About Our Friends

By STEPHEN A. LONG
Friends of J. B. Cate will be glad to hear that he has taken up reading to improve his mind. He was reading in the Chamber of Commerce building Wednesday reading to a group of business men reading the minutes of the Rotary convention in Mexico City. If it was any like the Lions convention in City it should be rather interesting.

Warwick Lloyd Hughes, Anderson and H. D. Gorham had a circle of conversation on Tuesday. Others were afraid to talk, no telling who would be the next to speak.

Mr. Thornton thinking of a new suit for the Christmas holidays. Wonder where he is to go. Mr. and Mrs. G. C. of Springfield, Mo. are visiting the family of J. C. Donica. Donica is brother. G. C. railroad man and is delighted to see them.

Mr. Walton, a very pleasant man, likely try to sell you a suit for Christmas. Another man in the selling game is Edmund Sumner. A window decorator. Works at Leach store. We should have a welcome to Cisco if we have not already done so.

King and his better half enjoyed the show. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson out on the street early this morning. Wonder they were buying holiday gifts. Mrs. J. B. Pratt driving to Fred Hays and Mrs. Bob Fred shopping. P. W. Campbell and a group of West Texas executives and salesmen attending a Safety meet. Mr.

SAFETY HEADS WILL TESTIFY, SAYS ALLRED

By United Press
AUSTIN, Dec. 12 — Director L. G. Phares of the state department of safety, Senior Ranger Captain J. W. McCormick, who succeeded Captain Tom Hickman, and possibly members of the safety commission, will attend tomorrow's hearing of a hearing of representatives investigating committee at San Antonio, Governor James V. Allred revealed today.

He indicated there will be some revelations. Allred said he did not know if the Commissioners will be there, but was sure the others would. They have not been summoned but are going to volunteer testimony, he said. Allred seconded an attack on the committee procedure by Representative J. B. Ford of McGregor, one of the members. Ford had complained that the committee should clear up Hickman's discharge before going into other matters and should meet at Austin to hear the safety department's side of the question.

"It's only fair to come here and hear the other side," Allred said. "After wild charges were made on the floor at the house, and after dragging a discharged and disgruntled ranger into the press, the committee ought to be fair enough to let the public know the whole facts about it. Mr. Ford has been the only member of the committee who showed the public safety commission the courtesy to come to them to find out the facts. When public officials are slurred as they were at Fort Worth, they ought to hear the other side."

By United Press
AUSTIN, Dec. 12 — Date for the opening of the third special session of the 44th Texas legislature remained unsettled today as Governor James Allred awaited information on how much money will be necessary for the old age pension setup.

Possibility that the session might not be in January exists, Allred said. He told legislators at the end of the last session he would not reconvene them before January.

Orville Carpenter, state auditor who will be pension director today is in Washington conferring with national security administrators. He will study both New York and California social security systems and report to the pension commission and governor.

The brother, an ice dealer, visited Captain George Peyton today and said he would seek a method to return Burns to Houston. Both men have been on relief rolls several months.

The fight occurred shortly after midnight Tuesday morning, according to Justice of the Peace Joe Wilson, who held the inquest in the woman's death and the examining trial for McDonald.

CONGRESS DUE TO SPEND LESS MEMBERS SAY

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 — The next session of congress will be more careful in spending the taxpayers dollar.

A distinct asking toward economy in government financing and in opposition to currency inflation is in prospect.

The United Press asked congressmen whether they would vote to hold appropriations to a sum which would permit balancing the budget in the next session.

Of those replying 85 per cent of the representatives and 76 per cent of the senators voted "Yes." The poll developed the fact that members have been impressed by accusations of wastefulness directed at the administration and intend to do something about it.

This new resolve toward economy may come into conflict with congress' apparent determination to vote for cash payment of the veteran's bonus.

OPPOSE PLAN FOR PEACE IN AFRICAN WAR

By United Press
GENEVA, Dec. 12 — The small powers, angered by the concessions to Premier Benito Mussolini in the Franco-British proposals for a peaceful settlement in Ethiopia, won a tactical victory today when the League penalty committee of 18 nations met.

In the first skirmish against the Franco-British plan, the small powers succeeded in forcing an agreement for a full debate on it when the council convenes Tuesday.

Opposition of Poland and Turkey obliged France and Britain to abandon their plan to submit the peace proposal to the council committee of five, where, with the support of Spain, they would have a majority. The committee of five is composed of France, Britain, Spain, Poland and Turkey.

Under those circumstances, the committee of five could condemn the plan and confer with Mussolini and the emperor of Ethiopia as it wished.

Consequently it becomes necessary to submit the plan directly to the council, where Turkey, Rumania and other small nations, possibly with Russia's support, may continue to battle against it.

Premier Pierre Laval of France and Capt. Anthony Eden of Britain, reaffirming their loyalty to the League, agreed that the council should examine the proposal as soon as possible after it meets.

"Any final settlement must be acceptable to the League as well as to the two nations concerned," Eden said. He suggested the council should be called as soon as possible to examine the situation and said Britain would support the council's action.

OPEN LIQUOR STORES FAIL TO GET RUSH

By United Press
FORT WORTH, Dec. 12 — There was no rush on the part of the consuming public as package stores opened to sell the first legal drink of hard liquor in 17 allegedly arid years.

Telegraph wires between Austin and Fort Worth hummed as the liquor control board granted temporary permits to stores seeking them. Sales were still lagging at noon as the approximately 15 dispensaries got under way. The county repealed its prohibition status at a local election last Saturday.

Cardenas Makes History in Mexico During His First Year as President

By WILLIAM H. LANDER United Press Staff Correspondent MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12.—Citizen General of Division Lazaro Cardenas, "the friend of the Indian," completed today one year as president of the United Mexican States. Already Cardenas has made history in Mexico, for in his seventh month in office he assumed many of the powers which ex-President General Plutarco Elias Calles had been wielding extra-constitutionally during past administration.

One year ago last Sunday General Cardenas was inaugurated for a term of six years. Previously the term of office had been four years, but rare was the president who completed the stipulated period of his administration. Cardenas had the political sagacity of tying up his six year administration with a "six year plan," which had the sponsorship of the National Revolutionary Party. Its main planks concerned the redistribution of land to the Indians by an intensification of Agrarian Reform; extensive road building and construction of schools, and the implementation of Socialistic Education. A policy of strict enforcement of the church laws has been officially announced, although in the beginning of his administration it was believed that Cardenas might be rather lenient in connection with the Catholic problem.

"Bloodless Revolution" The split between Calles and Cardenas in June was nothing less than a "bloodless revolution." For more than 10 years Calles has been political master of Mexico. He was president from 1924 to 1928. When General Alvaro Obregon, then president-elect, was assassinated on June 17, 1928, Calles dictated the selection of Emilio Portes Gil, a prominent lawyer, as his successor. When Portes Gil's term as provisional president was about to expire, Calles chose the engineer and diplomat, Pascual Ortiz Rubio, as president. But when Ortiz Rubio showed signs of independence, Calles forced his resignation and in turn chose General Abelardo Rodriguez as president to complete Ortiz Rubio's unexpired term.

Mexico and Calles himself expected that situation to continue indefinitely. People turned to Calles at all critical times, as, for instance, when he actively returned to office in 1929 as Secretary of War to put down the Escobar revolution.

Calles Challenged The power of Calles, however, came time to pick a candidate to succeed Rodriguez. Insiders declared that Calles' candidate was General Manuel Perez Trevino, unofficially credited with having helped Calles oust Ortiz Rubio in exchange for the promise that Perez Trevino eventually would become president.

The person challenging the official program of succession was young General Lazaro Cardenas, who had made a record for himself as a good soldier, good administrator and governor of Michoacan, and a man respected for his honesty and austerity. Cardenas was minister of war in President Rodriguez's cabinet. He found active support for his candidacy for the nomination by the National Revolutionary Party among numerous Senators and Deputies.

When Cardenas' candidacy became so popular, Calles wisely dropped the plans to make Perez Trevino president. Thus, when the party convention met at Queretaro, it was made to appear that Cardenas was Calles' choice. Cardenas, therefore, not only was easily nominated, but was easily elected president. During the first months of Cardenas' administration nothing happened to indicate that Calles would lose his unofficial title as "Supreme Chief of the Mexican Revolution." Calles continued to live on his beautiful estates at Cuernavaca, enjoying the excellent climate there, free from the disadvantages of living in Mexico City with its altitude of 7,349 feet.

One day in June a delegation of senators went to Cuernavaca to see their political boss. They talked to Calles about general conditions and the "supreme chief" issued a statement. He said that the country was tired of the strikes which he insinuated were an outgrowth of the Cardenas labor policies; he reminded the nation what happened when a recent president tried to act independently, evidently referring to Ortiz Rubio.

President Cardenas waited a couple of days, then issued a statement reminding the nation that constitutionally he was the chief executive. He said he had been a friend of Calles for 30 years, but that he, Cardenas, was responsible for running the government. He asked for the resignation of the cabinet and appointed a new one in which the Callistas were left out.

Calles in Exile Stunned, Calles admitted privately that he had made a mistake: packed his baggage, went to California, then to Hawaii, and only recently returned to California. Thus far he has not been back in Mexico. Repercussions were widespread. Several governors were ousted; generals of prominence were changed from one post to another. Some people, incapable of believing that Calles' power could be ended without a fight, predicted a revolution. Cardenas maintained his usual Tarascan Indian serenity throughout. He continued his work of consolidating himself with public opinion and the masses—above all with the millions of Indians throughout the republic. He told the peasants that if necessary they would be armed and even organized into an army to see to it that the advantages they had obtained by the revolution would not be taken away from them.

Friend of Indians Already one of them who had travelled most within his own country, Cardenas set out on a 40 day tour of the country, eating with the Indians, talking to them and listening to their complaints. In September, Cardenas was stricken with malaria and was ill for nearly two months. He arose in time to confound those who had scattered wild rumors that he was gravely ill and ready to resign to go abroad for medical treatment. Cardenas is still young. He celebrated his 40th birthday last May 21. If he is able to complete his term of six years, he undoubtedly will leave his mark on the nation. Even if he doesn't, his action of June, 1935 in defying Calles will remain historic.

RULE OF IRON FOR ETHIOPIA LIKELY AGAIN

By EDWARD BEATTIE United Press Staff Correspondent ADDIS ABABA, Dec. 12.—War's end will see a return of the old, mailed fist Amhara rule, informed Ethiopians believe.

It will be a repetition of the tactics which in past centuries enabled the true Ethiopian hillman to sweep enemies from their plateaus, subjugate race after race as the years passed, and keep them in perpetual fear and subservience to their Amhara masters. Amhara scoundrels sat in the provincial capitals and Amhara troops saw to it that taxes were collected and the Emperor's orders obeyed. Even in Menelik's time, the dreaded punitive expeditions from the high plateau were frequent. Haile Selassie tried to change that since the abortive Gugsha rebellion four years ago, when the embryo airforce shattered the morale of the revolting armies, there has been peace. Amhara governors have continued to sit in the capitals, but the emphasis now is on cooperation toward a stronger and more modern Ethiopia.

Provincial Affairs Obtained The Emperor realizes that cooperation is necessary if the forces of reaction are to be beaten, he has tried to rally provincial support and to a great extent succeeded. It is the reason he could present a united front to the Italian offensive when Count Venci and others assured

Rome that the threat of war would mean domestic crack-up. But if war ends and there still remains an Ethiopia, it may be a different story. If the Emperor is forced to cede his northern provinces, or even part of them, there will be mutterings and distrust in every northern palace. Such mutterings in the past have led to open revolt. Hundreds of thousands of Ethiopians who previously were peacefully at work on their farms will be at large, still in the war fever and unwilling to settle down. Chiefs who in the past were content with a handful of trade guns for their men will find themselves supplied with rifles of all sorts, many of them modern, and even with machine guns. No longer will the modern arms be restricted to the loyal imperial army. Many Chiefs Restless Such a situation with many chiefs still contemptuous of the Emperor as an interloper, and a nationwide flare-up. And cause a nationwide flare-up. And it might destroy or set back for years the modernization program which is Haile Selassie's aim. The country must be peaceful and safe for foreigners before the improvements, the concessions, the development of all kinds, can be set in motion. That is the reason which many believe will cause a reversion to dictation by the central government rather than cooperation of and its provinces. They prefer to see the signs already. A new Imperial Guard is being set up to replace the men at the front. They are still only partly equipped with rifles but they are drilling daily and will be held in readiness as reserves until war's end, and will be used, if necessary, to back Emperor's edict against rebellious chiefs. By COWAN. NEGRO SHIFT FROM SOUTH SETS RECORD

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 12—Negroes are leaving the Southland in greater numbers than ever recorded by the Bureau of the Census in the past 145 years. Publication of a government pamphlet entitled "Negroes in the United States, 1920-1932" revealed a marked shift northward of the race. A trend from rural districts to urban centers was noted. "The greatest change in the distribution of the negro race within the United States since 1790 occurred in the decade 1920-30," the report states. Previous to 1919, the proportion of the negro population resident in the south did not vary greatly from census to census. "In 1790, the proportion living in the south was 91.1 per cent, and this proportion increased in succeeding decades to a maximum proportion of 92.8 per cent in 1830. It fell off in 1870. It dropped from 89 per cent to 85.2 per cent from 1910 to 1920 and to 78.7 per cent in 1930."

Trend Is Westward
The principal direction of migration has been westward, with the growth of the negro population within the south taking place in the east south central and west south central divisions. In 1790, of the total negro population, 88.9 per cent was in the south Atlantic states. In 1930, only 37.2 per cent was in these states. In 1930, the total negro population was 11,891,143, or 9.7 per cent of the entire United States population. This compares with 757,208 negroes in 1790, or 19.3 per cent of the entire population. Between 1920 and 1930, the negro population increased 1,428,012, or 13.6 per cent, as compared with an increase of 15.7 per cent in the white population. In 1930, there were 19 counties in which negroes constituted 75 per cent or more of the total population. Mississippi reported eight, Alabama six, Georgia two and Arkansas, Louisiana and Virginia one each. In the 1920 census there were 36, and in the 1910 census 53.

Fewer Till Soil
Between 1920 and 1930, the number of negro farmers decreased 4.6 per cent. Negroes operated 3.8 per cent of all farm lands in the country in 1930. There were 329,000 negro farmers, who constituted 14 per cent of the total, while the negro population represented 9.7 per cent of the total population. Of the number of negro farmers, 98.7 per cent were in the South; 1.3 per cent in the North, and 0.1 per cent in the West. The value of land and buildings for farms operated by negroes in 1930 was $1,402,945,796, which was 37.9 per cent less than in 1920. The value of farm products sold, traded, or used by the families of colored

With All My Love by Mary Raymond Copyright NEA 1935

BEGIN HERE TODAY
After the death of her parents, lovely DANA WESTBROOK comes from abroad to make her home with her grandmother, MRS. WILLIAM CAMERON.
Dana's half-sister, SALLY WALLACE, resents Dana's coming.
Dana's grandmother is elated when rich RONALD MOORE falls in love with her granddaughter. Dana, meanwhile, has become attracted to DR. SCOTT STANLEY, a struggling young physician.
Sally, who makes her love for Ronald behind an antagonistic attitude, unobtrusively watches his love for Dana deepen. Just as anxiously PAULA LONG watches Scott Stanley's interest in Dana increase.
Dana and Scott, swept away by their love for each other, recklessly decide to marry. Mrs. Cameron gloomily predicts that the marriage will not last. Paula is torn by an emotional storm over the news that Scott and Dana have married.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XX

PAULA said to the housekeeper, "Fix me up something to drink. Something stiff. And bring another package of cigars. After that I don't want to be disturbed—not by anyone."
Her directions were followed discreetly, and in silence.
"Why don't you say something?" Paula shrilled wildly, her taut nerves snapping. "Didn't you hear the news? Scott's married!"
"Yes, I know," Charlotte told her. "I'm sorry."
"Sorry? What are you sorry about?"
"I'm afraid he's made a mistake," Charlotte said quietly. "He had no business getting married when he's just beginning his practice."
"Of course he hadn't," Paula gulped down the strong drink and made a wry face.
"He'll probably regret it," Charlotte said. "No one knew Paula so well as her housekeeper, who had devoted herself to spoiling Paula, catering to her every whim, for years."
"All right, now. Go out and let me sleep."
When the door closed, Paula flung herself down. Deep, terrible sobs were smothered against a pillow.
She told herself that she hated Scott. She never wanted to see him again! The paroxysm over, she lay staring with glazed, pain-filled eyes at the beautiful, ornate room.
It might have been different, she thought, if she had allowed Scott to see what was in her heart instead of hiding her love. She had been so afraid of losing his companionship—the confidence and affection he gave her. But she had never let him look into that secret place of her heart, filled so long with nothing but him.
"I know every mood of his," Paula thought desolately. "It will take her years to know him as I do. And yet she walks off with him after a few months and marries him!"
Perhaps if they had not gone to the club that afternoon, he would not have met Dana. Or if Dana had not had some misunderstanding with Ronnie Moore that wouldn't have happened.

of logs, cast a ply the lides. Their time is spent in fishing, hunting and trapping, according to the season. They already had faced the perplexing problem of where to put these gifts in their limited quarters. "Gosh!" Scott exclaimed, "if this keeps up, we'll need a house. Maybe I made a mistake giving up the old place."
"We'll find places," said resourceful Dana. "And you didn't make a mistake. Think how nice it will be this winter without a furnace to bother with."
NEVER, never would she let Scott know of that first deep disappointment she had felt when he had brought her to this home.
"This," said Dana, her arms lifted high to Scott who was standing on a chair, packing wedding gifts on a high shelf, "is the penalty for marrying such a good-looking and popular doctor."
Paula's present, which Dana called "Light from the East," was one of those that was not packed out of sight. It looked very grand and oddly out of place, in the modest apartment.
Paula had dropped in the day before and then dashed home for a beautiful Oriental tapestry and two gorgeous vases. "I have no earthly use for them since they don't match the scheme of my place," she said. "So please use them, Dana."
Neither did Dana think they matched the scheme of her apartment, but to refuse was out of the question. She watched, with misgivings, as Paula tacked the elaborate tapestry above the couch. Dana didn't like it. She didn't like the Oriental vases, or the Oriental lamp either.
But what could she do about it when Paula was obviously trying to be friendly?
Nancy breezed in presently. "Where's the incense?" she had asked. "And the teakwood and the carved ivory and all the rest? I must say, I wouldn't have suspected you of anything like this, Dana."
"Paula brought them. She seemed anxious for us to use them," Dana said doubtfully. "I'm afraid they make this living room look pretty awful."
"Smooth as silk," Nancy commented.
After a moment, Dana realized Nancy had not been talking about the living room.

How many real problems are there on your Christmas list? Let's see. There's Aunt Samantha. And Cousin Jane, who always has had everything she wanted. And the Jones' are so terribly particular. How is a person to know?
There's an answer for every individual problem you may have—look through the advertisements in this newspaper. You'll find good gift-suggestions here for all the Aunt Samanthas and Cousin Janes in the world.
Something novel for a lady who likes to play bridge? You'll find it in the advertisements. Something extra-special for the Ware baby. What, oh what, shall we give Uncle Jack? You'll find the right answers in the Advertisements.
Make it a habit to use the advertising columns of this paper as a sure buying guide—not just at Christmas time but throughout the year.
Remember: when you buy an advertised product, you get something good—at a fair price. It NEVER pays to advertise, until and unless the product is RIGHT.

HOME EC AIM IS BETTERING HOME, NATION

By FRANCES BOWEN
Home Economics Teacher, Cisco High School

There have been many causes given for the "downfall of the American Home." First we said it was war, then we blamed it on the depression. Whatever the cause we are most of us aware that our American home has disintegrated. We are not so concerned at the present time with the cause of this fall, but with the remedy of the present condition.

Educators have been aware of the condition, but have been slow to do anything about it. Homemaking teachers, aware that their work was in the home, are now taking the lead in so revising their work and study that the home and its members will be brought to the forefront in our training of the young folk for the duties and responsibilities they will assume in the future.

No course of study can ever meet entirely the needs of every community. The way that the homemaking teacher in each locality adapts her work to the actual needs is the way that her life and vitality is given to Home Economics.

The question before us is, "Where do we want our homes to go?" We must determine our goal; then guide children to set the needs for their own life; and finally direct and help them to attain their ideals.

Three Million Bales Texas Crop Is Seen

A cotton crop of 3,000,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight is forecast for Texas based on information furnished by crop correspondents on December 1. This production compares with 2,400,000 bales produced in 1934, and 4,238,000 bales produced in 1933. The indicated lint yield of 138 pounds per acre compared with 112 pounds in 1934; 145 pounds in 1933; and 144 pounds the 10-year average. The area left for harvest is estimated at 10,000,000 acres compared with 12,977,000 acres in 1934 and 11,458,000 in 1933. The final cotton of cotton will depend upon whether or not the various influences affecting the harvesting of the crop during the remainder of the season are more or less favorable than usual. The decline in prospective production of 200,000 bales since the November 1 forecast is due to damage to late fruit by frost and freeze. This damage was most severe in the Trans-Pecos and High Plains areas and extended approximately as far east as Wichita Falls and Abilene. Texas ginning prior to December 1, 1935, are reported by the census at 2,419,000 running bales. The number of bales ginned to December 1, 1934 and 1933, was 2,177,000 and 4,037,000, respectively. On the basis of the present forecast of 3,000,000 bales, approximately 83 percent of the crop was ginned to December 1. This compares with 94.5 percent in 1934, 95.7 percent in 1933, and a 10 year average of 91.6 percent.

She's in The Navy Now!

What star in the movie firmament would not be proud of this Court of Honor? Interest professed in the Texas Centennial celebrations by Ginger Rogers, Texas girl whose next Hollywood picture is "Follow the Fleet," has been rewarded by Governor James V. Allred in her appointment as Honorary Admiral in the Texas Navy. It's a real commission in a real navy, Texas having once been an independent republic with its own national fleet patrolling the seas; modern statutes perpetuate the naval militia, and Ginger now becomes its first honorary admiral. Charming coeds of the University of Texas were in the capitol when the commission was signed, and the governor promptly appointed them to Ginger's staff. The governor is holding the signed commission and the girls are posing with the six flags that have flown over Texas. Left to right: Katherine Frank of Dallas, Eloise Ely of Abilene, Katherine Lettler of Corpus Christi, Governor Allred, Janet Pucher of San Angelo, June Ross of Fort Worth, and Isabelle Thompson of El Paso. Insert is Ginger herself.

NEW COTTON 4-YEAR PLAN IS EXPLAINED

COLLEGE STATION, Dec. 12.—Cotton officials at College Station announced recently that the new four-year cotton adjustment contract approved by Secretary Wallace will be offered to cotton producers to replace the contract expiring at the end of 1935.

"The new contract and program follow the general plan of adjustment in 1934 and 1935 but there are a number of important changes," A. L. Smith, chairman of the State Cotton Allotment Board, said.

"These were made in an effort to simplify the program, to make it more flexible, to decentralize administration back into the states and increase grower responsibility, and to eliminate inequalities in the previous program.

The major changes in the new cotton contracts:

1. They cover four years instead of one.
 2. National base acreage is reduced from 45,500,000 to 44,500,000 acres.
 3. The reduced production for 1935 must be 30 to 45 percent of the base, compared with 25 to 35 percent in 1933, and 35 to 45 percent in 1934.
 4. Benefits equal to five cents a pound, or $8.00 an acre, will be paid in one check for the reductions.
 5. Share croppers will receive 25 percent of the payments instead of the 15 percent they now get; non-managing share tenants 50 percent instead of 22 1/2 percent, and managing share tenants 50 percent instead of 37 1/2 percent.
- The announcement of the cotton program by the AAA from Washington said that despite a reduction of 8,500,000 bales through the "plow-up" campaign and current reduction programs the world carry-over of American cotton last August 1 was around 9,000,000 bales—3,000,000 bales larger than the average annual carry-over in the 10-year period ending in 1932-33, but 4,000,000 bales less than the record 13,000,000 bales carry-over in 1932.
- "We have taken into account the unique position which cotton holds in our national life," said Administrator Chester C. Davis in announcing the contracts. "Our primary concern is the welfare of the producer. We believe that while benefiting him primarily, the program will also be of great benefit to the south and the country as a whole."
- "We feel also that we have in the last three years passed well beyond the emergency which necessitated the plow-up campaign in 1932. Our policy consequently aims at the adjustment of the supply of cotton through as the AAA expresses it, a gradual correction of the present inequalities."
- Chally A. Cobb, director of the division of cotton, pointed out that unless adjustment is continued, a further addition to the over-abundant accumulation of supplies will follow. The result would be a lower income from cotton and a return toward depression conditions.

inspected and 303 found to be dangerous in the event of a temblor. Sixty-two per cent of the 1,276 parapet walls surveyed 11 per cent of the 216 marquees inspected were listed as "hazardous."

So far there has been no exact tabulation of the response of property owners to warnings given by building inspectors. When informed they would be liable for damages from falling cornices, marquees or other adjuncts of their buildings found to be dangerous, nearly all readily agreed to eliminate the hazards, Cope said.

The survey will be extended soon into the industrial sections south of Market street.

The survey first was undertaken in 1933 in response to repeated urging from engineering groups. It was discontinued for awhile early this year by lack of funds but has been resumed under a $50,000 appropriation in the 1935-36 budget.

Texas Celebrates Siege Anniversary

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 12.—The Centennial anniversary of the historic siege of Bexar and the capture of San Antonio by the Texans will be commemorated here December 7 to 9 under direction of the State Association of Texas Pioneers. The observance will carry the "state-wide Centennial year" celebration, opened last month at Gonzales, to San Antonio where a number of commemorative events are planned during the year.

Opening the observance on Saturday, December 7, was a pilgrimage to Ben Milam's grave. Col. W. B. Tuttle, grand marshal, will lead to Milam's grave the descendants of men who fought in the battle, members of patriotic societies, and the band, citizens and school children.

Religious services in the churches of San Antonio were held in connection with the observance on December 8. A luncheon with W. E. Pope, Mayor C. K. Cain, and Dr. Walter F. McCaleb as speakers, will be the featured event Monday, December 9.

One hundred years ago, on the morning of December 5, 1836, Ben Milam led the advance on San Antonio, then occupied by an enemy force, opening the four days of fighting in which 300 Texans were put against an entrenched enemy outnumbering them more than three to one. The fighting continued through December 6, 7, and 8 and reached its climax early on the morning of December 9 when the enemy raised a flag of truce. The memorable battle resulted in the establishment of every Mexican soldier across the Rio Grande river.

Lower Grades Of Cotton Continue

Samples classed this week from representative gins in Texas continue to reflect a trend, observable for the past several weeks, of successively lower average grades each week as the active ginning season approaches the end.

This week only 4 per cent of the samples classed from Texas ginnings was strict middling and better (white and extra white) compared to 8 per cent last week and 17 per cent for the total classed for the season to date. By contrast it may be noted that the largest proportion for any week this season for these high grades was classed for the week ending September 7, during which 34 per cent of the samples classed was strict middling and better grades. Nearly one-half of the samples classed this week, 46 per cent, conformed to grades for spotted cotton, and about 38 per cent was strict low middling and lower grades of white and extra white cotton.

The average length of staple for cotton classed this week, while longer than for some weeks in October, is shorter than for any of the last few weeks. About 4 per cent is 1 1/8 inch and longer this week compared to 9 per cent last week and about 11 per cent for the season to date. The lengths in the largest proportions are 7-8 inch, constituting 39 per cent of the total classed this season to date, a 16 inch constituting about 10 per cent of the samples classed.

Neapolitan Populace Saints Doctor Who Attended Opera Singer on His Death Bed

NAPLES, Dec. 10.—Professor Giuseppe Moscati, charitable physician who died here eight years ago, has been sainted by the Neapolitan populace. Moscati enjoyed a wide fame throughout the Naples area during his lifetime for his goodness and the purity of his life. The reversed physician carried on his profession purely for philanthropic purposes although he was a poor man. His sole purpose in life was the alleviation of suffering and illness among humanity. Moscati was one of the four eminent physicians who gave up hope for Enrico Caruso at the Hotel Vesuvio of this city on August 2, 1921, at the solemn consultation which was held by the four specialists over the great tenor's illness. There judgment was borne out for next day Caruso died. The spiritual devoutly Catholic Neapolitans today consider the professor a saint. His body, by special permission from the archbishopric of Naples same time ago was exhumed from the cemetery and placed in a crypt in the Church of Jesus in this city. Moscati's body is worshipped by the city's populace as though the holy physician had already attained sainthood. Before the professor's tomb in the church large numbers of faithful

The Franco-British Peace Proposal

The little nations of the world—that is, the little nations of the League at Geneva—yesterday backed up against the wall and battled a winning fight against what they termed a threat to the future existence of every small independent state on earth. They defied the powers of Great Britain and France, who had proposed a plan for a peaceful settlement of the war in Ethiopia.

There is little wonder that the small nations viewed the proposal with alarm, for it called for the ceding of about half of Ethiopia to Italy—which is really more than Mussolini could reasonably expect should he win his African campaign. At the same time, the plan would be establishing a precedent, although of course this was not mentioned in the Franco-British proposal.

Giving a slice—such a large slice, to view it conservatively—of Ethiopia to Italy would be "offering a premium to the aggressor nation", as an Ethiopian minister phrased it. The League of Nations was created to keep peace throughout the world. But it was not created to keep peace by bowing to force. It appears to the American bystander, watching in the headlines the war across the waters, that Britain and France, in making the proposal, are breaking faith with their fellow League members.

It seems that there are two methods which they might choose between and remain fairly consistent. They might carry out their promises to punish the aggressor, which, under the circumstances, they have designated as Italy, or they might, as the United States is doing, remain neutral.

The plan which has been advanced by the two great powers follows neither of these two paths, and it begins to appear that England and France may not have been motivated by so much altruism as was at first supposed.

'By a Jury of His Peers'

The pageantry that belonged to feudal England was revived for a time yesterday when Lord De Clifford exercised the privileges of aristocracy to demand a trial by a jury of his peers—which, in this case, meant a trial in the house of lords.

The young baron knelt on a silken cushion while the jurors heard his case and then he was acquitted on the ground that no case had been made out of the charge of manslaughter which he was facing.

All this seems very strange to the average American. It is difficult for us to understand of the privilege which sends one man to trial in an ordinary court and allows another a trial by members of what is nominally the highest body in the land, the higher house of parliament.

But the ancient law gives every man "the right to a trial by a jury of his peers." Since young De Clifford is a nobleman, this naturally would call for a jury of other noblemen. It is not the law concerning the trial which is strange to American ideas. It is the law which allows special class distinctions—common people and nobility. It is the same sort of law which allowed an aristocrat sentenced to death to be hanged from a higher gallows than a commoner convicted of the same or a similar crime.

Americans can never understand entirely the laws which grant special privileges. It is true that we have developed a sort of class system. But it is far more flexible than that which is fixed by law in England. To the American a "trial by a jury of his peers" means a trial by a jury composed of a cross section of American life—farmers, business men, school teachers, mechanics, and maybe a housewife or two.

FARM STATES VOTE AGAINST NEW DEAL, 3-2

The popularity of the New Deal shows another decline in the fourth report of The Literary Digest's nationwide poll as 642,711 votes from twenty-six States are tallied. The total balloting to date is shown divided 274,830 votes, or 42.76 per cent for the New Deal, to 367,881 votes, or 57.24 per cent against it.

The voting against the New Deal was 53.28 per cent in the first poll report, 55.89 per cent in the second, and 55.60 per cent in last week's tabulation.

The latest tabulation which appears in the current issue of the magazine shows seven states, all in the south, averaging majorities of over 3 to 2 for the New Deal while the nineteen other states vote negatively on the question "Do you now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal to date?" by margins of scant majorities to over 3 to 1, as in Massachusetts.

All of the states from which ballots have been reported so far, with the exception of Connecticut, voted for Roosevelt in 1932.

The farm belt states of Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, and also Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, and Michigan are indicated as disapproving the New Deal by an average ratio of about 3 to 2.

Additional votes from the eighteen States reported last week show a fractional increase for the New Deal in six states and a decrease in popularity of the New Deal in the other twelve.

The initial returns from Alabama this week show a 2 to 1 approval of the "acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal."

"The way you turn a casual compliment into the most unusual festivity" Dana laughed up at him. "Are compliments banned now that you're married?"

"Certainly not, I need them more than ever. Every married woman faces the bugaboo of having her friends say behind her back 'Poor dear, she's getting positively shabby.'"

Ronnie smiled. "I can't picture you in that class. If any man ever allowed you to get shabby—well he ought—" Ronnie stopped.

"Ought what?"

"Ought to lose you," Ronnie replied slowly.

Dana's eyes met his. Ronnie flushed under her direct look.

"Good heavens, Dana. You know I was just generalizing."

"Naturally," Dana reassured him. "How could you be talking about me?"

Somehow, though, she felt nettled. It had been utterly ridiculous of Ronnie to think she might take the remark personally.

"Because I don't look shabby," she thought proudly. "And Scott would never let me be so shabby, would he?"

If they continued to run around, partying so much, she would need a new evening dress. She wouldn't think about it now. This white one would do nicely for a while. And perhaps they wouldn't have so many invitations. People always invited newly married people out and then, after a while, the novelty wore off and they left them alone.

A few weeks later, Dana and Scott decided to pay off some social obligations by giving a small dinner.

"Get a maid in to help you," Scott suggested.

"I don't need any help," Dana assured him. "Cooking for six people isn't much more trouble than cooking for two."

Brave words. Dana was to recall them later. She decided to serve chicken. She had roasted chicken several times before, and it had been delicious. An apple salad would be easy to make and always looked nice, with its bright heart resting in crisp green lettuce leaves. She would have candied sweet potatoes, asparagus tips, hot rolls from the baker's. And angel food cake with grated pineapple and a dash of whipped cream on it was a fool-proof dessert.

Dana began preparations for dinner at an hour which allowed a safe margin for dressing. What happened to the time, what be witched the hours was something she was to puzzle over and never find the answer. Rushing wildly from one task to another in her haste to retrieve lost time only aggravated her misfortunes.

In the end, there was Scott, hasty some after a hard day that had netted him absolutely nothing, to find Dana with a flushed face, wildly flourishing spoons.

"How's my girl?" Scott called as he entered the apartment.

"Oh, Scott!" wailed Dana. "I'm all right, but everything else is ruined!"

veit New Deal." The balloting in Colorado is almost the reverse with nearly a 2 to 1 vote against the Deal.

The first 13,175 votes from Connecticut indicate that 72.21 per cent of the voters there are dissatisfied with the Administration's policies. Indiana is shown returning an initial 34,991 ballots of which 40.67 per cent against it.

The first batch of the ballots from Maryland, totaling 17,893, show the electorate there divided approximately 2 to 1 in opposition to the New Deal.

Michigan polls 23,361 votes in its first return which evidence a ratio of 7 to 3 in opposition to the New Deal. The initial returns from North Carolina, which gave almost 70 per cent of its popular vote to Roosevelt in his 1932 election, show that the State's voters are now overwhelmingly in favor of the New Deal with 64.95 per cent of the state's return in the poll to date voted in support of the Roosevelt policies.

The eighth state from which initial returns are reported this week is West Virginia which votes 5,384 for the New Deal to 7,439 against it. The twenty-six states from which returns are reported in the current tally represented over 63 per cent of the total population of the United States and the same states cast practically two-thirds of the total vote which Roosevelt received in his election in 1932.

When Sluggishness Causes Distress After Meals Take BLACK-DRAUGHT

The good that Black-Draught does in the relief of constipation makes it one of the most popular laxatives of its kind. Thousands of men and women keep it in their homes for prompt use at the first sign of intestinal sluggishness.

"I take Black-Draught for constipation that causes a disagreeable feeling after meals, bloating, bad taste and excessive gas," writes Mrs. Eugene West, of Dothan, Ala. "I can cleanse my system and regulate my bowels with Black-Draught and I do not have this trouble. I find Black-Draught splendid. I recommend it to others. My husband takes Black-Draught and it helps him."

Black-Draught is purely vegetable. Sold in 25-cent packages.
