Results of Faith and Work

"If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, 'Remove hence to yonder place' and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible to you."—Matthew 17:20.

Man's faith is always the limit of his blessings. He never obtains more than he believes in. We live in a world of unused knowledge and ability that can only be made into the actuality by ventures based upon faith.

This is a fact no less in the business world than in the practice of God's teachings. Millions of men have had visions of what might be accomplished in their lines of business endeavor, while but few have had sufficient faith in the outcome to try it out.

The few who have exercised faith aggressively have been rewarded by success.

More than 90 per cent of the business enterprises of the world are failures.

The reason is given variously as mismanagement, lack of business knowledge and lack of applied business principles. And all of them mean that the failure did not have the faith to carry out the vision he had before entering his chosen field.

As in the scriptures, Faith must be backed up by aggressive works. "All things come to him who waits," and in the meantime while he is waiting he must use every known device to help his business succeed; more especially those devices that have had the approval of success stamped upon them.

Likewise the builders of cities must have vision, and those builders must have a faith in the final outcome that accepts no thought of failure.

Champions of every constructive move that has ever been proposed are called upon to exercise this same measure of faith that will not be dampened by opposition.

And great thoughts always arouse opposition, because they are so unusual, and necessarily call for a faith that is not attained by the masses.

In the course of the year 1936, business concerns of Cisco may be called upon to exercise both faith and aggressiveness to accomplish the many visioned projects necessary for the continued prosperity and upward trend of our civic and business enterprises.

There is no standstill; we either go on or we slip back. If we pause, the world goes on and thus we have slipped. "Hitch your wagon to a star" was said to actuate man to strive ever onward, never pausing, never stopping, because the goal is always a little beyond, and constantly increase in magnitude as it is approached.

Believing it can be done and a willingness to put forth the NEEDED EFFORT is the Faith and Works that will put over each and every project visioned by the church or city in Cisco's schedule of growth for 1936.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—The U. S. Supreme Court doesn't have much fun while doing its work, one of the nine justices explained at a recent party, so that any time something funny happens in the courtroom most of its members enjoy it fully, even if they don't go laughing out loud.

"A few years ago," this justice reminisced, "we had a country lawyer before us arguing a case, and we began to notice that something was wrong.

"He was beginning powerful sentences in a loud voice, but failing to finish them. He kept right on trying, however.

"What had happened was that he had sat through the early session and by lunch time felt so awed by the surroundings in which he was to appear that he had gone out and filled himself with bootleg liquor.

"The chief justice turned to us with eyebrows raised, torn between a desire to burst out laughing and to have the man kicked out of the courtroom. It was obvious that something had to be done about it. But we hesitated.

"Then the lawyer suddenly solved the problem himself. He stopped, in the middle of a sentence, bowed toward the bench, turned on his heel, and walked straight out of the courtroom."

"And lost the case?" a listener suggested.

"Oh, no, he won," the justice replied. "He had a good case and his opponent didn't. We can't decide points on the basis of counsel's delivery."

EVER so often, he went on, a lawyer who turns out to be deaf comes before the court. Justices don't like that, because they hate to have to shout. Court attaches contend that some attorneys merely pretend to be hard of hearing so they won't have to answer sharp questions from the bench. But this story-telling justice told of one instance where a lawyer's deafness was genuine.

The lawyer had been talking 10 or 15 minutes when Chief Justice Hughes decided the other side had no case and that no further time should be wasted on the issue.

Hughes whispered with his colleagues and obtained their assent. Then he tried to break in on the orator by saying the court didn't care to hear further argument.

The lawyer didn't hear him and went right on gesturing and arguing. Hughes raised his voice and about the third time the attorney began to realize he was being addressed.

"E: turned helplessly, as if hoping someone would tell him what Hughes was saying. Whereupon the chief of opposing counsel, apparently sore, rose and exclaimed in his rival's ear, in a voice that was heard all through the courtroom:

"He says they'd rather give you the case than to have to listen to you any more!"

SENATOR ALBEN W. BARKLEY of Kentucky will be the Democratic keynote speaker at the Philadelphia convention and your correspondent, with no special claim to the gift of second sight, predicts that the senator will not repeat the same mighty speech with which he rang up the curtain in Chicago in 1932.

It will be Barkley's job to defend rather than attack the administration this time. (Copyright, 1936, NEA Service, Inc.)

OUT OUR WAY

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, May 9.—Corporation-friendly members of the Texas legislature have been able, at every session it has been brought up for exactly 60 years, to kill the bill to effectuate a constitutional provision permitting a civil jury verdict by nine, ten or eleven out of 12 jurors. Originally railroad lobbyists and railroad friends killed the bill. Since then, sympathizers of all the employing corporations have helped kill it.

The action has been simply to make it harder to get a judgment for a personal injury or personal tort suit. Individual litigants have no voice at Austin. Only the corporations have their lawyers by the year. They can stand the delays, and benefit by them. Further, they have the club of forcing a plaintiff with a perfectly sound case to a compromise, because the litigant can't hold out indefinitely.

Now the Locomotive Engineers of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen for Texas has made the nine-jury verdict law—specifically authorized by the constitution—its main legislative program for 1936-1937.

The Brotherhood, maintaining a powerful representation at Austin, backed by the most completely unified group in the state, has adopted a four-point legislative program on which it will check candidates for the house and senate this year.

The pension administration, dealing with nearly 200,000 applications, faces the dilemma of cutting off on applications filed before some arbitrary date, in order to be ready to send out the checks ahead of July 1. By seeking to examine and pass on all cases filed, the pension office can not advance the payment date ahead of the final limit of the law.

More applications were filed than had been expected. Original estimates set 80,000 as the outside number of those qualifying for any pension payment. As it now appears the number will be closer 100,000, and may exceed that figure. However, the average amounts to be paid will be lowered, in that the federal and state governments have joined absolutely in limiting the payments to those actually needing

Each of the divisions has centered upon one of the main bills. The program of the Firemen overlap that of the Engineers, for the Firemen have concentrated on at last securing a real anti-lobby bill. Without an aggressive lobby, the nine-jury law would have been on the books long ago. The lobby program doesn't mean abolishing lobbyists, for that would send away the Brotherhood's own men; but it means to pull the teeth of lobbying by requiring registration and sworn accounts of all receipts and expenditures by each lobbyist.

The Conductors are supporting the full-crew bill. The fourth subject is to take out of statutes existing advantages to the corporation lawyers, but there by corporation lawyers, on the subject of "special issues" in pleading and litigation.

Crville S. Carpenter, director of the Texas old-age pension administration, is making every effort to prepare for issuing the first old-age pension checks in June, but indicated here on his return from Washington, where the state pension program, was approved, it is uncertain whether the first checks will go out before the July 1 starting date set by law.

The offer of a federal agency to furnish heavy cotton canvas for use in building highways, found the Texas highway commission already thoroughly familiar with the use of this unusual material for a permanent highway. The Texas commission has used canvas as the separating material between layers of construction stuff in numbers of experimental pieces of work and in various tests.

Now the federal government has tendered Texas a quantity of this heavy material sufficient to underlay the paving of 40 miles of highway.

War Declared On Unsafe Tires Here

Motorists of Cisco will be interested in the tire inspection service offered by A. J. Clark, E. F. Goodrich, sole and only tire dealer at Ave. E and Eighth street as a part of a nation-wide "war" now being waged by the rubber company's dealers against unsafe tires.

"Goodrich a pioneer in many movements to provide greater safety on American roads and highways, has requested its dealers to make expert examination free of charge of all tire equipment brought into service stations or that purpose," Mr. Clark said.

"More than 36,000 people were killed and over 800,000 injured in traffic accidents last year and 338,000 have met death as a result of motoring accidents in the past 15

Ford Exposition to Show How Southwest's Products Are Employed in Manufacture of Modern Motor Car

The opening in Dallas June 6 of the great Ford Exposition will show to the Southwest how its own products make the Ford, the Lincoln and the Lincoln-Zephyr automobiles possible. This unusual photograph well pictures the vast proportions of the Ford Exposition building, in which will be housed an exhibition showing how importantly Southwestern raw materials enter into the making of modern cars.

The huge Ford Exposition building, erected especially for the Centennial Exposition in Dallas, Texas, opening June 6, will be devoted largely to showing how importantly the raw materials of the Southwest enter into the manufacture of Ford V-8, Lincoln and Lincoln-Zephyr motor cars.

Forty-three thousand of a total of 55,000 square feet in the great air-conditioned structure will house an interesting group of manufacturing and testing exhibits, a pageant of transportation, diagrams showing the use of raw materials in the Ford plants, and an exhibit of the Henry Ford trade school at Dearborn, Michigan.

Displays carrying out the principal theme of the Ford Exposition show how such Southwestern products as cotton, mohair, wool, corn, cattle, soy beans, resin and rice are employed in the making of Ford and Ford-sponsored automobiles. Five hundred and fifty-eight thousand acres, producing 160 pounds to the acre, raise the cotton used in each one million Ford units. A working exhibit at the Ford Exposition will show how cushion tops for Ford V-8's are stitched at the average rate of one every five seconds—consuming annually more than 67,000,000 pounds of cotton. How some of the millions of pounds of cotton used by the Ford Company is processed in its final stage at the factory will be shown in the demonstration of the machine known as the "multiplier." Used in making seat cushion tops and backs, the multiplier can sew at one time as many pleats as desired. In producing ward V-8 cushions, eight pleats are made simultaneously. At the same time, cotton batting is fed into the machine, sewed into place, and the cushion cover is sewed to the cotton sheeting. The machine in regular production makes 24,000 stitches a minute and turns out 12 to 14 cushion tops every sixty seconds. This machine is but one example of how Southern agriculture contributes to the automobile industry.

With the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company exhibit in the Ford Exposition building showing another important use of cotton, the making of fabric for tires, it is further revealed that for one million Ford units, 25,000,000 pounds of cotton are required. It has been estimated that in production of Ford units this year, approximately 116,000,000 pounds of cotton will be used.

years, more than lost their lives in the nation's participation in four major wars.

"Every year thousands are killed or injured when blowouts throw cars out of control at high speeds.

"In most cases it is possible for a trained tire man to detect the points of future casing troubles or potential failures by thorough examination of tires at regular intervals.

"For this reason Goodrich is urging car owners of Cisco to avail themselves of this special service during the present war on unsafe tires.

"Tires that have defects caused by abuse or long service are most likely to fail during warm weather," according to Mr. Clark.

LIE DETECTING IN CRIME WORK LABELED MYTH

By JACK GURWELL United Press Staff Correspondent CHICAGO, May 9 — (U.P.)—There is no such thing as a "lie-detector," according to youthful Professor Leonard Keeler, brilliant scientist-lawyer, who heads Northwestern University's scientific crime detection laboratory.

The odd-looking black boxlike machine and methods used by Keeler and his associates in helping solve crime mysteries, come under the general heading of "the (Keeler) Polygraph detection of deception technique."

And the polygraph — "lie detector" to some — is only one cog in a paraphernalia ranging from lathes and drills to scientific laboratories.

Keeler defends his polygraph, and once wrote an essay entitled "Debunking the Lie-Detector."

Called it Mis-named "To begin with," he said, "there is no such thing as a lie-detector. There are no instruments recording bodily changes — such as blood pressure, pulse, respiration, or galvanic reflex — that reserve the name "lie-detector" any more than a stethoscope, a clinical thermometer, or a blood count apparatus with a microscope can be called an "appendicitis detector."

"Laymen are led to believe that indicators jump in a defined manner when a subject lies, or that a little red light flashes, or that a bell rings. Certain so-called experts refer to their instruments as "lie-detectors," and give the impression they really have such a device."

"However," said Keeler, "deception, guilt, or innocence can be diagnosed from certain symptoms, just as appendicitis or any other physical disorder can be diagnosed."

Created After Massacre The scientific crime detection laboratory grew out of the St. Valentine Day Massacre of seven years ago — a crime for which no blame ever was fixed.

It was started to make available a laboratory to give expert assistance to police in identification of firearms and also in the examination of all other types of evidence needing scientific methods.

Burt A. Masee, a member of the coroner's jury investigating the massacre, authored the idea and with the co-operation of Dean Emeritus John H. Wigmore of Northwestern University school of law, a laboratory corporation was formed and affiliated with the university.

The polygraph consists of three units — one for recording respiratory change; another for continuously recording the pulse wave and blood pressure; and a third for recording muscular reflexes of the arm or leg.

Operation Is Described To obtain body reactions a rubber tube is placed around the chest and a blood pressure cuff is fastened about the upper arm and inflated to a pressure midway between the systolic and diastolic blood pressures. Rubber tubes, approximately a quarter of an inch in diameter lead from both the chest tube and the cuff into metal tambours, to which are attached two pens. As the pens fluctuate with each pulse of respiratory movement, recordings are made upon a slowly moving graph paper on a small drum.

Ordinary physical abnormalities such as high blood pressure and irregular pulse, or emotional instability caused by fear, anger or other disturbing factors do not interfere with the deception test because these irregularities are brought out in the "control" part of the record.

In other words, that part of the record made by the subject while being asked a few customary irrelevant questions — "Have you had breakfast this morning?" "re-quiring an answer of "yes" or "no" will indicate the physiological regularities of the individual.

Deviations Are Important Significance is attached only to the deviations from the "norms" at the points where the subject is being questioned as to his particular participation in the crime under investigation.

This polygraph is used by insurance companies, banks, department stores and other organizations. More than 2,000 employees of 52 Chicago banks have been examined in effort to detect embezzlers of various sums.

In one instance a bank desired to detect the embezzler of $5,000. Tests were run on all 56 employes, but instead of finding one liar in the group 12 were discovered. Of the 12, nine confessed to embezzlements then unknown to bank officials.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson EFFECTUAL PRAYER

Text: Luke 18:1-14

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance

THE teaching of Jesus concerning prayer is stressed by this lesson in two parables. The parable of the importunate widow, or the unjust judge, has puzzled many people. If we would interpret it aright, we must be on our guard against false assumptions.

The story is simple. A widow had certain claims against an adversary, and she found difficulty in having these claims recognized. The judge, who should have been ready to accord her justice, apparently would not listen to her plea. She was so persistent, however, that, although he made no pretense of acting upon grounds of justice, he finally granted the woman's request, to end her incessant demands.

The comment that Jesus made upon this was, "Shall not God avenge His elect that cry to Him day and night?"

LET us analyze the argument. It is not that God will be moved by our insistent importunity, but rather that, if an unjust judge with no regard for either God or man will finally yield to the importunate prayers of a widow, how much more will God, Who is both just and loving, and responsive to the needs of His children, be ready to bestow upon them His blessing!

The teaching is not that God can be swayed and changed like an unjust judge, but that God, in His bountiful love and mercy, is more ready, as Jesus has insisted in other teachings, to give what we need for our spiritual upbuilding than we are to ask.

Much the same teaching in rather a different way is found in the second parable, where we have the contrast between the two men who went into the temple to pray. One approached God with confident assurance. He was very glib and ready in his prayers.

But his words had little reality. He was not praying out of a sense of great need; he was telling God what a fine fellow he was and how worthy he was of all that God had to give him.

One must not think of him as a strange and insincere man. The Pharisees were the devout and conventionally good people of the day, and this man represented the complacent, self-satisfied religious type.

CONSIDER on the other hand the publican, standing afar off, hardly daring to lift up his eyes to heaven, realizing his weakness and the depth to which he had fallen from the high ideal of truth and righteousness, smiting upon his breast and saying, "God be merciful to me, a sinner."

There was no eloquence in that prayer, but only the real crying of a needy soul. There was true praying—a soul open to God, crying out for forgiveness and for strength. And God heard the prayer.

The Great Father understands all the languages of the soul. Even when we cannot speak our unexpressed need, if we really feel it, our need cries out to Him and He responds.

The Pharisee went down from the temple just as he went up, no better, no worse. The publican went down with the consciousness that God had answered his prayer.

MORE MILES PER GALLON IS GOOD... MORE MILES PER DOLLAR IS BETTER

ENTHUSIASTIC sales talk often begins and ends with gasoline mileage. Some salesmen would like you to believe it is the whole story of automobile economy. But drivers ought to know better.

The big items of car economy are low first cost, low up-keep cost, and low depreciation. Savings here can make a great deal of difference in cost per mile.

Gasoline mileage is more of a talking point than an economy factor.

Here are the big items that make the Ford an economical car:

- More value for every dollar you pay.
- Lower cost for repairs and service.
- Long life. Slow depreciation.
- The up-keep cost of today's Ford V-8 is the lowest of any Ford ever built.
- Quality means economy and the 1936 Ford V-8 gives you more real quality than any other low-price car. Made to closer precision limits and of better materials, there is no waste anywhere. Many dollars are saved by Ford production methods and low-profit policy. Those savings are put back into the car.

You pay a thousand dollars more for any other car with the power and performance of a V-8 cylinder engine. No other low-price car gives you modern Center-Poise Riding, safe, sure, dependable mechanical brakes with 186 square inches of braking surface and Safety Glass all around at no extra cost.

Two Murder Charges Yet In Threet Case

Further details are given in the murder case of Clifford Doggett, which was dismissed in the 88th district court Friday, leaving a sentence of 99 years imprisonment against him from Callahan county of robbery with fire arms.

Action Friday by the Eastland district court left two—Mary Lou Howell, 20, and Elmer Van Cleave, 22—against whom murder charges remain in the same case.

March 18 at the Baird district court, Van Cleave pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery with fire arms in the Threet case and received five years.

The indictment charged Van Cleave with participation in the holding of Threet.

Van Cleave had previously been given a two-year sentence on a charge of conspiracy to rob the rancher.

Miss Howell, tried at Baird on a robbery with firearms in the transaction in which Threet was killed, has received a reversal and remandation from her 20-year sentence.

In the Howell case, acted on Dec. 11, 1935, by the court of criminal appeals, the jurists held evidence was insufficient to prove she participated in the conspiracy to rob Threet or that she encouraged Doggett. The court ruled there was no testimony to support the proposition the robbery was committed in pursuance to a common intent and former design in which the woman concurred.

Judgment of the 88th court Friday was as follows:

Whereas, Clifford Doggett, defendant in the above cause was in this court on Nov. 23, 1934, convicted of the murder of L. F. Threet and his punishment fixed at death. Prior thereto, to-wit: on Nov. 17, 1934, in the district court of Callahan county, the said Clifford Doggett was convicted of the offense of robbery with firearms, said conviction being based upon and growing out of the same transaction involved in the murder of L. F. Threet for which murder the said Clifford Doggett was convicted in this cause, and whereas, the said plea of former conviction was by this court overruled, on the theory and belief said convictions were not one and the same transaction, but for different and separate offenses, and whereas,

From the judgment of conviction herein the defendant appealed to the court of criminal appeals of Texas at Austin, Texas, and which said court of last resort did on April 15, 1935, render its decision and opinion to the effect that the conviction of Clifford Doggett of and for the offense of robbery with firearms in Callahan county, Texas, prior to his conviction of the murder of L. F. Threet in Eastland county, in the above entitled and numbered cause was and is a complete bar to the prosecution herein for the murder of said L. F. Threet, and did on said date hold and adjudge that the defendant's plea of former conviction was and is available and is a bar to any conviction herein for the murder of L. F. Threet growing out of the shooting of L. F. Threet on August 19, 1934, in Callahan county, being the transaction and offense for which this defendant was finally convicted of robbery in Callahan county slightly feeble test of strength in the Ohio primary. Clo. Henry Breckinridge, representing the Anti-New Deal faction, has entered the Presidential preference race against Mr. Roosevelt.

THE lungfish is known today as a "living fossil," a creature that is a sort of hang-over from prehistoric ages. It has evolved in the direction of land animals, but never has become one. When a stream of water dries up, the lungfish curls up in the mud at the bottom, to wait for the water to return... being able to breathe by means of its single lung.

Col. Breckinridge, assistant secretary of war under President Wilson and close friend of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, has made no attempt to muster strength in Ohio. His candidacy is seen merely as a means of giving those opposed to Rooseveltian policies an opportunity to express themselves.

Primary Vote Not Binding
The preference vote is nothing more than a popularity contest in Ohio. It has no bearing on selection of convention delegates.

Borah given the support of a small but powerful group of Ohio Republicans, has campaigned actively in the state. Despite the backing he will receive from the liberal faction, observers have predicted he cannot win more than a scattering of district delegates.

Those supporting the candidacy of Governor Alf M. Landon have been most active in the campaign. Landon declined to enter his name, preferring to seek backing among untrusted delegates.

Ed D. Schorr, Ohio Republican chairman, has made it plain that the state organization is definitely opposed to no candidate except Borah.

"Republicans who favor nomination of Ohio's favorite sons or who favor nomination of any one of the widely mentioned Presidential possibilities from outside Ohio, whether it be Gov. Alf M. Landon, Frank Knox, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Herbert Hoover, or Senator Lester J. Dickinson, or any other person excepting Senator Borah ought to support and vote for all favorite son candidates for delegates," Schorr said.

Governorship Chief Issue
The most important issue in the primary to Ohioans is the governorship.

There is a decided split in the state's Democratic ranks. The faction backing the candidacy of Rep. Stephen M. Young of Cleveland for the gubernatorial nomination seeks to repudiate the leadership of Gov. Martin L. Davey, a candidate for re-election.

Young chose the controversial sales tax as an issue and has declared for its repeal, or at least the tax on food, clothing and medicine. He has pledged to "end gift and favoritism in the liquor and highway departments."

Governor Davey has supported the sales tax "until a better method of raising badly needed revenues is found."

Young has been a harshest critic of the national administration, particularly with Harry Hopkins federal relief administrator.

Republicans have massed almost solidly behind the candidacy of Attorney General John W. Brick for the nomination for governor. He is unopposed.

Ohio also will nominate candidates for congress in the various districts and for two congressmen-at-large. Eleven Republicans and 10 Democrats will seek congressmen-at-large nominations.

FOLLY and FAREWELL By Marie Blizard

BEGIN HERE TODAY

LINDA BOURNE, 20 years old, pretty, is left almost penniless by the sudden death of her father.

PETER, a radio reporter, helps her get a job writing society news. Linda is in love with DIX CARTER, but he goes abroad to study singing. When Peter asks Linda to marry him she agrees, but postpones the wedding.

HONEY HARMON, film star, comes to Newtown, making "personal appearance" tour. She buys a scenario written by Linda. Later Linda goes to Hollywood and, by expressing ideas that are really Peter's, secures a reputation for being able to discover new stars. Soon she is a celebrity.

At a party given by Honey Harmon, Linda meets BASIL THORNE, director, attracted by his art, she later falls in love with him.

Dix Carter comes to Hollywood to get into films as an actor. Linda tries to help him. She believes, however, when he asks her to introduce him to Basil Thorne. At last, she agrees.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVI

LINDA hated herself when she had hung up after making an engagement to dine with Basil Thorne the next night but one. This time she didn't agree to meet him at his home. They were dining at the Continental. She dreaded it and planned her evening.

And she came very near to disliking Dix. She knew that he had deliberately planned to have her telephone Thorne. She excused him because she knew how badly he wanted to get his chance.

She prepared herself for that night, knew the note that she was going to strike and hold. Nevertheless she found herself nervous, not with anticipation such as she had felt the last time she had an engagement with the director, but with fear that she could not be able to carry it off.

But she did. She wasn't flirtatious, but she was charming, flattering, and if her manner didn't say yes, it didn't say no.

Thorne was sincerely impressed with Linda. He felt that he had made a blunder and was grateful that it was not an unforgivable one. He was flattered that she had finally called him. He rearranged his tactics, adjusted his intentions, was suave, courteous, and charming. They dined and danced and talked of pictures in the making. Linda was careful not to mention Dix Carter's name.

THORNE took her home, kissed her hand gallantly, and asked if he might see her the next day. Linda refused. When he telephoned the next day she thanked him for what was practically a blanket of white violets, she said she would have cocktails with him the following Saturday.

Linda was mistress of the situation. She knew it couldn't go on forever, but she banked on Thorne's acceptance of the genre of their companionship she had created. As a matter of fact, he was rather enjoying it. Linda was a girl worth trying to get. He liked her wit and her wits, her manner and her manners. He liked being seen with her in newspaper reporter, helps her get a job writing society news. Linda is in love with DIX CARTER, but he goes abroad to study singing. Open House Program For West Ward Picnic

It will be Open House and dinner on the ground at West Ward next Friday, May 15, when patrons, their families and friends are invited to bring their lunches and visit the school, spreading the lunches at 12:10 on tables to be arranged in front of the building.
The West Ward school is planning a program with dinner on the ground next Friday, May 15. This is "open house" and visiting day in the Cisco schools, and West Ward is planning a real welcome and an interesting program for all patrons and parents and their friends and family.
Regular classes will be held as usual in the morning. In the afternoon, beginning at 12:10 everyone is invited to bring lunch and spread it together on tables in front of the building for the "dinner on the ground."

After lunch, a program has been prepared. Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the First Baptist church, will give a talk on the Texas Anniversary. Texas Centennial songs will be sung by choruses from among the children, and a number of individual parts will be presented.
During the afternoon, visitors will be welcome to visit the various rooms in the building where pictures, paintings, friezes, models, ornaments and curios will be on exhibit showing the work of the children. Most of these exhibits show the results obtained by teachers and pupils from their work in the Texas Curriculum Revision Movement—a movement the schools of Texas have entered into to more adequately fit the school studies to the needs of all the children.
This entertainment on Friday, May 15th, has three main purposes:

first, to present to the patrons of our schools, as largely as possible, what is being done; second, to provide an association for the patrons, teachers and pupils; and third, to observe, in a small way, the one-hundredth anniversary of Texas Independence.
Every Cisco school patron, and their friends, are invited to come and bring lunch and enjoy the occasion on that day, it is announced.
