About Our Friends

STEP A. LONG

Those who like to read detective stories for the mere love of solving plots for mental exercise, should find plenty to occupy them if they only will observe the doings of the European nations in their dealings with each other and the United States....

Greece seems to want to pay some $100,000 of the more than two-hundred thousand due as war debt.... no one thinks for a moment that this little country has suddenly become conscience stricken about her debts or has more money than she knows what to do with....

And still the struggle goes on.... Lobbyists are working hard to change our neutrality policy so that arms and ammunition makers can cash in on the present war trade....

CHURCH WILL HOLD MEETING ON MARCH 3-4

Methodist of the Central Texas conference are to hold their first annual conference for local church workers in Waco March 3 and 4. It is announced today by Rev. W. H. Cole, pastor of the First Methodist church here.

Rev. Mr. Cole is chairman of the conference board of Christian education, which is to sponsor the meeting.

The new conference feature is planned to bring together hundreds of pastors, superintendents, teachers and officers of the hundreds of Sunday schools of the conference area. The smallest as well as the largest churches are expected to send their workers to this mass-conference, for counsel and that they may realize that their tasks are, and must be faced together.

The general theme of the conference will be "The Church Dynamic Life." Evangelism and church unity, training, missions, and temperance will be among the topics for emphasis as well as building Christian homes.

Transportation Blocked by Snow

MEN CALLED OUT TO MOVE HUGE DRIFTS

By United Press
Snow choked middle west and eastern transportation systems today and the nation recruited thousands of men armed with shovels and snow plows to break through mountainous drifts.

At least eight deaths were attributed to the cold wave. Armed guards were posted around 10 derailed carloads of coal at Imogene, Iowa, where a fuel famine created a statewide emergency.

One hundred twenty-five passengers on a Chicago and Northwestern train were rescued after hours of imprisonment amid drifts at Jackson, Wis. Many schools closed. Supplies were cut to the danger point in parts of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, Kentucky, and Massachusetts.

RELIEF PROMISED AFTER TEXAS COLD
Texans broke the icicles off the frozen Wednesday, thawed out the frozen milk bottle, and looked out on a sunshiny day which promised relief from bitter blizzards.

Mayors Switch Four Times in 4 Hours

NORTH BALTIMORE, Ohio, Feb. 5—(U.P.)—North Baltimore had four mayors within four hours one night. The sudden mayoral abundance started with a lot of councilmanic maneuvering to put O. B. McKenna, last year's mayor, on the board of trustees in charge of the municipal waterworks.

After council's business had been concluded, Mayor McKenna resigned. This automatically made Fred Halboth, president of council, mayor.

M'CRAW WILL GIVE OKEH TO BOND ISSUES

AUSTIN, Feb. 5—(U.P.)—The Brazos river conservation district today was granted a mandamus order by the state supreme court directing Attorney General William McCraw to approve the bonds issued for general improvement on the Brazos river.

"That starts us on our work," said W. M. Harmon, Waco, former legislator who has been attending meetings of the court regularly since December awaiting a ruling.

The mandamus to require the attorney general to approve the bonds offered a way for a court ruling. The bonds were issued under terms of an act that authorized diversion of a state taxes in Austin, Brazoria, Burleson, Fort Bend, Grimes, Waller, Washington, Brazos, Milam, and Robertson counties for 20 years.

Validity of such procedure was upheld on the ground the state can act in cases of public calamity. Existence of the Brazos river uncontrolled was held by the court to be "a continuing public calamity."

Looking Toward the Lion Convention

Cisco Lions are looking forward to their district convention here in the spring. Lions all over the district likewise are looking forward to it.

This will be a good opportunity to show Cisco off. It is Centennial year. People will be going places this year as never before. Why shouldn't they come to Cisco?

We have plenty to offer in the way of recreation—if we are willing to push it.

There is the lake. Many Texans have heard of it but never seen it. With it are the swimming pool and the parks. Many more people have heard of them. Why not show them?

The Lions club here already is making plans for a successful convention—"to bring so many people here that they will talk about what a big crowd was at the convention when they go home." They were to make more plans for the meeting today when the district governor talked with the convention committee.

Some things already have been done by Ciscoans other than Lions to insure the success of the convention. Many more are to be done later. The Lions will call upon others as citizens of Cisco and friends of both the city and the Lions club to aid in stamping the meeting with success. When that call is issued Ciscoans will be found ready to respond.

The Labor Disputes

When there are strikes and labor troubles, look forward to a brighter future for labor.

That is an old saying which generally has held true. Strikes and labor disputes have generally been the forerunners of better times.

That apparently means that something is developing which may mean a further measure of recovery both in this nation and in other countries.

Strikes over much of the world have halted business operations in the last few days. Most important of all perhaps is that of the meat employes in the London area, whose walkout left more than eight million persons as temporary vegetarians. In New York an even larger number of workers—20,000 elevator operators—awaited a walkout order, while 20,000 military employes had already received their call to close shop. In Chile and Curacao there were other violent upheavals, and it was feared that there might be trouble in Illinois.

When labor realizes that capital is facing a serious situation as it is, it generally removes its coat and goes to work uncomplainingly. But when it believes that capital is getting a little breathing spell, it wants one too. It may be that the present labor troubles over the world mean that labor is going to find a little smoother sailing as soon as these differences are adjusted.

Desperate Italy

Italy is desperate. The fate of the nation hangs in the balance now, with the chief weight lying in the campaign in East Africa.

Italy has been bluffing on the diplomatic front, while cold steel and high explosives have meant business on the actual war front. But while Mussolini has been warning the world what he intends to do and what any action to stop him will mean, he has been trying to fortify his position and gain more allies.

Balked at every turn by Great Britain, notably in regard to France and Greece, he now faces the problem of fighting it out alone. The League of Nations has been doing a lot of bluffing too, and likewise has been trying to strengthen its position. While the powers have hemmed and hawed and appointed this and that commission they have been "exchanging cards under the table" as well. Now a commission of experts is at work studying the possibilities of enforcing an embargo on oil.

Italy knows very well what that will mean. It will mean that Italy will have to end the war in Ethiopia and laugh it off the best way possible, or else—

That other possibility is the most desperate measure of all. It is that Italy can suddenly attack another nation, one which is a leader in the oil embargo movement—which is obviously Britain. If Italy could win a great victory in such a sudden move, the future of the Ethiopian venture might be assured. If not, then Italy would have to sink back to a very minor position indeed.

Italy realizes all these possibilities. That is why the most important meetings of the Fascist forces since the beginning of the African campaign were held yesterday. Upon those meetings may rest the immediate future of Europe.

OUT OUR WAY

1901 Held Start Of Twentieth Century

AUSTIN, Feb. 5.—When does the twentieth century begin? Did it begin on January 1, 1900, or January 1, 1901? This question was recently propounded to a class in the history of ancient Greece at the University of Texas, by Dr. F. E. Marsh. Half the class voted January 1, 1900, while the other half would not commit themselves.

Man Hurt 3 Times In Year's Crashes

TIFFIN, O., Feb. 5.—George Connor, 65 year old filling station operator, has been injured three times in automobiles in less than a year. Just released from a Willard, O. hospital after recovering from his second auto accident, he was knocked down by a car and injured again.

The STRANGE CASE OF JULIA CRAIG

by Nard Jones Copyright NEA 1936

BEGIN HERE TODAY JULIA CRAIG, secretary to GEORGE WOODFORD, lawyer, is ambitious to become a night club singer with AMY ANDERS. PETER KEMP, young lawyer, is in love with Julia but they quarrel and she tells him every thing is over between them. Woodford gives a party and Julia meets TOM PAYSON, coming to a class in the history of ancient Greece at the University of Texas, by Dr. F. E. Marsh. Half the class voted January 1, 1900, while the other half would not commit themselves. "You're all wrong," Dr. Marsh said. "It's January 1, 1901. There's no such thing as a zero year," he added. Did you ever step to think of the year 1 A. D.? Now think about 100 A. D., and you'll see only 99 years passed between January 1, 1 A. D., and January 1, 100 A. D. Therefore January 1, 101 is the date that marked the exact passing of the first century after Christ. Therefore the Twentieth Century began January 1, 1901. EXAMS AND COFFEE AUSTIN, O.—Dr. C. P. Boner, physics professor at the University of Texas, has a party along with final examinations. Mid-way through their three-hour tests, students take time out for coffee and doughnuts—and all on Dr. Boner.

"Thanks, Tom," said Julia shakily. "Just one song," Garland warned. "And an encore if they beg for it. This first night is tough on you—and if you're weak we don't want them to get onto it." Then he left the dressing room in his quick, nervous stride. Payson laughed. "Don't mind him, Julia. He's so excited he doesn't know what he's doing." "He's excited?" exclaimed Julia. "What do you think I—?" She stopped quickly. A tiny green light flashed on the wall. She stood up, quickly arranged her long white gown. "It's my number," she whispered. "Good luck, kid. I'll be out there leading the cheering." AS she walked out into the spotlight there was no applause as there was that first night on Tony Latta's gambling ship. Suddenly Julia realized that Garland's publicity had been so extended as to arouse their skepticism. Then a queer thing happened. Out of all that crowd the face of Peter Kemp focused into Julia's gaze. He sat at a small table with a young dark girl—a quiet, pretty girl whose eyes betrayed her awe for this glittering Nadine White. The sight gave Julia an odd feeling and she thought, "She is the girl he will marry and she will at ways think of me as strange—and yet she is no different from me. . . . And then the music began. . . . Learn to love, if you want me. . . . Learn to trust me if you'd have me. . . ." It was a dragging, plaintive tune—a tune that must have been written for Julia's appealing voice. When she reached the chorus she held her arms out toward the skeptical crowd dropped her voice to a husky whisper singing "Learn to love, if you want me. . . ." There in the glitter of the spotlight with the end mad music drifting around her she became Astaire—Astaire of old, in a modern gown singing a siren song in the idiom of today. Suddenly the crowd could not wait to tell her it was sorry it had doubted. Suddenly it had voted, breaking into the song, making Julia stop for a moment until she had finished. And when she had finished the applause began again, louder now and more prolonged. "I've done it," she thought, making her way unsteadily toward the exit. "I've done it! And they thought I couldn't!" She passed a long table, lined with a party of guests. Someone said, "She's pretty isn't she? I can't blame Tom." It was a woman's voice, and it was a woman's voice which answered, too, as Julia went by: "Of course he can't be serious, even if he did back Garland with money to start this place. Imagine Tom marrying a night club singer!" Her face flaming, Julia hurried toward her dressing room. Smith Garland was there waiting. "You were marvelous, Nadine." But Julia did not hear him. "Is it true that Tom Payson put up the money for all this?" (To Be Continued)

REELECTION IS TO BE SOUGHT BY CROSSLEY

P. L. Crossley, serving his second term as district clerk, announced Tuesday that he would be a candidate for reelection to the position he now holds. Crossley was elected district clerk in 1932 when he first ran for the office, getting an overwhelming majority in the first primary. He ran again in 1934 without any opposition and was again elected. So far he is the only one who has officially announced for the office. He will have an official announcement to make to the people in the near future, he said Tuesday when he made the announcement of his candidacy.
