ROOSEVELT OUTLINES HIS TAX PLAN

ASKS REVISION OF CORPORATE INCOME LEVY

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(U.P.)—Wall Street today viewed President Roosevelt's proposal to tax corporate surpluses as a favorable one first reading but withheld market commitment, pending further study and congressional action on the recommendation.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(U.P.)—President Roosevelt today submitted to congress the outlines of a broad revision of corporate income taxes intended to increase their yield by an estimated $620,000,000 annually and eliminate the necessity for permanent farm processing taxes. Mr. Roosevelt presented a two-point suggestion for restoring the budget to balance except for relief expenditure. The program: 1—A graduated tax estimated by the treasury to yield $1,614,000,000 for the 1936 tax year on undistributed corporate incomes. This would be accompanied by repeal of the present corporate income tax, capital stock tax, excess profits tax, and of the profits present exemption of dividends from normal tax on individual incomes.

Recapture Process Tax 2—A direct tax intended to recapture as much as possible of unpaid and returned processing taxes, coupled with temporary reimposition of processing taxes at lower rates and on a broader base. Yield of these two taxes would be approximately $177,000,000. Treasury officials explained the proposed tax on undistributed corporate income would not be retroactive but would apply to 1936 and future incomes. The president said the intention of the proposed corporate tax should be to tax undistributed corporate incomes so that it would yield approximately the same revenue as if it were distributed and had been taxed after it got into the hands of the individual stockholders.

FARM PLAN IS COVERED WITH MUCH SECRECY

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(U.P.)—A tentative plan drafted to place the administration's $500,000,000 soil conservation farm relief program into effect was surrounded by the utmost secrecy today. Elevator Strike Squadrons Met by Police

71 THOUSAND WORKERS OUT STRIKE CLAIM

NEW YORK, March 3.—(U.P.)—Flying squadrons of striking elevator operators were dispatched to the stock exchange today with orders to force out every service employee in the building. The squadrons were met, however, by a squad of special police and one uniformed officer, who chased them away as they sought to reach the exchange elevator operator. James Bambrick, strike leader, declared 71,000 workers had quit in more than 5,649 buildings. Police estimated only 1,100 buildings had been affected. Bambrick announced the strike would be extended to skyscrapers in the Grand Central area. This could include the 77-story Chrysler tower. Trucks Mobilized After a night of sporadic disorder in which 18 were arrested bringing the total to 45, police mobilized 67 trucks to transport patrolmen to scenes of violence. Police reported partial service had been restored in most apartment houses in the upper east side strike area which includes such residential districts as Park Avenue and Fifth Avenue. One exception was the apartment house at 820 Park Avenue where Governor Herbert Lehman and his family maintain a town home. The building has been without service since yesterday.

A Bike Is Society For Cobina, Jr.

Though her mother is one of the most famous hostesses in New York's social whirl, all the society Miss Cobina Wright needs, evidently, is her trusty bicycle. Charming daughter of Mrs. Esther Cobina Wright, who, as the Irrepressible Cobina, frequently starts Manhattan's exclusive set with her stunt parties and society circuses, Cobina, Jr., is shown vacationing at Palm Beach.

Plenty of Blanks For Old Age Pension Here

Plenty of old age assistance application blanks are now available for aged persons in the Cisco area, it was announced today by J. E. Spencer of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce. Spencer said that the blanks may be obtained by calling for them at the Chamber of Commerce. The first allotment of blanks lasted less than 24 hours after they were received and distribution began. The Chamber of Commerce immediately sent a requisition for more of the applications but found that the same condition of insufficient blanks existed over the entire state and delivery was delayed. Citizens entitled to the old age assistance provided by the state were asked to fill out their applications as soon as possible in order that they may be handled speedily by the old age assistance administration.

League Appeals to Italy, Ethiopia To Make Peace, Begin Negotiations

GENEVA, March 3.—(U.P.)—The League of Nations committee of 13 today adopted a resolution appealing to Italy and Ethiopia to make a peace agreement "within the framework of the League." The resolution, offered by Great Britain and France, was coupled with an appeal to the warring nations to begin negotiations at once with a view of ceasing hostilities. The committee comprising all members of the council except Italy then voted to reconvene on March 10. Italy and Ethiopia thus were given one week to consider the appeal for peace. If Italy rejects it, the League's general council of 18 on penalties is expected to proceed promptly to impose an embargo on shipments of oil to Italy. The Franco-British resolution was adopted at a session which lasted only 15 minutes. Although the appeal was regarded as the League's last alternative to imposition of an oil embargo, it avoided all appearances of being an ultimatum to Italy by not directly fixing a time limit or a reply and by not insisting that Italy cease hostilities before peace negotiations are started.

SOIL EROSION EXPERTS PLAN DUST CONTROL

LODGE CITY, Kan., March 3.—(U.P.)—Soil erosion experts of Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Colorado, and Texas, the "dust bowl" states, met here today to adopt a program of emergency action to protect farms of the dust area. Brain Food Belief Supported by Test

CHICAGO, March 3.—(U.P.)—The tradition that fish food is a boon to mental faculties may not be so far from the truth, according to experiments conducted at Elgin hospital for the insane. Certain diets materially affect the mental balance of an individual, it was shown. Psychiatrists affiliated with the hospital experimented for 12 months with various diets and their effects on male patients. One group received a diet heavy in vitamins A, B-1, B-2, and D as well as iron, as found in liver extracts and cod liver oil. Another group was given the regular hospital fare. Intelligence tests at the end of the 12 months showed that those on the diet had gained the equivalent of 14.15 months of mental age, whereas non-dieters gained only 2.41 months of mental age.

A flurry of excitement among the youngsters in school accompanied the sale of the first Texas Centennial stamps at the post office this morning. W. J. Astai employees arrived at the post office for work this morning they found a line of school children, history students and stamp collectors for the most part, awaiting the opening of the stamp windows. As soon as they had made their purchases, however, the excitement died down and only occasional collectors came in to buy stamps of the new issue. With 10,000 of the stamps on hand, the postal clerks believed they could supply everyone who calls for the issue today. As the stamps were placed on sale one day early in Gonzales yesterday 1,000,000 were sold to collectors all over the world, the supply being exhausted before mid-afternoon.

Two Eras of Cattle Industry Portrayed

AUSTIN, March 3.—(U.P.)—The two eras of Texas' cattle country—one of rawhide, the other of baling wire—will be depicted in University of Texas Centennial exhibits being prepared by J. Everts Haley of Austin. Articles symbolizing the latter era are plentiful in Texas. Haley's preliminary research convinces him that pictures and mementoes of the pioneer "rawhide" period will furnish a comprehensive picture of life in that time. Rawhide use in the Southwest reached its highest point in saddle-making. Other items of cowboy life will include typical paraphernalia—boots, chaps, quirts, spurs, branding irons and ropes. Ranch-country cooking will be represented by the traditional "chuck wagon," and crafts of the range will be depicted in the University exhibition, Haley said.

No Actual Value on Average Utility Stock, Senate Lobby Probers Learn

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(U.P.)—Victor Dorsey, Chicago, veteran power company appraiser, told senate lobby investigators today there was "no real value behind the common and preferred stock of the average public utility." Testifying at the senate inquiry into methods used by utility companies to fight the Wheeler-Rayburn holding company regulations bill, Dorsey said the actual value of the average company's property is determined by the amount of bonds outstanding. "In other words there is no real value behind the preferred stock and none behind the common stock," he was asked. "That is true in the average company," Dorsey replied.

Legal Profession Has House to Clean

The next time some lawyer gets up to weep in public about the undue publicity which attaches itself to the traits of prominent criminals in this country, someone will have to remind him of the closing flurry of the Bruno Hauptmann case.

The Hauptmann case is by way of becoming the horrible example of modern legal history, because of the "circus atmosphere" which surrounded it from the moment Hauptmann was overtaken by the cops.

Running true to form, it flared up with a new spattering of black headlines just the other day. And this flare-up, you might note, was strictly the world of the legal profession.

Convicted of murder and under the sentence of death Hauptmann hired a new lawyer himself. This lawyer held a series of conferences with the condemned man, to see whether he could take the case with any chance of success. In the end he decided that he could not, and withdrew.

All right, so far; that sort of thing has happened in hundreds of criminal cases. But note how it came out in this case.

These final conferences between Hauptmann and the new lawyer were accompanied by all the spiritual and emotional effects of a brass band and a sound film. The country at large sat in on them, vicariously.

With remarkably little lost time, it learned what the lawyer had said to Hauptmann, what Hauptmann had said to the lawyer, and what the lawyer thought of it all.

And then, to cap the climax, the lawyer announced publicly that he could not take the case because his talks with Hauptmann convinced him that "Hauptmann is guilty as hell."

Now there is one thing that irritates the august legal profession more than any other, and that is "trying the case in the newspapers." By and large, the bar has spent almost as much energy denouncing the press for this custom as it has expended in collecting its fees.

But what has just happened is an example of this very thing in its most striking form.

If "trial in the newspapers" prejudices a man's case, in the public mind, how must Hauptmann's case be prejudiced now?

To be sure, the man has already been convicted, and the electric chair is not far away. But insofar as he has a chance left; insofar as there still is room for him to put up a fight—does not a performance like this put Hauptmann still farther back of the eight ball?

And this, mind you, was not the work of the press, but of the legal profession itself.

Glenn Frank Goes on the War Path

Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, is an American educator who follows his own convictions and his own flag. Addressing several thousand educational executives in the city of St. Louis, he made a defense of the free school system on the convention theme, "The Functions of the School in a Democracy." He made smashing hits at the right and left wing pressure in American schools. "Those on the right," he declared, "want the schools to become agencies of their particular conservative concept of the traditional social order; those on the left want them to become agencies of propaganda for their particular brand of new social order based upon some measure of collectivism. I am against both of these groups. The schools will cease to be social institutions if either gains control." CRUISE TO NOWHERE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JANE WESTON feels her dreams have come true when she sets out on a three weeks' ocean cruise, accepted in payment for the salary due her when the magazine for which she worked as typist suspended publication.

On board the ship she meets handsome DIRK STROM, expert ski jumper, as pennant at herself. The two are much attracted to each other. Then a misunderstanding comes between them. Jane is flattered by the attentions of TINO ROSSI, opera singer, and Dirk becomes the frequent escort of NORA LANE, famous actress and owner of the Kokoi diamond.

Others among the passengers are SNOWSHOES, a detective; MADAME BORGNIOL, wealthy and eccentric; DUTCH LENZ and MANNIE JACKSON, blacksmiths; BEN MARTIN and LINDA BAYES, floor show entertainers.

Snowshoes persuades Nora Lane to turn the Kokoi diamond over to the purser. They go to her stateroom to get it and find Madame Jackson, who had been a bullet wound. The diamond is missing.

Snowshoes takes charge of the investigation. Most of the passengers are not aware of the murder, though they know of the theft. They are allowed to go ashore when the boat lands at Nassau.

Linda Bayers shows Jane an unusual note she has received. It reads: "A good girl will keep her mouth shut."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII

TOWARD midnight a long black box was brought to the ship and placed in Suite AA, the scene of the murder. Dirk witnessed this gruesome reminder as he stood looking toward the brilliantly lighted hotel on the beach.

Then he waited by the rail and watched the parties come from the shore. He was standing there, alone, when he caught Jane's tantalizing laugh. Down there on the embankment deck, Tino Rossi was swinging along at her side.

Dirk had wanted to see Jane's face, to know if she were happy. She had realized her ambition, and she deserved this night. If only that ugly incident hadn't kept him from going ashore with Nora Lane!

But when he was alone with the darkness he weakened. He wanted consolation for something tangible he had missed. He started walking down the promenade deck toward the actress's suite with some vague notion of demanding to see her the next morning. Suddenly he came upon a girl, standing alone, looking back at the lights on shore. It was Jane.

She was more surprised than he. "Dirk!" she said.

He faced her, slightly hostile. "Did you have a good time ashore?"

Her eyes were as bright as the stars. "A marvelous time!" she replied.

"And I suppose your moon-struck opera star was most romantic."

"Tino was an angel," she said. "He told me all the lovely things a girl wants to hear. And he was a perfect gentleman."

"I know," Dirk said. "He has all the graces. Flowers, bouquets, orchids, compliments—"

IMPULSIVELY, she reached out and touched his hand.

"You wanted to meet grand people on this cruise," he reminded her. "Color and glamorous romance!"

"Yes, that's what I wanted," Jane said, and her chin was up when she said it. "Poor Tino—I'm afraid I led him a merry chase today. He was so tired. When we came on board just now he went straight to his stateroom to bed. But, on a marvelous night like this, I couldn't stay inside." She was leaning against the rail, looking up at him. She went on. "I'm sorry this murder came up to spoil your cruise. You would have had a good time ashore!" She hastened to add, "—with her, with Nora Lane."

"I was right here most of the time," he said disconsolately, "looking toward the shore, wishing I could be there dancing."

"With a lovely lady," she concluded. "Oh, but you have what you wanted most on this cruise, too. You didn't want to meet a girl without a job. You wanted to meet a famous dramatic star. Well, you did!"

"Yes, that was what I wanted," he said stubbornly, and looked away from her toward the twinkling lights. "I haven't changed my mind."

"We both have found what we wanted—but there's still this gorgeous night," Jane said, taking in the heavens with a sweep of her hand. "I can't go to bed. Why don't we?"

Suddenly his eyes were eager. "Go on."

"You finish it," she said. "What do you think of?"

"Why don't we put deck chairs under the stars and not go to bed at all?" he said.

The giant twin-screw propellers were already churning at the stern; they were underway. They sought the deck under the stars and Dirk placed their chairs where they could watch the lights on the island slip away in the night.

"First I want to tell you," she said, "that I know you aren't implicated in that murder and that I'm on your side."

HE didn't want to talk about that. "We're on our way home now," he said, "with a stop at more islands in the sea."

"Tell me about your job," she begged.

"For me, that's part of this grand feeling I have. I've got to see some shape to my life. And I'll have to carve out my little niches—literally. I'm designing a new kind of ski. Now, that's out. Let's talk about you."

"There's nothing about me to talk about!" Jane said. "I'm just—me."

But he was indignant. "There's everything about you," he said. "Gaily, she laughed. "And what does that mean? I'm afraid we're being deliberately naive."

"I don't know what you mean?" he said, and they both laughed, their laughter reaching up toward the stars.

And presently they were silent. Jane closed her eyes for a while, opening them now and then, to watch the disappearing outline of the coral reefs. At last the islands were swallowed up in high seas which blotted out the horizon.

She stirred, a little restless. She said, "When we came on board they said the barometer was failing. We had noticed it in the little boats. The seas were rough, and long black rollers—"

"There's a blow coming up out of the Caribbean," Dirk said. "We had a radio report. But we'll outrun it, if it does come our way. High winds won't bother a big ship like the Oceanic."

But already the winds were playing havoc with the seas. Black rollers struck the sides of the ship and faint spray came up in their faces. Dirk's hand caught Jane's. "There!" he said. "Now you won't be afraid of the old wind." She stirred, restless under his touch. A few nights ago he had kissed her. She sat up, looking at him, and for a long time she couldn't take her hand away. Then she arose.

"Well, good night," she said. "Why must you go? I don't want you to," he said, smiling.

But Jane was gone.

THE next day was an anxious one for the girl. The barometer was falling steadily and she watched the glass, fascinated almost as a bird is fascinated before the serpent strikes.

Toward teatime Jane saw the detective in the bar.

"Did you have a good time in Nassau yesterday?" he asked.

"Of course. Tell me, do you know anything about storms at sea? Do you think the ship is in danger?"

Snowshoes smiled. "This is my first experience with tropical waters," he said. "From what I hear, though, a hurricane is a nasty blow. But it's late in the season for hurricanes."

"All the passengers," said Jane, "are like scared rabbits. They say if it strikes, it'll come tonight."

Snowshoes saw that Jane was genuinely disturbed. To get her mind off the hurricane he asked if she'd like to take a few laps on the promenade deck, and she agreed.

They were walking along, chatting, when Jane caught his arm. He looked out on the sun deck and saw a man and a woman standing behind the far horse. Tino Rossi towered over the slight figure of Linda Bayers in a threatening attitude.

"Don't talk so loud," Linda said distinctly.

Tino caught Linda's wrist and pulled her into the shadow and, as he did so, Jane saw him twist the wrist sharply. An anguished cry escaped Linda's lips. She said, pleading, "Oh, Tino, leave me alone! You can't hold that over my head now."

He said, "I saw you talking to Dutch Lenz in the bar today. Why?"

"You know I used to work for Dutch at the Tip-Top Club. But I don't want Ken to know I've done the hot spots. I'm crazy about that boy. We're going to be married. Please go away now—"

But it was too late. Ken Martin came along the deck and saw them. Tino still had his hand on Linda's wrist. Jane saw Ken's whole body stiffen; he walked forward and said coldly, "Oh, pardon me if I have nipped a budding romance. A ship is such a small place." Then he turned on his heel and walked away.

Linda ran after him. "Ken," she called. "Don't be such an idiot!"

Jane turned to the detective. "What does it mean?" she asked.

"Tino has something on the girl," Snowshoes replied. "Linda knows the blackmailer, Dutch Lenz. I wish I could get her to talk. She's drawing a net about herself. The boy, Ken Martin, showed me the warning note; she got last evening."

Jane's eyes were still troubled. Taking leave of the detective, she caught up with Tino Rossi, as he stood watching the rollers pound against the side of the ship.

PIGION AT CENTENNIAL
The Torcaya pigeon, now almost extinct, will be displayed at the Texas Centennial Exposition opening in Dallas June 6. Ornithologists claim this red billed bird is one of the rarest in America. Flocks of thousands were common in the Southwest a hundred years ago.

MAKE YOUR HOME COMFORTABLE

• WEATHER STRIP all windows and doors. This will keep out drafts of cold wind and will also keep out the dust when the spring winds begin. Most every house in Cisco has been subject to window frame and door frame shrinkage and as a consequence, cold air continually sweeps in and makes the fuel bill pile up when you try to stay comfortable. This weather stripping is easily put on and gets results. Our carpenters can put it on for you economically, or you can do it yourself. Weather stripping is economical and efficient, and will soon pay for itself. Call us for FREE information or demonstration.

Winds Differ For Adjoining Counties

DALLAS, March 3—(UP)—In Dallas county the wind is from the southeast six months of the year, but in the next-door county of Kaufman, southeast winds blow for nearly one month. The farmer who wants his bedrooms to face the breeze, and his pig-pen to be downwind, needs a different layout in Dallas county from that of his not-so-distant fellow farmer in Kaufman.

Maps showing prevailing winds in each county of Texas and Oklahoma have been prepared by the Resettlement Administration, to guide remodeling houses and relocation of barn lots and fields.

Among the resettlement projects recently authorized was the purchase of individual farms for 290 families who are now operating as tenants in 12 counties of North Central Texas. Selection of families is now under way from nominations made by county advisory committees. Sample farms have been plotted and approved at Washington as the pattern for development of other farms now under option, or to be optioned.

The plans were made under the direction of Don Scoates, head of the Agricultural engineering department of Texas A. & M. College, who is on leave of absence from the college to serve the Resettlement Administration.

Calls P. A. a Quality Product
"IT TALKS FOR ITSELF"

DOING SOME FIGURING. Come time to work out his balance, Len always has P.A. "makin'" handy on his desk to roll himself a cigarette. "Prince Albert shapes up quick," he says, "whips into shape in a jiffy... because it's 'crimp cut.'" Note our no-risk offer below. P.A. is grand in a pipe too.

WARMING UP. March winds are roaring outside. But Len Luff is snug and comfortable here by the stove with his Prince Albert "makin'." Len has many a warm word for P.A. "Mild, soothing, comforting to a man's tongue and soul," is the way he describes it. "It's easy to tell Prince Albert comes from high-quality tobaccos." Most men must feel the same as Len Luff about P.A., because Prince Albert is naturally mild and mellow. So it got to be the largest-selling smoking tobacco in the world!

"THOSE ARE MAN-SIZED TINS," Len Luff says, "holding enough P.A. for 70 of the swellest roll-your-own cigarettes a fellow could want. P.A. offers 'money back if not satisfied.' That shows the confidence they have in P.A."

70 fine roll-your-own cigarettes... in every 2-oz. tin of Prince Albert

If You're a Roll-Your-Own Smoker, Cut This Out!

Roll yourself 30 swell cigarettes from Prince Albert. If you don't find them the finest, tastiest roll-your-own cigarettes you ever smoked, return the pocket tin with the rest of the tobacco in it to us at any time within a month from this date, and we will refund full purchase price, plus postage. COWBOY MUSIC
 Authentic Southwestern cowboy and range music will be used in "Cavalcade of Texas" the $150,000 dramatic spectacle to be staged at the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas. David Guerin, famous Texas composer, arranger of "Home on the Range," will supervise the musical score.

OFFICIAL BIRD
 The road-runner, or paisano, is the official bird of the Texas Centennial Exposition opening in Dallas, June 6. It has been timed by motorists at running speeds of nearly fifty miles per hour. It is noted for its deadly enmity to rattlesnakes which it kills and eats.

BILIOUS SPELLS
 In bilious spells, one of the first things to do is to take a dose of Black-Draught to relieve the attending constipation. You can rely on Black-Draught whenever a laxative is needed.
 Mr. A. T. Austin, of McAdenville, N. C., tells of having used Black-Draught for a long time. "There is a box full on my mantle, now," he writes. "I take for biliousness. If I did not take it, the chilliness and headache would put me out of business. It is the quickest medicine to relieve me."
 Black-Draught is purely vegetable. It is one of the most economical laxatives. Sold in 25-cent packages containing 25 doses.

Miss Wilma Thomas' Engagement Told At Party Monday Night

Announcing the approaching marriage of her daughter, Miss Wilma, to Mr. Joe Hughes on March 14, Mrs. J. W. Thomas entertained last evening in her Humboldt home with a bridge party.

Lovely red and white carnations were floral decorations in the entertaining rooms where games were played at seven tables. A Texas Centennial motif was cleverly used in bridge accessories and a refreshment plate of salad. The announcement was a small folder with a bird bearing the news.

At the close of the games Mrs. Joe Holleran was high score winner, luncheon cloth; Mrs. Reggie Henderson, second high, box of linen handkerchiefs; and Mrs. W. C. McDaniel, cut, which was a linen handkerchief. Others present were: Mesdames J. A. Bearman, W. A. Pippen, Paul Woods, Willard Miller, R. N. Cluck, Arthur Cunningham, Harold McGowan, J. C. Hanrahan, Jack Jones, A. D. Anderson, I. J. Henson, Rex Carothers, Rice Forman and Misses Ester Hale, Ida Mae Collins, Lucine Lewis, Kathryn Pettit, Laura Lu Waring, Titta Belle Simmons, Mary Elizabeth Chitt, Lillian Shertzer, Catherine Cunningham, Blanche Van Horn, Adele Anderson, Laura Rupe, the hostess and the honoree.

Miss Thomas has been guest of honor at a series of attractive pre-nuptial parties in Wichita Falls. Miss Marjorie Vincent entertained with a bridge party at which the honoree was remembered with a handsome assortment of china and crystal in her chosen patterns. A linen shower given by Misses Claudia Williams and Ella Mae Kimbell and an announcement party given by Mrs. R. L. Giddon, also have been included in the list of affairs to honor the bride-elect.

Writer Ridicules Library Skyscraper

AUSTIN, March 3.—(UP)—J. Frank Dobie, noted author of Southwestern books and teacher at the University of Texas, thinks the 20-story library administration building at the school is "ridiculous." "With as much room as there is in Texas, and as many acres of land as the university owns (nearly 3,000,000 acres), we have to put up a building like those in New York!" Dobie complained.

Dobie suggested laying the new building on its side and "running a gallery around it."

THE TEXAS IS NAME CHOSEN FOR THEATER

The Texas Theater has been chosen as the name for the theater opened here recently by C. J. Stevens. It was announced today following the decision of the judges in a name contest.

The name selected was suggested by Mrs. A. J. Olson and J. P. Huey, both of whom will receive theater passes for three months, the management announced.

Many names were submitted in the contest, in which those attending last night's show participated. The list offered included many patriotic as well as many fanciful and unusual names.

The management indicated this morning that the theater would soon display its new name in an attractive sign.

People who believe that prehistoric monsters that once roamed Asia lands were peculiar to that part of the world will find reconstructions of the fossilized bones of huge elephants and saber toothed tigers at the Texas Centennial Exposition which opens in Dallas June 6. STANDARDIZED UNIFORMITY

The simple mechanical details of cigarette manufacture are of surprising importance. Upon them depend the physical properties of the cigarette, such as weight, size, firmness, moisture-holding properties, uniformity of fill—uniformity of product—all of which have a far-reaching effect on the character of its combustion and the constituents of its smoke.

In the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes all of these properties have been standardized with care for the perfection of A LIGHT SMOKE.

LUCKIES ARE LESS ACID!

Recent chemical tests show* that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.
