Duties & Responsibilities Of A Teacher Are Detailed

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of four articles on public education written by Betty Pyle, president of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association. This week's article details the duties and responsibilities of a teacher.

asks me what I do for a living, I am proud to reply, "teacher." Occasionally, the next question is, "what do you teach?" followed by "what grade?" I answer, "earth and life science" and "junior high school."

Simple answers to simple questions, and the discussion rarely goes beyond that point. However, for those who have not participated in the educational process from the perspective of a teacher, there may be little understanding of what is required of today's teachers beyond simply presenting the subject matter.

The roles performed by today's teachers are numerous and varied, but all play an integral part in the total learning process.

TEACHING THE SUBJECT
The primary responsibility of all teachers is, of course, to impart their knowledge of the assigned subject matter to their students. In theory this is a relatively simple task, which in practice becomes much more difficult. The sharing of knowledge between teachers and students is complicated by human factors.

In order to impart knowledge, the teacher must first have a willing student. Motivation is a highly individualized process, and while one student may be reached through a genuine intellectual curiosity, another may be more concerned with remaining eligible to play football and participate in other extracurricular activities. Determining how to reach and motivate each individual student becomes a major task for the teacher who may be responsible for teaching more than a hundred students in any given year.

A delicate balance must also be struck in the presentation of the subject matter to be taught. Maintaining the interest of the brightest students while not abandoning those who find learning more difficult requires great skill and creativity. Although the establishment of special programs in recent years, such as those for the gifted and talented or handicapped, has alleviated those problems to some extent, new related difficulties have arisen. For example, while the placement of handicapped students into regular classrooms has helped these children to adjust to the world in which they will live, it has also required many teachers who have not been adequately trained in this area to learn to deal with the learning handicaps and emotional problems of the special children.

DISCIPLINARIAN
Unfortunately, the need to maintain discipline is present throughout the education process. A single misbehaving child can deprive a classroom of students of time which could be spent learning. The need for order to be maintained in the schools often results in additional non-academic duty for teachers, such as assuring orderly conduct in the halls before and after school and between classes and monitoring students during the lunch period.

Occasionally parents seem to resent the disciplinary actions taken in the schools with regard to their children. Although school discipline is not without its flaws, parents should be aware that the role of disciplinarian is not sought by educators; it is forced upon them as a necessity in maintaining an environment that allows students to learn. Supportive parents who make their children aware that they are expected to behave properly at home as well as at school make a great contribution to the education system.

COUNSELOR/FRIEND
Concerned teachers who take an interest in their students as individuals are often faced with problems requiring the skills of a counselor and the compassion of a friend. Understanding the feelings the child may be having and tailoring the response to the student's personality and needs increase the chance for a successful resolution.

LIAISON BETWEEN DISTRICT AND PARENTS
Teachers share a primary goal with parents - that of assuring the best education possible for all students. Often the primary contact parents have with the school district is through the teachers of their children. The teacher's job can be made easier and more satisfying when a productive, mutually supportive relationship exists between the teacher and parents. If a child goes home complaining about the amount of homework assigned by a particular teacher, the parents can respond in several ways. If the parents sympathize with the child and allow these assignments to be ignored, the child loses respect for the teacher and the learning process becomes more difficult. A more positive response would be for the parents to contact the teacher and express their concern; there may be a good reason for the assignments which has not occurred to the parents.

Many problems can be resolved through open communication between parents and teachers. Parents should feel free to contact teachers and teachers to contact parents to discuss concerns and accomplishments. The attitudes of the parents are often reflected in their children's behavior at school, whether positive or negative. Since parents and teachers all share the desire for their children to receive the best education possible, the basis for productive communication and mutual effort is present and should be used to its fullest potential.

Pilot Is Testing Prototypes For B-1B

FOCUS

Rockwell International test pilot Doug Benefield has test flown everything from the ponderous propeller-driven C-130 Hercules cargo plane prototype to the super-sonic Concorde jetliner.

Today he is testing prototypes for the B-1B, a ground-skimming, long range combat aircraft destined to become the Strategic Air Command's mainstay for the remainder of this century.

Benefield's pride in the B-1B shows when he is asked about the handling characteristics of the big, variable geometry, sweep wing aircraft being produced by Rockwell International's North American Aircraft Operations for the U.S. Air Force.

"It really is many different airplanes," he explains while describing the multi-role bomber. "With the wings all the way forward for takeoffs and landings, it handles like a 727 jetliner, except that it has a stick rather than a control yoke. "Because it has a stick, it is less tiring to fly on long missions and is more responsive. Most high performance aircraft are controlled by a stick," he explains.

"With the wing all the way aft at high speeds, the B-1 handles like a fighter," he continues. And Benefield is extremely familiar with fighters. A former U.S. Air Force fighter pilot, he flew combat missions in both Korea and Vietnam.

"In the B-1 the normal mission mode is low-level, high speed - you're down to 200-400 feet above the ground at speeds very near the sound barrier."

The big aircraft he is testing now is really a modified version of the original B-1A which has been updated to duplicate the flight handling qualities of the B-1B. The test flights which began in March are part of an ambitious testing schedule that calls for as many as 13 missions a month.

Rockwell International is gearing up to produce the 100 B-1B aircraft called for by President Reagan in his planned modernization of the nation's defenses. The first B-1B is scheduled to roll out of Rockwell's Palmdale, California, assembly plant next fall. The program is approximately three months ahead of schedule and running below anticipated costs, according to the Air Force.

Meanwhile, Benefield, who is Rockwell International's chief test pilot, continues to test the aircraft.

Although Benefield's pale blue eyes, close-cropped graying hair and faded orange flight suit make him look as though he were the prototype test pilot, he's quick to point out that being a test pilot isn't the "wild blue yonder" of popular movies and cheap novels.

In fact, the muscular six-footer says that flying is only a minor part of the day-to-day activities of a test pilot. "The average day, you're not flying at all," he grates in a raspy voice conditioned by a dozen or so big cigars daily. "Instead, you're going to meetings and studying. You're always studying."

Only about 10 percent of a test pilot's time is spent actually flying, according to the Texan who graduated from Texas A&M. An average year for a test pilot includes only about 200 hours of flying, he says. "On the B-1, the average year was about 200-225 hours of actual flying."

"This test program is very precise. It has to be because we're testing B-1B technology while production is underway. We are flying one mission a week, and that's pretty tight. Jim Leasure, our flight test engineer, has the really tough job. He has to plan each mission to ensure that all test objectives are met during the flight test program," Benefield acknowledges.

The B-1 test program has been one of the safest, most successful test programs the Air Force has ever had. The big airplane has completed more than 2,000 hours of incident-free test flying, including a transatlantic flight late last year to the Farnborough International Air Show in England.

As president of the 1,500-member Society of Experimental Test Pilots, Benefield heads a group that may be one of the world's most exclusive clubs. Other members include Chuck Yeager, first man to fly faster than the speed of sound, and Rockwell's own famed aerobatic pilot Bob Hoover.

Benefield himself has accumulated between 6,000 and 7,000 hours of flight test time in a variety of aircraft. "I'm not really sure how many test hours I've flown. I guess I never really counted them all up," he admits.

Benefield has his own ideas of what qualifications a test pilot must have.

"First of all, he's got to be a good pilot - a damned good pilot. And he's got to be intelligent - he's got to have a lot of common sense. A test pilot has got to be able to reason and understand what's happening and to plan as well as react. He should know where to go and where not to go. He must know how far is too far. He must understand people and machines."

That's why the test pilot spends so much time studying, becoming familiar with the aircraft. "I you don't spend 10 hours preparing for every hour you fly, you're not doing your job," Benefield believes.

"You spend as much time becoming familiar with the aircraft as you have - and you never have enough time."

But the hours of preparation are necessary if Benefield is to do the thing he likes best.

"Some guys like to fish," he says, lighting up yet another big cigar. "Me, I just love to fly..."

Q: I'm a beginning photographer who just recently got a 35mm single lens reflex camera for a gift. The camera has automatic exposure control, which gives me excellent results most of the time. However, there are some times, like when the sun is behind my subject, that the automatic system can be fooled. I know how to switch the camera to its manual-exposure mode in order to overexpose a strongly backlit subject and get a proper exposure. Usually, I do this by taking a meter reading and then opening up the lens an extra f/stop or two. I could get the same exposure, however, by leaving the lens aperture where it is and slowing down the shutter speed by one or two speeds. My question is which should I do in situations like this...adjust the lens aperture or the camera's shutter speed? And if it doesn't make a difference to the exposure, as it doesn't seem to, why do I have a choice between the two?

R. G., St. Paul, MN

A: You're right about one thing: it doesn't make a difference to the exposure which adjustment you make - open up the lens aperture or slow down the shutter speed. There is a direct correlation between lens apertures and shutter speeds. Opening up the aperture by one, two, or three f stops produces the equivalent results of slowing down the shutter speed by one, two, or three speeds and vice versa.

Why, then, do you have a choice? Well, even though making one adjustment over the other doesn't matter so far as exposure is concerned, it matters a great deal in the finished photo. For any given lens, the wider the lens aperture, or opening, the narrower the depth-of-field - that area that is rendered in acceptably sharp focus. At f/16, one lens may produce a depth-of-field of 40 feet. Anything falling within that 40-foot "zone" will be rendered acceptably sharp. At f/4, that depth-of-field may be only 8 feet. Anything outside that 8-foot "zone" will be out-of-focus. That's important to remember when you're trying to blur-out background or foreground elements in the scene...or, conversely, when attempting to have everything within the scene perfectly sharp.

While selecting one shutter speed over another doesn't affect depth-of-field, it may affect sharpness overall. The more a subject moves, the faster the shutter speed necessary to "freeze" the action. A perfectly still subject may be photographed at 1/60 second and be sharp as a tack. A walking person may require a speed of 1/250 second to freeze the subject. A runner may well require a speed of 1/1,000 second to accomplish the same thing.

Shutter speed also affects overall photo sharpness at the other end of the spectrum - the camera. Everytime someone presses down on the shutter-release button of a camera, there exists at least a slight movement of the camera at the precise moment of exposure. Using a faster shutter speed of 1/125 second may negate this movement, while using a slower speed of 1/15 second may produce a blurred shot because of camera motion.

As a rule-of-thumb, always try to use a shutter speed no slower than the inverse of the focal length of the lens being used for sharp photos free from camera motion blur. When using a 50mm lens, 1/50 (or the closest speed - 1/60) second is recommended as a minimum for handheld shots. When using a 500mm lens, 1/500 second is the recommended minimum. If practical considerations prevent you from using a fast speed, I suggest you mount the camera on a tripod to eliminate blur from camera motion. That's the only sure way of getting crystal-clear photos.

Robert Tenne entered Hendricks Hospital Wednesday and had surgery Thursday morning.

M.H. Gore of Brownwood spent the weekend with Mr. & Mrs. Thomas Holland, Melvin & Russell and Mr. & Mrs. Ezra Weir.

RAIN
Moran and community received about .2 inches of rain Sunday afternoon. About 2 miles south of town about 3 inches fell. The rain was very much needed.

Mr. & Mrs. Walter McCollum of Breckenridge were greeting friends in Moran, Sunday. Mr. McCollum is recovering from a heart attack.

Jack Moore is receiving treatment in the Albany Hospital.

Mrs. Bill Howard of Midland will have heart surgery Wednesday. She is the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Rollin Fuller of Moran.

Mrs. Fred Bankston of Ft. Worth spent the weekend with friends in Moran and attended the wedding of Jana Miller and Ronnie Kitchens.

Ready To Go

Rockwell International chief test pilot Doug Benefield pauses for a moment as the ground crew readies his aircraft for another test flight in the U.S. Air Force's B-1B program at Edwards Air Force Base, California. Rockwell is the prime contractor for the B-1B.

Congregational singing and testimonies will begin at 1:30 p.m. There will also be a message from a former pastor. The afternoon program will conclude with a concert by the "Kinsmen" singers.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Embattled Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, himself the target of a grand jury investigation, is apparently conducting his own probe of the panel's district attorney.

Records revealed last week that Mattox's top aide has obtained financial disclosure reports from 1973-76 for then-State Rep. Ronnie Earle, now the DA investigating Mattox.

Mattox said the aide, Tom Green ordered the financial statements on his own. Green did not comment.

"When somebody's being investigated, the first thing they do is investigate the investigator," Earle said, adding he has been the subject of such close scrutiny since taking office.

An interesting twist to this probe-counter-probe is that Earle charged himself last March with failing to file a disclosure on time, and he fined himself and paid $212.

His voluntary action came on the heels of a similar plea and fine by House Speaker Gib Lewis.

The probe seeks to find whether Mattox properly reported an '83 primary campaign loan. A Seattle bank loan to Mattox's brother and sister during that period is questionable in the jury's eyes.

Green appeared before the grand jury last week, the eighth Mattox staffer to do so, and denied he ordered state staff to research the confidentiality of loan documents under Washington law.

Old Grain

A host of Texas officials, including Gov. Mark White and West Texas State Sen. Bill Sims are asking the federal government to release deteriorating corn stored during the Soviet grain embargo to feed drought-stricken herds.

White said he and Sims may take some West Texas ranchers to Washington, D.C. to explain that even if rains come to parched ranges, it is too late to help grow grass.

The pair is talking about corn that is unfit for human consumption. Meanwhile, the cost of grain has risen because of the federal payment-in-kind program which was intended to reduce crop yield.

Inflation, Votes

The White House has some valid hopes that the PIK program will stabilize the farm and ranch, and the gamble on releasing the grain is whether it will subvert the market price.

Ranchers have been liquidating herds for some days now, and word from some is that liquidation is eating more and more into their equity.

Ever-humorous Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower didn't miss any chances to dig at the Reagan Administration last week: "Reagan's idea of a good farm program is 'Hee Haw'."

Mauro, Gas Sales

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, who two weeks ago closed an historic deal to sell gas from state lands directly to the City of San Antonio, said last week he is considering offering a similar deal to Corpus Christi.

Mauro expects the San Antonio arrangement to save ratepayers there about $3.6 million a year, and the Corpus Christi deal could save consumers thousands of dollars.

As Land Commissioner, Mauro has the option of taking its royalty payments for wells on state-owned land either in cash or in gas. He says he can make more money for the Permanent School Fund by selling the gas instead of taking the cash.

Redistricting

The U.S. Justice Department last week approved changes in the Texas state senate district lines passed by senators in the past session.

The approval almost makes it two down and one to go in the redistricting package. Three weeks ago the feds approved the House plan, and they still must rule whether to accept the congressional plan.

However, the senate plan was passed by the Texas Senate but was never acted on by the House, and the Associated Republicans of Texas intend to keep challenging it in the courts. The plan enhances Hispanics' chances of winning a senator from the Valley and from Houston.

The plan must be approved by a three-judge federal court which has jurisdiction over the redistricting lawsuit.

Coming Session

House Speaker Gib Lewis handed out committee subject assignments last week, a hint of issues to come in future sessions. Among the issues Lewis wants studied and reported back to the full Legislature are white-collar crime, the conversion of closed military bases to minimum security prisons, the conversion of irrigated farmland to water-efficient crops or dryland crops, and development of wine and grape industries.

Although rumors surface from time to time that Gov. Mark White intends to call a special session before 1984 to raise teacher salaries, no hard evidence arises. A blue-ribbon panel studying the issue has completed its work, for one thing, and state revenues haven't increased enough to avoid a tax hike for teacher pay.

If White calls a special session to raise taxes, he is asking legislators to vote for new taxes only a few short months before the '84 primary elections. Some observers believe such a session would backfire on White.

Horse Course Set At Tarleton

The Central Texas Horse Short Course has been set for Oct. 11 at the newly completed Animal Pavilion at Tarleton State University.

The short course is being sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Tarleton State University Agricultural Department.

Registration for the short course will begin at 9:00 a.m.

in the pavilion on the university farm just north of Stephenville.

Discussions will include the following: "Nutrition for the Performance Horse and Brood Mare" by Dr. Les Waymack, Tarleton State University horse program leader; "Preparing Brood Mares to Go to Stud Farm" by Dr. Jerry Rhuedasill, Lewisville veterinarian;

"Foot Care for the Performance Horse" by Bernie Chapman, Lubbock farmer; and "The Tarleton State University Horse Program—What Is It? Why Is It? by Waymack.

Special training demonstrations at 1:30 p.m. will deal with "Starting the Calf" and "Maintaining Performance in the Matruze Horse." Larry Reeder, Stephenville, horse trainer, will be in charge.

A registration fee of $15 for an individual of $25 per couple will include the proceedings and a noon meal, according to Ron Woolley, district Extension director. The fee for students will be $5.

Registration fees should be mailed to Woolley at P.O. Box 1177, Stephenville, Tex. 76401.

Tax Statements Due

Eastland county property owners will be receiving their 1983 property tax statements during the next several weeks. Local taxing jurisdictions are planning to have the majority of all statements mailed on or before October 1, 1983.

All 1983 tax statements should be mailed by the middle of October, 1983. If you own taxable property within the County and do not receive your 1983 tax statement by the end of October, you should contact the Eastland County Appraisal District to be certain that the property was placed on the 1983 tax rolls correctly.

If any charge or correction is needed, the Eastland County Appraisal District should be contacted for assistance. This is a change from past procedures where changes and corrections were made by the local tax collectors of each jurisdiction. This change in the procedure is a result of new Property Tax Laws.

Needed corrections or changes will be made as quickly as possible by the Appraisal District staff. However, in most cases, corrections will not be able to be made on the spot as the property tax laws now require certain procedures to be fulfilled before changes and corrections are complete.

If you have any questions concerning the 1983 tax statements, you should contact the Eastland County Appraisal District. The telephone number is 629-8597 and the Appraisal District office is located on the second floor of the Eastland County Courthouse.

County Farm Bureau Announces Membership Drive To Keep Texas No. 1

Eastland County Farm Bureau has announced a membership drive Sept. 12 through Oct. 31, according to Ernest Reich of Cisco, president.

The county leader said the goal is to exceed the county's 1982 membership total of 1,706. The county effort is part of a state-wide campaign to enable the Texas Farm Bureau to retain its ranking as the nation's number one state Farm Bureau. TFB ended 1982 with 306,359 member families.

Ted Bott of Ranger is chairman of the membership committee which is responsible for membership acquisition and maintenance. Other committee members are K.F. Kirk of Ranger and John Kidd of Eastland.

Mr. Bott noted that only through "an organized voice" can farmers and ranchers be effective, and that strength begins at the county level.

"Allied with more than 3.2 million families nation wide, and individual's voice is magnified many times," Mr.

Bott said.

Members can become more active in Farm Bureau by participating in the 12 commodity divisions of TFB—cotton, wheat, beef cattle, dairy, feed grain, rice, soybeans, sheep & goats, pecans, peanuts, citrus and poultry.

Moreover, said Mr. Bott, Farm Bureau works to preserve the freedoms which a democratic society offers.

"Farm Bureau represents the farmer and rancher at the local county courthouse, at the State Capitol in Austin and at the nation's capital in Washington D.C." Mr. Bott said.

Eastland County Farm

Bureau is one of 216 organized county Farm Bureaus in Texas. "Farm Bureau is a grass roots organization, and its foundation is county Farm Bureau," Mr. Bott concluded.

PROCLAMATION
By The

County Judge of Eastland County

TO ALL OF WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME:

I, Scott Bailey, County Judge of Eastland County do hereby declare the week of September 18-24, 1983 as FARM and RANCH SAFETY WEEK in Eastland County, for the following reasons:

WHEREAS, the President has proclaimed National Farm Safety Week and the Governor has proclaimed the same period as Texas Farm and Ranch Safety week; and

WHEREAS, during this week, a statewide farm and ranch accident prevention education campaign is being undertaken by the Texas Farm Bureau, the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council, the Texas Safety Association, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and 4-H Clubs, Texas Education Agency through the Texas Future Farmers and Future Homemakers of America, the Young Farmers and Young Homemakers of Texas and the Eastland County Farm Bureau with the theme, "SAFEGUARD THE FUTURE-PROTECT-EDUCATE"; and

WHEREAS, the National Safety Council estimates indicate that in 1982 farm work accidents resulted in approximately 1,800 deaths and 180,000 disabling injuries. Children and young persons 24 and under accounted for about 1 of every 4 of this total. Many thousands of farm and ranch residents of all ages were also seriously injured or killed in traffic, home and recreational mishaps. All told, the dollar cost of these accidents to farming and ranching families exceeded $5 billion. However, no dollar value can be placed on the resulting suffering and grief, the hardship and emotional devastation. It is particularly unfortunate that farm children and teenagers often are the victims of these accidents.

THEREFORE, I urge those who work with and serve farm and ranch families to support safety efforts in every way possible. I call upon parents especially to teach their children good safety practices and instill in them a positive attitude toward safety which will serve them well throughout their lives.

RETIRING OR MOVING?

At least 18 per cent of the people in America will move this year. And many of you are thinking about retiring. These decisions are a part of your life and will affect at least one out of every five of your family and friends soon.

When making your retiring and moving decisions you'll soon discover that you've really accumulated a lot of possessions in the last few years. And you'll quickly see that it will be very difficult, time consuming and quite expensive to haul your possessions across the country or even around town.

But, you can turn these accumulated possessions into quick cash by holding an auction. A well planned auction can cash out your entire household in just a few short hours. And, I provide complete auction service so you don't have to worry about a single detail.

It's a whole lot easier to have an auction and put cash in your wallet than it is to put your piano, refrigerator & hide a bed in a truck. And remember, when it comes to buying or selling AUCTION'S BESTSM.

SUPER HARVEST SPECIALS

September closeout specials on John Deere 40 Series tractors: finance charge waiver to March 1, '84, or up to $1,850 in lieu of waiver

The supply of new John Deere 40 Series tractors is going, going, and will shortly be gone. So to get the new tractor power size you want at Super Harvest savings, act real soon.

Sticker prices on 40 Series tractors date from 1981, meaning big initial savings for you on a tractor that'll perform with higher priced 1983 competitors. And you'll get our good deal to boot.

Here's more. During September, finance your new tractor with John Deere and you'll save $100s or even $1,000s. Because purchases made by September 30 are eligible for finance charge waiver to March 1, 1984. Or you can get a cash rebate in lieu of waiver for the amount shown here.

More yet. If you anticipate 1983 taxable income, buy your new 40 Series tractor now to take advantage of 83 Investment Tax Credit plus full-year depreciation to reduce your taxes. You'll spread income while greatly reducing actual cost of your new 40 Series.

Another option. Lease a new 40 Series tractor and lease payments will be discounted by an amount comparable to the finance charge waiver. Use leasing to get modern power, plus tax advantages, even if your '83 taxable income is low.

Teens Sometimes Drop Away From Support Systems

"It is called 'fallen through the cracks' explains Alice Prichard, Eastland County Child Placement Worker. She goes on to tell how young people between the ages 13 to 18 sometimes drop away from all support systems - from family, school, Church, and state agencies.

But underneath they are different, for the survivors among them are street-wise. They dodge school, have no contact with Churches, pick up enough jobs to have money to eat, bunk with friends, or stay in some vacant building.

Some of them have experienced enough beatings, sexual abuse and demeaning remarks to give them a black outlook on the world and themselves. They know they are unwanted, and up against a complicated world which has little use for them.

A Worker goes to the home of each child and decides what arrangements would be best for him. Sometimes the children stay in their own homes, particularly if the families show a desire to correct existing conditions. Sometimes the children go into foster homes, and very occasionally are made available for adoption. There are 10 children in local conservatorship at this time.

Homeless teenagers are often placed in a group living situation - an arrangement which can work better for them than a foster home. Obviously there is no truly perfect solution. But at least their physical safety can be monitored.

Drug Users Pay A Price

The results of drug abuse and crime will be told in the vivid detail to area high school students this week. The information will come from the horses mouth so to speak as it will be the personal life stories and testimonies of a group of young men about 19 years of age who have 'been there.'

Chosen from the Ferguson Unit because they considered basically honest and sincere and good security risks, and because they have some ability to speak publicly and to communicate with young people, the convicts will eat in the school cafeterias and talk informally and individually with the students as well as speaking to them as a group. They will be housed in the county jails at night as they travel.

Their lives would not have been ruined and they would not be behind the 'Walls' if they had left drugs alone, and they don't see any need for other young people to ruin their lives the same way.

The Eastland County Sheriff's Dept. has worked with the state agency, the Community Education Program, to make this visit possible. The program is an unusual opportunity for the local young people to talk with a peer who has 'been through it' and has been widely accepted and asked for by schools, churches, institutions and organizations across the state.

Ranger's Colorful Past Invitation To Celebrate

Join with us at our all day party celebrating Ranger's colorful past and bright future. We'll kick off with a FREE street dance downtown after the ballgame Friday night October 7th. Then Saturday morning the Big Parade will roll down Main Street followed by the World Championship of "Swamp Surfing," a double-round-robin washer-pitching contest, live entertainment, a street-full of food booths, cake walk, dunking board and many more surprises. Saturday evening the fun moves to the Jaycee Rodeo Arena where the townspeople square off against each other in a series of zany, offbeat contests known as "Almost Anything Goes." And if you have any energy left after all that we'll close the day with an old fashioned "Barn Dance" featuring a live country western band. Last years' celebration (featured on national TV program PM Magazine) drew several thousand people to downtown Ranger. What they saw was a really great parade, ate a lot of tasty food and had a lot of fun at the "best little street festival" in Texas. This years' Roaring Ranger Days look to be even bigger and better...and they will be if you'll join us.

We'd like to invite you or your group to participate in any or all of our events. Fill out an entry blank today and JOIN IN THE FUN.

Sincerely,
Mike Ford, Chairman

WORD OF GOD

I am the way
John 14:6

Jesus said:
For the Son of man is come to save that which was lost.

How think ye? if a man have a hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine, and goeth into the mountains, and seeketh that which is gone astray?

And if so be that he find it, verily I say unto you, he rejoiceth more of that sheep, than of the ninety and nine which went not astray.

Even so it is not the will of your Father which is in heaven, that one of these little ones should perish.

Putnam News

By Mrs. R.B. Taylor

Hasn't the cooler weather been nice? But we still haven't had any rain. The afternoon (Sunday) there has been showers all around us, but some how they all missed Putnam. Guess my neighbors are still not living right! Talked to Homer at Sweetwater and he said they had 1/4 inch there. So maybe our time will come someday. Anyway, Charlie is still trying!

We spent last weekend at Sweetwater with Homer and Carolyn. Saw Mrs. Rawson at Church. The Rawsons lived at Putnam several years ago. We also visited with Reagan Shackelford. He and his wife Carol are building a beautiful home in the hills south of Sweetwater. Reagan grew up at Putnam.

The Church of Christ and Baptist churches had their monthly Pot Luck Lunch last Sunday. They always have lots of food and good fellowship.

Laura and Kim Massingale of Abilene spent the weekend with their parents, the John Doyle Isenhawers.

Mr. Stanley Trout of Ft. Worth visited his Aunt, Mrs. Free, at the nursing home at Baird and also the I.G. Mobeys last week.

The Bill Browns of Ft. Worth visited her mother, Ollie Burnam and her sister, Mrs. James Isenhawer and family at Coleman last weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lewis of Dallas spent from Thursday to Sunday at her home here.

They attended the Fisher Reunion at Baird Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dub Fisher. Meeting their mother here were her daughters: Mr. and Mrs. John Sawyers of San Antonio and four daughters including the twins Kathryn Christina, 2 1/2 month old, also Mrs. Mary White of Gonzales.

Mr. Don Weatherman of San Antonio has been visiting his parents the Sid Weathermans this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hershell Wagley have returned to Putnam after spending some time at their cabin at Ruidoso New Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. Foy Jobe also spent last weekend at Ruidoso.

Mr. and Mrs. L.C. Conway and daughters spent Sunday with his parents the Milton Donaways.

Visiting Mrs. Nettie Speegle over the Labor Day weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Speegle, from Ft. Stockton, Mr. and Mrs. James Stovall of Odessa, and grandsons Jim Sublett and family of Dallas, Mr. and Mrs. Randy Cook and children and Mr. and Mrs. Danny Donaway of Odessa.

Mrs. R.B. Taylor attended a bridal shower Saturday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Corral Gillet at Baird honoring Sherri (Price) Faircloth. Sherri is the daughter of the Jerol Prices, who lived at Putnam several years ago.

Bill and Dorothy Taylor of Weatherford visited his mother, Mrs. R.B. Taylor Sunday.
