No Runoff Seen In DA Race

The canvass of the Democratic Primary election returns was set for last Friday at 3 p.m.

Democratic Party County Chairperson Mary Bailey said that unless the canvass found a mistake and changed the unofficial returns by at least ten votes which weren't in Leslie Vance's favor, party officials wouldn't call a runoff in the District Attorney race. Vance received ten more votes than the combined vote of the other two candidates, incumbent Emory Walton and Truman Kirk, in unofficial returns.

Bailey said that since the vote was so close, Walton, who came in second in the race, could ask for a recount. And a mistake would have to be found during a recount for it to cause a runoff.

Manager Billy Jacobs, P.E., shows the region to have a "reasonably adequate" supply of water for the 30-year study period, based on recent growth trends and water-use patterns. Because available water supplies are not distributed in exact relationship to projected needs, the problem of distribution is a major focus of the remainder of the study.

Other upcoming study efforts will include water conservation and drought management. Some preliminary conclusions have been reached from collected data, which supports

 A Thought For The Day....

Conscience is usually described as an inner voice that tells us what is right and what is wrong. It is claimed there are many people these days who are seemingly not bothered by conscience. We doubt that. Whatever belittling of conscience seems to be on the surface, we believe most people know the difference between right and wrong. Most people realize spiritual factors do count. No matter what effort of self-deception is made, sooner or later the inner conflict of conscience must be faced. Daytime difficulties and sleepless nights can be minimized and perhaps totally eliminated when that fact is realized, accepted, and acted upon. An acute conscience is not harmful, it is helpful - providing corrections are made in structuring a life to do those things know to be right and refusing to do those things know to be wrong. A good conscience does not just happen. It has to be earned. Once earned, a clear conscience need never fear midnight knocking...

Fishing Outdoors

By Terry L. Wilson

WILLINGHAM WINS AT PROCTOR
Our very own Lake Leon is proving once again its worth as a fair black bass fishery. Last week a local angler boated a nice 7 pound 11 ounces lunker along with another over 4 pounds and a 2 1/2 pounder. But the real news from this angler was having lost two fish suspected to go over 10 pounds each during the past two weeks. These fish were all taken on crawdad pattern crankbaits in about 14 feet of water.

With our recent heavy rains fishing at most lakes will change up some. One area at Lake Leon to check will be the LaMancha slough. This area is on the west side of LaMancha and normally will not meet up with the rest of the lake.

Thirteen members of the Eastland County Bass Club meet at Lake Proctor Saturday for a windy day of fishing. Many of the contestants had made several trips to Proctor attempting to establish a pattern. And most of these anglers were predicting a 5 fish stringer of around 18 pounds winning. Well as usual weather changes when you don't need it to and this really cut down on the days catch.

At the 4:00 p.m. weigh-in the final results were as follows: 1st four fish Butch Willingham 10.44; 2nd three fish Tommy Maynard 10.30; 3rd four fish Gary Crew 7.94; 4th two fish Terry Wilson 5.04; 5th two fish Jimmy Johnson 4.21; 6th one fish Al Senterfit 2.18; 7th one fish Manuel Saucedo 2.06; 8th one fish Gary Horton 1.67. This totaled out to 43.84 pounds for 18 fish which averaged 2.43 pounds each. Jigs and Rat-L-Traps seemed to be the top two lures followed closely by worms. The depth ranged from 1' to 12' of water depending on the lure selection.

March 18, at Lake Hubbard Creek the Anglers' Choice Northwest Team Circuit will be holding its second of seven qualifying events. Headquarters will be at the Hubbard Creek Campground Store. A number of teams from Ranger, Eastland and Cisco will be competing as well as teams from across the state. And this being only the second event anyone wishing to get in on the ground floor should make plans now to attend. Qualifying teams will meet with other regional finishers at Falcon Lake in October in the Classic. Awards in this year's classic will be first two fully rigged Skeeter Starfires, 2nd one fully rigged Skeeter and 3rd one new G.M.C. pickup. The other places awarded will be of sponsor prizes. For more information you may contact myself at 629-3255.

One of the hardest jobs I find in tournament competition is the pre-fishing aspects. This time can be of great value if applied properly. One of the first things I would recommend would be to purchase a map of the lake you are going to. Pick the areas which are prime water for the time of year you are fishing plus any hot spots you are aware of on this lake. This

NEW BOOK RELEASE. Genealogical Publishing Co. (GPC) is pleased to announce that a limited quantity of the premier multi-volume work on the genealogy of central Pennsylvania — William Henry Egle's NOTES AND QUERIES Historical, Biographical, and Genealogical Relating Chiefly to Interior Pennsylvania, is now available. Due to the discovery of some unbound pages of its 1970 edition of Egle's NOTES AND QUERIES (which were should help reduce the amount of time searching the entire lake say if its spawning time you can look at the ideal spawning areas.

But the best bet at anytime and the one I have the most trouble with is to locate an area which holds some deep water fish. Weather, boat and fishing, pressure will effect these fish less and they will stay on this pattern a lot longer. Look for bait fish on every trip and recheck these areas come tournament time. Till next week and after the spawn lets have a 100% live release.

thought to have burned in a fire), GPC is offering this twelve-volume work to its customers for $175.00 — substantially less than the 1970 selling price of $250.00.

NOTES AND QUERIES — 12 vols. 4,642 pp. cloth (hard cover) is comprised of various series of articles by Dr. Egle which originally appeared in the Harrisburg Daily Telegraph between 1875 and 1900. Its genealogical coverage is truly extraordinary. For one thing, Egle Prepared numerous genealogies or genealogical sketches of Pennsylvania families. For another, NOTES AND QUERIES contains a rich cache of source records, including lists of French and Indian War, Revolutionary War, and War of 1812 soldiers; lists of early settlers and immigrants; church records, especially baptismal records; early wills, marriages and deaths; tombstone inscriptions, tax lists, oaths of allegiance during the Revolutionary; and so forth. Of special interest are the early lists of rateables for townships in upper Lancaster County, now Dauphin County, in the 1750s and 1770s, many of which are not included in Volume XVII of the Pennsylvania Archives.

Egle's NOTES AND QUERIES is also rich in biographical and historical content, containing sketches on Pennsylvania notables and non-so-notables, as well as numerous source documents relating to the history of the Quaker State.

In addition to NOTES AND QUERIES itself, a separate index volume (81 pp., $12.00) containing 4,000 entries is also available. Reproduced from a master copy in the Pennsylvania State Library, the Index to Main Families, Persons, Places and Subjects supersedes the earlier Partial Index to NOTES AND QUERIES prepared in 1932. It also incorporates A. Monroe Aurand's valuable introductory essay on Dr. Egle's publishing efforts.

Egle's NOTES AND QUERIES encompasses one of the richest stories of knowledge of Pennsylvania local history, biography, genealogy in existence. A bonanza for Pennsylvania researchers!

Egle: Notes and Queries (#1600) (12 vol. set), $175.00, P&H $8.00 per set, shipped UPS unless requested otherwise.

Egle: Index Volume (#1613) $12.00, P&H 2.50. When ordered in conjunction with the 12 volume set, P&H fee is $1.00 in addition to the $8.00 set fee. Maryland residents add 5% sales tax; Michigan residents add 4% sales tax, on all orders. Genealogical Publishing Co., Inc.; 1001 N. Calvert St., Dept. P.P.; Baltimore, MD 21202-3897.

Richard W. MARTIN, P.O. Box 308, Athens, Alabama 35611, would like to hear from anyone with knowledge of Edward Brethet MARTIN, who arrived in Eastland County, Texas about 1883, lived in or near Cisco and is buried there in the Oakwood Cemetery. According to his grave marker he was born 29 Nov. 1829, and died age 64 years (1893/1894). Was there a newspaper there during this period? And are there copies available on microfilm so that I might be able to find an obituary? Will sincerely appreciate hearing from anyone who has answers to the above.

Shirley JOY, 306 Jamaica Drive, San Antonio, Texas 78227 would like to hear from descendants of John B. HIGHTOWER and Mary (Morris) HIGHTOWER. Also descendants of Bradford HILLMAN and Alice, or Alsie, (HERRINGTON) CARAWAY. Both families were from Morgan Mill, Erath County, Texas.

Rescue Line For Women

Q. Sometimes my husband becomes violently angry. Then I am the target of his abuse. What should I do in times like these? How can I recover from abuse?

A. You may need to remove yourself from a violent situation. Have you thought about places you can go? You must realize that YOU are important and you owe it to yourself to become the best you can be.

When your spouse is more reasonable, try to talk over problem areas. Churches and Christian friends often provide emotional support needed while going through a difficult time.

How will you know you are recovered? In recovery YOU are the main event. If he decides to go for help, he is working on his recovery, not yours. He cannot recover for you and you cannot recover for him. If the relationship becomes better and your hopes rise, don't confuse that with recovery.

Often the idea of helping the victimized woman is merely to ensure her survival. But is survival enough?

What about your recovery from the experience and your right to improve your life physically, emotionally, and spiritually? What about your right to become and live as the person you would like to be?

Recovery is FREEDOM to enjoy your life and feel good about yourself. Recovery is a JOURNEY it means you are growing to your full potential; it is never a destination. There are no limits in recovery, only those you impose on yourself.

Recovery is CHANGE. You cannot recover by doing nothing. If you take it a little at a time you will be happier in recovery.

Recovery is REPETITION. You can be as healthy as you can be today, knowing that tomorrow you can have the privilege of doing it again.

Recovery is ONE DAY AT A TIME. It will take time to heal and grow. The important thing is that you are on your way.

It is not possible for a wheelchair to pass through any of the other registers and customers had to back up and go around to exit the grocery store. Thanks to the cooperation of Thrift Mart the end register has been made available to alleviate that problem.
I can not express enough our gratitude to Bill Williams, General Manager of Thrift Mart, or John Higgs, Cisco store manager, for working with us on this project. This will benefit more people than you might realize if you do not have a special needs person in your daily life.
The biggest obstacle a Special Needs family has to overcome is becoming an accepted part of their community. Thrift Mart has extended that acceptance by making "barrier free" shopping for us. We at "Special Needs" send you a heartfelt Thank You.

SEVERE WEATHER AWARENESS

TORNADO INCIDENCE BY MONTH 1953-1980

FACT AND SAFETY SHEET

In the first article in a series on severe weather and safety rules to follow during a storm, tornado prediction and safety was discussed.

March through June, are known as the "Severe Weather Months" in the southwest. Thunderstorms accompanied by lightning and hail are common occurrences during these months.

WHAT ARE THUNDERSTORMS?

Thunderstorms generated by temperature imbalances in the atmosphere, are a violent example of convection. Warming of the air near the earth's surface and/or cooling of the air above puts warmer, lighter air layers below cooler, denser layers. The resulting instability causes convective overturning of the layers, with heavier, denser layers sinking to the bottom and the lighter warmer air rising rapidly.

Mechanical processes are also at work. Warm, buoyant air may be forced upward by the wedge-like undercutting of a cold air mass or by a flowing up a mountain slope. Winds blowing into the center of the low pressure area may force warm air near that center upward.

In the first stage of thunderstorm development, an updraft carries warm air to a level where the air becomes saturated with moisture and visible droplets appear as a cloud begins to form. Continued upward movement produces large clouds resembling rising mounds, domes, or towers, known as cumulus clouds. Strong winds above developing clouds may further enhance the updraft or convection.

As the cloud forms, water vapor changes to liquid and/or frozen cloud particles. Once the cloud starts to form by other forces, this release of heat helps keep it growing.

This final stage is also marked by a change in wind flow within the storm cells. The updraft which initiated the cloud's growth no longer prevails and is joined by a downdraft generated by precipitation. Most storms are composed of several cells that form and survive for perhaps 20 minutes. New cells may replace old ones, and it is possible for these storms to continue for several hours.

Lightning always accompanies thunderstorms. These are nature's warnings that the thunderstorm is in its most violent stage. Tornadoes may also accompany a thunderstorm.

LIGHTNING

Lightning is an effect of electrification within a thunderstorm. As the thunderstorm develops, interactions of charged particles produce an intense electrical field within the cloud. A large positive charge is usually concentrated in the frozen upper layers of the cloud, and a large negative charge along with a smaller positive area, is found in the lower portions.

The earth is normally negatively charged with respect to the atmosphere. But as the thunderstorm passes over the ground, the negative charge in the base of the cloud induces a positive charge on the ground below and for several miles around the storm. The ground charge follows the storm like an electrical shadow, growing stronger as the negative clouds charge increases. The attraction between positive and negative charges make the positive ground current flow up buildings trees, and other elevated objects in an effort to establish a flow of current. But air, which is a poor conductor of electricity, insulates the cloud and ground charges, preventing a flow of current until huge electrical charges are built up. Electrical potential in lightning can be as much as 100 million volts.

LIGHTNING SAFETY RULES

If you plan to be outdoors, check the latest weather forecast and keep a weather eye on the sky. At signs of an impending storm--towering thunderheads, darkening skies, lightning, increasing winds--tune into your local weather channel on radio or tv.

When a thunderstorm threatens, get inside a home, a large building or an all-metal (not convertible) automobile. Do not use telephone except in emergencies.

If you are caught outside, do not stand underneath a tall isolated tree or a telephone pole. Avoid projecting above the surrounding landscape. For example, don't stand on a hilltop. In a forest, seek shelter in a low area under a thick undergrowth of small trees. In open areas, go to a low place, such as a ravine or valley.

Get off and away from open water, tractors and other metal farm equipment or small metal vehicles, such as motorcycles, bicycles, golf carts, etc. Put down golf clubs and take off golf shoes. Stay away from wire fences, clotheslines, metal pipes and rails. If you are in a group in the open, spread out, keeping people several yards apart.

Remember--lightning may strike some mile from the parent cloud. Precautions should be taken even though the thunderstorm is not directly overhead. If you are caught in a level field or prairie far from shelter and if you feel your hair stand on end, lightning may be about to strike you. Drop to your knees and bend forward, putting your hands on your knees. Do NOT lie flat on the ground.

FIRST AID

Persons struck by lightning receive a severe electrical shock and may be burned, but they carry no electrical charge and can be handled safely. Someone who appears to have been killed by lightning can often be revived by prompt action. When a group has been struck, the apparently "dead" should be treated first.

The American Red Cross says that if a person is not breathing, you should immediately begin mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, once every 5 seconds for adults and once every 3 seconds for infants and small children, until medical help arrives. If both pulse and breathing are absent, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, a combination of mouth-to-mouth and external cardiac compression--is necessary. This procedure should be administered by persons with proper training.

Victims who appear only stunned or otherwise unharmed may also need attention. Check for burns, especially at fingers and toes and next to buckles and jewelry. Give first aid for shock. Do not let the victim walk around. Send someone for help. Stay with the victim until help arrives. Be prepared.

CHILDREN OF THE STORM

Thunder is a sound produced by explosive expansion of air heated by a lightning stroke. When lightning is close by, the thunder sounds like a sharp crack. More distant strokes produce growling and rumbling noises. Because the speed of light is about a million times that of sound, we see a lightning bolt before the sound of the thunder reaches us. This makes it possible to estimate the distance (in miles) to a lightning stroke by counting the number of seconds between lightning and thunder and dividing by five.

DOWNBURSTS

Downdrafts along the leading edge of a thunderstorm form a gust front. It is usually marked by gusty cool winds that can produce damage. Strong localized downdrafts are called downbursts. These are intense concentrations of sinking air which fan out on striking the earth's surface, producing damaging "straight winds" and in some cases, blowing dust. Thunderstorms which have downbursts typically produce several in succession of varying strengths and sizes. Frequently, damage that is attributed to tornadoes is actually caused by the straight winds of a downburst. This is because downburst winds can be as great as those of strong tornadoes and may produce a "roaring" sound. At times, thunderstorms may produce a combination of tornadoes and downbursts. The occurrence of downbursts makes it imperative that the threat of severe thunderstorms be taken as seriously as tornadoes.

FLASH FLOODS
Flash floods can result from the locally heavy rains associated with thunderstorms. In recent years, flash floods have taken an average of more than 150 lives a year and have been reported in almost every state.

TORNADOES
In an average year, tornadoes in the United States claim about 100 lives and cause hundreds of millions of dollars in damage.

A severe thunderstorm may spawn a tornado, a violently rotating column of air which descends from a thundercloud system. On the average, tornadoes move about 30 miles per hour; however, some move very slowly, while others speed along at 60 miles per hour or more. The typical path of a tornado is about 50 yards wide and a few miles long, but some have cut a swath a mile wide and 300 miles long. The destructive rotating winds of a tornado can exceed 200 miles an hour.

HAIL
Hailstones are precipitation in the form of lumps of ice that form during some thunderstorms. Hailstones range from pea size to the size of grapefruit. They're usually round, but may also be conical or irregular in shape, some with pointed projections. Hail is most devastating to crops but can also cause heavy damage to aircraft, automobiles, roofs and windows.

Hail storms are just as dangerous as a severe thunderstorm as they produce projectiles of ice that can fall from the sky at speeds of 90 mph and higher. This would be compared to being hit by a baseball or softball in a fast pitch game.

Take cover at the first sign of hail. Don't go outside or remain in an unprotected area. Trees offer little protection, as hail can tear off branches and bark.

TORNADO FACTS THAT CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE

While most tornadoes move from the southwest to the northeast, their direction of travel can be erratic and may change suddenly. In populated areas, it is very dangerous to attempt to flee to safety in an automobile. Over half the deaths in the Wichita Falls tornado of 1979 were attributed to people trying to escape in motor vehicles. While chances of avoiding a tornado by driving away in a vehicle may be better in open country, it is still best in most cases to seek or remain in a sturdy shelter such as a house or building. Even a ditch or ravine offers better protection than a vehicle if more substantial shelter is not available.

While hail may or may not precede a tornado, the portion of a thunderstorm adjacent to large hail is often the area where strong to violent tornadoes are likely to occur.

Once large hail begins to fall, it is best to assume that a tornado may be nearby and seek appropriate shelter. Once the hail has stopped, remain in a protected area until the thunderstorm has moved away. This will usually be 15 to 30 minutes after the hail ceases.

The tornado's atmospheric pressure drop plays, at most, a minor role in the damage process.

Most structures have sufficient venting to allow for the sudden drop in atmospheric pressure. Opening a window, once thought to be a way to minimize damage by allowing inside and outside atmospheric pressure to equalize, is NOT Recommended. In fact, if a tornado gets close enough to a structure for the pressure drop to be experienced, the strong tornado winds probably already will have caused the most significant damage. Furthermore, opening the wrong window can actually increase damage.

While most tornado damage is caused by violent winds, most tornado injuries and deaths result from flying debris.

Small rooms, such as closets or bathrooms, in the center of a home or building offer the greatest protection from flying objects. Such rooms are also less likely to experience roof collapse. Always stay away from windows or exterior doors.

Tornado speeds increase with the height within the tornado.

Storm cellars or well constructed basements offer the greatest protection from tornadoes. If neither is available, the lowest floor of any substantial building offers the best alternative. In high-rise buildings, it may not be practical for everyone to reach the lower floors, but occupants should move as far down as possible and take shelter in interior, small rooms or stairwells.

Tornado winds may produce a loud roar similar to that of a train or airplane. At night or during heavy rain, the only clue to a tornadoes presence may be its roar. Thunderstorms also produce violent straight-line winds which produce a similar sound. If any unusual roar is heard during threatening weather, it is best to take cover immediately.

Almost all tornadoes occur during the mid-afternoon or early evening (3 p.m. to 7 p.m.), they may occur at any time; often with little or no warning.

The key to survival is advanced planning. All members of a household should know where the safest areas of the home are. Identify interior bathrooms, closets, halls or basement shelter areas. Be sure every family member knows that they should move to such safe areas at the first signs of danger. There may be only seconds to act. Have a tornado emergency plan at work.

INDIVIDUAL AND COMMUNITY ACTION

The burden of heeding warnings and taking proper action rests with individual communities and citizens. It is in your best interest to support local civil defense or emergency management agencies in their efforts to develop effective community warning systems. Furthermore, you should insure that your place of business and school systems have plans for action and conduct drills for severe weather emergencies. Advance planning is the key to survival.

At the very minimum you should insure that your family members understand the following terms and practice the proper safety precautions.

*TORNADO/SEVERE THUNDERSTORM WATCH--Tornadoes and/or Severe Thunderstorms are possible.

*TORNADO/SEVERE THUNDERSTORM WARNING--Tornadoes and/or Severe Thunderstorms are occurring. The National Weather Service defines a Severe Thunderstorm as having winds of 58 mph or more, or hail three-fourths of an inch or more.

*DAMAGING WINDS--Can cause Tornado-like damage. Mobile home occupants should seek shelter.

*LARGE HAIL--Can cause serious injury. Stay indoors.

*HEAVY RAINS--May result in Flash Flooding. Do not drive across flowing waters. Don't let children play near drainage ditches or streams.

*LIGHTNING--Kills more people each year than tornadoes or hurricanes. Stay indoors and away from electrical appliances. Outdoors, stay away from high or conductive objects.

*TORNADOES--Require immediate action!! Stay away from windows, doors and outside walls!

Protect your head! In homes and small buildings--go to the basement or to an interior part of the lowest level if an underground shelter is not available.

Closets, bathrooms, and interior halls offer the best protection in many cases. Get under something sturdy. In schools, nursing homes, hospitals, factories, and shopping centers, go to pre-designated shelter areas. Interior hallways on the lowest floor are usually best.

In high-rise buildings, go to interior small rooms or hallways on as low a floor as possible.

In mobile homes or vehicles, leave and take shelter in a substantial shelter. If there is no nearby shelter, lie flat in the nearest ditch or ravine with your hands shielding your head.

*STAY INFORMED--Have access to portable, battery powered radios. Know the channel frequency for the nearest National Weather Service station in your area. Stay tuned to that channel until the all-clear is given.

SAFETY TIPS DURING A STORM

A tornado watch means tornado development is possible. Watch for threatening weather. Stay tuned to radio or television or National Weather Radio.

A tornado warning means a tornado has been spotted or indicated by radar. Persons in the path of the storm should seek shelter immediately.

The best place to take cover is a storm cellar or basement. In homes without basements, take cover in the center part of the house or on the lowest floor, and in a small room such as a closet or bathroom. Stay away from windows and do not attempt to open windows.

If you are at school, hospital or shopping mall, go to a designated shelter area. Stay away from auditoriums, gyms and other places with wide, long free-span roofs.

In your car, do not try to outrun a tornado. Leave your car and go to the nearest ditch or depression until the tornado passes. Cover your head with your hands.

If you are in a mobile home, evacuate and go to storm shelter. If there is no shelter nearby, leave the trailer and take cover in a ditch or depression.

In the next issues, we will try and cover how to spot a storm and watch for their possible severe level development and touch on the danger of hail and lightning; and how to safeguard yourself against their dangers.

Beware Of Peak Months

Living in the great state of Texas has many advantages and a few disadvantages. One such is the severe weather that occurs during March through June. Because of the need for awareness of possible life-threatening storms, Governor Clements has declared this week as Severe Weather Awareness week and has asked that news media give out information on spotting storms and safety tips during storms.

A bake sale will be held Friday, March 23, at the First National Bank of Cisco, beginning at 9 a.m. Proceeds will fund give-away materials at the Cisco Folklife Festival on April 21-22, for National Tissue and Organ Donor Awareness Week, April 22-29.

Because this effort is strictly being done on a volunteer basis, the bake sale will solely depend on baked contributions from the community.

Your support and participation is in tribute to Kelley Cooper and in memory of John Lee Geist, June 16, 1970 to July 10, 1989.

Please be sure, when bringing your baked good, to sign the register, a book of love, to be presented to the Joe Cooper Family.

Organ and tissue transplantation offers new life to many individuals suffering from serious illness, accident or injury.

Redistricting To Take Place In 1991

The legislature is required to redistrict in 1991 after the 1990 United States census population data is published. The primary purpose of redistricting is to equalize population in districts in order to protect the principle of "one person, one vote"; in the process, the legislature must protect the voting rights of members of minority groups. Districts drawn in 1991 are to be in effect for the next 10 years.

Redistricting in the past two decades has resulted in significant increases in legislative and congressional seats held by blacks, Hispanics, and Republicans. The 1990 census is expected to reveal the continuation of population trends that have shown increases in the percentage of the state population away from rural East and West Texas and the metropolitan central city areas toward suburban communities.

The Texas Legislature's committees on redistricting will conduct public hearings throughout the state in the coming months to take testimony from interested persons concerning the drawing of new district lines for seats in congress, in the legislature, and on the State Board of Education. Because a special set of factors is involved, other committees currently have the task of considering changes in judicial districts and these hearings will not address that issue.

The public hearings will be conducted jointly by the House Redistricting Committee, chaired by Representative D. R. "Tom" Uher (D—Day City) and the Senate Select Committee on Legislative Redistricting, chaired by Senator Bob Glasgow (D—Stephenville). Representative Delwin Jones (R—Lubbock) is vice-chair of the house committee and Senator Gonzalo Barrientos (D—Austin) is vice-chair of the senate committee.

If you have questions regarding the hearings, please contact Gay Curry, administrative assistant for Senator Glasgow, at (512) 463-0122, or Brian Jammer, chief clerk, House Redistricting Committee, at (512) 463-9948.

The Eastland County Appraisal District offers this reminder to all business owners who have not yet returned or filed their 1990 business renditions. Renditions filed after April 2, 1990 cannot be considered as timely filed under the provisions of the State Property Tax Code.

If you own a business and have not yet filed your rendition, you are urged to do so before the deadline. For information concerning the rendition or for additional rendition forms; you should contact the Eastland County Appraisal District at 629-8597 in Eastland, Texas. The Appraisal District office is located on the second floor of the Eastland County Courthouse.

New Bluebonnet Market Due To Bloom

The bluebonnet, the queen of Texas wildflowers that rules countless pastures and roadsides, will extend her reign for the first time this spring to hundreds of home landscapes.

"We should have the most spectacular display of bluebonnets ever seen in home landscapes simply because before last fall they were never available in large quantities to be planted by home gardeners," said Steve George of Dallas, a horticulturalist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Scientific advances have created a multimillion-dollar market in the nursery industry by transforming the popular state flower from a sporadically germinating wildflower into a commercial bedding plant.

For the first time, "scarified" seed allowed commercial nurseries to grow bluebonnets for transplants to home gardens last fall for spring blooms. A new process of treating the seed with sulfuric acid makes the sturdy seed coat less resistant and assures reliable germination within 10 days. The treatment that has provided both seed and plants to the public was devised by San Antonio Extension horticulturalist Jerry Parsons.

First-year sales in North Central Texas alone exceeded 270,000 plants in the fall of 1989. One nursery reported selling 9,000 plants the first 72 hours they were in stock, with 40,000 sold during the first four weeks of the fall season. The specially treated seed also was in high demand with sales of more than 950 pounds in a completely new market.

"This not only creates a new market for nurseries but balances their very seasonal business by offering a new product during the slower fall season," George said. "And Texans now have a much easier way to grow bluebonnets at home with a choice of treated seed or plants."

Packages of bluebonnet seeds marketed primarily at nurseries are marked "acid scarified" and should be planted in late August and early September so they will be established before winter's cold weather. Transplants may be planted through Halloween.

Bluebonnets have frustrated home gardeners because of their hard seed coat that prevents reliable germination. Usually only the most persistent gardeners would spend the time and effort necessary to grow bluebonnets and they had very little assurance of success.

Few Texans are aware that bluebonnets grow in the wild in other colors. Parsons used his radio show on gardening to conduct a public search for strong plants in white, pink and light blue—all of which, while rare, do occur in nature. He harvested seed and developed fields of transplants in those colors, proving that they also can be grown commercially.

White bluebonnets are found only once in 10 million blues, and pink varieties occur only once in 100 million blooms. Their colors are not a result of external genetic manipulation but are rare, naturally occurring instances in the bluebonnet world.

The initial search grew from the dream of Texas native plant enthusiast, Carroll Abbott, to plant a Texas flag in bluebonnets for the Texas Sesquicentennial in 1986. Abbott, known in the nursery industry as "Mr. Texas Bluebonnet," pioneered native plant development and produced specialty seeds for others interested in Texas Wildflowers. Unfortunately, he died before the flag project was complete. The "Abbott pink" bluebonnet was named for him. The search continues to discover a true red.

bonnets, phlox, coreopsis, and many more varieties. To help in this search, the highway department's Wildflower Reporting Service starts its fourth year March 12.

Weekly, workers in all 24 highway districts note stands of blooming flowers and, via computer, share the information with other highway department offices. Wildflower seekers can call department headquarters in Austin, one of the 12 Texas travel information centers, or the nearest district office, (915-646-2591), and get directions to the best places to see flowers.

The program is one way the department tries to make driving a more pleasant experience for Texas travelers. Through vegetation management, landscaping, and propagation of native plants, highway department experts cooperate with nature to prevent erosion, minimize "highway hypnosis," and keep Texas highways some of the most beautiful in the world.

Texas Irish Festival - Tunes To Spare

By Viola Payne
There are supposed to be over 600 Irish folk songs in existence. I got to hear a lot of them recently during eight hours at the North Texas Irish Festival in Fair Park at Dallas.

This early St. Patrick's Day Celebration was sponsored by the Southwest Celtic Music Association, which now has around 1,000 members. The group is not only dedicated to preserving Irish music, but crafts and culture as well.

Fortunately I didn't have to drive all the way to Fair Park. My son Marvin hopped in my pickup at Fort Worth and steered through the various death traps on the Dallas Freeway. The Festival was centered in large buildings around the Stock Show grounds in the Park, and people were converging there when we arrived.

It was the music that first quickened the senses - that bubbling undercurrent of fiddles, flutes and guitars from different staging areas. So much was going on that it was hard to decide where to go first. There were musicians who had just flown over from Ireland, and a number of Texans playing Irish music.

"We can't pass up Patrick Ball, the famous harp player," Marvin said.

So we walked toward an outdoor stage where a dark-haired young man was tuning his Irish harp. Sunlight gleamed on the instrument - triangular in shape, with curved wooden sides. It was much smaller than a regular concert harp, and the strings were made of bronze wire.

I reflected that it was a miracle Irish instruments and music had survived in this world - much less Irish people. I had read that one time in the 1700's an English law had even decreed that all Irish fiddle players were to be shot on sight! No wonder public playing had diminished in Ireland for awhile after that. But the music had stayed alive in the homes of the people.

Patrick Ball finished tuning his harp, and explained that most of this concert would consist of numbers composed by the blind harpist O'Carolan. One song was supposed to have been given to O'Carolan by fairies - another was composed for a woman he had loved and lost. The music began with bell-like tones, rippling and flowing. The crowd grew silent, lost in private thoughts.

Ball explained that the harp, the emblem of Ireland, was once thought to have magic powers. Ancient Celtic people had very sophisticated ideas about music, and had learned how to use melodies to induce various emotions. There was harp music to make a person laugh, cry, or simply to go to sleep.

Our next choice of music was that of Tim Britton, piper, accompanied by Carol Ann Hunner, a stunning Celtic guitarist and ballad singer. Britton was playing the Uilleann pipes, and ancient instrument which is smaller than the Scottish Bagpipes. Air was forced into the pipes by bellows on one side. The effect of the instrument was arresting and hypnotic.

During one piping number a child - barely old enough to toddle - managed to escape from his mother and get to the front of the low stage. He began to dance and sway in perfect time. I suddenly decided that the "Pied Piper of Hamelin" story probably had some truth in it!

Later we were treated to other mesmeric sounds at a stage across the street, where flute player Olan Masterson and guitarist/singer Pat Egan have a rousing session. Here, as in other groups, we heard songs reflecting the Irish experience: love, war, famine, death, emigration - mixed with "slow airs" and the spirited dance and show pieces.

During the next hours we tried to make all the programs we could - hearing various groups such as Greenfields, Altan, the Liz Carroll Trio, and singer Tommy Sands. Most of the performers were young, dressed simply and were friendly. The native Irish were curious about America and especially Texas, for this was the first time some of them had been in this country. When not playing they sometimes mingled with the crowds.

It was interesting to watch the techniques used in the music. Irish music has distinctive ornamentation and dynamics. On the violin this includes rolls (which imitate flutes and pipes) trills, grace notes, triplets and various runs.

With the guitar there are other problems for an American player, especially with the very old tunes. Many are constructed in the ancient Greek mode, not the mode used in Europe after music began to be written.

Liz Carroll, an American-Irish fiddler, sounded even better in person than her latest CD recordings. Although she has won championships in Ireland, her music actually mingles bluegrass and swing elements with the traditional style.

Marvin was particularly interested in her accompanist, Daithi Sproule, internationally-acclaimed guitar player. Sproule managed to give a Celtic lilt to anything Carroll came up with. He also sang in Gaelic.

Music from the super-charged group Altan made an exciting climax for the evening. This combination had Frankie Kennedy on the flute, his beautiful blonde wife Mairead with fiddle and vocals, Ciaran Curran on bouzouki (similar to a guitar) Mark Kelly on guitar and music from the great young fiddle player Paul O'Shaughnessy.

and certainly visible among the art and craft booths.

In the music, some of the songs were "protest" numbers, telling of the Irish desire for freedom in the north and the reuniting of their country.

These songs were particularly well-received by the audiences, who responded to them with loud applause and some rebel yells. There seemed little doubt where the sentiments of the Texans lay!

The Festival began to wind down. While we were buying sandwiches a young man from Ireland came up to the food booth. He looked just like an American, but the attendant couldn't understand him well enough to sell him anything.

Somehow we could, so soon we were talking back and forth. He told us of the storm in Ireland when his plane left that morning, and how good the sun had looked here. Then he said he was really surprised at how much the people here seemed to like the music - he hadn't realized there were many Irishmen in Texas!

Soon afterward a conversation turned from music to other matters. One visitor remarked that he didn't expect anything to be settled any time soon in Northern Ireland, or to see his country reunited "in my lifetime."

"But you never can tell," he added. "Look at how the people in Eastern Europe are coming out from under their situation. Look at what is happening in Germany! There's always a chance for a chain reaction!"

We made it out the gate just as the Festival closed. But soon Marvin took a look at the Dallas skyline at midnight, and announced there was no use for us to even stay in Fort Worth for the rest of the night. "Let's drive back to Cisco," he said.

And that's what we did, sailing up the Freeway under a bright moon. At 2:30 p.m. we reached the quiet country roads, and they really looked good.

But it was strange how my brain still echoes with reels, jigs, slow airs and ballads - almost as if some of them belonged there.

Gordon Spot

By DeMarquis Gordon, County Agent—

Don't be surprised if you see strange looking leaves on your peach and plum trees this spring. Peach leaf curl causes puckered, thickened, curled peach leaves and fruit. It is caused by a fungus and is related to air temperature and free moisture during bud opening. If air temperature is near 68 degrees Fahrenheit and free moisture is present during this time you can expect peach leaf curl — unless you followed our recommended preventative fungicide program last fall. With the warm moist spell around March 6th, these conditions have been met. Those growers who applied Kocide 101 or chlorothalonil when the leaves were falling in late October should not have this peach leaf curl problem. There is not anything you can do about that problem now, but it doesn't normally ruin your crop or trees. You will have some leaf fall, but by the time summer gets here the problem is usually gone.

If you just didn't find time to prune your fruit trees and they made long growth last year, you can still do some pruning even though the trees have bloomed and are in leaf. Cuts will heal fast and the tree will be stressed very little.

You might hold off on your spring fertilization of fruit trees, especially if they lost their crop to the freeze last year. Many had fertilized last year prior to the April 11th freeze, then lost their crop and consequently, grew a lot of wood which had to be pruned off. So wait until you see that you set a crop in late April to early May to put out your fertilizer. Commercial growers may want to split the applications, put out 1/2 now and the other half out when you see that you have a crop.

If you do not set a crop, you do not put out the second application.

Don't forget the Pecan Short Course, if you are interested in pecan production. The short course will be Wednesday, March 21, in DeLeon at the City Hall. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. with the first topic discussion at 9:00 a.m.

Interesting topics will be discussed by well qualified pecan specialists.

Sub-zero temperatures like those we experienced in December 1989 are hard on warm season perennial grasses. Many homeowners are concerned, and rightfully so, about their St. Augustine. Extension Agronomist, Dr. George Alston, has observed that we have had extensive winter kill on many St. Augustine lawns but little if any damage to common bermudagrass. It appears that damage is more extensive on sandy soils, but is also evident on clay soils. Much of the grass was also extensively damaged on turf forms so re-establishment this spring may be out of the question. Good care from the standpoint of herbicides and fertility will be critical to recovery of the lawn. Some homeowners may be faced with the decision to overseed with bermudagrass or maybe even fescue. However, fescue does best when seeded in the fall. Do not use a herbicide that will be severe on St. Augustine and do consider delaying nitrogen application until the grass starts to grow good in order to keep weed competition to a minimum.

Peggy Pryor (R) Administrator, presented the award to Rosa Cervantez (L).

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as a result of breast cancer. Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate. The cost is only $60.00. A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

Study

a belief that new supplies of surface water will require at least 25 years of advance planning. This conclusion is based on recent progress at the O.H. Ivie Reservoir and similar projects statewide. Other conclusions reached at this preliminary stage of the study include water's obvious importance as a critical commodity for both local community development and growth; the opportunities to share water between local entities having possible surpluses and those with possible shortages will vary, from "likely" to "improbable" based on the cost of distribution systems and the distance between supply and using agencies. The willingness to share surplus water supplies vs. the choice of saving water for future need pose political, economic development and financial ramifications for all involved. Smaller towns and entities must also face hard decisions of cooperation with regard to meeting water needs vs. the loss of independence resulting from cooperative contracts between cities.

Other points of consideration include water quality protection, enhancement and water conservation to help extend our current supplies; also whether or not wastewater recycling for industrial use is a viable option for long-term water supply requirements. The Big Country region has a critical interest in state and federal water and environmental policies. Our region's interests may or may not be similar to adjacent areas of the state. The study, initiated by WCTMWD and supported by the Texas Water Development Board, includes the following participating cities and water supply cooperations: cities of Abilene, Albany, Anson, Baird, Breckenridge, Cisco, Cross Plains, Hamlin, Moran, Stamford, Sweetwater, Tye and Woodson; Shackelford Water Supply Corporation; and Tuscola, Taylor County Fresh Water Supply District No. 1.

Despite limited participation from the 10-county region, the study will evaluate all water needs in the region. This focus is made possible due to the TWDB funding and the need to determine the water requirements of all area residents before the capabilities of current supplies can be fully evaluated. The TWDB has contracted with the District for 50 percent of the study's cost. Abilene and Cisco have contributed additional funds for two special studies. Abilene will learn about the Ivie Reservoir pipeline routing to Abilene, and new options for a Cisco water supply will be evaluated.

Each of the remaining participants has contributed $1,000 in cash plus other in-kind services. Completed work on the study includes obtaining the TWDB grant; execution of an engineering contract; selection and briefing of an advisory committee; detailed surveys of participants' water systems; compilation of maps and other data concerning local water systems; review of existing technical literature about area water supplies; and a draft route study for the Ivie Reservoir line. A briefing for the Cisco City Commission is also set to report preliminary findings concerning the Battle Creek diversion.

Remaining work will include a cost review of possible supply options for each community; rate and legal review of cost-effective options; public discussion of future study results and the development of a final report with project recommendations and timetables.

Mountain Top Church Announces Revival

LEE SHAW

Pastor John C. Jones invites the public to attend services at the Mountain Top Church of Cisco, located on highway 80 E., Sunday through Tuesday nights.

Lee Shaw will be ministering nightly, 6 p.m. Sunday, 7:30 nightly Monday and Tuesday. Lee is a graduate and former President's Scholarship Award winner of Southwestern Theological Seminary. Lee was Campus Director for a campus ministry in North Jackson Mississippi which was attended regularly by three to eight hundred youth. From July 1980 through September 1981 Lee also held a position as Minister of Youth at Briarwood Drive Baptist Church in Jackson, Mississippi.

In September of 1981 Lee began ministering as an evangelist through Inner Life Ministries, Int'l in Richardson, Texas and in 1982 became the president and founder of Common Ground Ministries, which is dedicated to the restoration and reconciliation of families. Local coordinators are meeting this coming week to map plans for upcoming events including the scheduling of an appearance by Mr. Williams here probably sometime this summer. Hopes are that a barbecue and rally will be possible, it was pointed out.

The county reported a believed record primary vote of 384 for Williams Tuesday.

There reportedly were some 1,200 to 1,500 attending the victory party in Austin Doubletree, locals said.

"We'd like for Mr. Williams to get to know Eastland County well, and when he's elected, maybe he can help us bring some more payroll here", one supporter said.

The victory breakfast was at Cisco's Restaurant in Austin.

Sunday School Class Has Social March 6

The Faithful Workers Sunday School Class of East Cisco Baptist church held their quarterly social Tuesday, March 6, at 6:30 p.m. The hostesses were Marie Brock and Omalee Holdridge.

The ladies arrived to find a lovely decorated table on which to place their salads for all to enjoy.

Before the salad supper began, the ladies formed their "circle of love" and repeated their watchword, Psalms 19:14, and Marie Ivie led in prayer.

After the meal, Leona Morton gave the devotional "Love of God" based on John 3:16. She said that Christians should share each other's burdens, love and help each other, which her class does. Also, she said each one should witness for the Lord, and gave the "people search" from East Cisco Church as an example.

Next, Leona gave the secretary's report: $50 for building fund in November, $7 on a Valentine project; $160 for building fund at end of year. The report was approved as read.

The next item of business was the discussion of an Easter Project for Canterbury Villa. It was decided they would make basket floral bouquets (in miniature) one for each patient. March 12 was set as a work day.

Then a motion was made 2nd and passed for the class, after "ingathering Day" to buy a mini-blind for associate pastor's home.

Some salads served were cauliflower, lettuce and tomato, English pea, cabbage and carrot, potato, tuna, fruit and deviled egg and cranberry salad. Also banana pudding, coconut cake, coffee and tea were

Nutrition Program Menu

Do you like to exercise? Do you do it on the spur of the moment or do you do it everyday? Doctors say 3-4 times a week, a 45 minute walk is better than no walk. But regular exercise is even better. When exercising outdoors how about following these safety tips: 1. Leave your radio at home so you can hear anyone approaching you. Let the teenagers have the radios, perhaps their hearing is better than ours. 2. Walk with a friend. You will enjoy it more and it is safer. 3. Vary your route in walking. It becomes monotonous to walk the same route. Be suspicious of anyone who pulls alongside of you in a car and asks for directions. If you do not walk how about establishing a schedule? In the meantime, don't forget to call your Senior Center for a nutritious luncheon: Cisco 442-1557 or Eastland 629-1382. Call the centers for Tax Assistance.
