FDR ADDRESSES PEACE CONFERENCE

About Our Friends

By STEP A. LONG

Well, the Tuttle's and Anderson's came in from their deer hunt... A. G. Tuttle managed to shave this morning all but his little Charley Chase mustache... Too busy killing that deer to think about his appearance, he said... Haven't seen Jack Anderson... he may not have been able to shave at all... But they got the deer and that is most important... our turkey is just about all gone... May have a little trouble about this meat... Four hind quarters have already been promised out... hope we get ours...

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. King downtown... G. B. Langston on the corner... Fred Hayes back at work... W. B. Statham intent on some business deal... Mr. and Mrs. Roy Huffmeyer driving... Fred Erwin with the parcel post waving his hand... Herman Reimer with his car covered with mud... Ray Haley chatting with a friend... Carl Baird fixing a flat... W. R. Huestis getting a hair cut... J. B. Cate meeting an old friend... Fred Grist visiting the city hall... M. H. French doing some more track-making with fingers... T. G. Caudle going somewhere...

Here is one on the barbers... can't say just which one it was but we have our idea... This barber came to the post office and asked Fred Steffy for a stamp. Steffy then asked if he didn't want some post cards, and followed up by recommending some envelopes and the new Christmas stamp issue. "No!" the customer shouted, "I only want a stamp..." "Why did you ask him all those questions?" asked J. M. Witten. "Well, you see," Steffy said, "Every time I get a hair cut, this barber wants to sell me hair tonic, shampoo, massage and a lot of other things. I was only just getting even."

It is said that mayor Berry tried a colored man for stealing chickens and found him guilty. After it was over the mayor said, "How could you get these chickens from under the owner's window with the dog loose in the yard without awakening him?" "Oh, it went Rayburn, chairman of the House Inter-State Commerce Committee has as his major opponent Chairman Joan O'Connor, democrat New York, of the house rules committee.

FIRE IN FIRE TRUCK

HARTFORD, Conn. (U.P.)—Firemen fought a blaze in a fire truck here recently. The blaze broke out as the fire truck was returning to its quarters, but was put out when chemicals were doused on the flames by other companies answering the box alarm. The blaze was attributed to a broken gasoline line.

EAST TEXAS—Occasional rains tonight and Wednesday.
WEST TEXAS—Cloudy; occasional rains in north and east portions; somewhat colder in panhandle tonight; Wednesday rain.

France and U. S. Discuss War Debt Payment

MORGANTHAU AND GARNER IN DISCUSSION

MARGONTHAU AND GARNER 36-PARIS, Dec. 1 (U.P.)—France and the United States have agreed upon the advisability of war debt payment and in doing so have taken a long step toward the goal of economic disarmament it was said today on the highest authority. It is hoped to include Great Britain in an agreement by which she and France would pay their world war debt to the United States on a revised basis. It would be an agreement among the three great world democracies. There was no suggestion that Italy should join.

OFFICIALS DISCUSS WAR DEBT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1 (U.P.)—Vice President John N. Garner and Secretary of State Henry Morgenthau Jr., conferred today a few hours after reports from Paris indicated negotiations for settlement of the Franco-American war debt were progressing. Garner denied his discussion with Morgenthau concerning the debt question. The conference was regarded as significant, however, coming immediately after the Vice President's surprise arrival at the capital. Garner refused to discuss the war debt question. He admitted however his sudden decision to come to Washington was at the request of President Roosevelt.

FRENCH DESIRE NEGOTIATION

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1 (U.P.)—Acting Secretary of State William C. Moore today said the French government had advised this government of its desire to open negotiations to settle the French war debt now long in default. Moore asserted, however, that there had been no negotiation with France and nothing approaching an agreement. He said French Foreign Minister Delbos in a conversation with Ambassador William Bullitt at Paris last Saturday, expressed a desire by his government to arrange some settlement of the debt question. Delbos did not indicate when his government would be prepared to open negotiations or what proposals he might make.

Teachers' Meeting Postponed a Week

Announcement was made here today that the meeting of the Eastland County Teachers' association, scheduled to be held Saturday, Dec. 12, had been postponed one week to Saturday, Dec. 19. The postponement was made because Dr. J. C. Matthews, co-director of curriculum for the State Department of Education, who is one of the principal speakers of the occasion, could not be present on Dec. 12, but could speak on Dec. 19.

Former Cisco Girl Is Buried Today

Funeral services for Wanda Day, 18, of Anson, who was seriously injured Sunday night in an automobile accident in Abilene, were to be held today at 2:30 from the Baptist church at Anson. Miss Day is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Day of Anson, formerly of Cisco. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. R. L. Day of 1106 Avenue I, Cisco. The deceased was hurt about 11:30 Sunday night and died at 4:45 Monday morning. The grandmother left immediately for Anson after hearing of the accident.

Sweetwater Citizen Becomes WTCC Head

PORT WORTH, Dec. 1 (U.P.)—John Hendrix, manager of the Sweetwater Chamber of Commerce for four years, today became assistant manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in charge of its Fort Worth office. Hendrix has been assistant District WPA Director at Abilene for the past year.

Diplomat's Wife Worth Millions

One of the world's richest women, Mrs. Marjorie Post Hutton Davies, above, will be hostess at the U. S. embassy in Moscow by virtue of appointment of her husband, Joseph E. Davies, as ambassador to Russia. Mrs. Davies inherited approximately $20,000,000 from her father, C. W. Post, breakfast food manufacturer and is reported to have an annual income of $1,000,000.

ENTIRE CAPITOL TO BE COOLED FOR CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (U.P.)—Construction work is under way on a complete air-conditioning system for the U. S. Capitol. The new system, to be finished before Jan. 1, may prove so popular with members of congress that sessions may continue long after Washington's 100-degree summer temperatures usually would have led them to finish their work. Packed their bags and head for cooler more comfortable places.

Office Building Included

When completed, every part of Capitol Hill will be air-cooled except the subways that carry members of congress from their offices to the Capitol proper. Previously only the legislative chambers and press galleries have been air-conditioned. The congressional appropriation, which makes possible the construction of the world's largest central refrigeration plant to serve a group of buildings is greater than the cost of the original Capitol itself, on which $2,433,000 was expended up to 1927.

78 Degrees to Be Normal

Rooms will be furnished with enough cool air to maintain 78 degree Fahrenheit temperatures and 50 per cent humidity even when 100 degree temperatures are registered outside. But for the comfort of members who may desire cooler temperatures, each office is being provided with thermostats so that 75 degree temperatures or less may be obtained. Other workmen are busy on another job in the preparation for the return of congress — preparing for a Presidential inauguration Under the Norris "Lame Duck" amendment to the Constitution, the inauguration will take place on Jan. 20, 1937, instead of March 4, as in past years. A platform and stands are being erected on the east front of the Capitol to seat 11,524 spectators and participants. The cost will be $35,000.

STRIKE PICKET KILLED; DUTY TO CONTINUE

HOUSTON, Dec. 1 (U.P.)—Frank Link, 35, striking seaman on his way home from picket duty, was killed by an automobile early today. Striking seamen began a campaign in Houston and Baytown to persuade coastwise longshoremen not to pass through their picket lines. A. E. Harding, member of the strike committee, announced also that picketing of Port Houston would continue despite the indictment of a picket captain on a robbery by assault charge and the arrest of 42 seamen, each of whom was released on bond.

FOOD SHORTAGE IN HAWAII

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1 (U.P.)—A serious food shortage in the Hawaiian Islands because of the maritime strike engaged the attention of government officials today. A similar condition in Alaska was relieved when the government chartered ships to carry supplies northward.

Garner Not Acting Presidential Capacity

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (U.P.)—Vice President John Garner refused today to consider himself acting President of the United States in spite of the fact that President Roosevelt is now in Buenos Aires. "Even if the president were in China, he would still be president of the United States," Garner said.

COUPLE WEDDED 75 YEARS

VALLEYVIEW, P. E. I. (U.P.)—Canada's longest-married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Angus MacDonald, have celebrated their 75th wedding anniversary here. Both are 95.

HAWAII RANKS HIGH

HONOLULU (U.P.)—Only four states in the union have elevations higher than Hawaii. They are California, Colorado, Washington and Wyoming. The territory's heights are found on the island of Hawaii where Mauna Kea and Mauna Loa, rise more than 13,000 feet.

MORE CURRENT FOR FARMS

FORT WORTH (U.P.)—The Texas Electric Service company will construct 250 miles of power lines in Tarrant county to furnish electricity to 1,100 farm homes. The decision was announced after Rural Electrification Administration at Washington had earmarked $285,000 for the purpose.

INGENUITY LESSENS LABOR

HONOLULU (U.P.)—Maynard Livingston, young trouble shooter for the Mutual Telephone Co. and one of the island's youngest inventors has designed a mechanical-electrical set for locating short circuits, leaks and wire trouble more quickly than human hands can do it.

OIL BELT MAY BE DIVIDED OR A NEW HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL DIVISION ORGANIZED FOR 1937

The Oil Belt District will likely be split again next year, it was revealed by Roy B. Henderson, secretary of the Texas Interscholastic League, at a meeting in Fort Worth. A situation has arisen that will force some kind of action, Henderson said, and he wants to get it settled before schedules are made for the 1937 football season. Coleman will be forced into Class A football next year because of the increase in the number of pupils in his high school, which will add one team. Other teams are demanding Class A schedules, including Stephenville, Weatherford and Lamesa, it was stated. The location of the towns makes it impossible to place them in any other district, and the Oil Belt will likely be divided into an eastern and western division, with Ranger, Eastland, Cisco, Mineral Wells, Weatherford, Coleman and Stephenville in the eastern division and Breckenridge, Brownwood, Abilene, Sweetwater, San Angelo, Big Spring and Lamesa in the western division. This situation will take place on Jan. 20, 1937, instead of March 4, as in past years. A platform and stands are being erected on the east front of the Capitol to seat 11,524 spectators and participants. The cost will be $35,000.

BODYGUARD OF PRESIDENT DIES SUDDENLY

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 1 (U.P.)—President Roosevelt called on the "American family of nations" today to join hands for economic unity and political peace in the western hemisphere against the daily growing menace of war in older lands. The president, opening the Inter-American peace conference, appealed for cooperation among all the peoples of all the American republics.

"We in the Americas make it clear that we stand shoulder to shoulder in our final deliberation that others who, driven by war madness, or land hunger, might seek to permit acts of aggression against us, will find a hemisphere wholly prepared to consult together for our mutual safety," President Roosevelt said. Mr. Roosevelt, who inspired the present conference, emphasized that the "welfare and prosperity of each of our nations depend in large part on the benefits derived from commerce among themselves and with other nations."

Primary in keeping the peace in the western world, he said, was the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements among American "family of nations." "Democracy is still the hope of the world," Mr. Roosevelt said. "Our hemisphere has at last come of age. We are here to show its united to the world."

The addresses of Mr. Roosevelt and Argentina's President Agustine Justo were the only ones at the first session of the conference. Foreign ministers of ten of the 21 American republics represented at the conference were seated just in front of the rostrum where the two presidents spoke.

There were 175 delegates of whom 93 have full power to commit their government to any peace plan which may materialize.

The president had planned on being a sightseer this morning, but the sudden death from heart failure last night of his personal body guard and friend August (Gus) Genierich caused him to cancel all social activities and remain at the American embassy.

PERMANENT 'GOOD NEIGHBOR' POLICY

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 1 (U.P.)—President Justo of Argentina predicted today that the Inter-American peace conference would result in a permanent "good neighbor policy" for all the American republics. CRIPPLE IS GARDENER CONNEAUT, O. (U.P.)—Arthritis, which for 14 of the 20 years in Ralph Sharp's life, has wrecked his body has not prevented his making a living. Unable even to walk, he operates a truck garden. He cultivates it himself by sitting in a high-chair mounted on special skis.

Advice to Stock Investors

Now that stocks are mounting and dividends are being declared the country will be warning with stock salesmen. Some good and some worthless. Better beware how you invest your surplus money, is the good advice given.

Unfortunately every beginning investor seems to have to learn his own lesson through his own bitter experience. For the benefit of the few who really think before they invest, the Better Business Bureau of New York has prepared a list of ten questions to be asked of the salesman. It is well, the bureau says, to get his answers in writing, with his name signed to them, and then to follow them up by serious investigation. The questions follow:

1. What are the names and principal addresses of your employers and how long have they been in business?
2. With what bank does your firm do business and what are its other references?
3. What were the real assets (real worth) of the company in which stock is being sold at the date of its organization, and what are its assets now?
4. What are the company's liabilities?
5. What are its earnings?
6. How many times has interest or dividends on this security issue been earned in the past five years?
7. Who are the officers of the company and what is their record of business activity during the past five years?
8. What experience have these officers had in the business in which the company is engaged?
9. Is this security accepted as collateral for loans at banks?
10. What is the market for this security in the event I want to dispose of it?

If the answers to these questions pass scrutiny satisfactorily the likelihood of the purchaser's getting "stung" by fake stock promoters is greatly reduced. Certainly safety and soundness of investment are worth the individual's effort.

Take Over Rail Empire Direction

Faced with the tremendous task of restoring a 23,000-mile "railroad empire" left in tatters by the death of G. P. Van Sweringen, George A. Bell of Manila, Ind., left, and George A. Tomlinson of Cleveland are shown in Cleveland, conferring on their problems. Bell, manufacturer and philanthropist, and Tomlinson, head of a fleet of Great Lakes ships, gave the financial aid that enabled Van Sweringen to retain control of his lines when monetary setbacks threatened loss of the properties.

 be no use in trying to explain to you, Mr. Berry, they'd catch you sure the first time," the darkey replied. . . .

Rev. M. H. Applewhite had just arrived on the new field and was visiting in the poorer quarter of his flock. He asked a woman member, whose home was rather crude if they took any periodicals. "No, sir, I don't," she replied, "but my husband does quite often. I wish you would get him to sign the pledge."

J. W. Copps is quite an orator . . . not only that but he is an artist of rare ability who spreads his beautiful phrases like an artist does his paint over the canvas. . . . It is said that he and a visitor were at Lake Cisco recently and they stood on the high point near the bridge looking toward the west just at sunset. As Copps pointed out the beautiful colors of old Sol as he dipped his fingers into the golden west and painted the varicolored sunset beauty as only a West Texas sun can do, Copps waxed eloquent as he explained: "Perhaps you, too, are a lover of the beauties of nature. Have you seen the golden fingers of dawn spreading across the eastern sky, the red stained, sulphurous islets floating in the lake of fire in the west, the ragged clouds at midnight, blotting out the shuddering moon?" . . . "No," said the guest gazing at him strangely, "Not lately, I have been of the water wagon for over a year."

 PITTSBURGH (AP) — WPA workers have decided that a small forest has no place in the middle of a swimming pool. While clearing out the basin of a new pool in Allegheny county, workmen found 2,000 trees flourishing where the blueprints called for water.

 VALLEYFIELD, Que. (AP) — When 7 o'clock strikes here, children under 14 go home to bed. Chief of Police C. J. Claude has declared a 7 o'clock curfew, and children found on the street after that hour are liable to a fine of from $1 to $20 or a month in jail.

HALF-ACRE in EDEN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 MABEL A. SMITH, daughter of wealthy PHILIP CAMPBELL, knows the neighborhood is buzzing over the sudden disappearance of FRANK KLEAUBER, whose engagement to Mabel has been announced. Since his disappearance, a shortage in Kleauber's funds has been discovered. With her friends, HILLY W. W. DILL, and others, Mabel is in a restaurant when there is a hold-up. Mabel loses a ring that was her mother's.

Learning Frank is in Chicago, Mabel goes there to see if she can find him to return and face his financial obligations. Before she reaches his, Frank disappears again. In Chicago, she encounters HILLY W. W. DILL, a stranger, who volunteers a slight service. Hilly is also a passenger on the train Mabel takes to return home. A few weeks later she sees him again. Hilly, an artist, has decided to make his home in the suburbs. TONY STELLICCI, restaurant proprietor, suspects Mabel's plan of being involved in the hold-up and finds some of the foot in Carlo's home. He returns Mabel's ring, but he threatens to turn Carlo over to police, but Carlo escapes. Tony greets all he knows about the hold-up.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVIII
 CARLO STELLICCI had fed Bobbs Neck without considering consequences, other than that he was likely to go to prison by remaining. Neither his invalid father nor Tony had been an item in his mind; he had paid so little attention to his brother and patient for so many years that it was only natural to ignore their interest in his precipitate flight. Carlo had paused long enough in his flight to telephone a warning to his garage employes that their secret was out. This kindness, however, was prompted only by his desire to have the two meet him in the city with certain monies and property secreted at the garage. They repaid him by carrying the little board to New York and instead of joining Carlo where he waited at a hastily appointed rendezvous, continuing their journey in flight to farther destinations.

Carlo at length surmised the truth. He had been cheated. And he vanished among New York's millions for a period of meditation.

During this lonely time he even neglected his four acquaintances in the city, for he felt a vast chasm between them. When, at last, he emerged from hiding, although he had never been called the answer to any one's prayer, he did indeed appear at a moment when profane questions were being asked as to his whereabouts.

It was on a Saturday afternoon. Three of his friends were gathered in the apartment which Carlo had frequently visited. They were rolling dice without enthusiasm. At a proper signal from the doorbell one of the men opened the door and a fourth man entered. He it was who had acted as chairman of the last meeting which Carlo attended in these rooms. "Well, I found out something," he said, slamming the door. "That Stellicci rat has beat it. That's why we haven't got any answer when we called his garage. The two tramps who worked for him have scrambled too, I guess. "The four of us can do the job. One car instead of two. One man outside, three inside. What was the layout Stellicci gave us? Park at that door on the side street, he said. Come out that door, into the car, straight down that street. "What was the next turn?" "No one remembered the answer. They had depended on Carlo and his men more than they had appreciated. And all knew the danger of attempting the job without an easy route for escape. They grew profane as they called on Providence to deliver Carlo Stellicci into their hands. And then the doorbell rang with the answer to their supplications. Carlo Stellicci entered. An abject Carlo. A needy Carlo. A Carlo who knew not where else to look for funds.

WHEN the Osborn car stopped in front of the house, Bruce McDougall was ready. Turning out the lights and pulling on his overcoat, he ran downstairs, patting his pockets in a quick inventory. Keys, cigars, change, wallet—damn the luck! He had forgotten to go to the bank this morning and cash a check on his new account. Now he had only a bit of silver, and faced a Sunday broke. What if Dorothy Osborn cared to see a movie tonight? But as he walked toward the car he remembered having heard someone—Mike, probably—remark that the Bobbs Neck bank was open on Saturday evenings, largely for the convenience of shopkeepers who wished to deposit the receipts of their heaviest selling day. He'd ask Dorothy to stop at the bank; it would take only a moment. Introduced to Mrs. Osborn, McDougall climbed beside Dorothy and she turned the car. "We have just one stop to make," she said. "I hope you won't mind waiting a moment while Mother gets something on Main Street." "As a matter of fact," said McDougall, "I have an errand, too, and I'll do it while you're stop-

Light "Hypnotizes" Deadly Snake While Friends Save Doomed Man

Wakened from a sound sleep by the cold coils of a copperhead snake smuggled close to his breast, George F. Jackson, of New Albany, Ind., owes his life to the ray of a flashlight which held the reptile's attention while a friend snatched Jackson from his cot and out of reach of the snake. Jackson and two fellow fishermen were camping on Blue River, in southern Indiana. They had crawled into their tent early in preparation for the next day's fishing and had been asleep for some time when Jackson awoke with a start. Something cold and smooth was pressing against his side. As he became fully awake, Jackson realized that his unexpected companion must be a snake. The tent was pitch dark and there was no sound except the breathing of the two other men. Jackson was afraid to move lest the snake become alarmed and strike. He did not dare lift the covers or even try to slide gradually away from the reptile. Finally he got up courage to call to his friends, who awoke at once. He told them what had happened and cautioned them to move about only with the greatest care. One of them snapped on his flashlight and the two gingerly approached the cot where Jackson lay. They slowly lifted the blanket, disclosing a large copperhead, one of the deadliest of snakes, snugly coiled. At the first gleam of the light, the snake raised his head, staring fixedly at the beam. When the light wavered slightly, the snake's head instantly followed the motion. This gave Jackson's friend an idea. He moved the light again, and the snake's head turned with it. At the next move, the reptile had to uncoil a bit to follow the beam. These tactics were continued until the copperhead had turned completely away from Jackson and was half uncoiled. Then it was that the other friend seized Jackson and snatched him out of the cot and away from harm. "If any part of my friends' 'hypnotism' act had failed, I was done for," said Jackson. "The snake would have bit me too near the heart for any of our first aid measures to do any good. Only the brilliant beam from that flashlight, which we had just loaded with batteries that were fresh, enabled my friend to draw the reptile away from me and give me a chance." The strain of keeping quiet during the ordeal was so great that Jackson fainted after his rescue. It is believed that the copperhead crawled into the blankets while they were on the ground, remaining tangled in them when Jackson threw them onto his cot.

Warming Up to Winter Warfare

While they fight each other with shot and shell, loyalist and rebel forces in Spain also contend with a common enemy—cold. The bitter, pre-mature winter weather in which the armies battle makes necessary the wool cap worn under his steel helmet by this defender of Madrid, and the gloves that keep his trigger finger from freezing to the machine gun's cold steel.

ONE-MAN POLICE BULLET FACTORY IN GARY TURNS OUT AMMUNITION FAMOUS FOR ACCURATE SHOOTING

By GENE DAILEY

United Press Staff Correspondent

GARY, Ind., Dec. 1 (AP)—A skilled policeman operates the steel city's west and smallest industry—a one-man bullet factory.

The thunder of Gary's mighty mills nearby is an unusual contrast to the tiny "plant" in the basement of police headquarters. There—where measurements are checked to hundredth fraction—Range Officer Ray Randolph turns out hand-made cartridges for weapons of the police.

Does All Jobs

Ballistics experts recognize the superiority of the Gary-made bullets, particularly for target practice, where the least variance in weight may impair accuracy. Sold at little more than cost, the cartridges retail at 1 cent each, whereas machine-made bullets of a similar type sell for 3.3 cents.

Randolph's job demands diversified talents. He is tanner, assembler, collector and advertising manager of the rapidly-expanding industry.

Simplicity, accuracy, and precision are the keynotes in the operation of the Gary bullet factory. Randolph uses a slow-burning powder in his penny bullets. To demonstrate its unusual qualities he pours a mound on the floor and touches the lighted end of his cigarette to it. Instead of the usual flash and explosion, the powder burns slowly and evenly.

When the slow-burning powder is confined it is more powerful than the ordinary variety, however, Randolph explains.

The bullet-making policeman then exhibits his powder apparatus. It is hand-operated and measures out the powder charges exactly—something which is impossible with a machine. Randolph says. Not even the slightest weight variation is possible in the molds in which the bullets are formed. As it clamps together each mold must contain exactly 184 grams of metal or it will not close.

Used Old Shells

In the manufacture of his bullet, Randolph obtains used brass cartridge shells. He pushes out the small fired cap with a small machine and then inserts another firing pin which he brads onto the top of the cartridge.

Then he loads the cartridge and with a pressure machine fastens the bullet to the brass cartridge—and it is ready for the policeman's revolver.

Superiority and economy of the hand-made bullets is arousing increasing interest, according to Randolph. Out-of-city buyers include the Pennsylvania Railroad police; the Hobart, Ind., and the Logansport, Ind., police departments.

OIL TAX ISSUE TO BE FACED BY OKLAHOMA

By LOUIS H. GERTIES

United Press Staff Correspondent

TUSA, Okla., Dec. 1 (AP)—The fabulous oil industry of Oklahoma which since 1897 has produced nearly 4,000,000,000 barrels of oil, is on the defensive against increased taxation.

Although the industry's leaders charge they are unjustly and exorbitantly taxed now, it is believed the state legislature will consider imposing additional levies when it convenes in January.

The first production of any consequence was discovered in Oklahoma near Bartlesville 39 years ago. Since then, according to estimates of H. B. Fell, executive vice president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, Oklahoma has produced about 3,902,990,000 barrels of oil.

$300,000,000 in Wealth

The average price for this oil over the 39-year period is $1.36 a barrel, according to Fell. Thus the total wealth produced by oil in this state is estimated at $5,300,000,000.

How much money the industry has paid in taxes to the state is impossible to determine because of the different city and county taxes various phases of producing, refining and marketing, and because the major companies are organized not on a state but a nationwide basis.

The base tax today is the 5 per cent gross production levy on crude oil, assessed by the state in lieu of an ad valorem tax on known oil reserves. Another tax which is resented by the industry is the four-cent state levy on retail gasoline sales. Although this tax is paid by the consumer oil men oppose it on the ground that it increases the price of their product and thus reduces sales.

Issue of Recent Origin

Until a few years ago taxation was not a pressing problem for the oil industry. This was true because the industry was piling up profits and, secondly, because the state had adequate revenue to finance its activities.

Today neither of these conditions holds. The oil industry is emerging from a series of lean years and the state government is faced with expanding activities.

Thus the legislature, forced to seek new sources of revenue, is faced with the problem of increasing taxes on its greatest industry. Proponents of higher taxation point out that oil is a natural resource that it will some day be exhausted; and that in Oklahoma alone it poured more than 5,300,000,000 into the pockets of those discovered, produced and sold it.

The industry, on the other hand, argues that oil is no more a natural resource than land, buildings or other real property; that there is plenty of oil in sight for many years to come; and that only a small part of the total value of oil produced remained as net profit to corporations.

But despite these arguments, the question of where to find additional taxes to meet the rising cost of state government remains.

T. C. U. WANTS A SANTA CLAUS FOOTBALL GIFT

FORT WORTH, Dec. 1—Here it is December—the month of Santa Claus.

The T. C. U. Horned Frogs want to believe in Santa Claus, but just don't quite dare!

Fife and the conference schedule maker-outers have selected the Texas Longhorns for the role of old Saint Nick.

Those steers could drap the Frogs' Christmas tree with the conference flag by winning from Arkansas in Little Rock next Saturday. And no little boy ever sat by the chimney and waited for Santa half as intently as Coach Dutch Meyer and his boys will sit by the radio and wait for the news from Little Rock.

But hoping for a present from Santa is not all that the Christians are doing this week—not by any means. The same combination of fate and schedule has dealt them an opportunity to climax a not-1990-successful season with a chance to try to knock off the only major undefeated and untied football team left in the country.

The Frogs meet the Santa Clara Broncos in Kezar Stadium, San Francisco, on the afternoon of Dec. 12. The Californians have not dropped a contest this season.

The Frogs beat the Broncos in Fort Worth in 1934 by a score of 19-0. Last year they went out to San Francisco and repeated the maneuver by a score of 19 to 6 count.

If T. C. U. could win again, it would not only run their winning streak to three, but would pull the Frogs up into the forefront of the final 1936 gridiron standings.

Santa Clara, obviously, will be out to maintain her unblemished record and to stop this business of losing to the Horned Frogs.

Thus the setting is such that the game is expected to draw probably 50,000 persons, with a special train leaving Fort Worth Dec. 8 to carry the rabid Fort Worth fans who will follow the frogs in their longest jaunt of the year.
