GANG BLAMED FOR SHOOTING OF ALDERMAN

GARY, Ind., Oct. 25—Gambling racketeers or blackmailers today were held responsible for the slaying of Dan Perrotta, "boy alderman" of Gary, whose bullet riddled body was found in a ditch near here.

The 25-year-old alderman had led a spirited fight against vice resorts, gambling houses, and other rackets. Several groups of racketeers were reported fighting for control of gambling houses.

The possible black hand motive was reported by a policeman who reported several weeks ago that he had received threats and was "in a bad spot."

Lotief Blames Governor and Senate For Lack of Action in Legislature

Representative Cecil A. Lotief, in replying to charges that the Texas legislature did little at the first special session and at the beginning of the present one, today blamed Governor James Allred and the Texas senate.

Lotief's charge came in a letter to the Daily News, following an editorial Sunday under the caption "Do Something or Come Home."

Lotief blamed the governor for "submitting 147 other bills" besides those dealing with old age pensions, liquor, and county salaries. He charged that "the senate passed the county and liquor bills, we would not have had but the old age pension bill to deal with this session."

In its editorial last Sunday the Daily News lamented the fact that little had been accomplished during the first special session of the legislature, that during the first few days of the second the body could not even get a quorum to do business for the state, which had caused the people of the state to become dissatisfied with the legislature. The editorial ended with the advice to the legislature in general to "do something or come home."

Following is the text of Lotief's letter, addressed to the editor of the Daily News:

"There is an editorial printed in your Sunday paper dated October 20th entitled 'Do Something or Come Home.'"

"In reply to this editorial of yours I wish to say that the Texas legislature in the first called session which was called by the governor to meet on September 16th for the purpose of passing the three bills to-wit: Old age pension bill, liquor bill and county salary bill. The governor submitted these three measures at the beginning of the first day and these bills went to the following committees: the liquor bill went to the liquor traffic committee, the county salary bill went to the committee on counties and the old age pension went to the committee on state affairs. Of course these committees took some four or five days or more to study these bills and make their recommendations back to the house. With the exception of the liquor bill it took the committees something like 18 days to make their report to the house.

PEACE OFFERS ARE REPORTED FROM FRANCE

By United Press

If reports from Paris are correct, Premier Benito Mussolini has presented Britain and France with a set of proposals for settling the Ethiopian conflict so that another stage in diplomatic efforts to avert war in Europe may be reached in a few days if, as expected, Britain turns them down.

The indications from London were that Britain's stern attitude is not changed and she will reject anything Mussolini is likely to propose. Great secrecy was maintained in France as to the exact nature of the proposals. Although various versions purporting to be "inside" were told, it seemed logical that they would entail greater demands for Italian control in Ethiopia than British would grant.

There probably will be something definite before Thursday, when the League meets to set the date for enforcing penalties.

After that events should move more rapidly. Much may depend on the success on the Italian in their first major drive expected to start Monday.

If the Italians rout the Ethiopians and show signs they may be able to subdue the country quickly to subdue the country quickly and it is too late.

Dungeon of 1795 Is Found in the South

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24—A long sealed dungeon cell was discovered here when workmen investigated foundations of the Cabildo, built in 1795 as seat of the Spanish government and in later years converted into a state museum.

The dungeon is beneath the central stairway of the building and was walled up with ancient brick made from Mississippi river mud. It was part of the original Cabildo built in 1788 and which later burned, according to James J. A. Fortier, president of the board and executive director of the museum. The present edifice was erected by Don Andres Almonaster y Roxas, greatest 18th century benefactor of Louisiana, under administration of Governor Carondelet.

Several pairs of rusted wrist manacles, a few links of heavy iron chain, a heavy iron hook and heavy wrought iron hinges were among the articles found in the cell. Eight handmade lead rifle balls and several pieces of leather from what appeared to have been ancient firemen's hats were found also.

A number of arches, bricked up during various regimes, have been opened lately to allow freer circulation of crowds who visit the Cabildo and to reduce fire hazards. Fortier says the museum building is being restored to its original details.

FERA workmen plan to explore the floor beneath the reopened cell. Rumors have long existed that there were underground passages beneath the Cabildo. One story, that Fortier discounts, has it that the pirate Jean Lafitte escaped through a tunnel to the river front two blocks away. In the Cabildo "calabozo" or jail where Lafitte was incarcerated is a copy of the $1,000 reward posted for Lafitte's recapture.

Cooperation Needed

(An Editorial)

For the first time since the dropping of the highway location project, Cisco appeared to be getting place today.

There appeared to be a feeling of more harmony within the various groups concerned with the route here and those close to the project felt that something definite might be worked out soon.

Much of the angry talk going the rounds yesterday and late Wednesday had died down and the general trend of thought among those connected with the project was that, as the situation cools down, everyone concerned will be inclined to view the situation from all angles and to take a more cooperative position.

The spirit of cooperation is what is needed most in the matter now.

Cisco needs the $162,000 the project will bring. The laborers here need the work. Even more, Cisco needs the future greatness which the highway passing through the city will mean.

The majority of the citizens here want the highway, but the fact that they want it should not cause them to lose sight of the fact that cooperation rather than intimidation is needed now to secure the road.

When the project was dropped from the highway program, the citizens of Cisco immediately began taking steps to show that they wanted the new route. They made their wants very definitely known at several meetings and in conversations on the streets and elsewhere. Their demonstrations have shown the city commission just how strongly they feel that they need the highway. The commission last night took the action asked by the citizens.

Now the thing needed is not an attempt at coercion but rather a spirit of cooperation of every citizen. It is that spirit which will build the highway.

OMNIBUS TAX BILL WINNER IN SKIRMISH

By United Press
AUSTIN, Oct. 25—The omnibus tax bill won a preliminary skirmish today over "single shot" taxes in the Texas legislature.

An attempt to postpone consideration until Friday was tabled by a vote of 102 to 20.

The omnibus bill also survived a parliamentary attack when Speaker Coke Stevenson overruled a point of order by W. H. Fox, Taylor, that it was vague, indefinite, incapable of being understood, and provided no means of enforcement, and that it levies occupation taxes on things that are not occupations.

Stevenson said the objections were to the substance of the bill not to procedure and in accordance with precedent, should be left for court.

Hot debate met the attempt to postpone the bill. One member charged the omnibus bill was favored by the lobby "Liar and damn liar" were shouted but with qualifying "ifs" that prevented a personal clash.

CITY WILL GO LIMIT TO GET NEW ROUTING

Cisco today was planning to send a committee to Austin to contact members of the state highway commission to secure, if possible, relocation of Highway Number One over the Eighth street route through Cisco.

Citizens met at the Chamber of Commerce this morning and reaffirmed a motion passed yesterday, urging the city commission to seek to have the protest against the new route dropped. This motion was substituted for one calling for the commission and the group of citizens in the meeting to take the action when it was found that the original resolution was in conflict with the one adopted at a mass meeting yesterday.

This morning's meeting followed that of the city commission last night in which the commission by telephone as soon as possible and to learn any details possible as to why the project had been cancelled. City Attorney R. E. Grantham and Chamber of Commerce Secretary J. E. Spencer were to report their findings as soon as they have talked with the commissioners, so that the information may be used when a group goes to Austin to contact the commission personally.

To Go the Limit
The city commission, in a meeting last night, agreed to "go the limit" to secure the Eighth street routing for Highway Number One through Cisco and to take such action as was needed with the least possible amount of delay.

The group passed a resolution calling the city to enter into a contract with the state highway commission, whereby the city would furnish right of way for the road, pay claims for any damages, suits, and defend any suits brought by owners of property claiming damages through the rerouting of the highway.

The motion was passed unanimously by the four commissioners present at the commission meeting. It was offered by Street Commissioner W. F. Foxworth and seconded by Police Commissioner H. C. Henderson.

Upon motion of Commissioner Henderson, the body voted to send a committee of four, composed of the mayor, city attorney, and two committeemen from the Chamber of Commerce to contact members of the state highway commission to seek reapproval of the project.

Bridge Changes
Leo Ehlinger, district engineer of the state highway department, was immediately notified of the action by telephone and was asked if he could make a change in the railroad overpass plans which would meet the approval of the Radford Grocery company, which has protested that the structure, as originally planned, would result in a property damage. He replied that he would make a grade change and that he would mail a sketch of the change to the company officials, which he believed they would find satisfactory.

The commissioners present at the meeting praised the attitude taken by Commissioner J. R. Burnett, who

The First Dam on the Brazos

Announcement that work is about to start on the first of a series of 13 major dams in the Brazos River Conservation and Reclamation district brings to Ciscons and residents of this area the news that a cause they have sponsored and hoped for is actually getting under way.

For some time people of this territory have been hearing from F. E. Harrell, a member of the Brazos River board; from J. M. Bird, Chamber of Commerce agriculturist; from the Daily News, and other sources that the future of this part of Texas as an agricultural territory lies in soil conservation and that an important step in soil conservation is the Brazos River district.

The big plan calls for the creation of a district that takes in both the Brazos itself and its tributaries. It calls for the construction of dams where they will do the most good, both in the matter of furnishing power and in soil conservation.

This area has been chiefly interested in the project from an agricultural viewpoint—in their future control of soil erosion. Instead of holding water and, consequently, soil in place, the people of the United States in the past have been interested in cutting new channels and allowing their two most precious natural resources, water and land flow more rapidly downstream to the sea. This has brought about soil erosion by both wind and water, the dust storms of last spring being an example of the former. It has brought about droughts in much of the country. When heavy rains have fallen it has brought about floods.

The Brazos river district aims at doing its part to stop such conditions. In so doing, it aims directly at the places where they start—not at the mouth of the Brazos but back up in the little tributaries and all along the larger river.

The first dam in Palo Pinto county does not affect Cisco directly, but it is a start on a big program that will have a marked effect upon this area when it is completed.

McCraw's Advice to Physicians

Attorney General William McCraw advised members of the Texas Public Health association at Waco "to hold high your banner and let your propaganda reach out to the foremost corners of the state." To be exact he advised them to publicize public health work in Texas in order to gain the support and understanding of the people. Another excerpt from his address: "So long as you hide your light under a bushel, so long as you confine your activities to medical journals, just so long are you going to be hampered." As an example of an intensive campaign, he cited fire prevention campaigns of insurance companies during recent years.

McCraw was introduced by Dr. W. A. King of San Antonio who represented him as the attorney general and "governor to be sometime soon." Dr. King must be a direct-action individual. At least, he appears to know how the game is played. For instance, "if we want to get anything from Austin or Washington, we must get into politics and

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
SEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON. — Republicans and Liberty Leaguers who have staked out claims on the late Thomas Jefferson face a hot fight from administration Democrats, who intend to regain possession of the famed Virginian.

The effort to rope and tie Mr. Jefferson as Democratic property already has begun. And although Mr. Jefferson has been heard of frequently in every election campaign since the first one, plans of President Roosevelt and his strategists now call for giving him a more conspicuous part in the 1936 affair than he has had since death removed his corporeal presence from the political scene.

The opposition started all this with assertions that Roosevelt had deserted Jefferson and other splendid old American institutions and was following after false, un-American gods.

Democrats feel they can use Jefferson to offset such propaganda and prove that F. R. and T. J. are brothers under the skin and that the New Deal is deep-rooted in sound old American doctrine.

AMBASSADOR CLAUDE BOWERS, champion keynoter, spellbinder, and biographer, will be brought over from Madrid to parade Mr. Jefferson around the country and keep him out of Republican hands.

Bowers is a leading Jefferson expert. There's been some thought of giving him a cabinet job, where he would have added prestige behind his ballyhoo for the Sage of Monticello, but that isn't in the cards at the moment.

Meanwhile, Charlie Michelson, the party publicity boss, has been digging into the voluminous writings of Jefferson and extracting certain rare tidbits which tend to prove that Jefferson wasn't the spiritual father of Jonett Shouse. Postmaster General Jim Farley recently made a very good speech to which neither you nor anyone else paid any attention. It was good because Charlie Michelson wrote it for him and it told how Jefferson had demanded ten constitutional amendments all at once, how he was charged with destroying the Constitution time and again, and how the special pleaders for special privilege he labored him unmercifully as a boohsevik.

LOBBY investigations, though often of value, are almost all ways surface-scratching affairs. One reason is that the shadiest deals are the most carefully concealed and another is that smart lobbyists had no files which investigators can get at.

Sitting in a club card game the other night was a veteran shipbuilders' lobbyist, most successful and locally famous of his kind. For years committee investigators have admitted, in admiration, their inability to "get something out of" him. He was explaining how that was.

"They come to my office and ask for my files and find I haven't got any," he said. "Then they go looking for my letters in the files of the companies I've worked for and they find I didn't write any. I've always made it a rule to write one letter a year and then get a new stenographer."

"I've always told those fellows (other lobbyists) not to write letters. But they always feel they have to write the boss about how good they are. If your work is good, it will show for itself." (Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.)

elect those favorable to us." In replying to the introduction, the attorney general said he would "be a candidate for attorney general next year and not for governor."

Speaking seriously, the attorney general is something of a politician himself. Addressing the physicians of the convention, he said, "If you will give me the doctors and the barbers, however, I will elect anyone in the state. Doctors can sure get you a lot of votes. I know of no question in the world less important than the liquor question; as many people are so hungry, not one in 20 have the price for liquor anyway." He declared there is a tremendous necessity for education not legislation, that often the people resort to law when laws come naturally from public sentiment. He argued that a law on the statute book "means nothing until public sentiment in its favor has breathed into it."

Physicians have their local and state associations as well as their national. Barbers have their local unions and their state and national organizations. The attorney general is correct. Physicians do a lot of planning in a legislative sense and barbers do a lot of talking and shaving and hair-cutting during their busy work day hours.

The present modes and customs of Manchuria are patterned after China," so says the Manchurian Month. In speaking of marriages, it says: "The average marrying age is 15 for girls and 19 for boys. Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Oct. 25 — Democrats agree President Roosevelt is tremendously popular, and that he has done more to restore public confidence in the American form of government than any other in recent times. Most of them agree that when he took office, congress had reached an almost hopeless state of being bogged down, inability to function or to meet the urgent needs of the public whom it represented.

No small part of his popularity is due to the fact that by his leadership and personality he got action in congress, and caused the creating, unwieldy machine into motion again. The handicap of congress was not lack of ability in members, or good motives within it was watered out to ineffectiveness. The animating force that made it work well enough to regain a measure of public confidence came from an outside source, another part of the governmental dynamo.

It appears in advance that Ray Otis Dunagan, backed by the support of half the house membership, and probably to get the votes of nearly all the members, will secure final passage in this session of his drivers' license bill. This measure will save human lives. It will save hundreds of people every year from being made cripples the rest of their lives. It will save property. It will protect law-abiding citizens from the lawless.

After it shall have been enacted, one will wonder when he looks back why, judged by the net product of many legislative sessions in the past half dozen years and the tremendous toll of human lives taken in the same time, why it hadn't been in effect long ago.

Lieut. Gov. Walter F. Woodruff made a strict distinction in ruling out of order a proposed amendment to insert one kind of tax in a senate pension bill, but refused to rule on the tax provision already in the bill. He held that he can not rule out part of a bill, but would have to throw out the entire bill. So he told the senate that in his opinion, the pension bill containing a sales tax originating in the senate would be unconstitutional, but that he declined to act as to throw out the bill whose other provisions were eligible for action.

But the senate was quite decisive in rejecting 24 to 4, the sales tax plan, based on a 3 per cent tax, even though a house committee at the same time was approving something that looked very much like a sales tax under the name of "gross receipts tax" as the means of paying the pension bill.

Appearing at an auditorium to speak of a new water system for Binghamton, Dr. Dyer found president Frank A. West, organizer of the Wall Water club, a reporter, the custodian of the building and an audience of one—a woman.

The meeting was canceled, but in case anyone is interested, Dr. Dyer has prepared a four-page type, written speech advocating development of an underground water supply to replace what he termed the "sewage water" the city uses from the Susquehanna river.

Candidate Piqued

By Audience of 4

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 25. —Dr. Frank M. Dyer, candidate for the Republican majority nomination believes he will hire a brandstand the next time he is scheduled to speak.

At the Golden Feather night which she meets ANNE HARRIS, whose business connection is vague, Sandy introduces Bobby and Jean to Lewis' hotel, but he IS and Bobby arranges to sell some bonds for Lewis. He calls them to Jean's employer.

LARRY GLENN, federal agent, long a friend of Jean's parents, is trying to locate Winny Lewis, bank robber. Larry locates some stolen bonds and questions SANDY and BOBBY, gambler, about them. BOBBY confesses he bought the bonds from Donny Montague, Montague tells Larry he bought them from Bobby.

Larry talks to Bobby, learns Lewis bought a car recently, and suspects it is armored. Federal men go to Lewis' hotel, but he and his wife have disappeared. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXI

Even a government detective on a manhunt has time for a little private life occasionally—especially when the trail he is on grows cold and leaves him, temporarily, without a lead. So it happened that the night after the raid found Larry Glenn and Bobby Wallace eating an informal dinner with Jean Dunn in Jean's apartment.

The dinner was by way of being a farewell party for Jean, who was to leave for home, on a week's vacation, the following day. Bobby, chastened and humble because of his misadventure with the stolen bonds, looked at her admiringly as she served the meal—she was very pretty, with a crinkly little apron over her summer frock, and she happened also to be an excellent cook.

They had a gay evening, these three old friends, recalling hometown experiences, joking about people they had known and pranks they had played as children, and reveling in the intimacy of old friendship.

One incident occurred—a thing which seemed utterly trivial, at the time, but which was to become, much later, an event of vast importance. Jean learned, for the first time, that Larry was a Department of Justice operative. Highly thrilled, she plied him with questions about his job, and asked him, among other things, how fingerprints were taken. Larry explained by giving a demonstration.

It happened that Jean had an ink pad on her desk. Taking it and a sheet of note paper, Larry playfully took impressions of her finger tips, explaining how each person's prints differ from every other person's. Then, carelessly, he tossed the paper bearing the prints into the wastebasket.

Bobby instantly retrieved it. "I've got her picture," he explained, grinning, to Larry. "I've got a lot of pictures of her. I've got a ribbon she used to wear in her pigtail when she was so high. I've got a little tin-and-paper bottle she wore one time at a Christian Endeavor convention. I've got a lot of other things that remind me of her. Now I've got one more thing—something that nobody else has got."

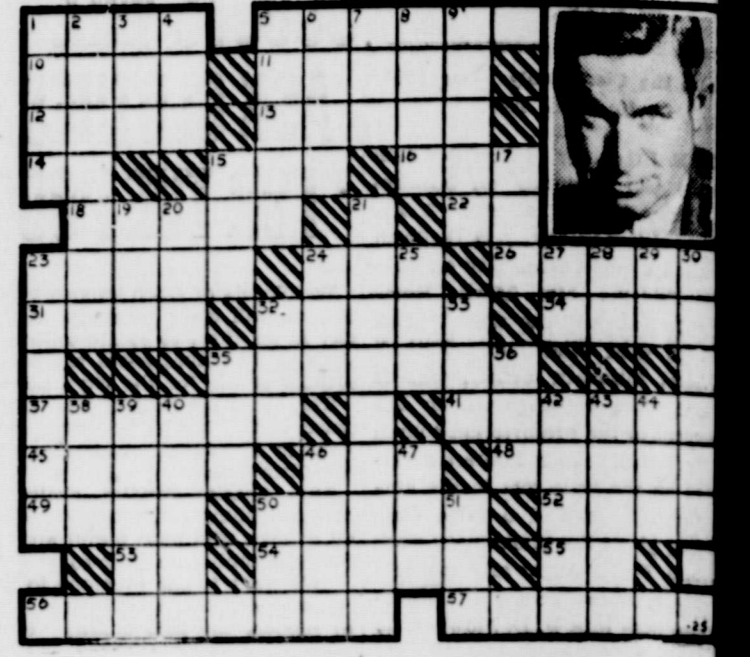

They laughed at him as he pocketed the paper, and then they forgot all about it—until, weeks later, it became of the most profound significance.

LARRY GLENN left shortly before 10 o'clock, remarking that he would "leave you two youngsters to yourselves." They protested—Bobby's protest being less than urgent—but Larry insisted, wished Jean a happy vacation, and bowed himself out.

Bobby immediately took a position on the couch beside Jean and slipped his arm about her shoulders; but when he tried to draw her to him she quietly resisted, and when he finally got the kiss he was seeking, her lips did not return his pressure. He released her and sat looking at her glumly.

"What's the matter, honey?" he asked.
"Why, nothing," she said innocently.
"Well—" said Bobby doubtfully.
"Well?"
"Well, why don't—why don't you want me to kiss you?"

As a matter of fact, Jean was wondering the same thing. Why didn't she want him to? But she only said, "Oh, Bobby, let's—just talk."

Bobby stared at her, then made a humorous grimace, took his arm away, and said, "Okay. Let's talk. Go ahead."

She pouted prettily and said, "Oh, Bobby, don't be like that."
"Like what?"
They looked at each other, and discovered that they were close to a quarrel, and neither of them understood quite why.

"What's the matter tonight? Want me to go home?" demanded Bobby.
"Nothing's the matter. Do you want to go?"

The looks they were exchanging came closer to the classification of "glare." Bobby sat back and crossed his legs. He took out a cigarette and lit it with vast care. Then, impulsively, he dropped his cigarette into the ashtray, turned to face Jean, laid his hands on hers, and said softly, "Jean, dearest, let's not quarrel—please. Is anything wrong?"

To his surprise her eyes became misty. She shook her head "No."
"I love you, Jean. You love me, don't you?"

SHE looked at him a long time before she answered, and then she found herself saying, rather shakily:
"Oh, Bobby, it's so—you see, we've known each other all our lives, and I know I'm terribly fond of you. . . . But I wonder—"

"Yes?"
"I wonder if maybe—"

She left the sentence unfinished. He tightened his grip on her hands and said, "Please, Jean, for Heaven's sake, maybe what?"

"Oh—" She withdrew her hands, reached for a microscopic handkerchief, and dabbed at the corner of one eye. "Maybe it's just that I love you like—like a sister would. I mean—"

Bobby suddenly had a depressing mental image of the long and romantic figure of Sandy Harkins; and he said soberly, "Jean, is there—do you care for somebody else?"

"You never thought you loved me like a sister until just now," persisted Bobby. "Is it—?" He hesitated. Then, hating himself for saying it, he said, "Is it this Harkins fellow?"

She made no answer but continued to stare at the floor.

"It is, isn't it?" he said. Still she made no answer, but it seemed to him that her continued silence was answer enough.

"Don't fall for that bird," he said, his tone more harsh than he had intended to make it.

There was a glint of anger in the line of her mouth as she returned his gaze. He ignored it, ignored caution as well, and plunged on: "For your own good, Jean! Not because of me—for yourself. Why, you don't know anything about him. You don't know who he is or where he came from or what he does or anything. For all you know he may be a crook."

"Bobby!" There was real anger in her voice now.

"Well, it's so. You don't know. You met him in a night club. Larry Glenn said you never knew who you met in a place like that. He might be a gangster. He might—"

"Stop!" she cried, her eyes blazing.

"Well, it's true," he said. She looked at him scornfully.

"I didn't think that of you, Bobby."

"Think what?"

"That you'd be so jealous you'd—you'd blackguard a man behind his back, when he isn't here to defend himself."

"I'm not blackguarding him."

"Oh, no!"

"Well, I'm not. I'm just—"

"What do you call it, then? Telling me he may be a crook or a gangster? He's a clean-cut, decent boy. You're the one that doesn't know anything about him. I do. I've seen him a lot. I like him."

And then, to his complete amazement, she began to cry on his shoulder.

AS she sat in the Pullman car, the next afternoon, on her way to her home in Maplehurst, Jean tried in vain to think her way out of the distressing emotional tangle with which her two young admirers had presented her.

It wasn't right of Bobby, she told herself indignantly, to try to poison her mind about Sandy. Sandy was as honest as—as anybody.

It wasn't his fault that he'd had that little mix-up with the police; and anyway, that had been straightened out instantly, as soon as Jean went to the police station and explained that Sandy had been with her that Friday afternoon. . . .

She frowned faintly. Why did she always feel vaguely uncomfortable when she thought of that? What was wrong with it? She and Sandy had gone canoeing; a week later she had saved Sandy some embarrassment by telling the police about it. What was it that kept tapping at the door of her mind, telling her that there was something wrong with it?

Then, suddenly, she knew, and gripped the arms of the Pullman chair in panic dismay.

She remembered, now; that afternoon when Bobby came to see Mr. Montague, and she got the afternoon off and went out with Sandy.

The robbery of which Sandy had been suspected had happened on a Friday. She had convinced the police that Sandy was innocent because he had been canoeing with her that Friday afternoon. But she remembered now.

It hadn't been a Friday, after all. She had gone canoeing with Sandy on a Thursday. On the Friday when the robbery occurred she hadn't seen him at all!

Breckinridge goes in, for variety in its football players. Spud Taylor, star quarterback who has been suffering some bad ankles since the San Angelo game, has been elected president of the senior class.

That in itself would be an honor, but that same Spud Taylor has been elected president of his class for each of his four years in high school.

Earl Clark, Taylor's running mate in the backfield, is holding down an executive position in one of Breckinridge's leading Sunday school classes.

Ranger fans finally got together the necessary number of themselves and made up a special train to go to Abilene with their football team. The Bulldog fans must have wanted the trip or else figured that Coach Moore had a lot in store for the Canines have been unable to dent any other team appreciably this season.

Announcement is that there will be two of the big-time games of the southwest broadcast Saturday. The A. & M. homecoming tilt with Baylor will go on the air at College Station, while the Texas-Rice clash will be broadcast from Memorial stadium in Austin.

There likely will be a lot of Cisco fans listening to those games Saturday.

had the three bills to consider, so I think the Governor is very much to blame for our failure to accomplish very much in the first called session. He also submitted appropriation bills for different state institutions and departments which call for something like $1,000,000 which we could have gotten along without. There was also a claims bill passed calling for something like $200,000.

However, after all the house of representatives finally passed the liquor bill and the county salary bill. Some of the members in the house have worked so faithfully trying to get these measures passed and in justice to us I wish to say that had the senate passed the county salary and the liquor bill we would not have had but the old age pension bill to deal with this session. This is a matter of record and I ask you to print this in your paper so that the people may see it.

Two Grid Games To Go On Air Saturday

Radio gridiron fans will be able to trace the progress of the southwest Conference championship race next Saturday afternoon when Rice Institute, which was defeated by Southern Methodist University last Saturday, meets the University of Texas at Austin in the latter's first conference game. Baylor's undefeated Bears play Texas A. & M. at the Aggie homecoming at College Station. The first game will be broadcast over stations of the Southwest Broadcasting System, the second over the Texas Quality Network. Both games are sponsored by the Humble Oil and Refining Company.

At both Austin and College Station the games are certain to be colorful spectacles. They represent a renewal of ancient rivalries, which annually draw thousands of spectators. Arrangements have been perfected whereby cheers of the student bodies, band music and other background noises which help to make football the most colorful of fall sports will be picked up by parabolic microphones and brought to radio listeners.

Tit-Tat-Toe, Round We Go

BACKDROP FOR LONGHORN-OWL GO COLORFUL

AUSTIN, Oct. 25—The Rice-Texas game, colorful classic scheduled for Memorial stadium here Saturday afternoon, has twenty-one years of background to furnish the keen rivalry of today with the mellowness of age. It matters little in 1935 that the Longhorns have won sixteen games to five by the Owls over that period, for the two teams of this season will clash for the present glory more than for that of the past.

It was in 1914, two years after the sport was started at Rice Institute, that the Owls under the direction of Phil Aruckie met the more schooled Steers of coach Dave Allerdice for the first time and were trounced 41 to 0. Another 59 to 0 Texas landslide came in the following season, yet in 1916 Aruckie assembled a great Owl team which steam rolled its way to victory after victory only to find in the Longhorns a 16 to 2 stumbling block. It was not until 1917 that Aruckie was able to build a machine to trim the powerful Texas teams of that time, but the 13 to 0 Rice victory of that season caused much rejoicing in the new football camp.

War-time Victory

But that first Rice victory was destined to wait a long time before it gained a mate on the scoreboard. Coach Juneau's Longhorns of 1918 made away with a one-touchdown win over the Owls under the direction of John Anderson, "War Year" coach, and started another unbroken chain of Orange and White supremacy which lasted for six years. All of Berry Whitaker's term as head coach and the first year of E. J. (Doc) Stewart's service were included in that string of victories.

But now it had come time for another Rice recovery. The 1924 game was won by the Heisman coached Owls 19 to 6, only to set the stage again for another five-year term of Longhorn leadership.

Recent Rivalry

The teams of "Doc" Stewart trounced the Owls thoroughly for the following two seasons, during the first three years of Clyde Littlefield's reign the same was true. Not until the advent of Coach Jack Meagher into the Owl picture did Rice accomplish the feat of beating the Longhorns in two successive years. Meagher's strong teams of 1930 and '31 turned the trick 6-0 and 7-0, the next two seasons saw Littlefield again take the upper hand.

Much of the spirited rivalry which exists today was built up during the last five years of the annual battle and was brought to a crowning point by the wild and sensational game of 1934. That game marked the first meeting of the two new coaches, Jack Chevigny and Jimmy Eitz, and as the two met for the second time Saturday ex-students from both schools who can remember the first contest of twenty-two years ago will mingle with the more recently acquired supporters of both teams.

FRISKY POINTERS' COACH ROOSE

HOW TO PLAY TACKLE

GIVE any coach a good, big pair of tackles and he can build a football team.

The tackle is a shock-absorber on defense and an irresistible force on offense. He must be able to cover ground in a hurry, hit a ball carrier with nerve-shocking force, and knife through an opposing wall.

The tackle's stance on offense is with the legs coiled under and fairly well apart, the toe of the inside foot being on a line with the other heel. Head is back and tail low. On defense, he squats down fairly low, with the inside leg slightly advanced.

On straight-ahead plays, the tackle charges powerfully; on quick-offense plays he uses the zig-zag step. Against a normal offense he should play on the outside shoulder of the end.

Rush passes and punts at all time. Next: HOW TO PLAY END.

SPARTANS PUT ON STEAM FOR 2 HARD GAMES

By CARLISLE CARVER
United Press Staff Correspondent

EAST LANSING, Mich., Oct. 24.—Michigan State College, touted by critics for an undefeated season, is undergoing thorough preparation for the two toughest games on the schedule—Temple University, at Philadelphia, Nov. 2, and the homecoming tilt with Marquette, U., here Nov. 9.

State's aerial attack, which is considered one of the best in the Midwest, will reach its pinnacle during these two encounters. The running attack which has worked smoothly during previous clashes will be shifted into "high gear."

Coach Charley Bachman and his assistants, Tom King, Mike Casteel and Bob Termaak, are busily engaged in polishing the offense and defense.

While Bachman has edged out on a limb with the prediction that his team will travel through the tough schedule that confronts it without defeat, he has strategically included a few "ifs" in his prediction.

Injuries Most Feared
The Spartan mentor says an undefeated season will be a realization if the State gridgers block and tackle in the same fashion they did against the University of Michigan earlier this season, and if injuries do not wreck the team. This happened last year when it appeared the East Lansing eleven would not suffer defeat.

The injury jinx has been hovering over the Spartan camp all year and has struck twice. Dick Edwards, of Dimondale, Mich., the backfield speedster, and Kurt Warmbein, of St. Joseph, Mich., half-back, have suffered injuries.

Edwards and Warmbein are recovering and in all probability will be at peak form for the two clashes. Edwards, besides boasting speed is the ace place-kicker on the squad while Warmbein tosses passes and does the punting.

Bachman's two chief worries as he prepares for the games are Dave Smukler, "Pop" Warner's big fullback at Temple and Ray Bulvid, Frank Murray's ripping half-back at Marquette.

Scout Stresses Ability
The Spartan mentor has heard plenty about Smukler from his capable scout, Casteel, and is devising means by which to stop him. Besides being fast, Smukler is a line cracker of first rating and a good blocker. "He does everything well" is the description making its way around.

Bulvid made a lasting impression on Bachman last year when the Hilltoppers played State in the homecoming tilt at Macklin Field. He was the spearhead of the Marquette ball toters, smashing the line, circling the ends and passing. Often it took two men and sometimes three to drag the 195-pounder to the turf.

Michigan State will offset the ability of these two backs with a light, fast and smart backfield that is adept at all departments of the game.

Quarter Weighs 145
Warmbein probably will be at one of the halves and Edwards at the others, with Dick Colina, 145 pounds of dynamite from Detroit, directing play. Art "Buster" Brandstatter, of Ecorse, Mich., or Kurt Kuhne, of Pontiac, Mich., both line busters of top ranking, will be at the full-back post.

Smukler and Bulvid will find plenty of opposition in the Spartan forward wall when they attempt to crack it or run the ends. The State line is light, but fast and rugged. Sid Wagner, of Lansing, Mich., All-American material at guard is the outstanding man. Jake Dahlgren, of Chicago, the other guard and Joe Buzolits, Edwardsburg, Mich., form a stalwart defense in the center of the line.

Linesmen Have Weight
The two guards are flanked by two rugged tackles in Howard Zindel, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Julius Sieder, of Traverse City.

Black-Draught Long-Established Reliable Laxative

A clean system for health! And a good, purely vegetable laxative to help cleanse the digestive tract when it gets sluggish! For this, thousands of men and women recommend Black-Draught.

Mr. O. F. Ansley, of Dallas, Texas, writes that he has used Black-Draught, when needed, for more than fifty years. "It gives me quicker relief than anything I can take," he declares. "I consider it the best medicine for certain ailments." Mr. Ansley has enjoyed remarkably good health. He has lived in Texas for more than seventy years! His former home was Cuthbert, Ga., which he frequently visits. He served in a Georgia regiment during the war between the states.

Can You Qualify?

Wanted—Wide-awake men or women, living within Cisco trade area, either in communities or on rural routes of surrounding towns, for interesting work that will pay better than $75 per week. Apply Cisco Daily News office.

More entries are needed in District Two, as a glance at the published standings today show.

City in Tumult as Italy Hails Army's Triumphs

While its armies in northern and eastern Ethiopia wage campaigns that steadily bring nearer the goal of conquest, Italy itself is running a high war fever, as evidenced above. Each message from the front announcing progress in the African invasion is the signal for wild rejoicing in Rome where, after nightfall, as pictured here, truckloads of gleeful Fascists tour streets thronged with tumultuous, banner-waving crowds.

after nightfall, as pictured here, truckloads of gleeful Fascists tour streets thronged with tumultuous, banner-waving crowds.

Mich., while there are others in reserve. Zindel tips the scales at 205, while Sieder weighs close to 200. They form a formidable pair, as has been exhibited in early games.

State's flankers, Lou Zarza, of Hammond, Ind., and Bob Allman, Bay City, Mich., are two of the best pass receivers seen at the State College. Both are rugged and aggressive.

Allman, Zindel and Sieder are the biggest boys on the forward wall, with Wagner and Dahlgren weighing approximately 185 and Buzolits 165.

CISCOANS TO MAKE A STUDY OF CHEVROLET

A. D. Aanderson, Jack Anderson, and all A. G. Motor company salesmen will go to Dallas for the Chevrolet school on October 28. It was announced today. A meeting of 15 dealers was held here yesterday.

Chevrolet dealers, and members of their organization to convene for an intensive course of study based on Chevrolet's new 1936 product, soon to be announced. The schools are part of a countrywide program which as its immediate objective the training of the entire Chevrolet retail personnel. Its ultimate goal is the realization of maximum customer satisfaction in the new Chevrolets, which a full knowledge of the car, on the dealer's part alone can assure.

The sessions here are under the direction of the Dallas zone officials. They are being attended by dealers and salesmen from surrounding towns in this area. The total number to be schooled in the series of meetings here is about three hundred. Meanwhile, members of the Dallas zone organization will hold similar training courses in other points strategically located throughout the Dallas zone.

The Dallas zone officials have just returned from Detroit where they underwent a course exactly like that which is now being held for the retail organization. Through the elaborate schedule of meetings of which the local sessions are a part, Chevrolet will acquaint some 35,000 dealers and dealers' salesmen with the entire story about the new Chevrolet, prior to the announcement date.

Classroom methods supplemented by such modern aids as slide films, will be used in the "schools". All Chevrolet dealers have the assurance of the factory that cars will be on hand in quantities for delivery on announcement date. Orders received prior to the announcement will be given preferred position on the list.

Nyal 2 for 1 and Special Sale, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, this week Moore Drug company.

AGED IGNORED
MONGO, Ind. — Eugene Goodsell, 87-year-old farmer living near here says life is what you make it and that goes for age, too. Insisting that he is not an old man despite his age, Goodsell went into a cornfield and cut 100 shocks of corn in one day to prove to his fellow farmers that he is still capable of doing a "fairly" good day's work.

THE SUN OF OPPORTUNITY STILL SHINES FOR YOU! THRU THE BLUE OF A TEXAS 'NORTHER

Be FAIR with Yourself

The winners of either one of these two cars will average better than $75 a week for their pay. Do you know of any job, position or anything else that will pay you that well? Are you doing any thing now that will net you that for the next eight weeks?

You'd be glad to work from sun-up to sun-down for that kind of pay between now and Christmas. Wouldn't you? Well, in this interesting and fascinating work, you are not asked to do that at all.

You are asked merely to devote a part of your time, seeing the folks you know, your friends and neighbors, just as you are going to see them any way during that time. You are guaranteed pay for what results you do get and besides the two cars, there are seven other prizes, all worth while and on top of that as many cash commission checks as there are active workers. Can you afford not to grasp this opportunity?

You are right—you can't afford to let it slip through your fingers on an "I don't have time" excuse, or any other for that matter. So—Let's go!

QUEEN SEEKS TO SAVE GOLD FOR HOLLAND

PARIS, Oct. 25 — France, as a leading gold standard country, is watching with interest the gallant effort of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland to save the Dutch guilder. In a recent speech from the throne, the Queen declared that neither devaluation nor the abandonment of the gold standard could benefit the community, so this dominant woman is preparing to face the problem when Parliament opens shortly.

She rules a little empire of nearly 60,000,000 people who formerly were prosperous through income from East Indian possessions rich in coffee, tin, rubber and other valuable products. The world depression finally struck Holland and the income from the Dutch colonies diminished considerably.

Queen Wilhelmina, herself, is enormously rich and also generous. Although her income has decreased she has given large reductions and allowances to her tenants, has contributed generously to various crisis funds and has returned to the Dutch government part of the allowance fixed by the constitution as a stipend of the ruling sovereign. Recently she proposed that among the changes to be made in the constitution should be a permanent and formal reduction of this allowance of the ruler.

Known As Efficient Ruler
Queen Wilhelmina is more or less of an autocrat although her authority is limited by the constitution, which is similar to that of Great Britain. She is a capable and efficient ruler having behind her not only the traditions of centuries, but the training during her youth of her mother, the late Queen Emma.

She always has been a strict disciplinarian which is proven by an authentic story of her early days as sovereign. Queen Wilhelmina and her court were to attend a review of troops which was to start at a certain hour. The Queen arrived promptly but the commanding officer was several minutes late. He apologized and made excuses but the young queen replied that she had no use for an officer who could not be punctual and she appointed another man to fill his post.

This remarkable woman is as fearless as a male ruler. In 1918, when rioting had broken out at The Hague, the queen, to test the loyalty of her people, rode in an open carriage, almost unprotected, through the crowded streets to the "Malieveld," a large field used as a military exercise ground. The huge throng which had assembled there recognized the fearless gesture of the queen and burst into cheers. Enthusiasm and love and respect for their ruler ran so high that several young men unharnessed the horses and pulled the carriage themselves to several miles.

Speaks Many Tongues
The queen is an excellent linguist and can speak to Europeans in their own languages as well as to her East Indian subjects in their dialects. She observes court etiquette strictly in this sense. Recently when she received the wives of French and British ministers in a private audience, although both were familiar with the other's tongue, the queen carried out her usual habit of speaking French to the French women and English to the British women.

Being an aristocrat, she prefers to be surrounded by forceful men who have opinions. She likes to discuss and argue with her statesmen so that she can convince or be convinced. This is proved by the fact that although deeply opposed in religious affairs to the late Monsignor Nolens, she offered him the position of prime minister, which he refused.

This courageous and lonely woman has lost most of the people dear to her. First the queen's mother, then her husband, Prince Hendrick. Their only child, Princess Juliana, is now an inseparable companion and queen Wilhelmina is supervising her daughter's education thoroughly so that some day she can follow in her mother's footsteps as Queen of Holland.

Citrus Contract Rive Successful

McALLEN, Oct. 25—Officials of the South Texas Citrus Growers' League here announced that they believe the drive to sign up sales contracts with growers of 30 per cent of the lower Rio Grande Valley's 1935-36 citrus tonnage under the Banks L. Miller marketing plan had been successful.

League leaders pointed out that dozens of individual committees, in addition to chambers of commerce and civic organizations, had been at work for the past month and that reports from each of the many groups probably could not be received and tabulated for several days.

Reports from most of the citrus producing communities indicated, however, that the campaign had been a success and that efforts will be made as soon as definite results are known to place the plan in immediate operation.

Miller, McAllen financier and proponent of centralized marketing of valley agricultural products, was asked by the league to submit a proposal for marketing the crop through a single agency.

SENTENCED TO CHURCH
NEW PHILADELPHIA, Ohio, Oct. 20—A plea for "clemency" when arraigned on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, brought Goby Walters, police court frequenter, a "sentence" to attend church every Sunday night for a year. Mayor Earl D. Gross imposed the stipulation.

GOOD HUSBAND IN MAKING
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.—Martin H. Sullivan, 3rd, is only 11 years old but in another 10 years he will make some girl an ideal husband. Adept at cooking, he won first prize in the high school division for his jar of cranberry jelly.

HUNT ANCIENT CULTURE
LENINGRAD, Oct. 20—An Arctic expedition of the Academy of History of Material Culture has left for the Kola Peninsula, in quest of monuments of the paleolithic period in the Arctic.

RAIN FROM CLOUDLESS SKY
FORT ERIE, Ont.—It rained for one hour here one night while the stars and moon shone brightly and not a cloud was in sight. No explanation for the phenomenon has been advanced by science.

BOOM TOWN BURIED
MENCIMINEE, Mich.—Singapore, once one of the busiest ports on the Great Lakes, today lies buried beneath a slope of white Lake Michigan sand, strangely mixed with sawdust and chips of ancient plankings.

URGED TO TRY SONG
CHICAGO — J. Manley Phelps, professor of speech at De Paul university, advises a bit of lyric if the fish aren't biting. He told a class that he fished for weeks in Wisconsin last summer without catching a thing. Finally he started singing and caught a 25-pound muskie.

NEW INTEREST GRIPS VOTERS OF LOUISIANA

By ALAN COOGAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 25—The political battle in Louisiana, to be fought at the polls January 21, 1936, has aroused such interest that even at this date it is predicted that 100,000 more citizens will vote than in the presidential election of 1932.

Prospects are for the longest ballot since 1812 when W. C. C. Claiborne became the state's first governor. Approximately 3,000 elective offices will be filled in the democratic primary. As democratic nomination is tantamount to election in Louisiana, the January primary will mark the high water mark in the state's political year.

Poll Tax Law Repealed
Repeal of the poll tax law and sharp increases in registration account for the expected increase in voting. A total vote of around 465,000 is anticipated.

The name of the late Huey Long will be missed. Long was to have stood for reelection to the United States senate. Instead, Allen J. Ellender of Houma, speaker of the Louisiana house of representatives has been named by the Long machine to succeed the leader. Thus far, U. S. Rep. John N. Sandlin is an anti-Long man.

Among the offices to be filled are those of approximately 622 police jurors (who perform duties similar to those of county commissioners in other states); 611 school board members; 520 justices of the peace; 510 constables and 104 state committeemen.

Judges to Be Nominated
Also up for decision are offices of district judges, district attorneys, sheriffs, coroners, clerks of courts and assessors.

State offices to be filled include governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, treasurer, superintendent of education, commissioner of agriculture, one public service commissioner, auditor and register of land office.

There also will be elected 10 United States representatives and an associate justice of the State Supreme Court.

Principal contestants for the honor of becoming Louisiana's 47th governor thus far Judge Richard Leche, on the Long ticket, and U. S. Sen. Cleveland Dear, on the anti-Long slate. When Louisiana was under French and Spanish rule there were 20 territorial governors.

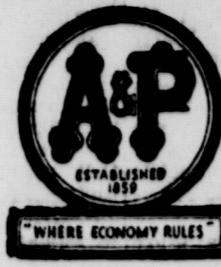

Allen To Retire
The winner in the gubernatorial fight will succeed Oscar Kelly Allen, long time friend of Long, who desires to relinquish his post. Allen recently was elected democratic national committeeman and chairman of the state committee, succeeding Long in both instances.

Louisiana's governors since the turn of the century.
William Wright Heard, 1900-04; Newton Cain Blanchard, 1904-08; Fared Young Sanders, Sr., 1908-12; Luther E. Hall, 1912-16; Ruffin G. Pleasant, 1916-20; John M. Parker, 1920-24; Henry L. Fuqua, 1924-26; (died in office); O. H. Simpson, lieutenant governor, filling Fuqua's unexpired term, 1926-28; Huey P. Long, 1928-32 (resigned to enter United States senate term); Alvin O. King, president pro tem of the state senate, succeeded Long, 1932; Oscar K. Allen, incumbent.

HORSE DIES IN SERVICE
EUGENE, Ore.—Dan, 29-year-old veteran packhorse of the Willamette National Forest service, died in action. A fall on a jagged rock ended the 18 years of service of the old fellow who knew every trick and trail of the Oregon mountains.

MOTORIST SUES DRIVER
WORCHESTER, Mass.—Reversing the old order, a motorist brought suit following a collision between his automobile and a horse. The motorist, James B. McKenna, sued, awarded $150 damages for injuries suffered when a horse charged his car.

THE SAPSUCKER
BY DIGGING HUNDREDS OF TINY HOLES IN TREES, CAUSES INJURIES WHICH, IN THE MAPLE, PRODUCE THE PECULIARLY GRAINED WOOD KNOWN AS "BIRD'S-EYE MAPLE."

IT TAKES FOUR AND ONE-HALF HOURS TO HARD-BOIL AN OSTRICH EGG!

SAPSUCKERS are not particular as to what trees they feed on, and about 250 species are subject to their attacks. Occasionally, young trees are killed outright by the birding of the sapsucker, but larger trees recover from the injuries, although the blemishes may never disappear.

Stop Chills and Fever!

Rid Your System of Malaria!
Shivering with chills one moment and burning with fever the next—that's one of the effects of Malaria. Unless checked, the disease will do serious harm to your health. Malaria, a blood infection, calls for two things. First, destroying the infection in the blood. Second, building up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and to fortify against further attack.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic supplies both these effects. It contains tasteless quinine, which kills the infection in the blood, and iron, which enriches and builds up the blood. Chills and fever soon stop and you are restored to health and comfort. For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic has been sure relief for Malaria. It is just as useful, too, as a general tonic for old and young. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle at any drug store. Now two sizes—50c and $1. The $1 size contains 2 1/2 times as much as the 50c size and gives you 25% more for your money.

Dallasite Ends 10-Year Search

"Just try one bottle of Gordon's Compound and you will never try any other remedy," declared Mrs. W. A. Nitche, 4113 Elm street, Dallas, after searching for ten long, suffering years for relief from a stomach trouble undoubtedly caused by excess acid. Gas, bloating after meals, heartburn, heavy, burning feeling in the stomach—she had all these. Gordon's brought relief at once. She used 5 bottles, no longer needs it. Recommends it to others suffering with such troubles.

THE Normans of early times heated their buildings with wood or peat fires, placed on a hearth in the middle of the room. William the Conqueror originated the custom of ringing a bell to signal all householders to quench their fires.
