CASE LIST IS DELAYED AND VERY SHORT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8 (AP)—Speculation on the possible resignation of some members of the Supreme court received emphasis when the tribunal apparently under some tension failed to act on controversial cases on its docket. The feeling was strong in the courtroom as the high tribunal made its first public appearance since President Roosevelt announced his plans for reorganization of the court. The impression was strengthened by a strange circumstance. The court order was delayed 45 minutes. The list announcing the cases the court will hear arguments on and which they will not consider, usually is handed out after the day's formal opinions are read. When they were distributed today they carried only decisions on a few small cases.

Letter Shows Flood Aid by Red Cross

J. E. Spencer, county chairman for the Red Cross chapter of Eastland county has received a letter from the Red Cross manager of the Midwest branch, with offices in St. Louis, relative to the nature and extent of aid given flood sufferers in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys. Since it gives information that is written in a very readable manner we reproduce the letter.

The following statement is for the information of all chapter officials who are receiving inquiries concerning the nature and extent of Red Cross disaster relief, with particular reference to the disaster with which we are now dealing. Disaster relief presents two phases. The first is the emergency, when all effort is expended to meet the immediate needs of the sufferers—rescue, food, clothing, temporary shelter and medical attention. The next step leads us to permanent rehabilitation. Every family affected by the disaster and without resources to re-establish itself unaided, will, insofar as possible, be given sufficient help so that supported by its own effort, it may again become self-supporting.

The assistance which is given by the Red Cross is based on need, not loss. Although a person may have suffered heavily in the disaster, if his financial condition is such that he can stand the loss, without unreasonable hardship, he is not a proper applicant for relief. The relief fund being constructed by the American people is not to assume the place of insurance and to replace losses but is to meet actual needs and minimum needs which the sufferers themselves cannot meet from their own resources.

All help, financial or otherwise, given disaster sufferers is an outright gift from the American people extended through the Red Cross without obligation. The work of rehabilitation requires a careful study with the affected families in order that deficiencies may be based on a knowledge of the facts and insure the re-establishment of the flood sufferers on a self-sustaining basis consistent with their normal life before the disaster.

It is particularly important in view of the many statements appearing in the press with reference to the responsibility for rehabilitation that local agencies that chapter and local agencies that chapter officials understand the distinction between such effort and the service rendered by the Red Cross. The efforts of public agencies are directed primarily to general problems of sanitation, including streets, public property, including streets, sewers, lighting and water systems, etc. The responsibility assumed by the Red Cross for rehabilitation includes the provision of such services as may be necessary to maintain the health and welfare of the families of the flood sufferers and to assist them in the restoration of their homes. The Red Cross is prepared to meet these needs.

Very sincerely yours,
WM. M. BAXTER, JR.,
Manager

Prejudice Is Charged
Margott said that neither the prosecution nor the defense could obtain a fair trial because of prejudice against the state. He charged that racketeers promised to raise a defense fund.
Before the trial closes it is expected that the population of this mountain town of 5,000 will be increased by nearly a thousand. And it has brought county authorities face to face with the problem of how to accommodate spectators, attorneys and newspapermen.
The courtroom of Judge George W. Maxey of the Supreme court has a seating capacity of 200 and possibly might accommodate a few more by rearrangement.
One of the witnesses will be Wall who recovered from the knife wounds.

It took the Carbon five two extra periods to turn the trick as the Loboes had not forgotten the defeat suffered from the hands of the blue and white and were scrapping all the way. The final score was 18-22.
After meeting defeat from the Carbon squad the Loboes met the Eastland Mavericks in their third game of the tournament. The Loboes were tired and were weakened from the loss of a Bacon, center of the squad who had taken ill on the court. The Mavericks won after much trouble from the Lobo five by the score of 15-20.
Preceding these defeats the Loboes had trimmed the Ranger Bulldogs by the score of 30-1. The whole Ranger squad was sent from the game after attempting a free-for-all with the Loboes, and had to forfeit the rest of the game.
