

HALL OF REMARKS

BY HERREL HALLMARK

WE HAVE had some very pretty weather this week, except for the winds. Forecasts call for more of the same through next week.

IF YOU ARE looking for something to do around the end of April, why not get in contact with Eris Ritchie or Tim Jones and make plans to go on the Washington-Virginia trip being sponsored by CJC?

They still have 15 places to fill on the airplane and if you hurry you might be able to reserve one or two of the seats.

I am sure it will be a fantastic trip and a very enjoyable, as well as memorable, one.

LOCAL SCHOOL children will be resuming their normal pace at schools here on Monday following a week off for spring break. Classes are scheduled to resume at the normal time Monday morning.

Probably this next week, most of those school age children which have been awake by dawn everyone morning, will probably come down with a mild form of sleeping-sickness and will be hardly able to get up before 8 a.m.

CISCO'S LIVESTOCK Show was held at the County Barn here Friday and Saturday of this week. We hope to have the winner's names and a story concerning the show in next week's paper.

Absentee Voting To Begin Monday

Absentee voting in the annual city, school and hospital board elections will begin Monday, March 14, at City Hall and continue through Wednesday, March 29, according to announcements Friday.

City and Hospital board absentee ballots may be cast at City Hall from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and voting for school board will be at the school business office during the same hours. Ballots for the three elections have been printed and are ready, City Secretary Ginger Johnson reported.

Garl Gorr will be the election judge for the city and hospital polls, with Elmer Escobedo as his alternate. Tops Bailey was named judge of the school election.

Ballots list candidates as follows:

City: Mayor - Eris Ritchie and W.E. McGough; council place 1 - Linton Batteas; place 2 - Brad Kimbrough.

Hospital board - Bruce Stovall, Armo Chambers and Judy Dudley.

School trustees - place 1, Donald Gorr, Lola Cozart and Bobby Smith; place 2, Steve Cozart, Howard Worley and Shirley (Gus) Smothers; place 3, Dr. Allen McInnes, Travis Starr, and Gary L. Nichols.

Cisco Man Injured In Tractor Mishap

H.L. Reeve, 56, local plumber, suffered critical injuries last Tuesday afternoon in an accident while plowing his garden with a tractor at 1100 East 8th Street in Cisco. He was in ICU at Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene and his condition was described as serious Friday.

Mr. Reeve's injuries included a punctured lung, five broken ribs, a crushed shoulder, a broken left arm and a possible leg fracture, family members told The Press. He was taken to Eastland Memorial Hospital by a Pafford Ambulance and after emergency treatment, was transferred to Abilene for the attention of specialists.

The mishap occurred while Mr. Reeve was plowing his garden at 2 p.m. Tuesday. Michael Parrish, who was helping him, told his family that Mr. Reeve leaned to one side as the tractor tilted and the leg of his trousers was caught by a rear wheel, pulling him from the seat. He fell under the machine. Mr. Parrish was able to keep the tractor's blade from striking the injured man.

The Reeve family has lived here about 20 years. A son, James, has been with the U.S. Army in Germany for some two and a half years and efforts were being made to contact him. The Reeves have three daughters, Loretta Hogue, Phyllis Baird and Cindy Shimp, all of Cisco.

Murder Charges Filed Here

Search Underway For Lundstrom

A widespread search was underway for Loyal Lundstrom, missing owner of the Cisco Motel, as murder charges had been filed against him in connection with the death last weekend of his 27-year-old wife, Doris, at their home here.

The formal charges were filed by city police in Justice of the Peace A.C. Holder's Court last Wednesday afternoon. Bond was set at $50,000.

The Lundstrom family's 1982 Chrysler New Yorker automobile was located last Tuesday at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport parking lot. Police Chief Randy Whittle was informed by DFW airport officials that the car showed up in the 2 a.m. Friday inventory of parked cars. The airport checks all cars in parking lots at 2 a.m. daily.

The auto was brought to Cisco by a Ted's and Rex's Wrecker Service Wednesday. Chief Whittle and Detective Jackie Hobbs went to DFW to take possession of the car. It was moved without doors being opened so police could check the interior for fingerprints.

It was understood that little or no evidence was found that might be helpful in the solution or prosecution of the case, but authorities declined to comment. Chief Whittle was reported to be checking out every rumor and possible lead. He was being assisted by Sheriff Johnny Morren and District Attorney Emory Walton.

Mrs. Lundstrom was shot in the abdomen with a 16 or 20 gauge shotgun sometime Thursday afternoon, March 3, according to reports from a Dallas pathologist. Her body was discovered around 8:15 a.m. Saturday in her locked bedroom by a family friend. She had last been seen alive Thursday morning.

Authorities reportedly were taking legal steps to see the Lundstrom bank account records for possible leads in the case. Robbery was not a motive, police said, as money was found in the motel bedroom.

Newspapers in Fort Worth and Abilene published stories during the past week about Mr. Lundstrom, a resident of Cisco for some 10 years, being convicted in 1968 by a Minnesota court in connection with the death of a former wife. The reports said that Helen Lundstrom died in their home in October, 1967, during a scuffle with her husband, who was convicted on charges of manslaughter. He was sentenced to prison but was released after two years by the Minnesota Supreme Court, saying that trial evidence had not proved his intention to kill his wife of 20 years. They had five children.

Life was returning in Cisco to normal as the week neared the end. The Cisco Motel was reopened under the supervision of Fred Oehlke, father of Doris Lundstrom, who told interviewers that he was moving here from San Antonio to look after the five Lundstrom children and the family business on East 8th Street.

The bus station, part of the business, was moved earlier in the week to Walton Electric on East 9th Street.

Funeral services for Mrs. Lundstrom were conducted at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the First Baptist Church with Kimbrough Funeral Home in charge of arrangements. Some 250 relatives and friends of the family attended. The Rev. C.L. (Cliff) Reneau, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene where the family has worshipped for several years and where Mrs. Lundstrom was a Sunday School teacher, officiated. He was assisted by Glen Turvaville of the local church. Harvey Jackson and the Glory-Heirs Quartet of Abilene provided special music. A children's choir, The Kingdom Kids, also sang.

The Rev. Reneau's message seemed directed especially to the children. The minister has been a close personal friend of the family.

Burial was in Oakwood Cemetery. Pallbearers were John Clinton, Gene Foster, John Conger, Ray Maples, Gary Nichols and Dean Elliott. There were numerous floral offerings.

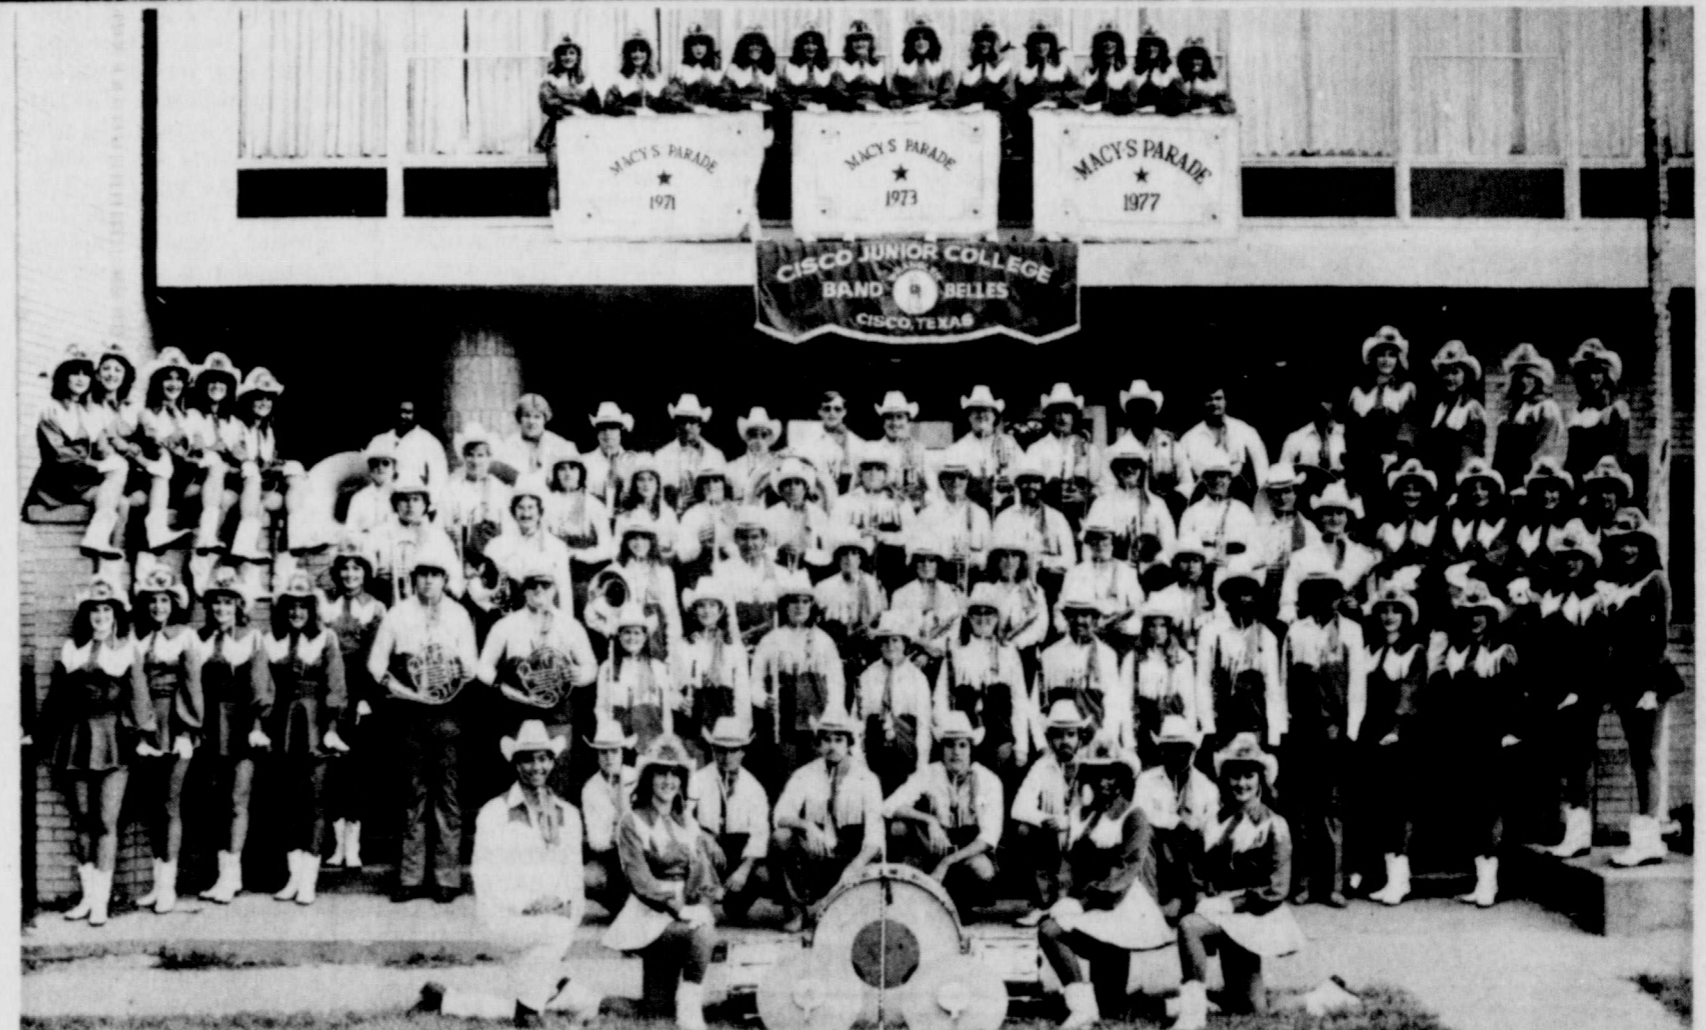

The security detail included two policemen inside the church and two on duty outside. A police car patrolled the area and escorted the procession to the cemetery.

Surviving Mrs. Lundstrom, who was serving as president of the Cisco P-TO, are her husband and two sons, Loyal Edward, Jr., and William Christian; three daughters, Heidi Lynn, Sandra Marie and Julia Christine; five step-children, including Linda Lee Lundstrom of the home; her parents, Eileen Oehlke of Minnesota and Fred Oehlke

Jaycee Meet

Set In Cisco

Wednesday P.M.

A meeting concerning the possible organization of a Jaycees chapter in Cisco will be held at the United Savings building Wednesday, March 16, at 8:30 p.m.

The Jaycees is a young men's organization open to those between the ages of 18 and 35.

Anyone concerned in helping the city, other people and themselves is urged to attend this meeting.

A package plan costing $475 per person, based on double occupancy, includes four days and three nights in the Virginia-D.C. area, round-trip air transportation from D/FW Airport, all ground transportation from Cisco and in Virginia and D.C., and hotel accommodations at the Hospitality House in Arlington, Virginia, a Washington suburb. Also included in the package price is a breakfast at the capitol with Congressman Charles Stenholm, a tour of Mount Vernon, near Washington, and considerable sight-seeing in the D.C.-Virginia area, as well as the parade in Winchester.

Although applications for places on the trip were supposed to have been made by March 1, Mr. Ritchie stated that it is still not too late to be included in the tour group. However, he emphasized that reservations must be made within the next two weeks, and preferably by March 21.

Information regarding the tour may be obtained by contacting Mr. Ritchie at 442-2500 or Mr. Tim Jones, CJC Band Director, at 442-2567. A descriptive brochure is available upon request.

"This will be a very interesting, entertaining and educational trip," Mayor Ritchie said, "and we'd be pleased to fill the remaining fifteen seats with people from the Cisco area. Please contact us right away if you are interested."

Will Be Held March 20 At CJC

Auditions for the 1983-84 Wrangler Belles drill team of Cisco Junior College will be held Sunday, March 20, in the gymnasium on the CJC campus. The tryouts will begin at 1:00 p.m. and should be completed by 5:00 p.m.

All senior girls are invited to audition and no previous experience is necessary. Shorts and tennis shoes should be worn by the girls. A simple routine will be taught to the girls and they will audition in groups.

All Wrangler Belles receive a scholarship, the amount depends on place of residence (on or off campus) and classification.

Glasgow Files Bill Outlawing Prescribing Of Quaaludes

Senator Bob Glasgow has filed Senate Bill 715 which would prohibit the prescribing of methaqualone, more popularly known as "quaaludes".

"This is one of the most abused drugs in Texas, and our young people are endangering both their own lives and the lives of others when they use it," stated the Senator in a prepared statement.

The statement continued by noting that there are several other therapeutic products available for the same medical purposes which have substantially less potential for abuse. The Senator stated that these can easily be substituted to patients needing such medication.

Three states, Georgia, Florida and New Jersey have already banned the prescription of methaqualone.

One of the largest drug store chains in this State, Eckerd's, has already discontinued carrying methaqualone. Reasons given were its potential for abuse while substitute drugs were readily available and the hope that such discontinuance would discourage robberies and burglaries of their stores.

"According to figures I received from the Drug Enforcement Administration, methaqualone is the eighth most frequently mentioned drug causing an emergency room encounter for the abuser, and it is the fifth most popular drug in terms of "street buys", noted the Senator.

The Senator added that one of the most effective methods of curbing drug abuse is by simply removing the source of supply of an abused drug - particularly when its medical importance is negligible or can be substituted for.

Among the Clubs in District 3 are Cisco and Eastland, Wichita Falls, Iowa Park, Vernon, Quanah, Paducah, and Stamford. All these Clubs work to encourage the study of music, and offer programs and concerts, to the public.

The State Convention this year will especially honor Mrs. Glen L. Brown of Stanton, who will speak at the main luncheon. Mrs. Dyer will also speak several times during the Convention, bringing reports from her various offices.

One of the highlights of the meeting will be the performance by a Miss Bernard of Houston, winner of the J.C. Dyer Jr. Memorial Violin Award for 1982. This Award was established by the family and friends of the late J.C. Dyer Jr. of Cisco.

The 1982 Award was the first one presented. The 1983 Competitions will be held in May.

The Texas State Convention will be closed by a concert by pianist Gary Steigerwalt.

RJC's Track Teams Go To Invitational

The Ranger Junior College men's and women's track teams will be at Vernon Friday and Saturday, hoping to win titles at the Vernon Invitational.

The Rangers finished second at the Border Olympics last Saturday to strong Odessa College, which is competing this weekend in the national junior college indoor championships.

Ranger is especially strong in the field events. Zak Kelly threw the javelin over 239 feet and Olav Jenssen threw the discus over 165 to win those events at Laredo. Jenssen also placed in the shot put and the discus.

David Ross has high jumped 6-10 this year but he cleared only 6-6 at Laredo.

Agipus Amo, the national junior college cross country champion, won both the 5000 meters and the 1500 at Laredo, while Don Hemanos won the 100 meters.

Tony Jackson, who missed last week's meet because of injuries, probably will anchor the sprint relay at Vernon. The Rangers were in second place in that event until they dropped the baton on the final exchange.

Odessa, South Plains and Ranger went into the final event, the mile relay, tied for the lead in last year's Vernon meet. Odessa won the race, followed by South Plains and Ranger. South Plains, which finished third at Laredo, is also returning to Vernon.

Ranger's women scored 14 points at Laredo, competing against four-year colleges, but still scored 14 points.

Nzuel Kyomo, who competed for Tanzania in the 1980 Olympics in Moscow, was second in the 200 meters, fourth in the 100 meters and anchored the sixth place sprint relay team.

Gay Gandee scored Ranger's other point, getting sixth in the 400 meter intermediate hurdles. Pam Greathouse qualified for the finals of the 400 meters, but didn't place.

Tom Wilson Presents Program To Delta Kappa Gamma

Beta Upsilon Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma International met March 5, 1983, in Eastland in the Eastland National Bank Community Room.

Mr. Tom Wilson, chairman of the board and executive chairman officer of Eastland National Bank, presented the program,

"Texas and the Civil War." In his presentation, Mr. Wilson said that the best sources of this period of history are those written as personal records and diaries, written with no thoughts of publication. He named one of his favorites, one written and published by Heartsill. There were only thirteen original copies made. Heartsill printed one page at a time, pasting in pictures. Mr. Wilson's speech revealed his interest and his wealth of knowledge of the subject. It was a very informative talk given in a most enjoyable way.

During the business meeting, presided over by the president, Ethel Sparks, eight new members and one reinstatement were voted to membership.

Hostesses Mildred Adair, Adeline Meredith, Beulah Beth Smith, Diane Hess, and Melba Aaron served delicious refreshments to twenty-five members and one guest.

It's Stock Show Time

Bigger and Better In Every Way!
That could well be the slogan for the 1983 Eastland County Livestock Show which opens Wednesday for a four-day run at the County Show Grounds.
And if there ever was a time when we all need to get behind the County Stock Show, now is the time. It's a teacher of responsibility, and all of us who are in the livestock industry (and we are if we do any kind of business in Eastland County because our economy is so closely tied to the industry) need to be mindful of the important program.
It's fitting, we think, that this year's catalog is in fact dedicated to "All Supporters of the County Livestock Show".
"Without the fine support from groups, businesses and individuals throughout the county and surrounding areas it would not be possible to have this worthwhile activity for the 4-H and FFA youth of Eastland County."

That's what the sponsoring County Livestock Raisers Association says and it's the bottom line...without the public support there could be no such program.

So we're all invited, yeah, urged to go out, visit, bid up and generally encourage the young people who work hard to learn to compete in the stock show competitions and it's good training for them to be able to compete the business and professional world that lies ahead for them.

See you at the Show - Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

To Regulate Or De-Regulate

Within the next few weeks the Texas Legislature will decide the future of the state's motor transportation system, a system that has contributed to the strength and growth of the Texas economy.

The Railroad Commission of Texas, which among its duties regulates the Texas operations of for-hire trucking firms and intercity bus companies, is under Sunset review by the legislature. In this process, state lawmakers must vote to reinstitute the commission and its functions.

The Texas Motor Transportation Association (TMTA) is working to preserve the regulated transportation system. This effort faces the challenge of interest groups, notably large volume shippers, who seek to alter the motor carrier system to their advantage.

As we consider this important issue, we might regulate the following points:

-regulated motor carriers provide equitable, non-discriminatory service to shippers, large and small, in cities of all sizes throughout Texas;

-allowing more trucking companies to compete for available freight would not, as deregulation proponents argue, increase industry efficiency; already, since the federal Motor Carrier Act of 1980 substantially deregulated interstate truck traffic, the number of interstate trucks registered to operate in Texas has increased by nearly 200,000, at a time when freight tonnage has been reduced by recession; this is not increased efficiency;

-introducing rate flexibility to the transportation marketplace benefits large shippers, but puts small shippers at a further competitive disadvantage; since the federal Motor Carrier Act, rates for interstate less-than-truckload shipments have increased dramatically, while carriers have offered reduced rates to large shippers; such developments threaten small business;

-the state's regulated transportation system promotes highway safety; by ensuring that a grant of motor carrier operating authority is in the public interest, Railroad Commission regulation promotes economically viable companies that can dedicate sufficient resources to vehicle maintenance, driver training and safety programs;

-today more than 69% of the towns in Texas (2,047) depend exclusively on motor carriers for delivery of essential goods; the obligation to serve inherent in a motor carrier's grant of operating authority ensures that the freight transportation needs of these communities will continue to be met.

The other side of the coin, of course, is that proponents for de-regulation claim that it could result in lower rates for consumers (shippers) (and who isn't for that?) but what good are lower rates if a carrier (truck or bus line) can't afford to serve an area or a town?

Watching Washington

Senator Lloyd Bentsen

The American farmer is walking a tightrope, and no doubt would feel a little more secure with a safety net. But what good is a safety net with gaping holes in it?

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has touted its expanded Federal Crop Insurance program as the farmers' "safety net," but farmers have lost confidence in the program because so many problems have surfaced.

The program was expanded hastily and was used to replace other proven federal farm disaster programs.

I recently testified about some of the Federal Crop Insurance problems before the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Magazine advertisements for the new All-Risk Federal Crop Insurance tell farmers to "Go ahead, borrow more money. With All-Risk Crop Insurance you have a sure source of repayment in bad years as well as good."

In a time when recession is pushing real net farm income to an all-time low, most Texas farmers are just barely hanging on and making existing loan payments. Too often they aren't succeeding. No knowledgeable adviser is telling farmers to borrow more money and expand at a time like this.

Is it any wonder farmers lack faith in Federal Crop Insurance when the program's managers spend good money on advertising that offers unrealistic advice like this?

As if farmers' cash flow problems aren't bad enough, the Federal Crop Insurance program is making matters worse by collecting premiums early in the year instead of at harvest, as has been customary. When premiums are overdue, the program charges 18 percent interest.

Low crop insurance loss estimates also are a problem. One farmer in Hereford was told by crop insurance appraisers that a drought had caused him a loss of only one bushel of wheat per acre. The farmer, advised by an agronomist, estimated the loss at 13 bushels. The appraisers then changed their estimate to four bushels, and later to seven bushels.

Federal Crop Insurance also sets its own yield estimates, refusing to use the figures of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service on which other farm programs are based. One farmer was told by ASCS that his yield would be 30 bushels of wheat an acre but the FCIC would insure him for only 17 bushels. Which of these two Department of Agriculture agencies is that farmer to believe?

Perhaps these problems can be blamed on Federal Crop Insurance having suffered from a "management nightmare." In the past two years, the program has had six managers.

But good intentions and excuses can't help our farmers now. They need results, and I am going to insist that they get them.

The tightrope our farmers are walking is getting harder and harder to stay on. They need to have a safety net, and they need one that's stout and dependable.

State Capitol Highlights

Texas Press Association

Lyndell Williams

AUSTIN—As state officials nervously await the effects of a new recession on Texas, eyes turned towards the Rio Grande Valley last week for clues of its momentum.

The Legislature, facing the prospect of solving the state's problems with too few dollars, must contend with some big money issues in the next few weeks. The Valley, because of its proximity to Mexico, suffers double when hard times hit both nations simultaneously. Today's indications are grim.

According to Texas Employment Commission figures released last week, unemployment in the Valley has reached over 20 percent.

Joblessness is highest in Laredo at 27.3 percent. The McAllen - Pharr - Edinburg area has 20.5 percent unemployment, and Brownsville - Harlingen - San Benito copes with 17.7 percent without jobs.

Last Sunday the Texas United Farm Workers threatened to strike if minimum wages do not improve. The group held its fifth annual convention in Pharr. Texas minimum wage law assures farmworkers receive at least $1.40 per hour.

Politicians do not ignore the growing political clout of Hispanics, particularly concentrated in the Valley. In November Gov. Mark White got more than double the number of Hispanic votes received by John Hill four years earlier.

Illegal Aliens

During a recent trip to the Valley, White discovered many businesses there have suffered 80 percent declines in revenue and unemployment has hit nearly every family.

The political attention of the Hispanics has turned from local issues to the government unemployment policies.

The constant flow of people across the border serves to keep the job market lower than the rest of the state. Lately, following devaluation of the peso and the drop in world oil prices, the situation has reached emergency proportions.

In Washington last week, White called for the first time penalties for employers who hire workers who have entered the nation illegally.

Special Relief

White said the penalties are necessary to get a grip on unemployment in Texas, and the state's business community which is faced with another tax to bail out the declining unemployment benefits fund seems to go along with him.

White appealed to the federal government for "special relief" in the form of social services, job funds, small business loans, loan guarantees, educational aids and special insurance to hold off mortgage foreclosure. The Reagan administration sent word to White that it has no plans to provide assistance and that the Valley's problem cannot really be solved without some economic recovery in Mexico.

Senate Action

In the Legislature, meanwhile, action continued in the Senate while the House still refused to suspend rules and begin voting on bills.

Among legislation approved in the Senate last week:

—A bill prohibiting candidate swapping such as the Republicans did in the 1982 primary elections. Last year the Republican Committee selected candidates to replace persons bowing out of the state agriculture commissioner and treasurer races. This bill would leave a party's slot vacant, if a candidate resigned.

—A special windshield decal for persons who get a court order to drive after their license has been suspended.

—Taking the governor completely out of the parole process. Presently the governor can revoke paroles and must endorse parole decisions made by a state board.

—Strengthening the identification requirements to prevent sale of alcoholic beverages to minors. To avoid liability, a seller would have to ask to see a valid driver's license or other ID card.

House Action

In the House, a bill to end annual car inspections by Rep. Jim Horn, R-Denton, placed the sponsor at odds with the director of the Department of Public Safety.

Horn said car inspections are slap-dash affairs which often force motorists to pay for expensive unnecessary repairs. He wants DPS officers to perform on-the-road spot checks of cars instead.

Opposition came quickly from DPS director Jim Adams, who said the bill would result in more traffic deaths.

Horn also proposed to double fees for drivers licenses.

Speaker Lewis

House Speaker Gib Lewis admitted last week he failed to reveal business partnerships with three beer and liquor distributors on his official financial disclosure for 1981. Lewis said the corrections will appear in his 1982 statement, due next month.

The toe-stubber for Lewis comes just days after advocates of DWI reform accused him of sabotaging two of his bills.

One of the business partnerships involves the owning and leasing of airplanes, and Lewis leases planes for his political travels out of his officeholder account.

"I am a stockholder in the corporation that owns the aircraft. I lease from myself," he said.

Capitol Update

Senator John Tower

One of the lessons of the Great Depression of the 1930s was that the strength of our economy is in part dependent upon the international economic situation. We learned then that if other nations cannot afford to buy our goods, U.S. industry slows down and jobs are lost.

Since the 1980s, this financial interdependence has grown as companies and financial service institutions have crossed national lines. Our concern for a healthy world economy is based on the knowledge that our own prosperity is at stake. Further we know that nations with strong economies are more stable politically than those undergoing economic upheaval, and this stability in turn helps the cause of world peace.

One of the ways we try to foster a healthy world economy is through the International Monetary Fund (IMF). This organization was founded in 1945, and currently has 146 member nations. Its objectives are to provide a forum for discussing international monetary affairs, to promote free trade, to promote stability in international currency exchange rates and to make financial resources available to members so they can correct temporary balance of payments deficits.

In order to meet these balance of payments deficits, member nations may borrow money, which they repay with interest. The loans are financed by a fund composed of contributions from member nations based on a quota system. The U.S. quota is approximately 20 percent. Since voting rights are based on contribution quota, we also have a voting bloc of 20 percent, enough to give us an effective veto over proposed changes in the IMF system since an 85 percent vote is required to institute major revisions.

When a nation applies for a loan, the IMF looks carefully at its economy, and may impose conditions to force it to be more fiscally responsible in the future. For example, the recent IMF loan to Mexico is conditional upon its cutting its deficits from 16 to 8 percent of gross national product. These conditions are designed not only to ensure that the nation will be able to repay its IMF loan, but also to contribute to the IMF's larger goal of improving the stability of the worldwide economy.

Money that the U.S. has contributed to the loan fund can be used at any time for a variety of purposes, usually to repay our own balance of payments deficits. Most people are not aware that the U.S. has drawn upon its IMF resources for a total of $6.5 billion over the years.

As world oil prices rose in the 1970s, developing nations substantially increased their national debts -- oil-exporting nations in order to finance economic expansion and oil-importing countries to finance oil purchases.

With worldwide recession, many countries now find themselves unable to repay these debts and have turned to the IMF for help. This has required the IMF to ask for more money from member nations. In all, the U.S. is being asked to add $8.4 billion to the assets of the IMF.

With our own economic difficulties, it is tempting to say no -- to take the position that it is not our responsibility to bail out either the nations who took on too much debt or the banks that made the loans. However, the issue is not that simple.

The stability of the international financial system is at stake. If nations begin defaulting on large loans, the system could begin to crumble -- sending interest rates up around the world and thus effectively ending economic recovery. Additionally, it is not in either our economic interests or the interest of world peace to throw these developing nations into financial chaos.

Thus, we must act to solve the short-term problem of too much international debt that cannot be repaid on schedule. At the same time, though, we must correct the causes of the problem so that we do not find ourselves in this situation again. The IMF will insist that borrowing nations make necessary changes in their economic policies. We in Congress need to look at changes in banking regulations designed to make financial institutions more responsible in making international loans.

New Tax Law Changes To Affect Future Returns

Provisions of the tax bill passed in August, 1982 generally do not affect 1982 Federal income tax returns to be filed this year, the Internal Revenue Service said.

Most provisions of the bill became effective January 1, 1983 and will be reflected on 1983 tax returns filed in 1984. Major provisions of the bill affecting individual taxpayers include:

Interest and Dividend Withholding: Taxes will be withheld from dividends and interest at a rate of 10 percent beginning July 1. The payor may choose not to withhold from interest payments aggregating $150 or less per year. Also, the payor is not required to withhold from interest paid to low-income taxpayers who file an exemption certificate. In this case, "low-income" refers to taxpayers who owed $600 or less on single returns, $1,000 or less on joint returns in the preceding year, or taxpayers over age 65 who owed $1,500 ($2,500 for joint returns) or less in the preceding year.

Medical Deductions: On 1983 tax returns, taxpayers will only be able to deduct medical expenses that exceed five percent of adjusted gross income (AGI) instead of the current three percent. The deduction currently allowed for half the cost of medical insurance up to $150, even if no other medical deductions are claimed, will be eliminated. Beginning in 1984, the one-percent floor for drug expenses is eliminated and only the costs for prescription drugs and insulin can be added to other medical expenses in determining the five percent threshold. Casualty Deductions: Beginning with 1983 returns, only the total amount of casualty and theft losses (after reduction for the $100 floor for each loss) that exceeds 10 percent of AGI will be deductible. Previously losses over $100 were deductible.

Other provisions of this tax law will raise taxes on cigarettes, telephone service, and air fares, increase efforts to improve taxpayer compliance with tax laws, increase the minimum tax that upper-income investors pay, extend Medicare coverage to Federal workers, and change the overall limits on contributions and benefits under qualified retirement plans.

Cisco Library News

Some of you may remember the magazine, Vanity Fair, that sophisticated publication of the 1920's and 1930's - 1914 to 1936, to be exact. A copy of the first issue, dated March 1983, of the "re-born" publication is at the Library. Also, the Library's subscription to "Good Old Days" has finally come through with the January 1983 issue.

"Sleeping citizenship" is the last fatal malady for good government. Its symptoms are well-known. First there is political indolence, then political paralysis which cripples our ability to act if we decide we want to. And then we are political victims or slaves. Once a slave to indifference, it is easy to become the slave of someone or something else." Texas Supreme Court Justice Jack Pope said this. In essence, this is one basic philosophy of John W. Gardner's writings. Gardner, a former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, educator, Marine Corps Officer, founded the organization Common Cause in 1970. His book "Morale", published in 1978, is applicable today and probably for years to come. In paper-back, the 154 page book, written in superb style is good reading.

From Mrs. Beulah Simpson, long-time Business Manager for the Cisco Independent School District, and possessor of that warm voice that for many years answered the phone in the School Superintendent's office, comes a gift of over 100 paperbacks of light fiction - a variety of stories and authors already in demand by Library patrons. Thank you, Beulah.

Six more books are donations from Mrs. Rose Knowlden: "Sunflower" by Marilyn Sharp; "Day of Judgment" by Jack Higgins; "The Ice Age" by Margaret Drabble; "Charmed Lives" by Michael Korda; "The Stars of Texas" by Warren Leslie, and "Pieces from A Small Bomb" by George Cuomo. Another donation from another Library patron, is a brand-new book, "The Other Woman" by Joy Fielding.

The periodic shipment of books from the Abilene Library Center that will be on loan for several months has arrived. There are 50 books with interesting titles that should appeal to the many preferences of local readers.

Jesus' Friends will meet in the Parish Hall Thursday at 9:30 a.m. and 2:45 p.m.

Senior Citizens Nutrition Menu

For the last three weeks we have been discussing the protein-rich lentil which many people use during the period of Lent.

Most dried vegetables require a period of pre-soaking before cooking, but not the lentil, which cooks in half an hour.

Like all other pulses, lentils should be cleaned thoroughly before use. Pick them over carefully to remove any bits of stone or dirt that may have adhered to them.

Lentils should be stored in a cool, dry spot in the kitchen and remember, after six or nine months, they will begin to deteriorate.

The purpose of lentils is best with salads and can be used in so many ways. Remember they are laden with protein and can be used where ever you really would like to make a dish not only tasty but nutritious.

The programs for the past week included: Rosey Marshall played his guitar and sang several songs of the old type; Mark Byrd presented a Musical program; The Cisco Senior Citizens Band presented a program at the Senior Citizens Domino Tournament held in the Brownwood Coliseum; also the Senior Citizens of Cisco went to Eastland for a joint game day.

The menus for the week are:

Monday--Cheese ham rice casserole, green peas, celery-carrot-pineapple raisin salad, chocolate pudding, bread, butter and drink.

Wednesday--chili with beans, potato salad, coleslaw, jello with topping, cornbread, butter and drink.

Friday--roast beef with brown gravy, whipped potatoes, mixed vegetables, pudding with pineapple, bread, butter and drink.

Don't be ashamed to cry at a funeral

It is natural to cry when you are hurt. It is an emotional outlet valve that is opened and working, naturally. It is not unmanly for men to cry. It is a grief release for us all.

People n Things

IN THE PAST three years, the Cisco Lions Club has spent some $23,000 in community work. That figure was reported at the club's variety show last Monday night at CHS auditorium. It was a nice show and City Judge Jasper Cook, the club secretary, was the star of the night.

One of Mr. JC's school mates here a good many years ago—Mr. James Hud-leston, now of Clyde—saw the Ciscoan on TV last week when he appeared on Mid-Day with Kay (Channel 9) to advertise the show. And he and wife drove over and reported "we received our dollar worth."

The Claude McBeths came over from Fort Worth to see son Jerry and others in the show.

Several folks dropped folded money into the Lions variety show ticket fund, including Mrs. Gene Abbott, Dr. E.E. Addy and the oil companies at Kamon House.

IT WAS ANNOUNCED at the Lions show that Mr. Jay Richardson had just bought five life memberships in the Lions Camp for Crippled Children at Kerrville. The retired business man and Lions Club member paid $100 each for life memberships to honor his wife, their daughter Dr. Carole Richardson of Washington, D.C., and their son Mark and wife Harriett of Lubbock.

Dr. Carole Richardson, a graduate of Georgetown University, is a dental surgeon and practices in Washington. Both Carole and Mark are CHS graduates. Mark and wife met at Texas Tech. He has been with a grocery chain for 10 or 12 years.

YOU'VE PROBABLY noticed the new mobile home just east of the Johnny Cagle home on the Lake Road. It belongs to Clatco Oil Company, a new business in our area. They leased the ground and moved in the home for Bob and LaNelle Bomar. Mr. BB is their superintendent hereabouts.

The Cagles are adding on to the back of their home out there. A visit over Arkansas way was their spring break highlight.

AND SPEAKING of spring breaks, Mrs. Lucy Collier and Mrs. Gus Smothers, who help run the junior college, went on a Caribbean cruise with the Windjammer ship folks. It was a week long stay at sea and the weather was good, according to the weather maps.

We've been meaning to approach Mrs. Collier about borrowing her new hat—the one with all the money on it that her brother-in-law gave her for finding his dog. We ran an item in the papers after Lucy told us about the dog being missing. Don't you think she should let us wear the hat a couple of times?

What is more, we wanted to confirm a report about Lucy's son-in-law, Dr. Robert Sloan. Our scouts report that he is moving from the Southwestern Baptist Seminary, where he has been a teacher a few years, to Waco to join the faculty at Baylor University.

GUESS YOU noticed the helicopter circling around town and dropping down into the parking lot just west of Cisco Funeral Home last Tuesday. It was from Fort Worth and it brought a couple of men from Channel 5 television. They shot scenes and did a story about the Lundstrom case.

Three Abilene television crews were in town last Monday night for an interview with Police Chief Randy Whittle.

MR. FRANK Spangler, head of the printing department for the oil companies at Kamon House, was due home this Saturday from Winfield, Mass., where he spent a week attending a special school on offset printing. The school belongs to the Davidson Company, manufacturers of a deluxe

Program On Con Artists Is Shown At Lions Meet

ment feature at the weekly luncheon of the Cisco Lions Club last Wednesday noon.

Everyone, particularly elderly men and women, was cautioned to deal only with business men and firms they know and to be wary of door knockers with assorted deals. Never be in a hurry to buy from strangers, it was pointed out.

The program listed endless fraudulent schemes, including home repair and improvement vendors, inspectors, termite-test firms, chain letters, magazine subscriptions, unsorted merchandise and the like.

"If you are interested in a deal offered you, ask for time to check on the firm and salesman, and don't hesitate to call the Chamber of Commerce, a banker you know or the credit bureau," the program said.

Lion's voted to operate an ice cream booth at the annual Folk-life Festival here April 22-24.

President Ivan Webb reported that work will begin soon on the pavilion that Lions plan at the City Park. The site has been staked and supplies are being obtained, he added.

Secretary Jasper Cook said profits on the variety show last Monday night would probably exceed $400. Guests included Donald L. Johnson of Eastland and Mrs. Ivan Webb of Cisco.

Cisco Music Study Club Resolution

"A Tribute to Miss Ora Howell"

"WHEREAS in the wisdom of God, He has removed from us our beloved member, Miss Ora Howell, who passed from this life February 10, 1983.

"THEREFORE be it resolved:

"First—that the Cisco Music Study Club has lost a valued and loyal member, giving unstintingly of herself in its interest and progress;

"Second—that the Club extend to her nieces and nephew our deepest sympathy in this their great loss; "Third—that our community has lost one whose love of church and music touched the lives of the young and inspired all those around her;

"Fourth—that we as members of Music Federation shall forever remember as her legacy her ardent love of music, life, and the song she kept in her heart."

Southern T.V. Systems To Offer Disney Channel

John Nevill

On April 18th of this year the new Disney channel is premiering via satellite transmission. Simultaneously with that launch Southern Television Systems intends to make available this channel to our cable system. This is a bold move on our part, since we are making a commitment to a yet unproven channel. However, we have great confidence in the name Disney, and we feel that offering this channel is a very positive thing for our company to do. We are extremely pleased to be able to offer this type of programming to you. You will be seeing information and advertising about

The Disney Channel in the coming days and weeks in local newspapers and hearing about it on radio. This channel will be showing much (but not all) of the movies and programming that you envision of Disney.

It will be a sixteen hour a day format (7:00 a.m. to 11:00 p.m.) of movies, educational, and family entertainment. All movies will be rated G and PG with the PG movies airing during the evening hours.

All cable subscribers will be receiving a magazine/TV guide in the mail toward the end of this month. This magazine is titled Cabletime and will have all pay channel premium service TV guide information in it. This magazine will continue to be sent to you each month of you subscribe to any of our pay services.

PRICING

Pricing for the Disney Channel will be $10.95/mo. The method of delivery will be via set top converter. This converter, though it may look like some that you have seen, is very different in that it is addressable. Should you subscribe to Disney your converter will be addressed from our corporate offices in Denver, Colorado. It can be turned off and on from there. This is accomplished via a satellite uplink from Denver. The converters that will be placed in your homes are very, very expensive; therefore we will be kicking off with only a limited number of them on hand since it is our intent to not charge you for this equipment.

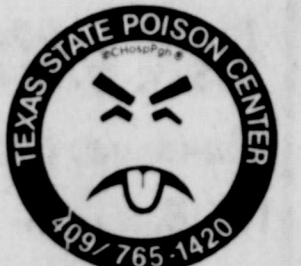

Monthly charges for Disney will not commence until May 1st; so everybody who orders Disney from now until May 1st will have free viewing until then.

We are asking that all you who intend to order the Disney channel to please begin calling our offices so that (1) you can be assured of being able to have a converter reserved in your name, and (2) we can get a better feel for how many of the converters we will need.

We wish to stress that this channel will carry programming that should be of interest to people of all ages; and the quality of programming should be second to none.

Thanking you in advance for your considering of this service.

Spotlights & Sidelights

Julia Worthy

Will Rogers made a couple of remarks that have glimmered in and out of my mind with increasing frequency of late. "I see by the papers..." is one of them, and I'm crediting him with, "Don't believe anything you hear and only half of what you see."

My copy of Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations" is in Waco, and I'm in Eastland, so I can't check either remark for accuracy at this moment. Anyway, whether Will Rogers or Socrates said it doesn't matter—or even if it was said at all.

It's just that I've become more aware of what advertisements are saying since my reading time has been curtailed between The Pizza

House cash register and Mandi's claims on my time. Especially, am I conscious of the ads intended to separate elders from their cash.

At all levels of cash. If you are well-heeled and in reasonably good health, you might want to take one of the five-or-six-thousand-dollar-package tours to mainland China or to the shores of Galilee...even to the halls of Montezuma.

You can count on several such brochures showing up every year—gorgeous photographs of "faraway places with strange-sounding names," though the way Uncle Sam seems to feel it incumbent upon him to support two-thirds of the Third World nations, we are fairly familiar with the strange-sounding names.

Our address must be on every sucker list in existence, and I herewith announce that I do not intend to go to the Holy Land, though I believe it would be a great emotional experience. Big Ben will have to mark time in London without my admiration in person, and I'll have to make-do with reproductions of the "Mona Lisa" and whatever else hangs in the Louvre.

I doubt I'll even get to the beach at Galveston, so Waikiki certainly will be spared my blimping proportions. I'm convinced that the Brazos is a trifle more sanitary than the Ganges, and it's just as scenic, not to mention more convenient.

It isn't that my yearning to see those faraway places is less than in my salad days, but the salad has wilted.

The ills to which the flesh is heir—and I think that's a quote, but I don't know the source—thoughts of those ills give me pause.

When I get down to the nitty-gritty, I don't want to risk my bad knee giving me fits on a walking trip in the Lake District. The idea of my back slipping a disc on a camel ride to the Egyptian pyramids scares me, and a camp-out in Texas can provide me with as many ants, mosquitoes, spiders, snakes, and other creepy-crawlies as any African safari.

There are other—many other—skillfully worded efforts to separate us from our money in any amount. The implication in so many of them is that we are less than intelligent if we don't take immediate advantage of this tremendous opportunity.

That gray-haired man, who is jumping in the air, kicking his heels together just because the touted cereal adds fiber to his life, is risking a broken hip when he comes down—though of course, he may be a professional stunt man made up to look "dated." He's even wearing suspenders! My grandfather, who died thirty-eight years ago, is the last man I can recall wearing suspenders.

Wigs are great—I've always wanted a pink one. There's no reason why anyone shouldn't supplement thinning hair or cover what's gone. But to mail an info-request coupon to somebody named "Young?" That's really being subtle!

And the safety wraps. With cartons "securely glued," the caps "tightly wrapped," and the bottle "foil sealed,"—well, I suppose I do have a choice of what to do. I can keep on aching with whatever pain the well-enclosed pill is supposed to ease, or I can hand the package to four-year-old Mandi to take apart.

Oh, wow!

This is not to say that you don't need fiber in your diet or that you shouldn't buy a wig. The tours may be just your cup of tea, but you don't have to float down the Nile on the successor to Cleo's barge to reap the benefits of foreign travel. Go fishing in the Rio Grande.

You don't have to tramp the hills of Scotland. You can map out a tour of your own neighborhood—even your state if you yearn for wider spaces. There's more walking room in Texas than there is in Scotland.

Keep in mind that the grass is not always greener elsewhere, that the race is not always to the swift—there are lot of us plodders hanging in their quite nicely.

As Will Rogers was saying, I think, I don't swallow someone else's ideas. The health, education and welfare department to rely on is the one between your ears.

Now, excuse me, please. I've just opened another enticing travel folder, and I need to make up my mind why I'm not going to the Caribbean, Sweden nor the South Pacific. But I may squeeze out time to take Mandi to the Zoo...if she can open a bottle of aspirins for me.

How To

If you have a cold room where the heat is working well and all visible leaks have been sealed, check up stairs. No one likes to crawl into an attic crawl space. It's either freezing or sweltering, filled with dust and other things too fierce to mention. But up you go.

Energy conservation articles in Mechanix Illustrated offer some clues to mysterious heat loss. If you have loose fill or batt insulation in an unfinished attic floor, check around soffit vents or in front of louvered gable vents. Air blowing into the attic at these points often pushes loose insulation back, creating unprotected cold spots. Also check to be sure insulation has not been blown onto or near any exposed electrical fixtures.

You may decide that you have inferior or inadequate insulation. It's no fun to rip out the old stuff and do the job better, but you might be well-advised to do it. Or, if the space is not usable anyway, you might overlay the existing insulation with a perpendicular fiberglass blanket. Instructions are available from your building supply dealer.

Just remember that it's almost impossible to over-insulate, provided the work is done properly. A little overkill in this department will pay dividends over the course of many winters.

IN THE PAST three years, the Cisco Lions Club has spent some $23,000 in community work. That figure was reported at the club's variety show last Monday night at CHS auditorium. It was a nice show and City Judge Jasper Cook, the club secretary, was the star of the night.

One of Mr. JC's school mates here a good many years ago—Mr. James Hud-

leston, now of Clyde—saw the Ciscoan on TV last week when he appeared on Mid-Day with Kay (Channel 9) to advertise the show. And he and wife drove over and reported "we received our dollar worth."

The Claude McBeths came over from Fort Worth to see son Jerry and others in the show.

Several folks dropped folded money into the Lions variety show ticket fund, including Mrs. Gene Abbott, Dr. E.E. Addy and the oil companies at Kamon House.

IT WAS ANNOUNCED at the Lions show that Mr. Jay Richardson had just bought five life memberships in the Lions Camp for Crippled Children at Kerrville. The retired business man and Lions Club member paid $100 each for life memberships to honor his wife, their daughter Dr. Carole Richardson of Washington, D.C., and their son Mark and wife Harriett of Lubbock.

Dr. Carole Richardson, a graduate of Georgetown University, is a dental surgeon and practices in Washington. Both Carole and Mark are CHS graduates. Mark and wife met at Texas Tech. He has been with a grocery chain for 10 or 12 years.

YOU'VE PROBABLY noticed the new mobile home just east of the Johnny Cagle home on the Lake Road. It belongs to Clatco Oil Company, a new business in our area. They leased the ground and moved in the home for Bob and LaNelle Bomar. Mr. BB is their superintendent hereabouts.

The Cagles are adding on to the back of their home out there. A visit over Arkansas way was their spring break highlight.

AND SPEAKING of spring breaks, Mrs. Lucy Collier and Mrs. Gus Smothers, who help run the junior college, went on a Caribbean cruise with the Windjammer ship folks. It was a week long stay at sea and the weather was good, according to the weather maps.

We've been meaning to approach Mrs. Collier about borrowing her new hat—the one with all the money on it that her brother-in-law gave her for finding his dog. We ran an item in the papers after Lucy told us about the dog being missing. Don't you think she should let us wear the hat a couple of times?

What is more, we wanted to confirm a report about Lucy's son-in-law, Dr. Robert Sloan. Our scouts report that he is moving from the Southwestern Baptist Seminary, where he has been a teacher a few years, to Waco to join the faculty at Baylor University.

GUESS YOU noticed the helicopter circling around town and dropping down into the parking lot just west of Cisco Funeral Home last Tuesday. It was from Fort Worth and it brought a couple of men from Channel 5 television. They shot scenes and did a story about the Lundstrom case.

Tree Abilene television crews were in town last Monday night for an interview with Police Chief Randy Whittle.

MR. FRANK Spangler, head of the printing department for the oil companies at Kamon House, was due home this Saturday from Winfield, Mass., where he spent a week attending a special school on offset printing. The school belongs to the Davidson Company, manufacturers of a deluxe

Program On Con Artists Is Shown At Lions Meet

A picture slide program on "How to Spot a Con Artist" was shown by Walter Knowlden as the entertainment feature at the weekly luncheon of the Cisco Lions Club last Wednesday noon.

Everyone, particularly elderly men and women, was cautioned to deal only with business men and firms they know and to be wary of door knockers with assorted deals. Never be in a hurry to buy from strangers, it was pointed out.

Frank lives with his wife and two sons out on West 19th Street.

THE ARCHIE Chamnesses enjoyed a big statewide Lions Club gathering in New Braunfels last weekend. State officials, including district governors and lieutenant governors, met with International President Ed Grindstaff and others. Utility companies are beginning to move their lines back to make way for the South Conrad Hilton Avenue widening project that's due to start soon. Local public school and college students will be back on the job bright and early Monday after a week's spring holiday. The nifty looking cap that Mr. Wallace Johnston, the golfer, has been wearing lately was a gift a year ago. And he has just started sporting it. The David Callarmans enjoyed a bit of snow skiing on Ruidoso way as a spring break treat. Firemen made two calls this past week — to put out an oil pit fire north of town and a grass fire on Beech Street. No damage.

The program listed endless fraudulent schemes, including home repair and improvement vendors, inspectors, termite-test firms, chain letters, magazine subscriptions, unordered merchandise and the like.

"If you are interested in a deal offered you, ask for time to check on the firm and salesman, and don't hesitate to call the Chamber of Commerce, a banker you know or the credit bureau," the program said.

Lion's voted to operate an ice cream booth at the annual Folk-life Festival here April 22-24.

President Ivan Webb reported that work will begin soon on the pavilion that Lions plan at the City Park. The site has been staked and supplies are being obtained, he added.

Secretary Jasper Cook said profits on the variety show last Monday night would probably exceed $400.

Guests included Donald L. Johnson of Eastland and Mrs. Ivan Webb of Cisco.

Homemaking Hints

County Extension Agent

Janet Thomas

Each spring brings a new crop of advertisements depicting fabulous plants of untold beauty or rapid growth of "magic" topsoils, outlandish claims for special growth-promoting substances and colorful ads proclaiming the wondrous potential of rather common or nondescriptive plants, bulbs and seeds.

Each year these gypsters have a nationwide field day at the homeowner's expense. Untold thousands - including many Texans - are being gyped out of millions of dollars annually by these smooth-sounding chiselers.

By its very nature, the nursery industry often provides an open invitation to the unscrupulous. Sales tend to be bunched into one season of the year, making it easy to promote a hit-and-run item or service.

By far, the majority of gardeners and nurserymen are honest, reliable businessmen who give value for money received. It is the spectacular growth of horticulture as a hobby and the ever-increasing number of new homes that has attracted the horde of fly-by-nights who have found an easy way to make a fast buck.

A few basic rules for separate the legitimate businessmen from the fast-buck artist include:

Ask to see the salesman's certificate of inspection from the Texas Department of Agriculture. No one can sell nursery or florist plants in Texas without a valid certificate. This certificate of inspection must be renewed each year.

Give consideration to local businessmen who have a reputation to uphold and have addresses you can contact if necessary. Check with the Better Business Bureau or Chamber of Commerce before you agree to the services of a door-to-door operator.

Before buying service of any kind, get an agreement in writing no matter how simple the job is. Have the seller state exactly what he will furnish and what he will do. This applies to pest control operators as well as to those installing landscape materials or doing landscape maintenance.

Never pay cash in advance. Pay when the job is completed.

Be skeptical of ads that make extravagant claims about plant materials. Such words as "amazing," "gigantic," "spectacular," "new scientific development," "prize blooms" and "free" are often used to hook the unsuspecting reader.

Get a good reference book on cultivated plants so you can look up the real meaning of the Latin names frequently printed in small type. That exotic bloom or fast-growing tree may actually be a common, garden-variety flower or common weed-type tree.

Read the fine print in mail order brochures and catalogs. Often the small size of the plant is the reason why the price looks so attractive. Always check with a local nurseryman for the price on a similar item before you put your check in the mail.

RECIPE FOR THE WEEK:
Spring and summer is the season for bridal showers and parties.

Party sandwiches are special treats. Here are some points for perfect party sandwiches:

- Trim crust from bread. Cut the bread early in the day; cover with a damp towel and refrigerate.
- Make fancy shapes with cookie cutters, if desired.
- Make a variety of fillings a day ahead and refrigerate.
- "Butter" the bread so filling does not soak into bread; be sure to cream butter (or margarine) so it spreads easily.
- A few hours in advance, fill sandwiches; cover with a damp towel and refrigerate.
- Cream cheese sandwich fillings have a tendency to dry and crack if not well wrapped.
- Allow 3 to 4 tiny sandwiches per guest.
- Be sure to chill sandwiches in the refrigerator for at least 1 hour (longer time better); this makes it easier to cut these tiny sandwiches.

- For neater sandwiches, freeze bread first; cut and spread while frozen.

- Allow plenty of time to make; they're time consuming - but worth it!

Create Your Own Spreads:
Add one or more of the following to 3 oz. package softened cream cheese (add a few drops milk or cream if necessary).

- 1/4 cup deviled ham
- 1/2 cup drained crushed pineapple
- 1/2 cup shredded cheese
- 1 to 2 tablespoons crumbled crisp bacon
- 1 to 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- 1 to 2 tablespoons chopped olives, dill or sweet pickles
- 1 to 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- CHICKEN SALAD SPREAD
- 1 cup finely chopped cooked chicken
- 1/2 cup finely chopped celery
- 1/4 cup drained pickle relish
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- Dash of salt
- Combine all ingredients, mix well. Makes about 2 cups spread.

CareUnit Offers Hints For A Safer St. Patrick

Everyone becomes a little Irish on St. Patrick's Day. It means the 'wearin of the green,' a little 'gosh and begorrah,' and, of course, drinking green beer ... lots of green beer.

"In fact," says Bill Fraser of the CareUnit at Hendrick Medical Center, "drinking and St. Patrick's Day are almost synonymous. Many people drink more on St. Patrick's Day than they do any other time of the year, including New Year's. It's a big party day."

It is also a 'drink and drive' day, one that can be dangerous for both the drinker and other drivers on the road. The CareUnit staff, who treat alcoholism and drug abuse, offer the following hints for a safer, but still fun, St. Patrick's Day:

- Winter colds, antihistamines and booze, even beer, don't mix. Lay off the alcohol if you are on medication or you may wake up with even more than a hangover. Antihistamines double or triple alcohol's impact.

- The more nonalcoholic fluids you take with your drinks, the better off you are. Orange juice, tomato juice and grapefruit juice provide you with the sodium and potassium you lose when you drink.

- Along those lines, drink two glasses of water for every alcohol drink. A 150-pound person can take around one drink an hour without having alcohol buildup up in his or her system. Any more and it is dangerous to drive.

- Know your limitations. Don't drive then drive. It's not worth the possible consequences.

- A full stomach (especially oily foods and carbohydrates) slows the rate at which alcohol is absorbed into the bloodstream. Foods like cabbage and charcoal (something slightly burned) neutralize some of the toxic additives in the liquor.

- Be aware of the weather conditions, extra traffic, and other drivers who may have had too much to drink. Drive defensively.

"But most of all," says Fraser, "don't drink to get drunk. Drink responsibly. St. Patrick's Day is not an excuse for irresponsible drinking or driving or other irresponsible behavior."

If you know someone who is a consistent irresponsible drinker, he or she probably has a drinking problem. Fraser suggests you call the Hendrick Medical Center CareUnit's free counseling line at 915-677-2287 to find out what you can do to help.

March 21, 1983 is National Agriculture Day. It's a time for consumers here in Eastland County and across the nation to appreciate the efficiency of our agricultural producers.

Today's American farmers are efficient producers. Presently, they produce more than 76 percent greater crop output on the same acres of land than did their fathers.

One hour of farm labor presently produces 14 times as much food and other crops as it did in the 1919-21 period.

Because of the farmer's efficient output, consumers can now enjoy a satisfying quantity, quality and variety of food at affordable prices.

Reasons for the vast change include highly efficient agricultural research and extremely efficient farmers. Within the last 20 years, agricultural productivity per hour has increased more than three times faster than non-agricultural productivity per hour has increased more than three times faster than non-agricultural productivity.

Additionally, 20 years ago the farmer's share of the consumer's retail food dollar spent for food grown on U.S. farms was 38 cents, while today the farmer's share is only 35 cents.

Consumer prices and food marketing costs also have undergone some changes.

Grocery store food prices, for example, averaged about 4 percent higher in 1982. However, food prices have risen less than the general inflation rate during seven of the last eight years.

Two-thirds of the 1982 food price increase came from the farm-to-retail price spread or charges for processing and marketing foods after they leave the farm. The price spread rose about 5 percent in 1982 because of the rising wages and salaries of workers and other costs of food processing and marketing.

U.S. consumers' expenditures for domestic farm goods were reported at more than $300 billion for 1982. The farm value, although not fully determined at this time, was expected to be about $86 billion. Increases in the marketing bill since 1978 have accounted for 81 percent of the rise in consumer expenditures, with labor the largest single component.

Auction's Best

by Fred Tucker

*1981 Auction Marketing Network

IT ALL ADDS UP

The auction action is often quite exciting. Bids are made and items are sold at a rate that sometimes sees an average of 75 to 100 sales per hour.

We're interested in giving you a snappy auction so the bidders will stay interested until the last item is sold.

Properly handling the business transactions on auction day is a real big job. But, our auction clerks are professionals at handling the business end of an auction and you'll appreciate our fine auction accounting system.

Every transaction is recorded in detail by identifying the article, recording the price it brings and identifying the buyer. Receipts for each purchase are given to the buyers. And the seller gets a complete accounting for every transaction that balances with the total gross.

Our auction accounting system meets the approval of Courts of law, attorneys, bank trust departments and you will like it, too. It's another reason that people say "when it comes to buying or selling AUCTION'S BEST (sm)."

The LEGISLATIVE REPORT

by Ed Lewis, Speaker

AUSTIN -- This is the third and final part of our review of the major issues facing the 68th Legislature.

This week, we lead off with an issue of paramount importance to all Texans...

Energy: In spite of the recent oil glut and falling prices for gasoline at the pump, experts continue to warn that fossil fuels will be seriously depleted within the foreseeable future.

This warning has prompted the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council (TENRAC), and many legislators, to consider legislative action to promote solar energy development, tax exemptions for energy efficiency measures, interest-free loans for energy management programs, state support for low-income weatherization programs, small wind-powered energy conservation systems and ride-sharing programs.

Additionally, the Texas Railroad Commission (TRC) and the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC) -- the state's two agencies with major responsibility for promoting and ensuring fair and equitable distribution of energy and its costs -- are subject to sunset review during the course of this session.

The Sunset Commission has recommended the PUC be abolished and the TRC be required to make changes in its rules to enhance energy conservation and availability.

I doubt seriously the PUC will be abolished by the Legislature, but I expect substantial changes will be made in its organization, operation and responsibilities.

Uniform Wildlife Regulation: The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, under a uniform game law, has the duty to manage and conserve the game and marine life of Texas for the benefit of all its citizens.

However, 116 of Texas' 254 counties have historically exercised their legal right to retain local control ranging from absolute veto power over the department's rules, to the department having only partial authority to regulate the game and wildlife management programs.

This has resulted in a patchwork of contradictory, confusing and even detrimental management techniques the department contends -- and studies bear out -- that hinder effective control and enhancement of wildlife and marine life quality.

The Wildlife Conservation Act of 1983 -- House Bill 1 -- has been introduced to correct these inequities.

The bill's purpose is to allow the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to apply professional wildlife management techniques on a statewide basis to ensure uniformity in our state's hunting, fishing and conservation regulations.

Also, contrary to some reports, the proposed House Bill 1 is not intended in any way to infringe on the rights of the landowner to manage the wildlife on his or her property.

To the contrary, it is intended to give landowners better access to the Parks and Wildlife Department's professional staff and expertise to assist in wildlife management upon the request of the individual landowner, but only upon request.

All issues raised by the people of this great state through their elected officials are important.

Other matters, equally as significant as those treated in these columns, will be considered by the 68th Legislature.

Those issues, as well as the ones discussed here, will be thoroughly debated in order that what is best for all Texans can be accomplished.

Your testimony before these committees on issues of particular concern to you is invited and urged.

At the very least, you should communicate your feelings to your State Representative and State Senator so they may be expressed.

Burleson Maps Retirement Schedule

John E. Burleson, district Extension director here for the past 18 years, has just retired from the Texas Agricultural Extension Service after 33 years of service to Texans. Burleson, as an Extension administrator has supervised programs in agriculture and related areas for both youth and adults in an 18-county Central Texas area.

While district director, Burleson also has served in many additional capacities with the Extension Service. For the past 14 years, he has been the Blackland Income Growth (B.I.G.) program coordinator. The program is an Extension Service sponsored economic effort that covers 33 counties in the Blacklands of Texas stretching from the Red River to the outskirts of San Antonio.

He joined The Texas Agricultural Extension Service as an assistant county agent in training in Hood County in 1951. He became an assistant county agent in Johnson County and served there from 1951 through 1953. Burleson served as an assistant county agent in Tarrant County from 1953 to 1954, county agricultural agent in Navarro County from 1954 to 1960, and moved to El Paso County where he served from 1960 to 1965.

He became district Extension director in 1965 and moved to Stephenville, where the Extension district office was located on the campus of Tarleton State University.

Burleson was born in Eastland County but was reared in Comanche County and attended the DeLeon public schools.

He is a member of The Professional Agricultural Workers of Texas, the Rotary Club of Stephenville, Chamber of Commerce, Extension's Epsilon Sigma Phi and serves as an elder of the First Christian Church here.

Burleson earned a B.S. Degree in Horticulture from Texas Tech University and a Master of Agriculture in Rural Sociology from Texas A&M University. He has taken graduate courses at Colorado State University, the University of Texas at El Paso, and the University of Wisconsin.

Burleson intends to keep busy in retirement. He is presently enrolled in real estate courses at Tarleton State University and will produce horticultural plants on property at Proctor and DeLeon. He is also an enthusiastic home gardener.

"I have worked with some of the finest people on earth in the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. They have all been dedicated and I have enjoyed working in these programs which have had a positive effect on agricultural income," Burleson said.

He is particularly fond of his activity in youth work and says that this has been one of the most enjoyable things of his career. Burleson will continue to work on the staff of the Longhorn Recreation Laboratory, an adult leader training program in recreation, held at the State 4-H Center on Lake Brownwood each spring.

Burleson and his wife, Marilyn, reside here at 985 Charlotte.

H & R BLOCK UNCOMPLICATES THE NEW TAX LAW

This year there are 47 different forms and schedules for income tax filers. The so called short form is now two pages, which call for up to 63 entries and refers you to the instructions more than 10 times. Misinterpreting the instructions could cost you money or cause an IRS inquiry.

The tax act of 1981 affects every taxpayer regardless of income. Your H & R Block tax law helps you save money on your 1982 taxes, and points out changes that could affect your taxes in 1983.

Even the 1040A short form is affected by the tax changes, so no one can afford not to use H & R Block with prices starting at $7.50 and the average fee last year in dollars was under $40.00.

Your local H & R Block tax preparers have been thoroughly trained and brought up to date on the latest tax information for 1982 tax returns. The changes in the tax laws have been studied and analyzed to determine what effect they'll have on your tax return.

Through the personal interview that every H & R Block client gets, you can have peace of mind that every deduction to which you are entitled to will be uncovered.

H & R Block has 2 conveniently located offices. Call today, appointment available.

Spotlights & Sidelights

Julia Worthy

Will Rogers made a couple of remarks that have glimmered in and out of my mind with increasing frequency of late. "I see by the papers..." is one of them, and I'm crediting him with, "Don't believe anything you hear and only half of what you see."

My copy of Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations" is in Waco, and I'm in Eastland, so I can't check either remark for accuracy at this moment. Anyway, whether Will Rogers or Socrates said it doesn't matter—or even if it was said at all.

It's just that I've become more aware of what advertisements are saying since my reading time has been curtailed between The Pizza

House cash register and Mandi's claims on my time. Especially, am I conscious of the ads intended to separate elders from their cash.

At all levels of cash. If you are well-heeled and in reasonably good health, you might want to take one of the five-or-six-thousand-dollar-package tours to mainland China or to the shores of Galilee...even to the halls of Montezuma.

You can count on several such brochures showing up every year—gorgeous photographs of "faraway places with strange-sounding names," though the way Uncle Sam seems to feel it incumbent upon him to support two-thirds of the Third World nations, we are fairly familiar with the strange-sounding names.

Our address must be on every sucker list in existence, and I herewith announce that I do not intend to go to the Holy Land, though I believe it would be a great emotional experience. Big Ben will have to mark time in London without my admiration in person, and I'll have to make-do with reproductions of the "Mona Lisa" and whatever else hangs in the Louvre.

I doubt I'll even get to the beach at Galveston, so Waikiki certainly will be spared my blimpian proportions. I'm convinced that the Brazos is a trifle more sanitary than the Ganges, and it's just as scenic, not to mention more convenient.

It isn't that my yearning to see those faraway places is less than in my salad days, but the salad has wilted.

The ills to which the flesh is heir—and I think that's a quote, but I don't know the source—thoughts of those ills give me pause.

When I get down to the nitty-gritty, I don't want to risk my bad knee giving me fits on a walking trip in the Lake District. The idea of my back slipping a disc on a camel ride to the Egyptian pyramids scares me, and a camp-out in Texas can provide me with as many ants, mosquitoes, spiders, snakes, and other creepy-crawlies as any African safari.

There are other—many other—skillfully worded efforts to separate us from our money in any amount. The implication in so many of them is that we are less than intelligent if we don't take immediate advantage of this tremendous opportunity.

That gray-haired man, who is jumping in the air, kicking his heels together just because the touted cereal adds fiber to his life, is risking a broken hip when he comes down—though of course, he may be a professional stunt man made up to look "dated." He's even wearing suspenders! My grandfather, who died thirty-eight years ago, is the last man I recall wearing suspenders.

Wigs are great—I've always wanted a pink one. There's no reason why anyone shouldn't supplement thinning hair or cover what's gone. But to mail an info-request coupon to somebody named "Young?" That's really being subtle!

And the safety wraps. With cartons "securely glued," the caps "tightly wrapped," and the bottle "foil sealed,"—well, I suppose I do have a choice of what to do. I can keep on aching with whatever pain the well-enclosed pill is supposed to ease, or I can hand the package to four-year-old Mandi to take apart.

Oh, wow! This is not to say that you don't need fiber in your diet or that you shouldn't buy a wig. The tours may be just your cup of tea, but you don't have to float down the Nile on the successor to Cleo's barge to reap the benefits of foreign travel. Go fishing in the Rio Grande.

You don't have to tramp the hills of Scotland. You can map out a tour of your own neighborhood—even your state if you yearn for wider spaces. There's more walking room in Texas than there is in Scotland.

Keep in mind that the grass is not always greener elsewhere, that the race is not always to the swift—there are lot of us plodders hanging in their quite nicely.

As Will Rogers was saying, I think, I don't swallow someone else's ideas. The health, education and welfare department to rely on is the one between your ears.

Now, excuse me, please. I've just opened another enticing travel folder, and I need to make up my mind why I'm not going to the Caribbean, Sweden nor the South Pacific. But I may squeeze out time to take Mandi to the Zoo...if she can open a bottle of aspirins for me.

St. Patrick's Day Race To End In Cowtown

Mayor Leslie Billingsley attended a press conference in Fort Worth, Feb. 21, at the historical White Elephant Saloon in Cowtown. The press conference was held to announce the 85 mile Bike Race beginning in Dublin, at 11:00 a.m. on Saint Patrick's Day and ending in Cowtown. The race is planned to be an annual event with America's top amateur cyclists, as well as members of European National Teams and a team from New Zealand competing. Mayor Billingsley was presented a pot of gold as part of the ceremony, he presented to Mayor Bob Bolen, the Mayor of Fort Worth, a basket of AMPI cheese decorated with Shamrocks and green bows in honor of Dublin's Saint Patrick's Celebration, "Experience Ireland", and as a salute to the Dairy Industry in the Dublin area. Mayor Billingsley stated, "We're delighted about the race from our town to yours. To commence the racing activities, a portion of the Famous Blarney Stone will be unveiled in Dublin as part of our City's Annual Festivities. Then this country's Olympic hopefuls will launch their ride at the corner of Blackjack and Patrick Street."

Mayor Bolen of Fort Worth expressed his desire to attend the ceremonies at the beginning of the race and Mayor and Mrs. Billingsley will return with them to Fort Worth to attend the festivities at the end of the race.

How To

If you have a cold room where the heat is working well and all visible leaks have been sealed...check upstairs. No one likes to crawl into an attic crawl space. It's either freezing or sweltering, filled with dust and other things too fierce to mention. But up you go.

Energy conservation articles in Mechanix Illustrated offer some clues to mysterious heat loss. If you have loose fill or batt insulation in an unfinished attic floor, check around soffit vents or in front of louvered gable vents. Air blowing into the attic at these points often pushes loose insulation back, creating unprotected cold spots. Also check to be sure insulation has not been blown onto or near any exposed electrical fixtures.

You may decide that you have inferior or inadequate insulation. It's no fun to rip out the old stuff and do the job better, but you might be well-advised to do it. Or, if the space is not usable anyway, you might overlay the existing insulation with a perpendicular fiberglass blanket. Instructions are available from your building supply dealer.

Just remember that it's almost impossible to over-insulate, provided the work is done properly. A little overkill in this department will pay dividends over the course of many winters.
