Can You Name The Persons Shown?

Shown is one of the early established businesses in Cisco. Can you guess the name of the company and four men? Note the sign above the teller's cage "Strangers must be identified before drafts will be paid."

The answer will be published in Thursday's edition.

Bettye McGinness, coordinator of the Cisco Centennial, has made a request for citizens to leave more pictures at the Chamber of Commerce to be published.

Tax Re-evaluation Set To Get Underway

The re-evaluation of all taxable property within Eastland County will begin within the next few days.

The reason behind the re-evaluation is a new State Law which requires that all property within the State be valued at its fair market value and placed on the tax rolls at a 100% assessment ratio by 1982.

In order for the taxing districts of our county to comply with this deadline, it is necessary that work must begin quickly. By 1982 each County within our State must have these values established and have set up a County wide Appraisal Office whose duty it will be to keep these values up to the market level.

This law was passed by the 1979 legislature and leaves no choice to the counties within our State that have not had re-appraisals in many years, they must re-evaluate in order to get the fair market values required.

Although the re-evaluation is to take place during the 1981 year, none of the new values will be used for the 1981 tax rolls.

The law requires that all property owners be notified of the new value of their property and given the opportunity to meet with a County-wide Board of Review if they feel their value is either too high or low.

This Board of Review will be held in the spring of 1982 and the values that they certify will show up on the tax statements received in the fall of 1982. This Board of Review will approve the values but will not set the tax rates. The tax rates will still be set by the governing body of the individual tax district, whether it is a school board, hospital board, city council, college board, or etc.

The amount of taxes that a property owner will pay will still depend upon the rate that is set by his local board.

The value of much of the property may increase several times higher than it is presently valued, but the actual tax increase, if any will be dependent upon the tax rate set by the local boards.

The purpose of the Legislature in forcing re-evaluation was to equalize the tax rolls of the State so that all property owners are paying on the same % of value on their property.

The re-evaluation of the property within Eastland County will be done by the firm of McMorries and Company of Hereford, Texas. They have been in the re-evaluation business for over 25 years and were employed by the districts of the county to begin work as soon as possible.

The firm has been working on maps and property records for the past several weeks in the tax offices of the County.

The actual field work is expected to begin within the next few days according to Jim McMorries, owner of the company. They plan to start their field work in the Rising Star area of the county.

Mr. McMorries states that all of his appraisers are experienced and will take all steps necessary in cooperating with the property owners. Each appraiser will identify himself to the property owner before attempting to do any type of evaluation of the property.

If the property owner feels that another time will be better for the appraisal the company representative will leave him a card with a phone number on it so that a more convenient time may be set up.

If a property owner has any question concerning the re-evaluation work to be done please contact the local tax office.

and cooperation of all of the citizens of Eastland County if we are to be able to comply with the mandated time schedule of 1982.

As work on the county re-evaluation continues the Eastland County Appraisal District in cooperation with this paper will make all attempts to keep the property owners of the County informed as to the progress of the work.

Again, you as a property owner are urged to check with your local tax office if you have any questions concerning the re-evaluation.

CofC President Ledbetter Challenges Local Citizens

The incoming president for the 1981 Chamber of Commerce, Ronnie Ledbetter, challenged all Ciscoans to "Get out and do your part to make the Chamber and town a better place to live and make a living." The challenge was issued at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet held Thursday night at the Cisco Junior College Agriculture Building.

Mr. Ledbetter stated he believes Cisco has been "overlooking one of the most dreaded diseases - apathy." He explained he believes negative news articles and attitudes of the citizens will continue unless "we rid ourselves of apathy." He asked for more participation and input from each individual in the coming year and stated that "by unity and individual commitment" Cisco can work for a better progressive Cisco.

He stated the Chamber of Commerce had a good year in 1980 and he presented retiring president, Roy Dennis, with a plaque in appreciation for his work.

Roy Dennis thanked the members and board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and stated he has enjoyed working with them and being a part of Cisco's business community. He stated that Cisco's sales tax increased more than any of the surrounding cities during the last quarter of 1980. He contributed that in part to the new industries and businesses established in Cisco during the past year.

He also stated he believes the rising cost of gasoline helped Cisco's sales. He went on to say that many members have been working hard for the Centennial and asked everyone to participate in the activities planned. He concluded by saying "1980 was a good year, but I am looking forward to business in Cisco in 1981 because I think it will be much better."

Mr. Dennis introduced the retiring directors of the Chamber as himself, Clois Purvis, Eddie McMillan and Bobby Smith. The officers and directors for 1981 were introduced by president Ledbetter as follows: Elaine Dixon, first vice president; Gerald Winnett, second vice president; Joe Wheatley, third vice president; and directors, Frank Barrett, Steve Cozart, Robert Dudley, Bob Ford, Gene Gwinn, Brad Kimbrough, Barbara Pope, Eris Ritchie, Dr. Norman Wallace, Dick Woolley and Billy Wright Jr., Gene Abbott, Chamber manager, and Sheila Dunlap, secretary, were introduced as well as ex-officio Roy Cartee, Mayor of the City of Cisco and Roy Dennis, immediate past president.

Master of Ceremonies, Eris Ritchie, opened the banquet by welcoming those in attendance and introducing visitors and guests. Those introduced were Mayor and Mrs. Roy Cartee; council members Harold Pippen and Jerry Jeffcoat and their wives; Judge and Mrs. Scott Bailey; County Commissioner Runt Dill; David Allen, Clay Spain and Bob Gates, all from CJC's extension campus in Abilene; Mr. and Mrs. Pete Tippen, Mr. and Mrs. John McDaniel, Mr. and Mrs. Bill McKinnon, Dennis Lassiter, Julius Kubena and Bob Utley, all of Abilene; State Representative and Mrs. Joe Hanna and Jim Rominger of Breckenridge; Milton Underwood, Rick Vaughn, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Walton and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Taylor, all of Eastland; Cal Michaelson, ENRE president of San Antonio; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Longley of Stamford; Mr. and Mrs. S.C. Guthrie of Brownwood; Dalton Ake of Fort Worth; and Richard Woods of Brisbane, Australia, a guest of the Robert Kamons of Cisco.

Mr. Ritchie closed the displays by CJC at the banquet, as well as the posters on the walls which were prepared by primary, junior high and senior high students. The place mats were made by students of Cisco Intermediate School and those attending the banquet were invited to keep the place mats and Cisco Centennial bumper stickers as souvenirs of the banquet. Mr. Ritchie also expressed thanks to Ruth Lindsey and staff at the White Elephant Restaurant for the "delicious meal."

Persons seated at the head table were introduced by Mr. Ritchie as Chamber manager Gene Abbott and his wife, Catherine; Eris and Annita Ritchie; Ronnie Ledbetter and his guest, Betty Whitley; and Roy and Sandy Dennis. Mr. Ritchie also paid a special thanks to the banquet committee com-

TRASH COMPACTORS

Question: If you dispose of tin cans and glass bottles in a trash compactor, won't the bag tear?
Answer: The disposable compactor bag is made of heavy kraft paper with a moisture resistant polyethylene liner laminated to the inside. Its design helps prevent any small punctures from tearing large openings in the bag.

TURNING A MOUNTAIN OF TRASH INTO A MOLEHILL is what a compactor does.

Question: Does the compacted trash have an odor?
Answer: A solid air freshener is included in each Whirlpool Corporation compactor. Some models have an adjustable control so that you can regulate the amount of freshener released depending on the nature of the trash in the compactor.

Question: Is special wiring needed for a compactor?
Answer: A normal household 120-volt 15 amp. grounded circuit is all that's needed. It is also recommended that a delayed fuse be installed.

News From The Center
By Moe Green

Everything is about back to normal at the Center. We are looking forward to a good year.

The birthday party was hosted by the Pleasant Hill Extension Club. Birthday honorees were Ralph Green and Mary Smith. Mrs. Betty Hastings, a member of the club, played soft background music to set the atmosphere for the party.

Congratulations go to Mr. and Mrs. James Harrison of the Center, who celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary on January 18th.

I would like to get a rhythm band started again. If you can teach or train a rhythm band please volunteer today. We need you. The residents enjoyed this so much in the past.

Mildred Giest comes to the Center, usually on Wednesdays, to do manicures. She stated that she would be glad to have a helper. If you would like to use some of your spare time to help someone less fortunate than you, please call me at the Center or Mildred at 442-1528. All volunteers are welcomed and very much appreciated.

Corn Crib Club Destroyed By Fire

The Corn Crib, a private club east of Eastland at Int. 20, was destroyed by fire early Friday morning.

Investigation of the fire, which reportedly started on the outside, is underway. The alarm was turned in at 2:55 a.m., and Fire Departments from Eastland, Cisco and Ranger responded, but the wooden structure burned fast.

Originally primarily a restaurant, it was opened about seven years ago as the Trails West Steak House in the front, with the small private club, the Corn Crib, operating in the back. It was for a long time a popular Tuesday night shrimp-serving place, but later as the restaurant closed, the private club expanded to occupy the entire building.

Jimmy Teague of Jacksboro originally opened the restaurant, later selling to Dan James who operated it for some time.

James later sold to Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Newman who were the present operators.

Eastland Fire Department Chief Rex Webb called the building a total loss, but estimates of the damage were not immediately available and it hadn't been learned whether the facility would be re-built.

A motorist on Int. 20 reportedly spotted the blaze

Eastland 4-Hers Attend Statewide Retreat

On January 9, 10, and 11, 1981, five outstanding 4-Hers from the Eastland Happy-Go-Getters 4-H Club attended a Statewide Teen Leader Retreat at the State 4-H Center at Brownwood Lake. Those attending were Leanne Brown, Shirley Kidd, Rhonda Little, Patri Spurlen, and Robin White. Pam White, adult leader, also attended.

On Friday night, there was a square dance called by Joel Wilson of West Texas

Utilities.

Saturday morning, there were talks and films on "Leadership". That afternoon, the kids divided into groups of 10 to 11 and worked up skits to present to the entire group on Sunday morning. These skits were to include at least one of the following "Ten Points of Leadership":

1. Self Confidence,
2. Responsibility,
3. Preparedness,
4. Ability To Take Criticism,
5. Be a Team Player,
6. Be In Control,
7. Be Fair,
8. Be Courageous,
9. Know that you are Human,
10. Be Cooperative.

Saturday night, there was a "Best Ever" Float Making Contest. The kids, again divided into their groups and were given such items as shoe boxes, cotton balls, paper cups and plates, glitter, pipe cleaners, balloons, construction paper, crepe paper and glue. They then faced the task of the construction of a model float. The theme of each float was "4-H". There were lots of good ideas born and lots of fun along the way. This was, also, a good way to utilize the "Ten Points of Leadership" everyone learned earlier.

There was a country-western dance on Saturday night hosted by a disc-jockey from Brownwood.

On Sunday morning, there was an inspirational message on leadership presented by the pastor of the Church of Christ of Brownwood.

The groups of kids acted out their skits and there was a concluding talk on "Leadership".

There were approximately 250 4-Hers, adult leaders, county agents and 4-H Specialists attending the three day retreat. There was lots of work and lots of fun for all who participated and there was a lesson on leadership of everyone.

GORDON SPOT

By DeMarquis Gordon

Pecan growers who were winners at the Eastland County Pecan Show did very well at the Central Texas Regional Pecan Show held in Dallas. The Central Texas region covers the north-eastern third of Texas.

James Alexander of Rising Star had the champion native pecans while Rex Hudson of Rising Star had the reserve champion shelling pecans. These were an entry of Sioux pecans.

Others winning first place in their class were Rex Hudson with Apache, E.A. Walker of DeLeon in Burkett class, Acres of Joy of Rising Star with Gra-Bohl and Scot Gordon of Eastland with Tejas pecans.

Seven growers won second place in their class. They included T.E. Robertson of Breckenridge-Choctaw, Charles Walker of Eastland-Comanche, Mrs. C.E. Smith of Rising Star-Brake, Acres of Joy-Halbert, James Alexander-Kincaid, Scot Gordon-Shawnee and Dale Walker of Carbon-Texas Prolific.

Two other growers won third place ribbons. The were Dan Childress, of Cottonwood-Barton, and Acres of Joy-Cherokee. Congratulations to all the winners. These winners will now compete in the state pecan show next July.

The Eastland County 4-H members exhibited projects at the Abilene Livestock Show January 19, 20, and 21. Diane Bulter of Eastland showed a lamb, Tommy Donham of Cisco showed a steer and Jim Moylan of Eastland showed two steers.

Now is a good time to prune trees. Fruit trees usually live longer and produce more fruit when they receive proper pruning.

Larger fruits and better fruit colors result from better light distribution throughout the tree after pruning. Cultivation, spraying and harvesting are also made easier by pruning.

With annual pruning, the growth of a tree can be guided to establish secure branches correctly on the main trunk. By selection and establishing scaffold branches early, you can avoid many large cuts later on.

First prune dead or dying wood and suckers growing from the trunk and large limbs. Next remove interfering branches.

Prune limbs that grow inward, criss-cross through the tree or lie directly on or

Stacy Blair To Be In Concert Tuesday January 27

Stacy Blair will be in concert with the Abilene Philharmonic Orchestra, Tuesday, January 27. Stacy will be featured as trumpet soloist for the concert which will begin at 8:15 in the Abilene Civic Center. Tickets will be available at the door.

The Abilene Philharmonic Orchestra has between eight and ten subscription concerts each year. Soloists for these concerts are planned a year in advance.

Stacy was supposed to be the featured soloist in November of this year but due to the illness of the scheduled soloist, Stacy is exchanging times with her over another. Leave only those limbs that radiate outward.

After suckers and interfering branches are removed, thin the remaining terminal growth. Use discrimination and regularity when pruning the tips of branches.

Make all pruning cuts flush with and parallel to the branch structure. When removing the end of a branch, make the cut just beyond a side branch since close cuts heal faster.

Although late winter is the best pruning time, do not prune trees in extremely cold weather as trees may be injured.

January Was Proclaimed National Hobby Month By President Carter

Constructive hobbies give us a wonderful opportunity to enrich our lives. They stimulate our creativity and strengthen our sense of purpose and achievement. They offer enormous personal satisfaction and self fulfillment. And they make it possible for families to work together on leisure time projects and to share in rewarding experiences.

Throughout our history leaders in all fields of endeavor have found relaxation in their hobbies. Benjamin Franklin found enjoyment in making kites. Thomas Jefferson constructed miniature buildings and furniture. Dolly Madison and Jane Adams did needlework, painting and pottery making. Abraham Lincoln and John Kennedy built model ships. Franklin Roosevelt collected stamps. Dwight Eisenhower found pleasure in painting.

This January thousands of schools, libraries and youth and adult organizations will celebrate National Hobby Month. In so doing they offer incentive for others to discover the joys of having a hobby. I join with the millions who take advantage of this offer in rejoicing at this national reaffirmation of the tradition of individual creativity and productive use of leisure time.

Retired Teachers Had Meeting January 12

The Retired Teachers Association of Eastland County met on January 12th in the First State Bank conference room in Ranger. President Charlie Garrett and secretary Clara Singletary took care of the usual details. The long refreshment table was attractively laid in yellow. Large mums were surrounded by bowls and platters of delicious cookies, sliced cakes, candied fruits and fruit balls to numerous to list.

Mr. Garrett's legislative report, interesting to retired teachers, points out vividly that with enough registered members they could gain recognition for a salary increase for the retired.

A nominating committee for action in the March meeting was appointed. Louise Hollowood, Gorman, chairman Ann McEver, Ranger, Loretta Morris, Eastland, Clara Simer, Olden, Oline D. Schafer, Cisco.

Dr. Bill Aunenshine of Ranger Junior College gave an interesting and valuable explanation of stress. Because of the nature of the talk, it must be repeated. Thirty retired teachers were present to hear it. There were two new members.

The Ramada Inn sign is down and Best Western sign took its place. The local Ramada Inn located off I-20, is in the process of changing their franchise and hopes the change will be complete by February reports Richard Frazier, the manager.

Senator Glasgow

Sworn in January 13

In the ceremony at the Capitol in Austin on Tuesday, January 13, 1981, Bob Glasgow of Stephenville, was sworn in as State Senator from Senatorial District 22. Over 100 residents of the District journeyed to Austin for the swearing in ceremony.

Senator Glasgow occupies the seat formerly held by retiring Senator Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells.

On the opening day of the Session, Senator Glasgow was appointed to serve on the Committee on Economic Development, Committee on Human Resources, Committee on Jurisprudence and the Subcommittee on Public Health.

In addition, Senator Glasgow has been named the Vice Chairman of the Subcommittee on Criminal Matters. This is a significant position as several important and controversial bills have been referred to this Subcommittee that propose changes in the criminal laws.

One of these measures is sponsored by Senator Glasgow. He has introduced the "oral confession" bill which will allow the introduction of an oral confession into a criminal case.

"As far as I know, Texas is the only State that does not allow the introduction of oral confessions, and the Federal government allows introduction of such oral confessions," stated Senator Glasgow.

"I have had many good cases where a person was obviously guilty and had confessed orally his guilt, but we could not convict him because he would not sign a written confession," said Glasgow.

Senator Glasgow further said that the bill had built-in safeguards which would help prevent the abuse and fabrication of oral confessions. Two people must witness the oral confessions, it must be reduced to writing within 48 hours and such written statement must be sworn to by the witnesses before a magistrate within the 48 hours.

The other measures sponsored by the Senator include a courts bill and a bill that would give rate relief to private water utility subscribers.

Senator Glasgow's office is located on the third floor of the Capitol, room number 321. His mailing address is P.O. Box 12068, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711; telephone number 512/475-3452. The Senator urges his constituents to contact him concerning their needs.

Senator Glasgow Holds Phone Press Conference

By Michelle Lindsey

To keep citizens better informed, State Senator Bob Glasgow has initiated a press conference by telephone.

He called editors and associates in each county in his district using the conference call method, permitting several people to ask questions in a single call at the same time.

Senator Glasgow first issued a statement concerning the three committees he serves on. He is on the Economical Committee, Criminal Matters Committee, of which he is vice-chairman, and the Human Resources Committee. "All health care agencies are up for re-licensing this year," he said.

The editors were given a chance to ask questions. Senator Glasgow answered them very thoroughly and enlightened the editors on bills that are now before the senate.

On the economical side, questions were asked concerning utility rates and the economy of the state. Senator Glasgow reports he is and will be doing much study concerning whether a rates commission or city council should set utility rates.

The Senator reports the economy of the state looks very well. He says Texans have enough money to provide good services for its people.

He is in favor of restricting the Ad Valorem tax and letting the state share in the burden of education, taking part of the burden off local property owners. The Senator is also in favor of raising the pay of our educators, and will be working toward this.

He is also in favor of counties getting their lateral road money back. He is also in favor of letting the counties get the first $3,000 collected off auto licensing and 5% of the rest.

He informed us that right now we are acting under a 1929 law in collecting auto licenses and some counties are not making enough off the licensing to cover costs.

On Criminal matters, the Senator gave information concerning the Governor's crime package, especially the part on wire-tapping.

Senator Glasgow supports controlled wire-tapping. He said "This is one of the best ways to get organized crime out of drug traffic, and stop the flow of big money in drugs."

When asked if he thought wire-tapping was a violation of human rights, he said "The only way a wire-tap could be used is if a criminal court proved a wire-tap was needed and a judge issued the order."

Senator Glasgow is opposed to the Governor's bail bond bill. This bill would prohibit lawyers from posting bail. The Governor wants to clean up the bail bond business through a bail bondsmen board.

Senator Glasgow reports the problem with this is small counties have no bondsmen.

On the re-districting issue Senator Glasgow said all senators and house members are trying to get their population figures together.

The editors and Senator Glasgow agreed to make the telephone press conference a weekly event, with Senator Glasgow placing the calls every Monday around 2:00 p.m.

Homemaking Hints

by: Janet Thomas

Santa Claus must have delivered a lot of microwave oven around Eastland County at Christmas time. We have been getting many requests for information on the use of the microwave ovens.

Microwave ovens are a tremendous time-saver. Here are some tricks: -Refrigerate leftover coffee in a glass container. Reheat one cup in the microwave oven on HIGH for 2-2½ minutes.

-Reheat leftover pancakes or waffles on MEDIUM HIGH for 1½ to 1¾ minutes.

-Reheat an individual serving of leftover woup right in the serving bowl. A ½ cup serving will take about 2½ minutes at HIGH.

-For a special treat, reheat a slice of two-crust pie and top with ice cream. A slice that has been refrigerated will take 30-45 seconds at HIGH.

When you are baking, put the microwave oven to use in softening:

-Place an open box of hardened brown sugar in the microwave to use in soft-microwave oven with 1 cup of hot water. Microwave at HIGH for 1½-2 minutes for ½ pound or 2-3 minutes for 1 pound.

One stick margarine will soften in 1 minute when microwaved at LOW.

-Soften one 8 ounce package of cream cheese by microwaving at MEDIUM LOW for 2-2½ minutes.

Frozen food will melt quickly by microwaving.

-One stick of margarine will melt in 1 minute at HIGH.

-Place a 1 ounce square of unsweetened chocolate in a small custard cup. Microwave at HIGH for 1½ to 2 minutes.

-Place 6 ounces of semi-sweet chocolate morsels in a small bowl; microwave at High for 1½ minutes, stirring once.

If you have a baby, a microwave oven is a great asset in warming baby food. The directions are to warm the baby food in the original container. Remove the metal lid, and microwave at HIGH for 25-35 seconds.

Another quick trick is with mixing up frozen breakfast juice such as orange juice. You will want to remove the frozen juice concentrate from the container; and place in a microwave-safe serving picture. Microwave at HIGH for 30-45 seconds; then add water and serve.

Singers Ho A Hardin Simmons Tradition

Singers Ho!, a performance group that is 13-parts Texan and equal parts Florida, Colorado, North Dakota and Korea, is the 1981 version of a popular Hardin-Simmons University tradition.

"We take pride in our past," Dr. J.G. Martin, director of Singers Ho! and professor in music education at HSU, admitted. Martin's office is lined with numerous certificates celebrating Singers Ho! appearances in such places as Disney World, Iceland, Guam, Okinawa, the Philippines and the Netherlands.

Martin organized the group in 1967 and his current edition of 17 university students is a representative cross-section of the HSU student body. The 13 Texans come from nine different towns, there are freshman, sophomores, juniors and seniors included and the major range from theory and compositions to biology and accounting.

The Singers present a variety of music styles and types, performing currently popular pieces as well as hits from Broadway and film musicals. The music is enhanced by the groups staging and choreography (done by Marj Baucum, director of the Abilene Ballet Academy).

Members are chosen after auditions that display their musical ability, stage presence and showmanship. Grade point averages and the students' ability to meet the rigorous rehearsal schedule is also considered.

Members are: Robbie Barrett, Midland; Louise Bradley, Taejon, Korea; Jay Comegys, Spearman; Vance Cooksey, Abilene; Jayne Farley, Midland; Gary Hays, Orlando, Fla.; Debbie Hill, Wichita Falls; Gary Holley, Austin; Karr Ingham, Stratford; Keith Kucifer, Pampa; Deidre Madison, Midland; Steve Poe, Austin; Kathy Redeker, Broomfield, Colo.; Terry Samplaski, Austin; Ronnie Shaw, Garland; Sharon Weckerly, Bismark, N.D.; and Cynthia Wilson, Fort Worth.

Singers Ho! has performed on campus, for civic and military groups, and for churches. The group was selected by the United Service Organization (USO) and the National Music Council for three overseas trips. The first was in 1970 to U.S. military bases in Labrador, Greenland and Iceland. The second, in 1972, was to Europe with performances in Germany, Italy, Belgium and Holland. Then, in 1974-75, the group performed at military bases in the Far Pacific and had special concerts in Taiwan, Korea and the Philippines.

Martin gave the group a rest during 1978, feeling that after a 10-year run it was time to reorganize and refit the group. In the fall of 1979, Singers Ho! was back on the road again as a smaller, more flexible group. "We like to do a show pleasing to the ear and appealing to the eye as well," Martin said.

"We put on more of a show than a concert. "This group loves to perform and we feel we can offer a program to fit just about any occasion," he added. "We welcome inquiries about shows from local civic, church and school groups—we don't do Rod Stewart or Peter Frampton (hard rock) music but we do just about every other kind of tune."

GUEST SLOT

From: The Christian Science Monitor:

A time for small towns A nation of small towns. This is what the United States will become by the end of the century - for the first time since the War Between the States - if current projections are correct. The challenge in such a development is at least double:

To renew the "small town virtues" needed for an age demanding increased individual self-sufficiency and moral regeneration; To maintain the cosmopolitan outlook for supporting policies of international cooperation in a shrinking world.

The challenge, indeed, exists right now, whether or not the migration from cities and suburbs goes a step further. Where Americans live is not so important as the qualities of thought they express wherever they live. Travel is broadening, says the cliché. But when Thoreau simply said, "I have travelled a good deal in Concord," he reminded us that the body does not have to move all over the place for the mind to be expansive. With the extraordinary availability of communications since his day, there is even less reason for the person away from the beaten path to feel cut off from what is happening elsewhere.

Such communications facilitate the present move of companies from the city to the country. It is partly to follow the flow of jobs that Americans are going along.

But the migrating Americans' motives also include a component of yearning for the simplicity, serenity, and general environment ideally associated with small towns. Many towns, of course, sadly break this mold. You don't necessarily find escape, says one recent transplant, who finds his agreeable new community confronted with crime, drugs, and other "city problems." But others say they still can leave their doors unlocked, and they cite such advantages as stability, friendliness, getting more for your money, more control over schools and government.

The town, after all, was the original exemplar of autonomy in American government, and for some it seemed an ironic step away from freedom when the War of Independence opened the way to powerful state and national government. As indicated in the current election campaign, many Americans are newly concerned about bringing as much authority and control as possible back to the lower levels of government. Usually linked with "conservatives," this tendency now coincides with "liberal" or "countercultural" efforts to bring not only political decisionmaking but energy and food production, for example, closer to grassroots citizens and consumers.

Though world projections say the rush to the cities will continue, with the number of enormous ones increasing dramatically, a return to small towns seems in tune with the times in America. And specialists argue that this does not mean a flood of small towns suddenly turning into cities: Even if the typical small town were to double in size it would still be a small town. Many towns, indeed, have room for expansion in that they have still not sprung back up to the populations they had more than 150 years ago.

At any rate the migration is going on. Between 1970 and 1978, the population of nonmetropolitan counties went up by 10.5 percent, close to twice the 6.1 percent growth rate of metropolitan counties. President Carter has been among those seeing the previous trend from the rural areas to the cities. The 1980 census figures give further clues in the low percentages of population growth in industrialized states compared to high percentages in less developed ones such as Utah, Wyoming, and New Hampshire. According to the Department of Agriculture, the rate of growth in manufacturing an other nonagricultural jobs in rural and small-town areas is almost equal to that in metropolitan areas.

So times have changed from the days when so many small towns might have echoed Pilgrim leader William Bradford as he saw people leaving his old Plymouth community, which to him became an "ancient mother" forsaken by her children - and thus "she that had made many rich became herself poor." Americans left their small towns, and a wave of writers ratified such defections by exposing the pettiness, back-biting, and smugness that can be a part of small-town life along with the pleasures recorded by nostalgia.

The promise now is that today's Americans, familiar with their country's leadership in the world, will bring something of the world to the small towns where they are putting down new roots - or nourishing old ones. The wholesome qualities can be retained without a latter-day provincialism taking over. There can be a wider horizon's view of that sense of community John Winthrop noted on shipboard approaching the New World: "We must delight in each other, make others' conditions our own, rejoice together, always having before our eyes our commission and community in the work, our community as members of the same bond."

GLEN LAWLESS Watercolor Artist

Eastland Co. Art Association

Eastland County Art Association will meet February 5 at the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

Glen Lawless of Cisco will be giving a demonstration in water coloring.

He attended Texas A&M and became a design and development engineer. It was during this time he saw his first original watercolor painting.

His past interest in sketching combined with his fascination of watercolor art combined to create a determination to become an accomplished watercolorist.

In 1977, after he had completed a successful engineering career, he bought a small ranch near Cisco. He then decided to devote himself full time to becoming a watercolor artist.

He has won many awards but believes his success as an artist will be determined by the acceptance of his work by the general public.

All visitors are welcome to come to the meeting.

Republican Women's Club Met Monday

The Republican Women's Club of Eastland County met at 12:30 on Monday in the Virginia Russell home for a covered dish luncheon.

IWU Reflections In Perspective

By I. Will Ussery

In the small, oil-rich city-state of Kuwait begging is not allowed. And the prohibition of that age-old profession is strictly enforced. Anyone caught by the police in the act of soliciting alms is placed immediately under arrest and is incarcerated in a barbed wire compound with his fellow practitioners.

He is interrogated thoroughly. If he has any usable skill, attempts are made to find employment for him. And until he is gainfully employed his family, the existence and location of which is determined in the course of the questioning, is paid a subsistence stipend by the local government. Of course, if he happens to be a highly skilled buttonhook bender, this family support may go on for quite awhile while he languishes in the shadeless compound.

In Teheran, it was quite different. While begging was considered to be a misdemeanor, it was widely practiced. The officials of Teheran preferred to see beggars supported by soft-hearted foreigners than to bother keeping them impounded...and fed.

Prime locations for begging were such places as outside the entrances of buildings in which foreign companies had their offices, and in the fronts of the few well-stocked supermarkets where foreigners did the most of their grocery shopping. It is difficult to pass up a beggar while following a porter loaded down with food which one knows the beggar can never afford. Sort of plays upon one's sense of guilt, or something.

Early in our tour in Teheran, and while our office consisted of the telephone in the den of our residence, my wife would frequently accompany me on my regular visits to the offices of the oil companies in downtown Teheran. And there was a woman who regularly sat in a sort of sprawling position, covered by her "aba" as though it were a coal-black pup tent only few paces from the main entrance to one of the office buildings.

Now I had long since developed a heart of stone, when it came supporting beggars. I had adopted the philosophy (in an attempt to rationalize my parsimony, perhaps) that I could not support them all, so I'd decline giving to any of them. My lovely wife was still soft-hearted. Nor did she believe the stories, sworn to by my driver, of people who broke the hands of very small children in order to make them more appealing as tools of beggars. And she would regularly, after I'd strode haughtily past the begging woman downtown, step lightly from the car and would drop a coin or two in the beggar's bowl.

Until one bright, sunny day. Or maybe it was drizzling. Even, perhaps there was a hint of snowfall. In any case, she was waiting with what she considered to be infinite patience for me to return from a visit inside the building when she observed a very spiffily dressed matron coming down the sidewalk as though she were leading a parade. Or going to take her position for doing so.

With her nose slightly a-tilt, and paying absolutely no attention to the fact that MLW was observing her every move, the matron stopped alongside the begging woman, who drew a bag of coins from underneath her "aba" and handed same to the haughty lady. That worthy pillar of society proceeded to dump the coins into the equivalent of an Ann Klein purse, and proceeded at her former gait down the way. Perhaps to stop to collect from another of "team".

And know something? That broke MLW from giving alms to beggars. Her heart was immediately transformed to pure granite.

I was for a moment taken back in time to my shopping expeditions at "Iran Super", where we bought the most of our groceries and where the beggars plied their skills in force when I saw once early in the demonstrations of the "Islamic Revolution" a blind beggar who "worked" Iran for years. He was pounding on the chained gates of the occupied United States Embassy as he joined in the chant "...Death, Bad America". Maybe some American had given him a plugged nickel.

THE CHOICE

By Viola M. Payne
Eastland County is an area where some families live on the same land for generations. A newcomer, especially in the rural districts, is enough of a novelty to invite a few questions. I am no longer a newcomer, having lived here more than six years, but occasionally someone still asks: "And why did you come here?"

And then I murmur something about thinking the outdoor living would be good for my husband's health - so we leased a ranch from a relative. But beyond this explanation lies a fact which has probably colored almost all the decisions I have ever made - my inborn attachment for living near the land. For we live in a world of choices - those forking roads which diverge. And several years ago, one morning, I made a choice - and this choice helped land me right in Eastland County.....

I driving a careful of children across El Paso to a Church School, and there was something ironic about the whole setting. They were being transported somewhere to elevate their minds, but the scene outside the car window was straight out of T.V. The Police had shot and captured a robber at the Bank beside the Freeway, just as I made my turn onto the secondary road. The circle of cars, drawn guns, and the raw surge of people flashed into my brain.

The children asked questions, I stumbled through answers while hanging onto the wheel. Traffic was piling up behind us, but we would soon reach the School. "Please -" I said - "Don't think about what we just saw! I don't think the man was dead. How about the School trip to the Gila Wilderness next week? You'll soon be sitting around a camp fire eating breakfast."

"Will we really gather wood for the fire?" "Of course! Haven't you ever camped before?" At the School my son and the other children raced into the building. I sat in the car and tried to sort my confused thoughts before going into heavy traffic again.

Soon the children began to sing, with their sweet voices floating out the window, the roar of the Freeway. I knew that these were privileged children, in many ways, for removed from this place in concept and atmosphere that I found it difficult to describe to people of the city.

How could I explain that I had once lived almost as near to nature as an Indian child, in a sort of idyllic and Biblical simplicity? Most of the advantages of that world did not lie in the same realm as this, for they were things of the mind and spirit. I had been taught, for example, that I needed few material things to be happy - that a person should be judged by his character and not his possessions. We had been thankful for our necessities, and even shared what we had with other people. The reverence of my parents for the Creator, and his earth, had instilled in me the knowledge that in all nature there is a pattern - and in all the beauty of harmony. There was a mystical bond between us and the land we inhabited - a feeling of trust, kinship, and stability. We considered ourselves the custodians of all the living things in our realm.

We had to work in the fields, but still had many hours of freedom to roam the hills and creek and absorb the lessons taught by the animals and plants. There was no thrust for the sort of success envisioned in the city, but a grasping of the mind for inward truth. Those wonderful hours, in which I mused over wild flowers or watched the bright clouds tumble in the sky, woke my first instincts of creative thought. But now, for the children of the city, nature was neatly compressed into picture books. And that was the only way they would ever know about it.

A number of people had mentioned to me that city life was growing unsuitable, and they would like a place in the country. Sometimes I was amazed at these conversations, for I could not visualize all these individuals actually making a living from the earth. Their mode of life, education, and tastes had removed them so far from rural living that I doubted their physical or spiritual survival outside the city limits.

Then there were some people who had vague plans of leaving the city when the "time of trouble" began, possibly back-packing out with some dehydrated food. I wanted to explain to them that the country was not just a place to escape to as a last resort, and that they would need a destination to land in. I wanted to warn them that it took time and skills to provide food and water and shelter in the country - skills which had been largely forgotten in a society where other people were paid to do all these things for them.

But the roar of the Freeway was subsiding. It was time to fit my car into a slot with the commuters, so I could return to my own suburban cubicle. But as I wheeled up a ramp, I was still reflecting on the socioeconomic aspects of the city - how it was built upon specialization of skills, and juggling with raw materials of agriculture and the earth. Rural living, on the other hand, called for more diversion of skills in each individual, so gave him a greater chance for survival in any sort of political or economic crises. Furthermore, it gave him the advantage of living space in which to directly produce the things he needed. There was a horrible little thought that ancient Rome had fallen when too many people had left the land and were crammed together in cities. Less than 5 per cent of the American people now lived in rural areas. How much farther down did we have to go?

For God had planned for His people to own land always. Look at the careful arrangements He had made for the Children of Israel when they came out of Egypt and entered their own Promised Land. God had a plan where no one would ever be too rich or too poor, yet industry would be rewarded. And one of the most important parts of these provisions was the Year of Jubilee each fifty years, when all the land which had been sold reverted back to the original families to whom it had been given. So God had never intended that His people lose their land, which was a basic part of their inheritance. And suddenly my heart was constricted with sorrow for the people of God.

But I couldn't do much about this lost inheritance - I might as well turn on the radio and divert myself with the news. A lovely feminine voice surfaced from a local station. "The employment picture is a bit brighter in todays report, but there is still quite a bit of unemployment among unskilled laborers, such as farmers and ranchers...."

There was something about the word "unskilled" which batted me right between the eyes, revealing the gap between my two worlds. "Oh no, my dear little lady!" I wanted to cry. "You are completely misinformed! This unskilled labor you are talking about provided every bite to eat in your apartment, not to mention the raw materials for almost everything else there! It takes so many skills to provide all those things. You may wake up some day and discover that the world is out of balance, with more consumers than producers!"

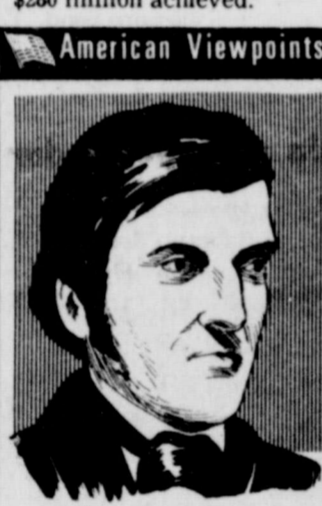

While I paced my car into the Freeway traffic I began mentally listing attributes for successful rural living. Suddenly I realized I was going into the realm of the spirit again - that my qualifications were more than physical skills. I would place reverence first, then love, hope, courage, honesty, optimism, a well-balanced mind, a calm nature, the capacity for hard work, patience, unselfishness, temperance, and trust. I smiled. Was I merely listing the requirements for rural living, or the attributes of citizens in the Kingdom of God? Coincidentally, they were almost the same!

No wonder God had desired a rural life for His people - He wanted to train them in the best school possible.

But I was turning automatically off the Freeway now, winding through the streets. I hurried to my house, and could hear the phone ringing before I opened the door.

My husband's voice came over the wire. At first I could not connect with it - could not absorb its message.

"I say that I can sell our business," he repeated. "Sell it now. Sometimes I am so tired - I feel it is too much to struggle with. Would you be willing - would you really be willing - to leave everything here and go back to the country again?"

- Dizziness or a giddy feeling, sometimes associated with fainting.
- One thing does not happen: You do not feel your heart racing or pounding. You usually don't feel your heart at all.
- NOTE: The heart pain called "angina" is usually brought on by strong emotion or exertion - is not an actual heart attack, but can sometimes quickly lead to a heart attack. Angina usually subsides in two minutes with rest. If the pain lasts longer than two minutes, it is probably an angina. See a physician as soon as possible.

GET HELP QUICKLY

The greatest risk of dying occurs in the minutes when the attack is occurring. After that, risk of dying decreases.

- Don't panic. Try to remain calm and get help quickly. Fear itself can trigger heart damage. But don't deny what may be happening. "Don't sit down and hope it will go away," warns Dr. Joseph E. Girovick, cardiologist at Duke University Medical School. "Because it won't." Don't try to "walk off" a heart attack. Don't smoke a cigarette, warns Dr. Bell.
- Call for help. Warning can be fatal. Call your rescue squad or anyone who can get you to a hospital immediately. When you phone for help, supply the following information: Phone number from which you are calling. Address and special directions for finding you. Nature of the emergency (heart attack).
- Your name. Stay lying flat. Give emergency personnel a chance to ask questions and give special instructions.
- Stay calm. This is of utmost importance. Once you have made that call and know help is on the way, sit or lie down and relax until help arrives. Take the position that is most comfortable for your breathing, says Dr. Kevin McIntire, Chief, Emergency Cardiac Care, Harvard University Medical School. But do lie or sit as if you have consciousness, you don't fall and get hurt.
- If you cannot reach help, you probably will have to save yourself. Stay calm and walk. Don't run - to some form of transportation that will get you to a doctor quickly. If you feel you are going to faint, sit down until that sensation passes and then get someone to take you to a hospital.

DON'T PANIC

A plan of action can improve your survival chances by keeping you calm and helping you get to a hospital fast.

- Memorize your emergency number. Find out and memorize it. Also keep handy the emergency number that will refer you to help. In case you have a backup number to call if the first number doesn't respond.
- Write down emergency numbers and other information you have to give so you'll know what to say.
- Have help available. Be sure that you, your spouse and other family members are trained in CPR (Cardiac Pulmonary Resuscitation) and take a refresher course once a year.
- Know the cardiac emergency procedure in the place where you work and be sure your immediate co-workers know it.
- If you have a known heart problem, carry a Heart Card or a Meds. Alert card or other signal for rescue personnel.
- Know your risk factors. Most at risk for heart attack are men over 35 (especially over 55) • Women over 55 (especially over 65) • Those with high blood pressure or known heart disease • Those who have had a previous heart attack • Those under stress • The intense driving type • Personality (the workaholic) • Smokers • Heavy drinkers • The sedentary • Those who cut a high fat diet • Those with heart disease in the family • Diabetes • The obese. Any of these risk factors - except diabetes, previous heart disease and the genetic factor - may be changed and your risks lowered. See your physician to learn your risk factors and how to lower them.

Convenience Foods--Luxury Or Economy?

CONVENIENCE FOOD PRODUCTS

1872 CREAM CHEESE	1930 SLICED BREAD

Convenience foods account for nearly 50% of all foods sold nationally in chain retail grocery stores, according to a study released by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) in 1979. The USDA study defined a convenience food as any partially or completely prepared food that could be prepared in the home. The percentage would have been much greater if every food that provides some convenience would have been considered.

Ingredient foods such as mayonnaise, margarine, and flour provide considerable convenience, but were not included in the study since they generally are not prepared in the home. These products are taken for granted as "staples" or "ingredients" today, but were considered convenience foods to shoppers years ago. If today's consumer prepared basic ingredients in the home, however, the true convenience of these products would be appreciated.

Convenience foods are not always more expensive than equivalent home-prepared foods, as many believe. The USDA study reported: "When the costs for food, fuel, and preparation time (at the minimum wage) were combined for 41 convenience products, nearly half were less expensive than their home version. About 60% of the convenience products were less expensive when the cost of preparation time was based on a cook's wage.

The choice between convenience or home-prepared is a value judgment that must be made by each individual depending on the time and money available. Clearly, the time factor is very important to the increasing number of women employed outside the home who do not have time for lengthy meal preparation on workdays.

PEACE

by Michelle Lindsey

PEACE! When I think of this word I think of a summer day by a lake, everything is so quiet and free.

What a beautiful picture but to often the world is in turmoil. Fear seems to rule. Is it no wonder the number of suicides have grown?

Part of the definition of peace from Webster's Dictionary is "a state of tranquility or quiet." This tranquility is available because Jesus said in the Bible his peace he would leave with us.

What a beautiful thought! The peace of God is available to you! It is available to you!

A few years ago my father had a fatal heart attack. Even though I experienced the loss of a loved one, my spirit was calm. I was thankful the peace of God was available to me.

It is easy to experience fear when news reports keep us informed of tragic events in our world today. This is when we need to keep our minds on the good things of God. Our minds are on what God says in his Word then fear cannot abide in us and we will be able to abide in the peace that Jesus left for us.

I love the story in the Bible found in Mark 4:35-41 Jesus was in a boat with his disciples, asleep. A terrible storm blew up and the disciples became very afraid, so they went and woke up Jesus. He then spoke and said, "Peace! Be still!" Immediately there was a great calm.

In our lives, when trouble comes and fear is trying to take over, Jesus is still saying PEACE, and it can bring a great calm.

Dietz Brothers To Be In Concert Sat. Jan. 24

The Dietz Brothers of Lubbock, Texas will be in concert Saturday, January 24 at 7:00 p.m. at the First Baptist Church in Eastland. Without question, the Dietz Brothers are among the finest in Christian music today. Their music is quality. Their message is clear. Phil and Andy Dietz present concerts which appeal to young and old alike. For several successive years they have returned by popular demand to Senior High Youth Camp at Lueders, Texas.

They performed last summer at Super Summer '80, a gathering of 15,000 young people at Reunion Arena in Dallas. Their travels have included a USO tour where they sang for our military troops stationed in other lands. They also have presented many concerts in jails and prisons throughout the United States.

Don't miss this opportunity to hear the Dietz Brothers, one night only, January 24 at the First Baptist Church in Eastland. There is no charge for admission.

WORD OF GOD

He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty.

I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in him will I trust.

Surely he shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisome pestilence.

He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust: his truth shall be thy shield and buckler.

Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day;

Nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday.

A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee.

Palm 91:1-7

And ye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart.

Hamilton "Ham" Wright

Former Ranger Editor Dies at 95

Hamilton "Ham" Wright devoted most of 95 year lifetime to several careers - ranging from railroad telegrapher to newspaper journalist to Methodist minister.

He was born Feb. 26, 1885 to a railroad employee. He died 10:20 a.m. Wednesday at Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene.

Mr. Wright began his newspaper career as editor of the "Buffalo Gap Live Oak." Later he was managing editor of the Ranger "Daily Times" during the oil boom there.

He was licensed as a Methodist minister in 1912 in Fluvanna. He often worked on newspapers during the week and spent Sunday preaching on a Hutchison County circuit that included Alhambra, Lieb, Lackey and Plemmons.

Retiring from journalism at 78 in 1963, Mr. Wright preached his last sermon in February 1977 at First United Methodist Church in Abilene.

An explosion knocked a welder from an oil storage tank three miles east of here Tuesday and set fire to the tank.

Treated and released at Eastland Memorial Hospital, a welder for Wilbrook Exploration Corp. of Stephenville.

Chenoweth was knocked from the top of the tank about 11:30 a.m. Thursday. After he hit the ground, Chenoweth said he got up and started running from the fire. He said he was struck in the back from something which flew from the tank.

The tank, which was on land owned by Dick Woolley of Cisco, contained 20 barrels of oil which burned in the fire. Cisco Fire Chief C.W. Guthrie, said two trucks from Eastland one from Cisco were called to extinguish the blaze. Water was supplied by Bob Moore Transport of Cisco and Ball Transport of Eastland.

The Preacher Writes...

HELPING FEED THE HUNGRY

(ED NOTE: The Rev. Jim Hooten, pastor of the First Baptist Church who served as a missionary in Uganda for 18 years where he saw help distributed in many forms through many different organizations, has the following suggestions for persons today who may be concerned about world hunger, and want to help as they can above and beyond their normal benevolences.)

A member of my church recently asked me to help him in determining how and where to give charitable monies.

My friends dilemma is a common one with all of us. Everyday, in countless ways, we're asked to contribute to one organization or another. To aid in this or that worthy cause.

Of course there are many worthy noble causes, but Satan has a very efficient way counterfeiting any high and wonderful cause. The problem comes in our trying to determine which is legitimate and which is illegitimate.

Make no mistake about it, there are illegitimate causes, programs and organizations who have their traps set for innocent people like you and me. The fact that there are millions of people literally starving to death in the world right now and the desire of good people everywhere to help, is a good present day example of what I'm talking about.

The newspapers are full of requests and pleadings for us to help feed the hungry of the world. Their gaunt, haunting faces stare out at us from the television sets. All of us are moved by these stimuli. Some of us want to help from time to time, but where to turn and how to do it.

Well let me try to help. Every denominational church group, or at least most of them would have missionary organizations channels through which they funnel relief funds and supplies.

I myself am a Southern Baptist. We have a relief program that operates from our mission board in Richmond, Virginia. When we give money designated for a certain reason, to a certain place, we're confident that it gets there every penny of it. Those funds are sent to that designated area and Southern Baptist missionaries are there to dispense it, and to see to it that nothing is skimmed off the top for other needs. Now in varying degrees, this same thing is true of other church groups I'm sure. I would urge every Christian, who has it in their heart to try to help alleviate the suffering of the world, to do so through their own denomination. On the other hand, anyone who is not a Christian, or a church member, who has it in their soul to help or try to help, could do so through any church which has a foreign mission enterprise.

There is no reason for well meaning people with good hearts, who want to help in every way that they can to try to bring comfort and sustenance to people who are not as fortunate as they are, to be ripped off by so called charitable organizations and groups that might have something less than the highest feeling for the needs of mankind.

There is no reason for people who want to help, to be victimized by either well meaning groups who don't know how to get the job done, or just simply con artist who take advantage of the naivete of Christian people or good people.

So if you have in your heart to try to help giving to some organization to try to help feed the hungry for instance, do so through your own denominational program foreign mission enterprise. This is where you will have some missionaries who will look after the dispensing of the task for which you've given it.

If you don't have your own denominational group or church group through which to give, look around or ask and certainly you have a friend somewhere who would be a part of a group like that who would have a method or channel through which you could give your money or whatever it is that you're wanting to give to try to help in some particular area of the world.

Lights From The Christian World

By Josephine Cleveland

"And be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you."-Ephesians 4:32

A story was told about a sheep raising rancher. Next to him was another rancher who was raising wheat, children and large dogs.

The dogs were scaring the sheep. The sheep did not know what to do. The rancher could shoot the dogs or poison them, be nasty to his neighbor, or even take him to court.

He prayed about it. As soon as some new lambs were born he gave each of his neighbor's children one of them as a pet. They were thrilled. Their father couldn't allow the dogs to run rampant as before. He restrained them for the sake of his children's pet lambs. As a result the two ranchers became friends. Kindness made a winner.

The Word tells us to be wise as serpents and harmless as doves. Seek His wisdom, forget about trying to get even with those who wrong you. Manifest His love. Kindness will make "you" a winner.

Mrs. Cleveland may be contacted by writing to Box 591, Cisco, Texas 76437.

In a race, a small fellow ran faster than his rivals, and won the contest. The coach noticed that his lips were moving throughout the race, and he wondered why.

Taking the victor aside, he asked, "What were you saying when you were running in the race?"

"I was praying, sir. I was praying with all my heart," he answered.

"What were you saying in your prayer?" asked the coach.

Answered the boy, "I was saying, 'Dear Lord, I am having a hard time. Please, Lord, lift up my feet. I'll put them down.' You saw what happened. The Lord and I won."

Did not our Lord say, "Fear thou not; for I am with thee; be not dismayed; for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee."

Self-sufficiency is fantasy, God sufficiency is fine. Self-confidence is good, but God confidence is better.

Pray, and do your best. Then God will answer your prayer, and He will give you His best.

EBBA Iron Employees

Enroll In Junior

College Courses

Four EBAA Iron employees have enrolled in evening courses at the south campus of Tarrant County Junior College.

John Feerrell and Robert Livingston of Eastland and Dale Turner of Gorman are taking the Metals Technology course. Danny Norris of Eastland is a returning student and is taking Industrial Supervision. These people go to school after working a full day and are not paid for school time.

The Metals Technology course is designed by the Cast Metals Institute. This is the Training and Technology section of the American Foundrymen's Society. EBAA Iron is one of the original sponsors of this course at T.C.J.C. and had five students in the first semester it was offered.

There is a complete foundry on the campus and students produce castings under actual conditions, using basic and advanced technology. Some of the equipment in this foundry was donated by EBAA Iron.

Danny Norris is one of the original five students in the Metals Technology course.

EBAA Iron is proud of its employees and their involvement in this and other courses. Today's market demands advanced technology and quality in the products they consume. EBAA Iron meets this demand with employees and equipment using the latest and most exacting technology available.

Sunday, January 25, 1981 Jehovah's Witnesses Concluded Semi-Annual Circuit Assembly

Local Jehovah's Witnesses concluded their semi-annual Circuit Assembly this past weekend at their Arlington Assembly Hall.

Carl T. Enbak, local congregation spokesman, reported "The program highlighted in a very practical way the meaning of Jesus' words recorded at John 17:16 that his followers would be no part of the world. We were especially encouraged by the many young ones on the program and their expressions as to how following the Bible's counsel has helped them to resist the pressure to become involved in unscriptural practices, such as drug abuse, premarital sex, and so on. Our young ones are put under a great deal of pressure and its certainly faith-strengthening to see them faring so well. Also, of encouragement was the concluding talk Saturday "Fight to Keep Separate From the World," based on Jude 3. And, as always, a high point in our Saturday activity was seeing the new ones among us symbolize their dedication by water baptism. This assembly we saw seventeen take this step."

The peak attendance was reached for the Public Address entitled "Our Refuge Amid Increasing Dangers," when 1094 listened eagerly to E.R. Brandt, district overseer, give a verse-by-verse analysis of the ninety-first Psalm and its meaning for Christians today.

PARABLE OF JESUS
I tell you, Nay: but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

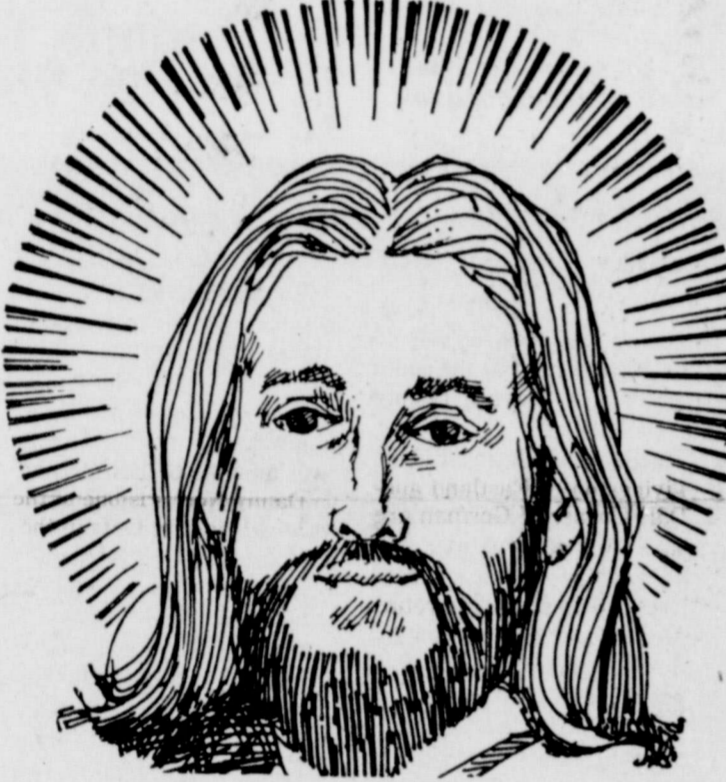

He spake also this parable: A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard; and he came and sought fruit thereon, and found none.

Then said he unto the dresser of his vineyard, Behold, these three years I come seeking fruit on this fig tree, and find none: cut it down; why cumbereth it the ground?

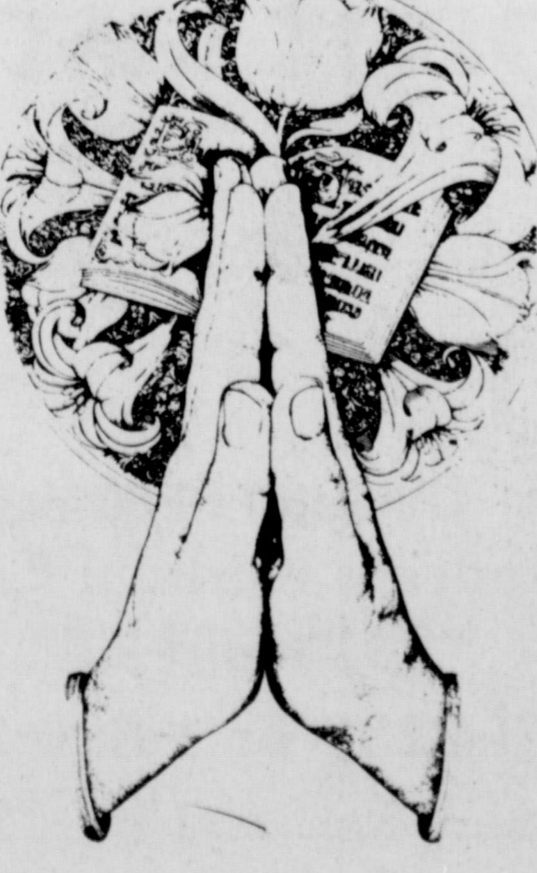

And he answering said unto him, Lord, let it alone this year also, till I shall dig about it, and dung it:

And if it bear fruit, well: and if not, then after that thou shalt cut it down.
Luke 13:5-9

But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

the Wrangler Band and Stage Band, and officer of the Baptist Student Union, a member of the Blue Jackets, nominee for Who's Who Among American Junior College Students, teaches twirling in Cisco, and she plans to transfer to Tarleton State University and become an elementary teacher. Andy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tarek Hawari of Cisco and he is also a 1979 graduate of Cisco High School. He is vice-president of the student government at CJC and a member of the Wrangler Band. He is employed by Quickway Grocery in Cisco and plans to attend the University of Texas in Austin and Optometry School to become an optometrist.

Mr. Ritchie announced a Special Award for Municipal Service will go to Frank Young, director of public works for the City of Cisco. Mr. Young has served in that capacity for seven years and Mr. Ritchie said he is "usually right there, where work is being done." This award is voted on each year by city employees.

Dr. Norman Wallace of Cisco Junior College was presented with an "Over Due" Award by Mr. Ritchie. Dr. Wallace began his educational career upon receiving his Bachelor of Science degree from Sam Houston State University in 1959. From 1959 through 1962 he taught in the high school at Evadale, Texas. He received his Masters of Education degree from Sam Houston State University in 1963, and was employed by the Evadale School district as a junior high school principal. Dr. Wallace enrolled at Texas A&M University and received his Doctorate of Education degree in 1968. After fulfilling his residency at Texas A&M, Dr. Wallace moved to Houston and was employed from 1965 through 1967 by the University of Houston as an Assistant Professor of Education. His next move was to Starkville, Mississippi, where he was employed by Mississippi State University as an Associate Professor of Education from 1967 through 1970. In 1970, he moved to Amarillo, Texas, as an associate Dean of Technical-Vocational education at Amarillo College. He was promoted to Dean of Technical-Vocational education at Amarillo College in 1972. In 1974, Dr. Wallace and his family moved to Cisco where he assumed the Presidency of Cisco Junior College. Dr. Wallace serves on numerous community, church and educational committees in the area and he is a veteran of the United States Army, a combat engineer from 1953-1955.

Cisco Junior College has prospered and grown under the leadership of Dr. Wallace and it is in a healthy

Senior Citizen's Nutrition Menu

"I try my best never to miss a luncheon - the day doesn't seem to be complete without seeing and visiting with my friends."

That is a typical statement, which the staff of the Senior Center in Cisco hear over and over! And that is the way it is intended!

The members of the Senior Center, those over 60 years of age, anticipate steady growth of the program. So many people of Cisco have helped by contributing talents and many hours of time - the result - success, because so many care for the older person.

All members should make reservations for the luncheons. Be sure and call 442-1557 or 442-2263 and place reservations.

Speaking of sharing talents, the following people certainly shared their abilities in assisting with the luncheon programs: Wanda Toler, an outstanding vocalist, accompanied by Cora Lee Thomas on the piano; Rev. O.T. Killion, Juanita Milford, Plez Ray, Dixie Montgomery and Rev. W.E. Hallenbeck sang songs that were special to the members of the Center. Mrs. Vida Killion was the accompanist. Special music for the dinner was contributed by the following: Alberta Sims, Anna Dytzel and A.E. McNeely.

The menu for the week will be:

Monday--luncheon steak/gravy, whipped potatoes, vegetable medley, fresh banana, bread, butter and drink.

Wednesday--beef and cabbage, blackeye peas, tomato salad, applesauce, bread, butter and drink.

Friday--german sausage, pinto beans, pear and cheese salad, chocolate cake, bread, butter and drink.

financial condition with its annual budget increasing to more than $1 million a year since 1974. The college has experienced the largest total enrollment in its history during his tenure. The newest project of the Wallaces is the buying of J.D. Yardley's Robo Car Wash. Dr. Wallace and his wife, Helen, have two sons, Kyle and Kory.

Mr. Ritchie presented this year's Community Service Award to the ENRE Corporation of Cisco. He stated this is the first year in his recollection that this award was presented to a company rather than an individual.

ENRE Corporation, originally called West Artesia, came to the Cisco area in 1976 to do exploration of oil and gas. They later became known as the ENRE Corporation, which is their exploration and production operation, and they also formed United Energex, which is their oil and gas well servicing company. They opened their existing office in 1978 on the Marston Surles farm northwest of Cisco. They work approximately 215 wells in this area and have five well servicing rigs. They also have road and location building equipment and lease servicing equipment.

ENRE Corporation made a major contribution during the past year by furnishing, absolutely free of charge, all the necessary dirt work that Cisco's Municipal Airport, needed, which was very extensive. Mr. Ritchie stated the work done by ENRE, if contracted by the City of Cisco, would have likely cost well over $50,000. He stated the airport will be usable again in the near future and in a "dramatically improved condition." He emphasized that without ENRE "we could not have done the airport project." Cal Michaelson, president of ENRE, accepted the award for his company at the Chamber banquet.

Those attending the banquet were entertained by an educational theme which featured a number of Cisco Public School students who performed various musical abilities and dancing. Also performing were CJC's Singers, Wrangler Band and Wrangler Belles.

Now in varying degrees, this same thing is true of other church groups I'm sure. I would urge every Christian, who has it in their heart to try to help alleviate the suffering of the world, to do so through their own denomination. On the other hand, anyone who is not a Christian, or a church member, who has it in their soul to help or try to help
