

HALL OF REMARKS

BY HERREL HALLMARK

IF YOU WOULD like to place an advertisement in your local newspaper, which would reach the most people at the cheapest price, then you would probably be interested in the Penny Stretcher which will be printed next week.

You may have seen our first publication of this shopper a couple of weeks ago. If not, then either come by or call our office and we will explain the shopper to you.

Display ads will only be accepted in eighth page, quarter page, half page or full page size. The pages are tabloid size which is about half of what the regular paper is measured.

Classified ads will also be accepted for the shopper at a special price. However, if you think it sounds interesting, you better call today, because no advertising for the shopper will be accepted after 5 p.m., Friday, February 25.

A RECENT LIST of donors to the Cisco Cemetery Association had a contributor listed as Norine Guyger. The lady's name is actually Norine Gules. We apologize for this misspelled name.

IF YOU ARE between the ages of 14 and 21, attend either Cisco High School or Cisco Junior College, you may be interested in checking out the new Explorer post in Cisco.

This post is a division of Scouting and is open to boys or girls. Anyone interested may join by contacting Lloyd McGrew at Dean Drug.

An article on the post may be found in this edition of the Press.

THE WEATHER turned cold again Monday and seemed kind of miserable on Tuesday, especially in comparison to the pretty, sunny and warm days we have experienced.

I HAVE SEEN a lot of people cleaning up around their yards lately, especially since the warmer weather.

Some people like to go home in the afternoons and do some yard work before dark, but if they have anything to haul off they sometimes have a hard time finding the landfill open, especially if they do not get off work until 5 p.m.

Maybe the City will have the landfill open late again this year a few nights a week, since the weather is warming up. They had the landfill open later last year but when the daylight savings time ended, they started closing the landfill early.

I am sure they will have it open later again this year.

Cisco Jr. Livestock Show Will Be March 11 & 12

beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Mr. Carl Wilson, V.A. Teacher from Albany will be the judge for all classes.

The show is sponsored each year by the Cisco Livestock Show Association, Mr. Doug Fry, President.

Any student who plans to enter this show should contact one of the Ag. teachers or a 4-H leader.

Project HAP'N Is Happening

Cisco, Tex. 2-24-83—Lone Star Gas Co. in Cisco has announced that Central Texas Opportunities will be the agency that will disburse Project HAP'N funds in Cisco. Project HAP'N, Heating Assistance Program for the Needy, was announced by Lone Star Jan. 3 as a program designed to help persons living in Lone Star's service area who are having difficulty paying their heating bills.

Lone Star contributed $122,800 to begin the fund and invites its customers and the general public to join in making contributions to Project HAP'N. The Community Council of Greater Dallas, working with area Councils of Government throughout the Lone Star system, will administer the fund and distribute money contributed to Project HAP'N to social agencies in the 110 counties served by the company. "Mrs. Nancy Stennett will provide assistance in Cisco based on a case-by-case determination of need," says Wayne West Lone Star's local manager. Mrs. Stennett's phone number is 629-8645 and she may be located at 1711 Main St. in Eastland. Project HAP'N assistance funds can be used for any type of heating bills.

West said that persons who wish to contribute to Project HAP'N should make checks payable to "Project HAP'N - Community Council" and mail them to "Project HAP'N - Community Council, P.O. Box 243, Dallas, Texas 75221." All contributions are tax deductible.

"We will continue to work with various other social service agencies and through government programs to assist our customers," says West.

Explorer Scouts Post Is Learning Basic Computer

Cisco's Explorer Scout post is presently learning basic computer preparations being taught by Steve Wheeler, local computer teacher. The Explorer post is led by Lloyd McGrew.

Mr. McGrew said the post, which was formed last November, is actually a co-ed combination open to boys and girls who are 14 to 21 years of age. They need to be at least a freshman in high school and can be enrolled in college.

Anyone who meets the requirements can join and they do not have to have been in

Eula-Huckaby Basketball Game Set For Here

The Eula and Huckaby boys basketball teams will be playing a practice game in Cisco this week, according to Cisco High School Coach Jim Puryear.

He said the game will be played either Thursday night or Friday night, depending on how the Eula girls game turned out Tuesday night in Brownwood.

If the girls won, the boys game will be played Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. in Cisco Community Gym. If the girls lost, the boys will play here Friday night.

Both the Eula and Huckaby teams won their District titles and will be playing this practice game before advancing to their Bi-District playoffs.

Scouts before. All interested persons are urged to contact Lloyd McGrew at Dean Drug.

Explorer Scouts meet at 7:30 p.m. on Thursdays. They normally meet at the First United Methodist Church, but are presently meeting at Computers Etc., 805 Conrad Hilton Avenue, Cisco.

"I am real excited about the Explorer post," Mr. McGrew said. He said the objectives of the post are for "high-adventure and to learn something."

He said the group will be learning about computers as long as they are interested. "When their interest drops, we will move on to something else," stated Mr. McGrew.

In the area of "high-adventure", he said the group will be going camping, canoeing or just about anything they are interested in doing.

Mr. McGrew said there are six paid members of the post but about 12 have been attending the meetings. He said they have some good people helping with the post including the Dan Dixons, Don Wallace and Clyde Fishers.

Films Set Here

Three Moody Science films will be shown Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. in the American Legion Hall, 500 Avenue E, Cisco.

All three films, "To The Unknown God," "Prophecy and Prophets" and "Facts of Faith", are based on scientific facts.

The public is invited to view these films and admission is free.

Cisco Junior College Will Exhibit Works Of Steffen

Cisco Junior College and Maner Memorial Library are proud to exhibit the works of the late Randy Steffen during the month of February and until March 15. The exhibit includes books written by Mr. Steffen, research materials, nationally known paintings and works of bronze.

Randy Steffen has an international reputation as historian and one of the nation's most accurate portrayals of American soldiers, horses, horsemen, Indians and the Old West of the nineteenth century. Steffen came to Cisco in 1950. His studio was in his home on the old Abilene Highway. It was during the 1950's that he painted the murals for the First National Bank in Cisco. These murals have been moved to the new

CofC Quarterly Breakfast Is Set For March 3rd

The Cisco Chamber of Commerce Quarterly Breakfast Committee met Tuesday, February 15th at 2:00 p.m. Members present at the meeting were: Rex Fields, Bobby Fink, Earl Ray, Robert Dudley, Gene Gwinn and Randy Speegle. The quarterly breakfast was set for Thursday, March 3rd, at 7:00 a.m. at the Colony Restaurant.

Randy Whittle, new Chief of Police, will be the guest speaker. It was asked for all the Chamber of Commerce members, who possibly can, to come out and meet the new Chief. Call the Chamber to make reservations.

bank building are on display there. When Cisco celebrated its 75th anniversary, Randy Steffen was producer and director of "The Saga of Cisco", a historical pageant that depicted the founding of the city of Cisco.

He continued his work in northern California and wrote over 1500 articles and illustrations for magazines. He decided in the 1950's to write a book on the uniforms, arms and equipment of the horse soldier. Near the completion of this work, in 1963, his studio burned.

Undaunted, Randy Steffen started over again. He developed a large collection of materials which guided him in his efforts to complete his research. He completed his manuscript and set of drawings for the book, THE HORSE SOLDIER. It was published by the University of Oklahoma Press in four volumes - the last volume after his death in 1977.

Cisco Junior College purchased this outstanding collection of books, rare magazines, documents, pamphlets and other materials. It has been placed in a special room designated as the Randy Steffen room in the Maner Memorial Library. With this purchase, Cisco Junior College has made this collection of approximately 800 books and various magazines, papers and documents accessible to all who are interested, including researchers and historians of this area.

Cisco Junior College is very proud to have this collection and for the opportunity to present in exhibit along with it, a large number of paintings by Randy Steffen including a self-portrait of Steffen as an 1884 Texas Ranger, Terry's Texas Rangers at the Battle of Shiloh and other paintings of Indians and cavalry soldiers. Ten of his works of bronze are also included in the exhibit. Among these are the nationally known bronze sculptures Hoka Hey, War Horse, Strongheart Lance, and others. A sterling silver buffalo skull and the Life Mask of Sitting Bull are also on exhibit.

Maner Memorial Library is open 8-5 and 6-9:30 Monday through Thursday, 8-4 on Friday and 6:30-9:30 on Sunday.

Successful Well Pumping 20 Barrells Per Day

Grover Chenoweth, operating out of Ranger, has completed a successful oil wildcat four miles south of the Ranger city limits. It is the No. 1 J. Williamson, pumping crude oil at the rate of 20 barrels per day on open choke.

The explorer well is located in a 300-acre lease block in the Tracks I and J of the McAllister Subdivision in Eastland County's William Van Norman Survey. It bottomed at 3,438 feet and will produce from a set of perforations 2,990 to 3,002 feet into the wellbore.

Locations have been staked for a pair of 1,300-ft. Eastland County wildcats four miles south of Cisco. The wells are designated as the No. 1 Castle and the No. 1

Ziehr. New West Exploration Inc. of Abilene is the operator. The Castle is located in a 160-acre lease in Eastland County's H&TCRR Survey Sec. 49 Blk. 3, while the Ziehr is situated in a 154-acre lease, same survey, section and block.

Credit Card Fee Ban Would Hurt Consumer

By Avery Rush, Jr., Chairman, Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association

For a time, some oil companies have elected to collect a processing fee from retailers and wholesalers selling goods and services paid for on a company's credit card. Some other companies have chosen not to collect a fee but to recover credit costs through wholesale gasoline prices, while others have chosen not to offer credit at all.

The processing fee, generally three-percent, is deducted from each credit ticket submitted to the company for reimbursement. The retailer already has received a lower wholesale price from the supplier since the cost of credit has been added to the cost of the product.

The retailer has an option. He may pass along credit costs to all customers equally or eliminate them to cash customers through lower prices. Most motorists prefer this option, with 70-percent of gasoline purchased for cash.

In recent years, inflation and higher interest rates have caused all costs associated with credit cards to escalate. Nevertheless, two bills (HB 206 and SB 342) have been introduced in the 68th Texas Legislature to outlaw levying the processing fee.

This forces certain companies to give up a marketing option. In order to cover the rising expenses of credit cards, companies deprived of the right to charge a processing fee would be compelled to increase the wholesale price of gasoline. Eliminating the processing fee eliminates the discount for cash option.

The net effect would be to require cash customers to continue to subsidize purchases made by credit card customers. If this ban becomes law, consumers who cannot or choose not to use credit could be forced to pay higher prices, which include indirect credit card costs. "This proposal is decidedly anti-consumer. It would be unfair to the consumers who buy gasoline with cash and save money.

This legislation is unnecessary. Companies should be free to compete in the marketplace as they think best, with the consumer benefiting from the competition in a highly competitive marketplace.

Since the end of federal controls on petroleum product prices, the industry has introduced many new retail marketing techniques designed to meet the needs of the motoring public. As a result of heightened competition and innovative programs, prices to consumers have fallen to their lowest level in years. This demonstrates that the market system is working and suggests that it will elicit additional programs to benefit the consumer.

...give little thought to the question of values when we should measure them in terms of personal worth in everything he buys, enjoys or does. For example, some folks will buy real estate without any kind of evidence of title disregarding the fact that the principal value of the purchase is in the title, not in the land itself or the improvements thereon. This kind of thinking costs property owners thousands of dollars annually which could be saved and a part of the savings wisely spent for an abstract of title or title insurance.

Real Estate Consumer

David S. Jones

The Real Estate Consumer is brought to you as a public service by this newspaper and the Texas Real Estate Research Center. Address inquiries to: The Real Estate Consumer, Texas Real Estate Research Center, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

When it comes to housing, small may not necessarily be beautiful, but it is affordable.

With the cost of space becoming so dear, many first-time homebuyers have responded by settling for less. In recent years, the floor area of the median new housing unit has reversed a long-term upward trend. A peak of 1,655 square feet was reached by 1978, declining to 1,595 by 1980.

In part, this reversal reflects the growing popularity of condominiums, which are generally smaller than detached, single-family houses. Now, even the size of condominium units is shrinking.

Builders in California are producing units which must represent the ultimate size reduction—440 square-foot condominiums. The attraction? They're less expensive. Apparently some consumers feel a small house is better than no house at all.

around the refrigerator, range and sink. These should normally form a triangle measuring 16 to 22 feet. Counter and storage space is needed next to each.

Home economists often recommend six to 10 feet of upper and lower cabinets. The standard height for a counter is 36 inches. Wall cabinets usually are 12 inches deep with 14 to 16 inches of space between the counter surface and the bottom of the cabinet.

If there is a window over the sink, it should be as low as possible to provide maximum lighting. Remember, designing the home can be complicated. But thorough planning can assure that the home will meet your needs for years to come.

INVESTING IN REAL ESTATE

For a decade and a half, inflation has been one of the primary reasons for investing in real estate. Now, as inflation abates, will investments in real estate be as attractive?

Certainly land in the path of rapidly growing urban areas will be bid up by natural market forces. The total population continues to rise, so there will be a continuing increase in demand for farm products and the best farm lands.

Family formation will be high for the next decade, which will increase the demand for housing. Meanwhile, demand for income-producing properties will depend on the economic well-being of industries using it.

Investors, therefore, will continue to find attractive real estate investments, but they will have to be more selective. They will look on real estate more for long-term investing and less for "hitting it big, fast."

RESIDENTIAL RENTS

The 1970's was the era of rising house prices. The 1980's may well be the era of rising rental prices.

In the past 10 years on the average, house prices rose at a higher rate than most other goods. Rents, however, failed to keep pace with these price trends. This situation shows signs of reversing itself.

While inflation has abated somewhat, house prices in most parts of the country have stabilized. Apartment rents are picking up speed. Rising by an average rate of 8.5 percent in 1981 nationwide. The average, however, is misleading, since some areas experienced declines.

Rates for growing cities such as Houston and San Diego rose by almost 20 percent. Furthermore, experts foresee a continuation of such rental rises due to the low level of construction of multi-family projects.

TAXES ON NO-INTEREST LOANS

Some builders have been offering home sales at zero-interest rate to attract homebuyers in this high-interest-rate environment.

The buyer pays a substantial downpayment, typically one-third of the total cost, then pays the remainder in equal monthly installments over the next five years. These payments are about equal to those of an 80 percent loan-to-value ratio, 30-year mortgage at 16 percent interest.

In the past, the after-tax cost of the payments were higher because there was no interest to deduct from taxable income. A recent IRS ruling, however, allows buyers to claim a portion of the payment as interest and include that amount in their itemized deductions. An interest rate of 10 percent is used to make the calculations.

The plan is another financing technique developed to help homebuyers overcome the effects of high interest rates.

CJC Exhibits Collection Of Randy Steffen

Cisco Junior College and Maner Memorial Library are proud to exhibit the works of the late Randy Steffen during the month of February and until March 15. The exhibit includes books written by Mr. Steffen, research materials, nationally known paintings and works of bronze.

Randy Steffen has an international reputation as historian and one of the nation's most accurate portrayers of American soldiers, horses, horsemen, Indians and the Old West of the nineteenth century.

Steffen came to Cisco in 1950. His studio was in his home on the old Abilene Highway. It was during the 1950's that he painted the murals for the First National Bank in Cisco. These murals have been moved to the new bank building and are on display there. When Cisco celebrated its 75th anniversary Randy Steffen was producer and director of "The Saga of Cisco", a historical pageant that depicted the founding of the city of Cisco.

He continued his work in northern California and wrote over 1500 articles and illustrations for magazines. He decided in the 1950's to write a book on the uniforms, arms and equipment of the horse soldier. Near the completion of this work, in 1963, his studio burned.

Undaunted, Randy Steffen started over again. He developed a large collection of materials which guided him in his efforts to complete his research. He completed his manuscript and set of drawings for the book, THE HORSE SOLDIER. It was published by the University of Oklahoma Press in four volumes - the last volume after his death in 1977.

Cisco Junior College purchased this outstanding collection of books, rare magazines, documents, pamphlets and other materials. It has been placed in a special room designated as the Randy Steffen room in the Maner Memorial Library. With this purchase Cisco Junior College has made this collection of approximately 800 books and various magazines, papers, and documents accessible to all who are interested, including researchers and historians of this area.

Cisco Junior College is very proud to have this collection and for the opportunity to present in exhibit along with it, a large number of paintings by Randy Steffen including a self-portrait of Steffen as an 1884 Texas Ranger, Terry's Texas Ranger's at the Battle of Shiloh and other paintings of Indians and cavalry soldiers. Ten of his works of bronze are also included in the exhibit. Among these are the nationally known bronze sculptures Hoka Hey, War Horse, Strongheart Lance, and others.

Maner Memorial Library is open 8-5 and 6-9:30 Monday through Thursday, 8-4 on Friday and 6:30-9:30 on Sunday.

New Tax Provisions Benefit W

If both you and your spouse work, consider yourselves part of a growing trend among American families. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, more than half of all families are now comprised of working married couples.

And even though the economic advantages of having two incomes are apparent, many working couples, especially those with relatively equal incomes, often find themselves owing additional taxes at tax time.

What happens is that two-earner married couples generally pay higher taxes than they would pay if they were single. This situation is known as the "marriage tax penalty."

Compounding the situation is the fact that many working couples may not have tax withheld and do not realize it until they file their returns. The result in many cases: a whopping tax bill.

As a result of the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981, however, two-earner couples will be allowed to deduct up to $1,500 in 1982 and $3,000 in 1983. They will not have to itemize deductions on Schedule A of Form 1040 to claim this deduction.

Here's how it will work. If you and your spouse file a joint return for 1982, you will show your total combined gross income just as you always have. However, you may deduct from your gross income either five percent of the qualified earned income of the spouse with the lower qualified earned income, or $1,500, whichever is less. In 1983 and thereafter the deduction increases to 10 percent, but not more than $3,000.

Let's say your qualified earned income is $20,000 and your spouse's is $8,000. In 1982, you will be able to subtract 5 percent of $8,000 and you will be taxed on $27,600. For 1983 and subsequent years, you will be able to subtract 10 percent of $8,000 and be taxed on $27,200.

Although lessening of the "marriage tax penalty" should provide some relief for many two-earner married couples, you should continue to keep close track of your withholding to avoid owing additional taxes at tax time, the IRS said. For example, make sure your withholding equals or exceeds the tax you will pay on your 1982 return if you expect your 1983 income to equal or exceed your 1982 income.

One way to deal with underwithholding is to file a new Form W-4, "Employee Withholding Allowance Certificate," and claim fewer or no allowances, request that your employer withhold at the higher single rate, or request additional withholding.

Another choice is to pay estimated taxes. This means that you pay tax in up to four installments directly to the IRS using Form 1040-ES, "Estimated Tax for Individuals." Both Forms W-4 and 1040-ES are available from the IRS; most employers have Form W-4.

There is another provision that you should if you have children for their care work.

The maximum can take for Dependent Care has increased. one qualifying maximum credit from $480, if you more than $28, it's $10,000 or less.

Fit Working Couples

that you should be aware of if you have children and pay for their care while you work.

The maximum credit you can take for Child and Dependent Care expenses has increased. If you have one qualifying individual the maximum credit ranges from $480, if your income is more than $28,000, to $720 if it's $10,000 or less. For two or more qualifying individuals the maximum credit will range from $960 to $1,440.

This is how the credit works: the credit increases to 30 percent of employment-related expenses if your adjusted gross income is $10,000 or less. For each $2,000 (or fraction of $2,000) you make above $10,000 the credit is reduced by one percentage point. If your adjusted gross income is over $28,000, the credit will remain at the existing 20 percent level.

In the area of retirement savings plans, working couples stand to benefit from another wrinkle in the tax law. Workers who are already covered by employer pension plans have the opportunity to make their own tax-deductible contributions to an Individual Retirement Arrangement (IRA), or to the company plan itself, provided that the plan provides for voluntary employee contributions and the employer agrees to treat such contributions as deductible. The maximum contribution, whether or not the workers are covered by employers pension plans, is 100 percent of their compensation includible in gross income up to a maximum of $2,000.

What's more if your spouse does not work you may now be able to deduct an extra $250 for a spousal IRA increasing the maximum deduction to $2,250 which may be split between the two IRA accounts in any way as long as no more than $2,000 goes to either account.

You can make payments to your IRA at any time during the tax year up to and including the due date for your return. For most people this will be April 15, 1983. You may choose to have payments made between January 1 and your due date be considered either 1982 or 1983 contributions.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION

If you've been out of work and collecting unemployment benefits, you will owe income tax on unemployment compensation if your total income exceeds $12,000 (filing a single tax return) or $18,000 (filing jointly). Details are in the instructions of your tax package.

Reflections In Perspective

By I.W. Ussery

"Brad" Bradley (not his real name, of course) was a Field Grade officer in the Intelligence Branch of the British Army, and was serving with the Abu Dhabi Defense Force...about which later. And Brad was quite a character, as were many of the officers with the Force.

A thorough Arabist, Brad took his duties with the Defense Force very seriously. Speaking almost every known dialect of the Arabic language, he preferred to spend more of his time in the desert with his beloved (and loving) Bedouins than in his office at Forces Headquarters. He was said to have been one of the few people who had ever traversed the Rub al Khali (The "Empty Quarter") which forms a part of the borders of southern Saudi Arabia, Oman and The Yemen. He was a true "Desert Rat".

Standing well over six feet, with a full but somewhat scraggly beard, blonde, and with an engaging smile and a right hand which had all but two fingers missing ("Bit of a bother with a grenade, y'know"), Brad would spend weeks on end "somewhere out there". The Commanding Officer of the Force, another British Army type, knew of his comings and goings. He'd just show up at Headquarters; sometime astride a camel, and at others in a Land Rover which he's scrounged from the Ruler's brother in the oasis of Buraimi, ninety miles inland. And always with his ready smile, and "dying with thirst"; he'd spend some time in the bar at the Officers' Mess, and then go into closet with the C.O. It was not unusual to see a company of troops depart from the "Fort" on the day following Brad's return from one of his jaunts. One would know that a bit of ruckus was brewing among some of the tribes along one of Abu Dhabi's borders.

Many stories were told of Brad. He was a polished, cultured "Officer and Gentleman", and a brilliant conversationalist. And he was devoted almost to the point of addiction to the ballet and to classical music. He would journey all the way to Teheran during the ballet season solely for the purpose of attending the ballet and opera performances. With his erect military bearing, and dressed in his "mess kit" with its be-medalled tunic; Brad made a striking appearance in the foyer of the Imperial Music Hall.

It was said of Brad that when he went to London on his annual month's leave he was met at the airport by a chauffeur-drive Rolls Royce. Not unusual, perhaps, except that the Rolls was of 1923 vintage! And during his stay in London, Brad often toiled around the city at the well of the ancient vehicle. It was said to have been kept in top-flight mechanical condition.

The story was told (and few doubted it, knowing Brad) that on one occasion he was driving along a street in London, minding his own business, when another and very modern Rolls "Silver Ghost" pulled alongside and the driver and passenger signalled him to pull over. The perfect gentlemen under all circumstances; Brad complied. And who alighted from the other car but Her Royal Highness, feisty little Princess Margaret. Brad, upon recognizing the Princess stepped down from his seat, removed his derby and stood slightly bowing to Her Royal Highness. She came straight to the point, which is said to be her manner, with: "I want to buy that car. Will you sell it?" "Dreadfully sorry, Your Highness". Politely said Brad. "This particular model is becoming frightfully difficult to come by. No, Your Highness, the automobile is not for sale". And that ended that little encounter.

Another time; Brad had returned from one of his trips into the desert just in time to take his annual leave. Now when Brad was in the desert, he went totally native as to dress. "Sensible thing to do, y'know". He would explain. Leaving it for you to sort out the sensibility of his practice. On this occasion, word had gone round that he was leaving, and on the day of his departure the terminal was crowded with his Bedouin friends to see him off and to avow their loyalty until his return. Dressed in his snow white "dish-dasha" and "Shemagh", and carrying the ubiquitous camel stick; Brad boarded the VC 10 for London.

Somewhere along the way, Brad left his seat on the aircraft and with his ditty bag

A Field Officer With The British Army

in hand retired to the restroom. He returned some minutes later. Dapper, Harris tweed jacket, gray flannel slacks, spotless white shirt and colourful ascot...atop all of which he wore his derby...he apologetically tapped the stewardess who was standing in the aisle, blocking his way, on the shoulder. Turning, the young lady threw her hands to her face and almost screamed in surprise... "Jesus Christ"! In a very calm voice Brad replied: "Of course, my dear, Incognito, of course". That was Brad Bradley. Quite a character.

Mary Patricia Pruitt & Timothy Duane Bint Exchange Marriage Vows

MRS. TIMOTHY DUANE BINT

Mary Patricia Pruitt and Timothy Duane Bint exchanged marriage vows Sunday, February 19, in a candlelight ceremony read by the Rev. David Adkins at the First United Methodist Church of Cisco.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jerry M. Pruitt of Hamlin and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bint of Cisco.
 Paula Pruitt, sister of the bride sang "That's the Way" and the Rev. David Adkins sang "The Lord's Prayer". Mrs. Betty Odom was the organist.
 Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown of white chiffon and chantilly lace. The bodice of re-embroidered lace and seed pearls featured a wedding band neckline and bishop sleeves. The front panel of the skirt was adorned with medallion of lace and the lace chapel train ended in a scalloped hemline. The full length illusion veil, accented with seed pearls, fell from a wreath of silk flowers and seed pearls. Her colonial nosegay was red and white roses.

 Attending the bride were her sisters, Paula Pruitt, maid of honor, and Pam Pruitt Whittington of Austin, matron of honor. They were attired in identical Mauve poly-silk dresses with illusion and lace sleeves. The dresses featured, lace wedding band necklines and flared skirts. They wore matching silk flower wreaths in their hair and carried small nosegays of roses.
 Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted the reception at 408 West 8th. The table was covered with a lace table cloth crocheted by the bride's great-grandmother. The three tiered wedding cake was adorned with porcelain birds and marive flowers.

 Members of the house party were: Julie Lacey of Irving, Keri Priest of Fort Worth, Betty Evatt of Lubbock, Athena Blanding and Donna Wilcoxon.
 The bride was a graduate of Cisco High School, attended Cisco Junior College and was a graduate of Texas Tech University.
 The bridegroom also graduated from Cisco High School and Texas Tech University. He is employed by Arco Oil and Gas Company in Pasadena, California where they will reside.

 The groom's parents hosted the rehearsal luncheon at the church.

Let's talk.
 Information about your changing telephone service from Bob Cox, Community Relations Manager

Divestiture, FCC actions to affect cost of local service

Concern is being expressed today in many places that changes taking place in the telecommunications industry are going to create a rapid increase in rates for local flat-rate service. Unfortunately, that's probably true. We've been saying for years that Long Distance revenues were subsidizing local rates. Because others were saying just the opposite, the public's confusion was understandable.

Now that the Bell System is being broken up, the handwriting is on the wall. Revenues from Long Distance will no longer be available to Southwestern Bell as they have been in the past to help keep local rates low.

Beginning this year, the company lost another important revenue contribution from the FCC's order that a separate subsidiary (American Bell) be set up to exclusively market telephone terminal equipment. Southwestern Bell may continue to sell the Bell System terminal equipment it had on hand at the beginning of the year. When it's gone, however, the company won't be able to sell Bell System-manufactured phones, PBXs, etc.

Services will need to be repriced

Therefore, virtually every service Southwestern Bell offers will be repriced to make each contribute sufficient revenue to stand on its own, profit-wise.

Local flat-rate service probably is the most under-priced service we offer, because of the generally accepted public policy that local rates should be kept as low as possible to encourage the development of "universal" service.

Virtually everyone who has wanted telephone service in recent years could afford a basic local service. Public policy has now shifted to de-regulation, with competition expected to provide the impetus to take advantage of the fruits of the ever faster technological race.

Long Distance bargains come in minutes, too

Long Distance service may be the first to realize the benefits of true competition in the industry, with rates almost sure to go down once subsidies for local service are withdrawn.

But Bell Long Distance rates within Texas are already a bargain. Surprisingly, our research indicates most people overestimate the cost of an in-state call. Do you? Test yourself. What is the rate for the first minute of a Day-rate call dialed direct (1-) from a non-com phone, without tax, say from Amarillo to Brownsville? A. 42¢ B. 59¢ C. 73¢. Hint: It's the same from El Paso to Texarkana, Texas.

You don't have to turn the page for the answer. Or even turn the page upside down. It's A. Just 42¢. You can talk as long as you like at 42¢ for each additional minute.

That's one of the nice things about Long Distance. You can virtually tailor-make each call. You can pick the time, type and length of call which suits you and your pocketbook best.

Remember, if you have something to talk about, don't hesitate to drop me a line.

Commission Places Marker At First Oil Well Site

In 1866, twenty-eight years before the oil boom at Corsicana and thirty-five years before the spectacular oil gusher at Spindletop, Lyne Taliaferro "Tol" Barret, brought in Texas' first oil well about twelve miles southeast of Nacogdoches. Tol Barret tried to drill a well at the same site in early 1859, which would have been the first oil well in the U.S. (the first came in August 1859 in Pennsylvania), but lack of machinery and the start of the Civil War halted his plans. When he bored the well in 1866, Barret used an eight-foot auger that was eight inches in diameter and steam driven. A mule with a rope tied to his harness was used to pull the auger to the surface. When the auger reached 106 feet, gas, water, and oil came to the surface. Texas' first well produced about 10 barrels of oil a day.

Immediately Barret left for Pennsylvania to seek financial backing for his venture. Brown Brothers of Titusville sent a representative with $5,000 worth of machinery to develop the oil; however, on the day the machinery arrived, word came from the company to shut down the operation—unsettled conditions under Reconstruction and low prices for oil prompted the decision. Tol Barret could not secure further backing, he had used a large portion of his wife's land as collateral for loans, and he gave up the venture. He spent the remainder of his life in the mercantile business and managing his wife's farm. In 1889 he saw successful drilling begin near the site of his well and then cease after a few years. He lived to see the oil booms at Corsicana and Spindletop, and died in 1913 with the sure knowledge that Texas had great oil resources as he had always claimed.

The Texas Historical Commission has placed an OFFICIAL TEXAS HISTORICAL MARKER commemorating Texas' first oil well on Farm Road 226 about twelve miles southeast of Nacogdoches. The National Register of Historic Places, archeological investigations, and museum services are other programs administered by the Texas Historical Commission.

Bass Club Report

Our recent Indian summer weather has really turned the fishing activity on, not only the fish themselves but also the elusive fishermen themselves. Reports are good to excellent from all area lakes. Leon is producing 2-3 lb. fish regularly with some nice 4 and 5 lbs. coming with them also. Cisco turned out some nice 5 lbs. fish along with some in the 2-4 lb. also.

March will begin to show us more opportunities to fish; not only for the fun and relaxation but also to compete. One such Tourney shall be held March the 13th which will be a fine month to catch a real nice stringer. We shall have our March meeting Thursday the 3rd at 7:30. Hope to see you all at the Cisco National Bank Building then.

WRITING BEST SELLERS

Successful auction selling begins long before auction day. It really begins on the day you call

On my first visit to your place I can obtain a list of the items you wish to sell. And, I can gather the information that will help make your auction advertising more helpful to those who read it.

By determining quality and condition I can properly describe your offering. And by seeing them in use at your place I can tell all those interested bidders how they can benefit from buying your items.

My auction ads are easy to read due to the special efforts I make to set them up right. And your friends and neighbors can quickly spot the good items you wish to sell.

My auction ads are "best sellers" and I'd like to get started right now on writing one of my "best sellers" for you. You will get my best effort from the first call and I'll begin selling for you from that day on. And remember, when it comes to buying or selling AUCTION'S BEST

Six Flags Undergoes Face Lift For New Season

ARLINGTON, TEXAS—Have you ever seen a picture of San Francisco right after the earthquake of 1906?

If so, you have a rough idea of what Six Flags Over Texas looks like during the winter months.

The spotlessly clean, beautifully landscaped wonderland familiar to millions undergoes an annual facelift that makes the workload of a Hollywood plastic surgeon seem like child's play.

After the park closes in November, and before it reopens in March, thousands of man-hours go into making sure certain the "Six Flags Look" is more dazzling than the year before.

This winter 5.5 million dollars are being poured into the sprawling entertainment center in a little over three months.

The results will include the biggest ride in the park's history, an entirely new children's section and hundreds of subtle changes.

This month painters on their way to refinish the interiors of shops and restaurants find themselves dodging a steady stream of dump trucks, bulldozers and concrete transports.

They must pick their way around small "mountains" of dirt, gravel, boulders, lumber and structural steel.

In the Southern Palace Theater, where rehearsals are already underway for the park's 1983 musical, choreographer's shouted instructions are occasionally drowned out by the whining roar of a concrete pump forcing tons of lumpy gray concrete into forms molding the walls of a manmade river.

Builders of the river, to be known as the Roaring Rapids, are working against an early spring deadline for opening of the new, 4.2 million dollar ride.

The finished product will be a series of churning, whitecapped rapids which will propel huge rafts loaded with funseekers through rock-waltered canyons on a ride which rivals some of the world's most exciting river rafting excursions.

The massive ride runs through the heart of Six Flags occupying land formerly devoted to La Salle's Riverboat Adventure and Skull Island.

Not far away an entire railroad train is being built. It will be a key feature of Pac-Man Land, a half-million-dollar children's play area which is taking shape in the park's USA section.

When the train is completed it will house a children's birthday party room, a diapering and nursing center and the park's familiar Lost Parents Caboose, where youngsters are entertained while their "lost" parents are located. Just outside the train is an area in which children's rides will be clustered.

Construction crews are also busy installing creative play features which will delight young eyes. There will be everything from a "forest" of tall punching bags to a cargo net climb to stretch young muscles and imaginations.

At the entrance to Six Flags bulldozers have leveled the parking lot toll plaza and a new, more efficient structure is rising to serve guests who will begin arriving March 5, when Six Flags begins its 23rd season.

Before that date, streets now strewn with the rubble of change will be "squeaky clean" and ready for visitors.

Already the tens of thousands of pansies, tulips and hyacinths which will burst with color come spring are nestled in the freshly reworked soil of scores of flowerbeds.

In spacious greenhouses just outside the park, tropical plants are getting a winter pampering and hundreds of hanging baskets grow more lush by the day. They will be gingerly moved into place in the final days before the '83 season begins.

Next door to the greenhouses are the building where ride technicians are painstakingly poring over nuts, bolts, gears, axles, wheels and other items which, when fitted back together, will become the cars of the Shock Wave double loop roller coaster, the gondolas of the whirling Spinnaker or key parts of other familiar rides.

During the winter months rides are literally taken apart. The disassembled components are subjected to non-destructive testing to detect even the tiniest of hidden flaws.

The costly, time-consuming work is part of an annual ritual to assure the safety of every ride in the Six Flags lineup.

In the park's sign shop artists are hard at the task of making more than 6,500 signs look "just like new." Many of them will be new, reflecting the major changes created by new rides and other attractions.

In that same area antique, hand-carved carousel horses have been stripped of their paint. The "jewels" adorning their harness have been replaced with hundreds of new glass baubles which reflect a rainbow of color. Soon artists brushes will transform each prancing steed into a white, or black or dappled charger.

In still another work area upholsterers are putting the finishing touches on a huge inventory of seat backs and cushions which will soon be reinstalled on rides ranging from roller coasters to miniature antique cars.

The fiberglass hop is the winter home of a most unusual logjam. In this case the logs are the boats which ply the waters of the Six Flags' two flume rides.

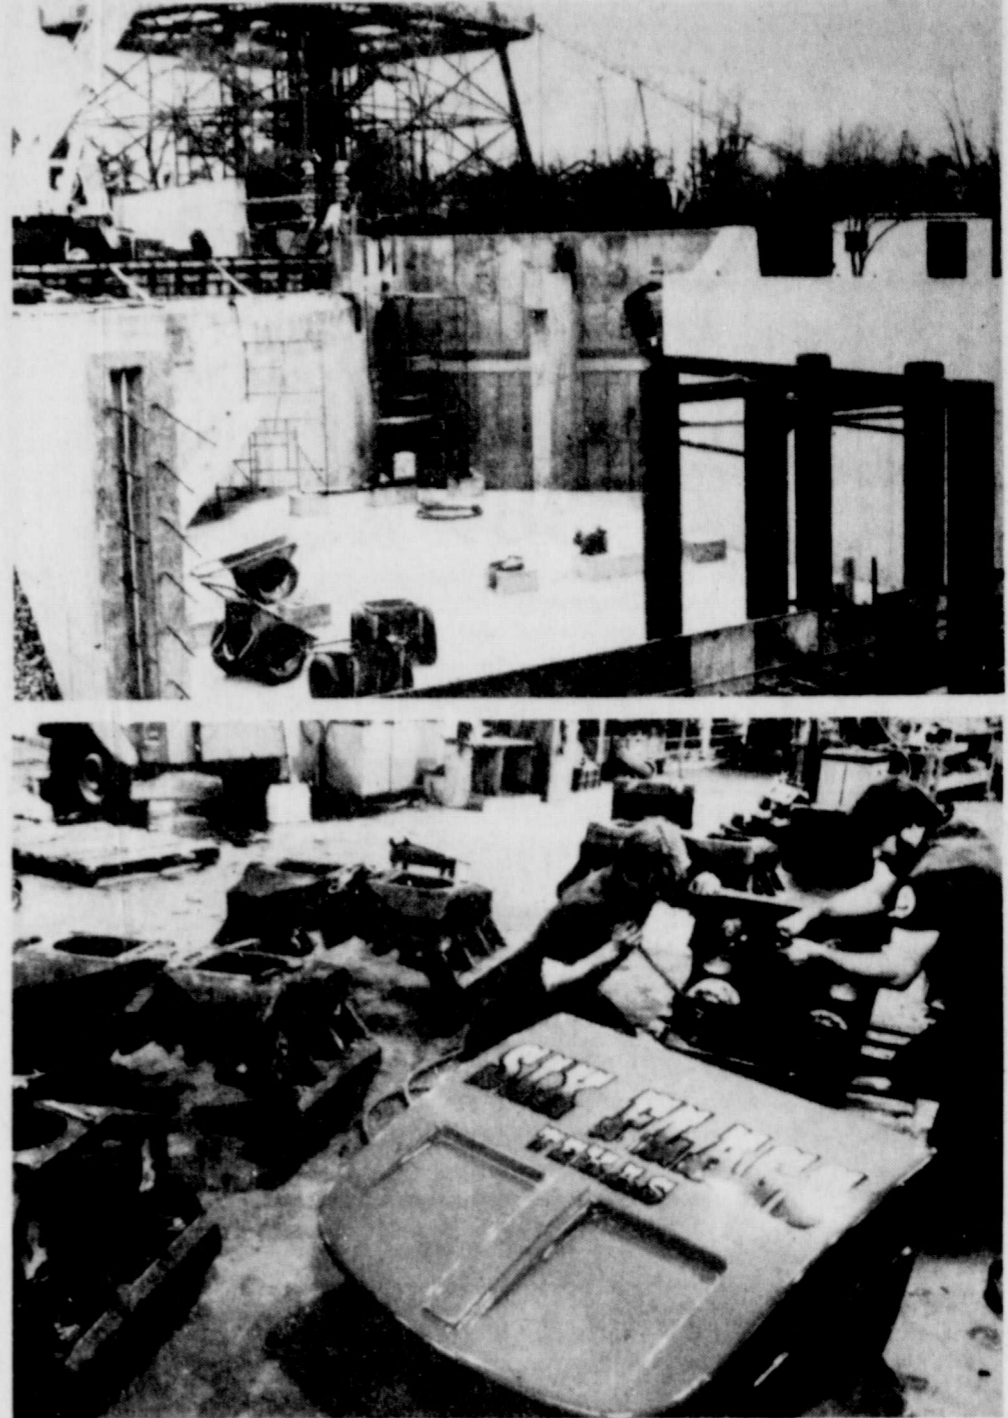

The wheels which guide the logs are missing. Brand new ones will be installed. The scratches and scrapes of the previous season are carefully removed before a new fiberglass surface is applied.

The logs will make a stop in the paint shop, where a glistening new finish will be applied, before they are taken back into the park to be placed back in the freshly painted trough of a Log Flume.

In still other areas, electronics technicians are giving sophisticated ride computers their yearly overhaul. Animation experts are reworking the complex mechanisms which will make colorful characters nod and bend and wink and entertain.

In the wardrobe complex seamstresses are putting the finishing touches on thousands of pieces of clothing. These items will become the uniforms of the 2,400 young people who will become hosts and hostesses for the coming season.

There are still tons of concrete to be poured; thousands of nails to be driven; truckloads of dirt to be moved; gallon upon gallon of paint to be spread and a thousand and one other jobs to be done before the park gates swing open in March.

If all goes according to tradition, the last painter will slip quietly out the back gate just a few minutes before the first smiling guests pass through the turnstiles.

People often ask Six Flags staffers, "What do you all do during the winter?"

A lot. A whole lot!

The Hidden Years Of The Jumanos

By Viola Payne

At the site of the present-day town of Ojinaja, Mexico, just across the river from Presidio, Texas, there once stood a Jumano Indian village. This settlement in the Big Bend was later named Santo Tomas by the Spanish, but had another name in the Jumano language.

Mystery shrouds this language of the Jumanos, just as it does many other details of their lives. They are not as well known as other southwestern tribes, since they were scattered and exterminated before many Europeans had a chance to observe them.

That portion of the Rio Grande which touches Mexico is often considered a modern barrier - and an artificial one at that - which deadlocks two cultures. Yet the Big River has long been an outpost of various racial influence. Evidences of human life in the area can be dated back to around 500 A.D.

Those first traces are called simply "Basket Maker" or "Cave Dweller." Where permanent water supplies can be found along the river, evidences of human existence are noted. Artifacts are often buried under the silt of cave floors, or in long, open shelters nestled above the river.

It is assumed that sometime around 1,000 A.D. the Pueblo Culture, which was then entrenched in New Mexico and Arizona, moved rapidly down the Big Bend to the Presidio area. But some authorities speculate that some of the Jumanos could have come upward from the Highlands of Mexico to where the Rio Conchos - clinging to this ancient waterway of travel.

Studies of tree rings and other data from this time of migration show that the southwest was having a long period of abundant rainfall - about 30 inches per year! The deltas of little creeks and washes along river could be used for farming - where today rangy cows forage among the Lechuguilla.

Early explorers agreed on one thing - the headquarters of the Jumanos was in the Ojinaja area, where the fresh water of the Rio Conchos joined the Rio Grande.

There are many estimates of how many Indians lived from the El Paso area down to the main Jumano settlement. Twenty thousand seems the most reasonable, and these were scattered along in fifteen villages. That is more people than occupy the whole Big Bend area today!

Jumano Indians were friendly, preferred peace to war, and were not bothered by other tribes for hundreds of years. The earth, they considered, was their Mother, and they adapted their needs to what she could provide. Their main settlement, just as the others, consisted of homes clustered around a square. These homes probably appeared little different from present-day Mexican settlements in the Border Country.

Some of them were as large as 20 x 30 ft., built in pits, with cottonwood for corner posts. The adobe-brick walls were built up some distance, then carefully plastered. Above these walls were palings made of riverbrush. Plastering was used on the ocotillo and brush roofs, which were so strong that they could support a number of people at one time.

Inside these homes, which were remarkably insulated against the hot river summers or cold snaps in the winter, were adequate furnishings. There was pottery of the Pueblo type, baskets woven of cotton or yucca or willow, and buffalo or deer hides made into soft robes and clothing. Red, yellow, black, and white colors were used. Sandals were made of fiber and leather, arrows and knives were made of flint. Bone needles, as well as wooden and stone and pottery utensils were used. Yucca roots were made into soap.

Out in the little fields, which were cultivated by the men, there were grainaries of willow, similar to those used along the border today. They were constructed to hold the small-eared corn, maize, and other foodstuff such as beans and squash. Cotton was an important crop too, for it could be traded to other Indians.

A main hunting trail led up

Alamito Creek across Paisano Pass (near present Alpine), over to the big spring where Ft. Stockton now stands. Then it veered across the Pecos and on to the headwaters of rivers which would later be known as the Conchos. Part of this trail later became a route for explorers, the Comanche War Trail, and a branch of the Chihuahuah trail.

Each Jumano village had its own Cacique, or Chief, who led the group in a show of hospitality to strangers. Travelers were greeted by rejoicing and music, which was produced by flutes and chants.

The Jumanos depended heavily upon the buffalo, which usually stayed in a range east of the Pecos river. When early fall reached the land, and hides were at their prime, long Jumano excursions began. Friendly cousins of the Jumanos lived in the buffalo country. It required a lot of endurance and skill to reach them, for the trip must be made on foot. The trail from Jumano villages followed water holes, for no one could live long without water in this land.

At this time the whole southwest - where water could be found within a day's journey on foot - was webbed with trails for Indian visiting and commerce. In the pre-horse days these arteries reached down the Rio Conchos and fanned into Mexico.

The Indians, absorbed in their hard but rewarding daily existence, apparently had no idea that their world was nearing an end. The feeble things which finally shattered it were nothing but three Spaniards and a Moor, lost, struggling across the desert, hunting some way to reach Spanish explorers in Mexico. And the ragged leader of this expedition was named Cabeza De Vaca.

Simple Tips for Top Kid Shots

Nearly everybody agrees-kids make excellent photographic subjects. Yet, not all kid shots result in top-class photos.

What makes the difference? Is it the individual? Sometimes. But more often than not, it's the photographer-how he attempts to capture the child on film-which plays the greatest role in determining the quality of the shot.

Would you like to improve your performance behind the camera? Then take the time to learn a few simple rules about getting - the most quality possible into your kid shots.

Toddlers are dynamite with action toys. Give a four-year-old a slotless racing car set and you're sure to see ear-to-ear grins for hours on end. That's a cue to grab the camera.

Before you shoot that first frame, though, ask yourself a simple question: What's my angle? No, I don't mean what kind of scam you're running. Bootleg toddler pix are hardly big items on the Black Market. I mean, what's your camera angle in relationship to your subject?

Nine times out of ten, you can increase the dramatic effect of your photos by shooting your subject from the subject's eye level. If the child is down on the floor, get down there with him. If he's sitting at a table or standing, you do likewise-whatever's necessary to get that camera ready for an eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation. The eyes, as the poet once said, are the windows to the soul. Capture them intimately on film, and you're sure of getting an intriguing, endearing photo.

Once you've found the proper angle, ask yourself about the child's background. Does he come from a good family; does he have an impressive educational history? Of course, the "background" you're really interested in is the one behind the subject. Take a good look. Is it cluttered and distracting or nice and clean? If you're shooting an adjustable camera, like a 35 mm single-lens reflex (SLR), you can often choose a wide lens aperture to give you a shallow depth-of-field, which will automatically blur the background enough so that even distracting objects seem to disappear. If you're shooting a non-adjustable camera, you may have to shift your angle to one side or the other to clean up the scene.

"I've been framed!" That's the next thing you should hear from your subject...if framing him is at all possible. I'm talking about natural framing-utilizing some element in the scene to act as a frame within the frame of your viewfinder to help reduce the size of the scene and draw emphasis to your subject.

Picture that youngster playing with the racing set peering through a loop of track. What a perfect shot! Or perhaps you can catch someone peeking out from behind a door-way so that the edge of the door frame draws emphasis to the child.

Natural framing isn't always available, and you needn't go out of your way to force the issue. But when it is present, you'll find you've produced more impactful shots when you utilize it.

Finally, if your camera has a closeup setting-or if it accepts closeup lenses-try taking closeups of your subject. You can eliminate a lot of distracting background and draw emphasis to your subject by getting in for a really tight shot. Perhaps you'll include the child's eyes, cheeks, chin, and just a few strands of hair, with the rest of the shot falling outside the viewfinder. This is an especially effective technique on children who have interesting facial expressions. You won't want to use it on all your portraits, of course. But for an occasional dramatic photo, a closeup is hard to beat!

Framing your subject "naturally" can make the difference between a good and great kid shot.

First Industrial Arts Club Hears About Trip

The First Industrial Arts Club met in regular session Feb. 17 at the Clubhouse for a very interesting program on insights of a hiking trip by the Cisco Boy Scouts.

Mrs. Velma Williams, leader for the program, introduced the guest speaker, Rev. David Adkins, minister of the First United Methodist Church. She said he received his education in Arlington and Fort Worth and attended Texas Wesleyan College for a B.S. degree and a graduate degree from S.M.U. He is assistant Scout Master with the Cisco Boy Scouts.

Lloyd McGrew, Scout Leader for the Cisco Scouts, invited David Adkins to accompany the group on a trip to Philmont, New Mexico. There were six boys and three men on the ten day hiking trip during the summer of 1982. When they arrived at the camp they were put in small tents with 2 men to each tent. The next morning they attended classes to get familiar with the Philmont Ranch and its history.

There are one hundred thirty seven thousand acres in the Philmont Ranch. At the time they were there, 41 groups went through the ranch. During the camping season about 37,000 boy scouts go thru Philmont each year. Each group go on a different trail of a 50 mile hike. There can be 46 groups on Philmont at any one time and there are 26 different trail units and each group starts at a specific place using one trail for a 50 mile hike and probably never sees another group of people he said. Only twice while on the whole 10 day trip did they see two other groups.

Rev. Adkins gave some history of the ranch and said in the mid 1800s the Mexican government gave a small tract of land, in Northern New Mexico, to two men. One of them had a son-in-law who was very interprising so he took that Mexican land grant, immediately after the Revolution, to the U.S. Congress. And the Congress granted to Lucious B. Maxwell one million, seven hundred and fifty thousand acres. It was one of the largest land grants issued by U.S. Government in our history. He discovered that there were other things in the world he could have other than land so Maxwell began to trade off some of the land. The property got cut up into several sections so finally in 1919 Wade Phillips purchased 387,000 acres of the land and that became what is now known as Philmont. He discovered that part of the property until he finally built a ranch house on the land.

After enjoying Philmont for about 30 years Mr. Phillips decided in 1937 that he would like to share the 137,000 acres with other people more than his family of about five. That is when he decided to give all that he owned at Philmont to the Boy Scouts of America.

Realizing that the Ranch would need funds to keep it going, Wade Phillips put into a Trust Fund, Phillips Tower, a 42 story skyscraper, in Tulsa, Oklahoma. That way there would be income enough to take care of the ranch property.
