NANKING, July 17 (U.P.)—The Chinese central news agency today quoted "reliable persons" as asserting that Japan has concentrated 400 airplanes in Formosa and plans to bomb the populace cities of Central and South China in event of a general war.

The agency said the Japanese bombers are able to fly over all the principal cities of south and central China and return safely to their base. Nanking itself, could be bombed by the air fleet, the agency said.

It was indicated that the program was drastic and final for it was announced after the meeting that the measures would be submitted to an emergency cabinet session Sunday.

Reports from China were alarming and the government seemed convinced that it must act promptly. A Japanese news agency dispatch from Nanking said that organization of the Chinese army had been completed and the Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek was ready to take command.

Murder Mystery is Linked With Debts

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 17 (U.P.)—Investigation into the mysterious slaying of Dr. George Webster, 39, socially prominent obstetrician, took a sensational turn today when it was revealed the physician was heavily in debt with horse-race bookies and was a consistent bettor.

It was the first break in the police search for a motive for the slaying which occurred early Friday in the doctor's fashionable east side home. The assailant fired 3 shots from a revolver. One pierced the doctor's abdomen, another his shoulder.

Miss Dorothea Gilligan, 33, secretary to Dr. Webster, her brother Arthur, 17, and her roommate Miss Elizabeth Prince, 25, had been booked "as suspicious persons."

Plenty of entertainment dear to a boy's heart will be furnished and all games and play will be supervised. A certain amount of educational training will be on the program.

We Make Our Own Decisions

Fifty-six college men went to the United States Penitentiary at Atlanta last year. Education did not keep them out of prison.

Chancellor Brown, who presides over New York University's 20,000 students, says that among college men lack of character and not lack of technique is the chief cause of failure.

Think over your own acquaintances. Has not character been the most important element in any career you count successful?

Character is not taught in the schools or elsewhere. Voltaire, remembering his Greek, remarked that character "is what nature has craven in us."

The old Frenchman thought that character, like the shape of the face, is acquired at birth, and nothing much can be done about it. Strong arguments support that opinion. For example, we read in the morning paper that in the same congested quarter two boys grew up together, one to be a policeman and the other a murderer.

Nature wrote something in one lad which made him a protector of society and the other became a destroyer. Why? We can't change the qualities nature bestows upon us, but we can choose our own behavior and that, too, is character.

What nature writes upon you depends upon you as much as upon nature.

If you work, one impression will be made. If you are taught to idle, you will become a different kind of person.

European noblemen have been taught that work is beneath their dignity. Yet they still want to live and live on an expensive scale. Consequently, they seek to marry rich American girls. So the "noble" tradition produces one kind of character. It is not a pleasant type, as Americans who are trained to work see things.

Take a newborn baby and within sharp limits almost any kind of character may be found.

You can't change disposition or temperament, but the atmosphere in which a child is reared determines the ideas which environment etches character.

If you want a child to lie, give him an example of mendacity. He may not like what he sees but the chances are he will learn unconsciously. The sons of drunkards are often teetotalers. They too are influenced by what they see.

Fundamental moral ideas are usually acquired early. Many a child of seven has developed traits, good as well as evil, which the longest life will not eradicate. Psychologists now trace the beginnings of crime far back toward infancy. The foundations of a good life are laid during the same early years.

Responsibility for character training cannot be delegated to the colleges or to the schools either for that matter.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—While the C. I. O. certainly is functioning as a rival of the A. F. of L., practically it is little more than its name implies—a Committee for Industrial Organizations.

There is no constitution and there has been no national convention. Future relationship of the international and local unions has not been settled—as the question has long been settled in the A. F. of L.

Nevertheless, C. I. O. already is definitely in a period of transition from an organizing committee to an actual national central organization of labor unions. There no longer seems the slightest chance of a reconciliation with the A. F. of L. The transition began last March when a full meeting of the C. I. O. authorized issuance of certificates of affiliation to national, international, state, regional, city central and other local groups.

EXCEPT for its policy of taking in and chartering new unions as part of its organization, the basic nature of the committee formed in November of 1933 by John Lewis, Sidney Hillman and a few other labor leaders, remains unaltered. It was a voluntary self-appointed committee of heads of international unions and other prominent labor leaders who banded together to promote industrial unionism, to exploit opportunities for organizing which they believed the A. F. of L. had neglected.

In the days which followed, as their plans conflicted increasingly with those of the A. F. of L., this committee and most of the unions whose leadership it represented, split away from the federation.

Relationship of the industrial union councils, formed to unite local unions thrown out of central labor unions by the A. F. of L., is still only vaguely defined.

The relationship of such unions as the United Textile Workers and the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers is somewhat complex. Each has delegated administrative powers to C. I. O. committees, the Steel and the Textile Workers' Organizing Committees. Thus, as counsel for the land steel recently pointed out, the SWOC and TWOC are each a sort of "labor holding company." These are presumed to be temporary agreements and the organizing committees doubtless will disappear if and when the industries concerned are sufficiently organized. But all this is in the future. C. I. O. will not and can't continue as a mere committee.

OUT OUR WAY

Character comes out of the home.

What you are will powerfully influence your children. They will imitate your virtues and they won't overlook your vices. But happily they are not tied to you. For regardless of home and all of the other forces of environment, each of us finally makes his and her own decision. Past experience may render one choice easier than the other, but in the end we are still free.

Some, like Leopold and Loeb, despite college training, land in prison. Lincolns and Edisons, denied every special privilege, reach the highest eminence. Character, not education, determines the destination.

VACATION IDIABY BY JEAN SEIVWRIGHT Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS JOY—Heroine, hostess in smart Maine tearoom. ROGER—Joy's fiance; rising young designer. ANGELA—Joy's rival in love. RITSA—Roger's young playboy, Roger's rival in love. Yesterday, Roger and Joy quarrel over Peter. Joy returns her engagement ring to Roger as they part in anger.

CHAPTER III

MONDAY: Stopped at the news stand in the Roosevelt Hotel today and bought a magazine from the clerk who usually waits on me.

"Look," she whispered, glancing in the direction of the dining room, "there's the man who owns the Ace-High Club."

I turned around while she continued, "He's with the young fellow who designed the interior and furniture for it. They say Rocco wants him for his daughter—you bet she likes him... nice, clean-cut fellow... wouldn't mind having him myself. Oh, don't you feel good?"

I knew my tell-tale face was betraying my heart so, making the best of it, I forced a smile and pointing at the clock, said, "I'm all right, but look at the time!" and putting the change in my handbag I hurried away.

When I neared the door, Roger was already on the sidewalk. A flashing, metal-trimmed car was at the curb. The door opened. Angela's laughing face was raised to his... if only I could have heard what they said when he got into the car.

Peter didn't say much when I told him Roger and I had broken our engagement; but his, "Gee, Sis, Roger's a swell guy!" still rankles. Don't I know it?

I've tried to console myself with the thought that Roger deliberately made an issue of Peter's future so that he could bring our engagement to an end; but my heart tells me that's not so. There are moments when I can feel Roger's kisses on my lips. I have not heard from him all day... if only I might know whether Angela really means something to the man I shall always love.

RAN into Rita Haley, an old college friend, on Fifth Avenue. She's a buyer for a western store... she's going to Paris tomorrow... interested as usual in my affairs... suggested I get a summer job and take Peter to the country. That might be all right, but what about a job in fall? Offered to get me one if Long's refused to take me back... her promises were still ringing in my ears as we said goodbye... she'll probably marry a count and forget everything else. "You're not going to stand for that, are you?" Gail asked when she came on duty in the afternoon. "I think it's time someone put a flea in the ear of that gossip," and she thrust a paper into my hand, her finger pointing to this paragraph in The Crow's Nest: "Betting's in favor of the lovely Illustration by E. H. Gunder.

I tiptoed into the hall... nearly touched the ceiling when I saw a face pressed against the lower pane of a small window beside the front door.

Angela leading her young designer to the altar."

I laughed and handed back the newspaper.

"Then there's nothing to all this talk about Roger and Angela?"

I shook my head, and darted to the locker room. Does Roger know where he's drifting? His strength of character... how much I admired that.

Went out with Dick... had a grand time... disturbed a bit though at that car that came alongside us as we crossed the Queensborough Bridge. I can see the dark, ferret-like eyes of the driver now... they were riveted on Dick when the traffic lights turned against us. Mine followed their gaze... Dick's face was pale beneath his tan... his knuckles showed white as his hands tightened their hold of the wheel. Wondered if Dick recognized him... decided silence was "golden."

"Perhaps," I answered as lightly as I could; but that spoiled the rest of the evening for me.

It might have been spoiled before if I had let myself think about what the manager had said to me... he might have to let one of us girls go if business slackened off... suppose I'll be the one as I've been at Long's a shorter time than any of the others. Has my luck gone sour? Called me later... said Mrs. Fenwick, the society woman, wanted someone to be hostess at her swanky tearoom in Maine. With Peter on my hands I guess that's out for me.

Tuesday: Must put a postscript to my last entry. Am in a new world. So much has happened all I can do is jot down some of the highlights. Took the job at Mrs. Fenwick's, though I almost lost out because of Peter... she didn't want any little boys around... Miss Pegler heard about it... her summer home's quite near the tearoom... one word from her put me right in.

I'm sure I'll love it here... imagine getting a summer holiday in Maine for nothing (my expenses going and coming are being paid by the lady) and earning a nice salary for a few hours' work every day! Best of all the manager promised me my job at Long's would be waiting for me when I returned to New York in fall!

What was that noise? With ears trained to the screech of "EI" trains, the shouting of newsboys and fierce shrieks of fire truck horns, it seems terribly quiet in the country. Everyone's gone to the village to the movies tonight (the college girl waitresses and the famous cook, Big Kate, live in the cottage with us) except Peter, who's asleep upstairs.

There it goes again! I've got to see what it is. Cal, the handyman, told me today we're almost a mile from the nearest neighbor... sounds like someone knocking... Rowdy, part Airedale, part German police dog, hears P. too.

Back at my desk once more, still shaking with excitement. Well, here's what happened. I tiptoed into the hall which was in semi-darkness (Mrs. Fenwick likes to save electricity), nearly touched the ceiling when I saw a face pressed against the lower pane of a small window beside the front door.

"Hi, there... anybody home... I want to phone," a man's voice called.

Rowdy rushed ahead of me, barking furiously. I told the man I didn't open the door in case the dog would go for him. (He looks the fiercest thing, but he's gentle as a lamb with his friends)... offered to make his call for him.

He stormed about for a minute then agreed, while I racked my brain as to where I'd seen his face before... got his number... a foreign voice answered... couldn't or wouldn't understand my message... returned to man... told him... then, scowling as he glanced towards his stalled truck, he said, "Tell them to step on it... Jigger says so!" Suddenly I knew where I'd seen him.

CISCO GIRLS SNATCH SCORE FROM ABILENE
 The Cisco girls followed the example of the boys last night in making things hard on Abilene soft ball teams by beating the Abilene girls by a score of 17 to 7. The girls more than got revenge for the close defeat handed them in Abilene last week.

The Cisco girls have been working hard and playing a lot of hard games away from home so they would be ready to really play ball when they played before the home folks. Last night the girls were just a little bit jittery at the first of the game but they settled down without too much damage being done and started giving Abilene all the soft ball they could handle.

In the first inning Abilene scored four runs on three hits and one error to get what looked like a mighty nice lead. The Cisco girls came right back in their half of the first and lambasted the Abilene pitcher all over the park, scoring seven runs to get a lead that was never threatened. Reams led the Cisco attack by getting three hits out of four times at bat and scoring three runs. Bell followed by getting two hits out of three times at bat.

Ruth Brown pitched for Cisco and with a little better support in the field she would have had a shut out. Brown gave the Abilene team only eight hits and five of them came in the first two innings. For the rest of the game she was retiring them in one, two and three order and did not walk a single batter during the full seven innings.

Bell, Samson. White all looked mighty good and played a fine game
 Bell hit one to the center field boards that should have been a homer. John St. John umpired the game. Bobby Burkett called the bases. Cus Dick was the score keeper and Carmichael kept score.

'The Skeleton' to Be Danced at Fete

LEWISBURG, P. O.—The skeleton dance of the Nanticoke Indian will be performed for the first time tonight by the white men's "council fires" during the Pennsylvania Folk Festival July 20 and 21. Descendants of the once powerful tribe, led by Chief Little Owl or Charles C. Clark, of River Dale Park Del., will return to ancestral hunting grounds here from their little settlement, on the Indian River, Sussex County, Del. In the weird tribal ritual a human skeleton is held aloft as a tribute to the dead. This time the "principal" will be borrowed from Bucknell University's biology laboratory.

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, July 17 (UP)—President Chert Sandford of the State Board of Education defends vigorously the action of the board in voting a $22 per scholastic state aid to school districts.

By doing so, the board disappointed hopes of Gov. James V. Allred for a reduced tax rate, with no school tax.

State Finance Chairman John Redditt of Lufkin said the state automatic tax board might reduce the state tax rate regardless of the Board of Education. The education board estimated that the present 20 cents tax on $100 valuation would be needed to pay the $22 per pupil. That is 15 cents below the maximum school tax that could have been levied.

Redditt's suggestion irked Sandford, especially a quoted statement that the Board of Education should have given the taxpayers a rest.

"He didn't seem to be digging his heels in very hard to hold back when the Texas Senate was voting its appropriation for state colleges," Sandford replied.

Board of Education members contend that they really are saving the majority of taxpayers money by raising the school apportionment.

The argument is this: If the state lessens its aid to school districts, local school taxes will be higher. The state school tax is paid only on property not subject to the $3,000 homestead tax exemption. The exemption does not apply to local school taxes. The big property owners pay the state tax; the small property owners escape a local tax that would not be levied except for state aid.

Board of Education members say further that they really are being liberal to the taxpayers in holding the apportionment to $22. Member John Laird argued that they really should make a $25 apportionment to provide a six-months school term in every part of the state. The board estimated a $19 apportionment could be paid without any state school tax levy; a $20 apportionment could be paid with a 10-cent levy; a $21 apportionment with a 15-cent levy and $22 with a 20-cent tax levy. Maximum state school tax possible under the constitution is 35 cents.

Many answers were given when the Board of Education asked local school officials who attended the board meeting what they propose to do with the additional money they will receive. Contrary to expectation, eight out of 10 proposed to use it for purposes other than raising pay of teachers. Most of them want to fix up school buildings, which, they said, had been sadly neglected during the depression. Some proposed to increase the teaching staff and offer full day sessions to children now attending half-day sessions. Some propose to pay off debts incurred to keep schools running during the depression days.

John Olsen is the state's most valuable employe in the estimate of Jim Strong of Carthage, member of the State Board of Education. Strong told the board so this week.

Olsen's duty is to check the scholastic census. School districts will receive $22 for the next school year from the state for every child from 6 years of age through 17 shown to be school census residing in the district. The school count is taken locally. Olsen's job is to check it.

He is so thorough, Strong said, that there will not be much increase in the census this year. Rolls have caused near-scandals in several communities in the past.

Strong is a former member of the Texas Senate. Another member of the State Board of Education, John Laird, of Lufkin, is a former member of the House of Representatives.

The board was speculating upon what the legislature might do about distributing taxes to schools at the special fall tax session, which is threatened. Strong asked if the apportionment in the last omnibus tax bill might be changed.

"I object to anyone asking anyone what the Texas Legislature may do," said Laird.

The Governor Allred Handicap, a special sweepstake event for 71-pound watermelons or better, was off in a burst of well, speed, this week.

So far there is just one entrant—a beautiful, delectable tid-bit of 71 pounds.

The fact of the matter is that when Stockdale, Wilson county, submitted, there wasn't any race at all. The handicap feature developed later.

It was brewed in the minds of newsmen at a press conference, scarcely a minute after Allred announced that he would cut the prize-winning melon with the reporters as his guests. He asked them to aid him judge Stockdale's claim of agricultural superiority.

"Counties that want to submit melons may send them to me and I'll get all you fellows (newsmen) in here and we'll pass on them," Allred laughed.

He promised, "really and truly," to select the best melon, "regardless of political consequences."

The Stockdale entry ran the handicap course in Allred's office that same afternoon in remarkably short time, flat. Nearly a dozen newsmen rode it to an awe-inspiring finish.

AUSTRALIA TO BE AIR HUB SYDNEY (UP)—Competition between international air lines for service to Australia is becoming more intense. Angler Hooks Beaver Loses Rod and Spoon

CUDEBACKVILLE, N. Y. (UP)—Eud Trumbull and Emmett W. Jarvis relate the following fish story. Trumbull and Jarvis said they were watching a boy cast with a spoon for pickerel along the banks of the Basha Kill, near here. A beaver swam slowly along the far bank. The boy cast toward the beaver.

Frightened by the splash as the spoon struck the water, the beaver slapped the water with his tail. But his tail struck where the spoon was slowly submerging.

The next instant the boy held a broken rod, and the beaver was streaking upstream—with the spoon fastened in his tail and 10 feet of line trailing along behind.

Beale Street Prefers 'Drink, Smell' Poker

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—A murder failed to lessen popularity of the new card game of "drink and smell" among Negro residents of Beale Street, Harlem, of the South. "Drink and smell" is a form of poker. Whisky is the winner's reward instead of money. The winner of a hand receives a drink of whisky; the loser gets only a smell of the cork.

James Coburn, Negro, was sentenced for 11 months and 29 days for slaying another Negro in an argument arising over a game of "drink and smell." This fatal ending, however, did not dampen desire of the Beale Street players for the game.

HOUSE PAINTER ERRS KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (UP)—When Louis G. Hoagland drove up in front of his home, he had to look twice to see if he was wrong. In his absence, a house painter had painted the take—because it had been commingled with different neighbors' paint.

Offers First Aid Hints

"Reduction of traffic deaths and serious injuries depends most next to prevention of accidents themselves—upon the clear-headedness of the persons on the scene," Dr. O'Malley said. "Once a smash-up has occurred, the problem of immediate importance is to get the victim to a hospital emergency room without aggravating his injuries."

For the bystander to make himself more useful at the scene of an auto accident, Dr. O'Malley gave these rules:

First—Summon an ambulance. Second—Refuse to jam an injured person into the first passing auto.

Awkward haste and unskillful handling by the curbstone congregations are the two surest allies of death and disability that hover over every accident, according to Dr. John Dickenson, state chairman of the committee on fractures of the American College of Surgeons.

"A simple leg fracture, for instance, when the limb is not splinted, may be converted into a compound, with the jagged edges of bone sawing through flesh and nerves like a knife. A splintered rib may pierce a lung, or a smashed vertebra sever the spinal cord during the apparently simple act of lifting a victim into an auto," Dr. Dickenson pointed out.

Women Called Calmest

Men at the scene of an accident oddly enough, are much more excitable as a rule, than women, according to Dr. O'Malley. A woman's natural nursing instinct seems to tell her that the best thing to do for an injured person is to keep him quiet and comfortable as possible. A man, on the other hand, is impelled by an irresistible urge to do something active and positive.

"The good samaritan" should cover victims with a blanket or coat. Warmth helps bleeding if possible, should receive immediate attention. It can be checked with a handkerchief compress or by finger pressure on the artery without hurting the victim. Before the numbness or shock has worn off staff will be on the scene—and the high speed ambulance—and "good samaritan's" job is over.

SURGEONS GIVE ADVICE TO AID AUTO VICTIMS

CLEVELAND, July 17 (UP)—The crumpling crash of an automobile accident invariably draws an excited crowd of bystanders, witnesses and scores of "helpful" suggestions for the care of the injured.

From these crowds of curbstone kibitzers there invariably steps "the good samaritan" who offers the use of his car and knowledge of the city to speed the crash victims to the nearest hospital. "The good samaritan" supervises and aids in the placing of the injured in his car and then drives with all speed to the nearest emergency ward with his self-imposed "charge."

The curbstone good samaritan is somewhat of a menace and usually does more harm than good to the auto crash victims, believes Dr. Geo

Thief Chased From Store By Accident

DALLAS (UP)—When Ed Lott, J. R. Riley and Homer Platt accidentally tripped a burglar alarm at a grocery warehouse they were ready to apologize for the error—but R. D. Dickson, grocery concern manager, gave them his thanks instead.

The sound of the ear-splitting alarm caused a prowler to leave his pile of loot which included cash and cigarettes and slid down a drainpipe. Nightwatchman Rhodes saw him however, and gave chase. The burglar escaped but nothing was missing from the store.

J. D. Sandefer, Jr. Has Operation

BRECKENRIDGE, July 17—Reports received from the bedside of J. D. It was found he was suffering from an attack of appendicitis and the operation was performed at once. It was said he is in the Medical Arts building. His illness was sudden that many of Mr. Sandefer's closest friends did not know he had gone to Dallas until news of the operation reached the street Friday morning.

BRITISH MONEY MAY AID CHINA

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17 (AP)—Great Britain is expected to adopt a more active policy in China to protect and extend the British stake there, according to a survey completed by the Institute of Pacific Relations.

The new policy, it was said, may be manifest along three lines, as follows: A policy that is not likely to consider any adjustment of the political situation in the Far East that would be unfavorable to the present Nanking government.

Direct assistance to the Chinese government in its plans for economic development. Increased participation by British financial interests in economic projects, especially the construction of railways, that are calculated to yield an immediate economic return and at the same time increase Great Britain's financial stake in China.

Opposite of U. S. Policy This reported change in the attitude of Great Britain toward Chinese development and an increase in its financial interest there, that of the United States which since the famous Stimson note during the Manchurian affair, has shown a marked tendency to limit both its political interest and financial stake in China.

Various causes are cited by the institute as having led Great Britain to this determination as regards China. It is conceded that the new tendency is in direct contrast with the 20-year alliance that existed between Great Britain and Japan, which ended with the signing of the Washington treaties, and which served to protect British and Japanese interests in Asia against Russian encroachment.

While Great Britain had endeavored ever since the abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance to maintain the friendliest relations with Japan, it is apparent now, the institute's survey said, that it is no longer disposed to do this at the expense of China, or rather at the expense of its financial stake and future possibilities in China.

Policy More Energetic Where, during the crisis over the question of Manchuria, Britain did nothing positive to prevent the creation of the new Japanese state of Manchukuo, the institute said that at present Whitehall no longer is disposed to permit any Far Eastern adjustment that would be inimical to the interests of a new and stable China.

One of the things which has most alarmed Britain and influenced the new policy, the institute found, has been the repeatedly manifest intention of Japan to end all Western influence in China and leave Japan as the controlling voice in the regulation of all Chinese questions. In other words, with the United States showing less and less interest in the Far Eastern situation, Britain has made it clear that it has no intention of leaving the Far East to the full control of Japan.

As a result of this new change in British policy as regards China, the institute found that the future balance of political forces in the Far East may likely undergo a complete change. From a China left entirely to the mercy of the Japanese and with a strong tendency on the part of the latter to

Traffic Fatalities Peak 594 in Texas

AUSTIN, (AP)—Death in traffic accidents came to 594 persons in Texas during March, April, May and June.

Hit-and-run drivers killed 19 of the 100 persons they left by the roadside within the first three months of that period.

Through the May 31 tabulation by the Public Safety Department, covering the immediately preceding three months, there were 3,746 accidents, 9.82 per cent of which were fatal. Injuries were suffered by 3,368 persons involved in 53.07 per cent of the wrecks.

Motor-with-motor collisions were the worst offenders, more than half of the accidents being thus classified, but the outmoded horse-drawn vehicle was involved 51 per cent of the time.

Not one of June's 198 fatalities resulted from accidents within metropolitan city limits. Why? "Just an accident," Public Safety employees said, adding that they hoped it was because stricter traffic law enforcement by city police, but that could not be ascertained until the accident report records are submitted to the department.

Fireproof Project Under Construction

MARLIN (AP)—Eight fire-proof semi-Spanish type buildings will be constructed on the Brown Creek Watershed Studies project of the U. S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation, located nine miles north of Marlin in Falls county. Ralph Baird, project manager, has announced F. A. Mohr, Dallas, has awarded the contract on a low bid of $30,000. Baird said construction will start in early August and these buildings for the study of soil erosion control methods in Falls County are the second of 10 such stations to be erected in the United States by the government.

Site of these buildings is on part of tract of 841.3 acres in Falls county bought by the government for these experiments. Payroll during operation of this station, which extends for a period of 25 years or more, will be $50,000 per year, it is estimated.

WEST MEXICO MAPS CAPITAL HIGHWAY LINK

By ARNAUD DUSSEAU United Press Staff Correspondent HERMOSILLO, Sonora, Mexico, July 17 (AP)—Visions of another world-famous bordertown comparable to Agua Caliente are seen for this small west coast Mexican town following award of a 7,000,000-peso contract for paving a highway from here to the Sinaloa state line.

The contract is hailed by American and Mexican authorities as the first and most important step in the long visualized first-class highways from the international border at Nogales to Mexico City.

State tourists bureaus anticipate a 1,000 per cent increase in trade, and already sites have been chosen for two modern hotels.

Gov. Roman Yocupicio was hailed as responsible for the inauguration of the highways, and business men recall his inaugural address last September when he pledged highway improvement as one of the vital aims of his administration.

Hopes to Advance Friendship To build a greater American tourist trade and foster a deeper feeling of friendship between the two countries, Yocupicio founded a state tourist bureau shortly after he took office.

Today tourist bureaus are in every important city in Sonora. The Mexican dream is to have a first-class highway to enable tourists to make a complete tour of the entire republic, entering at Laredo, Texas.

In February the Sonora governor spent several weeks in Meztatlan, Sinaloa, attending a meeting of Mexican-American good roads associations where plans were made to fulfill this dream.

Four Mexican states were represented and application for funds was made to the Federal government. A representative of President Lazaro Cardenas pledged to match any state funds.

The American delegation, represented by the Southern California Good Roads Association, agreed to aid the work by sending experienced engineers into Mexico to map the routes.

Mountains in Path The major problem confronting engineers was the formidable mountainous region north of Guadalajara. These mountains, rising thousands of jagged feet above sea-level, have confronted engineers since the days of Diaz. They were the refuge of Villa's men, Indian tribes, unknown to civilization, are said to have hidden in them for years.

Ambrose Bierce, famous American author, is believed to have been lost and died in them.

Engineers decided it would be folly to scale the mountains, treacherous even to nimble mapping and planning, it was found a highway could

Which Is the Beauty?

First glances at the Most Beautiful and Most Popular girls at Texas State College for Women leave some doubt as to which is which, since both could well qualify for beauties. However, facts reveal that Miss Irene Pyle, left, is the lovely lady, and Miss Judith Stegman, right, was elected most popular. Miss Pyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pyle of Celeste, is a senior English major. Miss Stegman, whose home is in Brownsville, is active in college dramatics and will receive her degree in Speech this August.

be laid by swinging the road along the Pacific Coast. While engineers were carrying out this work, Yocupicio's administration proceeded with the building of a score of bridges along the Nogales-Hermosillo highway. Work on the Hermosillo-Sinaloa strip will begin lat. in July and is expected to be finished by 1939.

Frisco Railroad to Be Reconstructed

BROWNWOOD (AP)—Work of rebuilding the old Frisco railroad from Brownwood to Fort Worth, acquired last March by the Santa Fe railway, has been started. The reconstruction work will cover seven-mile lengths, and will not interfere with regular schedules between the two cities.

A crew of 25 men is employed replacing the line's 70 and 75 pound rails with 90 pound steel, widening road dumps, placing new ties, strengthening bridges, and rebalancing. The heavier rails will handle the largest Santa Fe locomotives officials stated. Bridge work will include the Brazos river bridge in Hood county, and other smaller bridges will be strengthened.
