BRAZIL'S REVOLT IS BELIEVED CRUSHED

About Our Friends

STEP A. LONG

Mrs. J. McArdie, who has been recovering from an operation in a Dallas hospital, writes a very sweet letter of appreciation for her friends who have remembered her during her illness. She speaks very kindly about the comfort the Cisco Daily News has afforded her in keeping her informed about the doings of Cisco people. She will return home Sunday.

Neil Lane's Funeral Home marks its first anniversary in Cisco, Mr. Lane having come to Cisco one year ago and purchasing the Wippen Funeral Home. Mr. Lane has made many friends in this short time by his quiet, unassuming disposition and progressive spirit. We offer congratulations to Mr. Lane in his selecting of this city as his business home.

Rev. W. H. Cole, pastor of the First Methodist church, impresses one as a man who thinks deeply upon questions of his church and things that concern the people of his community. His conversation is clear and shows an analytical mind, used to weighing his subject carefully. He follows a fine man, the Rev. Frank Turner, but should secure the hearty cooperation of his people. His church should respond to his ministry, showing a decided growth through the year.

Thanksgiving is a time of taking stock of our blessings and being duly thankful. Every human being can find much to be thankful for, most especially in this land of ours which has responded to ef-

NEW SINO-JAP WAR BELIEVED TO BE COMING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28 — (Thursday) — Japanese occupation of strategic points in North China was under way today.

Meantime the national government of China in Nanking continued defiant and some observers believed a new Sino-Japanese unofficial war was certain.

Unofficial report indicated about 15,000 soldiers of the Kwangtung army in China is called—had crossed the great wall from bases in Manchukuo and taken up positions on the North China plain.

The spokesman in Nanking said General Chiang Kai-shek and his government still was attempting to settle Sino-Japanese issues diplomatically but was preparing for eventual military action if diplomacy fails.

That diplomacy will fail unless Nanking yields entirely to the Japanese suggestion that the five North China provinces be autonomous and financially and economically independent was believed certain. Nanking cannot yield without facing rebellion on the part of the anti-Japanese population of the central provinces and hence must make at least a show of armed resistance.

Keep U.S. American Says Ex-President

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27—The principal task of America's present generation is to "keep America American and the first and foremost American social ideal is free men and women."

Former President Hoover declared today in a speech at an Americanism luncheon sponsored by the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Hoover pleaded for a return of real American liberalism which "is not regimentation nor repression and it never is coercion by bureaucrats" and warned against "imported social philosophies of government."

Rift Between Italy and U. S. Is Foreseen

ACTION OVER OIL ORDER IS KEPT SECRET

Copyright 1935 by United Press
WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 — Diplomatic secrecy veiled an apparent clash between Italy and the United States over this nation's refusal to allow the tanker Ulysses to sail with a cargo of oil for Italy.

Italian Ambassador Augusto Rosso was believed in informed quarters to have protested to Secretary of State Cordell Hull against the restraining order since the purchase was arranged by the Italian government. Neither the embassy nor the state department would confirm the protest. One official said: "It is to delicate to discuss."

Italy struck a warlike pose Wednesday night to discourage the League of Nations from shutting off her supplies of oil, cotton, and metal—vital necessities for her war with Ethiopia.

Rome officials hinted Italy would regard such an embargo as cause for war. The official spokesman announced the furlough of 100,000 soldiers had been canceled and other troop movements ordered "in view of the uncertainty created by reports of the possibility of extension of sanctions."

Troops Moved
It was reported that white troops were being withdrawn from the Ethiopian front to bases where they could be sent elsewhere on short notice.

Nevertheless it was understood in London that the League's general staff of 18 would meet Dec. 5 to vote an oil embargo such assurance was given the United States which was annoyed at being "left out on a limb" by postponement of the league action on oil.

The United States "led off" oil sanctions by warning exporters of petroleum products to refrain from business with the belligerents.

It is doubtful that Premier Mussolini would declare on all nations refusing to sell him oil, cotton, and metals, but such an embargo would undoubtedly cause Italy's immediate withdrawal from the League.

RULES KEEP JAIL EMPTY

OZARK, Mo. — Ozark had a new city jail, but no person has been incarcerated in the month since it was completed. The city marshal believes the reason lies in the following jail rules: Milk and water diet, no reading matter, no tobacco, no playing cards, no visitors, and lights out at 7 o'clock.

Thanksgiving

(An Editorial)
Following the custom established by the Pilgrim Fathers who came to Plymouth Rock, struggled through a bitter New England winter, worked hard through the short summer, and in the autumn gathered their crops and gave thanks for the meager blessings they had received, the people of the United States today are observing Thanksgiving.

It is altogether fitting that we should pause today and count the blessings, material and otherwise, which have come to us during the year just past, and in giving thanks for them resolve more firmly to use them to the best advantage both to ourselves and to others in the year to come.

The Pilgrim Fathers were thankful for a bountiful harvest in a barren land. They were thankful for good, substantial food which would last during the long, cold winter. The people of the United States are emerging from a severe economic depression, their spirits unbroken. The depression has caused many to go hungry, to be in want of food, shelter, and clothing many times, but there have been few times when starvation has actually taken a death toll.

During the depression it was necessary for those who had food or money with which to buy it to share their material blessings with the less fortunate. This resulted in what came to be known as the dole, a noble effort to save the lives of the needy but one which nevertheless did much to break the morale of the people. Gradually, however, men are going back to work. Jobs are being opened both through the government and through private industry. Dinner pails are again full.

America can be thankful today that it is at peace, that the people are well fed, and that this remains a healthy nation, both physically and spiritually. America indeed has much to be thankful for today.

Cotton Farmers Receive Additional Lot of Tax Exemption Certificates

Cotton farmers of this county who have an allotment basis of 1830 pounds or more have received an additional allotment of tax exemption certificates. County Agent C. Metz Heald has announced.

Those producers having an allotment basis of 2,400 pounds or above received 20 per cent additional certificates, which is half as much as they received in the original issue.

COLLECTOR TO AID SCHOOL IN TAX MATTERS

Rex Reagan yesterday began his duties in the Cisco school board office to aid in working out delinquent school tax problems.

He recently was employed by the school board of the Cisco Independent district to aid in the adjustment and collection of delinquent taxes and began the work immediately.

"Behind every delinquent tax there is a problem," Reagan said yesterday. If there weren't, there would not be any delinquent taxes. "It is my job to help the school board and the property owners in solving those problems to their mutual benefit."

He pointed out that there is a delinquency on known property of $60,000. He hoped to work out a method for collecting this amount.

Reagan came to Cisco highly recommended by other school boards for which he had solved similar problems.

MANY DIE IN HOT FIGHTING WITH REBELS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 27 — The widespread rebellion against the government of President Getulio Vargas appeared tonight to have been crushed following bloody fighting in this city in which from 100 to 250 soldiers were killed.

Authorities charged communists inspired the army revolt here as they did in the north.

Silo Meireles, a former army lieutenant and follower of Prestes in the later five years of exile in Montevideo, Buenos Aires and Russia was said to have led at Natal and Pernambuco.

The fashionable residential section was turned into a battlefield as columns of the federal troops marched at double time along the streets and then deployed to snelter to open with rifle fire against the rebels.

Reinforcements could be observed coming around the mountain, partly obscured by mist.

The fighting was vicious. The rattle of machine guns and rifle fire was interspersed by heavier explosions of shells and bombs. Four planes circled over the barracks. A heat near them was marked by a spout of smoke and debris.

ROOSEVELT TO SEEK BILLION TO AID NEEDY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 — President Roosevelt will ask congress to appropriate only $1,000,000,000 next session for direct relief in the next fiscal year, Chairman James Buchanan of the house appropriations commission predicted today.

Buchanan's statement was made on his return here from a Warm Springs conference with President Roosevelt.

Buchanan, who will steer the next appropriations bills through congress, said he will: Attempt to balance the ordinary budget.

Continue the CCC camp; Accept a $500,000,000 appropriation for public works; Oppose any new funds for the unemployed except on a direct relief basis.

Buchanan said he hoped the next ordinary budget to be held around $5,000,000,000. He hoped only half the $4,000,000,000 for direct relief would have to be spent during the present fiscal year.

The slim Texas chairman said he thought the only serious danger in the way of partially balancing the ordinary budget would be the question of the bonus. Buchanan's remark followed by only a few hours a statement by Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., that "the bonus situation is unchanged."

Loboes to Battle Abilene Eagles at 2:30

TRADITION TO PLAY PART IN GRID TUSSLE

Coach Dexter Shelley's Cisco Loboes will meet the Abilene Eagles in their annual Thanksgiving Day game at the Eagle stadium in Abilene this afternoon at 2:30.

Cisco fans will postpone their party dinners until the evening in order to attend the game and in the hope of eating roast Eagle instead of turkey.

The largest crowd to see the Loboes in action this season is due to pass through the gates of the Eagle stadium for the contest.

There is one other game in the district—Agar at Brookside and at 7:30 the Lobo-Eagle tilt appears in the letter.

Tradition Class Part.
Tradition will play a big part in the game today. The Loboes and the Eagles are old-time enemies, their feud having started in 1922 when Abilene won the state championship and having flared brilliantly and often since that time.

The Loboes have won only one game and tied one in the district this season, while Abilene has fared considerably better. But a win over the Eagles would give Cisco victories in the two biggest games of the year and would mean that the boys on the Lobo squad could hang up their helmets tonight upon a successful season.

Style to Start.
Coach Dexter Shelley has announced that the lineup will be the same as that which started the Children's game last week, except that Stone, out because of a leg injury, will be on the field for the opening kickoff.

Abilene is expected to start about the same team against the Loboes that the Eagles used in defeating Eastland last week.

The Eagles will outweigh the Loboes heavily and will have a considerable better reserve to draw from, but the Cisemans are determined to battle it out with them to the finish, using all their power, speed, and discipline to win.

Coach Shelley has reported the Cisemans to be in excellent spirits for the contest.

The Lineups.
Following are the probable starting lineups:

Abilene	Position	Cisco
Campbell	Left Guard	Merritt
Jones	Center	One
Bates	Right Guard	Rainbolt
Albrook	Right Tackle	Barnes
Dodd	Right End	Wende
Coach	Quarter	Stansbury
Meyer	Left Half	Ryloe
Calhoun	Right Half	Bouvier
Barnes	Full	Wood

BIG DAM CHATTER

Coach Dexter Shelley has asked this column to carry a personal message from him and the Loboes to every football fan in Cisco.

"Please ask them to come out to Abilene in the game," he said "and let the team all the support they can."

Although he had little to say of the game against Children's last week, he showed great disappointment at the small crowd that turned out for the game. "We'll need a lot of fans out for this game," he said.

The crowd that turned out for the game last Friday was disappointing. No team could play football with as little support as was given the Loboes last week. That statement doesn't come from the coach, for he is the kind who will keep on trying. It comes from this column who, as a fan and a writer, would like to see the Loboes come back with a victory over the Eagles.

Maybe you don't know much about coaches, but this Dexter Shelley and his assistant, Clyde Van Sickle, are about the grandest fellows on the field or anywhere else, that you ever met.

This is Shelley's third year in Cisco. He has had a streak of tough breaks—mostly of material, light material injuries, one point losses, almost anything to break a coach's spirit. But through it all he has kept trying, and he deserves a good break.

There is nothing in the world that would please him more than to come off the field this evening with a victory over Abilene. He deserves a break. Why not give it to him?

What if you do have to leave a Thanksgiving dinner? The turkey will keep until evening. This column, for one, will be in the stadium when the opening whistle blows, and will be looking for the rest of you fans.

Come on, everybody, let's give Shelley and his Loboes a break. Let's show them that we're for them and there's still some spirit left in Cisco.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Pullig and daughter, Virginia of Gorman, spent Sunday here with Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Powers and son, Jack. Jay Malby of Olney came in Tuesday for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Malby. The many friends of Mrs. Roy Rushing and her sister, Mrs. E. B. Stewart will be glad to know they are both recovering nicely at McCleary sanitarium, Excelsior Spring, Mo., and will soon be able to return to their homes. Mrs. Stewart lives at Cromwell, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Braag and little son, Charles, were among the large number who went to Gorman Wednesday night to see the picture "Freckles". Sam Powers and his brother, Wiley Powers and son, Jack drove over to DeLeon on business Saturday.

Miss Edith Creighton was called to her home at Strawn Friday, on account of the illness of her mother who had an attack of appendicitis. Her mother was treated at the West Texas Clinic hospital at Ranger and it was found that an operation would not be necessary. She came back with Miss Creighton Monday morning and will stay for Thanksgiving.

A special meeting of Desdemona Eastern Star Chapter was held Friday night at which time the degrees of the order were conferred on Mrs. Orla Rushing. After the initiation ceremonies the members and the visitor were invited downstairs to the banquet room where the hostesses—Mrs. A. C. Robert, Mrs. J. H. Jackson and Mrs. Arnold Anderson, served delicious cake and coffee. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Krapf, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ragland and Mrs. Roy Ashburn, Gifford Area, I. N. Williams, M. P. Williams, Lulu Rushing, Orla Rushing, Arnold Anderson, W. C. Bedford, Mattie Henry, J. H. Jackson, Gid Tarpley, C. W. Malby, A. C. Robert, J. E. Heeter, G. S. Bruce and Fred Weider.

Friday afternoon eighteen automobiles loaded with Desdemona people went to Putnam to see the "Porkers" play the Putnam football team. The Porkers won the game by a score of 19 to 0. With only one more game to play this season the Desdemona team has won every game the record being as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Team Name, Score. Rows include Desdemona 19-Rising Star 0, Desdemona 12-Comanche 0, Desdemona 34-Comyn 0, Desdemona 32-Gustine 0, Desdemona 13-Granbury 0, Desdemona 12-Strawn 0, Desdemona 44-Comyn 0, Desdemona 19-Putnam 0. Total 218.

This is a splendid record and Desdemona football fans felt quite proud of the "Porkers" and their coach, Bill White. We may not have all the names of the players but the following ones are on the team: Walker Henry, Albert Clark, Glen Sparkman, Jesse Clark, A. L. Brown, Carl Robert, Bill Adams, and Anderson, Bergen Whitte, Nalton Hanson, Hobert Hillard, and Clarence Roberts. The next game will be played at Gorman and we predict continued success.

Mitch Bailey and family moved on Tuesday of last week into their new home which was built on the site of their former home which was a two story structure known as the "Twin Oaks" hotel during boom days. The Bailey family lived on the Herrington farm during the time the hotel was being torn down and the new home built.

T. H. Key and sons recently bought from Mrs. A. C. Brown the brick store building known as the First National bank building. Mr. Key and his sons will have a new roof put on the building and many other improvements made and will then move their grocery store into it.

Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Williams drove over to Ranger on business Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Clay Ende of Kilgore were guests of his mother, Mrs. Mollie Ende, Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Mattie Henry assisted by her mother Mrs. John Mendenhall entertained the Methodist Missionary Society very delightfully Thursday afternoon. The meeting was called to order by the president Mrs. Charles Lee who led the devotional after which the minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. S. E. Snodgrass. Officers were then elected for the coming year and will be installed the last of December after which the list will be published. The meeting was then closed and the hostess led in some contests that were quite interesting. A special guest was Mrs. P. M. Kuykendall of Ranger who had come down to visit old friends and was invited to the meeting but stayed only a short time as she had to visit at several places. Mrs. Henry served a salad on lettuce and date loaf with caramel sauce, and coffee. Favors were Thanksgiving turkeys with tiny baskets of candy and nuts. Those present were Miss Mollie O'Rear and Misses Charles Lee, W. H. Whitworth, G. S. Bruce, C. O. Gray, Tom Nabers, S. E. Snodgrass, W. C. Bedford, Joe Gibson, E. M. Dalley (wife of the new pastor), P. M. Kuykendall of Ranger, and the hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. George Key and little son, left Sunday for their home at Henri, Calif., after a delightful visit of two weeks with relatives. Congratulations and good wishes are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lee Anderson who were married Sunday. The bride was Miss Margaret Moore, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Moore, and a member of the senior class of Desdemona high school. The groom is the son of Mrs. Sallie Huffman and is an employe of the Rudco Gasoline company. Both the bride and groom are very popular young people.

Rev. H. N. Baldere conducted funeral services at the Baptist church Saturday afternoon over the remains of Jim Bowlin who had been accidentally drowned in southeast Texas on Thursday. The deceased and his family lived here during boom days and he was an employe of the Humble company. He and his wife were members of the Baptist church and he was a member of the Masonic lodge and she was a member of the Eastern Star chapter. Their many friends were grieved to hear of his death and extend sympathy to the sorrowing relatives. The remains were brought here to be buried by the side of a small son who died here several years ago. Besides the family who came with the body, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Drake and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

"WEDNESDAY OF THE CATS"
 IN FLANDERS, FOR MANY YEARS IT WAS THE CUSTOM TO THROW CATS FROM THE TOP OF A LOFTY TOWER ON ONE DAY OF EACH YEAR. THE ANIMALS WERE THOUGHT TO HARBOR EVIL SPIRITS.

A FREAK OF NATURE, THE "NEW DAWN" ROSE, WAS THE FIRST PLANT PATENTED UNDER THE RECENT PLANT PATENT ACT. IT WAS FOUND GROWING AMONG A GROUP OF VAN FLEET ROSES.

A BREED OF HENS IN MANCHURIA LAYS QUARTER-POUND EGGS!

IN ancient times, cats were regarded as sacred animals, and, as such, enjoyed a high position in the world; but slowly the tide turned, and they came to be associated with evil. The "Wednesday of the Cats" was established by Baldwin III, Count of Flanders, and always came during the second week of Lent.

main close to the Mediterranean they would not be handicapped as their bases would be close by. Because of this and because France's traditional policy is one of defense, proponents of this type of craft point out that they would meet every requirement.

Each of these units would be capable of high speed. Each would be equipped with two torpedo tubes and would be excellent for scouting and detective work and could rain havoc on slow, heavy cruisers.

Many experts point out that there is no reason for submarines of the Surcouf type. Despite the 13,000-mile cruising radius, the 14 torpedo tubes and the seaplane she carries, the Surcouf's size makes her an easy target for enemy planes or ships, especially the German vestpocket units as the maximum speed when not immersed is only 19 knots.

FRENCH STUDY MIDGET TYPES OF SUBMARINE

By JOSEPH D. RAVOTTO
 United States Staff Correspondent
 PARIS, Nov. 27. — The midget or vestpocket cruisers and torpedo boats which have been so successfully adopted by Germany have started the French wondering whether the idea could not be applied to underwater craft as well.

Far from building a navy on the same lines of that of 1914, the Germans are busy putting together one that is radically different, paying greatest stress to speed and flexibility. Germany started the world in 1930 with its vestpocket cruisers of 10,000 tons. Two are completed and two others are being constructed.

This year Germany again sprung a surprise by introducing the vestpocket torpedo boats, also known as flying boats or "death boats." They have a displacement of 200 tons and are capable of a speed of 65 miles an hour.

Many Match German Units
 Ever since Germany renounced the Versailles treaty and was given an official whitewash by the British Admiralty in connection with its future navy, France has become more determined than ever to maintain naval superiority over its traditional enemy. Consequently France is seriously considering revising the building program drastically to match the new German units.

Since France is primarily interested in a navy for defensive, it naturally favors the submarine. At present France possesses 66 of them, including the giant Surcouf, the world's largest submersible craft with displacement of 2,880 tons. The other 65 units include 35 of 1,500 tons and 30 of 600 tons.

France's present building program calls for four units of 1,500 tons and four of 600 tons. However, it is seriously considering revising the program to include a number of units of between 200 and 250 tons to match the German vestpocket types.

These submarines would be known as "passe-partout," which translates "pass everywhere." As their names imply, these midget units would be able to go everywhere. They could approach bases and ports of the enemy practically undetected and slip away at fast speed.

Cruising Radius Limited
 Due to their size they would be unable to take on much fuel, ammunition or stock of any kind. Furthermore their cruising radius would be limited. However, since they would be built primarily to re-

Lovely DANA WESTBROOK, born and reared abroad, comes to America, after the death of her parents, to make her home with a grandmother whom she has never seen.

Years before, Dana's mother eloped with young Westbrooke, leaving her husband and an infant daughter, NANCY WALLACE. After the divorce, she married Westbrooke and a year later their daughter, Dana, was born.

When Dana arrives at the old southern home, she is welcomed cordially by her great aunt, MISS ELLEN CAREW, but is coldly received by her grandmother and her sister.

CHAPTER VII

SARAH, her leathery black face wearing a doubtful expression brought the message.

"Your grandmother wants to see you, Miss Dana. In her room. Danno what of Miss wants, but I see it's something 'upstairs'. I kin see 'em tellin' her to look in her eye."

Nancy glanced up. "It wouldn't surprise me if Sarah's hunch isn't a good one," she commented. "It's peculiar since she wants you to come to her room."

Both girls were on the porch. Nancy swishing lazily in the worn hammock, Dana sitting nearby.

"What difference does the room make?" Dana asked curiously.

"It's an awe-inspiring place—that room," Nancy informed her. "Wait until you see it. Furnished with antiques that took a prize at an exposition once in the old days when the family treasury overflowed. Grandmother has hung onto them. I've an idea she feels like a queen restored to her throne when she closes the door of that room behind her. All the drat realities of life are shut out. It's an audience you're being granted. Wait and see!"

"Ridiculous," Dana thought, making her way up the stairs. She knocked hesitantly, the picture Nancy had evoked in her mind.

When her grandmother's "Come in," admitted her, Dana stood for a moment startled by the accuracy of Nancy's description.

Seated in a high-backed straight chair, her head raised imperiously, Grandmother Cameron did give the impression of royalty conferring favors. "Sit down, please, Dana," she said.

DANA took a seat, glancing about the large bedroom, filled with evidences of past magnificence. The massive bed was elaborately inlaid, and canopied in faded blue damask. The dresser and wardrobe were of the same design.

Yes, truly the aged woman could achieve here the lady-of-the-house feeling, forgetting the shabbiness so apparent in other parts of her home, the petty problems and economies that must be so distasteful.

"The dresses have come," Mrs. Cameron said slowly. "Ellen and I drove to town for them."

"Oh," Dana began impulsively—"that's why Nancy and I were wondering why they didn't come." She stopped in embarrassment.

"I never have believed in accepting things from tradespeople unless I am sure my instructions have been carried out. But the dresses are as they should be so we brought them home."

Dana did not reply, wondering if her own constraint. She wished Dana's hand the orchids to her shoulder. Her eyes were bright with happiness.

she could be natural with her grandmother.

"I was gratified, Dana," Mrs. Cameron went on, "when you asked Ronald Moore to receive with you. Nancy seems to dislike him because his father happened to have the ability to make and keep a fortune. The older I grow, the more I believe money is essential as an armor of protection against the irritations of life."

Dana was thinking. "She wants Nancy and me to marry rich men. Well, why doesn't she come right out in the open and say so?"

"It's absurd to think a person can't be fine and worth-while because they have money," Mrs. Cameron said, her eyes fixed appraisingly on her granddaughter. "Don't you agree with me?"

"Of course," Dana answered. "Lots of times people who have money are nicer, because they've been given the chance to cultivate their minds and improve their personalities." She expressed this conviction simply.

MRS. CAMERON nodded approval. "I have always said it was just as easy to love a rich man as a poor one. And how different your life will be if you choose a rich one."

"I shouldn't think money would make as much difference as some other things, though," Dana de-

Nancy bounded from the swing. "Why, how could they? I've been here all morning—oh, I see, Grandmother had them. Are they all right?"

"I suppose so," Dana said slowly. "I haven't tried mine on yet."

Nancy smiled. "Wasn't I right! The queen in her sitting room, counting the empty places in her money box and dealing out favors—for a price!"

Dana smiled, a little ruefully. Nancy did know her grandmother rather well. All the sweetness and kindness seemed to have been burned out of Grandmother Cameron with only bitterness and pride left. Yet, somehow, there was something tragic and pathetic about her.

NANCY had put on the new dress. Downstairs she could hear sounds of preparation for the party which added to her excitement. Her dark eyes glowed and her hands trembled as she lifted the delicate cloud of white over her head.

There, it was on—slipping down over her slender young body like a sheath, flaring out in stiff and smart lines falling to the floor. Warm color splashed Nancy's cheeks as she stared at herself in the mirror.

She thought happily. "Well, I'm improved! Nobody could possibly deny that. If I could only wear clothes like this all the time, I might have a chance—" she broke off, unwilling to complete the thought.

Tonight Ronnie would see her in something beside a makeshift tennis outfit or that old rag of an organdy she'd been wearing forever and anon.

"I'm just a goose," Nancy told her image in the glass. "It's a case of arrested mental development, I suppose. I might be only 16, the way I feel."

Here, your flowers, honey," Sarah's voice came from the hall. Nancy opened the door.

"My goodness, you look nice!" Sarah's admiration was uncontrolled. "My, my, isn't that a beautiful dress! And when you put dem flowers on—"

"Hush the chatter, Sarah, and help me with this string," Nancy said. Her voice showed that she was pleased.

It would have been dreadful if Ted Stansbury had forgotten flowers, but he had not. Here they were!

The top of the box came off and the tissue paper parted. "Roses," Nancy said slowly. Of course roses were nice. But this dress seemed to require some particular goodness. Nancy lifted the pink buds and secured them to her shoulder. Ridiculous to be disappointed.

"Miss Dana got some flowers, too," Sarah announced.

"Uhm," said Nancy, studying the effect of the shoulder bouquet in the mirror. She gathered up the lovely lengths of her new dress and went down the hall to Dana's room.

Secretly waiting for her knock to be answered, Nancy hung the door wide. Dana was standing before a long mirror. Her slender young arms were lifted as she pinned a bouquet of vivid orchids to her shoulder. Clouds of white swirled about her slender figure. Her eyes were bright with happiness. A smile parted her lips.

The smile that had curved Nancy's own mouth a moment before was gone. She stood in the doorway, surveying her sister. She thought bitterly. "What's the use of having a new dress? Dana's beautiful. I've never seen anyone as beautiful as she."

After the death of her parents, lovely DANA WESTBROOK, the child of her mother's second marriage, comes to America to live with her grandmother, Mrs. WILLIAM CAMERON.

Dana's half-sister, NANCY WALLACE, feels bitter toward her.

Mrs. Cameron decides to introduce Dana to society with a party. Hoping rich RONALD MOORE will become seriously interested.

Dana, meanwhile, has met and become attracted to young DR. SCOTT STANLEY, Nancy, who masks her love for Ronnie behind an antagonistic attitude, dresses happily for the party. Her happiness fades when she sees Dana, radiant and beautiful in a twin frock.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY. CHAPTER VIII

THE two girls faced each other. Dana said, "Oh, Nancy, I've never seen you look so sweet!"

Nancy, still standing in the doorway, hesitated. Then she said brusquely, "Cut the compliments. I suppose you haven't looked at yourself?"

"Do you like me, Nancy?" The question was anxious.

The other girl's eyes narrowed appraisingly, taking in Dana's beauty. Yes, Grandmother had done a darn good job. If knocking Ronnie Moore cold with beauty would win a proposal from him, the trick was done.

"Well, what do you think?" Nancy asked, avoiding a direct answer to her sister's question. "It's a nice dress all right—on you."

"Yours is exactly like it."

"Oh, I know. I'm not complaining about the dress. If it had an other face and figure inside it, the dress would probably make a hit."

Nancy's voice was dry and mechanical, but her grandmother had turned thumbs down on the suggestion—so vehemently Dana had been surprised.

"Scott Stanley's been away so long, he's almost a stranger here," Mrs. Cameron had said. "He has a long way to go if he's going to amount to anything as a doctor. Besides I can't invite every Tom, Dick and Harry in this town."

That had been that. Still it was going to be a lovely party.

Dana touched the orchids on her shoulder caressingly. Her first or child, it was thrilling to be wearing them. She thought of Ronnie with a little glow at her heart.

DANA, whirling from the arms of one partner to another, felt she was moving in a dream. This was not Paris, where the social life of her school friends had been supervised so rigidly. Nor was it like those parties, tinged by Bohemianism, in which her father had participated occasionally after her mother's death—parties from which Dana had been carefully excluded.

"Good gal," Scott said, crushing her hands in his. He stared down into Dana's laughing, eager face.

Everything here was bright, cheerful, colorful and informal. Girls and boys of Dana's own age, laughing, talking, almost drowning out the band's playing at times. They were all the "right young people," her grandmother had made plain. They all "belonged." Their fathers, or uncles or cousins had memberships in the Country Club.

Moving about as she had in her childhood, always living in different houses, Dana had given little thought to such things as clubs. Here in this southern city, they evidently counted for a great deal.

Grandmother had said: "Ronnie's only 21. But he has his own membership in the Country Club. He is a member of The Maskers, and if you play your cards right will mean another big party for you. He belongs to the College Club, and a smart dinner group."

It was funny for Grandmother to be so interested in the social activities of another generation, but there wasn't a thing that was social that she missed.

Evidently Dana was playing her cards right. Whenever she whirled into the south room where Mrs. Cameron sat surrounded by contented portlies Dana met her grandmother's pleased smile.

"The girl can't get two steps that Ronnie Moore doesn't cut in," whispered one dowager, whose eyes were acid as they rested on Dana. "There's something about foreign girls, especially French girls, that men can't resist. What chances have our daughters who aren't trained in all those foreign tricks?"

"I guess she has him hooked," whispered another mother. "But if she hasn't, she'll find out she owes all this popularity to him. If he drops her, let her look out!"

(Ronnie was pleading with Dana, "I can't talk to you at all. I get half way through a sentence and somebody taps me on the shoulder. It would take hours for me to tell you all I really want to say. Oh, Dana, how beautiful you are!")

He held her closer. "Will you dance to the door with me and then step out on that side porch for a breath of air?"

"Should I?" Dana asked.

"It's a good old American custom," Ronnie said.

"Then all right," Dana agreed, impulsively.

The porch was cool, dim, vine-shaded. "Perfect," Ronnie said softly. Dana laughed. "Almost perfect. I know it doesn't sound romantic, Ronnie, but I'm frightfully thirsty."

"Just as romantic as a beer," Ronnie said. "Remember what I told Omar, the poet, said about a loaf of bread, a jug of wine and a girl singing in the wilderness? Well, I'll get the wine or rather punch. Here are the vines which must do for the wilderness. And then?"

"I can't sing, though," objected the practical Dana.

She watched him, silhouetted in the light for a moment before the door closed behind him. Ronnie was awfully nice, awfully good looking and of course awfully rich. He was probably an awful dirt, too, like the young doctor who had said such flattering things. It was just an old southern custom, saving things to please people, and then forgetting you had said them. Like the Scott Stanley who had boasted he'd come to her party, invited or not.

A LOW whistle startled the girl. It was followed by a second, louder whistle.

Dana got to her feet and stepped from behind the concealing vines. Standing near the old fountain was a tall figure. How could Ronnie have reached the garden—

But of course it wasn't Ronnie. It was that outrageous young doctor! Laughing softly, Dana picked up her long skirt and ran down the steps into the garden.

"Good gal," Scott said, crushing her hands in his. He stared down into Dana's laughing, eager face.

Only a short while ago Ronnie had said "How beautiful you are." Somehow, Dana, this hadn't the same sound. "I'm awfully sorry about the invitation," she told him.

"I didn't need an invitation to jump a wall!" Scott laughed.

"I don't know what they might think of me. What if my grandmother—"

"And Ronnie!" Scott prompted. "It wasn't very nice to run off and leave him," Dana argued.

"Not very nice, but necessary," Scott rejoined. "You must have known that if you hadn't I'd have come after you. I've been here nearly an hour, wondering how I was to manage it. Then you and Ronnie came out on the porch and the very thing disappeared."

"But he only went for a moment," Dana said. "He'll be back. There he is now."

"Let's duck," Scott whispered. Dana found herself clinging to his hand, running with him. At the end of the garden, the brick walk was illumined with moonlight, but a tree threw an old bench in shadow.

"I haven't the slightest idea why I came," Dana said.

"I have," Scott answered. "I brought you! I had to try to up my mind about you."

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

AFTER his first proud debut the noble Thanksgiving bird still has several leading roles left to play before he makes his positive final appearance in soup.

To keep your turkey good to the last sliver, you must take care that it doesn't dry out. Cover snugly with heavy waxed paper to exclude dry air and place on next to the bottom shelf of the refrigerator. Thus the meat will remain moist and flavorful as long as there's any left.

If you're planning to have guests for Sunday night supper right after Thanksgiving, and it's a splendid time to entertain, make up an attractive cold platter of alternating dark and white slices before anybody has a chance to get to the cupboard on Thanksgiving evening.

Turkey a la King
For the meals between, use up the small pieces and slivers of meat in rechauffees and salads. For turkey au gratin, make a medium white sauce, add chopped fowl and turn into a buttered baking dish. Cover with coarse crumbs and bake in a hot oven until crumbs are brown.

Turkey a la king can be made at the table in a chafing dish or made in the kitchen and kept hot over hot water.

There are various turkey salads, jellied or hot as suits your needs and tastes. A combination of peas, celery and diced turkey is a good substantial luncheon salad.

CANADA WILL AVOID COSTLY WHEAT POLICY

CITAWA, Ont., Nov. 27—A government sub-committee composed of three cabinet members, charged with the task of surveying the whole Canadian wheat situation, is developing a new wheat policy for Canada. It is learned here.

The sub-committee consists of Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Finance; Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture.

A preliminary survey of the committee has revealed that Canada's wheat carry-over now stands at approximately 215,000,000 bushels with the new crop placed at about 200,000,000 bushels. Domestic requirements are figured in the neighborhood of 112,000,000 bushels.

Two Policies Considered

The sub-committee is reported to be considering two policies for disposal of Canada's huge wheat holdings. One would be to market it, not at a "fire sale" price, but at a price which would involve a rather heavy loss especially when taken in bulk in place of being spread over six years. The other would be the more gradual liquidation at a higher price, looking to tariff policies opening markets and increasing the export demand. The element of loss would be largely in carrying charges. These the government did not write off but added to the inventory. The carry-over charge is about $2,500,000 a year.

The government, it is understood, is not considering lowering the minimum price fixed by the late Bennett Administration this year at $7 1/2 cents a bushel.

Seek to Avoid Heavy Loss

Those in favor of a policy of getting rid of the surplus, and taking whatever loss may be entailed, point out that this is essential to the reconstruction of the industry and the development of export markets. On the other hand, the public treasury is not in a position to stand any large loss if it is avoidable.

At present, Canada's outlook is the brightest in years compared with the world wheat situation. Ravages of rust and drought in the United States, Argentina and Australia leaves the Dominion the only one of the four principal wheat exporting nations with a carry-over above normal. Present world supplies of wheat are almost 300,000,000 bushels below those of a year ago and crop reports indicate that a further material reduction in supplies may be anticipated before next August.

Canada Expects Exports

Thus, with the rest of the wheat producing countries threatened with shortages, Canada will be the main source of supply for importers during the coming year.

The United States it is estimated, will be forced to import between 35,000,000 and 50,000,000 bushels of high-grade wheat during the current crop year from Canada, and 5,000,000 bushels already have been shipped into bonded mills.

Your School Needs Help! NEEDED $20,000 TODAY

Five years have gone by without you knowing all the hardships confronting your school's financial condition. Your board of trustees, realizing the burden of taxes through conditions affecting your ability to pay, have been very lenient on delinquent tax matters. In fact, lenient to the extent that today more than $60,000.00 or twice the amount of the annual tax levy is past due and outstanding. The seriousness of this condition can readily be seen and reason calls for immediate one hundred percent co-operation in adjusting this local and community problem, which affects our sixteen hundred school children tomorrow, together with the value of your investment today. This condition can be corrected without embarrassing or offending the citizenship and patrons through a co-operative spirit.

The facts involved creating conditions here-in and the adjustment of same, necessitates the employment of one experienced in tax laws, who can efficiently serve the tax payers as well as your school board. For this service we have employed Mr. Rex Ragan to assist Mr. Walker in working out the many difficult problems in tax matters.

Mr. Ragan comes to you highly recommended by tax payers as well as Government authorities, engaging him. A great deal of time, deliberation and thought has been given the matter and we sincerely ask your co-operation, to the extent of your ability. Mr. Ragan's duties are to pursue every available effort to collect the many thousands of dollars on unknown and non-resident property and to assist and work with you in arriving at some definite plan of settlement that will come within the law, giving you the greatest advantage possible. His several years experience in this chosen profession is at your disposal and the board of trustees heartily endorse the introduction of Mr. Ragan, as one trained and experienced and anxious to help you, thereby effecting a harmonious program in a community interest. Sincere co-operation is needed.

YOUR SCHOOL NEEDS HELP NOW. NEEDED $20,000.00 TODAY. In our call for financial assistance today, this month, do what you can. The schools are our own schools. The problem, our problem. Let's work together. An effort on the part of every individual is our wish and hope.

Respectfully submitted for your consideration and approval, by the board of trustees,

This year Chevrolet has two very good reasons for saying, "Thank you, America."

One reason is that people have bought so many Chevrolet cars that production for the year will reach 1,040,000.

And the other reason is that they have placed a record number of orders for new 1936 Chevrolets during the first few weeks they have been on display.

Chevrolet is indeed happy to say, "Thank you, America," and to pledge continued adherence to the manufacturing and service policies which have won and held the friendship of the nation.

NEW RIVALRIES SEEM TO DOOM NAVAL PARLEY

LONDON, Nov. 27.—When the Five-Power naval conference opens here next week, stimulated by Germany's naval rebirth, will play a more dramatic role in the deliberations than the familiar struggle for mastery of the Pacific.

While no new factor has arisen to solve the naval stalemate in the Pacific since Japan proclaimed its demand for naval equality with the United States and Britain more than a year ago, the renaissance of German sea power, disclosed in the past few months, has overturned the naval balance in European waters.

At the end of April, the world was taken aback to hear that Germany had informed Britain that German shipyards were building 12 250-ton submarines, the construction of a single subservible vessel by Germany being strictly forbidden by the Versailles treaty. Less than a month after this news Hitler arose in the Reichstag and offered to limit his country's navy to 35 per cent of British maritime power.

Strategical Advantages Seen

As Germany would be able to concentrate its entire naval force in the North Sea and Baltic, while Britain and France, with their colonial empires, must scatter their warships over the seven seas, the first reaction to Hitler's proposal was that it might yield Germany, at least peacetime equality with the French and British home fleets.

The British government rapidly concluded, however, that it would be wiser to grant Hitler's demand than watch Germany build a navy without hindrance, to a strength possibly exceeding one-third that of Britain's.

The French press thereupon accused Britain of perfidy, recalling that only a few weeks previously Britain, France and Italy had sworn at their Stresa meeting that none would assent to Germany's unilateral repudiation of obligations under Versailles. It quickly dawned on an uneasy French public that at one blow Germany had not merely obtained Britain's approval for freeing itself from the armament shackles of Versailles, but simultaneously had trebled its naval tonnage.

Germany Building Rapidly

The strength of the German navy officially announced this year as 139,190 tons, could be enlarged to 402,595 tons. And as Britain intends to expand its naval forces, which have become the yardstick for Germany, Germany will be permitted a further proportionate increase. Under the new agreement, Germany is reliably stated to be laying down 107,990 tons of new warships this year—more than any naval power has constructed in a single year since the Washington treaty was signed more than 13 years ago.

After the June 18 Anglo-German pact was announced, Britain and Germany continued secretly to negotiate the rate at which Germany would build up to the 35 per cent ratio. Britain hopes, at the London conference, to reconcile France and others with the resurgent German navy. This task will not be easy. France is alarmed and is inclined to come to terms with its traditional rival in the Mediterranean, Italy. With a Franco-Italian naval pact now within the realm of possibility, however, Britain is anxious to prevent a combination of the fleets of those two countries which might seriously challenge its predominance in the Mediterranean.

Italy Upsets Balance

Italy's war in Ethiopia, coupled with Mussolini's creation of a formidable Italian air force, has brought home poignantly to the British Admiralty the realization that, with Italy as a potential, not an actual foe, Britain's long naval strategy in the Mediterranean has been upset. Ever since the World War, the masters of Britain's fleet have looked upon Italy as an ally.

Almost overnight this relation has been reversed.

Should the attempt to conquer Ethiopia succeed, Italy would be straddling Britain's route to India. A hostile Italy along that route would be a living threat to British empire security. Were Italy linked to France in a naval pact with Britain outside, the British position in the Mediterranean might rapidly become untenable.

Since France and Italy under went a far-reaching reconciliation on Jan. 7, when Laval concluded a political accord with Mussolini in Rome, their naval animosity was pushed into the background and its lasting settlement appears possible.

A further move in that direction may emerge from next week's naval conference. But if there is to be a Mediterranean sea power pact, Britain wishes it to be tripartite, including the British fleet, rather than a bilateral Franco-Italian understanding.

Jafsie Ridicules Confession Demand

By United Press

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 27.—Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon of New York exclaimed, "It's ridiculous! It's ridiculous!" when questioned regarding Bruno Hauptmann's demand that he "confess" something in connection with Lindbergh kidnapping trial.

The enigmatic intermediary in the Lindbergh case stopped briefly on one of his trips into New England and was interviewed while getting a shave.

"He (Hauptmann) is appealing for his wife. I mustn't do anything against him. Please don't take that to mean I'm for him. I'm not," Condon said in one of several statements.

Less to the point was his reply, also to a question regarding the meaning of Hauptmann's demand for a confession, that:

"I made a clear distinction in my testimony between identification and description. Identification is mental. It is a human conclusion. Description is purely physical."

Oil Lineup Charge On Landon Spiked

His conversation is clear and shows an analytical mind, used to weighing his subject carefully. He follows a fine man, the Rev. Frank Turner, but should secure the hearty cooperation of his people. His church should respond to his ministry, showing a decided growth through the year. He will be a man of weight in the councils of the community.

Thanksgiving is a time of taking stock of our blessings and being duly thankful. Every human being can find much to be thankful for, most especially in this land of ours which has responded to efforts.

ACTION OVER OIL ORDER IS KEPT SECRET

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Diplomatic secrecy veiled an apparent clash between Italy and the United States over this nation's refusal to allow the tanker Ulysses to sail with a cargo of oil for Italy.

Italian Ambassador Augusto Rosso was believed in informed quarters to have protested to Secretary of State Cordell Hull against the restraining order since the purchase was arranged by the Italian government. Neither the embassy nor the state department would confirm the protest. One official said: "It is to delicate to discuss."

Thanksgiving

(An Editorial)

Following the custom established by the Pilgrim Fathers who came to Plymouth Rock, struggled through a bitter New England winter, worked hard through the short summer, and in the autumn gathered their crops and gave thanks for the meager blessings they had received, the people of the United States today are observing Thanksgiving.

It is altogether fitting that we should pause today and count the blessings, material and otherwise, which have come to us during the year just past, and in giving thanks for them resolve more firmly to use them to the best advantage both to ourselves and to others in the year to come.

In a time when war and rebellion have flamed angrily over the world, America today stands as a great bulwark for peace. This nation, while it deplores the state into which others have fallen to use armed force against one another, nevertheless has taken the attitude that it will never make war upon any other country.

During the depression it was necessary for those who had food or money with which to buy it to share their material blessings with the less fortunate. This resulted in what came to be known as the dole, a noble effort to save the lives of the needy but one which nevertheless did much to break the morale of the people.

Garner Observes 67th Birthday

Somewhere on shipboard crossing the Pacific ocean for home, Vice President John N. Garner celebrated his 67th birthday Nov. 22, and now the trained seals of the press and news gatherers are speculating as to his future. This is the first time that the vice president ever ventured beyond the boundary lines of the republic—unless it was to cross the Rio Grande for hunting and fishing under the flag of Mexico. Now the trained seals of the press are asking if the Texan will step aside for another at the national convention next year. Even a trained seal is able to ask foolish questions and then answer them. The Texan will not be set aside and relegated to private life unless he declares against a second term. President Roosevelt answered the question long ago. He very bluntly said the vice president was his choice as a running mate for a second term.

A remarkable man is this first Texan who ever became vice president of the republic. He has never dissipated. He lives in the open most of the time. He is not a gormand. He is as hard as nails physically speaking and mentally he has been able to hoe his own row from boyhood. His career has been able to hoe his own row from boyhood. His career a representative of his district in the long ago. He had a flare for politics. He was a close student. He was a splendid mixer and he knew men. He carved out a congressional district for himself. He was elected to congress. He served more than 30 years. He was nominated and elected vice president on the ticket with Franklin D. Roosevelt. He is a strict party man. He follows his chief and he follows the Jeffersonian banner. When he is out-voted he bows to the wisdom of the majority. He has a powerful organization in Texas. He is on friendly terms at all times with all the leaders, alleged leaders or near leaders of Texas democracy. His ocean voyage to Japan and the Philippines robbed him of deer hunting for the first time since he was able to handle a gun. Texans will present his name as a candidate for re-nomination. Then his future will be on the knees of the gods.

Place Finland in Hall of Fame

Finland is a very small nation bordering on the Soviet Union. It has a wonderful history. Its people have ever been fearless and lovers of liberty, industry and frugal and ever noted for paying their debts, financial and otherwise. Now a statement of the bank of Finland says this little nation will pay its war debt instalment $250,000 Dec. 15. In World War days, Finland borrowed a few million dollars from the United States. It has never failed to meet the call of the American treasury. Several foreign nations owe war loans to the United States of 12 billion dollars. These nations have not only defaulted in interest payment but their statesmen and financiers advise that the loans never will be repaid. There are thousands of Finns in the United

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Mr. Arthur Walsh, the new assistant administrator of Federal Housing Administration, is about as astonishing a fellow as you're likely to meet.

He can make music with his bare hands. Actually plays tunes with them. Cupping palms and fingers together, he achieves a sort of wind instrument from which he can produce melodies with a sound which is an approximate compromise between a kazoo and a whistle and not unpleasant, either.

At banquets where stuffed shirts were boring everybody stiff with speeches, Mr. Walsh has been known to slip his hands under the table and, quite anonymously, to emit with disturbing audibility such tunes as "Show Me the Way to Go Home" and "How Dry I Am."

New Dealers, accustomed to no end of oddities, agree with awe that this is the darndest thing they ever saw or heard.

Also, Walsh's new appointment is an improvement over most previous top-rank appointments in FHA. He is a protégé of Charles Edison, formerly worked with the Edison laboratories, did some good federal housing work in New Jersey, and more lately has been FHA's deputy administrator in charge of modernization loans.

A RECENT official survey showed 27 federal agencies to have "definite responsibilities in housing." The New Deal has sparred with the housing problem more or less furiously. Housing is the one big thing Roosevelt's intimate friends say he will grapple with in his second administration—if any—and nearly all the outstanding American housing experts are or have been here on the federal payroll or as consultants.

What all those housing people whisper privately to your correspondent almost exactly parallels a letter just received from a former high official who went away to supervise one of the largest non-profit housing experiments now under way anywhere. Let us quote:

"I have just been getting the process of actually putting some houses started. These are supposed to be minimum houses, not luxury homes or even good houses, but minimum decent houses that will stand up for 20 years and house an average family.

"So far, it seems the job can't be done for much less than $6000, which means they will have to rent for $50 a month to carry themselves.

"According to income figures by Brookings, 71 per cent of the families in this country can't afford that much for housing. No wonder there is a housing shortage.

"Owning or renting comes out the same way—housing costs too much."

"I've been over this question of reducing building material costs from one end to the other," continues this expert, "over the labor problem, over the expensive distribution system, everything. It all adds up to some figure and yet you can't make an appreciable cut in it anywhere.

"Mortgage tinkering, housing act, hot air, and everything else cannot make a decent business out of housing at the present state in the arts of production—the present state being about a 1906 period (poorer, by the way, than 1890 construction)."

States. They should be proud of the land of their birth and the willingness of their people to pay their debts contracted years ago when a blanket of blood overhung Europe and the wisest of men predicted that the end of civilization was nearing its finish.

ZONA GALE SHOWS USE OF BIBLE PHRASES IN SPEECH AND WRITING

By ZONA GALE
Author and Playwright
English-speaking peoples are not credited with great imaginativeness. A French or Italian peasant will comment in a figurative fashion on the simplest things: the Irish will speak of a farm as their "wild and windy acres"; the speech of all the East glows with light which makes windows of the ways of words. But the English-speaking people are too likely to call a spade a spade, and a primrose a primrose. Most of the imaginative qualities which our daily speech possesses are derived from the Bible and from Shakespeare, and of the two the Bible yields us, of course, by far the major usage.

In two editorials selected, for example, quite at random in an edition of the New York Times—and on the subject of Italian sanctions and a presidential possibility—there are three statements in Biblical phraseology: "Lifted up a voice"; "heavers of wood and dravones of lamentation"; "my punishment is greater than I can bear"; and to see "darkly."

Many Phrases Not Identified
It is thrilling to recall even a partial list of the expressions of current usage which we owe to the Bible. Many of these we do not readily identify with their source: "Stars in their courses"; "a man after mine own heart"; "how are the mighty fallen"; "passing the love women"; "thou art the man";

"vine and fig-tree"; "a little cloud like a man's hand"; "a good old age"; "drew a bow at a venture"; "as the sparks fly upward"; "king of terrors"; "the skin of my teeth"; "eyes to the blind"; "a dinner of herbs"; "neither mill-stone"; "full of works"; "Also 'the way of the transgressor'; 'out of the mouth of babes and sucklings'; 'strife of tongues'; 'green bay tree'; 'how long halt ye between two opinions'; 'bring down my gray hairs in sorrow to the grave'; 'unstable as water'; 'milk and honey'; 'by bread alone'; 'darkness which may be felt'; 'the wife of thy bosom'; 'the mother of all living'; 'apple of his eye'; 'one thing needful'; 'wars and rumors of war'; 'hope deferred'; 'of the earth earthy'; 'idle talk'; 'by evil report and good report'; 'fearfully and wonderfully made'; 'the still small voice'; 'heavers of wood and dravones of lamentation'; 'my punishment is greater than I can bear'; and to see 'darkly.'"

New Testament More Familiar
The majority of these are quoted from the Old Testament, which is not so much read, undoubtedly, as the New; and thus in our usage of New Testament phrases we are more often aware of their Biblical sources.

"Wasted his substance with riotous living"; "unknown God"; "live and move and have our being"; "absent in body but present in spirit"; "a spectacle unto the world and to angels"; "put away childish things"; "decently and in order"; "all things to all men"; "many are called but few are chosen"; "last state of that man"; "pass by on the other side"; "one thing needful"; "whited sepulchres"; "strain at a gnat"; "as having nothing and yet possessing all things"; "swept and garnished"; "vain repetitions"; "and great was the fall of it"; "new wine in old bottles"; "wise as serpents and harmless as doves"; "pearl of great price"; "traditions of the elders"; "wedding garment"; "den of thieves"; "outer darkness"; "preach ye upon the house-tops"; "a faithful friend"; "in season and out of season"; "rod of iron"; "the sound of many waters"; "signs of the times";—and these are but few of the multiple enrichments which our speech and our writing have received from the Bible.

Many Seldom Used
There are many Biblical phrases which one wonders have not been more generally used: as "Blessed shall be thy basket and thy store"; "There is death in the pot"; "How forcible are right words"; "Ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy and faith"; "He that hath knowledge spareth his words"; "And that ye study to be quiet"; "To what purpose is this waste?"; "Say not thou, What is the cause that the former days were better than these? For thou dost not inquire wisely concerning this." Especially is it strange that we have not used: "The driving is like the driving of Jehu...for he driveth furiously."

Two lovely and familiar sentences credited by many to the canonical Scriptures are found in the Apocrypha: "He hath made the small and the great and careth for all alike"; and the perfect inscription, on the facade of the New York

Sale of Christmas Seals Begins Today

AUSTIN, Nov. 27 — One of the state's largest armies since the days of the World War is lining up as the Texas Tuberculosis association and its affiliated groups in all sections of the state prepare for the annual sale of Christmas Seals which opens on Thanksgiving Day. The Christmas Seals, which this year bear the picture of a young girl in a quaint old fashioned costume posting a letter in an early type mail box, are the sole support of the organized fight against tuberculosis.

"The girl of the 1860's never heard of Christmas Seals," Miss Fanny Nichols, state seal sale director, declared. "But she knew about 'consumption.' Tuberculosis still takes 50 per cent more girls than boys between the ages 15 to 24. To help protect our modern girls from this disease the Christmas Seal must continue its program of education and prevention."

More Building In Texas in October

AUSTIN, Nov. 27 — Building permits granted in Texas during October were sharply above those of the corresponding month last year, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Reports from 35 representative Texas cities show aggregate permits of $4,161,796, an increase of 122.5 per cent over October last year, and 104.6 per cent over the preceding month.

Cities showing increases over the two comparable periods were: Abilene, Amarillo, Austin, Beaumont, Brownsville, Brownwood, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Denison, El Paso, Fort Worth, Lubbock, Marshall, Palestine, San Antonio, Tyler, Waco, and Wichita Falls.

An abundance of food, which has been wisely distributed through the past years... an assurance from our president that none will be allowed to suffer, even though it may mean a continuance of the dele, which we admit is not what we would desire... and then aggressive business concerns are beginning to show profits as rewards for past industry... TRADE DAY IS HUGE SUCCESS ON SATURDAY

Hundreds of people jammed the streets here Saturday afternoon in a pre-holiday crowd as Cisco merchants and business firms gave away turkeys in the first of a series of Trades Day events sponsored by the Cisco Daily News and American and Roundup.

The next Trades Day event will be on Saturday Dec. 7, two weeks from the first, it was announced. An even larger crowd is expected to attend the next event than that which flocked to Cisco for the first one.

Merchants of the city were well pleased with the response by people of this trade territory who came to Cisco and the business district to capture the turkeys, which were thrown from a fire truck in front of each participating firm.

Trade Heavier
Trade Saturday indicated that the people came to catch a turkey, a shop, and to take advantage of the special values in merchandise advertised in the Thursday and Friday issues of the Daily News and the American.

The sponsors of the Trades Day feature were gratified not only at the large crowd, but at the manner in which it was carried on, as well. Due to the fact that the police department had offered its cooperation and kept the street where the event was held closed, the turkey throw went forward without any interruption from automobile traffic.

Quick decisions by the judges and the blowing of a whistle prevented any wrestling over turkeys or damage to the birds by contending parties, while the decisions themselves were never questioned. The Daily News and American, on behalf of both the papers as sponsors and the merchants who participated in the event, today express their appreciation to the fire department, the city officials, the judges of the turkey throw, Haywood Cabness as the turkey tosser, the police department, and all others who assisted in making the affair a success.

Judges in the turkey throw were Hal Wagner, Joe Burnam, O. Pass, and Howard Robinson. Firemen Allan Farley and L. E. Robinson assisted at the fire truck, where the throw was held. Police Chief M. L. Perdue and Officers O. Gustafson and Frank Warren aided by keeping the street closed to traffic.

Winners and the firms whose turkeys they captured were the following:

- J. C. Davenport, Eastland, route 2, Moore Drug company.

DESDEMONA

By MRS. W. C. BEDFORD

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Pullig and daughter, Virginia of Gorman, spent Sunday here with Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Powers and son, Jack. Jay Maltby of Olney came in Tuesday for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Maltby. The many friends of Mrs. Roy Rushing and her sister, Mrs. E. B. Stewart will be glad to know they are both recovering nicely at McCleary sanitarium, Excelsior Springs, Mo., and will soon be able to return to their homes. Mrs. Stewart lives at Cromwell, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Sparks accompanied by Miss Ruby Harbin and Miss Edith Creighton drove over to Gorman Wednesday night and went to the picture show to see the picture "Freckles".

Mr. and Mrs. Hallmark and little son, Gail, who live north of town were guests of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Key, Saturday night, and of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Key on Sunday.

Mrs. P. M. Kuykendall of Ranger came down Thursday afternoon and visited Miss Mollie O'Rear, Mrs. Annie Daniels, Mrs. S. E. Snodgrass and Mrs. J. E. Heeter. She also went over to the home of Mrs. Mendenhall and Mrs. Mattie Henry who were hostesses for the Methodist Missionary society during the years Mrs. Kuykendall lived here she was one of the most faithful members of the Missionary Society and the members were delighted to see her again.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Bragg and little son, Charles, were among the large number who went to Gorman Wednesday night to see the picture "Freckles". Sam Powers and his brother, Wiley Powers and son, Jack drove over to DeLeon on business Saturday.

Miss Edith Creighton was called to her home at Strawn Friday, on account of the illness of her mother who had an attack of appendicitis. Her mother was treated at the West Texas Clinic hospital at Ranger and it was found that an operation would not be necessary. She came back with Miss Creighton Monday morning and will stay for Thanksgiving.

A special meeting of Desdemona Eastern Star Chapter was held Friday night at which time the degrees of the order were conferred on Mrs. Orla Rushing. After the initiation ceremonies the members and one visitor were invited downstairs to the banquet room where the hostesses—Mrs. A. C. Robert, Mrs. J. H. Jackson and Mrs. Arnold Anderson, served delicious cake and coffee. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Krapf, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ragland and Mrs. Mmes Roy Ashburn, Gifford Acree, I. N. Williams, M. P. Williams, Lulu Rushing, Orla Rushing, Arnold Anderson, W. C. Bedford, Mattie Henry, J. H. Jackson, Gid Tarpley, C. W. Maltby, A. C. Robert, J. E. Heeter, G. S. Bruce and Fred Welde.

Friday afternoon eighteen automobiles loaded with Desdemona people went to Putnam to see the "Porkers" play the Putnam football team. The Porkers won the game by a score of 19 to 0. With only one more game to play this season the Desdemona team has won every game the record being as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Team Name, Score. Rows include Desdemona 19-Rising Star 0, Desdemona 33-Moran 0, Desdemona 12-Comanche 0, Desdemona 34-Comyn 0, Desdemona 32-Gustine 0, Desdemona 13-Granbury 0, Desdemona 12-Strawn 0, Desdemona 44-Comyn 0, Desdemona 19-Putnam 0. Total 218 6.

This is a splendid record and Desdemona football fans fell quite proud of the players and their coach, Bill White. We may not have all the names of the players but the following ones are on the team: Walker Henry, Albert Clark, Glen Sparkman, Jesse Clark, A. L. Brown, Carl Robert, Bill Adams and Anderson, Bergen Whitte, Nailon Hanson, Hobert Hillard, and Clarence Roberts. The next game will be played at Gorman and we predict continued success.

Mitch Bailey and family moved on Tuesday of last week into their new home which was built on the site of their former home which was a two story structure known as the "Twin Oaks" hotel during boom days. The Bailey family lived on the Herrington farm during the time the hotel was being torn down and the new home built.

T. H. Key and sons recently bought from Mrs. A. C. Brown the brick store building known as the First National bank building. Mr. Key and his sons will have a new roof put on the building and many other improvements made and will then move their grocery store into it.

Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Williams drove up to Ranger on business Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Clay Ende of Kilgore were guests of his mother, Mrs. Mollie Ende, Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Mattie Henry assisted by her mother, Mrs. John Mendenhall entertained the Methodist Missionary Society very delightfully Thursday afternoon. The meeting was called to order by the president Mrs. Charles Lee who led the devotional after which the minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. S. E. Snodgrass. Officers were then elected for the coming year and will be installed the last of December after which the list will be published. The meeting was then closed and the hostess led in some contests that were quite interesting. A special guest was Mrs. P. M. Kuykendall of Ranger who had come down to visit old friends and was invited to the meeting but stayed only a short time as she had to visit at several places. Mrs. Henry served a salad on lettuce and date loaf with caramel sauce, and coffee. Favors were Thanksgiving turkeys with tiny baskets of candy and nuts. Those present were Miss Mollie O'Rear and Mmes. Charles Lee, W. H. Whitworth, G. S. Bruce, C. O. Bragg, Tom Nabers, S. E. Snodgrass, W. C. Bedford, Joe Gibson, E. M. Daisey, (wife of the new pastor), P. M. Kuykendall of Ranger, and the hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. George Key and little son, left Sunday for their home at Hemet, Calif. after a delightful visit of two weeks with relatives. Congratulations and good wishes are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lee Anderson who were married Sunday. The bride was Miss Margaret Moore, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Moore, and a member of the senior class of Desdemona high school. The groom is the son of Mrs. Sallie Huffman and is an employe of the Radio Gasoline company. Both the bride and groom are very popular young people.

Rev. H. N. Balderee conducted funeral services at the Baptist church Saturday afternoon over the remains of Jim Bowlin who had been accidentally drowned in southeast Texas on Thursday. The deceased and his family lived here during boom days and he was an employe of the Humble company. He and his wife were members of the Baptist church and he was a member of the Masonic lodge and she was a member of the Eastern Star chapter. Their many friends were grieved to hear of his death and extend sympathy to the sorrowing relatives. The remains were brought here to be buried by the side of a small son who died here several years ago. Besides the family who came with the body, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Drake and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McAdoo who were neighbors when they lived here and many others.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

"WEDNESDAY OF THE CATS"
IN FLANDERS, FOR MANY YEARS IT WAS THE CUSTOM TO THROW CATS FROM THE TOP OF A LOFTY TOWER ON ONE DAY OF EACH YEAR. THE ANIMALS WERE THOUGHT TO HARBOR EVIL SPIRITS.

A FREAK OF NATURE, THE "NEW DAWN" ROSE, WAS THE FIRST PLANT PATENTED UNDER THE RECENT PLANT PATENT ACT. IT WAS FOUND GROWING AMONG A GROUP OF VAN FLEET ROSES.

A BREED OF HENS IN MANCHURIA LAYS QUARTER-POUND EGGS!

IN ancient times, cats were regarded as sacred animals, and, as such, enjoyed a high position in the world; but slowly the tide turned, and they came to be associated with evil. The "Wednesday of the Cats" was established by Baldwin III, Count of Flanders, and always came during the second week of Lent.

main close to the Mediterranean they would not be handicapped as their bases would be close by. Because of this and because France's traditional policy is one of defense, proponents of this type of craft point out that they would meet every requirement.

Each of these units would be capable of high speed. Each would be equipped with two torpedo tubes and would be excellent for scouting and detective work and could rain havoc on slow, heavy cruisers.

Many experts point out that there is no reason for submarines of the Surcouf type. Despite the 13,000-mile cruising radius, the 14 torpedo tubes and the seaplane she carries, the Surcouf's size makes her an easy target for enemy planes or ships, especially the German vest-pocket units as the maximum speed when not immersed is only 19 knots.

FRENCH STUDY MIDGET TYPES OF SUBMARINE

By JOSEPH D. RAVOTTO
United States Staff Correspondent
PARIS, Nov. 27 — The midget or vest-pocket cruisers and torpedo boats which have been so successfully adopted by Germany have started the French wondering whether the idea could not be applied to underwater craft as well.

Far from building a navy on the same lines of that of 1914, the Germans are busily putting together one that is radically different, paying greatest stress to speed and flexibility. Germany started the world in 1930 with its vest-pocket cruisers of 10,000 tons. Two are completed and two others are being constructed.

This year Germany again sprung a surprise by introducing the vest-pocket torpedo boats, also known as flying boats or "death boats." They have a displacement of 200 tons and are capable of a speed of 65 miles an hour.

Many Match German Units
Ever since Germany renounced the Versailles treaty and was given an official whitewash by the British Admiralty in connection with its future navy, France has become more determined than ever to maintain naval superiority over its traditional enemy. Consequently, France is seriously considering revising the building program drastically to match the new German units.

Since France is primarily interested in a navy for defensive, it naturally favors the submarine. At present France possesses 66 of them, including the giant Surcouf, the world's largest submarine craft, with displacement of 2,880 tons. The other 65 units include 35 of 1,500 tons and 30 of 600 tons.

France's present building program calls for four units at 1,500 tons and four of 600 tons. However, it is seriously considering revising the program to include a number of units of between 200 and 250 tons to match the German vest-pocket types.

These submarines would be known as "passe-partout," which translated means "pass everywhere." As their names implies, these midget units would be able to go everywhere. They could approach bases and ports of the enemy practically undetected and slip away at fast speed.

Cruising Radius Limited
Due to their size they would be unable to take on much fuel, ammunition or stock of any kind. Furthermore their cruising radius would be limited. However, since they would be built primarily to re-

U. S. EXPORTS OF CHEMICALS ARE SOARING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 — The commerce department disclosed Tuesday a marked increase in exports of chemicals and allied products—important materials in warfare. The purchasers were not announced. The department late last week, in announcing exports to Italy for October, disclosed that the increase in chemical and allied products exports to the Fascist nation had increased only from $138,000 in October, 1934, to $151,995 last month. The increase to Italian Africa, however, was from $52 to $25,865. However, the total of American exports to all nations was sharply up, indicating other nations might be "stocking up." The United States exported more chemicals and allied products during October than in any month during the past several years on the basis of dollar value, the department reported.

NEW SINO-JAP WAR BELIEVED TO BE COMING

Copyright 1935 by United Press. TIENTSIN, Nov. 28 — (Thursday) — Japanese occupation of strategic points in North China was under way today. Meantime the national government of China in Nanking continued defiant and some observers believed a new Sino-Japanese unofficial war was certain. Unofficial report indicated about 15,000 soldiers of the Kwantung army in China is called—had crossed the great wall from bases in Manchukuo and taken up positions on the North China plain. The spokesman in Nanking said General Chiang Kai-shek and his government still was attempting to settle Sino-Japanese issues diplomatically but was preparing for eventual military action if diplomacy fails. That diplomacy will fail unless Nanking yields entirely to the Japanese suggestion that the five North China provinces be autonomous and financially and economically independent was believed certain. Nanking cannot yield without facing rebellion on the part of the anti-Japanese population of the central provinces and hence must make at least a show of armed resistance.

BLANTON TO AID CISCO IN GETTING PARK

Congressman Thomas L. Blanton of Abilene Monday night told Ciscoans and friends that as soon as the Cisco state park project reaches the approved status, "I'll promise you that the first two available CCC camps will go to Cisco and old Fort Griffin."

The congressman made the statement in an address to 100 members of the Cisco Boosters and their friends at a banquet at the Laguna hotel roof garden. Just before he rose to speak, Johnny Cox, president of the organization, read a letter from Wendell W. Mayes, new state parks board chairman, who had been invited to the banquet but was forced to remain in Austin for a board meeting. The telegram said: "Regret inability to be with you tonight but wish for you a most successful meeting. Texas state parks board is anxious to help you in development of your park."

Urges Metropolitan Park
Congressman Blanton urged that Cisco change from the proposed state park to a metropolitan park in order that the city might be able to control it rather than having it controlled from Austin and perhaps have the concessions operated other than as the city would like.

"You'd have had a park if conditions ever which none of us had any control had not occurred," Blanton said. He pointed to the recent business depression and the fact that it had been necessary to spend $100,000,000 for relief in Texas.

"To continue that would mean nothing but bankruptcy," he said. "We were gratified at the president's desire to take men off the dole and put them to work, and give him money to do it. Praises CCC Camps

"The best spent money by the government is that for the CCC camps. It gets the most out of them."

He pointed out that the president had designed 54 more Texas camps than are now in operation, including one for Cisco, but that they had to be abolished "because he couldn't get the manpower to man the camps planned."

Blanton urged that Cisco immediately begin seeking approval of the park project here, promising his aid in securing a camp as soon as one is available.

Turning from discussion of the state park, Congressman Blanton spent the rest of his time speaking upon national defense.

Urges Preparedness
"The United States will be prepared for an attack from any invader but will never spend any money for an attack upon any other nation," he said. "Never by my vote will any American boy be sent across the ocean to fight."

Congressman Blanton recently returned from a congressional national defense commission checkup on the defense of the nation in Hawaii, Panama, and on the west coast.

Before the main address of the evening, Mrs. James Moore was presented in three short readings. The meeting opened with group singing led by Horace Conley. Rev. W. H. Cole, pastor of the First Methodist church, delivered the invocation. Robert L. Maddox and his German band played during the meal.

The meeting was brief, ending before 9:30. Fast service on the part of the hotel aided in moving it forward rapidly. A number of guests from nearby cities were introduced at the meeting.

COLLINS HARDWARE

"HUDDLED" behind a CLOSED DOOR!

Many families "huddle" in one or two rooms, during cold days, around a small open flame heater with windows and connecting doors tightly closed. If you are a "huddler," you are violating one of the most important rules of personal hygiene and good health!

Stagnant air is depressing and fails to produce the stimulating effect of air in motion. Connecting doors left open between adjoining rooms, when the entire house is adequately heated for comfort, provide a natural circulation of pure, warm air from one room to the other. Without adequate circulation air may become as foul and unhealthy as that of the tenement slums, even though the home may be the most beautiful in the neighborhood.

If you heat only one or two rooms at a time . . . if you "huddle" in these rooms with connecting doors tightly closed, sudden temperature changes are unavoidable. Your family goes from an overheated room where the temperature has climbed past the point necessary for comfort, into a cold hall or unheated adjoining room. Then, shivering and chilled, they return to the heated room. This happens many times a day and each time they have unnecessarily subjected themselves to conditions that make them susceptible to highly communicable winter diseases. America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ, finds a fertile field in an inadequately heated and poorly ventilated home.

Don't "huddle" in one or two rooms during the short winter season. . . . Guard the health of your loved ones with adequate heat and proper circulation of pure, warm air in every room in the house.

CANADA WILL AVOID COSTLY WHEAT POLICY

CITAWA, Ont., Nov. 27—A government sub-committee composed of three cabinet members, charged with the task of surveying the whole Canadian wheat situation, is developing a new wheat policy for Canada, it is learned here.

The sub-committee consists of Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Finance; Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture.

A preliminary survey of the committee has revealed that Canada's wheat carry-over now stands at approximately 215,000,000 bushels with the new crop placed at about 260,000,000 bushels. Domestic requirements are figured in the neighborhood of 112,000,000 bushels.

Two Policies Considered
 The sub-committee is reported to be considering two policies for disposal of Canada's huge wheat holdings. One would be to market it, not at a "fire sale" price, but at a price which would involve a rather heavy loss especially when taken in bulk in place of being spread over six years. The other would be the more gradual liquidation at a higher price, looking to tariff policies opening markets and increasing the export demand. The element of loss would be largely in carrying charges. These the government did not write off but added to the inventory. The carry-over charge is about $2,500,000 a year.

The government, it is understood, is not considering lowering the minimum price fixed by the late Bennett Administration this year at 87 1-2 cents a bushel.

Seek to Avoid Heavy Loss
 Those in favor of a policy of getting rid of the surplus, and taking whatever loss may be entailed, point out that this is essential to the reconstruction of the industry and the development of export markets. On the other hand, the public treasury is not in a position to stand any large loss if it is avoidable.

At present, Canada's outlook is the brightest in years compared with the world wheat situation. Ravages of rust and drought in the United States, Argentina and Australia leaves the Dominion the only one of the four principal wheat exporting nations with a carry-over above normal. Present world supplies of wheat are almost 300,000,000 bushels below those of a year ago and crop reports indicate that a further material reduction in supplies may be anticipated before next August.

Canada Expects Exports
 Thus, with the rest of the wheat producing countries threatened with shortages, Canada will be the main source of supply for importers during the coming year.

The United States it is estimated, will be forced to import between 35,000,000 and 50,000,000 bushels of high-grade wheat during the current crop year from Canada, and 5,000,000 bushels already have been shipped into bonded mills.

Your School Needs Help! NEEDED $20,000 TODAY

Five years have gone by without you knowing all the hardships confronting your school's financial condition. Your board of trustees, realizing the burden of taxes through conditions affecting your ability to pay, have been very lenient on delinquent tax matters. In fact, lenient to the extent that today more than $60,000.00 or twice the amount of the annual tax levy is past due and outstanding. The seriousness of this condition can readily be seen and reason calls for immediate one hundred percent co-operation in adjusting this local and community problem, which affects our sixteen hundred school children tomorrow, together with the value of your investment today. This condition can be corrected without embarrassing or offending the citizenship and patrons through a co-operative spirit.

The facts involved creating conditions here-in and the adjustment of same, necessitates the employment of one experienced in tax laws, who can efficiently serve the tax payers as well as your school board. For this service we have employed Mr. Rex Ragan to assist Mr. Walker in working out the many difficult problems in tax matters.

Mr. Ragan comes to you highly recommended by tax payers as well as Government authorities, engaging him. A great deal of time, deliberation and thought has been given the matter and we sincerely ask your co-operation, to the extent of your ability. Mr. Ragan's duties are to pursue every available effort to collect the many thousands of dollars on unknown and non-resident property and to assist and work with you in arriving at some definite plan of settlement that will come within the law, giving you the greatest advantage possible. His several years experience in this chosen profession is at your disposal and the board of trustees heartily endorse the introduction of Mr. Ragan, as one trained and experienced and anxious to help you, thereby effecting a harmonious program in a community interest. Sincere co-operation is needed.

YOUR SCHOOL NEEDS HELP NOW. NEEDED $20,000.00 TODAY. In our call for financial assistance today, this month, do what you can. The schools are our own schools. The problem, our problem. Let's work together. An effort on the part of every individual is our wish and hope.

Respectfully submitted for your consideration and approval, by the board of trustees.

THANK YOU, AMERICA, for more than a Million cars in 1935

This year Chevrolet has two very good reasons for saying, "Thank you, America."
 One reason is that people have bought so many Chevrolet cars that production for the year will reach 1,040,000.
 And the other reason is that they have placed a record number of orders for new

Jasie Ridicules Confession Demand

By United Press
PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 27—Dr. John F. (Jasie) Condon of New York exclaimed, "It's ridiculous! It's ridiculous!" when questioned regarding Bruno Hauptmann's demand that he "confess" something in connection with Lindbergh kidnaping trial.

The enigmatic intermediary in the Lindbergh case stopped briefly on one of his trips into New England and was interviewed while getting a shave.

"He (Hauptmann) is appealing for his wife. I mustn't do anything against him. Please don't take that to mean I'm for him. I'm not," Condon said in one of several statements.

Less to the point was his reply, also to a question regarding the meaning of Hauptmann's demand for a confession, that:
"I made a clear distinction in my testimony between identification and description. Identification is mental. It is a human conclusion.
Description is purely physical."

NEW RIVALRIES SEEM TO DOOM NAVAL PARLEY

LONDON, Nov. 27—When the Five-Power naval conference opens
here next week, stimulated by Germany's naval rebirth, will play a more dramatic role in the deliberations than the familiar struggle
for mastery of the Pacific.

While no new factor has arisen to solve the naval stalemate in the Pacific since Japan proclaimed its demand for naval equality with the United States and Britain more than a year ago, the renaissance of German sea power, disclosed in the past few months, has overturned the naval balance in European waters.
At the end of April, the world
was taken aback to hear that Germany had informed Britain that
German shipyards were building 12
250-ton submarines, the construction of a single submarine vessel
by Germany being strictly forbidden by the Versailles treaty. Less than a month after this news Hitler arose in the Reichstag and offered to limit his country's navy to 35 per cent of British maritime power.

We Are Grateful

We are grateful for life, for light, for health, for strength to do our daily tasks, for tasks to do, for sunset and the evening stars, for the voices of little children, for tender regard for loved ones, for minds to think, to plan, to grow, for our nation, for churches, schools and homes, for courageous men and women, for electricity, telephones, radio and kindred modern miracles, for air to breathe, water to cool fevered lips, fire to warm us, to cook our food and to furnish us power, for the beneficent healing power of nature and its modern aids, for charity, for faith, for hope—for these blessings and a multitude more, we celebrate our Thanksgiving, Oh, Lord.

NEW RIVALRIES SEEM TO DOOM NAVAL PARLEY

LONDON, Nov. 27—When the
Five-Power naval conference opens
here next week, stimulated by Germany's naval rebirth, will play a more dramatic role in the deliberations than the familiar struggle
for mastery of the Pacific.

While no new factor has arisen
to solve the naval stalemate in the Pacific since Japan proclaimed its demand for naval equality with the United States and Britain more than a year ago, the renaissance of German sea power, disclosed in the past few months, has overturned the naval balance in European waters.
At the end of April, the world
was taken aback to hear that Germany had informed Britain that
German shipyards were building 12
250-ton submarines, the construction of a single submarine vessel
by Germany being strictly forbidden by the Versailles treaty. Less than a month after this news Hitler arose in the Reichstag and offered to limit his country's navy to 35 per cent of British maritime power.

Strategic Advantages Seen
As Germany would be able to concentrate its entire naval force in the North Sea and Baltic, while Britain and France, with their colonial empires, must scatter their warships over the seven seas, the first reaction to Hitler's proposal was that it might yield Germany at least peacetime equality with the French and British home fleets.

of possibility, however, Britain anxious to prevent a combination of the fleets of those two countries which might seriously challenge its preponderance in the Mediterranean.

Italy Upsets Balance
Italy's war in Ethiopia, coupled with Mussolini's creation of a formidable Italian air force, has brought home poignantly to the British Admiralty the realization that, with Italy as a potential not an actual foe, Britain's sea-long naval strategy in the Mediterranean has been upset. Ever since the World War, the masters of Britain's fleet have looked upon Italy as an ally.

Almost overnight this relation has been reversed.

Should the attempt to conquer Ethiopia succeed, Italy would be straddling Britain's route to India.
A hostile Italy along that route would be a living threat to British empire security. Were Italy linked to France in a naval pact with Britain outside, the British position in the Mediterranean might rapidly become untenable.

Since France and Italy united went a far-reaching reconciliation on Jan. 7, when Laval concluded a political accord with Mussolini in Rome, their naval animosity was pushed into the background as its lasting settlement appears possible.

A further move in that direction may emerge from next week's naval conference. But if there is to be a Mediterranean sea power pact,
Britain wishes it to be tri-partite, including the British fleet, rather than a bilateral Franco-Italian understanding.

Will Rogers Fund Here Reaches $110

Cisco's contribution to the Will Rogers Memorial fund to date is $110, it was announced last week by Chairman W. J. Leach of the memorial fund committee. Leach said that the group is still at work in the business district and that the campaign for the memorial in the schools of Cisco has not yet been reported. The fund will probably run to about $125, he said. "I don't think we should try to make any outstanding contribution to the Will Rogers Memorial fund," Leach said today, "but I am proud of what we have done and think it speaks well for Cisco."

PLANE FALLS AFTER TAKING OFF AT FIELD

BRECKENRIDGE, Nov. 27—Two aviators, Dorland Sandin and A. E. Eaves, both of Whit, Texas, were killed yesterday afternoon when they crashed a short distance from the municipal airport here in an attempt to take off for home. The plane had been purchased from E. H. Lee of Breckenridge and the men, both in their twenties, were to fly it home. Eye witnesses of the crash said that the fliers had taken off and were circling back toward the field when the motor cut out and the plane crashed. Sandin was the son of Dr. W. S. Sandin of Whit, and Eaves, a relative, who formerly resided in Arkansas, had made his home with the family for some time. A call was received in town for help in getting the men, both badly mangled, out of the plane. A motor car was used to pull the wreckage of the victims. They were removed to a local funeral home.

Vegetable Demand Greater Than Crop

SAN BENITO, Nov. 27—So far this season the vegetable crops have been marked by a scarcity of supplies and a good demand for squashes, peppers, egg plant and tomatoes. Shippers report that the season is from two to three weeks behind that of last year. Growers place the cause of this insect pests. The weevils have destroyed acres of peppers while worms have been at work on squashes. With the exception of a few small garden patches, beets and carrots are three weeks later in maturing. Worms have also cut down the production of carrots by eating off the tops. Within the next two weeks, however, shippers expect shipments to climb to about the same level as that of last season. Total shipments of vegetables to date were 15 cars as compared to 93 the same time last year.

300 Farm Workers Are Assigned Jobs

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 27—Conservation projects of the Resettlement Administration in the Texas-Oklahoma region will furnish gainful employment to more than three hundred farm relief workers, according to Carl P. Blackwell, in charge of the Land Utilization program, who issued orders for the men to start work Monday. Projects in Muskogee, Payne, Noble, and Carter counties, Oklahoma and near Bonham Fannin county, Texas will be improved under the work order issued today. Of more than $1,000,000 allotted for conservation work in this region for the period ending June 30, 1936, $115,000 will be made available at once. The purpose of this fund is to enable the Resettlement Administration to furnish productive employment to farmers on relief rolls and at the same time to enable Resettlement to proceed with conservation projects. According to Lloyd Godley, chief of the project planning and control section, several hundred more men will be put to work within the next two or three weeks.

Farmers Due More Exemption Papers

EASTLAND, Nov. 27—Word has come from the state cotton allotment board that all cotton producers of Eastland county who have an allotment basis of 1630 pounds or above will receive an additional allotment of cotton tax exemption certificates within the next few days, according to C. Metz Heald, county agent. Those producers having an allotment basis of 2500 pounds or above will receive 20 per cent additional certificates, which is half as much as they received in the original issue. Those between 1630 pounds and 2400 will receive enough additional to make their allotment up to 60 per cent. Those producers with an allotment basis of less than 1630 pounds have already received 60 per cent or more of their allotment basis, therefore will not receive an additional allotment. This will make a total of at least 60 per cent allotment to every producer in the county on this year's crop, except the producer who began planting cotton in 1935 for the first time since 1927. He will receive a total of 40 per cent for the year.

Camera Gives Proof Of Black Lightning

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 26—Photographs of "black" lightning, phenomenon which has puzzled scientists, may upset a frequently given explanation, according to Norman G. Wallace, amateur photographer noted for camera studies of desert scenes. Basing his interpretation upon pictures which show vivid flashes of "black" and ordinary, or white, lightning side by side, Wallace believed the former may be a distinct type of electrical phenomena. A suggested explanation that black lightning is merely an illusion resulting from too intense light reversing silver images of photographic plates, fails to account for "black" feeder lines on lightning pictures, while the central flashes register white, Wallace said. Additionally, white flashes frequently may be photographed immediately preceding and following the "black" flashes, or something caught side by side with the black. The phenomena is said to occur most frequently in Arizona desert storms.

St. Louis Lists 70 As Donors of Blood

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 26—An organization known as the "Blood Donors' Benevolent Society of St. Louis" was established here a few years ago and today claims a membership of 70. W. R. Goodman conceived the idea, and now at any hour of the day or night, men or women of this voluntary band will rush to a hospital to aid some patient. Goodman tells this story of the group's founding: "I used to take my Sunday school class to the City hospital to visit

School Cited For Liquor Experience

DALLAS, Nov. 27—Testifying that he knew when a man was drunk, a college student in city court several days ago was asked what experience he had had to make him so certain of the man's condition who had rammed his car. "Three years at the University of Texas," he replied. After quieting the court down, Judge King Williamson fined the defendant $10 for negligent collision and $50 for being drunk in a car, agreeing the witness' experience was sufficient.

Police Must Reduce MONTREAL—Montreal's policemen, for years noted for their roundness, must reduce. Assistant Director Charles Barnes, who is disciplinary head of the city's "finest," has ordered the entire force to undergo a course of reducing exercise.

Pensions Chief

AUDITOR NEW PENSION HEAD OVER TEXANS

Orville S. "Dick" Carpenter, Dallas businessman and state auditor, was named executive director of the old-age assistance commission by the new three-member board November 20. As State Auditor, Carpenter made a survey in September and reported to the legislature on the "Cost and General Plan for Old Age Pensions." The pension law reflects his report in many ways.

Carpenter came to Austin when Allied appointed him August 1 to organize the office of the State Auditor. Surveys on pensions, liquor and fees were presented the legislature. Other reports have been on taxation, bank deposit insurance, and a number of minor subjects.

At present the state auditor is conducting audits of the Banking Department and State Treasury.

Carpenter will resign as state auditor and take the pension directorship when the new law goes into effect next February.

THE CRUSADES
a novelization of the CECIL B. DeMILLE production
by DONALD BARR CHIDSEY

FROM THE PARAMOUNT PICTURE OF THE SAME NAME.

LEICESTER, who was very old and believed that things should be just thus and so, stood frowning disapproval upon the two men who worked at the forge. They were mighty men, both of them, with enormous arms; and they were so begrimed with smoke from the fire, and so streaked with sooty sweat, that for a moment even Leicester was not certain which was young Richard, king of England. The beard finally told him. The true blacksmith had a beard. Leicester, proud noble in the land, dropped to one knee before the bearded man.

"Hi, old friend! You look as though you'd seen a ghost," Richard greeted.

Leicester said solemnly: "I have seen the King of France."

of a good lance along my arm. I know how it feels to see men go down before me. Why should I fear or pray for what I do not understand?"

"The King of France," Leicester reminded him, "is waiting."

Richard shrugged, ungracious as a child called from play. But he turned from the long falchion he was helping to make.

Leicester, shocked, cried: "Sarely you will wash?"

"Wash? Ah—" He looked about for his esquire. "Alan! fetch water for me! It seems I must needs wash for this visitor!" He wagged a long forefinger at his friend. "But heed you, Robin! wash I shall, but no court robes! Philip shall see me as I am, else he'll not see me at all. And this Princess Alice, too. May-what she knew what she wished and meant to get it. Now she raised her lips to be kissed, smiling confidently. But Richard only kissed her left ear, hastily, awkwardly.

Richard turned.

"What guests have we?"

Prince John, who was Richard's brother, came forward with a lean, mustached man.

"Conrad, Marquis of Montferat—and my friend."

"Then he is mine," cried Richard, and heartily slapped Montferat's back. "England gives him welcome!"

Montferat was smiling a little as he bowed, but he winced when the great hand struck him between the shoulder blades.

"I understand now, Sir, why men call you the Lion Heart."

She stepped down, made him a deep curtsy. She was... a firm and handsome woman... a woman who knew what she wished and meant to get it.

"Philip? Here in England?" The beardless giant was amazed, but he did not stop working the bellows.

"And does my saintly cousin come in peace, or war?"

"He comes in peace. And he brings his royal sister."

"Hm... Alice? She's no dove with an olive branch?"

"Your father," Leicester said gravely, "gave his pledge to France that you would wed the Princess Alice."

"That surly wench?"

"Your father's pledge was England's pledge. You cannot escape this marriage. And now here is a king—a crowned, anointed king—at your own castle—and you have no thought but to be hammering out a sword like any common smithy."

Richard, by Grace of God, King of England, Duke of Normandy and Aquitaine, Count of Anjou, etc., etc., continued to work the bellows.

Leicester complained: "Fighting—always fighting and hunting. Fearing no devil and praying to no God."

"Why should I?" said Richard. "I know my destiny. I know the lefthap she'll not wish me for a husband when she sees me in smithy attire, eh?"

He threw back his head and roared with laughter; for he was young, and had never met the man he couldn't whip or the woman who could cause his heart to miss a single beat.

They sat in front of the great fireplace, Philip on the right, his sister Alice on the left, while a chair in the center, its back bearing the royal arms of England, was empty.

Richard came in like a gust of March wind.

"Cousin Philip! Welcome to Windsor, and to England!"

Philip, a sharp-faced man with gray-slitted eyes, stepped down from the dais.

"The greetings of France!"

They embraced, stepped apart. It was not a warm embrace.

"And the Lady Alice," Richard cried, with no enthusiasm.

She stepped down, made him a deep curtsy. He bowed over her hand. She had her royal brother's keen thin eyes, but she was darker, a firm and handsome woman—a

To reporters Mr. Roosevelt revealed the naval force would be brought up to 100,000 men for a yearly average of 96,000. This compares with a present maximum of 96,000 or an average of 92,000. Rangers Making Last Stand In Experiment

By ROBERT WEAR

United Press Staff Correspondent DALLAS, Nov. 27—Texas is watching an experiment now and wondering—are the Texas Rangers "going soft?"

For more than a hundred years they have been Texas' final answer to desperadoes, to all who oppose law and order. Now they are merged into the Texas Department of Public Safety—a modern contrivance with radio connections, fingerprint experts and sub-machine guns.

The public safety commission is trying to fit rangers into the picture. "Didn't fit" was the cryptic explanation of Albert Sidney Johnson, chairman of the commission, when the towering Captain Tom Hickman was given his walking papers a few weeks ago.

Hickman's dismissal set off a bombshell of political repercussions and argument in the legislature. His name was practically synonymous in the public mind with "Texas Ranger." But Hickman had made a "water haul" raid on a notorious dining resort without finding gambling in progress there. He blamed a "tip-off" and made no further explanation, leaving for a deer hunting trip in the mountains of southwest Texas.

As Hickman went out, a grand jury in Fort Worth still was investigating a raid on the same resort, made a few nights later by two other rangers. The names they obtained from guests at the resort proved to be fictitious. Capt. L. G. Phares, director of the safety department, fumed. Hickman's friends took comfort in the situation.

"Bunch of swivel-chair johnnies," they labeled the safety department. Record Cited Hickman's cleanup of the east Texas oil field during its boom days in 1930, was cited as proof of the old time ranger's ability to cope with modern conditions.

Tom put aside his high heeled boots, big sombrero and called on "bright spots" in Longview, Kilgore, Glade-water and Overton, attired in the horn rimmed spectacles, checked suit and spats of a typical eastern "tennerlook." The trick worked. He took so many prisoners in Kilgore was Methodist church in Kilgore was pressed into use as a makeshift jail. Similarly, when Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, his machine gunning sweetheart, had terrorized the entire southwest for several years and officers apparently were helpless, former Ranger Captain Frank Hamer was employed to track them down and kill them in a Louisiana by-road through the pines.

Hickman and Hamer and their fellows had carried on the Rangers' "two-gun" tradition for years, through cattle rustling days on the Texas-Mexico border in the mountainous "Big Bend" section; long-shore troubles in Galveston; and during the martial law periods in Borger, Panhandle oil town where District Attorney John A. Holmes had been assassinated.

"We're not tough—just rough," Hickman once remarked to a gambling game operator as the big ranger captain smashed a dice table with an ax.

Summoned by Alford Only a few months ago, Gov. James V. Alford called the ax-swinging rangers into service to break up gambling and liquor-selling establishments in Galveston, Houston and other cities.

Hickman was credited with halting a run of bank robberies by a spectacular gun fight on the streets of Clarksville in 1926, when one robber was killed and another wounded. The $30,000 the robbers had in a suit case was recovered. The Texas Bankers' Association therewith decided to put a price of $5,000 on the head of each bank robber.

Hickman, now 49, grew up on the Texas-Oklahoma border, just south of the Indian Territory. He spent his boyhood working with cattle in Texas and among the Chickasaw, Choctaw and Comanche Indian nations. He entered the Texas Ranger service as a private in 1919, was assigned to duty on the Mexican border and soon won the rank of captain. He served until 1933, when the incoming administration of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson failed to re-appoint him. When Gov. Alford succeeded Mrs. Ferguson in 1935, however, Hickman was restored to the ranger force.

In the meantime, Hickman married, toured Europe on his honeymoon in appearances at rodeos with the Cowboy Band of Hardin-Simmons University of Abilene.

Hickman's hair is turning gray and the state safety department has decided he doesn't fit. Texans are wondering—are the rangers through?

Decline Seen For High Grade Cotton

The proportions for the higher grades of cotton were lower this week than they have been in a number of weeks. Strict middling and better grades of white and extra white represented only about 11 per cent of the samples classed from Texas ginnings this week in contrast to 10 per cent last week and 18 per cent for the season to date. Notwithstanding the recent decrease in the proportion representing strict middling and better grades, the proportion for these grades was lower for two weeks in August (reports of August 10 to 17) than for any of the other weeks this season thus far.

The average length of staple each week continues to indicate a trend toward shorter lengths as the season draws to a close. Since the latter part of September, the samples classed from Texas ginnings have shown increased proportions for lengths 7-8 inch and shorter and decreased proportions of lengths 1 inch and longer.

Proved in '35- NOW BETTER THAN EVER! FORD V-8 TRUCKS FOR 1936

TRUCK operators bought nearly 100,000 Ford V-8 Trucks and commercial cars the first 6 months of 1935—58% more than in the same period last year.

These operators found the 80 h. p. Ford V-8 engine ideal for modern trucking. It has exceptional power, flexibility, stamina—and their records prove that the V-8 is the most economical Ford Truck ever built.

And they prove far more—the Ford's ability to stay on the job, out of the repair shop—its rock-bottom upkeep costs—the tremendous strength of Ford's heavy-duty chassis and frame.

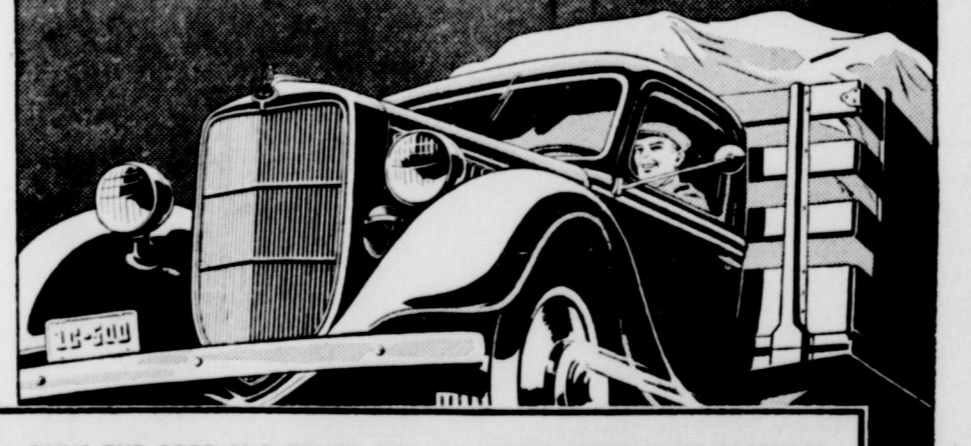

You get these proved qualities in the 1936 Ford V-8 Truck—plus new improvements for even greater efficiency and dependability. Read the features at the right. Think what value they mean at Ford's low prices.

Make Your Own "On-the-job" Test

Ask your Ford Dealer to loan you a 1936 Ford Truck. Let your driver and load prove Ford V-8 value to you with the greatest truck Ford ever built. There's no obligation.
