About Our Friends

By STEF A. LONG

Little Melvin Sandler, age 5, seems to think seriously about the problems of life. He becomes interested in balloons and requests his father to blow up one so tight that it will reach the skies so that God would realize that he was a good boy and hence would request Santa Claus to bring him Christmas presents. Perhaps this is the same working of the mind that caused Abel to make a smoke from the burning of his lamb sacrifice so that it would reach his Creator.

Alex Spears thinks that a few of us older fellows should stay at home from the ball games and take care of business so that the younger fellows will have a town to come back to when the game is over.

Uncle Joe Wilson becomes a grandfather again as a little boy is born to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wilson, and E. C. Duncan grows a few years older as his son David becomes the father of a little girl Saturday. But being grandparents does not mean being old these days. Many very young looking people are being called that and they really look so young that it seems like more or less of a joke.

Will St. John says he had two good reasons for not attending the ball game, either of which was sufficient. S. G. Baird, of route 4, believes in loyalty to friends. He says his friends are always right, even if they do some times get a little wrong. Now that is real loyalty.

CARS STOLEN BY 'RING' SAYS THEFT BUREAU

The bureau stated, "The cars owned by L. A. Hightower and W. H. McDonald. Hightower's car, a 1931 Ford coupe, was stolen off the Eastland square six months ago. Deputy Sheriff Steel Hill said, McDonald's automobile, a Nash sedan, was stolen a month ago while parked on the west side of the square. Where the automobiles were recovered was not revealed by the bureau, which said the Eastland vehicles were among 19 stolen by the "ring."

Japan Moves Troops Into Northern China

PRESSURE FOR NEW STATE IN AREA GREATER

By United Press TIENTSIN, Nov. 30 — Japan today prepared to move three army divisions into Tientsin. Ten troop trains rolled into Shanhaikwan, gateway to North China, increasing the military pressure on Chinese warlords to come out openly for an autonomous government of the five northern provinces.

The Kwangtung army, Japanese military power on the Asiatic mainland, was preparing for a showdown with China over the question of setting up an independent state, composed of 470,000 square miles of territory in five provinces.

The arrival of a new massed of Japanese troops at Shanhaikwan, reported by reliable foreign sources, augmented the number of soldiers Japan has standing by in readiness for any eventuality.

Japanese military authorities in Tientsin requested the Chinese Public Safety bureau today provide accommodations for three divisions of Japanese troops in two days.

Japan early this week "recognized" the independence of a state created from 25 counties in Hopei and Harar provinces in the area bordering Manchukuo.

It has been expected that the Japanese would attempt to create the new five-province puppet state earlier, but this move was believed delayed by League of Nations action in the Italian-Ethiopian crisis, supposed to have set a precedent.

Morals Prober And Escort Are Gassed

Officers discovered the car in an exclusive residential district. Both occupants were unconscious. Miss Luckey was taken to Boone county hospital. Her escort, James Scammon, Rockport, Mo., was given emergency treatment by a fire department pulmonologist and taken to the hospital.

Forty men will be used on a road project from Rising Star to Carbon. Thursday is set as the date of the work to start.

In commissioner's precinct Number three, 32 men will be employed on a road project. Work is scheduled to begin Wednesday.

Total employed in the county's five sewing room projects was boosted to 150 when six additional workers started Wednesday, Paschall stated.

BOY SHOT BY MOTHER SAID TO BE DYING

By United Press SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Nov. 30 — Physicians prepared tonight to give a blood transfusion in an effort to save the life of Jesse Livermore, Jr., shot by his socially prominent mother during an argument over the drinking habit of the 16-year-old youth.

The mother, Mrs. Dorothea Livermore, divorced wife of Jesse Livermore, Sr., once known as the "boy plunger of Wall Street," was held in jail today. She was charged with "suspicion of attempting to murder."

Authorities said the charge would be changed to murder if her son dies. Livermore was expected to show his former wife no mercy in that event.

The lad was dying slowly, physicians said, from the effect of the bullet that pierced his chest and lodged in the liver.

Father At Bedside
He rallied slightly at noon after his father, who flew here from St. Louis, encouraged him to "fight son, I'm standing by you."

The transfusion will be performed if he gains sufficient strength. The boy's mother was in a frightened condition in her cell. She has been kept in the hospital since the tragedy Friday under the influence of opiates to quiet her.

Young Livermore was said to have been shot as he tilted a quart of liquor to his lips Friday.

Mrs. Livermore was quoted by police as saying, "I'd rather see you dead than drinking."

HOW THEY STAND

Below find the active candidates in the Opportunity Club and their relative standing up to the time of going to press on Saturday, Nov. 30th. At no time will the extra credits be published.

NO LETUP IN CAMPAIGN FOR ANY HOLIDAYS

Holidays can't stop the ambitious, hard-working candidates in the Cisco Daily News and American and Roundup subscription drive from bringing in the subscribers.

This week, notwithstanding the Thanksgiving holiday, has been one of the banner weeks of the campaign. Many names have been added to the subscription lists this week.

Knowing that Saturday night ended the second period and that extra credits will be less after Saturday each candidate made a special effort to add more names on the subscription lists and run up more credits to her favor.

This campaign is developing into one of the keenest fought, fairest dealing, "hard-workingest" campaigns ever put over in Texas.

Square Shooters
You couldn't find a finer lot of candidates in the state of Texas, or any other state than are the candidates working in this campaign, nor will you ever find a group who play the game fairer and squarer.

Each candidate is out to win one of the major awards but no underhand methods or cheap trickery is ever thought of or practiced.

Candidates tell one another where they can get a subscription when they fall in getting the subscription themselves.

Each day sees that additional quota of another 100 names or a total of 2,000 names added to the subscription records is drawing nearer and nearer and each day shows the race to be one of the closest ever held in Texas.

One candidate is ahead today and tomorrow another will lead. Who drive those beautiful new cars away December 21 is yet to be decided.

Extra Credits Less
Monday begins the third period and extra credits will be less during this period.

The reason for this is to protect the hard workers from any unfair advantage that might be attempted during the closing week. Each candidate knows why these extra credits are reduced and are in agreement that it is fair to all and a protection to those who had worked hard during the campaign.

It is the desire of all and the intention of the newspapers and the campaign management that those candidates who have really worked and have brought and will bring in the largest number of subscriptions are awarded the premiums.

The papers want subscribers and paying these candidates valuable bonuses to get these subscriptions.

The papers are not selling cars or premiums. They give them for work well done.

LAWYERS PLAN DINNER

ATTITUDE ON OIL EMBARGO NOT CHANGED

By United Press The War Situation: Paris—Great Britain moves to seek basis for negotiating with Italy and avoiding greatest potential crisis since World War.

London—Sentiment spreads for peaceful solution of conflict, although well informed circles expected actual enforcement of oil embargo before Christmas unless Mussolini recedes from his position.

Debre-E rhan—Emperor Haile Selassie starts long trip toward Dessale to take personal command at grand headquarters of northern Ethiopian army.

ROME, Nov. 30—The cabinet, definitely determined to resist possible oil sanctions against Italy as an act of war, adopted a series of decrees today to bolster the country's defenses in the event either that sanctions are expanded or the African conflict spreads to Europe.

The membership of the supreme defense commission was expanded, the period of military service extended and measures approved to bolster the country's oil, cement, and gold reserves.

The cabinet met with Premier Mussolini presiding and decided the situation was grave enough to warrant another meeting Tuesday.

The expected declaration on the international situation was deferred, probably because of reports from Paris and London that a Franco-British effort will be made to avert war by ascertaining Italy's minimum demands. The declaration now is expected on Tuesday when the oil embargo situation may be cleared up.

The measures adopted today were of relatively minor importance but fit into the defense pattern which the government has been constructing for developing resources to the maximum in event of trouble.

FDR ADVISER PLANS ATTACK UPON TREATY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 —George Peck, President Roosevelt adviser on foreign trade matters, was reported today to be preparing criticism of the recently negotiated Canadian reciprocal tariff treaty and his own resignation from the New Deal official family.

Both documents, it was said, will be presented to Mr. Roosevelt when the chief executive returns from Warm Springs.

The extent of the Peck resignation—the holds three New Deal posts — was not available. He is the head of the Import-Export bank in addition to his advisory post and as head of the bank is an ex-officio member of the National Emergency Council.

He said he was working on his report, which, he said, was trying to reduce to simple language "so everybody will understand it."

G. A. R. POST GROWS

AUSTIN, Nov. 30 —A membership gain of 50 per cent was recorded this year by the Andrews Post of the G. A. R. here, no doubt the largest gain in the nation. After being non-members all these years, George Martin, 91, and O. M. Remington, 90, decided to join the post, raising the roster to five.

Million Promised For Texas Relief

By United Press AUSTIN, Nov. 30 —Promise of $1,000,000 from the federal government to conduct direct relief for Texas, "from now on" was announced today by J. P. Duke, assistant director of state relief commission.

Duke said the sum would be budgeted to provide for Texas needy unemployed as long as possible. The budget will be submitted to federal officials for approval early next week. Duke expected it would care for needy during December and possibly longer.

Less Spending, Says Roosevelt

Invading the capital of one of his severest critics, Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, President Roosevelt Friday told the nation that the days of lavish government spending are over and that the people of the United States can look forward to a decreasing budget.

That probably will please everybody—everybody, that is, except those who have expected to use the national debt as campaign thunder against the New Deal in the next presidential campaign.

The time has come when it is necessary to apply the brakes to the spending campaign. The New Deal never meant that the "lavish spending" should be continued indefinitely. It was an emergency matter, calling for emergency action. Of course, it may be that even after private industry has put men to work again it will be found advisable to continue a certain amount of government spending for public works. But it should be far less than was necessary to make a start for recovery.

Rex Beach, great novelist of the north, once told the story of a bet made by a miner upon the strength and fighting heart of his dog. He bet that his dog could pull a 1,000-pound load on his sled. There was a great argument, however, over the condition imposed by his opponent that he should not be allowed to break the ice loose from the runners of the sled, but that the dog must pull the sled from a standstill, without any aid whatever.

The huge spending program may be compared with that extra amount of energy necessary to pull the sled when it was frozen to the snow. When the sled was once started the extra drive was unnecessary. When private industry gets into full swing, the government spending program can ease down again. That time, says the president, is now.

The president's address Friday will be taken by friend and foe alike of the New Deal as the opening shot from the administration in the campaign for the 1936 election. Government spending probably will be one of the big issues in the next national political race.

Mr. Morgan's Income Endangered

When a gentleman who eats as regularly as J. P. Morgan starts moaning low, it must be time for ordinary citizens to begin looking for a ring around the moon or some other sign of bad weather.

Mr. Morgan, returning from Europe, tells reporters that things have been bad, but that they are going to be a great deal worse. All private fortunes in the United States, says he, will be wiped out within 30 years unless taxes and government expenditures are cut.

Then, coming to his climax, Mr. Morgan delivers himself of the following:

"Why, even now anybody who makes any money in the United States is actually working eight months of the year for the government—and who is going to be able or willing to do that indefinitely?"

All this sounds pretty discouraging and leads one to

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — There's some talk in responsible quarters of filing anti-trust law suits against groups alleged to have conspired in raising the price of bread.

Thus far it's only talk. But evidence has been assembled and is being studied to determine what ground there may be for action.

The anti-trust law policy of the administration is so vague, especially since collapse of the NRA and during current faltering attempts to establish voluntary codes, that no one is predicting whether or not action will be taken.

It is conceded that some bread price prosecutions might be a smart political move. Much of the price-fixing in bread has affected only bread sold in intrastate commerce, but some of the higher-priced bread is regularly shipped across state lines.

Officials concerned have been reading with interest a recent excerpt from the Food Field Reporter, trade publication, which said the Flour Association of Philadelphia had demanded an increase of 3 1/2 per cent in the wholesale price of bread so some bakers might pay flour bills long overdue. The story added:

"The association members control 99 per cent of the flour business in the city. It was pointed out by S. Garland Moran, president of the association. He indicated that bakers who refuse to increase the price will find their flour supplies cut off."

Several hundred employees of the Resettlement Administration

tion recently went from three to nine weeks without their pay checks, which was fun at all. There was some talk about it, so RA sent a statement saying the mess was due to a classification of its employees.

The plain fact was that the works became gummed up. RA's explanatory statement contained one paragraph which deserves particular attention.

"There has been and will be no attempt to investigate the identity of the Resettlement employees who advised the press of the payroll situation."

Censorship and secret attempts to spot and punish employees who have "leaked" news to the embarrassment of their superiors have been frequent in the New Deal. But the RA statement reaches a new high in its smug magnanimity—and nerve.

EDITOR FRANK SHANNON of the Wharton Spectator, Wharton, Tex., calls attention to a recent error in this column which will be corrected herewith.

It was reported that PWA officials were quite proud because Wharton had obtained a reduction of 67 per cent in the price of its domestic electricity as a result of its plan to build a municipal plant with PWA money.

The 67 per cent reduction in reality had been cumulative over a 10-year period. The error was due to a full page advertisement by the power company which hallyhooed the figures in such way as to cause PWA officials who saw it to believe that the cut had come all of a sudden.

OUT OUR WAY

the inescapable conclusion that the country has not been running itself to suit the House of Morgan at all, of late.

Bad things have indeed happened to this noted financier. He has witnessed financial heresies in high places and has been powerless to stop them. Congress has passed laws to interfere with his time-honored way of doing business. He has been questioned by a senate committee about his whereabouts on the night of the stock market crash, midgets have sat in his lap, and people have tried to blame him for getting the country into the World War.

All in all, the last few years have not been happy ones for him. Uncle Sam eight months out of every 12, Mr. Morgan after all is doing fairly well by himself these days. He still gets over to Scotland to shoot grouse, and the public prints have not yet announced the sale or decommissioning of his yacht, the Corsair, which is one of the finest yachts in all the world and does not run on small change.

If he has given up his Long Island estate or his London town house, the news hasn't leaked out. The ruddy flush of health that goes with regular meals and plenty of sleep still appears on his cheeks.

Nevertheless, the gentleman undeniably seems unhappy. His idea of the current breathing spell apparently is that it is taking place beneath an oxygen tent, and he seems to want something done about it.

A New Deal which fails to leave the world a safer place for multi-millionaires is to him not merely a new deal, but a game of seven-card stud with the deuces and one-eyed jacks wild.

The money changers may not have been driven out of the temple, but it does look as if they are beginning to find the place pretty drafty and hardly fit for human habitation.

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Nov. 30.—The principal of unified, responsible, effective government, both in advocacy of the small, one county home rule plan, will be made an issue in local campaigns of 1936. Texas counties now have the authority, acting through cumbersome machinery, of adopting the effective home rule charters that cities live under. Some of them will begin efforts in 1936 to attain what is not an experiment but a proven basis of efficient local government. The issue will be brought up by candidates who offer themselves upon the merits of its adoption. Voters of Texas approved the same home rule powers for counties as now held by cities. This same authority permits the people of a county, by separate votes of rural and urban electorates, to merge the municipal administrative set up into the county government.

The one chamber legislature will be made a campaign issue in nearly one half the races for the legislature next year. It already has the voting support of half the house of representatives and one fourth the Texas senate.

University of Texas, over a period of 20 years, has grown from an inconspicuous, backward, poorly financed college, wholly lacking in institutional facilities, to one of the foremost universities of the nation with a magnificent group of buildings and plant equipment to serve 12,000 students. The faculty has been built up steadily to meet a rapidly growing student body.

And, the university is well endowed for the future. It is financially well set up and the $20,000,000 oil royalties that have come to it will be augmented and continue to produce income revenue.

There is no reason to assume that because the university has erected a dozen buildings in four years that it can stop now. For over 20 years it has needed and sought a real museum. Centennial year will bring this museum into being, the product of labor of the American Legion and of university leaders, and of the appropriations made by congress and the Texas legislature. This museum and the new McDonald astronomical observatory will broaden the sphere of the university's services and activities, and serve as new focus for differentiated efforts and new goals of endeavor.

First annual permits for operation of liquor stores, liquor carriers, medicinal dispensaries, wholesale and other establishments under the liquor law will not be issued until early January. C. R. Miller, director of the liquor control board, has indicated. Meantime, the board is hurrying through the issuance of temporary permits to all dealers now in business and who apply for them. The temporary permits are legal for 90 days from the effective date of the law.

Dealers are not being required to publish notices of application for the temporary permits.

The beverage industry is being brought under state supervision with unprecedented speed, and already convictions have been secured for the sale of liquor on which the new taxes were unpaid.

Director Miller has reported an excellent attitude of cooperation on the part of those intending to engage in the wholesale or retail industry under legal sanctions of the new statute. Dealers have prized too much the privilege of getting a license to put it in jeopardy by violating the law in the preliminary stages.

Sen. Wilbourne B. Collie of Eastland, president pro tem of the senate, may, during the Christmas season, attain the same honor that has come this year to Sen. K. M. Regan and Sen. John S. Redditt, that of being governor of Texas for a day.

Gov. Alired may go on from Wichita Falls during a holiday visit to Oklahoma. In case Lieut. Gov. Walter F. Woodul is out of the state at the same time, Sen. Collie will be governor, as next in line. If that occasion arises, he will be the sixth Texas governor of the year, giving the state an all-time record. Gov. Ferguson retired from office at mid-January. Gov. Alired, Lieut. Gov. Woodul, Regan and Redditt have held the powers of chief executive.

If it occurs, it will be a happy circumstance for Sen. Collie and a privilege to be remembered for a lifetime.

ENGLISH JOIN AMERICANS IN THANKSGIVING

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Americans in England gathered around feasts of turkey, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie Thursday to give thanks—in the manner of their Pilgrim fathers—for more cheerful times in their adopted homeland.

Thanksgiving Day celebrations in Great Britain, bringing together American residents in annual reunions struck a note of new optimism.

Speakers, both Americans and British, told of improved economic conditions in this country and the United States and of the firm resolve of the two nations to avoid entanglements in any foreign wars.

Dinner and Ball Arranged
The outstanding Thanksgiving event, as in previous years, was the dinner and ball of the American Society in the new American Society in the new Dorchester Hotel in London.

D. Campbell Lee, acting secretary of the society, arranged for more than 350 members of the society and their American and British friends.

Ambassador Robert Worth Bingham presided over a traditional turkey dinner with all the "trimmings" in his capacity as honorary chairman of the American Society. The dinner was served at 8 o'clock in a setting of pumpkins and other Thanksgiving decorations. A ball, which began at 11 o'clock continued until 3 p. m.

The principal speaker of this year's dinner was Prof. Kenneth Murdock, dean of the faculty of arts and sciences at Harvard university, who recalled to the Americans the full significance of "The Day We Celebrate."

Britons to Attend
The toast to the guests, including a large number of British citizens, was proposed by E. S. Daniels, of Waco, Mich., chairman of the society.

At the end of the dinner Ambassador Bingham proposed the toast that is inevitable at all American gatherings in London—"to the King and the President of the United States." While the toast is drunk in fine champagne a band played "God Save the King" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

A corps of English chefs at the Dorchester hotel, one of London's great cosmopolitan gathering places, were specially trained in arranging the turkey dinner, replete with sweet potatoes, corn-on-the-cob, pumpkin and mince pie and other trimmings which couldn't ordinarily be found by an American if he searched the city from one end to the other.

Many Localities Represented
The committee for the ball was composed of Justin R. Weddell, of Montclair, N. J., and New York City; Gilbert H. Carr, of Fresno, Cal.; Tarleton Winchester, of Baltimore and Francis E. Powell, Jr., of New York.

Another honored guest was U. S. Consul General Robert Frazier, honorary vice chairman of the society.

Several other smaller Thanksgiving observances were held, including a mid-day luncheon at the American Women's club, a roast turkey and pumpkin pie and a luncheon at the American club in Piccadilly.

American students at Cambridge and Oxford universities arranged for turkey luncheons with members of the faculty as their guests.

Weeks Compulsory Spanish In School

MCCALLEN, Nov. 30 — The Mexican Chamber of Commerce is asking the compulsory study of Spanish in Texas high schools through an act of the Legislature. Resolutions passed by the civic body recite that not only do border cities, but every community in Texas of any size have Mexican citizens. Knowledge of Spanish will provide thousands with possible employment in Latin American countries; that Mexico, being the United States' greatest potential market, can be better cultivated as a friend and customer if Texans have some knowledge of the language of the nation south of the Rio Grande.

Ezra's Mission to Jerusalem

Text: Ezra 7:10-19; 8:21-23, 31, 32. The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Dec. 1.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance

NEARLY 80 years had passed since the Jewish exiles to Babylon had returned to Jerusalem with courage and hope in their hearts to rebuild their national life and to establish again the religious capital with the temple as its center.

days of the former return from the exile. Ezra began by basing his work of reform and leadership upon all that was noblest in the past. In the life of practically every nation are buried ideal purposes and noble expressions of popular hope. In building for the future often all that is needed is to recover and re-express these ideals of the past.

It is true in our American life today as it was true in this little colony in Judea. A pure idealism of democracy and liberty is imbedded in our Constitution, institutions and statutes that we are in danger of forgetting or of permitting to be set aside by special pleading and special interests.

EZRA led his people back to the law and ordinances. He initiated his reforming enterprise by a great fast, assembling the Jews at the river Ahava to start their expedition. There were about 1750 people in the caravan that left Babylon for this work of leadership and reconstruction in Jerusalem.

It was at this low point in the life of the Jewish colony that a great reformer appeared, Ezra, a priest and a scribe well versed in the law of Moses, came up from Babylon with a company of people who were apparently inspired with the reforming zeal and the purpose to build that which had been manifest in the early

In the life of practically every nation are buried ideal purposes and noble expressions of popular hope. In building for the future often all that is needed is to recover and re-express these ideals of the past.

What is the value of a great day of fasting such as Ezra proclaimed? Whether or not there be any inherent merit in fasting itself, it was a symbolic and effective method of emphasizing discipline and consecration in the acceptance of a great task.

With All My Love by Mary Raymond

BEGIN HERE TODAY After the death of her parents, lovely DANA WESTBROOK, child of her mother's second marriage, comes to America to live with her grandmother, MRS. WILLIAM CAMERON. NANCY WALLACE, who is resentful over Dana's coming, Mrs. Cameron decides to introduce Dana to the social set, including rich RONALD MOORE, who becomes seriously interested. Dana, meanwhile, has met and become attracted to young DR. SCOTT STANLEY. Nancy, who masks her love for Ronald behind an aristocratic attitude, dresses happily for the party. Her happiness fades when she sees Dana, radiant and beautiful, in a twin frock. Dana, sitting on the porch while Ronald goes to bring her a glass of punch, answers a whistle from the garden, and finds Scott there. Returning, Ronald finds Nancy on the porch. In the darkness he kisses her, thinking she is Dana. Nancy's vehement anger plazes him.

DAVA stared curiously. Scott was opening the door of the house. "This is where I live," he said. Dana's mother washed her hair in champagne to get that beautiful vivid sheen. Mrs. Cameron pulled the old car sharply to one side as a powerfully built roadster, driven at what she was sure was a horribly reckless speed, bore down upon her, flashing ahead. The driver was Ronnie Moore. He lifted his hat in the gallant way she liked, and she flushed with pleasure. Not all young men were so courteous as Ronnie was. Some of them nodded, without lifting their hats. Some of them didn't wear hats at all. There was Scott Stanley, for instance. Home with a doctor's degree, the honor man of his class. Yet you'd very likely see him hatless, with his hair rumpled, and apparently not bothered by it at all. Ronnie, Mrs. Cameron had noted with relief, was alone. She would have felt happier if Dana had been in the car with him, but since Dana wasn't, it was nice that no one else occupied the seat of the smart custom-built roadster. "Everything's going as it should," Mrs. Cameron mused with satisfaction. "Ellen and I are old. It doesn't make any difference about us. We've muddled along on the rent money from those little shotgun houses and that old store all these years. But I want something better for those girls." With Dana married to a rich husband, things would very likely work out for Nancy, too. The late sun had gone under a cloud and raindrops were beginning to patter down on the car. Mrs. Cameron looked up. It would be one of those hard, driving summer rains. A regular cloudburst. SHE had driven the car into the garage and was inside the house before the downpour came. Her dress was slightly damp from drops spattering down as she had crossed
