

HALL OF REMARKS

BY HERREL HALLMARK

FOR A WEEK which started out "not so hot", this has certainly turned into a beautiful week with a beautiful weekend forecast.

The skies have been clear and local temperatures have warmed enough in the afternoons to allow you to take off your coat. Outside work can be done without having to rush back inside to warm up.

I WOULD like to urge each and everyone of you to sign up as a member of Cisco's Chamber of Commerce this year. If you own a business in Cisco, the Chamber wants to help you, but if you don't help them they can't help you.

You can help them by becoming an active member and paying dues. The Chamber's Membership Committee is presently trying to contact as many non-member businesses as possible, but why not call them now if you want to join?

Even individuals can join the Chamber and they are just as important to the CofC office in their ideas for Cisco.

The Chamber wants to help Cisco become a town which everyone can be proud of, but they cannot accomplish that goal without your help.

So do your part and join the Chamber of Commerce to make 1983 the best year ever.

WITH THE holidays over, things seem to have finally slowed down and most people seem to be enjoying the relaxed atmosphere following a hectic holiday season.

I know I am certainly enjoying the slow-down, and finally have time to do some things around my home which need to be attended to.

Rockwell Grant Provides New Benefits For C.J.C.

Part of a year-end donation by the Rockwell Foundation of Houston was used to purchase a house adjoining the Cisco Junior College campus and the balance will be the first deposit in a new foundation plan for the college, CJC President Norman Wallace announced Friday.

The house was purchased by the college from Coleman

Williams of Brownfield, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. T.C. Williams, and it is located just south of the college hill entrance. The property was appraised at $10,000 and Mr. Williams donated half of that sum, making the purchase price $5,000, Dr. Wallace said.

The Board of Regents has approved plans to organize a new Cisco Junior College Foundation with a goal of $1,000,000 from the Rockwell year-end grant to be the first deposit in the new foundation.

Joe Green of Houston, administrator of the Rockwell Foundation, has been invited to Cisco to participate in ceremonies launching the new foundation in early February. Plans call for 90 percent of funds earned by foundation investments to be used each year in college benefits, with 10 per cent being added to the investment.

Dr. Wallace said that two large plaques will be mounted on a wall at the First National Bank with the names of foundation donors — one for contributions of $500 or more and another for $100 to $500.

Details of the foundation project will be ready for announcement in the near future, Dr. Wallace said.

"We are indebted to the Rockwell Foundation for its continuing and very substantial support," Dr. Wallace said. "This foundation, which was set up by the late Henry Rockwell in honor of his parents, has made numerous contributions to our college program over the years.

"Education facilities and opportunities in our community have made marked progress because of the support of the Rockwell family; and I am very sure that our people greatly appreciate it."

"We are indebted, too, to Mr. Coleman Williams for his contribution. His late parents were both long-time members of the public school faculty in Cisco, and their many friends in the community will be pleased with the knowledge that their son's $5,000 gift is a fitting memorial to them."

Dr. Wallace said the college board would decide what disposition will be made of the house.

NEW CofC MEMBERS

Cisco's Chamber of Commerce membership committee has been busy lately, securing five new business memberships in the past three weeks. Shown below are five of those businesses. The other two businesses were Jack and Jill Day Care Center and Joe Cooper CPA.

The Committee has also sold individual memberships to Willis Parker and Wylie Cox. A spokesman for the committee stated, "Many people do not realize that individuals may join the Chamber. They can and they are needed to help support their town. We want to encourage everyone, whether you own a business or not, to support your Chamber and become a member."

CofC Board Holds First 1983 Meet

A progress report on plans for the annual banquet of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce was made to the board of directors as new officers took over at the first 1983 meeting Tuesday at the CofC offices. Robert Dudley, new president, presided over the meeting.

Dr. Norman Wallace, chairman of the banquet committee, told the board that tickets are on sale for the annual dinner that will be held Thursday night, Jan. 20, at the Cisco Junior College Ag. Building. Tickets are on sale at the CofC offices at $6.50 each.

Jim Parker, the new state representative of this district, will be the dinner speaker. Oscar's Barbecue will cater the dinner that will start at 7 p.m. Dr. Wallace said that program details will be finished and announced soon.

Other committee reports were submitted to the board. Present for the meeting were Mr. Dudley, Dr. Wallace, Gene Gwinn, Dan Dixon, Shirley Hargrave, Eddie McMillan, Fred Wheeler, Bobby Smith, Ivan Webb, Billy Wright, Elaine Dixon, Eris Richie and Manager Randy Speegle.

CJC Board Will Open Bldg. Bids

The board of regents of Cisco Junior College will open bids for a contract to enlarge the cafeteria at their regular monthly meeting Monday night at the college, President Norman Wallace reported Friday.

Plans as advertised recently call for a 30-foot extension of the cafeteria on the north side of the building. The extension would enable the facility to seat more persons than the present 175, Dr. Wallace said. The college has more than 300 on-campus residents who use the cafeteria.

If the extension is possible, Dr. Wallace said, the cafeteria would have to add new equipment, including tables and chairs.

Abbott Memorial Studied At Meet

The type of memorial that will honor the late Gene Abbott, Chamber of Commerce manager and long-time civic leader, was considered at a meeting of a committee at the CofC offices at 10 a.m. Friday.

Since his death last October, friends and admirers of the late Cisco native have contributed some $640 to a memorial fund, Chairman Barbara Pope reported. Additional donations were expected.

The committee hopes to complete its study and decide on the type of memorial that will honor Mr. Abbott in the near future the chairman said.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. Pope, Sutton Crofts, Ronnie Ledbetter, J.W. Sifton, Dan Wilks and Barbara Parker.

Contributions to the memorial fund may be left at the CofC offices and the First National Bank.

Mission Project Is Good Success

A group of eight persons returned home last Sunday night after spending some 10 days at Pamento, near Torreón, in the interior of Mexico, where they worked with a Baptist missionary at his small church.

Gerald Winnett, one of the group, said the project was a good success. They conducted a Vacation Bible School for children, Bible study sessions for adults, and held preaching services each night, he said. Some 50 persons made decisions during the period, he added.

Pamento is a small village on the shores of a large lake and the area residents make their living largely by fishing, Mr. Winnett said.

People who purchase partially completed houses to finish themselves can save $5,000 to $15,000, depending on the amount of work they choose to do. However, consumers first should consider the amount of expertise necessary to complete the project and the length of time it will take.

Home finishing requires patience. All spare time for many months, including weekends and vacations, may have to be devoted to transforming the house into a home.

Also, many builders of unfinished homes normally do not provide professional help for completing the house.

Persons considering this type of project are advised to check with their city's building inspection department to verify the kind of work local codes permit non-professional builders to perform.

Remember, the quality of the homeowner's work must satisfy the city's building standards and pass inspection.

AVERAGE TEXAN GETTING OLDER

The average Texan today is eight years older than the average Texan in 1900.

This shifting from a younger to an older population is apparent with each new census. In 1970, the state's median age was 26.4 years. It was 28.2 years in 1980.

Just about every age group was found to be increasing in size—except 10 to 14 year-olds.

The number of 10-to-14-year-old Texans declined by 3,000 during the latest census period.

The largest increase was reported in the 20 to 24-year old and 65-and-older groups. Young adults—age 20 to 34—increased by 63 percent during the decade of the '70s. These baby boom adults now constitute 27 percent of the state's population.

The proportionate share of older persons—those age 65 or older—increased to one out of every 10 Texans.

EARTH COOLING TUBES IN YOUR FUTURE

Underground cooling tubes may one day replace your home's conventional air conditioning.

The Southern Solar Energy Center in Atlanta, Georgia is studying a concept of routing air through underground tubes or chambers to achieve a cooling effect. The work is still in the preliminary stage, so it's too early to tell if the problems can be overcome. The use of open-system earth cooling tubes is not as simple as some have said.

A great deal of expertise needs to be developed before earth cooling tubes can be considered a practical cooling technique. Simulations, studies and discussions with designers and system owners indicate that earth cooling tubes do provide a workable method of space cooling.

As electric power rates, materials and labor increase in price, earth cooling tubes appear more feasible economically than before. But for the time being, cooling tubes are still experimental.

AUCTIONING ALTERNATIVE

Have you ever considered auctioning as an alternative for selling your real estate?

There are three potential benefits of the auctioning alternative. First, auctions stimulate competition, and selling at an auction is the only way the seller may receive more for the property than the asking price.

A second advantage of auctioning the property is the same-day consummation—no time is wasted on curiosity seekers or an haggling with insincere buyers. This is particularly beneficial when funds are needed immediately.

Third, an active market for certain types of properties may be only temporary. This condition may require the immediate sale of those properties. For example, market activity for some commercial properties may unexpectedly slow-down in a short time.

Real estate auction sales may provide the seller much more liquidity at a time when the seller needs it most.

HOME SALE: TAX EXEMPTION

When you sell your principal residence at a gain, you are allowed a certain period of time to buy another one without paying a tax on the gain. That period has been extended to two years by the Economic Recovery act of 1981.

The two-year period begins upon the signing of the contract to sell your old home. Generally, if the new home costs at least as much as the selling price of the old one, the tax on the gain can be postponed.

Those over age 55 who meet certain requirements can exclude once a lifetime, up to $125,000 of gain regardless of whether they buy another home.

Farmers' Battle Cry May Be Heard Again

AUSTIN—The battle cry, "Get the farmer out of the mud," that brought Texas a great Farm to Market Road system may be heard again.

The state's rural roads in some areas are literally being pounded into unpaved routes by heavy equipment serving oil fields, timber stands and lignite and uranium diggings.

Engineers of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation (DHT) have become increasingly dismayed by the rapid destruction of roads built to serve low-volume, lightweight traffic.

"You don't have to be a student of economics or transportation to realize that we have a problem that will affect every Texan," DHT Engineer-Director Mark Goode said. "Without adequate roads, it won't take long for increased costs of transportation to hit everyone's pocketbook."

DHT diverted $12.5 million from this year's budget for emergency repair of the most critically affected roads but DHT maintenance engineers believe the funds are only a fraction of the total needed.

Most of the routes on the state's FM system were built in the 1950s and 1960s in a massive construction program to provide better roads for farmers. The Colson-Briscoe Act, passed in 1951, provided $15 million annually for FM roads, and was the Legislature's answer to farmers' complaints about muddy, rutted roads that had to be traveled before agricultural products could get to market.

The department built 41,000 miles of FM roads, getting more miles to the dollar by designing roads for the rural traffic that needed to be served. With that design, DHT provided a network of secondary routes that carried school buses, postmen, farmers' trucks and indispensable farm equipment.

The boom in oil production, mining and timber, with many locations in remote areas, required a drastic change in DHT plans for periodically resurfacing the rural roads.

Despite the fact that many FM roads are more than 20 years old — considered the design life by engineers — seal-coat work at a cost of about $8,600 a mile kept the system in excellent shape.

Now the department is faced with completely rebuilding the roads pounded by the heavy equipment — at a cost of $61,000 per mile.

A Texas Transportation Institute study at new drilling site in the Austin Chalk oil field in East Texas verified the rural road deterioration observed by DHT engineers.

At one site, TTI research engineers found, a rapid deterioration of the FM road's surface and base occurred — even though only one oil well was being drilled in the area. In many locales, a road serves several drilling sites with a resulting increase in the depth of damage and the speed at which it occurs.

The TTI study, coupled with other studies, determined that the average FM road carrying such traffic would have to be rebuilt in slightly more than three years.

"The department's funding limits do not allow much flexibility for increases in operational costs other than for inflation," Goode said.

"The funds we are using to try to handle the problem are inadequate but they are all we can divert from other maintenance functions."

He said the diverted funds came from flood- and bridge-damage repair monies. DHT, Goode, also is concentrating much of its normal FM maintenance money on those roads most critically affected.

And holiday visits to grandmother's house often end up at her condominium instead of her farmhouse — so most Texas motorists are spared the bumpy, car-rattling rides on the state's rural roads.

But those Texas motorists, and all Texans, will have to pay for the deterioration of FM roads — the total transportation system is greatly affected by any weak or missing links.

Farmers Are Facing Another Poor Year

COLLEGE STATION—Agriculture is at a crossroads due to large supplies and low prices, and farmers have few options to improve their situations in 1983.

"Just how long farmers can hang on financially is the big question," says Dr. Carl Anderson, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "Right now many are scraping the bottom of the barrel as far as their financial resources are concerned—thanks to three consecutive years of poor prices. And they can't last much longer. Only those who are virtually debt-free will be able to make it."

Returns to assets of debt-free farmers will average in the range of minus 3 to minus 7 percent in 1982, says Anderson, while returns to farmers with a heavy debt load will be a negative 14 to 18 percent. "With that kind of figures, it's easy to see that farmers must depend less on debt financing," he adds.

Farmers generally are victims of overproduction in recent years coupled with a major slowdown in farm exports and domestic demand. This has led to growing stockpiles of most crops. Present farm programs designed to reduce these stockpiles have been a flop, points out Anderson. So farmers and farm policymakers must soon decide whether or not to do something about the increasingly critical farm dilemma.

"Among options are mandatory production control and possible marketing quotas to bring supplies in line with effective demand," notes the economist. "Strong supply management likely will improve current low farm income in a couple of years. With voluntary programs, it will take much longer."

Regarding the dilemma of farmers, Anderson offers a number of observations:

1. For 1982 net U.S. farm income is projected a $19 billion, down from $25 billion in 1981. Cash receipts will be about equal to farm expenditures this year, so virtually all net income will come from government payments and non-money income. Income could improve some in 1983 depending on what direction farm programs take.

2. Farmland markets are expected to remain sluggish. In some areas of the U.S. and Texas, land prices likely will decline.

3. Farm exports are facing major setbacks. No noticeable progress has been made in trade negotiations with major U.S. foreign market countries such as the European Common Market, Japan, Mainland China or Russia. When economic conditions are bad, countries want to export more and import less. A big setback to Texas cotton growers is that China intends to grow more cotton and import less from the U.S.

4. Although credit is available, farmers have difficulty in qualifying unless they still have adequate collateral. Debt restructuring will continue. Loan delinquencies, foreclosures and bankruptcies will be up although lenders seldom benefit from liquidating a borrower.

Pest Alert

Gordon Woolam

Almost everyone had encountered one of these disgusting little creatures at one time or another. They can be unwelcome guests even in the cleanest of homes. Cockroaches are flattened, fast-running, nocturnal (night) insects that seek warm, moist, secluded areas. They are among the most important of the household pests. Cockroaches are also known to cause severe injury to plants and their fruits.

Most cockroaches are tropical or sub-tropical in origin and generally live outdoors. However, some species have become well-adapted to living with man. Though it is true that dirt, filth and grime are what they like best, roaches at times infest even the most sanitary and well organized homes and buildings.

Although they may bear names such as "German" or "American" cockroach, all domestic roaches originated in north or tropical Africa. The world-wide distribution of the domestic cockroaches was made possible by their ability to infest various means of transportation, especially ships.

Cockroaches breed within the home, sharing with man his food, water, shelter and warmth and are therefore active throughout the year. They consume any human or animal food or beverage, as well as dead animal and plant materials, leather, glue, hair, wallpaper, fabrics and the starch in bookbindings. They contaminate food, especially with organisms which cause food poisoning.

Good housekeeping and taking precautions to prevent the invasion of cockroaches into a home or building works better than applying insecticides to control an established population. However sometimes chemical control becomes necessary. To effectively control roaches with insecticides, it is necessary to inspect closely for their shelters and thoroughly treat these areas. Regardless of the insecticide used, chemicals placed in or near regular hiding places will provide better control than those places only occasionally visited.

Present methods of insecticidal control generally provide temporary control. Since some roaches invade homes and buildings from outside, reinfestation can occur once the insecticide has broken down. Therefore outdoor populations must also be controlled.

There are three basic insecticide formulations used to control roaches: residual sprays, dusts and baits. Residual sprays are applied to cracks, crevices, baseboards and other runways and hiding places. Dusts which generally have longer residual action than sprays are most often used as a supplemental treatment. Baits are usually long lasting and often can be applied to areas that cannot be effectively sprayed or dusted.

Some of the more commonly used insecticides for control of cockroaches are Baygon, Carbaryl, Diazinon, Dursban and Malathion. Always read and follow carefully instructions on the product label. Always use extreme caution when applying insecticides near foodstuffs or areas of food preparation.

AARP Holds Final Meet Of The Year

The final meeting for 1982 of the Cisco Chapter of AARP combined the traditional spirit of giving at Christmas time, and announcement of plans for the continuation of the organization's good works for 1983.

Decorations, always works of art by the Decoration Committee - Mabel Thetford, Hester McCoy, Johnnie Jeffcoat and Ruth Cartee - were especially beautiful, and the supper menu was barbecued ham with all the best of salads, vegetables and cakes and pies of all kinds.

Invocation was given by Roy Cartee, and there were Christmas carols and poems in observance of Christmas in its true meaning. A money tree held more than $100 as a gift to the West Texas Rehabilitation Center, and a report was made of the sheets given to the Child Care Center.

Following recognition by President Walter Knowlden of the services of the outgoing Chapter officers, and expressions of appreciation for their work, new officers for 1983 were installed by Gid Bowers, a former Chapter President.

The new officers were then introduced, and President Knowlden, who will be serving his second term, announced committee appointments. The new Vice President is Ruth Brown, Secretary is Maurine Thompson, and Velma Joyner is serving a second term as Treasurer. New board members are Oren Speegle and Gertrude Millar.

The meeting closed with benediction by C.L. Webb.

WTU Redesigns Customer Bills

West Texas Utilities Co. has redesigned its customer bills, giving them a new color and format.

The monthly statements, still in postcard form, will carry the same information as the old bills, but arranged for more efficient processing, according to Larry Connors, WTU controller.

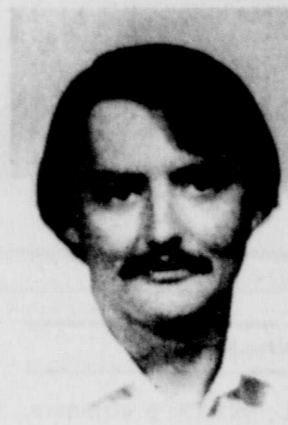

In addition to the amount due date, the statements carry the customer account number, the fuel cost factor, the dates and amounts of the last two meter readings, and the number of kilowatt-hours used.

First to receive the new bills will be customers in WTU's Abilene District, which includes Abilene, Albany, Baird, Cisco, Clyde, Cross Plains, Merkel, Moran, Rising Star, Santa Anna, Tuscola and Winters. The new bills will be used in other districts as the customer information is transferred to the new computer system, Connors said.

Area Telephone Customers Will Be Given Glimpse Of The Past

Cisco area telephone customers will be given a glimpse of the past when the 1983 Southwestern Bell directory is delivered by the first of the month.

Local manager Bob Cox said the directory, which features a reprint of a sculpture entitled, "After the Storm," includes an additional 26 Yellow Pages over last year.

"For years the telephone company has attempted to combine art with usefulness and that's what this year's telephone directory exemplifies," said Cox.

The artwork was created by Pampa native Gerald Sanders, a former telephone lineman, who based the scene of a lineman repairing a crossbar on his experiences after an ice storm swept across West Texas in 1949.

"When people look at the new cover, I hope they also realize they're looking at a service tradition which still exists to this day," Cox added, "and that's providing quality telephone service in all conditions."

More than 8,500 books are scheduled to be mailed by Jan. 5. The directory also includes listings for Eastland, Ranger, Carbon and Olden.

Doyle built WCT TV from ground on up

(Editor's Note—Jon Doyle's mother is Mrs. Bowne of 607 West 16th in Cisco. The following article is being reprinted from the official newspaper of World Championship Tennis, "ProTennis".)

By TOM KOCH
Editor

NEW YORK — In the case of Jon Doyle they took the country boy and made him a city boy.

And they took a youngster weened on American football and made him Director of Television for World Championship Tennis.

After six years at his post with WCT, and a few before that as an associate promoter of WCT television, Doyle is ready to try other areas of television. He will be leaving WCT to try new adventures on the boob.

Not that it hasn't been fun. Doyle started with WCT in 1976 as an Associate Marketing Director. He worked closely with WCT's syndications of certain tournaments. He was thrown in as the on-site Tournament Director for the WCT-Avis Challenge Cup in Kona, Hawaii.

"Until I started to work for WCT in 1976 I couldn't spell tennis," Doyle said. "I knew absolutely nothing about it. I grew up in West Texas and I don't know where you're from but if you play tennis where I was from you had better be able to fight because only the sissys went out on the tennis court."

Indeed, Doyle was a teenager from Cisco, Texas in the mid-1950's. The three seasons of sports were spring training for football, fall training for football and the football season.

Any true Texan worth his salt knows that Cisco is located between Breckenridge and Brownwood, not far from Abilene and Albany. Those towns are legendary. Most of the Texas state high school football championship trophies of the '50s sit in those towns today. And Doyle was right in the middle of it.

So it wasn't a surprise when then WCT Executive Director Mike Davies asked if there any "singles sticks" Doyle knew a blank and wondered if he meant "yardsticks."

"I said, 'Yes, I'm sure we do,'" Doyle said. "But really I didn't know what the hell a singles stick was. I didn't know one player from another."

Oh, there were players — Bjorn Borg, the Nastase, Arthur Ashe, John Newcombe, Ken Rosewall, Rod Laver.

"It's funny," he said. "The one player they told me to be careful about because of his temperament was the Nastase. But he's the only tennis player I've ever become personal friends with over the years."

"They were talking about Rosewall and Laver and how great they were and I had never heard of them until about a year before."

Doyle spent six months in Hawaii and NBC carried the Avis Challenge matches, one a week live, for 12 weeks.

Doyle recalls having problems with the Supreme Court surface. It wasn't porous enough to allow moisture to seep out and dry.

"Borg and Ramirez were trying to get ready to play but they couldn't even practice on Friday for the Sunday match," Doyle said. "They would slide across the court. I called Mike and told him it was impossible. We had to postpone it until Monday.

"Ramirez had gone back to his hotel so I went to Borg and he agreed to play it the next day. I went ahead and announced that to the press without checking with Ramirez. It was okay with Borg so I assumed it was okay with Ramirez.

"But when I told him he went through the roof. He said, 'I don't want to play tomorrow.'"

"I said, 'Raul, listen, I'm new in this game. I don't know a damn thing about tennis. I'm just trying to get this thing started. I made a mistake. I should have checked with you. I apologize.'"

"He said, 'I accept that. I'll play tomorrow.'"

Doyle's most embarrassing moment came during a WCT Tournament of Champions match at Madison Square Garden in 1977.

"At the end of the match I had gone down to the court and we were taping it for TV. I heard somebody yell my name. I turned around and this guy hit me in the face with a pie. The next day the New York Post and New York Daily News ran pictures of it. That was one of the most embarrassing things that ever happened to me.

"I didn't find out until the next day that was a professional pie thrower who had hit New York Mayor Ed Koch a few days earlier. He had been hired by my former secretary who I had fired that week. I was just stunned."

As we all know television can be frightening if things don't go well on a live telecast. Such as plenty of air time but nothing to fill it with.

"In 1978 I had arranged for the WCT FINALS to be syndicated live across the country and had cleared three hours of station time," he said. "I had Don Drysdale and Vic Braden as commentators."

"It was Vitas Gerulaitis defeating Eddie Dibbs 6-3, 6-2, 6-1. The match ran about an hour and 45 minutes. We had cleared three hours. That means we had an hour and 15 minutes to fill."

"We covered the life and times of Vitas Gerulaitis. We interviewed him and looked at the final couple of games over and over. There was no one left in Moody Coliseum."

"Dan Maskell was in Dallas doing commentary for the BBC. I brought him over from the BBC booth. He didn't have a jacket so I gave him my brown WCT coat. We interviewed Dan Maskell. We let Dan Maskell interview Vitas Gerulaitis."

"As you know an hour to fill on television is absolutely frightening. We did every possible interview we could. We even showed the guys taking down the net on the court."

There was a case of the defiant cameraman during the WCT Challenge Cup at Montreal in 1980.

"Our director, Ralph Mole, gets a little excited from time to time in the control truck if a guy is not doing exactly as he feels he should be with a camera.

"Ralph had been yelling at one guy and during the middle of a televised match he just got up and walked out, leaving the camera. Luckily, we had someone else there who could operate the camera. A supervisor from the production company."

Doyle counts as one of his gratifying accomplishments, the establishment of first WCT office in New York. He was appointed WCT's Director of Television in August of 1977 after setting up the office in late 1976.

"WCT did not have an office in New York until I opened the office here. Until then everything was operated out of Dallas. Thanks to Al Hill Jr. and Mike Davies, they convinced Lamar Hunt we should have a New York office.

"The first office was the second bedroom of my apartment. I was not married at the time. It was just myself and a secretary. Watching our office grow from that second bedroom in my apartment to a Park Ave. office with 12 employees has been gratifying to me."

"Starting the television department and watching it grow to now where we are producing and syndicating programs to anywhere from 19 to 37 weeks a year, selling programming to cable, to networks and approximately 20 countries around the world has been very gratifying to me."

"One of the most difficult things to do has been the producing and selling these syndicated programs."

Doyle says time has come for a change.

"I've been doing this for seven years and I want to take on new challenges outside of WCT and broaden my personal horizons. I'm interested in doing more than just tennis. There is one misconception people might think and that is that if you work in tennis you must love it. I like tennis, but honestly I'd rather watch the LA Raiders play football than watch a tennis match. (You can't get rid of the West Texas in these boys).

TOP: Weened on West Texas football, Doyle could barely recognize a tennis ball as he took over the WCT Avis Challenge Cup in Hawaii in 1976. Here Doyle meets a fellow named Bjorn Borg. BELOW: Doyle, left, said it was fun working the past seven years for WCT President Al Hill, Jr., right. Hill praised Doyle's dedication for excellence in television work.

But really Doyle would rather have asphalt around him than prairie sand. "I have a saying that anytime you are out of New York City you are camping out," he said.

"It's just my desire to get away from strictly doing tennis and cut down on the travel. I don't want to be remembered for just producing tennis programs. I have a wife (Jennifer) and baby (three-year-old Magen) now. I've enjoyed working with the people at WCT especially Al Hill Jr. and Mike Davies."

Al Hill Jr., WCT President, praised

Doyle's work over the past seven years. "He was very dedicated to getting the job done," Hill said. "He would always go the extra step and take the extra time to do it the best way possible."

Doyle also co-produced and handled publicity for several of Bob Hope's Christmas shows which featured the Associated Press college football All-America teams.

"We would pick up these players and show them around New York," Doyle said. "I remember one big tackle from Georgia. He was about 6-8 and weight about 280 pounds. When I picked him up at LaGuardia he said, 'Mr. Doyle, I'm scared to death. I've never been to New York before.'"

"I couldn't imagine a guy that big being scared of anything."

But Doyle, the little guy from Cisco (pop. 4,182) occasionally drops back home in West Texas to visit mom. That is, he camps out a spell at mom's house.

Homemaking Hints

Janet Thomas

The Extension Homemaker Clubs will begin the New Year with a program entitled "Cleaning on a Shoestring" to be presented by County Extension Agent, Janet Thomas.

This program will include demonstrations on how to make your own "high-power, low-cost" home cleaners.

Homemakers, not more than a generation ago, didn't have super market shelves full of super cleaning solutions. Instead, the women used a few basic ingredients to create some very effective cleaning products.

Many expensive cleaning products available today are really nothing more than these same basic ingredients that have been perfumed and packaged in aerosol cans and attractive bottles.

The purpose of this program is to show you how to do the same thing. If you are interested in attending one of these program presentations, give me a call at 629-2222. All Extension Homemaker Clubs are open to the public and everyone is cordially invited to attend.

The programs will be presented on: January 10 - Kokomo Extension Homemaker Club; January 12 - Morton Valley Extension Homemaker Club;

January 13 - Pleasant Hill Extension Homemaker Club; January 19 - Lake Cisco Extension Homemaker Club; and January 20 - Flatwood Extension Homemaker Club.

RECIPE FOR THE WEEK:
After all those delicious holiday foods, I think a good salad recipe would be appreciated by many of us who are struggling to lose those extra pounds we gained.

FRESH SPINACH SALAD
1 package of fresh spinach (washed, dried and chilled)
6 slices bacon
1/2 cup sliced green onions
3 tablespoons olive oil
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard

Optional ingredients: hard-cooked eggs, mushroom, ham, water, chestnuts and black olives.
Tear spinach leaves into bite size pieces in a large bowl. Cook bacon in a skillet over low heat until crisp. Remove bacon from skillet and drain on paper towel. Sauté green onions in bacon drippings just until tender. Remove pan from heat and add olive oil, lemon juice, salt and dry mustard. Blend well. Just before serving, pour dressing over spinach and toss lightly. Sprinkle with bacon pieces.

Habits For A Healthier Life

COLLEGE STATION-- With a new year at hand, this is a good time for families to "take stock" of health habits for all members.

Good health habits are easy to establish and should be practiced all year long, reminds Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"The most important reason for establishing healthy habits is to improve the quality of life, as well as its length," Shirer adds.

1. Learn to manage stress and enjoy life more. Emotional and physical stresses should be handled daily. Outside interests and an exercise program help relieve stress.

2. Practice good nutrition—eat three balanced meals a day and try to reduce salt, saturated fat and sugar intake. The average adult consumes up to 100 pounds of sugar a year and high intakes can cause obesity, diabetes, heart disease and tooth decay. Normal weight should also be maintained.

3. Get regular exercise and proper rest. Consistently walk, jog or do other exercises suitable to your individual needs. Get plenty of sleep in the winter because the body's defenses need to be at their peak, particularly during this season.

4. Avoid substance abuse like smoking and drinking excessive amounts of alcohol—neither is a safe or healthy habit.

5. Be sure immunizations are up-to-date, including booster shots.

6. Use seat belts when traveling—auto accidents are among the leading causes of death in Texas.

"Develop a sense of health awareness—learn basic first aid procedures and cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Practice good health habits every day for a happier and more fulfilled life for all family members," Shirer suggests.

Extension Service Plans Farmer's Tax Meeting

It is that time of year again when farmers and ranchers are getting their records together for the income tax report.

The Extension Service will conduct a farmer's income tax meeting Monday, January 10, at the Eastland National Bank.

Dr. Ashley Lovell, Area Extension Economist, will discuss changes in the 1982 tax laws, treatment of oil and gas royalty and leasing income, and installment sales of land. Dr. Lovell will answer any questions on tax reporting and discuss other tax topics of interest. The meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the bank meeting room and will last as long as there are questions says County Agent DeMarquis Gordon.

Everyone is invited to attend.

TDHR Schedules Public Hearing

The Texas Department of Human Resources will hold a public hearing at 7 p.m. on January 18 at McMurry College, Campus, Center, Mabee Room to discuss the department's proposed employment incentives and initiatives.

Several programs are being considered for implementation in Texas, and hearings are being conducted in 10 cities during January to receive public comment on the programs, authorized by new federal legislation.

The employment initiatives include a job search program for applicants and recipients in the Aid To Families With Dependent Children (AFDC) program. Objective of the job search program is to reduce welfare dependency by helping individuals obtain regular employment.

Another initiative proposed is a community work experience program which will give experience and training to AFDC recipients who otherwise are not able to obtain employment.

Work supplementation is another proposed program under which Texas may play AFDC recipients with public agencies, non-profit organizations, and proprietary day care centers and subsidize their employment from funds that would have been used for AFDC payments.

A fourth initiative proposed is grant diversion that would allow the AFDC cash grant to be included as part of a paycheck. The assistance grant would go to an employer to cover all or part of the costs of the wages paid to the recipient.

Another proposal is for targeted jobs tax credits as an incentive for employers to hire persons who have special employment needs.

The Department of Human Resources is seeking testimony from the public hearings to assist in determining what employment-enhancing directions the citizens of Texas want DHR to pursue. For further information, contact Barbara Evans, 915/698-3657, P.O. Box 3235, Abilene, Tex. 79604.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements may have lost the election, but at least he has won an award.

Unfortunately for Clements, however, it's one of Texas Monthly magazine's annual "Bum Steer Awards." Texas Monthly announced the awards in its January 1983 issue, and Clements is not just cited once but no less than three times.

The folks at Texas Monthly handed Clements the infamous award for sticking his foot in his mouth when he disagreed with Mexico's top immigration official, Dr. Jorge Bustamante, about the number of illegal aliens in Texas. Clements called Bustamante "just another Mexican with an opinion."

Not overlooked by Texas Monthly was the $142,000 study Clements commissioned on undocumented workers that came up with the conclusion that illegal aliens do not speak English well.

The study was done by pollster Lance Tarrance, who also was Clements' campaign pollster. Considering the outcome of the election Tarrance's findings in both instances appeared to be just about as useful.

Last, but not least, Texas Monthly gave Clements a dud for having to borrow $3 million for his re-election campaign even though he had raised an additional $10.4 million.

Despite the $13 million-plus war chest, Clements was defeated by Attorney General Mark White, who only spent about half as much.

Corporate Murder

The question of whether a corporation can be tried for murder was decided last week when Galveston County authorities allowed a nursing home charged in the deaths of eight patients to plea bargain for a lesser charge.

Autumn Hills Convalescent Center, a Texas City nursing home, was allowed to plead guilty to involuntary manslaughter in connection with the deaths and was fined $100,000.

The guilty plea was accepted by a Beaumont district judge after a Houston appeals court refused to stop the plea bargain.

Galveston County District Attorney James Hury sought the plea bargain contending he could not have won the case if it had gone to trial. However, one of Hury's assistants sought to stop the plea bargain saying Hury was misinformed about the investigation in the case.

The assistant got fired for his actions. In addition to the fine, the nursing home agreed to pay restitution, which could amount to millions of dollars, to the families of the eight patients.

Windfall Profits

Texans who receive a large portion of their income from oil and gas production got good news when a U.S. District Judge in Wyoming declared the Windfall Profits Tax unconstitutional, but the Justice Department—at the direction of President Reagan—is seeking to have that decision overturned.

The Justice Department has filed an appeal with the U.S. Supreme Court to reinstate the tax, which has been much maligned by Gov. Clements and many other oilmen across the state.

The tax was ruled unconstitutional because it is not uniform throughout the country. New oil produced above the Arctic Circle in Alaska is exempt.

Reagan ired Clements and others when he reneged on a campaign promise to do away with the tax, which was conceived under the Carter Administration. Despite the lower court ruling, the tax will continue to be collected until the Supreme Court appeal is settled.

Holiday Death Toll

Department of Public Safety officials got a pleasant surprise over the Christmas holidays when the final total of Texans killed in holiday traffic accidents came in less than they had expected. DPS had estimated that 52 persons would die on Texas highways during the Christmas weekend, but when the weekend was over only 44 persons had died.

DPS officials said heavy rains, snow and ice may have kept the death toll down by keeping people at home or causing some drivers to be more cautious than they otherwise might have been.

The DPS figures included traffic fatalities which occurred between 6 p.m. Dec. 23 and midnight Dec. 26.

Despite the lower than expected Christmas death toll, DPS officials still expect some 43 people to be killed on Texas roads and highways during the New Year's weekend.

Crime Victim's Fund

The Crime Victim's Compensation Fund has paid out more than $3.5 million to assist victims of violent crimes in Texas, but the fund appears to be going broke.

Officials say the fund, which is financed through court costs paid by felony and misdemeanor defendants, is running out of money but has more than $1 million in additional claims that have not been paid.

The fund was created several years ago to provide restitution to persons injured in violent crimes or the families of murder victims. Currently, criminal defendants pay court costs of $10 or $15 to support the fund, but the Legislature next year may be asked to increase that amount or find alternate funding for the program.

Spotlights And Sidelights

Julia worthy

WHAT HAPPENS TO YOUR NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS?

For years I regarded my most pressing obligation after Christmas was not writing Thank-You notes, not matter how generous my far-flung relatives had been.

What I had to do was to make my New Year's Resolutions—and I thought of them in capital letters, too.

I believe some of my growing up pains were eased by my serious efforts to stick to decisions I made for New Year's.

I was a terrible nail biter. One Christmas a cousin—an already-grown-up-and-working cousin—gifted me with a Cutex nail care "set." It was in a little black box with the palest of pale pink polish, the polish remover, the cuticle remover, an orange stick, three emery boards, and a tiny tuft of cotton that stuck up through a quarter-inch hole.

I could not use that lovely pink polish on such grubby hands. Anyway, as I recall, there was some parental discussion weighing the possibility that the nail polish might be in the same category as the Forbidden Lipstick.

The scales tipped in favor of nail polish when I earnestly promised to make my Number One New Year's Resolution to "Stop Biting My Nails." (I thought in capital letters quite a lot.) This was acceptable, but Papa added a rider: I was not to use the polish until I could show him hands with nails worth polishing.

I don't remember how long it took me, but that gift of long ago accomplished what even quinine under my nails had not done. I admit my hands this morning have only for respectable nails between them, but I have broken, not bitten, the others. Guess what one of my resolutions is!

Not all of my adult resolutions have been as successful as my young decisions. Too, I've become a quibbler about some of them. I could stand to lose at least a hundred pounds. And I have. I expect I've lost at least a hundred and fifty pounds over the years.

But it's like those ads that show this model with a lovely figure. There's a balloon caption saying, "I lost eighteen inches in two weeks!" To which, with memories of lost ten, twenty, thirty pounds of lard, I reply not only "Bah!" but "Humbug!"

Possibly the model did lose eighteen inches if you take fractions from waist, hips, bust (why "bust?"), thigh, ankle—maybe her big toe for all I know.

Since it dawned on me that my yo-yo weight losses could be doing more harm than good, I've endured at more or less the same weight for years. However my bones are beginning to conduct a protest campaign, so I have to consider seriously putting that hundred pounds on a par with the fingernails.

It doesn't do to get too many resolutions lined up to work on. For one thing, you forget them. For another, it's too easy to feel overwhelmed by all the proposed changes—after all, if you've already set a new course, why add a resolution? Rebellion sets in, and New Year's Resolutions hit the trash barrel almost as quickly as Christmas wrappings and trappings.

New Year's Resolutions don't necessarily have to be made the first of January. My dearly beloved father-in-law held that the proper time to make your vows for prospective changes is on your birthday. He said this is a more personal thing, and you are more likely to keep a promise you make to yourself at a time when everyone else is not going and doing likewise.

Poppie may have been right. I've tried it both ways, but my testing doesn't have that much significance as my birthday is in January anyway. (I moved it to August one time, but no one paid any attention.)

Whether my resolutions for another year were made on the first of January or on my birthday, I am looking at my neglected fingernails, considering the twinge in my bones, and expecting to dredge up enough childhood determination to make my somewhat late New Year's Resolutions in Capital Letters! Want to join me?

PADD Reports 29 Cases Filed

THE COURTWATCHERS division of the Eastland County Parents Against Dangerous Drugs (P.A.D.D.) reports that a total 29 cases of illegal drug possession (most misdemeanors of under two ounces) have been filed here during November and December; a marked increase in the number of filings. The Courtwatchers are volunteers who get report from the various law enforcement agencies and then keep track of the dispositions of the cases they move through the courts.

Poem

"A SHADOW HAS NO FACE"
By Jim Alexander

When we walk in the warmth of the sun,
We can feel the power that it has,
And a free man doesn't have to do,
What everyone else says.
If you feel you must cast,
Part of you on the rest of the human race,
Remember a shadow stands alone,
And it has no face.

Your shadow will follow you,
When no one else will.
It stands beside you,
Even when your life is still.
When two shadows intersect,
It's kind of a special place.
But you must speak for yourself,
'Cause a shadow has no face.

Standing looking at your shadow,
Is really seeing a blank you,
It laughs and it cries,
And runs if you do.
When you stand tall,
It continues to be your base.
But it can't sing or talk for you,
Everyone knows, a shadow has no face.

Where does a person stop,
And the shadow take over from there.
If you just sit and watch other people,
Your shadow will be overtaken, by the shadow of the chair.
You can dress up if you like,
In all your satin and lace.
But no matter how hard you try,
Your shadow will never have a face.

One of the most satisfying accomplishments we can have is helping someone. The act of assisting another person is worth the effort. We all are willing to help one another, but actually seeking the people needing help is perhaps another factor.

Come to the Senior Center and share your friendship, your talents, and find a person in need.

The program for the past week included: a musical program presented by Bill Roberts; and the Star Bright Band from Rising Star.

The menus for the week are:
Monday--Chicken Macaroni with Cheese, Mixed Vegetables, Sliced Beets, Pudding, Bread, Butter and Drink.
Wednesday--Bar-B-Que Brisket, Potatoes, Three Bean Salad, Cobbler, Bread, Butter and Drink.
Friday--Tamale Pie, Spanish Corn, Creamy Cole Slaw, Ice Cream, Bread, Butter and Drink.

County Will Be Introduced To New Diet Coke

During the week of Jan. 17th, Eastland Countians will be formally introduced to a brand new soft drink - with an old, old name.

For the first time in 96 years, a new product good enough to be linked with the Coke name, will be available to the calorie-conscious.

"Introducing diet Coke - Just for the Taste of it."

That's the theme and the new white can with the red letters (reverse to the present Coke can) will be filled with a "one-calorie" drink, that, most agree, "tastes just like Coke."

Texas Coca-Cola Bottling Co. President Raymond

McDaniel (who attended elementary and junior high school in Eastland) was in town Tuesday, and he and local Plant Manager Walter Maynard first announced the product to media and to local Coke company employees.

It was a media-blitz of large porportions: color slides, color movies, wall-plaster banners with all the trappings, around the Eastland National Bank community room location. During the presentation, Eastland Mayor Charles Marshall was presented a mounted first-can of the new diet Coke.

Refreshments of guess what? and no-so-diet specially decorated cake were served to the employees and guests.

The company will of course continue to offer the traditional Coke which has been around for 96 years and is the world's best seller, and Tab, which was introduced 21 years ago. The new diet Coke is aimed by the company at the Diet Pepsi market. It has no diet drink after taste.

The samplers at the introduction party agree: "It tastes like Coke."

One said: "Why, I like it better."

Floral Company Hires Local MHRM Workers

Members of the Eastland County MHRM Work Center are currently employed with some detailed handwork.

They are glueing long stems on dried lotus pods - the beginning of dried flower arrangements for Schuster Floral Company of Goldwithe, Texas.

Schuster Floral Company is a large wholesale establishment which supplies goods to flower shops.

Some of the materials used in these arrangements are shipped from various parts of the world.

Workers at the Center are directed by Mrs. Idella Taylor. They also do assembly type factory jobs from companies in this general area. They take pride in the quality of their work, as well as the money they are able to earn in the Workshop.

NEWSPAPERING OVER the years has turned up an unusual collection of collectors. We knew a news editor who had a personal file of "unusual" names he turned up during the normal routine of putting out papers about people. His file had a list of unbelievable names.

Another newshound had a file of "unprintable" letters to the letters - the likes of which you wouldn't believe.

Nearly every newsperson has their own recollection of "infamous" typographical errors which sent readers howling and editors into tremors.

Still another had a rare list of out-of-the-ordinary cliches turned in by fledgling reporters. Some went to extremes.

Herewith is a column by Veteran Newsmen Martin L. "Red" Gibson called Black and White and Red All Over from the Texas Press Messenger.

I'd hate to have to count the cliches. The only one he missed is the famous one used regularly by speakers, circus barkers, preachers and writers: "Men, women, boys and girls..."

We wordsmiths are beset by a phalanx of invaders, called cliches. I say it's high time we stopped eating around the bush and got down to brass tacks in our response to the invasion.

I am issuing a call to arms, hoping to light a fire under my fellow toilers in journalistic vineyards and stir them from their blissful ignorance here at the 11th hour. If I can find enough kindred spirits, we may be able to nip this cliché invasion in the bud.

I suppose the burden of proof of an invasion lies with me. Fine. I do not shrink from that imposing challenge. Though the task looms large, I have every confidence that I have not bitten off more than I can chew. I believe I can prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that I am not crying wolf; good writing has indeed fallen on hard times and is in mortal danger.

Cliches go hand in glove with sloppy writing. They pretend to be our friends, eager to stand by us, ready to spring to the fore when needed. But they are really wolves in sheep's clothing. They slip into our writing and minds, like a thief in the night. In the blink of an eye, they drive our precise wording and throw up roadblocks against any newness of expression.

You can see for yourself. Cast a jaundiced eye at other columns in the journal. See any cliches? Of course. They're as thick as hops. (You can bet your boots you will never stumble across one in this column. I guard this space jealously and will fight cliches with my last breath.)

These creatures attack everyone, and we can thank our lucky stars we have not already been overwhelmed.

Mark my words: We must spare no pains as we set our house in order, lest we taste the agony of defeat. We cannot sit on the fence and watch others do the dirty work. We must take a leaf from Eric Patridge's book and grasp the nettle. We must take the bull by the horns. We must strike while the iron is hot. If we just suffer in silence and don't put our root down, we will soon find ourselves in a pretty kettle of fish. We are already skating on thin ice.

How do we stem this menacing tide? you may well ask. My answer is short and sweet, and straight from the shoulder: We must pledge ourselves to a superhuman effort to keep a sharp eye out for cliches in every line we pen. Every man Jack of us, and that includes the fair sex, of course, must promise to shun those worn-out phrases and throw a monkey wrench into our feeble efforts to communicate. We must fight tooth and nail to make sure our fellow writers won't touch a cliché with a 10-foot pole. We must go through our own writing with a fine tooth comb in our relentless search for cliches.

When all is said and done, good writers will have the whip hand. Cliches will vanish into thin air. To reach that higher plateau, we must attack with a vengeance. We must stay with our chore, year in and year out, to the bitter end. When they ring down the curtain and we shuffle off this mortal coil, people will know we earned our place in the sun by fighting the good fight.

By hook or crook, we will make this colossal undertaking our swan song. We may not nail down the coffin lid on cliches, but we'll certainly take a step in the right direction. Our methods, slowly but surely, will show clichemongers the shape of things to come.

In some ways, I am sorry to have cast the first stone, but my duty, as I see it, is to call a spade a spade. Besides, I'm in too far to back out now. If you can find it in your heart to join me, here on the side of the angels, we can take this crusade to the four corners of the earth. We can go whole hog, and the inevitable result will appear on the horizon anon. That's a foregone conclusion.

If you see eye to eye with me on this, if you think we can join hands and pull ourselves up by the bootstraps, come on board. I welcome you with open arms. It goes without saying that we can kill two birds with one stone in this labor of love: We can help make our own writing as clear as a bell, and we can help the great unwashed see things in a new light.

We are all in the same boat. We have a rare chance to get in on the ground floor in a noble cause. I believe I hit the nail on the head when I say the man in the street doesn't know he is on the horns of a dilemma: Terms that become comfortable enough to come readily to mind also get shopworn quickly.

Let's help our fellow citizens and fellow writers. Let's fight! Lend me a helping hand and we'll let no grass grow under our feet as we read the riot act to lazy writers. It's time to stand up and be counted. I'm in this battle up to my neck. Come on in; the water's fine. You have a golden opportunity here to help mankind. Don't let it slip through your fingers.

Arts-In-Education Being Accepted

Austin—Applications are being accepted by the Texas Commission on the Arts from school districts and nonprofit organizations interested in sponsoring an Artists-in-Education residency. The program, coordinated by TCA for over nine years, is based on a model developed by the National Endowment for the Arts and receives funding from the NEA. During the last school year the program served nearly 49,000 teachers and children in 227 individual schools throughout Texas.

AIE residencies place working artists representing every field from ballet to architecture in direct contact with young people. Residencies, which range in length from one week to nine months, may be sponsored by either accredited school districts, Education Service Centers, government entities, or nonprofit tax-exempt organizations such as museums and arts councils.

Program Coordinator Marilyn Schieferdecker, describing the value of the program, says that "Students learn how their creativity can be used for self-expression. Sponsors often report that AIE residencies provide inspiration and motivation to students, who then become more actively involved in other classroom activities." Teachers, she says, list personal satisfaction, self-discipline, enhanced self-esteem and improved problem solving skills as some of the direct benefits of AIE residencies for students.

Although in the past the program has operated primarily within the school system, a change in the guidelines makes it possible now for nonprofit community organizations such as museums and arts councils to apply. Community residencies are currently underway in Austin, with the League of United Chicano Artists, and in Houston, with St. Joseph's Multi-Ethnic Cultural Arts Committee.

Funding for the program is based on a formula of declining support to encourage local sponsors to incorporate AIE into their existing art programs. First year sponsors receive 50% of program costs, second year sponsors receive 33%, and third year sponsors receive 16.5%. Teachers and sponsoring organizations have the opportunity to work with artists in workshop settings, where they are introduced firsthand to a variety of art materials and techniques.

TCA is available to help design an AIE residency, and will assist sponsors in selecting artists from the following disciplines: music, visual arts, architecture and environmental arts, folk arts, film, dance/movement, creative writing, and theatre.

Applications should be submitted by FEBRUARY 1, 1983, for the 1983-84 school year. A new rule allows applications to be accepted and reviewed after February 1, if AIE programs funds are available. To request application forms or further information, contact Marilyn Schieferdecker, TCA, Box 13406, Capitol Station, Austin, TX 78711. Or call toll free 1(800) 252-9415 or direct (512) 475-6593.

Telephone Co. Increases Federal Excise Tax

As a result of legislation passed by Congress and signed by President Reagan earlier this year, the federal excise tax on telephone service is about to increase.

According to Bob Cox, local manager for Southwestern Bell, the federal excise tax on communications services will be increased from 1 percent to 3 percent on bills received after January 1, 1983. The tax is assessed on local service and long distance calls within the United States.

The current 1 percent tax was scheduled to expire on December 31, 1984, Cox said. "We opposed the tax increase because it singles out telephone users to help generate additional revenue for the government," Cox said. "However, the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 was signed into law. It provides for the three percent tax rate to be effective through 1985."

In Texas alone during 1983, he said, Southwestern Bell will collect approximately $115.7 million to be turned over to the federal government.

...give little thought to the question of values when we should measure them in terms of personal worth in everything he buys, enjoys or does. For example, some folks will buy real estate without any kind of evidence of title disregarding the fact that the principal value of the purchase is in the title, not in the land itself or the improvements thereon. This kind of thinking costs property owners thousands of dollars annually which could be saved and a part of the savings wisely spent for an abstract of title or title insurance.

Baseball Star Speaks Out To Prevent Blindness

Bob Aspromonte, who starred for years on the baseball field with the Houston Astros, is now starring in a television public service announcement by the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness on the dangers of working on car batteries and he believes in his message.

On April 4, 1974 Bob had just jump started a friend's car and was disconnecting the cables when the battery he was working on exploded. He spent the next 30 days flat on his back in a hospital bed with sandbags on both sides of his head. "I never felt so scared and sick in my life," he said, "I knew I had been blinded in my right eye the minute it happened."

Bob was fortunate. His left eye was not damaged and after four long years and four separate operations, doctors have miraculously restored about 40% of the vision in his right eye. "I do feel fortunate. I feel very fortunate to be here and to be able to see at all today," he said, "that's why I am glad to have the opportunity to try to help others avoid the same kind of pain and suffering that I went through."

Prevent Blindness reports that over 12,500 people were treated in hospital emergency rooms around the country for battery related eye injuries in 1981. Most of these injuries resulted from the use of jumper cables and 90% of them could have been prevented with the use of protective eyewear.

A survey, conducted by the Society, on automobile battery eye injuries between January 1 and March 31 of last year revealed some interesting tendencies. Of the 96 injuries reported by Texas ophthalmologists, 77 were caused by the use of jumper cables. All 96 victims were male and 86 of the 96 were between the ages of 20 and 50.

As a result of his experience, Bob Aspromonte is helping the Society to kick off their annual public information campaign this winter.

"Winter is by far the most worst time for this type of injury," Aspromonte said. "A battery is always dangerous and safety eyewear is essential anytime your work around one, even if you're not using jumper cables," he concluded.

When jump starting a dead battery, the Society suggests the following procedures:

Before attaching Cables:
• Put out all cigarettes and flames!

• Make sure cars don't touch. Set both cars' parking brakes and automatic shifts to PARK (manual transmissions to NEUTRAL). Turn ignition OFF.

• Add battery water, if needed. REPLACE CAPS, cover with damp cloth. Don't jump start if fluid is frozen!
• Do not jump start unless both batteries are negatively grounded and the same voltage. American cars are either 12-volt or 6-volt. Check owner's manual.

Attaching the Cables (Do in order listed):

• Clamp one jumper cable to positive (+) pole of dead battery. Then clamp cable's other end to the positive (+) pole of the good battery.

• At good battery, clamp second cable to negative (-) pole. Then clamp cable's other end to dead car's engine block on side away from battery.

• Start car with good battery - then start the disabled car.

Remove cable from engine block and other car's negative pole. Then remove cable from positive poles.

The Society, an affiliate of the National Society to Prevent Blindness, has available a bright yellow vinyl sticker that lists these jump start procedures. The sticker can be kept in the glove compartment of the car or affixed onto a clean surface under the hood. To order a copy, send a self-addressed, stamped, business-sized envelope to Prevent Blindness, P.O. Box 20/20, Houston, TX 77252.

Mangum Baptist Plans Singers For Sunday

Dwayne Clower, Pastor of the Mangum Baptist Church, announces that the Homeward Bound Singers of Wichita Falls will be at the Church for an all-day singing on Sunday, Jan. 9. Singing will begin at 10:00 a.m., and a covered dish meal will be served at noon. The concert will resume at 1:30, and last all afternoon.

The Homeward Bound group, which consists of six singers, is highly acclaimed for both vocal and instrumental presentations. In addition, one of the singers will have a puppet show for the children in the audience.

The public is urged to attend all or part of this day of music and fellowship. Mangum Baptist Church is located south of Eastland, 1 mile to the right off Highway 6.

CHURCH SERVICES

REDEEMER LUTHERAN CHURCH
Sunday School and Bible classes begin at 9:30 a.m. The worship service begins at 10:30 a.m. Pastor Crockett's message is entitled "Strength For A Weak Faith!" based on Isaiah 42:1-7. The Lutheran Hour will be aired over KRBC in Abilene at 8:00 a.m. A new year usually brings new resolutions. But after a few days many of those resolutions are broken. A feeling of failure and frustration can set in, too. Rev. Wallace Schulz, associate speaker on The Lutheran Hour, points out how to overcome these feelings in his Bible-based message "Useless New Year's Resolutions." Tune in Sunday.

New Testament History class will meet in the Parish Hall on Monday, at 7:30 p.m. The Cisco Nursing Center worship service will be on Wednesday at 10:00 p.m. Jesus' Friends will meet in the Parish Hall on Thursday at 9:30 a.m. and 2:45 p.m.

People n Things

THE "THAT'S Incredible" television program last Monday night was concluded with an announcement of its contents for next Monday at 7 p.m. And our Fingerless Fiddler, Mr. Roy Thacker of Ranger, was shown with his fiddle and they said he'd be on the next program.

Tune the show in on ABC Channel 8 or 12 in our area. Roy, you know, works for the Southern TV Antenna Systems. He grew up in Cisco and is well known. He has made several appearances on Nashville's Grand Ole Opry as well as playing often over the state.

WHEN THEY were about to leave before Christmas for Switzerland and a vacation visit with their daughters, the Ralph Glens of Cisco were reminded that being that far from home might cause Santa to miss them.

"I am Santa Claus," he said. So that settled that.

The visit with Daughters Doris Lee Wagner and Marcia Glenn was a delightful event for the Glens, she tells us. They flew to Zurich, Switzerland, where Doris Lee and husband live. And Marcie, a bilingual executive secretary for Litton Industries at Frieberg, Germany, went there too and they all had Christmas together.

The Glens flew home last week, and it was a rugged trip with bad weather, she reported. This didn't bother Ralph who goes immediately to sleep when he is airborne, and he slept soundly until the plane landed 10 hours later. They were gone 18 days and are glad to be home.

THE VIRGIL M. Murphys of 405 West 9th Street went out to California in time to have Christmas with their son and daughter, who live at El Centro and Burbank, respectively. They got home Tuesday night, and the drive from Deming, New Mexico, to Colorado City was in blizzard like weather, he reports. Snow and ice were everywhere. The highways were open, thanks to heavy truck traffic.

The balmy sunshine in Cisco was something the Murphys appreciate.

SPEAKING OF snow, Mrs. Loyal Lundstrom of Cisco Kid Motel tells us that she saw enough on their vacation trip during the holidays to Minnesota to do her several years. It snowed 16 inches the night they arrived and they had to delay their trip home.

They arrived back in Cisco late Tuesday night after a delay in Oklahoma City while a garage worked over the alternator on their car. The Lundstroms, too, are enjoying the sunshine of our area with renewed appreciation, she assured us.

ONE OF THESE pretty, sunny days Mr. S.G. Clary of our town plans to drive out to Colorado City and install a marker on the grave of a Civil War veteran named John Poston Clary. The marker shows that he was born in 1853 and died in 1906.

John Poston Clary was a relative of Mrs. Luke Phippen's mother as well Steve Clary. When Steve first began checking into obtaining a marker for the grave, he thought the Civil War veteran was buried in the Putnam cemetery.

LET'S ALL HELP Mr. W.E. (Dizzy) Dean, 701 West 7th S. (Phone 442-2882), find his eye glasses. They disappeared from his coat pocket last Tuesday. He retraced his steps, which included stops at Olney Savings and the Spot Restaurant, but there were no signs of them. The glasses have his correction ground into them. Give him a call if you run into some stray glasses... Supt. James Couch reports that the Cisco High School coaching vacancy will be on the agenda when the board of trustees meets next Monday night... Don't you like the new beard on the face of Steve Cozart, local contractor?

CYD FRY'S football knee passed the test and is as good as new. That's the report from the snow skiing slopes of the Ruidoso, New Mexico, country. Cyd and her parents, the Jammie Frys, went out there during the holidays and enjoyed a few on the slopes.

Cyd injured her knee while cheer leading for the football Lobos a couple or so years ago, so you could call it a football injury. She had therapy, then surgery, then more therapy and then rest. Cyd and her big brother Phil are students at the university in San Marcos.

Their dad, Jammie, devotes his time these days to ranching. He says that ranching is a pretty hard way to make a living. If you didn't consider the value of the experience and the exercise you get, Jammie doubts whether he could justify staying in the business.

The snow was plentiful at Ruidoso, Jammie tells us.

DR. NANCY Cluck spent the holiday season in Cisco with her mother, Mrs. Bob Cluck. They drove over to Arlington for a Christmas visit in the home of brother and son, Dr. Bobby Cluck and family... Cisco firemen were called out to the White Elephant Restaurant at 10:40 p.m. last Saturday night to put out a fire that damaged the engine of Jack Farleigh's car. It caught from the catalytic converter. What was a retired man like Jack Farleigh doing out so late? He was en route to Graham Hospital where his wife worked until 11 p.m. that night.

Fire Marshal Bill Webb tells that pasture grass fires these days often start from catalytic converters. They get red hot under your car.

THE FRANK Barretts of Thornton Feed Mill have been in Baltimore, Maryland, since Christmas. His brother, who had been seriously ill, passed away and was buried there last week... The Ivan Webbs enjoyed a holiday vacation to the Reno, Nevada, country. They saw the sights and got out on the snow ski slopes a couple of times... And Dr. E.E. Addy reports on an Aggie who was told that his wife had been going out with his best friend. What did the Aggie do? He went home and shot his dog!

Foster Children Cheered By Gifts

The hearts of our Eastland County foster children were cheered this Christmas by the generous monetary gifts contributed by interested Eastland County civic organizations and individuals.

One example was voiced by a foster parent who said, "I had a gift put away on lay away, and the check from the Board arrived just in time for me to redeem this gift for our foster child."

The Eastland County Board members were pleased with the response and are most appreciative.

Those contributors were listed as follows: Cisco Civic League Cisco Noon Lions Club
