPOTT
(Professional, Cisco Country Club)

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the first of a series of articles dealing with golf, written for the Daily News golf-playing readers by William Philpott, golf pro at the Cisco Country club.

In a game so exacting as golf, it would seem that in order to become champion a player must be possessed of a perfect physical make-up or never to reach the heights of fame, yet some of the world's greatest golfers become champions after their physical troubles were very apparent.

J. H. Taylor, five times British open champion and runner-up on several occasions, desired to join the British navy but failed to pass the naval eyesight tests. He took up golf as a profession and made history in doing so.

At the time Taylor was becoming famous, another star, Harry Vardon was rising. The two monopolized the one-two positions in the British open during the gay 90's. Vardon was tubercular and won his first two championships while his malady was at its worst.

Yet both will be remembered as long as golf is played.

FRENCH UNITE FOR REFORMS IN ATHLETICS

By JOSEPH D. RAVOTTO
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, Oct. 22 — Three successive defeats inflicted by the British, German and Italian track and field teams have made the French roaring mad and they are more determined than ever to get together a team worthy of representing the country at the Berlin Olympics next year.

Athletes, fans, citizens and especially the press have all joined in the cry that something must be done. Incriminations are flying about in every direction and any number are being blamed for the low ebb of French sports from Premier Laval and the French Federation to the athletes themselves.

The French accepted the licking from the British with enough grace but when the Germans recently gave them a one-sided thrashing winning 15 out of 15 events, the storm broke. To rub it in the Italians took 11 out of 15 events against them the following week-end in Turin to bring to an end probably the most tragic season in the history of French athletics.

Want Sports Subsidy
Some critics have gone so far as to blame Laval for the present condition of the sport. Laval, whose entire time has been occupied by such "minor things" as economy decrees and the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, is charged with indifference and unconcern. The odds are that Laval doesn't even know that he's involved in a controversy that finds an echo in every corner of France.

Nebraska's Fair Again Profitable

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 18 — The Nebraska State Fair, which hit rock bottom with agriculture during the depression, has regained solvency along with farming.

All its bills paid, interest met on its bonds and with even a slight surplus, the fair this fall is definitely "out of the red" for the first time since 1930.

Believing the depression is in the background, Fair Board Secretary Perry Reed, who struggled against financial quicksands since 1930, now is ready to view the future optimistically for the first time in five years.

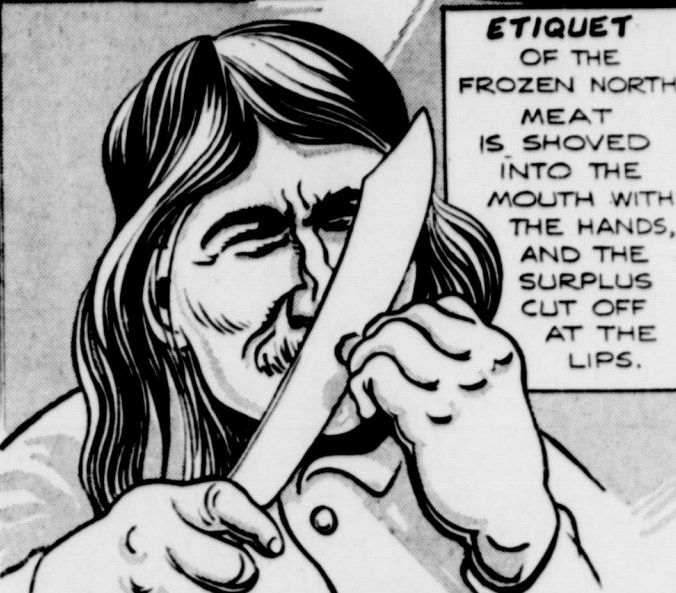

Reed is not certain just yet what the final financial picture of the successful 1935 fair will be. All returns and all bills are not in yet.

Paid attendance at this year's fair was 65,670, as against 15,407 last year.

Parti-mutuel betting on horse races was an important factor in the increased receipts this year, but the upward surge of agriculture contributed to the fair's renaissance, according to Reed.

PRINCE ALBERT EASY TO ROLL AND "STAYS PUT"

Here you see Bob Murray doing some jiffy-quick rolling during recent Prince Albert speed tests. Mr. Murray is modest about his ability. "Thanks to Prince Albert's special 'crimpcut' I can roll my own quickly and easily," he says. "Prince Albert's sensible big red tin means that I'm not going to spill the makin's. And I know I'm getting enough for about 70 cigarettes. That's a lot of cigarettes."

And here's Melvin Tivis (18 seconds), agreeing with Bob: "I'm another Prince Albert booster. P. A. rolls easier—and always makes a mild, tasty cigarette."

Duward Ryon (an 11-second roller) says: "I'll bet you didn't know there're

JUSTIN TO BE ERID CAPITAL ON SATURDAY

ERT WORTH, Oct. 22 — Next week Justin will not only be the capital of Texas but also the capital of the Southwest. There the Rice Owl's fight the Longhorns for a title in the conference race. The is by long odds the outstanding of the week, and any sportsman thinks well of his reputation increasing would do well to until next Saturday night to a winner here.

Second conference contest will be at College Station, between the Aggies and Baylor. Most seem to feel the Farmers will get the Bears from the undefeated.

M. U. and Arkansas have re-elected coming up on their schedule. The Methodists will journey to meet the Cowboy eleven of Simmons. While the latter good football, they are not much against the strong Mustangs. Arkansas takes on College of the Ozarks in Fayetteville, probably using the game to bring their offense for A. & M. the Horned Frogs of T. C. U. play Centenary Gentlemen at the Fair in Shreveport. The Frogs probably find themselves pretty occupied during the afternoon they maintain their undefeated record. The Gentlemen will still smarting from the Texas loss. Liner to Depend On Seamstress' Skill

GLASGOW, Oct. 22 — Essential work on the most important navigation instrument of the new giant liner Queen Mary is to be done by a seamstress living in obscurity in Glasgow.

She is Miss Edith Rankin, to whom has been allotted the task of weaving gossamer strands of silk on the magnetic compass card of flexible material.

Lightness with strength are necessary with the compass card and these strands, which must be perfectly even, achieve the purpose.

This accomplished, Miss Rankin's delicate fingers then will sew on the magnetic needles.

"They have to be adjusted to a thousandth of an inch," Miss Rankin explained. "A fractional error in fixing the needles can put a ship far off her course."

Miss Rankin works with only the aid of ordinary spectacles. After years at the job she can feel almost instinctively by her fingers whether the magnetic needles are exactly in place.

Ships all over the world use compasses which have passed through her hands.

would sell them only on condition that the person to whom they went would agree to hold them for a month or more, until the furore out in Chicago had died down.

WHEN Sonny Boyd left Larry Glenn's office that afternoon he hurried back to his clear store and pool room in the east end, sweating profusely.

"Go ahead," said Larry. Montague went over to a wall safe, drew out some memoranda, and seemed to be studying them thoughtfully for a few moments.

He chuckled in fatherly, man-of-the-world fashion. "I told him I didn't want to loose her, and I gave him some fatherly advice. Then I asked him about the bonds themselves. He gave me a complete description. I rang up a brokerage house, found out what they were selling for and then, after he had left, I instituted a quiet little investigation into his past and present. Everything I could learn reassured me about him. I assumed that everything was as he had represented it."

"Tell Turf Arnold to come in," ordered Boyd. The manager went out, and a moment later he ushered in a rather sleepy man whose placid face and old-fashioned steel-rimmed spectacles made him look like anything but the underworld go-between he really was.

HE left the sentence unfinished and looked off out the window. Then he seemed to pull himself together. Resting his elbows on his desk he leaned forward slightly and looked Larry in the eye.

"I know," he said. "I was oddly uncritical and trusting. But—well, I liked the boy. I suppose I took it for granted that any intimate friend of Miss Dunn was bound to be all right. . . . At any rate, I bought the bonds, intending to keep them for a few months and then sell them. A week ago I unexpectedly became pressed for money and disposed of them. That's the story."

"Do I know anything, if he asks me any questions?" he asked. "Nothing," he said. "You just got word to give'm the tip, that's all, and if he asks where you got it you tell'm nothing. Just that message is all; the G men know that he had those bonds, and they're going to be asking him where he got 'em."

"I should add," he explained, "that up to the moment of the incident which I am about to describe, I did not know this young man. My secretary came to me one afternoon and—not without some slight embarrassment—asked me if I could arrange to see the young chap the next day. She said that he had some sort of business proposition to submit to me, and she apologized for bothering me about it. Being, as I said, fond of her—she's an admirable young woman—I consented.

BACK in his own office, half an hour later, Larry summoned four of the agents who served under him: Tony LaRocco, former All-America tackle at Notre Dame; Tommy Waters, war veteran; Al Peters, graduate of the New York police force, and Frank Watson, another ex-soldier. Sitting on a corner of his desk, he outlined to them the case of the stolen bonds and the suspicions he entertained relative to Evelyn Brady and her mysterious consort.

TURF ARNOLD was an excellent messenger. He sought out Donald Montague that evening, gave him the message, played dumb at the messenger's points, and then went away properly leaving the lawyer to walk thoughtfully up and down the floor of his library, stroking his chin and frowning meditatively.

"The next day the young man came in. He was full of enthusiasm, and he had a very odd proposition to make. Briefly it was this: "He had come into possession—or was about to—of these bonds; and it developed that they came originally from a Chicago politician, who had received them, in turn, from a Chicago gambler whose activities were, or rather are, being investigated by the county grand jury out there. The bonds had been registered in the name of the gambler, and if they came on the open market it would reflect seriously on the politician. "At that moment, it seemed, the bonds were being held by a friend of this young man; and this friend—I told you it was complicated—was a friend of the Chicago politician. Now he was hard up; needed money for something or other, and had to cash the bonds. But, being a friend of the Chicago gentleman, he was not willing to put them on the open market. He

"We can't wait any longer," he said. "We've got to strike. I'm going out to talk to this Wallace boy and see if I can get a lead from him about the identity of these people who unloaded the bonds on him. Frank, you and Al go down to the Golden Feather, buzz the drivers at the taxi stand outside, and see if you can find out where these people live. Tony, you and Tommy are to get hold of this Art Lanuing, who runs the place, put the heat on him, and find out everything he can tell you about them. "Check in as soon as you learn anything. The moment we find their hangout, we'll raid it!" (To Be Continued)

"Man on Flying Trapeze"

Book on Executions In World War Begun

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 22—The story of Canadians who were executed for cowardice and desertion during the World War is to be told for the first time in the official record of the First Canadian Division, "The Red Patch," now being compiled.

"Our history," Harry E. Munn, head of the division association sponsoring the book, declares "could give the names and the story of every man who was executed in the Canadian Corps, but that painful part of the war will be treated delicately by the historian. Though relatives of the men will be respected, we propose to furnish the book with a graphic and hitherto unpublished portrayal of executions in the grim dawn."

Kim Beattie, the historian, said he has the names, numbers and full details of every man who was shot.

"This book," he said "will dispel the rumor that still persists that no Canadians were executed and that those condemned to die for desertion were confined in a secret prison and released at the end of hostilities."
